No, they're not up for disease of the year. Hawaii is in the process of adopting an official fish. The only island state in the nation already has a state bird, the nene; a flower, hibiscus; tree, the kukui; and even a state marine mammal, the humpback whale.

Students and community groups have nominated eight candidates chosen from 26 eligible fish.

Construction in Big Spring surged over the $10.5 million mark during the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, according to figures from the city Inspection Division.

The figure tops by $2 million last fiscal year's construction value and represents virtually the largest construction total for the city in a decade. The figure was not adjusted for inflation.

The figures are based on building permits filed with the city Inspection Division between Oct. 1, 1983, and Sept. 30, 1984. The city in 1982 changed to a fiscal accounting system.

The highest previous construction value logged by the office for a calendar year was $10.3 million in 1978.

During fiscal year 1982-83, construction in Big Spring totaled about $8.4 million. Included in this figure is the $1.2 million drive-in facility built by the First National Bank that opened in November 1983.

About $7 million of last fiscal year's $10.5 million total resulted from two other large commercial building projects — the $4.4 million Bent Tree Apartments in the city's Coronado addition and the $2.5 million Canterbury II Retirement Center on Lancaster Street.

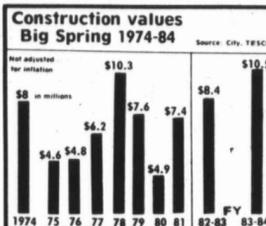

The Bent Tree complex, which began leasing in June, features 90 units of "luxury apartment homes." The developer, Brinkcraft Development of Lubbock, last month filed a permit for $21,240 in carpentry to complete the project.

Following groundbreaking ceremonies last June, the Canterbury II Retirement Center remains under construction, with the building framework now taking shape at the corner of 17th and Lancaster. The 120-unit facility should be available for rent in the summer of 1985.

Prices average in city

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer
A cost of living consumer index compiled by the American Chamber of Commerce Researchers Association shows Big Spring ranks near average in costs for most items.

Using 100 as an average, Big Spring's overall all-items index rated 104 on the scale. Cities averaging significantly higher all-items index costs included St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, with 132; San Francisco, Calif.; with 123; Boca Raton, Fla., with 121; and New York City with 138.

Cities with significantly lower all-items index costs included Dyersburg, Tenn., with 88; Gadsden, Ala., with 88; and Springfield, Mo., with 88.

On the scale Big Spring averaged slightly higher on groceries, housing, and transportation. A breakdown shows the city rated 108 on grocery items, 103 on housing, and 105 on transportation.

The city rated 112 on utility costs. Health care costs came below the average of 100 with a score of 92. Miscellaneous goods and services were ranked at 100.

Abilene rated 96 on the all-item index, 104 on groceries, 100 on housing, 90 on utilities, 96 on transportation, 97 on health care costs and 100 on miscellaneous goods and services. See Costs page 2-A

Senate tables civil rights bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress stamped toward adjournment today after the Senate plowed under major civil rights and environmental legislation in an effort to pass an omnibus spending bill necessary to keep the government solvent after midnight.

Senators convened at 11 a.m. Tuesday and worked for nearly 16 hours in an effort to complete action on the money bill so that congressional negotiators could begin hammering out a compromise with a version passed last week by the House. After about an eight-hour break, the Senate was resuming work.

The Senate had been bogged down since last week in bitter wrangling over civil rights legislation aimed at nullifying a Supreme Court limit on the application of federal anti-discrimination laws.

But the Senate voted 53-45 Tuesday night to table — in effect kill — the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1984.

It was a dramatic end to a five-day deadlock.

"Shame on this body, shame on this body," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a co-sponsor of the legislation, shouted at his colleagues in a hushed Senate chamber.

"OK. Discrimination. We'll tuck it under the mattress until next year," he said, reiterating that tabling the legislation would make this "a shameful day for this body." Sen Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the other co-sponsor of the legislation, reluctantly joined the GOP leadership in the tabling move.

Supporters repeatedly demonstrated that they had the votes in favor of the House-passed measure, but opponents threw enough procedural roadblocks in the way that Senate activity stalled as deadlines for action on the money bill and congressional adjournment drew closer.

In a Feb. 28 ruling, the Supreme Court limited the application of a law enabling the government to see Congress page 2-A

Official praises state hospital record

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer
The state Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has no plans to cut back its operations and wants instead to increase its budget, including funding for the Big Spring State Hospital, according to department Commissioner Dr. Gary Miller.

"There is no plan whatever to consolidate or close any state hospital. They are a necessary part of our services," Miller said. "It (the Big Spring State Hospital) serves a large enough area that to contemplate consolidation would create a service area as large as four to five states."

According to administrator A.K. Smith, the Big Spring hospital — which serves a 46-county region of West Texas — is asking for $20 million for the 1986-87 fiscal budget, an increase of $6 million over its present funding. And the department is asking for a $444 million increase from its current budget, Miller said.

Miller, in town Tuesday afternoon to tour the Big Spring hospital, said the facility had an "extremely good program." "The high standards of excellence (at the hospital) were maintained, if not enhanced," he said.

'The high standards of excellence were maintained, if not enhanced.'

Miller cited pioneer work at the hospital in the 1960s by Dr. Preston Harrison, who developed outreach services to rural areas, as an example of contributions to the mental health field.

The Big Spring outreach model has been followed not only statewide but throughout the nation, including New York state, Miller said.

The close relationship between the Big Spring State Hospital and the six community centers in its area also has "greatly enhanced the quality of care" patients receive, Miller said.

The department is "trying the best it can" to comply with settlement agreements in two federal district court lawsuits against the state hospitals and three state schools, Miller said.

"We don't want to whitewash or cover up defects," Deputy Commissioner for Mental Health Services Dr. Jim Clemons said. Clemons was also in Big Spring to tour the local facility.

"The department has done what it can. We're constrained by the budget," Miller said. Money has been reallocated, policies improved and structural means upgraded in an effort to comply with the settlements, he said.

But some improvements, particularly a requirement that "two direct-care personnel be on duty in each ward on every shift," require more legislative funding, Miller said.

"It had to be done within the dollars we had. The hospital has done everything in its power to juggle paraprofessionals and professionals," Miller said. "The hospital has struggled — very creatively, I think — to deal with that."

German ferry sinks; 8 dead, 15 missing

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A ferry taking more than 40 passengers on a birthday cruise in rainy Hamburg harbor collided with a tug boat and sank. Eight people were killed, 15 were missing and feared dead, and 24 were hurt, police said today.

Police said seven bodies, including those of three children, were recovered from the ferry Martina today after frogmen fit steel cables around the craft and it was hauled up from about 42 feet of water and pulled to a Hamburg dock.

The body of an eighth victim, an elderly woman, was found Tuesday night about an hour after the collision.

Eight children were among the 15 people known to be missing.

Divers found the sunken ferry early today, 5½ hours after it collided with a tug boat towing a barge. High tide had hindered efforts to raise the wreck.

Investigators said the Martina may have struck the 32-foot-long cable joining the tug and the barge. The barge, loaded with excavation equipment, drifted away after the collision and was missing.

Rescuers pulled 24 survivors from the chilly waters before darkness halted the search.

Low system hits area

By The Associated Press

A low pressure system and remnants of Hurricane Polo buffeted parts of West Texas today, forcing weather officials to post flash flood warnings in the mountains through Thursday.

Meanwhile, clear skies persisted along the coast and throughout much of East and North Texas, while a wave of moist Gulf air increased the cloud cover over the remainder of the state.

Low clouds blanketed deep South Texas while high level clouds were visible elsewhere.

Widely scattered light showers dampened parts of the southwest early today, but otherwise, no rain was detected.

However, more precipitation was possible in West Texas, mainly west of the mountains, and weather service forecasters warned of flash flooding in low-lying areas, highway water crossings and streams.

A light southerly wind raced across Texas generally in a 5 to 10 mph range.

Temperatures just before daybreak were mostly in the 50s and 60s. Extremes ranged from a cool 50 degrees in Lufkin to a warmer reading of 71 in Brownsville.

Increasing cloudiness and warmer temperatures were store for North Texas, where scattered thundershowers in southwest regions were possible. There was also a good chance of showers in southwest Texas. Highs today will be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Showers lingered over the northeastern corner of the nation today while flash flood watches were posted in eastern Arizona and southern New Mexico.

Fair skies stretched from the northern Plains to the Gulf Coast states.

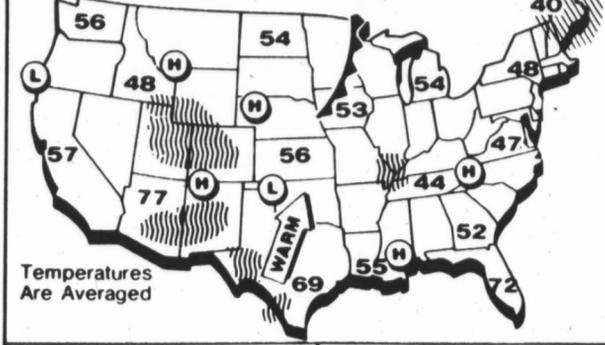

Today's forecast called for thunderstorms over the southern intermountain region and the southern Rockies. Rain was scattered from the lower Great Lakes region to northern portions of New England. Partly cloudy skies were expected over the southern Plains, upper Ohio Valley and the Pacific Northwest.

High temperatures for today were to be in the 50s and 60s over much of the Great Lakes region and the Northeast; in the 60s across much of the intermountain region and the Pacific Northwest; and in the 80s over the Desert Southwest and most of the Gulf Coast states.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 1 at Massena, N.Y., to 77 at Key West, Fla.

WEST TEXAS — Flash flood watch in effect West of the mountains through Wednesday. Cloudy with scattered thundershowers and rain through Wednesday. Some thundershowers or heavy rain today will produce flash flooding West of the mountains. Cooler today. Highs in the 70s, rising to near 90 in the Big Bend. Lows in the 50s to low 70s.

Sheriff's Log

Hoax bomb suspect released

A 32-year-old man suspected of possession of a hoax bomb was released from the Howard County Jail Tuesday after posting $2,500 bond.

Benny Joe Sowell of 2912 Cherokee had been arrested Monday night after Howard County sheriff's deputies found a homemade device that included a fragmentation grenade in his car.

after he was transferred to the sheriff's office by the Department of Public Safety. County Judge Milton Kirby sentenced Sowell to a $300 fine, $106 court costs and two years probation.

