

Sikhs hijack Indian plane; threaten to blow it up

By The Associated Press
An Indian Airlines jetliner with 264 people aboard was hijacked from Kashmir to Lahore, Pakistan, today by nine Sikh militants who threatened to blow up the aircraft, according to the United News of India.
The news agency said the hijackers belonged to the Kashmir unit of the banned All-India Sikh Students Federation, accused by the government of plotting secession and setting up guerrilla training camps in Kashmir.

UNI quoted official sources as saying UNI said the Airbus 300 landed safely at Lahore in southwest Pakistan, near the Indian border, at 6:40 p.m. (9:10 a.m. EDT). UNI said six passengers were released and the hijackers demanded the plane be refueled.

They also demanded that all Sikh passengers be allowed to leave the aircraft and that all baggage be unloaded, UNI said.
The agency said Pakistan rejected the demands and placed an army commander in charge of the situation.

Non-Indians were believed to be aboard the hijacked airliner, but no passenger roster was available. The plane carried 255 passengers and nine crew members.

Pakistan authorities, who have a policy of not negotiating with hijackers, at first refused landing permission and the plane circled over Lahore for almost two hours. Permission was granted after the pilot said the plane was running out of fuel and would be forced to crash-land, UNI said.

Pakistan Radio reported that the hijackers threatened to blow up the aircraft if it was not allowed to land and refuel.

The Lahore airport control tower said the Airbus was cordoned off right after it touched down.

The plane, Flight IC405, was commandeered 45 minutes after it took off from Srinagar, Kashmir.

Court upholds draft, aid link

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is not inflicting unconstitutional punishment by denying federal aid to male college students who fail to register for the draft, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 6-2 vote, the justices upheld a 1982 law that disqualifies from any federal loan or grant program male college students who have not met their legal obligation to register.

A federal judge in Minnesota had invalidated the law.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, in his opinion for the court, said, "Conditioning receipt of ... aid on registration is plainly a rational means to improve compliance with the registration requirement."

He said the law "also furthers a fair allocation of scarce federal resources by limiting aid to those who are willing to meet their responsibilities to the United States by registering with the Selective Service when required to do so."

Opponents of the law said that requiring students to tell whether they have registered is a form of coercive self-incrimination.

But government lawyers said the purpose of the law is "not to catch wrongdoers" but to increase the number of young men on the registration rolls.

Since the law took effect, more than 300,000 students who previously had failed to sign up for the draft have done so.

One of the authors of the law, Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., called today's decision "a great victory. ... We said all along that the college loans and grants were not a constitutional right. They are a special benefit and privilege that is granted by the Congress on behalf of the taxpayers — and those taxpayers resent their tax dollars going to students who deliberately break the law."

But a spokesman for the Americans Civil Liberties Union, Chuck Sims, said he was "extremely disappointed" and predicted the ruling would "have some effect on compliance with the draft among the poor people in this country who need federal financial aid to education."

Burger, in rejecting the self-incrimination arguments of registration opponents, said no student is under any "compulsion" to seek federal aid and therefore has no reason to make any statement

Glasscock roasts Pruitt

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

GARDEN CITY — About 700 Glasscock County residents yesterday turned out on the courthouse lawn of this small West Texas town to eat barbecue in an Independence Day roast of longtime Sheriff Royce "Booger" Pruitt.

"Booger has been sheriff here for 23 years and he does exceptionally well. He takes care of the people of this county and the people of this county appreciate it," said organizer Wayne Munn of the Glasscock County Lions Club.

A subpoena issued from the court of Glasscock County Judge John Robinson called Pruitt to the courthouse location at 11:30 a.m. to kick off the day's festivities.

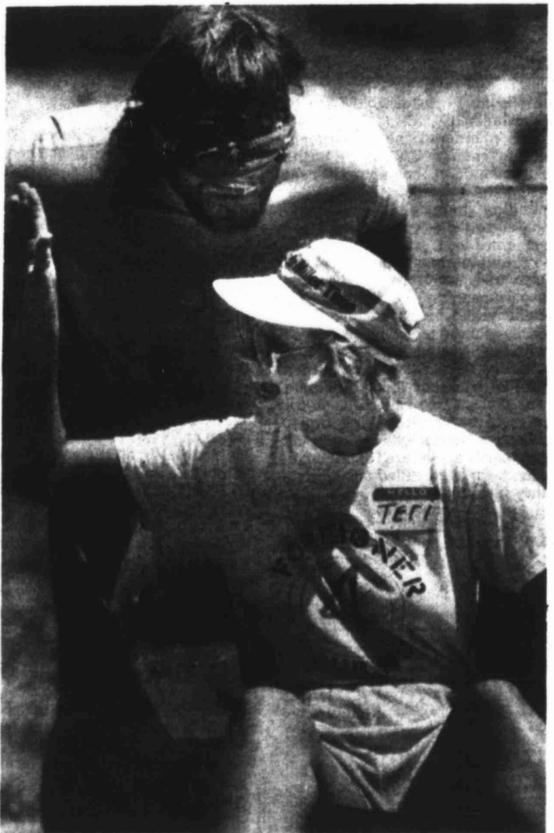

"This is something I'll remember from now on," said Pruitt, who was the youngest sheriff in the State of Texas at the time he was first elected. He is currently in the midst of his fifth consecutive four-year term.

As tokens of appreciation, Pruitt was presented with a Lone Star-shaped plaque from the Lions Club and a .357 magnum pistol engraved with the words, "For Sheriff Pruitt from the citizens of Glasscock County."

While firecrackers popped and a country fiddler played in the background, Pruitt was roasted by several of his friends in law enforcement, including Norman K. Warner of the Texas Highway Department in Austin, Crane County Sheriff Raymond Events were set up on the east side of Comanche Trail Lake near the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Competition was often absurd, always intense, and generally all in fun, as exchanges such as the following were heard during the blindfolded wheelbarrow race:
"Sharp right."

Followed by, "Oh, my God!" as wheelbarrow and passenger toppled over.

"I love it. We're having a great time," said Shelley Choate of the team organized by Don Cook, which held the overall lead as of noon.

"I think it's great because nobody's griping," said her husband and partner, Mark Choate. The day's activities were marred by several injuries to competitors.

Cold front brings rain

By The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms, some very heavy, fell today in Texas along a weak cold front that extended from near Texarkana across extreme North Central Texas into the South Plains.

Other showers and thunderstorms were reported over parts of the upper Texas coast, with widely scattered showers and thundershowers offshore in the Gulf of Mexico.

Partly cloudy skies covered much of the eastern two-thirds of Texas, while mostly fair skies were the rule over West Texas.

South to southeast winds prevailed across most of the state except northwesterly over the northeast corner of the state. Wind speeds were generally in the 5 to 15 mile an hour range.

Temperatures were mostly in the 70s except readings in the 80s over parts of North Texas. Cooler readings in the 60s were most common north of the frontal zone. The early morning extremes ranged from 64 at Amarillo to a high of 84 at Dallas and Fort Worth.

Scattered thunderstorms are expected across much of North Texas tonight with a slight chance of afternoon or evening showers over the Central Plains and Southeast Texas.

Thunderstorms rumbled over the nation's mid-section and parts of the South today, following the Independence Day holiday with a taste of Mother Nature's fireworks.

