Northside Center celebrates anniversary with open house

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

The Northside Community Center is celebrating its first anniversary today with an open house slated from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., according to Marianne Brown, director.

The center, located on northwest 8th Street, was one of the goals of the Northside Community Action League and was chartered last August by the Secretary of State. Mrs. Brown, her husband, Chesnut, and the Rev. Israel Cooper were the founders.

The center opened its doors prior to receiving the charter and is planning a chili dinner, with all you can eat for $3, throughout the day.

Earlier this week, as Mrs. Brown checked through a list of activities, she took a moment to talk to one of the center's success stories, a man named Phil who came to the center several months ago seeking help.

Phil came to the center "because I had a drinking problem." Another agency "put me on a waiting list, but I needed help then, not later. "When I came here, I had no place to go. I was sleeping under a bridge in a sleeping bag. I had really begun drinking hard when I couldn't find a job," Phil said.

Phil didn't know where to turn to for help, but by talking to a man at a local carwash, he heard of the Northside Community Center.

He found the center and told Mrs. Brown he was broke and didn't have enough money for shoes, clothing or a place to stay.

"He told me he had a drinking problem," Mrs. Brown said. "I called the (Big Spring) State Hospital and we got him admitted (to a detoxification program.)"

But Mrs. Brown didn't stop there. She and other center volunteers visited Phil periodically, and Phil called the center "daily for 60 days to let me know about his progress," Mrs. Brown said.

Once Phil had completed the detox program, Mrs. Brown found him a place to live, provided him with shoes and clothing and eventually helped him find a job. He hasn't had a drink for months.

"We told him we're with him as long as he keeps his side of the bargain — no drinking," Mrs. Brown said.

Helping Phil "involved a lot of people," Mrs. Brown said. The Northside Community Center is aided by a network of volunteers, churches and businesses that help when they can.

"People have been wonderful," Mrs. Brown said. "That's how we've made it the whole year."

Northside Community Center operates on donations. Although the city leases the building to the center for only $1 a month, utilities and operation costs run more than $600 a month, Mrs. Brown said.

The center opened with $27, "but things are a lot better than that now," Mrs. Brown said. "We had a torn-up building and no furniture." Volunteers helped repair the building and provided furnishings.

People like Phil also keep the center going. "We never gave Phil a bill, but he knows he has a bill he needs to pay." In return for the help he received, Phil does volunteer work at the center.

Many of the center's volunteers offer to work in return for food, clothing or other aid.

The center is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Wednesdays from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mrs. Brown is on call at other times of the week.

Mrs. Brown said the center often operates as a See Center page 2-A

Fire fighters threaten suit Back pay issue debated

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Members of the Big Spring Professional Fire Fighters Association yesterday gave City Hall five working days to respond to their demand for some $45,000 in back pay before the union says it will file suit.

The news came in a letter addressed to City Manager Don Davis that was hand delivered to Fire Chief Jim Ryals Friday morning by union president John Branham.

The back pay issue stems from a union contention that Big Spring firemen were substituted into higher paying positions but not remunerated at higher rates of pay.

City officials have not disputed the union's contention and in fact instituted last December a policy giving fire fighters the higher pay.

At issue, however, is the amount of money owed firemen for the period before the new policy went into effect. The issue has been under negotiation between the union and City Hall for the past seven months, Branham said.

According to the union president, the negotiation period culminated in a Wednesday night union meeting in which firemen unanimously rejected a city offer of approximately $15,000 and authorized Branham to send Davis the letter setting the five-day deadline.

"If no response is given or an agreement or settlement cannot be reached (within the five-day period), this association will file suit. This suit will be filed against the City of Big Spring through the Texas State Courts using precedents already established," Branham said.

In addition to the $45,000 demand, the union's letter stated the organization's willingness to negotiate for three extra holidays per man per year in lieu of the money. "What we're asking for in our holidays is a very minimal cost outlay to the city versus a cash settlement," Branham said.

According to both Ryals and Branham, the $30,000 discrepancy between the two sides stems from their differing ways of figuring the amount of back pay owed.

Although both sides have used a two-year period between Dec. 1981 and Dec. 1982 for figuring the back pay, Ryals said the city's figures are based on reports including

Hospital Medicare services restricted

By LUIS RIOS
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — The Department of Health and Human Services notified Root Memorial Hospital that it would be restricting services to Medicare and Medicaid patients, effective Aug. 1, hospital administrator Ray Dillard told hospital district board members Friday.

The restriction order will be temporary, according to a press release issued before the called emergency meeting of the board. The hospital is in the process of reapplying to the agency for recertification and expects the recertification will be granted as soon as the agency will grant a new survey, the release said.

The Root Valley Fair Lodge will not be affected by the restriction order, Dillard said.

There were two areas the hospital was deficient in at the time of the survey in April, Dillard said.

However, both areas have corrected the deficiencies, he said.

"None of the deficiencies reflect patient care," said board chairman Bobby Lemons.

The two areas with discrepancies were medical records and pharmacy or drug room, according to a letter to the hospital board dated April 27.

There is a procedure where medical records are completed and placed in designated areas, Dillard said. The physicians complete the forms by placing their signature on it. The time limit, as specified by Medicare, has lapsed; therefore, putting the department out of compliance, he said.

The discrepancy in the pharmacy resulted from fresh Betadine solution being placed in an old Betadine solution bottle, Dillard said.

The areas of deficiency were not in compliance with the statutory See Hospital page 2-A COMMODITY DISTRIBUTION — A volunteer checks the yellow card of a participant in the West Texas Opportunities commodity distribution program. Each month, commodities such as corn meal, flour and dry milk are distributed to families who qualify for assistance.

Local commodity distribution helps many make ends meet

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

By 11 a.m. Thursday, the large hall inside the National Guard Armory on FM 700 is sweltering, and volunteers for the West Texas Emergency Food Assistance Program are stuffing butter into armory refrigerators to protect it from the heat.

Patricia Lawlis, director of the Big Spring agency, throws large chunks of wrapped butter into the overflowing refrigerators in a race with the heat. In the hall, scores of people file in and out of the armory, ready to pick up this month's allotment of federal commodities.

Although the number of recipients changes from month to month, 435 people are eligible in July. Thursday, like every commodity day, is hectic for Mrs. Lawlis and her volunteers.

Commodities are supplied once each month to people who qualify through the West Texas Opportunities office in the Ventura Building on 11th Place. Mrs. Lawlis and Rita Hull are the only paid workers at West Texas Opportunities, and delegating commodities is only one of their duties for needy families.

Commodities are given out at the first of each month, usually on the first or second Thursday. Mrs. Lawlis and Mrs. Hull must interview persons before the distribution, prepare a profile, verify income and log everything that is done for a family.

Persons must come by the office to fill out forms justifying their need for aid. If they qualify, they are given yellow cards, their ticket to take out items.

What a person can pick up in any given month is dependent upon what is available and what each person's situation is that month.

The local West Texas Opportunities operates under the guidance of the main office in Lamesa, and is a branch of the Texas Department of Community Affairs. Big Spring Air Park manager Hal Boyd started the program in Lamesa back in the 1960s, Mrs. Lawlis said. The Big Spring office was opened in October of 1983.

Commodities are supplied through the USDA emergency food program. Among items available are cheese, butter, dry milk, corn meal, flour and honey. "We never know what we are going to get," Mrs. Lawlis said.

For most of the needy, the commodities are a boost to household budgets battered by rising food costs. One young woman checking in for her allotment said her husband had deserted her a year ago, leaving her with two small children and many bills to pay.

"This has helped with some of the need," she said. "If not for this program, we'd have to tighten up in other areas to buy these things. We'd have to give up something else. I'm not working, we're getting food stamps and I receive an allotment of Aid for Dependent Children. I appreciate this a great deal."

The young woman bags some corn meal, cheese and dry milk. "I can walk in and out of here quickly. I don't have to leave my children with the neighbors for very long."

Asked if things are looking up thanks to programs such as this one, the young woman smiles and said, "Yes, but things will never be that good until someone gives me a million dollars."

Good humor and smiles are evident at the distribution, and volunteer Marcelle Dyer said it is this attitude that keeps her coming back month after month to help.

"A lot of these people have a low income, and this helps them with foods which give them added nutrition they would do without. Most couldn't afford items such as cheese," Mrs. Dyer said.

