The real thing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When Robert Harris was told the soda bottle cap that won him $50 a year ago was now worth 5,000 times that amount, he thought someone was giving him the gas.
"At first I said, 'Yeah, and I've got some land in Florida that I'll give you,'" recalled Harris. "But he finally convinced me. You never expect something like this to happen anyway, and I didn't even know I was in a contest."
When Harris collected his $50 prize in Pepsi-Cola's local game, the bottler had him fill out a form, which last month won him the $250,000 national grand prize.

Fiberflex shareholders oust 5

Rutledges voted out; Christopher gets board seat

CHRIS CHRISTOPHER

Staff reports
Fiberflex Products Inc. shareholders Saturday morning unanimously voted to oust five current board directors — among them corporate president Tom Rutledge — and replaced them with five new members.
Former O.I.L. president Charles "Chris" Christopher was present and spearheaded the special meeting held at the Big Spring Country Club. Tom McCall and Art Loff represented the Rutledge contingency. No Rutledge family members were present at the meeting.

Shareholders also voted to oust W.T. "Woody" Rutledge; Russ Rutledge, corporate executive vice president for marketing; Fred Morrow, corporate vice president for engineering; and Tom Rutledge's brother-in-law, Ronald Leatherman.
The ballot presented to the shareholders contained five candidates' names as successors to replace the exiting directors. Voted in were Christopher, Dean Holland, Jerry Lysaght, Kerry Burks and Al Teeter.

The issue came to a vote despite numerous objections by McCall and Loff on the method used to obtain a quorum and the validity of the proxies cast by Christopher.
Christopher utilized 33 blocks of voting shares of various shareholders to obtain a quorum and also carry the two proposals.
The vote was heavily in favor of removal of the five directors in question, carrying by 335,494 voting shares. No votes were cast against the proposal. The selection of the new members also came by the same vote.

Retired 118th District Court Judge Ralph Caton placed a court order on the 31,500 voting shares controlled by Guy Matthews, company patent attorney, and his proxy Richard Mosely, Friday night. The voting block could not be used for either quorum purposes or be cast during the Saturday meeting.
The Rutledge representatives also objected to the reconvening of a meeting of the board of directors called for Wednesday, citing sufficient notice had not been allowed and the lack of notice of what items

Protesters stage rally at JFK site

Staff and wire reports

DALLAS — Hundreds of chanting protesters including at least one Big Spring resident drawn by the Republican National Convention and advocating a myriad of causes marched from their Tent City campsite Saturday to the Kennedy Memorial downtown for an anti-Reagan rally.
Steve Davis of Big Spring was scheduled to be at the rally.
The demonstrators, carrying colorful cloth and paper banners during their 20-minute, mile-long hike in 101-degree heat, heard Dr. Benjamin Spock offer a prescription for social activism, urging them to vote, write letters, demonstrate and commit acts of civil disobedience.
"Choose what feels right for you. Do it. But more importantly, keep on doing it," said Spock, the baby doctor.
Deputy Dallas Police Chief William Newman, in charge of security during the convention, estimated 1,500 people gathered at the Kennedy Memorial. The application for the group's parade permit was for 4,000 people, he said.
The procession, organized by the Dallas March and Rally Committee, was part of a week of rallies and protests planned by several groups representing a spectrum of opinion, including conservative supporters of President Reagan.
Saturday's group assailed Reagan for his cuts in funding for social service programs and his support of a U.S. presence in Central America.
The protesters broke into about 20 segments during the march, each advocating such causes as nuclear disarmament, gay rights, senior citizens' rights and labor unions.
A sound stage was erected for Saturday's protest next to the four-sided white memorial to President John F. Kennedy, who was assassinated two blocks away in a 1963 motorcade.

CHIEF RICK TURNER

Turner talks

Chief views effects of election

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Under fire for more than a month while voters deliberated whether the city should elect its police chief, Rick Turner broke his silence last week, assessing the impact the election had on his department.
Turner admitted to keeping a low profile during the fray, trying "as much as possible to keep personalities out of the election."
"But if I wasn't an issue, why were bumper stickers printed?" he said, referring to stickers reading "I smell a R.A.T." Turner's full name is Richard Anthony Turner.
He said he was "glad" the election is over, but "somewhat concerned" that many voters cast ballots with an attitude of "let's send a message to City Hall that we're not satisfied."
In fact, Turner said, "The outcome of the election did send a message to the police department and City Hall ... There are at least 1,200 people out there who are not satisfied. Yes, we have some problems and we want to address them."
"There is an outlet there — if people will follow it," said Turner. The city council is "the sounding board for the community. They are elected to respond to problems."
In addition, he said: "Our door is always open for people with suggestions and complaints. If there are ways people think we can be more responsive to the public, I wish they'd tell us."
Turner noted that both interest groups organized during the election called for "unity after the election."
"I could not agree more. We're going to make every effort to bring that about," he said.

However, in addressing the issue of high turnover in his department, Turner said he has "no regrets and no apologies."
Campaign literature from Citizens for a Change charged the police department with losing over 30 officers since Turner took office. The literature said the men had a "cumulative total of over 200 years of experience."
Turner said his department no longer has problems with corruption, brutality or leaks about investigations "since a lot of these ranking officers have left and are not here anymore."
'There are at least 1,200 people out there who are not satisfied. Yes, we have some problems and we want to address them.'

drug traffic in Big Spring.
"We are by no means backing off what we're doing," he said. "We are working as hard and as fast as we can, but these things take time."
He estimated investigations by his department and other state and federal agencies would "take five years to effectively impact the narcotics traffic."
However, Turner said the election had some adverse effects on his department. He said there were "things we were leery of doing because we didn't know how it would affect the outcome of the election."
"Officers were afraid of doing things that were controversial" such as giving traffic tickets to prominent persons, he said.
Currently, Turner said, "that feeling is gone. The officers feel like we're back to operating as effectively and efficiently as before the referendum issue was brought up."
Addressing another issue that emerged in the campaign, Turner said his office is drafting a letter to area magistrates asking them to compile a bonding schedule for misdemeanor cases.
"It's going to take a collective group of individuals to get this together," he said.
Although he said "we are not bending on DWI's or people who are arrested for alcohol-related cases," Turner said the new schedule would include bonds for such cases.
After the person is "sober," they'll be "eligible to make bond," he said.
"The election has nothing but motivated officers," he said. "I know the election has motivated me," he said.

Operation Suez

U.S., British minesweepers go into action

CAIRO — U.S. and British minesweeping forces coursed the Gulf of Suez on Saturday seeking to recover a mine similar to those that have damaged at least 18 ships in the gulf and the Red Sea since last month.

U.S. explosives experts believe the devices are resting on the sea bottom rather than floating on top, according to a military source in Cairo.

Four British minesweepers and a U.S. transport ship carrying minesweeping helicopters were at work Saturday in the Gulf of Suez, according to military sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified.

U.S. experts examined two of the damaged ships and determined that the damage was caused by an external explosion, consistent with that of a mine, said one of the sources.

The experts' initial conclusion was that the mines are resting on the bottom of the sea, rather than floating on top. Because the mines explode deep under water the damage is caused by shock waves, the source said.

The number of ships reported damaged since July 9 rose to 18 on Friday when Lloyd's of London insurance underwriters said it received a belated report of an explosion that occurred on July 28.

Lloyd's said the Esta, a Panamanian vessel, was damaged in the Gulf of Suez, but managed to arrive in Jiddah the next day, as scheduled.

By The Associated Press

Military sources said they are aware of 22 explosions, but not all have damaged ships.

No mines have been found. The British and American were seeking to recover an unexploded mine to help determine who made it and who was responsible for sowing it.

The Egyptian navy is also searching for mines, but its 12 Soviet-built minesweepers are using older techniques aimed at detonating the explosives.

Mines resting on the sea bed may be exploded by one of three methods — by the sound of the ship moving overhead, by its magnetic field or by the change in water pressure. Because no mines have been recovered, experts say they do not know what type of mine was used.

One military source said normal mines containing between about 550 pounds and 1,100 pounds of explosives would be expected to do more damage than that suffered by the 18 ships. That leads specialists to believe the mines are small and may be intended to send a political message rather than destroy shipping, the source said.

Military experts also said mines are readily available for purchase on weapons markets and are relatively simple to build. The mines easily could have been sowed by one ship or several, they said.

In Rome, opposition legislators charged that the mines in the Red Sea had been made in Italy and sold to Libya. They did not furnish any proof. Premier Bettino Craxi's office said there would be no immediate comment on the charge.

Sources said sonar aboard the U.S. oceanographic survey ship Harkness had detected 12 suspicious objects, but divers sent down to investigate found no mines. The waterways are littered with trash that could appear on sonar screens much like a mine, experts said.

U.S. helicopters also were sweeping approaches to the Saudi Arabian port of Jidda, 500 miles from the other British and U.S. forces.

Bomb scare closes TWA

LOS ANGELES — A $35 sculpture that looked like a bomb caused security officers to close the TWA terminal at Los Angeles International Airport on Saturday, until police determined the traveler carrying the device was simply "naive."

Train crash investigated

CHICAGO — Federal safety investigators began an inquiry Saturday into the rush-hour collision of two commuter trains — after one train reported brake trouble — in a crash that killed one person and injured 47.

Nine representatives of the National Transportation Safety Board met with Chicago Transit Authority officials Saturday morning to discuss possible causes of the accident, which occurred around 5 p.m. Friday afternoon rush hour, said authority spokesman Don Yabush.

Fire evacuees return

FLEMINGTON — About 600 people who fled when a fire at a New Jersey plastics warehouse spewed toxic fumes returned home Saturday, but officials warned them to wash vegetables picked from gardens.

There was not much contamination in the air, but runoff from the water used to fight the Friday night blaze contained high levels of chromium and lead, two toxic metals, and smaller amounts of benzene.

Firm fights N-dump stay

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. appealed Saturday to the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn a lower court stay blocking full-power testing at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant.

The Mothers For Peace, representing plant opponents, was asked to file a response to the PG&E petition by Monday. The order to postpone full-power operations at Diablo at least until a hearing in November was issued Friday by a three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Fish take wrong turn, die

AUGUSTA — A giant school of salt-water menhaden apparently took "a wrong turn" into the Kennebec River, killing more than 30,000 of the fish, Maine biologists say.

The porgies were running ahead of feasting bluefish off the Maine coast when parts of the school moved into the mouth of the Kennebec and upstream. The suddenly confined population sapped the river's oxygen supply, he said.

Blackout darkens Oahu

HONOLULU — The entire island of Oahu lost electrical service early today after a transformer explosion and fire at a power plant, officials said, and police asked residents to stay off the streets and conserve water.

The blackout on Oahu, where 80 percent of Hawaii's 1.2 million people live, occurred at about 5:50 a.m. Big Spring time.

Ferraro's husband to divulge taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro, hoping to close out a controversy that dogged the Democratic presidential ticket for a week, said Saturday her husband, John Zaccaro, has changed his mind and will make his income tax returns public on Monday.

