candidates for Howard County Commissioner Precinct 3 say they are glad the race has not degenerated into a name-calling or mud-slinging contest, like other local, state and national races.

'If I had to do that to win, I would rather not even run in the first place. If I can't win on my name and reputation, I'd rather not even have run," Democratic challenger Joneil Smallwood, owner of Smallwood's Western Wear, said.

Four-time Republican incumbent Bill Crooker said he agrees. "I wouldn't run that kind of race," said Crooker, the owner of Mr. G's Garden Center at Highland South Shopping Center. "I just wouldn't do it."

Both candidates point to their business experience - both own and operate small businesses - as evidence of their financial management ability.

Smallwood says that people in his precinct are "ready for a change." In contrast, Crooker points to his experience and accomplishments on the commissioners' court as reasons for his re-

"Experience is the issue in this

Among his accomplishments, Crooker cites lowered tax rates and the build-up of a multi-million dollar surplus that will pay for county construction needs.

Smallwood, however, says that the most recent of such cuts had little effect on individuals, who only saved a few dollars a year.

"They should have cut it twice as much if they were going to cut it at Smallwood said. "People have told me they would rather pay the same amount than have to make it up later."

Crooker defends the tax cut, saying that the small cuts, when added up over the last three or four years, mount up to'larger savings "I don't feel we should continue

'Nice guy' vs. Montford

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

The race for the state senate seat for the 28th District, which includes Big Spring and Howard County, has been a battle against obscurity for the Republican challenger, Lubbock attorney Sol Thomas.

The one-term incumbent, state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, won't even refer to Thomas by name. In a visit to Big Spring, he called Thomas "what's-his-name."

"He's a nice guy," Montford says of Thomas. "And I tell everyone that's what we don't need. It's like putting a goldfish in a shark tank to put him in the Senate.

Thomas, who has his law office in the same building as Montford's, fights back. "He says we must not run around in the same circles,' Thomas said. "Well, I run around (working for) the Boy Scouts (and other charitable organizations)."

Montford is a former criminal district attorney for Lubbock County. His last visit to Big Spring, on Oct. 16, was one of the most heavily attended appearances in town by a campaigning politician this year. He was elected to the state senate in 1982, but only to a twoyear term. Montford lost a random drawing after election when the senate was trying to stagger its four-year terms.

Both Thomas and Montford said they see the school reform bill passed in the special session of the Legislature, H.B. 72, as a major issue during the next session.

Thomas has said the first thing he will do, if elected, is submit a bill to repeal the school reform bill. The second bill he would submit, he said, would be his own version of public school reforms.

Guidelines set by H. Ross Perot, who headed the committee that made recommendations for the bill, did not take into account the importance of some "extracurricular" programs like vocational agriculture, Thomas said.

Thomas, who worked as a farmer before graduating from law school, said vocational agriculture programs are important to many children attending high school. And because of long distances between school and agricultural show sites, participants would suffer under the new guidelines, he said.

Thomas also would call for the repeal of the state sales tax voted in during the special session to pay for the school reforms.

In contrast, Montford said he would not throw out the entire bill because the equalization of state

FORT WORTH (AP) - Picket one defense contractor in the lines went up today at General United States and yet they want to 3,400 union workers went on strike against the defense contractor, the city's largest employer with 15,000 workers.

By a margin of 98 percent, members of District Lodge 776 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers voted Sunday for the walkout, the first at the aircraft manufacturing plant since 1946.

"We are out and we have people out on the picket lines right now.' union spokesman Larry Harmon said shortly after midnight. He said there was no second shift Sunday so the early morning shift was the first to go off the job.

Lodge president Pat Lane said his members voted in favor of the strike 4,936 to 108 aftter turning down a proposed new three-year contract.

Lane said he expected some 1,200 office and clerical workers, whose contract also expired at midnight and who were to report to work this meening, to honor the picket lines.

However, a plant spokesman said the plant was open and office and clerical workers crossed the picket lines to go to work Monday. 'We've worked for the number

General Dynamics spokesman Z. Joe Thornton said negotiations halted at noon Thursday when union representatives walked out, "preventing the parties from a full opportunity to avoid a strike."