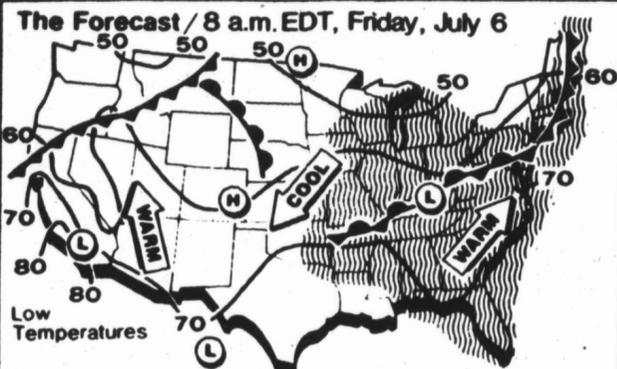

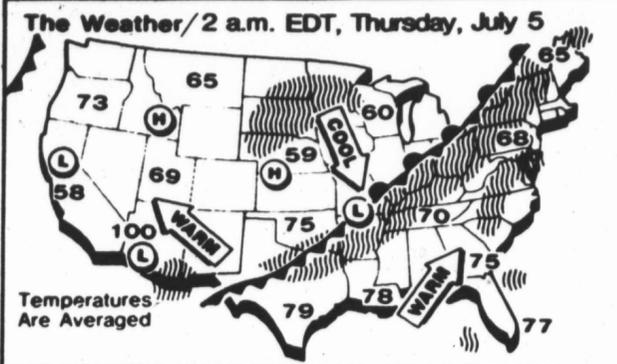

In North Fort Myers, Fla., a woman was critically injured Wednesday when she was struck by a bolt of lightning while watering her garden.

Thunderstorms were reported early today in the southern Plains, lower Great Lakes, Tennessee Valley and central New England. The rest of the nation enjoyed generally clear weather.

A downpour forced the postponement of many fireworks displays in Ohio, including Toledo and Cleveland, where nearly an inch of rain had fallen by early today.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS: Fair tonight except for isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms southwest. Little change Friday. Lows tonight in the mid-60s north, mid-70s south. Highs Friday from the mid-90s north to upper 90s south, except in the mid-100s in the Big Bend.

Stabbed man mum on attack

An 18-year-old victim of an early morning stabbing refused to give Howard County sheriff's deputies any information regarding the incident in which he was injured, even though he remains in Malone-Hogan Hospital today.

The victim, Henry Grenados of 3707 Connally, remains in stable condition after suffering a stab wound to the left chest, according to a nursing supervisor at the hospital.

The sheriff's office is not sure of where the stabbing incident took place, but according to the police, who first received the report of the incident from the hospital, the incident happened in the county.

Police Capt. Lonnie Smith said police were notified that a stabbing victim was at the hospital at 12:24 a.m. today. After determining the incident happened in the county, the department notified the sheriff's office at 12:40 a.m., according to sheriff's records.

Grenados told the sheriff's office he did not want to file charges, according to sheriff's records.

A 73-year-old Big Spring man who reported an armed robbery Tuesday afternoon told sheriff's deputies Wednesday he did not wish to file charges.

Tomás Tarango Lujan Sr. of 1505 1/2 S. Main told deputies at about 6 p.m. Tuesday that he was robbed in the northeast part of the county on the old Colorado City Highway.

According to a report, Lujan said that he was robbed about 2 or 2:30 p.m. Tuesday when he accepted a ride with a Hispanic woman whom he knew and a 13-year-old girl in their car to get beer. He said he driven out of town for about 30 minutes, when the woman stopped the car and told him to give her all his money.

According to a sheriff's report, Lujan refused, and the woman then tore his shirt and pulled out a pistol. She hit him in the face with her fist and then hit him in the chest with the pistol butt before taking $250 out of his wallet. She also took his hat, his shoes, a bracelet and a watch from him and drove off, leaving him in the road. Deputy George Quintero said Lujan told him Wednesday afternoon that he did not want to file charges. "Apparently, he knew the people and settled the problem," Quintero said.

Two sheriff's deputies assisted the police in a drug bust Tuesday night that netted about 10 to 15 pounds of what law enforcement officials believe to be marijuana, according to an estimate from Deputy Bill Shankles.

Police and deputies also arrested a couple who lived at the residence where the search took place in the Oasis Addition at about 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Arrested were Federico C. Martinez Jr., 36, and Irma Martinez, 42, both of Gail Route on suspicion of possession of more than 5 pounds but less than 50 pounds of marijuana. Both were transferred to the police department and released on $15,000 bond each.

Rebecca Archibald, 29, remains in county jail after being transferred by deputies from Haltom City to the county jail after her bondsman went off bond on a charge of prostitution.

Deputies also arrested Charles Stansel, 33, of Sterling City Route on a peace bond warrant. He was released on $2,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

The Department of Public Safety Wednesday arrested James Sayles, 47, of Route 1 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was transferred to county jail and released on $1,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

The DPS also transferred Randy Young, 28, of Lubbock to county jail after his arrest late Tuesday on suspicion of driving while license suspended. He was released Wednesday morning on $500 bond set by Heflin.

Firemen have hot 4th; Sheriff tackle 25 grass fires

The Big Spring Fire Department and the county volunteer fire departments answered calls to more than 25 grass fires over the Fourth of July holiday, which included Tuesday night.

Big Spring Assistant Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles said the city fire department answered 23 calls during the period, including 18 on July 4.

Settles, who said he had kept journals of the number of fire calls during the Fourth of July period every year, called this holiday "definitely the worst" he had seen.

"Just about all" of the grass fires were fireworks-related, Settles said. "We can't prove prove they were all caused by fireworks, because people weren't around when we got there. Others we know were because the people were around and told us."

No deaths or injuries from fires or fireworks were reported, he said. No one reported any building fires, but "we had some near misses," Settles said. One of the near misses occurred on Third Street, where a rocket landed on a man's house, Settles said. The man put out the fire himself, but said he wanted to file charges against the persons who set off the fireworks, he said. It is illegal to set off fireworks in the city limits, he said.

"There were no building fires this year, and for that I'm glad," Settles said. However, the city had several grass fires, including a major fire near the sewage treatment plant on F.M. 700, which took about 3 1/2 hours to extinguish he said. Firemen arrived at the scene about 10 p.m. Wednesday and the fire was not put out until about 1 or 1:30 a.m. today, he said.

In addition to the big grass fire near the sewage treatment plant, another small grass fire was reported in the area and extinguished shortly before the large one started.

Settles said those fires were caused mostly by persons setting off fireworks on the south side of F.M. 700. The south side of the road is in the county limits, but the fireworks were aimed north, causing fires in the city, Settles said.

County volunteer firemen answered four fires on Tuesday night and Wednesday, according to the sheriff's records. One of those fires occurred about 3 p.m. Wednesday at a fireworks stand and was "started by the kids running the stand," according to the sheriff's records.

Other county grass fires were reported near the gravel pits Wednesday night and on the mountain and on S. 87 on Tuesday night. Settles said most of the fires could have been avoided if fireworks had not been set off. "It's just common sense that if you haven't had much rain, and you know the grasses are very dry, you wouldn't set off any," he said.

At least 20 people died in motor vehicle accidents during the 30-hour Fourth of July period, almost double the estimate of 11, according to the Midland office of Department of Public Safety.

No fatalities occurred in Region Four, which includes Howard, Martin, Mitchell, Glasscock and Midland Counties, according to DPS Lt. Jimmie Rhoads.

Only one accident was reported in Howard County during Operation Motorcade, according to DPS and Howard County sheriff's office reports.

According to the sheriff's office, an accident was reported about 11:46 p.m. Wednesday, just minutes before the deadline, on N. Highway 87. According to Shaffer Ambulance, four persons were transported to Cowper Clinic. Of those four, two were examined by the doctor. One man had a possible broken nose.

No other information was available.

Local DPS officials also arrested one person for driving while intoxicated during the period and one person for driving while license suspended, they said.