Walter F. Mondale, campaigning in Missouri, and Ms. Ferraro, at home in Queens, both said they were "pleased" by Zaccaro's decision, disclosed in a statement.

The returns will be made public at the same time

Ms. Ferraro complies with a federal disclosure law for vice presidential candidates.

Ms. Ferraro said she and her husband, a real estate developer who expressed fear that disclosing tax returns could harm his business, will release information that "goes beyond the requirements of the law."

The vice presidential nominee and her husband had spent nine hours meeting with accountants on Friday.

Reports: Hatfield heavily indebted

WASHINGTON (AP) — An analysis of the personal finances of Sen. Mark Hatfield and his wife, Antoinette, depicts the couple as being heavily indebted in 1982 and 1983 because of substantial real estate investments.

In those years, when Mrs. Hatfield was paid $55,000 by Greek businessman Basil Tsakos, the Hatfields were making combined mortgage and loan payments of $5,000 a month, and usually more, as they bought and sold various properties and took out personal and home improvement loans.

In the past five years, long distance telephone companies have redefined the long distance industry. Here's why:

Competition for the long distance dollar is completely redefining the market. With the breakup of the Bell System on January 1, 1984, the courts ruled that MCI, Sprint, NTS Communications and others could compete equally with AT&T for long distance revenue. Time should eventually bring competition to all communities.

Here's how you can take advantage of this phenomenal growth.

Spring City Rose returns in glory

The city will belong to Rose Magers on Monday. Accolades are in order for the 1978 Big Spring High School graduate whose athletic abilities in volleyball helped bring the silver medal to the U.S. in the Summer Olympics. And accolades there will be, with a full agenda planned on "Rose Magers Day."

Magers may find she's more exhausted Monday night than she was doing twice-a-day practices before the Olympic finals. Her fete begins at 9:30 a.m. with a press conference and moves to three locations — the courthouse lawn, the high school and Malone-Hogan Hospital (where her mother is a long-time employee) — before concluding at 5 p.m.

Her schedule calls for autograph-signing at the courthouse at 10:30 a.m. and caravan-style travel to the high school auditorium. Once there, she will be honored 11 times by dignitaries like U.S. Congressman Charles Stenholm and local government leaders, as well as school officials and the NAACP.

Back in mid-winter, when the Olympics were months off and pressure was building, Magers told the Herald: "All we do is practice, practice, practice. It has to pay off somewhere." Hard work, sacrifice and natural abilities have paid off for Rose Magers. Now it's the community's privilege to help her revel in some of that much-deserved glory.

Steve Chapman

Looking to '88

Consider the afflictions of the two major parties. The Democrats, who have a wealth of promising candidates for the 1988 presidential race, this year have nominated a candidate even they find uninspiring. The Republicans, who expect Ronald Reagan to carry them to a thumping triumph this year, may have great trouble finding a successor.

The Democrats' problem in 1988 (assuming they lose this year) will be in choosing. The pool of attractive men is large — and that says nothing about the women. Geraldine Ferraro, who contemplates a Senate race in 1986 against Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, may have dreams grander than the vice presidency.

The party has plenty of other rising stars. Besides New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo, there are Sens. Bill Bradley of New Jersey, Joseph Biden of Delaware, and Christopher Dodd of Connecticut. Among Democratic mayors, it can count Henry Cisneros, Diane Feinstein, Wilson Goode and Andrew Young, though they are really vice presidential material. No mayor has ever moved from City Hall to the White House in one leap.

If North Carolina Gov. James Hunt and Tennessee Rep. Albert Gore Jr. make it to the U.S. Senate, they sooner or later will demand consideration. And plenty of seasoned veterans are available, like Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson and Edward Kennedy.

On the Republican side, though, things look bleak. The GOP's obvious prospects have been losers before, like Sens. Robert Dole of Kansas and Howard Baker of Tennessee and Vice President Bush. None has done anything to make himself look like a winner in 1988. Their prominence, however, has prevented the emergence of new prospects.

As in most GOP contests, the campaign for the next presidential nomination is likely to be a bitter contest between conservatives and moderates. As Reagan's 1980 victory proved, the former can easily dominate now — at least if they have a strong, pragmatic candidate.

The president's natural heir is Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a supply-side general. But his fixation with exotica like the gold standard might come off as nutty in a national campaign.

Kemp also hasn't shown much nerve. He has passed up several chances to run for senator or governor, preferring to hold on to a safe House seat. Had he made and won the 1982 gubernatorial race, which was nearly won by a virtually unknown Republican, Kemp would have snared the pole position for the 1988 presidential race — and sidetracked the political career of one Mario Cuomo.

The GOP's dark horses are dark indeed. Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah is smart and photogenic, but probably too far to the right even for most Republicans. Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado, a well-regarded and more pragmatic conservative, hasn't made a national name for himself. California Gov. George Deukmejian, who has become highly popular in trying circumstances, has the same problem. Illinois' own Jim Thompson has never been accused of insufficient ambition, nor of excessive popularity in his party.

Actually, it's easier to guess who the Republicans will nominate for vice president than president. If the presidential nominee is a man, he will have little choice but to pick a female running mate. The favorite: Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas, who combines an engaging personality with political acumen and a good Republican name.

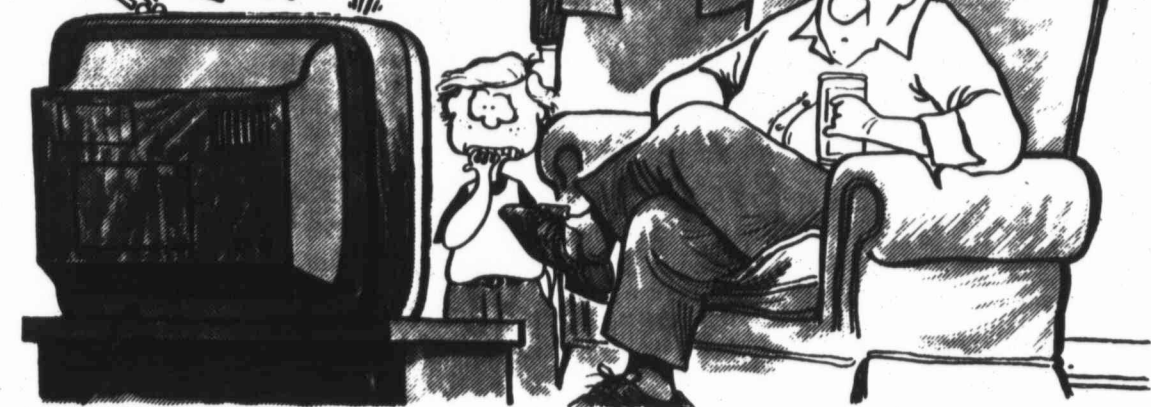

Her competition is Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole. But Dole, who stands to get a promotion (to, say, attorney general) in a second Reagan administration, might not be content with the second spot. If her husband doesn't run for president, she may.

It's obviously too early to write off the GOP's chances in 1988. If Reagan wins this year, he could win a lot of permanent converts to the party. Still, history is against the chance of an extended Republican lease on the White House: Neither party has won the presidency three straight times since Franklin Roosevelt's day.

The Republicans have earned the right to enjoy their party in Dallas, and they ought to make the most of it. The next one could be a wake.

ANOTHER LEFT TO THE CHIN!... A RIGHT HOOK TO THE NOSE!... IT'S THE FIGHT OF THE CENTURY!!

Second glances

By JOHN RICE
Managing Editor

After the police chief election

Fresh back from a two-week vacation, I find the community ruminating on the charter change election of Aug. 11, a vote called to decide whether to keep the chief of police's post an appointive one.

I was pleased to see the move for change fail, for very simple reasons. I think an appointive chief is best; I think to add the element of election to the top cop's job is to unnecessarily complicate matters. And I think the initial petition to instigate change was circulated for reasons other than simple pro and con on election vs. appointment.

The support the petition drew reflects more than this seemingly straightforward procedural change. It reflects the feeling of a number of residents that they are outside the political process, looking in. A significant minority feels it has little or no control over city hall, little or no voice. That feeling wouldn't be too bad were it not coupled with the sense that there's reason to need that control.

If my thinking tracks, then the resounding defeat of the charter change election doesn't put things right. Likewise, passage of the change wouldn't really have touched this issue either, except in a peripheral way.

The deeper issue is trust. If people have trust in an institution, they will go out of their way to overlook little flaws and defend its worth. If they don't, then those insignificant details take on proportion far beyond their actual worth.

If a person trusts airplanes, he points out the airlines' flight safety record. If he doesn't, he dwells on the crashes.

If we are otherwise sound, we pay scant attention to a splinter. If we're troubled, a tension headache can lead us to imagine a lurking brain tumor.

I think much of the disillusionment with city government stems from the extension of council terms. Councilmen decided to appoint themselves to elective offices, more than a minor affront to people used to voting officeholders in and out of their positions.

I think the estrangement is compounded by a city manager who, for example, is accessible only when it suits him. It's no wonder he was quick to defend City Attorney Doyle Curtis when Curtis decided several months ago it was just too tough to keep fielding questions from the press. Now we have a city attorney, a man on the public payroll, who shuns all queries from the news media, and has the city manager's blessing.

Police Chief Rick Turner may be a fine law enforcement administrator, but his habit of shielding the public from certain police reports — depriving people of the knowledge they contain — is damaging to his public perception.

Look for a moment at one noteworthy exception to this feeling. Tom Ferguson, city secretary, is generally well regarded in the community as a department head. Why? Because he is straightforward with the public; he answers questions rather than skirting them or shunning them. He does his job, and doesn't ball up in defensiveness when he is confronted with a tough issue. People don't expect perfection; they expect to be a part of the team, pulling toward the same goal.

Maybe there's a clue to be gleaned from the post-election statements of Aug. 11. The defeated forces said, "Our future is Big Spring; let us join together for the future." The victorious supporters of the status quo offered, "... each Big Spring resident is part of the problem." Wherein does the negativism lie?

Openness, honesty and a demonstrated regard for the constituency will surely triumph for the city in uniting its people with its leaders. It takes time, patience and a firm but caring touch to forge a proper-fitting horseshoe. It takes the same ingredients to forge an alliance.

Around The Rim

Nice people

By KEITH BRISCOE

Contrary to savage rumors, I am not deceased.

The last two Sundays I was absent from this spot because I had to fill in for my boss, who ineptly tried to lead a revolution in the Caribbean.

The extra work load fortunately left me with no time to watch the Olympics, which showcased only half the world's best athletes.

No Russians. No East Germans. No Cubans. What a joke. As my father eloquently observed: "It ain't the Olympics if everybody don't show up."

But during this fortnight, a nice thing happened. I circumcised my left index finger doing something I wasn't supposed to do at the paper. The severity of the wound prompted a quick jaunt to Malone and Hogan Clinic, where I came under the unexpected benevolent care of nurse Charlotte Wright.