County to receive funds for programs

Howard County will receive $11,000 for emergency aid programs through a national board chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, County Judge Milton Kirby said.

According to Kirby, the money will supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the county. The program will be administered by the United Way, he said.

The aid is part of a $70 million Congressional appropriation to "expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country," Kirby said.

A local board, composed of Kirby, the United Way and others, will determine how the fund will be distributed among the local programs in the area. Under the terms of the grant, local governmental or private voluntary organizations selected to receive funds must: be nonprofit, have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit; practice nondiscrimination; and have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and shelter programs.

If they are a private voluntary organization, the recipient organization should have a voluntary board.

Persons seeking information about the programs or emergency aid also should contact Ms. Bordofske, who is heading the annual fund drive for the non-profit organization.

As part of that fund drive, the member agencies organized a "Jamaica Gala Day" downtown last Saturday.

AUSTIN (AP) - Police today were investigating the discovery of parts of a dismembered body which were found in Town Lake by passers-by.

The body parts were discovered about mid-day Sunday by a man and his son who had gone fishing and a woman who was walking her dogs, officers said.

Police said they had no leads, but believe the arms, legs and thighs had been severed by a knife or saw.

Investigators said the body parts were found about 11:30 a.m. near Fiesta Gardens across the street from a city power plant. The body parts found Sunday were

His opponent, Smallwood, said he could not actually comment on the budget because he was not on the court during the budget ap-

However, Smallwood said he would examine carefully every request by outside groups for county funding. "It's not the county's place to fund very many of them unless it is something to serve the biggest majority of the county," he

Montford also said he has drafted another state water plan, to ensure both West and East Texas of meeting their water needs through conservation. The new bill includes provision more favorable to agricultural consumption of water, Thomas also supports a state water plan, but said he wants water importation to be an "integral" part of that plan. He says providing incentives for importation will cost $20 billion, half of the cost Montford has predicted. Montford does not favor water importation immediately.

In addition, Montford said he has drafted a bill that would allow the sons convicted of multiple, or serial, murders, such as Henry Lee Lucas and Ottis Elwood Toole, both charged with murders in Howard County. Thomas also said he supports such a bill.

Montford said he wants to straighten out the state prison system, which currently is being managed by the federal courts. The high mortality rate and crowding in the state prisons occurred after the courts stepped in,

Thomas also has several criminal justice reforms he wants to initiate, including stronger drug and DWI laws with stiffer penalties, a new victim compensation bill to pay for any loss resulting from a criminal act, and a law that would allow juries during the sentencing phase to discuss a sentence. Thomas said he supports state funding for training of municipal and county law enforcement agencies and the construction of new medium security prisons to alleviate overcrowding in the prison system.

Montford also said he would continue to support state funding for the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, and would try to establish such funding on a permanent basis.

"I think we should do everything we can for it," Thomas said of SWCID. However, he said he could not make a blanket promise to sup-port funding until he studied the program and its needs.

Thomas also said he would oppose the creation of a state corporate or personal income tax. He said he wants to reduce state spending, lower taxes, encourage the death penalty to be imposed on per- migration of "clean" - or nonpolluting — business to the state and offer a bond program to finance new housing.

pretty completely" and found that aside from stores in the two offprice malls, "the city was pretty much in compliance.' David Christensen, owner of five stores called Textile Outlets of Houston Inc., said he and other businessmen in the two recently opened malls decided to challenge the 23-year-old law after a state district judge ruled in favor of Handy Dan Do-It-Yourself Home Centers Oct. 9.

'If it's right for Handy Dan, why isn't it right for the merchants at the Buyers Market malls?" Christensen asked. Christensen was working at a west Houston store.

State District Judge Dee Brown Walker ruled Friday the blue law is unconstitutional, unenforceable and "out of joint with the times." Christensen is the leader of mer-

David Jacobs, manager of Bart's Menswear at the north Houston Buyers Market store, said 'customer reaction has been very favorable" to the Sunday opening.

'Customer traffic in this mall and in my store is substantially better than it is the first half of the week," he said. Jacobs said he estimated his sales were 40 to 50 percent higher than on a normal Monday or Tuesday.

