How's that? Runnels

Q. I've heard rumors that Runnels Junior High may close. Is this true?

A. Because of declining enrollment in the Big Spring school system over the past few years, administrators and trustees have discussed closing Runnels, but no action has been taken or any decisions made, administrators said.

Off the wall:

The difference

HOLBROOK, Mass. (AP) — Oh what a difference 35 feet makes.

If Dennis Michael Carey lived 35 feet further from his school, he would be spared a hike of nearly 1.5 miles each way to his eighth-grade classes.

The School Committee has rejected his parents' appeal to exempt the student from a rule requiring students to live 1.5 miles or more from school in order to ride the school bus.

His father, Dennis, had the police measure the route from his home to his son's school — and it was a mere 35 feet under 1.5 miles.

"A rule is a rule," said Anne Loud, the school committee chairman, in an interview published Thursday.

Food, clothing prices jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, surging at their steepest clip in four months, rose 0.5 percent in August as both food and clothing became significantly more expensive.

For the first two-thirds of 1984, inflation is running at an annual rate of 4.2 percent, a slight deterioration from last year's 3.8 percent.

Much of last month's bad news was attributed to higher prices for food — up 0.6 percent, the most since February — and clothing — up 0.9 percent, the most since March 1980.

Housing prices rose 0.6 percent, their second big gain in a row. Gasoline prices fell 0.9 percent.

That decline, however, was only half the July improvement and helped explain the steep overall increase.

While the August gain was the steepest since April's 0.5 percent jump, Labor Department analyst Patrick Jackman said the new increase was likely to be the steepest for the rest of 1984.

Vegetable prices recorded a 13.2 percent jump, their largest since February 1977.

Supply shortages were blamed for all of the increase. Specifically, hot weather in California drove lettuce prices up 28.7 percent while delivery woes forced tomato prices up 30.8 percent. Potato prices rose 12 percent, with the gain blamed on small spring crops caused by heavy rains.

As for clothing, Jackman said that this year's robust economic growth had prompted manufacturers to raise prices for fall-season clothes more than in the past. He predicted clothing prices would stabilize, or might even decline slightly, in the coming months with the next sharp increase unlikely before spring lines appear in the winter.

The sharp housing price increase was blamed on the second consecutive significant jumps in electricity costs, up 1.6 percent, and in natural gas prices, up 1.7 percent.

—Entertainment costs rose 0.5 percent.

All the changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

If last month's 0.5 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 5.5 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure made public.

In all, the Consumer Price Index stood at 313.0 in August, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $31.30 last month.

A companion index, the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers, rose 0.9 percent last month, more than double July's 0.4 percent hike. See Prices page 2-A

Jobless number declines

The unemployment rate for Howard County fell to 4.5 in August from the July rate of 5.4, well under the state average of 5.7 percent for August.

August's rate is almost twice as low as the rate in August of 1983, when the county's rate was 8.8, according to figures from the Texas Employment Commission office in Howard County. The county's unemployment rate last year was higher than the state average of 7.6 for August 1983.

The national unemployment rate for August this year remained at 7.5 percent.

Although the Howard County rate remains lower than the statewide average, the number of people in the labor force and the number of persons employed in the county also fell, according to the TEC office.

For August of this year, the total force was 17,378 persons, down from the July figure of 17,663. A year ago, 16,961 persons were in the labor force.

Of that total labor force figure in August, 16,601 persons were employed and 777 persons were

'Bird' project hatched

Staff and bureau reports Contractors today were preparing to tear up Big Spring's Bird Streets after Gov. Mark White Thursday officially awarded the city a $380,000 grant for water and street repair.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said construction will begin Monday morning in the housing addition northeast of the Airpark.

"People can expect some minor inconveniences" during the construction period, Decell said. He also asked people to "look out for the barricades."

Streets will be obstructed and water service interrupted during the project, he said.

