How's that? Car seats

Q. I know the Texas state law now requires all children four and under to be in car seats when they're in a motor vehicle, but we are a low-income family who had triplets in January. Where can we go for financial assistance? Even at cost, the car dealers are selling the seats for $30 each, and it's too much.

A. Neither the state nor the county welfare agencies have any funds to purchase the car seats, they said. The New Car Dealers Association might be able to help; contact its president, Bill Pollard, at Pollard Chevrolet before Wednesday afternoon. And Professional Fire Fighters Association Local No. 2922 President John Branham said his group might be able to offer you assistance. You can contact Branham at the 18th and Main fire station.

Study targets oil companies

Undercutting major concern

AUSTIN (AP) — A study released today shows that almost half the independent gasoline distributors in Texas feel their No. 1 problem is that major oil companies are trying to undercut them by selling gas at or below the price needed to break-even.

The study, which was paid for by the Texas Oil Marketers Association, was scheduled for release at a meeting of the House Business and Commerce Committee.

TOMA, which claims a membership of more than 700 small independent companies, hired two faculty members at the University of Texas at Austin, Gary Cadenhead and Timothy Ruefli, to do the study.

Responses were received from 140 marketers, and a summary of the report shows that:

— A margin of 6 cents is needed on all grades of gas and diesel fuel to break even, and the average margin this year was 6.3 cents, leaving only 0.3 cents after expenses.

— Convenience stores and major oil company retail outlets are seen as the independents' chief competitors.

— Almost 50 percent of Texas marketers have lost volume as a result of new refiner outlets, and the vast majority of these outlets sell at a price below other stations.

Gas plant blasts kill 21 in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A series of explosions at a natural gas processing complex triggered a huge fire today in a suburb of the Mexican capital, sending smoke and flames high into the air and wrecking nearby homes. Early reports said at least 21 people were killed and hundreds were injured.

Alfonso Olvera Reyes, mayor of Tlalnequanta, where the explosions occurred, said by telephone that "nearly 400 people were injured and 21 killed." A rescue worker said he personally saw 35 bodies. The fire was still burning four hours after the first explosions.

Hundreds of residents were evacuated, some on city buses that were diverted from their regular routes. Many people fled on foot, some clad only in their underwear.

Dozens of ambulances were seen moving in and out of the suburb northeast of the capital. The injured were taken to several

U.S., Nicaragua resume talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Nicaragua are resuming diplomatic talks over their bitter political dispute, but Nicaragua's foreign minister says it is up to the Reagan administration to make concessions.

Miguel D'Escoto, the Sandinista foreign minister, said Sunday the talks would begin today in Mexico between Harry Schlaudeman, special U.S. envoy to Central America, and Victor Hugo Tinoco, Nicaragua's deputy foreign minister.

The White House has said only that the discussions, which began in June and recessed last month, would resume in the near future. The State Department, following past practice, declined Sunday to pinpoint the time and place.

Appearing on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," D'Escoto said the success of the negotiations rests with the Reagan administration, which he accused of stirring up "official hysteria" against his leftist Sandinista government.

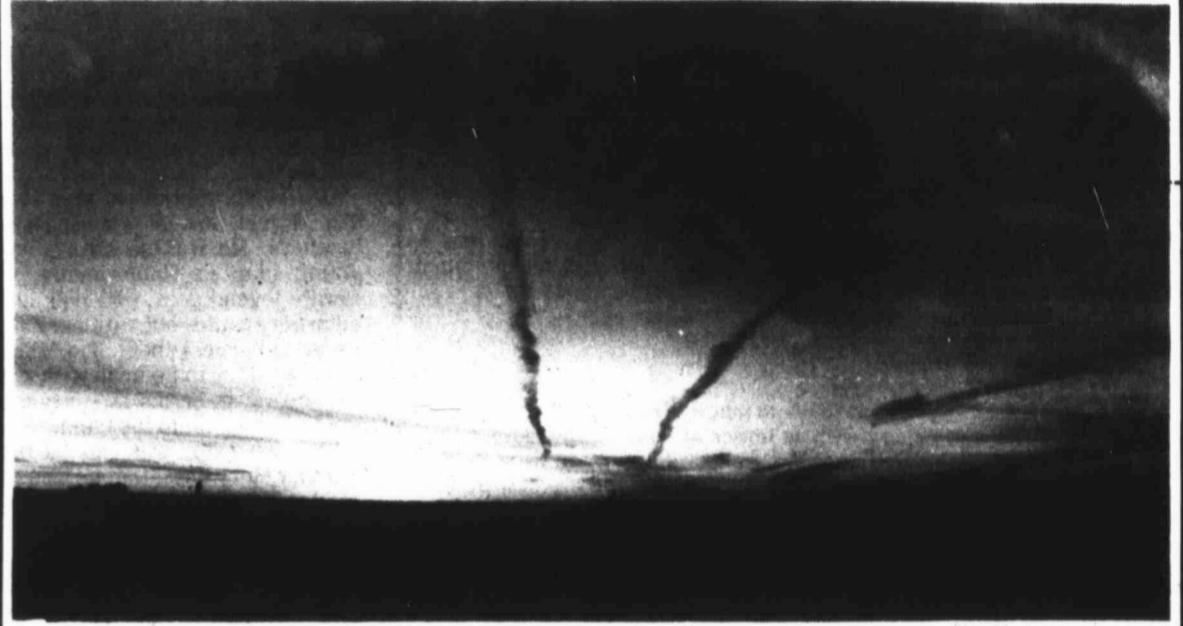

"We believe that any negotiation means that you ... want to sacrifice something," he said. "We've already done that. We accepted the Contadora proposal. ... We have demonstrated our willingness to compromise."

D'Escoto was referring to the Central American peace plan advanced by Colombia, Panama, Mexico and Venezuela. The United States once supported the proposal, but backed away earlier this year after Nicaragua said it would accept it.

Asked whether he expected any progress to be made in the talks, D'Escoto replied: "It all depends on whether the Reagan administration is into engaging in fruitful and constructive dialogue. We want to do that. Up to now, they've been go-

Frost sweeps down on area

Late rains put farmers in good shape for next year

Don't knock the inconveniences of this season's late rainfall.

"The late rain may have slowed us down a bit in harvesting our crops, but it put us in good shape for next summer's planting," said area farmer Larry Shaw of Ackerly.

Shaw had measured 1.2 inches on his rain gauge since it began falling early Saturday morning.

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures for Big Spring's rainfall this weekend shows a total of 1.71 inches of rain splattering the ground through Monday morning.

That brings this year's total to 11.30 inches, way below the normal 17.58 inches the agricultural department has tabulated as the annual average for this region.

Sunday night's low temperature registered at 33 degrees, the coldest we've had this year the agricultural department said.

"Our temperature wasn't cold enough to freeze, but a frost did appear this morning," said Bill Fryrear, research leader at the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Shaw also saw a slight amount of frost from his post in Ackerly, but agreed with Fryrear that the cold temperatures would have little affect on Howard County crops.

"We're real late with this crops this year but I figure we'll get a pretty good crop," Shaw said.

Fryrear said the late rainfall had no significance with this year's crops and that the temperature would have to get much colder for the crops to open up and freeze.

Shaw registered 29 degrees as the low in Ackerly Sunday night but said to disclaim the figure because he said his thermometer was not accurate.

Focus on the U.S. economy

Personal income up

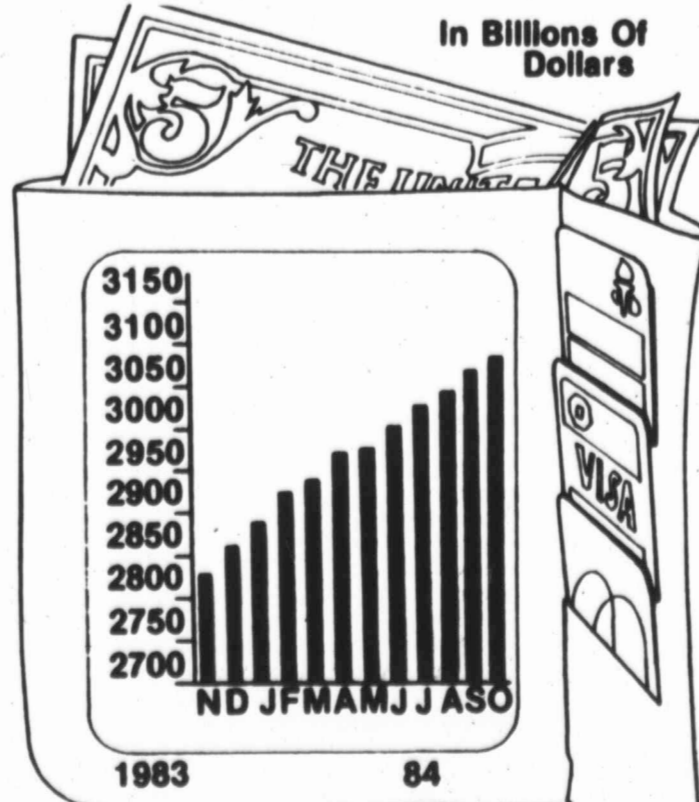

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose 0.6 percent last month but consumer spending dipped 0.1 percent, the poorest showing on the spending side in eight months, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the 0.1 percent drop in personal consumption spending, which includes virtually everything except interest payments on debt, compared to a 1.7 percent spending surge in September.

