Q. Who built the state park on top of Scenic Mountain?

A. The park was built in 1934 by the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), a federal relief program under Franklin Roosevelt's administration that employed young men during the Depression to construct parks, dams and other public facilities. Remains of the CCC camp are located north of the park's prairie dog town.

Off the wall: Spirit of 84

EIGHTY FOUR, Pa. (AP) — This numerically named rural village turned 100 Saturday with an unprecedented outpouring of 84s.

On July 28, 1984, the village of Smithville — about 30 miles south of Pittsburgh — changed its name to Eighty Four to get its own post office.

To mark the event, an 8.4-kilometer run begins and ends at the 84 Industrial Park and the founder of 84 Lumber Co. is grand marshal of a centennial parade.

As if that weren't enough, Benny "Boom Boom" Koske, the self-styled "human bomb," will do his own little number. The stuntman will squeeze into a wooden coffin, then escape by blowing it apart with dynamite.

"There are only seven towns with post offices in the country that have numbers for names. We're pretty unique," said Postmaster Robert Bandel, who claims his delivery area has 8,400 residents.

The town originally was named for William James Smith, a farmer and entrepreneur. But another Pennsylvania town already was called Smithville, and a name change was needed to avoid mail mix-ups.

Basin rigs rise again

Oil pumps recovery

ODESSA (AP) — The rig count in the oil-rich Permian Basin region of West Texas is one of the highest in the past quarter century and is topped only by seven others, it was reported Saturday.

The active rig count of 333 from July 19 through Thursday, as computed by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, is "a good, solid count," said Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the organization.

The count is 104 more rigs than a year ago.

"It's indicative of the fact that we're managing to stay ahead of last year," when rig counts fell as low as 207, Thompson told the Odessa American.

He attributed the healthier rig count to better planning by the oil companies and drilling contractors.

"In the big boom, there was so much money around, people were just drilling," he said. But now, Thompson added, drilling companies are studying the geology and area where they plan to drill.

"Now they know more about what they're doing," he said. "They're oil people rather than gamblers."

Bell rings rate riots

Suits seek solution

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell says it's been cheated out of $6.4 million. AT&T Communications says local ratepayers aren't paying their fair share.

Lawyers for cities and ratepayers say the whole thing should be thrown out.

Almost three months after the Public Utility Commission granted Southwestern Bell an $816.7 million rate hike, the decision is under court challenge from several sides.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle, who represents residential and small commercial ratepayers, filed suit Friday asking a state district court to order the commission to start over in Bell's $1.3 billion rate hike case.

"The purpose of regulation is to set rates based upon the actual, verified books of the utility, rather than crystal ball forecasts or guesstimates of the company's future expenses and revenues," said Boyle, who complained that Bell relied on economic forecasts of the possible effects of the AT&T divestiture.

He said Bell was given an increase that was "tens of millions" of dollars too high.

Bell wanted to double local rates, but the commission order added

Watergate: 10 years later

EDITOR'S NOTE — The summer of '74 seemed like a nightmare from which the nation would never awaken. A decade later, the passions spent, it seems hard to remember: The prolonged turmoil of Watergate, the resignation of a president. A reporter who helped cover much of that bizarre chapter in American history recalls what it was like to live through it.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

Richard Nixon, disgraced, shorn of all political support and leaving the presidency under threat of impeachment, was facing the cameras one more time as president. He had said farewell to the nation the night before; he had bid a fearful goodbye to the White House staff that morning.

Now, as he followed his family into the helicopter for the final White House leavetaking, Nixon delivered one more message. He stretched out his arms to form a "V." He extended the index and middle fingers on each hand, also in "V's." His frown gave way to a smile. The gesture, so classic Nixon, was aimed at his foes. He seemed to be saying: "You haven't broken me."

It has been 10 years since

WATERGATE HOTEL...it all started here

For most Americans, their passions spent, Watergate has slipped into history. It's hard sometimes to remember those two Watergate years of suspense and national agony — particularly the final three months — when a president of the United States slugged it out with Congress and the law; when he stood formally accused of criminal conspiracy and high crimes and misdemeanors in the discharge of his office, and finally when he was forced to admit that "the smoking gun" his prosecutors had sought had been right in his hand all the time in the form of a devastating tape recording.

In 1974, the nation learned new words and phrases. "Impeachment" became something more than a memory from sixth grade social studies. Out of the White House dictionary came "expletive deleted," a common form of presidential expression judging from the transcripts that were released that year; "18½ minute gap," referring to the erasure on a crucial presidential tape; "stonewalling," which meant

THREE FACES OF BIG SPRING — Residents took the city to heart Saturday and had a rousing good time during the all-day Heart of the City celebration of downtown. Weather

Rain dots Panhandle

By The Associated Press
Showers and thunderstorms fell over the Coastal Plains and parts of the Panhandle Saturday, while a few isolated showers were expected to develop over the state through Monday.

Other showers stretched Saturday from the Houston area to the Rio Grande. A funnel cloud was reported near a strong storm in the Berclair area Saturday afternoon, but no damage was reported.

Widely scattered thundershowers peppered the Panhandle and West Texas, while a few rapidly moving showers passed through the Dallas-Fort Worth area. However, rainfall amounts were light.

The weather was more tranquil than Friday when a weak front over North Central Texas triggered showers and some heavy thundershowers that moved towards the coast before midnight.

The National Weather Service said rainfall through Monday would be limited to mostly isolated and widely scattered showers.

Afternoon temperatures were generally in the 80s or 90s, except for a few rain-cooled readings in the 70s over the Panhandle and along the coast.

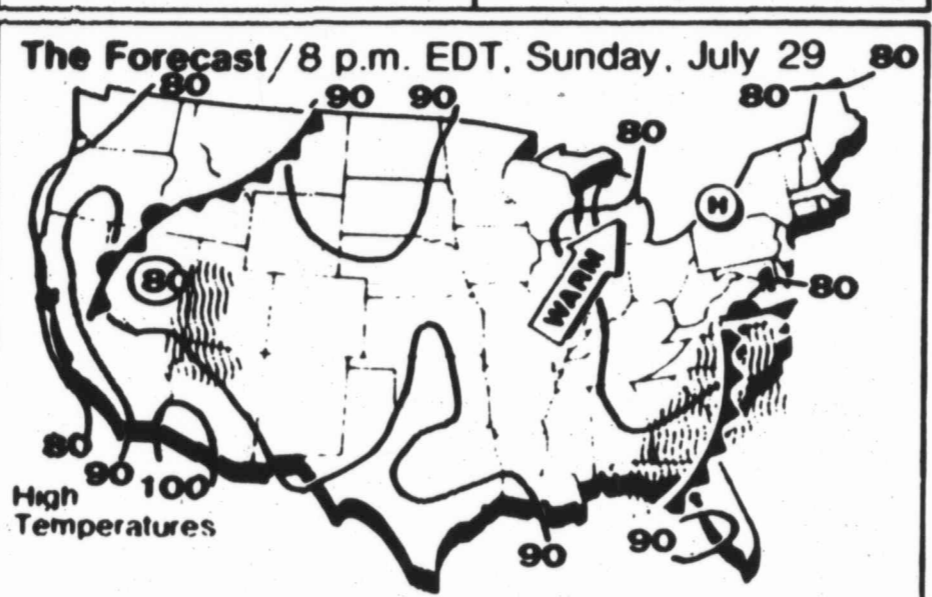

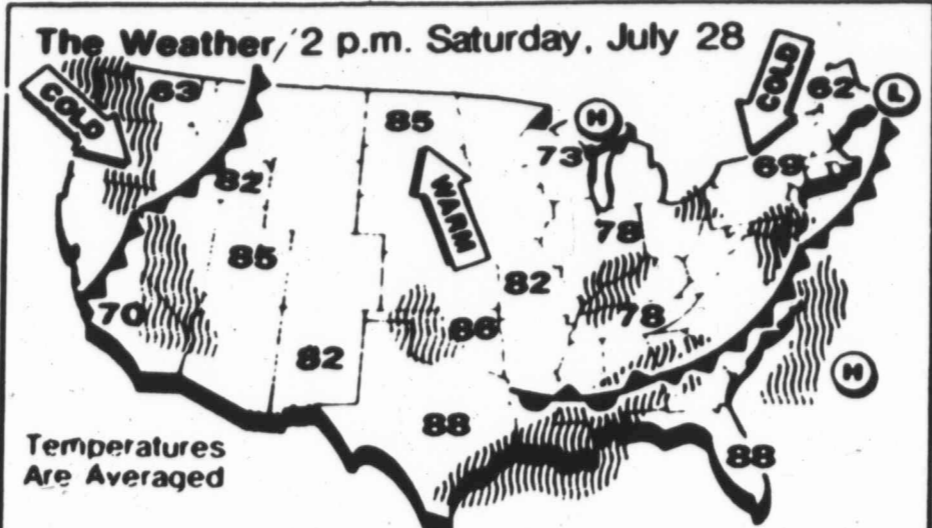

Little change in temperatures was forecast for Sunday. Cloudy to partly cloudy skies were expected to be the rule statewide.

Thunderstorms developed again Saturday over the Southwest, after a night of wet stormy weather in which the desert city of Phoenix, Ariz., got near-record rainfall and street flooding struck Las Vegas, Nev. But temperatures were balmy for the opening day of the summer Olympics.

As thousands gathered at Los Angeles for the opening ceremonies for the Games, afternoon temperatures soared to a muggy 85 degrees, with 48 percent humidity and hazy skies.

Forecast

West Texas — Widely scattered thunderstorms north and extreme southwest Sunday night; otherwise partly cloudy with isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms through Monday. No important temperature changes. Lows Sunday night mid 60s Panhandle to near 70 extreme south except near 80 mountains. Highs Sunday and Monday upper 80s Panhandle to upper 90s Big Bend valleys except mid 80s mountains.

Family of six escapes fire; house destroyed

Six people were left homeless Friday afternoon when a fire gutted their home 14 miles east of the city limits of Highway 350, according to a fireman spokesman.

No one was injured during the fire, which was reported at 6:10 p.m., according to reports. Diane Richter and her five children were living in the house.

The cause of the fire is undetermined, reports said. The estimated loss of the fire is approximately $15,000, reports said. The fire gutted three rooms and the rest of the house reportedly suffered smoke and heat damage.

The family lost all its possessions in the fire, and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Roper of North Tubbs Road are asking Big Spring residents to help the family with clothes and other items. For more information, call 263-1767. The Richter family consists of one girl, 6, and four boys age 10, 14, 15 and 16.

Bell

only 30 cents a month to basic service bills. Most of the $816.7 million comes from long distance companies — such as AT&T Communications — that pay Bell for the use of the local network.

AT&T lawyer Bob Lehr said his company's goal is higher local rates that could reduce AT&T's payments to Bell.

"Certainly, a $2 (monthly local rate increase) we feel is reasonable," said Lehr.

In addition to the suits by AT&T and Boyle, these challenges have been or will be filed in court:

- Bell says it was cheated out of $6.4 million in short-haul long distance rate hikes approved by the commission. The Bell suit asks for an increase of about 2 percent in short-haul long distance tolls.
- The Texas Municipal League, like Boyle, wants the whole case sent back to the commission for rehearing.
- U.S. Telephone will file an appeal similar to AT&T's, seeking reduced payments to Bell.
- TML lawyer Don Butler wants the courts to rule that Bell simply got too much money as a result of the increase.

"We're concerned because the total revenue set for Southwestern Bell was excessive, by any standard," he said. "That was generally disguised by the fact we had a modest local rate increase."

Butler said he fears the AT&T suit could result in higher local rates.

"If these other parties are successful in whole or in part in escaping some of the revenue requirements, then we know that local customers are a good candidate for increases, he said.

Bell's appeal is limited to a challenge of the short-haul long distance rates set by the commission staff. Bell retained the short-haul long distance service — now its only long distance service — after the Jan. 1 court-ordered break-up of AT&T.

Richard Harris, Bell vice president for revenues and public affairs in Texas, said the PUC order granted a $28.4 million rate increase. However, Harris said the rates put in place only produced a $22 million increase.

"As we said the day they approved the increase, we're not happy with it. So there's no surprise we're in here" appealing, Harris said.

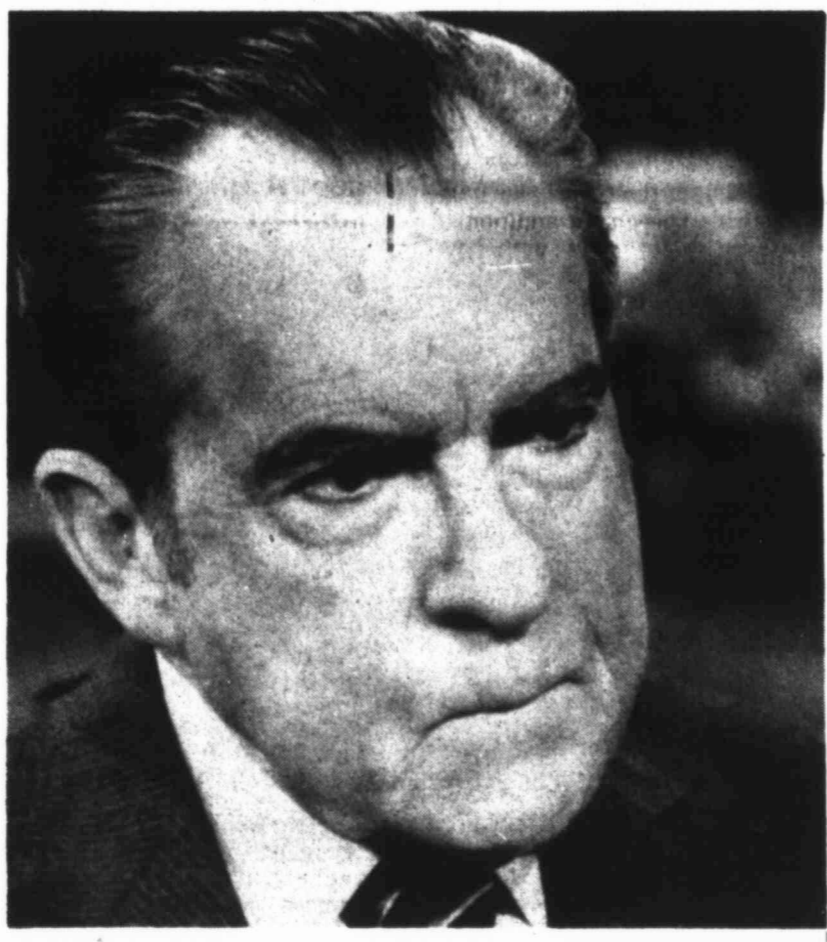

Asked about the possibility that the entire, complex case could go back to the PUC as a result of the Boyle or Butler suits, Harris said sarcastically, "Oh goody."

