Off the wall: Accent therapy

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — If you look like a business executive but sound like a Beverly Hillbilly, you might want to lose that Southern accent.

Speech pathologist Beverly Inman-Ebel says she can help.

"Southern Success Without the Southern Accent" is the name of a 10-week course Ms. Inman-Ebel is teaching this fall at Chattanooga State Technical Community College.

"The Southern voice is typically very friendly, very gentle — an easier, slower type of speech — and that's fine in most situations," says Ms. Inman-Ebel, director of the Communication Clinic in Chattanooga.

But people in business want to appear assertive, not easy-going, she said. They want people to listen to them. A Southern accent, said Ms. Inman-Ebel, can distract non-Southerners, who often think it's cute.

"If you're a young executive — or an older executive — you don't wish to sound cute," she said. "You want to have a voice that doesn't stand out, so that people will listen to what you are saying, not to how you are saying it. You don't want that distraction. Therefore it's important to lose that accent for certain situations."

Television and movies have led many people to view a Southern accent as comical, said Ms. Inman-Ebel.

"The Beverly Hillbillies," for instance. That was a big joke on Tennessee," she said. "People from here realize it isn't really like that."

Harvest to await 1st frost

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Most Howard County cotton growers who managed to produce a crop this year will take a chance on hail and early cold weather by waiting until the first frost to harvest their cotton, according to Howard County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Director Tim Hall.

"Except for (farmers near) Knott, most Howard County farmers won't start harvesting until a little before Thanksgiving," Hall said. "Normally, they start killing the cotton in October (with chemicals) when it has reached full maturity."

This year farmers will wait for the first frost to kill the cotton and open the bolls to save the money they would have spent on chemicals, Hall said.

"The story of having some cotton near Knott is vastly overrated," said Howard County Farm Bureau President Paul Hopper, who farms near Knott. "I do not anticipate putting any chemical on what I've got. I do anticipate a lot of abandonment (of this year's cotton crop) near Knott."

"It's better to plow under than to strip," Hopper said. "I can't put another $12 to $13 of chemical and then $38 a bale for harvest when what you harvest won't pay for what you just did."

Martin County farmers also will wait for frost to kill the cotton, according to Gary Clevenger, Martin County agricultural extension agent.

Farmers take a chance when they wait for a frost of having hail damage their crops, or of having color and quality deteriorate significantly, they said.

"If we get an early freeze, we could pay (adjustments to) 85 to 90 percent of everyone with crop insurance," said Federal Crop Insurance Corp. District Director Dottie Sampley.

Agents for the FCIC district are doing field estimates now of the cotton still in the field, she said.

"All of the counties are still

Partners in Unity for Progress, a community action group that says it is striving for unity by opening up communication, last night targeted several areas of concern, including the Big Spring Herald and the city council.

Johnny Rutherford and Mike Russell are chairmen of the organization, which met Tuesday to form committees and target goals for the coming weeks.

Rutherford said the group had already made progress on one project, the renovation of the Settles Hotel.

He said obstacles which had stood in the way of renovating the Big Spring landmark "are not there any more." He said grants were being researched for retirement housing, and a search for the title and transfer of ownership was under way. "We've come a long way in a two-week period," Rutherford said.

The group then turned its attention to areas they hope to work with in the future.

Chuck Cawthorn, a local businessman, said, "We've got a problem with our paper. The general public is not happy with their editorials. They are all biased and always have been."

Cawthorn said he didn't approve of editorial endorsements. He also accused the Herald of negativism and said: "A lot of people are under the opinion that we need a positive approach."

Johnnie Lou Avery told the group that many newspapers make political endorsements and that columnists' opinions were allowed on the editorial pages of any newspaper. Journalism students are taught to differentiate between editorial opinions and news stories, she said.

Cawthorn said, "A lot of people don't go to journalism school" and don't know the difference between opinion and fact.

Cunningham petitions for bankruptcy

Grady Cunningham, owner of Cunningham Oil Co. and Cunningham Development Corp., and his wife, the former Iris Anne Tollett, have filed for bankruptcy under separate petitions in federal court in Fort Worth, according to a bankruptcy clerk there.

Filed under Chapter 11, which provides protection from debts, the petitions were submitted Aug. 31, according to the clerk.

Cunningham is a Big Spring native. Mrs. Cunningham is the daughter of the late Raymond Tollett, at one time president of Cosden Oil & Chemical Co.

In January 1983, Cunningham told the Herald he was planning to open offices in Denver and Dallas. He at one time owned the Brass Nail Restaurant.

School figures decline

Staff reports

Enrollment in Big Spring schools is down by 216 students from the same period last year, and enrollment at Forsan and Coahoma schools has also dropped, according to local administrators.

Tuesday attendance figures show 4,483 students enrolled in the Big Spring school district, compared with 4,699 enrolled on the same day in 1983.

A breakdown shows a total of 2,090 students in elementary school, 737 at Gollad Middle School, 378 at Runnels Junior High School and 1,238 at Big Spring High School. The last three figures combine for an enrollment of 2,353 in secondary schools.

Last year at this time, 2,139 students were enrolled in elementary schools and 2,504 students in secondary classes.

In special programs, including classes taught at the Big Spring State Hospital, 40 students are enrolled. Last year at this time, 56 students were enrolled in engineered classes.

The Coahoma enrollment figure for the first week of school was 996, showing a decrease of 19 students from the same time last year, said Superintendent Jerry Doyle.

The Coahoma school breakdown showed 551 students enrolled in the elementary school. The high school had 280 students, and junior high had 165 students.

The peak enrollment for the Coahoma district was 1,055 for the 1983-84 school year, Doyle said. He said the peak, which usually comes in late November and early December, for the 1984-85 school year should be approximately 1,020. He said the decrease in enrollment in the district was not confined to one grade.

Enrollment in the Forsan school district was down to 512 from the 1983-84 figure of 541, said a Forsan school spokesman.

The decline came mostly in the high school grades, she said. The elementary grades had an enrollment of 234. The junior high had 138 students, and the high school counted 140, she said.

Reagan vows to win veto

Tells businessmen to 'twist arms' for line-item power

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan urged Midwestern business and financial leaders today to "write letters, send wires, twist arms" to help him win the power to strike individual spending items from the federal budget.

Asked after a speech to the Economic Club of Chicago what chance he has in a second term of winning the line item veto power he has requested, Reagan said he plans an "all-out" fight for it if he wins re-election in November.

"It's absolutely necessary; it's the most vital tool" for controlling government spending, Reagan said. He said that as governor of California he used his power to cancel spending for individual budget items more than 900 times and never had such a veto overridden by the legislature.

"They never once dared stand up and publicly vote for that single item that they had agreed to put into another bill," Reagan said.

Asked how he plans to bring down the deficit, Reagan said, "I know I'm accused of not being very specific on this. I think we've been more specific than almost any administration I can remember."

Reagan said the deficit should be viewed as partly "structural," that is the built-in gap between government spending programs and tax revenues, and "partly due to the economic slump."

As the economy recovers, he said, "even with the lower tax rates that we put in as an incentive... revenues grow; they don't shrink."

As for the structural deficit, Reagan said, "We haven't made all the gains that we wanted" in reducing general spending. "Had we gotten all that we asked for in the first submission of our economic program, the deficit would be between $40 billion to $50 billion less."

As revenues increase and costs decline, he said, "there must be a point at which those two meet. Now if they don't... then you have to look at your tax system to bridge that difference."

He insisted a tax increase would be a "last resort," and claimed it would be a "first resort" under Democrat Walter Mondale.

"But today, to suggest a tax increase simply for the cure of the deficit — why we have had any number of tax increases over the last 50 years, and we have had regularly deficits every year for 50 years," Reagan said.

Ridge brings cool trend

By The Associated Press
A ridge of high pressure kept skies clear over Texas early this morning, and temperatures were once again slightly cooler than normal for this time of year.

A few clouds dotted the lower Rio Grande Valley, while some heavy thunderstorms were scattered offshore over the northwest gulf.

Just before dawn, the mercury had dipped into the upper 50s over the plains of West Texas. Elsewhere, readings in the 60s to lower 70s were common statewide. At 4 a.m., temperatures across the Lone Star state ranged from a low of 54 degrees at Amarillo to a warmer reading of 74 at Laredo.

The northern half of Texas observed a light southerly wind around 5 mph. But the National Weather Service reported a more northerly wind of 5 to 15 mph racing through East Texas and the southern region of the state. The forecast for today called for more fair and mostly clear weather. Highs will range from the 80s to the low 90s.

Showers dampened areas from northern Florida to southern North Carolina early today as cloudy skies dominated the Eastern seaboard and rain settled over the coast of Washington state.

