How's that? Lighting

Q. Does the city have any restrictions on the brightness of outdoor lights in residential areas?

A. According to City Manager Don Davis, the city has no restrictions on the brightness of lights, unless the lighting creates a traffic hazard or constitutes a public nuisance. "The lighting could be a private nuisance under certain circumstances, but that would not involve the city, since it would be a private matter between the individuals involved," Davis said.

Reaction mixed on plan

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

The new state education reform bill, passed by the Legislature this weekend, met with mixed reactions from local school superintendents in Howard County. Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Lynn Hise said he would have to examine the details of the bill before commenting on its effect on the Big Spring school system, which will pick up an extra $1.4 million in state aid.

Coahoma Independent School District Superintendent Jerry Doyle was more outspoken, saying the bill "has more bad things than good."

"In four weeks, the Legislature set public education back 40 years," Doyle said.

Forsan ISD Superintendent J.F. Poyner disagreed, saying the bill was "good educationally," and "probably the best that they could come up with under the circumstances."

Forsan stands to lose $150,000 in state funding.

Implementation of the programs will be the biggest problem, he said, because some of the changes in the new bill are "drastic changes, and there are always problems getting them implemented." State Rep. Larry Don Shaw said he supported the bill's reforms overall. "We'll have a chance to fine tune it in January," he said. "The general skeleton of the bill is good."

Reforms in the bill also concerned Doyle, who referred to it as "the attorney's full employment act" because of legislation he says will result from the bill because of competency tests for teachers and students. The U.S. Supreme Court last week agreed to hear litigation involving the Florida public school system's use of similar competency tests for students and teachers.

"It'll be several years and several court battles later before we establish what can and can't be done (with competency testing)," Doyle said. He said school districts could face litigation if they fire a teacher who has been with the school district 20 years and has been an outstanding teacher, but fails a competency test.

"The (competency) tests can't test what makes a good teacher — creativity, energy, perseverance, personality. I want to make sure we're hiring teachers of kids rather than subject matter. Subject mat-

Senate delays debate

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A proposal to increase the state sales tax and keep some sales tax exemptions seemed to be flying high in the Texas Senate on Sunday but its motor was sputtering Monday morning.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, proposed Sunday an amendment to the House-passed bill that he said would add one-fourth of a cent to the current 4-cent state sales tax and put telecommunications services, such as those of MCI and Sprint, under the sales tax.

In exchange, the Senate amendment would leave intact certain current sales tax exemptions on advertising and repairs that the House bill would remove.

Senate debate on the tax bill and amendments was to begin at 11 a.m. Monday, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby predicted Sunday that the votes were there to adopt the Jones amendment.

But Hobby announced Monday morning that debate was postponed until the afternoon to try to clear up some problems with the amendment proposal.

"Things need to congeal a little bit more," Hobby said. He said some senators have problems with some aspects of the Jones amendment and the Senate might be willing to go along with the House bill because of time constraints.

The current session, which began June 4, is due to end at midnight Tuesday.

"The House just wants to pass the House bill and go home, which may not be a bad idea," Hobby added.

Because of the lateness of the session, there remained the possibility of a filibuster, or long speech to delay action. But that seemed unlikely.

Asked if he could support the Jones proposal, Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, said, "I'd like to wait and look at what they've got."

Shaw ran with a similar plan Saturday in the House, calling for a half-cent sales tax and maintaining sales tax exemptions for some controversial items such as advertising. It was soundly defeated.

In visiting with the House leadership Sunday, Shaw said, "the feeling was we had the votes in the House to stay with tax plan we have now. But that can change."

Shaw said he could "live with the quarter (percent increase) if that's what we came down to."

Rain flirts with area

Staff and wire reports
While skies were cloudy last night and lightning flashed across the heavens, area weather measurements recorded only traces of precipitation.

The highest measurement — .45 inches — was recorded at the Paul Harrold residence 84 miles northwest of Big Spring. According to Mrs. Harrold, the rain fell in a period of 15 minutes "right before dark."

No rain was recorded as of 8 a.m. this morning at the U.S. Agricultural Research Station at Big Spring Airport.

According to the station, total rainfall so far this year has reached 1.77 inches, a figure far short of the 8.95 inches considered normal for the area. By July 2, 1983, the station had recorded 4.01 inches.

Other measurements across the area recorded no precipitation or only a trace.

"It was mighty light — just a sprinkle," said Barney Nichols of Knott.

"We got just a trace this morning, and none last night," said Paul Allen of Coahoma.

"We didn't get anything," said Mrs. David Barr of Vincent.

Rain and thunderstorm activity was reported across much of West Texas early today ahead of a stationary front that stretched across southern portions of the Texas Panhandle.

Light rain and thunderstorm activity was reported across portions of West Central Texas from the southern Panhandle to the lower plains. Skies were mostly clear over East Texas, far South Texas and North Central Texas. Some clouds covered portions of South Central Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s, ranging from the 60s in Northwest Texas to around 80 in South Texas. Extremes ranged from a cool 62 at Amarillo to a warm 80 at Galveston, Brownsville and McAllen.

Cops: July 4th fuming

Watch set for fireworks, thefts

By LUIS RIOS
Staff Writer

Howard County and Big Spring law enforcement officials said their agencies will not be anticipating any major problems this July 4th and do not expect to use any additional personnel during the holiday.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said he did anticipate an increase in the traffic flow in the county. He said there will probably be a little more traffic in the residential areas of the county.

He said law enforcement agencies also will be on the lookout for illegal fireworks.

There is always the risk of fire whenever fireworks are set off, Standard said. The first incident involving fireworks in the city occurred last week when a fire caused an estimated $10,000 damage to a house at 2611 East 24th St. The cause of the fire was attributed to a firecracker, according to Big Spring Fire Marshal Carl Dorton.

There is a city ordinance against setting off fireworks in the Big Spring city limits, said Big Spring Police Department Capt. Roy Osborne.

"We are not anticipating any major problems," said Osborne. "But we will be prepared."

The police department will probably not be utilizing any additional patrolmen during July 4th, he added. However, he said that one or two extra officers will be stationed at the city Park where the traffic and activity is expected to be the heaviest.

Iraq attacks Korean ship, downs plane

By The Associated Press
Iraqi jets rocketed and destroyed a South Korean cargo ship, forcing 23 crew members to abandon the vessel near the Iranian port of Bandar Khomeini, South Korea said today. Iraq reported destroying five naval targets and downing an Iranian plane.

South Korea's Foreign Ministry in Seoul said in a statement that two missiles struck the 10,305-ton cargo ship Wonjin-ho on Sunday, injuring four crew members. It said all of those aboard were picked up by Iranian rescuers.

The ministry said the ship was carrying 9,000 tons of steel from Japan to Iran when it was hit in the engine room and set ablaze.

An unidentified Iraqi military spokesman, speaking Sunday over Baghdad Radio, claimed that Iraq's navy had destroyed five "naval targets" in the Khor Moussa Canal leading from the Persian Gulf to Bandar Khomeini and that two others had been damaged when they struck mines while fleeing.

He said Iraqi jets shot down one of Iran's U.S.-made F-14 fighter planes which was among several that scrambled in response to the attack.

Iraq did not specify what types of targets its navy hit.

Iraqi planes have attacked and damaged dozens of ships in the Persian Gulf in a blockade of Iranian ports designed to cut off the revenue which Iran uses to finance its war effort. Iran has been accused of retaliatory attacks on several Saudi Arabian and Kuwaiti ships, although it has denied them.

Iraq had no immediate response to the reported naval attack and the South Korean report was the only word of damage.

However, Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini warned leaders of the Arab nations in the Persian Gulf to stop helping the Iraqi regime of President Saddam Hussein.

Showers drench East

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms hammered the eastern Carolinas today, moving north toward Maryland and Pennsylvania after two days of torrential rain injured at least six people and washed away homes.

Meanwhile, California prepared for another day of scorching heat near the century mark.
Scattered showers dampened much of the South and Tennessee Valley early today and thunderstorms boomed across west Texas, eastern New Mexico and the southern Plains.

