How's that? Driving rules

Q. I was wondering if the deaf and hearing impaired must have special equipment on their cars in order to drive. I'm happy to see so many cars with SWCID stickers on them, but it made me wonder if they have any special equipment on their cars?

A. N.J. Lucas, a state trooper, told us that deaf and hearing impaired drivers are required to have an outside mirror on their car.

Safeway, meat cutters reach accord

By KEELY COGHLAN

Members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen Local No. 540 ended their strike Tuesday against the Dallas division of Safeway Stores Inc. after a 13-hour negotiation session Monday night.

Striking members of the union, also known as the United Food and Commercial Workers Local No. 540, have pulled their pickets from Safeway stores in Big Spring, Colorado City, Snyder and Sweetwater, according to the chief negotiator for the union, Local No. 540 vice president Hugh Leake of Dallas. Strikers will return to work after the Thanksgiving holiday, Leake said. The public relations director for the Safeway office in Dallas, Vicki Flannery, said today the strike had been settled but that she was unaware of the details of the settlement. "We're extremely pleased the strike has been settled," Ms. Flannery said. "We have a lot of good employees. We're glad they're coming back." The settlement came in a marathon negotiation session that began at 10 a.m. Monday and ended about 1 a.m. Tuesday, Leake said. Although the strike occurred right before Thanksgiving — one of the biggest sales periods in the grocery business — Ms. Flannery said the strike did not affect the company's business. "We have See Strike page 2-A

Water district delayed

Hearing reset on Coahoma bid

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has postponed until Dec. 18 a hearing on Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1's request to become a municipal water district.

The hearing, originally set for Nov. 23, was delayed because of the district's failure to provide adequate notice of the proposed change locally.

District president Oscar Cagle called the proposed change "an effort to modernize the district."

He cited several advantages of municipal utility districts over water districts, including the ability to arrange financing for wastewater treatment plants, parks and recreational facilities.

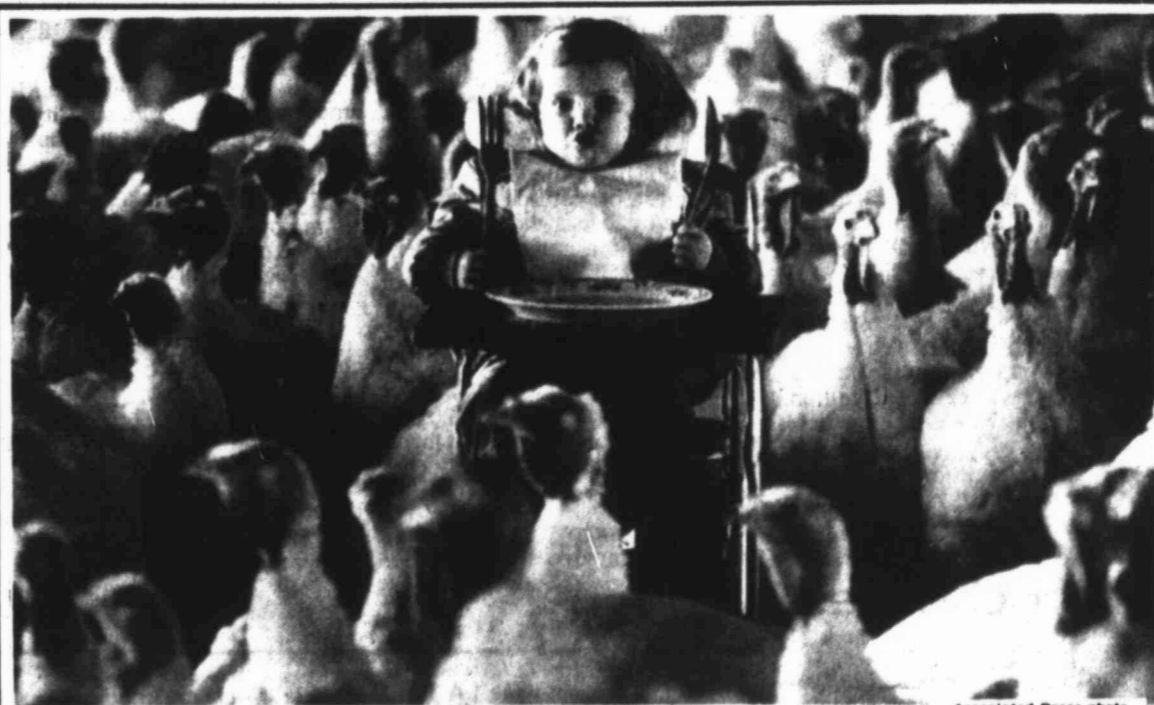

State law currently prevents water districts from operating and constructing such facilities, he said. Such projects currently are not planned by the district, he said, but may be in the future, if the area grows.