Skies were cloudy across New England and over the northern two thirds of the Missouri Valley. Elsewhere, skies were generally fair.

Two stunned golfers were recovering today from injuries caused by a bolt of lightning that killed their two companions during a series of thunderstorms that rolled across New Jersey.

Keun Sup Dow, 45, and Lee Sulm Yowg, 43, both of Staten Island, N.Y., were killed when lightning struck them Monday afternoon. The men had sought shelter under a cluster of trees.

Today's national forecast called for showers from Maryland to New England, over Florida and along the northern Pacific Coast. Showers were expected over east central Nevada.

Today's high temperatures were expected to be in the 50s from Minnesota to upper Michigan; in the 60s from the Great Lakes through the upper Ohio Valley into New England and along the northern Pacific Coast; in the 90s over much of the lower Plains and through much of the Plateau region; 100 to 110 degrees and higher over the desert Southwest; and in the 70s and 80s elsewhere.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 35 at Marquette, Mich., to 96 at Yuma, Ariz.

WEST TEXAS: Isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms, otherwise mostly fair with no important temperature changes. Lows in the 60s, highs in the upper 80s and 90s.

reporting dry conditions," said FCIC District Director Dottie Sampley. "None are in good shape."

Howard County farmers planted 90,000 acres in cotton this year; only 35,000 are expected to be harvested, Mrs. Shipley said. Hall and Hopper have estimated a possible harvest of 5,000 bales this year, compared to an average harvest of 75,000 bales in a good year.

"If it's good weather, the boll worm pressure lets up, the aphid situation clears up and everything else is good," Howard County farmers might produce more than 5,000 bales, Hopper said. "But if we have a snotty fall, where it's cold and drizzly, then it will cut considerably."

Although Martin County agricultural officials could not provide an estimate of the number of bales to be produced, only 88,000 acres of 133,000 acres planted this year can be harvested, Mrs. Sampley said.

Following are estimates of cotton acres still able to be harvested in neighboring counties, the total acreage planted in cotton this year and an estimate of bales to be produced, if available, from Mrs. Sampley's office:

Dawson: 275,000 acres planted; 250,000 to be harvested; about 250,000 bales — almost a bale to an acre. Dawson is in good shape because of irrigation and because some of the dryland on the north and west of the county received rain.

Mitchell: 76,500 acres planted; 2,000 to 4,000 to be harvested. "Maybe 1,000 bales will be produced out of the 4,000 figure," Mrs. Sampley said.

Glasscock: 48,000 acres planted; 38,000 to be harvested; about 38,000 bales — one to an acre — expected. "Glasscock County has sub-irrigation, but not enough to carry it all the way," Mrs. Sampley said. "About four or five sections east of St. Lawrence are in good shape. Everyone else needs rain."

Borden: 24,374 acres planted; 10,000 acres to be harvested; 6,000 bales expected.

In Howard County, the cotton is of "very poor" quality, Hall said, and all crops are adversely affected by drought conditions. Ackerly is "well, well below average"; the Luther area crop is "adversely affected by the drought"; and the Vincent area has some cotton but is very dry, Hall said.

Knott holds the most promise, but it looks pretty bare by and large," Hall said. "The area south of I-20 is the worst in the county. From Coahoma to Lomax probably will make the worst. Fairview belongs in that very poor group."

Rutherford said the Herald has "shown a lack of responsiveness" on certain public information articles. Rutherford said he believes newspaper policies are based on "a dollar-and-cents thing."

Linda Arsiaga said: "The Hispanic community has a concern about this, too." She said members of the League of United Latin American Citizens had requested coverage of the upcoming Sept. 16 celebration. She said a spokesman from the Herald told the group: "If it merits space," coverage would be provided.

Rutherford later said the "news media is artificially managed," and later referred to "a general mistrust of the media."

Other concerns about the Herald included meeting coverage. Cawthorn said the newspaper has a negative approach to meetings and, "I go to those meetings and I read them in the newspaper the next day, and I think I've been to a different meeting."

In other areas, Margie Thompson will head a committee to study community activities for youths and to work with anti-drug programs. Mrs. Thompson said: "There are too many kids on Gregg Street, and we don't seem to be offering them" enough activities.

Rutherford said a new teen center has been set up on Johnson Street which may help with that problem.

"We should address the governing agencies," Bill Chrane told the group. Chrane said he would like to see definitions of the industrial park and a study of utility charges in the city. Such definitions may help to attract more industry, Chrane said.

"I'm not negative," Chrane said. "I've got all my life tied up in this town."

Rutherford said: "The powers that be may be a little naive as to how you accomplish a lot of things."

Chrane, referring to the city government, said: "They've been running a clique there ever since Don Davis took over...and they're still running it."

Jack Watkins said: "We've lost 8,000 people (since Webb Air Force Base closed)...Someone is going to have to get on the ball aggressively."

Cawthorn recommended that smaller industries and companies be brought to Big Spring instead of targeting large corporations that later fold and injure the economy.

Cawthorn said 100 businesses with 20 employees each would be healthier than one business with 2,000 employees.

Mary Thomas was named to head a criminal justice and law enforcement committee. John Bingham was named to the economic committee, which will study the downtown area, vacant buildings, industrial development, renovation of the Settles Hotel and the Blue Law.

The Health and Safety committee will be headed by Dick Lehigh. The committee will study water quality, trash collection and beautification of the city.

City plans attack on gay park

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Arlington City Council has ordered an "assault plan" to rid Randol Mill Park of homosexual activity in a crackdown that could include publishing in newspapers the names of those arrested for public lewdness.

"The major park in our city has been taken over," Mayor Pro Tem Gary Bruner said Tuesday.

City Council members cited dozens of arrests for public lewdness and indecent exposure in the 149-acre park in recent months. They ordered acting City Manager George Campbell and Police Chief Roy Ables to draft a "cleanup" plan for the park by next Tuesday.

Council member Jim Norwood said more than 100 people have been arrested by undercover officers between Aug. 23 and Sept. 3.

Randol Mill is the largest city park in Arlington, but families "just don't go out there anymore," Norwood said.

Besides increasing police patrols, council members discussed asking area newspapers to publish names of offenders charged with public lewdness.

"I think the thing they fear more than anything else is public exposure," said Bruner.

"What has happened is that the major park in our city has been taken over," Bruner said. "After being out there and seeing what's going on, it's just unbelievable it's happening in our community. It's a disease that's spreading, and if we don't take action immediately, it's going to spread to other parts of the city."

The park is listed in a nationally distributed 444-page guide for homosexuals, "Bob Damron's Address Book '84," as a "cruising area." It says it "may or may not be active depending on the season, weather and time of day."

Tourism topping Texas trade

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Travelers are on a spending spree in Texas, making tourism the state's second-leading industry, a Texas A&M University researcher says.

"We take tourism for granted, yet in spite of two energy crises over the last decade and an inflationary economy, we are riding the crest of a spending spree that is without precedent in the world," Carlton Van Doren said Tuesday.

Van Doren is gathering information on all local, state and regional and national parks to be used for park planning and justifying expenditures.

Tourism, worth $13.7 billion a year, is the state's second-leading industry, trailing only oil in Texas.

Hotels, motels, restaurants, airlines, buses, parks, recreation facilities, souvenir shops, service stations and even convenience stores are involved in tourism, Van Doren said, but few know how much of their business is attributable to tourists.

"The industry is out there in bits and pieces that aren't working together as cohesively as they could be," Carlton Van Doren said Tuesday.

YMCA awards contract

Work is expected to begin immediately on a new $85,000, 6,000 square-foot exercise gym for the Big Spring YMCA, director Wallace Gill said this morning.

Johnston Construction Co. of Big Spring will build the metal facility, which should be completed by Jan. 1, Gill said. The contract was awarded Tuesday night.

The building, to be constructed west of the present Nautilus weight room and north of the handball courts, will be used by YMCA gymnastics classes, the magnet school program and aerobic exercise classes, Gill said.

Included in the $85,000 figure is the purchase of several pieces of gymnastics equipment, he said.

Curfew clamped on capital after riot violence

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The government enforced a curfew today in the capital and closed four universities after a French priest, one of his parishioners and a 14-year-old boy were killed in violent demonstrations against military rule.

More than 50 people were injured and 270 were arrested by riot police Tuesday in the first of two days of planned demonstrations, the most widespread anti-government protests in Chile in six months.

The demonstrations, centered in this Andean capital, forced most shops to close several hours early and sharply curtailed public transport and school attendance.

French Embassy spokesman Jean Mazoyer said the Rev. Andre Jarlan, 43, died in his second-floor office in the Santiago district of La Victoria on Tuesday when he was hit in the neck by two bullets apparently fired through the wall from outside. Witnesses said riot squads had fired automatic weapons at demonstrators on the same block a half hour before.