That increase followed two months in which consumer spending had posted no gain at all and gave analysts hope that the economy was finally rousing from its summer doldrums.

However, a variety of other economic statistics have signaled that the current slowdown in

$50 billion cut sought

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's budget advisers are recommending that he cut spending by $50 billion in fiscal year 1986, but are likely to force the president to decide where the cuts should come, according to an administration official.

The official, speaking only on condition he remain anonymous, said late Sunday that a high-level budget group is likely to recommend that Reagan cut the federal deficit from its current level of 5 percent of the Gross National Product to 4 percent in fiscal 1986, 3 percent in 1987 and 2 percent in 1988.

That apparently translates into a deficit target of roughly $160 billion in 1986, compared with an estimated 1986 deficit of $206 billion if no further action were taken.

Under this plan, the deficit would be reduced steadily to just more than $100 billion in 1988, down from the currently projected $210 billion deficit at the end of fiscal year 1985 in October.

As the budget debate swirls among his aides, Reagan is spending a Thanksgiving vacation at his ranch, "resting and rejuvenating himself for the second term," said deputy White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

The budget group, made up of 12 high-level administration officials, met for more than 12 hours last week in an as-yet unsuccessful effort to agree on ways to recommend the budget savings in the 1986 budget now being prepared.

The official said it appeared likely that instead of presenting Reagan with one recommended way of achieving the budget savings, the highly splintered group would instead force the president to choose how to reduce the federal budget when he returns to Washington after his vacation.

State

By The Associated Press
A cool autumn morning greeted Texas today as a ridge of high pressure was anchored over the Lone Star state. Skies had cleared across the West and South, but the blanket of low clouds persisted over North and East Texas. Meanwhile, no rain was observed anywhere in Texas.
Pre-dawn temperatures were near the freezing mark in the West, while warmer readings in the 40s and 50s were generally the rule elsewhere.
Temperatures at 4 a.m. ranged from a chilly 30 degrees at Amarillo to 61 degrees at Brownsville. Winds had calmed over much of the West, while a northerly wind around 10 mph raced across the remainder of Texas.
The forecast for Tuesday called for mostly cloudy conditions in North Texas, with decreasing cloudiness in southern regions. Sunny skies will prevail in the West.
Highs statewide will range from the low 40s to only 70.

Local woman reports assault

A Big Spring woman was sexually assaulted slightly before 1:30 a.m. Sunday on the city's west side, police said today.
According to Police Capt. Lonnie Smith, a witness to the incident reported it to police at 1:26 a.m. Although the victim did not receive serious bodily injuries, her assailant, an adult male, threatened her with a knife, Smith said.
The woman did not know her attacker, Smith said. Police have not identified a suspect yet, he said.
Police do not believe the assault is linked to any other attacks at this time, Smith said. "It's just a single incident," he said.
The report is being investigated by Det. Bill King, Smith said.
The incident was not reported on the police department's daily log of activities. However, Smith did provide information when questioned.
In other police reports:
• More than $326 of goods were taken Sunday night from a pickup truck parked at Wildwood Country on E. Interstate Highway 20.
• Frank Aciri of Route 1 told police that someone took a saw, worth $130; cassette tapes, worth $170; a tape case, worth $8; a Greek fisherman's cap, worth $8; and two magnetic Midway Plumbing signs, whose value is unknown.
The items were taken from Aciri's blue 1970 Ford pickup truck at 10 p.m. Sunday.

Sheriff's Log

1 reports indecent exposure

A Big Spring woman complained to Howard County Sheriff's deputies that someone indecently exposed himself to her on a public roadway when the woman was driving to work early Sunday afternoon.
According to a sheriff's report, the woman was westbound on HC-28 when a person in a white Buick passed her. He then turned toward Big Spring on State Highway 350 where he pulled to the side of the road and stopped.
The man, described as a "Hispanic male wearing a blue toboggan" and a blue jacket and possibly a moustache," then stepped from his vehicle and "exposed himself... in a manner to attract her attention."
Sheriff's reports stated that no further information was available as the investigation continues.
In other Sheriff's reports:
• Big Spring Police transferred Mary Ann

Trevino, 18, 806 West Fifth, to county jail Saturday evening for suspicion of theft over $20 and assault (Class A). She was released on two $1,000 bonds set by Justice of the Peace Willie Grant.

Reunion rekindles family's love

HEBBRONVILLE (AP) — Ernesto Leal's strength and endurance were legendary when he was a young field hand in Hebbroville.
Although now a frail 83-year-old, he recently endured a day that began in the midday heat and ended with midnight dance music.
The occasion was a Leal family ritual — their ninth annual reunion. Tio Ernesto, as most of the family calls him, enjoyed it from the seat of honor — a recliner placed at the center of a concrete slab on the edge of a dusty field. Tio Ernesto is the oldest living member in his family — the fourth child of 13 born to Alvina and Crisanto Leal.
The Leal reunion is a huge event that attracts more than 300 people, but despite its size it is typical of any family reunion. It brings together the babies and the elders of the family and provides a time for reminiscing and passing on family history and values. It is also a time for eating and relaxing.
Despite a daughter's concern that he was tiring himself, Tio Ernesto refused offers of a quiet, cool place to rest. He preferred to revel in every minute of the visiting, singing, laughter, playing, dancing and story-telling of his relatives.

REUNION GATHERING — Members of the Leal family participate in a three-legged race. This year's reunion was the ninth straight year it has been held. Over 300 people attended the Leal Family reunion.

One story, told often, was about Tio Miguel, one of Tio Ernesto's brothers. He was so strong as a young man in Hebbroville, the family legend goes, that he knocked ornery mules out with his fist in order to harness them. Tio Miguel tells the story in Spanish with a little boy's grin on his face while he swings his fist into his hand.
Tio Ernesto was so strong, another story goes, that he was forbidden by the sheriff to hit anyone with his hand closed into a fist.
These family stories that are handed down through the years, said Corpus Christi psychologist Dan Adams, are almost a glue that holds families together. Whether mythical or true, the stories are a shared experiences that build family bonds, he said.
As the day passed at the reunion, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, brothers, sisters, cousins and other relatives came one by one to hold Tio Ernesto's once ferocious fist, kiss his cheek and share a memory or simply sit and be close for a moment.

Melissa Gutierrez, 19, who lives in Hebbroville, was shy at first about talking to her great-uncle. But after a brief conversation with him, she came back beaming. "He remembered who I was," she said.
"This is just like a tonic for my father," said Tio Ernesto's oldest daughter, Willie Mae De Los Santos, while she relaxed for a moment in the shade of a mesquite tree.
The reunion was equally rejuvenating for the younger generations of Leals. But instead of it being an occasion for reflecting on a long life and savoring the family gathering as if it might be their last, the younger family members mostly enjoyed the party and visited with relatives they don't often see.
Some of them, like Israel Garcia, imagined the day when members of his generation will be the family elders. "I can just see us in the year 2015 sitting there like the old-timers are now, singing the old songs off key, and nobody will mind," he said.

For a few people it brought up thoughts of how difficult maintaining family unity is in a world so different from the one in which their parents and grandparents grew up.
Vickie Mendez, Mrs. De Los Santos' daughter who lives in Austin, said she comes to the reunions because they keep her in touch with her many relatives. "In Mom's generation everyone knew each other. That's not true of my generation, much less my kid's generation," she said. "There's so many of us, you can see why it's difficult. Just Grandpa and that one branch — there's one daughter with a dozen kids."
There are so many Leals, in fact, that the various branches of the family wear different colors to the reunion so they can be identified.
Vickie, who is a single parent, also brought up the difficulties that divorce can create in maintaining a larger sense of family unity. Another problem, she said, is that families are scattered across the state and the country now. It's far different than the days when Vickie's great-grandmother had all of her grown children living just down the street.

Mrs. De Los Santos' son, Joe, described the reunion as a booster shot for family spirit. "The reunion gives you something to hold on to," said Joe, 40. "You're in this old world and you've got to scramble to make the mortgage and the car payments, but once a year for three days we say to hell with it and enjoy our family."
Carmen Gutierrez of Hebbroville said the reunion makes the sense of family stronger and that having family is important because it makes a difference in life. The respect for older uncles and aunts makes children think twice about getting in trouble.
Adams later gave a psychology professional's vocabulary to the feelings the various members of the Leal family expressed no less eloquently. "We all have a need for relatedness and the traditions of the family help meet those needs," he said. "We can look forward to going back and getting affirmation from our family that we are worth something as human beings, that others care for us and see us as being important," he said.

marketers, 82 percent blamed retail practices of major oil companies "such as predatory pricing (selling at retail for a price at or below the amount required to break-even), selling at or below the marketer's cost, and direct marketing through new outlets."
Most independent marketers feel legislation should be enacted to split up major refiners and to require a minimum markup in the sale of gas or diesel fuel to assure it is sold above cost.
Case studies document the unfair practices and policies of major oil companies.
TOMA president Homer McGinnis of Arlington said, "Not only are we forced to compete against our own suppliers, but they often set their retail prices at an amount that is below their cost of doing business."