The total of fatalities could still increase because of an accident Wednesday in which a truck went over a guardrail and plunged into Lake Palestine, Rhoads said. DPS officials have not been able to find a body yet, but are still searching the lake. They also believe that more than one person might have been in the truck when it landed in the lake, he said.

Officials said the final toll would not be known until Thursday morning.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident," quoted Hodges from the Declaration of Independence. He went on to say: "You people who have elected Booger could not have elected anyone who could have upheld these truths any better."

Prior to Pruitt's roast, the assemblage feasted on barbecued chicken, boiled potatoes, pinto beans and iced tea prepared by farmers from the county's St. Lawrence community.

Afterward, residents heard country western music played by a local "pick up" band, "The Cotton Cowboys", and children played organized games on the courthouse lawn.

Carolyn Forshee was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital with a broken ankle she received during the three-legged race and two other persons were shaken up in falls on the obstacle course.

"I enjoyed it until I landed on my head," said John Arrick of the State National Bank team.

However, a replacement was found for Arrick and his team continued gamely in competition.

Running around the Summerfest area throughout the day were small children whose faces had been painted in a variety of wild designs at the children's area of the festival.

A championship playoff decided the Summerfest winners, as two teams fought for the honor in a tug-of-war over a pool of mud.

Participants heard music supplied by a local band known as "Trilogy" and enjoyed refreshments from the various food and beverage booths. Proceeds from the booths will be donated to the rehabilitation center and other charities, such as the Howard County Easter Seals Association.

Craft booths also sold their wares, which included paintings, leatherwork and woodwork.

"This is the greatest day in the country. This is Independence Day," said Sam Reeves during races of his "thoroughbred mechanical armadillos."

And capping the day's events was an informal dance at the community center, where revelers paid $25 per couple to take their turns around the dance floor to the sounds of country-western and top-40 music.

as to whether or not he has registered.

"A person who has not registered (for the draft) clearly is under no compulsion to seek federal aid," Burger said. "If he has not registered, he is simply ineligible for aid."

Moreover, the chief justice said, late registrants may qualify for aid without providing any information to their school that would incriminate them. Burger said the statement to the school by the aid applicant simply states that he is "in compliance with the registration law."

The law "does not require him to disclose whether he was a timely or a late registrant," he added.

The draft-status disclosure law was challenged by six Minnesota college students, sparking a ruling by U.S. District Judge Donald L. Alsop in St. Paul last year that the law is an impermissible form of punishment.

Alsop ordered the government not to enforce the law. But the Supreme Court soon thereafter set aside the effect of Alsop's order pending today's decision and therefore the registration law has remained in effect.

The statute was enacted Sept. 30, 1962, and, early last October, the government for the first time in eight years began issuing draft cards to those men who registered with the Selective Service.

Unlike the earlier cards, burned by the thousands in anti-Vietnam war protests, the new cards do not have to be carried at all times. Selective Service officials said the new cards are offered as a convenience for men called on to prove they have registered.

Draft registration — but not the draft — was reinstated in 1980.

Ford stars as the adventurous archaeologist in the current hit movie "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," the sequel to the box office hit "Raiders of the Lost Ark." Lois Blakesley, formerly of Elkhorn, acted with Ford two decades ago and remembers the brash screen hero as a quiet guy who worked for room and board and a small stipend as the resident actor of the Belfry Theater.

NIAGARA FALLS — Karel Soucek, the daredevil who survived a plunge over Niagara Falls in a barrel, is anxious to capitalize on his good luck.

Soucek said Wednesday that a 30-minute television documentary on Monday's 175-foot plunge is being prepared for North American viewers and an hour-long documentary on his stunts has been sold to the European market.

The trip over the falls was recorded by a professional film crew.

Film has reportedly been selling for $3,000 to $4,500 a minute, the 37-year-old Hamilton said.

Peter Mallet, a spokesman for the film company, said Soucek is "definitely going to make money off this, but he won't become a millionaire or anything like that."

Mondale eyes Cisneros for No. 2 spot on ticket

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — As Americans celebrated one of the most important days in the nation's history, Walter Mondale was wrestling with the question of whether to make history himself by choosing a woman, a Hispanic or member of another minority as his running mate.

The probable Democratic presidential nominee heard on Wednesday once again from women politicians supporting him that the way to win in November is to put a woman in the vice presidential slot.

The 23 women insisted there was no pressure and there were no threats, just a desire to defeat President Reagan using a reality "that it may be difficult for a man to fathom."

"There is a limitless reservoir of potential voters out there if he selects a woman to be his vice presidential running mate," said Sharon Dixon of Washington, D.C., after attending the meeting with Mondale at a hotel here.

Mondale also interviewed San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros on Wednesday, the first Hispanic of the six politicians questioned so far in Mondale's search for a running mate.

Mondale said Cisneros has a "magnificent record of leadership" and is an outstanding example of the realization of the American dream of opportunity who would make a "superb vice president."

The 37-year-old mayor said he was proud to break a barrier for Americans of Hispanic heritage.

"It is a great source of pride for my family, my city and people of my heritage that I would be invited here on July 4, 1984," Cisneros told reporters in a driveway news conference at Mondale's home in nearby North Oaks. "The very fact that I would be invited — a person whose grandfather came to this country in 1924, whose mother was born in Mexico, whose father was born in New Mexico one of 12 children of very, very humble means — speaks to our party as the party of unprecedented opportunity."

On the session with the women, Mondale's only comment was that it was "a very good meeting."

At a news conference, the women were unrelentingly upbeat and generally dismissed talk of a revolt at the Democratic Convention in 11 days if Mondale chooses a man as his running mate.

"It is our view that the Democratic ticket would be the strongest — with Fritz Mondale at the top — if it contained a woman as the vice presidential candidate," New York City Council President Carol Bellamy.

"The purpose of this meeting was not to place pressure," said Ann Richards, state treasurer of Texas.

"There is no reason at this juncture to talk about a protest movement at the convention because our overriding consideration is to win the election in November," said Ms. Dixon.

Iranian planes damage Japanese tanker

BAHRAIN — A 122,202-ton oil tanker, registered in Liberia but Japanese-operated, was attacked and "slightly damaged" by two Iranian warplanes in the Persian Gulf today, Bahrain-based shipping sources reported.

The Primrose, reported carrying 250,000 tons of oil and a crew of 26 Japanese, was hit 75 miles southwest of Iran's Lavan Island in the southern end of the gulf, the sources and a Japanese charter firm spokesman in Tokyo said.

The tanker, on charter to Japan Line

Ltd., left the Saudi Arabian oil terminal of Ras Tanura on Wednesday night after loading crude.

It was attacked late this morning and was reported to be sailing at full speed toward the Strait of Hormuz, the southern outlet of the gulf.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for Japan Line Ltd., Teizo Tamura, said an unidentified jet fighter hit the tanker with two missiles today, but there were no injuries to the crew and the ship continued on its way.

Tamura said one projectile penetrated to an engine room boiler, but there was no explosion.

Tamura said the attack came when the ship was about 150 miles east of Ras Tanura. He said the Primrose was headed for Europe, with a final destination to be decided later.

News in brief

Kashmir under curfew

KASHMIR — Officials imposed an indefinite curfew on the Kashmir capital of Srinagar today to prevent violent protests against the dismissal of a state government led by critics of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

A planeload of paramilitary troops was airlifted to Srinagar to join security officers already deployed in the city. The curfew shut down shops and businesses, and police and paramilitary patrols checked identity cards of all passers-by.