Pounds had been arrested on suspicion of DWI and carrying a prohibited weapon, but no case was filed on the weapons charge, according to the sheriff's office.

The device has been secured until explosives experts from Ft. Hood are able to examine the device, according to a spokesman for the sheriff's office.

Miguel and Joann Calixto told sheriff's deputies Tuesday that someone burglarized their car between 7 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday, when it was left parked by the side of Highway 87 about one-half mile north of Big Spring.

Two other persons pleaded guilty Tuesday in county court to separate charges of DWI. Kirby sentenced both Armando Salinas Hinojosa, 26, of Garden City and Jerry Lee Penuel, 44, of 1004 W. Third to a $400 fine, $106 court costs and 72 hours in jail.

Deputies arrested Timothy Gene Abbott, 36, of 1321 Utah on a county court judgment for driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced to a $100 fine, $106 court costs and six months in county jail.

Austin rated 111 on the overall index, 110 on grocery items, 120 on housing, 94 on utilities, 104 on transportation, 113 on health care costs and 115 on miscellaneous goods and services.

A wide range of grocery products was priced for the survey, including meats, dairy products, produce, bakery products, tobacco, coffee, sugar, cereal, miscellaneous items and soft drinks.

For the housing index, apartment fees and house purchase prices were averaged.

Under the utilities scale, electricity, oil, natural gas and wood prices were averaged, as well as telephone costs.

Bus fare, automobile repair and gasoline prices were averaged for transportation costs. Hospital rooms, office visits for both the doctor and dentist and aspirin costs were measured for health care costs.

Miscellaneous goods included fast food restaurants, hair cuts, dry cleaning, major appliances, newspaper subscriptions, recreational costs and liquor.

figures, permits for last fiscal year's record construction added about $18,000 to the city's General Fund.

Although the value of construction in the city rose substantially, the number of permits filed with the office fell. A total of 312 permits were filed during fiscal 1983-84, compared to 391 permits during the previous year.

Inspection office figures also show that construction during last September, at about $298,000, reached virtually the same level as September, 1983, at $287,000.

Included in last month's construction figures is the new $71,000, 1,008 square-foot city animal shelter under construction near the intersection of FM 700 and 11th Place.

Also included in the September figures are permits for three new homes — a $77,000 brick residence to be built by Mrs. Eva Nall at 2603 Cactus; a $45,000 wood-frame home to be built by Andres Gamboa at 907 N. Scurry; and a $60,000 brick home to be built by Tim Cain at 2618 Crestline.

without aid from colleges and other institutions that engage in sex bias. Under the decision, the cutoff of funds may apply only to the specific department or program in which the discrimination took place — not the entire institution.

The pending civil rights legislation was aimed at reversing that decision, but conservatives blocking the measure said it would go far beyond restoring federal laws to their status before the ruling and unduly expand federal powers.

The vote Tuesday night allowed the Senate to move on to consider other amendments to the spending bill.

Even after cutting through the stalemate on the civil rights bill, senators had to sift through a stack of other amendments as legislators made the usual session-end rush to tack pet projects onto "must" legislation such as the money bill.

But the momentum created by breaking the civil rights logjam, in addition to the prospect of Congress adjourning for the year by the end of the week, helped to hold off other amendments to the money bill.

For example, the Senate voted 59-38 against an effort to consider expanding the $1.6 billion "superfund" toxic wastes cleanup program to $6 billion.

In other congressional action Tuesday:

- The House voted 417-4 to guarantee Social Security recipients a cost-of-living raise Jan. 1 even if inflation is held below 3 percent.
- The House voted 406-16 in favor of a Democrat-proposed anti-crime package.

COAHOMA — The City Council Tuesday night unanimously voted to transfer $2,500 from the Water Works Fund to the General Fund to pay a deficit at the bank.

A request to transfer approximately $12,000 from the Water Works Fund to the General Fund to pay quarterly statements was discussed but no action was taken. The motion to transfer the funds was made by council member Steve New and seconded by Jerry 'Red' Brockman.

Duval County courthouse tells Manges' ranch tale

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Inside the aging, cramped Duval County Courthouse in this dusty town is a sheaf of papers telling the tangled tale of Clinton Manges and his plans to sell off much of his massive Duval County ranch.

trustee to handle production and promptly set to work trying to sell off the land, retaining royalty rights.

The bundle of documents, filed in the district court clerk's office, are pressed in a folder labeled "American Resources, Inc. vs. Clinton Manges."

They tell a complex story — one whose final chapter has not been written, but whose beginnings date back to 1925.

Since the state land was checker-boarded throughout the Duval County Ranch, the land office teamed with Manges, packaged 78,000 acres and put it on the market.

That was the year a predecessor to Mobil oil company secured a lease on 64,000 acres of land that later would become part of Manges' fabled Duval County Ranch.

American Resources, Inc., a Dallas oil and gas production company, took the bait and in March offered $100 million up front for the property.

The State of Texas had royalty rights on more than 14,000 acres of the land, with the proceeds going to public schools.

The sales agreement also called for ARI to pay an additional $235 million later and invest $63 million in drilling.

Mobil did nominal drilling on the property and made, by some estimates, a nominal $15 million a year off the land.

Closing on the deal was set for May 25, but it never came to pass.

In 1982, Manges teamed with the state's General Land Office and filed suit against Mobil seeking to take over the lease for oil and gas production.

ARI claims Manges and the state could not furnish clear title to the property, which the Dallas firm contends is loaded down with liens.

Claiming Mobil had failed to honor certain technicalities of the lease, Manges and the land office won and Mobil was forced to turn over the lease this January.

Manges and his co-defendants — Man-Gas Transmission Co., the Duval County Ranch Co., and the land office — claim they had struck deals to clear up the title problems, but ARI couldn't come up with the money to buy the land when the time came.

The victory put the land office in the unprecedented position of having to produce its own oil and gas on the property — in essence being in the oil and gas business.

The disagreement has resulted in two court cases. One is in district court in Dallas, where ARI has won a temporary injunction forbidding two Dallas banks from putting up $1 million in earnest money for the land.

Grand jury hands down indictment against sheriff

EL PASO (AP) — A federal grand jury has handed down a new 10-count indictment against Hudspeth County Sheriff Mike Armstrong, further defining drug-related conspiracy charges by alleging Armstrong took money in exchange for not arresting people he knew to be violating drug laws.

The other case is in district court in San Diego, Texas, where ARI has filed suit seeking damages and a final sale.

The indictment, issued late Tuesday, restates charges of conspiracy to sell marijuana and charges of possession of marijuana that were filed against Armstrong Sept. 18.

conspirator, James Curtis Newsom.

It also charges Armstrong with accepting money to not enforce drug laws and with warning others of police drug probes. The latest indictment, however, gives no details as to when Armstrong committed the alleged crimes.

Newsom was indicted Sept. 18 on one count of conspiracy to possess marijuana with intent to distribute.

Armstrong, 36, was arrested on the original charges Sept. 7 at the Hudspeth County courthouse in Sierra Blanca, a small West Texas town about 90 miles east of El Paso and just north of the Mexico border.

Armstrong allegedly supplied Newsom with up to 40 pounds of marijuana to sell during the two-month period, including marijuana taken from the Hudspeth County sheriff's evidence locker, an FBI affidavit stated.

He remained free Tuesday on a $65,000 bond, but will face a new court hearing on the latest charges, according to a spokesman with the U.S. Marshal's Office in El Paso.

The indictment issued Tuesday also restated charges against Armstrong of unlawful use of the telephone to discuss marijuana sales.

The indictment states that Armstrong and another man conspired to sell marijuana beginning May 25, 1984, and lists six dates on which the alleged sales occurred, starting with July 23, 1984.

Armstrong could not be reached for comment Tuesday. He was not at the sheriff's department and no one answered his home telephone in Sierra Blanca.

After an alleged sale on Sept. 7, Armstrong was arrested by law enforcement agents who say they videotaped the sheriff placing a 6-pound package of marijuana into the vehicle of his alleged co-

Shortly after the arrest, District Attorney Steve Simmons of El Paso filed a lawsuit against Armstrong seeking his removal from the office he has held since Oct. 1, 1981.

Africa calls cease-fire

PRETORIA, South Africa — Mozambique today agreed to a cease-fire with anti-Marxist guerrillas who have fought for eight years to topple the Mozambican government, South African President P.W. Botha announced.

Crowd beats 1 to death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Crowds of blacks beat a suspected government informer to death in one segregated township and stoned a van in another, causing it to veer into the crowd and reportedly kill five people.

BOGOTA, Colombia — The pilot of a Colombian cargo jet commandeered to Cuba reported that the hijacker was a Cuban man who said he had cancer and wanted to die in his native country.

Major blow dealt to Mafia

NEW YORK (AP) — A crackdown on organized crime in Italy has dealt a second major blow to a Sicilian Mafia group that was a major importer of heroin to the United States, according to Justice Department officials.

DONOVAN PLEADS INNOCENT — Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan leaves Bronx Criminal Court in New York Tuesday after pleading innocent to 137 counts in a criminal indictment charging him and nine other defendants with padding business records.

Donovan's dealings

Fraud charges linked to gang slayings

NEW YORK — Investigators "backed into" the fraud case against Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan while probing two gangland-style slayings allegedly linked to Donovan's former company, which also was indicted, authorities say.

Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said the murder investigations, coupled with information from federal probes into Donovan's business dealings, created a "mosaic" of evidence which led to the labor secretary's indictment.

Donovan, nine other people and two companies pleaded innocent Tuesday to 137 felony charges. The defendants are accused of inflating the value of work on a subway construction job in 1979 and overcharging the New York Transit Authority by $8 million.

The grand larceny charge carries a maximum penalty of seven years in prison. The other counts each carry maximum four-year sentences.

Donovan, 54, is believed to be the first Cabinet officer to be named in a criminal indictment. He took an unpaid leave of absence immediately after learning of the charges.

He reiterated his innocence Tuesday and asked state Supreme Court Judge Barry Salzman to expedite his case. Donovan was released without bail and a hearing was set for Nov. 12.

Donovan was executive vice president of Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J., when it won the $186 million subway job and hired Jopel Contracting and Trucking Corp. of the Bronx as a minority subcontractor.

Because the project was subsidized by the Urban Mass Transit Administration, federal rules required that 10 percent — approximately $18 million — had to go to a minority-owned business. One of Jopel's owners was a black state senator, Joseph Galiber, who also was charged in the indictment.