McGinnis said marketers have gone to the oil companies with their concerns but have gotten no results. He also said TOMA has asked Congress for help, but oil companies have persuaded Congress to delay any action.
"While we are not asking for a specific type of legislative solution to be pursued, oil marketers do believe that a governmental study of the problems of petroleum marketers is necessary and that a legislative solution may be essential," McGinnis said.

growth may be a prolonged one, although few economists believe the economy is about to tumble into a recession.
The government will revise its estimate of overall economic growth for the July-September period on Tuesday. Many analysts expect the new figure will be lower than the 2.7 percent current estimate. That growth rate is less than one-third the 8.6 percent rate turned in during the first half of the year.

The drop in consumer spending, which has been one of the key forces driving the recovery from the 1981-82 recession, was in line with a 0.1 percent dip in retail sales for October.
On the income side, the 0.6 percent gain in wages followed a 0.7 percent increase in September and matched a 0.6 percent August gain.

Board sets appeals hearing

The Big Spring Board of Adjustments and Appeals will meet at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday in the City Council chambers at City Hall to hear appeals on the demolition of at least five buildings that have been destroyed by fire.

The buildings have been condemned by the city's office of Public Works, according to the office's director, Tom Decell.

hospitals. At one facility, reporters said the injured were crowding the hallways.
The Red Cross said it had no preliminary figures on casualties.
Arturo Escamilla, a worker with the private volunteer rescue organization Laser, said more than 30 acres in the poor, crowded district were devastated by the initial explosion.
"I, myself, saw more than 35 bodies there. And that is one area only," Escamilla said.
His brother Isidro Escamilla, also a rescue worker, said, "There were people coming out of there all ablaze." He said the explosions sent sections of flaming gas pipes and other construction material raining down on nearby homes and other buildings, setting them afire.
A spokeswoman at the Traumatology Hospital said the facility was "saturated" with wounded and many of the injured had to be diverted to other hospitals. She said many people suffered severe burns.
"We are saturated with wounded and injured. We even have them in the corridors," said the spokeswoman, who refused to give her name.

Hundreds of less severely injured people and other refugees were evacuated to a makeshift clinic at the Basilica of Our Lady of Guadalupe.
Dozens of nearby houses were wrecked, residents said. Residents told reporters a small supermarket was behind the area where the first explosion occurred, and that many people were in line outside the store waiting to buy milk at the time of the blast.
Genovevo Rivas, a traffic policeman, said the explosion blew away the roof of the supermarket and the flaming debris set it ablaze. "There were a lot of people in there," he said. "Maybe 30, maybe 40 casualties. I don't know."
An air force pilot, Captain Gonzalo Scier, told a television interviewer he flew over the area and "the fire was spreading everywhere."
Salvador Del Rio, spokesman for the state-owned oil monopoly PEMEX, said a gas truck exploded and the resulting fire spread to the installations of the Unigas company and then to the Pemex installations where natural gas for two nearby refineries is stored.

Cuts

That would be a sharp departure from past practice, in which Reagan usually receives a consensus recommendation that has been hammered out at a lower level. This time, such consensus appeared impossible, the source said.
For instance, there is widespread disagreement on whether defense spending should be cut, and on to what extent other federal programs such as student loans and Medicaid should be reduced.
Faced with the lack of agreement, this official suggested the high-level group may submit to Reagan a long list of areas in which cutbacks are possible, along with the costs of each program. The president then would be forced to select for himself which programs would be reduced and by how much.
As for defense spending, the official held out the possibility that Reagan's option paper would list a 7 percent increase in military spending, a 5 percent increase and no increase — again forcing Reagan to choose. Once the level of defense spending was settled, the president would have to select other areas to cut in order to come up with a total spending reduction of $50 billion.
Fitzwater was tight lipped on the subject of the internal budget negotiations, saying only that "We are just starting the budget process. We have no idea where we will come out." He said the goal is to "reduce the deficit as far as we can as fast as we can."

Although Reagan pledged during his 1980 campaign to balance the federal budget, aides acknowledged last week it was highly unlikely that could happen until the 1990s, after Reagan has left office.
Part of what makes it difficult for the president's budget advisers to reach agreement, the source said, is that Reagan has promised not to raise taxes or cut Social Security or defense. Reaching the budget goals means either breaking a promise or making all the required savings among remaining programs, which make up only one-third of federal spending.
The source also said that presidential counselor Edwin Meese III handed out at a Cabinet meeting last week galley proofs of a to-be-published Heritage Foundation budget document suggesting where government programs could be cut.
Some officials at the session worried that distributing the work of the conservative policy center at a Cabinet meeting was tantamount to announcing the government was considering cutting programs suggested by the foundation. Fitzwater said the document "has no official standing."

Sea captain suspended

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Cabinet is recommending the suspension of a merchant marine captain for setting an African stowaway adrift on a makeshift raft and has ordered police to open a criminal investigation of the case.

The 1982 incident came to light with the publication of pictures in an Israeli newspaper 10 days ago showing the captain tying a rope around the neck of a Tanzanian stowaway and the stowaway sprawled on a wooden raft in the ocean. The stowaway's fate is unknown.

After a preliminary investigation ordered by the Transport Ministry, the Cabinet on Sunday approved a report recommending suspension of Captain Avner Gilad and turning the case over to police.

Crewmen of the cargo ship Moran said in interviews published in the Israeli media that the unidentified stowaway was lowered into shark-infested waters as much as three miles from the coast and had no chance of survival. Gilad has denied any wrongdoing. He said on Israel television that the stowaway was set adrift 500 yards offshore with a wind and current pulling him toward the coast.

Two killed in cave-in DONCASTER, England — A cave-in of clay and shale killed two sons of an unemployed man and injured the son of a striking miner as the boys dug in a rail embankment for coal to sell for Christmas pocket money.

The dead boys' father, Trevor Holmes, 38, said he dug for more than an hour with firefighters and striking coal miners on Sunday to dig out his sons and the injured friend, according to the local ambulance service.

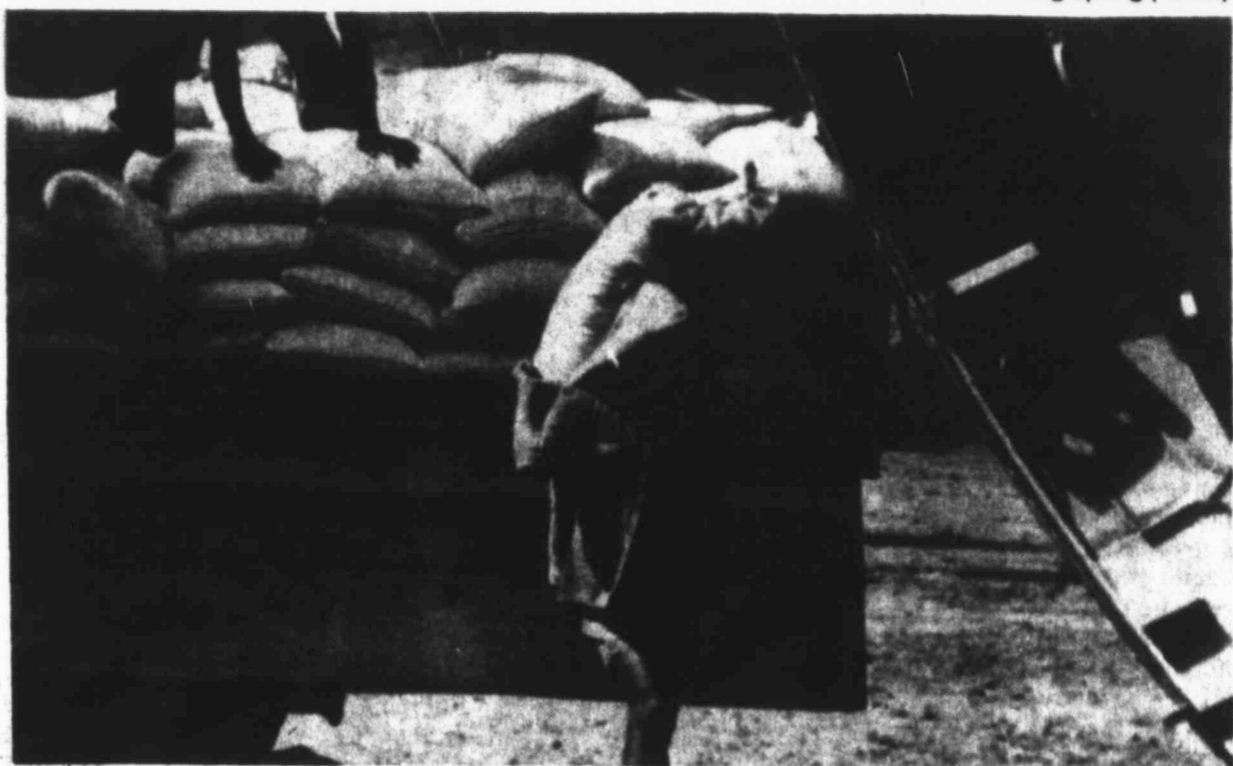

The ambulance service said Paul Holmes, 15, and his brother Darren, 13, were killed, and Jim Rawson, 16, suffered broken legs and chest injuries. Rawson's father is among thousands of British coal miners who have been on strike for 36 weeks protesting plans by the state-run coal industry to shut down money-losing mines.

The boys had a ready market for their coal among residents of the colliery village of Goldthorpe, where they sold it for $2.50 a sack, about half the normal price.

500,000 protest in Madrid

MADRID, Spain — An estimated 500,000 people marched in rain through the center of Madrid to protest government-backed legislation that they say would restrict educational freedom.