Streets include Cherokee, Harding, Avion, Lake, Canary, Cardinal, Bluebird, Oriole and Robin. Water work will take place in the same area and on lines running from 15th Street to Rice Street.

Colorado City will receive $415,000 to provide sewer services to low and moderate income citizens. Lamesa has been allotted $250,000 to rehabilitate 15 homes.

More than 460 applications for grant money were received by the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

White said in written comments that the wide range of funded activities demonstrated that state rather than federal administration of the grants program makes sense.

Calf-roping: Aiming for the perfect 10

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

Calf-roping, according to contestants, is a demanding art.

Contestants usually start young and practice daily.

"It's like football or anything else. You have to stay in shape," said Alvin Luce of Coahoma, whose 16-year-old son Brandon Luce was competing in the calf-roping contest at the Howard County Fair.

Because winning times in the contest are generally in the 9-10 second range, "everything's got to be perfect," the older Luce said. "You've got to be a good athlete." Luce used to calf-roped when he was younger, he said. Now he team-ropes, and is entered in Saturday's contest with his son.

His son, Brandon, began practicing and competing when he was eight. Although contestants compete for prize money at larger rodeos and saddles and prizes at smaller events, calf-roping has other incentives, Luce said. "There's a lot of satisfaction beating the competition," he said.

"These kids have got something to take care of every day. The horses have to be fed and tended to daily. All the equipment has to be taken care of," Luce said.

"It keeps them (the boys competing) busy," he said. "It keeps their minds off something else that could get them in trouble."

Roping can be an expensive sport. According to Luce, a horse can cost $3,000 to $4,000 and a saddle between $1,200 to $1,500. Add to that the cost of rope and practice calves, and the total mounts.

"Whatever you put into it is what you get out," Luce said. "You can put a lot of money into it. There's no telling how much you spend. And then there's a lot of practice that costs you time and practice calves."

To win the saddle awarded at the fair competition, a contestant also must compete in the team-roping contest Saturday. Buckles will be awarded for the average winner in both the calf-roping and team-roping contest.

The top five winners in Thursday's calf-roping contest in order and their combined times are: Kyle Ditto, 21.4; Bill Stockton, 24.41; Brad Jenkins, 25.35; Robert Ragan, 26.79; and Robert Crenshaw, 27.13.

23 charged with murder

SYDNEY, Australia — Police arrested 23 men in pre-dawn raids today and charged them and six others with murder in connection with a battle between rival motorcycle gangs that left seven people dead, authorities said.

A police spokesman said the 29 arrested men were each charged with seven counts of murder. The murder charges were the first in the wake of the gang fight earlier this month that also left more than 20 people injured.

Six of the arrested men were charged in hospitals where they are recovering from wounds sustained in the battle, the spokesman said.

Six members of the two gangs and a 14-year-old girl were killed Sept. 2 at a trading market for motorbike parts in a Sydney car park. Hundreds of people ran for cover as members of the Bandidos and Comanchero gangs blazed at each other with rifles and shotguns and fought hand to hand with knives, clubs and machetes.

China fires top officials

PEKING — Two government ministers in key science and economic posts have been replaced at the request of Premier Zhao Ziyang, the official Xinhua news agency announced.

Fang Yi, 68, a member of the Communist Party Politburo, lost his job as minister in charge of the State Science and Technology Commission. He had held the post since February 1978.

Zhang Jingfu, 70, a member of the Party Central Committee, was dismissed as minister in charge of the State Economic Commission. He was appointed in May 1982.

The changes were approved Thursday at the seventh meeting of the sixth National People's Congress Standing Committee, China's party-line legislative body. No reasons were given for the changes.

Song Jian, 52, former vice-minister of astronautics, was appointed to the State Science and Technology Commission post, the Xinhua report said. Lu Dong, 69, was promoted from vice-minister to minister in charge of the State Economic Commission.