Watergate: Disgrace of a president

resisting embarrassing disclosures; "going the hangout route" which meant telling it all; and "limited" or "modified limited hangout" which meant degrees of telling the truth.

The word "Watergate," a catch-all for scandals and investigations on many fronts, was familiar to Americans by then. The Democratic National Committee, target of two bungled entries by a team of Nixon re-election committee agents on May 27 and June 17, 1972, had its headquarters in the Watergate Office Building. It was the White House effort to keep the arrested burglars quiet through hush money and promises of clemency that became the Watergate cover-up. Nixon's orders to derail the Watergate investigation forced the early end to his presidency.

On July 24 the committee was ready to begin its public debate on articles of impeachment. Nixon thought he would lose in the committee and then in the House.

"My options had been reduced to only two: resign or be impeached," he recalled later. "I had to decide either to leave the presidency voluntarily, or else confront the hard decision of whether the country could stand six months of having the president on trial in the Senate."

Nixon considered resigning on Aug. 5, but decided that instead "I would release the June 23 tape and see the reaction to it. If it was as bad as I expected, then we could resume the countdown toward resignation."

It was bad. Nixon released the tapes of three conversations which suggested he had obstructed justice by ordering Haldeman to blunt the FBI's Watergate investigation.

The effect was devastating, in Congress and in the nation. Nixon's strongest defender on the Judiciary Committee, Rep. Charles E. Wiggins of California, now called for resignation. One by one, the 10 congressmen who had voted against the impeachment articles changed their vote. The Republican leadership in the House said the president should quit.

Nixon's congressional liaison had figured 34 senators would stand with the president in an impeachment trial. That was before Aug. 5. Afterward, Nixon was told he could count only on seven.

Still, he told a cabinet meeting the next day he intended to fight; there would be no resignation, the Constitution would have to take its course. But later, he took out a yellow legal pad and wrote across the top "Resignation Speech."

On Aug. 7 Haig told Vice President Gerald Ford to be ready to assume the presidency on short notice. In the afternoon Nixon was told by Barry Goldwater, the Republicans' 1964 presidential candidate, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and House Republican leader John Rhodes that the outlook was bleak. "There'll be no tears from me," Nixon told them.

At noon the following day, he told Ford of his decision to resign. He turned down a last-minute request from Haldeman's lawyer that he grant pardons to all the Watergate defendants. He vetoed a $13.5 billion appropriations bill, nominated three federal judges and accepted three resignations.

That night, at nine, a television audience estimated at 110 to 130 million tuned in for Nixon's 37th speech to the nation.

"I have never been a quitter," Nixon said. "To leave office before my term is completed is opposed to every instinct in my body."

But, he said, he had lost his political base and to continue the fight would absorb the time and attention of both the president and the Congress. "Therefore," said Nixon, "I shall resign the presidency effective at noon tomorrow."

Nixon and Watergate dominated the news that summer of '74. Late in June, despite a plebeitis-swollen leg, he traveled to Moscow, a sure-fire attention-getter. But it had to share news space with ominous developments at home.

These included the "White House Plumbers" trial of John D. Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's No. 2 aide, and the Supreme Court's deliberations over 64 tape recordings subpoenaed by the special Watergate prosecutor as evidence for the pending coverup trial of the president's top lieutenants. Nixon claimed he was not obliged to turn over the tapes.

The date of Nixon's resignation was Aug. 9, 1974, a Friday, the 2,026th day of his presidency. But if there were milestones that marked the beginning of the end, they surely included the disclosures during the 1973 Senate Watergate hearings of Nixon's secret taping system, the "Saturday Night Massacre," and the gathering of the House Judiciary Committee to hear evidence in its impeachment probe.

The Saturday Night Massacre, another phrase the Nixon administration contributed to folklore, occurred Oct. 20, 1973 when the White House ordered the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Attorney General Elliot Richardson and his deputy quit rather than carry out the order.

The resulting national outcry started serious talk of impeachment and spurred Congress into giving Peter Rodino's 38-member Judiciary Committee its mandate: "to investigate fully and completely whether sufficient grounds exist for the House of Representatives to impeach Richard M. Nixon, president of the United States of America." Not since Andrew Johnson stood accused in 1868 had a House committee faced such a solemn task.

Meeting almost daily behind closed doors, the committee considered 650 "statements of information" and 7,200 pages of supporting information gathered by its staff.

The White House counterattacked by calling the committee a lynch mob, seizing on a Rodino statement that all 21 Democratic members were ready to recommend impeachment.

"If we can get through the court and by the impeachment vote, we will then have a couple of years to do as many good things for the country as we possibly can," Nixon wrote in his diary on July 5. "What we have to do is to hold ourselves together through this next very difficult period."

By July 17, all the evidence had been presented and the committee heard testimony of nine witnesses — some of them suggested by Nixon's lawyer, James St. Clair.

Rigs

Co. vice president and manager, said the three rigs owned by Hillin Drilling Co. Inc. are busy 70 percent to 80 percent of the time.

"At this time last year they weren't all active," Allen, 56, said. While the rig output has picked up, employment seems to have stabilized.

Safety Engineer for Rowan Drilling Co. Inc., George Scroggins, said rig workers have more permanency.

"It seems like our hands are staying with us quite a bit this year. Last year we had a big turnover," Scroggins, 59, said.

Scroggins, an Andrews resident, also said Rowan's nine rigs are operational.

"Last year we had some rigs down, but all nine are running now."

Hillin Drilling Co. Inc. seems to be sharing the same good fortune.

"We have six rigs and all of them have been running since the first part of February," controller Phil Gagner, 29, said.

Despite the apparent upswing, Ganger said bid prices for work are still lower than they have been in the past.

"I sure wish I could get my bid prices up, but that will come in time," Ganger said.

Ganger said bid prices for Hillin Drilling have increased by about 5 percent this year.

"It's taken about nine months to step back in a significant manner," Thompson said.

Bombs kill 11 Afghans

ISLAMABAD — A booby-trapped car exploded Saturday outside the headquarters of an Afghan rebel group based in the city of Peshawar near the Afghan border, killing five people and wounding 12, officials said.

Two hours later, an explosion in the refugee-populated border town of Sadda, 75 miles southwest of Peshawar, killed six people and wounded 29, according to the officials. They said the reasons for the attacks had not been determined.

Hong Kong talks stall

PEKING — The foreign ministers of Britain and China agreed Saturday that both sides have advanced negotiations on Hong Kong's future, but China's Wu Xueqian stressed what he called the need for a pact at "an early date."

Wu also said after meeting with British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe that both sides must take a "broader view" to solve outstanding problems in the talks on Hong Kong, which China will recover from British control in 1997.

Druse battle militia

BEIRUT — The Lebanese army bulldozed barricades and detonated mines in central Beirut Saturday in the second phase of a plan to unify the capital. But in mountains overlooking the city, government troops fought Druse militiamen for three hours.

About 4,000 troops of the army's 3rd, 5th, 6th and 8th brigades deployed at first light in an 800-yard-wide strip along the "green line" that has separated Christian east from mostly Moslem west Beirut for nine years.

At nightfall, however, soldiers and Druse militiamen engaged in a three-hour duel involving artillery and tank cannons around the central Lebanese mountain town of Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the capital.

Egypt wants peace talks

CAIRO — President Hosni Mubarak on Saturday urged the United States and Israel to revive Middle East peace talks following November's U.S. presidential election, and pledged Egypt would deal with any new Israeli government.

Mubarak said he was willing to deal "with any government which the Israeli people choose, whether it's Likud or Labor or any other party."

But he made clear Egypt will not return its ambassador to Tel Aviv until Israel withdraws its troops from Lebanon, makes progress on solving the Palestinian problem, and resolves a border dispute with Cairo.

44-pound tumor removed

ISLAMABAD — A 44-pound tumor was removed from the stomach of a 55-year-old man during surgery at a hospital in the central Pakistan city of Multan, his doctor said Saturday.

"I've never seen a tumor this size," the chief surgeon, Ghulam Mustafa of Nishtar Medical College Hospital, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "It took up almost all of the patient's stomach, giving him a huge belly."

Mustafa said the operation was performed Friday and that the patient, Pahlwan Khan, is recovering satisfactorily.

N. Korean soldier defects

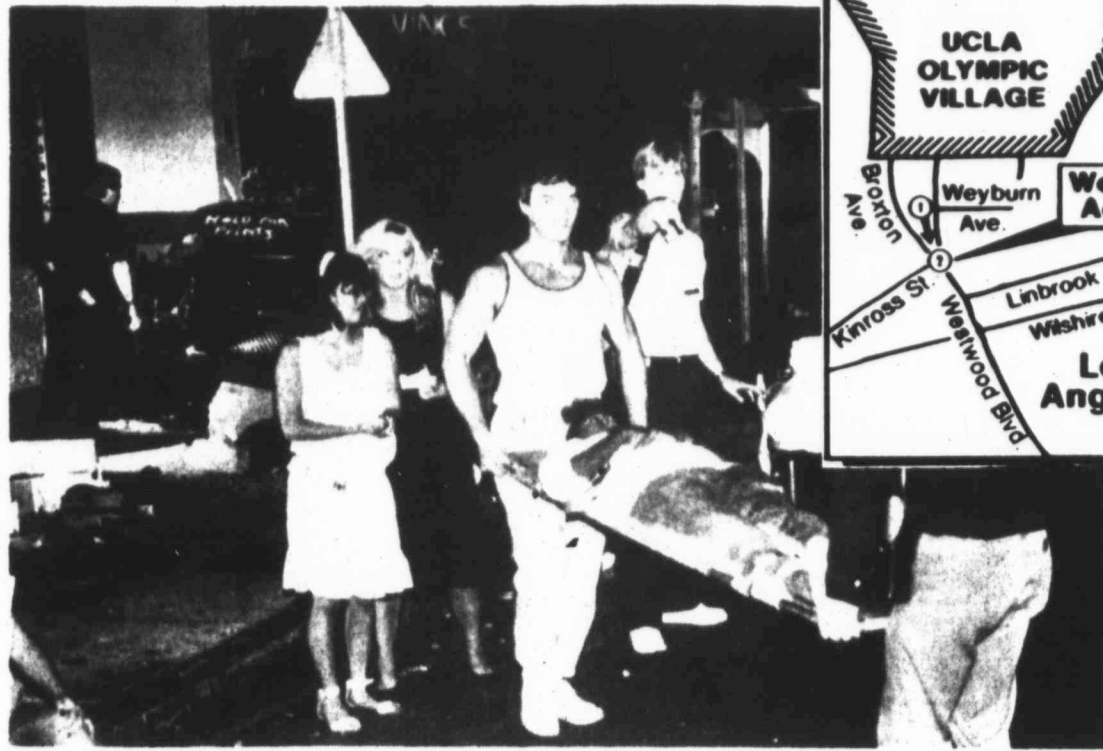

SEOUL — A North Korean army sergeant defected today to South Korea near the armistice line that separates the north and south, the South Korean Defense Ministry announced.

The defector, identified as Sgt. Cho Pyongchan, 24, surrendered to a South Korean Army guard post about four miles north of Kwanghwa on the Han River early this morning, the ministry said.

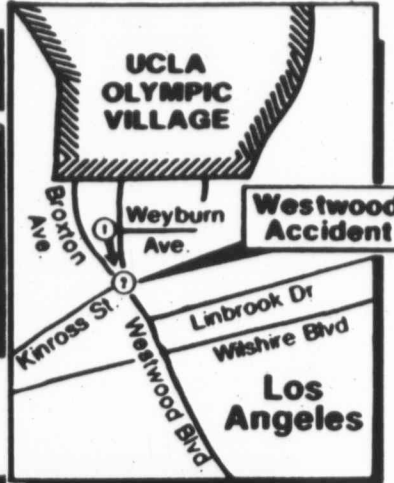

Iran claims battle gains

TEHRAN — Iran on Saturday claimed its forces killed at least 220 Iraqi soldiers and wounded more than 500 in a three-day battle in the northernmost sector of the border battlefield.

Getting even

LA driver mows down pedestrians; 1 killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who wanted to "get even against the police" was being held without bond Saturday after he drove a car more than 100 yards down a sidewalk near an Olympic Village, killing a teen-ager and injuring 54 people as screaming pedestrians scattered, authorities said.

A Buick Regal driven by 21-year-old Daniel Lee Young jumped the curb at about 35 mph, mowing down pedestrians before slamming into a glass bus kiosk Friday night, police and witnesses said.