Jacobs said about three-quarters of the approximately 40 stores in his mall were open. He said his stores would remain open on Sundays permanently, "not just for the Christmas season.' Some Houston stores outside the State Sen. John Montford of Lubbock has drawn Republican opposition to his re-election. But in talking with his opponent, a listener gets the sense that that hat may be in the ring more to ensure there is competition than to fight for a victory.

The truth is, Montford's challenger doesn't have anything bad to say about Montford. Maybe that's because Montford, a studious, sensible office-holder, gives his foe little fodder.

Montford is destined to become a force in Austin politics. His savvy, sense of balance and powers of persuasion will serve him well in the state senate. They already have. He landed plaudits from Texas Monthly as "outstanding freshman senator," and has already mapped out his January agenda: a long-overdue water program and proposals for

Crooker in county race

When you ask Bill Crooker a question, you know you are going to get a straight-forward, thorough answer, grounded solidly in fact. Crooker does his homework, and he is an asset to the Howard County Commissioners Court in his Precinct 3 spot.

You may not always agree with Crooker's stance, and we suppose something would be amiss if disagreement weren't a part of politics, but you can feel comfortable that Crooker is giving his best judgment when he offers a point of view.

Some of that solidness of judgment comes from four terms on the commissioners court, some of it from plain hard work.

Crooker, the Republican candidate, faces a good man in Democratic challenger Joneil Smallwood. In another election, against a different opponent, we think he would serve public office well. But Crooker is a proven force on the court. He deserves re-election to that job.

Elaborate deceit

Planned Parenthood likes to lull the unsuspecting into thinking its goals are something no decent person could oppose. That is understandable but dishonest. wspaper ad campaign sponsored by its New York City affiliate, which equates some innocuous positions with some highly debatable ones, fuzzes over its positions and hides behind a fictional public consensus.

The group is as skilled as President Reagan in wrapping itself in wholesome American values. One ad pictures a smiling cherub over the caption: "A happy baby is the best argument for birth control." It goes on to make a case for contraception: too many births are unwanted, which leads to child abuse and welfare dependency; so birth control should be available.

Planned Parenthood of New York City surely doesn't worry that the availability of contraception is in danger. There is no reason to spend money to convince Americans that birth control is OK, since they're already convinced. What this ad is pushing, the reader learns toward the end, is legal abortion - something that most people do not regard as morally indistinguishable from contraception. It urges letters to Congress saying, among other things, "I believe in a woman's right to safe, legal abortion."

The other ads are more explicit, but most of them downplay abortion and carefully disguise Planned Parenthood's position on the issue. Its interpretation of the phrase, the "right to a safe, legal abortion" is expansive, to say the least.

For the record, the group favors not only access to abortion, but taxpayer funding of abortion. It supports the right to abortion not only in the first trimester but also in the second. It thinks abortion should be available not just to adults, but to minors, without their parents' con- to their side nor built a morally sent. woman's freedom to destroy her

The evidence it marshals for its position is unpersuasive. One ad asks, "If you agree that every child should be loved, shouldn't you support a woman's right to abortion?" This logic falls short of Aristotelian rigor. Believing that every husband should be loved doesn't mean that wives who don't love their husbands should be free to kill them. And if the premier goal is ensuring that every child is loved, why not allow infanticide? Another ad notes the alarming rate of teen-age pregnancy, arguing that "preaching" isn't the solution, but that sex education, contraception, and abortion are. Planned Parenthood doesn't consider the implications of the fact that teen-age pregnancies have soared during a period when all three have become increasingly accessible as has child abuse, which is also blamed on "unintended births."

It's just as plausible that the availability of abortion fosters these problems. Teen-age girls who know they can get an abortion may be less inclined to use contraception. Parents living in a society that tells them there is nothing wrong with destroying a living fetus may grow less sensitive to the well-being of their children.

