Off the wall: Long overdue

SEATTLE (AP) — Jim Wells was lucky his alma mater didn't force him to pay for his overdue library books — 51 years overdue.

Wells, 74, of Kirkland, got permission to take the ethics books home with him the summer after his junior year at Pacific University in Forest Grove, Ore.

That was in 1933. Then they slipped his mind, and the books sat on his top shelf among the rest of his old college texts until last month, when he attended his 50th reunion and finally returned them.

Wells said his classmates got a kick out of the long lost books, and so did the school librarian, who waived the book fine. "Ethics is a slow process," he said.

Spring is driest on record

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

It's official. The first six months of 1984 are the driest on record.

With 1.77 inches of rainfall measured at the Big Spring Experiment Station through June, 1984 marks the least rainfall for the first six months of any year in the 84-year history of record-keeping, according to Bill Fryrear of the Experiment Station north of the city.

Average precipitation from January through July is more than 8 inches. Average annual precipitation for Howard County is 18.53 inches.

The second-driest first-half year was 1952, when 1.88 inches fell in the first six months. When 1952 ended, only 9.20 inches of precipitation had fallen.

Although 1983 was considered a dry year here, the Experiment Station recorded 2.07 inches of rain in January of 1983, one of the highest rainfalls for that month according to records dating to 1900. The count See Dry page 2-A

Gramm to visit city Wednesday

U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station, the Republican nominee for U.S. Senate, will stop in Big Spring Wednesday afternoon to meet with Howard County residents as part of a 75-city swing.

Gramm will attend a coffee at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce conference room.

Gramm, formerly a member of the "boll weevils," a conservative faction of the Democratic party, switched parties after losing his House Budget Committee seat because he refused to stop supporting Reagan's economic policies.

Gramm helped co-author the Reagan economics and budget bills, and was called a "spy" by the House Democratic leadership because of his reports to the White House on the Democrats' strategy to fight the administration's budget proposals.

Retail sales take upturn

With Big Spring sales tax rebates for July some $35,000 higher than one year ago, the city continues to move toward recapturing last year's retail sales pace.

According to figures released today by the state comptroller's office, rebates received by the city this month totalled $67,196, compared to the $52,244 check sent to the city last July, the office said.

As a result, year-to-date rebates are running only 5 percent behind last year's retail pace, the figures show.

Statewide, sales tax payments to cities are running about 17 percent higher than last year, the office said.

Comparisons with previous months show Big Spring in April lagged 15 percent behind 1983. The gap closed to 13 percent in May and 10 percent in June, the office's figures showed.

So far this year, the city has received some $798,827 from the comptroller's office, compared to $843,922 by this time last year.

The July rebate represents the city's 1 percent share of the 5 percent sales tax collected on most non-food items. Four percent of the tax goes to the state. The payment reflects taxes on sales made during May and reported to the office by June 20.

Figures for other area cities also show an increase in rebates over the same period last year:

● Coahoma rebates increased $600, from $1,398 to $1,974.

● Stanton rebates jumped from $1,276 to $2,712.

● Sterling City logged an increase of about $1,600, from $2,265 to $3,899.

● Colorado City received a check some $4,200 higher, reflecting an increase from $11,044 to $15,246.

● And Forsan also showed an increase, from $0 to $814.

Year-to-date figures for the area cities reveal a mixed bag of results, with Coahoma, Colorado City and Sterling City all ahead of See Retail page 2-A

ARTIST DIES — Peter Hurd, the man who painted this mural which hangs in the Howard County Library, died today at the age of 80. Hurd was a well-known western artist who works are displayed around the nation. The mural was painted in 1937.

Artist Peter Hurd dead at 80

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — Peter Hurd, a renowned Southwest artist who painted the mural which now adorns the front entrance of the Howard County library, died early today at a nursing home here. He was 80.

Hurd, who had a ranch at nearby San Patricio, died at 1:30 a.m. He had been in poor health for some time.

His portrait of Lyndon B. Johnson now is in the permanent collection of the Smithsonian Institution's National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C.

Hurd revealed in 1967 that the Johnson portrait he had been commissioned to paint for the White House Historical Association had been rejected by the president as "the ugliest thing I ever saw."

In an interview published in the Jan. 6, 1967, New York Times, Hurd said he took the portrait to the LBJ Ranch in 1965 and termed the meeting as one of "icy politeness."

The story said Hurd was particularly irked when he asked the president, "What do you like, Mr. President?" The president replied, "I'll show you what I like," and whisked out a portrait by Norman Rockwell.

Hurd was known for his sensitive portrayals of ranch life and common folk with elaborate southwestern landscapes in the background.

His works are represented in the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

Hurd's art also is in museums in Rochester, N.Y.; Wilmington, Del.; Chicago; Andover, Mass.; Kansas City; Brooklyn; Honolulu; Roswell; Minneapolis; Dallas and Newark.

The Big Spring fresco mural was commissioned for the U.S. Post Office here and remained in the building when it was converted to the library. Similar murals hang in the former U.S. post office in Alamogordo, and a mural panel at the Prudential Insurance Co. Building in Houston.

He was a member of the National Fine Arts Commission from 1969 to 1963.

Commissioners look at park site

County land considered

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners today will look at county land located on the city's north side for consideration as a county park.

Commissioner Louis Brown is proposing that land near the site of the old northside YMCA building — the former site of the Howard County Boxing Club — become a county park.

Brown suggested the land be used for a softball field and other recreational facilities.

He made the suggestion after the Texas Attorney General's Office ruled county support of the boxing club, which aided mostly underprivileged youth, violated the state constitution.

Commissioners also approved adoption of a county policy that would govern where pipe lines and communication lines could be placed in county roads and their right-of-ways.

The policy was adopted at the recommendation of county engineer Bill Mims, who developed it in May.

Commissioners also approved two $100 liability insurance policies for the County's juvenile probation officers and listened to a presentation by Travis Crow of AT&T information systems on updating county phone equipment.

Commissioner David Barr said the court would continue to discuss possible improvements to the county phone system with all interested companies. At the last meeting commissioners heard suggestions from Advanced Telephone Systems.

Commissioners also tabled considerations for a raise for Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin, because he was unable to attend the meeting. Heflin has been hospitalized since late last week.

This afternoon commissioners will continue work on the proposed 1984-85 budget.

Council to study electric rate ordinance

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

A decrease in electric rates charged to Big Spring residents by the Texas Electric Service Company could be the end result if city council members approve a special ordinance during tomorrow night's regular 6:30 p.m. meeting at City Hall.

The ordinance, which was prepared by the Texas Municipal League (TMC), sets out a decrease in electric rates totalling nearly $31 million throughout the TESCO system.

"This is probably the most unusual electric case that's ever been around in Texas," Blaine Bull of the TMC said this morning in explanation of his organization's rate decrease recommendation.

Bull said the case was "bizarre" because staff members of the Texas Public Utilities Commission, the regulatory agency charged with setting electric rates, have themselves recommended a decrease even larger than that of the TML after TESCO put in for a $304 million increase. PUC staffers have set their decrease recommendation at $65 million, he said.

According to City Manager Don Davis, his office has made no recommendations to the council regarding the proposed ordinance. He said the council's options for action Tuesday include approving the previously requested TESCO rate increase of $304 million, denying the increase, or passing the TML ordinance calling for the $31 million decrease.

However, final action on the decrease lies in the hands of the PUC. Davis said, since approval of its larger decrease recommendation would supersede that approved by the city council. In addition, the council's action in such cases is appealed "99 percent of the time" to allow TESCO uniformity in its rate charges throughout its system, Davis said.

In other action tomorrow night, the council is scheduled to:

● Consider an ordinance allowing businesses that have not yet received new solid waste containers but are being charged garbage fees to use the city landfill free of charge.

● Consider the acceptance of an engineering report on water system improvements for the westside neighborhoods called the "bird streets."

