Off the wall: King rooster

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Some made threats, others offered the prospect of romance. The winner, Jean Mager, blew into her rooster's ear and called him "baby."

Her bird responded by crowing 89 times in 30 minutes to win the top prize of $200 at the Ohio state fair rooster crowing contest.

"They either crow or they don't," Mrs. Mager said after the victory Saturday. "All you can do is stand here and act like a fool and hope they notice."

Others in the field of 20 or so entrants had less luck. "I told them they either better get crowing or they were going home in this," said Mike Stichler, gesturing toward two empty fried chicken buckets on top of his cages of light-brown Because crowing is a mating call, some contestants held hens just outside the cages

Neil Grassbaugh of Danville, failing to rouse his rooster with a hen, produced another rooster and held the birds side by side.

"Now, aren't you ashamed of yourself?" he said to the caged rooster. "He did the crowing, and now he's got the girl.

Spring GOP's Board opening upbeat

DALLAS (AP) — Republicans convened their 33rd national convention today with a vow to confident delegates, "We're going to campaign on the strongest economy in three decades and seven presidents." President Reagan, not waiting for renomination, headed back onto the campaign trail.

The party faithful, escaping 100-plus-degree heat outside, basked in the air conditioned confines of the Dallas Convention Center as GOP Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr., opened the speechmaking with the ritual blast at the opposition.

He described last month's Democratic Convention as "an orgy of pressure groups" and called Walter F. Mondale "just a man who can't say no." And he echoed Vice president George Bush's call for four more years of Reagan.

In Cincinatti, Reagan stepped up his attack on Mondale, saying the Democrats' call for a tax increase is a "typical knee-jerk reaction; and believe me, when their knee jerks, you get kicked.'

Reagan invoked Sen. John Glenn, a Mondale primary foe, now a supporter, saying Glenn "told the truth. He said the policies of the current Democratic nominee would cause a huge increase in spending and taxing. And he said those policies revealed a fundamental lack of support for an adequate national defense.

Mondale had other problems beyond Republican rhetoric. His running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, was releasing her financial infor-mation in Washington this afternoon, and the economy, receovered after the worst recession since World War II, was running red hot.

Fahrenkopf spoke just hours after government figures released in Washington showed the nation's onal Product grew at an annual rate of 7.6 percent in the last quarter, an indication that economic expansion for 1984 might be the strongest since the late

Inflation, the economic achilles heel of the Carter administration, continued low at 3.2 percent.

Republican campaigners routinely link former vice president Mondale to Jimmy Carter and Fahrenkopf couldn't resist.

"We're not going to bring them back," he said of the previous Democratic administration. "We're talking about the arguably least effective presidency in history. We're not going to put those people back in the White House.

For many delegates the big topic wasn't politics or economics but the searing heat as the temperature set a record 108 degrees on Sunday and forecasters said that could be the norm for the convention week.

Copier delays tax disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) -Geraldine A. Ferraro moved today to dispel a cloud of questions shadowing her unprecedented vicepresidential campaign by releasing more family tax and financial data than the law requires.

But after a week of mounting questions and pressure, overburdened copying machines imposed another three-hour delay on the Democratic candidate.

Barbara Dixon, a press aide to the Mondale-Ferraro ticket, announced the delay in producing a promised 1 1/2-inch-thick stack of documents to a crowd of 150 reporters gathered in a Washington hotel several doors from the campaign's headquarters.

Ms. Ferraro promised that in addition to financial disclosure forms listing income, assets and liabilities which she was required Federal Election Commission, she would also make public the joint filed with her husband, New York real-estate dealer John Zaccaro, Ferraro said Sunday on ABC-TV's and the separate returns that the "This Week with David Brinkley."

"We are hoping the American cial problems, attributed to public will be satisfied," said Ms. sources inside the Mondale-Ferraro, the first woman to seek Ferraro campaign. the vice presidency on a majorparty ticket.

Initially, Ms. Ferraro was criticized for declining during the past six years to disclose her husband's assets on federal financial forms. She responded by pledging not only to list his assets and liabilities but to go beyond the law's requirements and reveal both his and her tax returns.

But it turned out that she had not consulted with her husband before making that announcement, and she was forced on Aug. 12 to reveal that he had decided not to disclose his tax returns.

By Saturday, however, Zaccaro had reconsidered.

"One of the reasons why John decided to disclose was that people were jumping to the most outrageous conclusions on a lot of things, and it was getting worse rather than better," Ms. Ferraro said.

Nevertheless, over the weekend, Newsweek magazine and the Boston Globe reported new finan-

The stories said that the couple underpaid their 1978 taxes and could owe from $60,000 to $250,000, including penalties and interest.

Patricia Bario, Ms. Ferraro's spokeswoman, told The Associated Press that an error was made on the 1978 return, but she said the underpayment involved $50,000 or $60,000. The underpayment was attributed to an error by a family accountant dealing with a real-estate transaction about which a number of other questions have been raised recently. Just before she won the 1978

Democratic primary for her congressional seat, the Federal Election Commission questioned the legality of loans which her family members had made to her campaign. In a settlement with the commission, Ms. Ferraro agreed to pay $750 in fines and to have her campaign repay $109,000 in loans from

ACKERLY - High tech and the computer craze has come to the High Plains and particularly to this small farming community north of Big Spring.

The Sands CISD, which encompasses Ackerly and surrounding communities, was looking to the future in education before the instigation of House Bill 246 by the 69th Texas Legislature earlier this year. The project began when Sands CISD voters approved a $2.3 million bond issue two years ago for complete renovation of the Sands school. The one-and-one-half year project eliminated a space problem by doubling the building space, said Sands CISD superintendent James Blake.