While some of the participants in the distribution have children, many others are elderly. Elderly women are facing their own problems with today's economy.

Mrs. Lawlis said new government figures show that 20 percent See Food page 2-A

Showers continue

By The Associated Press

A band of high level cloudiness stretched across the South Plains, North Central Texas and the eastern section of the state Friday.

Clear skies covered south, south central and most of the coastal area of Texas while small patches of high cloudiness dotted the remainder. A few showers and thunderstorms continued offshore along the extreme upper and lower coastal zone.

Heavy thunderstorms also were reported in Northeast Texas this morning.

Early morning temperature readings were in the 70s across most of the state. The Panhandle, the South Plains and the mountains of far Southwest Texas had readings in the 60s while a small area in North Central Texas remained in the 80s. At 4 a.m., the cool spot was Marfa with 60 while Waco topped all readings with 82 degrees.

Southerly winds prevailed throughout most of the state, with speeds generally under 10 mph.

Friday the 13th was a lucky day for the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., suburb of Davie as a tornado touched down but caused no damage or injuries, while showers drenched the Southwest and temperatures above 100 degrees baked California.

"It was like a rain drop coming from the clouds," said Bill Michalak, an employee at the 150-acre Rolling Hills Golf Course, who said he spotted the twister while at work shortly before the National Weather Service reported it had touched down.

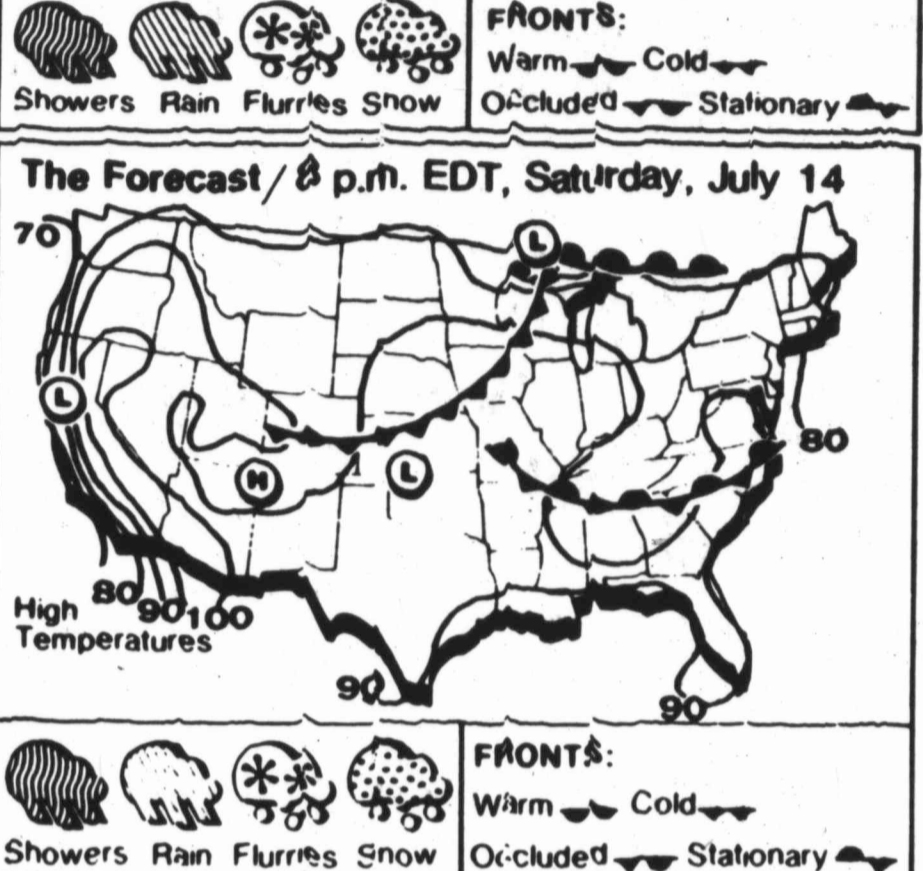

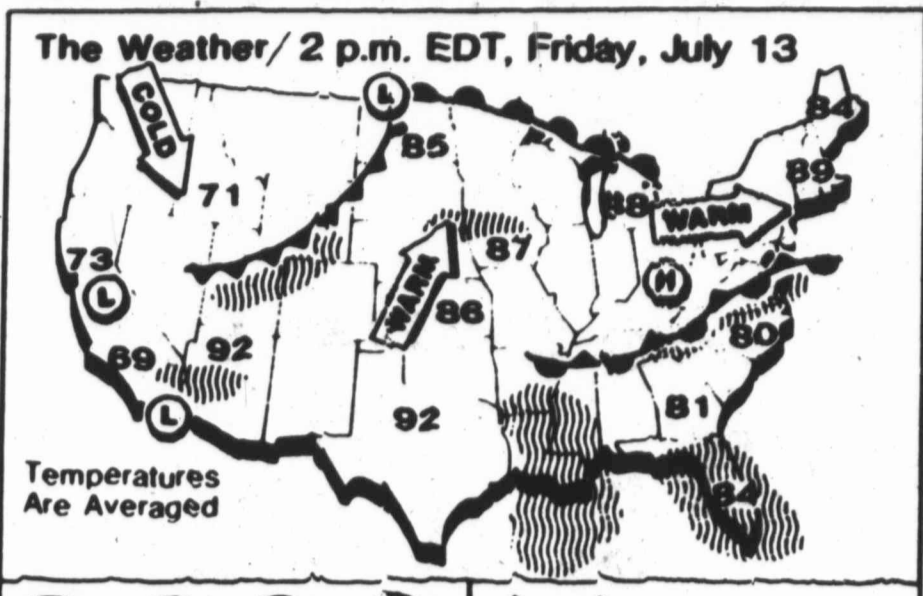

Several other tornado sightings were reported in mid-afternoon in western Broward County, which was hit by thunderstorms, along with other portions of South Florida, according to weather specialist Noel Risnychok.

Elsewhere Friday, showers developed over the Southwest and brought the threat of locally heavy rain along with possible flash flooding. By mid-day, showers were scattered widely over Utah, Arizona and southeast California into southern Nevada.

Rain and occasional thundershowers were also scattered in the lower Mississippi Valley. Rain was scattered over the central Atlantic states.

Little relief was expected from the heat over inland portions of northern and central California.

West Texas — A slight chance of thunderstorms north and far west Sunday. Otherwise fair nights and mostly sunny and very warm days through Sunday. Highs Saturday near 90 mountains to mid 90s elsewhere except to near 104 along the Big Bend of the Rio Grande. Lows Saturday night upper 50s mountains to mid 70s extreme south. Highs Sunday near 90 Panhandle and mountains to near 103 Big Bend of the Rio Grande.

The costs of the workshops are $7.50 for half-day sessions and $15 for full day sessions. All materials are included in the cost.

Certificates are presented to the participants upon completion of the workshop which may then be presented to school officials for in-service credit to be counted toward annual requirements.

Full day sessions begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 4:30 p.m. The half-day sessions begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 12 p.m.

A full day session of science activities for the classroom will be offered July 25. A full day workshop of teaching drug awareness in the classroom will be held August 1. ## Worn-out equipment replaced

Howard County commissioners Friday approved replacement purchases or repairs of worn-out county equipment.

Commissioners unanimously approved a motion by Commissioner Louis Brown that would authorize the county to purchase a "good" riding lawnmower for less than $3,000 without bidding. The old lawnmower's engine "blew up" on county employees, County Judge Milton Kirby said. Its three-year-old engine had been rehealed a year ago, but only given a six-month guarantee, he said.

Commissioners also agreed that the mower would have more horsepower than the current one to prevent a repeat of the current situation.

Commissioners are required to purchase items by sealed bids when they exceed $5,000. However, those of the city personnel office, while the union used figures solely from Ryals' office. "We feel reasonably sure (the personnel office figures) are more up to date than mine," Ryals said.

In addition, Branham said his union based its demand on figures from the current fire department pay scale. City figures are from the department's pay scale of two years ago, he said.

Union figures also reflect the addition of an officer's slot on each piece of fire equipment, as recommended in National Fire Protection Association standards, he said.

According to Ryals, who said he questioned the state Board of Insurance on the issue, "there is no set rule that there should be an officer on each unit. (The board said) that I as chief could designate anyone I so choose to operate that vehicle."