● Award a bid for lease of city property located at FM 700 and 11th Place.

● Approve specifications and authorize bidding for electronic hand-held meter reading devices.

● Approve specifications and authorize bidding for gasoline and diesel fuel for city vehicles.

● Approve bidding for sale of a rodeo arena and 180 feet of steel supported stalls that are currently located on city property near the landfill.

● Consider an ordinance approving the city's 1983-84 revised revenue sharing budget.

● Consider an ordinance permitting the sale of alcoholic beverages in pool halls located in the city.

● Consider an ordinance placing stop signs at the intersections of Kenney and Wood and Kenney and Sycamore.

Hot weather on tap

By The Associated Press
Clear skies and hot temperatures were on the weather menu for Texas again today, and the National Weather Service said it would be mid-week before any significant rainfall is likely.

Temperatures of near 105 were expected in Northwest and North Central Texas in the hottest part of the day. Some relief is in sight, weather officials said, because of a shift northward in the highest temperatures.

"This means more tropical moisture along the Texas coast, but any hope of significant rain is at least two days away," officials said. Until then, the likely prognosis is for sunny skies and isolated coastal thunderstorms.

Most of Texas had clear skies and seasonably warm temperatures early today, while a patch of low clouds hung over the hill country. Thunderstorms roamed the northwest Gulf of Mexico between Port Arthur and Palacios this morning, while very heavy storms were reported between Cameron, Louisiana and Orange.

At 6 a.m., temperatures were 65 at Amarillo; 74 at Lubbock; 78 at Dallas, Waco and Wichita Falls; 74 at El Paso and Corpus Christi; 77 at Brownsville; 75 at San Angelo; and 76 at San Antonio.

Scattered thunderstorms roamed across parts of the northern and central Rockies and the northern half of the Plains today, as temperatures lingered in the 80s at many spots in the southern Plains.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms stretched along the Gulf Coast and over the Southwest.

A hiker was killed and his companion seriously injured when the pair apparently was struck by lightning during a thunderstorm Sunday in Little Cottonwood Canyon east of Salt Lake City. The men had run under a tree during a cloudburst, and lightning hit the tree.

Thunderstorms were forecast today for widely scattered areas across the intermountain region, the upper Great Lakes region and along the Gulf Coast.

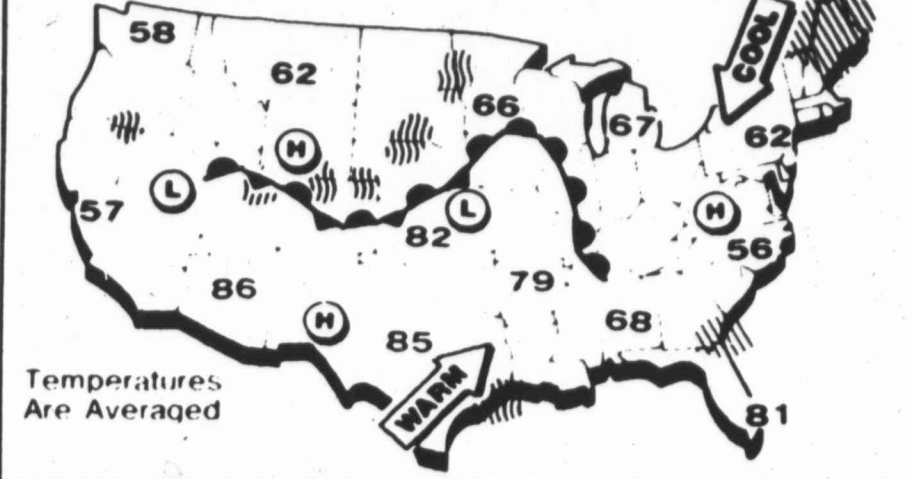

The National Weather Service said skies would be partly cloudy in the Northeast, while the Plains and the West coast would have sunshine.

The high temperatures were expected today to hover around 100 from Nebraska to Texas and in the desert Southwest. The reading were to be in the 90s over the rest of the Southern states, 80s in the northern half of the country and 70s in parts of the Pacific Northwest.

About 75 New Jersey families, forced from their homes during a weekend of record-setting rain, violent thunderstorms and flooding, surveyed the damage to their property as sunny skies returned.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 42 at Philipsburg, Pa., to 94 at Nellis Air Force Base in Las Vegas, Nev.

Sheriff's Log Midland man arrested

Howard County sheriff's deputies Sunday arrested a 22-year-old Midland man on suspicion of driving while license suspended and failure to carry liability insurance.

Benny Ray Bennett was released on $1,000 bond for the DWLS charge and $500 bond set by County Judge Milton Kirby.

Ricky Gene Moore, 24, of 808 Abrams was transferred Friday to the sheriff's office from the police department on a warrant for sexual assault. He was released on $10,000 bond.

Carol Hanson Burdett, 38, of Coahoma surrendered to the sheriff's office Saturday on a warrant for assault issued by Justice of the Peace Willie Grant. According to Mrs. Burdett, her ex-husband was the complainant on the warrant. She also said she was released on personal recognizance bond.

Mrs. Grant was unavailable for comment.

Lorenzo Vela Duron, 24, of 508 State was transferred Saturday to the sheriff's office from the police department on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Felix Torrez Martinez, 33, of 3016 Parkway was arrested on suspicion of DWI. He was released on $1,000 bond set by Municipal Judge Melvin Darratt.

Winston Thomas Price, 38, of 2507 Dow was transferred to the sheriff's office Sunday from the police department on suspicion of DWI. He was released on $500 bond.

TV stolen from church

A color TV and a video cassette recorder were among items stolen in a Saturday night burglary at the Hillcrest Baptist Church at 2000 FM 700, according to police reports.

Total value of the stolen items was estimated at $1,285, reports said.

John King, minister of education, told police at 12:33 a.m. Sunday that someone entered the church through an unlocked westside door, kicked open several of the building's office doors and pried open a soft drink and a candy machine in addition to stealing the property, reports said.

Damage in the burglary was estimated at $285, reports said.

In other police reports:

Ysabel Luna of 1612 Cardinal told police at 9:51 p.m. Saturday that someone sometime between noon and 9:50 p.m. Saturday caused damage estimated at $450 to the front windshield of her 1978 Buick while it was parked in front of Mitchell and Sons Wrecking Service at 3600 W. Hwy. 80, police reports said.

Otis Thornton of 1302 Utah told police at 8:04 p.m. Sunday that someone sometime between 11 p.m. Saturday and 7:55 p.m. Sunday broke into his residence and stole miscellaneous items — including jewelry and coins — valued at a total of $895, police reports said.

Weekend arrests on the Big Spring police activity sheet included:

Willie Fitzgerald Watson, 20, of Houston, was arrested at 1:10 p.m. Saturday on U.S. Hwy. 87 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, driving with license suspended and having no insurance, police reports said.

Edward Harrington, 30, of 4100 Dixon was arrested at 4:35 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of 16th Street and 11th Place on suspicion of driving with license suspended, police reports said.

Marion Wayne Hayes, 55, of 1402 Stadium was arrested at 7:05 p.m. Saturday in connection with an assault warrant, police reports said.

Winston Thomas Price, 38, of 2507 Dow was arrested at 11:24 p.m. Saturday on Interstate 20 one-quarter mile west of Hwy. 350 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police reports said.

Michael James Turmire, 29, of Lubbock was arrested at 8:12 p.m. Sunday at the V.A. Medical Center Hospital on suspicion of aggravated assault, public intoxication and resisting arrest, police reports said.

Richard Hicks, 37, of Coahoma was arrested at 11:08 p.m. Sunday at 1602 E. 16th on suspicion of public intoxication and assault, police reports said.

ty received significant rainfalls in May of 1983, with 1.31 inches, in September with 1.83 and in October with 4.53. The total for 1983 was 12.38 inches, more than six inches below normal.