Earlier Tuesday, a 35-year-old rehabilitated drug addict was shot dead in the back while manning a street barricade in the same slum neighborhood in southwestern Santiago, said the Rev. Pierre DuBois, a Roman Catholic priest. Police said the slain man was a "common criminal" and the shooting was not related to the protests.

In an incident at another street barricade in a suburban neighborhood in southern Santiago, a 14-year old was fatally shot late Tuesday, police confirmed early today.

The government imposed a curfew of midnight to 5 a.m. in Santiago so police could clear flaming barricades set up by youthful protesters at intersections in a score of outlying districts. It also closed four volatile university campuses, decreed censorship of two independent radio stations and seized editions of two opposition magazines from newsstands.

The protests are intended to pressure President Augusto Pinochet to restore democratic rule came as the 68-year-old army commander approaches the 11th anniversary of the 1973 military coup that toppled an elected Marxist-led regime and brought him to power.

Gen. Roberto Guillard, governor of metropolitan Santiago, said, "a very small percentage of the people, who have some mental problems," took part in the protests, which he said were "destined to fail."

Mario Sharpe, president of the six-party Democratic Alliance that called the demonstrations, said they "showed the desire of an immense majority of Chileans for democracy." He said the regime imposed censorship "to hide the magnitude of the protest and the violent repression."

The opposition alliance urged Chileans to stay home today, and leftist groups said they planned to block access roads to keep commuters out of the center of this city of 4 million people. Associations of small businessmen and truckers announced support for the one-day work stoppage.

Most downtown shops closed Tuesday afternoon after riot police with clubs, dogs and water cannon attacked hundreds of demonstrators.

The combat phase will conclude Tuesday, Marine Maj. Bob McLean said. Chernenko ends seclusion

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko today appeared at a Kremlin ceremony honoring three cosmonauts, Radio Moscow said. The 72-year-old president had been absent from public view since July, prompting speculation about his health.

The radio said Chernenko gave medals to cosmonauts Svetlana Savitskaya, Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Igor Volk in honor of their Soyuz T-12 mission in July.

Ms. Savitskaya, the first woman to walk in space and to make two space flights, and Volk received the nation's highest award, Hero of the Soviet Union. Dzhanibekov, who has twice received the Hero of the Soviet Union award, today was awarded the Order of Lenin, the radio said.

The official news agency Tass did not immediately make available photographs of Chernenko at the ceremony, but the agency said it expected to have photographs later. The ceremony was not broadcast live on Soviet television.

United Way knits community fabric

A solid foundation for any community: Red Cross, scouting, YMCA, Salvation Army. Local community service organizations: Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, West Side Day Care Center, West Side Community Center, the Boys Club. If we expect these agencies to be open and operating — and we do — then we must work together to keep them going.

What can one person do? A donation to a single fund-raising group will provide funds for all these organizations. It is the United Way. The campaign of giving is underway and will conclude Oct. 31. By that time, volunteer organizers and workers hope to have collected $202,500 to serve agencies and organizations people consider fundamental to this community.

This year's goal is scaled down from one year ago in recognition of economic realities here. All the agencies who benefit have been asked to make do with less than they originally felt they needed. It is an ambitious goal, but an attainable one. A successful United Way campaign will depend on a community that cares, on people who won't turn their backs on their brothers and on themselves. Because ultimately, the quality of life here today and in the future depends on our willingness to contribute to its welfare, to band together for a cause, in a United Way.

Party gains

WASHINGTON — The two conventions show that a curious dialectic is shaping the role of women in American politics. Though the Democrats are more sensitive to women's issues, the Republicans count more women equipped for high office.

The reason is that while women's organizations work for power inside the Democratic Party, the Republicans meet the competition by giving fast promotions to women stars. In effect, the committed feminists so potent among the Democrats inadvertently hand a decisive advantage to their Republican sisters.

The analysis begins with an inventory of the best-known talent on the Democratic side. After deciding to pick a woman running mate, Fritz Mondale had a choice among three possibilities — Geraldine Ferraro, the congresswoman from Queens who got the nod; Dianne Feinstein, the San Francisco mayor; and Congresswoman Pat Schroeder of Denver.

All three are highly competent people who moved up in the political world by force of inner drive and personal merit. But another feature they share in common is distinctly limited experience.

Ms. Ferraro has served six years as a congresswoman from a singularly insular district. Before that, she was a local prosecuting attorney. She knows Queens inside and out, and — as her defense against charges of financial shenanigans demonstrates — she is impressive in projecting its values. But when it comes to the most serious foreign policy issues, she has to fall back on such shallow clichés as saying Reagan is the first president since Herbert Hoover not to meet with the Soviet leadership.

Ms. Feinstein has shown acumen in balancing among the various competing communities in San Francisco. But San Francisco itself is unusual because of its tolerant outlook. The mayor is a stranger to the Newarks of this country, and it is hard to believe she could cope with such intractable problems as dealing with Moscow.

Pat Schroeder has been in Congress for a dozen years. Membership on the Armed Services Committee and the Judiciary Committee has brought her to grips with central national and international problems. But she represents a section of Denver similar to San Francisco in values. While a strong critic of Pentagon spending and of nuclear overkill, she has not generally carried weight with most defense experts.

What the experts mainly hold against Schroeder is her passionate support for the nuclear freeze.

But to Schroeder, and many other women, the freeze is not primarily a foreign policy item. It is political business — a simple, straightforward position on which Democrats have to take a clear stand. It goes along with the Equal Rights Amendment and free choice on abortion, as a litmus test. Together, these issues comprise a women's agenda.

For the Democratic women are hip-deep in a struggle to control their party. They have troops to deliver in elections, in primaries and in congressional voting. They count as a major force in approving candidates and passing laws.

Since they constitute genuine competition, they are not readily handed positions of scope and influence. On the contrary, they have to work their passage. Thus they pushed Mondale into putting Ms. Ferraro on the ticket by joining with Gary Hart to make it impossible for a white Southerner to win a majority of the San Francisco convention as a vice presidential choice. In similar fashion they won important places on the White House staff under Carter and in key agencies. They advanced, in other words, through a struggle for power.

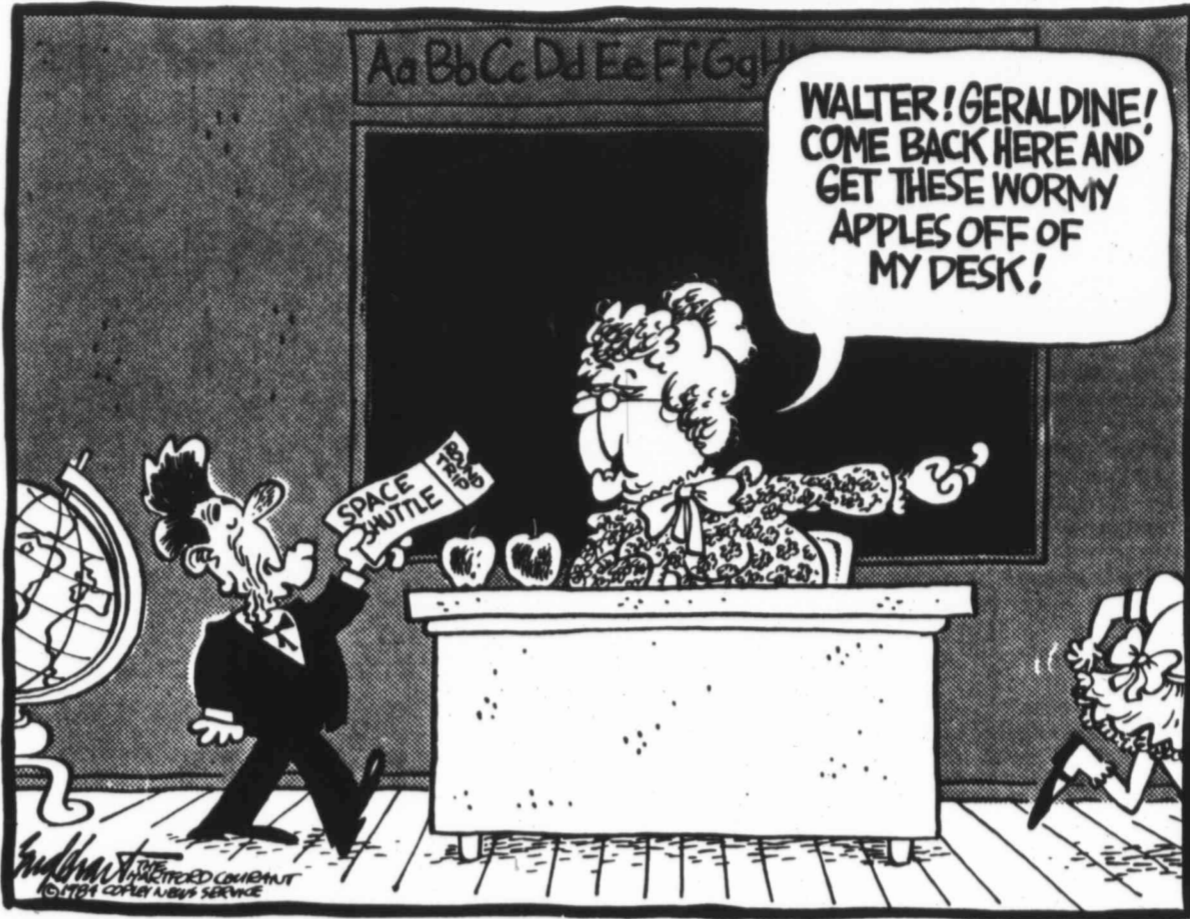

Republican women enjoy no such importance as a group. Their party has set its face clearly against the women's agenda. It opposes ERA, rejects abortion and exorcises the nuclear freeze. As a power bloc within the GOP, women are a joke. But to compete for the women's vote, to close the gender gap, the Republican Party has felt obliged to give prominent positions to a number of impressive individuals.

Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman Supreme Court justice, is a chief case in point. She was appointed to offset complaints that the GOP discriminated against women. But on the court she has acquired great breadth of experience and emerged as a real force — the linchpin in the conservative majority.

Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick was thrust forward at the United Nations, and in Dallas, as a woman who is also a Democrat. Even those who have doubts about her wisdom cannot deny that she has very wide experience.

Elizabeth Hanford Dole became transportation secretary under the same competitive pressure for acknowledgment of women. The upshot is an irony hard to explain but familiar in history. The modern pioneers in feminist politics are on the Democratic side. But their efforts worked to create an opening which is creamed off to the advantage of Republican women.

Cover-up may lurk in Justice probe

WASHINGTON — A promised Justice Department investigation into charges of misconduct by members of its organized-crime strike force in Los Angeles is beginning to exude the rotten aroma of an official cover-up.

Alerted by the House Select Committee on Narcotics that a California strike force had delayed or quashed grand jury action against mob figures in California and Hawaii, the Justice Department promised Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., that its Office of Professional Responsibility would launch a thorough investigation.

That was last November. But sources told my associate John Dillon that in the 10 months since, Michael Shaheen, the official supposedly conducting the investigation, has not called one potential witness in the case.

The special prosecutor hired by Rangel's committee to look into the charges has not been contacted. Neither has the staff of the House committee.

Fishest of all is Shaheen's refusal to accept or return repeated calls from the original accuser, Jerry Van, a self-described underworld muscle man now in prison for crimes not related to strike-force activities.

Van, whose information helped to break one of the biggest professional arson rings in the country, is in the witness protection program while serving his sentence.

When Shaheen failed to contact him — an obvious move in any serious investigation — Van, in frustration, tried several times to telephone the Justice Department official. Each time, he said, he was told that Shaheen was "in a meeting."

Though Van's whereabouts are not a secret to the Justice Department, Shaheen did not return his calls.

"Not one person has been interviewed," an exasperated House committee source said. "Not one thing has been done on this case. It's insulting. We're contemplating holding hearings."

Rangel has already dispatched a stern letter to the Justice Department, demanding to know what progress, if any, has been made in the "investigation."

Despite Shaheen's promise to Rangel almost a year ago, a Justice Department spokesman had this bewildering response to an inquiry about Van's charge of misconduct by federal prosecutors: "I can't say whether we're taking it seriously or not."

Shaheen did not return repeated calls for comment.

Footnote: The Justice Department's "circle the wagons" policy is nothing new.

When a federal grand jury in 1982 heard charges of personal misconduct against a U.S. attorney in Iowa, the department rushed another federal prosecutor from Indiana to derail the investigation. He was assisted by a special emissary from Attorney General William French Smith.

The prosecutor, Thomas Turner, persuaded the grand jury to drop the case, as I reported in this column. Now I've learned that Turner was given a $1,500 bonus and a citation that said:

"Mr. Turner, by the sheer force of his professionalism and good judgment was able to win the grand jury over and to achieve the objectives of his assignment."

Could there be a bonus and citation in the offering for Shaheen?

UPDATES: Not every Oregonian was thrilled when Sen. Mark O. Hatfield's wife, Antoinette, decided to donate the $55,000 she got from Greek arms merchant Basil Tsakos to a Shriners hospital.

Mrs. Hatfield donated the money after I disclosed the payments, which she says were for real estate services and which were made while the senator was helping Tsakos promote a trans-African pipeline.

Bill Robertson of Ashland, Ore., thinks the charitable donation is "tainted money," and called to tell me that he has opened a bank account in hopes of equaling the Hatfield donation so the Shriners can return Mrs. Hatfield's money. Robertson started the account with $5,000 of his own and hopes likeminded individuals will add their contributions.

I reported recently on a Customs Service investigation of the Vietnamese government's coercion of refugees in this country. Vietnam was getting them to send their families U.S. dollars, which were then confiscated by the communist government. The investigation led to congressional hearings and the introduction of corrective legislation by Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo.

The proposed law would allow transfer of U.S. dollars to Vietnam only through official channels monitored by the U.S. government.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Worst thing is to ignore death

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have never thought much about life after death and Heaven, but recently a friend of mine was killed in an accident and it has made me stop and think. What do we have to do to deserve a place in Heaven? — K.J.

DEAR K.J.: I am thankful you are thinking seriously about life after death. The worst thing you could do would be to try to turn your back on all those thoughts and act as if this life is all there is, or pretend that you will never die. But the Bible says, "Man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment" (Hebrews 9:27).

It is always amazing to me to see people spend years working to become successful in life, and yet never spend any time at all preparing for eternity.

There is one thing that will keep us from Heaven, and that is our sin. And there is only one way for our sins to be taken away, and that is for God to forgive us and cleanse us of our sins. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). Do you realize that you have sinned against God and need His forgiveness?

Is God willing to forgive you? Yes! He loves you, and "He is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). That is why God sent His only Son into the world, to make it possible for you to be cleansed of your sins and become a child of God.

When Christ died on the cross, He was not dying as punishment for His own sins — for He was without sin. Christ died because He took upon Himself your sins and mine. You and I deserved to die — but Christ died in our places.

Turn to Christ in repentance and faith. Accept God's gift of salvation by inviting Christ into your heart as your Lord and Savior. Then you will know the joy of having "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Colossians 1:27).

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Around The Rim

Fun, fun, fun

By KEELY COGHAN

Vacations are supposed to be days of wine and roses. Well, I eventually got the wine, but only after my car literally blew up on me.

I've never had a flat tire before (not counting the time my tires were slashed on Easter Sunday four years ago), so the opening day of my vacation two weeks ago came as a shock.

After detouring to San Angelo, I took a lonely stretch of highway up to Interstate 20. About 10 miles south of Abilene, I started hearing this horrible thumping sound. I naturally stopped the car and looked at the engine. Nothing obviously wrong there — and it would have to be obvious for me to notice it.

So I proceeded to go along my merry way — for about 50 feet. This time, even I could see the steel belts of the tire coming unraveled. Needless to say, I found the "how to change a tire" instructions on the inside of the truck "must" reading for summer.

I should have stopped in Abilene and bought a new spare. I had the opportunity. But I was already running behind, so I breezed past the exit ramps to Big Country on to oblivion and disaster in Clyde, Texas.

Clyde looks about like it sounds — kind of dead after sundown. Luckily, I got there before sundown, and had the opportunity to choose a great place to have the second blowout, on an overpass right across from a gasoline station.

By this time, I'm fighting back the tears and losing fat. The gas station only had one tire in my car's size, which they gladly sold to me for $2. Why so cheap? It was guaranteed to "probably" get me six miles up the road to Baird.

A visitor at the station helped me change tires; at this point, I wouldn't have trusted myself to change shoes. Afterwards, I heard him talking to his brother, who thought I was his parole officer. And no, I don't know what he served time for; I am just grateful for his help.

I managed to roll into Baird with my $2 special still functioning and having nightmares of calling up my friends in Dallas and telling them I was having to stay overnight at the Baird Motel.

I don't want to be unkind, but you remember the Bates Motel from Hitchcock's "Psycho"? Well, the Baird Motel — you get the picture. The thought of spending a night there... it's not a pretty sight, I can assure you.

Three gas stations and a new tire later, I rolled out of Baird, after deciding to keep the $2 spare, wish on a star and pray to God that my new tire didn't have an inferiority complex.