One hell of a healer, Charlotte pampered me to the point of embarrassment. I felt like giving her a tip.

Charlotte got me patched up in time to meet with Charles Gray, superintendent of the state park on Scenic Mountain.

Charlie, who had better things to do running the cleanest park I've seen, spent several hours showing me around his 370 acres — specifically the remains of the Civilian Conservation Corps camp.

An authority on the park's history, Charlie of late has found fancy with the butte's flora and fauna.

"Ya see that plant there? That's called clappweed. You can make a tea from it to take for the claps. Me, I'd rather take penicillin. Whad'ya do to your finger?"

Through Charlie I met Ralph Proctor, a former county commissioner still farming a bit at age 69 in Luther. Ralph was in the CCC company that built the state park in the 1930s, and he graciously guided me around the old camp one morning.

Our tour was the first time he'd been back to the site since he left 50 years ago, but Charlie remembered exactly where everything was, helping me map the area as he bounced over boulders and careened around cacti.

I thanked Ralph and he said don't mention it, that he was glad to do it. He said he really wanted to meet me to see if I was half the SOB everyone says I am. He said I was a nice guy and asked what I did to my finger.

I said I think you're pretty nice, too, Ralph.

Drought no mirage on S. Texas coast

CORPUS CHRISTI — Dust swirls behind a farmer plowing a parched black field, and heat waves sizzle in the distance on the wide coastal plain outside of town.

On the horizon, an elusive pool of blue water promises relief from the killing heat. But it's only a mirage — Corpus Christi hasn't seen water in months.

So little rain has fallen since 1982 on the watershed serving the city that water in Corpus Christi will be rationed at the end of August. Other parts of the state are in a similar fix, and some say the drought is the worst in 30 years.

Cattlemen and ranchers in western Texas are still reeling from the financial losses caused by a year-long drought that's just ending in their region. Many lost crops or herds.

The drought has drifted east and extends from Del Rio west through San Antonio and Austin, north to Abilene and south to Corpus Christi. More than 72 cities have instituted water conservation plans. In 28 towns, they are mandatory. "But in another month, without rain, we could be looking at 100 cities with mandatory rationing," said Jack Stearman, a hydrologist with the state's water resources department.

A dozen smaller cities feed off Corpus Christi's water system. The towns cover about 7,000 square miles — an area larger than New Jersey. When the rationing begins, residents within this area will be allowed only a set amount of water each month, based on household size.

A family of four, which would normally use 10,000 gallons of water a month, would for example be held to 6,000 gallons. Water glut-tions will be billed; three-time ration violators will be cut off altogether.

Doug Matthews, director of public utilities, said the plan was implemented to make existing reservoir supplies stretch through the fall of 1985 with a minimum of sacrifice.

"The limits are set high enough so they won't substantially change anyone's lifestyle ... except maybe the guy who takes a half-hour shower," said Matthews.

If the hot, dry weather continues, officials say residents of many southern and central Texas towns also may be in for shorter showers — or worse.

Stearman, the hydrologist, said this drought was not yet as severe as one in the 1950s that lasted three years, "but the impact is comparable because of increased population and the demand this has placed on water supplies."

Corpus Christi, a city of 232,000, is expected to grow 23 percent in the next decade, rivaling Texas boomtowns like Dallas, Austin and San Antonio, where water supplies also can't keep up with demand.

More people using more water have put special strain on the Edwards Aquifer, the underground reservoir serving much of central Texas, including San Antonio.

The aquifer level had been dropping near the low marks reached in the 1950s drought.

Delegates wary of Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Delegates to the Republican National Convention say they are wary of the weather, worried about how they are going to get around and think Dallas is a nice place to visit — but not to live in.

According to a Dallas Times Herald survey of 1,270 delegates, 44 percent said they would have not selected Dallas as the convention site had the choice been theirs.

"Not in August anyway," said Robert Monier, a former state legislator from Goffstown, N.H.

Eighty percent of those polled said they would prefer holding the convention elsewhere in 1988. Two out of three delegates think Dallas would be a good place to live — for someone else.

Asked what they associate most with Dallas, nearly a third of the delegates named the Dallas Cowboys football team and almost as many listed the city's "boomtown economy." The assassination of President John F. Kennedy was listed third.

A majority of the delegates expressed disapproval of the protests scheduled to take place during the convention and many said city officials should provide no services for the protesters, such as toilet facilities or camping areas.

Q: Is it true that virtually any home improvement will significantly increase the value of the home?

A: Not necessarily. There are some "sure bets," like the addition of a family room off the kitchen, or modernization of kitchen or bath, or the addition of a room, particularly an extra bath. Where one has to be wary is outdoors. A patio, for example, may be a selling point but will generally return only about half your investment. A driveway is important and should be maintained, but an elaborate circular or "U" shaped drive tends to add little if any value. Neither is it wise to make a large investment in landscaping or interior decorating when contemplating placing a house on the market. They are both matters of personal taste, and may add little value and, sometimes, may hinder a sale.

NOW runs against Reagan

DALLAS (AP) — About 110 women staged a 2½-mile run through the downtown area Saturday as a protest against what they said are the anti-feminist views of the Reagan administration.

About 200 people gathered at Kennedy Memorial Square to hear speeches by members of the National Organization of Women, which sponsored the run.

After about 30 minutes of speeches, the group staged a run along Commerce Street, escorted by police. The route carried them in a loop around the Dallas Convention Center, site of the Republican National Convention.

Deborah Erb, chairwoman of a group calling itself Women Running Against Reagan, composed of NOW members, said it was important for women to vote against Reagan because "virtually all American women have been excluded from this (GOP) platform."

"We must run against an administration that wants to push us back into the Stone Age," Ms. Erb said.

Fake gators rip off Izods

MIAMI (AP) — Custom investigators, tipped off by alligator trademarks that just didn't look right, snapped up more than $1 million worth of counterfeit shirts, authorities said Friday.

The seizure of the 54,000 shirts bearing a poor likeness of the Izod LaCoste symbol was the largest counterfeit-merchandise case in Miami's history, said Customs Service spokeswoman Kitty Pryor. "The biggest tipoff were the alligators," said Sherri Hurt, a U.S. Customs imports specialist. "Some of them were going the wrong way. Instead of looking out, they were looking in."

A routine, random inspection Thursday found them to be in violation of U.S. trademark laws, she said. No arrests have been made.

Kennedy, son hurt in auto crash

HYANNIS, Mass. (A) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took his youngest son, Patrick, home from the hospital Saturday, the day after the senator's car collided with a plumber's pickup truck near their Cape Cod compound.

Doctors said the 17-year-old youth could go home from Cape Cod Hospital Friday after treating him for a slight concussion and cuts and bruises. But the senator said he thought his son should be held overnight for observation, according to family spokesman Edward Martin.

The 51-year-old senator drove Patrick back to the family's compound in Hyannis Saturday morning, Martin said.

"Probably, he's out for a sail with his father and Teddy (Jr.)," said Martin. "They generally sail when the weather's nice like this."

The senator and Leonard J. Bell, 63, a local plumber identified as the truck's driver, were treated for cuts and bruises Friday.

Bell face court Monday morning on a charge of driving to endanger, said Hyannis Police Sgt. Frank J. McKenna.

Mexico today

Tourism plan

MEXICO CITY — Tourism Secretary Antonio Enriquez Savignac has announced a four-year plan to develop Mexico's tourism industry, building new hotels and other installations and creating new jobs for an estimated 232,000 people.

Tourism is the country's second biggest dollar earner after petroleum exports, and Enriquez Savignac told a news conference Friday further development will help pull Mexico out of its current recession.

Unemployment has shot up since a sharp drop in world oil prices brought on the recession in February 1982. Since then, dollars have been scarce and the country faces a huge $87 billion foreign debt which it is having a hard time repaying.

A majority of the tourists who visit Mexico come from the United States and Canada.

Debt debate

PUEBLA — Labor leaders from Latin America and the Caribbean open a three-day conference here Monday to debate the area's huge foreign debt, which many poverty ridden countries are having trouble repaying.

President Miguel de la Madrid will inaugurate the meeting in Mexico City, 78 miles northwest, and delegates will then move here for the conference.

Latin America countries owe foreign banks, governments and international financial institutions a total of $270 (b) billion and many of the area's labor leaders are critical of the strict economic austerity conditions being imposed by the International Monetary Fund before payments due are refinanced.

Labor leaders claim the IMF's conditions put the brunt of the austerity burden on working people and that this reduces their purchasing power which, in turn, brings on recession and joblessness.

Manuel Pealver, general secretary of the Venezuelan Labor Federation, told reporters in Mexico City the conference will show that the labor movement disagrees with the IMF's policies.

He said the conference will also make the world aware that "labor is an important force, whose concepts and viewpoints ought to be heard." The delegates represent a total of 60 million Latin American and Caribbean workers.

Pealver, a delegate to the conference, is also a member of Venezuela's ruling Democratic Action Party.

Poor farmers

MEXICO CITY — Agriculture Secretary Eduardo Pesquera is launching a plan to mechanize the country's agriculture in order to increase production, especially the so-called "ejido" peasant cooperatives which still use primitive means to till the land.

After meeting with "ejido" peasant leaders, Pesquera told a news conference the Agriculture Department will give special attention "to getting farm machinery into the hands of the poorest farmers."

Mexico, with a population that grows 2.4 percent annually, is saddled with a growing gap in farm production and must continually import grains and other foods to meet domestic needs.

Football odds & ends

With the advent of the 1984 football season, on the high school, collegiate and professional levels, comes many items of interest. Some contain genuine news value and some are mere wisps of trivia. Some of the best and maybe worst are contained within this space before you today:

The Big Spring Steers will get their Fall football workouts underway Monday, Aug. 20 at 8 a.m.

Big Spring will welcome back seven lettermen including starters Jay Pirkle, Doug Walker, Tommy Gartman, Derek Logback, Jerry Meyer and Tommy Rodriguez as Quinn Eudy begins his third campaign as the Steers head coach.

The Steers will go through two-a-days in shorts until Friday, Aug. 24. On Friday contact work is allowed and the Steers will begin preparations in earnest towards improving last year's 3-7 slate.

The first chance for most of Big Spring to meet this season's wearers of the Black and Gold will offer itself Monday, Aug. 27 at the Annual Back-to-School Pep Rally scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Amphitheatre.

The pep rally is the last of this summer's Starlight Specials and is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The gathering will feature introductions of the football and volleyball teams at BSHS and their coaches. Lending a hand in the show support will be the BSHS band and varsity cheerleaders. Admission is free and everyone in the community is invited and encouraged to attend.

A scrimmage at Memorial Stadium is scheduled against Sweetwater for Friday, Aug. 31 beginning at 7 p.m.

Big Spring's first game will be Friday, Sept. 7 in Snyder at 8 p.m. and the first home game will take place Friday, Sept. 14 when Lubbock Estacado provides the opposition in another 8 p.m. kickoff.