Army in control of Beirut

BEIRUT — Moslem and Christian army units pushed through the evacuated strongholds of rival militias and linked up today along Beirut's "green line" in a move to reunite the war-divided capital. Engineering units dismantled land mines while bulldozers knocked down earth mounds and sand-bagged barricades to reopen three major crossings for normal traffic between Moslem west Beirut and Christian east Beirut.

The reopening of the crossings is the main goal for the second day of a security operation aimed at restoring peace to a city that has experienced nine years of civil war.

Bolivian workers strike

LA PAZ — Bolivian workers began a general strike today, confronting President Hernan Siles Zuazo with a new challenge just five days after he was abducted in an unsuccessful coup attempt.

The Bolivian Labor Confederation's executive committee voted 13-8 Wednesday night in favor of an indefinite strike to demand stable food prices, higher wages and a unilateral moratorium on payments to foreign commercial creditors.

The powerful mineworkers union led the strike movement and said it started with miners on the overnight shift. Strike leaders said many railroad employees and bus drivers were opposed the walkout and planned to work. Electricity, water, telephones and other basic services continued.

Argentine generals resign

BUENOS AIRES — The head of the army general staff and another top general have resigned in the first high-level military shake-up since President Raul Alfonsin's civilian government replaced a military junta in December.

In a separate incident, an explosion ripped a hole in the roof of a Buenos Aires television station Wednesday night while it was broadcasting a documentary on illegal arrests, torture and killings by the former military regime.

The resignation of the general staff chief, Brig. Gen. Jorge Arguindegui, was accepted by the Defense Ministry, according to a government communique issued late Wednesday.

Egypt, Soviets heal rift

CAIRO — A senior adviser to President Hosni Mubarak said today that Egypt and the Soviet Union have agreed on the procedures but not the date for exchanging ambassadors for the first time since 1978.

Aid for reform is good alternative

A drought considered one of the worst in African history is cutting a swath through the sub-Saharan region. The United Nations estimates that 100 million to 150 million Africans now face possible starvation in 24 countries. Accordingly, the world community is reacting by rushing emergency relief to the area.

Although this international response is heartening, it is nonetheless a stopgap solution. Two decades of a succession of social planners in Africa has produced a 20-percent drop in per-capita food production. Many African nations now face serious food shortages due mainly to disastrous state-marketing policies that retarded agricultural production throughout the region.

African bureaucrats forced farmers to keep their prices low to placate burgeoning urban populations accustomed to cheap food. In too many African countries, farming ceased to be a profitable enterprise.

The Reagan administration's response to this vicious cycle is to offer aid as incentive for essential economic reform. The administration has proposed providing $90 million in emergency food relief and $500 million over five years. To qualify for the long-term assistance, the recipients would have to implement free-market reforms that provide incentives to local farmers.

Granted, the aid-for-reform approach encompasses only a small percentage of the total U.S. aid package for Africa. It is, however, an inducement that might encourage other nations to follow suit.

Weighing the risk

Among this nation's many military obligations is a promise to intervene, if necessary, to ensure the supply of oil from the Persian Gulf. That the oil is still flowing, nearly four years into a bloody war between two Gulf neighbors, is widely interpreted as a vindication of that policy. But no American commitment is less examined, more dangerous or harder to justify.

The U.S. pledge, or threat, is nothing new. In 1974, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger said the U.S. might use force against oil-producing nations if the Arab oil embargo went "too far." As far back as 1953, the Central Intelligence Agency helped to overthrow an elected government in Iran after it nationalized foreign oil holdings.

The essential American position is that no one, from inside the region or out, may threaten our access to Persian Gulf oil. President Carter created a Rapid Deployment Force to protect it, and warned that a Soviet invasion of the region would be "repelled by any means necessary." In 1981, President Reagan said he wouldn't allow Saudi Arabia to become another Iran: "There's no way we could stand by and see that taken over by anyone that would shut off that oil."

The commitment carries a high price tag. Earl Ravenal, a former Pentagon analyst and now a professor at Georgetown University, estimates that the U.S. spends about $47 billion a year for the defense of the Persian Gulf — nearly one-sixth of the entire defense budget.

Why? The simplest answer is oil. The U.S. regards its access to those supplies — and, more important, its allies' access — as critical. Though the Gulf supplies only 2 percent of the oil consumed in the U.S., it provides 25 percent of Western Europe's supplies and 55 percent of Japan's. The theory is that, while the U.S. might survive the loss of the region's oil, our allies couldn't.

But, in the event of a supply interruption, consuming countries wouldn't have to do without that share of their oil that had come from the Persian Gulf. If Japan can't buy oil from Saudi Arabia, it will bid for Venezuela's. Prices will rise until demand and supply are back in balance.

This would be unpleasant but not calamitous. Given the excess capacity in the world oil market and the beneficial effects of price decontrol in the U.S., it's hard to imagine any disruption that would cause prices to rise as drastically as they did in 1973, after the Iranian revolution. The world, with some pain, adjusted tolerably well to that inconvenience. It isn't worth spilling blood to avoid a similar episode.

Nor does the threat of Soviet expansion justify our policy. Completely apart from the likely U.S. response, the Soviets have no persuasive reason to invade the Persian Gulf. Keeping Poland in line and subduing Afghanistan are hard enough without trying to assert control over, say, 40 million Iranians.

It wouldn't make much sense for the world's biggest oil producer to impose a bloody occupation on a Gulf nation merely to get oil. If the Soviets were determined enough to overlook the region's homegrown obstacles, which is extremely unlikely, the prospect of a war with the U.S. wouldn't necessarily stop them.

Despite the Soviet's proximity to the Gulf, our air and naval power might enable us to prevail in a conventional conflict. But it would be hard to sustain broad public support for a war over the control of oil fields on the other side of the globe. And no one could be confident that it wouldn't escalate into nuclear war — a risk not justified by the prize.

In any case, neither Khomeinist-style revolutions nor Soviet imperialism would be a great threat to the West's oil supplies, much less its military security. Whoever gains ownership of Persian Gulf oil has little choice but to sell — as Khomeini himself does. Even in the worst, most unlikely scenario, the oil would almost certainly continue to flow.

So far, the Reagan administration's bark has been worse than its bite. It has carefully avoided any military engagement to protect oil tankers from attacks by Iran. But it isn't hard to imagine an incident that might bring swift U.S. intervention, at a potential cost that would make our adventure in Lebanon look cheap.

There are places around the world where the U.S. has an arguable case for involvement — to defend embattled democracies, to ensure our own security, or both. But neither a noble principle nor a vital interest is at stake in the Persian Gulf. Staying out would cost little and gain much.

Poverty forces immigration flood

WASHINGTON — The immigration bill is intended, among other things, to stem the flood of illegal aliens who have been pouring across the Mexican border virtually unchecked.

But it's a futile effort if something isn't done to cure Mexico's internal economic troubles. It's the desperate poverty of Mexico's peasants that impels them to seek menial jobs in the United States, living the shadowy existence of illegal aliens in daily fear of discovery and deportation.

As long as life for Mexico's poor is without hope, they will continue to cross the border. Nothing short of a 1,933-mile Berlin Wall will stop them.

In fact, new associate Dale Van Atta has learned that the Pentagon is considering a plan only slightly less drastic. A Defense Intelligence Agency study is actually trying to determine how many U.S. Army divisions would be required to seal off the porous Mexican border.

It's not clear that even the Army could accomplish this formidable task. What is abundantly clear is that the 2,300-member border patrol — with fewer than 300 on duty at any given time — doesn't stand a chance.

The border patrol concentrates its meager manpower at such "easy" crossings as Laredo and El Paso, Texas; Douglas, Ariz.; and Chula Vista, Calif., counting on the life-threatening rigors of the rugged mountains and scorching deserts at other points to discourage illegal immigrants. Not surprisingly, the border patrol has caught only a small percentage of the uncounted millions who have crossed the border in recent years.