Although most forecasters agree that the rainy times for West Texas are in May and September, records show that Howard County has received heavy rainfalls at other times of the year.

The county received an extraordinary 12.89 inches of rain in July of 1902, compared to a July average of 2.02 inches. In July of 1938, the county received 5.35 inches, and in 1945, July brought 9.25 inches.

In August, which has a normal rainfall of 1.93 inches, Howard County recorded 8.43 inches in 1942 and 6.29 inches in 1979.

Among the driest years on record for Howard County are 1910 with 7.25 inches; 1917 with 4.68 inches; and 1956 with 8.06.

Rainfalls at the other extreme were recorded in 1905 with 30.73 inches; 1919 with 34.01; 1932 with 34.25; 1941 with 31.62; and 1980 with 31.74.

Fire cause still undetermined

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a year-long investigation, federal officials are unable to determine the source of a fire that engulfed an Air Canada jetliner, killing 23 passengers, according to sources close to the case.

The staff of the National Transportation Safety Board will present its draft report on the June 2, 1983 fire at a board meeting Tuesday.

The Air Canada DC-9 jetliner, flying from Dallas to Toronto made an emergency landing at the Greater Cincinnati International Airport, allowing 18 passengers and crew to escape.

NTSB sources, speaking on the condition that they remain anonymous, said the staff report will be unable to pinpoint the cause of the fire which began in a rear lavatory.

Investigators in the past have speculated that the fire probably was caused by an electrical short in the lavatory flush motor. After the accident, Air Canada found signs of overheating in nearly half of 69 such motors it examined in its fleet of aircraft.

NTSB sources also said that the staff report, which the five-member board can alter, also suggests that the crew of the Air Canada jet could have acted more quickly to begin looking for an emergency landing site after the fire was discovered.

Last August, the pilot of the jetliner testified before the NTSB that he delayed an emergency landing for three minutes because he repeatedly was told the lavatory fire was under control.

"I was told there was a fire in the washroom. I assumed it was a (trash) bin fire," Capt. Donald Cameron testified at the time.

A transcript of cockpit conversation aboard Air Canada Flight 797, released last August, indicated that the crew quickly linked the fire with an electrical problem in the rear lavatory.

Dancer likes script

LONDON — Ballet great Mikhail Baryshnikov and Ingrid Bergman's daughter, model Isabella Rossellini, begin work this month on a dance film about a Soviet defector back on home soil after a 10-year absence.

ROSSSELLINI

"The film is not a reflection of my life and situation," said Baryshnikov, artistic director of New York's American Ballet Theater, who defected to the United States in 1974. "For years, I always got the same script — Russian ballet star defects to the West."

"With this one, I got excited. I said, '... Let's try it.'"

In the $10 million Columbia Pictures movie, "White Nights," Miss Rossellini, 31, plays a Soviet interpreter married to an expatriate American dancer — played by three-time Tony Award nominee Gregory Hines — living in the Soviet Union.

Asked Sunday why she waited so long to take on a major movie role, Miss Rossellini said, "I was afraid of people asking me about living up to my mother."

Directed by Taylor Hackford and choreographed by Twyla Tharp, the film is due for release in December 1985.

'Officer' ticketed

RAWLINS, Wyo. — Larry Wilcox, the 1965 Rawlins High School graduate who made good as Officer John Baker on the television series "CHIPS," met a real highway patrolman on a recent trip home.

Wyoming Highway Patrol Trooper Don Sherrod "was very pleasant when he gave me the ticket" for speeding, Wilcox said.

Wilcox said he found the first few years of celebrity fun, "but the materialism wore off quickly and I discovered that money is not the true measure of success."

Coming from a town of about 12,000 in Wyoming "gives one a good foundation and keeps you aware of who you are," he said, adding he enjoys returning to Wyoming "because of nature."

Wilcox and his fiancée, Marlene Harmon, visited his 90-year-old grandmother on her ranch north of Rawlins and his brother, Randy, who is serving a term at the State Penitentiary for a 1982 arson. Wilcox said he still believes his brother innocent.

TOKYO — Muhammad Alam Channa of Pakistan, reputed to be the world's tallest man, traveled to Tokyo as the guest of a company publishing a Japanese edition of the Guinness Book of Records, Kyodo news service reported.

The 28-year-old Channa is 8 feet, 2 3/4 inches tall and weighs 458 pounds, Kyodo said.

Channa was quoted as saying Sunday, "It is a great honor that I am the tallest man in the world, but I have many inconveniences in daily life."

SURVEY DAMAGE — Firemen survey fire damage to the South Transept of York Minster in York, England, as they stand amid the debris of the 13th century roof Monday after a fire reportedly started by lightning seriously damaged the building.

Fire damages ancient cathedral

YORK, England (AP) — A fierce three-hour fire today severely damaged a 760-year-old section of York Minster cathedral, the largest medieval church in Northern Europe. Police said lightning probably started the blaze.

The fire collapsed the roof of the south transept, which dates to about 1220, and covered Europe's largest collection of medieval stained glass with heavy smoke and soot.

"At the height of the blaze, huge flames leapt from the roof of the transept. Charred beams, smoking rubble and black water now cover the floor of the south transept," said British Broadcasting Corp. reporter Rosemary Hartill, who witnessed the fire.

North Yorkshire's assistant chief constable, Frank Morrill, said a group of children were near the cathedral late Sunday and "one or two members of the group said they saw lightning dancing along the roof."

Police said the fire started above the south door and spread through the wooden rafters of the stone-walled building, formally known as the Cathedral of St. Peter. Built between 1220 and 1470, it is second only to Canterbury in the Anglican hierarchy.

Inspector Arthur Lacy of the North Yorkshire police said the fire was declared under control at 5:24 a.m., almost three hours after the first alarm brought 140 firefighters to the scene from all over the north English county of Yorkshire.

A police spokesman said the initial alarm was sounded by an automatic link between the cathedral and the county fire brigade headquarters in Northallerton, 30 miles to the north.

The blaze was confined to the south transept — one of the shorter arms of the cross-shaped cathedral. But police said the 200-foot-tall central tower was in danger of collapse.

Firefighters said about 10 percent of the entire cathedral roof — restored five years ago — had been destroyed and the ancient stained glass was covered with soot.

"It was extremely hot and extremely smoky," said Fire Chief Ralph Ford. "Hard to imagine such a high building being smoke-logged, but it was. We were working a lot at roof level so the firemen were taking a lot of punishment from all the smoke and fire coming their way."

One fireman was hospitalized for treatment of smoke-injured eyes.

Police and the Dean of York, the Very Rev. Ronald Jasper who lives a few hundred yards from the building, went into the burning cathedral and carried out some of the valuables before the danger of a collapsing roof forced them to abandon their efforts.

About 100 people were evacuated from homes and hotels around the cathedral, police said.

Police discounted the possibility of arson and said they had no reason to connect the fire with the controversy over Friday's consecration of the Rev. David Jenkins as Bishop of Durham.

They said the Minster has its own staff of six policemen as well as security staff on duty 24 hours a day.

An international fundraising drive launched in 1967 raised nearly $5 million to strengthen the foundations of the cathedral, which is visited by about 2 million people a year. Architects said the work would assure the structure's existence for another 500 years.

Last Friday, the Archbishop of York, the Most Rev. John Habgood, consecrated Jenkins, 59, in a ceremony at the cathedral.

The appointment of Jenkins aroused one of the most bitter controversies in recent Anglican history. The former theology professor had said in a television interview that he believed the virgin birth of Jesus Christ and the resurrection were probably symbolic rather than literal truths.

York, now a walled city of 105,000 people, was settled by the British tribe of Brigantes at least 2,000 years ago and was occupied by the Romans. Rome's Emperor Hadrian visited the town in 120 and built an earthen rampart to keep out the Picts and Celts.