When taking pictures in Grady Friday evening for the Herald's annual football edition, it was learned that Hermleigh, slated to compete in the South Zone of District 4-6-man, has scrapped its football plans for 1984. The reason: only five eligible players. The rest of the zone will contain Grady, Borden County, state champion Highland, Ira and McCaulley.

In scanning the latest special issue of Sports Illustrated, the college and pro football edition, there are several observations made in reference to die-hard fans as well as Texas Tech.

The most interesting situation concerning long time fans deals with Wes Schulmerich, an 83-year-old Oregon State fan, who, and get this, says he refuses to die until the Beavers of the Pac-10 win three games in one season. Wes just might live forever.

On Texas Tech, SI is only a little shy of scalding. Tech gets SI's vote as ugliest campus. According to SI's observers: Texas Tech's campus looks as if they should cancel classes and convert the school into a prison.

This in from the AP:
With boos raining down on Dallas quarterback Danny White, one of his former critics has taken a stand defending him.

White served up two intercepted passes and lost a fumble that cost a touchdown Thursday night in a 20-10 National Football League pre-season loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers in Texas Stadium.

A restive crowd, which had been cheering the United States Olympic heroes, booed White after his final miscue, a fumbled snap in the fourth quarter.

But the Cowboys' Tony Hill, who once accused White of serving up floating "medicine ball" passes that can get a receiver hurt, said Dallas needs to rally behind White.

"I think Danny White played an outstanding game," said Hill. "We have to pull together as a team. My basic feeling is that we have no choice."

"The quarterback situation is not the issue at the moment. We have to play together so we can get to the Super Bowl."

White was supposed to be in a battle for the No. 1 quarterback job but he'll likely start the season by default.

Challenger Gary Hogeboom hurt his passing arm in Dallas' second exhibition game making a tackle after a blocked field goal attempt. The Cowboys are hopeful he will be able to play Aug. 25 against the Houston Oilers.

Dallas' other starting wide receiver, Mike Renfro, also refused to blame White for the loss to the Steelers.

"I thought Danny played well and was pretty solid," said Renfro. "There were some receivers running the wrong routes and a few times Danny threw the ball where there wasn't a receiver. A lot of times that's the receiver's fault."

Kirk Phillips, a rookie from Tulsa who caught an 18-yard touchdown pass from White, said, "Danny was under a lot of pressure and threw the ball well."

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry gave his team the weekend off before the final pre-season game of the year.

"Danny had his good moments and his bad moments," Landry said. "He played well when he had the first unit in there."

Landry said, "The game wasn't a total loss. We got to see a lot of our players to get ready for the cut to 60 next week. We played pretty good when our first units were in there."

Phillips went a long way toward securing a spot on the team.

"They had it in the papers that I hadn't been playing too well the last couple or three weeks," he said. "I won't be happy until two weeks from now and nobody comes to my door (to announce a cut)."

"I'm just trying not to make any mistakes."

Kids getting kick out of soccer

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

Although it's not quite ready to take over Big Spring as the city's top sport, soccer is catching on and spreading in the city as well as West Texas.

A youth soccer program has been in existence in Big Spring for one year. Last year the Big Spring YMCA Soccer League fielded one team for boys up to age 13. Now, thanks to Skip Russey and Paul Peterson, three different teams are being formed to compete in the West Texas United Soccer Association which includes teams from Midland, San Angelo and Brownwood.

The three different teams will consist of Under-14, Under-16 and Under-19 Divisions. Russey, who comes to Big Spring via Freeport and has been coaching the sport for eight years, knows that getting his teams ready for competition won't be an easy task.

"We had planned on expanding the teams last season but we just didn't have enough players," said Russey. "We got a lot of compliments on how well organized our team was last Spring. Paul (Peterson) moved to Big Spring from Hobbs, N.M. and he has been very successful as a coach."

"We both know the fundamentals of the game and I think we have the material to be competitive. It's going to take a lot of work since most of the other teams have been playing for three to four years," Russey added.

Russey states that his most feared problem is getting enough kids interested in the program. "We've been trying to get kids interested by word of mouth and by placing posters around town." The soccer mentor thinks that most of the problem stems from the West Texas area not being familiar with soccer. "West Texas is behind in soccer. It is growing in the bigger cities of Texas and some SA schools even have it in their UIL programs."

GETTING THEIR KICKS — Jeff Needles, left, and Jeremy Foster run through a Big Spring soccer practice. The Big Spring Soccer Association has grown from one team last season to three this year and one of the coordinators of the sport in the city, Skip Russey, says the outlook for a continued growth of soccer in Big Spring is good and steady.

"The kids here who have gotten in the program have liked it and stayed with it," he said emphasizing the 12 returning players on the Under-14 squad.

The teams practice on Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the soccer field at the Industrial Park located West of the Federal Prison Camp. "We set the 6 p.m. practice so that any football players will be able to attend," said Russey. Games will be played on Sundays.

The league will be divided up into Fall and Spring seasons. The team that wins the league will travel to Dallas to compete in the State Tournament of Champions.

Russey urges all young men of eligible ages to come out and get in-involved with the soccer program. "It will be a good experience. It helps get you in shape as you work on your running, agility and coordination. It requires the player to think on their feet. It's a good sport, it just hasn't caught up to West Texas yet, but once it does it will be here to stay," concluded Russey.

DANCING TREVINO — Lee Trevino dances on the seventh hole after sinking a 45-foot putt during Saturday's third round of the PGA Championship Tournament. Trevino had trouble on the back nine though and went as only a one stroke leader.

At 18th hole

Mistake costs Trevino large PGA lead

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — From a potential rout, a romping run-away by Lee Trevino, it became a race.

The 44-year-old Trevino, playing about as well as possible, suddenly squandered two strokes of a once-commanding lead in the placid pond by the 18th green and opened the gates for a host of challengers going into Sunday's final round of the 66th PGA National Championship.

"I hit it in the water but it didn't dampen anything," Trevino insisted Saturday after he'd salvaged a third round 67 despite the closing double bogey that trimmed his margin to one slender shot.

"That's history," Trevino said of the shot from a fairway bunker that found the pond and changed the face of the tournament.

"I got greedy," he said. "Now, with a one-shot lead, I can't be conservative. I have to keep on playing the way I've been playing all week, hitting the driver off the tee and going for the flag."

A brilliant 30 on the front side put Trevino four shots in front of the field, a margin that he held most of the day.

But the water shot changed things. Instead of having two players within striking distance, he now has at least seven, possibly more.

"The conditions are perfect for somebody to shoot a 65 and take the whole enchilada," said Trevino, who completed three trips over the deep, wiry, punishing rough on the Shoal Creek Club course in 204, 12-under-par.

His two closest pursuers, old friend and golfing foe Gary Player, and the dangerous Lanny Wadkins, agreed.

"It'll take a good driving round by whoever's close to win it," said Wadkins, who chipped in for an eagle-3 on the 11th and saved par after bouncing one out of the water on the 17th on the way to his 68 and 205 total.

"Anybody within seven shots can still win," said Player, a 48-year-old South African who ran a 50-foot putt through 15 feet of fringe and into the cup as the key shot in a round of 69 that left him two behind at 206.

Tommy Nakajima of Japan, now a regular on the American PGA tour, and Larry Mize were next at 207. Each had a third-round 67.

Gary Hallberg and veteran Ray Floyd, twice a winner of this title, each had a 68 and were at 208, very much within striking distance.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the British Open champion who has made an art-form of escape for apparent disaster, made great saves on both the 17th and 18th for a 70 that left him at 209.

Defending champion Hal Sutton, playing a couple of hours in front of Trevino, scored seven birdies and an eagle on the way to a 64 that lifted him to a 211 total, five under par but seven strokes back going into the final round.

Jack Nicklaus, a 5-time PGA champ and the architect of this course that is being played in professional competition for the first time, had a 71 that left him at 218, two over par.

And Tom Watson found that he'll have to wait at least one more year to complete a career sweep of all the game's major titles. Watson, winner of five British Opens, two Masters and the 1982 U.S. Open, struggled to a 74 and finished three rounds at 220, 4-over-par and out of the chase for the only major crown he hasn't won.

The squat and swarthy Trevino, who holds two U.S. Open and two British Open crowns and won the 1974 PGA title, started the day in a 3-way tie for the top with his playing partners, Player and Wadkins.

He pulled away in a hurry, however, making a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole, then 2-putting for birdie-4 on the second.

The big rush began with a 15-foot putt for a 2 on the fifth, a chip-in eagle-3 on the sixth and an eight-foot 10-inch birdie putt on the seventh — a 3-hole burst that ripped four strokes off par.

He put his second shot in a bunker on the par-5 11th, came out to eight feet and made the putt for still another birdie.

He parred around through the 16th and was playing about as well as possible. He hadn't missed a fairway. He hadn't made a bogey. He hadn't scored a 5.

But on the 17th, a par-5, his third shot was well away from the flag and he 2-putted.

And, holding a 3-stroke advantage, he drove into the left fairway bunker on the 18th.

Lady Steers split Lamesa matches

LAMESA — It was a "dog tired" bunch of Lady Steers that fell to Lamesa, 6-15, 6-15 in non-district volleyball action here Saturday.

"Dog tired" in the words of head coach Susan Sharp because of a match only an hour earlier against Plains on what was a very long day at the office for Big Spring.

Against Plains, last year's Class runnerup at the state tournament, the Lady Steers worked hard, but dropped the first set, 16-18. In the next two Big Spring came back for 15-11, 15-12 wins to capture the game. With the split against Plains and Lamesa, last season's 4-4A champion, Big Spring is 1-2. The Lady Steers host Levelland Tuesday, Aug. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Steer Gymnasium.

Against Plains, Sharp said, "Tammy and Tab Green both hit well and made a lot of good saves."

Debbie Holguin, a senior, came up with 16 service points, and just as importantly, according to Sharp, "displayed a lot of good floor leadership, particularly in the first game."

Other Lady Steers chipping in service points against Plains were Tanya Ferguson, Monique Jones, Tammi and Tab Green and Sheila Chatman.

Against Lamesa, Sharp said a problem with weariness was a big factor in losing. The match was Lamesa's first of the day. Sharp said the most glaring factor was a lack of movement on the back line.

JV ACTION
Elaine Stone's junior varsity managed to beat Plains, 16-14, 15-4, but lost to Lamesa's sub-varsity, 15-9, 11-15, 4-15 to drop to 1-2 overall.

Sheri Myrick and Connie Swinney starred against Plains while Swinney was singled out for playing well against Lamesa.

In their first game of the year, Big Spring's JV dropped a game to Andrews, 8-15, 9-15 despite getting good performances from Lisa Hale and Sonya Evans.

The JV gets its action against Levelland under way at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21.

Hawks sign Midland Lee ace pitcher

In an effort to shore up his pitching staff, Howard College head baseball coach and athletic director Bill Griffin has announced the signing of Midland Lee star Bryan Willis to a letter of intent to play for the Hawks.

