Tonight, look for lows in the upper 60s with a 20 percent chance of rain. Tomorrow, skies will be partly-cloudy with an expected high in the low 90s with a slight chance of thunderstorms.

Off the wall: Quack up

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Living near Wheeling Creek isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Over the years the ducks who took up residence there have multiplied into a virtual waddling army, prompting complaints that the creatures foul streets, block sidewalks and generally make life miserable.

So, as any other red-blooded Americans would do, the residents went to court. Now, you can't sue a duck. So they did the next best thing.

They sued the city. Ohio County Circuit Judge Callie Tsapis, responding Friday to their plight, told the city to trim the size of the duck flock.

A number of the ducks are to be moved to the nearby city of Bethany, although Tsapis did not specify how many.

But there's more to the story. Five duck lovers also went to court, fighting a city ordinance banning duck feedings. Under the edict, which is being suspended for 60 days, anyone caught feeding ducks could be fined $500 and jailed for 30 days.

Tsapis ordered city officials to review the problem in early September to see whether the ordinance must be revived.

House approves tax increase

School reform bill goes to White

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas House of Representatives approved a $4.8 billion tax package Saturday evening for education reforms and public highways — the first general tax hike since 1971.

Texas legislators also adopted a compromise education reform bill. First the Senate and then the House accepted the compromises Saturday of a conference committee that worked out differences between the House-passed and Senate-passed bills to restructure the state's public education system. That action sent the bill to Gov. Mark White for his signature.

White called the current special session to consider school reform measures proposed by the Select Committee on Public Education, headed by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot. The final product included many of those recommendations, but left out some and modified others.

White came to the Senate moments after the 22-9 vote to praise the bill as "the finest education reform bill ever passed" in Texas and possibly in the nation.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, voted against the education reform package.

In answer to questions called from senators, White assured them he would not let legislators go home until both the reform bill and a tax bill to fund it were finally passed.

The current 30-day session ends at midnight Tuesday, but White could call another one at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday if the tax bill is stalled. "I feel certain we didn't come down here not to complete the job," he said.

The approved education bill provides a major revamping of the Texas educational process, including a temporarily appointed, 15-member State Board of Education, equalization of state aid to local districts, competency testing for teachers and a career ladder to reward top-quality teachers. Perot had lobbied hard for a permanently appointed education board, but that proved too difficult to pass.

Barbecue battle gets cops' goat

By LUIS RIOS
Staff Writer

Big Spring Police Department Sgt. Fred Pace should have seriously considered entering his Colorado barbecued elk recipe at the Second Annual Big Spring Whoop and Holler Bar-B-Q Cookoff at the rodeo grounds Saturday.

Instead, the Big Spring Police Department Wranglers went with the goat and brisket entries and failed to place in this year's competition.

The 1984 trophy for the goat entry went to the Bill Brothers team sponsored by the Citizens Credit Union, who ousted 12 other teams to take the top spot. The brisket honors went to Po-Boy's, sponsored by the Coahoma State Bank. The Bill Brothers team also took home the Best Costume plaque. The best pit plaque went to Choate Co.'s Armadillo Express.

The Wranglers, who placed second in last year's competition, said they expected to maybe win or place in this year's cookoff.

However, the team was unable to place in the top three spots. The other finishers were the Safeway Chuchwagon Gang, second place in

POPPIE POWER — Edyth Pedro, quartermaster of the local VFW post, offers a flower for sale Saturday as the organization raised money for disabled veterans.

Poppie power

Patriotism blooms as vets sell flowers for disabled

By LUIS RIOS
Staff Writer

Edyth Pedro and S.N. Lewis are not your typical flower children. On the eve of the July 4th holiday, they recalled the past and voiced their opinion on the present attitude and sentiment of the Americans toward the U.S. military as they sold flowers.

Mrs. Pedro, 65, and Lewis, 55, both members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2013 of Howard County, were at the Big Spring Mail selling poppies Saturday afternoon.

Funds from the annual sale of the small white poppies will benefit the disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of the deceased veterans.

Members of the local post were at various locations in Big Spring selling the poppies. The members were stationed at the two malls, the TG&Y store, Wal-Mart, the U.S. Post Office and the Safeway store at the College Park Shopping Center.

The Big Springers said they were somewhat disenchanted with the views of Americans toward the military and the lack of patriotism being exemplified.

"The people are not as patriotic," Lewis said. "And I just don't know why."

"Maybe it is because we have not had a war," said Mrs. Pedro. "The Vietnam War was not considered a war. But you talk to the fellows that were there and it was definitely a war."

'The people are not as patriotic...I just don't know why.'

Pedro also said that the Americans have lost their faith in their leaders.

"They are just serving as bad examples for the young American people," she said. "And the schools are not teaching patriotism any more. In our society today, we have more materialistic things and diversions."

Lewis said it was not until 12 years after the Vietnam War that he was able to talk about his experiences.

"It is really hard to talk about a war if you have not seen combat," said the Korean and Vietnam veteran. "We sell poppies to raise funds and also remind the people that there are still veterans out there in the world that need help."

Taking the plunge

BULLSEYE — Big Spring Herald Publisher Tom Watson, perched in a dunking booth at Highland Pontiac, warns a softball thrower about the consequences of hitting the bull's-eye. Despite his protestations, the ball found the mark, sending Watson somewhat chagrined (middle) into the water tank. All was in good fun, however, as Watson

Weather

Fair skies prevail

By The Associated Press

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms remained active Saturday across South Central and Southeast Texas and along the Louisiana border. Elsewhere in the state, skies were fair.

Temperatures were in the 80s and 90s with a few 100s in the South and Southwest cities, the National Weather Service said. Winds were from 5 to 15 mph.

Temperatures plummeted from 100 to 76 degrees in 20 minutes at the San Antonio International Airport Saturday afternoon when a thunderstorm carrying winds gusting to 51 miles per hour struck, the weather service said.

The forecast called for widely scattered afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms Sunday in the far West, Panhandle, East and Southeast Texas. Little change in temperatures was expected across the state Sunday.

The South Texas forecast called for partly cloudy skies through Monday with widely scattered thunderstorms, lows in the 70s and highs mainly in the 90s. Along the coast, highs should be in the upper 80s.

Widely scattered and mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms were expected in West Texas through Monday, with warmer nighttime temperatures in the north. Lows Sunday night should be around 65 in the Panhandle and mountains and in the 70s in the southeast and Big Bend. Highs Sunday and Monday will range from mid 80s in the Panhandle to the 100s in the valleys of Big Bend, the weather service said.

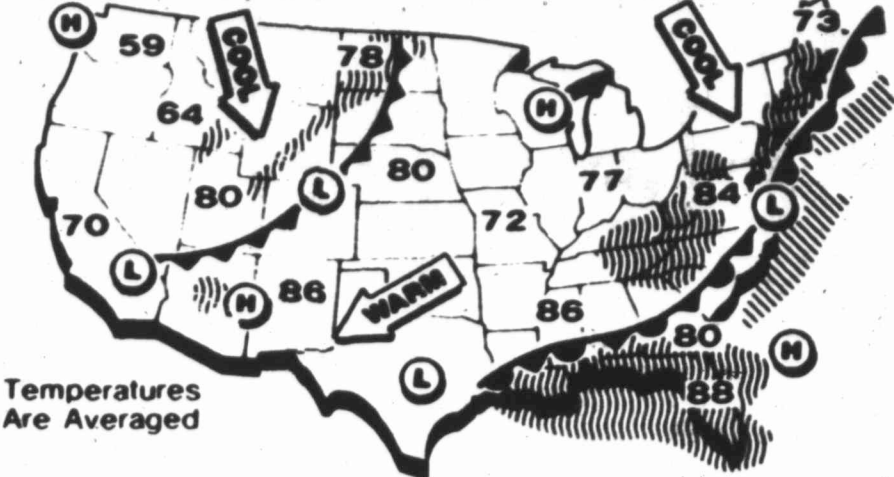

North Texas should be partly cloudy Sunday and Monday with widely scattered thunderstorms and lows Sunday night from 67 to 73. The highs Sunday will range from 88 to 96, the weather service said.

Thunderstorms blustered along the Gulf Coast and rain in torrents drenched the Mid Atlantic states Saturday, breaking a 69-year-old wet-weather record in New York City.

the goat entry; and the Choate Co.-sponsored Armadillo Express team placed third in the goat competition.

In the brisket cookoff, second place went to Armadillo Express and third went to Dilla Team sponsored by Tony Thixson.

Pace, who is formerly of Delta, Colo., barbecued elk Saturday; but unfortunately not as an entry.

Pace is with the Crime Prevention unit of the police department. He was joined by teammates Bill King, Danny Crawford, Roy Osborne, Lonnie Smith, Drew Bavin, and Ken Hallmark. Hallmark is the President of the Police Association and heads the Wranglers' barbecue cookoff team.

This is the second year the Wranglers have competed in cookoff competition, Pace said. Before the judging began at 5 p.m., Pace said their sauce would probably be the key to winning the cookoff.

However, the judges ended the Wranglers' hopes of capturing the coveted trophy. But the Big Spring cookoff is not the last contest the Wrangler hope to enter this year, Pace said.

"We will try to go the Brady goat cookoff," Pace said. "The competition will be pretty tough, and there will be teams from all over. The whole idea is having lots of fun.

meeting people and enjoying yourself."

And that seemed to be the atmosphere at the cookoff as approximately 60 to 75 people battled the heat to share in the competition.

The recipe for the Wranglers was concocted by newcomer Crawford: brown sugar, vinegar, lemon, salt, black pepper, tomato sauce and other ingredients that would add the needed flavor to win the judges over.

"It usually takes over four hours to cook the meat," Crawford said. He said the time also depended on how hot the fire was during the entire cooking process.

"I got the sauce recipe from my dad," Crawford said. "It has been in the family for a while."

Cookoff chairman Sherrie Bordofsky said she was pleased with the turnout for this year's competition.

"It's really been good," she said. "A thing like this you need to build up. We are going to try to advertise it all over the state."

The trophies for the cookoff were donated by Coors distributor Tom Osborne, and the plates, bread and napkins were donated by Safeway, said Bordofsky. The judges for the 1984 cookoff were John Price, Travis Mauldin and Charlie Merritt. Police Chief Rick Turner also served as second chairman for the cookoff.

Tax bill

education bill was delayed by lengthy debate over a tax package to fund the education reform measure and proposed highway improvements. But a quick and final vote of 92-55 put the education package over the final hurdle.

On taxes, Texas legislators decided to extend the sales tax to advertising, cable-television, laundry and cleaning, and hiking motor vehicle registration and gasoline taxes. Alcohol and cigarette and some business taxes also will climb.

Senate consideration of the tax package is expected Sunday. The special legislative session is set to end at midnight Tuesday.

Before approving the package in an article-by-article vote after seven hours of debate, House members defeated amendments calling for a corporate profits tax, higher oil and gas severance taxes and industrial utilities taxes.

A tuition hike for resident Texas college students was removed from the bill in a 76-62 vote, although tuition for out-of-state and foreign students will be boosted.

Shaw failed 94-31 in his pitch for a half-cent sales tax increase to replace unpopular taxes on advertising and personal services, cable television, amusements and some other items included in the bill.

But lawmakers later voted to strike those advertising, personal and other taxes noted by Shaw in a 100-48 vote — removing $1.2 billion from the tax package and jeopardizing passage of the $2.8 billion education bill that passed both Houses and went to Gov. Mark White for his signature.

Shaw voted to approve the taxes on advertising and other items in that portion of the bill.

White quickly made a rare on-the-floor, 15-minute lobbying effort to woo support those provisions. House Speaker Gib Lewis' lieutenants also walked the floor with vote tallies in hand, courting votes.

Rep. Rodney Tow, D-Conroe, then requested House members to reconsider and the advertising, personal and other service taxes were restored — 75-69.

Again, Shaw supported approval. "I knew it would be very close," White said. He had been watching a television monitor of House debate in his Capitol office when the unfavorable vote occurred.

On tuition, Rep. Wilhelms Delco, D-Austin, complained that a proposal to boost those fees by Reps. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, and Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, was a "back-door" effort.

She convinced the House to let her higher education committee bring a plan to the 1985 Legislature for "a reasonable and equitable increase" in tuition, although she went along with a hike for non-resident students.

Shaw supported Ms. Delco's proposal.

Thompson and Peveto sought to gradually boost resident tuition to 15 percent of the cost. It is currently about 4 percent, they said.

Thompson said he greatly doubts that a tuition hike will be successful in the next legislature.

Noted playwright
Lillian Hellman
dead at age 79

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Playwright Lillian Hellman, a woman with "a dazzling mind" whose "The Little Foxes" became a classic portrayal of a wealthy and rapacious Southern family, died Saturday at the age of 79.