The renovation added seven new elementary rooms, a learning room, a science lab, an elementary library and learning resource center for junior high and high school students, Blake said. All the rooms are color-coded and are equipped with drinking fountains and one restroom for every two Newsweek also reported that, unbeknownst to Ms. Ferraro, her husband purchased the halfinterest back from Lerman early in 1979 for the same price as Lerman had paid her.

"These elaborate transactions could be interpreted as a device to allow Zaccaro to channel money to his wife's campaign in spite of federal spending limits, Newsweek said.

Ms. Ferraro has postponed until Tuesday the full description of her justification for previously not disclosing her husband's finances. While she was in Congress she claimed an exemption from that disclosure which is available only to members of Congress who have no knowledge and derive no benefit from their spouses' finances.

Referring to a news conference which she has planned for Tuesday, she said, "I will be discussing that (issue) on Tuesday fully."

Party leaders promised to keep the sessions short and interesting. But it was unlikely anything close to the full complement of 2,235 delegates would be in their bright red seats for the morning session of welcoming speeches and housekeeping business.

Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and by Margaret Heckler, secretary of health and human services.

Overshadowing the opening of the GOP convention was the release of financial records of Ms. Ferraro and her husband, John Zaccaro.

"We're hoping the Americanpublic will be satisfied," she said. The New York congresswoman, dogged by questions about her husband's finances and real estate business, added that "by Labor Day, I'd like to start discussing the issues of this campaign."

The Republicans were meeting exactly one month after the Democratic Convention in San Francisco, dominated by the party's liberal wing, heard Mondale and Ms. Ferraro of New York open their campaign against Reagan and Bush.

At the Republican convention, conservatives were firmly in control, drafting a platform that was a few degrees to the right of what the president wanted.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters that "in general" Reagan agreed with the platform but would "flesh out his own specifics" during the campaign. The platform took a tougher stand against any tax increase than the White House wanted.

Bush, interviewed this morning on NBC's "Today" show, said, "I think it's a conservative platform, but I think the mood of the country is conservative. I think it's forward-looking, but I think the mood of the country is forward-

Reagan didn't wait for Wednesday night's renomination to begin campaigning for a second term. He and Mondale sought votes in the economically troubled Midwest farm belt on Sunday, each blaming the other for hard times.

ing agricultural issues. At left is Carlos Welty, national spokesperson of the American Agricultural Movement Grassroots and at right is Roger Allison, state spokesman for the same group.

Reagan steps up attacks

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Reagan, stepping up his attack on Democrat Walter F. Mondale on the unsure battlegrounds of the Midwest, today branded the Democrats' call for a tax increase a "typical knee-jerk reaction.

"And believe me, when their knee jerks, you get kicked," Reagan said in remarks prepared for a rally in Cincinnati's redeveloping downtown.

Reagan used Ohio Sen. John Glenn, whom Mondale defeated for the Democratic presidential nomination, to attack the standard-bearer as "the candidate with the Left Stuff," a takeoff on Tom Wolfe's book and movie about Glenn and his fellow Mercury astronauts as the heroes with the Right

Glenn, Reagan said, "told the truth. He said the policies of the current Democratic nominee would cause a huge increase in spending and taxing. And he said those policies revealed a fundamental lack of support for an adequate national defense." Calling Glenn "att-authentic-American hero" who got a "bad rap," Reagan said: 'Well, I think the senator with the Right Stuff was right when he criticized the candidate with the Left Stuff ... It's too bad the leaders of his party have stopped listening."

Reagan charged the Democrats not only will raise taxes, which Mondale has said he would do, but "will provide the kind of leadership that will make sure we all put on our hair shirts and feel properly despairing again, the kind of leadership that will stop growth and start talking about the age of limits again. Well, the only thing that's limited is their optimism and imagination.

"Calling for a tax increase was their typical kneejerk reaction. And believe me, when their knee jerks, you get kicked."

In contrast to his campaign stop in Missouri on Sunday, where Reagan sought to reassure farmers left behind by the economic recovery that he hadn't forgotten them, the emphasis today was on growth and the success of his economic program.

Calling Cincinnati "a modern boom town," Reagan pointed to the new skyscrapers and construction around Fountain Square as evidence of his administration's success in putting the nation's economy back on its feet.

"Let me tell you more about the healthy spiral," Reagan said. "It is based on the simple proposition that growth is good. And it starts with a foundation of faith: faith in the spirit of free people under God; and faith that the government will continue policies that will reward effort. And let me tell you, we will."

Reagan plans to fly to Dallas on Wednesday for his

Mondale upset by tax delay

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale hopes that the Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's financial disclosures today, after a "regrettable" loss of time and impetus, will enable the Democratic ticket to regain the offensive against President Reagan.

While proclaiming pride in his running mate for the scheduled release of comprehensive tax and income information about herself and her husband, Mondale was known to believe she made significant mistakes in handling an issue which has plagued their uphill campaign for days on end.

Specifically, Mondale thinks Ms. Ferraro erred in announcing eight days ago that her husband, real estate executive John A. Zaccaro, had refused to contribute his tax returns to today's disclosure package. Zaccaro subsequently reversed his decision, but not before his wife's critics raised their eyebrows even higher. "Some of the things being talked about will be corrected once the disclosure is complete," Mondale said Sunday in Kansas City, Mo. "It is regrettable that we had to take a week to get it all together."

Sources in both the Mondale and Ferraro campaign organizations said the three-term House member from Queens, New York, failed to notify either Mondale or her own senior staff that she planned to reveal her husband's refusal to release the tax

Thus, there was no opportunity for Mondale campaign strategists to anticipate what the political damage might be, and perhaps privately persuade Zaccaro to change his mind - as he did later, but only under the glare of a week of intense controversy.

As a result, Republicans gathering for their convention in Dallas were handed an easy target even before Reagan arrived to accept his own nomination for a second term.