The ads claim that "most Americans share Planned Parenthood's commitment." Most don't. Abortion on request, though endorsed by Planned Parenthood, isn't popular. Fifty-two percent of Americans say abortion should not be allowed simply to avoid financial strain or to limit family size. The pro-life movement, unfortunately, has yet to win broad acceptance of the case against abortion. But pro-choice extremists like Planned Parenthood, despite the sort of deceit used in this cam-

CIA sees Bush as 'inside man'

WASHINGTON — George Bush's brief tenure as CIA director has been both a blessing and a curse for the vice president. On the plus side, it has added a certain cachet to his foreign-policy credentials in the quest for high office.

But Bush's year at the CIA has also led to a presumption by many in the agency that he is "our man in the White House.

That attitude is the most charitable explanation for two potentially compromising episodes when Bush was introduced socially to undercover agents mixed up in a CIA-front business. It later went broke, costing investors millions of dollars.

In neither case was there a need for the CIA men to meet the vice president. The encounters were apparently arranged by CIA field officials for no better reason than to satisfy a craving among the undercover troops to rub elbows with a celebrity.

The two incidents occurred in Hawaii. My associates Dale Van Atta and Indy Badhwar uncovered the story while investigating claims made by Ranald Ray Rewald that the CIA was behind his Honolulu investment firm, whose collapse led to his indictment for fraud, tax evasion and perjury. The accounts of Bush's brushes with the undercover men came from four separate sources. They lend credence to other evidence that the CIA considered Rewald's firm and its 50 subsidiaries and affiliated enterprises an extremely valuable cover for widespread CIA operations in the Pacific. On July 2, 1981, the vice president was in Hawaii on his way back from the Philippines. In the evening, at the invitation of a friend from Dallas, he boarded a sailboat for a sunset cruise along the coast off

Also invited on the cruise were one of Rewald's men (a Honolulu policeman) and Jack Kindschi, who had been Rewald's CIA superior and later went to work for him at the investment firm.

The evening was purely social, but allowed the CIA-related guests to bask in the camaraderie of the one-time agency director who had made good.

Rewald's brief encounter with Bush occurred at Hickam Air Force Base. Initially, Rewald had been told by the CIA's Honolulu station chief, Jack Rardin, that Bush would come to dinner or a cocktail party at Rewald's million-dollar Honolulu home, which he had bought from Lon Nol, the former prime minister of Cambodia.

But the Secret Service nixed the idea on security grounds. So Rewald was chauffeured instead to Hickam. His driver, Franklin Kipilii, was also used to drive other CIA personnel around, the agency has acknowledged.

Rewald was taken directly to the headquarters of the Air Force's Pacific commander. Not far away, Air Force Two, the vice president's silver-and-blue plane, was sitting on the tarmac.

The occasion was a social gathering, duly recorded by an Air Force photographer. Several military officials were present, along with CIA station chief Rardin, Rewald and one of his employees who was a deep-cover CIA agent.

Presumably, Rardin was known to Bush as the CIA chief in Honolulu. Rewald was just as obviously unknown to the vice president. Rardin gave Bush this coded introduction of Rewald: "He is a friend who has been invaluable. He has done a wonderful job for us here and is still helping us. Bush shook hands with Rewald and thanked him for his help. That was it. Rewald drifted off into the crowd and didn't speak with Bush again. For his part, Bush has told a close associate he may have met the man, but doesn't remember it.

The only significance to the incident lies in its very triviality. Apparently just as a morale-boosting sop to Rewald, the CIA station chief thoughtlessly put the vice president in a compromising situation.

The public introduction lent Bush's unwitting prestige to Rewald's investment company. As evidence of Rewald's high-level connections, it might have encouraged investors to sink money into his investment firm.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: Will interest rates go up

A government forecast, circulating in the backrooms, warns of a looming crisis caused by the "clash between federal and private borrowers." As the government finances this year's $170 billion deficit at the same time that business is seeking loans to keep the recovery alive, the competition for limited loan funds will drive interest rates up. What does this mean to you?

By next summer, economists predict, the prime rate could go as high as 15 percent — a jump of three points above the current rate. This would trigger what the economists now foresee as a "mild recession." So now's the time to borrow for a home or

What needs to be done?