Merola said the Donovan investigation began with a probe into the death of Nathan Masselli, who was gunned down in the Bronx on Aug. 23, 1982.

His father, William Masselli, a convicted truck hijacker linked to the Genovese crime family, was indicted in the fraud case along with Donovan.

Prosecutors said Nathan Masselli was murdered to foil a federal investigation by special prosecutor Leon Silverman into Donovan's alleged mob ties. Two men were convicted last November in the Masselli slaying.

Silverman found there was insufficient credible evidence to bring federal charges against Donovan.

Meanwhile, Merola said, the investigation of the Masselli murder persuaded Bronx prosecutors to take a second look at the killing of reputed mobster Salvatore Frascone on Sept. 22, 1978.

The investigators discovered that Frascone — an alleged member of the Bonanno mob — had been slain following a gangland "sitdown" to decide which minority subcontractor Schiavone would hire, Merola said.

Frascone had opposed Jopel and was killed to smooth the way for the Bronx subcontractor, according to the district attorney.

"We investigated the first homicide, which led us to the second homicide, which backed us into Donovan," Merola said.

The thread tying the cases together was William Masselli, who is alleged to have been the real head of Jopel. He and Joseph Bugliarelli were indicted Tuesday for the Frascone slaying.

Shuttle countdown begins

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began today for Friday's launch of space shuttle Challenger following an anxious period when a pileup of routine paperwork threatened to delay the flight.

The primary goal of Challenger, with a crew of five men and two women — the largest crew ever for a single space mission — is an extensive study of planet Earth.

It also includes the first space walk of an American woman and the first space flight for a Canadian.

Navy warship set free

BOSTON — A warship blockaded by civilian workers when the Navy canceled a repair contract was moved after a three-day standoff, and will sit idle while the Navy negotiates a contract with another yard, authorities said.

The 438-foot frigate USS Conolly was taken Tuesday from Boston Shipyard Corp. to the nearby Charlestown Navy Shipyard, said Navy spokesman Lt. Russell Greer.

The shipyard removed cranes blocking the Conolly under a court order.

The Navy was dissatisfied with the quality of the company's work and canceled the $8.5 million contract, spokesman Cmdr. Dan Davidson said.

States face power outage

PORTLAND, Ore. — It could take several days to find the cause of a separation in electrical transmission lines that cut off power for up to an hour in parts of nine western states, officials said.

Power was interrupted Tuesday morning to more than 890,000 customers in parts of Idaho, Oregon, Washington, California, Nevada, Montana, Arizona, Wyoming and Utah, authorities said.

The Bonneville Power Administration's high-voltage system "separated from both Idaho and California," said Ed Mosey, a spokesman for the federal agency that supplies hydroelectric power to local utilities.

Top official pleads guilty

LOS ANGELES — With guilty pleas to 18 counts of mail fraud, obstruction of justice and conspiracy, the founder of the City of Industry resolved two indictments concerning contracts for a $65 million redevelopment project.

James Marty Stafford entered the pleas Tuesday as his trial was about to begin on charges he received kickbacks for rigging contract bids on the Industry Hills project.

Teacher smuggles data

NEW YORK — The evidence against a 67-year-old East German teacher accusing of trying to smuggle classified American military data to the Soviet KGB is "very strong," a judge said in denying bail for the graying, bespectacled woman.

Alice Michelson was arrested Monday night at John F. Kennedy International Airport as she prepared to board a flight to Prague and East Berlin with a cigarette box containing tape-recorded confidential military cables, authorities said.

FBI arrest own agent

WASHINGTON — The FBI today arrested one of its own agents, Richard W. Miller of Los Angeles, on charges of spying for the Soviet Union.

He is the first FBI agent in history to be charged with espionage on behalf of a foreign government.

Miller, 47, is a 20-year veteran of the FBI who was assigned to foreign counterintelligence work.

Register now, to vote next month

Friday is the last day to register at the county courthouse to be eligible to vote in the Nov. 6 presidential election. Or, if you have picked up a registration form and intend to mail it back in, it must be postmarked by Sunday.

Unless you are a registered voter, your influence will be idle as voters go to the polls to decide important races from president to county commissioner that first Tuesday in November.

Eligible voters can register at the office of Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector. They can also pick up forms at a number of locations outside the courthouse, including Safeway stores locally. More than 100 persons have signed up as "volunteer deputies," which means they are out trying to register new voters.

There are more than 15,000 registered voters in Howard County, a healthy percentage. Only about a third of them vote, however, and there are others out there who are eligible but who have not registered.

Registration is a simple, painless, free process. If you're new to town, if you have moved, if you've just turned 18, or if — horrors! — you've never registered, now's the time.

Please, attack us

WASHINGTON — President Reagan bears no direct responsibility for the repeated terrorist actions against Americans in Beirut. Neither could Jimmy Carter be fairly blamed for the seizure of the hostages in Tehran.

But much as the hostage crisis identified the moralistic qualities that comprised Carter's systematic weakness in foreign policy, so the Lebanon bombings pinpointed Reagan's fatal flaw as an international leader. The basic defect is thoughtlessness, a want of serious, steady attention which causes the U.S. to play its global role with nobody in charge.

Abundant evidence testifies to lack of personal engagement by the president in international affairs. Reagan came to the White House without any previous experience in foreign business. He has not worked to make up for the deficiency. Indeed, on a tour of Latin America the president seemed not to know what country he was in.

On such major matters, as the Mexican debt rescue of 1982 and the shooting down of the Korean airliner last year, senior officials acted without consulting him directly. Mrs. Reagan has had to prompt answers to the most simple questions. Press conference comments betray ignorance of what happened in the crucial "walk in the woods" session between the chief U.S. and Soviet arms control negotiators in Geneva on July 16, 1982. Alexander Haig, in a book recounting his service as Reagan's secretary of state, likens the administration to a "ghost ship."

The foremost foreign policy failure of the administration — the failure to engage the Russians in constructive dialogue — springs directly from Reagan's insouciant attitude. On the one hand, he has been a windy talker regularly spouting the fatuous slogans of the ideological right. In that spirit, he spoke of Russia as the "empire of evil," and asserted that Moscow reserved to itself "the right to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat."

On the other hand, when pressure from public opinion and the European allies obliged him to seek a dialogue, he lacked the mastery over his own administration required for serving up negotiable positions. Even in his powerful overture to the Russians at the U.N., Reagan skirted encounter with the Pentagon hawks on substantive questions of arms control. Instead, the president made a pitch to Foreign Minister Gromyko for a process of meetings at high levels. In effect, he put off again, until after the election, the issues of substance.

Negligence at the top also makes Central America far more troublesome than it needs to be. The basic policy is to isolate the Marxist-Leninists ruling Nicaragua while giving support to democratic forces in El Salvador and other countries. But, until blocked by the Congress, an inattentive president let the Central Intelligence Agency sponsor actions like the mining of harbors, which smacked of Yankee imperialism and united supporters behind Nicaragua. Until pushed by the press and television, the president looked the other way when "death squads" worked their atrocities in El Salvador.

The case of Lebanon presents the same spectacle in far more tragic form. Dispatch of the Marines as a peace keeping force had a certain logic as long as the basic security was being provided by the Israelis. When the Israelis started to pull back, however, the Marines became sitting ducks. But a president ignorant of the realities on the ground kept the forces there on the theory that withdrawal would show weakness under pressure. When the pressure actually came in the form of the terrorist action that cost over 200 lives, the troops were yanked out under fire in a truly ignominious fashion.

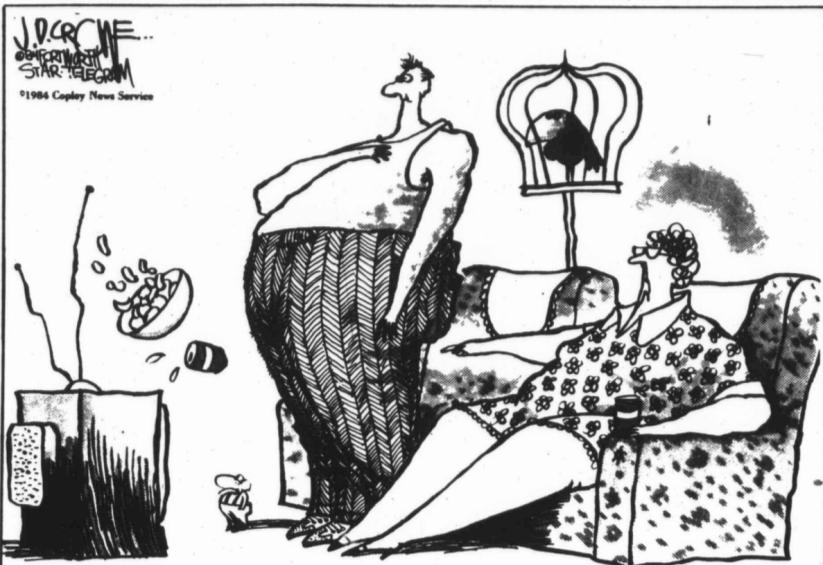

The second bombing of the embassy shows a continued lack of taut attention to detail. Highly trained bodyguards in attendance on a visiting British diplomat actually knocked out the terrorist truck before it could cause a heavy loss of lives. Presumably American guards would have been on duty at the perimeter of the compound. But American forces had been withdrawn, leaving protection in the hands of a notoriously undisciplined Lebanese force.

Direct blame, I repeat, cannot be pinned on Ronald Reagan. He had nothing to do with the episode. But as the case of blame heaped on Jimmy Carter for the hostages in Iran indicates, a symbolic responsibility applies to the president in the American system.

Reagan sets the tone of American foreign policy. He has chosen to emphasize a tough stance, based on bold rhetoric, a king-sized defense program and a declared willingness to apply military pressure anywhere. But the administration shares with public opinion the Vietnam complex. It recoils from dangerous engagements. It has no stomach for committing sizable American forces to real trouble spots. It avoids the military conscription that more than any other step, would deliver a credible message of enduring determination to resist external pressure.

Overall, in other words, it speaks loudly but wields a mere twig. That incongruity, a classic case of the thoughtlessness that begets peril, virtually invites the terrorist attacks that have repeatedly cost this country lives and prestige in Lebanon.

The uncertainties of arms pacts

WASHINGTON — Some implacable anti-Soviet advisers wanted the president to confront Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last week with charges that the Soviets have routinely violated arms agreements.