The proposed bill, which gives the Ministry of Education more control over subsidies it provides to private — mainly Roman Catholic — schools, has been approved by both houses of Parliament.

SOVIET RELIEF — Ethiopian laborers unload food supplies from the Soviet Union at an airstrip in Kalbogia in northeast Ethiopia. The supplies are part of a world-wide effort to save millions of Africans from starvation.

U.S., Russia join efforts to combat hunger

KEMBOLCHA, Ethiopia (AP) — The 100-pound sacks of wheat being loaded from a truck onto a Soviet MI-8 helicopter bore the stamp: "Furnished by the People of the United States of America."

Americans and Soviets, in one of their major emergency-response efforts since World War II, are putting their countries' differences aside to work together on the airlift taking food and supplies to millions of starving Ethiopian famine victims.

Dawit Wolde Giorgis, head of Ethiopia's relief effort, said the cooperation is such that sometimes "we are transporting supplies by Soviet aircraft with the fuel paid for by the American government."

Journalists are ordinarily not allowed to photograph Soviet aircraft or interview Soviet crew members in Ethiopia. But an unscheduled stop last week by an Ethiopian Relief and Rehabilitation Commission DC-3 carrying reporters afforded a rare glimpse into the Soviet role in the airlift.

At first, officials shooed reporters away from the four MI-8 Soviet transport helicopters at this military base 165 miles north of Addis Ababa on the eastern edge of Ethiopia's central highlands.

But then the Russian chief of the 20-member Soviet crew at Kembolcha allowed the journalists to take photographs of the helicopters, painted in shades of camouflage green and bearing the name of the Soviet airline Aeroflot, as the American wheat was being loaded.

The Russian, wearing running shoes and a red and white baseball cap, gave only his first name, Kolya, a diminutive of Nikolai. Kolya, who said he is based in Moscow with Aeroflot, said the four Soviet helicopters arrived in Kembolcha on Nov. 7 and two days later began flying food to parts of the highlands so remote they are difficult to reach by truck.

"We start at 6 in the morning and fly to 5 in the evening," Kolya told two Russian-speaking reporters, an American and a Japanese, as other Soviet crew members gathered around but did not speak.

All the Soviets wore civilian clothes and some sported floppy, dark-brown bush hats.

A collection of tents at the end of the airstrip serve as the headquarters for the airlift here, Kolya said, but he and his men live in two cottages near the military base.

Besides the four helicopters involved in airlifting food at Kembolcha, there was another Soviet MI-8 chopper fitted out as a gunship, apparently for possible use against secessionist guerrillas opposing Ethiopia's Marxist government. What appeared to be canvas-covered field artillery pieces were parked in rows around the airstrip.

The DC-3 carrying the journalists had been scheduled to take them to Alamata so they could visit the famine relief camp in nearby Korem. But after touching down at the dirt airstrip at Alamata, the pilot turned the plane sharply and took off again, landing in Kembolcha for refueling.

An Ethiopian official accompanying the reporters at first refused to say why the plane had taken off from Alamata so suddenly, and later said it was because he had learned there were no vehicles waiting to carry the reporters.

Pupils get food poisoning

ENFIELD, Ill. — Turkey that was served to 150 elementary and high school students, making 80 people ill and sending 52 to a hospital, was tainted with a bacteria that commonly causes food poisoning, a state health official said.

Staphylococcal bacteria probably contaminated the meal somewhere in the preparation phase, Dennis Hannon of the Illinois Department of Public Health laboratory said Sunday. He said tests of the raw turkey were negative.

The meal was served to about 150 elementary and high school students last Thursday in the school cafeteria. About 80 students, a cook and two teachers suffered dizziness, nausea and vomiting afterward.

Navy OKs missile frigate

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A $301 million guided missile frigate that was built 27 weeks ahead of schedule then rejected because it was thought to contain flawed computer chips has taken its place on the high seas as an official Navy vessel.

The USS Gary was commissioned Sunday to the cheers of more than 1,000 people, including its crew of more than 200.

The ship is named after Cmdr. Donald Arthur Gary, who led more than 300 people to safety after they were trapped in a ship under heavy attack off the Japanese coast during World War II.

It was rejected in October, but after a check of its computer chips last month the Gary was accepted for commissioning.

UM gets NASA project

BALTIMORE — Astronauts who become injured or ill during extended space missions will be treated under a program being developed by the University of Maryland, which won a $274,000 NASA contract.

The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems, which operates the highly regarded University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center, is conducting the project, said Dr. John Siegel, deputy director of the institute.

Scientists believe injury or illness will be likely to occur in space once astronauts begin spending three to six months building and manning space stations in the 1990s, Siegel said.

Boeing 747 catches fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A chartered Boeing 747 jumbo jet with 496 people aboard was forced to return to McCarran International Airport when an engine caught fire, authorities said. None of the passengers or crew were injured.

One engine on the four-engine Overseas National Airways jet caught fire moments after the 3:26 p.m. takeoff Sunday and the pilot, Capt. Robert Bauer, "followed emergency procedures, made a circuit of the airport and landed immediately," said fire department spokesman Jack Ballew.

There fire was out by the time the plane landed, "but the engine was pretty well gone," Ballew said. The 473 passengers and 23 crew members, headed for Detroit, were taken to hotels to wait for another aircraft today, said Frank Michaels, airline dispatcher at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York City.

Another engine also was damaged by the fire, and officials found a minor fuel leak, said Bob Leinbach, another fire department spokesman. Michaels said an investigation of the fire has begun and that the pilots' report was expected "very shortly."

He said the charter had been organized by Detroit travel agency Hamilton, Miller, Hudson & Fayne. A message left on an answering machine at the agency's number was not immediately answered.

While few in Congress and even fewer outside knew what was happening, the Reagan administration managed to hide in this year's defense authorization bill a few paragraphs that Congress had soundly defeated last year, when the same paragraphs were publicly debated. This year, unnoticed, they were passed into law. And so it is that every private company that was involved over the years in the nation's atomic-testing program has now been granted immunity from the lawsuits that over a thousand veterans and civilians have brought against them.

Those suits — and many others against the government itself — had sought compensation for cancers and other diseases caused, the victims say, by exposure to radiation during the atomic blast tests of 1945 to 1980. The diseases could have been prevented, the lawsuits claimed, if the government and its private contractors had taken adequate safety precautions. And earlier this year, the first of these lawsuits was won by 10 civilians in a federal district court in Utah — to the tune of a $2.7 million damage award — which is probably what prompted the administration's sub rosa defense authorization bill maneuver.

It's not just the sneakiness, though, that is wrong here. While it makes a certain amount of sense to grant immunity from liability to private contractors who were only, as the Justice Department puts it, "doing the government's bidding," such a grant of immunity would be fair only if other avenues of redress were open to those who claim to be atomic-test victims. And for many people there are no such avenues.

Civilians claiming injury from the atomic testing can sue the government, rather than the private contractors for damages, but injured veterans have no such recourse. In the name of fairness to the contractors, the new law is utterly unfair to the veterans.

President must capitalize on win

WASHINGTON — Presidential elections do more than declare outcomes. They also mark new beginnings. They focus attention on issues, and set in motion battles for future primacy.

The 1984 election made two issues salient — dealing with the Russians and dealing with the national deficit. It gave impetus to fights for future control of the Republican and Democratic parties. So despite — maybe even because of — his huge sweep, President Reagan has only a brief season to harvest the fruits.

One reason for the brief season is the mood which engendered the Reagan triumph. The country feels good about itself. The system has been shown to work again, and people can get ahead. In dealing with the Russians and their friends around the world, the U.S. is much less on the defensive than in the Carter years. Rhetorically with the Russians — and actually in such places as Libya and Grenada, if not Lebanon — America shows renewed disposition to hit back.

Mr. Reagan embodies that change in outlook. He himself is a winner in the free enterprise system. He stints nothing in praising America and American values and interests. He sounds off against the Russians. He leaves economic welfare to the free play of the competitive forces. He espouses such popular themes as the balanced budget, prayer in school and right-to-life — but not to the point of doing anything about them.

But his victory is highly personal. Where his free-wheeling style was most approved, in the West and South, he swept the board. He carried Texas and Florida by huge majorities. Similarly for Utah, Nevada, Arizona, Wyoming and Colorado. Thanks to an impressive blue-collar crossover he garnered big victories in the industrial Midwest.

In states with a tradition of action to meet social problems, his margin was less impressive. Only a few points separated him from Fritz Mondale in Pennsylvania, New York, Iowa, Oregon and Massachusetts. Mondale of course carried Minnesota.

But the present mood lacks durability. Failure to translate military strength into some tangible gain for peace would cast a pall. While government spending and business investment impart momentum to the economy this year, uncertainty about deficits, interest rates, the dollar and the foreign trade balance give 1986 a dicey look.

For one big issue pushed front and center by the election is the deficit. All polls show high national concern with the $200 billion shortfall that looms ahead, if present budgetary trends are not altered. Most indicate a willingness to make sacrifice, provided the burden is fairly distributed. Fairness means cutting social services some, cutting defense some and raising taxes some. That is a workable proposition, especially if the president appoints a bipartisan commission, as he did for Social Security in 1982, to flesh out the details. But that means abandoning his electoral pledge that taxes will be raised "over my dead body." And the big sweep will make him less inclined than ever to eat his words.