Two emperors died there — Septimus Severus in 211 and Constantius I in 306. Constantine, who legalized and helped spread Christianity throughout the Roman empire, was proclaimed emperor there in 306.

Beirut airport opens

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Jetliners landed at Beirut's international airport today for the first time since warfare forced its closure five months ago, but all roads leading to the facility were blocked by protesters.

Relatives of civil war kidnap victims barricaded roads to the airport with burning tires and also blocked all crossings between the capital's Moslem and Christian sectors.

Meanwhile, Police Col. Adnan Gudmi said unidentified gunmen today abducted Libya's charge d'affaires in Beirut, Mohammed Feitouri, as he drove home from his embassy. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the kidnapping, which occurred in the suburb of Ouzai.

A strike was called in mostly Moslem west Beirut in solidarity with the protesters — most of them women with photographs of missing persons pinned on their clothes.

Armed men, believed to be militiamen, were seen telling shopkeepers to lower their shutters and turning school buses away from schools. Only pharmacies, restaurants and bakeries were allowed to stay open.

The army, which assumed control of greater Beirut in an operation designed to end the reign of warring militias, made no effort to stop the disorders or lift the blockades.

At the airport, the first Boeing 707 belonging to Middle East Airlines, Lebanon's national carrier, circled over the city three times before landing at 5:30 a.m. The plane, carrying no passengers, flew in from Damascus.

Mondale stays quiet

NORTH OAKS, Minn. — A week before the Democratic National Convention starts, Walter F. Mondale is staying out of sight and keeping quiet about his search for a running mate.

The apparent Democratic presidential nominee had no public appearances scheduled today and was continuing private preparations for the convention which begins July 16 in San Francisco.

As the convention draws closer, speculation about the No. 2 spot on the ticket has been intensifying while Mondale and his aides remain reluctant to publicly discuss the selection process.

"The only person who knows what's going on is Mondale," said John Reilly, a Washington attorney and senior Mondale adviser who is overseeing the vice presidential candidate search.

Last week, Mondale wrapped up a series of interviews at his suburban Minneapolis home with seven potential candidates — three women, two black men, a Hispanic man and one white man.

While no further interviews are scheduled, Mondale has left the door open to name someone who has not come to Minnesota for an interview.

He also has made clear that a running mate may be announced before the convention.

"We're really leaving it wide open," Reilly said in a brief interview Sunday.

"Other people (besides the seven who have been interviewed) are being considered constantly," Reilly added.

One of those interviewed for the No. 2 spot, San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, met last week in San Francisco with Mondale's campaign chairman, James Johnson, Reilly said.

But, he added, "I wouldn't characterize it as a follow-up" interview.

Johnson was in San Francisco last week to make arrangements for the convention and met with Ms. Feinstein then, Reilly said.

He said Johnson did not sit in on Mondale's interview with Ms. Feinstein and viewed the trip to San Francisco as a good opportunity to talk to her.

'Johnny Dirt' says river 'slime is fine'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A gourmand of grime named Johnny Dirt acted out his motto "slime is fine" with a dunk in the putrid Passaic River, and emerged to pronounce it "almost like going through pudding."

Dirt's graceless 30-foot plop into the polluted waters dividing downtown Newark from industrial Harrison provoked cheers Sunday from fellow connoisseurs of crud who'd paid $10 to be part of "Dirtstock '84."

The "celebration of slime" also featured a punk rock band playing on a makeshift platform and beer-swilling spectators sporting green nail polish, black leather and silver sequins.

Hundreds of supporters chanted "slime, slime, slime" as Dirt put his beer can on an abandoned railroad bridge and belly-flopped into the river.

A 170-foot crane, operated by Peter Luberto, fished Dirt from the river like an old dishrag, lifted him high in the air and then plunked him back in.

As he swam to the pier, one long-haired observer said, "I don't care how much you're into slime, that's the Passaic, ain't it?"

"Yeah, they'll have to spray him down with Lysol," a companion replied.

Dirt, 38, appeared soaked but fit after his plunge except for a bump on the head suffered during the crane episode.

"It's a pretty dirty river," he said. "Almost like going through pudding. But I think the quality is better than 15 or 20 years ago."

Why did Dirt take the plunge? "Everyone wants to be star," he said. "I want to be a survivor. I don't want to be stuck in the slime there."

Besides, said Dirt, "Like, I got a scene happening."

He said he got the idea when he "took a dip" in the river recently and looked to the shoreline, thinking "what a place for a festival."

Dirt said he spent about 10 years as a steeplejack, painting water towers, smokestacks and such, and traveling across the country to carnivals and state fairs. He says he was a "floater."

He has a wife, Merny, and an 11-year-old daughter, Kristy Dirt.

His daughter, he said, shares his interest in dirt.

Although his legal name still is John Schroeder, he is known as Johnny Dirt.

"Some guy called me a dirt-bag one time," he recalled. "I said, 'Thank you, sir, you gave me an identity in life.' I changed my name."

Dirt, who used to run a night spot called the Dirt Club in Bloomfield, said he's formed a group called Los Fangos ("The Little Muds") to spread his gospel in a song he wrote: "Slime on in and slime on out, that's what the slime is all about."

Or to put it another way: "One of my theories in life is, if you can't have a good time then forget it."

Lillian Hellman: a contradiction

Throughout her tumultuous lifetime, Lillian Hellman gave little quarter and asked even less for herself. A loner who fled from her family and a succession of schools, this independent spirit found refuge in books and a literary career that spanned five decades. Her position in the history of the American theater is secure.

Hellman's first successful play, "The Children's Hour," was written before she was 30 and made her one of the nation's highest-paid writers by 1935. She also became a political activist on the eve of World War II, campaigning for anti-Franco forces in the Spanish Civil War and working against Nazism in both her public and private life. Her views from the left would keep her embroiled in controversy most of her life, and with other writers spotlighted in the McCarthy era she became a victim of Hollywood blacklisting.

But it is not for her political views that Hellman will be remembered. It is her plays that will endure, and particularly those that are merciless examinations of family relationships and flawed character. Her writing rose to the level of art when it dealt with intimate personal relationships — not with broader issues of society and politics.

It is ironic that Hellman so thoroughly understood the workings of good and evil in the private lives dissected in her plays, but could refuse so stubbornly to acknowledge the kind of evil rampant in the Stalinist regime in the Soviet Union. Hellman herself, perhaps, was as interesting and contradictory a character as any she created for the theater.

Reagan's move

WASHINGTON — Soviet officials, high and low, have long called for talks with the U.S. to ban weapons in space. The newest Soviet initiative, in a note on June 29, only added a place (Vienna) and a date (September) for the talks.

But the precision of the offer shattered a couple of American myths about the Kremlin on which the Reagan administration had based its election-year policy. So Washington's response has been hasty maneuvering with an outcome that is not yet clear.

The present Reagan policy is best defined by the old Reagan policy. The administration came to Washington insisting the U.S. had fallen dangerously behind Russia in deterrent power. It pushed for a major military buildup and denounced arms control as a snare and a delusion. Since January, however, Reagan has been notably mild when speaking of Russia. He argues that the growth of American power now makes it safe to deal with Moscow, and that the safety of humanity requires putting a lid on nuclear weapons.

Electoral politics obviously dictated the switch. Like every other president, Reagan wants to face the voters as a man of peace. Even if he does not reach agreement, it is in his interests to be seen striving for accord with Moscow. Moreover, convenient myths were invoked to make it seem that chancing after the Russians for a deal carried no downside risks.

One myth, much cherished in the White House, is that Soviet policies are largely shaped with an eye on American politics. The theory is that the Russians hate Reagan and prefer a Democratic successor. Because they want to hurt the president's election chances, it is said, they walked out of arms control negotiations on medium-range missiles (INF) and intercontinental missiles (START) last December. They would not consent to new talks before the elections since that would help Reagan. So the U.S. could offer practically anything without serious fear of Soviet acceptance.