Miss Hellman, whose work also was the basis for the movie "Julia," died of cardiac arrest at Martha's Vineyard Hospital, near her summer home on Vineyard Haven Harbor, said nursing supervisor Katie DeHertogh. She had been taken to the hospital Friday night.

Peter Feibleman, an author and close friend, said in Los Angeles that Miss Hellman had been seriously ill for about 1½ years and was in "pretty severe discomfort."

"It's the best thing that could have happened to her and the worst thing that could have happened to those of us who love her," said Feibleman, a friend for 40 years and "the closest to family that she had."

Novelist and journalist John Hersey, another close friend and a neighbor of Miss Hellman on the resort island of Martha's Vineyard, said she fought her infirmity — as she fought for her ideals — "every inch of the way."

"Her fight all through her life was to have existence better than it could be for most human beings. So it was difficult going but always exhilarating to be with her," Hersey said. "She was, I think, one of the four or five most important playwrights we've had in this time."

Actress Maureen Stapleton, a 30-year friend who appeared in Miss Hellman's 1960 play "Toys in the Attic," remembered her as "a dazzling mind and wit, and great fun to be with." She said that despite Miss Hellman's illness, "the mind never stopped. It was still so dazzling that you thought she'd last forever."

"The thing that made it exciting to be around her was that she was a dramatist in every sentence of her spoken life," Hersey said. "Everything she experienced she spoke about as if it were the scene in a play. She became the characters and with an extraordinary vividness brought everything right in front of your eyes."

Miss Hellman's career lasted five decades, from her first success as a playwright with "The Children's Hour" in 1934 to her eventual dissatisfaction with the commercial theater and her resurgence with books based on reminiscences of her life.

The hospital and "Who's Who" gave her age as 77, saying she was born June 20, 1907, in New Orleans. However, "Current Biography" listed her birthdate as 1905, making her 79. A check of the New Orleans Times-Democrat and the New Orleans Daily Picayune for June 1905 shows the announcement of a daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Max B. Hellman. No such announcement was found in the newspapers in 1907.

...died Saturday

She once said the theater was an institution "out of which I've made a very good living and which has given me a great deal of pleasure."

She wrote at least three books that might be considered memoirs: "Pentimento" in 1973, "An Unfinished Woman" in 1969 and "Scoundrel Time" in 1976.

The movie "Julia," which starred Vanessa Redgrave in the title role, Jane Fonda as Miss Hellman and Jason Robards as mystery writer Dashiell Hammett, Miss Hellman's companion and lover, was based on a chapter from "Pentimento."

She had a long and stormy relationship with Hammett, the private detective-turned-author who wrote such detective classics as "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Thin Man." They met in 1931 and were together off and on until his death in 1961. She had been married in 1925 to playwright and author Arthur Kober, but they were divorced seven years later.

Her plays "The Little Foxes" in 1939 and "Another Part of the Forest" in 1946 were a chilling study of a Southern family. Actress Elizabeth Taylor starred in a 1981 Broadway production of "The Little Foxes."

Her writings also had international political themes such as isolationism and the rise of fascism, in "Watch on the Rhine" in 1941 and "The Searching Wind" in 1944.

In 1952 her interest in left-wing causes led to an invitation to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee. She denied that she was a member of the Communist Party, but refused to answer questions about possible earlier involvement.

BOOTHBAY HARBOR — Actor James Cagney was released from St. Andrew's Hospital in this Maine resort town Saturday after two weeks recovering from a heart attack, a spokeswoman said.

The 84-year-old actor was driven to a nearby inn, where he planned to spend a week before returning to his home in New York, said Marge Zimmermann, a Cagney spokeswoman.

Mrs. Zimmermann said Cagney was recovering well and was eager to be released from the hospital.

He was vacationing with his wife, Willy, at a Boothbay hotel when he suffered a heart attack on June 16.

A street named Marty

PHOENIX — Fans of the late Marty Robbins have scrapped plans to rename a Phoenix street in his honor after learning that the country-western singer's family opposed the move.

Friends of Marty Robbins Inc. was started last year by unemployed singer Chet Walker to gather 36,500 signatures and force a referendum in Phoenix and Glendale, a suburb, on renaming Grand Avenue as "Marty Robbins Parkway."

Walker also wanted officials to build a statue of Robbins, a Glendale native who died in 1982, and a country-music conservatory in Robbins' name.

Some area businessmen opposed the change. Robbins' widow, Marizona, and son, Ronnie, asked through their lawyers that the effort be abandoned.

"We operated in the red all along," said Friends' secretary-treasurer Cheri Amick. "All the money we spent was out of our own pockets."

Hawaii volcano erupts

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — Kilauea Volcano erupted Saturday in 1,500-foot lava fountains visible 65 miles away, an official observer said.

The eruption began at 10:45 a.m. HST at Pu'u O vent, said Tom Wright, scientist in charge of the U.S. Geological Survey's Volcano Observatory.

The fountains, erupting over a 200-foot spatter cone, could be seen from Hilo, about 65 miles away, Wright said.

There was no immediate indication of the direction of the lava flow.

The outburst is the 21st phase of the eruption which began Jan. 3, 1983. The previous phase, June 7-8, lasted nine hours.

Residents of the sparsely-populated Royal Gardens subdivision on the lower slopes of the volcano have had to evacuate during six of the previous phases. Lava flows have destroyed nearly a dozen structures and caused $4 million damage.

On March 30, Kilauea and the larger Mauna Loa were in simultaneous eruption for the first time since 1868. Scientists do not expect any eruption at Mauna Loa in the near future.

Bolivian leader rescued

President Zuazo kidnapped by police, military

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Hernan Siles Zuazo was rescued unharmed from a La Paz warehouse Saturday, 10 hours after he was kidnapped by right-wing police and military officers trying to trigger a coup, government officials said.

Jorge Crespo, foreign affairs undersecretary, said the president and some of his armed abductors were found in a warehouse at the intersection of Honduras and United States streets. Siles Zuazo spoke of six kidnapers.

"The kidnapers, dressed in civilian clothes, were holding a pistol to his head when we found him, and threatened to kill him," Crespo said.

He said he and Finance Minister Oscar Bonifaz negotiated for 15 minutes with the kidnapers to gain the president's release. They were demanding safe passage to the Paraguayan Embassy and expense money, Crespo added.

He did not say if they were given any money, but Siles Zuazo, in a jubilant reunion with friends when he returned to the presidential palace, said his abductors had been delivered to the Argentine Embassy, where they presumably asked for political asylum.

Siles Zuazo, who in 1982 became Bolivia's first popularly elected president in 18 years, had been seized from his bedroom at dawn.

When he returned to the presidential palace, aides, relatives, Cabinet members, labor union leader and members of the armed forces chief of staff cheered and embraced him.

Minutes later, he appeared on a balcony, wearing a gray sports coat and slacks and surrounded by soldiers. Many of the onlookers wept as he told them, "Together we will never be beaten."

"When one is strong, there is the capacity to be generous, and for that reason we have left my six captors at the Argentine Embassy," he added.

The military high command had denounced the abduction and ordered soldiers confined to their barracks. The center-left coalition Cabinet took control of the nation in Siles Zuazo's absence, and no disturbances were reported.

Just before Siles Zuazo was found, Cabinet Secretary Miguel Urioste said, "An attempt to create the conditions for a military coup has failed and the government is in total control of the country."

The commander-in-chief of the armed forces said after meeting with the Cabinet that the military "repudiated this attempt and maintain unalterable their support for the constitution, the democratic process installed Oct. 10, 1982 and President Hernan Siles Zuazo."

Defense Minister Manuel Cardenas Mallo said about 60 armed police and soldiers, led by a Lt. Celso Campos Pinto, entered Siles Zuazo's palace quarters at 5:30 a.m., awakened him and took him away.

Government sources said members of the Leopards, an elite anti-narcotics unit trained by agents of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, took part in the kidnapping.

The U.S. Embassy issued a statement saying that "efforts to stage a coup do not have the support of the U.S. government. The American government has backed and will continue to back the democratic process" in Bolivia, a poor, landlocked South American nation.

The Leopards headquarters was occupied by military police Saturday afternoon and its commanding officer, German Linares, was arrested, witnesses reported.

Antonio Aranibar, a member of the government's coalition executive committee, said that Col. Rolando Saravia, a right-wing officer, had been identified as head of the attempted coup.

News in brief

Guatemala goes to polls

GUATEMALA CITY — Guatemala, after two military coups in two years, takes a hesitant step toward democracy Sunday in the election of a National Assembly to write a new constitution.

Civilian political leaders said the assembly may become a testing ground to determine how much power the military is willing to relinquish.

The chief of state, Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, said in a stern pre-election speech that the 88-member assembly will be limited to writing the constitution and electoral and habeas corpus laws.

Turner new Canada PM

OTTAWA (AP) — John Turner was sworn in Saturday as Canada's 17th prime minister, saying he was giving "a massive and fundamental new look" to the government even though most of his ministers are veterans from the Cabinets of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Trudeau ended more than 15 years in power — the longest tenure among current Western leaders — in a private ceremony at the residence of Governor General Jeanne Sauve at 8:15 a.m.

Burning tanker towed

BAHRAIN — Salvage tugs towed the Swiss-owned oil supertanker Tiburon — "burning like a furnace" from an Iraqi missile hit — out of the Iraq-Iran war zone Saturday, marine sources reported.

Firefighters struggled to save the vessel and its $50 million cargo.

A spokesman for the Dutch salvage company Smit International said towing of the 260,500-ton Tiburon was "extremely slow, and most of the vessel is still burning like a furnace." The spokesman, who did not want to be identified, said the ship was to be towed to Bahrain.

Israel returns ferry

BEIRUT — A Lebanese ferry which Israeli gunboats diverted at sea to Israel returned from captivity Saturday, with all 65 of its passengers reported accounted for. President Amin Gemayel's administration called Israel's action "an act of piracy."

The passengers were questioned in Israel before they were released.

Mexico today

Extradition fails

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Mexican request for the extradition of former PEMEX official Jesus Chavarria Garcia has been turned down by Chile, the attorney general's office says.

In a statement Friday, the attorney general's office said it had received a communication from the Chilean government that it would not extradite Chavarria Garcia, purchasing manager for the government oil monopoly under the 1976-82 administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Chavarria Garcia was arrested May 2 in Santiago, the Chilean capital, on a provisional two-months warrant issued by a Chilean court at the Mexican government's request.

A Federal Court in Mexico City last year issued a warrant for Chavarria Garcia's arrest on two charges of fraud totalling $550,000 in purchases of equipment for PEMEX.

Finance defended

MEXICO CITY — Foreign Secretary Bernardo Sepulveda says the meeting of Latin American debtor nations in Colombia was "an act of political responsibility to assure that the international financial system operates viably."

Sepulveda also discounted reports that the subsequent rise in U.S. prime interest rates was "an act of anger by the international banking system."

The meeting at Cartagena, Colombia showed that the Latin American nations have the political will to meet their foreign obligations, he said, adding that the debtor nations want repayment terms that will not be impossible to meet.

"What is required is that the cost of money not become something so onerous that it impedes payment," he said.

U.S. bill blasted

MEXICO CITY — The Mexican government has criticized a recently-passed U.S. immigration bill, saying the migrant labor issue will continue to be fundamental to U.S.-Mexican relations.

In a statement, the government said the legislation "contradicts the 14th Amendment" of the U.S. Constitution which guarantees equal protection under the law.

The government also said it will use its resources, including its consular offices in the United States, to protect Mexican workers in America.

A. The bank or mortgage institution which loaned you the money to buy your home doesn't think so, especially inasmuch as they also have a very large vested interest in your home — financially. This clause is a standard part of many home mortgage contracts, for the protection of the lender until the mortgage is paid off.

Look homeward, Senators, on site

The Texas Senate last week said "no" to the feds who are looking to West Texas as a place to dump high-level radioactive waste. Actually, state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said, "no, no, no."

Senators don't have the same firm convictions about disposing of low-level radioactive wastes, however. Borden County still is in the running as a site even while a land option has been signed in Garza County.

Sentiments about the U.S. held by the Senate are precisely the same as those held by Borden County residents about the state. Borden's population, sparse as it may be, has made it explicitly clear they want nothing to do with waste dumps — high-level, low-level or anything in between.

Why Lloyd Doggett would develop a sudden consuming concern for the land west of his Hill County is something of a mystery, too. It couldn't have anything to do with the U.S. Senate race, could it? Genius is not required to figure out that while Doggett has strength in urban Texas, he's something of a stranger in rural Texas, particularly West Texas. He must be widening his horizons now that he is a candidate for statewide office. Last week he co-sponsored a resolution telling the U.S. Department of Energy to "look elsewhere" for nuclear waste sites.

Doggett's support of West Texas is appreciated, whatever his political motivation may be. Now if those firm convictions can be converted to influence the state's Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority, we'd really have something to cheer about.