Young, who was unhurt, was arrested at the scene in the trendy Westwood neighborhood near the UCLA campus. He grinned at a photographer as he sat in the back seat of a squad car.

He was booked for investigation of murder and was being held Saturday without bail, said Officer Rod Bernsen.

The 8:30 p.m. incident came less than 24 hours before Saturday night's opening of the Summer Games, but, "There is no indication there is any connection with the Olympic Games in any way," said Police Chief Daryl Gates.

"He has said he wanted to get even against the police, but there is no indication of why. The Olympics were not mentioned by him."

Young, a resident of the Inglewood suburb of Los Angeles, had been placed on probation April 22, 1983, after a burglary conviction, Officer Scott Gilliam said.

"He's just mad at policemen in general," the officer said.

There was no evidence of any alcohol or drug use, Gates said.

"Everybody's kind of shocked," his brother Larry Young said at the family home in a modest Inglewood neighborhood, a Los Angeles suburb eight miles southwest of downtown. Young's parents and 11 brothers and sisters avoided the reporters gathered Saturday outside the house.

Neighbors described Young as a quiet loner who would play his car radio loud or sit in front of his house listening to the radio.

U.S. won't talk with Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department on Friday ruled out comprehensive talks with Cuba until that country demonstrates a willingness to make fundamental changes in its foreign policy.

The department's Deputy spokesman, Alan Romberg, said that press reports of a speech Thursday night by President Fidel Castro suggest U.S. preconditions have not been met.

He said Castro indicated he is prepared to continue talks on migration issues. But, Romberg said, a "broader review of the relationship would depend upon Cuba's actions in a variety of areas."

Previously, the administration has said these areas include Cuba's relationship with the Soviet Union, its troop commitments to several African countries, especially Angola, and its alleged efforts to promote subversion in Central America.

"At least looking at the reports we have from Mr. Castro's speech, in addition to what we've seen in terms of action, we don't see that there's been a change," Romberg said.

Later Friday, United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick said an improvement in relations with Cuba would be difficult as long as the Castro government "engages in the export of revolution and in the training and advising of guerrillas in this hemisphere and permits Cuba to serve as a base for the projection of Soviet power."

Go slow on rule for safety's sake

Trans-Atlantic travel would be cheaper and for many travelers more comfortable if the Federal Aviation Administration decides to establish new rules permitting two-engine jetliners to begin such non-stop service next summer. If the FAA approves, three airlines — Trans World, Air Canada and El Al Israel — plan to inaugurate the service using the new two-engine Boeing 767. It carries up to 211 passengers in a roomier, two-aisle arrangement with more modern seats than the three major jetliners now in use, the 747, the DC-10 and the L-1011.

The question not yet satisfactorily answered, however, is whether such two-engine service would be as safe. Present FAA rules restrict two-engine airliners to trans-Atlantic routes that keep them within 60 minutes flying time from an airport, so that they can land safely if an engine quits. The proposed new rules would extend that safety time to 120 minutes, making it possible for the 767 to fly direct, trans-Atlantic routes.

Proponents of the change cite the reliability of today's jet engines. According to FAA records, no jetliner accident has ever been recorded due to multiple, near-simultaneous engine failure. If one quits, the remaining engine or engines have sufficed to bring the plane to safety.

Still, critics of the proposal seem right in holding that more in-service experience should be required of the 767, which has been operating commercially less than two years. Let the 767 and its prototypes prove themselves on the safer routes through some more operational time. Then, if their record of engine reliability shows, as a Boeing spokesman contends, that the probable loss of two engines at once is a one in a billion chance, the new rules could be adopted with the necessary safety assurance.

Economic promise

The nation's glittering economic recovery, which began a year and a half ago, has been widely treated as mere fool's gold. Critics saw it as a pause before the coming crash, or as a deficit-bred, Keynesian-style boom that would revive high inflation. But recent economic news has forced some of the shrillest opponents of Reaganomics to bite their tongues.

They said it couldn't be done. But the economy, despite that ole debbil deficit, has combined a stretch of robust growth with low inflation. In the first quarter of 1984, real output was an impressive 8 percent higher than a year before. Industrial production has risen at a 9.7 percent annual pace this year.

Querulous analysts, mesmerized by the fiction that growth fuels inflation, feared the economy was in danger of "overheating." But the fires of inflation remain banked. Wholesale prices in the second quarter rose, as President Reagan put it, by "zero point zero" percent. Over the last year, the inflation rate has been just 2.2 percent. In 1980, prices rose six times that fast.

Last year, even the administration expected unemployment to remain close to 10 percent until 1985. It's already dropped to 7.1 percent, with more improvement likely.

The only apparent flaw is high interest rates. Critics of President Reagan's tax cuts say the federal budget deficit is to blame. But that's hard to square with the drastic drop in rates since the start of 1981.

In fact, interest rates may be not an obstacle to expansion, but a result of it. The administration's tax cuts for business, coupled with a new climate favorable to commerce, have raised the return on investment. The demand for credit to finance new projects has risen — so its price (the interest rate) has stayed high.

The U.S. trade deficit also masks good news, which is that the U.S. has one of the most promising economies on the globe. So a lot of foreigners want to invest here. The influx of foreign capital means Americans have more to spend on imports. That's a sign of health, not decay. So is the strong dollar, though it makes life hard for exporters.

There are other reasons for optimism. Far from being "consumer-led," this recovery has been characterized by an investment boom. In the first year, investment rose 36 percent faster than in the average postwar recovery, while consumption lagged. Gross private savings have risen 23 percent since the recession ended.

Reagan's tax cuts don't deserve all the credit for the economy's new vitality. Too many other forces are at work. The Federal Reserve's resolve has quelled fears of inflation. The recession forced businesses and workers to cut costs and raise efficiency. The administration's attacks on government regulation have facilitated competition.

But the deficit that supposedly grew out of Reagan's tax cuts (actually, it was the result of the recession and the failure to control spending) hasn't prevented the recovery, contrary to predictions. Nor has it spurred inflation.

More likely, the deficit has had the effect it usually has on the real economy — none at all. Meanwhile, just as supply-siders forecast, the tax cuts have restored incentives to work and invest. Thus they not only encourage people to put money in stocks or bonds or savings deposits instead of cars and clothes, but they moderate wage increases by increasing take-home pay.

Reagan's critics say he's done nothing more than lift the economy back to where he found it. But the growth and relatively low unemployment enjoyed in 1980 was doomed by its easy-money sources. Like a mule, Jimmy Carter's economic expansion had a dubious ancestry and no hope of propagation.

This prosperity, however, ought to last. If there is no burdensome increase in taxes or excessive monetary restraint by the Federal Reserve — two big ifs — the economy should have miles of smooth road ahead.

All this is testimony to the basic wisdom of three elements of Reagan's economic policies — reducing and restructuring taxes, controlling monetary growth and minimizing government involvement in the economy. If the President would match them with freer trade and real cuts in federal spending, tomorrow's economic promise would be brighter still.

Soaking up some drought trivia

There's some good in everything, even a drought.

Lack of rainfall is a boon to conversation. It gives people who otherwise have nothing in common a universal topic of discussion. It gives neighbors an opportunity to socialize. Unlike politics or religion, there are no disagreements on whether we need rain. The drought is a perfectly safe topic.

Toward that end, I've accumulated some trivia which can add to the arsenal of tidbits for rain discussions.

• First, the biggie: Is this the driest year on record? Through the first seven months, yes, but the year isn't over. Official rainfall for the first six months totaled a scant 1.77 inches, the lowest for the first half of any year since records were started in 1900.

• Last year, a bad one for rainfall, brought us 4 inches of rain by the end of June. The year ended with 12½ inches, or two-thirds our normal average.

• July has brought some help, but not much. We picked up an inch from July 1 through Saturday. Normal for July is 2 inches.

• May is traditionally a "wet" month, the one that prepares the fields for planting in cotton. This May, we recorded three-fourths inch of rain. The 80-year average for May is nearly 3 inches.

• Even though it didn't rain much in May, it wasn't the driest May on record. There were eight years with less recorded rainfall in the month of flowers: 1911, 1915-17, 1934, 1945, 1962 and 1967.

• The worst years of the 1950s drought here were 1952 and 1956. In 1952, only 9.2 inches were recorded; in '56 it was 8 inches. Yet in both of those years, more rain fell in the first six months than in the first six months of this year.

• The driest year on record was 1917 — when only 4½ inches registered. Even 1917 was wetter in the first half of the year than Big Spring has been in 1984. Through June of 1917, the rainfall total was 2.9 inches, compared to this year's 1¾.

These statistics come from the U.S. Big Spring Field Station at Interstate 20 and Highway 87, the source of official rainfall information for the city. It's true that rainfall will vary with location. Knott may get a 3-inch downpour while only a trace falls on the field station's gauge. Of course, the odds are just as good that the situation will be reversed.

And, there are problems with using averages. A man who's got his head stuck in an ice box and his feet lodged in an oven has been described as having an "average" temperature of 98.6. Averages can be useful tools, though, when they are drawn from a lot of history. Eighty years of record-keeping tends to reflect pretty accurate averages.

So, if anybody asks whether we are in a serious drought, tell them we are. Statistics tell us we are heading for a record-breaking rainfall shortage this year.

One of the more pleasant ironies to emerge from all this grimness, however, is that we turn on our taps at will and water our lawns as much as our pocketbooks can stand. Meanwhile, Corpus Christi, the city by the bay, looks out at parched lawns and endures a strict water rationing program. Water resources are being put to the test here, and it's a tribute to foresighted water planning that we have fared so well this summer.

One other thing. Every time I write a column about the drought, it rains. It did it about a month ago when a couple of tenths of precipitation fell as I wrote my column on a Friday afternoon. It did it again Friday with a nice shower, but one that had its ominous aspects — possible funnel clouds in the north part of the county. I immediately quit writing, and didn't resume until yesterday afternoon. I realize that put the Heart of the City festival in jeopardy, but I figured a little shower wouldn't dampen the spirits downtown.

An elective chief 'stands to reason'

To the editor:
It just doesn't stand to reason that a group of "business people" formed to "battle" a petition calling for an election to amend our city charter to elect a chief of police — asking people to go to the polls and vote not to be allowed to vote on a chief?

It isn't reasonable that the 1100 plus people who signed this petition are what they call a "small special interest group." What kind of group is this that formed to battle the petition? What do they have to gain or lose?

It does stand to reason that the business people who want an appointive chief perhaps owe an allegiance to either the chief, the city manager, or a member of the city council — and that they have something to lose by an elective chief.

It's reasonable to believe the same people who control city hall in some form or fashion want to continue their control by an appointive chief.

Reasonable or unreasonable, I'm getting tired of hearing them tell me I don't know what I need — that they know better than I do what I need — and I, for one, say let's try an elective chief. We've had, to my best recollection, six chiefs in the last 9 years — so what have we got to lose by trying to pick our own?

If Big Spring is to survive, we have to make some changes. The change of a chief to elective, from being hired by the present administration, is a start in the right direction.

City is clouding police chief issue

To the editor:
I've read your paper, and it didn't take me long to decide what side of the police chief issue you're on. I guess the city spends a lot of money advertising bids, etc.

I've listened to the radio and it appears the city, as always, is trying to cloud the main issue with all kinds of innuendoes.

I've talked to my friends and neighbors, and we've decided the real issue is basic. To vote or not to vote for an elected Chief of Police. Why not? We don't get to vote on much our city does these days, so why miss the one chance we have?

God cares

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I saw a program on TV last night about children who are hungry and starving in the world. It seems to me if God really cared for the world this sort of thing wouldn't happen. — W.D.

DEAR W.D.: I want to assure you that none of us — no matter how much we may be touched by the suffering of those who hurt in this world — has as much love and compassion for them as God.

It is never easy for us to understand why there is so much evil and suffering — but God did cause it, and it was not part of His original plan for this world. When God created the world, the Bible says, "God saw all that he had made, and it was very good" (Genesis 1:31).

Around The Rim

By KEITH BRISCOE

Real people

A wise woman once told me that if during my short sojourn on earth I would do so little as to place a baby robin back in its nest, I would not have lived in vain.

This woman, a poor widow who scatched and scraped to keep the house her husband built, opened her door to all strays. Cats, dogs, birds, children. Anything, anyone in need of love. She is one of those saints who never gets a cathedral named in her honor.

I recount this small tale because in Big Spring I have encountered her kind, unselfish humans making a big dent in this world by showing a little care.

In this regard, I write on a matter of life and death, a question of whether our partners on this planet enjoy the right to live and die with dignity or are sentenced to a purgatory of starvation, loneliness and sorrowful death.

Unnatural death for animals ignites in some humans a courage to speak and act for other species' right to life.

Formed last May, the Big Spring Humane Society has made super-human progress in rescuing animals who either by accident, neglect or cruelty have no home, no prospect of fulfilling their purpose.

A neighborhood network of concerned souls such as Margaret Lloyd, Sue Partee, Holly Mays, Cheryl McCutcheon and Violet Taylor organized when 100-percent-human-being Dorothy Garrett gave $45,000 to the city to build a new animal shelter. They wanted to help.

That was in May. The city still has no new shelter. But that hasn't deterred the humane society members.

They've started a foster home program to provide orphaned animals respite until they can be adopted. These people will take any animal — dog, cat, rat, rabbit — if someone will just call.

The biggest obstacle, according to Mrs. Lloyd, is persuading people that with a little effort they can find a friend for life. Too many animals and too few homes. That's the problem.

Mrs. Lloyd now has among her menagerie twin cats that are spayed, litter trained, declawed and with vaccinations. Perfect pets. But she can't find a home for them.