During a two-day swing through Iowa, Missouri and Colorado, Mondale promised that Ms. Ferraro's financial disclosure "would be the most complete, comprehensive, detailed and candid in American political history." But the matter of Zaccaro's tax returns, he said, was a question for the couple to

Mine search continues

CAIRO - The Western effort to identify the source of the explosions damaging ships in the Red Sea continued today while two Soviet minesweepers headed south in the waterway, apparently toward pro-Soviet South Yemen.

At least 18 ships have been damaged by mines in the Red Sea and the Gulf of Suez, the northwestern branch of the sea, since July 9, and American, British and French mine hunting units have responded to Egypt's request to help search for the explosives.

U.S. Navy officers on board the USS Shreveport, the base of four American minesweeping helicopters searching the Gulf of Suez, said Sunday the oceanographic ship Harkness had made 12 "contacts" with mine-like objects, but most were found to be trash or coral when checked by frogmen.

They said some of the objects simply "drifted The Harkness is leased to the U.S. Navy. U.S. Navy Commodore Alvin S. Newman, who commands the 650 crewmen and U.S. ships and helicopters, said it may be impossible to lay the blame for the mining, even if a mine was found

Palace hit by shellfire

BEIRUT - President Amin Gemayel's government palace was damaged by shellfire overnight as army troops and Druse militiamen clashed in the worst breach of Lebanon's civil war cease-fire in six weeks, police said today.

The 42-year-old president and his family were not in the two-story hilltop palace, and none of his staff or guards was injured in the seven-hour duels, waged with artillery, multiple rocket launchers and tank cannons in the mountains overlooking Beirut.

Police said 12 civilians were wounded but had no casualty reports for the combatants.

Gemayel was at his summer villa in the mountain resort town of Bikfaya northeast of Beirut when the palace in suburban Baabda east of Beirut was hit. Police said the palace "sustained considerable material damage," but refused to give details.

The fighting centered mainly around the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb and a cluster of surrounding villages. It broke out Sunday shortly after two Lebanese soldiers were wounded by a mine that destroyed their vehicle near Souk el-The fighting, which died down before dawn today, prompted Gemayel to dispatch his political adviser, Michel Samaha, to Damascus, where he met with Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim After that meeting, Maj. Gen. Mohammed Kholi, a senior aide to Syrian President Hafez Assad, traveled to Lebanon and today met Gemayel in Bikfaya, the state radio said. He was expected to discuss ways to help bring about agreement on a security plan to re-establish overnment authority in militia-controlled areas in the central mountains.

Protesters derail trains

NEW DELHI - Police clashed with demonstrators who derailed trains and burned government offices in protests against the dismissal of an opposition governor. At least six people were reported killed and 88 wounded during conflicts in three states.

A state police spokesman in Andhra Pradesh said officers' gunfire killed at least six people and wounded 38 during protests in two to state there Sunday. The United News of India said to people were injured in Bombay, capital of neighboring Maharashtra state in western India.

Iran sends volunteers

TEHRAN - Iran has sent thousands of volunteers to its battlefront with Iraq and is prepared for a new offensive if Iraq does not comply with Iranian demands, according to Tehran newspapers.

The report in the daily Sobhe-Azadeghan. did not say when the deadline would expire. Among Iran's demands are the overthrow and

When President Kennedy would practice backstage before a press conference, he often would give outrageous answers to questions put to him by staff people taking the part of reporters. They all had a great time, laughing it up.

But, even though it was only make-believe, Kennedy said he realized how dangerous it was for a president to make flip remarks that he might, in an unguarded moment, repeat in public.

We're reminded of that by President Reagan's foolish utterance while testing a radio microphone: "My fellow Americans. I'm pleased to tell you we have signed legislation today that would outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes.'

What a dumb thing to do! A couple of guys making jokes in a bar is harmless enough, but the president of the United States has got to surrender his right to make wisecracks about war.

People all over the world are now debating whether Mr. Reagan's joke was more than that — perhaps "an expression of repressed desire," as the newspaper Le Monde of Paris put

In many people's minds, the most dangerous aspect of President Reagan's leadership is a predilection for saber rattling coupled with paranoia about communism. It's nothing to joke about.

A foolish joke

WASHINGTON — It was only a oke, of course. But a tasteless joke, certain to have costly consequences on the public diplomacy the Reagan administration has been directing to the European allies and the Soviet Union.

The gag showed that on the subject of nuclear weapons, as on so many other matters, Ronald Reagan is a thoughtless president. A serious question is whether the country wants a thoughtful

Reagan often clowns while testing the mikes before a broadcast. A couple of years ago, for example, he referred to the leadership of Poland as "a bunch of nogood lousy bums." Last Saturday, in the voice check before his weekend radio broadcast he said: "My fellow Americans, I am pleased to tell you I just signed legislation which outlaws Russia forever. The bombing begins in five minutes.' Americans, of course, understood he was only kidding. The Los Angeles Times, Washington Post and the New York Times did not put the item on page one of their Monday editions. The TV news shows gave it light treatment. The Democrats, on the defensive about Geraldine Ferraro's financial status, were critical — but in low key, and with no show of outrage.

But elements in Western Europe, which have long looked on Reagan as a trigger-happy cowboy, found their worst fears confirmed. Le Monde, the most prestigious paper in Europe, labeled the president's comment "an expression of repressed desire." The press service of the Social Democratic opposition in West Germany cited the remark as evidence Reagan was "an irresponsible old man." The Polish news agency saw a president "who would do anything to fuel up the arms race.

Relations with Russia are now so bad that Reagan's little joke is not apt to make them worse. But precisely because the Big Two connection is so tenuous, the Reagan administration has been obliged to mount a campaign designed to show the president as a man of peace. Reagan himself moderated his anti-Soviet tone all year long. He regularly expressed interest in an arms control agreement and a summit. That message was beamed at dubious allies, and behind the Iron Curtain, in an expensive program of public diplomacy.