Talking baseball

Being a fan of the New York Yankees, contrary to myth, has never been easy. When they win, you're hated; when they lose, you're ridiculed. So be it: the followers of Babe Ruth never expected to be transported to heaven on a feather bed.

But I find envy easier to endure than derision, and the last few seasons have been long on the latter. This is especially true for me, since a few unkind readers delight in reminding me that I once said a kind word for George Steinbrenner. In taking this opportunity to recant, I'm merely following his example. When players don't win, George gets rid of them. George isn't winning. Get rid of him.

Not that it's all his fault. This year the professional basketball season, which is supposed to be confined to winter, lasted until the middle of June. Come to think of it, winter itself lasted until the middle of June. Maybe the Yankees, confused by all this, think they're still in spring training.

They have other reasons to be confused, as do we all. The most conspicuous is that while the Yankees are struggling to stay out of the cellar, they can look over to the National League East and find, perched atop the heap ... the Chicago Cubs.

This is as mysterious as if Joe DiMaggio's place in the Hall of Fame were to be suddenly usurped by Emil Verban. Baseball prognosticators, who can make a high inside fastball sound more complicated than the Second Law of Thermodynamics, have tried valiantly to explain the reversal — the Yankees have weak pitching, the Cubs have traded well.

Insolent folks. Over the 108-year course of major league baseball history, the Yankees have often had weak pitching and the Cubs have often traded for good players (or, at least, players who were good 'til the Cubs got them). Things like that matter about as much as whether the moon is in Sagittarius. What has been foreordained since the beginning of time — that the Yankees win and the Cubs lose — can't be overturned by a sorearmed southpaw or a guileful general manager.

There is only one good explanation, namely that someone is having a little fun at our expense. You see, the Yankees really are winning, and the Cubs really are losing. How do I explain the standings? Simple. The Yankees and Cubs have traded places in the standings because they've traded places. The Yankees are winning, but they're doing it in the Cubs' uniforms. Vice versa for the Cubs. It's a modern variation on "The Prince and the Pauper."

Think about it. Who ever heard of Bob Dernier or Gary Matthews until now? The Cubs claim they got them from the Phillies — the Cubs swear they got all their players from the Phillies — but no one has ever offered persuasive documentary evidence.

There's plenty of reason for doubt. In the first place, if they're this good, the Phillies wouldn't have given them up — especially for the likes of Ivan DeJesus. In the second place, they play too much like Yankees to be anything else.

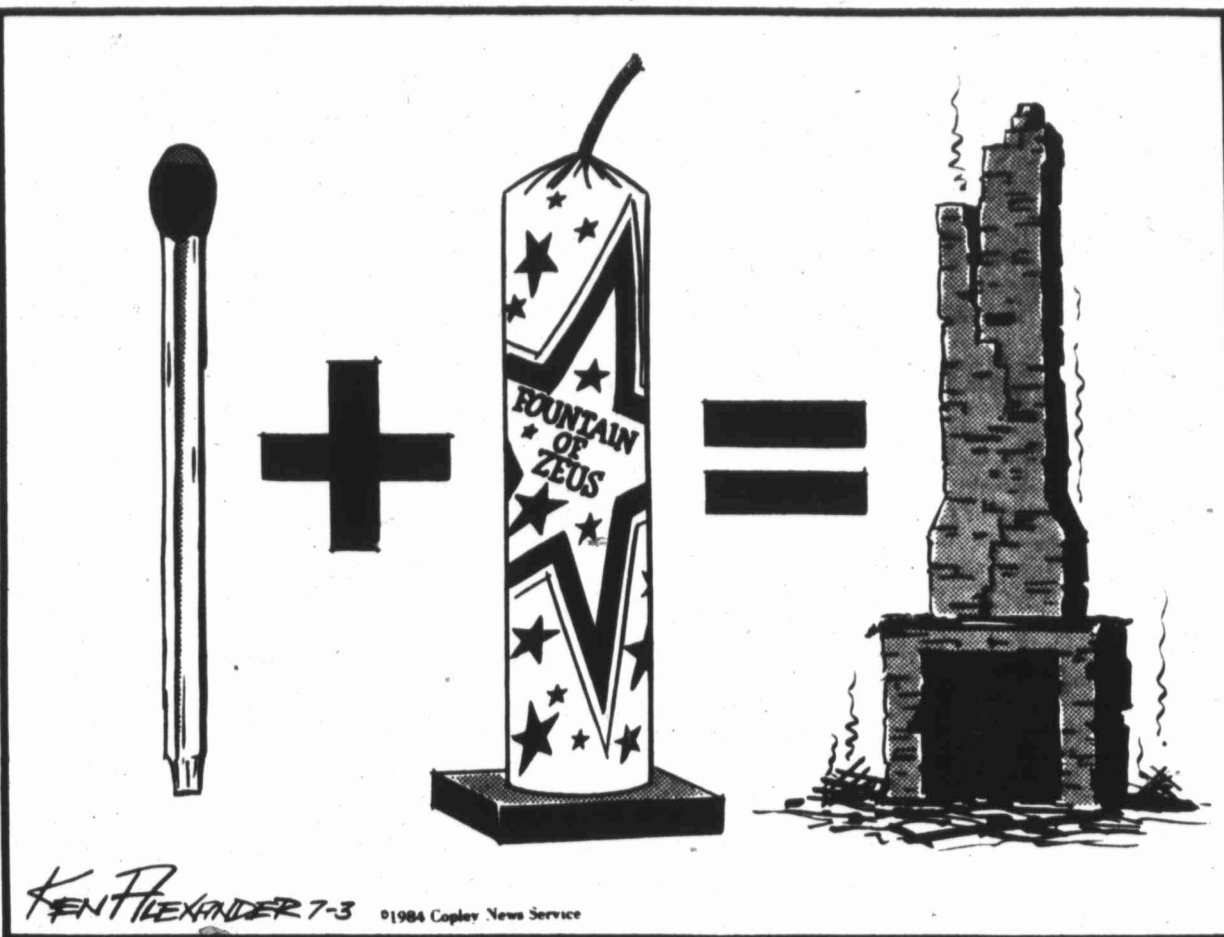

Meanwhile, the Yankees are fielding players with names like Dennis Rasmussen and Omar Moreno. Does Dennis Rasmussen sound like someone who should be wearing the same pinstripes that once adorned Mickey Mantle? Can you see the Yankees erecting one of those bronze monuments in center field to honor Omar Moreno? Don't make me laugh. Those guys were born to be Cubs. Those guys are Cubs.

It's easy to see why both teams would go along with the ruse. Take the Yankees. Who wants to play baseball in the roughest part of New York City, in front of the people who mostly belong in jail, mental wards or New Wave rock groups, when you could be playing within the sun-baked, ivy-covered walls of Wrigley Field, in front of wholesome, well-adjusted Chicagoans? And the Cubs can be forgiven for suspecting the friendly confines are a jinx and wanting to see if Yankee Stadium might be more accommodating.

But you can't move the Yankees to Chicago and the Cubs to New York — not openly, anyway. The "New York Cubs" would sound pretty silly. So the teams just traded rosters.

No one's the wiser — least of all those long-suffering, delirious Cubs fans, who are smitten with dreams of a pennant. To Yankee fans, winning a pennant is old hat. The team needed a new challenge. If they can do it while disguised as Cubs, they can do anything.

Readers take TV guides to heart

If a newspaper wants to gauge the intensity of reader loyalty, there's a tested method of doing so: change the way television listings appear in the paper.

As assistant managing editor of the Abilene newspaper, one of the departments I supervised was the Sunday TV section. In a field as rapidly changing as television, TV program guides can be outdated quickly — especially in a larger city where cable companies have been experimenting with what stations to carry. As a special project, I set out to determine not only all the cable programs offered to Abilene viewers, but also what was being beamed into homes spanning the 18 or so counties the Abilene Reporter-News covers.

After a year of work, I developed what I considered a "super guide." Literally, it was everything anyone could possibly want to know about TV. It was a time-consuming and frustrating project. After polling every cable company and TV station in the 18-county region, duplication had to be eliminated and proper coverage and format developed. It required a hefty space commitment from the newspaper — coverage of 31 channels compared to full service programming for only about 10 in the old guide. It was costly. The New York-based firm which provides the programming charges for its service on a per-channel basis. And it was a disaster.

Readers were up in arms over this new-fangled thing. Calls and letters of complaint flooded the newspaper. I'd expected bouquets and got brickbats. Some complained because there were too many channels listed. Some said the type was too small. Some fretted because the pay-TV channels (Showtime, HBO and so on) were too hard to figure out.

Underlying all the fuss, though, was the real problem — change itself. Readers had been using their guide for years. They were comfortable with it. Never mind that it was antiquated. Readers knew what to expect and where to find it. It was theirs, by golly, and here the newspaper had gone and messed it up.

It took several months to calm the waters, time for readers to grow familiar with the new guide and find its advantages — to accept the change. Now, they love it. My successor in Abilene looked at redoing the guide; newsroom managers with a sense of recent history steered him away from the idea.

TV guide tussles are common for newspapers. Any changes are apt to meet with the same resistance I experienced. And it's a juggling act to publish enough information, without publishing so much that it's too complex to comprehend. As one newspaper staffer told

Presstime, a newspaper trade publication: "Readers want larger type, full-size grids, postage stamp-size books and no page turning."

The TV news service in the Herald is somewhat simpler than in larger cities. Here, TV viewers have little choice whether to take cable or not. With only one network affiliate available locally without cable, nearly all residents subscribe to basic cable service. Accordingly, the newspaper publishes information about everything on the cable between channels 2 and 13.

We stop short of listing the channels available with premium offerings like Showtime or Movie Channel. We feel little commitment to spend money and space on premium TV, programming which reaches a minority of residents and for which subscribers already receive a mailed-out guide.

TV guides are a matter of balance, and I feel comfortable with ours. But that doesn't mean we don't get an occasional complaint. Before a recent major boxing event, we got a call from a reader frantically concerned about the time of the bout. We checked the stories about the fight and our TV guide without success. Finally we figured out why the caller wanted to know the time. He owned a satellite dish. Now that's a brave new world.

Billy Graham

Misery enhances God's value

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I used to believe in God, but several years ago I decided I wanted to live it up and turned my back on him. Now I guess I'm paying the price because I am miserable and have lots of problems. Is God punishing me? I thought he was supposed to be a loving God. I'm confused. — J.H.D.

DEAR J.H.D.: Let me ask you this: If you were not miserable right now would you honestly be giving any thought to God and what place he should have in your life? I doubt it. You see, sometimes we will never listen to God until we get into very difficult situations. Only then can God get through to us because we have shut him out of our lives.