A second myth, dear to many Soviet experts, centers on Russian politics. The theory is that the deaths of Leonid Brezhnev in 1982 and of Yuri Andropov this year left Russia leaderless. Konstantin Chernenko, their successor as Party secretary and Soviet president, is said to reign but not rule. The true power is supposed to lie with Andrei Gromyko, the veteran foreign minister, and Dmitri Ustinov, the defense minister. Those two were said to be so committed to an unthinking hard line against the West that Moscow was incapable of shifting toward even the appearance of accommodation.

The Russian initiative demonstrates that Moscow is not primarily influenced by American politics. On the contrary, abundant evidence suggests the Russians have long resigned themselves to having Reagan as president for another four years. They are even prepared to give him an added electoral boost by the resumption of Big Two talks in September. But on a condition that really counts in Moscow — namely that the talks advance Russia's strategic interest.

Washington's official response to the Soviet offer reflected the problem. The White House flashed a green light for talks in Vienna in September on banning weapons in space. But that yes was conditioned on Russian agreement to talks about resuming the suspended negotiations on medium-range and intercontinental missiles. Moscow, predictably, rejected that amendment to the original offer. That leaves Washington with a yes-no decision on talks beginning in Vienna in September to ban weapons in space.

All logic indicates a positive decision. The Russians are merely proposing the beginning of talks. The talks might make progress, which would be fine. If they yielded nothing, the administration could pull out after a while. Moreover, if Washington refuses to talk, the new Reagan policy of conciliation would be exposed as a mere political sham.

But nothing to do with the Russians and with arms control is that simple in the Reagan administration. Right-wing ideologists are insistent that the president has been checked; that the Russians are only trying to show him up with an unfair offer; and negotiations for demilitarization of space would be the first step down a slippery slope, and that in the end, the U.S. would find itself obliged to give up a master weapon on unsatisfactory terms. So as usual when it comes to dealing with Moscow in this administration, taking even the most simple, logical and obvious step requires that the president beat back his right wing.

Routine Red exercise turns serious

WASHINGTON — What President Reagan dismissed in early April as "regular and routine maneuvers" by the Soviets turned out to have been a massive, unprecedented exercise that included the launching of six nuclear missiles toward the United States. They were presumably unarmed.

Published reports described the great number of Soviet warships that left Arctic and Baltic seaports for war games in the North Atlantic. Secret Pentagon tallies showed just how huge the flotilla was: at least 135 surface ships and 70 submarines, including nuclear-missile subs in their largest deployment ever.

Now my associate Dale Van Atta has learned from intelligence sources and highly classified reports that the exercise was more ominous than even the numbers suggest. One source said it appeared to be part of a combined conventional-nuclear war plan.

For one thing, the CIA discovered that an entire Soviet city was evacuated during the exercise, in a test of civil defense measures that would accompany a nuclear strike.

Even more significantly, the exercise supported the Pentagon's suspicion that the Soviets' supposedly intermediate-range SS-20 missiles may now have to be counted as intercontinental missiles capable of hitting targets in the United States. It was the SS-20's massive deployment in Eastern Europe that prompted the decision to arm NATO with new U.S. Euro-missiles.

The Defense Intelligence Agency had spotted something peculiar — and alarming — about some of the mobile SS-20s located in northern Russia early in 1981: The launchers appeared to be aimed at the United States, not Western Europe.

The CIA pointed out that the SS-20's range was believed to be 5,000 kilometers maximum (about 3,100 miles) — not great enough to reach important U.S. targets. The CIA suggested the missiles might be designed to "roll over" after launching and head toward Europe. This argument won the day.

But after April's large-scale Soviet war game, the CIA is now conceding that the SS-20 may have to be counted as an ICBM. What changed the agency's mind was that the Soviets launched six of the missiles from the western town of Yurya on a northern trajectory — that is, on the polar route toward the United States.

The missiles, presumably armed with only dummy warheads, were destroyed after they reached outer space. But the very fact of their launching demonstrates that hundreds more nuclear missiles may be aimed at the U.S. mainland than had previously been thought. Here's why: Top-secret estimates put the number of mobile SS-20 launchers at more than 400. Each launcher is believed to have five missiles, and each SS-20 carries three independently targeted warheads capable of a half-megaton nuclear blast. That means a total of more than 6,000 warheads.

The SS-20's efficiency is frightening. The Defense Intelligence Agency estimates that the missile's warheads can hit within 285 meters (about 314 yards) of their targets more than half the time, and that its launch reliability is 95 percent, its in-flight reliability 97 percent, and its warhead reliability 97 percent. The weapon system's overall reliability is 89 percent.

Even those who still question whether the two-stage SS-20 could be an intercontinental missile must concede that its three-stage version — the SS-16 — is a tested ICBM. And top-secret reports point out that the Soviets have more than 400 SS-16s that can be loaded onto SS-20 launchers. In fact, they estimate that the Soviets have three operational SS-16 regiments, with 12 launchers each, at Plesetsk right now.

Media prefers brawn to brains

To the editor: Recently, about 100 youngsters from the Junior High Schools in this area completed courses offered by the "College for Kids" at Odessa College, which was designed to provide high achievers and talented youths from this section of the Permian Basin a learning experience quite different from their normal school programs. These kids came from Big Spring, Monahans, McCamey, Kermit, and other schools in this part of West Texas. Each of them was chosen by his respective school and all of them recognized what an honor it was to be selected.

As far as I know this event was not covered by one newspaper, although I didn't expect it nor did any of the kids. They were all there for the sheer delight of learning. If half this number of athletes from this area gathered anywhere, every newspaper and television station in West Texas would have reported the meeting in its entirety.

This made me wonder if perhaps we have not gone too far in our preference of brawn over brains. I love sports and feel they are an essential part of school activities, but wouldn't it be possible to give our support to these bright kids just a little?

As the students on the stage came to the podium one by one to give summaries of the classes taught at this session, I listened in awe. Then when one particular little boy walked up so confidently, adjusted the microphone and gave his talk in such a clear and articulate voice, I wondered just what his destiny would be. Whatever it is, I know he will make the best of it and I also know he has a great future ahead of him. I really do know. I am his grandmother. MRS. STEVE (NAOMI) BALDWIN 621 South Avenue D Kermit

Ray Thomas chosen as outstanding employee

Ray Thomas was named Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital's outstanding employee for the third quarter, recently.

Thomas joined the hospital staff in 1961 as assistant administrator, a position he still holds. In order to prepare himself more for the health field, he enrolled in the School of Nursing at Odessa College. He graduated in 1977 and became a registered nurse, having passed the examination given by the Texas State Board of Nurse Examiners. Thomas says being a registered nurse has helped him in his work as assistant director.

Thomas, a native resident, attended schools in Big Spring. He served in the military during World War II. Later he attended the University of Texas at Austin. Before joining the hospital staff, Thomas was employed by Cosden Petroleum Corporation and also was self-employed in the grocery business.

Thomas is active in civic organizations. He has served as assistant scout master, and as a board member of the American Diabetic Association and the West

Thomas and his wife, Lazelle, have two children, Brenda Justiz of Houston and Clifton Thomas of West Virginia.

Women attend Beta Sigma Phi Convention in Houston

Several members of the Mu Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi attended the recent Beta Sigma Phi state convention held at the Astro Village and Astro Hall in Houston.

Members attending were Peggy Payne, Lisa Murphy, Marian Buzbee, Debbie Walling and Sharon Richardson. Also attending the convention were Jett

Moore and Connie Edgemond of Xi Pi Epsilon Chapter.

"Carousel of Merriment" was the convention's theme. Brenda Clark, chairwoman for Texas from the Beta Sigma Phi International office, spoke before more than 800 women at the convention.

