Texans favor a state lottery

By DR. DAVID HILL
Texas Poll Director

Texans are willing to take a chance on a state lottery if the Legislature will let them, according to a Texas Poll released today.

Two-thirds of the poll's respondents said they favor a state-run lottery as a means of meeting Texas' budget needs. Just over a quarter opposed the idea, and 6 percent had no opinion.

The poll also asked Texans how they feel about three other potential sources of state revenue that would legalize a form of gambling. The respondents' reactions:

• Horse racing — 60 percent favor, 35 percent oppose.
• Dog racing — 46 percent favor, 48 percent oppose.
• Casino gambling — 40 percent favor, 56 percent oppose.

To finance highway construction and education reforms, the Texas Legislature last summer passed a $4.8 billion tax bill, and state Comptroller Bob Bullock has warned the Legislature might need to add $1 billion to the state's budget next year just to keep up with population growth and inflation. That's why legislators are beginning to look for sources of revenue other than direct taxation.

No one knows how much a lottery could make for the state, but some estimates put the amount at more than $100 million. Estimates done for the last regular legislative session indicate that a lottery could gross $200 million a year. Rep. Larry Evans of Houston, who plans to introduce a lottery bill in the next session, says the state could net $400 million.

Seventeen states and the District of Columbia sponsored lotteries in 1983. Together, they netted $2.07 billion. The biggest winners were Pennsylvania ($355 million), New Jersey ($295 million) and New York ($285 million).

Big Spring man killed in crash

A 28-year-old Big Spring man died Saturday night as the result of injuries he received in an accident when his pickup truck collided with a parked trailer-van near the intersection of N.E. Second and N. Nolan Streets.

Robert Rodriguez of 601 N. Lancaster was transported by Shaffer Ambulance to Malone-Hogan Hospital, where he later died after treatment, according to a hospital spokesman.

He died of multiple injuries, including neck injuries, according to the hospital spokesman. No one was injured in the other vehicle, according to police reports.

Services are pending at Nalley, Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Rodriguez was traveling west in the 400 block of N.E. Second when he hit the trailer about 144 feet east of the 100 block of N. Nolan.

According to police reports, Rodriguez lost control of his 1979 Chevrolet Bonanza pickup, which struck the rear end of the 1955 silver Trailmobile van-trailer. Police said they were unable to determine why Rodriguez lost control of his vehicle.

The parked trailer was owned by A.J. Finch of 110 N. Nolan.

13 OPEC oil ministers set to cut production

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — OPEC oil ministers opened an emergency meeting today facing tough negotiations on how to share the sacrifices of production cuts that could help prevent a full-scale price war.

Most of the 13 ministers arriving for the closed-door meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said they supported a call for curbs on production to defend the cartel's prices.

But there were disputes on the details of such a plan, and maverick member Nigeria declared in advance of the meeting that it would reject any move to reduce its production or rescind its recent unilateral price cut.

A committee of four OPEC ministers recommended Sunday that the organization try to reach agreement on realigning prices and cutting overall OPEC production by at least 1 million barrels a day to stave off the cartel's second official price reduction in 19 months.

Britain and Norway, neither of them OPEC members, recently announced price reductions, and Nigeria promptly followed suit, breaking ranks with the rest of OPEC.

Many industry analysts have said that if OPEC fails to reach agreement on a production-cutting this week, a wave of price reductions will result, throwing the cartel into disarray and raising the prospect of a widespread oil price war.

None of the oil ministers in Geneva for the emergency meeting has said publicly how much his country would be willing to cut back to help preserve the cartel's benchmark price of $29 a barrel for Saudi light crude.

But Nigeria's oil minister, Tam David-West, Sunday ruled out joining fellow cartel members in reducing production and also said his country was not ready to res-

Infant receives baboon heart

Doctors unaware of available human heart

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors who implanted a baboon heart in a dying infant girl did not look for a human transplant donor and were unaware that one became available the day they performed the surgery, a spokesman for the surgical team said.

The director of an agency that finds transplant organs said Sunday that a heart became available Friday, the same day doctors at Loma Linda University Medical Center put a baboon heart into a baby identified only as Baby Fae.

The 17-day-old infant, who was in critical but stable condition today, had been dying because her own heart was only partially developed.

"We have a beautiful, healthy baby," said Dr. Leonard L. Bailey on Sunday. Doctors on Sunday began giving Baby Fae doses of cyclosporine to suppress her immune system and rejection of the heart.

Outside the hospital animal rights activists picketed, holding signs that read, "Ghoulis tinkering is not science."

"I'm not surprised that they didn't look for a human heart," said Lucy Shelton of the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. "We can't forget about the non-human animals here. They (the scientists) are just playing around. It makes our outrage that much stronger."

Bailey, who headed the specially-assembled team that implanted the animal heart, said he could not speculate how long the animal's heart would keep Baby Fae alive, but doctors said it might grow as the girl grows. "We know we may be in for a long battle in the weeks ahead," Bailey said.

Bailey said the infant had "normal cardiac output," didn't require heart stimulants and was being weaned from a respirator that helped her breathe.

Dr. Paul I. Terasaki, professor of surgery at UCLA Medical School and director of the California Regional Organ Procurement Agency, first reported the availability of the human heart.

"Our coordinator called the Loma Linda kidney transplant people, but because they are a different team they were unaware that there was a need for a heart," Terasaki said.

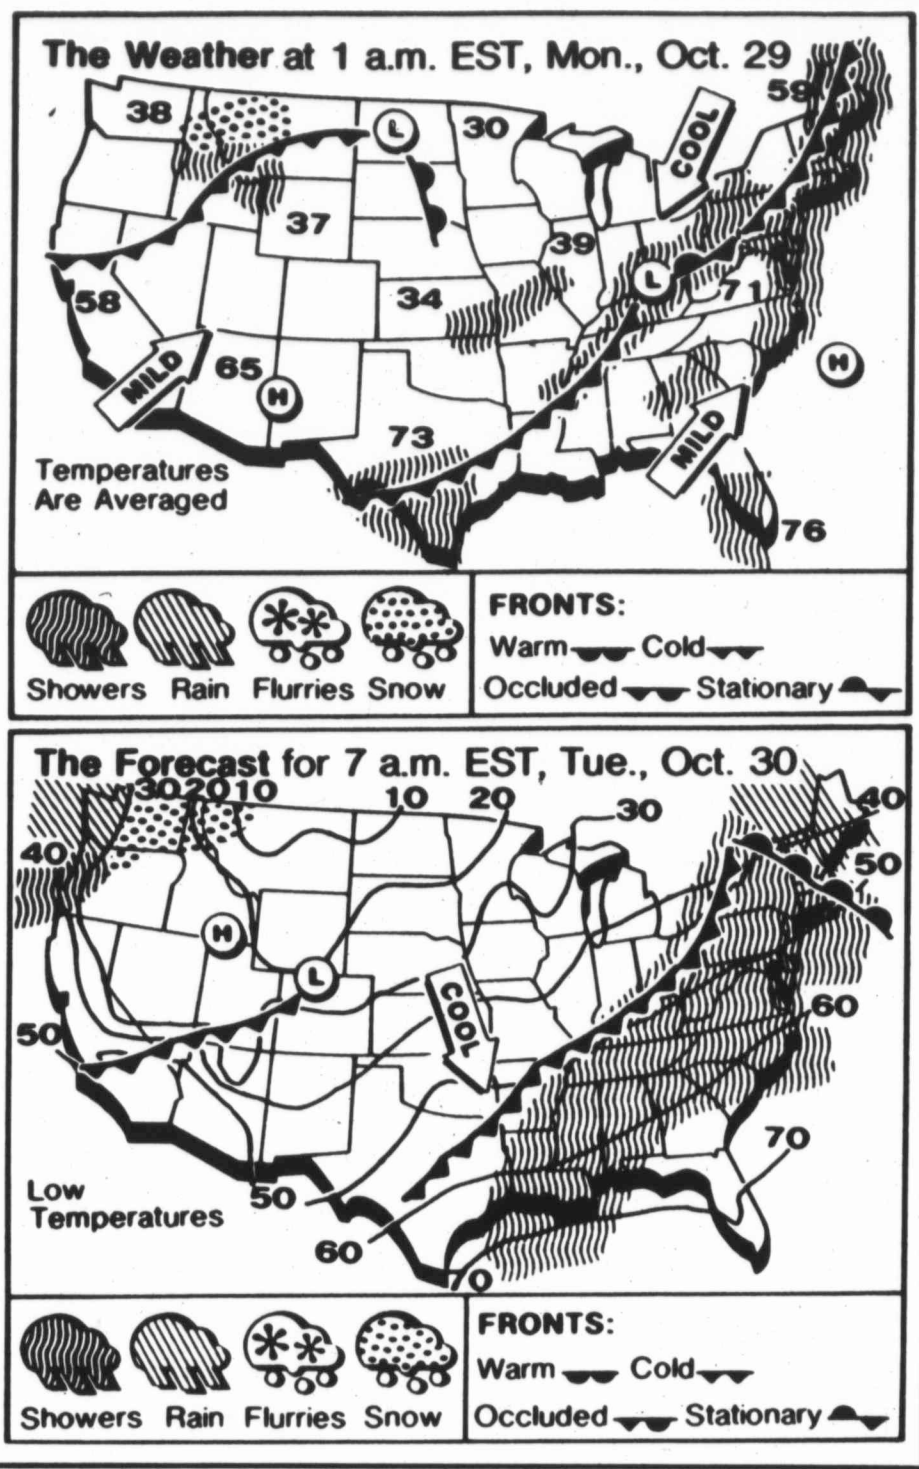

Loma Linda hospital spokesman Dick Schaefer said, "We did not try to find a human heart," but added that the 2-month-old human organ may not have been compatible with Baby Fae's body, and she was so ill there would not have been enough time to check.