Party favors missile ban

BOURNEMOUTH, England — Britain's Liberal Party has voted to advocate a ban on U.S. cruise nuclear missiles from Britain.

Ignoring the pleas of Liberal leader David Steel, delegates at the party's annual conference voted 611-556 Thursday to urge the ban on the NATO missiles, which arrived in Britain in November.

Steel, who has the final say on the party platform, indicated he will veto the vote before the next general election, which must be held by mid-1988.

The conference rejected an attempt by the party's anti-nuclear wing to pledge the Liberals to scrapping Britain's own nuclear weapons unilaterally.

Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has pledged that 160 U.S.-built NATO missiles will be deployed in Britain by 1988.

Peace talks halt at U.N.

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. secretary-general announced a recess in talks he has been holding with Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders after the rivals outlined their goals for a future settlement of their dispute over control of the nation's territory.

Both sides "indicated to me their desire to pursue the search for an agreed settlement," Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Thursday. He has invited them to start a second round of talks Oct. 15.

OVERVIEW — A wide shot of the U.S. Embassy annex in Christian East Beirut after a car-bomb exploded here Thursday. More than 20 people were killed and up to 60 were injured in the early-morning blast.

Workers start cleanup after embassy bombing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rescue workers today ended their search for bodies in the wreckage of the bombed U.S. Embassy annex, and the U.S. ambassador said the devastation could have been "a hell of a lot worse" if a guard had not shot the suicide car bomber.

A Lebanese military investigator, Elias Mousa, announced today that the casualty toll from Thursday's bombing, based on hospital and coroners' reports, was 12 dead and 72 wounded. Earlier police reports had said 23 people were killed and 60 wounded when a van filled with explosives blew up just outside the annex.

U.S. Embassy Deputy Chief of Mission Stephen R. Lyne told reporters at the scene today that the search for victims was over.

"We have accounted for all Americans and foreign service nationals. All we are doing now is removing classified material for the sake of security," Lyne said.

Lyne put the final toll of U.S. casualties at two killed and 16 wounded seriously enough to be hospitalized. A U.S. source close to the search said earlier that 21 Americans were injured.

Lyne said four Lebanese, including two foreign service employees, were killed. The American source had said seven or possibly eight Lebanese employees of the embassy were killed.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said rescue workers had "found all the bodies we will find," but "there are people we're not going to find any part of."

It was impossible to determine how many Lebanese visitors or visa applicants were at the annex when the van exploded, the source said.

The blast injured U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew and British Ambassador David Miers, neither seriously, the source said.

Bartholomew left the Abu Jawdeh Hospital in a wheelchair today, with stitches across his upper lip, a small bandage on the back of his head and a cast on his arm. He said his arm was not broken. Surrounded by bodyguards, he was driven to his residence east of Beirut.

Speaking to the American NBC television network, Bartholomew said the bomber zigzagged through anti-vehicle concrete barricades after shooting a Lebanese guard. The bomber was fired at and slumped over the wheel before the bomb went off, Bartholomew said.

Falwell booted during speech

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell, leader of the Moral Majority, was booted only twice during a talk at Harvard after the university's president urged campus audiences to respect the right of freedom of speech.

President Derek Bok issued his appeal Thursday, the same night the evangelist spoke at Harvard Law School.

A year ago, Falwell gave a speech at the university's John F. Kennedy School of Politics and was repeatedly interrupted by hecklers.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger also was jeered during a speech at Harvard last year.

Mayor refuses to resign

SAN DIEGO — Mayor Roger Hedgecock, who has surrendered to San Diego County marshals, says he won't resign from office and called the indictment charging him with conspiracy and perjury "a farce."

Hedgecock surrendered Thursday, was booked, fingerprinted and released pending a Sept. 28 arraignment on a 15-count criminal indictment. He was indicted Wednesday along with jailed financier J. David Dominelli, former J. David & Co. executive Nancy Hoover and political consultant Tom Shepard.