Her message: Don't go to the pet store. Call the humane society. Animals don't need pedigrees. They just need someone to love.

I'm sure the God who counts the sparrows in flight would be damned happy if you befriended one of his needy creatures.

Don't live in vain.

A Closer Look

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

Ferraro doesn't shake pom-poms

AUSTIN — Walter Mondale put a woman on his ticket in San Francisco. Ronald Reagan put women on his platform in Austin.

The difference may say a lot about the role of women in the presidential campaign this year, or at least their perceived role.

Mondale's ticket has U.S. Rep. Geraldine Ferraro. Unless you've been in a coma the past three weeks, you know she's the first woman to be the vice presidential candidate of a major political party.

She's a no-nonsense, tough-talking former prosecutor from New York City.

The president's political planners chose another feminine image for his big campaign kickoff in Austin last week: the Houston Oiler cheerleaders.

The scantily clad young women wiggled, jiggled and giggled on the platform set up by Town Lake for the big rally for Reagan and Vice President George Bush.

One of them was shown standing between the two candidates in a front-page picture in the local newspaper the next day. At Bush's side was a more-modestly clad University of Texas cheerleader, looking up at him in seeming admiration while he wrapped his left arm around her waist.

Before the speeches the Oiler cheerleaders did one of their bouncy routines. The crowd, which had a significant number of women, smiled and clapped and loved it all.

One can't help wondering if this staging was craftily planned to contrast with Ferraro's new-woman image or just the president's men deciding that's how a good old-fashioned political rally ought to be, with pretty girls and red, white and blue balloons.

Later, Reagan met with Texans for Reagan, a mostly male group described as Democrats or independents now supporting the GOP ticket.

One of the prominent members of the group, former Gov. Allan Shivers, twice referred to "Mondale and the lady" in criticizing the Democratic candidates.

In all, the Reagan-Bush visit to Texas did not appear to display much sensitivity to the developing role of women in politics.

Let me add quickly that I was on another news assignment and didn't attend the Austin rally. My perceptions come from watching it on television and reading the news reports, but those media were the only contact with the rally for the vast majority of Texans.

And the message that came through the media was that the Reagan-Bush campaign still clings to the time-honored ideas of the roles of men and women in politics: the men who count are older, successful and powerful; the women who count are young, pretty and smiling.

That image seems to play into the hands of the Democrats, who desperately are seeking some small cracks in the president's Teflon coating.

Mondale didn't pick Rep. Ferraro as his vice presidential candidate because she was the most experienced person he could find. Among his finalists for the job were Ferraro, the female mayor of San Francisco and the male Hispanic mayor of San Antonio — all relatively young and inexperienced.

Mondale, a cautious and experienced politician, knew he was starting out far behind a popular president and that he needed someone to emphasize what some call Reagan's patronizing attitudes toward women and minorities.

Crucial battleground

Ford: state races could tip balance for GOP

DALLAS (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford said U.S. Senate and House races in Texas will be critical for President Reagan's re-election bid.

Speaking at a fund-raising luncheon on Friday for Richard Armitage, a Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, Ford said the Senate race could "tip the balance" of partisan control in the upper chamber.

Democrat Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Republican Phil Gramm of College Station face each for the Senate seat being vacated by Republican John Tower.

Ford said Texas will be a "crucial battleground" in the presidential race, and added that he'll be out there stumping for Reagan.

"Texas is vitally important to the re-election of Ronald Reagan," Ford told the luncheon audience. "It's going to be very, very close."

He said his longstanding prediction of a close presidential contest was proved correct by a Gallup poll taken right after Walter Mondale was nominated at the Democratic National Convention. The poll showed Mondale with a slight lead.

Ford also said he didn't think having a woman on the Democratic ticket would attract Republican or independent women voters. He attacked Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D-N.Y., the Democratic vice presidential candidate, for her "liberal voting record."

Women, he said, "will vote on fact, not emotion. Women have good judgment and they aren't going to be swayed by prejudice and emotion."

Ford downplayed his differences with Reagan over the Equal Rights Amendment, a measure Ford supported and Reagan opposed. He said he and the president share the same goal but differ on the means to achieve it.

Austin to settle NAACP suit

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin city council has voted 6-1 to attempt to settle out of court the lawsuit filed against the city by the NAACP.

After the vote Friday, the council was presented a proposal by the NAACP that council members be elected from eight single districts next April. Council members currently are elected on a city-wide basis.

The settlement talks are expected to begin next week among lawyers for the city, the NAACP and the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

The NAACP sued the city April 5 in federal court contending the at-large system of electing council members is discriminatory. MALDEF intervened in the suit in behalf of the NAACP.

The majority of council members agreed Friday that fighting the suit would be divisive, expensive and eventually unsuccessful.

Austin voters have twice turned down single member districts when presented as a proposed charter change.

Atheists win lawsuit against state

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge has approved a settlement in a long-running lawsuit by atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair that voids a portion of the Texas Constitution requiring officeholders to acknowledge "existence of a Supreme Being."

Mrs. O'Hair contended that the provision excluded atheists and agnostics from holding "any office, or public trust."

The agreed judgment was signed Friday by U.S. District Judge James Nowlin.

According to the settlement's terms, both sides agreed that the provision requiring acknowledgment of "the existence of a Supreme Being... is void and of no further effect in that it is in violation of the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution."

The agreement was negotiated by Assistant Attorney General Mary Keller and Mrs. O'Hair's attorneys.

Ms. Keller said she met Thursday with Ms. O'Hair and Nashville lawyer Henry Martin and agreed that the provision is unconstitutional. Martin represented the Society of Separationists, Inc.

The section of the constitution — Article I, Section 4 — challenged by Ms. O'Hair reads: "No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification for any office, or public trust in the state; nor shall anyone be excluded from holding office on account of religious sentiment, provided he acknowledge existence of a Supreme Being."

Ms. Keller said the phrase dealing with a "Supreme Being" would be eliminated from the state's constitution.

Earlier this week, Ms. O'Hair criticized the state for dragging out the 7-year-old lawsuit.

"Instead of settling the issue in 1977 the state has deliberately dragged the case on, spending taxpayers' dollars and 'stone-walling' the obviously unconstitutional problem," she said.

Nowlin gave both sides 30 days to conclude an agreement on the payment of reasonable fees for Mrs. O'Hair's attorneys.

Keep Politics Out of Our Law Enforcement

Vote "Against" August 11th

The government of the City of Big Spring, like that of most Texas cities, is similar to the organization of most business corporations. There is a board of directors — the mayor as chairman of the board and the city councilmen as directors — elected by the stockholders, in this case the citizens of Big Spring.

The council, in turn, hires a chief executive officer — the city manager — who is responsible to the council for the entire government of the city. The city manager then hires a management team — the department heads — whom he holds responsible for the efficient and economical functioning of each department.

Now comes a group of dissident citizens, motivated by their own special interests, who want to break this chain of responsibility. They want one of the department heads — the chief of police — to be elected by the stockholders.

On the surface, this sounds like a fairly reasonable, democratic idea, but a little thought reveals a number of very serious problems.

First, the position of police chief is a very demanding one, and it must be filled by the individual most capable and qualified by experience and training. Sometimes this means hiring a person from outside the local area. If the election proposal were adopted, the only requirement for holding this important office would be that the candidate would have lived in Big Spring for one year. The position would change from the "best qualified" applicant to the "most popular" candidate.

A second problem is that the term of office would be for two years. If an unqualified or incapable individual were elected as police chief, it would be another two years before he or she could be replaced. If a chief abused the power of his office, the voters would be helpless to do anything about it until the next election. Recall is not the answer; this special interest election already is costing the taxpayers of Big Spring some $5,000.

A third serious problem is that an elected chief of police would be most responsive to those groups that provided funds and the votes to get him elected. This would give special interest groups the upper hand over the average Jane or John Doe.

Another question involves how internal problems in the police department are solved. Now the chief must answer to the city manager who can step in and straighten out any problems. An elected chief would have no direct supervision and would pretty much be able to do as he or she chooses. Even our elected city council would be powerless to deal with any mess.

The most important question, however, is the matter of effective law enforcement. A police chief must make sometimes tough decisions for the benefit of the entire community. He must not be constantly wondering if an action will have an effect at the polls. Members of the U.S. Congress continually bemoan the fact that with a two-year term they spend as much time trying to get re-elected as they do concentrating on the duties of their offices.

Decisions to enforce the law must not be tainted or influenced by a fear of voters. The chief must not be prey to those political temptations, especially near election time.

Personal peevishness or animosity against the present chief or some other individual are poor reasons to saddle the citizens of Big Spring with bad public law for many years to come.

Citizens for Effective Law Enforcement urge you to vote "against" the charter amendment to change the office of chief of police to an elected position.

Let's keep politics out of our law enforcement.

Pony express rides again in C. Texas

FREDERICKSBURG (AP) — If you're driving through Fredericksburg and see a red flag outside Johnny Weidenfeller's Mobil station, it would be neighborly to stop and pick up a package for delivery in Stonewall.

The package might be a medical prescription or it might be an automobile part for the Eckert & Son Garage, the other end of the "pony express" in Stonewall.

The free-delivery system has been operating for more than 40 years over the 14-mile stretch of U.S. 290.

"We have anywhere from one to 25 packages left with us in a day," said Weidenfeller, one of the originators of the idea. "Bakery goods, newspapers — you name it."

"If someone is sick, they just call in whoever dispenses the prescription," said Simon Burg of Stonewall, another founder of the service, "and sometimes the medicine is here in 30 to 40 minutes, depending on how much traffic this way there is."

The service began during World War II, when gas and tires were rationed and every trip had to count, Burg said.

When the war was over and gas and tires were more plentiful, nobody thought about giving up the free delivery service.

"We've never lost a package yet," said James Eckert, the garage man. "Maybe we've had a few displaced for a while, like when someone put some cans of paint in his trunk and forgot they were there, but they eventually turned up."

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans are successfully showing the rest of the nation that wind can produce electricity, the sun heats water and power can be produced from cow manure or crop wastes, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Saturday.

JIM HIGHTOWER

"Texas has the potential of becoming the leader in the nation in renewable energy sources," Hightower told the newly formed Texas Renewable Energy Industries Association. "We've got to get behind this new industry just because it makes good sense."

"We're not trying to put the oil and gas people out of business, we want to help them stay in business longer," said Amory Lovins, well known writer who advocates the "soft energy path" without central power plants and nuclear reactors.

Hightower told the organizational meeting of the association that it had his personal support and the backing of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"This literally can be a multibillion-dollar, homegrown industry," he said.

Hightower pointed out that Joe Cozad makes ethanol in Edinburg, Jay Carter of Burkburnett makes an electricity-generating windmill sold widely in California, Mike Osborne of Elgin sells power from his windmills to a commercial utility company and Ed Cox Jr. of Amarillo is building a power plant to run on cattle manure.

"Utility companies are, right now, planning to build as many as 18 new lignite-fueled power plants in the next 15 to 20 years that would cost Texans $2.5 billion a year," Hightower said. "Conservation and renewable energy industries in this state could deliver the same amount of power for a whole lot less money and have dollars left over for food and education."

He said mesquite and juniper woods have an energy value as high as lignite. "If you harvested just 10 tons per acre of mesquite and brush from our brush-infested rangeland, you could produce 8.1 quadrillion BTUs (heating units) and restore the range to boot — not to mention putting 10 million acre feet of water to better use," Hightower said.

Lovins said most of the houses in Israel, western Australia and Japan have solar water heaters. One-third of the cars in Brazil run on ethanol.

Synthetic gas fuels new operation

BEULAH, N.D. (AP) — Synthetic "natural" gas from the nation's first large-scale coal gasification plant began flowing into the interstate pipeline system Saturday, the first time the fuel has been sold commercially in the United States.

Six of the 14 gasifiers at the $2.1 billion Great Plains coal gasification plant were in operation, and gas began flowing into the pipeline system around 8 a.m., said spokesman Joel Melarvie. The synthetic fuel mixes with naturally produced gas in the pipeline, he said. The synthetic fuel, produced from lignite coal mined nearby, will be carried by four pipeline companies to markets in the Midwest and Southeast, said Michael Mujadin, director of plant operations.

Burford bites burger, spits on D.C. 'asylum'

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Anne Gorsuch Burford, who resigned under fire as head of the Environmental Protection Agency, says the panel to which President Reagan has appointed her is "a nothing-burger ... a joke."

She also lampooned the District of Columbia as being "too small to be a state and too large to be an asylum."

Mrs. Burford, a former Republican Colorado legislator and wife of federal Bureau of Land Management Director Bob Burford, received a standing ovation Friday night from delegates to the 57th annual Colorado Wool Growers Association convention for her assessment of the nation's capital: "It's called the District of Columbia, she explained, "because it's too small to be a state but too large to be an asylum for the mentally deranged."

In remarks to reporters, Mrs. Burford shrugged off the latest controversy to swirl around her, her appointment by President Reagan as chairwoman of the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere.

"It's a nothing-burger," she said, adding: "They meet three times a year. They don't do anything. It's a joke."

"He (Reagan) said he wanted to appoint me to something and he did."

The Senate voted 74-19 Tuesday in favor of a non-binding resolution urging Reagan to withdraw Mrs. Burford's appointment to the environmental panel.

The resolution said she "did virtually everything but carry out her responsibilities to the environment" during her tenure at the EPA.

Reagan, however, said he was standing by Mrs. Burford's appointment.

Quake rattles; no shakes

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (AP) — A mild earthquake that struck in the desert near a U.S. Marine training base went unnoticed, even by people near its epicenter.