Economists, as usual, disagree. Some insist that the government's tight-money policy msut be turned 180 degrees. But the philosophy of government economists is laid out in an official-eyes-only analysis that says: "With the federal deficit problem deadlocks, (the Fed) must take a more antiinflationary stance and lower the monetary growth

Meanwhile, is the strong dollar helping or hurting the U.S. economy?

A little of both, according to an internal government report I've seen. On the one hand, it says the overvaluation of the dollar compared to other currencies has accounted for a 4.5 percent drop in the U.S. inflation rate by making imported goods and services cheaper. But by raising the price of U.S. goods abroad, the strong dollar has obstructed exports, slowing the nation's real economic growth by 1 percent and reducing employment by 1 million, the report states.

Sex is fun

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Your stand against pre-marital sex bothers me. To me sex is lots of fun, and I don't see anything wrong with having a good time. Don't you think you are being a bit old-fashioned? — S.K.

DEAR S.K.: Have you ever thought about where sex came from? The Bible makes it clear that God gave this remarkable gift to us. "So God created man in his own image .. male and female he created them. God blessed them and said to them, 'Be fruitful and increase in number; fill the earth and subdue it" (Genesis 1:27-28).

Why do you suppose, then, that God — who created sex in the first place — also gave us certain rules concerning its use? Why, for example, did He restrict the sexual relationship to marriage, and declare very clearly that pre-marital sex (or any other kind of sexual relationship outside marriage) is wrong? He did it for our good, because He loves us and He wants us to have what is best for us.

And He knows that when we treat sex casually or simply as a plaything to be enjoyed selfishly, then we are hurting ourselves and others. Only when there is commitment — the lifelong commitment of a man and a woman before God can the true joy of sex be fulfilled, not just physically but emotionally and spiritually as well.

Mondale, Doggett are best choices

To the editor:

This election year it appears as though the Republicans are basing their campaign on half-truths and deliberate lies, which in the past has been the communist tactics. For example: Phil Gramm says he never voted against Social Security but his voting record in Congress shows that he is on record ten times as voting against Social Security.

On the same subject, Mr. Reagan, the great fabricator; while President Kennedy was fighting to create Medicare, was a paid spokesman for the American Medical Association. (San Angelo Times 11-1-84).

Mr. Reagan lives in a fantasy world. His advisors shield him from public questioning because he does not know what's going on just as in the case of the CIA mining Nicaragua harbors and providing the guerillas in El Salvador and Nicaragua written manuais as to how to infiltrate and dispose of their opponents, none of which is legal. The killing of American soldiers in Lebanon by truck bombs Mr. Reagan tried to pass off as a joke in comparing it to one's remodeling his home kitchen and not getting it done on schedule, even though they had been warned this would happen.

Early in Mr. Reagan's career he was a radio sports announcer. He got the baseball play by play on a Western Union Telegraph tape, and he had to make up color stories as to what the performance of the players was in order to prevent a lapse in his reporting the play. I have heard him say on TV how he made up most of the activity as to each play, thus he has trained himself through this and as a second class movie character always a make believe person and has carried this fantasy land into his political arena.

We need people in Washington who will tell the truth whether it be good or bad news and not try to reply with an unrelated joke to avoid the truth as Mr. Reagan does. Both Mr. Reagan and Mr. Gramm are deserters from the Democratic Party. The only sound remarks they make are quotes from Democratic Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, and Kennedy.

Let's elect Democrats who speak the truth, not fantasy stories. Our best choices in Texas are to elect Lloyd Doggett and Walter Mondale. Mr. Gramm is not even a Texan. He was born in Mississippi, reared in Georgia where "Dear Mamma" as he calls her in his ads still lives. His only interest in Texas is money, first as a teacher at Texas A&M, then a member of Congress, all supported by taxpayers.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. A very big one.

For three years I was tormented by a Jewish ghost who thought I was his wife. I moved into the apartment where he and his wife once lived. They both died, but he kept coming back to the apartment to be near her.

While it was well-worth the three minutes, I would have gladly spent a few more minutes to find out why you felt compelled to compare seamlessly for the truly dramatic Canada's comparatively low death look favored by fashion designer and fire-damage figures to those of the United States.