In fact, a report was prepared, accusing the Soviets of arms-treaty violations.

But the president overruled the hotheads and stopped the release of the report. In too many cases, intelligence reports of Soviet violations are riddled with "ifs," "buts" and "maybes."

Equally experienced analysts can look at the same raw data and come to different conclusions: i.e., that the Soviets are violating arms-control treaties repeatedly or that they are keeping strictly to the letter of the treaty limits.

How is this possible? My associate Dale Van Atta investigated one classic example of confusing intelligence: the alleged Soviet violations of the 1974 Threshold Test Ban Treaty.

He examined top-secret CIA, Pentagon and National Security Council studies on the treaty.

Here's what he found:

The treaty itself is simple. It bans underground testing of nuclear devices with a yield of more than 150 kilotons. Though both sides have yet to ratify the treaty, they signed it and agreed to abide by its provisions.

Unfortunately, the only way to accurately measure the size of an underground explosion is to have seismographs close to the blast site. The Soviet Union will not allow this, so the United States must resort to guesswork — sophisticated and scientific guesswork, but guesswork nonetheless.

Because U.S. seismic monitors are thousands of miles from Soviet test sites, the information must be compared with similar data obtained from U.S. and French tests of known kiloton yields. But as one secret NSC report noted, "the seismic waves from Soviet explosions travel through the earth ... along paths very different from those of U.S. or French explosions."

Furthermore, U.S. estimates rely heavily on comparisons with data from the Nevada Test Site, although the geophysical conditions may be entirely different at the Soviets' Central Asian test site in Semipalatinsk.

The result is that the size-estimate of Soviet test explosions — what scientists call the "central-value yield" — can be off by a factor of two. If the central-value yield is exactly 150 kilotons, for example, the actual size of the Soviet test bomb could be as low as 75 kilotons — or as high as 300 kilotons.

Since 1974, the United States has detected 18 Soviet test explosions that had a central-value yield of more than 150 kilotons. After 14 of these, the United States secretly delivered complaints to the Kremlin, but "given the uncertainties involved in our yield-estimation process," a secret report explained, the Soviets were not accused outright of violating the treaty. In each case, the Soviets replied that the tests were 150 kilotons or less.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Mother's condition a worry

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My mother was always a very dedicated Christian woman, and a great example to my brother and me. But now she has gotten very forgetful and all the time she talks about how she doesn't think God loves her or that she will go to Heaven when she dies. How could this have happened to her, and what can we do about it? — Mrs. R.G.

DEAR MRS. R.G.: First of all, you need to be sure she has had a thorough physical examination by her doctor (or even by a doctor who specializes in the medical problems of older people). Researchers have discovered much in recent years about some of the problems that often come with age, and many of these can be slowed down or reversed by proper medicines.

There may, therefore, be complex medical reasons why your mother "doesn't seem to be thinking straight" (as your letter says elsewhere). But whatever the cause, you can be an enormous comfort by reading the Bible to her frequently, and emphasizing especially God's promises concerning His everlasting love and care of us when we know Christ.

What a comfort it is, for example, to remember God's promise "that neither death nor life, neither angels nor demons, neither the present nor the future, nor any power, neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:38-39).

Garry's back

"Doonesbury" is back, and boy, am I glad.

Life was getting too serious without Garry Trudeau's scathing political and social commentary. Now, with a resounding "mmp!" Mike, Joanie, Lacey, Zonker and Uncle Duke are back, just in time for the election.

Think of the sacred cows that escaped skewering by his pen for 21 months, like Reagan's radio jokes. "This crowd's pretty cold tonight, Ronnie," an anonymous aide resembling Uncle Duke could tell the president in make-up. "You're going to need a real ear-shaker to warm them up."

In the next frame, Reagan would telephone Soviet Premier Konstantin Chernenko. "I'm sorry, Konstantin. It was just a joke. Really," he'd say as U.S. missiles bombarded Chernenko's dacha on the Crimean Sea.

Presidential adviser Ed Meese would have been great as Marie Antoinette, uttering his famous line, "There is no hunger in America." Let 'em eat cake, Ed.

If Trudeau felt a fit of absurdity, he could always draw Jimmy Carter's smile trailing Mondale like a modern-day Cheshire cat.

If you haven't figured it out, Trudeau is irreverent and ironic, two of my favorite words. No one else would label the White House mailbox during the Carter Administration, "Jim Boy."

No one else would dare let Roland Hedley, a broadcaster of dubious distinction — he covered sports for Time's Saigon bureau during the Vietnam War — host a television special on "Reagan's Brain." (Hint: The right hemisphere dominates.)

"Doonesbury" is addictive and universally appealing. Former U.S. Secretary of the Interior James Watt thinks the cartoon strip made him a folk hero.

Personally, I think Watt's perceptions need a front-end alignment. He was a folk character, certainly, but definitely not a hero.

Even my dad, whose political leanings are somewhat to the right of mine (but left of Jerry Falwell's, thank goodness), read Doonesbury avidly to follow the trials, tribulations and get-rich-quick schemes of Uncle Duke.

Duke was the U.S. ambassador to the People's Republic of China, a freelance spy who demanded payments in cold, hard Krugers, a smuggler, the Washington Redskins coach and a Rolling Stone reporter. That's not counting his hallucinations.

What's important about "Doonesbury" is that it's great, it's back and it's in the Herald on Sundays. And for a person who went into withdrawal a day after it was gone, that's wonderful news.

Try it a few Sundays, and if you want the daily version in the Herald, send those cards and letters to our editor, John Rice. (It's better than "The Quigmans," guys.)

Red Cross helped in time of crisis

To the editor: During the illness of our father and his recent death, we want to commend the Big Spring Red Cross for doing an outstanding job. Not only did they make it possible for us to be with our father during his last days, but also they helped us through the financial hardships of our father's illness.

Mrs. Marianne Brown and her one person staff contributed so much of their time and experience to help relieve the burden the family had, to make this time of sorrow so much easier. It is our most sincere gratitude and thanks we wish to express for a job well done by the Big Spring Red Cross.

We sincerely hope that this supportive organization will always be available for everyone in Big Spring for military families and civilian families as well.

Guidelines help in selecting kitchen knives

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

As an aid to preparing good food, few cooking tools can surpass the utility of a good sharp knife. The new interest in cooking has therefore led to increased interest in buying and taking good care of kitchen knives.

Nevertheless, knife producers say there are still some serious misconceptions about knives. One of the most damaging is the idea that a very sharp knife is dangerous. In fact, a well-balanced knife of optimum sharpness is actually safer than a dull knife which may skip, slide, tear or bounce rather than make a clean cut.

The best knives today are made of tempered, high-carbon, stain-resistant steel. This material can be given a sharper edge than the old stainless steel knives, and is not as vulnerable to pitting and rusting as plain carbon steel.

When selecting a "wardrobe" of kitchen knives concentrate on securing the four basics first. These are: the paring knife, the utility knife, the chef's knife, and the slicing knife. A fifth necessity is a good sharpening steel, which makes it possible to keep the recommended high carbon knives in prime cutting condition.

Sharpening steels should have both coarse and fine sides. The coarse side is used to reset a dulled edge and the smooth side is for realigning the knife edge and for finishing a knife after it has been sharpened on the coarse side.

The paring knife is an extension of one's hand. The blade is usually fairly straight or slightly curved. The tip should be sharp since you'll use it to accomplish tasks such as hulling strawberries and removing potato eyes. The shortness of the blade (usually between three and four inches long) permits maximum ease in handling.

The handle is relatively large in relation to the blade since it has to fit the whole hand. The blade of a paring knife will generally be thinner than that of a chef's knife because finesse rather than heft is what is needed. A good test of the knife is to hull a strawberry. It should feel like cutting through butter, according to Imperial, a producer of knives.

The utility knife is one size larger than the paring knife and is used for jobs such as sectioning and coring fruit, cubing cheese, cutting dough and sandwiches, and trimming meat. A typical blade size is five inches. Like the paring knife, it should have a thin blade. Sometimes a utility knife will have a serrated edge. You can test it by paring an orange in one continuous ribbon.

The chef's knife is heavy since it will be used to chop fruit, vegetables and meat. The blade should extend well below the handle to allow clearance for knuckles when chopping. The chef's knife must receive regular sharpening because it is subjected to constant impact. To test it, try chopping a green pepper. The knife should cut neatly through both pepper and pepper skin. You should be able to handle it to produce a continuous "rocking" action.

Proper care of wool garments will keep them looking good

NEW YORK (AP) — Fall and winter's wearable new designs are in exaggerated but simple silhouettes, many in luxurious pure wool fabrics like jersey, gabardine, covert, flannel and twill, the fashion industry reports.

With proper care, these new additions to the clothes closet, as well as wool suits and separates that serve as the basics for a classic wardrobe, can last for years and always look good, experts at the Wool Bureau point out.

"Before you decide which of this year's great fashion buys to add, you'll want to take your wool clothing out of storage and review what you already own," says Carl Freeman of the bureau's Technical Center.

If the garments were properly cleaned before storing they should need no special treatment before wearing, he points out. But if clothes were stored with moth balls all summer, he advises that the garments be hung up properly to air out, rather than cleaned just to remove the smell.

"The biggest mistake people make caring for their wool clothing is drycleaning it too frequently," says Freeman, who explains that unnecessary cleanings break down the wool fibers and shorten the life of a garment.

"Since wool is a naturally wrinkle- and soil-resistant fabric, all that's usually needed to refresh a garment is proper hanging and a soft clothes brush," he adds.

Freeman offers these suggestions for keeping wool clothing in good condition:

- Hang your clothes where they can breathe. Wool needs air to help it spring back into shape, so leave plenty of space between wool garments in the closet. Jackets should be hung on wooden or plastic-contoured hangers, skirts by the waistband on skirt hangers.
- Give your clothing a rest. A 24-hour rest period between wearings will help clothes last longer.

• Steam away wrinkles. After wearing or unpacking, hang wool garments on a shower rod over a tub of hot water, to steam away wrinkles and refresh the fabric.

• Brush after every wearing. A soft, firm-bristled brush removes dirt that may be lodged in the fiber. Shake out wool knits, however — don't brush them or hang them. Instead, fold gently and store in a dresser drawer so garment will maintain its shape.

• Follow care label instructions. Many of the wool knitwear styles are now machine washable. Check your sweaters for the Superwash label, which indicates the garment is completely machine washable with ordinary detergent, and machine dryable.