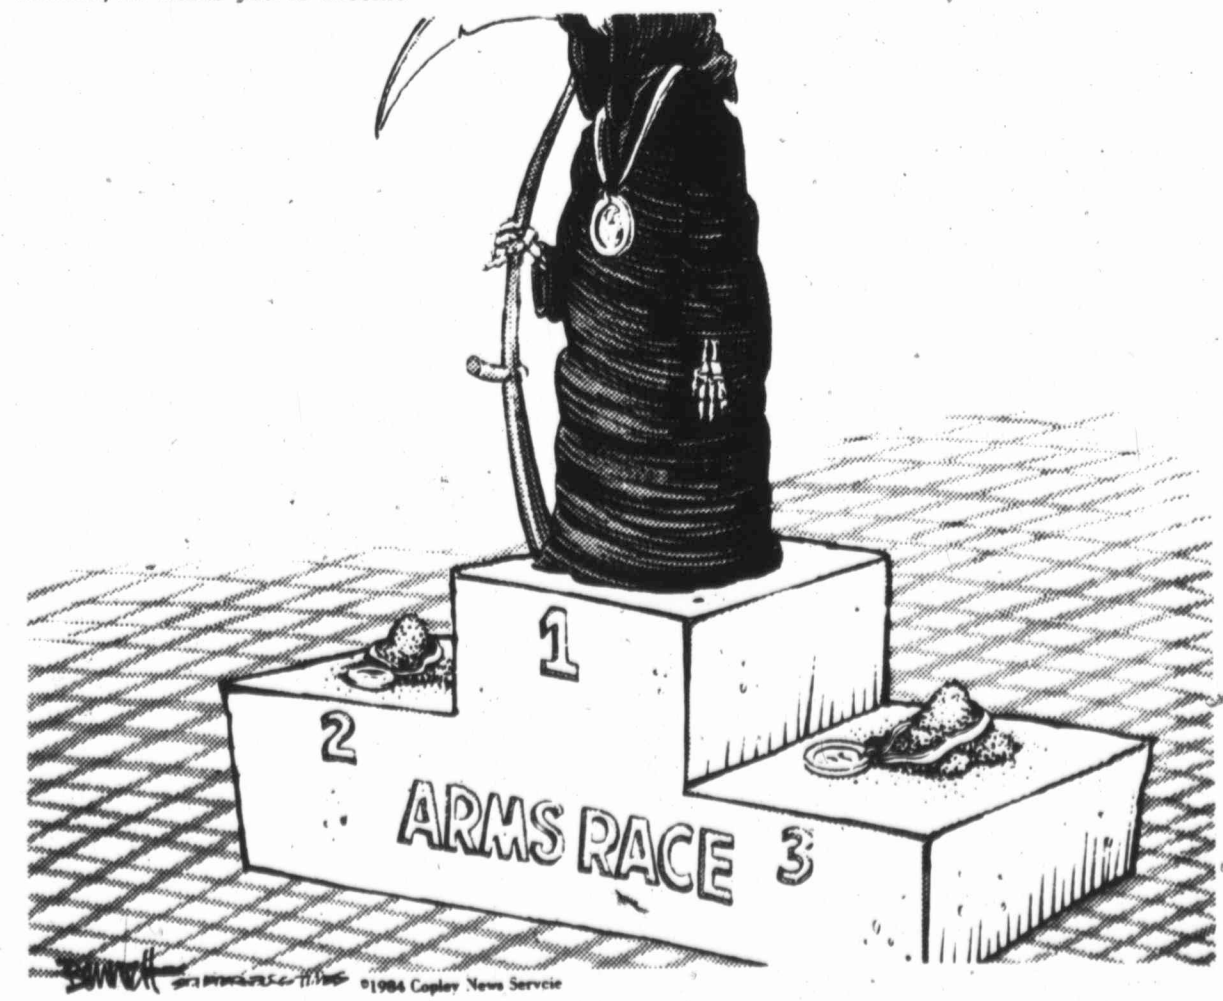

The Bible says, "The Lord disciplines those he loves, ... Our fathers disciplined us for a little while as they thought best; but God disciplines us for our good, that we may share in his holiness" (Hebrews 12:6, 10). Think of a young child who has been told by his parents not to go near a deep and dangerous river. But suppose the child gets curious and decides to go there anyway. When his disobedience is discovered, his parents will discipline him so he will not go near that place again. Why do they do it? Do they do it because they hate the child and want to make him miserable? Not at all! They do it because they love him and do not want him to come to any harm.

In the same way God loves you — only much deeper than any human father could love you. He loves you so much he sent his only Son to the cross to die for your sins. He has allowed this to happen so you will realize your need of Christ. Yes, sin makes your life miserable — but God loves you, and does not want you to destroy yourself through sin. Instead, he wants you to become his child by committing your life to Jesus Christ. Turn to Christ. He will forgive you, and he will set your feet on the right path.

Around The Rim

By KEITH BRISCOE

Jesse scores

I have been asked what I think of Jesse Jackson's private diplomatic victories last week in Havana.

I think Jackson has performed a great deed. I think Castro has acted magnanimously. And I think the U.S. administration will probably lose a golden opportunity to score a tremendous diplomatic coup.

I'm not a big fan of Jackson. His foreign policy ideas are often naive and sometimes foolish. He embraces anti-Semites. And he threatens to rip the fabric of the Democratic party.

But you've got to respect a guy who with olive branch alone can liberate Americans from foreign jails and free political prisoners of another nationality.

I'm not a big fan of Castro, either. He's been an agitator, a hater of America, a puppet of Moscow.

But the events of last week give clear evidence that El Jefe has had a change of heart.

Castro has time and again proclaimed he would not talk to the U.S. unless we ended our embargo against his island and disavowed intentions to topple his government.

Now Fidel, in the short span of one week, has released American prisoners, granted exit to political opponents, promised to negotiate the withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola, and expressed a desire to restore relations with the U.S.

All this with no conditions. Cuba, for a quarter century Russia's dagger aimed at the belly of America, has now sheathed the blade and extended the hand of friendship.

Castro has taken the first step toward breaking the ice in the chilly relations between our countries. And our government will not thaw its Cold War view of the Caribbean.

President Reagan has not only down-played Jackson's achievements and Castro's gestures. The president even refuses to meet with Jackson to find out what Castro's saying.

To Reagan — a moralist more than a chief executive — the really important matters are preventing teen-agers from buying alcohol and allowing religious groups to assemble in public schools.

Cuba has tremendous pull in Central America. We can take advantage of that, or we can fight that.

I have been to Castro's Cuba. They love us. They hate us. Affection and paranoia. I considered them dangerous.

But Jackson has opened the door. Castro has broken with the past to forge a new future. What will we do?

Give peace a chance. Run, Jesse. Run.

Measles spread to New Mexico

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Two more cases of measles — an apparent outgrowth of a measles outbreak in West Texas — have been confirmed in eastern New Mexico, and parents in the Lovington area are being advised to have their children vaccinated.

The department has recorded 89 cases of measles this year, and all are believed linked to an ongoing measles outbreak in the Lubbock, Texas, area, said state epidemiologist Dr. Harry Hull.

Of the 89 cases, 77 occurred in the Hobbs area in the spring. Other cases have been confirmed in Clovis, Portales, and two places in Socorro County.

Hull said a 9-year-old Clovis girl became ill in late May and a 12-year-old boy from Lovington came down with symptoms of the disease on June 4. Laboratory tests confirmed the illness was measles on Thursday, he said.

Because of the incubation period for measles, new cases can occur up to two weeks after the last infection. Hull said the time has passed in the Clovis area.

Canadian Hair Research Breakthrough

BALDNESS TREATMENT GROWS NEW HAIR!

NEW GROWTH CLAIM FOR HAIR RESTORER WINS CANADIAN GOVERNMENT APPROVAL!

Amazing Lotion Receives Official "Notice of Compliance" as a "TREATMENT FOR ARRESTING EXCESSIVE HAIR LOSS AND FOR INCREASING NEW TERMINAL HAIR GROWTH ON THE SCALPS OF MEN AND WOMEN WITH UNCOMPLICATED MALE PATTERN OR DIFFUSE HAIR LOSS."

R. A. Armstrong, M.D. Assistant Director and Chief Drug Evaluation Division, Bureau of Non-prescription Drugs.

WESTMASTER RESEARCH TO MARKET TEST NEW FORMULA IN THE U.S.

In Canada today, there is a remarkable treatment for baldness. Formula MJS, named by the Canadian Government in an official NOTICE OF COMPLIANCE after reviewing independent clinical studies in which 77% of all patients tested actually GREW NEW HAIR! These studies were supervised by two eminent Dermatologists (then Head of Dermatology for the Toronto General Hospital and Associate Professor of Dermatology at the University of Toronto Medical School). As significant as these results were, the study goes on to further state that MOST PATIENTS EXPERIENCED A SIGNIFICANT REDUCTION OF HAIR LOSS, AND WITHIN 6 MONTHS, MORE THAN ¾ BEGAN TO RE-GROW HAIR!

U.S. GOVERNMENT POSITION is the unanimous position of the Food and Drug Administration, the U.S. Postal Service and the Federal Trade Commission that nothing can halt the process of male pattern baldness and grow new hair. Obviously Canadian Authorities disagree to a point where they have approved the extraordinary claim of NEW HAIR GROWTH for Formula MJS.

Of course governments are not in the business of endorsing or promoting commercial products but, in Canada, FORMULA MJS MAY BE SOLD AS A TRUE HAIR RESTORER THAT GROWS NEW HAIR ON BALD HEADS!

WESTMASTER TO CONDUCT LIMITED U.S. MARKET TEST

Whether we like it or not, in our world having a healthy head of hair is very important. Bald or thinning men and women are very often seen as "old" before their time, and certainly less attractive to the opposite sex. But YOU need not accept this "life sentence."

Within the next few months, Westmaster Research will be conducting a limited U.S. MARKET TEST. The products tested will include a specially formulated Shampoo, a Follicle Cleanser and an American version of Formula MJS. The market test will take an average of 15 minutes of your time each day — in the comfort of your own home. No clinics to visit — no requirement to alter your daily schedule.

MARKET TEST INFORMATION AT NO OBLIGATION TO YOU

If you are bald or thinning we would very much like to speak with you about participating in our program. Please note that our program will be conducted on a regional basis. Enquiries will be processed on a first come first served basis. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL US TODAY TOLL FREE at 1-800-387-2702 or mail the attached coupon to:

Broken neck doesn't break dream

"I think self-confidence is really the key..."

That's how National Final Rodeo qualifier Bob Logue sums up his philosophy on riding bareback broncs for a living on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit and anyone who wants a crash course in confidence should talk to the young man from Cumby, Texas.

Despite injuries some nine months ago that might have killed many other men, Logue persists on continuing down the rodeo trail.

Logue is the man behind the wheel of the Dodge double cab pickup truck that graced the Rodeo Bowl arena before every performance of the 51st Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo. It's actually his third line of work behind riding broncs and breaking and training horse on his 30-acre plot in East Texas.

But for now, at least until mid-September, he has to remain content with handling his spokesperson role for Dodge Trucks. You see, Logue suffered a minor (in his terms anyway) setback September 17, 1983 while riding at the Pendleton Roundup.

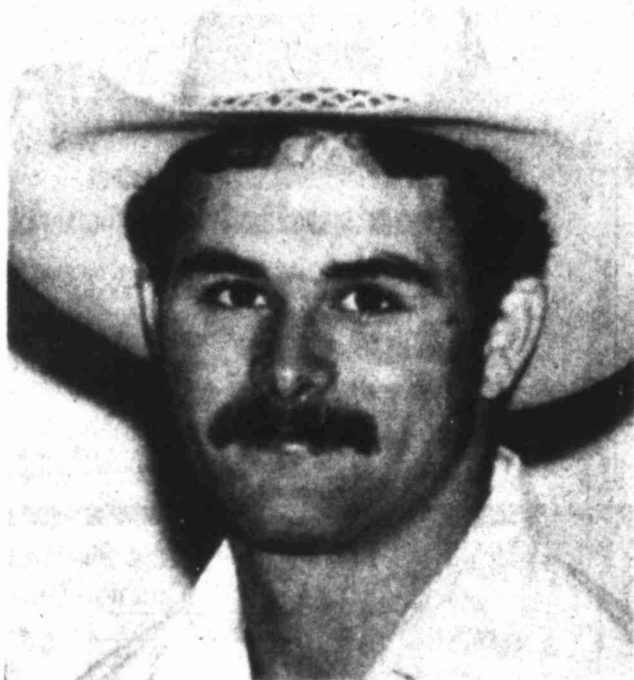

Logue's bareback mount scraped the fence and in the process broke the 24-year old's neck in three places. During a brief interview at Friday's rodeo, Logue said his recovery is coming along well, however. "The doctors told me back in September that it would be a year before I could ride again. I'll be back at Pendleton this September ready to go," said Logue.

After spending three weeks in traction and suffering some temporary paralysis along the road back, why does the five-time NFR qualifier sparkle when talking about coming back on board in an event that almost killed him before?

"Right now it's (rodeos) my way of making a living. I enjoy doing it. I'll go over the ride in my mind an think about it all the time. The more you think, the better you'll become," he said. And according to Logue, "I've still got some things to accomplish before I'm through riding."

One of those things is to qualify for the NFR five more times and hopefully win a champion's buckle. Logue was the bareback runnerup in 1982 and despite his injury in '83 he still qualified although he was unable to compete in Oklahoma City due to his injury.

"I've just kept faith in myself and will do my best come September," said Logue.

YANKEES 2

BOSTON (A) — Dave Henderson broke up a pitching duel between Seattle's Jim Beattie and Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd with a seventh-inning home run Saturday, lifting the Mariners to a 2-1 victory over the Red Sox.

With one out in the seventh, Henderson broke a 1-1 tie by lining Boyd's first pitch far over the high screen atop the left-field wall for his sixth homer.

Beattie, 8-7, scattered six hits for

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Greg Pryor slammed a three-run homer and Steve Balboni and Butch Davis added solo shots Saturday to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Mark Gubicza, 5-7, held the Yankees to six hits, including Steve Kemp's solo home run, his fourth, in the seventh inning. Gubicza walked four, struck out six and allowed only three hits after the second inning.

Jack Perconte hit the game's first pitch for a double and came around on an infield out and Alvin Davis' sacrifice fly to give Seattle a 1-0 lead.

Clowning around recipe takes mixture of comedy and drama

By BILLY NABOURS

"Send in the clowns..."

There's got to be clowns...

They're as much a part of rodeo as the bulls, broncs and cowboys they protect.

They milk the audience for laugh after laugh and for the casual or infrequent rodeo fan they are mostly that — laugh getters and entertainers.

For those who take their rodeo seriously, however and especially to those cowboys that climb aboard a mean ton of beef for a living, they are much, much more. More often than not they mean the difference between a safe ride and dismount or a bone chilling experience with an animal that sometimes acts as a devil's advocate.