A significant ingredient in the Mexican peasants' desperation is their frustration over the way they have been ground down by the privileged few. In Mexico, the rich get richer and the poor either starve or wade across the Rio Grande.

A few years ago, when Mexico's huge oil reserves were discovered, it seemed as if the country's economic troubles were at last over. But the wealthy 10 percent and their hirelings in the dominant political party skimmed off billions and left nothing to trickle down to the 40 percent of the population that lives in abject poverty. Mexico is now saddled with more than $80 billion in foreign debts.

Indicative of the frustration and despair is the outpouring of grateful letters I've received in response to my recent reports on the misuse of Mexico's wealth by government officials at every level.

It is "about time to take off the masks of the criminal traitors and show to the entire world who is responsible for our backwardness and misery," one Mexican wrote. "(They) steal in a cynical and outrageous way and... there are no trials against these thieves (or) jail terms. Never will we be able to pay back what has been 'borrowed' by this den of thieves, and the people will keep on deeper and deeper in their misery."

U.S. intelligence sources agree with this depressing prediction. As a confidential State Department report warned, "Serious efforts to narrow the gap between Mexico's privileged and Mexico's poor would produce friction and resistance on the part of those with the most to lose" — that is, the ruling party elite and their cronies.

Ironically, President Miguel de la Madrid's efforts to institute a strict austerity program (though without altering the unfair distribution of wealth) will only encourage the flow of illegal immigrants into this country. This could have serious implications for U.S. society.

"One does not have to subscribe to a Goths-and-Vandals theory on the downfall of civilizations to accept that the wave of Mexican immigrants is damaging," another State Department report observes. And when hard times and unemployment hit U.S. workers, it warns, the growing sentiment against illegal aliens could become "overwhelming."

WATCH ON THE WHITE HOUSE: When President Reagan signed a wilderness bill recently, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., was banished to the rear of the crowd of dignitaries, well out of camera range — even though he is a leading advocate of wilderness set-asides. Reason: The night before, Stafford had voted for an amendment that would have banned use of troops in Central America without congressional approval.

Six weeks ago, White House Counsel Fred Fielding quit smoking, and did it "cold turkey." He confessed to a recent visitor that his abstinence is "killing me."

Gate-crashers note: Last week Michael Deaver sent a memo to the White House staff reminding them that it was time to turn in last year's lapel pins, which provide quick identification of insiders on presidential trips. The new model sports the sold presidential seal on an orange background.

Merrie Spaeth, new director of White House media relations, has discovered she has some fence-mending to do with the demanding members of the Fourth Estate. It seems that a former bureaucrat in the office had a habit of discouraging applications for the coveted White House press pass by delaying tactics — that included — gasp! — failure to return reporters' phone calls.

The Rim Around

Trauma trip

Last Friday, some college friends wanted to visit San Angelo for the day. They invited me to join them on the quick trip. I figured, why not? I was off for the day with nothing to do. Besides it was going to be a quick trip.

It turned out to be not so quick. It took three and half hours to make the 85 mile trip back to the Spring City.

Ten miles out of San Angelo, Kathy, the driver, noticed the car was hotter than usual. After a quick discussion, we turned the car toward San Angelo and a full-service station.

Thirty minutes later, we began to wonder if San Angelo had any full-service stations. We had almost driven all the way through San Angelo when we finally found a full-service station.

We explained our problem to the service station attendant. He assured us we had nothing to worry about. The radiator had plenty of water, and we should be able to speed right back to Big Spring. As an afterthought, he added we should only worry if the thermostat needle got to "H". That wasn't reassuring.

Again, we set out for Big Spring, cruising down the highway with the air conditioner blowing full blast. Lisa and Deana were catching some shut eye, while I stared blankly out the window. Right outside of Water Valley, Kathy said, "It's on 'H'." as she began to pull the car off the road.

Hysterically, I shouted "Kathy, pull over; pull over." We had already stopped.

The radiator overheated, and water poured everywhere. As Kathy and Lisa jumped out of the car and ran, I heard someone yell, "It's going to blow up."

A few minutes later, we decided it was safe to get near the car again. We raised the hood gently, and stared stupidly at the engine.

Surely, some nice motorist would stop to help four stranded girls. After 10 minutes and 100 cars passed, we began to wonder what had happened to Texas courtesy.

Two men in a company truck passed by us. The passenger waved. Being a true Texan, I waved back. "Rhonda, why did you do that? Now they are going to come back."

I was confused. "I thought we wanted help. Besides, there's four of us; it's broad daylight; and we are on a busy highway."

The nice men emptied the water from the radiator and filled it with cold water. Then they attempted to explain the problem to us. The thermometer was frozen. We weren't really sure what that was. They told us to get to the nearest phone and not to run the air conditioner. What? No air conditioner?

We found a phone and called Kathy's parents. She told them to come looking for us if we didn't show up. Then we pulled back on the highway. We drove 45 miles per hour with the windows rolled down. For 60 miles, four sets of nervous eyes watched the thermostat for any sudden change. We were never so happy to see Big Spring as we were that evening after our horrible ordeal.

Dear Abby

Happy couple cherishes first spouses

DEAR ABBY: The second time around can be beautiful, particularly if the second wife is as understanding as mine was. Approximately one year after my late wife of over 30 years died, I married a widow who had been a close friend of hers. I'll call my late wife Margie and my second wife Helen.

When my home was being redecorated to suit Helen's taste, I realized that Margie's pictures were all over the place. Feeling slightly uneasy, I told Helen that after we were married I would remove all the pictures of Margie. Helen's beautiful response was: "Let's not; let's take your favorite picture of Margie, and I'll take my favorite picture of Jack (her late husband) and display them together in a remembrance corner." And that's exactly what we have done.

Incidentally, because we are both in our 60s, we count each year of our marriage as five years in order to celebrate a "silver," and possibly a "golden" wedding anniversary. Sign me,
TWICE BLESSED IN L.A.

DEAR TWICE: Thank you for sharing a wise solution to an awkward problem. Would that all second-time-arounders were as fortunate as you.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in an attempt to clear up a source of much heated debate at my home. A sister of one of my best friends is about to have her 10th wedding anniversary, and she is planning to have a full-blown white wedding. She eloped on her original wedding and was married in Nevada at a wedding chapel. She claims that she has read in etiquette books that if you elope you are entitled to a white wedding your 10th anniversary.

I don't feel that there is anything wrong with the idea, but I have looked through several books on etiquette and cannot find anything even closely resembling this.

Please let me know if this is true. Thank you.

JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Any couple can reaffirm their marriage vows on any anniversary of their choice. Nowhere is it stated that an "eloped couple" are entitled to a white wedding on their 10th.

Dr. Donohue

Antibiotic before dental work

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister and I both have mitral valve prolapse. Our doctors differ in opinion as to how much "premedication" should be given to us before dental procedures. My sister has antibiotics given in short form before going to the dentist in addition to getting it in tablet form for several days. My doctor prefers to give me oral penicillin only. My compliments on a super column. — G.M.

Your doctors are giving you the antibiotics to protect you against bacterial endocarditis, an infection of the heart valves. The reasoning behind this precaution is that when teeth have to be pushed around, and when gums bleed, mouth bacteria may get into the blood. This is not a grave problem for most, but if a person has a heart valve that's a little out of the ordinary, like your prolapsed mitral valve, then the bacteria can find good nesting places there and cause infection. That's how endocarditis can begin. Under normal circumstances the prolapsed valve causes no great problems; it's just a bit floppy.