Most of that effort can now be written off as a waste. None of the West Europeans prone to think of Reagan as a bloodthirsty warmonger are going to be convinced that in his heart he favors conciliation. Few Russians, paranoid about their security to start with, are now going to be disposed to think of Reagan as a misunderstood good

So the U.S. has suffered a costly setback in public diplomacy. This country will now be constrained to pay even more heed to neutralist sentiment in Western Europe. If arms control talks with the Russians are resumed, Washington will have to pay a higher reentry fee. The clowning that might have been OK for an actor, or even a governor, is not admissible for the foremost world leader. When the president jokes about bombing Russia, it isn't funny. It's foolish.

But relations with Russia are not the only area where Reagan makes a farce of his office. The economy may have turned right for now, but the comments regularly made by the president are the stuff of low comedy. In his first budget, for example, he predicted a balance this year, with intererst rates at around percent. A similar piece of nonsense is apparently being readied for the midterm budget statement, which was due out at the end of last month.

On taxes, Reagan became so tangled up in his mindless attacks against higher levies that the White House had to issue a written explanation. To make sure it came out correctly, spokesman Larry Speakes served up simple questions. Reagan - at long last returned coherent responses

Population control provides another field where the administration has made the U.S. an international laughingstock. Abortion may be a matter of faith and morals where religious doctrine and individual conscience both come into play. But the notion, advanced by the U.S. at an international conference in Mexico City, that population growth is neutral in its impact on economic growth, is preposterous. For truly poor countries — for Kenya, India and China, say - reducing the birth rate over the next few decades is an absolute condition of any economic growth. All serious students know it, and to assert the contrary, as the Reagan administration did in Mexico City, is to make this country look ridiculous.

But the clownish features of the Reagan administration hardly need cataloguing. What is worth pondering is why the American people seem so disposed to put up with a joker in the White House.

HUD official at odds with the law

WASHINGTON — An official of the Department of Housing and Urban Development has an outstanding bench warrant against him that calls for his arrest in connection with housing code violations on property he formerly owned in Washington, D.C.

The bench warrant was issued in District of Columbia Superior Court last Oct. 28 when the HUD official failed to appear in court for a "status hearing" in the case. It orders the U.S. marshal "to arrest Kenneth F. Holbert and bring him forthwith to answer the information charging him" with failure to provide hot water for tenants of a seven-unit apartment building on 33 occasions from November, 1982 to April, 1983.

Holbert, 59, an attorney, earns $66,000 a year as a special assistant to HUD's general deputy assistant secretary for fair housing and equal opportunity. When my ate Tony Capac Holbert at his $230,000 suburban Maryland home, the HUD official expressed mild interest.

"I thank you for bringing it to my attention," he said. "If someone was looking for me with a warrant, I'd be concerned." Generally, the federal marshals are too busy with more serious criminal offenses to pursue the huge backlog of outstanding bench warrants.

'All the problems I had with the property were solved" as of March 1983, Holbert said, explaining: "From that point on I was an agent, I wasn't involved on a dayto-day basis with the building."

Official documents show that Holbert sold the three-story brick building in February 1984. Since 1981, the records show, he had earned anywhere from $5,000 to $15,000 a year in rental income on the property.

The outstanding bench warrant stems from a case filed in April 1983, by the District of Columbia corporation counsel's office, alleging the 33 instances of failure to provide hot water in violation of the district's housing code. Holbert is among 28 current and former landlords listed in the "Major Violators Summary" issued by the city's housing enforcement authorities.

Holbert's current problems weren't his first run-in with housing regulations. In 1980, tenants in the building filed a petition with housing authorities charging Holbert with rent overcharges and code violations An independent examiner agreed with most of the tenants' allegations, and ordered Holbert to pay $2,490 in adjustments. The December 1980, decision stated that Holbert's "failure to provide the proper heating and hot water during various periods from 1978 to the present are housing code violations of such substantial nature as to significantly affect the health, safety and security of tenants."

Nine months later, another examiner concluded that Holbert had reduced (tenant-) related vices and facilities by allowing substantial housing code violations to exist over a prolonged period of HUD officials were aware of Holbert's problems. In fact, they took the unusual step of holding up final approval of his last three annual financial disclosure statements until he provided evidence that numerous code violations discovered in 1980 had been corrected.

The evidence Holbert offered was a single-page check-off form from a city inspector, listing correction of 36 minor violations ranging from peeling paint to loose plaster, leaky sinks and dirty floors. The more serious charges lodged against him were not mentioned. But Holbert's disclosure forms were finally OK'd.

PERSECUTED BAHAIS: The cruel repression of Iran's Bahai religious minority by the Ayatollah Khomeini's fundamentalist Moslem regime has stirred highlevel concern in the State Department - and frustration at U.S. inability to do much about it.

A special memorandum prepared for the National Security Council points out that more than 130 Bahais have been executed under Khomeini, their holy places desecrated and their property confiscated. They have been denied employment and have been subjected to harassment by mobs. The State Department said it has tried to generate world awareness of the Bahais' plight, but that 'these efforts have had but limited impact on the Iranian regime.' The memo suggested continued publicity in this direction.

DEAR ABBY: My older sister had an argument with our parents because she didn't want them to look at her high school annual. She told them she wasn't ashamed of what her friends had written, but it was private. Our parents said that as long as they were paying for the annual, they had a right to look at it. My sister solved the problem by giving our parents the price of the

Sjogren's syndrome

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please give again and resume prolactin pro-

You have to be a perceptive doctor to get a disease or a syndrome named for you. Such a physician was Henrik Sjogren (SHOW-grun), a Swedish eye specialist of the late 1800s who noticed that some of his patients who complained of dry eyes also had rheumatoid arthritis and dry mouths as well. Later researchers found that, in fact, two out of every 10 people with rheumatoid arthritis (or related joint disorders) had the distressing combination of symptoms. They had Sjogren's syndrome.