THEY are the clowns and during the 51st Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo three of the best in the business both humored and thrilled the sizable crowds in attendance while also keeping bulls away from the riders.

Coahoma's Quail Dobbs has worked the rodeo for the last decade and is admittedly a crowd favorite. Almost everyone knows of Dobbs.

His two partners in clowning-around carry well-earned reputations also, but this year was their first to work Big Spring.

THE RICK AND KIRBY SHOW Rick Young, a longtime friend of Dobbs, formed part of the duo new to Big Spring's event.

The 1980 Clown of the Year for the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, Young has been clowning for 30 years and said, "I like it and enjoy it." The native of Tickfaw, Louisiana added, "About the only thing I'd do differently if I had it all to do over again is that I'd live things twice as hard."

Kirby Burney formed the remaining member of the new twosome and is now in his fourth year as a professional rodeo clown. Burney, age 29, started clowning as a 12-year old in amateur rodeos and echoed the sentiments of Young, often called, "The Ragin' Cajun," from Tickfaw. After so many years of, "being romped, stomped and stepped on," however Young said he feels like changing his label to "Aging Cajun," instead.

And while both men agree the lifestyle of a rodeo clown is akin to that of the cowboys they look after — namely much travel and hard on the family — both concur they have a good life. The very personable Young said, "I like being around people and clowning has helped me meet some good folks. It's also allowed me to travel to places I might never have gone otherwise. He told one story about clowning in Hawaii where he was the only clown.

"I'd just finish helping one cowboy off his bull and I'd hear a bell and another bull would be turned out. It (bull riding Hawaii style) ended with none of the bulls being run in. There must have been five or six bulls running around the arena. It was something else trying to help riders and fight bulls at the same time," said Young.

FIRE WITHIN BURNNEY

Burney, from Pasadena, said,

"Clowning has always been an urge with me." He took off the greasepaint in 1973 when he married, but the fire to fight bulls simmered within and he worked a number of Houston-area rodeos from 1978 to 1980 as a way of regaining lost experience. He received his PRCA card four years ago and has steadily climbed through the ranks. He worked the National Finals College Rodeo in Bozeman, Montana with Dobbs prior to his Big Spring debut.

Burney is participating in the Wrangler World Champion Bullfighter competition wherein the Top 12 clowns on the tour will meet in a final with over $50,000 at stake in prize money. The top 25 PRCA bullriders select the clowns and a group of Wrangler judges determine the order of finish. Criteria is supposed to be based on protecting the rider and fighting bulls. Each team consists of two clowns and a barrel man. "Wrangler's idea has helped promote clowns much better than they (clowns) could ever hope for," said Young.

According to Young, however there can be too much emphasis put on the bullfighting end of the clowning.

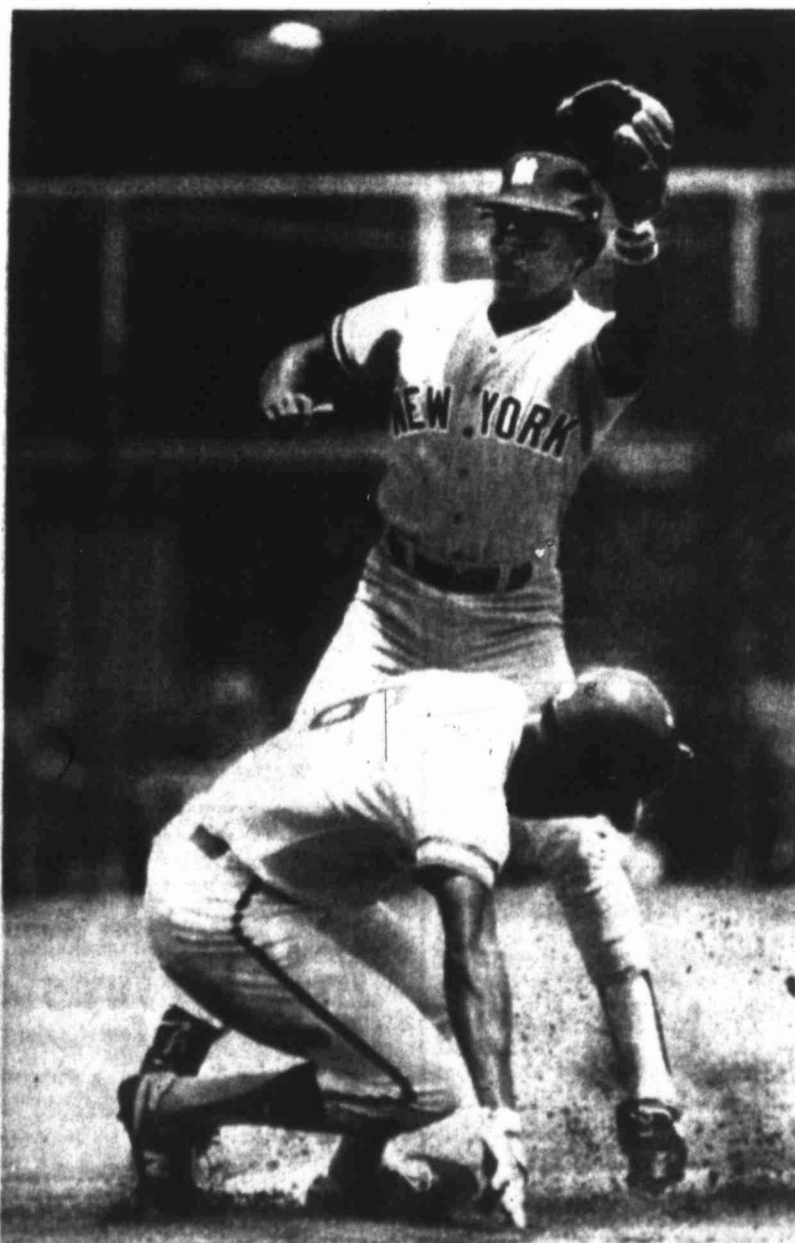

"The all-around type clowns are fading away," Young said in reference to the old school of men like himself and Dobbs who both fight bulls and entertain. "So many of the younger clowns are interested only in bullfighting, but a clown that can do both (fight bulls and do comedy skits) can demand a much better price for working a rodeo," Young added. "That's why I like working with Kirby. He's young, but he's interested in acts also." Burney plays "Elvira" to Young's and Dobbs' "Grandfathers of the Oakridge Boys."

Himes bulls way to rodeo prize money

Jack Himes of Big Spring rode his way into the prize money at the 51st Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo Saturday night as the rodeo completed a four night run at the Rodeo Bowl.

Himes scored an 80 on his bull. The score put Himes in a fourth place tie with Cody Lambert who was awarded the same score at Wednesday's opening performance.

Also at Saturday's finale Joe Gaskin of Fort Worth scored an 85 to win the night's go-round and the overall first place bull riding championship. Second went a Monty Taylor of Canadian with an 83 also recorded in the final and perhaps most exciting go-round. Bobby Del Vecchio, "The Bronx Cowboy," finished third after setting the pace on the first night with an 81.

Jo Ann Howard kept a championship in Big Spring by winning the barrels in 16.95. Second place went to Sue Overton and Kim Miller both at 17.17 while third place ended in a logjam as Janet Powell and Lee Ann Guilkey timed 17.19. Tricia Wright of Big Spring rounded her barrels in 17.21 to ease into fourth place.

Jack Ward's score of 81 was good enough to earn the bareback top spot while Lyle Sankey, Randy Taylor and Buddy Reynolds helped make up the four money winners who earned a share of the rodeo's total purse of $28,150 — the largest ever. In fact, at Saturday's finale only Chick Elms of Stephenville was able to cop a score with a 72. The other five riders in the competition were either disqualified or bucked off.

Tommy Smith of Hobbs, New Mexico came up with a 9.3 time in calf roping to earn the top spot along with Jim Hodge. Dave Brock was second at 9.3 followed by Tod Sloan and Rick Kyle at 10.0. The final money spot went to Steve Tucker of Krum with a 10.1.

Joe Belkham, Rob McDonald and Erik Totten had Saturday's best saddle bronc rides with scores of 71, 71 and 68, but none of the three came close to taking away Dave Appleton and Bud Munroe's honors of 75. Reynolds placed in the money in that event also with a 73.

Butch Bode of Milano won Saturday's steer wrestling in 4.9 and the overall money with a total of 10.1 for two head. The best one go-round times were turned in by Ed Wright and Matt Wynn with a 4.7.

Walt Rodman and Brett Boatright and Sterling and Charlie Price's co-best times of 4.7 captured the team roping event with the next best time being turned in by Mike Craddock and Rick Hendley, 7.2.

The total purse of $28,150 and the number of competitors (468) helped make the 51st rodeo the largest in recent memory according to most observers.

Major Leagues

his fourth consecutive victory, completing the month of June with a 5-1 record. He struck out seven and did not walk anyone. Boyd, 2-6, allowed only four hits and struck out seven.

Jack Perconte hit the game's first pitch for a double and came around on an infield out and Alvin Davis' sacrifice fly to give Seattle a 1-0 lead.

McEnroe gets by third round tournament foe

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — John McEnroe moved into high gear Saturday, breezing past Australian Wally Masur 6-0, 6-4, 6-3 and into the fourth round of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

In women's competition Chris Evert Lloyd also moved into round four by beating British junior Annabel Croft 6-3, 6-4.

In the day's only semblance of an upset, 20-year-old Carina Karlsson ousted 1977 Wimbledon women's champion and sentimental favorite Virginia Wade 6-2, 4-6, 11-9.

Other winners in the bright sunshine at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club included sixth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador, No. 11 Kevin Curren of South Africa, Pat Cash of Australia and four Americans — No. 14 Bill Scanlon, No. 15 Vitas Gerulaitis, John Sadri and Terry Moor.

Also advancing were No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 10 Jo Durie of Britain, No. 12 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 14 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 15 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary and Steffi Graf of West Germany, who, at 15, is the youngest player in the tournament.

Besides the Scanlon-McEnroe battle, other fourth-round matchups on Monday will send Gerulaitis against Sadri, Cash against Curren, Moor against Gomez, No. 2 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against American Scott Davis, No. 3 Jimmy Connors against No. 16 Tim Mayotte, No. 12 Johan Kriek against fellow American Paul Annacone, and No. 5 Jimmy Arias against No. 13 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

Clowns

"You sure get some funny looks when you go into a store and ask about buying a dress and some tight," said Burney.

Wrangler's clown promotion notwithstanding, Young said other changes which are good are, "guys now stay in shape and clowns don't seem so jealous of one another's success." He told another story about a couple of friends several years ago who were clowning a rodeo and one took exception to the other at one part of their act. The offended party simply waylaid the other right there in the arena.

"People thought it was part of the act," said Young.

Humorous incidents aside, both men admitted to the infrequent, but dark side of their business. "In rodeo business you know the dangers involved," Young said. "You come to expect anything," added Burney.

Young told of the time he, "saw a kid killed in a high school rodeo," riding bulls. Both men have clowning hurt, but at the same time agree clowning is something they enjoy.

Young said, "I've got an oilfield business that is taking up more and more time and I imagine I'll get out of clowning in two or three years." He has already begun cutting back on the number of rodeos he clowns. This year the man who clowning his first rodeo for $10 will clown 15 rodeos instead of his usual 40. After Big Spring Young set off for Jacksonville, Texas and from there he goes to Salt Lake City.

Burney, who earned just enough to get from rodeo to rodeo when he first re-entered the business, headed west where he will be working the tradition-laden 101st Annual Pecos Rodeo. "I plan to keep on clowning for as long as I can go," he said.

SING ALONG — Rick Young (right) and longtime friend Quail Dobbs were in concert at each performance of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, getting a lot of laughs with their routine. Clowns that can do comedy and fight bulls with equal excellence are "fading away" in Young's words.

Price high at Canadian Golf through three

OAKVILLE, Ontario (P) — Front-running Nick Price squandered a shot in the water on the 18th hole, but managed to retain four strokes of his big lead Saturday in the third round of the 75th Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

The 27-year-old South African, who held a six-shot lead through the first 36 holes, completed his third round in a hard-won, erratic, 1-over-par 73 and compiled a 54-hole total of 207, nine shots under par on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, the man who designed the course as a permanent site for the Canadian National Championship, shot a 69 — despite a 3-putt bogey-6 on the final hole — and moved into a tie for second at 211.

"It was a fair round — not great," said Nicklaus.

"I just hate to lose that last stroke. That means I have to go out and try to get it tomorrow."

"Four strokes is not too far back. And there's only one man in front of me."

"If I play a good round tomorrow, I have a chance. But I have to have a good round to have a chance. We'll see."

"It's a position I've been in here before," said Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles but not yet a winner of the Canadian Open. He's been a runner-up in this event five times and was third twice, including last season.