If I hadn't passed the half-way mark, I would have turned around and gone back home. I wanted to. But there was this little voice inside me that kept repeating, over and over and over, "See, aren't you having fun now? Vacations are sooooo much fun!" Even when I was standing by the side of the road, looking dejectedly at that second ruined tire, I heard that voice.

So what did I learn on my vacation? Murphy's Law never takes a vacation.

Dear Abby

White weddings

DEAR ABBY: I was disappointed in your answer to "Perplexed," who refused to be her best friend's maid of honor because she didn't approve of her friend's lifestyle. (The friend was living with her fiancé and getting married in a church in a white gown like a pure and innocent bride.)

Why did you have to go and say, "Church weddings are not for virgins only"?

I think it's terrible the way some girls sleep with every Tom, Dick and Harry, then get married in white wedding gowns and veils. Now along comes Dear Abby, who absolves them of their sins and gives them permission to have a church wedding regardless of what they have done.

I don't expect to see this in your column, but I had to get it off my chest.

AN INDIANA CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: I'm sure there are many who would agree with you, but here's a Christian who does not:

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Perplexed." She didn't want to be maid of honor at her best friend's wedding because the friend wanted a church wedding with all the trimmings and she was presently living with her fiancé.

Let me share my story. I am a Christian, went to church all of my life and have tried to live a good life. I became pregnant when I was

17. Christians are human, too, and make mistakes like everyone else.

Two months after our daughter was born, my fiancé and I had a big church wedding with all the trimmings. It was the first marriage for both of us. We wanted to be married in church and start our marriage in the best possible way by asking God to become a part of our marriage and our life.

We've been married for seven years, have a wonderful marriage and two lovely children. We attend church regularly as a family. You were right, Abby: Church weddings are not for virgins only!

I hope "Perplexed" will change her mind and be her friend's maid of honor. She shouldn't judge her friend's past. I'm sure her own past is not spotless.

PATTI IN TUCSON

DEAR ABBY: Do you know who is forcing those gross swimsuits on the women of today?

The fashion designers, that's who! They are making fools of women! Do something, Abby!

DISGUSTED IN SAN JOSE

DEAR DISGUSTED: Fashion designers can design from now until eternity, but without buyers, their wares would go the way of the Nehru jacket. (Remember?) No one can force anyone to buy anything; the success or failure of the "gross" new swimsuits will depend upon how many women are willing to grin and bare it.

Simple maintenance prolongs mower's life

It's a fact of summer life that you haven't really taken care of your lawn unless you've taken care of your lawn mower too. Problems resulting from lawn-mower neglect can pile up faster than grass clippings.

Dirt and grass can accumulate in the air filter and engine cooling fans, hampering proper engine performance. Nuts and bolts can loosen, causing vibration, noise and possible damage to the mower. Engine oil can break down and lose its ability to lubricate.

A dull blade can damage grass. An unbalanced blade can burn out bearings or strain an engine.

These problems can be avoided by following a simple maintenance program, thus saving money and prolonging the life of the mower.

Most manufacturers make it easy to care for the mower properly. They list maintenance checks in the operator's manual and explain how to perform routine maintenance, says Robert Tracinski, lawn and garden specialist.

After every 25 hours of mower use, the three easy steps below will also help prolong a mower's life.

1. Change the crankcase oil (four-cycle engines only).
2. Clean or replace the air filter.
3. Inspect and replace the spark plug if necessary.

A mower's cutting blade probably will require more frequent attention, especially later in the summer when the grass becomes tough and wiry. Keeping a sharp blade is important to maintaining a healthy lawn. Brown and frayed grass tips are one indication that the mower's blade needs sharpening.

Here's a basic guide to sharpening walk-behind mower blades. Be sure to read the operator for your particular model before doing the work.

Disconnect the spark plug wire. Turning the blade with the spark plug connected can cause the engine to start suddenly.

Tip the mower on its right side for easy access to the blade. Then remove the blade by loosening the holding screw. Be sure to protect your hands by wearing work gloves, or wrapping the blade in heavy cloth.

Using a file or grinding wheel, sharpen the blade by working inward from the outer edge. Leave a one-sixty-fourth-inch flat edge for strength and be sure to retain the original bevel. Be careful not to sharpen the blade to a razor's edge; a thin edge can crack and bend back, tearing and shredding your grass.

Check the blade for proper balance by spinning it on a pencil or screwdriver. If one side dips, remove more metal from it until the blade is balanced.

By sharpening the mower blade regularly and servicing the mower on schedule, you can maintain a healthy lawn and a smooth-running machine, Tracinski said.

Mother-to-be Janna Floyd feted at shower, Saturday

Janna Floyd was honored at a baby shower in the home of Nell Walker, Saturday.

Also hosting the event were Kim Blossom, Jackie Brackeen, and Sandra Nugent and Shawn Floyd, both sisters-in-law of the honor. Mrs. Floyd was presented with a corsage of white baby socks with pink and blue ribbons and a yellow play pen.

Corsages also were presented to the honoree's special guests: Carol Burdette, her mother; Linda Floyd, her mother-in-law; Mildred Gibson, Helen Hanson and Ms. Bill Burdette, her grandmothers.

Guests were served from a table covered with a blue and pink cloth accented with bears. A pamper box filled with pink and blue flowers, baby rattles, pacifiers and a pink stuffed bear centered the table. A white cake decorated with a blue bear was served.

Baby Floyd is due mid-September.

Macular degeneration

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I need information regarding macular degeneration. It is for my aging mother. In her case, the laser treatment is not of any help, so it was not done. Please tell us if they have anything new in vitamin therapy or nutrition generally to help this. — Mrs. N.L.

The macula is a very small central area of the retina of the eye, about a millimeter in diameter. It is where we get our sharpest vision, the kind needed for fine work, like reading. I'm only guessing, but perhaps your mother is complaining that she just can't see things as clearly as she once did when she looks directly at them. She also probably notes that she can see better when she looks to the side. That is the prime feature of macular degeneration — loss of central vision with retention of peripheral vision.

The changes that cause it usually progress slowly and while many will be impaired, few go completely blind. The most common cause is simply a lack of proper nourishment to that visual center due to aging. Not much can be done about that. No vitamin and no change in eating habits can halt the process.

You tell me that the laser beam treatment has been ruled out, so I assume your mother's problem stems from those natural aging factors I mentioned. One specific cause of degeneration is the leakage of fluid from blood vessels in the area. That causes the retina to bulge; vision is disturbed. This kind of macular degeneration can be treated if the problem is detected early enough. Laser beams are used to seal the leaking vessels.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Have you heard of the PUVA treatment for psoriasis? — M.M.

Yes; PUVA stands for psoralen-ultraviolet light-A. Its use in psoriasis is now being evaluated at several centers.

Psoralen drugs are given in combination with ultraviolet light-A ex-posure. This combination inhibits cell nuclei acid synthesis. That stops skin cells from their rapid reproduction, which is what causes the scaling of psoriasis. You can ask if one of the medical centers near you is taking part in the studies.

PUVA is not the only new work going on in psoriasis. Some dermatologists are using an oral medicine, methotrexate, which works in a similar manner. It's used only with careful monitoring because it can cause liver damage.

About all I can tell you otherwise is to drop a line to the National Psoriasis Foundation. They may be able to help you further. Their address is: 6415 S.W. Canyon Court, Portland, Ore. 97221.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am one of the women who apparently just didn't get the proper amount of calcium in my diet over the years because now, at age 56, I get the news that my bones are severely thinned out. What a downer that is for a woman who has never had a sick day in her life. My doctor has me on estrogen therapy, which he says will make my bones stronger. My 27-year-old daughter won't believe me when I warn her to find out if she is getting enough calcium. Will you give her the word on this? — Mrs. T.

Sure, and the word is she should be getting supplements if she is not getting the calcium she needs from her diet. That's at least 800 milligrams a day, and some say it should be closer to 1,500 mgs. a day. Few women get those amounts.

You are correct in making your suggestion. Adequate calcium intake in these younger years will build a better skeleton and reduce the osteoporotic effects of the post-menopausal estrogen decline. And even though the message got to you a little late, your estrogen therapy should help improve your bone status. You should still make sure you now get your quota of calcium.

Get to know your food additives

Food additives are found in grocery products ranging from baby foods to coffee creamer. In fact, Americans swallow about five to ten pounds of emulsifiers, preservatives, flavorings, colorings, acids and vitamins in their food each year.

Yet few consumers can distinguish between products that use additives for a useful purpose, versus those that use additives to make a less-nutritious product more attractive, says Marilyn Haggard, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

On the positive side, she says, preservatives help prevent spoilage, while emulsifiers keep water and oil mixed together. Vitamins and minerals add nutritional value.