The other issue — dealing with the Russians — looks much easier. Noises out of Moscow and virtually all capitals dependent on Russia show a disposition to make deals with the U.S. The interview given to the Washington Post by General Secretary Konstantin Chernenko, as well as the Washington visit by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, both trace room for progress in arms control. But to cut a deal Reagan will have to assert control over the rampant right-wing forces in his own administration who, when it comes to the Russians, are unwilling to take "yes" for an answer.

The Reagan landslide confers the power to pull swords from stones. But a struggle for future control over both parties impends. It will make the Democrats ornery and push Republicans into the kind of turmoil that resists the most astute national leadership. The president will be in bad trouble if he rests on what is being called "his mandate."

Recession is in the offing

WASHINGTON — Another recession is coming, and "Reaganomics" won't stop it, according to some of the administration's own economists. They predict privately that a downturn could come as early as next summer.

What will be the cause? The economists fear that the huge annual deficits and the bloated national debt will bring the economic recovery to a halt.

"The full impact of the $180 billion to $200 billion deficits probably will not be felt until the beginning of 1985," predicts one internal government analysis seen by my associate Michael Binstein. "At that time a short recession may begin, but it is not expected to change the generally optimistic five-year outlook."

Other events, which now seem less likely to occur but remain a concern, include shocks to the oil market, a worsening of the international debt problem, or a major change in the international value of the dollar.

Some economists believe it's already too late to avert a 1985 recession. They describe the economy as being between a rock and a hard place. Here's how they explain the problem:

If the government doesn't take bold action to shrink the budget, a recession will certainly occur. But if government spending is cut or taxes are raised enough to bring the budget down to earth, this could cause such a shock to the economy that it, too, would trigger a recession.

One thing is becoming clearer every day: President Reagan's campaign assurances that economic growth alone will cure the deficit problem simply are not supported by the evidence.

"It was rationalized," states another administration report, "that the economic growth resulting from the tax and spending decisions would lead to higher incomes, which in turn would boost tax receipts sufficiently to wipe out ... most of the deficits. It became evident, however, that the results were not quite turning out that way."

What is the solution? Walter Mondale wanted to raise taxes to reduce the deficit. His call for higher taxes contributed to his crushing defeat at the polls. The message from the voters was loud and clear enough to discourage congressmen from voting for a tax increase next year.

Congress has a disposition to regard taxation as the solution for all fiscal ills, and the voters had every reason to register their disapproval. Over the past 35 years, median family income has increased 7.6 times, but the taxes on that income have shot up an incredible 246.4 times. Clearly, the cause of the calamitous public debt has not been too little taxation but too much spending.

President Reagan, meanwhile, cut taxes without any significant reduction in spending. He has blamed Congress for rejecting his spending cuts. He has never changed the view he brought to the White House four years ago: that the federal government is too large, too cumbersome and too wasteful.

In the language of an internal White House memo, the president is determined to take "concrete steps ... to bring runaway deficits under control." He believes "both the functions and the spending of the federal government must be curbed."

STRICTLY PERSONAL: What's the latest on the thousands of Cambodians who have fled from their Vietnamese-controlled homeland to refugee camps in Thailand's east door?

Their situation is worse than ever, and it pains me to report that the U.S. government isn't helping.

The Thai government, which has been left to handle the Cambodian refugees almost singlehandedly, is threatening to ship perhaps 20,000 back across the border. The Thais say they can't afford to take care of the Cambodians, and that Western countries have been slow to accept the hapless refugees as immigrants.

So on the grounds that many of the Cambodians are not political refugees at all, but have fled merely in hopes of bettering themselves economically, the Thais plan to send them back to the tender mercies of the Vietnamese puppet regime. And the United States is quietly supporting this cold-blooded move.

As I've reported, though, there is indisputable evidence that Cambodian dissidents are subjected to the worst kinds of imprisonment and torture. That's the primary cause of the mass exodus.

And even if some of the Cambodians fled for economic reasons, they would surely be subject to reprisals if they are sent back.

Water fights pit region against region

By JIM DAVIS
AUSTIN — Like the ram in the "High Hopes" song, the Texas Supreme Court butted up against a dam last week, and, oops, there goes another multi-million dollar dam.

The high court killed a construction permit for Stacy Dam, a long-planned reservoir project near Ballinger. That's a serious blow for persons living in a large chunk of water-poor West Texas that was scheduled to benefit from the project.

But the decision had other effects. Some experts are saying it could doom all reservoir construction in the state outside of water-rich East Texas, at least until the 1985 Legislature can figure out a solution.

Water is a critical resource for the growing Texas economy, and some areas see dams and lakes as the only alternative to disaster during dry spells.

The Supreme Court's roadblock comes from its interpretation of state water rights laws.

For years, the demand for water has exceeded the water available, or, at least, the amount judged to be available even in periods of drought.

In the old days, water disputes were settled between neighbors, either through a handshake or a shootout. But with the late 1800s and early 1900s came the realization that some governmental system was needed to determine who could do what with the state's water resources.

The system has never been neat or simple, however. Permitting for water rights was a hodgepodge of conflicts and sometimes contradictions, with little enforcement. Only in recent years has the state even attempted to put enough money and staff into the job to do it well. Hearings have been held in Austin and throughout the state on conflicting claims to water rights in particular river systems.

Legislators from West Texas and other water-poor areas will be fighting with evangelistic fervor to change the law ... A divisive regional battle is a possibility.

Part of all those decisions has been the long-standing practice of allotting more water through permits than actually would be available during low rainfall periods if everyone took the full allotment.

That practice might seem foolish in drought-prone Texas, but there were two justifications: First, many users return significant portions of their water to the stream or reservoir they took it from in the first place. A power plant needs water for cooling, for example, but returns all that isn't lost as steam. Second, some water permits are never used or are used only partially. A developer with a permit to serve a planned rural subdivision might scale down or drop the project if interest rates climb, for example.

Proponents of overallocation say it recognizes reality and provides the best use of water resources. But the Supreme Court last week said state law doesn't allow it.

That adds some urgency to what already looks like a major issue for the Texas Legislature when it meets in January. Two years ago lawmakers tried to tackle the problem of passing a state water plan but missed.

Billy Graham

It is hard to forgive

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Is the little phrase "forgive and forget" found in the Bible? I would really like to do that, but I have a hard time forgetting the hurts people have done to me, and I find it hard to get rid of my grudges. — L.C.V.

DEAR L.C.V.: The phrase "forgive and forget" is not found in the Bible — but the idea of forgiving others when they have wronged us and then forgetting all about their action is certainly found repeatedly.

The Bible tells us we should treat people this way because it is the way God deals with us. We have hurt Him — far, far more than any person could ever hurt us. Every time we sin we hurt Him, especially when we live our lives without thinking about Him and His will for us. Yet God still loves us and wants us to be reconciled to Him. That is why Christ came and died on the cross. And when we turn to Christ and trust Him as our Lord and Savior, God freely forgives us of our sins and makes us His children forever.

He does this not because we deserve it, but simply because He loves us. But more than that, when we come to Christ, God not only forgives — He also forgets! The Bible says, "For I will forgive their wickedness and will remember their sins no more" (Jeremiah 31:34).

Have you accepted God's forgiveness by turning your life over to Christ? Open your heart to Him, and then ask Him to help you love other people as you should and forgive them as you should. When others do something that hurts you, ask God to help you "forgive and forget," and pray also that God will touch their hearts and bring them to Christ. It is hard to hold grudges against someone for whom you are praying.

Man may find love by Oregon trail

DEAR ABBY: This is for "In Love In Oregon," who went to Harris Beach, Ore., and met a girl from Grants Pass. He said it was love at first sight and they spent a fabulous weekend together, but they said goodbye before he could get her last name. He asked you to help him find her.

If he's sincere, he should have no trouble finding her. He could go to Grants Pass and knock on doors, asking, "Does Mary live here?"

Or he could place an ad in the local newspaper saying, "Mary, I love you. Call me!" (And give his telephone number.)

Or he could get copies of the local high school yearbooks for the appropriate years and find her picture.

He could also have fliers printed saying, "MISSING. THE GIRL I LOVE. FIRST NAME 'MARY.' PLEASE HELP ME FIND HER!" and tack the fliers on telephone poles.

Of course, if he feels that the time and expense aren't worth it, he doesn't deserve to find her.

PORT RICHEY, FLA. I EAR ABBY: If he places an ad in the Grants Pass newspaper saying, "Mary, I love you. Call me," and gives his telephone number, he may have more marriageable Marys than he knows what to do with. He might even meet another "Mary" and fall madly in love with her at first sight, too.

There's even an outside chance that his Mary is already married, or going (or living) with someone, and she's hiding.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column in which you made a pitch for handgun control was a lot of bull. You said: In 1980, handguns killed 77 people in Japan, eight in Great Britain, 24 in Switzerland, eight in Canada, 23 in Israel, 18 in Sweden, four in Australia and 11,522 in the United States. You said we must be doing something wrong.

I can tell you what we're doing wrong. In foreign countries, criminals are stopped after their first crime because bleeding-heart liberals haven't forced the judicial system to put the rights of the criminal before those of the victim. If people really want to get rid of handguns, they should put the criminals behind bars where they belong. Then the rest of us won't have to carry guns to protect ourselves and loved one.