Ryals said he delivered the union's letter to Davis' office Friday, although Davis was out of town.

According to Branham, if the union receives no response by next Friday, the suit will be filed "as soon as possible."

provisions set by the Social Security Act and regulations issued by the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, according to the letter from the agency.

The restriction order will have a tremendous impact on the hospital since 55 percent of the patients at Root Memorial are listed as Medicare patients. The hospital could run into financial trouble within six months, Dillard said. The hospital employs 146 people and has a payroll of $50,000 to $55,000 every two weeks, he said.

"I have been told by agency personnel that it is a high possibility that we could be recertified by Sept. 1," Dillard said.

Volunteer Joe Mitchell has been coming to the armory once a month since October to help distribute commodities.

"I do feel that this helps a lot of people who have had hard luck or who are kind of down on their luck," Mitchell said.

Persons who believe they may be eligible for commodities must check with West Texas Opportunities prior to next month's distribution day, Mrs. Lawlis said.

business.

The center's Girl Scout program is on hiatus for the summer, and Mrs. Brown is trying to find a leader for the Boy Scout program. She also is trying to start a Girls' Club to match the city's Boys' Club program.

She also would like to start a program where children can be driven to the center. Some children can't come because they would have to cross a highway and walk long distances to get to the center.

Looking back over the last year, Mrs. Brown said, "There is a lot of need." But she says she is optimistic that the network of volunteers will keep the center going for another year.

Training begins for hotline

Training for new volunteers for the Crisis Hotline will begin Tuesday at the Canterbury Retirement Home, 1700 Lancaster, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The Crisis Hotline, sponsored by the Chemical People, is a referral service for people with problems. Hours for the hotline are 8 p.m. to midnight Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Search on for missing teen

PAGOSA SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — About 30 people aided by three Colorado Civil Air Patrol airplanes searched in the San Juan National Forest on Friday for a missing, 15-year-old Andrews, Texas, boy, officials said.

Chris Harvey, 15, the son of Jim and Judy Harvey, last was seen about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the family's summer trailer home, according to the Archuleta County Sheriff's Department.

On Friday, about 30 members of the sheriff's office searched near the Harveys' trailer on the edge of San Juan National Forest, aided by the CAP and by a helicopter from Fort Carson, officials said.

The boy, 5-foot-11 and 135 pounds, last was seen wearing blue jeans and a tan checked shirt, the sheriff's office reported.

Irving girl meets Jackson backstage after concert

IRVING (AP) — Three weeks ago, Ladonna Jones couldn't afford to see Michael Jackson, but the crestfallen sixth-grader wrote her idol a letter that resulted in a front-row seat Friday night.

"The best thing is that I'm getting to meet Michael Jackson backstage," a shy Ladonna told The Associated Press Friday a few hours before the concert.

Jackson relaxed the procedures for purchasing Victory Tour tickets and announced his cut of the concerts would go to charity after the 11-year-old girl penned him a letter saying she was disappointed in him.

"I guess it's just as well that I realized now that show business people are out for one thing — money," she wrote her idol. "I loved you so much and you took my dream away."

Ladonna said she began readying for the Dallas-area concert by listening to Michael Jackson's "Thriller" album and the Jackson brothers' "Victory" album, which she had purchased the day before.

She traveled from her Lewisville home to Texas Stadium — the site of the Jacksons' three concerts this weekend — via a limousine provided by PepsiCo Inc., the tour's promoters.

A crash course in safety

BUFFALO — Gov. Mario Cuomo was "shaken up" but unhurt when his car was involved in a seven-car, chain-reaction accident, a spokesman said.

MARIO CUOMO

Cuomo's car was struck Wednesday afternoon as he was going to a hotel in suburban Cheektowaga, said a spokesman for the governor, Timothy Russert.

The governor, who has a bad back, was "shaken up" by the accident but did not require hospitalization, said Russert.

Cuomo is to give the keynote address at the Democratic National Convention on Monday.

An aide, Gary Eiseman, was taken to a hospital after the accident, Russert said. Eiseman was riding in the car ahead of the governor's and suffered a cut.

The governor, expected to announce today whether he will sign legislation making seat belt use mandatory in New York state for adults riding in the front seats of automobiles, was sitting in the front seat wearing his seat belt, according to Russert.

"Otherwise, he probably would have hit the windshield," said Russert.

A state trooper and a reporter were in the car with Cuomo when it was struck from behind while stopped.

Her Daddy's all right

LONDON — Princess Anne's husband and father are denying a newspaper report that her 11-year-old marriage is a "loveless union."

PRINCESS ANNE

Capt. Mark Phillips, who is married to the princess, was "obviously annoyed" when he responded to the report by The Sun newspaper, the British Press Association reported.

Prince Philip, Anne's father, told a "Face the Press" luncheon Wednesday at London's Hyde Park Hotel that the media "cannot get their facts right."

Buckingham Palace refused comment.

Princess Anne is Queen Elizabeth II's only daughter. She and Phillips have two children. There have been news stories that their marriage is on the rocks since September 1981.

The latest story in The Sun said the gulf between them "has now widened to the point where they virtually lead separate lives....Anne and Mark seek solace in the company of separate groups of friends."

The prince, who arrived Wednesday, also was scheduled to sign the golden books of visitors in Lemgo, Hemer and Iserlohn.

Charles is the colonel-in-chief of the two British regiments stationed in the area.

CENTRALIA — For 22 years a mine fire has burned under this Pennsylvania town. In "Coaltown, Pennsylvania," Superman put out a similar blaze in fewer than three pages.

Three pages, that is, of Action Comics No. 558. The Man of Steel digs an underground trench with "heat vision," a solution that's not really so far out.

"Superman used controlled burnout. That's the whole idea behind the trenches" proposed in the July 1983 study of the Office of Surface Mining, said Dennis Wolfe of the state Department of Environmental Resources.

"It's a good thing the study was dated. Otherwise, they'd say it was taken from a 75-cent comic book," he said.

In real life, Centralia is in the midst of a $42 million federal buyout so residents can escape the fire's cave-ins and noxious gases.

Longshoremen, miners strike

LONDON (AP) — The 1,200 longshoremen at Felixstowe, the nation's busiest container port, voted Friday to join a four-day-old British dock strike. The vote was seen as a key victory in a union bid to close all 204 British ports.

Leaders of the Transport and General Workers Union, which represents Britain's 35,000 dockworkers, held talks Friday with the National Association of Port Employers about ending the strike, but no progress was reported.

The longshoremen's strike is an offshoot of the four-month-old coalminers' strike. It began Tuesday to protest the use of non-union labor to handle iron ore shipments being ferried to British Steel Corp. plants. The plants are operating in defiance of a union boycott in support of the miners.

In northwest England, British Rail conductors staged a 24-hour strike to back the miners, disrupting train service between London and the region.

All inter-city trains between Manchester and Birmingham were halted, the state-run British Rail reported.

Firemen in Manchester staged a slowdown, answering only emergency calls.

A port employers association spokesman said more than 90 ports, including London, Liverpool, Southampton and Glasgow, had been idled by the stevedores' strike, stranding three-quarters of the nation's import and export goods.

The luxury liners Queen Elizabeth 2 and the Canberra were among ships diverted Thursday to Cherbourg, France, when Southampton workers refused to handle them.

Dover, Britain's main ferry terminal, remained one of the few big ports still operating. But it was clogged with hundreds of trucks diverted from other ports. Police said there was a five-mile traffic jam on one highway and that another highway was sealed off and turned into a huge parking lot.

The trucks were trying to beat a Friday midnight deadline set by the seamen's union, which said it then would stop accepting freight on state-owned ferries across the English Channel.

Passenger service was not affected. The miners want to halt steel production to increase the pressure in their fight against the National Coal Board. The board plans to close 20 money-losing mines and cut 20,000 jobs through attrition over the next year.

Arthur Scargill, leftist leader of the National Union of Mineworkers, denounced other trade unionists for not calling a general strike to back his members. "Not one of you should have gone to work until this dispute was settled," he told a rally in Manchester.

The Confederation of British Industry said the dock strike would "break the record for the silliest ever" labor dispute in Britain.

"This is a self-inflicted wound which will hit the economy just when the recovery is under way," a statement from the business group said.