And apropos that column on fire prevention, read on for one of many similar complaints:

Staph causes syndrome

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter, 22 months old, was diagnosed as having the scalded skin syndrome. Is there a chance of a relapse of this? She is not fully recovered yet. Also, could you tell me how she could have gotten this? Perhaps others would want to know about it. It was called toxic epidermal necrolysis. — G.D.

substance that causes outer layers scarring. Healing usually takes a couple of weeks; chance of relapse is practically nil.

It is a condition that can mimic other childhood eruptions. The skin symptoms can be preceded by malaise, fever, and skin tenderness. Later, gentle pressure causes skin to wrinkle and separate. Large blisters may appear. As skin peels off it leaves behind a weeping, red skin resembling that found after a scalding, hence the name scalded skin syndrome.

I know you are feeling a sense of responsibility for this happening. You shouldn't, for there are many ways beyond our control by which we become exposed to the staph germ. All I can say is that it's one of those things that happens. It is treated with antibiotics, and if there is need, the doctor can prescribe special skin moisteners to relieve any itching.

Antique elevator makes rise to fame

PFLUGERVILLE (AP) - There are antiques galore for sale at Main Street Mercantile Antique Mall, but one of the most interesting antiques is not on the

Well - it might be sold if you offered $150,000 for it. The owners would throw in the building for just an extra $5,000.

This pricey item is an elevator. Not your modern electric model that demands only the push of a button to operate, this one has sturdy cables, a huge overhead wheel and weights, and usually requires the operator to wear gloves so the ropes won't burn his hands as he raises or lowers the open platform.

"It won't fall down," said Lee Sherrard, who operates the elevator when he isn't attending the general managerial duties. "If it falls, it falls up.

Falls up? The giant weights will usually bring the 10-by-15-foot platform up, but heavy tugs on the rope are necessary to bring it back

The famous name on the elevator is "Ottis," and even the Houston office of that well-known elevator concern is excited about the old piece of equipment that is still in active use. It is, they say, a model that probably originated for the Chicago World's Fair in the

He shook his head in amazement that it is still serviceable and in excellent condition. With a tongue-in-cheek manner, we warned the owners that "it must be serviced at least once every fifty years, whether it needs it or not."

While the complete history of the elevator is not known, the Ottis company believes it had already been used when it was installed in

"We aren't sure of the installation date - it's just always been there." owners say.

According to Sherrard - a retired lawyer, real estate manager and history buff - the tall brick structure was built by Karl Pfluger, a charter member of the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Pflugerville. The building has an unusual suspension-type roof, which seems to have protected it from the disastrous fires that have gutted buildings on either side.

The elevator was of real importance for the early Gurstenberger & Leppin business that stored mer-

Sherrard is emphatic that there are no ghosts in the building since only coffins, not the bodies, were kept in the building. Morticians usually did their work in the homes of the deceased during the early part of the 20th century, he said.

Never heard of Moon Buggies? Sherrard says they were regular buggies with rubber tires and a convertible top. Thrush autos had wooden drive-shafts. Then there was the famous Model-T.

Terlingua cookers want just one contest

TERLINUA (AP) - If two "original" Terlingua chili cookoffs don't reach harmony they might both wind up in the red, an official of one group says.

But the rivalry between the two events remains.

'The officers (of the Tolbert-Fowler cookoff) would step down if they (CASI) would," Wright said, suggesting one way to achieve unity.

Carroll Shelby, one of the organizers of the first chili cookoff ever held here, believes a governing group is necessary, particularly if the chili cookoff hopes to benefit a charitable organization or Brewster County.

The Giants not only jumped back into the picture on Sunday but they put a severe strain on the Dallas Cowboys' hopes with a 19-7 victory.

New York, which beat Dallas 28-7 in September, whipped the Cowboys in back-to-back regular season National Football League games for the first time since 1963.

Both teams are 6-4 but all four losses by the Cowboys are to NFC East teams.

The victory tied the teams for the division lead with the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost to the Los Angeles Rams 16-13. A victory by Washington Monday night over Atlanta would make it a four-way tie.