• Hand-washed sweaters should be gently rolled in a towel to squeeze out excess water. Dry them flat so they will maintain their shape.

Dear Abby

Suitor becomes green-eyed monster

your answer.

FED UP
DEAR FED UP: His jealousy does not prove that he loves you; it proves that he feels inadequate, insecure and unworthy of you.

Professional help may straighten him out, but now that you've already said "I do," don't say "adieu" without giving him a chance to shape up.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you ever heard of a case like mine before, but here goes.

My sister passed away in '78 and I still cry about losing her every day. We were very close. I know I'm not the only person who has lost a loved one, but I wonder if there is something wrong with me. I also cry about other things — things I see on TV, sad songs, poems I read, and even sad stories I read in the newspaper.

I took care of a neighbor's little boy for seven months, and when they moved away, I cried for a week.

Why do I do this? I'm 53 years old, have a good husband and a good life. People don't know how much I cry when I'm alone. If they did, they would probably think I'm crazy.

WEEPY
DEAR WEEPY: Don't be ashamed to cry. Tears are healing. You seem to be crying at appropriate times, but you may be crying longer than you should. See your doctor for a checkup, and be sure to tell him what you have told me.

***
CONFIDENTIAL TO THE CAMBRIDGE BUM: I recently reran the letter you wrote to me in 1970. A reader requested it because he thought it contained a powerful moral lesson for young people. I agreed. You were 18 and wrote from prison in Cambridge, Minn., while awaiting trial for burglary and other charges. Many readers wrote to ask what happened to you. If you see this, please let me know. Write to Abby, Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Angina medicine

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am confused by all the new medicines for heart conditions. I am 60 and have mild angina. I am not taking either the beta blockers or the calcium blockers you hear about. I'm wondering if I should be. I take only nitroglycerine for pain after exertion.

My layman's view is that by taking one of the newer medicines I could reduce my chances of stroke. I hesitate to mention this to my doctor because I would be undermining his professional knowledge. I think this would be a good topic for you to explain — the different medicines used, etc. — J.P.

Thanks for the suggestion. But go ahead, ask your doctor. He won't be offended. He'll understand.

Angina is a coronary artery disease, specifically a narrowing of the arteries to the heart, usually from plaque buildup. So when you exert yourself, there's not enough blood going to the heart to nourish its muscles. And there are many ways to treat this, with medicine or surgery.

What's best? No statement can be dogmatic. What's best for you might not be enough for someone else.

Because of the mechanics of the angina problem, the answer is to rest the heart or deliver more blood to the arteries. Your nitroglycerine reduces the heart's work by keeping blood in the veins. That way the heart doesn't have to pump blood so often through the arteries, where the problem is.

Beta blockers are different. They act directly on the heart, letting it rest by slowing it down.

Calcium blockers help when part of the artery problem is spasm (constriction). They relieve spasm, thus improving blood flow.

Your nitro is probably all you need. You take it before activity in which the blood supply problem is anticipated or when you have a symptom of the deficiency of blood supply to the heart (pain). At the other end of the treatment spectrum is surgery to clean out or replace defective heart arteries.

I haven't even touched on other aspects of treatment — weight reduction, blood pressure control, non-smoking, exercise (if you can manage it) and avoidance of fatty foods.

You don't have to switch medicines just because new ones come on the scene. As a wise man said, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." If your treatment is working, don't change it. It's doubtful that any drug treatment is going to change the situation in your arteries — with regard to plaque buildup. Medicine is only controlling things. The other factors I mentioned can change that picture.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Senator Bill Sims speaks to Texas Extension Homemakers

Roselle Dohoney reported on the Texas Extension Homemakers Convention during the City Extension Homemakers Club meeting, Friday, in the home of Arlyne Johnston.

The convention was in San Angelo, Sept. 18-20. Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo spoke. "To be effective in legislation, walk, telephone, talk to people for your favorite candidate. Be an individual lobbyist for your group," he said. According to Sims, most legislators like letters and more than half say an office phone call is almost as effective as an office visit. The state legislature was the program topic.

The next meeting will be Oct. 12 at the home of Selena Sewell.

UNUSUAL COLLECTION — John Todd sits in one of his restored military vehicles that he is collecting in a hanger-type building near his home in Flower Mound.

The collector

Texan has variety of World War II vehicles

FLOWER MOUND (AP) — Some of John Todd's collection went through The Big One.

A few pieces in his collection of old U.S. military vehicles actually run. Others sit in a hangar-type building waiting for restoration.

"When I'm through they'll all be pretty much rebuilt with new engines and paint jobs," he said.

Todd, a representative for baby furniture manufacturers, began his collection 10 years ago and now has a dozen vehicles — including three jeeps, an ambulance, an aircraft recovery truck, a Gen. George Patton-style staff car, and an armored scout car.

He also owns a weapons carrier, a Burma jeep, a 2 1/2-ton cargo truck, a land car, and a World War II observation airplane.

"It's a hobby," he said. "This is a little easier to do because you don't have to be so neat. This is a hobby the whole family can ride in and use. You can get stuck (in the mud) and not worry about it."

Despite the fact that his collection is worth $25,000 to $30,000, he says "it's a hobby that anybody can do. It's not expensive." When all the vehicles are restored "they'll probably be worth twice that."

He said a jeep purchased for $1,000 and restored may be worth $2,500 or $3,000. And spare parts are plentiful. "There's still a lot of parts around the country still in the original cases."

Todd, one of 4,000 members of the Military Vehicle Collectors Club, buys some of his pieces from farmers who have used them to haul grain. "Most of my vehicles I've just stumbled across driving around the country."

He travels throughout Arkansas, Louisiana,

Oklahoma and Texas representing the furniture companies.

There are about 125 club members in Texas, said Sondra McCoy, business manager of the club.

"They find these things on old farms in very rusty condition," she said, and restore them. Members of the club have everything ranging from military bicycles to Sherman tanks.

Many members are veterans and collecting the vehicles is a personal thing to them, Mrs. McCoy said. "We do try to promote the fact that we are a history-oriented club," she said.

Todd bought his aircraft recovery truck, which can lift 10 tons, in Fort Smith, Ark., "It was the largest wrecker in northwest Arkansas for many, many years and was used to get 18-wheelers that went off the side of mountains," he said.

The truck, with a top speed of 30 mph and gas mileage of 2 miles per gallon, helped move airplanes forced to crash land on runways during World War II.

His World War II airplane, being refurbished at an Aero Valley Airport at Roakoke, eventually will be flown to his private airstrip. It will be kept at his farm in Flower Mound.

Six years ago Todd paid $3,000 for a general staff car similar to the one used by Patton, which Todd describes as "a great big jeep."

"Now it's worth at least $8,000. They made a lot of them, but after the war farmers took out the back seat," he said, and used them as trucks. His still has a back seat.

His armored car, from early World War II, was bought in New Orleans.

HCD names service provider

Jody Lujan, newly appointed service provider for the Highland Council for the Deaf, has a background in helping people.

"I've been in many positions of helping people, but not this one," she said. "This is a whole new world for me."

As service provider for HCD, Mrs. Lujan serves as a go-between for conversations between people having a TTY, or a telecommunications device for the deaf, and those without a TTY. Mrs. Lujan has a TTY in her home and can relay messages for anyone during her office hours or during emergencies.

The service is available to anyone, Mrs. Lujan said. Anyone who needs a message relayed may use the service.

Mrs. Lujan is also responsible for locating interpreters for various assignments. The Highland Council for the Deaf is planning to sponsor an interpreters' workshop Oct. 13 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., Mrs. Lujan said.

HCD office hours are Mondays, 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Thursday evenings from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The HCD phone number is 267-6779.

Mrs. Lujan began working for the Highland Council for the Deaf in September and was trained by former service provider Shelly Massey.

Mrs. Lujan has a degree in social welfare from New Mexico State University in Las Cruces and most recently worked in the Texas Department of Human Resources in the areas of child abuse and neglect.

She said the work was draining and "a 24-hour a day job." She and her husband, Efraim, decided that she should stay home with her children, Sara, 8, and Darwin, 1.

"But I still had a lot of energy," Mrs. Lujan said. "I saw the ad in the paper (advertising for a service provider for HCD) and I decided it was worth my time to investigate. It's nice to be at home...and still earn money."

She said working with Highland Council for the Deaf has been "a tremendous opportunity to learn about deaf awareness." She is enrolled in continuing education classes at the SouthWest Colligate Institute for the Deaf in sign language classes.

Before coming to Big Spring, Mrs. Lujan and her husband lived in Monahans, where she worked for Planned Parenthood, in Tulsa, Okla., where she worked for Oral Roberts University, and in Levelland, where she was a case worker for the Texas Department of Human Resources. Her husband works for Nalco, a oil field chemical supply company.

High school students fight to keep struggling school open

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Students at Canova High School are desperate to keep their school open and have made businesses willing to move an offer that is difficult to refuse.

"Twenty-six high school students will offer free labor for 30 days to any company that will locate in the Canova School District," read the ad in a Sioux Falls newspaper.

The same ad is planned for a Minneapolis newspaper, one in Chicago, maybe the Wall Street

The offer of free work came out of a brainstorming session in Diane Alexander's advanced composition class.

"We have one nibble on it," Mrs. Alexander said.

New fitness program lowers kids' cholesterol

NEW YORK (AP) — A fitness consultant says he has developed a fitness and education program that will lower children's blood pressure and blood cholesterol levels, but doctors say it is not known whether such programs lessen the risk of heart disease later in life.

The program, called "Feelin' Good," is "designed to teach children how to assume responsibility for their own health," Charles Kuntzleman said Tuesday at a news conference held by Prevention magazine.

A three-year trial of the program with 360 7- to 12-year-old children in Michigan lowered the children's blood cholesterol by 4 percent, their diastolic blood pressure (measured between heartbeats) by 6 percent and boosted their self-esteem, said Kuntzleman of Spring Arbor, Mich.

The children were chosen from more than 24,000 children in 13 Jackson and Chelsea, Mich., public school districts who participated in the program between 1980 and 1983, Kuntzleman said.

In the first year, the children were given four 30-minute exercise sessions and two 30-minute periods of classroom instruction a week for 13 weeks, he said. In the second and third years, the curriculum lasted nine weeks.

Parents were encouraged to learn about the program and were told how to improve their children's diets, Kuntzleman said.

The study, financed by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., has not been reported in a scientific journal, Kuntzleman said. Officials of the government's National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and the American Heart Association said they were not aware of the study and could not comment on its conclusions.