There was continued violence on miners' picket lines. More than 1,000 strikers battled police outside Warsop mine in Nottinghamshire, central England. Two officers were injured and 40 miners arrested, a police spokesman said. He said pickets ripped up a nearby wooden fence and hurled its stakes "like javelins." Police had prevented the strikers from barring fellow miners from crossing the picket lines.

Two miners have died and hundreds of miners and policemen have been injured in picket line violence.

Iraqis flood desert

BASRA, Iraq — The Iraqis have flooded vast areas of desert and marshland along the southern border with Iran to block an anticipated Iranian offensive, an Iraqi commander said Friday.

"The flooding is part of our defensive tactics," Gen. Ismail Ibrahim told reporters touring the front lines. Ibrahim is deputy commander of a division that is part of the 100,000-strong Iraqi 3rd army that has been deployed to meet an expected Iranian offensive.

There are by some estimates 500,000 Iranian troops massed along the southern portion of the 730-mile-long warfront and an Iranian attack has been considered likely for the last six weeks.

There has been relatively little action recently on the ground in the 45-month-old Iran-Iraq war, although both Iran and Iraq have attacked shipping in the Persian Gulf.

Since late May there have been persistent reports that the Iranians were preparing to launch major attacks on Basra or north of Basra to cut the strategic Baghdad-Basra highway. "We have flooded part of our front," Ibrahim told reporters visiting his command bunker about 10 miles west of the border. He refused to give details about the area flooded.

But foreign diplomats in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad have said that the area totals about 1,500 square miles. It is north of Basra and just west of the border with Iran. "It is simply a lake now and water depth is from three to nine feet," said one diplomat who spoke on condition he not be identified.

Fighting tapers off

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Two Syrian-backed militias battled with artillery, mortars and rockets Friday for a third straight day in northern Lebanon's Koura district, but fighting tapered off in the evening under a new cease-fire, local radio stations said.

Police reported at least 27 people were killed and 72 wounded in the three days of conflict that set olive groves and vineyards afire in the rich farming district and destroyed homes in more than 20 villages.

After the cease-fire went into effect at 9 p.m., rescue teams entered some of the target areas, looking for victims who might have been buried in the rubble of their homes. State and local radio stations said some sniping continued after the cease-fire began.

Police said about a dozen olive oil and grape processing plants were among the factories destroyed in the shelling.

Battling for control of the Koura district, a predominantly Greek Orthodox area 30 miles north of Beirut, were the Marada militia of former Maronite Christian President Suleiman Franjeh and the Syrian Social Nationalist Party militia.

Police said the fighting began Wednesday night when Marada militiamen launched a surprise offensive under cover of a heavy artillery and rocket barrage from their mountain-top strongholds of Zghorta and Ehdun.

The offensive coursed through the pinewoods and into the Koura district, where the Syrian Social Nationalist Party fighters were entrenched in vineyards and groves, police reported.

The Marada militia and the Syrian Social Nationalist Party militia, a non-sectarian group that advocates a merger of Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Iraq, Kuwait, Cyprus and pre-Israel Palestine into a greater Syria, have fought repeatedly in past decades for dominance of the Koura farmlands.

The Syrian Social Nationalist Party accused Franjeh — also a close ally of Syria — of launching the latest offensive to organize a Maronite Christian canton in the Bsharreh mountains, the Koura district and the coastal Batroun area.

New marriage capital

MORGANFIELD, Ky. — Sammy Dye was on his way to a softball game and Tammy Miller was on her way to work, but first they had something else to do — get married.

Their recent ceremony at the Union County courthouse was not a fancy one — Judge-Executive Bob Hite had to ask the groom to remove his baseball cap. But it was quick.

And under a new state law that took effect Friday, marriages can be had even quicker. With the abolition of the previous three-day waiting period, couples can now proceed from proposal to honeymoon in one afternoon.

Local officials expect the new law to bring an influx of couples from border states where marriages are more time-consuming.

Ferraro asks for Bush debate

ELMORE, Minn. (AP) — The Democrats launched their fall campaign Friday in Walter F. Mondale's boyhood hometown, with running mate Geraldine Ferraro challenging the Republican vice president to debate. "I'd like to let the people of America see if I can keep up with George Bush," she said.

After a picnic lunch in this town of 882, Mondale and Ms. Ferraro headed for a weekend of political planning in Lake Tahoe, Calif.

At a joint news conference, Mondale said his choice of Ms. Ferraro to be the first woman on a national political ticket is "being received with tremendous enthusiasm throughout the country."

Her record, he said, "is one of achievement."

Ms. Ferraro said she was "delighted" by the comparisons between her and Bush. Asked if she were challenging Bush to a debate, the New York congresswoman, replied: "Sure, in fact, too."

Ferraro issued the challenge as President Reagan predicted in Washington. "There is going to be a woman president of the United States one of these days soon and she is going to be a Republican."

In remarks that seemed a veiled criticism of Mondale's choice for a vice president, the president told a group of GOP women that British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was chosen as the head of that country's Conservative Party "not because she was a woman but because she was the best person for the job."

"There was no tokenism or cynical symbolism in what they did," he added. "She became leader of her party and prime minister of Great Britain because she was judged by her peers to be a superior leader. And that is how the first Republican woman president will do it," he said.

Ms. Ferraro, facing reporters for the first time since her selection was announced, was asked how she reconciles her support of pro-abortion legislation with her Roman Catholic upbringing.

"I wouldn't have an abortion, but how do I dictate the tenets of my religion to others," she said.

"As a member of Congress, I can't dictate my religion. I wouldn't have an abortion if I were pregnant. It would be a child of love. If I were raped, I don't know how self-righteous I would be. But the choice would be mine."

The only negative note during their visit was a handful of anti-abortion pickets outside the house and in front of the church where Mondale and Ms. Ferraro held their news conference.

Asked whether he was forced into picking a woman, Mondale said:

"If there was anything, the pressure was on the other side. ... I'm very very comfortable with" the choice.

Before the news conference, Mondale introduced Ms. Ferraro and her husband, John Zaccaro, to the people crowded into his old backyard and said, "If Gerry and John lived here, you'd love them."

"They're just like we are, with the same values, the same hopes, the same belief in family."

Ms. Ferraro added, "You want more for your kids than you had. That's what this campaign is all about."

"She is perfect for our time," said Mondale. "She speaks for the future."

From the moment, Mondale's plane landed at Fairmont, about 25 miles away, crowds cheered and shouted greetings to the New York congresswoman.

Several hundred people lined a chain link fence at the Fairmont airport and Mondale and Ms. Ferraro walked along shaking hands.

Italians to honor Rep. Ferraro

ROME (AP) — The southern Italian town where Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's father was born will send a delegation to the United States to congratulate the prospective Democratic vice presidential candidate, the mayor said Friday.

"We're planning to go in August or September," said Marcanise Mayor Pietro Squeglia. "We'll have to work out the details with her office."

Squeglia, 39, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press that the four- or five-member delegation would include himself, town council members and possibly one of Mrs. Ferraro's relatives living in the area.

"It's under discussion in the town council right now," the Christian Democratic mayor added. "We're organizing it."

The mayor said the delegation would try to greet Mrs. Ferraro, 48, in Washington after she's nominated at the Democratic convention next week in San Francisco. He did not say who would finance the trip.

Marcanise, a town of about 28,500 people, is 12 miles north of Naples.

Save money, conserve water

When the weather turns dry, don't just turn on your lawn sprinkler and then gripe about your high water bill. By watering, fertilizing, and mowing your lawn properly, you can reduce your water bill as much as 40 percent.

Conservation by the homeowner provides the only solution to high water bills and excessive water demands during our hot and usually dry Texas summers.

In small cities where industrial demand for water is low, watering may account for as much as half of all the water used during summer months. Even in larger cities, lawns get 30 to 40 percent of all the water supplied by municipalities. Most Howard County lawns need about 2 inches of water per week during the summer and most of this usually comes from irrigation.

Exactly what can a homeowner do to reduce his summer water bill? The first thing is to water your lawn only when grass starts to show signs of drought stress. Look for discoloration and wilting. If leaves roll up in the late afternoon and footprints remain after walking across the lawn, then water within 24 hours. Once you've decided that your lawn needs watering, do it right. Most homeowners don't water their lawns properly. They either water too often, causing grass to develop shallow roots and making it a prime target for insects, diseases and temperature extremes, or they water too infrequently and apply too much water at one time, resulting in a lot of runoff. When watering, soak the soil to a depth of 4 to 6 inches.