Now about the different ways of giving the penicillin: Which is better, injection or oral administration? I can't tell you. They are both approved. When the danger of endocarditis is great, as with a very deformed valve or an artificial valve in place, or when there is to be lots of trauma to the teeth and gums, then the shot would be chosen to give as high blood levels of penicillin as possible. Perhaps such a consideration lies behind the difference in premedication thinking by the two doctors.

FOR MRS. R.P.O. — Yes, there are medications to help your asthma condition without harming the baby you are carrying. You and your doctor should discuss the medications you have been taking and which ones should be eliminated and which used during this time. It is even more important now to retain maximum breathing capacity.

Watt would James say about Beach Boys 4th?

WASHINGTON (AP) — With James Watt gone, the Beach Boys returned to the Washington Monument grounds for an Independence Day celebration that drew more than half a million sun-drenched fans.

The Beach Boys, one of the nation's most popular rock groups for two decades, headlined Wednesday's day-long free concert on the Mall, capped by a spectacular fireworks display from near the Lincoln Memorial.

Although Watt didn't mention the Beach Boys by name, they had headlined earlier July 4 shows and his comments angered their legion of fans, including first lady Nancy Reagan.

The lighter side

By the Associated Press

A gem of a story

JENISON, Mich. — Looking for a diamond on a beach is up there with the old needle-in-the-haystack search on the difficulty scale. Not only did Dawn Docter find a diamond — but it was the one she lost two years ago.

"It was right there at the top of the sidewalk," Mrs. Docter said after she found the $500 sparkler June 28 at the Christian Reformed Conference Grounds beach in Grand Haven.

"We were walking down the beach and I was saying to my sister, 'I'd like to look for the diamond,'" Mrs. Docter, 28, recalled. "I took two more steps off the sidewalk and I found it."

She lost the third-of-a-carat diamond two years when the ring became tangled in her son's stroller.

Mrs. Docter's husband, John, 30, bought the ring 11 years ago. He was among those who didn't believe she had found the missing diamond — until he compared it to the $40 replacement stone.

"His eyes about flew out of his face," Mrs. Docter said.

Can't lose at hotel

LAS VEGAS — Owners of the new Alexis Park Resort Hotel are betting $40 million that some of the tourists who go to this resort city go for reasons other than gambling.

The Mediterranean-style 500-room hotel situated on a 19-acre patch of desert half a mile from the glittering Las Vegas Strip formally opened its doors on Monday. It has no gaming facilities — something most hotel officials consider a must.

Owner Robert H. Schulman, an Encino, Calif. builder, says Las Vegas is "long overdue for a luxurious, non-gaming hotel."

He said he hopes to draw customers who want to gamble at the nearby Strip as well as those coming to Las Vegas for business or relaxation.

Schulman said he has not ruled out adding a casino at a later date.

The owner said he was not concerned that another non-gaming hotel had failed 20 years ago. The Tallyho Hotel was built with the idea it could succeed without casino gaming.

Doctors warning of 'video palsy'

BOSTON (AP) — "Space Invaders wrist" now has a companion in the annals of amusement-related injuries. Doctors today warned of "video game palsy."

"I'm not saying that video game playing is dangerous, but it's possible to damage a nerve in your hand," said Dr. Robert P. Friedland, who reported the first case of video game palsy in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The victim was described by Friedland and a colleague at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Martinez, Calif. He was a 26-year-old man who suffered numbness and weakness in his left hand after playing the games for about an hour a day for a month.

He got better after he gave up the video habit, but Friedland said he might have suffered permanent nerve damage if he had continued his daily playing.

The problem occurred when the man pressed the side of his palm against the machine as he rotated the playing knob. This put pressure on his ulnar nerve.

"Most nerves are deep inside the body and can't be damaged easily," Friedland said. "It just happens that the ulnar nerve is in a position where it can be damaged if it's continually smashed against a surface."

He said that numbness, tingling and weakness are signs of potential harm, and they should be taken as warnings to stop doing whatever is causing the symptoms before permanent damage occurs.

Fugitive dog escapes, but succumbs to virus

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A woman whose son was injured by a dog wanted the animal extradited back to Michigan so it could be destroyed, but she got her wish when the dog died of a virus.

John Hempel Jr., 12, of Portage, was attacked May 10 by a 120-pound purebred rottweiler owned by a neighbor. The attack left the boy's right arm broken in two places and caused muscle, tendon and nerve damage, said the boy's mother, Darlene Hempel.

The boy has had two operations since the attack and doctors estimate it will be six months to a year before they know whether John, who is right handed, will regain full use of his arm, she said. The Hempels filed suit in Kalamazoo County Circuit Court last week naming the dog's former owner, R. Scott Tucker, as defendant and seeking damages in excess of $10,000 for the boy's injuries.

Tucker's wife, Laurie, said she was not involved in selling the dog. "I'm really sorry about the kid," she said. "I feel terrible about that, but I didn't need the hassles from it, either, from them calling me up ... and getting on my case about it."

The animal was taken to a private kennel in Michigan City, Ind., and put up for sale, but died of a virus.

Tamed Tigers stuck at .500

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Tigers still have a sizable seven-game lead in the American League East, but since their sizzling 35-5 start they're just a .500 baseball team.

Following Wednesday night's 8-2 trouncing at the hands of the Chicago White Sox, the Tigers have a four-game losing streak for the first time all season and are only 20-20 since their record getaway.

"Hopefully we can start playing better tomorrow. We're struggling but we'll get better," said All-Star outfielder Chet Lemon. "We just have to regroup and get things rolling again," added shortstop Alan Trammell.

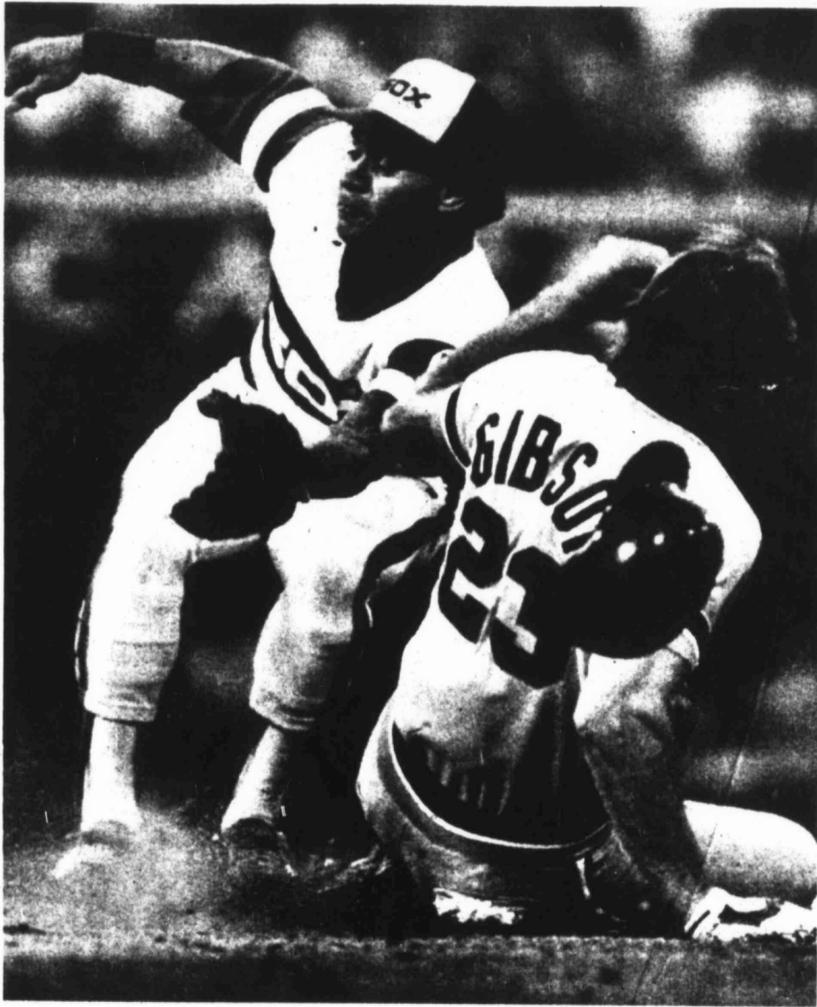

For the third time in four days the Tigers had a game of their lead chipped away by Toronto, which defeated California 6-3.