The quake, measuring 3.4 on the Richter scale, was centered nine miles northwest of here when it struck at 12:42 p.m. Friday, said Dennis Meredith, a spokesman for California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

Marine Sgt. Barbara Wilkens at the Marine Corps Training Center near Twentynine Palms, 100 miles east of Los Angeles, said she didn't feel the quake at the military base.

The sheriff's department received no calls about the temblor, said Deputy Dewey Lewis of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

Floor Surfaces for Aerobic Activity

An area of most importance to someone participating in aerobic exercise is that of floor surface. As a student you may spend 3-5 hours a week working on a particular surface, and if it is one of inferior quality, you may find yourself experiencing physical ramifications.

The ideal surface is of wood composition because it absorbs shock better & gives slightly as force is exerted upon it. The rubberized surface is another surface which is good, however, research is indicating the quick stopping action can cause extra strain on the knee joint area. This could lead to potential problems.

Another surface commonly used is cement covered with linoleum. There is virtually no give or absorption of force by this type of surface, & in turn any force exerted would have to be absorbed by the body — the results of which are soreness in the knees, shin splints & any other number of problems to body structure.

Carpeting is one of the most prominently used forms of floor surface today. However, time & time again it is proving to be the most dangerous. A carpeted surface does not allow an opportunity to slide if an individual were to miss a step. In fact, because of the type of surface it represents, an individual will abruptly stop & be thrown off balance creating the possibility of a fall or twisting of an ankle or knee. Also, the carpet surface is usually laid over a cement floor thereby compounding the possibility of further injury due to the inability of the surface to function as a good absorption to force.

The Dance Gallery & Fitness Center, 2303 Goliad, has 2 mirrored studios complete with suspended wood floors. Call 267-3977 or come by Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m. to participate in Aerobics or Aqua-Aerobics.

Two kinds of cowboys

Okay group, listen up!
This sportswriter has a couple of major gripes to get out in the open and today's column is just the place to do it.
First on the scribe's hit list are crybaby jocks.
Bless my soul, I've never picked on God's team before, but the trials and tribulations of the Dallas Cowboys-Randy White saga are too much to let slide.
Granted, White is one of the best, if not the best, defensive linemen in the National Football League today. Give us a break though. The "Manster" still has a year to go on his current contract that calls for White to receive "only" in the neighborhood of $350,000. Yet White is demanding that Dallas management more than double that in order that Randy baby can become the highest paid defender in the free world. Randy, do you know how many folks in the third world could be fed with your salary?

"Dancing" Mark Gastineau of the New York Jets is the current title holder at an estimated $800,000. That's more than a dime a dance — maybe if Randy could moonwalk...
Granted, White is better than Gastineau. That's one tragedy to this never ending sequel of professional sports salaries going through the roof — the top talent isn't always compensated with top dollars.

The other side to the story, however is that players today follow a policy of "get while the getting is good," and far too often forget team loyalty. It's realized that pro sports are indeed more business than fun, but come on Randy, consider yourself fortunate and lucky to play for Dallas. Your holdout is already playing havoc among teammates with silent protests marking some workouts. And Cowboys, after the way you finished last year, higher salaries should be the last thing on your minds.

Seriously, White's bush league demand to be the highest paid player can hurt the Cowboys — but not as much as some folks think. The Cowboys have a unique ability at replacing disgruntled players. Ask Thomas, Herrera and the like. If Randy wants, he can fish all Fall long.

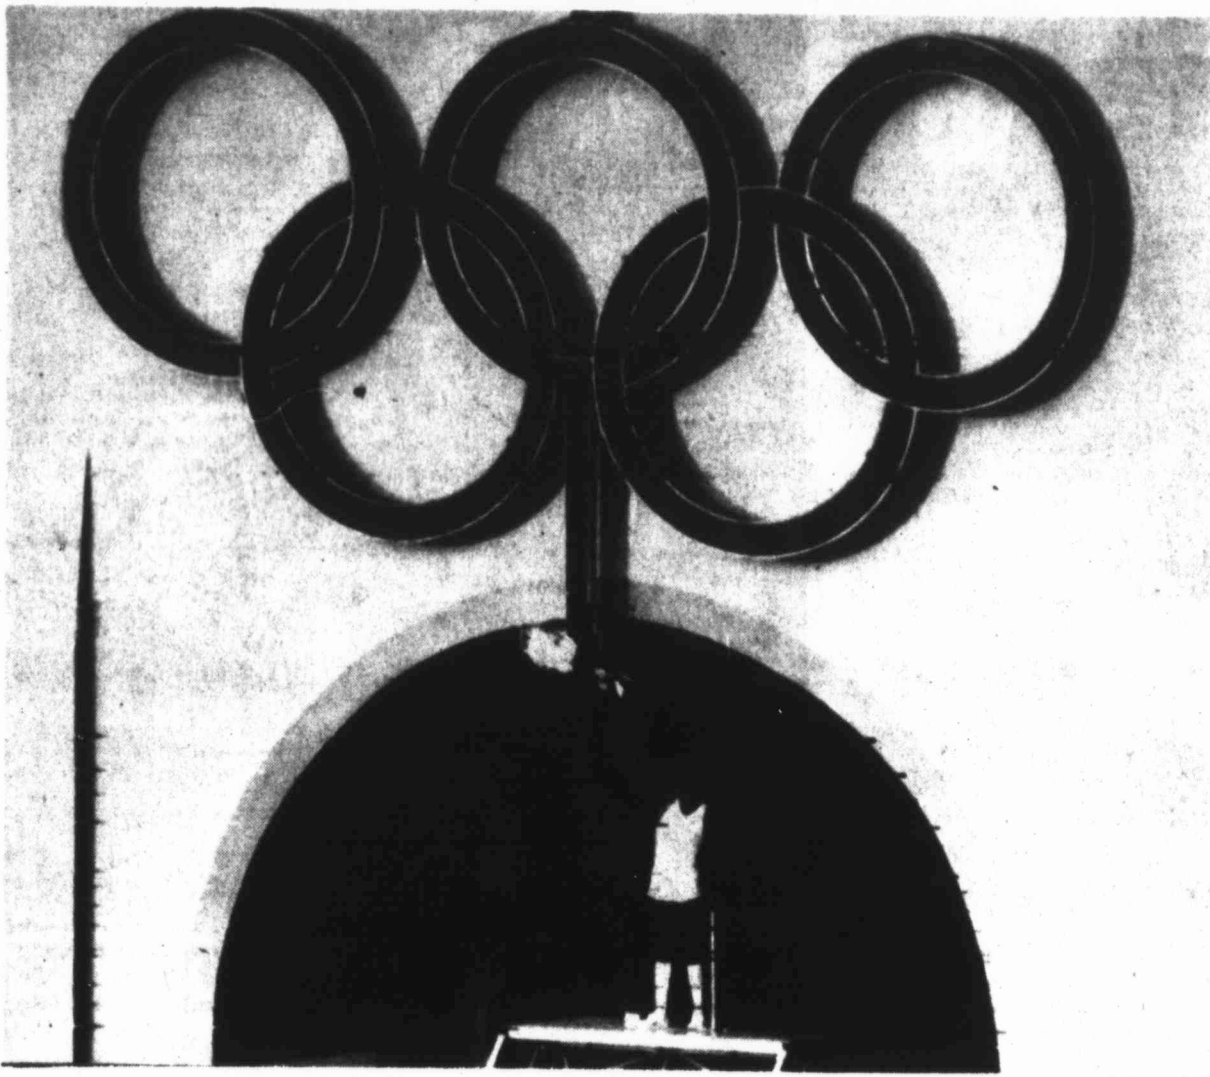

RODEO WOES

The second gripe is about the attendance or rather the lack of it during the Big Spring AJRA Rodeo that ended Saturday night at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl.

Big Spring prides itself on throwing a top notch professional rodeo and during this year's 51st event the stands had a full look to them. Salute to that.

Yet, when hundreds of potential professionals competed over a four night span just like the big boys, the crowds didn't show. Granted, the action was not as high pitched as the pros, and Saturday night was a busy one in Big Spring with the Heart of the City Festival going on, but that does not explain the lack of support at the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday performances.

Those involved with the youth rodeo work just as hard to put their event on as folks working with the professional affair and it's just a shame that their efforts went relatively unnoticed except for a few die-hard rodeo fans, parents and relatives on hand to watch these youngsters go after prizes with the same spirit usually reserved for the pro circuit.

RAFER JOHNSON LIGHTS OLYMPIC TORCH — Rafer Johnson, winner of the gold medal for the decathlon in 1960, lights the Olympic torch during the Olympic Ceremonies of the 23rd Olympiad in Los Angeles Saturday.

Reagan gives pep talk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An opulent Hollywood production with a former actor-turned-president, a cast of thousands, a world-wide audience and one mystery guest officially opened the 1984 Summer Olympics Saturday.

The stage was the Los Angeles Coliseum, where 90,000 people jammed in for the opening ceremonies. President Reagan delivered the welcome message of just 17 words, and 7,800 athletes from 140 countries marched during the 3½-hour extravaganza.

The huge crowd was strangely silent as the ceremonies approached. Then, the silence was shattered as church bells throughout the city pealed in honor of the Games of the XXIII Olympiad.

The Olympic flame, which crisscrossed the country in a 9,000-mile, 82-day journey, completed its journey as 1960 decathlon champion Rafer Johnson lit the Olympic Torch to officially open the Games.

The ceremonies followed an emotional "Win-One-for-the-Gipper" speech by Reagan to the 614 U.S. athletes.

In response, America's team clapped, snapped pictures, climbed atop each other's shoulders and roared with approval when Reagan made his plea to "do it for the Gipper."

"This was not just for us, it was for the whole country and for our way of life," said shooter William Beard. "I really hadn't thought about it, but I immediately knew what he was talking about."

The opening ceremonies were the biggest show this part of the world has ever seen and was made possible by commercial enterprise, which will reap the Los Angeles Olympic Committee millions of dollars in profit.

It included 120 trumpeters, 750 marching band members, 270 jitters, 153 flower girls, 12 pigeons releasers for 2,500 pigeons, the largest video board in the world, 1,700 ethnic paraders, a 1,000-member choir, 84 piano players and 1,065 balloons.

They were also made possible, in part, by television, which has turned a once unique, intimate athletic event into a mammoth, expensive enterprise.

The 1984 Games will be seen on television by 2.5 billion people, according to ABC, which paid $225 million for the rights to the Games.

Most conspicuous in their absence were athletes from the Soviet Union, whose countries boycotted the Games.

The mayor of the previous host city — in this case Moscow — has always delivered the flag to the mayor of the new host city. Not this time.

The skies were sunny, the air relatively free of smog for the Olympic kickoff. There was no rain in sight, and forecasters said athletes will have generally good quality on Sunday when the first nine medals will be won, when the first 12 events take place.

In a prelude to the 1988 Olympics, which will be held in Seoul, the torch, carried by two-time gold medalist Sammy Lee and 1936 marathon gold medalist Son Key Jung, went through the city's Koreatown Friday night.

Reaching back to his movie career, Reagan paraphrased a line from "Knute Rockne — All American" in which he played Notre Dame football star George Gipp, who died before a key game.

"So when you're out there, set your sights high... then go for it," Reagan urged.

"Do it for yourself, for your families, for your country. And if I may be a bit presumptuous, do it for the Gipper. God bless you," he said.

"No matter what political persuasion, no matter what race or religion, no matter if poor, middle class or affluent... when you are out there competing, you are our team."

R-ride allows cowboy to win pair of honors

David Isso was issued a reride in the 16-19-year old boys bull riding competition at the Big Spring AJRA Rodeo's final performance Saturday night and the Powderly cowboy made the most of his second chance by scoring a 73 to win his age division.

Isso's first bull of the night stopped midway through the ride and in the estimate of the judges, Isso didn't receive a fair shake, hence the re-ride and the bull riding title. Prior to trying bulls, Isso marked a 66 in bareback riding to earn that championship as well.

Saturday's final and fourth go-round was a record setting one in fact with eight other competitors bettering marks of the previous three performances to win championships. Another mark was tied.

Stephanie Powers totaled 4.5 in girls 12 and under breakaway roping to take first from Becky Jones' 4.7.

Lari Dee Guy won Saturday's 13-15 breakaway in 3.8, but had to settle for third overall to Kate Phinzy's 3.0 and LaDawn Puckett's 3.1.

Teresa Harp of Venus was the girl's 16-19 breakaway champ in 2.3, bettering Julie Sanders' 2.8 set in Friday's slack.

Lex Christie of Big Spring won the final go-round in boys 12 and under breakaway, but his 5.5 didn't get him in the top three. Those honors went to Jay Chambers with a 3.5, Jeff Hilton in 4.7 and Adam Clayton in 5.1.

Shawn McMullin of Iraan tied Rusty Young's 2.0 in the 13-15 breakaway.

Kristie Taylor of Big Spring, who may be bound for the Howard College rodeo team, raced the 16-19 girls barrels course in 17.09 to take first and push the previous first place time of Wendy Wardlaw to second (17.62).

Boys 13-15-year old bull riding was marred by two injuries before Bryan Davis was able to make his ride and score a 66 to tie John Pierce for a share of the championship.

Jamie Bean took the 12 and under girl's goat tying event in a time of 15.7, setting previous leader Stacy Henson to second in 17.2.

Sandra Harp won the 13-15 goat tying in 12.4 while her sister Teresa won the 16-19 division in 11.7.

Pole bending got two new champions also on the final night when Stephanie Powers raced the 12 and under course in 21.24, putting Robin Jones in second at 21.63; and when Anna Balch clocked 21.29 in the 13-15 competition.