The four allegedly conspired to pump money from Ms. Hoover and Dominelli's now bankrupt money-trading firm into Hedgecock's 1983 campaign by laundering it through Shepard's consulting firm.

Dying woman still suing

NEWARK, N.J. — A woman who is dying of lung cancer can proceed with her product liability lawsuit after a judge ruled the health warnings on cigarette packages do not protect the tobacco industry from legal action.

People who claim the warnings are inadequate "and that they have been injured as a result should not be deprived of the opportunity of so proving," U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin said Thursday in a ruling believed to be the first of its kind in the nation.

Rose Cipollone, 58, of Little Ferry sued several companies, alleging they were negligent in not warning the public of the dangers of smoking.

Fire origin unexplained

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — The damage from an explosion and fire in a grain elevator that killed three people was so severe that inspectors say they may not be able to determine the cause.

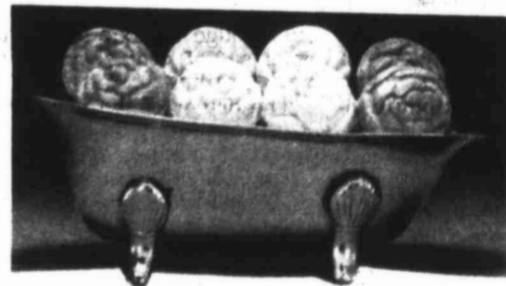

Authorities on Thursday recovered the bodies of two men missing since Wednesday's blast at the ConAgra plant. Ten others were injured.

The explosion set off fires that destroyed a second elevator and three buildings. State Occupational Safety and Health inspector Jim Sibley speculated the blast was caused when dust inside a storage bin was ignited by a spark or hot machinery.

Candidate admits to lie

Unlikely alliance is leading Israel

Imagine if you can a United States government in which Ronald Reagan were president and Walter Mondale his vice president for two years, followed by a similar period in which Mondale were president and Mr. Reagan his vice president. Sound far-fetched? It is, and that is a measure of the governmental crisis in Israel, where the Labor and Likud blocs have finally formed the second unity government in that nation's 37-year history.

During the next 50 months — or until this unlikely coalition breaks down, as seems certain — Israel will be ruled by what newly installed Prime Minister Shimon Peres himself calls "a government of disagreement." The new prime minister and Labor leader will serve for 25 months and then will trade places for a like period with Yitzhak Shamir, outgoing Likud prime minister and the new government's foreign minister and deputy premier. Each will try to govern through a 25-member cabinet composed of 12 members from both major blocs and a single member from the National Religion Party.

This most unlikely of governments was formed to end the political stalemate that resulted from the failure of either bloc to win a majority of seats in the Knesset (parliament) in the July elections. Left with the unpleasant choices of forming a unity government or calling a new election in November, Labor and Likud agreed to try the power-sharing arrangement. A similar unity government was formed in 1967 during the security crisis that led to the Six-Day War with Israel's Arab neighbors.

Although Israel faces no external threats comparable to the situation then, the nation struggles with a menacing and intractable domestic crisis. The Israeli inflation rate zooms at an astonishing 400 percent; its foreign debt now totals $23 billion; unemployment has increased from 4 percent in December to 5.9 percent today and is still rising.

But the outlook on the foreign front appears much more promising. The new government already has made a peace overture to Jordan's King Hussein, and pledged to end the occupation of Lebanon. These positive signs suggest at least that the parties agree on what the national priorities should be.

This stalwart little ally and the only truly democratic government in the Mideast will surely need patient understanding from the United States during the months and years ahead.

Fritz gets mad

Tip O'Neill has criticized Fritz Mondale for not running a hard-hitting personal campaign against President Reagan.

It's shaken the Mondale advisers and they had a meeting with the Democratic candidate to loosen him up.

"Fritz, you have to take the gloves off and show you're damn mad about what's going on in this country."