Nicklaus, 44, winner of the Memorial tournament four weeks ago, shared the No. 2 spot with defending title-holder John Cook and Greg Norman, the long-hitting Australian known as the "Great White Shark."

Norman had a 2-under-par 70 in the bright, sunny weather and Cook shot a 71.

DAVID BATES
Forsan High graduate

The best

Bates is 'Hell on Wheels'

Shoot, move and communicate might well be the motto of any military force. But for soldiers of this central Texas post, the saying could be shoot fastest, move quickest and communicate best.

This is where Army Spec. 4 David S. Bates is a member of one of the most modern army divisions in the world; its nickname — "Hell on Wheels".

Bates, 23, son of David and Audrey Bates of Sterling City Route, is a Bradley Fighting Vehicle crewman assigned with the 2nd Battalion, 41st Infantry, 2nd Armored Division.

"As a driver of the Bradley, I had to go through training on how to maintain the vehicle," said Bates, a 1980 graduate of Forsan High School. "I was also taught how to change the track, when to replace the road wheels and how to drive the vehicle without seriously hurting someone. I also learned how to use the night-vision. It looks like a little round TV screen and uses the light from the stars and moon. It works great with a full moon, but otherwise it's not a very good scope."

The Bradley Infantry Fighting Vehicle is the Army's newest addition to its battlefield one-two punch. Combined with the M-1 Abrams tank, the Bradley allows today's infantrymen to keep up with the rapid pace of armored conflict with more firepower and greater safety. Armed with a 25mm cannon, TOW anti-tank missiles and light automatic weapons for rear and side defense, the Bradley and its three-man crew and seven-man infantry squad is regarded as superior to any allied or Warsaw Pact vehicle of its type.

"Working with the Bradley is all right, because I get to ride around and I don't have to walk to many places," Bates said. "That is, when it's not broken down, which it is 50 percent of the time. But it's a blast going down a tank trail at 50 mph or moving a formation through a field with the tankers."

The largest armored post in both size and troop strength in the free world, Fort Hood encompasses 339 square miles of Texas, 70 miles north of Austin. Nearly 240 square miles of the post are dedicated to training areas. The post also supports a population of 179,000: 38,000 military, and the remainder are civilian workers, families of service members and retirees.

"Living at Fort Hood isn't too bad, because we're close to different places in Texas to go and see," Bates said. "Working at Fort Hood is totally different. We are in the field about 2½ weeks each month and it isn't much fun. One good thing about being here is that it only takes me four hours to get home."

Exxon caps free gas to town

HAWKINS (AP) — For nearly four decades, 23 families in this tiny East Texas town received free natural gas from the giant Hawkins oil field.

But Exxon Co. USA, which operates the field, recently shut down an antiquated system that delivered gas to the families' homes, saying it was concerned about potential safety problems and that operating the pipeline had become a significant expense.

The company offered each family $6,800 to compensate for the cost of converting their appliances to fuels such as butane and propane.

While a few accepted the offer, others banded together and vowed to fight "big oil" to get back their free gas.

"This is just another corporate takeover. Whether you are willing or not, you still get taken over," Curtis Miller, 60, told the Houston Chronicle. "We are going to fight them this time, not just sit back and let them have their way."

Miller said the land and royalty owners' lease agreements require Exxon to provide gas as long as the field produces. Cutting off the flow constitutes breach of contract, he said.

The 10,000-acre Hawkins field about 20 miles north of Tyler is one of the 15 largest in the United States, producing more than 755 million barrels of oil and 335 billion cubic feet of natural gas since it was discovered in 1940. Providing free natural gas to royalty owners and other local residents was standard practice in the early days. Until after World War II, natural gas had little commercial value.

The practice diminished as major cross-country pipelines were constructed, opening new markets and giving commercial value to gas.

Since the company had to construct a pipeline system for its own needs, extending it a little further to supply local residents usually was not a major expense, said Charles E. Fields, operations manager for Exxon's East Texas division.

After Exxon consolidated field operations and no longer had personnel living on each lease, the company continued the distribution system to provide gas to land and royalty owners. When the number dropped to only 23, maintenance became a significant expense, Fields said.

Lease agreements included provisions giving land and royalty owners the right to free gas for stoves and household lighting, Fields said.

No other provisions were made, but Miller said residents were using gas for other things.

"People have been using it for water heaters and air conditioners and some other things not in the lease," Miller said, noting that people did not have as many appliances when the leases were signed.

Speeding car crashes, burns on I-20 service road; 4 killed

ALEDO, Texas (AP) — Two people were hospitalized in critical condition Saturday after a car ran off an Interstate 20 service road in Parker County and exploded, killing four other people, the Department of Public Safety said.

The four-door hardtop was reportedly traveling at a high rate of speed when it left the road about 9:40 p.m. Friday and went about 375 feet in the ditch, hit a culvert, spun backward before becoming airborne and exploded upon impact, troopers said.

The dead were identified as James Baird, 20, of Willow Park; and Brack Taylor, 20; Linda Pickett, 17; and Lisa Hunter, 15, all of Weatherford, authorities said.

Lisa Busby, 15, of Weatherford was taken to John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth with severe burns and was transferred early Saturday to the Shriners' Burn Center in Galveston, said Trooper Larry Peterson. She was listed in critical condition, Peterson said.

Chris Hulce, 16, of Weatherford, was transferred to the Galveston center from Harris Hospital in Fort Worth and was listed in critical condition Saturday, Peterson said.

Baird was thrown clear of the wreck, while the other three people killed were burned beyond recognition, investigators said.

A church divided

Judge 'divorces' Pentecostal church to end 2-year feud

BURKE, Texas (AP) — A state district judge says he has "divorced" a tiny Pentecostal church whose members have been embroiled in a bitter two-year feud over doctrine and property.

One faction gets the Burke Pentecostal Church's sanctuary, the organ and the piano. The other gets the fellowship hall, kitchen and classrooms.

"It's like a divorce," said State District Judge David Walker of Lufkin.

The two factions will share a driveway but are forbidden to trespass on each other's property and to make obscene gestures, threatening remarks or do anything else to harass each other.

The church, which is 90 miles northwest of Houston, has fewer than 60 members. The schism in the congregation began in 1982, when former Pastor C.D. Carnley divorced his wife and left town.

"Our main disagreement is doctrine," says Betty Carnley, who took over leadership of the church after the divorce. "They don't believe in a hell with everlasting fire and our group does."

SPLIT — The R.W. Parish family poses in front of the Burke Pentecostal Church south of Lufkin.

She said the factions differ on other issues, too. "Our group baptizes in the name of Jesus. This other baptizes 'out of Babylon,' they call it. They also spiritualize foot-washing and communion," she said.

Leaders of the rival faction claim the dispute has nothing to do with doctrine. It is a purely worldly dispute over property, they say.

"It's money, strictly money," said Ruth Parish, who claims that proceeds from the sale of church-owned land have not been fully accounted for. "They got mad at us, so they locked the church door."

Until the court order, both groups worshipped in the sanctuary, but at different times.

"They'd gang up out there in the vestibule and it would disrupt the service," said Mrs. Parish. "One of them made some vulgar gestures with a broom handle."

Both sides still hope to gain control of the entire church. A lawsuit filed by former Pastor Carnley against Mrs. Parish and her husband, R.W. Parish, is expected to go to trial later this year.

Maid mistakes lifelike dummy for dead body

BEAUMONT (AP) — Nurses at the Logos Golden Triangle medical clinic never considered what could happen if they left a life-like dummy on which they practice cardiopulmonary resuscitation lying on the floor.

A cleaning worker who thought she had discovered a dead body on the fourth floor of the office building made them think twice.

"That poor woman said she had 10 years scared off her life," said Olinda Rosetta, a clinic coordinator. Ms. Rosetta said clinic officials had given the worker a box of candy and an apology.

The worker opened the clinic door one night last week to discover a young woman's body, her eyes closed and her pale lips slightly parted. Her skin was pale and lifeless and she wasn't breathing.

The maid ran screaming down two flights of stairs and a man working in another office stopped her to ask what was wrong.

"There's a dead body up on the fourth floor," she said hysterically.

The man telephoned for an ambulance and ran upstairs to witness the frightening sight the lady had described. But when he turned on the lights and discovered the dummy, he called paramedics to cancel the request.

Joy to the world

Have times changed since I was a teen-ager about the time the earth's crust was cooling?

I accompanied my niece, Deana, on a shopping trip to a mall recently and was I ever shocked at what it costs for a teen-ager now to look naturally beautiful. We went to this store where they sell a great line of cosmetics and she picked up a few necessary items. It was $69.60 worth. I sat on the stool beside her and remembered I got a 12-cent tube of lipstick the first time I was allowed to buy any. I had been to a few movies and knew all really beautiful women were make-up. I put my lipstick on and sure enough I was a living doll—or nearly so. Amazing what 12 cents can do. I doubt if Deana felt any prettier in hers than I did. If I had $69.60 worth to spend on make up then and the make up knowledge that girls today have I could have been in the movies myself. I could have married Howard Hughes. Maybe it's just as well that I only had 12 cents and my first tube of lipstick. Besides, I'm not sure Howard Hughes married any short, fat girls.

I married Billy Culwell for his money. He didn't have quite as much as Howard Hughes, but he had a '40 Ford paid for and one check from the little oil company where he worked. When he endowed me with all his worldly goods in that ceremony at that little Baptist church west of Rising Star, I sure came out the winner. We observed our 36th wedding anniversary and now we have everything because we still have each other.

I had a "hope chest" when I married. Do girls still have those? I had three pairs of pillow cases I had embroidered and two sets of hot lifters I had made when I was learning to sew and a jewel tea berry set. With his '40 Ford and my berry set we were off to a great start.

Not only have we observed an anniversary recently but I have had another birthday, my 54th. I used to think I was "middle aged" but I hear of very few people who live to be 108. I am one of the richest women in town though because I have the love and companionship of some of the greatest friends in the known world. I look at life like this—on to the big 55. I want to live and see how this world turns out. One thing about it, life isn't dull.

Wranglers looking to rope Gamblers

HOUSTON (AP) — The mystique of Arizona Wranglers Coach George Allen is not what worries Houston Gamblers Coach Jack Pardee going into Sunday's United States Football League first-round playoff game in the Astrodome.

"They have a good sound football team, their defense leads the league in sacks and their offense is third overall," Pardee said. "That's the only mystique we are worried about."

The Wranglers won their last four games for a 10-8 record and squeezed into the playoffs as a wild card.

The Gamblers will enter the playoffs in their inaugural season with a seven-game winning streak, a 13-5 record and the Western Conference's Central Division title.

It will pit Pardee the student against Allen the master in the 1:30 p.m. CDT kickoff.

Pardee played under the often controversial Allen on two teams and knows his former coach's affinity for ice cream and winning.

"We have a young group here and they aren't that familiar with history and controversies of the past," Pardee said. "So we're just preparing for a good football team."

Pardee praised Arizona's late-season push into the playoffs.

"It's been touch-and-go for them and they've really played well," Pardee said. "But at this point, we are even. We won 13 games this season and they won 10, but in the playoffs you are starting over."

The Gamblers' offensive weaponry is among the most impressive in the USFL. It includes quarterback Jim Kelly, the league's leading passer, and receivers Richard Johnson and Ricky Sanders, who each caught more than 100 passes this season.

The Gamblers' "run and shoot" offense must contend with the Wrangler defense that has registered 73 quarterback sacks this season.

Quarterback Greg Landry leads the Wranglers' offense and was a key force in the late-season push. Arizona also has twin-1,000-yard rushers in Tim Spencer and Kevin Long.

The Gamblers rallied to defeat Arizona 37-24 in a regular season meeting. Allen thinks Houston's defense and Arizona's offense are improved from the earlier meeting.

"We feel we can run against anybody in this league and we've proved that this season," Allen said. "We know we can run the ball, but you have to tie in our running game with a good passing game and play-action stuff."

Sunday's winner advances to the Western Conference finals. The USFL championship game will be played July 15 at Tampa, Fla.

In amateur golf, most players are awarded a handicap. This is a certain number of strokes that they may deduct from their score in medal play. The better the player, the lower his handicap. The purpose of the handicap system is to allow players of different skill levels to compete against each other on an equal footing. A player's handicap is figured by taking the average of his 10 lowest scores in his last 25 rounds and subtracting par. The player's handicap is all or part of the difference. For example, if his average is 80 and par is 72, his handicap will be 8 or less.

Tracey Dawn Estes

Miss West Texas dreams of becoming Miss Texas and Miss America

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Big Spring's Tracey Dawn Estes, reigning Miss West Texas 1983, is optimistic on the eve of the Miss Texas 1984 Pageant: "I hope Atlantic City is ready for a Big Springer in the Miss America Pageant."