According to the nutritionist,

some of the most useful additives include:

- Calcium propionate — inhibits mold growth in bread.
  - Polysorbate 60 — an emulsifier.
  - Beta carotene — an artificial coloring that the body converts to vitamin A.
  - Citric acid — an acid that occurs naturally in citrus fruit.
  - Thiamin mononitrate — a nutrient (vitamin B-1).
  - Carboxymethyl cellulose — a thickening agent.
  - Sorbic acid — a preservative.
  - Casein — a protein that is obtained from milk.
  - Vanillin — the main flavor component of vanilla.
- However, shoppers should be concerned when additives are used as a replacement for nutritional foods, says Haggard. For example, thickening agents are sometimes used to make a food look rich and thick, even if it contains smaller amounts of ingredients than a competing brand.

Artificial colorings and flavorings are sometimes substituted for fruit, chocolate or other real foods, she said. Caramel coloring can make white bread look like whole wheat bread.

Flavor enhancers such as MSG, may suggest to the eater that a food contains more meat than it really does. And vitamins added to sugary, non-nutritious foods permit extravagant nutritional claims, says Haggard.

All food additives are tested by private companies. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) then evaluates the tests and decides whether the chemical may be used in food, says the nutritionist.

Filters don't solve all water problems

A water filter on the kitchen faucet can give you a better tasting glass of water, but it won't solve all water quality problems.

Before buying an activated carbon water filter, consumers should be aware of what it can and can't do for them, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Bonnie L. Piernot.

"One thing a filter will not remove is bacteria — that's a job for a water purifier," she says. "By law, a device that claims to remove bacteria must prove its effectiveness in specific tests before the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will allow it to be called a purifier."

In fact, there is some concern that the wet carbon in filters can make a good breeding ground for bacteria, says Piernot, especially when the filter is not used for a while and after it has treated a large quantity of water.

Some filters use "silver" to discourage growth of bacteria, but the EPA has concluded that it does not really help, says the home economist.

Activated carbon filters will not remedy hard water; water-softening devices are needed for that. They also have little effect on dissolved metals, hydrogen sulfide, chlorides, fluorides or nitrates, she says. A reverse osmosis unit or ion exchange device is needed to remove such chemicals and minerals.

In spite of these limitations, an activated carbon filter can remove rust particles and improve water quality by effectively removing many objectionable tastes and odors, she said.

It can also help clear sediments from tap water. Many home filtering units can even remove some organic chemicals such as pesticides.

According to Piernot, appropriate use and maintenance of a home water filter is essential for good performance. Here are some suggestions:

- Flush out the filter before the first use of the day. Open the faucet wide and let the water run at least 30 seconds for an undersink model, and at least 10 seconds for a sink-mounted filter. When you install a new cartridge, flush for several minutes to remove fine carbon particles.

- Change filters regularly. A heavily used filter is more likely to contain high bacterial levels and to discharge organic chemicals previously trapped.

- Don't filter hot water. A filter that passes hot water won't remove contaminants very well, and the hot water may liberate chemicals previously trapped on the filter.

- Use the slowest flow rate you can. The longer the water is in contact with the filter, the more impurities the carbon can attract and the cleaner the water will be.

- After installing a new cartridge, circle on your calendar the date for the next replacement and then stick to your schedule.

Play... Dallas Cowboy Football!
WIN UP TO $1,000

HERE'S HOW TO PLAY!

Obtain a free Dallas Cowboy Pro-Football weekly game card each time you visit a Winn-Dixie store. No purchase necessary. Then watch Dallas Cowboy Pro-Football each week on network television or check your local newspaper or result poster at any Winn-Dixie store for the score of both teams at the completion of the game.

If you have a winning card, take it to any Winn-Dixie store by close of business Saturday night following that week's game for verification. Store Manager will redeem authentic '10, '5, '2 or '1 winners on the spot and arrange for payment of $1,000 and $100 winners.

WINNING POSSIBILITIES
AWARD	NO OF WINNERS	1 STORE VISIT	3 STORE VISITS
'1	4217	1 in 237	1 in 79
'5	4218	1 in 237	1 in 79
'2	750	1 in 125	1 in 44
'1	750	1 in 125	1 in 44
'100	50	1 in 3000	1 in 847
'1000	15	1 in 6667	1 in 2222

If the last number of the final score of each team matches the score on your Dallas Cowboy Pro-Football game card, you win the dollar amount indicated on your card, either '1, '2, '5, '10, '100 or '1000. ## Battle of the Bolsheviks

KOSTANTIN CHERNENKO

ANDREI GROMYKO

Soviet split

Big Two tussle stalls USSR; Gromyko runs foreign policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kremlin leadership has splintered under Konstantin U. Chernenko, giving veteran diplomat Andrei Gromyko direct control over Soviet foreign policy during a period of possibly unprecedented rigidity, says former U.S. National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft.

With powers divided along functional lines, and the 72-year-old Chernenko not seen in public since mid-July and reportedly in ill health, the Soviets are operating without a "paramount leader" in overall charge, the former Nixon and Ford administration official said.

In a recent interview, Scowcroft said the Soviet foreign minister doesn't just implement foreign policy. "I think Gromyko is, in fact, the foreign policy."

Scowcroft described Gromyko as "tough, rigid" and equipped with "a very large treasure house of insults and slights." His dominant role heightens doubts the Soviets might be prepared to resume nuclear weapons reduction talks with the United States after the Nov. 6 election, Scowcroft said.

The former presidential adviser said he would not recommend President Reagan seek a meeting with Gromyko. "The worst thing we can do at this point is to appear to go running after the Soviets," Scowcroft said. "This would allow Gromyko to say 'if you listened to me all along, I know how to handle the Americans. You just be really tough with them and they'll come running.' This we shouldn't do."

On the other hand, Scowcroft said, it might be a good idea for Secretary of State George P. Shultz to see Gromyko while both are attending the U.N. General Assembly session next month in New York. "I'd be inclined to be open to a meeting, but not to push a meeting, and in a sense to leave the initiative to the Soviets," he said.

Scowcroft, a retired Air Force general, is now a private consultant. He headed the special commission that recommended Reagan proceed with deployment of the MX missile and attempted to deliver a message from the president to Chernenko last March in Moscow. He did not get to see the Soviet leader.

He said the current "decentralization" in the Kremlin has one possible precedent — the power-sharing period immediately after Stalin's death in 1953.

Scowcroft attributes the current impasse in U.S.-Soviet relations more to "the kind of rigidities that have set in" than to Soviet objections to Reagan, his rhetoric and tactics. And yet, Scowcroft said, the administration lacks "a central concept" about U.S.-Soviet relations.

"What is needed, somehow, is an agreed concept that's going to be followed about how to deal with the Russians, and I'm not sure that exists," he said. "The president has feelings about how to do it, but not a concept."

While President Richard Nixon set out in a specific direction, Reagan's style is to "wait for things to come up to him," Scowcroft said.

Since there often is disagreement about policies between Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, it is difficult to get issues to Reagan for a decision, he said.

"He can be very effective if his administration were able to put together something which is clearly unified rather than a compromise between mutually, incompatible concepts," Scowcroft said. "That's his problem right now."

U.S. to double farm exports to USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shipments of U.S. agricultural commodities to the Soviet Union are expected to reach a near-record value of $2.3 billion this fiscal year, more than double what they were in 1982-83, according to preliminary estimates by the Agriculture Department.

The value of farm exports to the Soviet Union last year was only $983 million, less than half 1981-82's $2.3 billion mark, says a recent analysis by USDA's Economic Research Service.

Soviet purchases of corn and wheat have been heavy this summer, although most of the grain has been for delivery in the new fiscal year that will begin on Oct. 1. The value figures used in the agency's report are for products actually shipped during a year.

But unfortunately for American farmers, the huge jump in sales to the Soviets this year does not represent a worldwide boom of the same magnitude. Total farm exports are up, but only by about 9 percent from the depressed level of 1982-83.

According to USDA records, the $983 million in U.S. agricultural exports to the Soviet Union in 1982-83 was the lowest value in nine years. In the 1980 fiscal year — which included the partial embargo imposed by then-President Carter — exports to the Soviet Union totaled $1.52 billion.

In fiscal 1981, which included the remainder of the embargo ordered by Carter as a penalty for Soviet action in Afghanistan, exports were valued at $1.71 billion.

The record value of U.S. commodity shipments to the Soviet Union was $2.32 billion in the 1981-82 fiscal year.

Values are not adjusted for inflation and often reflect sharp changes in U.S. commodity prices. For example, total farm exports to all countries are expected to increase to $38 billion this fiscal year, reversing a two-year slide from earlier record levels.

But the actual quantity, which rose to more than 160 million metric tons in the peak years of 1979-81, will be down again to around 141 million tons. The outlook for 1984-85 is for another dip in export value but probably some gain in the quantity shipped.