"I want to stick with the issues."

"The hell with the issues. Tomorrow you're going to address the steel workers and you have to prove you're one of them."

"How do I do that?"

"For one thing you might take off your suit coat when you talk to them."

"Gosh, I hate to take off my suit coat. I could get my white shirt dirty."

"Forget your shirt. And you could loosen your tie and open the button on your collar."

"In front of all the media?"

"We want you to look like a regular guy. Our surveys indicate that you're coming off stuffy and uptight."

"I don't care how I look. I believe this election should be decided on the massive budget deficits, waste in defense and tax breaks that go to the rich."

"We know what you believe. We also know what the voters are looking for. They're watching your style — and you don't have any."

"Of course I've got a style. I may not be as exciting as Ronald Reagan, but I'm very presidential, and when the people listen to what I have to say they'll forget his charisma."

"That's the problem, Fritz. They're not listening. You're putting the voters to sleep. Can't you get more anger in your voice when you're talking about jobs and Reagan's foreign policies?"

"Sure I can. I'm angry right now."

"Then why aren't you screaming at us and telling us we don't know what we're talking about?"

"I don't like to show my true feelings. People from Minnesota never do."

"Fritz, we're way behind the polls. You have to prove you'll be a tough president, and no one can push you around. You're going to have to let the sparks fly, and whip up the crowds to a frenzy."

"If I do that they won't listen to the issues."

"You can deal with the issues AFTER the campaign. First you've got to win the election."

"Well, if you say so. After I take off my suit coat and open my tie, what do I do next?"

"Slam your fist against the podium for starters."

"I could hurt my hand."

"Okay, so if you hurt your hand we'll put a bandage on it. It will show the voters how angry you really are about the state of the nation."

"Reagan never slams his fist on the podium."

"He doesn't have to. He's the incumbent. Besides he's a natural Mr. Nice Guy. You can't beat a nice guy with another nice guy. Our only chance of winning is for you to convince the people that when you get in the White House you're going to be a first class S.O.B. Can you do it?"

"Of course I can do it. Look, I'm taking off my coat and I'm opening my tie and I'm hitting my fist on the table. Now what?"

"Get angry because all the steel workers are losing their jobs."

"How's that?"

"Is that as angry as you can look?"

"It's the angriest you'll ever see me."

"Okay, it will have to do, until we think of something else."

Prospects for post-Khomeini Iran

WASHINGTON — The aging Ayatollah Khomeini has been reported to be on his deathbed at least a dozen times since he took power in Iran more than five years ago.

Now he has emerged once again looking hale and hearty after a flurry of reports that he is ailing.

Intense speculation continues in Western intelligence circles on the state of Khomeini's health — and on which of several potential successors appears to be in the best position to seize power when the ayatollah finally dies.

Since Iran is a closed society, the experts' assessments remain only speculation. But this much I can tell you:

During the summer, reports flowed regularly into the State Department suggesting that Khomeini was at the point of death. There were even reports that he had died, but that the fact was being kept secret while succession was being decided.

Khomeini spiked these rumors by making a few public appearances in the last couple of weeks. Indeed, Foggy Bottom sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado that Khomeini's televised appearances were deliberately designed "to dispel rumors that he is dead."

His appearance a few weeks ago rewarded the professional Khomeini-watchers with one nugget of speculative gold: Although Khomeini stood on his balcony and smiled as usual, his speech was read for him. The ayatollah, who has never shirked his oratorical responsibilities, spoke not a word to the faithful.

This anomaly lent some weight to reports in mid-July that Khomeini had suffered a mild stroke. Lacking hard evidence, though, intelligence experts lean toward the possibility that Khomeini's summer ailment — if indeed there was one — more likely was a heart attack.

Then, only last week, Khomeini added professional Iran-watchers by making some personal appearances and meeting with a group of Western reporters.