The eye and mouth dryness arises from decreased tear and saliva production caused by invasion of the tear and salivary glands by certain kinds of white blood cells - lymphocytes. Those cells replace normal gland cells.

The eye dryness makes for a gritty, burning sensation and it also increases the chance of infection. The mouth dryness causes difficulty in masticating food and in swallowing. It also promotes dental cavity formation.

The only treatment is in alleviating the dryness with artificial fluids - eyedrops to simulate tears and various oral lubricants to keep the mouth moist. And of course, the joint symptoms are treated in the usual way, if they are present. The dryness can exist by itself as the prominent problem without the joint symptoms. There are many commercial lubricating products available

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is your opinion of the use of bromocriptine for a pituitary tumor causing continued presence of prolactin in my blood? I had surgery but apparentgested now is with the proton beam. What is your opinion of that? - Mrs. L.D.

cloYour letter reflects how complex such a problem can be, but also the range of treatments open today. The pituitary gland is a relatively tiny structure on the undersurface of the brain. It produces many horother glands and hormones. Your tumor is making your pituitary gland produce prolactin in excess and that leads to things like loss of menstrual periods and secretion of breast milk even though you're not breastfeeding.

Such tumors can be very small, indeed, as small as two-fifths of an inch or smaller. And even though miracles can be wrought with microsurgery techniques today, there is always a chance that some cells will be left behind. That residual tumor tissue can act up all the symptoms of Sjogren's duction. You're back where you started. So other options are looked Drugs, like your bromocriptine, often keep tumor growth in check and stop hormone overproduction. They are used sometimes right from the start. And if prolactin production continues, then the proton beam may be brought out as a weapon to shrink the tumor.

There may be treatment failures and success anywhere along the route. I wish I could be more definite about your case, but I can't. If hormone production is high and if the tumor is continuing to grow, then I am sure your doctors are considering all the options. The suggestion about radiation is a standard one. Most such options were not available even a few

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have vitiligo on my hands and elbows. It is noticeable in the summer when I tan, which I do very easily. I want to know some of the lotions you mentioned to help this. I have been to several doctors and all say there is no cure.-Mrs. B.J.H.

Let's recap. Vitiligo is a loss of pigment production in skin cells that causes patchy discoloration. The names of some of the cosmetics and stains for camouflage include Dy-O-Derm, Vitadye, Covermark and Erase in no order of preference. A cosmetologist can advise you about the best skin blending methods.

People like you have to be careful about getting those vitiliginous patches sunburned because they don't have the natural skin pigmentation protection of surrounding areas. You should use a good sunscreen over those areas, one with a high protection number, like "15".

Some dermatologists are trying skin repigmentation with drugs called psoralens along with ultraviolet light exposure of the areas. Strict supervision of this treatment is important to avoid un-

Party-plan sales may not be bargain

Buying merchandise at a "par-receives usually depends on the ty" can be fun, but may not make much shopping sense, says Bonnie Piernot of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Party plan sales are an increasingly popular way to sell everything from pots and pans to cosmetics, jewelry and lingerie. But consumers should recognize that the parties depend on peer pressure to make sales, she said.

Once you come into a friend's home for a party and see neighbors signing up for merchandise, it's very difficult to resist buying something, says Piernot. "This can be a real problem for the person who is trying to avoid impulse buying and stick to the family budget.

The best approach to sales parties is to treat them as you would any other consumer purchase decision, Piernot says. You don't go to a store unless you want to buy the products sold there. So if you're not interested in buying the merchandise sold at sales parties, turn down invitations to attend them,

If you are interested in buying, check the quality and cost of similar merchandise in retail stores before going to the party. Then if the items are overpriced, enjoy the party without feeling obligated to buy the products.

Big Spring's Olympian comes home

By BILLY NABOURS Sports Editor

After two weeks of Olympic competition and five days of touring the country, Rose Magers came home today to be honored by rightfully proud Big Springers.

Magers was a starter and star for the U.S. women's volleyball team during the Olympics, contributing greatly in this country's accomplishment of winning its first ever medal in the sport. America's team won the silver.

During a press conference this morning Magers espoused her views on a variety of subjects, all of which pertained to volleyball,

She said, "We (the U.S. women) wanted to compete with the best and we did," in reference to her Olympic experience.

The team accomplished a great deal according to the 1978 Big Spring High School graduate, although its number one goal of a gold medal was not realized because of a three match sweep by China in the championship game.

"We did accomplish something though," said the personable 24-year old who was accompanied at the press conference by her parents. Opal and Ellihue Magers and brothers James and Johnny.

"We competed and competed well. Hopefully we were able to promote volleyball as a great sport," she added. And even though her Olympic experiences are over — for the time anyway - Magers said she, "still wants to promote volleyball, perhaps by giving clinics at various high schools."

Magers remarked that her life "take different paths," now that two years of working for an Olympic medal is complete. She is

Oilers unload Johnson

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers wide receiver Butch Johnson, obtained from the Dallas Cowboys in the off-season, was traded today to the Denver Broncos in exchange for a third-round choice in the 1985 National Football League draft.

The trade followed outstanding performances in pre-season games by other young Oiler receivers, including rookie sixth-round draft choice Eric Mullins and the resurgence of veteran Steve Bryant.