According to department records, U.S. commodity exports to the Soviet Union total about $19 billion over the last two decades.

About $16 billion of that has been since 1975. In 1975, the Soviet Union unexpectedly bought huge amounts of U.S. grain, disrupting markets and raising fears among consumers. That led to the first long-term agreement specifying regular sales of wheat and corn on an annual basis. It took effect on Oct. 1, 1976, and was supposed to be for five years.

However, the first pact was extended a year at a time on two occasions. A new agreement was negotiated last year and went into effect on Oct. 1, 1983.

U.S. agricultural exports to the Soviet Union amounted to only $16 million in 1969-70, according to department records. Those increased to $30 million in 1970-71, on the eve of a sudden upturn in business with the Soviets.

In the 1971-72 fiscal year, farm exports to the Soviet Union jumped to $459 million and then soared to $1.017 billion in 1972-73. The value of shipments dropped back to $324 million in 1973-74 and then spurted again to $1.171 billion in 1974-75.

Cautious Connors stalking Open

By The Associated Press
His next opponent is John Lloyd, against whom he has never lost so much as one set. But there is no way Jimmy Connors is looking past him toward John McEnroe.

"I don't worry about anybody except the guy I'm playing next. One at a time, that's the way I take 'em," the third-seeded Connors said after he advanced into the quarterfinals of the $2.55 million U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

"I've seen John play for about 10 years now," Connors said, "but I haven't seen him or anybody else play here. I have enough trouble watching the guys I'm playing while I'm playing 'em."

In today's women's quarters it was No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova vs. Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia; Lloyd's wife, No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd vs. Sylvia Hanika of West Germany; No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia vs. No. 14 Carling Bassett of Canada and No. 4 Pam Shriver vs. No. 13 Wendy Turnbull of Britain.

The men's other quarterfinal matchups are the top-seeded McEnroe vs. Gene Mayer, No. 2 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia vs. No. 5 Andres Gomez of Ecuador and No. 4 Mats Wilander of Sweden vs. No. 15 Pat Cash of Australia.

Both Connors and the unseeded Lloyd advanced with Tuesday night victories over seeded Swedes, Connors defeating No. 16 Joakim Nystrom 7-6, 6-0, 6-3, Lloyd beating No. 9 Henrik Sundstrom 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 after the day's schedule was disrupted by rain.

In Tuesday's only afternoon match completed between showers, McEnroe disposed of unseeded Robert Green 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 to advance to a quarterfinal meeting with Mayer, a surprisingly easy 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 winner over No. 13 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

Also Tuesday night, Wilander

McENROE REACTS — Top seeded John McEnroe reacts during a backhand return to opponent Robert Green Tuesday in New York at the U.S. Open Tennis Championship. McEnroe defeated Green 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

beat Tim Mayotte 6-4, 6-4, 7-6 in a fourth-round match begun Monday night. And Hanika defeated Petra Huber of Austria 6-4, 7-5 to fill out the women's quarterfinal field.

Connors said he wasn't surprised to find Lloyd waiting for him in the quarters. "He's been playing good tennis. He's beaten a lot of good guys to get there."

As usual, Connors played an animated game, reacting to the crowd — which in turn was reacting to him. "I was having a good time out there," he said.

"I sat around all day. Didn't get to hit any balls because of the rain. I just wanted to get out there and try to get going. I was just happy to get out of the hotel room."

Lloyd said he's "very superstitious — I think a lot of players are — and I think I've only lost once in the first round here in the 10 times I've played it. And that was to Jimmy (in 1981)."

"But I think I'm a much, much better player now than I've ever been. Jimmy's ranked third in the world, obviously one of the great players, but I'm not going to be overawed by playing him."

Neither, for that matter is Mayer. "I've played well against him, beaten him," Mayer said. "I had a rough match against him the last time we met in the Open (McEnroe winning 4-6, 7-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 in the 1982 quarters). Win or lose, hopefully this one'll be shorter."

McEnroe had no trouble defeating Green, who wasn't supposed to get anywhere near this far in the tournament. "He had nothing to lose and could go out there and hit his shots, which is what he did — except I played better," McEnroe said.

The Open was only the second Grand Prix tournament in which Green made it past the first round. "You just look for a decent draw and hope for the best," he said.

Lady Steers rebound over Kermit 'Jackets

KERMIT — After suffering an upset loss to Plains and two losses to Lamesa at the San Angelo Tournament last weekend, the Lady Steers volleyball bounced back to down powerful Kermit here last night.

The win over the always tough Lady Yellowjackets of District 8-3A was a big one for Big Spring mentor Susan Sharp and her troops, evening their record to 7-7 for the season.

The Lady Steers won the contest in two consecutive games, easily downing their opponents 15-5 the first match and then holding on for a slim 17-15 win to take the game.

Junior spiker Tammy Green led a balanced Big Spring serving attack with eight points. Trell Clemons followed with six, Debbie Houglin had five and Shelia Chatman and Tab Green scored four each.

Sharp was pleased with her team's play and said it was their best performance of the year. "The kids played great," said Sharp. "Kermit is one of the best teams we have played all year. They (Kermit) are a scrappy bunch. They play balls that you think they couldn't play."

Another thing that impressed Sharp was her team's fire and aggressiveness during the game. "For the first time I saw the girls get fired up and mad."

Sharp credited rest with being the big plus for her team's success versus Kermit. "We got back from Plains late Thursday night and had to get up early to play in San Angelo that Friday and Saturday. It was a big help to get some rest after the long weekend."

The other big plus for Sharp's team has been senior spiker Clemons, who has been playing "terrific" since the San Angelo Tournament, according to Sharp. "Trell has been playing very consistently lately. She has also become a leader, something we didn't see in her last year. It's makes the whole team feel good because now they don't have to worry about someone taking up the slack."

Yearlings, Mavericks take season openers

BROWNFIELD — The Goliad and Rannels volleyball teams got the best of Brownfield Tuesday night in season openers for both schools.

Rannels won both of its games as the Red squad downed Brownfield 15-13, 15-9 to get the season started on the right foot. Colette White led the scoring with 12 service points. Rannels coach Peggy Calhoun credited Sharon Chatman and Diane Fish with having good games.

The Rannels White team downed its opponents 15-0 and 18-16 for the win after dropping the first set 3-15. Melanie Payne was top server with 12 points. Debbie Pulver and Tracy Schaffner had good games according to Calhoun.

Goliad split wins with Brownfield with the White team winning 14-16, 15-3, 15-3 while the Black team lost 2-15, 15-10, 1-15. Michelle Hall was top server for the Whites with 15 points. Lynnea Baldvach and Jennifer Lee scored 10 and nine respectively.

Monique Brown led the Blacks with five points service points. Jenique Clark added four points.

Both teams will be in action Monday in Big Spring versus Sweetwater with both the Rannels and Goliad 'B' teams serving up the first ball at 5 p.m.

NFL injury report

Cowboys have to get over Hill

By The Associated Press
The Seattle Seahawks, who with a 3-1 preseason and a 33-0 victory to open the regular season were on a run, will run henceforth without Curt Warner.

Exploratory arthroscopic surgery was performed Tuesday on the right knee of Warner, who led American Football Conference rushers with 1,449 yards in his rookie season last year.

The Seahawks didn't like what the surgeons saw — ligament damage requiring immediate surgery that will likely end Warner's season.

"The doctors expect a good recovery," said Seahawks spokesman Gary Wright. "However, we are taking a conservative approach. We expect him to be out for the season."

Warner injured the knee when he cut on the Kingdome's artificial turf in Monday's triumph over the Cleveland Browns.

Torn knee ligaments have ended the year for San Francisco defensive end Jeff Stover, who was starting in place of holdout Fred Dean. The 49ers were forced to waive third-string quarterback Bryan Clark in order to add veteran defensive lineman Greg Boyd to the roster.

San Francisco also said it would be without cornerback Eric Wright from three to five weeks because of a strained left knee. Their other starting cornerback, Ronnie Lott, will try to play with a sprained ankle.

The Dallas Cowboys reported that Tony Hill, their top wide receiver, suffered a shoulder separation in their 20-13 victory over the Los Angeles Rams and will be lost for from four to six weeks.

That leaves Dallas with only three wide receivers for Sunday's clash with the New York Giants — Doug Donley, Kirk Phillips and Mike Renfro.

Pittsburgh quarterback David Woodley, who suffered a concussion in the Steelers' 37-20 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs, will miss Thursday night's game with the New York Jets. He will be replaced by Mark Malone.

Denver's starter, John Elway, is listed as questionable for Sunday's game at Chicago with a bruised left shoulder he suffered against Cincinnati last weekend. Gary Kubiak, who replaced him and led the Broncos to a 20-17 victory, would replace him.