Cutting back on lawn fertilization can also reduce watering. Applying fertilizer during the summer, especially with nitrogen fertilizer, will green up your lawn, but it will also make it grow faster and use more water. Mowing less often and cutting your grass at taller heights also will help keep your lawn in better shape during hot, dry weather. St. Augustine grass does well when mowed at a 3-inch height, and bermuda grass can be cut at a 2-inch height.

Dr. Donohue

Burn classifications explained

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: An acquaintance of mine and I are in need of medical information to resolve a longstanding argument. And it would be of interest to others, I'm sure. How is a minor burn treated? — A.S.G.

When there is only redness of the skin and when only a small area of skin has been affected, then you have a simple epidermal burn, formerly referred to as a first-degree burn. That kind heals without problems and all you usually need is cold water to relieve pain. It also cleanses the skin in the area. You don't need to do much more than that. Aspirin or some other mild pain reliever may help.

Burns that blister are different. They are referred to as superficial partial-thickness or deep partial-thickness burns, depending on the damage to the skin. Let's take each of these two separately.

Superficial partial-thickness burns (old-second degree) blister and are extremely painful. This burn should be cleansed. Small blisters are left intact. Larger blisters, since they are sometimes difficult to leave intact and are subject to infection, may be drained.

You try to leave the roof of the blister as a natural dressing if possible. If the roof is destroyed, you protect the underlying raw surface from infection with an antibiotic ointment and light dressing. In such cases you can remove the frayed blister roof.

Deep partial-thickness burns (old third degree) blister also, but they are relatively painless. That may seem paradoxical, but the painlessness reflects the fact that the burn has been sufficiently deep to damage nerves. This kind of burn should be treated by a physician.

This outline of burns and treatment is far too simplistic to apply to each and every burn. Many times, for example, it is not the depth of the burn that is important as much as it is the extent of skin surface affected. And a burn near a delicate structure, like the eye, might require the help of a doctor, no matter how you might classify it on the official burn scale. Even a first-degree (or simple epidermal) burn might under such circumstances require professional assessment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have tried with little success the special exercises that are supposed to help correct stress incontinence. I still get the unconscious loss of urine with a laugh or a heavy cough. Drugs have not helped. Is surgery the answer now? — M. R.E.H.

Surgery would be considered if the stress incontinence is causing great embarrassment or inconvenience and if it cannot be treated with either the special strengthening exercises or drugs. Frequently these measures can help strengthen the muscles involved — those of the neck of the urethra, for example (the urethra being the channel for passage of urine from the bladder).

Nerve-related problems are involved frequently in the kind of incontinence you have. But other possibilities must be ruled out. I am thinking of things like interstitial cystitis, a bladder problem that can lead to reduced bladder capacity and incontinence. The exercises you mention would not be helpful in a condition such as that.

Surgery might be the answer. In such an operation the urethra is adjusted to minimize urine loss from stress situations, as from running or coughing, etc.

Many women who have had several childbirths may experience a general lowering of the pelvic floor, causing structural sagging that leads to stress incontinence. But in any event, all the possible contributors have to be ruled out before a decision is made as to surgical correction and what kind of surgical correction.

FOR R.F. — Pain on intercourse can be a sign of prostate gland disturbance. A simple examination in the doctor's office will tell much. And there need not be any infection present at all.

Such pain with intercourse can originate in the pelvic floor and reflect problems of muscular origin. So please, do us all a great favor, including your husband, and have him go in for an examination. He should not be ignoring a symptom of this kind.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Facts about cholesterol

Once again, cholesterol is in the news. Studies linking cholesterol to arteriosclerosis or heart disease have many people wondering about their diet. At the same time, most of us don't really know what cholesterol is, how it functions in the body and whether we ought to be on a low-cholesterol diet or not.

Extension foods and nutrition specialists at Texas A&M University have provided some facts about cholesterol that might help answer some of these questions.

According to the specialists, cholesterol is a complex, waxy substance which is found in all animal cells.

It has many important functions in the body. It is an insulator of nerve and brain tissue. It is necessary in the formation of different compounds in the body including bile acids, vitamin D, and various sex and adrenal hormones. It transports fatty acids, is a structural unit of many tissues, and plays an important role in what substances pass through a cell wall.

Fortunately, our bodies insure a supply of cholesterol by making it in most tissues other than the brain. The liver is the most active cholesterol-producer. Cholesterol is also obtained from some foods. But no more than 40 percent of the circulating cholesterol in the body is received directly from the diet, even when it is a high-cholesterol diet.

Should you be on a low-cholesterol diet? That's a question that only your doctor can answer after checking your blood cholesterol level. If you are among the 25 percent of American adults who need to lower their cholesterol levels, your doctor may recommend some dietary changes.

But since high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, obesity and physical inactivity are also risk factors for heart disease, you may need to do more than alter your diet.

Those of us who do not need a special diet, but are still concerned about cholesterol intake can take some simple and sensible steps, say the specialists. Those include eating a balanced diet, trimming the visible fat from meat, using low-fat or skim dairy products, and avoiding excess amounts of fried foods.

IDEAS FOR REDUCING CHOLESTEROL
Cutting back on cholesterol doesn't require "giving up" anything. But it does mean "balancing" the fat and cholesterol content of meals and snacks.

More and more Americans are concerned about reports of medical studies linking the risk of heart attack to cholesterol consumption. However, the American Dietetic Association (ADA) advises against overreaction.

Removing dairy foods from your diet to prevent heart disease, for example, would only increase your chances for osteoporosis since dairy foods are a major source of calcium, says the ADA.

Instead, moderation, not elimination, of foods high in fat to reduce the cholesterol in your diet is encouraged.

Some obvious ways of cutting back on cholesterol include choosing lowfat and nonfat dairy products, trimming fat from meat and avoiding fried foods, especially those breaded or batter-fried.

Here are some other ADA-recommended methods for cutting back on cholesterol that you may not know about:

- When possible, choose vegetable oils. Use oil or margarine rather than shortening, lard or butter when cooking.

- Use moderate amounts of salad dressings or try lemon juice with a variety of herbs and spices to season a salad.

- Use a blender to whip a plain yogurt or lowfat cottage cheese and substitute the whipped ingredient for sour cream and mayonnaise.

- Try mozzarella cheese and other cheese made from part skim milk, which are lower in fat and cholesterol than cheddar or Swiss.

- Use skim or lowfat milk in pudding, sauces, soups and baked products. It's a myth that whole milk is essential in recipes.

- Substitute egg whites for whole eggs, using two whites for every egg listed in a recipe. Egg yolks have a high cholesterol content, while the whites have no cholesterol at all. When making scrambled eggs, use only one yolk per serving and add a few whites to make the serving more generous.

- Carefully read labels of frozen main dishes, such as lasagna, pizza and pot pies to see if fat is a primary ingredient (one of the first on the list).

- Trim fat from meat before and after cooking — including the fat between the muscles. Cook, the meat or poultry on a rack so the fat drains off and remove the skin from poultry.

Should mom stay mum about son?

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion as to whether I should do anything about this matter or just keep quiet. My son recently announced his engagement. I have met his fiancée and they seem very much in love.

My son has lived away from home for the last 10 years, but when he lived at home I learned he was a transvestite. I have no idea whether he has pursued this activity or not.

Should something be said to his fiancée regarding this, or should the entire matter be forgotten on my part? I am also wondering if this characteristic is inherited, as they have already stated that they want a family soon.

I do not want anything to come between them, so hurry your advice and sign me...

WONDERING MOM
DEAR WONDERING: If your son is an active transvestite and he hasn't told his fiancée, he should. In any case, you stay out of it, Mom.

As for "compulsive crossdressing and impersonating the opposite sex," which is the definition of transvestism, Dr. Paul Walker of San Francisco, an authority on the subject, informs me that it is not an inherited characteristic.

DEAR ABBY: If a strange man knocked on your door, the very first thing he would do is identify himself. If a stranger wrote you a letter, he would introduce himself with some opening remarks.

MISS YOUR PAPER?