Richard Dotson checked Detroit on three hits and one run over eight innings for his 11th victory, Julio Cruz slammed a bases-loaded triple to cap a six-run sixth inning and Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer as the White Sox completed a three-game sweep in which they outscored the Tigers 24-8.

"We just caught Chicago when they were hot," said Lemon. "I don't care about the All-Star Game right now. I care about our team and getting it back on the right track."

The game was scoreless until the sixth. Chicago scored its first run off Milt Wilcox on a walk, a sacrifice and Harold Baines' single. Greg Walker's double and an intentional walk to Jerry Hairston loaded the bases and, after Luzinski fouled out, Vance Law singled two runs across. Marc Hill walked to reload the bases and Wilcox left in favor of Aurelio Lopez, who was greeted by Cruz's triple. Luzinski hit his fifth home run off Sid Monge in the seventh. Darrell Evans and John Grubb homered for Detroit.

BLUE JAYS 6, ANGELS 3
Willie Aikens and Lloyd Moseby homered and Dave Stieb combined with Roy Lee Jackson on a six-hitter as Toronto climbed within seven games of Detroit. The Blue Jays trailed 2-1 in the fourth, but Moseby doubled and loser Ron Romanick hit Aikens with a pitch. Rance Mulliniks followed with a single to score Moseby and a single by Rick Leach loaded the bases. Ernie Whitt then grounded to shortstop Rob Picciolo, who flipped to second baseman Rob Wilfong for a forceout, but Wilfong's relay try for an inning-ending double play was wild and Aikens and Mulliniks scored for a 4-2 Toronto lead. Moseby hit a two-run homer off Curt Kaufman in the seventh. Reggie Jackson and Picciolo homered for California.

Tigers' Kirk Gibson steals second in latest loss to Chicago

Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said Leach's takeout slide at second "won the ballgame. It was a good, clean slide. He was on top of Wilfong right away. It was no body roll or anything dirty. It was just good old hard baseball and it won us the ballgame."

Lloyd whips Hana in reaching finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd played at the peak of her form today and demolished Hana Mandlikova 6-1, 6-2 to gain the final of the women's singles at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The 29-year-old American, who last won Wimbledon in 1981 — beating Mandlikova in the final — took just 45 minutes to crush her Czechoslovak opponent on the Center Court.

Mandlikova never produced the touch play and exquisite stroke-making that had taken her impressively into the semifinals.

She looked nervous and tentative, made a stream of unforced errors and was passed or lobbed by an inspired Lloyd whenever she came to the net.

It was the ninth time Lloyd, the No. 2 seed, had reached the final of the women's singles here. She won the title in 1974, 1976 and, three years ago, against Mandlikova.

The 23-year-old Mandlikova, whose all-court game was expected to stretch Lloyd, basically a baseliner, started well by taking the opening game.

But Lloyd, reading her opponent's tactics with uncanny ability, ripped off the next nine games to take the opening set — in which she lost only 12 points — and surge into a 3-0 lead in the second frame.

Mandlikova's timing was totally adrift. She missed strokes she had put away easily earlier in the tournament, netting her approach shots, repeatedly volleying wide and serving poorly.

But even if she had played well, Mandlikova would have been hard pressed to beat the three-time former champion, who was in devastating form.

Covering the fast grass court magnificently, she frustrated her opponent by retrieving almost everything and whenever she was in trouble, she passed Mandlikova down the line and cross court or sent up a delicate lob that forced the No. 3 seed scurrying back.

Mandlikova, who had beaten Lloyd only twice in 17 previous meetings, served a love game to take the fourth game of the second set.

But her revival was short-lived.

She won only one more game and although she saved one match point when she served to stay in the tournament at 2-5, a netted volley — typical of her play throughout — put Lloyd into the final.

Lloyd, who held her service throughout the match, commented: "I think she underestimated me. Every time she came in, I passed her."

Saying she felt other players had been writing her off, Lloyd told reporters: "All this week I've heard a lot of quotes ... I just thought I'd let my tennis do the talking. I think I proved a point even though I don't need to prove anything to anybody."

"It was the right match for everything to come together ... that would have to be one of my best matches (this year)."

Lloyd had moved into the semis Wednesday by stopping Sweden's Carina Karlsson 6-2, 6-2.

Officials said Mandlikova, who walked dejectedly from the court alone — bypassing Wimbledon's tradition of players walking off together — had declined to give the obligatory post-match interview.

MEN'S ACTION
On Wednesday, after playing for eight sets and five hours, 19-year-old Pat Cash found himself in the semifinals of the men's singles — and still in the hunt for the men's doubles title.

"I really don't feel tired," said Cash after beating Andres Gomez of Ecuador and then teaming up with fellow Australian Paul McNamee in a marathon doubles match that was brought to a halt when darkness fell.

Cash's 6-4, 6-4, 6-7, 7-6 victory over Gomez, the No. 6 seed, made him the youngest Australian ever to gain the semifinals here.

Having played for almost every day during the tournament, Cash was due to take a well-earned rest today after finishing his quarter-final doubles match — locked at two sets all — against Sherwood Stewart and Mark Edmondson.

Stars director garners award for molding USFL's top mark

By The Associated Press
Jim Mora, a second-choice coach who guided the Philadelphia Stars to 31 wins in its first 36 United States Football League games, today was named the USFL's Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

The 48-year-old Mora, a longtime assistant in college and in the National Football League, became the Stars' coach last year only when George Perles, the team's original choice, quit to take a job at Michigan State. But he coached the team to a 15-3 mark and the USFL's runner-up spot, then followed that with a 16-2 mark this year, the league's best regular season record.

Mora edged Houston's Jack Pardee in the balloting by a panel of two voters from each of the 18 USFL cities — one Associated Press reporter and one newsmen who regularly covered the league.

He received 14 votes to 12 for Pardee, five for Tampa Bay's Steve Spurrier, two for Birmingham's Rollie Dotsch and one each for John Hadl of Los Angeles, Walt Michaels of New Jersey and George Allen of Arizona.

Mora was defensive coordinator of the NFL's New England Patriots last year when Perles left the Stars shortly before the first USFL season was to begin. He called Stars general manager Carl Peterson, an old friend and associate, to recommend someone else for the job.

"I said, 'thanks for the recommendation but how about you?'" Peterson recalls.

Mora finally agreed to take the job and asked Peterson how long he had to get ready. "I said '10 days,'" recalls Peterson. "Jim said 'fine.' Most guys would have resigned right there."

A man without flash, Mora coaches an unflashy team that followed the USFL's original prescription for success — combine bargain basement players with a few selectively chosen high-priced draft choices.

It's built around a ball-control offense led by journeyman quarterback Chuck Fusina and running back Kelvin Bryant, one of the team's few high-priced stars. And it features a league-leading defense anchored, typically, by Sam Mills, a "too short" linebacker who emerged as one of the USFL's defensive standouts.