Lottery

York ($275 million).
Despite the potential gain it might offer, a lottery faces stiff opposition in the Legislature from groups traditionally opposed to legalized gambling. Some base their opposition on moral grounds. Others believe that gambling victimizes poor people, who have lower disposable incomes.
But the Texas Poll found that support for legalized gambling is least among people with household incomes less than $10,000. None of the four gambling options was supported by a majority of such people, the poll found.
Among those options, horse and dog racing may stand the best chance of being approved when the Legislature meets in January. House Speaker Gib Lewis and Gov. Mark White oppose a state lottery, and White believes any decision on pari-mutuel betting should be independent of budget considerations.

The Texas Poll is a nonpartisan survey of public opinion conducted quarterly by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and Texas A&M University's Public Policy Resources Laboratory. The most recent poll interviewed 1,020 Texans, resulting in a sampling error of 3 percent. The poll was conducted Sept. 24 through Oct. 11.

cind the $2-a-barrel price reduction he announced last Thursday.
"I did not come here to negotiate, I came here to listen," David-West said.
He said his OPEC partners understood that Nigeria had to react quickly to Britain and Norway's reductions earlier this month in order to "instill confidence" among the public. The Nigerian government took power in a New Year's Eve coup last year.
Under OPEC rules, member countries are not supposed to change prices without the cartel's unanimous approval, but in practice, several members have offered secret discounts to buyers.
On Sunday, the United Arab Emirates' oil minister, Mana Saed Oteiba, suggested in an interview with NBC News that his country would cut the price of its oil if the price dispute was not solved during the meeting.
Oteiba said OPEC must cut production to as low as 16 million barrels a day from its current ceiling of 17.5 million. But he also said it must agree on a realignment of some prices.
He was referring to a system in which the prices of different grades of OPEC oil are arranged around the $29 benchmark for Saudi Arabia's main grade of oil. Grades of higher quality sell for more than $29, while those of lower quality sell for less because they yield a smaller share of gasoline and other high-valued products.

Oteiba said he wanted a change in that system because his country's high-quality crudes are not selling well since they are overpriced in relation to the lower-quality oils sold by other OPEC members.
"I am coming (to Geneva) with my problem of differentials and it has to be solved, and if there is no solution I will solve it myself when I go home," Oteiba said.
He said he preferred that the price of the lower-quality crudes be raised, but indicated that the alternative would be to cut the price of his country's oil, which sells for $29.56 a barrel.
The oil minister from Egypt, which does not belong to OPEC, said Sunday his country would maintain its oil price at least through November. Many observers had expected Egypt to cut its price.
The minister, Abdel-Hadi Kandil, said he came to today's meeting as an observer. Egypt produces more oil than some member countries.

Besides Nigeria, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, the OPEC member countries are: Algeria, Libya, Gabon, Kuwait, Iraq, Iran, Qatar, Indonesia, Venezuela and Ecuador.

Court votes against stay of execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Supreme Court voted 7-2 today against staying the execution of Thomas Andy Barefoot, condemned to die after midnight Tuesday for killing a Central Texas policeman.
Barefoot had no reaction to the court ruling, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Phil Guthrie said.
Barefoot refused breakfast today and continued to insist he would not be executed as scheduled, the prison system said in a news release. He has said God told him He would halt the execution. Barefoot told prison officials today he expected to be returned to his cell on Death Row.
Texas Gov. Mark White appeared to be the last hope for the 39-year-old former roughneck from New Iberia, La., who was convicted of killing Carl LeVin, a policeman in the small central Texas town of Harker Heights, Aug. 7, 1978.
In a note dated Sunday and released by the prison's public information office, Barefoot asked the Rev. Cornelius Ryan, the prison system's Catholic chaplain, and Ellis Unit Assistant Warden Sandy Estes to stay with him and his family "while I wait for God to stay my execution."
Barefoot wrote to Estes, "I am sure that he (Ryan) will be a comfort to me and my family. Since I do not believe that there will be any 'execution,' I don't need any witness list, but I would like to talk to you today, since you have been all through this with me once before.
"I need your help, Mr. Estes, because I can feel more at ease talking to you. I don't know Warden (Marshall) Herklotz, and at this time I need every edge I can get. Godspeed," he said.
Prison officials said Barefoot has chosen to wear dark green pants, a lime green shirt, white socks and black shoes with crepe soles.
He was offered breakfast but declined it at 7 a.m. and said during a property inventory he believed he would not be executed, a prison news release said. Barefoot arrived at the Walls Unit, which houses the state's death chamber, at 8:50 a.m. after a 13-mile trip in a prison van. He was to spend the day in a holding cell. Prison rules allow him to receive visitors.
The high court rejected arguments from Barefoot's lawyers that their client should be spared because prosecutors suppressed a psychiatric evaluation that may have pointed to life in prison as the appropriate punishment.
Barefoot's lawyers also argued he should not be executed by lethal injection until the high court decides whether that form of execution must be approved by the federal Food and Drug Administration.

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall, who oppose capital punishment under all circumstances, voted to spare Barefoot's life.
Prosecutors claimed Barefoot feared LeVin would discover he was a fugitive from New Mexico, where he was wanted on a charge of raping a 3-year-old girl.
A prisoners' lobby organization also has asked White to grant a 30-day reprieve. White said he would announce his decision today.
During more than five years of appeals, Barefoot's case has been reviewed 11 times and he has won four stays.
On Jan. 25, 1983, he was placed in a holding cell outside Texas' death chamber. But 11 hours before he was to be put to death, the nation's highest court ordered him kept alive so it could decide how much time condemned murderers should have to fight for their lives in federal courts.
Previously, many appeals courts routinely postponed executions until a more leisurely review of an appeal could be made.
But the justices later ruled federal appeals courts do not have to postpone executions of all death row inmates pushing non-frivolous appeals.
Barefoot has refused to give prison officials the names of five people to serve as his witnesses. In interviews at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit, Barefoot said God has assured him the execution will be blocked.
Barefoot claims he was set up by two former roommates who were police informants using him to "put a feather in their own caps." He previously served time in prison for cocaine possession in Louisiana and possession of a sawed-off shotgun in Oklahoma.
"I've done a lot of things I'm ashamed of, but I've never done anything that I deserved to die for," he said.
But prosecutors said Barefoot killed LeVin with a single shot at close range and then boasted of his guilty to his roommates. Police following up a tip arrested Barefoot the following day as he got off a bus in Houston. They found in his pocket a pistol that ballistics experts testified was the one used to kill LeVin.
Barefoot has steadfastly maintained his innocence in LeVin's death and said the state will be guilty of the "most premeditated of murders" if he is executed.
"My heart is right with the Lord," he said. "I know I'm going to heaven when I die, be it today or 40 years from now."

Investigation continues in HP trooper's death

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — The investigation continues into the shooting death of Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper Guy Nalley, who was killed after he stopped a truck for speeding.
Nalley was shot to death Saturday night as he waited for a backup unit after it was learned that a trailer being pulled by the truck was stolen, authorities said Sunday.
A man driving a tractor-trailer rig was arrested Saturday night by Elk City police and Beckham County deputies, highway patrol spokesman Lt. Pat Collins said.
The man, whom authorities refused to identify, was lodged in the Beckham County Jail on Sunday. Collins said he didn't know what complaints, if any, had been signed against the man.
"We're not going to release the (man's) name ... until we find out from the district attorney what charges might be filed," Collins said.
Beckham County and Elk City authorities refused comment on the case, referring all queries to Collins.

The trooper "apparently had already had contact with the truck and had stopped it for a speeding violation" prior to the shooting, Collins said.
"His radar unit still had a speed locked on the radar when backup units arrived," Collins said.
Meanwhile, Gov. George Nigh ordered late Saturday that flags throughout the state be flown at half-staff from Sunday until Nalley's funeral. Services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church of Cheyenne.
Nalley was shot twice in the head, officials said. He was found at 8:45 p.m. by the trooper sent to back him up when dispatchers who checked the trailer's license warned that a computer check had shown it to be stolen, Collins said.
Nalley's body was taken to the state medical examiner's office for an autopsy.
Nalley, 29, was a two-year veteran of the Highway Patrol.

2 killed in bar shootings

DENVER — Police believe a group of four men was responsible for two barroom shootings within hours that left two people dead and five wounded.

The fatal shootings occurred early Sunday at Cantina Garcia's, located in a skid-row district, said police Detective David Haley. Two of the four wounded were hospitalized in critical condition, he said.

The owner of a bar about three miles away was shot in the leg by four gunmen who burst into her business shortly before midnight Saturday, he said. No arrests in the shootings had been made Sunday.

Error found at N-plant

BERWICK, Pa. — Workers at the Susquehanna nuclear power plant apparently neglected to review computer data, leaving a problem with its shutoff mechanism unnoticed, a federal official said.

The problem with the Unit 1 control rods, which first occurred in June, was not noticed until a similar problem this month, said Gary M. Holahan of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The NRC's review of the equipment and reporting failures could result in a fine for Pennsylvania Power & Light Co., which operates the plant, Holahan said Sunday.