Stephanie's sister Rebecca almost made it a family sweep when s was timed in 21.20 for the 16-19 girls. That time came up second, however to Wendy Wardlaw's 20.71.

GUNNED DOWN — St. Louis Cardinals catcher Darrell Porter puts the tag on Pittsburgh Pirates Marvell Wynne for the final out of the first inning as Wynne tried to come home from third when Bill Madlock was caught in a rundown between first and second in a Saturday afternoon game won by St. Louis, 5-1.

Hogeboom tosses long strike during Cowboys scrimmage

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Gary Hogeboom, locked in a sometimes controversial quarterback duel with Danny White, fired a 60-yard touchdown pass to Ron Springs to highlight the Dallas Cowboys' annual intrasquad scrimmage Saturday.

Hogeboom's touchdown pass to Springs was one of the few offensive bright spots of the scrimmage, which was won by the defense.

The scrimmage was based on a scoring system that awarded points for first downs, stopping drives, interceptions and recovered fumbles, in addition to touchdowns, extra points and field goals.

Hogeboom, who is trying to win the starting quarterback job from White, completed only four out of 15 passes for 115 yards and one interception. White completed nine of 16 for 60 yards and one touchdown, while rookie signal-caller Steve Pelluer connected on six of 11 throws for 69 yards.

Timmy Newsome led the rushing attack with 54 yards on nine carries, including a 9-yard touchdown run. Tony Dorsett carried six times for 46 yards, including a 26-yard gain.

Pirates can't hold Cards, 5-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andy Van Slyke belted a two-run homer during a four-run St. Louis seventh inning and Danny Cox pitched eight strong innings as the Cardinals defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 Saturday.

Willie McGee, in his second game since coming off the disabled list, had a pair of singles, scored twice and singled home the tie-breaking run for the Cardinals, who beat the Pirates for the eighth time without a loss this season.

With the score tied 1-1, Tito Landrum opened the Cardinals' seventh with a double. Loser Jose DeLeon, 6-7, retired the next two batters. McGee then singled to right field, snapping the tie, before Van Slyke hammered his fifth homer of the season over the right-field wall.

Terry Pendleton chased DeLeon with a single and scored on Darrell Porter's double.

Cox, 5-8, came within an inning of the first complete game of his two-season, 30-game major-league career. He allowed seven hits over the first eight innings but gave way to Bruce Sutter after Johnny Ray and Lee Mazzilli opened the Pittsburgh ninth with singles. Sutter went on to record his 25th save.

The Cardinals quickly jumped on DeLeon when McGee opened the game with an infield hit, continued to second on shortstop Dale Berra's throwing error and scored on Pendleton's single.

The Pirates tied it in the third when Marvell Wynne led off with a double, was sacrificed to third and scored on Bill Madlock's groundout when third baseman Pendleton, who appeared to have a play at the plate, elected to throw to first.

CUBS 11

METS 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Durham singled home the go-ahead run and Ron Cey, Ryne Sandberg and Henry Cotto each drove in a pair as the Chicago Cubs broke a tie with eight runs in the eighth inning Saturday to beat New York 11-4 and shatter the Mets' seven-game winning streak.

Major Leagues

The victory pulled Chicago within 3½ games of the National League East-leading Mets, who had won six of their seven straight by one run. When the Mets, who trailed 3-0 after 4½ innings, pulled into a 3-3 tie in the seventh, it looked like another close one.

But with five unearned runs among the eight they scored in the eighth, the Cubs made it a rout. Sandberg started the big inning with a walk off reliever Doug Sisk, 1-4, who came on after starter Ron Darling was lifted for a pinch hitter.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Welch, exiled to the Los Angeles bullpen for two weeks, fired a two-hitter Saturday — singles by Gary Redus in the first and ninth innings — and the Dodgers nipped the Cincinnati Reds 1-0.

Redus singled cleanly to start the game and singled again with one out in the ninth after Welch had retired 22 batters in a row after walks to Dave Parker and Duane Walker to start the second inning.

Welch, 7-11, who brought a 4.18 earned run average into the contest, snapped a personal four-game losing streak with his first victory since June 22. He struck out eight.

The Dodgers broke a 21-inning scoreless drought with an unearned run in the sixth on Mike Marshall's sacrifice fly. Dave Anderson led off with a double and was sacrificed to third by Ed Amelung, playing his first major-league game. Amelung was safe at first when second baseman Ron Oester dropped the throw at first. One out later Marshall's short sacrifice fly to left scored Anderson.

RANGERS 5

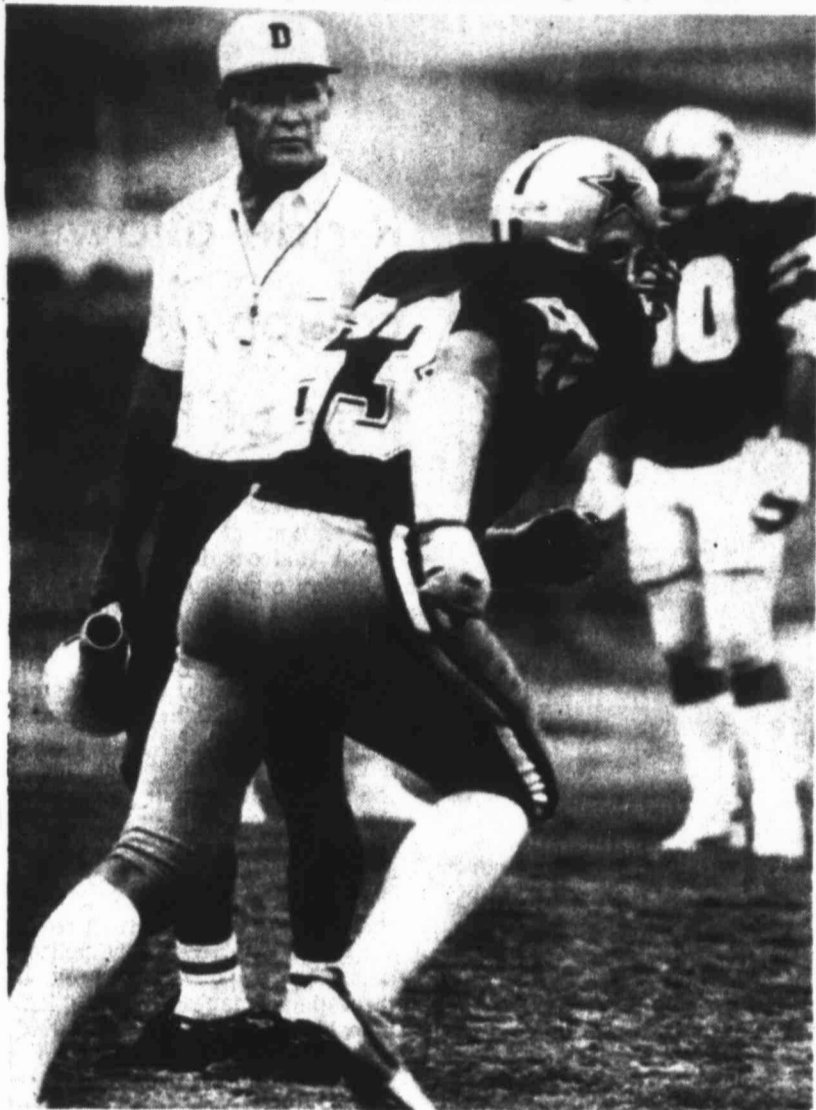

BLUE JAYS 4

TORONTO (AP) Larry Parrish hit a two-run homer and Pete O'Brien added a solo shot as the Texas Rangers topped Toronto 5-4 Saturday night to extend the Blue Jays' losing streak to six.

Mike Mason, 7-9, allowed only three singles in 4 1-3 innings after taking over in the fifth. Dave Schmidt finished up after Mason was struck on the shin by a Jesse Barfield line drive in the ninth inning. He gained his sixth save.

Texas opened the scoring in the first on O'Brien's 13th home run of the season, off Toronto starter Luis Leal.

The Blue Jays tied it in the bottom of the inning when Willie Upshaw doubled home Dave Collins, who had singled and stolen second.

TEXAS PRO COACHES — Two coaches with contrasting styles are Dallas Cowboys Tom Landry (left) and Houston Oilers Hugh Campbell. Landry begins his 25th season in Dallas as the only coach the Cowboys have ever had and he runs a tight training camp. Campbell is set to start only his first year with the Oilers and approaches training camp with a little looser style than his forerunner, Ed Biles. The Cowboys are coming off a 12-4 season while the Oilers suffered a 2-14 fate in 1983.

State's best in limelight at convention

Education reforms will be discussed

HOUSTON (AP) — Some of the state's top schoolboy football and basketball talent will be on display this week at the 52nd annual meeting of the Texas High School Coaches Association, billed as the world's largest convention of coaches with more than 8,200 expected to attend.

The all-star basketball game in the University of Houston's Hofheinz Pavilion on Wednesday night and the all-star football game Thursday night in the Astrodome are the highlights of the annual convention.

Coaches and athletic directors also will have a chance to hear from State Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, regarding new eligibility requirements for high school athletes. Haley is chairman of the House Education Committee that approved stiffer academic requirements contained in a bill signed into law by Gov. Mark White at a recent special session. The new rules take effect Jan. 1.

Frank Arnold, head coach of defending Class 5A state football champion Converse Judson, will direct the South All-Stars, who won last year's game 16-14 at Fort Worth.

Arnold will have a talented offensive lineup that includes quarterbacks Shannon Kelley, Spring Branch Memorial; Mark Motley, Ore City; and Scott Ankrom, San Antonio Jay. All plan to attend Southwest Conference schools this fall.

Oklahoma State-bound Thurman Thomas of Fort Bend Willowridge and Italy's Jimmy Shelby will lend run support to the South squad. Shelby is among the top rushers in Texas schoolboy history with 5,898 career yards.

The North will be coached by L.D. Bell's Tim Edwards, whose 1982 Blue Raiders posted a 14-1-1 record and lost in the state title game.

Blue chip offensive tackle David Richards, 6-5, 300, from Highland Park, will anchor the North line. Richards, highly decorated with post season honors, plans to attend Southern Methodist.

The North also has blue chip runners in Odessa's Charles Hunter and Odessa Permian's Britt Hager, both of whom will play for the University of Texas this fall.

The North leads the football series 27-14.

Tony Mauldin of 1983 Class 2A state champion Morton will coach the North basketball All-Stars, who won last year's game 91-86 and hold a 20-18 lead in the series.

The North will be led by Darrell Mitchell, 6-2, who averaged 19.4 points per game last season when Bryan won its second consecutive state title, and Cole Winburn of Pampa, who scored 1,341 career points for the Panhandle school.

Paul Benton, whose Houston Madison teams have won district titles each year since 1977, will coach the South All-Stars, keyed by forwards Tom Grant of Aldine Nimitz and Roger Durden of Flour Bluff.

Grant, who will attend the University of Houston, scored 40 or more points in three games and 30 points or more 18 times last season, finishing with a 28.2 average. Durden averaged 15 points and 11 rebounds in guiding Flour Bluff to back-to-back state tournament appearances.

Key speakers will include Pat Foster of Lamar University and Ned Fowler of Tulane in basketball, and head coach Pat Jones of Oklahoma State and defensive coordinator David McWilliams of Texas-Austin for football.

Seahawks fly by Bucs, 38-0

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Coach John McKay had one word for his Tampa Bay Buccaneers' performance Saturday.

"Disgusting." The Buccaneers picked up where they left off last year by dropping a 38-0 decision to the Seattle Seahawks in the first National Football League exhibition game of 1984.

Dave Krieg hit Byron Walker with a 16-yard touchdown pass and the Seattle Seahawks, last year's surprise team of the NFL, turned four Tampa Bay turnovers into quick touchdowns to run up the largest victory margin in the history of the Hall of Fame game.

"I'm certainly disappointed in losing. Nobody who's ever played this game wants to lose, regardless of the situation," McKay said.

Seattle's victory in the typically sloppy game before 22,250 fans at Fawcett Stadium and improved the American Football Conference's record in the 14-year-old AFC-NFC series to 6-7-1.

Preceding the game, four players were inducted into the Hall of Fame: former Denver and Oakland defensive back Willie Brown, Cleveland offensive lineman Mike McCormack, Washington receiver Charley Taylor and New York Giants defensive lineman Arnie Weinmeister.

Krieg, expected to start at quarterback for Seattle this season after taking the Seahawks to the AFC championship game in 1983, completed five of six passes for 76 yards in the first quarter, including a 24-yarder to Charlie Young that set up the slant-in touchdown pass to Walker.

SPORTS HIGHLIGHTS
by Pat Gray

SUMMER ALL-STAR GAME

The idea of baseball all-star games was conceived in 1933 by Arch Ward, the Chicago Tribune sports editor. To give fans a real rooting interest, Ward suggested that they be allowed to vote for their favorite players via popular ballot. In perhaps no other game do fans have such a rooting interest, although there have been a few periods when voting by fans was abandoned. Some memorable moments have taken place in this contest that is often referred to as the Mid-Summer Dream Game. In the first game ever played, Babe Ruth slugged a towering home run. The next year, New York Giants immortal Carl Hubbell struck out Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in succession.

OPEN HOUSE ALL DAY

From The Way It Was...

It all started on the corner of Goliad and 3rd Street in 1931 when Alvin opened a service station. In 1933, it became an Oldsmobile dealership.

Seated on the 1902 Olds Scout are Alvin Shroyer, Sonny Shroyer, and Col. Spence. Standing at Alvin's right is Vallie Shroyer, Alvin's wife and office manager.

To The Way It Is...