Secret intelligence reports assert that Khomeini suffers from another condition not uncommon for an 84-year-old man: severe prostate problems. But the ayatollah's personal physician has reportedly joked that Khomeini "could handle another wife," which suggests the problem isn't as serious as reported.

One thing intelligence sources do know is that Khomeini's heart specialist has made several house calls to his famous patient in recent weeks. The visits are relatively easy to log, because the doctor must cancel all his regular appointments when he is summoned to Khomeini's side.

But for all the suggestions of his divinity, Khomeini is under no illusions that he is immortal. Several months ago, he wrote a secret will, to be opened only after his death. It was widely believed that the will named Khomeini's choice of a successor.

But my sources report that assembly speaker Hojatolislam Rafsanjani sneaked a look at the document and was dismayed when he found no designated successor in it. Rafsanjani's choice is Ayatollah Montazeri, but he has so far been unable to persuade Khomeini to give Montazeri his official blessing.

The State Department's morning line makes Montazeri the favorite. Considered a dark horse is President Khomeini, who has little but his own ambition going for him.

Another candidate is Khomeini's son, Ahmad, who is believed to be his father's favorite. It is also considered possible that Khomeini will be succeeded, at least initially, by a committee of rivals jockeying for position.

Whatever the outcome, intelligence experts foresee unrest and disorder in post-Khomeini Iran. At this point, though, they don't predict an actual revolution.

TAXPAYERS' PURSUIT: If you want to know how the government is squeezing the cash out of your wallet, take a moment to play Taxpayers' Pursuit. How many of the following questions can you answer? (The answers appear at the end.)

1. How much has the median family's income increased in 35 years?
2. How much have the median family's income taxes shot up during the same period?
3. To erase the deficit and balance the federal budget, how much more would taxes have to be increased?
4. What is the real cause of the bloated national debt — too little taxation or too much federal spending?

Answers: 1. 7.6 times. 2. 246.4 times. 3. About double. 4. Too much spending. (Join our protest against government misspending. Write to Citizens Against Waste, P.O. Box 1000, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044.)

WATCH ON WASTE: Pentagon poobahs insist they're not squandering the billions of dollars the Reagan administration has been throwing their way — but sometimes you have to wonder. Consider the doorbells at Bolling Air Force Base:

For decades, Air Force families housed at the little airfield near Washington, D.C., have managed to get along without doorbells. Visitors simply knocked. But now, with money to burn, the Air Force has decided to give each of the 1,340 units its own doorbell. Wiring and installation are expected to cost $200,000.

Squabbling brother wants peace

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am 10 years old, and my problem is my little brother. We are always fighting, and I know that is wrong, but we can't seem to stop. — R.J.

DEAR R.J.: I am thankful that you are concerned, because it is very important to learn to get along with people. But more than that, God wants you and your brother to love each other and to get along.

Have you ever tried to discover the real reason you and your little brother fight? Yes, there are probably many reasons, depending on the situation. But in every case, the reason you fight is that he wants things one way and you want them another way. In other words, you each want your own way, and you disagree when you both are determined to have your own way. Actually, we are all this way by nature, and even some adults never learn that they cannot always have their own way.

The first thing you need to do is tell God you want to get along with your brother, but you know you cannot do it by yourself. Then ask Jesus to come into your life as your Lord and Savior. You can do that by a simple prayer to Him, telling Him you want to turn your life over to Him. When you do that, God Himself comes to dwell within you — and He then will help you live as you should.

Senatorial hopeful visits city

By CAROL BALDWIN
 Staff Writer

Lubbock attorney Sol Thomas, the Republican candidate for the Texas State Senatorial seat of the 28th District, was in Big Spring Thursday visiting the Howard County Fair and talking with local supporters.

Thomas faces Democratic incumbent John Montford in the November race. He says his chances for election are "excellent" but admits that his name is not well known in the district.

"It will be a terribly tough race, because of the lack of name identification. I'm definitely the underdog." He feels regional support for Ronald Reagan and Phil Gramm will benefit his race.