Clayton Weishuhn, one of New England's starting inside linebackers, injured his knee and will miss Sunday's game against the Miami Dolphins. Patriots Coach Ron Meyer said he was undecided whether to move Larry McGrew from an outside linebacking position or go with Ed Reynolds, Weishuhn's backup.

The Kansas City Chiefs, meanwhile, announced that second-year offensive tackle David Lutz, who sprained his knee in Sunday's victory at Pittsburgh, will be out for about half the season.

Lutz was found not to have sustained the feared ligament damage that would have sidelined him for the year.

Teachers nationwide joining picketline

By The Associated Press
 Teachers in San Francisco chose textbooks over picket signs but school bells were silent in eight states today as nearly 8,900 educators joined strikes affecting more than 126,000 students.

The ranks of striking teachers swelled Tuesday as new walkouts began in Illinois, Michigan, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Strikes continued in Louisiana, Indiana and Rhode Island.

A settlement Tuesday just 15½ hours before the start of the school year in San Francisco averted a strike by 3,800 teachers, allowing classes for 62,000 students today.

Under the 6 percent pay hike contained in the new contract, the top maximum San Francisco teacher's salary will go from $31,800 to $32,708. The average teacher will work 20 minutes more each day and three days longer.

Elsewhere, Illinois had the largest number of teachers refusing to work — 5,147 people serving more than 57,800 students in eight districts. In suburban Chicago, 110 teachers in the Kildeer-Countryside School District 96 walked off their jobs Tuesday, disrupting classes for 1,800 students who had attended two full days last week.

In Rockford, the state's second-largest district, a strike that has idled 29,500 students continued Tuesday while the school board considered a proposal from the 1,836 striking teachers.

In Chicago, mediation efforts continued Tuesday while the city's 24,700 teachers reported for preparation sessions. They have agreed to work until Nov. 1, despite the expiration of the old contract. The city's 400,000 students were to report for classes today.

In Poplar Grove, in northern Illinois, classes began for 966 students Tuesday, a day after 58 teachers voted to accept a school board offer.

Teachers in Grand Rapids, Mich., struck Tuesday, then failed to reach a contract agreement during four hours of bargaining that broke off today. Superintendent Robert J. Ferrara said classes for 34,000 students would be held despite the walkout by 1,800 teachers. No new talks were scheduled.

A strike by 200 teachers in the 4,300-student Escanaba district in Michigan ended Tuesday, but strikes by 650 teachers continued in eight other school districts serving more than 15,000 students.

In New Jersey, 230 members of the Somerville Federated Teachers Association struck Tuesday in a dispute over wages and benefits, two days before classes for the 2,000 students were to begin, a union official said.

A walkout by 56 teachers in Rhode Island's 960-student Exeter-West Greenwich district entered its fifth day today. A Superior Court Judge rejected the state education commissioner's request Tuesday to force the School Committee to pay a 7 percent wage increase reached under arbitration last year.

Conference helps educate illegal aliens

EL PASO (AP) — They come from every nation, lured by dreams of political freedom, steady employment or simply a better life. Yet for hundreds of thousands of aliens each year, ignorance about U.S. immigration procedures results in deportation or a life of hiding.

"It's often sad to hear their stories about how no one told them what they had to do to gain legal residence. So many people here just take advantage of them, promise them legal status, take their money and give them nothing," says Al Velarde, director of the El Paso regional office of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

The conference teaches aliens about their rights and the red tape they must encounter — and successfully cut through — before becoming citizens or permanent residents. The process can take as long as nine years.

"We help those who cannot afford attorneys," Velarde said, "and what we try to do is make it as easy as we can for someone to legalize their status."

The organization is one of dozens of religious and social service groups licensed to represent aliens in immigration proceedings, according to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"We will not help alien smugglers or people who have been involved with narcotics," Velarde said. "And I don't believe in sanctuary because if I provide sanctuary, I'm breaking the law."

Yet his office succeeds "more than we lose," he said.

Mike Trominski, deputy INS district director in El Paso, said the Catholic Conference is a great help to the agency in handling the cases of poor aliens unable to afford private attorneys.

"They've been in business probably over 20 years and we find them delightful to deal with," Trominski said. "They are very, very professional and perform quite a decent service for lower income-type people."

Trominski and other immigration officials say aliens are prey to some notaries public and other non-qualified people in Texas who allegedly offer immigration advice illegally.

"That's a very serious problem because there are those who take advantage of aliens. The notary public is an attorney in Mexico, but not here," he said.

Each weekday morning, the small lobby of the Catholic Conference's south El Paso office is filled with aliens, from Mexico, Central America and even Europe.

A staff of 14 determines if the aliens have what Velarde called "equities," one of the reasons the federal government considers an alien for permanent status.

"They've got to fit in one of the doors and if they don't, we show them the door and say, 'Sorry, we can't help,'" Velarde said. But even turning down some aliens helps, Velarde said, "because we have informed them for free the laws of this country."

Assistant director Lily Gutierrez said the "doors" conform to U.S. immigration requirements for residency.

"The only people we turn down are the people for whom there is nothing we can do," she said. "The only people we can't help are the ones who face deportation, and we tell them that's what's going to happen and that we'll represent them in deportation proceedings."

Aliens who probably do not have a good chance of gaining residence in the United States are told to go back home, Velarde said.

"But if they don't listen, we can't do anything about it," he said. "We try to tell them that if they get caught it may hurt any chance they have of gaining permanent residence. And we warn them there are people who will rip them off by promising they can get them legal status, but then just take their money and do nothing for them."

"The people we help will know if they get their legal status, it really is legal," he said. "And for every no I get, I get 15 yeses. And, when it works out well, it is a good, good feeling. It's what makes you continue."

Air Force makes fighting man out of former ROTC student

AUSTIN (AP) — Billy Fox says he entered Air Force ROTC at the University of Texas to become a pilot.

"But I won't be flying planes, I'll probably be washing them," Fox said after he was ordered to report to Lackland Air Force Base as an enlisted man because he breached his ROTC contract.

After months of administrative and legal wrangling, Fox got the order on Tuesday.

The 22-year-old finance and accounting graduate, who was in the military honor society at UT, has brought suit against the Air Force and Col. Larry Smulczynski, commander of the Air Force ROTC program at UT.

The suit contends that the military fraudulently induced him to sign a contract and misrepresented his chances of becoming a pilot.

But Smulczynski and lawyers for the Air Force say it was Fox who breached the contract by not finishing his final semester of ROTC classes.

"Billy Fox and his attorney have totally misread the contract," Smulczynski said.

"The contract is clear. The contract states that the cadet is obligated to finish his studies.

Kittens deter kind burglar

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — A box full of kittens can do the job of a watchdog, says a local business director who learned that a warm heart can deter crime as well as a fierce bark.

A thief broke into Media Works over the weekend, but had a change of heart when he saw a box of kittens that the company's creative director, Kyle Edgell, had brought in after finding them in an alley, Ms. Edgell said Monday.

"I don't know who you are," the thief wrote in a note to Media Works employees, "but you seem to be very nice people, all of you."

"I can feel the love and energy in these rooms. I thought to take as much as possible, but when I saw those kittens ... I could not."

"My family is in need of money. That is why I am doing this."

"Please forgive me what I did take. I understand if you don't."

The burglar took a pistol used as a prop, but he refrained from taking valuable recording equipment.

Sidekick canine gets a sidecar

BOARDMAN, Ohio (AP) — For a time, Chloe Channel thought either her motorcycle or her Doberman pinscher had to go. But where there's a will, there's a way, and now woman and dog tool along the highways together.

Gila, the 4-year-old dog, rides in a sidecar. Together, they've logged 20,000 miles through 32 states.

The problem arose when Gila was about 12 weeks old, and Mrs. Channel left her dog home alone.

"When I came home, my living room was shredded, demolished, destroyed, and I had to make a decision — give up motorcycling, give up Gila, or find a solution," she said.

Enter the sidecar, with Gila's name painted on the side.

But it wasn't that simple, of course.

Mrs. Channel worried that Gila, leashed in the sidecar, could be trapped in an accident, so the dog had to learn to ride untied.

"The first time was scary," Mrs. Channel said. "I was going about 40 miles per hour when suddenly she wasn't there. I looked back just in time to see her getting to her feet in a field."

"She was scraped and skinned but no bones were broken. I washed the blood off and put her back in, and she's never jumped out since."

Now Mrs. Channel and Gila make quite the smart couple.

"People follow me into rest stops and restaurants and campgrounds," she said. "We've had thousands of snapshots taken of us, even movies by people who put the camera out the car window."

And there are advantages:

"With Gila, I need never worry about anyone stealing the cycle even if I left the key in the ignition."