In 1960 Alvin's son, joined the organization and today oversees much of the operation, along with his wife Shirley. Employees include Bob Daily, Calvin Davis, Don Van Dyken, Leo Escovedo, Adam Flores, Kent Lauderdale, Miguel Mata, Sonya Worthan and J.C. Yarbrough.

Today the plant has spread from the corner location to take in a quarter of a block on each side of the street on Goliad between 3rd and 4th Streets.

Today the most prominent people still prefer the luxury and dependability of the Oldsmobile!

Natchez girl visits the Carrs

The ROBBY CARRS had an interesting guest at their home for a couple of weeks recently. She is KATHRYN HICKS of Natchez, Miss., the 11-year-old friend of the KELLY CARR.

Kelly and Kathryn have been friends since they were five years old and classmates in Natchez, the Carrs' former home. Kathryn is a member of the Junior Pilgrimage Garden Club in Natchez, an auxiliary of the Pilgrimage Garden Club for young girls. The Pilgrimage and the Natchez Garden Clubs are not concerned with gardening as one would think. They are interested in the restoration of more than 100 antebellum mansions in Natchez.

The club's members are the elite in Natchez who's heritage can be traced to Natchez community before Civil War times, says Kelly's mother BRENDA CARR. "In Natchez, when they talk about before the war, they don't mean World War II. They mean the Civil War."

Before the war, many Natchez plantation owners were not pro-slavery, nor were they abolitionists. They fought for the South, but didn't believe in slavery and would free slaves. Natchez had more millionaires per capita before the war than any other place in the United States.

During the Civil War, Natchez received only minor damage; therefore, more than 500 antebellum structures stand today as survivors of the era. The homes are open for tourists and have hostesses describing each room and its antiques. Many antiques are the original furnishings in the home, and most of the homes are lived in by descendants of the original owners.

Kathryn's main duty when she joined the Junior Pilgrimage Garden Club was to sit out on the front steps of the mansions. Tourists would take pictures of her in her antebellum costume and pantaloons. Now that she's older, she has her own room to host and describe.

Many movies have been filmed in Natchez because the beauty of the old South is still there. Kathryn was the double for BRIDGET ANDERSON, the star of "Savannah Smiles," in one episode of "The Mississippi," a television show starring RALPH WAITE. Kathryn worked with ROBERT REED, who was her father in the episode. She was impressed with how down to earth the actors were and had a great time working with them. She would take Bridget home so they could play together when they were not filming or being tutored. Kathryn taught Bridget how to say words with a Southern accent.

Kathryn's father, a food wholesaler and meat distributor, often sells food to the caterers feeding the movie crew. Between being a mansion hostess and a food wholesaler's daughter, Kathryn has many opportunities to be an extra in movies.

KEN AND ALENE OLSEN have recently returned from an extended vacation. They visited their son and his family, the REV. AND MRS. RICK OLSEN in Little Rock, Ark., then went on to Greensboro, N.C. There they attended a four-day national convention of the American Business Club where Ken was installed as governor of District 6A. The Olsens also went sightseeing in Washington, D.C., and then on to the Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Sounds like they had a wonderful trip.

Several people from Big Spring went to Water Wonderland for the Dancin U.S.A. film and to meet country-western singer LEE GREENWOOD recently. Those participating in the filming were: ANGIE DOMINGUEZ, ANTHONY DOMINGUEZ, RAYMOND DOMINGUEZ, BILLY DOMINGUEZ, TERRY DON MARTINEZ, SANDRA MARTINEZ, ADELA GUITERREZ, ANNA GUITERREZ, JUNIOR GUITERREZ, ROGER RIVERA, JOSIE RIVERA, ROBIN RIVERA, VICKI RODRIGUEZ and ERNEST RODRIGUEZ.

Greenwood sings the song "I.O.U.," which the Rodriguezes had played at their wedding. The show is expected to air in August.

Angie Dominguez has had a lot of luck this summer. Not only was she in Dancin U.S.A., she was a runner-up in the senior division of the Starlight Specials by singing "Over the Rainbow." She will be in Meistersingers at Big Spring High School this fall.

LILLIAN HINOJOS, who won the trip to the MICHAEL JACKSON concert, said the concert was "excellent. There's never been anything like it, fireworks included."

ERNESTINE "ERNE" FOWLER flew to Oregon to attend a family reunion recently. It was the family's first reunion since World War II, 37 years ago. All that is left in the family are first cousins, so she visited cousins that she has not seen in 37 years. Even though they had not seen each other in so long, they were able to recognize each other.

She visited ELMA LUTZ of Philomath, Ore. and Mrs. Lutz's son, CHESTER LUTZ of Seattle. She saw many parts of Oregon, Washington and Northern California. She said it was so green and flowers everywhere. She had pleasant days and cool nights.

She also visited MRS. HELEN WILLIAMS and her family near the Crater Lake and beach in Oregon. She was excited about standing in snow on July 8. Later she flew into Denver and met her husband, HERSHEL FOWLER. They visited his brother and wife, MR. AND MRS. WALLACE FOWLER of Denver.

Did you know that MISS TEXAS, TAMARA HEXT, will be coming to Big Spring for three days, Aug. 6-8. She will be here for J.W. Charde's grand opening. Until next week...

Adult sitter clinic planned

by Naomi Hunt
County Extension Agent

Care of the elderly is rapidly becoming a national crisis. The 65 plus age group is growing rapidly (between 1900 and 1980 this group tripled), but a subgroup who are affected by the most illness — those 75 and over has grown nearly 40% in the last 10 years.

Advances in medical technology have made it possible for victims of heart attacks, strokes and broken bones to survive and live for many years in a sometimes impaired condition. Chronic illnesses often produce the greatest hardship on families of older adults, and nearly 40% of those 65 and over suffer from some chronic disability.

The Adult Sitter Program can provide the answer to problems:

- 1) Sitters offer in-home care of frail or ill elderly who do not require full time professional nursing care.
- 2) Being an adult sitter provides employment for mature adults who have few salable job skills.

There currently is a shortage of trained sitters in Howard County. To answer this need, the Family Living Committee and Howard County Extension Service is sponsoring a 4-day Adult Sitter Clinic August 27-30 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day at Westside Community Center. A registration fee of $5 per participant will cover cost of materials.

The clinic will cover:

- Role and Responsibilities of an Adult Sitter
- Human Relations and Practical Psychology
- The Aging Process
- Communication Skills
- Understanding Grief and Loss
- Physical Care
- Adapting to Various Job Environments
- Physical Care
- Adapting to Various Job Environments
- Coping with Stress on the Job
- Local Job Environment

Clinic participants will learn skills to supplement their incomes by working as adult sitters or more adequately care for frail and ill family members.

To register as a clinic participant or for more information, contact the County Extension Office.

MRS. MARK LEWIS

Snell-Lewis

The wedding vows of Laurie Snell to Mark Lewis were solemnized Saturday evening in a ceremony at Midway Baptist Church. Dr. Rick Davis, pastor, officiated at the ceremony before three brass candelabra, two purple flower trees, a kneeling bench and unity candle.

Bridal attendant figurines were on the stairways, and the cake was topped by a handblown glass ornament featuring bells and swans.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a purple cloth over a white cloth. It featured a double-ribbed German Chocolate Cake decorated with frosted grapes. All cakes were made by the bride's mother.

Weddings

MRS. THOMAS M. ABBOTT

MRS. TOBY REID BRYANT

Staggs-Abbott Duffer-Bryant

Marcia Gayle Staggs became the bride of Thomas Michael Abbott during a ceremony, July 21 at First United Methodist Church in San Angelo. The Rev. Charles Johnson, associate pastor, officiated the 7 p.m. rite before a white arch with greenery and baby's breath. Two seven-branch candelabra centered the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin T. Staggs of Big Spring. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon T. Abbott of Tyler.

Dorothy Howard, organist, and Joe Kenady, vocalist and guitarist, provided music. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of chiffon with fitted Chantilly lace bodice, a Victorian neckline and sheer yoke with lace caple sleeves over long chiffon sleeves. The sleeves ended in wide fitted cuffs. The bodice was accented to a point at the waist in front and back and a chiffon cummerbund. A chapel-length two-tiered veil with attached head piece of lace and seed pearls accented the fresh flowers to match the bride's bouquet.

The bride carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and greenery.

Mrs. Caren Greathouse was matron of honor. Jennifer Plyler of Tyler, niece of the bridegroom, and Shelly Staggs of Lubbock, niece of the bride, were flower girls.

Leon Abbott, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ring bearer was Richard Alan Staggs Jr. of San Antonio, nephew of the bride. Mark Smith of Laredo and David Coggins of De Soto were ushers. Jason Staggs of Lubbock, nephew of the bride, was candlelighter.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception at the church's fellowship hall. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth trimmed in royal blue satin ribbons and bows. A three-tiered cake in white and blue, accented with wedding bells and flowers on top, was served. The table was centered by a candelabrum with blue candles, flowers and greenery. The bridegroom's table was covered with brown linen and centered with a brass candle. A banana nut cake with marzipan fruit was served.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, Texas Tech University and North Texas State University. She holds a master's in speech pathology. She is employed by West Texas Rehabilitation Center in San Angelo as a speech pathologist.

The bridegroom is a graduate of De Soto High School and North Texas State University. He has an administrative management degree and is employed by U.S. Insurance Co. in San Angelo as an insurance marketing representative. The couple will live in San Angelo.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidosa and Cloudcroft, N.M., the couple will live in San Angelo.

Lifestyle policies

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcements. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS

Information on engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please, give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS

If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Woman cooks up soap

By JANE GORE
Pine Bluff Commercial

RISON, Ark. (AP) — The ingredients for Louise Dawson's most frequently requested recipe don't sound appetizing: three pounds of beef tallow, three pounds of pork fat and a can of lye.

Mrs. Dawson may spend her days sweating over a hot stove, and her neighbors will see her stirring the contents of an iron pot out by the ood pile, but she isn't cooking up hog jowls and turnip greens — just lye soap. "Out on the farm when I was little, during butchering we always made soap. It was real strong and we used ours for washing dirty tea towels and overalls," she said.

Mrs. Dawson has long since gone beyond her mother's recipe for lye soap. "I've always been allergic to soap, and I had heard of people making their own soap. That's how I got into soap-making," she said.

Mrs. Dawson saw an advertisement requesting a recipe for homemade facial soap and decided to try making her own. "I contacted the Extension Service — I think it was called home management then — and got a recipe," she said. But her family wouldn't even use it. Her babysitter was the first to try it.

After 16 years of making soap, Mrs. Dawson has learned some tricks: May is her favorite soap-making month because of the temperatures; she puts plastic over her soap so that she doesn't have to scrape off the soda-ash residue; and she not only leaves the glycerin in her soaps, but adds more. Glycerin is often removed from commercial soaps, she said. "The basic recipe is on the lye can," she said. "The secret is practice."

Mrs. Dawson has developed a reputation for her soaps, which are now sold throughout the state through the Ozark Foothills Arts and Craft Guild. She gets mail from all over the country requesting soap, some of it addressed simply to the "Soap Lady."

Mrs. Dawson believes that her homemade soaps, which are mild, are good for the skin, scalp conditions, and even useful in warding off the itchy rashes of poison ivy.

"Mother used to say 'I don't see why you want to waste your time making soap,' but now she goes to visit back East and takes a basket of soap to give as presents."

Miss Snell honored at luncheon

Laurie Snell, bride-elect of Mark Lewis, was honored with a bridesmaid luncheon at the home of Becky Key, July 27. The event was hosted by Marie Ethridge.

Attending the luncheon were bride attendants, Donna James, Robin Ethridge, Linda Holland, Brandi Cooley and Robin Key.

Bridesmaids were presented strings of white pearls.

Also attending the luncheon were Peggy Snell, mother of the bride-elect, J.D. Cooley, bride-elect's grandmother, Dixie Corthron and Joan Davis.

The couple was wed Saturday at Midway Baptist Church with Dr. Rick Davis, pastor, officiating.

Body defends weight level

Despite the millions of dollars spent each year on reducing efforts, at least 25 percent of the population has trouble controlling its weight, according to a nutritionist.

Dr. Gilbert Leveille, director of nutrition and health sciences for General Foods, says the body sabotages efforts to lose weight by defending its setpoint, or constant weight level.

"Hunger pangs develop and the metabolic rate slows to burn fewer calories," Leveille says. "You have to increase your metabolic rate to lower your setpoint. Exercise is the only way to do it."

Wedding

Cook-Baker

The First United Methodist Church in Stanton was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Kimberly Sue Cook and Lester Gene Baker. The Rev. Lennox Hester, pastor, officiated at the 6 p.m. rite before the altar area flanked by a heart-shaped arch. The arch was decorated with greenery and was centered by spiral candelabra with white candles, pink gladioli and pink carnations. A unity candle completed the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cook of Stanton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ben Baker of Stanton.

Alan Dickey, pianist and vocalist, Reggie Baker, guitarist and vocalist, and Kim Carstensen, vocalist, provided music. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a formal gown of pale ivory chiffon, schiffli embroidery and Venice lace. The empire bodice was covered in silk Venice lace and featured a Queen Anne neckline. The shadow sleeves had Venice lace on the inset sleeves. The sleeves ended in wide cuffs, trimmed in matching lace. Schiffli lace circled the A-line skirt. Venice lace and schiffli embroidery made the detail at the center front skirt. Lace edged the hem and matching cathedral-length train. The bride also wore her grandmother's pearls, carried a ruby lavalier in her bouquet, wore a new wedding gown and a blue garter in order to keep with tradition.

The bride carried a cascade of Japhetp orchids, pink roses, baby's breath and ivy atop her satin-covered childhood Bible.