5 killed in boat collision

SEAL BEACH, Calif. — A motorboat bringing nine people home after a dinner on the Queen Mary slammed into an unlighted buoy in darkened Anaheim Bay, killing five people and injuring four, authorities said.

The survivors from the accident about 3 a.m. Sunday all were thrown clear of the boat, and were taken to Los Alamitos Medical Center, said sheriff's Lt. Dan Spratt. Hospital personnel would not comment on the condition of the injured.

The boat, returning from the docked liner about 10 miles away, apparently was exceeding the 5 mph speed limit when it hit the buoy at the mouth of the harbor about 25 miles southeast of Los Angeles, said Spratt.

Gunman kills bystander

LAWNDALE, Calif. — Police recovered two rifles and a handgun, all loaded, after shooting to death a gunman who barricaded himself in his apartment and fatally shot one bystander and wounded another.

Police fired tear gas into the building during the standoff late Saturday. When that failed to drive the gunman out, they rushed the apartment, where the man was shot to death despite his wearing a bullet-proof vest.

Mother burns daughter

AUBURN, Maine — Police who responded to a disturbance at an apartment smelled the "unmistakable" odor of burned human flesh and arrested a mother and her live-in boyfriend after discovering a 4-year-old girl's body in an oven.

One neighbor who inquired about an odor at the couple's apartment Saturday was told "Lucifer" was burning in the oven, police said.

Neighbors said they had heard loud religious music, sounds of fighting and screams of "Let me out!" before calling police, according to a copyright story in the newspaper Sunday of Lewiston and Auburn.

When police arrived they found the body of 4-year-old Angela Palmer, police Sgt. William Fournier said Sunday.

Charged in the girl's death are her mother, Cynthia Palmer, 29, and Ms. Palmer's live-in boyfriend, John Lane, 36.

PRAYING FOR THE PRIEST — Worshippers at Warsaw's St. Stanislaw Kosta Church hold crucifixes and make victory signs Sunday during a 'Mass for the Homeland' for pro-Solidarity priest, Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko.

The priest was kidnapped and possibly killed by three ministry officers, according to the Interior Ministry.

Futile search

Divers fail in search for pro-Solidarity priest

WARSAW, Poland — Divers have failed to find the body of a pro-Solidarity priest during a search of the Vistula River close to where the priest was abducted on Oct. 19, Warsaw Radio reported today.

An Interior Ministry communique said the search for the priest, the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, was continuing with "highly specialized equipment," the state-run radio said.

The Interior Ministry has said the priest was kidnapped and possibly killed by three of its own security officers but that the body has not been found.

According to the communique, one of the officers said he killed Popieluszko and threw his body into the Vistula near the northern city of Torun, where the abduction occurred. The communique said the two other men "pointed to a bay (on the river) near Wloclawek," a town about 30 miles southeast of Torun.

"The search conducted with the participation of divers brought no results and the victim hasn't been found yet," the radio report said. "According to experts at a place mentioned by the abductors there are strong currents, which make the search more difficult."

A captain and two lieutenants of the Interior Ministry have been charged in the abduction, according to Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak.

Kiszczak said the captain's claim that he killed Popieluszko had not been confirmed because all three officers gave conflicting testimony on the fate of the priest.

Kiszczak identified the captain as Grzegorz Piotrowski and the lieutenants as Waldemar Chmielewski and Leszek Pekala.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa urged supporters at a Mass on Sunday to avoid being provoked into "bloody revolution" by the kidnapping of Popieluszko.

Walesa told a crowd in Gdansk, where strikes in 1980 led to the founding of Solidarity, that the kidnapping may have been an attempt to provoke the government's opponents.

The labor leader said in a telephone interview that he told the worshippers: "We won't let anybody pull us into a brawl in which we will lose. We simply cannot let anybody manipulate us into any situation."

"If somebody assumed it would be a revolution, I won't give him a bloody revolution. I am for peaceful evolution," said Walesa, winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize.

Church officials estimated that 50,000 people came to another Mass on Sunday, at St. Stanislaw Koska Church in Warsaw, where Popieluszko's sermons championing Solidarity would regularly draw thousands of listeners.

The crowd was one of the largest at a Mass in Warsaw since Pope John Paul II visited his native Poland in 1983.

Police stepped up patrols in the streets of the capital, where concentrations of police vehicles, including water cannon, were stationed at at least five points.

Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski was quoted as saying authorities would firmly deal with "anti-socialist forces" he said were stirring unrest and "trying to prey on a provocation."

The service at Popieluszko's church was a "Mass for the Homeland," which the missing priest had given on the last Sunday of each month since January 1982, one month after the imposition of martial law by the Communist regime. Solidarity was suppressed under the military crackdown.

Before the start of Sunday's service, recorded sermons by the priest were broadcast over loudspeakers.

At St. John's Cathedral in Warsaw, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, compared the abduction of Popieluszko to the May 1981 shooting of John Paul, and said the priest's followers should bear their suffering as the pope bore his.

Walesa said he told the crowd in Gdansk that Popieluszko's fate was still uncertain. He said he dissuaded many who wanted to march to a monument to workers outside the gate of the Lenin Shipyard.

"I told them that we can march in a crowd of several thousand to the monument, and be beaten with clubs — and if worse comes to worse — be shot, and we have no chance," he said.

In Rome, the pope told a crowd of several thousand people: "We ask God to give peace to our country. We ask that this new suffering may serve as a spiritual renewal for our nation."

Italy's state-run RAI radio reported that John Paul heard the news about Popieluszko's possible death "with dismay and great worry" and followed reports on the case "late into the night."

French agent set free

LONDON — Scotland Yard says no charges will be filed against a French agent who was accused of planting explosives to test security during French President Francois Mitterrand's visit to Britain.

The explosives were discovered by police dogs in the garden of the French ambassador's residence last Tuesday. Scotland Yard detectives questioned the Frenchman, Michel Baton-Laborde, for four hours before he flew back to Paris the next day.

Chinese get checkbooks

PEKING — For the first time in more than 30 years, a Chinese bank has introduced personal checking accounts, the official China Daily newspaper reported today.

The Industrial and Commercial Bank of China has opened 87 checking accounts for scientists, doctors, intellectuals and others living in Shanghai's select Zuhui district, the newspaper said. The bank reportedly plans to expand the service throughout Shanghai next year.

U.S. base poses threat

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi says the U.S. military base on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia poses a threat to India and other nations in the region.

Asked by a Mexican interviewer about an alleged presence of American "nuclear bases" in the Indian Ocean, Mrs. Gandhi responded, "It is unfortunate and unpardonable that bases should be set up in a region that has been free from this (nuclear) menace."

"The base at Diego Garcia is a threat to all nations in the region," she said.

Excerpts from her interview with the El Nacional newspaper were released Sunday by her office and distributed by United News of India.

Dump waste ban sought

BREMEN, West Germany — Some 750 environmentalists, including European and West German parliamentarians, have called for a ban on dumping poisonous and non-biodegradable waste into the North Sea.

At the close of a two-day "North Sea Action Conference," the representatives of 80 environmental organizations from eight countries also said Sunday that environmental groups should be consulted before new industrial plants, ports or dikes are built in or along the sea.

The environmentalists, including Social Democrat and Greens party members of the European Parliament and the West German legislature, said they wanted to put pressure on environment ministers attending the International North Sea Protection Conference that begins Wednesday in Bremen.

2 die scaling Mt. Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal — The Tourism Ministry says two experienced Nepalese climbers died on Mount Everest trying to recover the body of a German woman who died descending the 29,028-foot peak in 1979.

Ang Dorjee, 35, a guide, and Nepalese Police Inspector Yogendra Bahadur Thapa, 36, were found entangled in ropes Thursday, one day after they set out from the mountain's southern 26,240-foot high pass, a ministry spokesman said Sunday.

The deaths of the two Nepalese climbers, seeking the remains of Hannelore Schmatz, raised the known number of fatalities on Mount Everest to 68.

Rebels threaten more attacks

Attackers claim responsibility for bombing Palestine bus

JERUSALEM (AP) — The attackers who claimed responsibility for rocketing a Palestinian bus are threatening more attacks unless terrorists who harm Jews are executed and members of a Jewish anti-Arab underground are freed, police said today.

One young Palestinian man was killed and 10 other passengers were injured in the attack Sunday when an anti-tank rocket tore into the crowded bus.

Police found a note written in Hebrew next to the rocket launcher which said the attack was in retaliation for the murder of two Israeli students last week. A Palestinian man has been charged with the killings.

The rocketing prompted police to increase security today in Arab East Jerusalem in what Police Chief Avraham Turgeman said was a move to protect both Palestinians and Jews.

In the West Bank town of Bethlehem, Palestinian students today threw stones at cars traveling on the main road from Jerusalem, damaging several Israeli-owned vehicles, Israel radio said. The radio said students barricaded themselves inside the Bethlehem University campus, and police used tear gas to stop the stone-throwing.

Bethlehem is about nine miles northeast of the village of Sair, where the victim of the bus attack was buried Sunday night.

Police said the note found beside the rocket launcher listed three conditions for ceasing attacks on Palestinians: execution of the Israeli students' murderer, the death penalty for all terrorists who harm Jews, and release of alleged members of a Jewish underground.

The rocket was fired at the bus just below the walls of Jerusalem's Old City, a few yards from the line that divided Jewish and Arab Jerusalem until Israel conquered the eastern part of the city in the 1967 Middle East war.

Witnesses said they saw a man fleeing from the scene into an adjacent gully.

Turgeman said three Jewish suspects had been detained for questioning. But they were released later, Israel television said.