The next meeting for Mu Zeta will be Beginning Day, Aug. 26.

Plans for the Alvarez-Ariaz family reunion announced

The Alvarez-Ariaz family reunion will be at Comanche Trail Park, July 14. The day-long event will begin with a mass at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church.

Other activities will include soft-

Research on spouse abuse shows unexpected results

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spouse abuse is more likely to occur in remarriages than in first marriages, according to research by sociologist Debra Kalmuss of The Catholic University of America, who collaborated on a study with Judith Seltzer of Johns Hopkins University.

Their research also shows that people who have been divorced and remarried are more likely to have witnessed violence between their own parents than married adults who have never been divorced.

Ms. Kalmuss, a research associate at CUA's National Catholic Family Center, says she was surprised that the presence of children from a previous marriage made no difference in the level of spouse abuse.

The researchers expected to find the level of spouse abuse lowest in marriages that are the first for both partners, medium in families with no children from previous marriages, and highest in families with children from previous marriages.

Contrary to their expectations, the level of spouse abuse between remarried couples was the same whether or not they had children from previous marriages living in the home, she says. "Frankly, I'm baffled by the results."

The results were unexpected, she notes, because sociological literature shows that the rules regulating relationships are often unclear in families with children from previous marriages, which produces stress for family members. Stress is one of the causes of spouse abuse.

"There are many conflicting ties in relationships between step-parents and children, siblings and half-siblings, and several sets of grandparents that can cause problems," Ms. Kalmuss explains.

Ms. Kalmuss emphasizes that most divorced people have probably never abused anyone or been victims of violence. Her research centers on remarriage after divorce, not widowhood.

"We thought spouse abuse more likely in remarried couples, because violence is one reason why people divorce," she says. "The cause of violence in the first marriage, we conjectured, was either something about the first marriage or something the husband and wife had brought into their first marriage — most likely family mistreatment observed in childhood that could create a model to be enacted in marriage."

"We found that previously divorced people, in fact, are more likely to have observed violence between their parents. The results verified the notion that people are more likely to have entered first marriages with a model for abuse which carried into subsequent marriages."

"The marital repertoire for abuse, in other words, does not necessarily grow out of the first marriage, but seems to have been brought into the first marriage," she explains.

Dear Abby

Out of the rubble come memories of friendship

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of one of the 269 servicemen who died in the terrorist attack on the BLT Headquarters Building in Beirut last October.

During recent months, I, along with other mothers and family members who lost a loved one in the terrible bombing, have become increasingly aware of the need to seek each other out for support and comfort.

Most of the victims were U.S. Marines and sailors, but there were other stationed there and they were like a "family," developing close friendships and a deep sense of loyalty to each other. Many had sent home pictures of themselves and their buddies in Beirut, and we want to share these pictures — their last — with their families, but the faces are nameless.

We are calling upon you, Dear Abby, to make our support group known to those families who want to contact us. Everyone handles grief in his own way, so we will understand if some prefer to remain silent. The fortunate few who miraculously survive that attack are also welcome to join our group.

Please help us by printing our address so we can be contacted. Interested parties should write to: The Beirut Connection, 324 Center St., Moorestown, N.J. 08057.

Thank you, Abby, for helping us to find each other.

JOAN MUFFLER, MOTHER OF LANCE CPL. JOHN F. MUFFLER, AGE 19, PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have an unusual question concerning our children, ages 16 and 17. They both attend high school in this area.

Both children have asked us not to read their yearbooks! They claim that to do so would be an invasion of their privacy. As parents, we believe that yearbooks should be put out for friends and family to enjoy. We've always told our kids never to write anything they may later regret having written.

I have polled adults, and they agree with me. However, the children claim that all their friends feel as they do.

What do you think?

MRS. P. IN DELAWARE

DEAR MRS. P.: I think it's too bad that any child would have something in his yearbook not fit for the eyes of his parents and their friends. But the yearbook belongs to the child, and if he doesn't want to share it with his family, he shouldn't be expected to do so.

DEAR ABBY: I am a social worker on a child abuse hotline. In reading your letters regarding the dangers of toddlers who might strangle on a venetian blind cord or drown in a toilet bowl, I was reminded of two other common hazards that the public needs to be aware of.

The first is couches placed next to windows. We've received numerous referrals of toddlers who had fallen out of windows, sometimes falling several stories onto concrete sidewalks, when the children climbed onto a couch (or chair) placed next to a window and then pushed the screen out.

The second is shaking a small child. An infant's brain does not fill up the skull cavity, so when someone shakes a child vigorously, his brain "bounces" off the walls of the skull. This causes bruising of the brain, swelling, internal bleeding, and more often than one would believe, permanent brain damage and sometimes death.

SAN DIEGO SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR SOCIAL WORKER: Thanks for writing. Only recently has the public been warned that shaking a small child vigorously can cause serious brain damage and even death.

Dr. Donohue

Is car's exhaust posing health hazard?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been trying to get some answers with regard to carbon monoxide gas seeping into my bedroom from a garage under my apartment. May I see an answer soon? — A.A.

I thought I had a go at this one before, but let's give it another whirl since it is such an important subject. Basics first. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas that comes from the combustion of organic material, and in the case of automobiles, that's fuel. Almost any flame or operating engine emits some degree of CO; the emissions from a car's exhaust equal about 3 to 7 percent of fuel burned.

When you breathe CO it attaches to red blood cells, whose primary job is to take up oxygen from the lungs and carry it to all the body organs via the blood. And CO is a very aggressive gas. It muscles its way to red cells ahead of the oxygen like a gate-crasher. Because it's more or less occupying spots that by rights belong to oxygen, there's less of that to circulate to body organs.

The brain is the first to complain. There may be mild or throbbing headache, confusion, dizziness, nausea, fainting, even death. The severity of symptoms depends on how much CO there is in the air. About 3,500 deaths occur every year from carbon monoxide poisoning.

If you think CO is leaking into your apartment, I urge you to find out quickly, especially if you are having symptoms. As I said, you can't smell it and it isn't irritating in the sense that it would cause a rash or burning eyes, etc. Your doctor can test your blood to determine the CO level, and that should be done very soon after you arise in the morning. Later in the day, when you get out of the indoor environment, your body quickly gets rid of it. And you might want to ask your local public health department to measure the amount of CO in the air of your apartment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am considering having the injection into my spine to get rid of my spinal disc protrusion. I realize this is new, and I am a little leery of it. Are there reports yet of results with this technique? — O.P.

For other readers, I should explain that O.P. is referring to injection of chymopapain, an enzyme, which in a sense acts by digesting the protruded disc section, thus eliminating the need for conventional surgery for that purpose.

I can only report figures I have seen in some respected journals: One study demonstrated improvements of such disc problems in from 68 percent to 80 percent of patients in whom this method has been used.

When I use such percentage ranges, I always get inquiries. It sounds confusing, but it really isn't. All it means is that in some studies success rates as low as 68 percent were recorded and in others rates as high as 80 percent. As you know, in this technique, which has only been made available in the U.S. rather recently, the material is actually injected into the disc's jelly-like center. There it has its dissolving action.

Because the procedure does require precision injection skill, it should be done only by a professional experienced in chemonucleolysis (the medical term for the technique). The procedure is considered safe and had to be approved for such use by the federal agency governing such things.

McEnroe rolls to Wimbledon crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Two weeks of high quality tennis, idyllic summer weather and record crowds — the 1984 Wimbledon championships had just about everything.

"We have had all the ingredients of a vintage Wimbledon," said Buzzer Hadingham, chairman of the All England club, as the championships drew to a close.

On the second Monday of the tournament, 17 former champions took part in a Center Court parade to mark the women's centenary.

Many stayed on for the rest of the fortnight and saw Martina Navratilova beat Chris Evert Lloyd in a high-class women's final on Saturday to capture her fifth singles crown, and third in a row.