Why, oh why, then, is there such rudeness on the telephone? When I answer my telephone, most adults immediately ask, "Who is this?"

They do not tell you who they are. If I am not the person to whom they want to speak, they demand to know, "Is So-and-So there?" If I inform the caller that So-and-So is not here, I am further questioned with "Where did she go?" And, "When do you think she'll be back?" (All of this from a stranger who has not even identified himself.)

If this is the new etiquette, I think it stinks.

I am a graduate of Princeton, and also a physician if that matters. Sign me...

RALPH OF LONG ISLAND
DEAR RALPH: This is not the "new etiquette," it's the old rudeness. The sure cure for that, Doctor, is to ask the caller, "May I ask who's calling, please?" immediately after the caller asks, "Who is this?" — and most certainly before you identify yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced mother of four young children. Five months ago I met a very nice man. He loves children and treats mine like his own. He makes a very good living (he's a truck driver) and says he wants to spend the rest of his life taking care of us. I know he loves us very much, and I love him. I've never loved or been loved like this before.

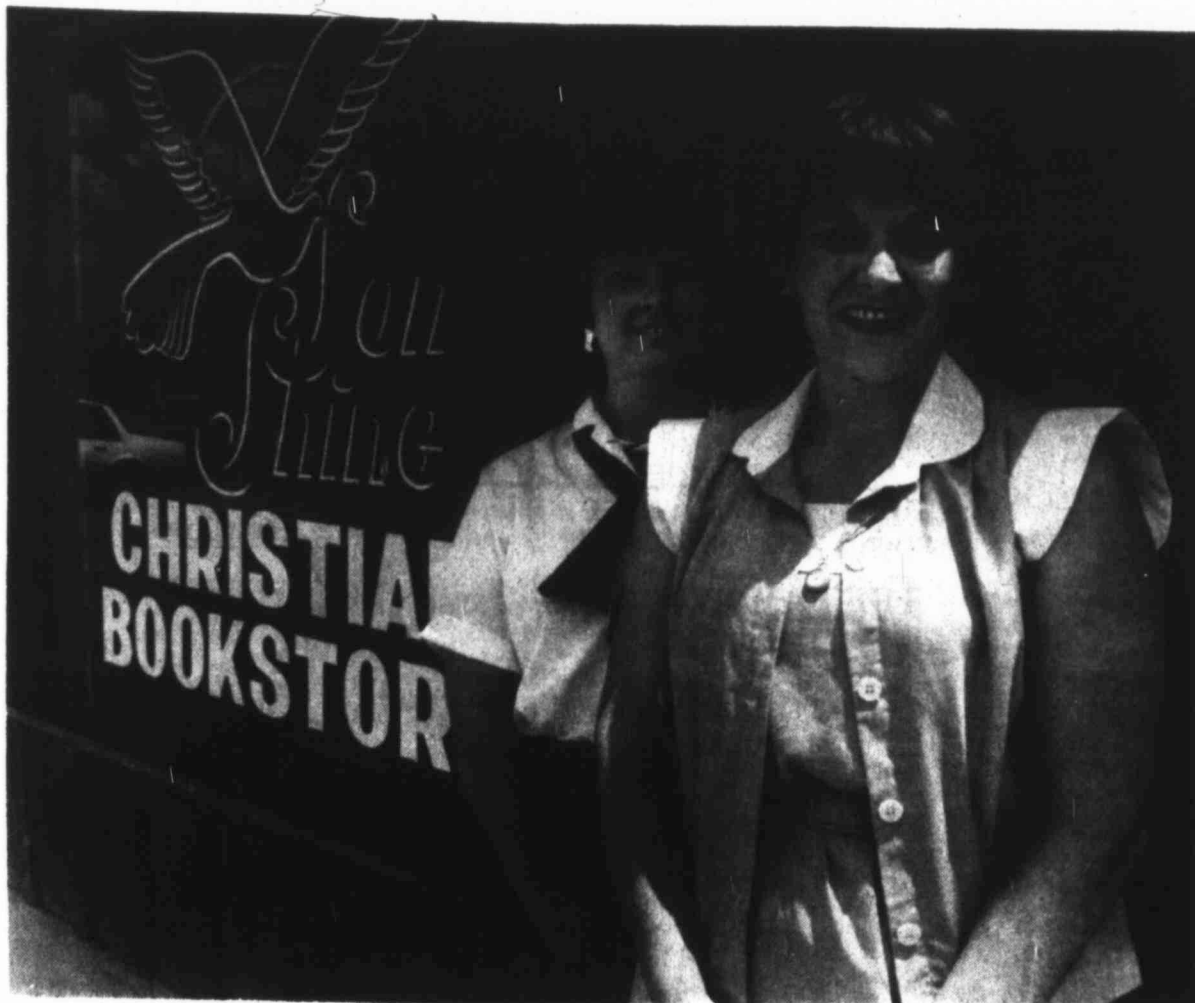

The problem is I'm 30 and he's 49 (looks 40 and enjoys life like a 25-year-old). Abby, he's older than my parents! He wants to be married and so do I, but what do I tell my family? I know it's my decision, but it's important to me to have my family's approval.

Abby, what would you do if your daughter came to you with this kind of news?

WONDERING IN ARIZONA
DEAR WONDERING: I would say: "Congratulations. What kind of wedding do you want?"

Co-Exx bond issuance OK'ed; local plant plans expansion

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Co-Exx Pipe Co., Inc. and the Howard County Industrial Development Corp. moved one step closer Friday to the issuance of tax-exempt bonds to finance the expansion of its Big Spring plant.

Howard County commissioners Friday voted 4-0 to approve the issuance of $949,900 in industrial development bonds that should double the capacity of the Co-Exx plant at the Big Spring Industrial Park, according to Co-Exx president Sam Hunnicutt.

The motion, made by Commissioner Paul Allen, allows the county commissioners to serve as "a vehicle" to permit Co-Exx to update its plant, according to County Judge Milton Kirby. Commissioner David Barr was absent from the meeting.

"If everything goes right, we should be able to close the bond issue by July 24," said Richard Yahr, the county industrial corporation's bond attorney who works for the Dallas law firm of Hutchison, Price, Boyle and Brooks.

The bonds now face review by the state Economic Development Committee, according to Yahr. "This (county approval of the bonds) is the second level of approval," Yahr said.

"It has to have our blessing before approval," Allen said. The bonds will be amortized over a seven-year period at 68 percent of the prime interest rate, Yahr said.

"No county tax revenue or property will be pledged to secure the bonds," Yahr said. A mortgage on Co-Exx's property site on Anna Street will secure the credit, he said.

The bonds will be purchased by two West Texas banks, according to Yahr. Both First State Bank of Monahans and Kermit State Bank have agreed to each purchase 50 percent of the bonds.

The Co-Exx plant in Big Spring manufactures pipes and pneumatic coolers, some of which are exported to England, Scotland and Venezuela.

According to Hunnicutt, the Big Spring plant currently has a manufacturing capacity of 5 million pounds. The proposed expansion will more than double its capacity to a total of about 10 to 12 million pounds, he said.

Eventually, the company will probably add five or six employees "within a short time" as a result of the expansion, Hunnicutt said. "The number of employees might even double," he said.

The expansion should be completed by next Friday, Hunnicutt said. "Most of it's all installed. It's a matter of debugging the system," Hunnicutt said.

According to Yahr, Co-Exx started the application process for the tax-exempt bonds in 1981.

A professional marketing and display consultant, Kay Mosley, will be in Big Spring July 20 to present a one-hour seminar to merchants. This is aimed primarily at downtown merchants and is part of the Downtown Renovation Program. Kay works through the Texas Main Street Project in Austin. The seminar, at noon at the Chamber conference room with a catered lunch, is free but reservations are necessary. Call Pat Hardy, 263-8311, extension 209.

Following the seminar, Kay will work individually with any merchants who wish to have her in their stores. She can provide expertise concerning marketing techniques, window displays and spatial planning.

A good example of community action by the Blue Blazers: a committee of members under chairperson Lea Whitehead has spearheaded an effort to keep The Pottin House open on Sunday afternoons from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. throughout the summer. Other Blue Blazers helping are Nell Harris, Mary Herrera, Ruth Budke, Mary Kenney, Alene Olson and Sandy Burroughs. This group has been joined by other volunteers — but still more are needed. If you are interested in becoming a tour guide, contact Lea at the Herald, 263-7331. You don't have to be a Blue Blazer to become a tour guide.