Medical words Greek to reader

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In a recent blood test, normal in every way otherwise, this notation was included: "moderate atypical lymphocytes." I can't seem to understand the meaning. Also there was the word, "poikilocytosis." Can you give me an analysis I can grasp? — C.W.

Let's take the last one first. You're poikilocytotic. Poilo is Greek for "variation or irregularity." A poikilocyte is an irregularly-shaped red blood cell. The person doing the testing noted there was this slight difference in shapes. It's usually nothing to worry about. If you want to use the word in conversation, pronounce it POY-keel-oh-SITE-oh-suss. That will raise some eyebrows.

Now you also had moderate atypical lymphocytes. The lymphocytes are one kind of white blood cell. Again, the lab noted that some were different, atypical. That's found in many different conditions — mononucleosis, for example, or various viral infections. It's also seen in many normal people. There have to be a great many atypical cells to amount to much.

This is as good a time as any to make a point about laboratory tests. Many times levels of this or that substance and observations of slight irregularities in this or that cell may be beyond the normal range or configuration. The words for those observations can be ominous in sound, but altogether harmless in reality. You have to appraise a person's general health and his symptoms before you attach any significance to the test. Usually what the laboratory is saying to the doctor is that, for what it's worth to you, this is what we found.

CROSSING THE RIVER — Mexicans are carried illegally across the Mexico-Texas border recently by other Mexicans called "mules." Before the sun rises, thousands of Mexicans line the banks of the Rio Grande waiting to cross to the other side.

Illegal alien plight continues

Jobs, better pay are the key which unlock the door

AUSTIN (AP) — An illegal alien who makes more in one day working in Texas than he could make in a month in Mexico says the only jobs he and others take are the "really hard" jobs that Americans don't want to do.

"I agree that in a way we take jobs, but really people here don't want to do the jobs we do," a 24-year-old Mexican man identified as "Brigido" told the Austin American-Statesman.

"We do the really hard jobs. Most Americans want easier jobs. They are looking for a better class of job. We are the ones who take that (less desirable) kind of job here," he said.

Mexican consular officials estimate Austin has an underground community of 35,000 to 40,000 Mexican citizens who live illegally in the state capital and seek what work they can find.

Brigido lives with six other citizens of Mexico in the rear of a West Austin house less than a mile from the Capitol.

The men came to the house from different parts of Mexico, by different routes, arriving at different times during the past year, the newspaper said. All of them said they waded the river along the Texas border.

Two of the men are picked up each day by a landscape contractor who hires them to haul railroad ties. Austin is growing by leaps and bounds, and there is plenty of construction work for the two men and thousands of their countrymen who are in the city illegally.

Eusebio, 34, one of two older men living in the house, said he has a steady job at a laundry. He said he and his friends can earn $40 a day in Austin, at $4 an hour, which is more than he can earn in a month in his rural hometown in the state of Jalisco. The minimum wage there is about 600 pesos a day, or $3, but steady work is hard to find.

"Imagine if you earned 600 pesos a day, and you had to spend 150 pesos to buy a liter of milk, and more on other little things for a meal. How can you live on that?" Eusebio asked.

His former neighbors in the village of La Solidar rarely eat meat, and subsist on a meager harvest of corn, beans, and lentils they grow during a brief rainy season.

Brigido, who is from Durango, the capital of the state of Durango, left five brothers and sisters back at home a year ago because as the eldest child it was up to him to make the trip to the United States.

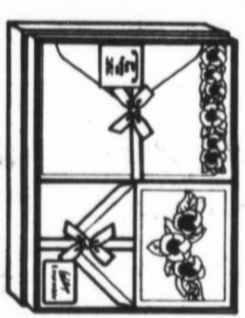

Each month he sends several hundred dollars in a money order to his family. A younger brother is in a college preparatory school, trying to enter a university to become an engineer.

"If you spend all that you earn, you haven't got anything. If you spend all your money and do nothing, it's better to be in Mexico doing nothing," said Brigido, who works on a landscape crew.

"We get the jobs that are a little more dangerous, dirty, and involve hard work," Eusebio said. "What we don't ask is what kind of work it is. The only word we know is work. When they say, 'Do you want to work?' we say yes."

NO MORE CANDY — The manager of a large West London food store chain clears out the shelves of Mars bars before the shop opened this morning. An animal rights activists groups claims it has poisoned the candy. Associated Press photo

GB stores clear candy bars

Activists reportedly injected Mars bars with poison

LONDON (AP) — British storekeepers cleared an estimated 10 million Mars candy bars from their shelves today after animal rights activists said they injected some with rat poison to protest the use of monkeys in a sugar-rich diet experiment.

About a dozen people, including some children, reportedly ate Mars bars before finding typewritten warning notes inside the wrappers, but there were no reports that anyone had been poisoned. Police said the heat-sealed wrappers had been punctured, probably by activists posing as shoppers in supermarkets.

Laboratory technicians were checking for traces of poison in bars found in at least six cities and towns, including Coventry, Leeds, Manchester, Plymouth and Salisbury, police said.

In a statement Sunday, Mars said that with the aid of storekeepers it was removing and checking all Mars bars on sale. It said there could be 10 million of them.

"These measures will allow our customers to continue to buy Mars bars with confidence," it said, adding that so far no evidence of contamination had been found.

A telephone caller to the London Broadcasting Corp., who identified herself only as Vivien, said the action was taken against Mars U.K. Ltd to protest the company funding dental researchers to discover if monkeys get tooth decay on a sugar-rich diet at Guy's Hospital in London.

The telephone caller said: "There will be actions of this sort by the Animal Liberation Front against all companies that abuse animals. It will continue to step up its actions in any way necessary to put these companies out of business."

"These people are lunatics," said farmworker Michael Phippen near Dorchester in southwest England. He said his family was terrified when he found a note in a Mars bar after his wife, Sandra, and 14-year-old daughter Chantelle, had each eaten one.

Mrs. Phippen, who opposes animal experiments, said she and her daughter apparently suffered no ill effects from the bars.

Britons buy 3 million of the chocolate, caramel and nougat Mars bars daily, the company said. The candy bar has been sold in Britain since 1932.

Mars said it pays $31,250 a year to fund the monkey research. Loxley Ryan, corporate affairs director, denied any cruelty to animals. He said the monkeys get Mars bars as part of their diet to see whether dental problems in children can be prevented.

Ryan said the monkeys are neither force-fed nor mistreated.

The Daily Mail reported that the monkey labs are on the 28th floor of a building at the Guy's Hospital complex in Southwark, south London, under tight security.

Hospital administrator Paul Litchell said his staff feels "the animals are well looked after."

The Daily Star newspaper reported interviewing an unidentified member of the Animal Liberation Front in London who said hundreds of Mars bars were spiked with enough rat poison "to kill or seriously injure someone."

The woman was quoted as saying: "We aim not to endanger human life. That's why we gave out a warning. If someone were to die it would not affect our cause in the least."

She said that further campaigns are planned on other issues involving confectionary, fur coats and turkeys.

Israel rejects latest Lebanese demands

NAQOURA, Lebanon — Israel rejected Lebanese demands for the release of prisoners and the payment of up to $10 billion in war reparations as talks on the withdrawal of Israeli troops resumed today in this border town.

As the third round of talks opened, Israel's chief delegate instead stressed the need to agree on measures to protect Israel's northern border after an Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon, which it invaded almost 2½ years ago.

The Lebanese spokesman, Lt. Col. Bassam Saad, retorted that the Lebanese were not "policemen of Israel and our only objective is to seek peace in south Lebanon and to let the Lebanese civilians feel secure."

Saad said his delegation "accentuated the role of the United Nations in our country. We reminded the Israelis of the U.N. (resolutions) that say Israel should withdraw from Lebanon and let the central Lebanese government control the south."

Saad said the Lebanese negotiators "totally rejected" any role after an Israeli withdrawal for the South Lebanon Army, a militia equipped and guided by Israel. He said that included any efforts to integrate the militiamen into the regular Lebanese army.

Chief Israeli delegate Brig. Gen. Amos Gilboa said in a statement: "In regards to the request for compensation of $8 (billion) to $10 billion, I wish to assert most vigorously that the Israeli delegation rejects this request outright."

"The reason for our presence in this forum is to discuss security arrangements which will insure the safeguarding of our northern border. It is not our role to discuss the irrelevant matter of compensation," Gilboa said.

During the second session of the talks last Thursday, Lebanon demanded the war reparations to offset the cost of repairing damage caused by Israel's invasion and occupation of south Lebanon.

Gilboa also rejected other Lebanese demands, including the release of hundreds of prisoners held by the Israelis at south Lebanon detention centers and the opening of key roads connecting south Lebanon with Beirut and the north.

"Israel at the present time cannot permit herself to make such gestures as long as the hostile activities against her continue," Gilboa said.

Israel had sought a cease-fire in south Lebanon but the offer was rejected by Shiite Moslem leaders.

Since Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6, 1982, to rout Palestinian guerrillas, 602 Israelis have been killed and more than 3,500 wounded in Lebanon.

An average of about 50 attacks a month have been reported this year against the Israeli occupation force, with the majority blamed on Shiite Moslems who emerged as the dominant force in the wake of a flight by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Israel's daily Haaretz newspaper said today that from the end of June 1982 until last week, there had been 1,010 attacks on Israelis in Lebanon. Israeli military sources said the figure "seems to be accurate."