For the first time ever, all the No. 1 seeds won the five major competitions.

John McEnroe took just 80 minutes Sunday to demolish fellow American Jimmy Connors 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in one of the most one-sided men's singles finals in many years.

Later, Britain's John Lloyd and Australia's Wendy Turnbull retained their mixed doubles crown.

On Saturday, McEnroe and Peter Fleming won their fourth men's doubles title, while Navratilova and Pam Shriver took the women's doubles.

The best display of the tournament was reserved for the very last singles match on Center Court. McEnroe, his game peaking for the ultimate test, destroyed Connors in Sunday's men's final with an awesome display of shotmaking that gave the 25-year-old New Yorker his third Wimbledon crown.

He was the first American to retain the title since Don Budge in 1938 and brought the following tribute from Britain's Fred Perry, himself a former three-time champion: "I consider him to be the complete tennis player. He has shots no other player has and is very fast around the court."

McEnroe said he played one of the greatest matches of his career and he hoped people would remember him for his tennis ability, rather than his notorious on-court antics.

At his post-match news conference, he said he hoped for four or five more shots at the title. There were the occasional on-court tantrums, but fewer than usual and McEnroe was on his best behavior throughout the tournament.

Attendance figures for the 13-day tournament were an all-time record of 391,673, more than 30,000 more than last year.

"The record crowds have justified our policy of always doing our best to ... improve facilities," said Hadingham who expressed his "delight at the brilliant tennis of Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors."

Navratilova, who has dominated the women's circuit for over two years, was named by the Women's Tennis Association as player of the year for 1983-84 and she and Shriver won the best doubles pair.

The award for the most improved player of the year went to Kathy Jordan of the United States, who reached the semifinals here and has shot back up to No. 5 in the world after two years out of the Top 10.

Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, 17, who beat Chris Evert Lloyd in the final of the Italian Open, was voted the best newcomer of the year.

CRIBBS CRUNCHED — Birmingham Stallions' running back Joe Cribbs, already in the grasp of Philadelphia Stars' Sam Mills, left, is about to be hit by George Cooper in the second quarter of their USFL Eastern Conference Championship game in Philadelphia Sunday. Cribbs, the league's leading rusher was held to 72 yards in 21 carries as the Stars downed the Stallions 20-10.

Stars win return to championship

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Linebacker George Cooper, who recovered a fumble to set up the Philadelphia Stars' first touchdown, said he was not at his best. But he promised he would be next week.

Cooper's fumble recovery put the Birmingham Stallions in a hole early as the Stars captured a 20-10 United States Football League playoff victory last Sunday. That earned them a return trip to the USFL championship game, which they lost last year 24-22 to Michigan. Next Sunday, Philadelphia opposes Arizona in Tampa, Fla., for the 1984 title.

"This wasn't my best game. I want my best game to be next week," Cooper said.

"I don't care who we're playing next week. I'm just glad we have the opportunity to play," added

Stars Coach Jim Mora, whose team's two playoff triumphs raised its record to 18-2.

Mora praised his team's defense, which has given up an average of just 12 points a game, as the key to the victory over the Stallions. Birmingham quarterback Cliff Stoudt, playing with a bruised shoulder, was sacked six times, a Stars' record, and intercepted three times.

The Stars also took advantage of two Birmingham fumbles as they roared to a 20-0 halftime lead on two Kelvin Bryant touchdowns and two David Trout field goals. The Stallions did not score until the fourth quarter, and crossed midfield only once before halftime.

"We wanted to get on them early because they are not a real good team in coming back," said Bryant.

Mets complete sweep over Reds

By The Associated Press
The National League prepared for its annual midseason break with the annual feelings of exhilaration, optimism and escape.

Definitely falling into the first category were the New York Mets. The NL East leaders completed a five-game sweep of the Cincinnati Reds Sunday with a 7-3 decision as Danny Heep and Darryl Strawberry each drove in a pair of runs.

The Mets, who have won nine of 10, have their best halfway record, 47-34, since 1972. The five-game sweep was their first since 1970. They have never been in first place at the All-Star break, not even in their pennant years of 1969 and 1973.

Bruce Berenyi, acquired from the Reds on June 15, and Jesse Orosco combined on a six-hitter. Berenyi, 6-9, gave up three unearned runs, struck out 10 and walked four in 7 2-3 innings. He said showed the Reds a new Bruce Berenyi. Dave Parker hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning to break up Berenyi's shutout attempt.

homer of the season in the fourth to send Chicago ahead 5-2.

Sutcliffe is grateful for the turnaround in his fortunes this season.

"I couldn't be happier about what's happened to me. Not many guys can make a 25-game leap in one night," said Sutcliffe, who was traded from seventh-place Cleveland.

Phillies 7, Braves 0
Making a new start as a starter this season, Jerry Koosman gave the credit to Philadelphia pitching coach Claude Osteen for the 32nd shutout of his career, a four-hit, no-walk effort.

Osteen worked extensively during spring training on Koosman's deteriorated pitching mechanics and timing. Osteen said he felt Koosman acquired a lot of those bad habits as a reliever.

"He wasn't used to relieving and developed some bad things," the coach said. "He's now throwing a consistent fastball. He has a good curve and hard slider, and with his knowledge of pitching, you got a good pitcher."

National League

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal defeated Houston 8-5, Chicago beat San Francisco 6-3, Philadelphia blanked Atlanta 7-0, St. Louis took an 8-6 12-inning decision from Los Angeles, and Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 4-3.

Expos 8, Astros 5
Home runs by Tim Wallach and Gary Carter and Pete Rose's two-run single highlighted a seven-run second inning as the host Expos battered Nolan Ryan, 7-4.

The Expos nevertheless enter the All-Star break below .500 for the first time since 1978.

"It's not out of reach for us," said Expos Manager Bill Virdon. "But I think we'll need to win 49 or 50 of our next 78 games."

Cubs 6, Giants 3
Rick Sutcliffe won his fourth game since joining the Cubs three weeks ago and Gary Woods added a two-run homer at Candlestick Park, which will host the All-Star Game Tuesday.

Gary Matthews broke a 2-2 tie when his single drove home Ryne Sandberg in the third inning. Woods connected for his third

Cardinals 8, Dodgers 6
The Cardinals, trailing 5-0 in the first inning, rallied to tie the score 6-6 with a four-run ninth highlighted by Andy Van Slyke's three-run homer. They broke the tie on David Green's run-scoring single in the top of the 12th.

The Dodgers missed an opportunity to gain a game on the entire National League West.

"A loss is a loss," said Dodger Manager Lasorda, "but it's a shame. We just have to go out after the All-Star break and forget about it, and we have to play up to our capabilities."

Pirates 4, Padres 3
Dale Berra, moved from eighth to second in the batting order, delivered a run-scoring double in the seventh inning to help the last-place Pirates snap their four-game losing streak.

"I should have played that lineup all year long," smiled Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. "I hope it's a start for us."

"We had a meeting before the game and I told the team to forget baseball for three days."

Peterson holds off Lopez for Toledo win

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Lauri Peterson's playing partner provided the psychological pressure. And Peterson responded, overcoming the accompanying physical foe to finish first.

Peterson, playing against Nancy Lopez, her closest challenger, Sunday captured the inaugural $175,000 LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, but it wasn't easy.

"My legs felt numb midway through the round," Peterson said. "It was the pressure. When you have Nancy on your tail, you can't relax. You don't know how tough a job it is."

The physical problems came from her own swing.

"I lost a little rhythm," said Peterson, who pocketed $26,250. "I started overswinging and let everything slide to the right. I was lucky I got it back in the groove."

The 24-year-old Peterson, twice a winner in the last 10 months, shot a 1-over-par 73 Sunday for a 10-under total of 278, good enough to beat Lopez by two shots at Glengarry Country Club.