Johnson played briefly in Saturday's 31-19 loss to the New Orleans Saints while Mullins, from Stanford, caught four passes for 88

Houston General Manager Ladd Herzeg said that Johnson "has had a fine camp also. We really hated to part with him, but it does allow us to pick up another high draft already considering a modeling career and there have been overtures from leagues in Japan and Italy where players earn money that can be placed in a trust fund. "I can play in Japan or Italy and not have my amateur status taken away," she said. "If I decide not to try for the 1988 Olympics I can go ahead an accept the money." As far as '88 goes, Magers said she, 'can't commit to the team right

But, despite the potential loss of Magers and other standouts like Debbie Green, Flo Hyman, Rita Crockett and coach Arie Selinger, Magers does not see the U.S. going in the tank for '88.

"I think the level of U.S. women's volleyball has been raised to a point where we can compete with the best. It'll be up to people like myself and other team members to teach other kids." She added. "Skills I learned during two years of working with the other team members are things that most of the Japanese and Chinese players start learning at 12 or 13. I feel I have learned the best skills there are in volleyball. Maybe we can start teaching kids in America the skills at those ages. Our teams can only get better.

And for aspiring volleyball players or anyone reaching for the gold, silver or any measure of success, Magers said, "Nothing ever comes easy, but always stick by your dreams. With a little sweat and hard work they'll come true."

Magers gave her thoughts about her Olympic experience at the gatheering which was only the first of many festivities slated for Rose Magers Day.

Broadrick, Thomas claim Partners title

The team of Ron Broadrick and Duane Thomas came in at nine under when all was said and done at the Comanche Trail Partnership Golf Tournament Sunday evening.

Broadrick and Thomas came in with rounds of 65 and 68 for a twoday, 36-hole total of 133. That was six shots better than the father and son team of Jimmy Newsom, Sr. and Jimmy Newsom, Jr. at 139. Howard Stewart and Royce Cox finshed third in 140.

The championship of the first flight went to Bobby Waters, Jr. and Mike Scarbrough with a 140 after rounds of 67-73. Waters scored a hole-in-one at No. 15. If it had been on No. 4 or 10 Waters would have claimed a 1984 Dodge Ram pickup, donated by Highland Second flight honors went to Jerry Barron and Max Coffee with rounds of 71-77 for 148. Third flight winners were Manuel Ramierez and Manuel Sanchez in a playoff over Joe Trevino and Robert Rodriguez. Both finished regulation with 76-81 for 157.

In the fourth flight Alan and Craig Bailey, one of the five fatherson teams entered, won with 78-83 for 161. The fifth flight ended in a tie between the teams of Herschel Harris and Sal Diaz and Luis Moreno and Albert Alvarez. Both twosomes totaled 176

The winners of the Haig woods was J.V. Gibson. Kelly O'Donnell took home the irons and a golf bag was won by Paul Graves during Saturday night festivities that highlighted the first round of

In addition to the Newsoms and Baileys, other father-son pairs entered in the tourney included Jackie and Rusty Touchstone, Marvin and Steve Williams and Mark, Sr. and Mark, Jr. Wilkinson.

The three-game series drew 105,716 fans, the first series to top 100,000 at Riverfront Stadium since 1981. They screamed Rose's name every at-bat, and went wild every time he slapped the ball through the infield. "He's one of those guys that if hometown moved Rose closer to his cherished goal of Ty Cobb's alltime hit mark. He has 4,070 career hits, 121 short of Cobb. However, when a reporter pointed out that at the three-game pace he could catch Cobb next summer, Rose shrugged off the suggestion.

'If I'm going to catch him, I'm going to catch him," Rose said. "I going to happen in 1985. I'm not programmed that way."

He couldn't resist adding: "I'd like to catch him as soon as Rose's 3-for-5 performance Sunday boosted his average to .271, Duane Walker on the team. However, he said it won't be hard to sit himself down tonight when the Reds open a three-game series against the St. Louis Cardinals.

'Why not? Because I'm going to take a couple of guys out (of the lineup). They've got a left-hander going," Rose said, noting the Cardinals planned to start Dave LaPoint.

Rose's return has sparked upturns in the Reds' offense and their spirits. The Reds scored 17 runs in their two losses to the Cubs, despite their .240 team batting average that ranks last in the National

"Pete's club never gave up," Chicago's Keith Moreland said, after the Reds refused to give in Sunday after falling behind early.

However. Rose was more concerned with another statistic after Sunday's game — he's 1-2 as a major-league manager.

"I don't care how many runs we score," he said. "I'll take a 1-0

SUNDAY'S GOLF CHAMPIONS - Nancy Lopez, left, smiles and holds her golf club over her head just after she bogied on the 18th hole. Lopez still was able to hold on and win the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's Golf over JoAnne Carner by shooting 281, seven strokes below par. Lee Trevino, meanwhile broke a three year victory drought by claming the PGA Championship with 15-under-par 273.

Trevino erases doubts with PGA win

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — It had been three years since he had won, and despite 26 tour victories in 17 years, Lee Trevino - the cocky "Merry Mex" - wondered if he would ever win again.

Those doubts were erased Sunday when Trevino beat back the challenges of Lanny Wadkins and Gary Player to capture the 66th PGA Golf Championship by four strokes with a gutty 69.

His 273 total — 15-under-par over the 7,145-yard, par-72 Shoal Creek Course — was the most shots under par ever recorded in this championship, and he became the first man to win it with four consecutive rounds in the 60s.

Watkins finished with a 72 and Player a 71 to tie for the second spot at 277. "It feels great. When you're young, you always say it's inevitable. You'll win sooner or later.

But when you're old, you don't know if you'll ever win again," said the 44-year-old Trevino.

"The last time I had won was in May of 1981 (Tournament of Champions), but I was always saying I can win - only it didn't happen.

Well, it happened, and Trevino is $125,000 richer for gaining the title, his sixth major along with his other PGA title in 1974, two U.S. Opens and a pair of British Opens.