At least six people were injured in Lancaster County, Pa., when up to 5 inches of rain that fell early Sunday morning turned normally placid streams into raging torrents, washing away cars, demolishing a 105-year-old covered bridge, destroying at least 20 pleasure boats and forcing temporary closure of a rail line.

Four women were treated and released for multiple injuries at Lancaster General Hospital when flood waters swept their car off Route 272 into Conowingo Creek, police said. Two other people received minor injuries when their cars were washed into streams near the Maryland border, police said.

Up to 4 inches of rain fell Sunday in northeastern Maryland, destroying two summer homes, washing out roads and bridges and forcing the evacuation of about 15 people in Street, officials said. There were no injuries.

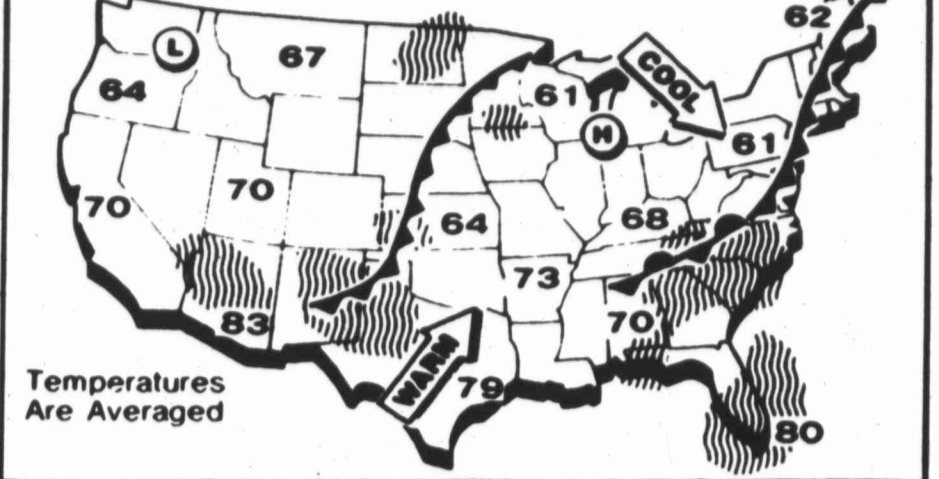

Rain and scattered thunderstorms prevailed Sunday in southern New England, from Florida and Georgia to southeastern Texas, and from northwestern Minnesota to the Texas Panhandle.

Skies were sunny Sunday from Wyoming and Colorado to the Pacific Coast and partly sunny over the southern Plains, the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee valleys and the Great Lakes.

Man slashed in assault

A Big Spring man remains in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital with cuts to his face and hands after an aggravated assault that occurred sometime between 1 a.m. and 2:26 a.m. Sunday, a hospital spokeswoman and police reports said.

Nelson's neighbors willy-nilly approve July 4th picnic bash

AUSTIN (AP) — The 30,000 spectators expected to attend country singer Willie Nelson's Fourth of July picnic probably will have more fun than some of the entertainer's neighbors — who look upon the event as anything but a holiday.

The 12-hour, non-stop package of entertainment will be held Wednesday on an 11-acre site on the south side of Austin.

"We are very much against it," said C.L. Fox, a 90-year-old chiropractor who lives next door to the concert site.

Fox said he thinks it's "ridiculous" that people would fork over the price to attend the concert — $18 per adult and $9.75 per child.

"People have gone crazy," he said. Earlier concerts have caused Cullen Lane, the street where Fox lives, to become clogged.

"When The Police (a rock group) played here, people parked up and down Cullen Lane," said Arlene Wingo, Fox's daughter.

However, Mrs. Wingo said owners of the concert park have been helpful in keeping fans off her father's property and concert promoters promise they will do the same Wednesday.

"We'll have security guards watching all the boundaries, and if anyone has any problem, we'll have the problem taken care of," said Steve Hauser of Pace Concerts, the picnic's promoters.

Mrs. Wingo said the impending horde of concert goers has not stopped the family from planning a festive holiday gathering at the house.

"We're getting together just for the heck of it, just because Willie's going to be next door," she said.

Ed Harrell, another of Willie's "neighbors," has another idea for keeping order on his property. He plans to buy a keg of beer for his 20 guests, who will be outfitted in T-shirts reading, "Security."

Harrell said his primary concern is about his legal liability if strangers wander onto his property.

"My concern is I would just hate someone to climb over the fence and get killed," he said.

Standard said there could be a possible increase in patrol in the residential areas of the county. He said the Silver Heels area probably will see an increase in traffic.

He also went on to advise local residents to let their neighbors know if they plan to travel out of town for the holiday.

"This is a favorable time for burglaries," Standard said. "This is one of the times people are away from their homes. We will be patrolling the areas for burglaries."

The police department will be using the normal patrol strength, said Osborne. The department will be using three patrolmen in the different districts and one patrolman as a rover, he said.

Fire investigator Burr Settles said that parents needed to be more safety conscious and watchful of children discharging fireworks. He said parents should find a safe place outside of the city limits to take their children to use fireworks. Settles also said he recommended that parents take along a container with water in case a fire breaks out.

Osborne shared the same sentiment with Settles concerning safety rules around fireworks.

"If it is a child discharging the fireworks, he should be under adult supervision," said Osborne. "And they do not need to show off."

ter is important, but kids are more important," Doyle said. "I've hired honor students who could pass a competency test but couldn't teach."

Doyle said he was unhappy with a provision that requires students pass every class before participating in extracurricular activities. A kid could have a straight "A" average in everything but chemistry, and not be allowed to participate in a band contest, he said.

The Coahoma ISD superintendent said he did support the bill's de-emphasis of extracurricular activities and the equalization of funds for school districts. However, he said the Legislature "underfunded" the bill. Although his school district is expected to get about $64,000 under the new funding program, he said the district would have to spend more than that to comply with the new bill's requirements.

"It's a net loss," Doyle said. His school district must hire two new teachers, a junior high reading instructor and a high school foreign language teacher to comply with a prior bill whose provisions are just taking effect, at a cost of about $40,000, since the district pays more than state minimum. Tutoring and pre-kindergarten programs also will require more money, he said.

In contrast, Poyner, who says the bill is "good overall," said he expected his school district to lose money because of its high property base. According to estimates from Austin, Forsan ISD will lose about $154,000, but Poyner says the actual loss will be "double or triple that amount. We were anticipating something like this."

"Nobody likes to lose money. But we have a good property tax base. It won't have that type of negative factor," Poyner said. Other school district officials figured his property base per pupil to be $480,000. Coahoma has about $300,000 per pupil, and Big Spring about $133,000, according to officials.

Big Spring ISD is expected to gain about $1.4 million, but most of the money will probably go to implement the new state requirements, Shaw said.

Hise, who said he was unsure of the bill's details, said that if all the money was earmarked for teachers' salaries, and none for maintenance, the district might have to stop paying local increments.

"Some people will say we're not passing on the state increase, but we would be. We just might not have enough money for a local increment," he said. He also said he did not think the district would receive that much money.

Shaw said he voted against the bill when it first passed on Saturday night because of the amount of money school districts in his area would receive.

"I wrestled with the bill a lot. I support the reforms in the bill, for the most part. What left the House I could support," Shaw said. But when the bill came back from the conference committee, the amount of money allocated to his school districts was cut or "shaved," he said.

"Too many of my school districts took a loss in money (from the state)," he said. Although Big Spring will receive an estimated $1.4 million, it will probably "break even" with new expenses, he said.

Shaw said he later voted for the bill after it passed, but only so it could go into effect immediately, which required passage by a two-thirds majority. "If the bill was going to pass, it made more sense that it go into effect now, so school districts could plan their budgets for the fall," Shaw said.

Timing will be critical, Shaw said. If it looks as if it is the Senate proposal or nothing, the House might go along, he said.

One strong opponent of the education reform bill was Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, and he said he couldn't see any advantage to a filibuster that would cause another session.

"I'm kind of to the point now that the system has pretty well acted, and I don't think there's any way I could stop it," he said.