Dr. William Friedewald, an authority on heart disease prevention at the institute, said a key question for any fitness program is whether participants continue exercising and watching their diet after the program ends.

Dr. Elizabeth Nugent, who chairs the heart association's Council on Cardiovascular Disease in the Young, said it would be necessary to follow the children for decades to determine whether the program actually reduced their rate of heart disease.

The heart association agrees, however, that reduction of cholesterol and fat in children's diets is advisable even though the benefits of doing so have not been demonstrated, Ms. Nugent said.

Steers of the Week

Despite dropping their District 4-5A opener to Midland 21-7 last Friday, the Big Spring Steers did get several stellar performances from individuals — particularly on defense.

For their efforts, Todd Coker, Brian Reid, Billy Russell and Carl Speck were named Steers of the Week by the Big Spring High coaching staff.

Coker, a 170-pound sophomore tackle, tallied eight tackles (seven solo) and recovered two fumbles that stopped other offensive thrusts by the Bulldogs. Coker is Top Steer which is an accolade usually handed out for the top defensive performance by a Steer.

HAWK

Junior defensive back Brian Reid is this week's Hawk award winner. Reid, all 150 pounds of him, was in on five tackles, intercepted two passes and registered one fumble recovery. The Hawk award is given to the game's outstanding linebacker or defensive back.

EXPRESS

Carl Speck is in the Steers of the Week circle for the second consecutive week. Big Spring's junior quarterback was a bright spot in an otherwise dim offensive attack (179 total yards). Speck enjoyed his best outing of the year, however in the passing department. He completed nine of 17 for 84 yards and no interceptions. He had four other

Lady Steers hang tough before falling to Central

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

The San Angelo Central Bobcats proved to the Big Spring Lady Steers Tuesday evening just why they are 29-0 and considered one of the best volleyball teams in the state.

Despite a highly-spirited Big Spring crowd at Steer Gym and a furious rally by the Lady Steers in the opening match, the Bobcats rallied to take a 15-12, 15-8 win over Big Spring.

The loss drops Big Spring's season record to 12-12 and 4-3 in district, good for third place behind Abilene Cooper (5-2) and San Angelo.

The Bobcats had to fight off an opening match rush by the Lady Steers which saw Big Spring jump to a 10-2 lead. Central eventually settled down behind the blocking and spiking of Anita Allgood, Shawn Sweeten and Denna Amburn to turn the tide.

With Central holding a 2-1 lead, Big Spring rallied for nine consecutive points with junior Tammi Green at the line.

Big Spring played flawless ball as Green served two aces, Debbie Holguin made a diving save and Tonya Ferguson and Tab Green made blocks to give the Lady Steers a commanding lead.

Then the Central onslaught began. Allgood, last year's Sophomore of the Year, patrolled the net, collecting three blocks while Sweeten and Amburn started getting their spikes down.

Evidence of Central's strong defense is the fact Big Spring downed three of 12 kill attempts while Central converted seven of 12.

The second match was a hard fought contest all the way, featuring devastating kills, blocks and saves by each team. San Angelo jumped out to a 4-1 lead, Big Spring regained the lead at 8-6, San Angelo tied it up at 8-8 and then flexed its muscles.

After the tie, Allgood and Company were untouchable as they downed their last six spikes on their way to reeling off seven unanswered points.

Central owned a big bulge in the spiking department, downing 17 of 34 kill attempts for 50 percent. On the other hand Big Spring downed just nine of 33 attempts for 28 percent. The main reason was 13 blocks by Central, eight by Allgood.

Amburn was perfect for the night connecting on five of five kills, Allgood was five of eight while Jody Fillpot and Sweeten had four and three respectively.

Trell Clemons led Big Spring spikers with three kills in 11 attempts. Tab Green and Ferguson had two each. Ferguson added three blocks.

The loss left Lady Steers coach Susan Sharp anything but disappointed. "I feel wonderful with the way the kids played," said Sharp. "This is the best team we've played and the best we've played this year. If we play like this every game we'll be right in the playoffs with Central. It's just a matter of getting fired up for everyone else in district."

JV FINISHES FIRST HALF 7-0

Coach Elaine Stone's junior varsity Lady Steers finished the first half of district play with a perfect 7-0 slate, thanks to a 15-17, 15-12, 15-7 win over Central.

The win gives Big Spring a 16-7 record. The JV has won 14 of its last 17.

Sheri Myrick led the scoring with 18 points while Connie Swinney served 14 points. Myrick and Lisa Hale were credited with having outstanding games.

Royals humbled in playoff opener 8-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amateur umpires are no problem when the Detroit Tigers make the Kansas City Royals look like amateur players.

"We sure can't blame the umpires for what happened," said Frank White, one of only four Royals to get a base hit Tuesday night in the opening game of the best-of-five American League Championship Series.

The fact the Tigers whipped them 8-1 was not as galling to the Royals as how it happened. The Tigers, the Eastern Division champs who won 104 games in the regular season, jumped on their Saberhagen. He was 3-1 against the Tigers in the regular season and will oppose Dan Petry as the Tigers seek to take a commanding two-veteran who retired in 1980.

"The umpiring certainly did not have anything to do with the outcome of the game," said Royals Manager Dick Howser, whose playoff record fell to 0-7. "Bill Deegan had been a good umpire for 10 years, and he was a good umpire tonight."

A good example of the Tiger luck the Royals were talking about came in the pivotal third inning. The Tigers were leading by two runs when the Royals loaded the hosts with a combination of pitching, power, and, insist the Royals, plain old luck.

"We knew they were good. We didn't know they were lucky, too," said White. "That hardly seems fair. They didn't win 104 games by being slouchy. But it did seem like every ball we hit hard was hit straight at somebody. And except for the home runs, most of their hits were just barely out of reach."

Tiger starter Jack Morris left the game after the seventh inning with a blister on his pitching hand. Even though he did not have his best stuff, Morris allowed only two third-inning singles and retired 10 in a row before Jorge Orta tripled leading off the seventh.

By then, Alan Trammell's single, triple and home run had led the Tigers to a 5-0 lead off Kansas City's Bud Black and the issue was all but settled.

Larry Herndon and Lance Parrish also hit solo home runs for the Tigers, who have won eight straight games in Royals Stadium dating back to their final meeting in 1983.

"I don't understand why we seem to always play well here," said Parrish, who drove in the Tigers' second run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning. "I don't expect there is a true reason for it other than we're playing good ball."

Tonight the Royals go with 20-year-old right-hander Bret bases with two out on singles by Don Slaught and Willie Wilson and a walk to Pat Sheridan.

George Brett, the Royals' best clutch hitter, stepped to the plate and lashed a slicing line drive into right field. Kirk Gibson, the Tigers' fastest outfielder, came in on the ball and made a one-handed catch as he went to his knees.

"When I hit it, I thought I hit it good," said Brett. "I thought it was a clean base hit to right field. When I saw him dive for it, I said, 'Oh, my God, that guy is crazy.' But it turned out I was the one who was crazy."

Gibson admitted he had a sinking feeling in the pit of his stomach as the play unfolded.

"I started in and realized I was beyond the point of no return," he said. "I tried to get in front of it but it was hooking away. I realized if it got by me it would go to the wall for three sure runs. If we are going to win, we have to make the plays. I was glad I could hit this one."

Trammell reached base all five times he came to the plate, drawing a base on balls in his final at-bat back to Detroit.

Black pointed to the first inning, when Lou Whitaker singled and Trammell tripled and both wound up scoring.

"I've got to keep those guys off base to keep their RBI guys from driving them in," he said. "I didn't do that. I made some mistakes. I got the ball out over the plate and they took advantage. I felt fine. I just threw bad pitches and they took advantage."

Everyone agreed the amateur umpires, rushed into action to replace the striking regulars, did a fine job. Behind the plate was Bill Deegan, a 10-year major league bat when a double would have enabled him to hit for the cycle.

"It really doesn't matter," he said. "After getting a hit in my first at-bat in the playoffs, I felt good at the plate all night."

The Royals know they're chances are almost nil if they lose tonight, despite the fact they won five games at Tiger Stadium this year.

"Losing the first one hurts us, but it doesn't kill us," said Wilson. "They've got to win two more games and we've got to win three.

It's just one game."

OTHER BASEBALL DEVELOPMENTS

Eddie Haas, who languished as a minor league manager, instructor and coach for 20 years, will get his chance at the big time in 1985 as manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Club owner Ted Turner made the announcement Tuesday at a news conference at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. Haas, 49, replaced Joe Torre, who was fired Monday. Haas was signed to a one-year contract. Terms were not announced.

Haas, who served as the organization's manager at Richmond of the International League for nearly four seasons before being called up in July as a coach with the Braves.

Cubs club Padres in record breaker

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Dernier set the tone and Gary Matthews set the pace in a record-shattering display of power, but it was Keith Moreland's defensive gem that put a lock on the outcome.

The Chicago Cubs smashed five home runs, two by Matthews who drive in four runs, on their way to a 13-0 romp Tuesday over San Diego in the opening game of their best-of-five National League Championship Series.

Dernier homered on losing pitcher Eric Show's second pitch which Matthews said "set the precedent for our club. Bobby hit a fastball, we're a fastball-hitting Carmelo Martinez ripped a drive to right and Moreland speared the ball with a diving catch.

"There was no doubt I caught the ball," said Moreland when asked if he feared the substitute umpires, filling in for the regular umpires who are out on strike, might miss the call.

"I wasn't thinking about the umpires, I had just looked at the scoreboard and saw the score was 5-0 so I told myself 'Don't do anything crazy,' so I went out and did a crazy thing," Moreland explained.

"When I got to the dugout I realized what a dangerous thing I club and Show is a fastball pitcher. The quick run takes the pressure off and everyone tends to relax."

Matthews didn't relax too much. He also homered in the first inning to hand Rick Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead, and his three-run homer triggered a six-run fifth to put the issue beyond doubt.

Matthews put a leg up on the series' Most Valuable Player award which he won last year with the Philadelphia Phillies. But he told his teammates "Don't be afraid to dethrone me."

It might not be easy, but others gave it a try. Sutcliffe allowed only two hits, struck out eight in the seven innings he pitched and he cracked a homer and a single.

Dernier also had a double and two walks and scored three times and Ron Cey also homered giving the Cubs an LCS record of five round trippers.

Other series records included Matthews homering in four straight games dating back to last season; the Cubs' 16 hits; the biggest shutout score and the biggest margin of victory.