The attacker left behind the launching tube of the rocket, which is a U.S.-designed weapon widely used by Israeli troops. Police said he also left a note which said "this is in revenge for the murder" of two students near the Cremisan Monastery last week.

It referred to the Oct. 22 killing of two Israelis near the monastery, five miles south of Jerusalem. A resident of the nearby Dheishe refugee camp, Issa Nimer Abd-Rabu, was accused of blindfolding the students and shooting them in the head. Police allege he killed the two as part of his initiation into a Palestinian guerrilla group.

Israel Radio said the note found by the launcher was signed "the Avengers." It said police thought the group was a small one, made up of perhaps only two or three Israelis well-trained in the use of weapons.

The bus was taking about 40 Palestinians to their homes in the occupied West Bank. Israel radio identified the dead passenger as Jamal Ismail Matour, 20, of Sair. None of the 10 people hurt was reported in serious condition.

Nabisco hits sour note with politics

Nabisco, the cookie company, is not so sweet. When Congress was considering legislation to limit political action committees, Nabisco threatened to cut off funds to members who supported the bill.

According to Common Cause, the citizens' lobby, three-fourths of PAC contributions go to incumbents. This helps explain why Congress does not reform the law.

In arguing against PACs, Rep. Leon Paneta, D-Calif., charged that "Congress is literally being bought and sold by PAC contributions."

Heading the list of PAC givers is the American Medical Association. It has contributed over $10 million to congressional campaigns. Needless to say, the AMA usually wins favorable votes on issues that concern it.

Recently, United Technologies Co. sent a letter to stockholders asking them to contribute to its PAC. It did not say to whom the money would go. But obviously the big defense contractor will use its PAC to reward members who voted for bigger defense appropriation.

Special interest groups have a valid right to lobby under our system of government. But when PACs become so powerful that they control elections, it creates a dangerous situation by weakening the voice of the people.

Ultimately, the best way to restore sanity to our election system is to drastically cut costs. In the meantime, the power of the PACs must be controlled.

Joseph Kraft

A question of policy

WASHINGTON — President Reagan was back in his usual form for the foreign policy debate in Kansas City. Sharp as ever, he showed gross ignorance of the subject — but reassuringly and with good humor.

Fritz Mondale clearly won on points. But the victory almost certainly lacks the éclat necessary to carry through to a Mondale win on election day.

One bad Reagan mistake occurred in his account of the offer tabled by his administration in the START talks on strategic nuclear weapons. In the debate, Reagan said that the first phase of the U.S. proposal dealt with land-based strategic missiles, and that a "second phase would take up the submarine launch, the airborne missiles." He said the Soviet Union "made it plain that they placed a greater reliance on land-based missiles ... But it was a surprise to us because they outnumbered us" in submarines and bombers.

In fact the original administration proposal included limitations on weapons launched from the sea and in the air. Any other proposal would have been simply absurd, and the failure to understand that point betrays a true lack of grasp.

The U.S. proposal was strongly titled toward limitation of Soviet land-based missiles, which would have been reduced from over 5,000 to 2,500 warheads. The supposed lead of the Soviets in submarines and bombers had nothing to do with that emphasis. On the contrary, the proposal was specifically designed to wipe out the Russian advantage in large, land-based intercontinental missiles.

If Reagan was surprised the Soviets spurned the offer, he was almost alone. Alexander Haig, in the memoir of his time as Reagan's secretary of state, writes that the limit of 2,500 land-based intercontinental missiles "would require such drastic reductions in the Soviet inventory as to suggest that they were negotiable." Assistant Secretary Richard Perle, the key Pentagon figure, has been quoted (by Strobe Talbott, a widely acknowledged expert) as saying, "Fortunately we can count on the Soviets to bail us out simply by not accepting it."

In his press conference of May 13, 1982, Reagan correctly said that "nothing is excluded" from the proposal. He then went on to assert that missiles "that are carried in ships of one kind or another, or submarines, you are dealing there with a conventional type of weapon or instrument, and those instruments can be intercepted."

They can be recalled if there has been a miscalculation. That seems not exactly foursquare with Reagan's claim in the debate that "I never ever conceived" that "nuclear missiles could be fired and then called back."

Almost equally fatuous was Reagan's discussion of his Strategic Defense Initiative, or "star wars" proposal, for a defense against nuclear missiles. Reagan made it seem the Russians would sit idly by while the U.S. developed a sure-fire strategic superiority. But development will take six or seven years at best, and would involve a break with the anti-ABM treaty of 1972. The Russians would certainly go for the same kind of defense while maximizing their offensive capability in the interim. So the proposal, far from being innocuous, as Reagan intimated, means major escalation of the arms race.

At the beginning, Reagan seemed as bad in style as in substance. He meandered aimlessly through yet another incoherent defense of the mission of the Marines in Lebanon. He floundered in trying to explain away the "assassination" instructions written by an American and distributed to U.S.-supported guerrillas working against the Sandinistas in Nicaragua. In the process he overstated the CIA presence in Nicaragua and had to correct himself.

But he brightened visibly when asked about the age issue and got off a good one-liner: "I am not going to exploit for political purposes my opponent's youth and inexperience."

He repeatedly asserted that "my ultimate dream (is) the destruction of all nuclear weapons." He scored a point in attacking, in general style, Mondale's relatively weak record in supporting defense spending. He defended the administration's policy on immigration ably toward the end. At the very close, when cut off in mid-peroration by the exemplary moderator Edwin Newman, Reagan was graciousness itself.

Mondale stepped boldly into all the questions and showed genuine mastery on most of them. He repeatedly underlined Reagan's lack of knowledge and competence in many areas central to national security and American leadership. But having moved from loser to underdog in the first debate, he has to be held to a higher standard in the second.

Jack Anderson

Khomeini keeps eye on Reagan

WASHINGTON — Has the Ayatollah Khomeini given Ronald Reagan the evil eye? According to intelligence sources, the aged leader of Iran's Moslem fanatics believes he was responsible for Jimmy Carter's defeat four years ago. Now he wants to put the same spell on President Reagan.

His madness is not without its methods. Iran has trained, bankrolled and directed Shiite terrorists who are reportedly planning one or more bombing attacks on U.S. facilities in the Middle East before Election Day.

U.S. intelligence received what one State Department insider described as a "specific" warning of a pre-election strike just a few days ago.

As a result, several embassies in the region have been placed on full alert. They include those in Kuwait, Oman, Bahrain, Jordan and, of course, Beirut.

The flood of intelligence tips has created a problem, though. There have been so many threats of violence against U.S. embassies in recent weeks that some analysts suspect a deliberate disinformation campaign. The aim would be to cry "wolf!" so often that, when nothing happened, the American embassies would relax security and make a real attack easier.

"There is deliberate misinformation being given out to wear down our analysts," one source told my associate Lucette Lagnado. The Shiite terrorists' long-range goal is nothing less than driving the United States out of the Middle East. Some administration critics charge that President Reagan has encouraged this dangerous dream by his failure to retaliate against the terrorists — or their sponsors — who were responsible for the two embassy attacks and the Marine massacre in Beirut. The critics say the terrorists have interpreted this as a sign that they can operate against Americans with impunity.

The latest intelligence warnings have been passed along to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will soon issue its long-awaited report on the September embassy bombing. Partisans on the committee staff have been quarreling over the final wording of the report, but at this writing its main points include these:

• Contrary to some press reports, the decision to move the embassy from West Beirut to East Beirut was a sound one. Morale was poor at the old location because of constant tension; East Beirut seemed less vulnerable to terrorist attack.

• Replacement of the extra Marine security detail with Lebanese guards was a positive step. The Lebanese performed well, and a visible Marine presence outside the embassy building was considered an invitation to attack.

• The toughest criticism the report will make is that some of the most fundamental security measures had not been taken at the embassy. For example, while officials waited for concrete to set so steel gates could be put in position, a single truck parked across the entry road at the right place would have been enough to block the bomber's truck.

The Syrians, who have been drawing praise in recent months in administration circles, were less than helpful: They allowed terrorists groups to operate freely in Syrian-controlled areas of Lebanon. It's also possible that the Syrians let the truckload of explosives pass through their checkpoints.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: As the election looms, my mail has turned increasingly political. Here are some of the questions raised in the letters:

Will the Republicans retain control of the Senate?

Although more GOP seats are up for grabs, the Republicans are running better organized, more efficient, better-funded Senate campaigns. They have gathered an astonishing variety and depth of reliable information, for example, about their Democratic rivals. Because of the fine calibrations behind the GOP campaigns, I predict the Republicans will continue to control the Senate.

Which are the key Senate races?

The battle for control of the Senate will be determined by 13 races.

Billy Graham

Yes, there is religion in Russia

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read in the paper where you had preached in the Soviet Union. Why did you go there, and do you think you were able to accomplish very much? I always thought it was an atheistic country that discouraged religion. — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: My primary purpose in going to the Soviet Union was to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ — the same message I have preached all over the world. Altogether I visited four cities — from the Baltic Sea to Siberia — and spoke over 50 times, including sermons, speeches, and in discussions. In every instance, I spoke openly of Christ and how Christ alone is our hope for the future. Only God knows the full impact of these meetings, but we saw hundreds of people raise their hands to indicate their desire to commit their lives to Jesus Christ.

Yes, atheism is the official ideology of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, and atheistic propaganda constantly seeks to convince people that religious faith is wrong. At the same time, however, there are millions of believers in the Soviet Union. I was especially interested in the fact that young people made up as much as half the congregation at some of our meetings. There were no restrictions on what I could preach; the only restriction was that the meetings could be held only in churches.