Incidentally, attendance at the Pottin House tours has been good with many out-of-town visitors.

Kathryn Thomas is the current state president of Goldstar Mothers, an organization for persons who have lost a son or daughter in military combat. Kathryn and Truett Thomas lost their only son, Coy, in the Vietnam War in the 60's. The National Goldstar Mothers convention was held for the first time in over 25 years in Texas. At this Houston convention, just concluded, Kathryn was very visible, having to preside or be on the podium as president of the host state at every session.

A recent inspection by officials from the Texas Department of Health of Big Spring's two nursing homes, Golden Plains and Mountain View, gave both top ratings and cited them for good patient and resident care. The inspectors noted many improvements in the Golden Plains Home since it was taken over by new owners and new management in January of this year. Billy Hendrix of Mountain View has consistently maintained superior ratings.

Big Spring is fortunate to have the availability of good convalescent facilities which maintain positive relationships with the rest of the medical community. They fill a need here.

Of the 45 businesses that brought advertisements in the Chamber directory, 15, or one-third, of the businesses were either wholly owned or co-owned by women.

It's not a myth! People who care, working together for a better community, can make a difference. Parents are concerned about the alarming increase in drug and alcohol use among our youth and the social acceptability of this use. As part of the Chemical People Project, parents are taking a stand to help our youth and are endorsing the following pledge of the National Federation of Parents of Drug Free Youth:

We will become informed parents and take responsibility for our own children.

We will develop and communicate a clear position about drug and alcohol use.

We will request and will endorse a comprehensive, meaningful drug and alcohol abuse prevention program for grades K-12.

We will support school and law enforcement policy regarding the use of drugs and alcohol and encourage the use of creative and effective discipline in dealing with offenders.

We will promote wholesome social activities for our youth and will not sponsor or condone social activities that we or our children cannot control.

We will not serve drugs or alcohol to children. We will be concerned about the welfare of others and will attempt to resist peer pressure and encourage our youth to do likewise.

We will set an example that can be copied by our children and will try not to confuse them with double standards.

We will remember that appropriate and consistent discipline indicates concern and love.

Business briefs

MIDLAND — Former Big Spring resident E.D. (Dave) Dorchester, P.E., has been named the 1984 Engineer of the Year by the Texas Society of Professional Engineers (TSPE).

Dorchester, engineering manager and transmission superintendent of the Texas Electric Service Co. in Midland, is the 10th to be honored by the 7,500 member society.

He is the son-in-law of Big Springer J.E. Felts of 1201 Wood.

Dorchester received his award at a luncheon at TSPE's 48th annual convention in Fort Worth.

The award makes Dorchester eligible for the national honor to be presented by the National Society of Professional Engineers in Washington next year.

Dorchester is chairman of the TSPE's Political Action Committee for Engineers. He is also a member of the TSPE's Permian Basin Chapter and was named 1984 Engineer of the Year for that chapter.

Dorchester has lived in Midland for 17 years, moving there from Big Spring. He has been president of Midland's United Way, president of the Midland Rotary Club, and chairman of the board of trustees for Baptist Memorial Geriatric Hospitals in San Angelo.

He graduated from the University of Texas in Austin in 1949 with a degree in electrical engineering before becoming transmission superintendent and engineering manager of the Texas Electric Service Co., a position he has held for 34 years.

Dorchester and his wife, Mary, have two children, Diana and Brian.

Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, a subsidiary of American Petrofina, recently completed the purchase of ARCO Chemical Company's polypropylene business, including a La Porte plant that produces 470 million pounds per year of the chemical.

Division on March 26 signed a letter of intent subject to the execution of an agreement. With the acquisition, Cosden becomes a major national producer of polypropylene and diversifies its product line.

Cosden will retain many of the existing ARCO Chemical Company personnel and will market polypropylene under the existing trademark of Dypro.

Polypropylene is used in the fibers, film and packaging field, particularly in food packaging. According to Fina officials, petrochemical industry analysts predict polypropylene will be one of the fastest growing thermoplastics during the next five years.

VEALMOOR — The R.E. Janes Gravel Company, Vealmoor Plant, is the recipient of a plaque honoring its employees for their outstanding safety record, as well as a certificate for zero lost time, according to a press release issued by the Texas Aggregates and Concrete Association.

R.E. Janes Gravel Company established a maintained a near perfect record of 0.00. This recognition is the result of a statewide survey which tabulates the safety records of nearly 200 firms engaged in the production of construction materials.

NEW YORK — The Board of Directors of W.R. Grace and Co., an international firm which operates an agricultural chemicals plant in I-20 East in Big Spring, has declared a quarterly cash dividend of 70 cents per share in its common stock.

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan's tax program boosted the income of most Americans, families headed by women were left with less money to spend, according to a new Census Bureau study of after-tax income in 1982.

Average household income for Americans rose to $18,910 in 1982, up about 1.7 percent from the year before, Thursday's report said. It attributed the increase to federal tax cuts approved in 1981.

But the study also disclosed that income to households headed by women with no husband present fell 3.8 percent in the same period, to $10,870.

Some 55.4 percent of households headed by women with children but no husband present had incomes under $10,000 in 1982.

The Census study also showed that taxes paid by households with incomes below $10,000 rose 4.2 percent, or by $250 a year, with another $390 lost to reductions in non-cash programs such as Medicaid and food stamps.

Texas 'Stars walk past Mid-City, 15-6

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Texas League All-Stars literally walked away with a 15-6 victory over the Midland Mid-City All-Stars last night at the National League Park.

The Midland pitchers seemed to have left their control at home as four Mid-City hurlers issued 17 walks, walking in seven runs. Texas starting pitcher Chris Cole pitched three innings for the winners and was aided in relief by lefty Renee Villa. Cole allowed two runs on two hits and issued four walks. By the time he exited the game his teammates had built up a 12-2 lead. Midland starting pitcher Gabriel Salazar lasted just two innings, allowing six runs on four hits while walking four. Brandon Rayburn, Tye Kretzinger and Pat Mowles would follow to avail.

Texas scored six runs each in the third and fourth inning which put the game out of reach. Richard Krissen, Robert Lara, Cole, Ricky Escovedro, Danny Via and Villa all scored for Big Spring in the third inning. The only hits in the stanza were singles by Krissen and Villa.

Ironically Mid-City outthit Texas by a margin of 9-6, but the costly walks told the difference.

Mid-City is now eliminated from the tourney while Texas is currently 1-1.

MIDLAND EASTERN 7, LAMESA 2

Midland Eastern got an amazing 17-strikeout performance from James Madrid as Eastern eliminated Lamesa from the tourney with a 7-2 win last night at the American League Park.

Madrid gave up three hits with his masterful performance.

Top hitters for Eastern were J.J. Johnson, Randy Martinez, Michael Poraes and Joe Herrea.

They are expected to lead a strong contingent when the Games begin in two weeks.

Edwin Moses is the ultimate technician in the intermediate hurdles, skimming over the barriers with the sharpness and skill of a surgeon.

Individually, they perhaps are the greatest athletes ever in their events.

Collectively, they represent the United States' best hopes for gold medals in the Olympic track and field competition, which runs from Aug. 3-12 at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

They head a team judged by some to be the best ever to represent the United States in Olympic track and field, carved from a rugged set of national trials last month that left some of the sport's top names off the roster.

"Absolutely the best team we have ever sent to the Olympics," said Ollan Cassell, executive director of The Athletics Congress, the sport's U.S. governing body. "Some of the performances at the trials were unbelievable."

"I think this is our greatest men's team," said Larry Ellis, the coach for the men's squad. Brooks Jackson, the women's coach, also expressed satisfaction with his team.

But the team is relatively young, lacks tough international competition and is mostly unfamiliar with the pressures of Olympic competition.

Still, the American team is a skilled group and, buoyed by the boycott of the Soviet-bloc nations, is looking forward to reaping a gold medal bonanza in what generally is judged as the Olympics' blue-ribbon sport.

Of the 41 track and field events — 24 for men, 17 for women — the Americans have a realistic shot at winning 18 golds. Only once since the modern Games began in 1896 has the U.S. track team ever won that many, collecting 22 in 1904.