Spielberg is butting in

HOLLYWOOD — Ryan O'Neal said he felt surprised — and left out — when he learned that director Steven Spielberg had coached 9-year-old Drew Barrymore for O'Neal's latest film.

The surprise came from the fact that Spielberg wasn't connected with the film "Irreconcilable Differences," which stars O'Neal and marks Charles Shyer's directing debut.

Miss Barrymore, granddaughter of the late John Barrymore, plays a child who goes to court to end a revolving-door custody dispute. Her speech at the end moved the actress playing the judge to tears, O'Neal said.

"Then a few days later, I ran into Steven Spielberg. He asked how the film was going. I told him fine. Then he asked about Drew's courtroom speech.

"It was excellent," I told him.

"And he said, 'Good, I worked with her for three weeks on that.'

"Isn't that man amazing? I felt like saying, 'You might have worked with me, too...'

Miss Barrymore previously worked with Spielberg in his movie, "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial."

The hero who hates dash

NEW YORK — Kevin Kline's romantic roles in "Sophie's Choice" and Broadway's "Pirates of Penzance" have led him to be likened to such screen idols as Douglas Fairbanks and Errol Flynn.

But the 36-year-old actor says such parts don't entirely suit him.

For the next three weeks, Kline again plays the romantic hero, winning the heart of Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio in the Central Park production of "Henry V."

After that, he'll be off to Ocean City, Md., for filming with Sissy Spacek of a love story, "Violets are Blue."

The dark-haired actor from St. Louis said in a published interview Sunday that he doesn't want to play the dashing hero forever.

"Some women are turned on by the characters I play. It's not me, but the roles," he said. "... I don't necessarily want to keep doing those roles, though. I'd like to do something villainous, like Iago."

Princess was not amused

LONDON — Princess Diana's 23rd birthday celebration was interrupted when a runaway horse charged into a crowd and injured a woman yards from where Diana and Prince Charles were watching a polo game.

The woman was hospitalized Sunday with a skull fracture, said police on the scene at Cirencester in the western England county of Gloucestershire.

Diana and Charles, who are expecting their second child in September, were sitting in a grandstand 10 yards from the horse, which had thrown its rider, police said.

In Guatemala, the ballot replaces the bullet

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The government reported a heavy turnout and peaceful conditions in voting for a new Constituent Assembly, which is to write a constitution that could revive democracy after 30 years of military domination.

The head of state, Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, has promised to call elections for a president and congress once the new constitution is adopted. Civilian political leaders say the assembly's progress, or lack of it, may indicate how much power the military is willing to give up.

Many polling places Sunday opened late and voting was slowed in some areas by bureaucratic red tape. But no violence was reported and both Guatemalan poll-watchers and foreign observers agreed the voting went smoothly.

First returns were expected today.

Arturo Herbruger Asturias, head of the Supreme Electoral Tribunal, estimated 1.7 million of the 2.5 million registered voters cast ballots for the assembly's 88 seats. Most observers earlier had predicted a 50 percent turnout.

Although the law mandates a $5 fine for failure to vote, the penalty is rarely applied.

"I was very impressed," said Rep. John Hightower, D-Texas, one of two-dozen U.S. observers who toured polling places by helicopter in western Guatemala.

"When we got down and visited with the people we found really a mood of optimism."

Asked if he was concerned about fraud, which has plagued past Guatemalan elections, Hightower replied: "Not at all. We found poll-watchers everywhere."

"In general terms, we think that this has taken place without mischief," said Hector Luna Trocoli, a leader of the Union of the National Center, considered one of the largest of the 17 parties that fielded a total of 1,179 candidates.

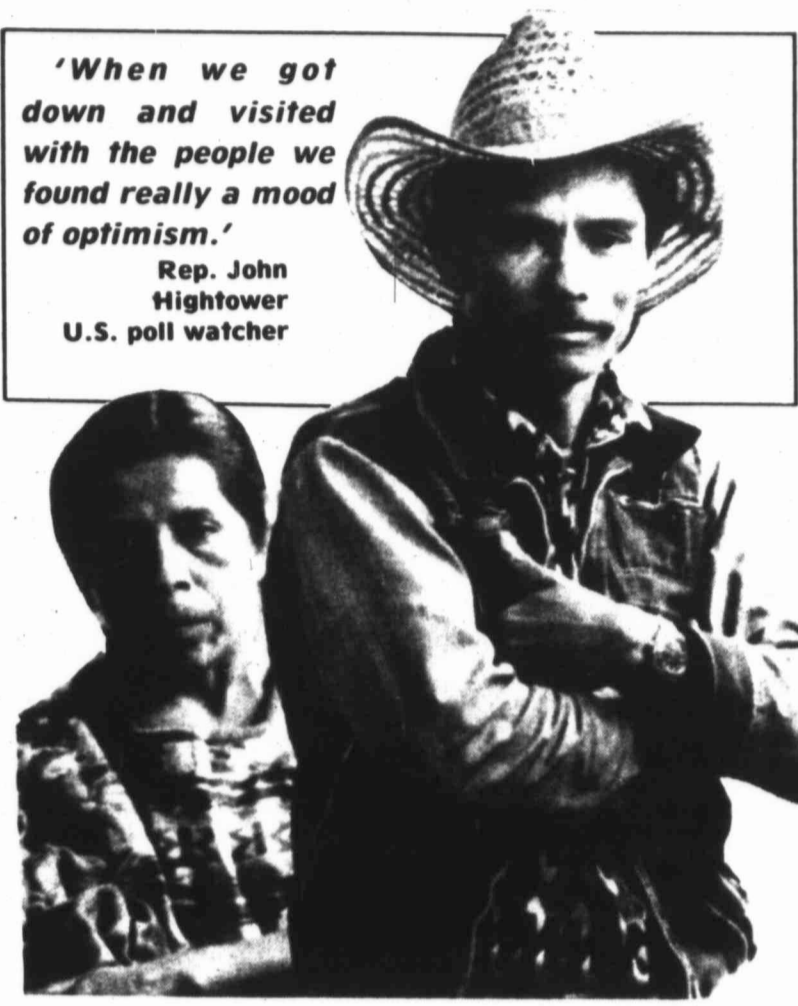

The assembly could be installed in August if relatively few votes are challenged. If it completes its work by December, general elections could be called as early as March 1985.

The new constitution would be the nation's eighth since independence in 1839.

In the capital, a dozen people were injured when thousands of people tried to rush at once into the Tezulutlan School when the doors opened at 7 a.m. Some 40,000 people had been assigned to vote at the school's 60 polling tables.

Seven other people were injured in two similar incidents in Guatemala City, said Artemio Maldonado, an official at the Social Security Institute's General Hospital.

The election was held against a backdrop of serious economic problems and a long-running leftist insurgency. A series of military-controlled governments has been ruling the country since 1954.

FACE THE NATION — Residents of a Guatemala City suburb wait in line to vote in Sunday's election for a new constituent assembly to replace a 15-year military government.

several of them elected amid charges of fraud. Gen. Fernando Lucas Garcia, elected president in 1978, served a four-year term. Gen. Angel Anibal Guevara, Lucas Garcia's hand-picked successor, was elected on March 7, 1982, but a military coup two weeks later prevented him from taking office and installed Gen. Efraim Rios Montt as president.

Rios Montt, who suspended the 1965 constitution, was deposed in a palace coup in August 1983 which installed Mejia Victores, then the defense minister, as chief of government. The country has been ruled by decree ever since.

100 held after foiled coup

LA PAZ — The government reportedly has arrested more than 100 army officers, policemen and paramilitary gunmen as suspects in the attempt to stage a military coup by kidnapping President Hernan Siles Zuazo.

The government declined to say how many were in custody or identify them, but Presencia, a leading newspaper, reported today that more than 100 people had been arrested in connection with Saturday's attempt to topple the elected government.

The drama began before dawn Saturday, when Siles Zuazo awoke to the sound of footsteps and squinted into a flashlight held by one of the abductors. By late that afternoon, the 70-year-old president was free, addressing thousands of cheering supporters, while his abductors took refuge in two embassies or went into hiding.

India chief due in U.S.