She admits that realization of her dream lies to some degree outside her control, but believes a positive attitude can't hurt. "If I don't sell myself, who will," she says. Miss Estes will compete in the Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth, July 11-14.

As Miss West Texas, Miss Estes says she has flown back and forth from Dallas to Odessa 117 times. "I know all the stewardesses on Muse Airlines real well," she said. "They say, 'Oh, you want a Diet Dr. Pepper?' and I say, 'Yeah.' It's gotten really bad." The stewardesses hang up her "ton" of clothes in a closet and always insist on seeing what outfits she has brought for her appearances or modeling sessions she is on her way to.

Miss Estes attended Southern Methodist University during the first six months as Miss West Texas, then transferred to University of Texas at the Permian Basin. UTPB had courses she could transfer back to SMU, and being in Odessa and Big Spring was easier on her schedule than living in Dallas. While in Dallas, she was a model for the Kim Dawson Modeling Agency and went through John Robert Powers Modeling School. Each Miss West Texas receives a scholarship for the modeling school.

Miss Estes also calculated for her sponsors, the Odessa Jaycees, an estimate of her ground travel mileage. She has driven 11,000 miles just from Odessa to Big Spring and back. "My poor little car," she works out with weights daily and says she has lifted 435,000 pounds of weights in 20 pound increments. "But not all at once, of course."

While the travel may seem fun, her hectic pace is an invitation to personal disaster. She has brushed her teeth with Ban Roll-on, sprayed her hair with Lysol, and used hairspray for deodorant. "I'm always running late, and I always try to keep all my (toiletries) packed. Things get shaken up and undone when traveling. My deodorant came undone and got all over my toothbrush." She didn't realize this until she brushed her teeth and smelled something funny. "I didn't have bad breath for a long time," she laughed. A Lysol can look to much like a can of hair spray. The same is true of hair spray and some deodorants.

"I did all these things — not the accidents, but the other things...the flying, weightlifting and driving — because I wanted to. I have a dream to win Miss Texas and there's something inside me that keeps pushing me a little harder."

"It's not a cheesecake, glamorous life at all. It has been the most enjoyable year of my life even though it has been the hardest," she said.

Miss Estes daily schedule begins at 8 a.m. when she gets up and tries to catch news segments of "Good Morning America" on television. At 9 a.m., she has a standing one-hour appointment at the tanning beds at an Odessa spa. Then she then moves on to her 1½-hour workout at 10 a.m. "If I don't have a luncheon or a service club to go to I take a break for lunch. It's no fun foods — no cokes, no pizza, no spaghetti — it's high protein, low fat foods, lots of vegetables and fruits."

In the afternoons, she takes a television with her outside and lays out in the sun for three hours while watching her favorite soap operas. Afterwards, she comes home and practices her voice talent. Or, she practices it on the way home. Truck drivers often stare at her as she "belts it out." She believes in keeping her voice in shape like she keeps her body in shape.

At night, she does one of three things. She has an interview practice in which different Odessa citizens interview her on current

Your Baby with a Dixie Melody." Following her practice sessions, she watches the late news and Nightline. "It helps to watch and read the news more than once a day," she said. It helps her fully understand the impact of the news. "You have to know what the facts are, what they mean, how they affect you and what your opinion is. The judges want to know what your opinion is on current events, not the events and try to mess her up. She believes this will make the interview portion of the Miss Texas Pageant easier for her. If she isn't practicing her interviews, she may be having a diction lesson from Coy Sharp of the Globe Theater in Odessa to remove her "twang." Most of the Miss Texas judges are from out-of-state and notice a Texas girl's accent when she speaks, Miss Estes said.

If she isn't practicing her interviews or diction, then she goes to KMID to video tape and practice her talent. This helps her see herself as others see her when she performs and to improve. "It really helps." During the Miss Texas competition, she will sing an old Judy Garland tune "Rock-A-Bye facts." Miss Estes made many appearances as Miss West Texas, "everything from giving a Cadillac away to walking around a Shell refinery and learning how crude is refined."

"In West Texas, the people are so varied...so different." She reflects on how she may meet a well-dressed wealthy woman with perfect fingernails one minute in a mall appearance and the next minute she will meet a blue-collar worker in grease-splattered clothes. "It teaches you so much, because you have to deal with so many different people. That's life, and public relations is part of life."

Summer Fest to provide July 4th activities

By RHONDA WOODALL
Lifestyle Writer

The First Big Spring Summer Fest Competitions, benefiting the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, will provide July 4th excitement and fun at Dora Roberts Community Center. The day-long events begin at 10 a.m. and end with a dance at 8 p.m.

Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center (DRRC), established in 1961, provides outpatient restoration services in the areas of physical therapy, occupational therapy, audiology (hearing) therapy, and speech pathology.

Before DRRC was started, Easter Seals took children to Midland for treatment, said Lillian Staggs, DRRC's physical therapy assistant. "The center started out in a little building on a filled-in lot, north of the YMCA." She said plumbers and builders donated time and material for the first building. Six months after the building was built, rain cause the building to sink and be condemned.

FOLLOWING THE LOSS, a room and whirlpool at the YMCA was used. From 1961 to 1965, the center was located in a rented house at 402 Edwards.

The center moved to its present location Oct. 1, 1965 and was called Howard County Rehabilitation Center. "The building was given to the city and the county from the Dora Roberts foundation with the understanding that the center would be in one half and the public health office in the other half," Mrs. Staggs said. The center serves Howard County, and nearby towns such as Lamesa, Colorado City, Stanton and Garden City.

"Without the Dora Roberts Foundation we could never have been here," Mrs. Staggs said. "Big Spring is fortunate to have it (center)." Equipment was bought with donations from clubs and individuals in Big Spring.

"When we moved in this building, we had two employees (a physical therapist and physical therapist assistant) and a part-time speech pathologist," she said. The speech pathologist is the center's present director Larry Bristo.

"Jim Thompson, the first physical therapist who started in that little building by the YMCA, was primarily the one who labored to get the Rehab Center established," said Bristo.

"We've come along way," Mrs. Staggs said. In 1973, DRRC almost doubled its size by building onto the center. DRRC is governed by a 18-member board of directors, each serving three-year terms.

LET ME TELL YOU — Brenda Franklin, 5, Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's poster child, tells Mayor Clyde Angel about the Summer Fest events to be held July 4 at Dora Roberts Community Center. Brenda is the daughter of Donna and Kenneth Franklin, Sterling City Rt.

DRRC PROVIDES SERVICES to individuals who are referred by their physician or an appropriate medical agency. "We see about 200 people every week. That's visits; not individuals," Bristo said.

To receive treatment at DRRC, age or financial situations are not considered. Funding for the center is provided through four avenues: fees for services paid by individuals, Medicare and insurance; endowment fund; donations, several in the way of memorials; and United Way.

"The income from what patients are able to pay individually, or through Medicare or insurance account for only 40 percent of the center's operation," Bristo said. "The cost of every working day is $1,340. To meet the cost of the center, because there is such a difference between what patients are able to pay and the cost of the center's operation, fund-raising activities such as Summer Fest this year and galas in past years are necessary."

"The Summer Fest is to make people aware of the center and to raise money for the center," said Mrs. Staggs. "Lots of people who live in Big Spring have no idea as to what goes on at the center until they need us."

"Even with special fundraising activities such as the Summer Fest, we need the continued donations of individuals to provide the services we do," said Bristo.

SUMMER FEST ACTIVITIES will be similar to the "Battle of the Network Stars" contest that appears occasionally on television. Summer Fest events include armadillo races, horseshoes, washers, canoe races, tennis tournament, volleyball, wheelbarrow race, football throw, three-legged race and obstacle course race. The play-off will be a mud pull.

Teams will consist of four males and four females. Each team must enter all six team events. Four partner events will be held, and a mixed couple can enter only one partner event.

Points will be awarded for each event. The top eight teams will qualify for the play-off.

Summer Fest is a family-oriented event that also will provide activities for children. Children activities are sponsored by the YMCA Gymnastics Parents Association.

Children activities for all ages include a dunking booth, sandbox treasure hunt, face and hair painting, a car bash, peppermint and lemon booth, muscle hammer, and a "Guess the Number of Beans in the Jar" contest. Dunking Booth dunkies include: City Manager Don Davis, Police Chief Rick Turner, and Royce Cox, assistant principal at Goliad Middle School.

Food and arts and craft booths also will be a part of Summer Fest. Artists include David and Melita Brownlow from Fort Worth and George Botwell from Austin.

The dance will complete the day's activities. Admission is $25 per couple, except for couples participating in the Summer Fest events. They will be admitted for $10 per couple.

Rehab Center offers outpatient therapy

By RHONDA WOODALL
Lifestyle Writer

Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center (DRRC) provides outpatient restoration services in the areas of physical therapy, occupational therapy, audiology (hearing) and speech pathology.

DRRC's therapy programs are aimed at helping the patient regain as much independence as possible, said Kaki Morton, physical therapist. For example, therapists might help a paralyzed patient decide whether to approach life from a wheelchair or if he could realistically approach life by using crutches.

"Physical therapists deal a great deal with gross motor range motion and strength," said Larry Bristo, DRRC's director. "By range of motion, we mean the full scope of movement of any given joint."

Treatment is given in the form of exercises and various modalities dealing with heat, massage, water, electricity and hand-on exercises, said Bristo. Heat may be provided by such things as hot packs, microwaves and water.

Electricity is used for muscle stimulation when nerves have been severed or damaged. The nerve is expected to regenerate, but it takes a long time, so we shock the muscle to stimulate it and to keep it from deteriorating, said Ms. Morton.

Physical therapy and occupational therapy work together in hand propping and balancing.

Occupational therapy is used to teach a person to overcome obstacles in his environment so he can live his daily life, said Taylor.

The obstacles the patients face wouldn't be an obstacle for a healthy person.

A major part of occupational therapy is working with learning disabilities in schools. "Even a slight problem with perception can be a major problem," said occupational therapist David Taylor, "especially in school because writing and reading are such complicated tasks."

To see if a student has a problem, Taylor will give them a test which reveals slight learning disabilities that aren't obvious. "A lot of times the student may have a high IQ, but IQ has nothing to do with learning disabilities," Taylor said.

As an occupational therapist, Taylor also makes splints for patients. The splint allows the patients to have purposeful use of the hand to do daily functions, while it immobilize certain parts of the hand.

Taylor also has several items that can be used by a handicapped person to make life easier. "We want these people to have a quality of dignity about life and not be dependent on others," Taylor said.

Occupational therapy helps speech pathology in developing coordination of the mouth, by teaching feeding skills to small children, Taylor said.

Barbara Parker of Odessa, audiologist, does hearing evaluations, consults with referring physicians on the treatment, and refers hearing impaired to appropriate education resources. She also makes ear molds to fit the hearing aids into them.

LOOK HERE — Kaki Morton, physical therapist, helps Pamela Robey, 2½, learn sitting balance and protective extension. Robey, who has Turner's Syndrome and epilepsy, receives physical, occupational and speech therapy at DRRC. Turner's Syndrome is a genetic abnormality that is characterized by developmental delay. Pamela is the daughter of Carolyn and Micheal Robey, Silver Heels Addition. "This is a wonderful place. They (the therapists) are doing all they can for her," said Mrs. Robey.

Miss West Texas

Pageant this week, Miss Estes will critique the contestants — helping them to remember to be the best they can be by reminding them of the little things. She also will practice her songs that she will sing during the pageant (including her competition song for Miss Texas), and will model the wardrobe she will use in the Miss Texas Pageant.

"I've been having a lot of fun getting to know the girls (competing for Miss West Texas)," she said. "It's funny to think that it was a year ago I did that. I can relate to how they feel...the feelings they are having.

"Big Spring needs a local pageant to go to the Miss West Texas Pageant," Miss Estes said, "because we have such an abundance of pretty women in Big Spring. It's good to have a base (pageant) and a representative, and it's nice for the community to have a girl to represent the community at happenings. It would boost the spirit of the community."

Miss Estes will take her West Texas win to the Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth next week. "I've heard lots of rumors about it," she said. "I think it's going to be extremely busy and extremely tiring...adrenalin will keep me going." She has heard from other girls that the pageant will be one of the most exhausting weeks of her life.

"I'm really looking forward to it. I'm not nervous yet. Sunday when I leave I may be." She checks in July 8. The day before the pageant begins, July 10, Miss Estes, seven other contestants, Miss Texas 1983, and Miss Texas 1982 Gloria Gilbert will perform in the "Little Miss Texas F:geant" at the Johnnie High Review in Fort Worth. "It's for fun and gives you experience on the stage. The more that you are on the stage, the easier it becomes," Miss Estes said.

Between the Odessa Jaycees, and Miss Estes' family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Estes of Big Spring, about 50 season tickets to the Miss Texas Pageant have been bought so she can have a cheering section. Family, friends, sponsors and those who have helped prepare her for the pageant will be in attendance.