Although they do not have the same opportunities we do, the Christians I met have a strong and joyful commitment to Christ, which we often lack in our society.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today

By The Associated Press Today is Monday, Oct. 29, the 303rd day of 1984. There are 63 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 29, 1929, "Black Tuesday" descended upon the New York Stock Exchange. Prices collapsed amid panic selling, thousands of investors were wiped out, and America's Great Depression began.

On this date: In 1618, Sir Walter Raleigh, the English courtier, military adventurer and poet, was executed in London.

In 1682, the founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, landed at what is now Chester, Pa.

In 1901, President William McKinley's assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was electrocuted.

In 1923, the Republic of Turkey was proclaimed.

In 1940, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson drew the first number — 158 — in the first peacetime military draft in U.S. history.

In 1945, Anna Rosenberg, a member of the Advisory Board of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, became the first woman to receive the Medal of Freedom.

In 1947, former first lady Frances Cleveland Preston died in Baltimore at the age of 83. She had married Grover Cleveland in a White House ceremony in 1886.

In 1956, Israel launched an attack against Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

In 1964, thieves made off with the Star of India and several other priceless gems from the American Museum of Natural History in New York. (The Star and most of the other gems were recovered the following year; three men were convicted of stealing them.)

In 1975, in a speech before the National Press Club, President Gerald R. Ford declared he would veto any bill calling for federal money to bail out New York City from its financial crisis. (The next day, the New York Daily News ran a banner headline which read: "Ford to City: Drop Dead.")

Ten years ago: Former President Richard M. Nixon was reported in critical condition after sudden internal bleeding sent him into shock following surgery. He showed improvement after receiving blood transfusions.

Five years ago: On the 50th anniversary of the great stock market crash, anti-nuclear demonstrators tried but failed to shut down the New York Stock Exchange.

One year ago: The remains of U.S. servicemen killed in the Beirut bombing and Grenada invasion began arriving at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware.

Today's birthdays: Singer Melba Moore is 39. Actor Richard Dreyfuss is 37. Actress Kate Jackson is 36.

Thought for today: "If you wish to know what a man is, place him in authority." — Yugoslavian proverb.

Mailbag

Pro-life stance is reassuring

To the editor: There are things worth speaking out about, like killing the helpless, defenseless unborn and the possibility of the election of a president and vice president who give all kinds of pious, evangelical reasons for using federal funds to abort 1,500,000 babies a year. Their reasons are horrifyingly similar to Hitler's belief of survival of the fittest, or evolution, that he used to support his eliminating those he decided were unfit for his superior race.

How long will it be until the same, pious phrases that are used to substantiate abortions, will also be applied to old people? Inconvenient, a drain on society, a financial burden, can also be used to promote euthanasia. The same mind set that will kill a 10-week-old baby in the womb will also be able to terminate your 85-year-old mother.

Before you cast your vote, as your parents and grandparents did, please consider the life and death issues today that were not issues 30 to 50 years ago.

Thankfully, President Reagan is pro-life, whether you are Jewish, old, handicapped or unborn.

4-Hers need leaders for food and nutrition projects

Food and Nutrition 4-H Project leaders it is time to get started with the Food and Nutrition projects, says Lisa Hoff, Howard County Extension agent. She is recruiting new project leaders to teach 4-Hers about food and nutrition.

With the project leaders' guidance, 4-Hers can enjoy planning and preparing food for snacks, meals and special events, Miss Hoff said. "Developing good food habits that last a lifetime is a primary goal of each 4-H food/nutrition project. 4-Hers will concentrate on learning more about what foods are made of."

During the project, 4-Hers will become efficient in selecting a good daily diet from the four food groups — meat, milk, fruits and vegetables, and breads and cereals. They also will become knowledgeable of how the body uses the key food nutrients — proteins, minerals, vitamins, carbohydrates and fats.

The project leaders' job is to help 4-Hers learn:

- Leadership skills, build character and assume community and citizenship responsibilities.
- The importance of including foods from each of the four food groups in the daily diet.
- Principles of nutrition as they relate to good health, physical fitness and attractive appearance.
- About the wide variety of foods which may be included in the diet.
- Scientific principles of nutrition and food preparation.
- Skills used in planning, purchasing, preparing and serving tasty, attractive and nutritious meals and snacks.

- The art of creating nutritious and creative meals.

Other individuals share the responsibility of leadership along with the project leaders. They are parent committees, other project leaders and county Extension agents. 4-H is a community, county, state and national endeavor that requires the best thinking and planning of all adults interested in seeing that children are adequately prepared for their youth and adult lives, Miss Hoff said.

Persons interested in becoming a project leader may contact the Howard County Extension Office by calling 267-1821 or by visiting the office in the basement of the Howard County Courthouse. 4-Hers interested in the 4-H Food and Nutrition Project may call the Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Dear Abby

Halloween's black magic has become blackmail

DEAR ABBY: Those who presumably worry about their children who are out trick-or-treating on Halloween should take a lesson from my mother and her friends. They never had to worry. We stayed home because she and her neighbors would toss the best party of the year — next to Christmas. They did this with little effort, permitting the children to do most of the work and planning.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks, cookies and cakes were in bountiful supply. We played games, bobbed for apples and received prizes for our costumes.

Growing up in a small town (population about 9,000), I never heard of trick or treat until I moved to Washington, D.C. We didn't have to worry about poisoned candy, pins and razor blades in apples, or the threat of being lured into the home of a stranger to be molested.

I personally despise the custom of trick or treat and refuse to condone it by encouraging children to come to my door. Call me Scrooge.

Fortunately, more parents in my part of the country are beginning to see the sense in block parties on Halloween. I hope it catches on and replaces the deplorable custom of sending children out to beg for treats.

CONCERNED MOTHER
DEAR CONCERNED: You hit upon something that has troubled me for a number of years. The very principle of trick or treat is pure and simple blackmail: "If you don't give me a treat, I will play a trick on you" — the "trick" being anything from overturning garbage cans, soaping (or breaking) windows, or doing serious damage to property.

This kind of vicious and anti-social behavior should not be tolerated. Most police departments must call in extra hands on Halloween to patrol the streets in an effort to protect private and public property.

What began years ago as a harmless holiday, celebrated by telling children scary ghost stories about imaginary witches, goblins and spirits, has turned into legalized blackmail.

Halloween has become scarier than ever, and I vote for abolishing the custom of trick or treat. Readers?

Dr. Donohue

Test reveals amount of control over diabetes

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As a diabetic of many years standing, I am used to having my blood drawn and being tested for sugar in the urine, etc. The last time I saw my doctor he said he wanted to do a new test to which the words glycosylated hemoglobin were attached. Of course I said sure. I now wonder what this test is all about. Do you know of it and why it's to be done for me? — Z.F.

You will recognize the "glyco" part of the term as referring to sugar and glucose. And the hemoglobin refers to the pigment inside red blood cells. The two words together refer to a sugar coating of the hemoglobin. The test tells just how well your diabetes has been under control over the previous two months.

It's different from what the regular blood sugar count evaluates. That test tells only what the sugar level is at the moment the test is taken. It's like a baseball player's batting average. It's just as important to know what the player has batted over an extended period as it is to learn what he did in a single time at bat. So in a way the test is giving you your season batting average in diabetes control.

Guest speakers give highlights on BPWs growth

"Women Helping Women" was the theme of the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting, Tuesday. Three Odessa Business and Professional Women on state and district levels were guest speakers.

They gave a background and highlights of the growth of BPW from its beginning in 1919 to the present. They also emphasized the spectrum of occupations and businesses of the women who support BPW.

Helen Gillespie is a co-owner and general manager of an oilfield service business in Odessa and a member of the State Federation Personal Development and Leadership Training committee. Barbara Parks is an office manager for the City of Odessa, and District Eight treasurer. Mary Alice Hamlin is a marketing representative for Executel Motel, Odessa, and District Eight director.

BPW-USA is a part of the International Federation of BPW. It is the oldest organization of and for working women. Its objectives are: to elevate the standards for women in business and in the professions, to promote the interests of business and professional women, to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States, to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along the lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

The Texas Federation of BPW supports the BPW Foundation, located in Washington, D.C., The Foundation, through its library and research center, conducts and supports research regarding employed women and administers scholarships and training programs available to members and non-members.

The Foundation is the only research and educational organization in the nation devoted exclusively to working women (members and non-members). It provides scholarships for education, career advancement and other categories.

By actively participating in BPW there are opportunities for leadership experience, career development, constructive activity, personal improvement, women's awareness, community consciousness, legislative know how, continuing education, policy making and other areas. This training is acquired through seminars and workshops provided by the Federation.

Goals of the Texas Federation include: endorsing qualified women for policy making positions in public office; guaranteeing equal rights and eliminating all far-reaching discriminations against women; elevating the dignity of women as career persons and homemakers; and enriching the working woman in all areas.

A few of the Texas Federation's accomplishments and continuing programs are: ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in Texas, constant leadership for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in Congress, young career woman program and award, torch award which recognizes and honors business firms and industries which afford women employees equal opportunity for achievement, and sponsorship for the Status of Women Commission for state and community.

The goals are set in the interest of all working women. They are multi-faceted and are all aimed at helping women by providing tools such as seminars and workshops in the areas of goal setting, personal financial investing, stress management and communication.