NEW DELHI — India's army chief of staff is scheduled to visit the United States July 10, apparently in an effort to improve military ties strained by U.S. arms sales to Pakistan.

Defense Ministry spokesman M.L. Juneja said today that Gen. A.S. Vaidya is scheduled to meet U.S. military leaders and visit military installations during a 10-day tour of the United States.

Vaidya's visit to the United States would be the first by an Indian armed services' chief since Washington announced in 1979 that it would provide sophisticated arms and equipment to Pakistan, India's rival neighbor.

16 die in Beirut shelling

BEIRUT — Christian and Moslem gunmen pounded residential neighborhoods through the night and before dawn today, killing at least 16 people, despite agreement by the warring militias to let the army take control of Beirut.

Police said 16 civilians were killed and 52 wounded in what they described as the worst artillery attacks in and around Beirut in two weeks. The shelling erupted at dusk Sunday, subsided briefly before midnight and then intensified until a daybreak cease-fire was arranged, police said.

Quake rocks Mexico City

MEXICO CITY — A strong earthquake rocked Mexico City and the central part of the country late Sunday, but authorities said they had no reports of major damage or injuries.

The quake began at 10:52 p.m. local time and lasted about 45 seconds.

A recorded telephone message at the Tacubaya National Seismological Institute said the earthquake measured 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale, but added that the institute had no further immediate information.

A quake of that magnitude is capable of causing considerable damage.

Women get the vote

VADUZ — Male voters in the tiny constitutional monarchy of Liechtenstein narrowly approved a measure granting women the right to vote in national elections.

The referendum Sunday outcome made Liechtenstein the last European country to grant its women the right to vote on national issues.

But voters in the villages of Triesen, Triesenberg, Balzers and Mauren balked at granting women the right to vote on local issues, limiting women suffrage to federal issues.

New president sworn in

BONN — Former West Berlin Mayor Richard von Weizsaecker has been sworn in as West Germany's sixth president.

Weizsaecker, a 64-year-old Christian Democrat, was elected to a five-year term May 23 by the Federal Convention, an assembly that meets every five years to name a president.

He replaced Karl Carstens, 69, also a conservative, who is retiring from active politics after one term in the largely ceremonial post.

Tear gas quells rampage by 400 prisoners

WALPOLE, Mass. (AP) — Nearly 400 inmates on a rampage at Walpole State Prison set fires and smashed furniture for two hours before guards using dogs and tear gas were able to subdue them, authorities said today.

No officers or prison staff members were hurt in the disturbance Sunday night, although one prisoner injured his foot when he stepped on a piece of glass, Correction Department spokesman Joe Landolphi said.

Inmates were back in their cells by 10 p.m. and the entire maximum security prison was locked down as officials assessed the damage and investigators tried to find a cause for the riot at the 670-inmate facility 15 miles southwest of Boston, Landolphi said early today.

"We have no idea what sparked" the outburst, he said. "It erupted spontaneously almost."

It was the second lockdown at Walpole in less than a week, Landolphi said. Prisoners also had been confined to cells Thursday night after a fight between two inmates.

The uprising began at 7 p.m. Sunday when inmates gathered for an evening recreational activity in the auditorium, Landolphi said.

Paper: Israel's Katzir arrested

TEL AVIV (AP) — A newspaper said today that Soviet secret police had arrested former Israeli President Ephraim Katzir, but he told Israel Radio he was at a hotel and planned to leave the Soviet Union on Tuesday.

The daily newspaper Maariv reported in a special edition that Soviet police had arrested Katzir in Leningrad Sunday in front of the home of Soviet Jewish activist Yaacov Gorodetzky.

But the radio said Katzir, a prominent biochemist who was in the Soviet Union to attend a scientific congress, reported that he was fine and "there is no reason for worry."

The radio said that the Russian-born Katzir had been contacted by telephone in a Moscow hotel on Monday, but that Katzir refused to say what had happened to him.

He was quoted as saying he was leaving the Soviet Union for Paris on Tuesday as scheduled.

The newspaper said Gorodetzky telephoned a friend in Israel and said the former president had been arrested by the KGB.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's office said it had no confirmation of Katzir's arrest and officials declined further comment.

Katzir, 68, served in Israel's largely honorary post of president from 1973 until 1978. After completing his five-year term as president during the premierships of Golda Meir, Yitzhak Rabin and Menachem Begin, Katzir returned to his scientific pursuits at Israel's Weizmann Institute.

Union, police clash in strike

CLIFTON, Ariz. (AP) — As a tense calm returned to this copper-mining town, union officials called for an investigation of police conduct during a violent disturbance that marked the first anniversary of the miners' bitter strike against Phelps Dodge Corp.

The Clifton-Morenci Unity Council, representing four of the 13 unions on strike since July 1, 1983, asked Sunday that state and federal officials probe Saturday night's rock-throwing melee in which six state police officers were hurt and 20 demonstrators arrested.

On civil rights

President Reagan often doesn't get much credit for his civil rights record. As the president told federal black appointees during a meeting in Washington on June 25, however, his administration has "moved with vigor and vision" in the area of civil rights.

Among other statistics, Mr. Reagan noted that the Justice Department has filed 149 civil rights cases, including 24 against perpetrators of racial violence.

If Mr. Reagan is to counteract an image of insensitivity, he should take more occasions to advertise to the general public his civil rights commitment.

Cops of the cloth

Police officers in New York have found a higher calling. Federal investigators say 700 of New York's finest have been ordained as ministers in three bogus churches in order to evade taxes. The scam involves the officer giving wages to the church, taking a "vow of poverty," and then living off the ministry — tax free, of course.

The names of the churches are the Freedom Church of Revelation, Universal Life Church and Life Science Church. Their worship services differ. But they all share the book of revelations known as the Internal Revenue Code.

When flatfoots of the cloth die, their souls go to that big tax loophole in the sky.

Europe's loss

PARIS — It figured that the governing parties would lose in the recent elections for the European Parliament. But it is surprising — even alarming — that their bridges to the center were burned in the process.

For Europe is now without strong leadership, a ruling ideal, or even a good way to build majorities. Thus adrift, the Europeans remain highly dependent upon the U.S. — and particularly the American economy.

Most European governments, with inflation just coming under control, still pursue economic policies of relative austerity. The squeeze is being applied to government budgets, to wage increases and to consumer spending. Growth is low — about 2 percent annually — which is half the figure for Japan and only a third that of the United States. Unemployment, which averages over 10 percent, is rising in Italy, France and Britain.

Leaders and parties identified with the squeeze inevitably suffered at the polls. The more so as voting for the European Parliament, a powerless body, offered a free protest. Hence the losses suffered by the Socialists of Francois Mitterrand, the Tories of Margaret Thatcher and the Christian Democrats of Helmut Kohl. The slight advance registered by the Socialists of Andreas Papandreu is the exception which proves the rule. For unemployment in Greece is around 6 percent.

The losses would have been healthy if they yielded adjustments in policy and a broadening of majorities. But the politicians capable of opening doors to the center lost even more than the ruling parties. In West Germany, the pivotal party — the Liberals under Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher — polled under 5 percent, the minimum for electing a deputy. The French center, which potentially opened to Mitterrand an easy way to part company with the Communists in his government, also went below 5 percent.

In Britain, the middle-of-the-road Social Democratic-Liberal alliance fell 6 percent below its previous high, while the left-wing Labor Party surged ahead.

In Italy, big gains went to the Communists and the Christian Democrats, who represent polar opposites. These two big parties will now resume their quest for coalition in a "historic compromise." But the historic compromise is a phantom which has brought frustration to Italy for decades. Meanwhile the one party truly capable of forming the nucleus of a stable majority — the Socialists of Prime Minister Bettino Craxi — lost ground.

With the linking parties thus weakened, governments cannot comfortably enlarge their majorities by moving to the center. Only small changes at the margin are possible. Thatcher, Mitterrand, Kohl and the others will have to soldier on. But as the losses indicate, they have long ceased to inspire, and they have no great cause for which to battle.