"A lot of good, conservative Democrats have shown support," Thomas said. He, too, is a former Democrat who left the party several years ago.

Thomas, 43, and his wife, Sandra, have five children ranging in ages from 20 to 13.

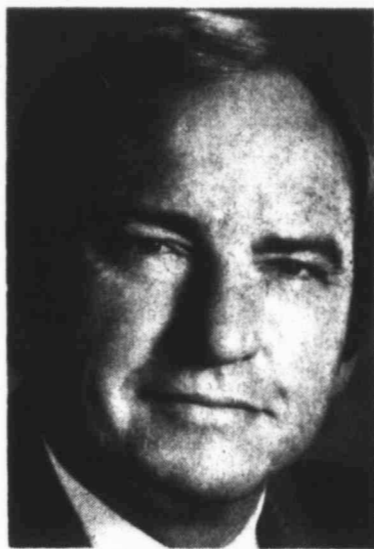

He has a law degree from Texas Tech University School of Law. He is a member of the State Bar of Texas, the Lubbock County Bar Association, and is a licensed real estate broker. He has also worked as a farm and ranch appraiser and consultant.

The Republican hopeful has three "priorities" in the election, including crime, the recently passed education reform bill, and water.

About crime: "We have to do something. I don't think criminals should be walking the streets...simply because we don't have room for them in prison or because of technicalities in law."

"I would never vote for the early release of felons. That's one of the differences that John and I have."

Concerning education: "I want to erase what (Legislators) did this summer. No one is happy (with the education reform bill). It is a nightmare. The only person happy with it is Mark White and his cronies. The bill will absolutely break some small school districts."

Thomas thinks educational reform needs further study and more input from teachers and administrators. "It's our school system. Not Mark White's."

Concerning water: "A comprehensive water plan (for this area) must solve the problem" of depleting supplies, Thomas said.

"The water bill recently introduced and passed in the Senate is not comprehensive. It's a stopgap measure which did very little for West Texas...Any water plan that purports to be comprehensive must include water importation in order to satisfy the needs diminishing supplies have created."

If a project is begun now, "It will take 12 to 15 years before we are able to see any end to the project. We have to start it now."

Thomas is campaigning for a state office for the first time in his career. He says, "I feel like I can better represent the mainstream in Texas, because of my background in farming, ranching, business and law."

Dr. Donohue

Fever blisters

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 13 years old and for years I've been getting fever blisters on my lips. Is this something I will have to put up with, or will I grow out of it eventually? Do you know what causes them, and do you have any remedies for them? — Miss R.H.

They're caused by the herpes virus (type 1). Don't let that bother you. This is not the herpes virus you hear and read so much about, but a cousin of it. The other herpes virus is the type 2 kind, the genital type.

As many as 40 percent of people suffer from fever blisters. Among the many triggers for them is a sudden elevation of temperature, and that's where they got the name. But many events cause them to appear out of nowhere, it seems, and when we least expect them. For some, menstruation triggers a reappearance. Sunlight exposure may do it for others.

In a way they do fall into the "have to learn to live with it" category. That's because once you have the virus in your body, it stays on forever. In that respect it acts much like the other herpes viruses — sort of like the person you turn up particularly like, but who doesn't put on your doorstep from time to time, as obnoxious as ever.

I can tell you that after the first infection, the recurrent ones are less severe, and they tend to occur less frequently as you grow older. We seem to develop some kind of immunity to the virus, I guess.

I can't tell you of a sure-fire medicine treatment. Sometimes a numbing agent, like xylocaine (pronounced Zye-low-cane) viscous eases the pain. It's a novocaine-like drug. And you should be careful and avoid touching your blisters, for you can transfer the virus to other body parts, where it can be mistaken for the other herpes virus.