The victory pushed his earnings for the season to $265,407 and to $3,019,592 for his career, third best behind Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson. But it didn't come easy despite the four-stroke margin.

Trevino held only a one-shot lead over Wadkins on the par-3 16th hole and was looking at a 15-foot putt for par. Wadkins had about a 12-footer for birdie.

"That was the turning point," said Trevino. "I had hit an awful shot, hit it fat and into the bunker and he's got a 12-footer for birdie. I need the 15-footer for par.

"I make mine and he missed and I've still got my one-shot lead," he Watkins then bogeyed both the 17th and 18th while Trevino added a birdie on the final hole for the victory. Player, who earned $62,500 along with Wadkins as runners-up, parred the final four holes to catch Watkins For Wadkins it was a disappointment, but he conceded that "Lee played awfully well. He made the putts he had to on the back nine, and I didn't. That was it," said Wadkins. "Number 16 was the key to the tournament. I felt like we kept putting the heat on each other back and forth, and it was a lot of fun,"

"At the Tournament Players tournament last year it was similar, and I beat him. But he got me here," said Wadkins.

The victory also qualified

Trevino for the World Series of Golf tournament later this week in Akron, Ohio. Calvin Peete fired a 68 in the final round which was delayed one hour by a thunderstorm, and finished fourth at 278. British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain was alone at 279 after a 70. Larry Mize, Scott Simpson, Gary Hallberg and defending champion Hal Sutton were tied for sixth at 280. Mize had a 73, Simpson and Hallberg 70s, and Sutton a 69.

At 281 were left-hander Russ Cochran, Victor Regalado and Japan's Tommy Nakajima. Cochran had a 67, Regalado a 70 and Nakajima a 74.

Lopez says Chevy victory is no lemon

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) Even with fuzzy eyesight and aching feet, Nancy Lopez has proven to herself and her opponents she still ranks with the foremost players in women's professional golf. "It's a big win for me, almost like a major, to beat the best players in the world and take the pressure again," Lopez said Sunday after her 1-shot victory over two-time defending champion JoAnne Carner in the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's

Lopez closed with a 1-over-73 for a tournament record total of 281, seven strokes below par at Shaker Heights Country club. Carner had

Beth Daniel in 1980 and Carner last year had shared the previous 72-hole tournament in suburban

Cleveland. Still, it was a bittersweet triumph for Lopez, even with the richest first prize in women's golf,

Her husband, Houston Astros' infielder Ray Knight, was riding the bench a few hours away in Pittsburgh.

"I asked to be traded. There is just nothing left in Houston for Knight said via telephone from the Astros' clubhouse in Three Rivers Stadium.

Lopez supports her husband and will move with Knight to a new city if he is traded.

"He played last year with an achilles tendon and this year with kidney stones and dizziness. He played with pain. It's a sore spot with me the way he is being treated," she said.

Lopez knows all about playing with physical problems. She had blisters so badly during this $200,000 tournament she needed help from a physician and considered playing in tennis shoes. And, choosing not to wear her contact lens for the last two months, she has sight problems. "I can't see very far without them," she said. "I can see the pin, but it's kinda blurry. I can't see the leader boards. I have to ask my caddie."

Those physical problems could not minimize the importance of her 29th victory.

"It's self-satisfying to know I can still handle the pressure," Lopez said. "This year really has been an adjustment for me - traveling with a child.'

She takes 9-month-old Ashley Marie with her for all of her tournaments.

Even with a family, Lopez says she will stick around four more years in a bid to follow the very strict rules of the LPGA Hall of Lopez needed a short putt for a bogey on the last hole to avoid a sudden-death playoff with Carner.

McEnroe takes title; Martina breaks Bank

the microphone like a standup comic, displaying the grinning face of a winner.

After demolishing fellow American Vitas Gerulaitis 6-0, 6-3 in the $450,000 Player's International final Sunday, John McEnroe accepted the $48,000 check that went with his first-ever Canadian Open title.

"I'd like to thank Vitas for not playing well — that's what friends are for," said McEnroe, the world's No. 1-ranked player, whose earnings have gone over the $1-million plateau for the second year in a row.

McEnroe, 25, then tempered his feelings about the one-hour match. "I think I played my best match of the tournament while Vitas didn't play his best," he said. "I felt good about that (my concentration) "The key was not to let it slip away. But at the same time I wouldn't have wanted to win the match oh and oh. Not that I wasn't trying to win, but it's betterfor me to do it that way." Heading into the U.S. Open in late August, McEnroe said he was feeling a lot better than last year when he was upset by fellow American Bill Scanlon in the round

"I didn't know if I ever was going to win this tournament (it was his eighth appearance), so it's good I've got that off my back," said McEnroe, who lost to Bjorn Borg of Sweden in the 1979 Canadian Open final. "Now I can concentrate on the Open.'

McEnroe, who has a 59-1 match record this year, regained the No. 1 ranking last Monday even before Czechoslovakian Ivan Lendl, the defending champion here, was upset by Francisco Gonzalez of Paraguay in the second round.

McEnroe was so dominant Sunday that the match lasted just an hour. It was his eighth consecutive victory over Gerulaitis, who has not beaten him since 1980.

Near the end of the match fans were asking the left-handed McEnroe if he could play righthanded.

"People can say what they want," said Gerulaitis, who won the Canadian Open the last time it was held here in 1982. "They pay

TORONTO (AP) — He stood at the money and I really can't complain since they've always been behind me in the past and I did play pretty bad today.

Elsewhere, Brad Gilbert rallied to win the last three games of the third set to beat Hank Pfister 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 and win the $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament in Grove City, Ohio, and Czechoslovakian Tomas Shmid routed Mel Purcell 6-3, 6-2 to capture the Head Classic tournament in Stowe, Vt. In women's play, Martina Navratilova outlasted her doubles partner Pam Shriver to extend her winning streak to 48 consecutive matches in a 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 finale in the $150,000 United Jersey Bank Classic.