The idea of a united Europe is so banal that only 57 percent voted in the election Sunday. Only in Denmark, where there is a strong anti-European movement, did voting participation increase from 1979. In Britain more than 60 percent abstained. Prime Minister Thatcher has no reason to come to terms with her partners in the European community when they meet at the summit in Fontainebleau next week.

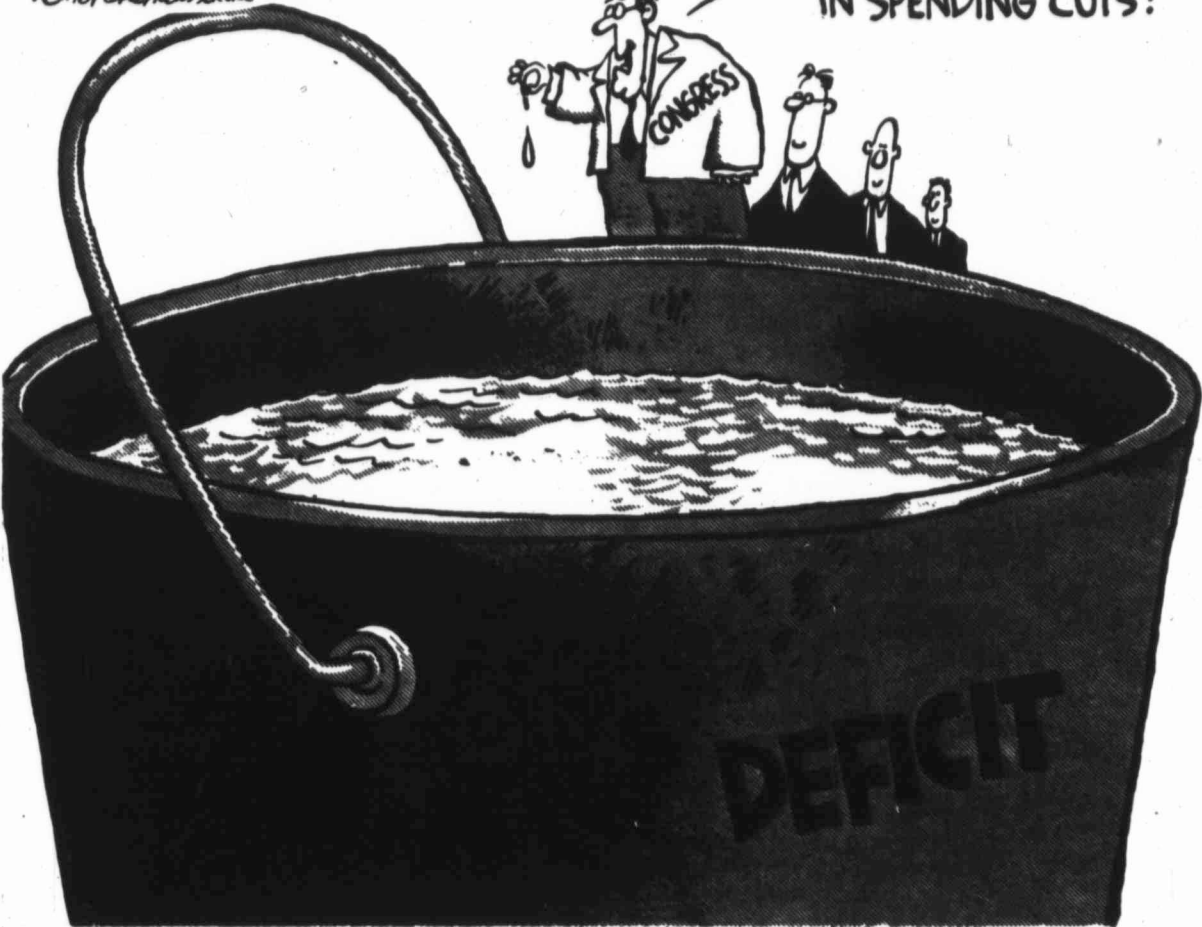

Communist passion has also gone out of style. The fate of the French CP — down to 12 percent, or its lowest level in half a century — shows the lack of support for those parties that have hewn to the Moscow line. The big score achieved by the Italian CP was a once-only gain following the death a week ago of the popular leader Enrico Berlinguer.

Neither, with Russia turning inward, does Europe have a serious role to play in dealing with Moscow. As the leader of the one large country which did not deploy new American missiles this year, President Mitterrand has a special claim. But his current trip to Moscow was made over the protests of both diplomatic and political aides. He himself tells visitors that now is no worse than any other period for a visit that had to happen sometime — which means that he was mousetrapped.

There remains the policy of holding the line against inflation. It is inglorious and unappealing, and it fosters right-wing extremism — witness the rise of Jean-Marie Le Pen here in France.

With a little more squeezing, though, recovery might take hold. Indeed, West Germany has already turned the corner to growth. Even Germany, however, cannot go forward unless the American expansion continues to open markets. Already there is a slowing of growth in the U.S., so European political leaders have to look to Washington for the only political game worth playing on this side of the Atlantic.

Bangkok is prostitution capital

WASHINGTON — Bangkok's native name, Krung Thep, means "city of angels." But the tragic truth is that the capital of Thailand is now a city of fallen angels. It has most of the country's 400,000 to 700,000 prostitutes.

On a recent trip to Thailand, my associate Dale Van Atta learned the scope of the Thai vice problem even before he got there. In Tokyo, he was told that more than a million Japanese men each year take off on group junkets to Taipei, Seoul, Manila and especially Bangkok. The main attraction in these formerly Japanese-occupied cities is prostitutes.

The "buy-girl tours" infuriate Japanese and Thai women's groups. In Tokyo, for example, the Women's Christian Temperance Union pickets Japan Air Lines and distributes pamphlets deploring what the women call "sex imperialism." Thai women are organizing to fight for the rights of women in the red-light districts. During my associate's visit to Bangkok, the Thai government sponsored a seminar on the prostitution problem. One group, Friends of Women, announced a campaign to "free women slaves."

In fact, the prostitutes themselves have formed their own organization, Thailand Night Girls' Rights Protection Group.

The mobilization against vice was catalyzed by a tragic incident on a resort island in southern Thailand, where five young prostitutes died in a hotel fire. Reports that the girls were chained to beds were denied by local officials, but they did acknowledge that the women had been locked in their rooms to prevent escape. More than half the women who wind up in the cribs of Bangkok come from the hill tribes of Chiang Mai province in northwestern Thailand. Many are sold by their poverty-stricken parents for as little as $50. And many are lured into prostitution by Thai officials, who provide them with tickets to Bangkok and promise them legitimate jobs that never materialize.

The Bangkok Post recently published an all-too-familiar story of a young girl who was sold by her father for $44. She was put to work in a brothel run by a high-ranking police official's wife, who lived next door in a luxurious home. A visitor to her barred, locked room saw that the girl was sick, and bought her freedom for a large sum. The benefactor made sure the girl got proper hospital treatment, then paid her fare back home. Her father beat her up and sold her to another procurer.

Though local police corruption is a serious problem, Thai law enforcement officials say the almost Dickensian duration of the legal process is the greatest deterrent to prosecution. It takes about a year to bring a vice operator to justice, and there are many pitfalls along the way. If witnesses fail to answer three summonses to testify, for example, the case may be dismissed and the complaining police officer investigated for failure to produce the witnesses.

BACKROOM DEAL: Political wheeling and dealing is Washington's favorite sport. The secret minutes of an executive session of the National Republican Congressional Committee reveal how the game is sometimes played.

The chairman, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., has an air of being preoccupied with annoying matters. He called a meeting on April 24 to get advice from his GOP colleagues about a curious, confidential proposal.

According to the minutes, an unnamed Republican House member had been approached by Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the normally combative chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

"Mr. Coelho was desirous of making an arrangement for a mutual 'non-aggression pact' in a certain state," the minutes disclosed. "Coelho offered to withhold Democratic support from two Democratic challengers in the state" — if the GOP would "withhold party support from a Republican challenger."