Willis compiled a 10-5 record for the Rebels who finished second in District 45A last Spring, gaining a playoff berth in the process. The Philadelphia Phillies drafted Willis, but the 175 pounder said, "Playing college baseball will help me gain a little more experience on a different level."

The right-handed, three-year letterman was named All-State and All-District and voted MVP in the Tournament of Champions. He posted a 6-0 record during Summer ball.

An accomplished outfielder as well as pitcher, Willis batted .333 with six RBI and a homerun in 1984. He stole two bases.

On the mound Willis totaled 90½ innings pitched with 118 strikeouts and an ERA of 2.35.

Willis said, "The (Howard College) campus is real nice and the chance to contribute to a fairly new program influenced me a lot."

The signing of Willis is the latest in a sizable list of prospects set to help the Hawks enter their third year of junior college baseball.

Other recruits lined up by Griffin include:

Bruce Smith and Peter White who hail from San Antonio Marshall High. The duo is expected to help the Hawks greatly at the plate in lieu of their averages of .393 and .363 respectively for Marshall last Spring.

Smith comes to the Hawks as an infielder, ready to battle for a position at third, second or short. Smith committed only two errors and batted in 25 rbi during his senior year and lettered three seasons. He was All-District and named team captain at Marshall.

White can play in the outfield or pitch. The righthander compiled a 4-0 record during Summer ball. For Marshall, White hit three homeruns and stole 16 bases enroute to All-District honors. He served as team captain along with Smith.

Rozier not a Houston Oiler yet

HOUSTON (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier would be an outstanding transition from Houston Oiler running back Earl Campbell, but the baton has not yet been passed, Rozier's agent said Saturday night.

"I don't know if Mike projects himself in that role but it's a role he could fill," Art Wilkinson said prior to Saturday's National Football League exhibition game with the New Orleans Saints.

"It would be some kind of accomplishment if the Houston Oilers could go from Earl Campbell to Mike Rozier."

Wilkinson and Rozier, who had a disappointing rookie season with the United States Football League Pittsburgh Maulers, were the guest of Oiler General Manager Ladd LATEST SIGNEE — Howard College head baseball coach and athletic director Bill Griffin explains some things to Bryan Willis of Midland. Willis became the latest HC baseball recruit when he signed earlier this week. Willis compiled a 10-5 record for the Lee Rebels and made several All-Star teams.

Jeff DeJesus and Mark Guillen are former teammates from John Jay High School who will bring some good statistics to the HC campus.

DeJesus is an outfielder who lettered three years for the Mustangs. He batted .350 his final year at Jay and intends to begin work toward a major in accounting.

Guillen can be used as a pitcher or outfielder, although a 7-2 senior mark with a 2.15 ERA may gain him more time on the mound than anywhere else. He was a .279 hitter in 1984 and won his school's MVP award in addition to being named All-District and All-Tournament South San Antonio.

Robert Navarro can play either short or second and hails from McCollum High School. The All-District and All-City selection batted .398 with 15 RBI and 10 stolen bases in 1984. He lettered three years and clocks a 4.7 in the 40-yard dash.

Michael Valdez is another pitcher-outfielder signee and graduated from Highlands High School. He hit .569 with 12 RBI, one homerun and eight stolen bases enroute to All-District and All-City honors. At 6-1, 205 pounds Valdez is one of the larger recruits in the 1984 class.

Dan Lanfear is one of only two, four-year lettermen signed by Howard College. Lanfear is from Alamo Heights where he was named first team All-District and All-City during his junior and senior seasons. He will probably play somewhere in the outfield. The left-handed Lanfear batted .425 with 26 RBI and 17 stolen bases last Spring.

Aljandro Lopez is the other four-year letterwinner among the dozen San Anotnio recruits. He will arrive at HC from Burbank High School where he batted .387 with 15 RBI during his final year. He is also an All-District and All-City selection and at 130 pounds he is also one of the lightest Hawks. Lopez notched three pitching victories for Burbank.

the contract would be if Mr. DeBartolo released him or his contract was breached.

"I don't foresee anything like that happening in the near future," Houston Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog has declined to comment beyond a statement earlier this week that he would meet with Rozier for preliminary discussions.

Oiler running back Earl Campbell has two years remaining on his contract and has said he would like to play four more years.

Campbell has not played in the exhibition season while recovering from arthroscopic knee surgery.

Rozier rushed for a Big Eight Conference record 4,780 yards and became the second player in NCAA history to rush over 2,000 yards in a single season.

Orioles clip Angels, 1-0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Joe Altobelli of the Baltimore Orioles was almost caught on the horns of a dilemma.

But with the potential tying run on base in the California ninth, Orioles starter Mike Boddicker completed his second straight start by retiring Doug DeCinces and Brian Downing as the Orioles defeated the Angels 1-0 Saturday.

The game's only run scored in the first when Mike Witt, the hard-luck loser was charged with and error on an easy tapper back to the mound.

The count on DeCinces, who has driven in 22 runs this month, reached 3-2 before he grounded out on a run-and-hit play, with Lynn moving to second.

Then Downing, who already had two hits, popped out to end the game.

Had either DeCinces or Downing reached, Altobelli would have had to decide whether to let Boddicker face the left-handed-hitting Reggie Jackson or bring in left-handed reliever Tippy Martinez.

"I definitely would have gone out to the mound," said Altobelli, who indicated he hadn't decided in advance what he would have done. "It wouldn't have been easy to take him out."

Boddicker, 15-8, allowed four hits, struck out two batters and walked three en route to his fifth straight triumph, a personal high. It was the fourth consecutive loss for the Angels.

start since being recalled Aug. 5 from the minor leagues, departed in the seventh after Mike Jorgensen doubled and Willie McGee singled.

Twins 6

BOSTON (AP) — Kirby Puckett, Mickey Hatcher and Kent Hrbek drove in ninth-inning runs Saturday, rallying the Minnesota Twins to a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a doubleheader.

Ron Davis, who bailed out starter John Butcher in the eighth, improved his record to 5-9. Rick Lysander worked the ninth for his second save.

The Red Sox, held to five hits, including Gedman's 17th and 18th homers, erupted in the eighth.

Wade Boggs started the rally with a single to right and took second on Evans' ground single to left. Jim Rice grounded a single off the glove of second baseman Tim Teufel. Boggs scored and Evans raced to third as the ball rolled into shallow right field. Tony Armas struck out before Bill Buckner hit a sacrifice fly.

Giants 6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manny Trillo's sacrifice fly with one out in the bottom of the ninth lifted San Francisco to a 6-5 victory Saturday over the New York Mets, snapping the Giants' six-game losing streak.

The Giants trailed 3-1 entering the seventh before they teed off for four runs against relievers Wes Gardner and Ed Lynch.

Johnny LeMaster led off with a double, advanced on a grounder and scored on Dan Gladden's single. Trillo's double created a 3-3 tie.

Chili Davis followed with another double for the go-ahead run. Lynch replaced Gardner and Dusty Baker belted a run-scoring single to left for a 5-3 lead.

The Mets bounced back to tie it with two runs in the eighth off reliever Greg Minton. Danny Heep lead off with a single, reached third on a pair of grounders and scored on George Foster's infield single. Foster went to second as Hubie Brooks singled as scored as pinch-hitter Rusty Staub then grounded a single to left.

Astros 5

PITTSBURGH (A) — Denny Walling and Jose Cruz each drove in two runs to back the combined five-hit pitching of Mike LaCoss and Dave Smith as the Houston Astros extended their winning streak to eight games with a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night.

LaCoss, 7-3, missed a chance at his third complete game of the season when he left the game after seven innings with a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand. Smith pitched the final two innings.

Walling drove in a run in the first with an infield grounder that scored Bill Doran, who led off the game with a triple.

In the fifth, Doran, Craig Reynolds and Walling hit consecutive singles to make it 2-0. Cruz followed with a two-run triple to center that chased Pittsburgh starter Jose DeLeon, 6-10, who is 1-6 since the All-Star break.

Jerry Mumphy hit a sacrifice fly off reliever Chris Green for the fifth run.

Rain stops

Brewers tilt

CLEVELAND (AP) — Saturday night's game between the Milwaukee Brewers and Cleveland Indians was postponed because of rain.

The game was delayed by rain for 68 minutes during the top of the first inning and then was called in the bottom of the second after another rain delay of 43 minutes. There was no score when it was called.

The game will be made up Sunday as part of a double-header starting at 1:05 p.m. EDT.

'Golden Boy' upset during special sprint

LONDON (AP) — Sprinter Carl Lewis, who won four gold medals at the Los Angeles Olympics, finished fourth while fellow American Kirk Baptiste set a world record of 31.70 seconds in a 300-meter race Saturday at a Crystal Palace track meet.

Britain's Todd Bennett finished second in 32.14 and American Walter McCoy, who clocked 32.16, just beat Lewis to the tape for third place.

Lewis' time was 32.18, two hundredths of a second behind the old world mark of 32.16 set by American Mel Lattany at Gateshead, England, in July 1983.

Baptiste, a 21 year-old student from Texas, powered through to win in 31.70 seconds to break the record of 32.16 set last year at Gateshead, England, by America's Mel Lattany.

Britain's Todd Bennett, a 4x400 meters relay silver medal winner in the Olympics was also inside the old mark with 32.14 seconds.

JAVELIN

Both men and women participate in Olympic javelin events, throwing relatively the same spear. In the ancient games, the javelin had a rubber thong attached to the handle which helped the athlete to catapult it. The rules for the javelin state that a contestant must run straight to the throwing line without turning before making the toss. Notice that javelin throwers are generally tall and lanky with long, sinewy arms. Strength is not as much a factor in the javelin as it is in other throwing events. The javelin is not so much thrown as it is "pulled" over the shoulder. The motion is started with body weight on the back foot and the transfer is completed on the follow-through. It is advantageous to release the javelin at a 45-degree angle.

Of course we hope you never are in an auto collision but just in case you are PAT GRAY BODY WORKS would like you to remember we do all types of auto collision repairs. In fact insurance work is our specialty. Our workmanship can't be beat. We're here at 700 N. Owens, Big Spring, 263-0582, 263-2374. If you need a wrecker at night please call 267-8953. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8-6. "From a scratch to a rollover we provide quality work at reasonable prices."

— HINT —
Most javelin throwers take their run at 3/4 speed so as to maintain good body control.

Lions manage to buffalo Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A two-yard touchdown run by James Jones and an 80-yard pass play from Mike Machurek to Mark Nichols gave the Detroit Lions all the points they needed to beat the Buffalo Bills 17-12 in a pre-season National Football League game Saturday night.

Both Detroit touchdowns came in the first quarter. The Lions scored again on a 25-yard field goal by Ed Murray and limited the Bills to one touchdown and a pair of field goals.

Joe Ferguson's 7-yard touchdown pass to Van Williams and field goals by Joe Danelo of 42 and 36 yards accounted for Buffalo's scoring.