If Miss Estes doesn't come away from Fort Worth a winner, it won't be from lack of trying.

Speech pathology includes doing speech evaluations to determine what kind of language or speech problem a person has, said Kathy Anderson, speech pathologist.

Ms. Anderson helps people who have trouble pronouncing certain letters; who have a low vocabulary; who stutter; who have loss of speech due to stroke; or who haven't started talking on time. Her job also includes teaching pre-speech skills to children like keeping lips closed, chewing and swallowing.

The type of speech therapy given to a person, depends on the problem and its severity. Each problem is different and must be handled individually, said Ms. Anderson.

Ms. Anderson also talks to parents about their child's problem and teach the parents some speech skills to use at home. "It is really important that they follow through on what we teach them up here."

Therapists frequently diagnosis a developmental delayed child together. "Sometimes, I might pick up on something the others don't see," said Ms. Morton.

If a child is being treated for one kind of therapy and needs another one as well, the therapists will try to provide it. "I have seen Kaki and David work just as hard to get a patient into another development therapy as they would their own," said Bristo.

As well as helping the patients, the therapists also teach the families how to deal with the patient and his limitations.

'Straight Talk' helps local families communicate about the facts of life

By RHONDA WOODALL

Lifestyle Writer

Adolescents can find life confusing when they don't understand what is happening with their bodies and feelings. "Straight Talk" for mothers and daughters, and fathers and sons can help them understand.

Sheryl Davis and her daughter, Belinda, 11, participated in a Straight Talk session held in February by Planned Parenthood. The agency plans to have more Straight Talk sessions for parents and their teenagers. "I was looking for something to help me explain this to my daughter," said Ms. Davis about puberty and development. "We had talked about it and she had read some books about it, but she still seemed confused. I called and it seem like what I wanted."

"I think it (Straight Talk) made it easier to open communication up for us. She had a chance to talk to girls her own age about it, and I had a chance to talk to mothers of girls her age."

"It was real easy for us to understand," said Belinda. Ms. Davis was pleased with the way Straight Talk was presented.

At a recent Straight Talk for mothers and daughters, Dianne Murphy and Karen Pieper-Hildebrand from Midland explained growing up, the reproductive anatomy, puberty and menstruation.

Between the ages of nine and 16, girls go through normal psychological, physical and emotional changes, Ms. Murphy said. "Some girls worry about others' development. I was a late bloomer. I would say, 'Hey, what is going on with me?' It's natural to be concerned with the changes the body is going through," Ms. Murphy said.

Girls shouldn't worry about menstruation. "It's an important and normal cycle every woman goes through," Ms. Pieper-Hildebrand said. "Every girl's period is different. Some girls can tell when they are going to start, and some can't." Girls were shown the different products that are available. Myths about menstruation also were dispelled.

Mothers and daughters did worksheets together. The mothers also told their daughters how they felt about growing up at their daughter's age.

"Straight Talk opened communications between us," said Ms. Davis. "Since then we've been able to talk about it and it isn't so embarrassing."

Collagen can minimize wrinkles

Many facial wrinkles and scars can now be minimized or eliminated entirely with injections of collagen, a purified material derived from cowhide, says Family Circle magazine.

After studying 300 patients, Dr. Frank M. Kamer and Michael W. Churukian of the UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles report that age-related facial lines respond well to these injections. Results with acne scars were variable.

Many dermatologists report good to excellent results for crow's feet, wrinkles on the forehead, near the lips and in the mid-cheek area. Lines between eyebrows, chin lines and scars also respond readily.

FITNESS FACTS

By Laurie Churchwell

The Ultimate Weight-Loss Weapon

You can increase the amount you eat and still lose weight. That statement may sound like one of those hard-to-believe ads for fraudulent weight-loss methods but it is actually the conclusion of a recent study done at Stanford University. The key is moderate exercise.

The study examined the relationship between exercise and weight gain. In the study, fourteen middle-aged inactive men were asked to run as much as they wanted and eat as much as they wanted. At the end of two years, the men had increased their caloric intake by 12 percent but had also upped their running mileage from zero to twelve miles a week.

Even though the subjects were eating greater amounts of food, the exercise more than made up for the extra calories; at the end of those two years, the subjects' average proportion of body fat fell from 21.6 to 18 percent.

The Dance Gallery & Fitness Center, 2303 Goliad, can help you lower your percent of body fat with Aerobics and Aqua-Aerobics. Call 267-3977 or come by.

Slight redness after a facial is usually nothing to worry about. However, swelling can signal that the skin is irritated and has undergone too vigorous a workout. Following are some additional facial hints: A facial mask should never be left on until it cracks, but only until it dries. Remove masks gently. Do not rub them off vigorously. Never allow your face to be steamed for more than three to five minutes. The perspiration that results can cause more breakout. Do not assume, if your face breaks out the day after a facial; that your skin's "impurities" have been brought to the surface. The facial was probably too rough.

The latest trends in precision cutting, blow drying, perms, hair coloring and tinting are available to you at LA CONTESA. Remember, no hairstyle can be complete without the proper hair cut first. ## Solution to puzzle, pg. C-3

Dear Abby

Feathers ruffled by inaccuracy

DEAR ABBY: Every time I go to the post office to get my mail, I become infuriated when I see our national bird, the American bald eagle, depicted with a white head, a white neck and a dark rump and tail.

That is incorrect, Abby. Anyone who knows anything about eagles knows that a mature eagle with a white head and white neck should have a white rump and a white tail! When I see these eagles on the U.S. Postal Service mailboxes, mail trucks and postal employees' uniforms, it upsets me.

I wrote to all six South Carolina congressmen and to both our U.S. senators to complain. I also wrote to the White House twice, and the only person I heard from was Sen. Strom Thurmond. He promised to look into the matter and see what he could do to correct it. I am still waiting.

Can you help this cause along, Abby? I suppose it would run up in the millions of dollars to change all those eagles, but in the interest of accuracy, it should be corrected.

EDWIN KERRISON JR.,
LUGOFF, S.C.

DEAR MR. KERRISON: I think you may have hit upon the reason our legislators are slow to move on this. It's too expensive. Considering what's going on in the Middle East and Central America, plus the threat of a nuclear war, I doubt if I can drum up much interest in correcting the color of the rump and tail on our national bird. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Call Me Mrs.," the older woman who resented being called "Kathy" by her doctor:

I'm on your side, I'm an older woman, too, and here's how I handled the same situation when my doctor of many years retired and a younger doctor took his place:

When he greeted me with, "Good morning, Lucille," I responded, "Good morning, Bobby." (His name was Robert.)

He was quick to get the message. From that time on, I was "Mrs. Hastings" to him, and he was "Dr. Wittingham" to me.

Try it. And if he doesn't catch on, change doctors. He's an idiot.

MRS. HASTINGS:
Wonderful. Read on for another solution:

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I'm addressed by my first name and I don't especially like it, I say (with my best smile), "My name is Celeste, but it's perfectly all right with me if you call me Mrs. Hatcher."

CELESTE B. HATCHER
ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY: I keep seeing letters in your column asking whether pregnant women should be in a wedding party as bridesmaids, matrons of honor, etc. You always say, "Why not?"

I will tell you why not: My sister-in-law (married to my brother) was my dearest friend. I was her maid of honor and I asked her to be my matron of honor. She accepted when she was in her fourth month, knowing that she would be somewhere in her seventh month at the time of the wedding. (It was her first baby.)

Well, the morning of my wedding she "thought" she had a few labor pains, but didn't want to "spoil" my wedding, so she didn't say anything. She just made it down the aisle at a 4 p.m. wedding, with her pains coming three minutes apart.

You guessed it. Her water broke, she fainted and the priest interrupted the ceremony to ask if there was a doctor in the house. Fortunately, there was, and my matron of honor took the best man (her husband) with her, and she delivered a 5-pound "preemie" an hour later.

So Abby, next time someone asks if a pregnant woman should be in the wedding party, say, "Not if she's more than five months along at the time of the wedding." Thank you.

TRUE STORY FROM NEW ORLEANS

Lifestyle policies

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and a telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcements. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS

Information on engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please, give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS

If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

States have uniform child custody law

CHICAGO (AP) — Legislation that discourages parental child-snatching and prolonged court battles over child custody has been enacted uniformly in all 50 states.

This year Massachusetts becomes the final jurisdiction to adopt the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), according to John McCabe, legal counsel for the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws (NCCUSL).

The NCCUSL, an organization of practicing lawyers, law professors and judges, drafted the UCCJA in 1968, in response to the growing incidence of parental "kidnapping." This frequently involved a divorced parent who, having been denied custody of a child, abducted him or her to another state, hoping to obtain a more favorable judgment.

The UCCJA was designed to:

★ Penalize parents for child-snatching, by allowing courts to deny access to parents who engage in "abduction or other unilateral removals of children."

★ Allow custody cases to be heard in the state with the "closest connection" to the child — such as the state where the child has his or her home.

★ Encourage binding court decisions, so as to discourage lingering controversy.

★ Promote cooperation between courts of different states on jurisdictional questions.

According to Patricia M. Hoff, a District of Columbia lawyer who headed the American Bar Association's Child Custody Project, the act's adoption everywhere means "there is a very good chance a judge will not hear a case when a child has been wrongfully removed. This would not have been the case before the UCCJA."

Moreover, she adds, "there is a much greater likelihood that a custody decree entered in one state will be recognized in another."

Ms. Hoff also pointed out that the UCCJA "laid the groundwork" for the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, enacted by Congress in 1980, which also improved the enforceability of child custody decrees.

The NCCUSL is a confederation of state commissions on uniform laws. Its 300 members meet to draft and urge enactment of legislative proposals designed to solve problems common to all states.

Dr. Donohue

Hamstrings help stabilize knee joint

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've been through a year of knee problems. It started with baseball last year, when I pulled a hamstring in my right leg. I thought everything was OK but then at the beginning of football practice, bang, there went a knee ligament. I lost that season, too. Now I have decided on summer basketball to be ready for next football season. I'm hoping I don't get another accident to hold me back. Should I be ready? — J.D.

Let's look at the hamstring muscles first. There are three of these muscles on the back of the thigh. If you want their names, they are the semitendinosus, semimembranosus, and the biceps femoris. They aren't as strong as the muscles on the front of the thigh, but ideally they should be about two thirds as strong. If they are that strong, you're less likely to have a hamstring pull. For some reason yours gave way and you had a painful experience.

Now, an important role of those same hamstrings is to stabilize the knee and prevent the kinds of knee twists that can destroy or badly sprain knee cartilage. So in retrospect I might suggest that you did not get your hamstrings back to full strength before you resumed your heavy athletic program.

The best strengthener for those muscles is the hamstring curl. It's easiest to do it with a weight machine and bench. You lie face down on the bench. Keeping your thighs as close to the bench as you can, you then bend your knees trying to touch your heels to your hips. Watch the weight level. If you have to arch your back when you raise your legs, you're using too much weight. And if you don't have a weight machine that can let you do hamstring curls, you can use weighted boots, using the same position.

I don't know your present situation with regard to your total knee structure. But you will be ill-advised to resume vigorous exercise until you have been told that both your hamstrings and other knee structures are sound enough to support it. Perhaps you will need a playing brace on the weaker knee until you have brought it and all of its structures back to 100 percent.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I weigh 165 pounds and am 5 feet 11 inches. I lift weights and run. I'd like to gain weight before football starts in the fall. Do you have any programs for building muscle weight, and what is a good combination program, one that incorporates both running and lifting? Is that possible? — J.M.

There's no reason why a weightlifter should not run or why a runner should not lift weights. Lifting is a time-tested, effective way to build muscles and strength.

The rewards from running are different. That builds endurance and strengthens the cardiovascular system. It makes your heart a better pump, lowering your cholesterol and blood pressure and training your muscles to be more efficient extractors of blood oxygen.

Of course, marathon runners are special. They are not very muscular, but that's because they are using all their calories for energy on a continuing basis.

Your goal is different. You want both weight gain and muscular strength. You can run for half an hour. That's enough to get the cardiovascular training you need.

To gain weight, you have to pay attention to another element in any athletic conditioning program: nutrition. Make sure your diet is well-balanced. Add about 500 calories every day over and above what you normally eat. You'll certainly gain weight. And if you are combining running with weightlifting, the weight you gain from those extra calories will be muscle not fat and it will weigh more.

I've given you only the general rules for good conditioning. The specifics have to come from your coach. He is the one who knows how much he wants you to weigh and which muscles he wants you to emphasize for your spot on the team. Check with him.

FOR J.A. — You should start running against a distance goal. Forget your times. Joe Henderson, a runner and author, says he measures his running in terms of half hours and hours, not distance traveled. He says an hour is an hour no matter where it's run. And I might add, no matter how fast it's run.