The unidentified challenger is running against a freshman Democrat, whom the Democrats sorely want to keep in Congress. Vander Jagt is too cautiously calculating to incur liberal favor. He told his fellow Republicans that such an arrangement would "fly in the face of a long-established committee tradition of taking on any and all Democratic incumbents. ... Especially in this instance where the (committee) strongly assisted in the recruitment of this candidate."

According to the minutes, Vander Jagt was "strongly advised (to) avoid any kind of arrangement with Democrats."

Footnote: Spokesmen for Coelho and the Republican committee declined to identify the state in question or otherwise elaborate on the proposed deal.

Christ makes a difference

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I would like to live a better life, and in fact several times have committed myself to live the way I know I should. But every time I get around my old friends, I stumble and fall back into my old habits. I am getting discouraged with trying to be better and am afraid I'll just give up some day. — J.U.

DEAR J.U.: You are discovering a very important truth: You do not have the moral and spiritual strength within yourself to live as you know you ought to. This is what the Apostle Paul discovered also: "What I want to do I do not do, but what I hate to do. ... For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out" (Romans 7:15, 18). Yes, perhaps you could discipline yourself to some degree — but the truth is, within ourselves we don't have the strength to do what is right all the time. This is one reason you need Christ. When we open our lives to Jesus Christ and ask Him by faith to be our Savior and Lord, God Himself comes to dwell within us through His Holy Spirit. One of the reasons God gives the Holy Spirit to us is to help us live as we should.

"You, however, are controlled not by the sinful nature but by the Spirit, if the Spirit of God lives in you" (Romans 8:9).

Around The Rim Vid man

By TIM APPEL

It's a hunger that cannot be satisfied.

As a mere lad a long time ago, the transistor was king. This was at an age when I enjoyed playing with my Major Matt Mason Space Station. Such things as entertainment parlors and pinball machines were foreign to me. Even in junior high, my money went towards Oregon State football games, not some silver ball hitting solenoids.

Suddenly the IC chip came into the public view, and the vast potential of entertainment it contained was first tapped. When the fantastic game of Pong was introduced, I was amazed. The viewer of the TV was now not a passive spectator, but an active participant.

I played Pong until I dropped, but the only trouble was finding another person to play against. A new game called Space Invaders hit the arcade, and it became a massive hit. One could now play alone against the computer, and both joystick and fire button were used at the same time. The invaders began to take on a crude form, unlike the black and white rectangles in Pong.

Asteroids brought about two-dimensional movement around the screen, as the field became virtually unlimited. Color still had not taken a grip upon the video industry until Pac Man. Now, color graphics, along with a basic cuteness, made Pac Man an instant hit.

I went crazy with the introduction of Donkey Kong, with superior graphics, multi-board levels, and a sense of trying to save the girl. After sinking the national debt into DK, I made sure my initials would be at the top spot at the end of each day.

When Battle Zone hit the game rooms, I freaked over being in the driver's seat of this space tank, with 3-D graphics and unlimited field. But then a mass of games hit the market, and keeping track of them all became more of a chore than trying them all. Games like Pole Position, Tron, Defender, Mappy, and who knows what else, all to drain the wallet.

But I found that the thousands of quarters I plunked into the machines could be spent more wisely for my appetite. Home computers were the answer. I started buying game cartridges like the ones in arcades, so I now had unlimited playing. Disk drives were next on the list, for more realistic and sophisticated games, like simulated flying, and fantasy sci-fi hunting. What can be next on the list?

As by now, you may be able to tell that I am a desperate person. This column is specifically intended for the officials at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. I hear they have the world's ultimate video game: The Space Shuttle simulator. Does ten bucks for five minutes sound reasonable?

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Dear Abby

Woman worries about kissing dancers

DEAR ABBY: I live around Dallas, and there's a club where male dancers "dance" with nothing on but itty-bitty G-strings. They're all very sexy-looking, well-built guys. This club is so popular with women (no men are allowed), if you don't get there an hour before the doors are opened, you can't get in.

I was there with a bunch of girls from the office and I'm no goody-two-shoes, but I was shocked. The men do a lot of very suggestive dancing and then they go out in the audience. If a woman tips them, she gets a big French kiss! I saw this with my own eyes.

Can a girl catch a disease from one of these male dancers if she kisses him? They must kiss a hundred girls in one evening.

Is there a weekly health inspection on these male dancers to ensure someone who is only out with the girls to have a good time that she won't catch something and take it home to her husband?

SCARED TO PLAY, AFRICAID TO PAY

DEAR SCARED: I can't answer the question about a "weekly health inspection," but if the men kiss "about a hundred" women a night, they would need a daily health inspection to be positively certain they were healthy. Both the kisser and the kissee are at risk. Foolish, all.

***

DEAR ABBY: I might sound like a 16-year-old girl, but I'm a 64-year-old widow. I lost my husband of 40 years two years ago. He had been in a wheelchair for years. I had to feed and change him like you would a baby, but I didn't mind. He was a good man and I loved him.

Last year I met "Henry," who is also in a wheelchair. His wife had been dead for six years, and Henry had been in a wheelchair for nearly 30 years. He can't move anything but his hands and arms, but he does

Hormone problem cause hirsutism

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Shortly after the birth of my only child three years ago, abnormally dark coarse hairs began appearing on my chin. I hear there is a medical name for this and that it is caused by a hormone imbalance. What is the correct term for this problem? Would the hormone imbalance affect my ability to conceive again? I have been trying to become pregnant for a year without success. — K.B.

Both conditions, hair growth (hirsutism) and lack of success in conceiving can be related to a hormone problem. Your doctor can check out this without too much trouble.

Having said that, I must point out that more often than not excess hair growth is no problem beyond a cosmetic nuisance to be camouflaged or treated with cosmetics or electrolysis. When hirsutism occurs with other signs of masculinization — like muscle growth, voice deepening or male-type baldness patterns, as at the temples or crown — then you have reason to suspect something seriously amiss. Such hair growth depends on the presence of male hormones, which all women make to some degree, but not nearly to the extent men do.

But even when the hair growth appears with no other signs of masculinization (mentioned above) it still should be reported. There may be a slight excess of the male hormone present. That can be checked from a blood sample.

I cannot relate your hair growth to the birth of your child. However, it does happen to some women during actual pregnancy. The fact that you have been trying to become pregnant and cannot is significant. Your doctor can tell you just how important that may be in your apparent current infertility.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is regional ileitis? — Mrs. S.P.

It is inflammation of the last portion of the small intestine, that section just before it meets the colon, or large intestine. That area is called the ileum. Another name for it is "terminal" ileitis, a reference to the terminal end of the small intestine, not, as one reader feared, a reference to prognosis of the illness. The illness is treated with drugs, diet and, in some, with surgery.

FOR MRS. J.R. — Effective July 15, 1985, there will be a law requiring sodium content listing of nutrition-labeled foods. Meanwhile, "Sodium Guide to Brand Names and Basic Foods," by Barbara Kraus, published by Signet, is a good source of such information.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 2, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning upset, where some quick action of considerable importance is concerned, can be followed by an ability to get conditions about you, of a detailed and specific nature, in good shape for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can receive a disappointing message in the morning, but later can get much done at whatever work you are interested in.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue with one in business over a bill and plan some entertainment that you like and is within your budget.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some disagreement with an associate should not bother you in the morning, and later you can get a good deal accomplished.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You find it difficult sledding at work in the morning, but later all eases up and a good friend is helpful to you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) The morning may be a little difficult but later you can get into a monetary plan that will inspire you. Don't pressure a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some annoying situation at home should be avoided, so get out early and gain those personal goals that mean much to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some private aim is difficult to get, so forget about it. Any terse remarks could bring trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A financial affair with a pal could cause trouble, so use discretion and gain your aims. Some obstacle could upset you if you permit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may find it difficult to solve a career affair, but later a bigwig comes to your assistance if you render a favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are perplexed about how to gain some new aim early but you get an excellent idea and can accomplish much.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy at vocational duties early. Keep any promises you have made, and then you can see your friends later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't argue with an associate and then you can get much done and come to a fine agreement with this person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of getting at the heart of whatever situation faces him or her and solve the matter properly once the tendency to use force is conquered. Teach to become more cooperative with others and not so independent.