Following warnings by extremists in Beirut and rumors in south Lebanon last week that an attempt would be made to disrupt the talks at the U. N. headquarters in Naqoura, U.N. troops stepped up already heavy security.

"There have been continual rumors. We have to believe them," said a conference source. "The fate of those who don't take threats seriously in Lebanon is well known."

Big concrete blocks and barrels filled with water blocked roads leading to the one-story conference hall near the Mediterranean shore.

The walls of the conference room, for the first time since the talks started Nov. 8, were covered with maps — an indication the delegations were ready to get down to the detailed business of what forces would be deployed where.

The previously outlined Lebanese and Israeli security proposals for south Lebanon both call for the use of the United Nations, but the two sides differ on where the international peacekeeping force should be deployed.

Lebanon wants the U.N. force stationed along the Lebanese-Israeli border, with the Lebanese army deployed in what is now the northern part of Israel's occupation zone.

BISHOP'S ATTACK — Monsignor Juan Francisco Fresno, the Archbishop of Santiago, reads a pastoral letter Sunday at the downtown cathedral. The archbishop assailed Chile's state of siege and denounced government. Associated Press photo

Government stifling Church

State of siege comes under fire by Chileans, Catholics

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The military government is using a state of siege to stifle what many Chileans consider the strongest voice of opposition — that of the Roman Catholic Church.

While expelling an outspoken Catholic official and criticizing leading bishops, the government has ordered Chilean news media to ignore church pronouncements defending those targets or condemning human rights abuse and the state of siege itself.

The attacks mark the end of a government effort to cultivate the church's senior official, Monsignor Juan Francisco Fresno, and have turned the conservative archbishop into a vocal critic of President Augusto Pinochet.

On Sunday, a pastoral letter from Fresno that was read at Masses in his Santiago archdiocese condemned the two-week-old siege, which suspends civil liberties for 90 days, as "a grave reversal for understanding and peace." A single Chilean news outlet, the church-owned radio station, reported it.

The archbishop warned that censoring the church's voice can only "darken and endanger its very communion" with the country's military rulers who, like most Chileans, are Catholics. Many churchgoers greeted the letter with applause.

The church-state conflict is the deepest since Pinochet, an army general, seized power 11 years ago. Many overserves believe the rift has further isolated his unpopular government without undermining its power.

El Mercurio, a leading pro-government newspaper, commented Sunday that the "unexpected barricade between the two most important institutions in national life" has put the government in "an uncomfortable position" but not a critical one.

"The moral power of the Catholic church in comparison to the resources for physical coercion enjoyed by authoritarian rulers is not insignificant, but it is clearly limited," said Brian H. Smith, an American political scientist and author of a new book about the church in Chile.

There were indications the Vatican was moving quietly to defuse the confrontation. Pope John Paul II prayed in public on Sunday for reconciliation in Chile without mentioning the attacks on the church. His ambassador to Chile cut short a visit to Rome and returned here late last week for private talks with the archbishop.

During Pinochet's first decade in power, the church under Cardinal Raul Silva Henriquez often stood alone in challenging the regime and calling for a return to democracy. His Vicariate of Solidarity became Chile's authoritative human rights agency, documenting cases of arbitrary arrest, torture and summary execution.

Fresno's appointment in May 1983 to replace the feisty cardinal as archbishop of Santiago coincided with the first large protests led by opposition parties and unions and with a Vatican strategy to shift the Chilean church into a more conciliatory role.

Pinochet's wife welcomed the appointment as "the answer to our prayers."

Oilers victorious for second time

HOUSTON (AP) — The same question could be asked of the two National Football League teams that played in the Astrodome Sunday: What's wrong with the New York Jets? What's wrong with the Houston Oilers?

The Oilers? They are supposed to be the NFL doormat, and yet they found enough resiliency Sunday to rally from a 13-0 deficit to a 31-20 victory to win back-to-back games for the first time since 1981.

The Jets? They started the season with a 6-2 record, but Sunday's loss was their fourth in a row and Coach Joe Walton doesn't know where the next injury might strike.

The Jets streaked to a 13-0 lead on Marion Barber's 12-yard run and field goals of 19 and 26 yards by Pat Leahy.

But Moon came back and completed touchdown passes of 5 and 14 yards to Tim Smith and 10 yards to Herkie Walls, Joe Cooper kicked a 43-yard field goal and Larry Moriarty ran 51 yards to cap a string of 31 straight points.

The stunned Jets did manage a late 3-yard touchdown run by Tony Paige, but it was too little too late. Houston trailed 13-10 at halftime but took the lead on Smith's 14-yard TD catch two plays after Oiler defensive end Bob Hamm recovered a fumble by Freeman McNeil at the Jets 17.

Houston went up 24-13 on Wall's TD catch and capped it with Moriarty's 51-yard dash early in the fourth quarter.

Moriarty, who rushed over 100 yards for the second consecutive week, had the longest touchdown run of his career in the fourth quarter.

But he was thinking about not fumbling for the second time in the game.

Moriarty, who gained 117 yards on 29 carries in last week's victory over Kansas City, added 126 yards on 23 carries against the Jets.

Moon hit nine straight passes at one stretch of the second half and finished with 20 of 28 for 207 yards and three touchdowns.

Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien started his first NFL game in place of injured Pat Ryan. O'Brien hit eight of his first nine passes as the Jets took the lead and finished with 19 of 36 for 226 yards and one interception.

Houston's offensive line had allowed 41 quarterback sacks coming into the game against Mark Gastineau, the NFL's leading sacker, but Gastineau got to Moon only once for an eight-yard loss.

BACK FIVE YARDS — New York Jets running back Freeman McNeil is dragged down for a five-yard loss by Houston Oilers defensive end Jerome Foster while trying to run up the middle in the fourth quarter Sunday in the Astrodome. The Oilers beat the Jets 31-20.

Chargers terminate Miami's streak at 11

The Miami Dolphins can now forget about 1972 and concentrate on 1984.

"There won't be any more comparisons now" with the Dolphins' unbeaten team of 1972, Coach Don Shula said Sunday after Miami's first loss of the season, a 34-28 overtime decision to the San Diego Chargers. "I guess we won't have to worry about that anymore."

Miami, 11-1, lost for the first time in 17 regular-season games dating back to last year. The Dolphins fell one game short of the National Football League record for consecutive regular-season victories set by the Chicago Bears in 1933-34, and also missed a chance to clinch the AFC East title.

Eagles 16

Redskins 10

Andre Waters returned a kickoff 89 yards for a touchdown and Paul McFadden kicked three field goals as Philadelphia stunned Washington.

Washington's Mark Moseley had given the Redskins a 10-9 lead on a 33-yard field goal with 5:26 left in the third period when Waters broke loose on the ensuing kickoff.

Giants 16

Cardinals 10

Ali Haji-Sheikh kicked three third-quarter field goals and Mark Haynes picked off two passes for the Giants.

The Giants forced four interceptions and two fumbles in the bruising battle. That gave the Cardinals 16 turnovers in their last three games.

Broncos 42

Vikings 21

John Elway threw five touchdown passes in less than three quarters to spark Denver's 10th straight victory. The victory raised the AFC West Division-leading Broncos' record to 11-1 and set up a showdown with second-place Seattle, 10-2, next week.

Raiders 17

Chiefs 7

Linebacker Rod Martin returned one Kansas City fumble for a touchdown and forced a second that set up another Los Angeles score as the Raiders broke a three-game losing streak.

The victory boosted the defending Super Bowl champions' record to 8-4 and kept them from losing four straight games for the first time in 20 years.

Bears 16

Lions 14

Bob Thomas' third field goal of the game, a 19-yarder with two seconds remaining, lifted Chicago over Detroit.

The triumph boosted the first-place Bears to 8-4 and dropped Detroit to 3-8-1, eliminating the defending champion Lions from title consideration in the Central Division of the National Conference.

Bell and Bills ring Pokes by 14-3 count

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The realization that his Dallas Cowboys took the Buffalo Bills too lightly came on the first play of the game for Coach Tom Landry.

"You kind of feel it might not be your day when a team opens with an 85-yard score," said Landry.

His hunch proved right on target. The heavily-favored Cowboys, playing for the first time ever in Rich Stadium, ran into a winless Buffalo team aching for some respect.

The Bills earned a good measure of respect with their 14-3 upset victory Sunday in the National Football League.

Unquestionably, the game's first play, an 85-yard touchdown run by rookie Greg Bell, was the game's biggest. It gave the Bills the lead, which they never relinquished, and the knowledge that Dallas was beatable.

The run, the longest ever from scrimmage against the Cowboys, was the realization of a sleepy notion that came to both Bell and Bills' fullback Booker Moore the night before the game.

"Before the game, I was talking with Booker and he told me he had a dream that I'd run the first play all the way for a touchdown," said Bell, whose 206 yards rushing marked the first time anyone's run for more than 200 yards against Dallas since Jim Brown in 1963.

A win against the 7-5 Cowboys seemed like a dream to most Bills fans, who came within 800 seats of selling out the 80,000-seat stadium and who, one suspected, came more to bury Buffalo than to praise the team.

But with one play, a quick-count delay that saw Bell jump into the Dallas secondary and streak 85 yards to the end zone, the fans sensed the Bills might manage what has been the impossible this season.