Individual Development Programs were strongly emphasized. BPW clubs throughout agree this is one of the most important and effective tools in the "Women Helping Women" concept. The programs, seminars and workshops are available to members.

New members introduced were Mary Watson, Patsy McNew and Virginia Collins.

GRANDFATHER AND STUDENT — Joe Jones, 53, sits at a table piled high with books and papers in his Philadelphia home recently. Four years ago, Jones, was unemployed and could not invert a fraction. Today he holds a bachelor's degree in computer math from the University of Pennsylvania. He has begun work on his master's and plans to start work on his Ph.D. this fall.

49-year-old HS dropout isn't Walter Mitty to college scene

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Jones was a 49-year-old black high school dropout who couldn't invert a fraction. But the unemployed father of 12 and grandfather of seven decided to get a Ph.D. degree in math.

He said he has never doubted that he could do it since he made up his mind four years ago.

"I'm not into daydreams, understand?" Jones said. "If you really want something and stick to it long enough, I think you can do it."

Today, at 53, Jones holds a bachelor's degree in computer math from the University of Pennsylvania. He has begun work on his master's degree and next fall he plans to start work on that Ph.D.

"Based on his background — he had been out of school at least 20 years — we wouldn't have predicted he'd make it," said

Valerie Cade, who met Jones in 1981 as director of PennCap, short for Pennsylvania Commonwealth Achievement Plan for bright but financially disadvantaged students.

The program, funded by the state and the university, provides tutoring, counseling and support services to 150 undergraduate students who have met Penn's admission requirements but, because of their financial background, may not have had college preparation courses.

"By and large, these students are usually the top students in their high schools," said PennCap Associate Director Sharon Harris. "Joe was the oldest student we've ever had, in nine years."

Ms. Cade, now an assistant associate provost at the school, remembered Jones' determination. "He just said, 'I'm going to succeed. I've got a lot of motivation but I need help with the skills."

"We suggested services like tutoring and career advisers. He used the counselors and tutors for about six months — at which time we got him to be a tutor and a counselor."

As a child, Jones, the oldest of eight children, had dreamed of being a doctor. But he had to drop out of high school when he was 17 to help support his family.

He worked in construction, on the railroad, served in the Army and tended bar. For 20 years he was a custom truck maker, then a welder, a spray painter and an assembly line worker. But he hung on to his dream of going back to school.

"I used to cross the Penn campus on my way to work every day," he recalled. "I made up my mind that some day, I would go there."

Texas couple battle the rain, snow to keep land 100 years

DEXTER (AP) — The crape myrtle is still alive, having grown several feet higher and wider through the decades. The remnants of the old well, now filled with rocks, have become a favorite hiding place for one sly rabbit often chased by the family dogs, and the storm cellar is still leaking after all these years.

Virgil and Louise Welch worried that last year's hard winter would at last kill off the almost century-old East Indian shrub, but the crape myrtle, like Louise's family homestead, has survived.

"I guess that's what makes it so interesting, that one piece of land has stayed so long in a family," Virgil said.

Virgil and Louise and their son, Walter Dee Welch, and his family are among 92 property-owning families in the state whose land will be honored by the State Department of Agriculture and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower for "maintaining continuous agricultural production for a century or more."

The Welches are the only Cooke County family to be honored this year by the Texas Family Land Heritage Program. Since the program's beginning in 1974, the state has registered 1,821 farms and ranches. Cooke County communities have been home to about 20 of these farms and ranches.

The 169.77 acres of honored property belonging to the Welches has a history dating back to the 1800s. A major piece of the land, about 157 acres, was purchased by Louise's great-grandfather, Isham Lamb, from J.M. Lindsay Feb. 25, 1870. Great-grandfather Lamb purchased the remaining 12.77 acres from Lindsay on March 28, 1874.

Louise still remembers playing in one of the huge apple trees that was once a part of her great-grandfather's orchard. The orchard is now only remembered by Louise (and the four remaining pear trees that stand northwest of Virgil's and Louise's home, if they remember such things.)

Louise's grandfather, a corn farmer, is credited with holding the family farm together. After the land passed on to him and his brothers and sisters, he bought out his siblings and added another stretch of land just south of the original property. Grandfather Lamb's purchase brought the family acreage to 352 acres.

Louise and her sister were born in a house built by her grandparents, D. and Elizabeth Lamb. The home was made of hand-hewn oak logs that were held together with clay and wooden spikes.

An 1890 photograph of Louise's grandparents shows the family in the process of adding siding and a new roof to the home. Pictured in front of the logs is the same old crape myrtle bush, then in its infancy.

Virgil said the family spent years wondering before a professional photographer explained to them why the family dog appeared as twins in the picture.

The dog — or dogs as depicted in the photograph — were a product of 1890 technology. Everybody but the dog knew to stand still for the picture. While the shutter was standing open for the correct time exposure, "Spot" moved and a "ghost dog" or double image of the pooch appeared on the print.

Claude and Ola Lamb, Louise's parents, inherited the land and the log house from Grandfather and Grandmother Lamb.

Ola was a lover of flowers. The yard surrounding her log home was either filled with flowers or "swept clean" in the areas where flowers would not grow, Louise recalls.

For her father, it was his fields — corn, cotton, wheat, hay, oats and peanuts.

A believer in the tried-and-true methods of farming, her father at one time finally decided to trade his two mules, Kate and Jude, on a tractor, Louise said. He made the deal with Gainesville's Schad and Pulte, but after a worrisome night returned the next morning and traded back.

"He just wasn't convinced the tractor could do the job," Virgil said, adding that Lamb was eventually won over to farming with a tractor.

Much of the family house was torn down when Louise's sister, Jean, needed the timber to build a new home in Whitesboro, Texas. When Virgil and Louise returned to Dexter to make a home on the family property they tore down the remaining log walls that had been left to sway in the wind.

Virgil and Louise had left Dexter in 1955 for El Paso. Between 1955 and 1976 they lived in El Paso and Hobbs, N.M., working as part-time cattle raisers and full-time teachers.

The couple retired in 1976 and made the decision to return.

"We didn't retire to rest, we retired to go to work," Virgil said.

And work they did. They moved back to the north corner of the family property that had become Louise's after the deaths of her mother and father and set about the task of building a home in what Virgil describes as a "jungle."

"It was just like homesteading new land," Virgil said.

Virgil and Louise built their new stone and brick home about 30 yards from the sight of the old log house.

They weaved in family heirlooms and pieces of family heritage into their home wherever possible.

White washes Colts in first 1984 start 22-3

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Danny White doesn't have it made, yet. White's 1984 debut as the starting Dallas Cowboys' quarterback bordered on the sensational in a 22-3 National Football League victory on Sunday over the Indianapolis Colts.

But Coach Tom Landry refused to make White's new No. 1 status permanent.

White threw touchdown passes of 38 yards to Tony Hill and 5 yards to Doug Cosbie. He was on target with 21 of 32 passes for 262 yards.

The Cowboys' record increased to 6-3 and with the New York Giants' win over the Redskins, the Cowboys see themselves tied for first place in the NFC East with St.

Louis. The Colts, meanwhile, dropped to 3-6.

But did White win the job over Gary Hogeboom for the New York Giant game next week?

Not necessarily.

"I've said all along that I have two starting quarterbacks," said Landry. "I will use 'em when I feel like using them. If I feel like using Gary next week I'll use him."

Landry added, "Danny made a lot of good decisions because of his experience. He did exactly what I thought he would do. Still Gary did a great job in the first half of the season."

White, who played on a sprained ankle, said he would just wait and see.

"I hope I didn't have anything to prove but maybe I did to some people," said White. "It was fun doing it."

Landry said he would rather be able to name a permanent No. 1 quarterback.

"I don't like having to answer questions about it all week," Landry. "I'd rather not have to worry about it. But it's important to do what we have to do to win games."

White's performance came as no surprise to Kush.

"He's always been a big play quarterback," said Kush, who coached White at Arizona State. "He was just like he has always been."

White said, "I'll take it. I felt very comfortable, good and relaxed. I couldn't move as good as I could."

The Cowboys activated punter John Warren for the game so White wouldn't be bothered with that duty.

He said he would be disappointed if he didn't get to start again.

"I don't know if this is a one game shot or not and only Coach Landry knows," White said. "He'll let us know. I'm just ready to do anything I can to help this team."

Tony Hill, one of White's biggest detractors who said he didn't serve up "medicine ball" passes, caught 8 balls for 125 yards.

"That's all water over the bridge," said Hill.

The Cowboys played conservatively in the second half after building a 13-0 lead at intermission. Rafael Septien kicked three short field goals after Colt mistakes.

The Colts' only shining moment came on a 44-yard pass from Mark Herrmann to fullback Randy McMillan in the fourth period.

It setup a 52-yard field goal by Raul Allegre to prevent a Dallas shutout.

The game also marked a comeback for the Cowboy rushing game.

Tony Dorsett rushed for 104 yards on 24 carries for the Cowboys. It was his first 100-yard rushing game since December, 1983, over a period of 12 games.

But the main show was White. "Oh mamma mia," said Kush, who was White's coach at Arizona State. "I thought he did a great job. He had good protection but he picked out his receivers very well. On a number of occasions he went to his secondary receivers."

Landry said he'd let everyone know about his starting quarterback situation.

"I don't want to make any changes about quarterbacks right after a game," Landry said. "You would like to have one quarterback for the whole season but as I've said, this is a different season."

Denver kicks way past Raiders 22-19

By The Associated Press

The last two times the Denver Broncos visited the West Coast, they weren't happy experiences.