Lopez, denied a bid for her 29th career triumph, closed with a par-72 for a 280 total and took home $17,750.

"I found myself pressing. I hit some bad shots. That's what cost me. I was trying to guide the ball, to get it so close to the hole. You can't do that," she said.

It was the first time Lopez had faced Peterson, and she came away impressed.

"She's a fighter on the golf course," Lopez said. "She always fights back. She had pretty good control of what was happening. She was making the putts when she had to — when the pressure was on at the end."

The biggest putt of all was Peterson's six-foot birdie stroke at 14. It broke a tie and cooled off the charge of Lopez, who was six strokes behind after four holes on the pleasant, sunny day.

"That's when I got my swing back," Peterson said of No. 14. "I was ready to win," she said. "I had the killer instinct. I don't have that very often. I'm too nice of a person."

Any hopes Lopez harbored of a playoff vanished at 18 when her approach shot caught a bunker, and she bogeyed the 327-yard hole.

"She already was on the green so I had to go for the pin," Lopez said of her approach.

Amy Alcott, the winner the previous week at Hershey, Pa., made another final-round charge, shooting a 69 and finished third with a total of 285.

Patty Sheehan, this year's leading money-winner, shared fourth place with Vicki Singleton and Therese Hession at 286. Each shot a final-round 71.

Roseberg takes Dallas Grand Prix

DALLAS (AP) — Keke Roseberg, a combative Fin, was hot, tired and not in a forgiving mood after winning the inaugural Dallas Grand Prix.

Sunday's race was marked by torrid heat, a crumbling track that made each of the 16 turns an adventure on every lap, as well as what Roseberg judged as bad behavior by one of his competitors.

If air temperatures up to 104 degrees and cockpit temperatures up to 140 weren't enough, the 1982 world champion was made hotter by the driving of pole-starter Nigel Mansell of England.

"The track was breaking up, but there was one problem; Nigel Mansell, who drove stupidly, below Formula One standards," Roseberg said. "We don't block in Formula One. You let faster cars go through. It was bad behavior."

Mansell's Lotus started from the pole and led through the first 35 of the 57 racing laps on the 2.424-mile circuit at Texas State Fair Park.

Most of that time he was fending off the frustrated Roseberg, who was looking for his first victory of the season after struggling to get the right combination of Williams chassis and the new Honda turbocharged engine.

Faint after faint by Roseberg was stymied by Mansell's tactics. Finally, Mansell made a mistake, and one of his tires tapped one of the ever-present concrete barriers that line the temporary course. Roseberg roared past.

He later lost the lead to Alain Prost of France, but the McLaren driver also tagged the concrete and broke a wheel rim. Prost parked the car 10 laps from the end, giving up the lead to Roseberg.

Prost retained a 10½-point lead over McLaren teammate Niki Lauda of Austria in the quest for his first world championship.

Lauda met the same fate as Prost while running third seven laps from the end. Others who failed to finish because of ill-fated meetings with the barriers included Nelson Piquet of Brazil, who had won the last two races, and Michele Alboreto of Italy, whose Ferrari was sixth when he crashed 13 laps from the end.

BIG CHECK — Lauri Peterson of Phoenix, Arizona holds up a check for $26,250 after winning the L.P.G.A. Toledo Classic Sunday. Peterson held off Nancy Lopez for a 72-hole score of 278-10 under par.

White Sox win seventh in-a-row over Cleveland

By The Associated Press
Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa gets angry when asked to compare 1984 with 1983, but he certainly wouldn't mind if it turned out the same way.

Anyway, the comparisons seem to be increasingly in evidence and even LaRussa, a licensed attorney in Florida, would be hard-pressed to prove otherwise.

Exhibit A: After 84 games last year, the White Sox were 44-40, 1½ games out in the American League West and starting a 58-24 tear that saw them romp to the division flag by a record 20-game margin.

Exhibit B: After 84 games this season, Chicago is on top with a 44-40 record, one game ahead of Minnesota and California. And the White Sox are hot. Sunday's 9-8 victory over the Cleveland Indians gave them a seven-game winning streak, longest of the season.

Any objections, counselor?
In other AL games, Texas outlasted Detroit 9-7, Seattle stopped Toronto 7-1, Minnesota edged New York 4-3 in 10 innings, California blanked Boston 4-0 after dropping the double-header opener 3-2 in 10 innings, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1 and Kansas City trimmed Baltimore 6-1.

Despite two-run homers by Vance Law and Rudy Law, the White Sox trailed Cleveland 6-5 in the bottom of the eighth inning. But pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston tied the Jones, Donnie Scott and Buddy Bell drove in two runs apiece. Winner Frank Tanana went six innings, giving up six runs on six hits, but was hurt by four unearned runs in the sixth capped by Howard Johnson's three-run homer. Loser Doug Bair, making his first start after 24 relief appearances, was knocked out in the third when Texas scored five times for a 7-0 bulge.

Despite the setback, which was their sixth in the last eight games and gave them a 22-22 record since their torrid 35-5 start, the Tigers remained seven games in front of second-place Toronto in the AL East.

"The way we've played in the last 44, there's no way in the world we'll win if we keep playing like this," Anderson said. "We probably should have lost all four games here. We definitely need some rest."

Sports Briefs

Church Leagues to hold tourney
 An end of the season Big Spring Church League softball tournament will start today at Stink Creek Park.
 All 16 teams that comprise the league will take part with an "A" Division set up for the top eight teams and a "B" Division consisting of the bottom eight finishers during the regular season. Action gets underway at 6:30 p.m.

Special awards presentations
 Special ceremonies will be held at the tonight at the opening day of the Big and Junior District Baseball Tournament being held at Roy Anderson Complex starting at 7 p.m.
 Big Spring Mayor Clyde Angel will throw out the first pitch and Ms. Melba Foreman will sing the Star Spangled Banner. Special awards will be presented at this time also.
 Local teams from Big Spring and Coahoma will be participating in the tourney with the winner advancing to Lubbock for bi-district competition.

Big Leaguers split with Odessa
 The Big Spring Big League team warmed up for today's tourney by gaining a split with Odessa Saturday in Odessa.
 Big Spring won the first contest 6-5 when Jerry Anderson slamed three run homer in the fifth inning. Jay Pirkle went three-for-ree including a homer. Mike Dodd and Able Carillo got two hits eh for the winners. Pirkle was the winning hurler allowing nine hs in seven innings.
 Odessa won the second game 12-5 as Tommy Gartman took the loss for Big Spring. Sammy Watson and Pirkle led the Big Spring bats with two hits each. Chris Lamb and Anderson also got hits.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 10, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to take those ideas which you feel will bring you the future benefits that you desire to the attention of influential or cooperative persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Bring to the attention of associates those plans that you feel can work out well at this time. Reach fine agreement that can last.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you handle your job efficiently, you can realize greater benefits now and in the future. Try to please your mate more.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Express your ideas to partners that you feel can bring greater success to everyone concerned. First be sure of what you want.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) State what you feel can bring greater understanding between you and fellow workers and get good results.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) This is a fine day for expressing your talents in a most unique way and gaining great advantage with the public in general.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study with family ties the best way to improve your monetary standing and gain their cooperation quickly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more fondness for regular allies and be thoughtful with little gifts that please. Don't waste any time foolishly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Quiet talks with persons in banking and investment matters can help you to get ahead faster. Attend some social event.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what it is you want in life and gain the assistance of others in order to attain your goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look for that prominent person in the field of endeavor that fascinates you, and try to join forces with this person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stop procrastinating and pursue your personal aims in a unique fashion and get good results. Be happy in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk that monetary matter over with an expert and you can solve the problem very easily. Involve yourself in the community.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of viewing everything from its greatest potential, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can in order to make the most of this excellent quality. There is much interest in foreign countries here.