Honors go out to Wimbledon stars

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Seventeen tennis greats heard the cheers on Centre Court again today as Wimbledon honored its women champions in a centennial celebration.

To the sound of a trumpet fanfare, Martina Navratilova, the defending champion and top seed, led all but three of the surviving All-England women's singles titlists onto the game's most hallowed turf.

Each received an engraved piece of crystal, a kiss on the cheek from the Duchess of Kent and the adulation of the sport's most devoted fans.

The ceremony, delayed 45 minutes by rain, honored the day, Wednesday, July 16, 1884, that 13 women players in layered summer skirts — one later withdrew — walked daintily on court for the first All-England women's tennis tournament.

The loudest cheers were for Kitty Godfree, 88, the 1924 and '26 champion, who lives nearby in East Sheen, England, and still plays tennis here once a week.

Others honored today included American Althea Gibson (champion in 1957, 1958), who now coaches in New Jersey; Brazil's Maria Bueno (1959, 1960, 1964); Margaret Smith Court (1963, 1965, 1970), now a mother of four in Perth; and the six-time queen of Wimbledon, Billie Jean King (1966, 1967, 1968, 1972, 1973, 1975).

Immediately after the brief ceremony, a hectic day of singles play got under way. All the remaining seeds were scheduled to see action.

Navratilova, a four-time champion, was to continue her title defense against Elizabeth Sayers of Australia while three-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded second behind Navratilova, challenged 14th seed Claudia Kohde of West Germany.

With both halves of the men's and women's draw due for action, top-seed John McEnroe was to grapple with 14th-seed Bill Scanlon in a notorious grudge match. The No. 2 seed, Ivan Lendl, was to follow the women's champions on Centre Court with a contest against Scott Davis, and Jimmy Connors, seeded third, had a match with 16th seed Tim Mayotte next door on No. 1 court.

The Scanlon-McEnroe clash had McEnroe watchers eager with anticipation. McEnroe ousted the hard-serving Texan last year en route to the title, but Scanlon upset the New Yorker at the U.S. Open later in the year. Neither player makes any secret about his dislike of the other.

With no "McEnrows" to write about, the press instead has been digging deep into the players' private lives.

ONE OF THE FAVORITES — Chris Evert-Lloyd is rolling along at Wimbledon and appears headed for a showdown against Martina Navratilova. Lloyd has voiced her displeasure at the media's prying, complaining it is lowering the caliber of play at this year's tournament.

Gamblers fold in the stretch, 17-16

By The Associated Press
Rollie Dotsch may have set a precedent of sorts by giving his Birmingham Stallions a day off to cool off before meeting the Tampa Bay Bandits in the United States Football League playoffs.

"I gave them a Saturday off to give them an edge," Dotsch said after the Stallions advanced Sunday to the Eastern Conference championship game with a 36-17 victory.

"There was a little scuffling all week because the practices were so intense," said Dotsch. "I could feel it in my bones. We were ready." Indeed they were.

Joe Cribbs, the league's leading rusher, gained 112 yards, Danny Miller kicked five field goals and the Birmingham defense set up two touchdowns to advance to the conference final next Sunday in Philadelphia.

George Allen's Arizona Wranglers overcame a 16-3 deficit in the final period of Sunday's other USFL game to pull out a 17-16 victory over Houston. The Wranglers will host the Los Angeles Express next Sunday for the Western Conference crown.

The Express ousted defending champion Michigan on Saturday, winning the longest game in professional football history, 27-21 in three overtimes.

Philadelphia crushed New Jersey 28-7 in Saturday's other game.

The winners of next weekend's games meet for the league championship July 15 in Tampa, Fla.

"Miller was probably the difference," said Bandits Coach Steve Spurrier. "Everytime I thought, 'if he misses this kick, we could come back.' But he just kept hitting them."

Miller booted field goals of 42, 49, 35, 42 and 32 yards.

Cribbs, with 1,467 yards in the regular season, scored on a 3-yard run in the third period to give the Stallions a 27-11 lead.

Cribbs also caught three passes for 55 yards. One was a 29-yarder to the Tampa Bay 1 in the first period to set up the first of two short scoring runs by quarterback Cliff Stoudt.

An interception by Chuck Clanton and a fumble recovery by Buddy Aydelette put Birmingham in position for two of its touchdowns.

WRANGLERS 17, GAMBLERS 16

Houston, on the strength of quarterback Jim Kelly's 14-yard touchdown run and three field goals by Toni Fritsch, seemed in control with 13:37 to play. But Gambler punter Dale Walters suffered 15- and 13-yard punts to set up the late Arizona scoring drives.

Tim Spencer pulled the Wranglers to within six points with 6:11 remaining on a 20-yard touchdown run following the first short punt. Then Greg Landry tossed an 11-yard scoring pass to Doug Dennison, and Frank Corral, whose 38-yard field goal accounted for the lone Arizona scoring in the first half, won the game with an extra point with 1:49 remaining.

"The key to winning the game was poise and playing together," Allen said. "Don't take chances. Every play could be the game in the last six minutes."

EXPRESS 27, PANTHERS 21
"I've never been through anything like that in my life," said Los Angeles Coach John Hadl — and neither had anyone else.

The teams played 93 minutes, 33 seconds, breaking the old mark of 82:40 set by the Miami Dolphins and Kansas City Chiefs in a 1971 National Football League playoff game. Just 8,753 fans witnessed the struggle in the 90,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum.

Ironically, the player who broke up the game, tailback Mel Gray, broke his left arm as he crashed into the end zone on a 24-yard touchdown run at 33 of the third overtime.

Kevin Nelson scored his second touchdown of the game on a 1-yard run to bring the Express to within 21-19 with 52 seconds left in regulation time. Quarterback Steve Young followed with a dash around left end for the two-point conversion to set up the overtime.

Michigan had two chances to win, but Novo Bojovic missed a 37-yard field goal attempt with 10:13 left in the first overtime period and a 36-yarder with 36 seconds left in the second.

STARS 28, GENERALS 7
Philadelphia, scored 21 unanswered points in the second period to avenge its only two losses of the season, both to New Jersey.

The "Doghouse" defense, which limited New Jersey's Herschel Walker to 50 yards rushing, got started early when Scott Woerner intercepted a Brian Sipe pass to kill the first drive by the Generals. John Bunting recovered a Sipe fumble following a sack by Pete Kugler to set up the first of Kelvin Bryant's three touchdowns, a 10-yard run early in the second period.

Bryant also scored one a 1-yard run and on an 11-yard pass from Chuck Fusina. Garcia Lane returned a punt 70 yards for the other Philadelphia touchdown.
"When you fall behind a defensive team like that, it's all uphill," said Sipe.

Royals' Splittorff steps down for good

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Paul Splittorff put an end to a 13-year major league career with no regrets and little looking back.

The veteran left-hander, who spent his entire career in a Royals uniform, announced his retirement Sunday following Kansas City's 8-0 drubbing of the New York Yankees.

A combination of a job offer in broadcasting and infrequent and ineffective pitching performances this season convinced Splittorff to retire, he said.

"I guess age and inactivity probably hurt me as much as anything else," the 37-year-old southpaw said. "I couldn't do anything about the age, and the workload wasn't going to change."

"I really felt like I was backed into a corner and there were not very many positive things that could be said," he added. "When I did pitch, I was not throwing the ball well. I was a non-productive player and it was tearing me up."

Splittorff, who was 1-3 with a 7.71 earned run average in nine relief appearances and three starts this season, said he never really considered asking for his release and trying to catch on with another club.

"This thing in broadcasting came along just at the right time," he said. "It's something that I've been interested in and wanted to try to do. July 1 is just as good a time (to retire) as September 30."

Schuerholz said Splittorff's work with the Topeka, Kan., radio station would include periodic appearances in the radio booth on Royals broadcasts.

"Paul Splittorff is a credit to the Kansas City Royals, both on and off the field," Schuerholz said. "Not only has he been an outstanding pitcher who has won many crucial games for us, but he has been an outstanding representative of all this organization stands for."