Last year, rookie quarterback John Elway had a hard time getting started against San Diego — in fact, he lined up once behind the guard and cost his team a penalty — and the Broncos went on to lose to the Chargers, 31-7. Against the Seattle Seahawks in the National Football League playoffs, it was another blowout, also by a 31-7 score.

Sunday, however, was different, as the surprising Broncos beat the Los Angeles Raiders 22-19 in a sudden-death overtime thriller on a last-second 35-yard field goal by Rich Karlis.

A 41-yard pass from Marc Wilson to Malcolm Barnwell on the second play of overtime put the ball at the Denver 11. The Raiders eschewed the field goal and Frank Hawkins fumbled on the next play, with Denver recovering on its 7.

Later in OT, Roger Jackson intercepted Wilson's pass and returned it 23 yards to the Raider 22 with 38 seconds left. Karlis, who had been wide on a 42-yard attempt with 3:30 left in overtime, didn't miss this time.

BREAKS 100 — Dallas Cowboys' runningback Tony Dorsett (33) moves around Indianapolis Colts' defensive end Blaise Winter (96) for a nine yard gain in the fourth quarter Sunday afternoon. Dorsett went over the 100-yard mark for the first time in 12 games and Dallas won the game, 22-3. Dorsett finished with 104 yards.

Chargers to try avoiding Monday loss

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The last time the San Diego Chargers played without All-Pro tight end Kellen Winslow, they were thrashed by the Seattle Seahawks in a game not nearly as close as the 31-17 final score suggests.

If anything, tonight's rematch of the AFC West opponents is potentially more troublesome for the Chargers, who not only have lost Winslow for the season but may take the field without their second- and third-best receivers as well.

"We'll do our best to throw the football, but we'll have to do things a little differently," said Coach Don Coryell, who grimaced from the sidelines last week as Winslow, Wes Chandler and Pete Holohan were hurt in a 44-37 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders.

Winslow's injury was the most serious; ligaments in his right knee were shredded so badly that immediate surgery was required. Chandler suffered a deep knee bruise, and Holohan sprained an ankle. Only Holohan is considered possible for tonight, and he did not practice last week.

Those are devastating losses to San Diego, a 4-4 team struggling to stay alive in the division race. With prolific Dan Fouts (2,511 passing yards this season) at quarterback, the Chargers have averaged 309 yards a game through the air.

Coach Chuck Knox's Seahawks, meanwhile, have shrugged off injuries to such key players as Curt Warner, Eric Lane and Paul Johns to record six victories in eight games, relying on an alternately sharp offense and defense and marvelous special team work.

"It's just been one of those kinds of years," Knox said. "We've been fortunate in a lot of games where we've made the plays when we needed to make them."

With Denver's 22-19 overtime defeat of the Raiders on Sunday, tonight's game is pivotal in the AFC West race. A loss likely would drop the Chargers out of playoff contention, while the Seahawks must win to remain tied with Los Angeles in second place behind the 8-1 Broncos.

Winslow, the NFL's leading receiver over the past five seasons, caught 55 passes for 663 yards this year despite missing a game because of a contract dispute.

That game was the second of the year, in Seattle, and it was a debacle. The Seahawks forced the Chargers into eight turnovers — four fumbles and four interceptions — and converted three times for 17 of their points.

"It's a habit with teams that play them," Coryell said. "It's not by accident — it's a result of their physical play."

Seattle leads the NFL in turnover ratio, having forced 34 turnovers and surrendered 21. At the midway point of the season, 101 of the team's 220 points have been the result of work by either the defense or special units.

If Holohan cannot play, Coryell will be forced to abandon the one-back offense he has employed since 1979 to accommodate Fouts' bountiful passing talent. That formation requires two healthy tight ends.

Such a switch would mean more playing time for rushers Buford McGee, Lionel James and Wayne Morris, who among them have carried the ball only 43 times this year.

"It also means that the young receivers (Bobby Duckworth and Jesse Bendross) are going to play a lot of ball," Coryell said. "We know it isn't going to be easy."

Knox has cut and pasted together a consistent winner without Warner, who led the AFC with 1,449 yards rushing in 1983 but went down with a knee injury in this year's opening game.

Lane, his replacement, was the team's leading rusher before injuring a knee last week.

NFL Roundup

"It was a great win," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said after the struggle before 91,020 roaring fans in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the largest regular-season crowd in the NFL since Oct. 3, 1954, when 93,621 saw the San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles Rams play to a 24-24 tie.

"I don't know what more I can say about these players," Reeves added. "To beat the world champions at home is really something. It could have gone either way. To be in first place at this stage of the season is a great accomplishment."

It was, incidentally, the second victory for the Broncos this year over the defending Super Bowl champions, a team they beat 16-13 earlier in the year to hand the 7-2 Raiders both their losses.

The result dropped the Raiders one game behind the 8-1 Broncos in the American Conference West race with third-place Seattle, 6-2, in action tonight at San Diego.

The second-year quarterback broke Bob Griese's single-season passing yardage mark of 2,473 yards late in the first quarter and finished the day with 2,672 yards with seven regular-season games left in the 1984 campaign.

Only non-surprise in NYCM is sixth win by Grete Waitz

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the 1984 New York City Marathon, race director Fred Lebow had promised, "You will be surprised."

While Lebow did not predict what the surprise would be in Sunday's race, even he had to be shocked by the name of the winner — Orlando Pizzolato, a 26-year-old native of Piovone, Italy, who never had won a marathon in 12 previous races.

The race was marred by the death of a 48-year-old French runner, Jacques Bussereau, who suffered an apparent heart attack midway through the race. It was the first fatality in the 15-year history of the event.

Unseasonable warm temperatures in the mid-70s and humidity readings in the 90s contributed to a busy day for medical technicians. About 200 runners were treated at area hospitals for dehydration and cramps, compared with nine last year.

Pizzolato's best marathon time was 2 hours, 14 minutes, 42 seconds, when he finished fourth in the 1983 Rome Marathon — hardly considered a world-class clocking.

The previous eight winners of the New York City Marathon — since the race was taken strictly out of Central Park in 1976 and run through the city's five boroughs — had been Bill Rodgers (four times), Alberto Salazar (three times) and Rod Dixon of New Zealand (last year). Each was regarded as an elite marathoner.

Not Pizzolato.

Even Italian journalists here for the race were hard-pressed to come up with much significant information on him.

And, Laura Fogli, the third-place finisher in the women's race, won for the third consecutive year and the sixth time in seven years by Norway's Grete Waitz, was surprised at Pizzolato's victory.

"I thought he would lose, because he's too nervous before a race," said Fogli, who trains with Pizzolato in Ferrara, in northern Italy.

Nervousness appeared to be the least of Pizzolato's worries Sunday.

His biggest problems were severe stomach cramps and the heat and humidity which gripped the 26-mile, 385-yard course.

Pizzolato, who had surged into the lead near the halfway point of the race, began experiencing difficulty with about five miles remaining.

From that stage until he struggled across the finish line, he stopped eight times, grabbing his stomach in obvious pain, and at times, it appeared he would have to stop completely.

But after each brief respite, the gritty Pizzolato continued, and surprisingly never lost his lead.

"I had some cramps in my legs and in my stomach," said Pizzolato, whose winning time of 2:14:53 was the slowest in the New York City Marathon since Tom Fleming's 2:19:27 in 1975 and nearly seven minutes slower than the world-best of 2:06:05 set last week in the America's Marathon-Chicago by Steve Jones of Britain.

"Also, along the course, it was very hot and very hard to run."

He added that he had no intention of quitting.

"The important runners were behind me," continued Pizzolato, who had finished 27th in last year's New York City Marathon. "I had the courage to keep running."

His courage was remarkable indeed.

Afterward, he said the physical problems that had plagued him during the race had disappeared.

"Now, I feel fine," said Pizzolato, who earned $25,000 from the total purse of $273,800 and was given a Mercedes Benz, valued at $23,000.

Dave Murphy, a native of Britain now living in Louisville, Ky., finished a distant second in 2:15:36. West Germany's Herbert Steffy was third in 2:16:22, and was followed by Pat Petersen of Ronkokoma, N.Y. in 2:16:35 and Gianni Demadonna of Italy in 2:17:05.

Dixon, the first foreigner to win the race since it was inaugurated in 1970, was unable to defend his title. He dropped out, because of stomach cramps, about 100 yards short of the 21-mile mark, when he was in fourth place.

Waitz, meanwhile, had little difficulty in winning again, after overcoming diarrhea and stomach cramps, which she said nearly forced her to quit.

She thought the problem was caused by drinking too many fluids.

"It was very warm, so I was drinking more than usual," said the 31-year-old Waitz, whose only loss in nine marathons in which she has finished came in the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, where she was second to Joan Benoit of the United States.

"I had stomach cramps for the first three or four miles ... I think I dehydrated. The first part of the race I wasn't concentrating on the race, but on my stomach."

"I was seriously thinking of dropping out," added Waitz, whose six victories in the same marathon put her only one behind the record, held by Clarence DeMar, who captured the Boston Marathon seven times.

SPRINGING THE TRAP — Dallas Mavericks guard, Rolando Blackman (22) slips out of a half-court press by Los Angeles' Lakers Jamaal Wilkes during the waning moments of Sunday night's NBA game in Dallas. The Mavericks kept the Lakers winless, 107-96.