"The defense was excellent," said Buffalo Coach Kay Stephenson. "We had sound, solid play today. I felt we've played well defensively the last few weeks and I felt if we got some offense today we should have been better this week than last."

Landry, who said his offense "didn't do too much to tell how really good they (the Bills defense) was," admitted he was "somewhat embarrassed" by his team's performance.

"The first run from scrimmage took some of the wind out of our sails," he added. "We were not ready to play today. Maybe we thought it would be too easy."

The victory was so stunning, at least one Cowboy still had trouble believing it happened.

"There's no way we should come up here and lose to the worst team in football," said Tony Dorsett.

49ers 24

Bucs 17

Fred Dean made two key defensive plays in his first game this year to help San Francisco beat Tampa Bay. Dean, the defensive end who joined the 49ers last Wednesday after settlement of a contract dispute, forced a wobbly pass by Bucs quarterback Steve DeBerg which resulted in an interception and eventually a touchdown. He also contributed a key sack in the closing minutes of the game that killed off Tampa Bay's final scoring threat.

Young Lady Steers, new coach open hoop season

By Steven Belvin
Staff Writer

Big Spring first year head girl's basketball coach Carol Niemeyer really has her hands full with the task of preparing her team for District 4-5A wars. Niemeyer has the job of trying to take a seven-women squad which includes four sophomores and turning them into a contending team.

The Lady Steers will get their first test Monday in Sweetwater when the Lady Mustangs host the Big Spring varsity and junior varsity squads starting at 6 and 8 p.m.

Gone is the bulk of last year's squad which featured guard Debra Rubio and forwards Monette Wise and Paula Spears. Last season the trio combined for an average of 44 of Big Spring's 57 points per contest.

Last season under the direction of coach Annette Fowler Big Spring finished with a 12-15 season slate and sixth place in district with a 5-9 record.

A finish that high might be quite an accomplishment for this year's squad.

The Lady Steers' only two experienced players will be returning starters Alice Lopez, a 5-5 senior guard; and forward Trell Clemons, a 5-7 senior.

Lopez was Big Spring's playmaker last year. More-than-likely she will be counted on to score more this season. Clemons was Big Spring's fourth leading scorer averaging eight points per game. She was second in rebounding with seven grabs per game.

Lady Steers assistant Elaine Stone said the duo will have to be the force that leads this young squad. "There is a lot of pressure there because they have the varsity experience. They must be leaders for the others."

The "others" Stone is referring to is newcomers Monique Jones, Teresa Pruitt, Lisa Hale and Dawn Sampley and Sheri Myrick. The five played on coach Stone's junior varsity team that finished last season at 11-10 and 8-5 in district play.

Jones is the lone junior standing 5-7 and playing post. She will be joined down low by 6-9 sophomore Myrick. These two along with Clemons from her forward spot will be expected to patrol the paint area.

Lisa Hale, a 5-3 sophomore will work with Lopez in the back court. Teresa Pruitt, another 5-7 sophomore and 5-4 sophomore guard Dawn Sampley will also play important roles.

Coach Stone agrees that it is indeed a rebuilding year with the loss of so many top players and the fact so many optioned not to play basketball this season. (The Lady Steers have only eight junior varsity players). "A lot of kids dropped out of basketball this season. We have some that should be playing. I don't know the reason why."

Stone rates Midland High with forward Denise Lanz and San Angelo Central; powered by forwards Anita Allgood and Shawn Sweetan; as the pre-season district favorites.

As for the Lady Steers, they'll improve with each game's worth of experience. But the road to success won't be an easy one.

But you don't have the Big Spring girls basketball coaching staff that. With four sophomores on a seven-member squad they already know that.

Spring's most consistent player throughout the season.

Loftin leads BSHS swimmers in San Angelo

SAN ANGELO — Cade Loftin had the best finish of any Big Spring High School swimmer when he finished fifth in the 100 yard butterfly at the San Angelo Swimming and Diving Invitational last Saturday night.

Loftin's time of 1:01.4 was a personal best and prompted BSHS swim coach Harlan Smith to say his sophomore swimmer is close to breaking the one minute barrier.

"He's close to going under a minute," said Smith. "We will be working on the fine points like turns to get under that minute mark."

Loftin helped lead the Steers to a eighth place finish in the 15-team meet. Amarillo high won the meet with Midland and Cooper following.

The boys 200 medley relay of Loftin, Mitch Houghton, Robert Chase and Brigham Martin paced eight in a time of 1:58.2. Loftin was seventh in the 100 backstroke (1:07.7), Ferguson; ninth in the 500 freestyle (5:57.8) and Houghton; ninth in the 100 breaststroke (1:12.41).

The 400 freestyle relay team of Charles Morse, Martin, Ferguson and Don Defflitch finished 11th with a time of 4:01.8.

Harticy Newell's seventh place finish in the 100 freestyle (1:04.6) was the BSHS's girls best finish.

The Lady Steers placed 11th place in the division which was won by host team Central. Cooper was second while Odessa Permian finished third.

Rose Meir place ninth in the 50 freestyle in a time of 29.9 while Lisa Salazar placed eighth in the 100 breaststroke in a time of 1:25.9.

Big Spring will host Monahans in a duel meet Tuesday at the YMCA starting at 6 p.m.

Missouri coach gets axe

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Warren Powers was fired today as head coach at Missouri because of growing "negativity" surrounding the football program, Chancellor Barbara Uehling said.

Uehling and Athletic Director Dave Hart announced the firing of Powers at a news conference in the chancellor's office shortly after 9 a.m.

"This is not an action we take lightly or easily," Uehling said. "We are grateful to Coach Powers for what he has been doing." However, Uehling said "There is a kind of negativity that has grown around the program and we believe it is time to make a change."

Hart agreed the lack of success in the program had generated negative feelings among alumni athletic committee members and also was reflected in dwindling home-game attendance and a drop on season tickets sales.

Missouri lost to Kansas 35-21 Saturday in their season finale for a 3-7-1 mark, their first losing season in seven years under Powers. Powers' seven-year record was 46-33-3.

BC headed to Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — Boston College, led by dynamic quarterback Doug Flutie, is coming to the Cotton Bowl.

Flutie holds numerous NCAA passing records and is a prime Heisman Trophy candidate.

Official bids can not be extended until 6 p.m. next Saturday, according to NCAA rules, but there's no doubt who will be the Cotton Bowl's guest team on New Year's Day.

"I feel sure we'll have a representative in their locker room next Saturday and we'll invite them and hope they accept," said Field Scovell, chairman of the Cotton Bowl selection committee.

"They have a real exciting team to watch. Flutie is a shoo-in to win the Heisman. He is a charming young man and the press loves him."

Texas will be the host team if it wins its next two games.

Winnipeg wins CFL title

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — After twice falling behind by 14 points, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers remembered their game plan. And that meant that the Hamilton Tigers Cats could forget about the Grey Cup.

Winnipeg spotted Hamilton leads of 14-0 and 17-3 before roaring back for a 47-17 victory in the Canadian Football League championship game. It was Winnipeg's first title in 22 years.

"That's not the best way to start a game and I think everyone was upset," said Winnipeg quarterback Tom Clements, the game's most valuable player. "But then everyone just started playing harder."

Winnipeg scored a Grey Cup-record 27 points in the second quarter for a 30-17 halftime edge and coasted home.

"Once we found out we could move the ball, we settled down and went ahead with the game plan," said Winnipeg Coach Cal Murphy.

Because Clements was nursing a bruised chest, the strategy called for him to sprint out to avoid the pass rush and then throw into the flats.

"We flooded the outside because Hamilton likes to sit back in a zone," said Murphy. "The sprint action opened up a lot of things when we were able to throw to people like Sean Kehoe."

Kehoe caught five passes for 47 yards and also rushed 12 times for 89 yards in teaming with Willard Reaves, who ran for two touchdowns and 64 yards before being hurt in the fourth quarter.

In the decisive second period, Winnipeg got touchdowns on a 3-yard run by Reaves, a 12-yard pass from Clements to Joe Poplawski and a 22-yard fumble return by Stand Mikawos. Trevor Kenner converted after all three touchdowns and booted two field goals.

Browns 23

Cleveland's defense unloaded an NFL record-tying 11 sacks and Paul McDonald threw two touchdowns passes as the Browns beat the Falcons.

Clay Matthews led the sack parade with 3½ as the Browns nailed Steve Bartkowski 10 times for losses totaling 89 yards and Mike Moroski once for six yards.

Pats 50

Tony Eason passed for 292 yards and four touchdowns, three of them to Derrick Ramsey in the first half, as New England routed the Colts.

The three touchdown passes to Ramsey helped the Patriots to a 26-10 lead at halftime, and a 12-yard scoring completion to Stanley Morgan iced the game in the third quarter.

Packers 31

Eddie Lee Ivery rushed for three touchdowns and cornerback Tim Lewis returned an interception a team-record 99 yards for another TD to power Green Bay to its fourth straight victory.

Green Bay, 5-7, stayed alive in the NFC Central race, while the Rams, with hopes of a wild-card playoff spot, faded to 7-5 in the NFC West.

Seahawks 26

Seattle's defense set up one of Zachary Dixon's two touchdown runs and Norm Johnson's field goal, leading the Seahawks over Cincinnati for a team-record sixth consecutive victory.

The Seahawks stayed in the thick of the AFC playoff chase with their 10th regular-season victory, another team record, against two losses.