Gilbert, winning his first pro title in the United States, breezed to an easy victory in the first set but encountered a baseline battle with the 30-year-old Pfister in the second set. He suffered a service break in the second game, when the score went to deuce 10 times before Pfister won on a passing

The victory, worth $20,000, was the first for the 23-year-old Gilbert since he won in Taipei, Taiwan, in

Smid used a pressure serve-andvolley game to avenge an earlier loss to Purcell and take home a $25,000 prize. Purcell collected $15,000. Her triumph in Mahwah, N.J. earned Navratilova $27,500 and moved her to within eight matches of Chris Evert Lloyd's modern record of 56 consecutive singles victories, set in 1: 1.

But the victory : the two-hour, 15-minute match did not come easily for the top-seeded Navratilova.

Shriver, who has beaten Navratilova just three times in 22 matches, most recently in the 1982 U.S. Open, rallied from a 2-5 deficit in the third set to tie the match 5-5 and had a break point against her opponent in the 11th game.

But Navratilova whipped a backhand volley past Shriver and won the next two points to hold

"I had to play good tennis to win," said Navratilova after her final tuneup before defending her U.S. Open title. "I was in a little

Soviet bloc swimmers slower than LA times

MOSCOW (AP) — East German and Soviet swimmers, the outstading favorites at the Friendship '84 games here, took it easy during the qualifying for five finals Monday.

Times did not approach the marks set at the Los Angeles Summer Olympics in the morning session, with freestyle world-record holder Kristin Otto of East Germany obviously saving herself in the 200-meter event for a worldrecord attempt in the finals scheduled for later in the day.

Ute Geweniger, the breaststroke specialist from East Germany, also held back, finishing only second in her heat to assure her a berth in the finals.

The competition lacked depth in some events. Organizers beefed up the starting fields with swimmers who were never in contention. Some finished more that one minute behind the winners, and Syrian Mualla Firas even was lapped in the men's 400-meter individual medley. In the men's 4 x 200 meters freestyle relay, only four teams went into the qualifying heat, with each being assured a place in the finals.

Of 53 starters in the morning events, only seven - four from Austria and three from India - did not come from Eastern Bloc countries or other nations allied with the Soviet Union.

Yuri Kovshov of the Soviet Union, a gold medalist at the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow, continued his victory streak on the equestrian competition that is part of the Friendship-84 sports festival, the official Polish news agency PAP reported. The equestrian competition, which ended Sunday with three dressage events, was one of a series of sporting events organized by countries that boycotted the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles Kovshov took first place in the Inter-2 dressage event atop Ruch Johanes Seidl of West Germany, riding Winchester, finished second, and Madeline Winter of West Germany, riding Typhoon, third, the news agency said.

Winter, atop Hagal, captured first place in the Inter-1 dressage event. Elzbieta Morciniac of Poland, riding Opar, took the silver medal, and Wojciech Dabrowski of Poland, riding Medar, captured the bronze medal

Another Polish rider, Jozef Zagor, riding Helios, scored an upset, taking the gold medal in the Special Competition No. 7 with 1,295 points. Bernard Langer of East Germany, riding Radamas, finished only one point behind. Annelies Puetz of Austria, riding Kuahulan, was third with 1,269 points.

Kovshov, riding two different horses, took three first places and two seconds to dominate the field of 36 riders from Austria, Bulgaria, Spain, East Germany, West Germany, Poland, Hungary and the Soviet Union.

PAP reported that 8,000 spectators attended the competition Sunday at the hippodrome in the third and final day of the southwestern Polish town of Ksiaz.

port in Swansea, Wales, by one of Burton's brothers, Graham Jenkins, 56, who drove her the 15 miles to Pontrhydyfen in a dark blue Rolls-Royce. Miss Taylor, who was last in Wales nine years ago on her second honeymoon with Burton, stayed away from a memorial service here on Aug. 11 to avoid upsetting his fourth wife and widow, Sally Hay Burton. Last weekend, she flew to Switzerland and visited Burton's grave. Burton, one of Britain's great Shakespearean stage actors and a veteran of more than 40 movies, died of a brain hemorrhage Aug. 5 in Celigny, Switzerland, at the age of 58. During their married life, Burton and Miss Taylor frequently visited this village, where he was born in 1925 as Richard Walter Jenkins, the 12th of 13 children of a coal miner and a barmaid.

After her return Sunday, surrounded by a crowd of inquisitive neighbors, fans and photographers, Miss Taylor smiled, waved and blew kisses before sitting down for a meal of roast beef with the family. Three of Burton's sisters, Mrs.

Owen, Cassie Thomas, 62, and Cissie James, 80, and the four Jenkins brothers, Graham, David, 71, Will, 74, and Verdun, 68, were there.

"Elizabeth was always a welcome visitor when she came here with Richard," said David, a retired police officer.

"That welcome will always be here for someone who remains very close to our hearts...," he said. "She will be at home with us at a time when we are still mourning the death of our celebrated

Festival draws 5,000 fans

CALDWELL, N.J. (AP) -Richie Havens, who joined Joan Baez and Donovan for a concert on the 15th anniversary of the Woodstock festival, says the spirit generated at the Bethel, N.Y., dairy farm "never left."

"We're back again!" said Havens, now a grandfather.

"A revival is not the right word. A celebration is a better word, a confirmation even better." said Donovan, who coaxed the crowd into singing along to such 1960s tunes as "Happiness Runs" and "Mellow Yellow.

The 11-hour concert Saturday drew nearly 5,000 people to a sloping lawn at Caldwell College. Comparisons with the Woodstock stival, which drew 400,000 peop were inevitable.