"It keeps us in the division race just like the four other teams (Dallas, St. Louis, Philadelphia, and Washington)," said New York Coach Bill Parcells. "I'm proud. This game shows we didn't lack character. It was a big, big

"It's a shame everything (the Silver Season celebration) had to end on a sour note," said Landry, who was part of the halftime show. "The Giants deserved to win."

Redskins can make four way tie in East

WASHINGTON (AP) - The crowd atop the National Conference Eastern Division may have to make room for one more.

The Washington Redskins host the Atlanta Falcons tonight looking to join Dallas, St.Louis and the Giants in a four-way tie for first place in the division at 6-4.

"This could get real exciting," said Washington coach Joe Gibbs prior to Sunday's action which saw both front-running Dallas and St.Louis stumble.

"With these many teams believing they have a shot at first place anything can happen and probably will from week to week," Gibbs said.

Redskins the one constant this season has been the running of John Riggins.

In his 13th season in the National Football League and already the fifth-leading rusher in the history of the league, the big Redskin fullback is off to best start ever, rambling for 854 yards and nine Improving with age, the 35-yearold Riggins, the oldest running back in the league, has averaged 100.5 yards a game over his last 31 games. During the same span he as scored 43 touchdowns.

Virtually unbeatable when Riggins is on his game, the Redskins have are 18-2 when Riggins has rushed for 100 yards, including a perfect 10-0 at home.

"Riggins is in a class by himself," said Atlanta coach Dan Henning as his Falcons prepared to meet Riggins in Monday night's game. "They run him early to get a lead and then they hand the ball to him in the second half to eat up the Against an Atlanta team, 3-6, that is ranked next to last in the Naonterence against the run, Riggins will be seeking his fourth 100-yard game of the season.

"To beat Washington you have to get to them early," insisted Henn-ing, looking at statistics that show the Redskins are 32-1 in games in which they have led at the half. "If you let them get in front it's Riggins left, Riggins right and Riggins again until you are on the bus

By The Associated Press Three Kansas City quarterbacks combined for a National Football League record-breaking performance. Unfortunately for the Chiefs, the records were racked up by the Seattle Seahawks' defense.

Six times the Seattle defenders picked off Kansas City passes, and they returned four for touchdowns — an NFL record — as the Seahawks routed the Chiefs 45-0.

Defensive backs Dave Brown, Keith Simpson and Ken Easley returned the interceptions for touchdowns as the Seahawks set another league record with 362 return yards.

NFL Roundup

Brown, one of four remaining original members of the Seahawks, who entered the league in 1976, picked off a Bill Kenney pass and streaked 95 yards for a score, then later returned a Todd Blackledge pass 58 yards for another TD. The two interception scores tied another record.

Elsewhere, Miami ran its perfect record to 10-0 with a 31-17 victory over the New York Jets, and a logjam has evolved in the NFC East with the New York Giants, St. Louis and Dallas all tied with 6-4

Washington can join that crowd tonight if the Redskins defeat Atlanta.

"We played team defense," Seattle Coach Chuck Knox said of his team's fourth consecutive victory and second straight shutout. "We hustled and put pressure on the quarterback. That's the way we've been playing.

"It was a great defensive performance. But I wasn't thinking about the shutout, I was just thinking about the win.'

The defense scored more than enough to ensure Seattle's sixth victory in its last seven games.

"Kinney was throwing it away from me to (wide receiver Mike) Marshall," Brown said of his first interception. "But I was able to get to it and tip it.'

After that, it was a race, and nobody touched the Seattle back. "As soon as you see all the green in front of you, you just relax and

"We feel we can stop anybody in this league," said Brown. "We feel we can beat anybody in the league. The goal of our defense is to try to get better every week and I don't Kenney, who watched the second half of the game in his street clothes from the sidelines, said he was disoriented in the Chiefs' huddle before throwing his two interceptions in the second quarter.

"I was tired when I picked it up, but when I did, I ran as hard as I could," Smith said. "I knew my time would come."

Supreme Court blocks NFL's power play

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today effectively stripped the National Football League of the power to block future franchise moves by rejecting an NFL challenge to the Raiders' jump from Oakland to Los Angeles.