Donald Wilson took the opening kickoff for the Bills and ran it back 95 yards into the Detroit end zone. The play was called back because of a holding penalty.

Bolshevik beach runs Red

Soviets soak up sun on sands of Moscow River

By the Associated Press

A tall, muscular man sporting a dark tan and a skimpy leopard-print bathing suit strolls barefoot along the hot sand. In the water, an elderly man paddles a rubber raft, strumming a banjo and singing a Russian love song.

They are among the thousands of Muscovites who flock to beaches along the Moscow River every day to escape the heat and noise of the city.

The Soviet capital seems an unlikely beach town. But the Moscow River, snaking in wide, lazy turns through the city and then out across the broad Eastern European plain, provides miles of beaches only a few minutes from homes or offices.

Like beaches around the world, those along the Moscow River are dotted with sun worshipers, beach towels, colorful umbrellas and children digging in the sand.

But they also have some distinctly Soviet touches, including roving civilian police, kiosks that show signs of food shortages, and large signs warning it is "dangerous to swim while in an unsobor state."

Thousands of people crowd onto Moscow beaches every weekend during the summer months, according to the daily newspaper Vechnyaya Moskva, or Evening Moscow.

"Maybe it's because of the cold climate we have to endure the rest of the year, but Russian people especially love summer and they love to lie in the hot sun on the beach," said an elderly man from his chaise lounge at Serebryany Bor, or Silver Forest, one of the most popular beaches in Moscow.

The beach lies within city limits on a small piece of land isolated by a turn of the river and a piece of the Moscow-Volga Canal.

High rise apartment buildings have been built on most of the surrounding area. But remaining at Serebryany Bor are the quaint wooden dachas — vacation cottages — and the tall, silvery birch trees for which the beach was named.

A WARM DAY IN MOSCOW — Sunbathers relax under a sunny sky along the banks of the Moscow River, where the capital's residents enjoy miles of sandy and grassy beaches.

On one recent day few people were swimming in the chilly river. But many were lying on slatted wooden cots, picnicking, napping or quietly talking.

Like all Moscow beaches, nudity is illegal at Serebryany Bor. It is not uncommon, however, to see elderly men and women stripped down to their underwear and enjoying the sun's rays.

Soviet beachgoers are more stout, on the average, than their Western counterparts, but most younger people sport bathing suits cut in Western styles.

Wooden cubicles painted pale blue are provided for bathers to change out of their street clothes, but many Muscovites are adept at quickly changing under their beach towels.

Most people try to bring food from home, since refreshments are limited in the beach kiosks.

On one recent day, the kiosk offered only large jars of mixed fruit compote, cans of sardines and small cans of apple jam. Warm bottled soft drinks were on sale, but beer was sold out.

"Food at the beach is a problem for Russian people because coolers are in short supply. We have to buy whatever is on sale at the kiosks and it's always terrible," said one young Soviet woman.

Most Moscow beaches have a reading room, from which beachgoers can check out the Communist Party daily Pravda and other newspapers, as well as books printed by government publishing houses. Swimmers are required to return the newspapers and books at the end of the day.

The beaches also rent badminton equipment and volleyballs (neither with nets), umbrellas and chaise lounges for the equivalent of 18 cents a day. Aluminum boats are available for the equivalent of 78 cents a day.

To keep order, druzhinniki, members of the civilian deputy force identifiable by their red arm bands, stroll along the beach on regular patrols.

Uniformed militia in motor boats bearing the red Soviet flag with its yellow hammer and sickle watch the sunbathers from the river. The policemen use megaphones to yell at swimmers who venture too far from shore and into the paths of boats carrying tourists up the river from a station in Moscow.

Across from the Serebryany Bor beach, a wooded area with a few motorboats tied up to a dock is off-limits to the "narod" — or common people. Among the trees are the country homes of some of the Soviet Union's elite.

Tass attacks Reagan speech on Yalta

RONALD REAGAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union warned President Reagan on Saturday that no one is entitled to question the outcome of the Yalta Treaty that was used as the basis for dividing Europe after World War II.

Referring to statements Reagan made Friday to a group of Polish Americans in Washington, the official Soviet news agency Tass said that the president "challenged the post-war political setup in Europe."

Reagan said in his speech: "We (Americans) reject any interpretation of the Yalta agreement that suggests American consent for the division of Europe into spheres of influence."

Tass warned that both the 1945 Yalta agreement and the 1974 Helsinki Act on Security and Cooperation in Europe should not be reinterpreted.

"No matter what Washington says concerning the political realities of post-war Europe, no one is given (the right) to call into question the decisions of the Crimea Conference, just as the final act of the conference on security and cooperation in Europe. No one. The White House included."

Tass also accused Reagan of falling in with what the Soviets say are West German revanchists clamoring to restore the borders of Germany and other European countries to pre-World War II lines.

Reagan also praised the emergence of the independent labor union Solidarity, now outlawed in Poland, as "a resurrection of the indomitable spirit of the Polish people."

Tass said that Reagan's pronouncements "strike the same notes as the demands made now by revanchists of all hues in West Germany. Reagan's statement directly points at the source of support for militarism and revanchist tendencies in Western Europe."

The news agency accused Reagan of distorting Polish history and failing to acknowledge the role played in World War II by Polish and Soviet soldiers.

It also mocked what it called the concern Reagan showed in his speech for Poland, saying the president had imposed sanctions against Poland "that damaged the country and was 'grossly interfering and continuing to intervene in the internal affairs of that sovereign state.'"

Soviet offensive devastates region

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghanistan's Panjsher Valley, once a farming region and a haven for Moslem guerrillas, is nearly devastated after a three-month Soviet offensive, a Western traveler said Saturday.

Anders Fanger, who spent three months in Afghanistan with various insurgent groups, said all the villages in the upper half of the 70-mile long gorge are in ruins.

Fanger, 38, of Stockholm, Sweden returned to Pakistan on Aug. 4. He spoke to Western reporters here Saturday in what was believed the first independent eyewitness account of the fighting in Afghanistan since the latest Soviet campaign in the Panjsher began in late April.

Fanger is a director of the Swedish Committee for Afghanistan, which he said is non-governmental and staffed by volunteers who visit Afghanistan clandestinely to help set up clinics run by Afghan doctors. The organization opened offices in Peshawar, Pakistan, in November 1982.

The Soviet assault on Panjsher, the seventh in five years, was winding down when Fanger left the valley in mid-July. He said he followed the Soviet forces as they withdrew.

"There are areas in the upper half of the valley that were home to tens of thousands of people that are totally deserted," he said. "Thousands and thousands of homes and village after village are burned out."

"There was an occasional aimless roaming around, but that was it," he said.

Fanger said he was told repeatedly by rebels that up to 90 percent of houses in the lower half of the valley were destroyed by Soviet warplanes.

The Soviets "behaved like vandals," he said. "One day I walked for three or four hours and every village I came to was not only in ruins and deserted, but the troops had gone into every house and destroyed everything in sight."

"If they found a blanket they would rip it open, and when they found children's toys, like bicycles, they would smash them. Even the window frames of ruined houses they would smash with the butts of their rifles. They were leaving nothing for the people, who slowly were returning like civilians in wars everywhere," Fanger said. He said Soviet soldiers and Afghan troops used village mosques as toilets and tore up pages of the Holy Koran for toilet paper. "My impression is that they were trying to humiliate the Afghans, but it just makes them hate (the Soviets) even more."

A DISTINGUISHED CHARACTER — The 7th Earl of Aylesford was one of the most colorful and distinguished characters of early Big Spring. He lived here for two years before dying at 36 from excessive drinking and Christmas merrymaking over several weeks. While here, the Earl purchased several pieces of property, including: the Cosmopolitan Hotel, shown above left, where J.W. Charde and Swartz stores have been located; a meat market where City Barber Shop is located; and several thousand acres northeast of Big Spring. The Cosmopolitan Hotel later became the Stewart Hotel.

Tales reveal Earl of Aylesford's nature

Englishman colors Big Spring's past

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

The 7th Earl of Aylesford colored Big Spring's early history. This distinguished character lightened the lives of those who knew him and charmed everybody with his heavy drinking, social hospitality, extravagancies, big spending, high living and English manner in a railroad-cowboy town.

Renewed interest in the Earl has been stirred by efforts by the Howard County Historical Commission to have his former property made into a Texas landmark. The site was the Cosmopolitan Hotel; in recent times, it has been the location of the Swartz and J.W. Charde stores.

The site was approved for a landmark, the plaque cast, and plans for a dedication ceremony set for October 1980. The 11th Earl of Aylesford and his wife of England, the Englishman's descendants, were to unveil and read the plaque. Due to the 11th Earl's busy schedule as Lord Lieutenant of the County of West Midlands in England, the dedication was postponed although the Earl agreed to come.

"We are still trying to get the 11th Earl of Aylesford to come here for the dedication of the marker commemorating his ancestor, the 7th Earl of Aylesford," says Polly Mays of the Commission. "He will be here with his wife in May 1985. We decided to wait until he could come because it would be so much more interesting."

The Commission chose to remember the 7th Earl because "(he's) just an interesting part of our local history. Many people were interested in our having a real Earl here," Mrs. Mays said.

ACCORDING TO THE Commission, the 7th Earl of Aylesford was born Heneage Finch in England in 1849. He inherited the title and was the heir to the family home, Packington Hall in Warwickshire near Coventry, and to the Aylesford Estates, which were among the wealthiest in England. Handel composed his Messiah on the organ in the estates' chapel in 1741.

The Earl graduated with honors from Cambridge and married Edith Williams, daughter of Parliament member Pers Williams. The couple had two daughters, Hilda Gwendolyn and Alexandria Mina.

The Earl was popular in the society of royalty and nobility. He was a close friend and hunting companion of Prince Edward, the Prince of Wales. While the two were hunting in India in 1875, a scandal broke shocking the English society. According to "The Earl of Aylesford: 1849-1885", a paper written for the Commission by Mary Lou Stipp, Prince Edward was attracted to Lady Edith and considered himself first in her affections. It is reported the Prince took the Earl on the trip for fear he might learn of the affair.

After they left, Lady Edith had an affair with Lord Blandford Churchill, uncle of Winston Churchill. This upset the Prince and he insisted the Earl divorce her and that Lord Blandford divorce his wife and marry Lady Edith.

'The Earl, though apparently an old man was but at this time just 36, but his experiences and pleasures would cover the life of a man seventy years old.'

The Earl would have been given an unqualified divorce, but Queen Victoria had evidence of the Earl's extra amours brought before the court. The Earl received separation papers and was required to pay an annuity to Lady Edith so long as she did not marry. She had a son by Lord Blandford and named him Lord Guernsey, a name which was rightfully used only by the Aylesford family. Lady Edith was charged with adultery, was no longer entitled to the annuity, and the Earl was given a divorce. The Earl's estate passed into a conservator's hands and the Earl was given an allowance of $50,000 a year. Later, Lady Edith disappeared in Paris.