Hal McRae, the Royals designated hitter and teammate of Splittorff for the past 10 seasons, said it was "good that a guy can walk away rather than be turned away.

"He was smart enough to make the transition without difficulty when his time came," said McRae, himself in the twilight of a lengthy career. "I hope I'm smart enough to do what he did and be able to walk away with everything in its place."

Splittorff compiled a career record of 166-143, a victory total that ranked him 10th among active pitchers and fifth among active left-handers.

He holds Royals career records with 429 games, 393 starts and 2,554 2-3 innings.

The two best seasons for Splittorff were 1973, when he was 20-11 with a 3.98 ERA, and 1978, when he was 19-13 with a 3.40 ERA.

He tossed one-hitters on Aug. 3, 1975 against Oakland and again on Sept. 2, 1977 against Milwaukee.

Splittorff was dubbed a "Yankee Killer" for his work in the 1976 and 1977 American League Championship Series. In all, Splittorff was 2-0 with a 2.68 ERA in four championship series and the 1980 World Series.

Splittorff, who last pitched Tuesday when he started the first game of double-header against Oakland, said he discussed his situation Thursday with Schuerholz.

"There wasn't much to say," Splittorff said. "Where I fell down this year was consistency and control, and those two things have always been my strong points."

The playoff appearances stand out more in his mind than the 20-win season. "I haven't really looked back yet," he said. "I guess the playoffs were my greatest thrill. The 20 wins came in my second year, so it didn't have that much of an impact on me. I thought then it was something you could do every year. I think the year I won 19 was a better overall season."

"I was a 22nd-round draft choice and a chance prospect," he said. "If I were to write it, I'd like to be remembered as a guy who worked hard and got the most out of his ability."

U.S. Olympians win another from NBA

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Enough experimenting. Enough evaluating. With the Summer Olympics less than a month away, U.S. basketball Coach Bobby Knight is ready to get down to business.

Knight let all 12 of his Olympians play between 14 and 18 minutes Sunday in a nationally-televised 94-90 triumph over a pick-up team of National Basketball Association thoroughbreds.

"But that's the last game we'll do that," Knight said. "For now on we will play our five starters and substitute them only when they're in foul trouble or get tired."

Knight wouldn't say who his starters will be for the next Olympic-NBA game July 8 in Iowa City or for the team's first Olympic game July 29 against China.

But he hinted that North Carolina's Michael Jordan and Indiana's Steve Alford, two accurate long-range bombers, will be called upon to pick apart the zone defenses Knight expects to see in Los Angeles.

When the pros came out in the second half in a 3-2 zone defense Sunday, the Olympians hit only 31 percent from the floor and blew a 12-point halftime lead.

Knight's troops needed four free throws from Georgetown's Pat Ewing in the final minute to regain the lead.

"Winning or losing was not our objective," Knight said. "Were it, we would have completely changed our lineup. Alford and Jordan weren't in there. It wasn't our zone offense."

Although Sunday's game was the first close one in three clashes with NBA stars, Knight thought his defense showed improvement.

"They worked like hell to create a lot of problems," Knight said. "After we score, our defense is pretty good. But if we don't score, we just aren't ready to play defense."

Knight said, "it's safe to say we won't play against this type of talent in the Olympics, but when we get to Los Angeles, we'll be playing against a team-oriented concept."

He said the NBA squad — which included Los Angeles' Magic Johnson, Dallas' Mark Aguirre, Boston's Kevin McHale and Detroit's Isiah Thomas — boasted some of the best players in the world.

"It hit me early, seeing the NBA stars," Jordan said. "We let them intimidate us with their status. Every once in a while, I dreamed about playing against these guys, but right now I have to concentrate on the Olympics."

Sam Perkins, another North Carolinian who paced the Olympians with 16 points, said he was concerned by a "slippage between practice and the games."

"We have to keep things constant," Perkins said. "Maybe we need a loss to wake us up."

Perkins said most Americans assume their team will win the gold medal, "but we have to realize the other teams are getting better and they're out to beat us."

A crowd of 19,038 watched the first-ever basketball game at the 2 1/2-year-old Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

Other leading Olympic scorers included Jordan, Ewing and St. John's Chris Mullin, each with 12 points.

What did the NBA all-stars think of America's team?

"I don't think they have a ton of weaknesses," said McHale, who led the pros with 18 points, including 12 in the second half. "Once they get a little more accustomed to playing together, they'll be all that much better."

Thomas, who chipped in 15 points, said, "They may not be the most talented team, but they are a team that plays well together."

Aguirre thinks "they reach in too much on defense, instead of using their bodies."

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkins likes the Olympic team's depth, "But if they have any weakness, it's playing against a zone (defense)."

Johnson likes the team's blend. "They throw different combinations at you," Johnson said. "Bangers, speed, shooters. It's not just one thing. They come at you all the time."

But all the NBA players said they put patriotism aside and wanted to win Sunday.

"They weren't going against a bunch of cupcakes," McHale said. "I think if we had a week together, we could beat them."

WINS GRAND PRIX — Mario Andretti waves his trophy for photographers in East Rutherford, New Jersey on Sunday after winning the U.S. Grand Prix. He won the 100 lap race in just over two hours.

High rolling Norman takes Canadian title

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Greg Norman is on a roll, doing what he wants to do, and doing it so very well.

"It's a great feeling," Norman said after he had bested Jack Nicklaus in a head-to-head duel and scored a two-shot victory in the Canadian Open Golf Championship Sunday.

"I wake up in the morning and all I want to do is go out there and play golf. It's fun. It's exciting."

"When I wake up and I don't want to go play golf, then it's time to take a couple of weeks off."

But the time is not yet.

"I'm looking forward to the British Open," Norman said. "I know St. Andrews well, all the humps and hollows. I'm looking forward to it."

"But I'm also looking forward to the Western Open, going on to Chicago next week and trying to win that golf tournament. Who knows? Maybe I will."

Norman, 29, one of the longest hitters in the game, already has won four times this season: two in Australia at the start of the season, the Kemper Open in Bethesda, Md., early last month and now the Canadian national championship.

That does not, however, ease the memories of his playoff loss to Fuzzy Zoeller in the U.S. Open.

"Not in the least," Norman said. "That will be there, that will be in my mind, until I do win the U.S. Open," he said.

Alcott battles deficit to capture Keystone

HERSEY, Pa. (AP) — Even though she began the final round six strokes behind the leader, Amy Alcott never gave up hope of winning the Lady Keystone Open.

"I've won from four back, and earlier this year from five back," Alcott said after shooting a record seven-under-par 65 Sunday to win the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament. "I played the kind of golf I'm capable of playing. I knew if I played aggressive I'd be in there."

Alcott, who finished with a 54-hole total of 208, had eight birdies and just one bogey in her record round on the 6,388-yard West Course of the Hershey Country Club. Five players had shared the previous 18-hole record of 66.

"This is one of the finest rounds of golf I've ever played. It could have been a 63 if I had made a couple (more) putts," she said.

"My strong point is course management. I kept my cool and planned my shots. I could be ten back and still think I've got a chance."

shaking so badly, I didn't think I'd ever get the putter back.

"I don't think there's anybody in the world who could be standing out there and not be nervous," Nause said. "I never had a chance to win before, and you have to be there once to do better next time."

Inkster, who came to the 18th one shot behind Alcott, missed a great chance to tie. She reached the green of the 405-yard hole in two, but missed a 12-foot downhill birdie putt. Inkster finished the round with a two-under 70.

"I really didn't play bad, but I never set it on fire, either," said Inkster. "I really never saw Amy coming. I didn't see her on the leader board until 16."

Alcott was hot from the start. She birdied the tough 410-yard opening hole, then added three more birdies at Nos. 5, 6 and 9. She had her only bogey on the fourth, making the turn with a three-under 33.

After getting one of the few birdies of the day at 10, Alcott stormed into the lead with birdie putts at 14, 16 and 17. But it was a 20-foot par putt at 18 that enabled Alcott to win the $30,000 first prize.