Ann Frough of Stanton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Lesa Louder of Stanton and Kara Cook of Stanton, niece of the bride, were bridesmaids. Penny Baker, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Albert H. Baker of Stanton, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Reggie Baker of Beaumont, brother of the bridegroom, and Allen Prough of Stanton, nephew of the bride, were groomsmen. Robert Quaid of Stanton and Scott Hull of Stanton were ushers. Ring bearers were Nathan Cook and Brady Cook, nephews of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored at a reception in the church's Fellowship Hall. The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake topped with crystal love birds beneath a heart-shaped arch, which is decorated with ivy. Clusters of pink blossoms adorned the cake. The table was

MRS. LESTER GENE BAKER covered with ivory imported lace from Germany. It was centered with a silver candelabrum decorated with pink roses. The bridegroom's table was covered with an ivory cloth and featured a German chocolate cake.

The bride graduated from Stanton High School and attended Midland College. The bridegroom graduated from Grady High School and attended Angelo State University and Texas Tech University. He is employed by Cap Rock Electric in Stanton.

Following a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple will live in Stanton.

Blood donor day held at hospital

Malone and Hogan's blood donor day will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Malone-Hogan Hospital's first floor classroom at 1601 W. 11th Place, Monday. The public may participate.

"We're encouraging our gallon donors and other hospital and clinic employees who've been donating blood regularly to recruit non-medical friends or relatives to donate blood," said Shirleen Brown, Malone-Hogan Clinic's director of nursing.

"It's especially important to pick up extra donors because many Malone-Hogan employees, who can always be counted on to give blood, have been required to lay out of the program temporarily." Mrs. Brown explained that exposure to hepatitis has disqualified several hospital and clinic donors for six months.

The United Blood Services will conduct the blood drive. The San Angelo-based agency collects and distributes blood through a 23-county, 27,600 square mile area that includes Big Spring. Harold Brown, executive director of United Blood Services, assures first time donors that it is not a painful undertaking.

"There's a psychological problem we encounter with people who have never donated," said Brown. "They remember times they've had blood taken for medical tests. That blood was drawn out. It hurt."

"When you donate blood it's not like that. We allow normal body function plus gravity to pump out the blood. It is not drawn or sucked out. The only pain is the initial breaking of the skin — just a slight, very brief twinge.

For additional information, potential blood donors may call Shirleen Brown at Malone and Hogan Clinic, 267-6361; or Jeanne Brown at Malone-Hogan Hospital, 263-1211.

Dr. Donohue

What is muscle pain?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As the old saying goes, "no pain, no gain." Right? I recently started an exercise program and was very sore after the first day of it. I was wondering if the exercising should be continued while I'm still sore or should I wait for the soreness to go away? By the way, I am a 20-year-old female. — A.B.

No pain, no gain? It's true to the extent that anyone who exercises untrained muscles will feel some soreness the next day. That's a sign of gain (conditioning for them). There are many explanations for why this happens. One is that the exercise has torn muscle fibers microscopically. When muscle is damaged it releases enzymes. As proof of that "damage," muscle enzyme levels in the blood rise eight to 24 hours after strenuous exercise. A second explanation has to do with swelling. Intense exercise causes fluid accumulation and that may squeeze nerves, causing pain. And a third explanation is that tears occur in the connective tissue sheaths around the muscle. So with all these things happening, there is bound to be pain when you first begin a program. Some find that gentle stretching helps relieve muscle spasm that goes hand-in-hand with pain. Warm showers and delicate massages help, too. And warming up before and cooling down after exercises are preventatives to combat soreness the next day. Cooling down means continuing an activity at an easy rate after the strenuous phase — for 10 to 15 minutes after.

What about continuing with soreness? You should not exercise vigorously if you are sore. You have to give muscles and tissues time to repair themselves, which they will do. Have you read about the day-on-day-off plan? This is one reason for it, at least until your muscles have adapted. Then you'll notice fewer days of soreness.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I twisted my knee while skiing but I didn't seek medical attention. The next day it felt a little better, so I didn't bother. But now it still isn't back to normal. It hurts when I turn the lower part of my leg from side to side or if I try to pull on a tight boot. I get a sharp grabbing pain on the inside of my leg at the knee. Would this be a tendon injury, or a muscle, or what? Will time heal it? Is heat or cold best? — J.B.G.

J., my friend, you are not exactly in the immediate post-injury help stage, where heat or cold should be discussed. There are seven ligaments, two cartilages, three bones, and many muscles and tendons around the knee joint. Which of these structures you damaged and to what degree is not for me to guess about, but I can tell you a possibility. The most frequently injured knee structures are the medial collateral ligament and the anterior cruciate ligament, both of which are on the inner part of the knee, where your injury appears to be. The setting for such an injury is a sudden twist of the body while the foot is anchored firmly in place by an unyielding boot. Football cleats are often involved in this kind of injury, but I can easily imagine it happening during skiing. In six weeks, minor ligament damage heals. You must see a doctor now to find out the true nature of your injury.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains."

Wedding

Dirks-Potvin

Barbara Jean Dirks of Artesia, N.M. became the bride of Laurence James Potvin of Benson, Ariz. in a ceremony held July 12 at St. Bernadette Catholic Church in Albuquerque, N.M. The Rev. Juan Montoya, pastor of St. Helen's Catholic Church in Portales, N.M., officiated at the 4 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Dirks Jr., 1735 Purdue. The bridegroom is the son of Margaret Potvin of Albuquerque, N.M. and the late Louis Potvin.

The couple exchange vows before an altar decorated with two large potted weeping figs and lighted altar tapers. Suzanne Dawson of Albuquerque, pianist, provided music. Readings were given by Mary Quillin of Mesquite, sister of the bride, and Don Mac Eachen of Grants, N.M. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. The bridegroom was escorted to the altar by his mother.

The bride wore a candlelight dress knitted by her mother. The two-piece dress of French imported acrylic and mohair yarn was fashioned with an all-over chevron pattern on the peplum, cuffs of her sleeves and skirt. The dress featured a rounded neckline, long sleeves edged with a ruffle, and a belted waistline with peplum extending over the waist-length skirt. She also wore a strand of pearls her mother wore at her wedding and a cloche style pearl cap on her head.

The bride carried a white prayer book that belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Kathryn Taylor of Quitaque and Mary Quillin of Mesquite, sisters of the bride, were matrons of honor. Frank Nymeyer of Loving, N.M. was best man. Don Mac Eachen of Grants, N.M. was groomsmen. Ushers were Gary Potvin of Hobbs, N.M., brother of the bridegroom, and Louis Potvin of Lubbock, twin brother of the bridegroom.

The couple was feted at a dinner and dance at the Elks Lodge in Albuquerque that evening. Music was provided by the WDC band. All tables were decorated with white and peach cloths with white lace overlays. The head table was decorated with greenery and two white doves. The bride's table featured a three-tiered white apple spice cake decorated with salmon colored roses on top and cascading down one side. The bridegroom's table featured a chocolate cake fashioned with an convertible with a bride and bridegroom riding away and the couple's names and wedding date.

Servers were Joan Schlosser of Los Alamos, N.M. and Diann List of Albuquerque, N.M.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Eastern

MR. AND MRS. LAURENCE J. POTVIN

New Mexico State University in Portales, N.M. She has a degree in music therapy and elementary music education. She was a teacher in the Artesia, N.M. school system for the last three years and has accepted a position in the Pomerene, Ariz. school as an elementary music teacher.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Tucumcari High School in Tucumcari, N.M. and Eastern New Mexico State University. He has a degree in music. He is band director at the Benson, Ariz. public school system and assists with the school's wrestling program.

Following a wedding trip to points around Las Vegas and Santa Fe, N.M., the couple is making its home in Benson, Ariz.

Dear Abby

Bride's wedding offends old-fashioned friend

DEAR ABBY: A very good friend is planning her wedding and has asked me to be her maid of honor. She's planning a church wedding with all the trimmings, including walking down the aisle in a white wedding gown just like a pure and innocent bride, which she is not. She's presently living with her fiancé.

Most who know her are either laughing at her or criticizing her. This is her first marriage and his second. I told her I couldn't participate in a church wedding because I disapproved of her past conduct and also the kind of wedding she's having.

She is now not speaking to me. This bothers me because we have been best friends since childhood. What do I do now?

PERPLEXED
DEAR PERPLEXED: The fact that you are "bothered" indicates that you may regret your decision. If so, tell your friend.

Perhaps you may not know that a church wedding with all the trimmings is a first-time bride's privilege and is not reserved for virgins only.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing from jail, but I'm not blaming anybody but myself for ending up here. I hope to learn from my mistakes.

I'm writing to help the girl who wrote to you from Seattle. She said her boyfriend said, "If you really love me, you'll prove it by having sex with my friends." You told her to run from that no-good guy, but you didn't explain why.

I've lived on the streets, and I know how young girls become hookers. First they fall in love with a guy they think is nice, but he's a bum who only wants to use them. He says, "If you really love me, you'll have sex with my friends."

The girl doesn't want to lose him, so she has sex with a couple of his friends. What she doesn't know is that the guy she loves is a "pimp" who's training her to become a hooker. Before long, the "boyfriend" puts her out on the street, selling herself to guys, and the boyfriend (pimp) ends up with most of her money.

I've seen this happen to a lot of innocent girls, as young as 14 and 15. Next comes the dope, and pretty soon they're old, worn-out prostitutes before they're 19.

Print this, Abby. It might save a lot of lives.

IN JAIL IN SAN DIEGO
DEAR IN JAIL: Thanks for writing. It's well worth the space in this column.

DEAR ABBY: I write to you in the hope of reaching as many readers as possible. Fixing the drinking age at 21 may make little difference in curbing the number of drunk drivers. But fixing the penalty at permanent license revocation might make a huge difference! Then young people going out for an evening would do as they have done in some foreign countries for many years: knowing that the penalty for drunk driving is permanent license revocation, they draw straws to determine which one shall drink nothing but lemonade and be the driver.

Worth trying?
R.T. GORE,
WOOSTER, OHIO

DEAR R.T.: Yes, I'll drink to that. (You drive.)

R for your garden

Commercial fertilizers available for organic gardeners

Interest in organic gardening is increasing throughout the country, Howard County included, due to concern of publicity of misused or over-used chemicals.

Most soils are in need of some improvement and until recently organic gardeners were quite limited in their sources of non-chemical or natural fertilizers and soil conditioners. Demands of such products has increased to the extent that many companies are now marketing organic fertilizers.

This week I would like to discuss with you some information about these organic fertilizers.

Blood is becoming very rapidly available as an organic fertilizer. It has 10 percent nitrogen and 1.5 percent phosphorus. Fish scrap contains nine percent nitrogen and seven percent phosphorus. Do not confuse fish scraps with fish emulsives. Fish emulsives are generally quite low in fertilizer content.

Bat guano is a substance composed chiefly of decomposed bat manure from caves. It contains six percent nitrogen, nine percent phosphorus, and three percent potassium. Bird guano is partially decomposed bird manure from islands off coast. It contains 13 percent nitrogen, 11 percent phosphorus and three percent potassium.

Kelp or seaweed has one percent nitrogen, 0.5 percent phosphorus and nine percent potassium. Raw bone meal's main value is nitrogen since most of the phosphorus is not soluble. It contains four percent nitrogen and 22 percent phosphorus. Steamed bone meal loses nitrogen as a result of the steaming under pressure. However more phosphorus is soluble for use by plants. It contains two percent nitrogen and 27 percent phosphorus.

Cocoa shell is primarily a conditioner for complete fertilizers. It has 2.5 percent nitrogen, one percent phosphorus and three percent potassium.

Cotton seed is generally very acidic. It is useful in alkaline soils. It contains six percent nitrogen, 2.5

percent phosphorus and two percent potassium. The steam treated and ground hoof and horn material is a rather quickly available source of nitrogen. It contains 14 percent nitrogen.

Although manures in general are low in fertilizer, when used in relatively large amounts to improve soil structure damage may occur because of too much fertilizer. Cattle manure is 0.5 percent nitrogen, 0.3 percent phosphorus and 0.5 percent potassium. Chicken manure is 0.9 percent nitrogen, 0.5 percent phosphorus and 0.8 percent potassium. Horse manure is 0.6 percent nitrogen, 0.3 percent phosphorus and 0.6 percent potassium. Sheep manure is 0.9 percent nitrogen, 0.5 percent phosphorus and 0.8 percent potassium. Swine manure is 0.6 percent nitrogen, 0.5 percent phosphorus and 0.4 percent potassium. Mushroom manure (spent) is one percent nitrogen, one percent phosphorus and one percent potassium. Because of their alkalinity oyster shells are best used for raising pH rather than as a fertilizer. Oyster shells contain 0.2 percent nitrogen and 0.3 percent phosphorus. Reed or sedge peat is best used as a soil conditioner rather than as a fertilizer. It breaks down too rapidly. It contains two percent nitrogen, 0.3 percent phosphorus and 0.3 percent potassium.

Wood ashes are quite alkaline. It is not recommended for use on high pH soils as we have in Howard County. Wood ashes contain two percent phosphorus and six percent potassium.

On Turning Heads

by Gary Don

Since the outer cuticle layer on fine hair is just as tough as on any other hair type, there is no need to forego hair coloring. In fact coloring can help fill out fine hair, both physically and visually. Fine hair that is extremely light, especially when graying, tends to look even thinner. If it is very blonde, thin hair may even look transparent. If it is very dark and sparse, its thinness will be even more obvious. However, these problems of thin hair are easy to correct. Fine hair takes to color more easily than other hair types because each hair is narrower. Also, because less color development time is needed, the risk of damaging the cuticle is significantly reduced.