THE EARL OF AYLESFORD had no sons; therefore, according to English laws of primogeniture, his peerage and estate would be passed to his brother, the Honorable Charles Finch. Because of this, his wish to leave an estate for his daughters, the divorce scandal, financial difficulties and his love of hunting, the Earl came to the United States.

He arrived in New York in 1883 where he met Jay Gould, president of Texas and Pacific Railroad. He was told of cheap land and good hunting in West Texas. Gould suggested the Earl get John Birdwell for a hunting guide.

According to the paper, Birdwell spent many years on the West Texas frontier as a buffalo hunter and Indian fighter. He also came to Big Spring before the first house was built and was the first to suggest the name of Big Spring for the settlement. It was Birdwell who gave the Earl the nickname of "Judge" as he was usually called in Big Spring.

The Earl built a home and a pen for taming wild horses for the Birdwell family and had his brother, Daniel Harry Finch, bring over his horses from England. He entertained often but refused most invitations, except those from the Birdwells.

The Earl preferred mutton to any other meat. He built a meat market with a large marble slab that covered the counter, and kept his own English meat cutter busy finding the best meat for him. This building was the first permanent building in Big Spring. Today it is the location of City Barber Shop at 121 Main.

The Earl bought 37,000 to 40,000 acres of land 12 miles northeast of Big Spring and stocked it with cattle for which he paid $40,000 sight unseen. His administrator realized only $750 for his entire herd after the Earl's death. The cattle were branded on each side with an "A" with a perpendicular right leg forming the back or left side of an "F".

AYLESFORD BUILT a nine-room hunting lodge on the land. The walls were covered with a valuable collection of rifles, shot guns, revolvers, derringers, and other articles of the hunting man. The house burned a short while later along with some 137 pieces of hunting equipment, some of which had been handmade for his hunts with Prince Edward.

The Earl unsuccessfully tried to be one with the West Texas cowboys before complaining to a Mitchell County cowboy, D.C. Earnest, that he was made fun of. Earnest advised the Earl to exchange his English riding saddle and boots for Western ones and to get a Stetson hat.

The Earl, a generous man who spun many tales around the campfire about his hunts, soon made a favorable impression on the cowboys. This was possibly enhanced by his belief that he had the right to buy all the drinks for everyone in his company.

The Earl bought the Cosmopolitan Hotel at the corner of 3rd and Runnels streets for twice its value after being refused room there one night. Legend has it that he gave the hotel back to the owner the next morning with the stipulation that he should always have rooms for the Earl and his companions. Another time, the Earl paid $6,000 for a saloon and invited everyone in town for free drinks which he served. He gave the saloon back to the owner after the drinking party was over. Another legend says he paid $10,000 down on a $60,000 tract of land in the county, but his money didn't come in. He lost the money and the land.

THE EARL WAS A BIG spender who enjoyed the high life. He drank heavily, but was reported to carry his whiskey well and was seldom seen entirely under the influence of liquor, the paper said. His physician warned him his drinking would kill him. The Earl's usual answer was, "Ah, what a way to go!"

The Earl threw a party that began Christmas day, 1884, and lasted several days. He became ill with this Christmas merriment and was in bed about two weeks. He died in his room at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Jan. 13, 1885, after having charged two quarts of rum and a half gallon of whiskey to his account that day. He was 36.

The Earl's obituary ran not only in Big Spring's early newspaper, the Pantagraph, but also in the Chicago Herald and the Fort Worth Gazette. "His death at age (36) was no doubt hastened by the foolish excesses of which he had been guilty," said the Chicago Herald. "His old companion in vice, the more stolid and phlegmatic Albert Edward of Wales, has sobered down in time perhaps to insure himself long life, and while Aylesford sleeps in a dishonored grave, he will be King of England."

"The Earl, though apparently an old man was but at this time just 36," the Pantagraph said, "but his experiences and pleasures would cover the life of a man seventy years old."

Following the Earl's death, most of his property was sold in two courthouse public auctions. His brother Daniel Finch bought most of the property at a cheap price. Through the years, his property was passed on to his other brother and the men's mother, "the right Honorable Jane Wightwick, Dowager Countess of Aylesford of the Bury Lemington in the County of Warwick, England." She sold it to L.T. Deats of Howard County, May 8, 1903. The Earl's daughters, according to an article in the Big Spring Herald in 1936, realized very little from the Earl's investments in West Texas.

In 1978, the Commission had the Earl's cattle and horse brand added to the 140 brands burned into the oak paneled wall in the Robert J. Kleberg Jr. Animal and Food Sciences Center at Texas A & M University.

Big Spring citizens named a street after the Earl (misspelled at every corner) and put up a historical marker to point out the meat market. The building is much as it was then; however, it has been the location of City Barber Shop for at least 48 years. It is the oldest existing permanent structure in Big Spring.

Former newspaper boy returns to site of route

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Troy Ferrar is reading the newspaper he used to deliver as a boy to catch up on events in the town he left many years ago. Ferrar moved back to Big Spring last month after retiring from the inurance business in California.

He's well-acquainted with the news business. In the early 1930s, he was a carrier for the Big Spring Daily Herald. During World War II, he helped make the news fighting the Japanese.

"I sold papers at the Crawford Hotel. That was my beat," Ferrar said. The place where the Crawford Hotel was located now is a parking lot at Third and Scurry streets.

"When I sold papers, they sold for 5 cents and I made 2 cents of it," he said. "I recall that as being a very happy experience working at my first job. I was making good grades and making money and having fun. My life was very happy in those years."

"I was making anywhere from 20 to 40 cents a day," Ferrar said. "I use to go to the Ritz Theatre when I could get in for only a dime."

"It (Herald) used to be kind of hard to sell sometimes, because it was only four pages sometimes," he said. He also was in competition with a boy who sold the Abilene

Reporter News on his beat. "I had to take him out in the alley and work him over one time...He didn't bother me again."

The Coahoma High School graduate attended a business college in Fort Worth and then joined the Army Air Corps at the beginning of World War II. "I was about to be drafted and I gathered up a couple of buddies and we joined the Air Force," he said.

Ferrar, a physical training supervisor, once gave actor Jimmy Stewart calisthenics instruction when he was training to be a pilot. "He (Stewart) came over there and complimented me on doing a great job," he said.

He spent 32 days on a Navy ship going to Lae, New Guinea, to fight in the war. Because he had some training as a mechanic, he went into the war as a crew chief and was put in charge of six men and six P-38 airplanes.

His trip home from the war was a profound moment in Ferrar's life. "I got on the ship about midnight and the next day at 12 noon, the ship started moving and they played 'Sentimental Journey' over the PA, and you could have heard a pin drop."

Several years after the war, Ferrar again met Stewart at the Beverly Hills Hilton Hotel in California, where they reminisced over old times.

Ferrar retired as assistant manager at American National Insurance Co. in Van Nuys, Calif., after 20 years. He sold his house and traveled around the country.

He came back to Big Spring because he has two sisters who live in the area, Fovell Thomas of Sand Springs and Christene Birhead of Midland.

"I kind of made a complete circle from selling newspapers in Big Spring and coming back here and retiring," Ferrar said.

"I can't see too much change in the carriers themselves," he said, but "I think they get the paper out earlier. Quite often they would have a break-down and they couldn't get the papers out, and we would play football until they came out. We didn't have a football; so, we would use somebody's cap and put a rubber band around it and play touch football."

Shawn Spaid, Ferrar's paper boy, delivered papers on a route Ferrar used to have on the base. "I told him, 'You know, I used to have your job.'"

CATCHING UP ON OLD TIMES — Troy Ferrar now relaxes while reading the Big Spring Herald. He delivered papers for the Herald about 50 years ago.

Dr. Donohue

Swimmer's ear a wax problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: After a month or so of swimming daily, I get ear pain and sometimes some drainage. It clears up when I use drops, but returns. My coach tells me to use earplugs. It hasn't helped, although it should. I'm at a loss to figure out how to overcome the problem, and don't want to stop swimming, which I really enjoy. — F.N.

Let's take a look at the ear to see why swimmers have so much trouble with them. The outer ear canal is replete with glands that produce cerumen (wax). Cerumen lubricates and waterproofs the ear sufficiently for normal situations. And it's slightly acidic, so it can kill bacteria and fungi.

Constant immersion removes this waxy coat of protection, setting the scene for the problems. Add to this the fact that pool water that is improperly chlorinated permits the germ, pseudomonas, to flourish, and the main target of infection becomes the ears.

The first thing you can do is to be sure the pool you use is properly maintained. Are other swimmers similarly affected? Demand that chlorine be checked often enough to ensure proper levels. Get out of the water from time to time to dry your ears. Ear drops that are a bit acidic will kill the germs.

I don't know what to tell you about earplugs. Some swear by them, claiming they offer sufficient protection. They are OK so long as they don't allow water to seep in. If they do allow seepage, then they actually can be counterproductive.

If you experience redness and there is seepage from within, then you will need more than acidic-type drops. You will need antibiotic drops, maybe even antibiotic medicine by mouth to clear your infection. That kind of swimmer's ear has to be seen by a doctor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I coach a kids soccer team — up to 10-year-olds. I don't have visions of becoming an immortal figure, but I am concerned about doing things that are right for the youngsters. I am concerned about training. Some of the coaches (fathers) don't really see need for formal conditioning. They take the stand that they are only kids, just let them have fun, no formal training. Can you comment? I don't agree with them. I feel formal training is important, even if they are only kids. — F.R.E.

I disagree with the other fathers. Conditioning is every bit as important for youngsters as for teenage or adult players, and there are good reasons to think that from a standpoint of safety, even more important.

True, young muscles and tendons are more flexible, but they are subject to stresses of severe physical use. More important is the fact that young bones are still developing. That means they are at a stage where an injury can be disastrous. They need strong musculature to help them withstand stresses, and that comes from training and strengthening them before and between matches.

Stick to your idea and try to sell it to the others. Warmups and proper stretching exercises are important. So are formal training regimens (hard days and easy days) and adequate safety equipment.

They need specialized training in how to use their muscles in the specific sport. There is an answer to the argument that they are only kids, and don't need formal training for their casual schoolyard-level activity: Many, perhaps most, accidents that cause permanent injury occur in just such informal settings.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My

B&PW treats BSSH patients to picnic

The Business and Professional Women's Club hosted about 50 Big Spring State Hospital patients at their annual BSSH picnic at Comanche Trail Park, Tuesday.

Guests were treated to sandwiches, cake, potato chips, relishes and ice tea. Several members of BSSH volunteer staff assisted. Humorous songs and poems presented by Suzanne Cranford entertained the guests. The patients also played softball.