Women began competing in Olympic track and field in 1928, and since then, the American women have not done well except in the 100-meter dash and 400-meter relay, winning five gold medals in each event.

This year, there are three new women's events — the 3,000 meters, the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and the marathon.

In the last two Olympics in which the United States participated, 1972 and 1976, the Americans won only six track gold medals in each, none by women. The total track medal count each time was 19, the fewest since the 16 medals the United States won in 1896.

Nevertheless, the Americans ranked first in total track and field medals each time, just as they have every Olympiad since 1896 except for 1980. They also have ranked first in track golds every Games except 1920 and 1972, when they tied for the lead.

With the powerful East European nations missing this time, along with Cuba, and the Games at home, the American team is fired up. The leaders of the expected gold-medal harvest are Lewis, Decker and Moses, all world champions in the inaugural World Track and Field Championships at Helsinki, Finland in 1983.

The electrifying Lewis won the 100-meter dash and long jump, and anchored the U.S. team that set a world record in the men's 400-meter relay. This year, he is trying to match the four-gold medal accomplishment of his boyhood idol, the great Owens, in the 100- and 200-meters, the long jump and the relay.

Decker fought off some tough challenges from Soviet Union runners and captured the women's 1,500 and 3,000 meters, and the indomitable Moses, unbeaten since 1977, continued his remarkable winning streak in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles at Helsinki.

Through the Olympic Trials, he has won 90 consecutive finals at that distance.

Decker has been aiming for a 1,500-3,000 double in the Games, but doubts arose when she was nipped by Ruth Wysocki in the 1,500-meter final in last month's trials. Last week, she announced that she would go only in the Olympic 3,000 for a long-awaited meeting with Zola Budd, the South African teenager who has been granted British citizenship and will run for Britain her new country.

The Americans' other gold medals winners in the World Championships were Calvin Smith in the men's 200 and Greg Foster in the men's 110-meter high hurdles. Both again will be on the U.S. team, although Smith will compete only in the 400-meter relay.

Other men's standouts for the United States are marathoner Alberto Salazar, steeplechaser Henry Marsh, pole vaulter Mike Tully and Earl Bell, 1,500-meter runners Steve Scott, Sydney Maree and Jim Spivey, high jumper Dwight Stones, triple jumper Mike Conley and Willie Banks, shot putter Dave Laut, discus throwers Mac Wilkins and John Powell, 400-meter runner Antonio McKay and 800-meter runner Earl Jones.

The top U.S. women, along with Decker, include marathoner Joan Benoit, 100-meter sprinter Evelyn Ashford, long jumper Carol Lewis, 400-meter runner Chandra Cheeseborough, 200-meter and 400-meter runner Valerie Brisco-Hooks, Wysocki in the 800 and 1,500, heptathlete Jackie Joyner and 800-meter runner Kim Gallagher.

Homer helps Chicago claw Dodgers, 7-5

CHICAGO (AP) — Keith Moreland drove in four runs with a homer and a single to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 7-5 victory Friday over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Former Dodger Rick Sutcliffe, 5-1, went five innings to gain the victory. Lee Smith went two innings for his 19th save.

The Cubs jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning against Bob Welch, 6-10. Bob Dernier singled and walks to Gary Matthews and Leon Durham loaded the bases. Moreland singled home Dernier and Matthews before Durham scored on catcher Mike Sciosia's passed ball.

Mike Marshall tied the game at 3-3 with a three-run homer in the third inning. It was his 16th of the year and drove in Steve Sax and Pedro Guerrero, who had both walked.

Chicago went ahead 6-3 in the bottom of the inning when Ryne Sandberg walked and scored on Durham's double. Durham scored on Moreland's eighth home run into the left-field bleachers.

In the fifth, Guerrero singled home Ken Landreaux, who had tripled, and Los Angeles added a run in the sixth when Dave Anderson doubled, went to third on a groundout and scored on pinch-hitter Sid Bream's sacrifice fly to cut the lead to 6-5.

Larry Bowa scored on Matthews' infield hit in the seventh for Chicago.

YANKEES 7

ROYALS 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Guidry fired a five-hitter through eight innings and Roy Smalley drove in two runs as the New York Yankees beat Kansas City, 7-1 Friday in the first game of a doubleheader.

Guidry, 7-7, was backed by a four-run sixth inning. He struck out five and walked none before yielding to Mike Armstrong in the ninth. Guidry retired 12 straight batters following Butch Davis' leadoff home run in the third inning.

PIRATES 8

GIANTS 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lee Lacy drove in four runs as the Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 8-2 in the first game of a Friday doubleheader.

John Candelaria, 8-6, scattered eight hits in seven innings in winning his 12th consecutive game in the month of July dating back to the 1980 season. He struck out five and walked two while posting his third straight victory this month.

Lee Mazzilli, who went 3-for-3, and Bill Madlock singled in the Pirates' first before losing pitcher Mike Krukow, 5-8, walked Jason Thompson to load the bases.

Arrest is latest Switzer controversy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer, arrested Friday on a complaint of driving under the influence of alcohol, says he had "only a few drinks" two hours before registering above the legal limit in a breath test.

The arrest came during an off-season in which the school's regents — for the first time ever — failed to extend Switzer's four-year contract. The coach also successfully defended himself in federal court against a securities lawsuit.

Switzer still sports one of the nation's highest winning percentages despite three consecutive four-loss seasons.

Switzer's arrest occurred at 12:20 a.m. today on Interstate 44 near the state Fairgrounds just west of downtown Oklahoma City, said police spokesman Detective Bill Hanneman.

In a statement released by the University of Oklahoma sports information office, Switzer said he and a companion were returning from an anniversary dinner party "when I was stopped for straddling the center line too long after passing another vehicle."

Switzer, 46, who listed a Norman address, was arrested on complaints of driving under the influence, first offense, and straddling lane lines, Hanneman said.

He submitted to a breath test, which registered a blood alcohol content of .12 percent, Hanneman said. The legal level for driving under the influence is .10 or above.

"Frankly, I believed I could pass a Breathalyzer test, since I had only a few drinks two hours earlier," Switzer said in the statement.

"However, I failed to pass the test

by a narrow margin."

Switzer was booked into the city jail at 1:34 a.m. After summoning an attorney, the coach was released at 2:30 a.m. on his own recognizance, the spokesman said.

Switzer surrendered his license upon his arrest, Hanneman said, and, according to state law, will reappear in 21 days to either plead guilty and pay a fine or plead not guilty and post bond. At that time, a court date will be set.

Maj. Marvin Maxwell, traffic division commander, said Switzer was polite and cooperated with officers.

"I deeply regret the incident," Switzer said. "It is clear that I was in the wrong, and no one regrets the incident more than I."

J.R. Morris, who as provost and senior vice-president at Oklahoma has supervision over the school's athletic department, said no action

"is contemplated at this time" following Switzer's arrest.

"We have discussed the incident with coach Switzer and we believe his account of the incident accurately reflects what occurred," Morris said. "We regret very much that it happened and we know how deeply coach Switzer regrets it."

Switzer, a native of Crossett, Ark., has been head coach of the Sooners since 1973, compiling a 106-21-3. His teams have won two national championships.

The 1984 season was clouded by the abrupt departure of Marcus Dupree, who had earlier been quoted as saying he could not get along with the coach.

All Oklahoma football coaches have operated under a salary freeze for two years, and in the off-season, two long-time assistants resigned.

Budd breaks standard for 2,000 meters

LONDON (AP) — Zola Budd, the 18-year-old track sensation, broke the world 2,000-meter record in a time of 5 minutes, 33.15 seconds at London's Crystal Palace stadium Friday night.

The previous best mark for the women's 2,000 meters — a non-Olympic distance — was 5:33.50 held by Maricaca Puica of Romania.

Officials originally clocked Budd at 5:33.17, but they later amended the time by two hundredths of a second.

Budd smashed the record at a star-studded international track and field meet, her final race before competing for Britain in the 3,000 meters at the Los Angeles Olympics.

Budd, who left her native South Africa in March to become a British citizen, scored her eighth successive victory since emigrating to this country.

Running barefoot in by far her stiffest test to date, she hit the front with three laps to go when American pacemaker Jill Haworth dropped back and held off a strong challenge from British 1,500-meter champion Christina Boxer, who finished second in 5:33.85 — just outside the previous best mark.