Mavericks mow down Lakers 107-96

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks Coach Dick Motta had plenty of reasons to be pessimistic as his team awaited its game against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Lakers, who fell to the Boston Celtics in last spring's National Basketball Association championship, were coming off a season-opening 113-112 loss to the San Antonio Spurs.

"We're on national television, it's a full house and Magic (Johnson) loves the big crowds," said Motta. "I thought we were in for a buzzsaw tonight."

Instead, Motta's team led from the first bucket, went up by as many as 23 points and held off a pair of Laker rallies to take a surprising 107-96 victory Sunday night.

"We just seemed to play well against this team," said Motta. "But they are not playing their best yet. They will be."

"I don't know if it's us getting up or them getting a little bit down, but we really seem to play well against the Lakers," said Dallas' Jay Vincent, who scored 16 points to support teammate Mark Aguirre's game-high 31.

"We feel confident when we play LA that we can win the basketball game," said Rolando Blackman, who added 14 points for Dallas, 1-1.

"We know that if we can cut down on their fast-break points, we can win. If we don't, we're out of it."

The Lakers, who eliminated the Mavericks in the Western Conference playoffs last season, were able to fastbreak only sporadically on the Mavericks, who burst out to leads of 21-7 and 48-25. The Lakers cut the margin to 67-62 in the third quarter and, with four minutes left in the game, trimmed it to 95-90 on a Michael Cooper basket.

Aguirre responded with a 12-foot jumper and followed that with two free throws to regain control for Dallas.

"We didn't panic, especially when they had surges and came back," said Blackman. "We all knew we had to cut a little harder and go off screens a little harder. It was a feeling within us."

The Lakers, who opened the season 0-2 for the first time since the 1981-82 season, are admittedly off form.

"I'm still not in the groove," said Johnson, who scored only nine points, including only three during a first half in which Dallas built a 59-46 bulge.

Seattle, 1-1, got 25 points from Tom Chambers.

Walts-Nagelsen cop World Doubles

HOUSTON (AP) — By the time Betsy Nagelsen and Butch Walts reached the finals of the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships, they were confident they had a chance to win.

And by the time they had scored a 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory Sunday over Vince Van Patten and Kathy Rinaldi, the unseeded winners weren't apologizing for accepting the $100,000 first prize.

"I have to say that we deserved to win," Walts said. "We had a tough draw and we had to work for everything we got. Noone gave us anything."

Nagelsen-Walts beat Elizabeth Sayers and Sherwood Stewart in a tough first-round match, upset fourth-seeded Billie Jean King and Peter Fleming in the quarterfinals and dispatched hometown favorites Zina Garrison and Sammy Giammalva to gain Sunday's finals.

All four seeds were eliminated before reaching the finals.

"We played our best match against Billie Jean and Peter," Walts said. "We practiced hard and just tried to be aggressive."

Van Patten, who was not broken throughout a three-set semifinal victory over Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors, was broken in the first game of the match and again in the ninth game of the opening set.

"I didn't think I played as well today, I was a little nervous," Van Patten said. "I played better last night (against Lloyd-Connors). I felt like I let Kathy down tonight."

Van Patten was broken again at love in the second game of the second set and Nagelsen-Walts took a 3-0 lead.

WINNING SMILES — Butch Walts and Betsy Nagelsen are $100,000 richer after taking the World Mixed Doubles title Sunday in Houston by defeating Vince Van Patten and Kathy Rinaldi in four sets.

Kratzert is boosted by tourney victory

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Bill Kratzert, in the ake of his slump-breaking triumph in the Pensacola Open, gave thanks to his good friend Chi Chi Rodriguez.

"Chi Chi is probably my best friend. In those years when I was down — I was so down I even thought about getting out of golf — he kept telling me that everybody goes through it, to keep on striving," Kratzert said Sunday after a great rally provided him with his first victory since 1980.

Kratzert, trying to fight his way out of a career-threatening slump, was two shots back with four holes to play before reeling off a decisive string of three consecutive birdies and a one-putt par on the 18th that provided him with a closing 66 and a 2-shot triumph with a 270 total, 14 under par.

This was worth $54,000 — more than Kratzert had won in the two previous seasons combined — from the total purse of $300,000, boosted his earnings for the year to $149,627 and provided him with a new lease on his golfing life.

"This means everything to me," he said. "I feel I can compete again. For two years, I was just trying to make the cut. Now, on any given week, I feel I can win the championship."

"I'm very proud of Billy. It's the end of a slump. And it's well deserved by someone who worked awfully, awfully hard," said John Mahaffey, who led by two shots with four holes to go but had to settle for a tie for second at 272. He had a closing 68.

Mahaffey was tied with Ken Brown of Scotland, who had a closing 69. Brown, playing in his first full season on the American tour, was in danger of losing his playing rights, but won $26,400 and secured an exemption for next year when he finished 112th on the money-winning list for 1984 with $47,625.

England with a 25-yard third-quarter touchdown burst and quarterback Tony Eason threw five yards to Stephen Starring for the go-ahead score in the fourth period as the Patriots rallied from a 17-point deficit to beat the Jets and give Raymond Berry a victory in his NFL coaching debut.

The victory followed a week of upheaval in New England — Berry had replaced Ron Meyer only Thursday after Meyer precipitated a crisis on Wednesday by firing defensive coordinator Rod Rust.

Saints 16

Browns 14

Morten Andersen kicked a 53-yard field goal despite a driving rain as time expired to boost New Orleans over Cleveland and spoil the NFL debut of Browns' Coach Marty Schottenheimer, the Browns' defensive coordinator who replaced Sam Rutigliano last Monday.

Bears 16

Vikings 7

Jim McMahon passed for 180 yards and one touchdown and the Chicago defense, ranked No. 1 in the NFL, registered a club-record 11 sacks while beating Minnesota. Archie Manning, filling in for injured quarterback Tommy Kramer, was dropped for losses totaling 101 yards. The NFL record for sacks is 12 held by the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Baltimore Colts.

Cardinals 34

Eagles 14

Neil Lomax completed 20 of 26 passes for 286 yards and two touchdowns and Stump Mitchell ended long drives with a pair of 1-yard scores as St. Louis rallied to defeat Philadelphia. Lomax' game-winning touchdown of 8 yards to Pat Tilley capped a 27-yard second-period drive.

Steelers 35

Falcons 10

Mark Malone threw three touchdown passes, two to John Stallworth, and Dwayne Woodruff returned a fumble 65 yards to score on Atlanta's first play as the Steelers routed the Falcons.

Malone fired passes of 20 and 31 yards to Stallworth and 7 yards to Rich Erenberg while Frank Pollard ran for 111 yards and scored the Steelers' other touchdown.

Bengals 31

Oilers 13

Ken Anderson completed 13 passes in a row at one point, and Larry Kinnebrew scored four close-range touchdowns to lead Cincinnati over the 0-9 Oilers.

Anderson, who has beaten the Oilers six consecutive times and set an NFL record with 20 consecutive completions in a 1982 game, continued his mastery over the Oilers by hitting 18 of 24 passes for 154 yards.

Chiefs 24

Bucs 20

Bill Kenney completed 26 of 46 passes for 332 yards and two touchdowns, lifting Kansas City over Tampa Bay in a game which featured an NFL-record 100 passes.

Steve DeBerg tried 54 passes for the Bucs and coupled with Kenney to break the record of 98 set in 1969 by the Minnesota Vikings and Baltimore Colts.

Packers 41

Lions 9

Lynn Dickey fired four touchdown passes, Eddie Lee Ivey rushed for 116 yards and safety Tom Flynn intercepted two passes as Green Bay broke a seven-game losing streak with a victory over the Lions.

Dickey was especially effective in the first half, when he tossed three TD passes in staking the Packers to a 28-9 halftime lead.

Keri Myrick, a 5-3 sophomore setter, played an important role for the District 4-5A third place Lady Steers volleyball team as a reserve this year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Myrick has been playing the sport for the past five years. She credits her first coach Linda Battle, for encouraging her to play the sport. "She pushed me and made the sport exciting to play."

Myrick said she plays volleyball because, "It's a sport that helps you learn to work as a team and play together."

Her hobbies include water and snow skiing and riding horses and bikes. Her favorite subjects are english and science. Myrick is also a member of Fellowship of Christian Athletes, band, Color Guard, Student Council and Home Run Honey

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 30, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is no day to take any chances with your good name. Do what those in positions of power expect of you and be a good citizen. Temptations could lead you into an unwise fracas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be conscientious in handling your work and don't quarrel with anyone or you get into big trouble. Employ poise and tact.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Stick to regular work since this is not the day to look for greener pastures. Presevere at promises made.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to forget some obligation that is annoying you, but could get in trouble, so handle it now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't take the bait if an associate is in the mood for an argument. Keep busy at your own work.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Your ideas disagree with those of a co-worker, but avoid arguments. Use your own good judgment and get a much done.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to economize more, particularly where recreation is concerned. Spend time at something productive and satisfying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Maintain peace at home where the wrong word could trigger a disaster. Use care in invitations and motion of all kind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid one who is in the mood to fight. Be more objective in conversations. Keep calm and collected and all will be fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not commit yourself to some big expense that you cannot afford. Follow advice of a seasoned business person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get out of that discontented mood and do something constructive. If you go out socially, avoid controversies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A private affair could get you quite angry, but don't jump on innocent bystanders. Research a present dilemma.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good friend may do something today that is not to your liking, but do not try to force your point of view on him.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will need to channel energy in the right directions, such as sports, so as not to get into trouble. One who will need a good college education. The field of engineering is especially good here, so stress this.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