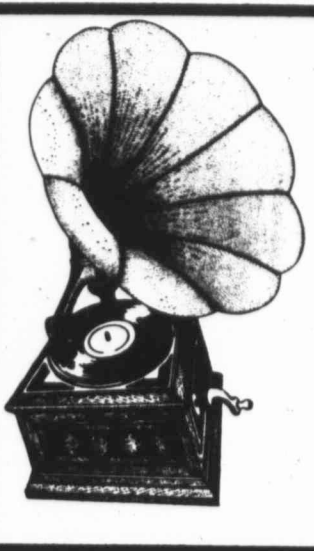

boyfriend, a softball player, had a finger damaged in a game. It droops at the tip. He says it doesn't hurt, but it looks dangerous to me. Shouldn't he have this X-rayed? — Jackie.

I'll bet your boyfriend has mallet finger, a very common softball injury. The ball hit his finger and drove the end knuckle in toward the palm. Often, when that happens, the impact shears the tendon that keeps the finger straight. The end of the finger droops.

He should at least have this finger splinted, for up to two months, at least one. Actually, as you suggest, he should have the finger X-rayed, and I'm sure if he sees a doctor that's what will be done.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Clothing is a good buy

Clothing was a good buy last year, but finding real bargains this year will still take time and shopping skill, Becky Saunders, Texas Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist.

The Consumer Price Index indicates that clothing prices increased 2.7 percent over 1983 costs, while prices in general increased 3.9 percent, she says.

American spent an average of $529 for clothing and shoes in 1983, which represents a $16 increase from the previous year. Although two-thirds of this increase was due to the higher prices, one-third resulted from increased consumer spending.

Spending for women's suits and dresses increased more than other clothing and footwear categories, probably because of the rising employment rate for women and the fashion emphasis on "investment" dressing.

Even though clothing prices aren't escalating as rapidly as in the past, many people are looking for ways to reduce clothing costs.

Anticipating clothing needs in advance allows families to save from one-third to one-half of their clothing budget by shopping during sales.

While shopping sales saves money in the long run, it requires patience to wait for mark-downs and time to search sale racks for good items.

Not all sale clothing will save you money, says Saunders. If it doesn't fit in with the rest of your wardrobe, the chances are it won't get worn, no matter how good the buy.

Plastic bottles can become homemade instant ice packs

Need an instant ice pack for bumps and bruises? Take a tip from Family Circle and save small, empty, preferably somewhat "flat" plastic bottles and containers from hand creams and shampoos.

Clean them thoroughly, fill with water an put in the freezer. That way there'll be no fumbling for ice cubes when there's an injury, and no mess or dripping.

Simply return the bottle or container to the freezer for the next time it may be needed.

Rose Magers to have her day in Big Spring

As you probably know, tomorrow has been proclaimed ROSE MAGERS DAY to honor our very own Olympic volleyball star. In order that you may participate in this event, the following is the day's schedule:

9:30 a.m. — Rose and her parents, MR. AND MRS. ELIHUE MAGERS, will be at a press conference.

10:30 a.m. — Rose and her parents will be at the north side of the Howard County Courthouse to sign autographs for local children. People waiting on the lawn for Rose's arrival are encouraged by the Blue Blazers, hostesses for Rose Magers Day, to bring placards and banners to welcome her home. An escort of Shriners and police will head up a caravan to proceed from the courthouse lawn to Big Spring High School. People at the courthouse are asked to follow the entourage in their cars to the high school auditorium for the Rose Magers Day ceremonies. People also are encouraged to wave banners and posters with special messages when the Rose arrives at the auditorium.

11:30 p.m. — Ceremonies will open and proceed through the following agenda with several presentations. MAYOR CLYDE ANGEL will read a proclamation declaring it Rose Magers Day in Big Spring and will make a presentation on behalf of the City. County Judge MILTON KIRBY will make a presentation on behalf of the County. RON LOGBACK, Big Spring Independent School District's Athletic Director, will give a statement on the significance of Rose's accomplishments. CRAIG FISHER, Big Spring High School's vice principal, will make a presentation on behalf of the high school's students and will introduce the members present from the school's championship volleyball team who have come for a reunion with Rose.

Also during the ceremony: JANICE ROSSON of the Exes Association will make a presentation; DWAYNE FRASER, school board president, will read a resolution; and DENE SHEPPARD will present the Rose Magers Scholarship Fund. DOCK VOORHEIS, president of National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will present a plaque to Rose. LARRY DON SHAW, state representative, and CHARLES

ROSE MAGERS

STENHOLM, congressman, will present state and Congressional recognition. Rose will then be introduced and will give her response. The REV. KARL HOCKENHULL, minister of Mt. Bethel Baptist Church where Rose's family attends, will give the closing prayer. The ceremony will end with the presentation of a bouquet of flowers and a large community plaque.

12:30 p.m. — Rose and her high school volleyball team will go to lunch together for a reunion.

3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. — Rose will be honored at a community-wide reception at Malone-Hogan Hospital where her mother is employed.

The entire Rose Magers Day event is under the direction of the Chamber BLUE BLAZERS, who will be the hostesses for the day.

I was thumbing through the Aug. 20 edition of Newsweek, Thursday, when I found a picture of Rose with her Olympic teammates FLO HYMAN and DEBBIE GREEN. "U.S. women like Flo Hyman, Rita Crockett, Debbie Green and Rose Magers followed a regimen more demanding than any other in the history of U.S. amateur team sports. Some of them even forsook marriages, jobs or educations in servitude to their daylong, Sundays-off grind," says the article "An Old Game Comes Home" in Newsweek.

Even though I never knew her personally, I'm proud of Rose. She made watching the Olympics more exciting than it already is.

"MIX BEAT", a local group of break dancers, took third place at a break dancing contest in Sweetwater, Aug. 11. They competed against four other groups from Abilene, Sweetwater and Midland, and danced to "Electric Boogie." Members are: DAVID RODRIQUEZ, JESSE CUELAR, JEFF FORD, TOMMY RODRIQUEZ, GREG ARNIVAZ, JUAN RODRIQUEZ and FREDDY RODRIQUEZ.

HENRY AND LIBBIE DIRKS recently met their children, HENRY AND BRENDA DIRKS of Dallas, EDDIE AND MARY QUILLIN of Mesquite and KATHRYN AND WALTER TAYLOR of Quitaque, at a resort in New Mexico. Mrs. Dirks also has been visiting her brother ADOLPH TRACINCEK of Cedar Bluff, Neb.

Tips on threading

Do you find that polyester threads tend to twist, snarl and knot when you sew by hand? If so, take a tip from the current Family Circle magazine and run the thread over the end of a candle before threading the needle. This light waxing keeps the thread from twisting.

DICK & RUTH NICHOLSON

Service is what they sell...

There's a relaxed atmosphere in Nick's Togs and it comes from Nick's own philosophy of merchandising current fashions in men's clothing with an easy manner. We adhere strictly to quality merchandise and conservative styles when he makes purchases for the store. Nick and Ruth stock Angel Flight and Kennington for the younger men and Joel shirts that team up with Jay Mar slacks for their mature customers. There are jeans and sweaters too... handsome separates that span the seasons and look great with a new group of leather jackets that are already selling to the college bound!

Patsy Stuteville has been working for Nick and Ruth for just over three years. She really enjoys her work and has a keen sense of fashion. Nick is an avid golfer and he lets Ruth and Patsy handle the afternoon customers on ideal golf days — and borderline golf days. With four children between them and three grandchildren, the Nicholsons stay busy when they're away from the store. Big Spring is Nick's home by choice. After graduating from Texas Tech, he went to work for Hemphill-Wells when they had a store in Big Spring, then opened up his own shop in August of 1971.

Special congratulations to Alma Bobo who won a weekend at the Odessa Hilton and a trip to Water Wonderland recently from the Highland Mall Merchants Association! The hometown merchants in Highland Mall specialize in customer satisfaction. Enjoy yourself... shop with us soon!

SUMMER FACIALS

Many people forego professional facials during the summer. They fear that it will rub off their tans. In fact, facial scrubs can revive a tan by getting rid of dead surface flakes that can dull its appearance. Scrubbing off a tan is impossible. A tan is produced deep within the skin by a protective pigment called melanin. The only way that a sun tan fades is by staying out of the sun and, thus, slowing down melanin production. A word of caution about sun exposure. Melanin offers natural protection but an adequate sunscreen and sensible sun habits are the best weapons against skin cancer and premature wrinkling. Such wrinkling can start to show up in one's late twenties and early thirties.

When it comes to the latest in cuts, color and perm styles, you are on top with LA CONTESSA. We will be happy to help you select a color or style that will be most flattering to your features. Come by and visit with us soon. We are conveniently located at 1508 Marcy. We are open to serve you Tues.-Sat. Call 267-2187 for an appointment.

Dear Abby

Reader regrets role tragedy

DEAR ABBY: If I don't write this letter, I won't be able to sleep tonight. First I want to say that I have never before bought a Penthouse magazine, but I was one of the first to run out and buy one as soon as that well-publicized issue was on the newsstands. I gloated over that piece of trash just like everybody else, and even took it to work to show around!

Now I feel rotten, I'm no better than the Penthouse publisher who made millions off that poor girl's misery. And I helped him do it. I hope you will print this to let the former Miss America and her family know how sorry I am.

Go ahead and let me have it, Abby. I have it coming. I'm too ashamed to sign my name, so sign me...

SORRY AND SICK AT HEART
DEAR SORRY: Stop beating yourself. Your curiosity was only human. Perhaps the ugly incident that sent shock waves through the land was not without its positive side, for in it is this valuable lesson for all young women:

Think before you act, and refrain from conduct that could bring disgrace upon you or your family. And should you have a lapse of judgment when you are young and foolish—or hungry for money and fame—don't count on your misdeeds never being exposed.

If millions of young women can benefit from the former Miss America's fall from grace, then her "contribution" may be even more lasting than all the previous Miss Americas who wore their crowns with dignity and were honorably retired.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from "Keep Me Anonymous," the woman who lied about her age on her job application. She was 41, but feared she would not be hired if it were known, so she put "29" on her job application and got away with it.

Abby, this woman urgently needs to be alerted to a serious potential problem when she reaches retirement age.

A woman I know well recently retired. In applying for her pension, she submitted her birth certificate, which revealed that she was 75 years old—not 65 as her employment records showed. The private pension plan carrier, alleging fraud, denied her pension application. She received nothing, even though her employer had paid premiums for many years!

Please advise 'Anonymous' to get her correct age into her pension file immediately. Faithfully yours, (THE REV. CANON) OLIVER B. GARVER JR., LOS ANGELES

DEAR SIR: Bless you. Your informative letter will no doubt save many souls. And a few heels, as well.

DEAR ABBY: We know you're bombarded with questions, Your mail likely runs into tons, After picking the questions to answer, Must they always be answered with puns?

Your wisdom we value most highly, Your witty responses are fun. We love you, Dear Abby—but spare us The silly, nonsensical pun! TOM IN CAMBRIDGE, MD.

DEAR TOM: Writing would be much less fun. Without the "nonsensical" pun I know you abhor it, But others adore it, You lose—by 10 million to one.

DEAR ABBY: (Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order of $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)