Despite what seemed to be an outstanding performance, Sutcliffe said "I didn't have my best stuff and I lost my concentration."

"I struggled in the fourth inning," he said. "But Moreland's catch basically ended the game. It took the momentum out of their dugout and put it back into ours."

With one out in the fourth, Steve Garvey beat out a bunt single. Graig Nettles flied out, but Terry Kennedy and Kevin McReynolds both walked to fill the bases.

had done," Moreland said. "If that ball gets by me, it's three runs. I figured it was a hit and what I was trying to do was keep the man on second base from scoring. But the ball stayed up and stuck in my glove."

San Diego Manager Dick Williams kept a low tone, but said, "That was one loss. We didn't play too well. We were blown out, the long ball got us. I thought it would be a low-scoring game. It was, for us."

Williams had said the key to the series would be keeping the top two men in the lineup off the bases. The Cubs managed that but the Padres didn't.

In addition to Dernier reaching four times, Ryne Sandberg had two hits and a walk and the dynamic duo "set the table" for Matthews.

"They kept our men off the base," said Williams, whose 1-2 hitters Alan Wiggins and NL batting champion Tony Gwynn, went hitless.

"We could have come back," said Williams. "Sutcliffe was wild and we had opportunities but Moreland made that great play. We didn't score any runs off Sutcliffe, but I've seen him sharper."

Sutcliffe left after seven innings. Manager Jim Frey let Warren Brusstar finished the shutout although he was clipped for four singles.

"I was thinking of Game 4 and 5," said Frey, who has not announced who will pitch in the fourth game if the series goes that far.

Former 4-5A star named AP's Offensive Player of the Week

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers says Longhorn running back Terry Orr does everything that a back can be asked to do — and does it well.

Orr, a fifth-year senior and former District 4-5A star while playing for Abilene Cooper, had his best game as a Longhorn on Saturday in rushing for 108 yards on 15 carries, including a 51-yard touchdown run, as Texas beat Penn State 28-3.

For his performance, Orr, 6-foot-3 and 231 pounds, was chosen by The Associated Press as the Southwest Conference offensive player of the week.

Safety Byron Linwood of Texas Christian was named the SWC defensive player of the week even though TCU lost to Southern Methodist 26-17.

Linwood had 20 tackles, and said after the game, "In the past, a loss to SMU has meant 'Here we go again.' But we still promise a winning season this time."

He is the third TCU player to win SWC honors this season. Previously, running backs Tony Jeffery and Kenneth Davis were honored.

Orr, who got an extra year of eligibility after being hurt early in his freshman season, only had 699 career rushing yards prior to this year but now leads the team with 141 yards in two games.

"He had a great ball game (against Penn State)," Akers said of Orr. "Terry did everything you can ask of a back. He ran well, blocked well, he caught the ball when we threw it to him ... Terry is very versatile, he's the most versatile football player that we've had here" since Akers became head coach in 1977.

Orr, normally a fullback, was at tailback when he broke his touchdown run. Akers said Orr also could play tight end or wingback, and when he was recruited as a blue-chipper from Abilene Cooper "we didn't know if we were going to make a linebacker out of him or a back."

"I'm satisfied with my career," said Orr. "The people who ask me if I'm disappointed with what I've done just don't know very much about our offense. All I know is, since I've been here we've won a whole lot of football games."

TOP FINISHER — Hartley Newell is shown finishing third in the 160-yard individual medley during Tuesday's swim meet against Permian. Newell's time in the event was 2:13.17. She went on to place first in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 1:18.7.

Permian swimmers outpoint Big Spring

Odessa Permian dominated a dual swim meet with Big Spring by almost identical scores at the Big Spring YMCA pool Tuesday evening.

The Panthers outpointed the Lady Steers 60-19 and finished ahead of the boys 59-24.

Hartley Newell and Lisa Salazar claimed Big Spring's only first places in girl's competition. Newell won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:18.7, almost six seconds better than her nearest Permian competitor. Annie Gutierrez was third for Big Spring.

Salazar won the 100-yard breaststroke by two-tenths of a second with a time of 1:24.23 against Permian's best of 1:24.25. For the boys, Louis Morelino garnered the only individual first. He won the diving competition with a score of 106.30 over the best Permian had to offer (101.05).

The other top place for the Steers came in the 400-yard freestyle relay where the A relay team won in a time of 4:04.86. Permian's A team was second in 4:11.21 and Big Spring's B relay was third.

The A relay is comprised of Don DeFlitch, Brigham Martin, Scott Ferguson and Robert Chase. Dean Payne, Mark Lynch, Thomas Figueroa and Thomas Rudd swim the B relay.

The next swimming competition that Big Spring will face will be Thursday, Oct. 11 in Midland against Midland Lee.

SET IT UP DEBBIE — Big Spring Lady Steers senior setter Debbie Holguin prepares to set one of her teammates for a spike attempt versus San Angelo Central last night at Steer Gym. Central won the game 15-12, 15-8, upping their record to 29-0. Big Spring is now 12-12 for the season.

Both sides haggling over umpire's strike

By The Associated Press ... The Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers were rough on their opponents and easy on the substitute umpires in the opening games of the baseball playoffs.

The Cubs belted the San Diego Padres 13-0 and the Tigers routed the Kansas City Royals 8-1 Tuesday. Both winners jumped to early leads and made things simple for the umpires who were working in place of the striking regular arbiters.

The American League game offered virtually no close calls and the replacement umpires were generally praised for their work. The National League contest did have one embarrassing moment, though.

In the bottom of the third inning, Ryne Sandberg raced from first to third on a single by Leon Durham and slid in just as the throw from the outfield arrived at the base. Joe Maher, the third base umpire, was well up the left field line and out of position, prompting former Baltimore Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver — a television commentator — to say, "They got their hands caught in the cookie jar already."

Otherwise, everything went smoothly on the fields. Off the fields, however, there were no negotiations and little hope that the dispute would soon be resolved.

Richie Phillips, head of the umpires' union, and American League President Bobby Brown (a management negotiator) were at Tuesday night's ALCS opener in Kansas City and were to meet following the game.

"The big issue is money," Brown said. "Right now, there isn't a bright ray of hope."

Earlier in the day, Phillips said from his office in Philadelphia: "There's nothing going on right now. There have been no negotiations."

The umpires for the NL game in Chicago were Dick Cavanaugh, a 51-year-old retired pilot, who worked behind the plate; Dave Slickemeyer, a steak and seafood salesman, and Joe Pomponi and Maher, both physical education teachers. All four have worked together in the Big Ten Conference and had also worked during the seven-week major league umpires strike in 1979.

The usual six-man contingent was reduced to four in the NL playoff with the elimination of the foul-line umpires. The league's explanation was that the replacements "are used to working that way (in four-man crews)."

The AL game had six umpires. Bill Deegan, who umpired for 10 years in the majors, was behind the plate, with John Bible at first base, Randy Christal at second, Larry Zirbel at third, Harold Jordan in left field and Mike O'Dell in right.

There was only one close play in the AL contest, a sixth inning grounder by Frank White to shortstop Alan Trammell, whose throw seemed to pull first baseman Darrell Evans off the bag. White was called out by Bible.

Asked about that play, Royals Manager Dick Howser said "Jose Martinez (KC's first-base coach) thought he stayed on the bag and that he was out."

Deegan drew praise from Howser and Tigers winner Jack Morris.

"I thought Deegan did a good job — he was a good umpire for 10 years," Howser said.

"I thought he did an outstanding job," added Morris. "Every umpire is human and will mistakes and I think he made some."

Deegan said he has been umpiring little league and softball the last few years.

"I volunteered for it last night when I saw it (the umpires strike) in the paper," said Deegan, who also worked a 1970 game when the National League playoffs were struck. "I don't believe in unions."

Brown, interviewed by ABC-TV before the game, said he felt the substitute umpires had done "pretty well" in the National League series opener earlier.

"We were real tense at first," Pomponi said. Then, the Cubs turned the game into a rout. "The score made it easy. As the score got wider, the game got easier."

Phillips claimed his union members would "hold out through the World Series if we have to."

Retired major league ump Al Barlick and Ed Vargo, on the NL staff as supervisors, were in the dugouts "for any immediate rules interpretations."

The umpires walked out over demands for more money for working postseason games and, according to NL President Chub Feeney, "a larger pool of money for guys who don't show up for work," meaning those not selected to handle the playoffs and World Series.

Peter Ueberroth, in his second day as commissioner of baseball, was at both games. But he reiterated that he would leave the negotiating to Brown and Feeney.

USFL merger talks fold

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Disagreement over control of a United States Football League team resulting from a proposed merger between the Oakland Invaders and the Oklahoma Outlaws has resulted in a collapse of merger talks, owners of both teams said.

Outlaws General Manager Bill Tatham Jr., who along with his father owns a franchise without a home, said he will seek another team with which to merge.

Tatham said the Outlaws would neither fold nor return to Tulsa, Okla., where the Outlaws played their first season earlier this year.

Arias advances in tourney

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Hans Schwaier of West Germany upset Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid, the No. 4 seed, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the first round of the $225,000 Count of Godo tennis tournament.

Jimmy Arias of the United States, seeded second, defeated Andreas Maurer of West Germany, 6-3, 7-5, and Henrik Sundstrom of Sweden, the No. 3 seed, beat Jimmy Brown of the United States, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Reds finish in red

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds reported the club lost approximately $4.5 million during the 1984 season marking the fourth straight season the club has lost money.

The Reds, who declined to release any other figures, said Sunday's final game drew 21,213 fans to Riverfront Stadium, pushing the season total for home games to 1,275,887, an average of 16,358 for 78 home dates. The total was an increase of 85,468 fans over the 1983 home attendance of 1,190,419.

Bucks sign Spanarkel

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Guard Jim Spanarkel has signed a one-year contract with the Milwaukee Bucks, the National Basketball Association team announced Tuesday.

The Bucks also said that rookie guards Vernon Delancy and Tony William were cut from the squad. Delancy was a third-round pick and William was chosen in the seventh round.

Spanarkel, a five-year NBA veteran, played with the Philadelphia 76ers and Dallas Mavericks. He spent most of last season with the Mavericks on the injured list after breaking his right wrist in a game last November.

Spanarkel, a Duke graduate, has averaged 9.7 points, 2.5 rebounds and 2.2 assists in his pro career. He played in only seven games last season, averaging 3.4 points and 1.0 rebounds a game.