The Stars' only two losses were to the New Jersey Generals, the first in the season's third game, the second in the season finale. But Philadelphia avenged both by routing New Jersey 28-7 in a first-round playoff game Saturday.

On Sunday, the Stars will play Birmingham for the Eastern Conference title.

"I try to be honest with the players," he says. "If they do good, I tell them. I didn't think in the early part of the season that we were playing up to our capability, so I told them."

The result was 14 straight wins, a consistency unusual in a league where many teams have weekly peaks and valleys.

"I discipline myself not to prepare any differently for one game than the other," Mora says. "It's something I worked on. If you get a player high for one game, you're going to have a letdown for another."

"He has a lot in common with all successful coaches — he's a hard worker, he surrounds himself with good people," says tackle Brad Oates, an eight-year veteran of professional football. "Once he sets a course, he doesn't deviate from it."

Mora is a graduate of Occidental College, where he played tight end on teams quarterbacked by one-time pro quarterback, now-congressman Jack Kemp.

PRIX PREPARATIONS — Mechanics work on one of the Formula One race cars of the Benetton Alpha Romeo team, which will be driven by the only American in the race, Eddie Cheever. Sunday's Grand Prix race is the first time such a race will be held in Dallas. All 28 teams are garaged in the coliseum at the State Fair of Texas fairgrounds.

Petty explodes for 200th win at Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When Richard Petty notched his 100th career Grand National stock car victory in 1969, he boldly stated his next goal was winning 200.

The 47-year-old driver from Randleman, N.C., achieved the milestone Wednesday, capturing the Firecracker 400 under a caution flag just two days after joking about what he'd strive for once he reached the magic plateau.

"No. 201," Petty quipped during qualifications for the annual July 4 race that attracted a crowd of 80,000, including President Reagan. "I'm not as optimistic as I used to be."

Still, Petty made it clear after his victory that he won't sit still, though David Pearson, second on the all-time winner's list, trails him by 95 victories.

"I'm not retiring," he said. "Now that No. 200 is over with, people can stop talking about it and we can go on to other things."

"It (quest) was a burden more than pressure ... It was really aggravating, but now that deal's over with," he added.

Petty, driving a Pontiac Grand Prix, outdueled Cale Yarborough coming out of the fourth turn and outtraced him to the finish line by inches as the frontrunners took the yellow flag with two laps to go — meaning no driver could improve his position during the last five miles of the 400-mile event.

Yarborough lost a chance to finish second when he rolled into the pits one lap too early, thinking the race had ended.

"It was a thrill, a super big win anyway you look at it," said Petty of his victory. "With the President of the United States here, it would have been a super race for anybody to win."

Reagan gave the traditional "Gentlemen, start your engines," command from Air Force One and talked with Petty in a bullet-proof lounge atop Daytona International Speedway after the race.

Petty and Yarborough, who led 79 of the 160 laps, were so close heading into the decisive third and fourth turns that the winner said their cars actually touched "two or three times."

Yarborough, in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, managed to get past Petty, who led the last 33 laps and 52 overall, but lost the advantage when Petty moved inside to pull even heading into the straightaway.

The yellow flag had gone up when Doug Heveron, who was not injured, spun off the track heading into the first turn. The accident started the last of three caution periods that consumed 15 laps.

"It was a situation where somebody acts and you react," Petty explained of his ability to hold off Yarborough. "I knew what he was going to do and I knew where he was going to do it."

"And," he added, "I knew what I was going to try to do and was able to pull it off."

Harry Gant, who relinquished the lead to Petty when he made his last pit stop on the 127th lap, finished second after Yarborough's mental error.

Would-be bandit all wet

SAN ANTONIO — A 23-year-old San Antonio man saw his plans to rob a North side cafeteria doused when an indignant dishwasher hosed him down with hot water.
 Police said a man wearing a stocking over his head entered the kitchen of Luby's Cafeteria in Central Park Mall late Tuesday.
 The bandit, carrying a .25-caliber revolver, approached a 54-year-old dishwasher and demanded to be taken to the restaurant manager, officials said.
 The dishwasher tried to subdue the bandit by hosing him down with hot water. The thief fled, but stumbled into another employee and demanded again to be taken to the restaurant manager.
 The second employee took him to the manager's office, where witnesses said he demanded money from an assistant manager.
 Both employees subdued the man and took him back to the kitchen, where they used neckties to secure him to a stainless steel work table until police arrived.
 Arrested in the incident was Ali Bakhtiari, 23. He was charged with aggravated robbery.

Doctor, wife found shot

RICHLAND HILLS — A doctor and the wife of Fort Worth district fire chief were killed by several gunshot wounds to the chest, in shootings that occurred within minutes of each other in this Fort Worth suburb, authorities say.
 Police said the woman's body was found after a man walked into the North Richland Hills police station about 1 p.m. Wednesday and said, "I shot my wife."

After finding injured Paula Dinkins, 39, of Hurst in the man's car, police called for an ambulance, which took her to the North Hills Medical Center, where she was pronounced dead on arrival at 1:20 p.m., Police Sgt. Tom Shockley said.
 Firefighters were stationed at the lake in today's early morning hours to prevent high winds from rekindling the fires, which charred 100 acres of city parkland north and east of the lake. The lake, formerly called Decker Lake, is in a park on the eastern edge of the city.

Firemen battle brush blazes

AUSTIN — Firefighters in Austin and surrounding communities battled three brush fires around Lake Walter E. Long over the Fourth of July holidays.
 Firefighters were stationed at the lake in today's early morning hours to prevent high winds from rekindling the fires, which charred 100 acres of city parkland north and east of the lake. The lake, formerly called Decker Lake, is in a park on the eastern edge of the city.

Firefighters said wind gusts of 25 mph fanned the flames and hampered efforts to put out the fire.
 Austin Battalion Chief Richard Rowe was overcome by the heat, officials said. He was treated for heat exhaustion at Brackenridge Hospital and discharged.

Fireworks almost fizzle

MESQUITE — The annual Fourth of July fireworks display held at the Cotton Bowl went off on schedule. Just barely.
 Two truckloads of pyrotechnics ordered by the State Fair of Texas for Wednesday's extravaganza might not have arrived in Dallas had authorities in this suburb not confiscated them.

The trucks had been unexpectedly abandoned in a motel parking lot on U.S. Highway 80 in Mesquite, about five miles from the Cotton Bowl.
 It took several hours and more than $1,000 to get the collected rockets, pinwheels and floral displays back on course for shows in both the Dallas stadium and in Plano, another suburb.
 But officials say they would like to know why the explosive cargo made an unexplained stop in their city.
 They also want to know what became of the trucks' drivers, who have not been heard from since they apparently abandoned the truck Tuesday in a parking lot of the Villa Inn.

Sex crimes against kids up

HOUSTON — Sex crimes involving children in Harris County have increased 30 percent for the first six months of this year compared to the first half of last year, Houston Police Department statistics show.
 Police records show 643 juvenile sexual abuse cases for the first half of this year, compared to 496 for the same period last year. The 1984 total so far represents an 85 percent jump over 1982, when 349 such cases were reported by the same time.
 The statistics include child rape, fondling and indecent exposure to a child.

Venus school will reopen

VENUS — This small Johnson County community's school will reopen as usual this fall despite orders from the Texas Education Agency that it consolidate with another school district, said school board president Glenn White.

"We will operate in September just as we have for almost 100 years and as we will for another 100 years," White said. "We are not giving up."

Complaints of inadequate facilities had already placed the school district in trouble with state officials even before an arsonist set fire to the high school on Feb. 29, destroying the building.

The incident sparked arguments over whether to rebuild or to accept the recommendations of many that the school district be dissolved and combined with another.