Dear Abby

Wedding worries weigh on bride-to-be

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I plan to be married next June, and I would like to ask my brother and his wife to be honor attendants. My problem is that they are both quite overweight. It's important for me that everything for my wedding be as perfect as possible. Since there is plenty of time until the wedding, I would like to ask them to go on a diet. I know they can do it because they were both thin a few years ago.

How can I make them understand that I am serious about the weight issue without hurting their feelings? If they refuse to diet, I plan to ask others in their place.

SLIM SISTER

DEAR SLIM: I recommend that you ask others in their place right now. To invite your brother and his wife to be your "honor attendants" on the condition that they lose weight is no honor — it's an insult. Are overweight people any less loving than underweight people? And since you want everything for your wedding to be "perfect," what do you intend to do about your far-from-perfect values?

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 years old and my love life stinks. I like this kid who has been coming to my house for a year now. He likes to watch TV, make out and eat. (I make fabulous chocolate chip cookies. He can put away a double batch with two quarts of milk.) But, Abby, there are two things wrong with him: 1) He won't make any kind of commitment; 2) he never takes me anywhere.

I'm nothing to be ashamed of, and I am not boring. So what should I do?

GETTING NOWHERE FAST

DEAR GETTING: If he's going to drink your milk and eat your cookies, tell him he has to take you out occasionally. And you may quote me.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if the general public knows that the waiter or waitress has to pay the check if the person he or she served walked out without paying? DEAR WAITRESS: They do WILMINGTON, DEL., WAITRESS now.

Woman reports

on national WWI

Veterans meeting

Virginia Younger attended the National Convention of World War I Veterans held in Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 26-30. She is the senior vice president of the Department of Texas Auxiliary to the Veterans of WWI.

A member of Ladies Auxiliary Barracks #1471, she reported on the convention at the Auxiliary's meeting at Kentwood Center, Sept. 8. Continued recruitment of new members and support of Bills HR2735 and S2298 was emphasized. These bills relate to pensions for the WWI veterans. Miss Younger also attended a memorial service honoring the veterans who have died since the 1983 convention.

The Department of Texas won 36 awards and nine bracelet charms. The charms were given to members who volunteered at hospitals other than the Veterans Hospital. Frances Averitt was a recipient for her work at Malone-Hogan Hospital. Big Spring Auxiliary won an award for 100 percent membership.

Cake and coffee was served at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center, Aug. 27, by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Irland. The next meeting will be at the center, Oct. 13.

Child Study Club

Chemical People

Johnnie Lou Avery presented a program on "The Chemical People" at the Sept. 12 meeting of the Big Spring Child Study Club. The meeting was at the home of Lois Cave.

Avery described each task force and what had been accomplished by each committee. Lack of parental involvement had been one problem the group faced, she said.

The club will donate $150 to the Rainbow Project in honor of the guest speakers.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT., 22, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day for you to think big and to get big. Consider your most expanded vision and then think about the various means by which you can make it part of your everyday living.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can express your talents very well today if you will put out the effort to do so and find new enterprises to get into.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find the best manner of entertaining friends you truly like and who will also return the gracious gesture.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A fine day for you to be in the outside world and to state your ideas to others for a more progressive future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A good day to make money so that you can buy the better things of life that you like so much.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are particularly charming today and can easily gain the favors from others that you seek.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Stop fussing with little details and concentrate on big issues that can make you far more successful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A generous pal helps you gain the aims that mean the most to you at this time. Gad about socially and be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get civic duties handed at full throttle today and you can make a fine impression on bigwigs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are alert to the opportunities around you, this day can open up a whole new vista for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find the right methods to use in the future so that you can handle practical affairs much better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Situations arise whereby you understand how to have better relations with allies.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many small duties to attend to, so get right at them and they are soon behind you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will seem to be born under a lucky star and have many opportunities and favors come his or her way, and will seize them with alacrity and imagination and become quite famous. It is important that you give encouragement when some especially good work is done.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