Young Cougars don't intend to blow Baylor game

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston linebacker Robert Harper is a fresh-faced freshman and hasn't suffered the agonies of unexpected defeats such as last week's 30-28 upset loss to previously winless Louisville.

But he's already had enough of that feeling.

"It's a hurt that is so bad that you don't want to let it happen again," Harper said. "Whether you're a freshman or a senior, you still don't want to lose."

Harper had 11 tackles and two interceptions against the Cardinals and will return to his starting assignment Saturday when the Cougars play the Baylor Bears at 30-28 upset loss to previously winless Louisville.

Harper said the Cougars relaxed after taking a 28-7 lead against the Cardinals.

"At the half, everyone was cheering and talking about what we did in the first half," Harper said. "I think we forgot that in college, people play four quarters. You can't harp on what you did in the first half and expect to win."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman also has noticed the inconsistency of Houston's performances and would like that to change.

"They already know that they are capable of playing with anyone in the country but they've got to do it for an entire game," Yeoman said.

Houston sprinted to a 28-7 lead against winless Louisville Saturday before the Cardinals rallied for a 30-28 victory in the final seconds.

The Cougars lost to third ranked Washington two weeks ago but played the Huskies on even terms through most of the third quarter.

"As a team we relaxed at that point," Houston tight end Carl Hilton said, referring to Houston's 28-7 third quarter lead against Louisville. "We gave them a couple of turnovers and that gave Louisville the incentive.

It's a trend Hilton has seen

"It was the same way against Washington," Hilton said. "I've been here three years and it's been the same every year.

"The past two years we've gone the same direction and didn't figure out until after the season what went wrong. We've got to get it straightened out sooner this year."

Houston will go into the game with 13 turnovers through three games.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURS., OCTOBER 4, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when conditions ricochet from being difficult at one moment, when you need to accept delays philosophically, to very favorable conditions, when you should push your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into new outlets that are profitable and relegate old activities to the background where they are apt to be less troublesome.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid a partner who is very demanding and be with important persons and put over fine deals with them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your work schedule seems difficult, but apply more effort and all works out fine, then join a partner at some pleasurable pursuit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Instead of running off on a tangent, try to please your mate and be happy. Then get your work handled with flair.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Home affairs are not to your liking in the morning, but tonight you can get off to interesting pursuits.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't let some comments disturb you in the morning, but get busy finding the right mechanisms that will make your work far easier.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Monetary problems can be cast aside for awhile and you can plan for a good time that will help you to cut down on tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There are bound to be delays in whatever you do today, so be philosophical about this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not go off on some questionable little trip, but handle problematical affairs in a modern way and get right results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit an imposing friend to take up your time in the morning, and later you can make your property more charming.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep rooted to your own wishes and steer clear of outside troubles. Stop wasting time with those who are depressive.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although the new appeals to you, this is no day for making radical changes, but fine for planning a new course of action.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will definitely be a product of the modern era and should be educated at up-to-date schools in order to make the most of the capabilities. Your progeny may be quite different from most others and be ahead of them, so do not try to change or conform them to the norm.

Man afraid of Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston gunmen killed three members of Joey LaBelle's family in two separate incidents, and the Massachusetts man came here this week to see one of the murderers sent to prison.

He came with his brother-in-law, watched a judge sentence the murderer and then quickly headed back home because, LaBelle says, Houston seems a dangerous place. "I had to see him," said LaBelle of the man convicted of killing his second brother. "I just wanted to look at this guy."

Rickey Stewart, 28, was sentenced in a state district court here Monday to 45 years in prison for the robbery-slaying of LaBelle's 28-year-old brother, David.

David LaBelle was killed May 20, 1983 while talking long distance on a telephone to his brother-in-law, Arthur McGowan, in Massachusetts.

McGowan, who also came to see Stewart sentenced, said David LaBelle's last words were to ask about the time.

After that, McGowan told the Houston Chronicle, "I didn't hear anything and then I heard what sounded like a car door slamming."

The next day, a Houston funeral home called McGowan's wife to say David LaBelle was dead.

It was an experience the family had felt once before. In August, 1981, LaBelle's mother, Bertha Hudson, 55, and a brother, Mike LaBelle, were hit by gunfire during a gun fight in the bar owned by the family.

Mrs. Hudson died immediately, along with a bar patron. Mike LaBelle died a few days later in a hospital.

Authorities have made no arrests in the triple killings, but are looking for two gunmen.

After those shootings, Joey LaBelle said he urged his brother, David, to leave Houston. But David stayed.

"He always told me on the phone" that he wanted to stay in Houston "just in case anything breaks" in the murder investigation, Joey LaBelle said.

Nothing ever has and now David, too, is dead.

McGowan and Joey LaBelle said they were both shocked by the Houston violence that has affected their lives.

"I'm a cop," said McGowan, an officer in Northbridge, Mass. "I wouldn't be a cop here (Houston). They couldn't pay me enough to come down here. Everybody carries guns."

Joey LaBelle said he took some comfort from the 45-year sentence given Stewart.

"It made me feel that at least there's a little justice in the world," said LaBelle. "I'm not happy about the verdict, but it's better than nothing."

"You can't dwell on this," he added. "If you do, it affects your life. You just have to go on."

Ballet tickets plummet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Balletomanes got a one-day windfall in honor of the 40th anniversary of the American premiere of "The Nutcracker" as the San Francisco Ballet rolled back prices to 1944.

"I'm going to spend $12 instead of $160," said Pat Alker of San Francisco, who queued up Monday with her 4-year-old daughter to take advantage of the 3200 tickets at prices ranging from 90 cents to $3. Regular tickets range from $5 to $37.50.

The first person in line arrived at 7 a.m., and by noon about 700 people, limited to four tickets a person, were waiting for the arts bargains.

Elephants, turbans, swords highlight wedding ceremony

JAIPUR, India (AP) — The bride was dressed like a maharani in a pink and gold gown, and she wore a diamond ring in her nose. She is a Texas oil heiress.

The bridegroom rode in on an elephant, wore a red and gold turban and carried a sword. He is a financial consultant from Massachusetts.

So it went Monday night when Camilla Blaffer Royall of Houston, Texas, and Herbert Mallard of Boston were married in a Hindu ceremony in a maharani's palace garden in the desert state of Rajasthan.

The 42-year-old bride waited in the garden for the ceremony to begin. Her bridegroom, also 42, rode in on an elephant at the head of a procession of two more elephants, four camels, eight horses and 16 costumed warriors.

A police band played Indian and Western marches. Ms. Royall and Mallard's gold-embroidered clothes were tied together in a nuptial knot symbolizing their union. Barefoot, they walked seven times around a fire of cow dung. Hindu priests chanted mantras, and after a three-hour ceremony, they were pronounced man and wife.

"It's the most beautiful wedding I've ever seen. It's fabulous," said the bride, who first visited Rajasthan two years ago.

"But the ceremony was arduous and difficult," she said. "We didn't know we would be jumping up and down and that a cow dung fire would be burning in our nostrils."

Mrs. Mallard said she was "only expecting a small wedding — a couple of elephants, flowers and songs." But friends from Jaipur turned it into an extravaganza.

"I loved it. It went very well, better than well," said Mallard, a financial consultant for several oil companies in Kuwait. Hindu priests daubed a spot of red paint on his forehead — an auspicious sign — before he formally was introduced to his bride.

"But they took my shoes away and my feet are cold," said Mallard, who couldn't stop laughing and hunted for his shoes for two hours.

He didn't realize that according to marriage custom in India, the bridegroom's shoes always are hidden and returned only after he pays money to the bride's relatives.

It was the second marriage for both. They plan small church weddings in Houston and Boston after they return from a honeymoon in the Himalayan state of Kashmir.

After the ceremony, about 200 guests, including 50 American and European friends, celebrated at a feast. Contrary to Hindu tradition, there was real roast beef for the Western palates.

"This wedding is really something else. I'll never see a thing like this in the United States," said Gerald Clifford of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The bride wore a typical Rajasthan dress of skirt, blouse and long veil. She wore an elaborate Indian forehead decoration of pearls and jewels and a detachable nosering. Mallard wore a long gold coat and tight-fitting red pants.

The bride said that after her first visit to India she promised herself she would make the most wonderful thing that would happen to her happen in Jaipur.

"I am glad I decided to have the wedding in India," said the bride. "It is the most wonderful experience I've ever had in my life."

Disney stock purchased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An official of Walt Disney Productions said the added purchases of Disney stock by the wealthy Bass family of Texas reflects the family's confidence in Disney management.

"Management is enormously pleased with this development and sees it as a strong vote of confidence..." Disney spokesman Erwin Okun said Tuesday.

The Bass family of Fort Worth purchased 2.5 million shares or 7.3 percent of Disney's stock Tuesday to give it a 16 percent interest in the entertainment and land development company.

The purchases were made in two large blocks on the New York and Pacific stock exchanges and in other open-market transactions. The two stock exchange purchases of 2.47 million shares, both made at $60 per share, totaled $148.2 million.

Former resident in concert here

Former resident Ronna Reeves will appear in concert with George Strait at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Oct. 13.

Miss Reeves, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Reeves, former Big Spring residents now living in Odessa. She is the niece of Big Spring resident Karen Reeves.

Miss Reeves has been performing for more than nine years. She began at nine in Big Spring dance recitals. She acquired numerous awards at local, state and national pageants before turning her attention to music.

Don Tolle, a local musician and teacher, said he knew Miss Reeves had talent. Tolle was Miss Reeves' local mentor, and he remembers watching her grow from "a cute little girl with a sweet voice" to a country singer.

Tolle weaned Miss Reeves on country classics such as "Johnny B. Goode" and "Your Cheatin' Heart."

Ronna and some of Tolle's other students formed a band, "Short Circuit," with her as lead vocalist. They began touring the West Texas area. The band moved to San Angelo, where it reformed into "Texas Gold." They began appearing in larger settings, eventually taking part in the annual Pike-Fest in Lubbock and performing at Billy Bob's Texas in Fort Worth.

At the age of 15 Ronna moved to Nashville. She stayed there a year, working in various studios, then returned to Odessa to live with her family. She then went out on the road again, performing throughout the area.

She has shared the stage with Strait, Steve Wariner, Jerry Jeff Walker, The Glaser Brothers and John Wesley Ryles.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained through the Howard College Business Office, the Record Shop, Big Spring Athletics and the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce.