The court, without comment, left intact a ruling that the league's control over franchise moves violated federal antitrust laws. . Today's action in the big-stakes dispute, to which there was no recorded dissenting votes, does not prevent the NFL from adopting new rules aimed at limiting franchise shifts. And the league still is free to seek an antitrust exemption from Congress to restore its power to prevent teams from moving to other cities The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last February overturned, by a 2-1 vote, a league rule that required two-thirds of the NFL's 28 team owners to approve any fran-The appeals court upheld a federal judge's ruling that allowed the Raiders and their managing general partner, Al Davis, to move from Oakland and play home games in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, the team won the Super Bowl. The NFL also has been ordered to pay $49 million in damages to the Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum. The award is the subject of a separate appeal by the league. In a statement issued today from NFL headquarters in New York, the league said: "We are disappointed that the Supreme Court chose not to review the interim lower-court rulings in the Raiders' relocation case at this time. "The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals will now address the questions of monetary damages against the league currently pending in that court. Following its decision, when final lower-court rulings on all aspects of the Raiders' litgation have been entered, the league will again petition the Supreme Court for review of the important issues presented in this suit.'

Baltimore city officials also joined the NFL in urging the Supreme Court to restore the league's power over franchise moves. The Colts moved from Baltimore last March and il. season are playing home games in Indianapolis. The Raiders case has its origins in 1978, when the Los Angeles

Rams moved from the Los Angeles Coliseum to a new stadium in Anaheim, Calif. The Collseum, left without a major tenant, challenged the NFL's rule limiting franchise moves in an effort to get the Raiders. Davis, the Raiders' owner, began negotiating with the Los Angeles stadium, contending that the Oakland Coliseum needed major improvements and that the city refused to provide them. In defending itself against the antitrust charges, the NFL said it is a ames in Los Angeles. "single entity" or partnership.

But the 9th Circuit court ruled: 'In addition to being independent business entities, the NFL clubs do compete with one another off the field as well as on to acquire players, coaches and management personnel. In certain areas of the country where two teams operate in close proximity, there is also competition for fan support, local televsion and local radio revenues and media space.

Moreover, the appeals court said, the league policy of preserving exclusive territories for most teams allows them "to set monopoly prices to the detriment of the consuming public."

The appeals court said some restrictions may be justified to pro tect the investment of team owners. But, it said, "Los Angeles is a market large enough for the successful operation of two teams.'

Also rejected today was a separate appeal in which the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum - where the Raiders used to play - said the antitrust case should not have been tried before a federal jury in Los Angeles. The appeeal said a new trial should be granted in some neutral location.

The operators of the stadium also said the jury at the new trial should hear evidence that returning the franchise to Oakland may enhance competition.

A separate challenge to the Raiders' move remains alive in the California state courts. In its suit the city of Oakland is attempting to take over the team under the power of eminent domain.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 6, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A tendency to be too argumentative and forceful today could result in some unfortunate confrontations that could stir conditions up and keep you from accomplishments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't have that quarrel with a person in business or there could be big trouble. Listen to advice of a good acquaintance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Finish that plan for getting ahead in the future and do not try to gain advanced data as yet. Listen to the ideas of a clever advisor. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't argue with associates over some account, but show how much you appreciate being allied with them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) It is best not to argue with a partner over some small issue in a contract, then gain the assistance of good friends.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Do nothing that can annoy a co-worker otherwise there can be trouble, and listen to advice of a stranger.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't get into that recreation that you cannot afford. Listen to the advice of one who has a practical mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you discuss financial.

affairs with partners, you can recoup some monetary losses. Take little trips to visit friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to make your property more charming and valuable. Don't confide any intimate matters to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't permit a private worry to keep you from going after your ambitions. Attend social affairs tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid a demanding pal who could spoil your plans today. Get at all those private tasks that await you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid civic or other public matters that could bring you trouble. Employ a new plan to get it working with enthusiasm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Avoid a new outlet that could lead you into trouble. See an advisor who has fine ideas where money matters are concerned.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to act in both an impulsive and demanding manner. Teach early to think before speaking. The fields of medicine, law, psychiatry etc. are all fine here. Early religious training is very important here. Allow to participate in sports.