Requests to become municipal utility districts typically win routine commission approval, said Royston Lanning, an attorney with the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Transformation to a municipal utility district, Lanning said, does not allow a water district to expand its service area. All requests to broaden the service base must be approved by the Texas Public Utility Commission, he noted.

The water district currently purchases treated water from the city

Turkey trivia

Why Thanksgiving fowl is a real birdbrain

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The turkey you eat this Thanksgiving may be delicious, but Texas A&M University scientists say that when it was alive it was one of the dumbest creatures on Earth.

That's not all. Left to its own devices, the animal would almost certainly become extinct. Tame turkeys cannot breed without help.

Farm turkeys, unlike their wild relatives, are among the idiots of the animal kingdom. Young birds, or poults, are literally too dumb to come in out of the rain.

"Some poults have been so amazed during heavy rains that they stood still and gazed at the sky until they drowned," said William O. Cawley, a Texas A&M poultry expert.

And stupidity is only one failing.

David B. Mellor of Texas A&M said that generations of breeding have given male turkeys such heavy breasts they "now are simply too heavy to breed by themselves."

The breast meat is so thick it prevents the male from achieving a natural union with a female. So breeders must remove sperm from the male and artificially fertilize developing eggs inside the female bird.

As one might expect, a bird that neglects to breathe air when given an opportunity to inhale water is capable of extraordinary acts of foolishness.

For instance, Cawley said, poults "are so inquisitive that if you leave an empty bucket in their pen they'll all climb in until the bucket fills up. The ones at the bottom could smother."

Their gregarious natures do not stop there.

A turkey placed by itself in a pen next to an area holding the rest of the flock will "run up and down the fence line until it is exhausted."

Jobless number declines

October rate drops to 4.1%

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Unemployment in Howard County continues on its way down, according to figures released today from the Texas Employment Commission here.

October unemployment was 4.1 percent, down from 4.5 in September, according to Joe Wallis, director of the TEC. The unemployment rate in this area began falling in October 1983, when it reached a high of 6.8 percent.

"It's been going down steadily since October of 1983," Wallis said.

The total labor force also fell from September to October, Wallis said. During October in Howard County it was 17,078. In September it was 17,206 people. However, the labor force has grown from a year ago, when it was 16,662.

Figures show that 16,377 people were employed in Howard County during October. That's slightly lower from the September figure of 16,427 employed. Almost a year ago, there were 15,461 people employed in the county.

The total unemployed for the county in October was 701 people, Wallis said. Last month the figure stood at 779. Last year, more than 1,500 people were unemployed at this time of year.

Wallis said the figures show that "fewer people are looking for work" in the county.

During this time of year, there are also "fewer people entering the (job) market," Wallis said.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Firemen working by the light of flashlights buried 275 unidentified victims of fiery gas explosions in a huge mass grave on a hillside northeast of the neighborhood where they died.

The victims buried late Tuesday night were among at least 324 people killed when explosions at a liquid petroleum gas storage and distribution center showered flames, debris and sections of tanks onto homes in the area at daybreak Monday. Red Cross officials said at least 500 other people were seriously injured.

The office of President Miguel de la Madrid, which issued the latest fatality figures late Tuesday, said the toll "is not expected to rise significantly because the injured are being attended efficiently by the health system."

Fire fighters on Tuesday night stacked the 275 unidentified victims' coffins, some metal and some wooden, in layers into a dusty grave dug by a bulldozer.

BRINGING IN THE DEAD — Policemen carry coffins Tuesday evening in a makeshift morgue bearing remains of people killed after gas explosions Monday near a northern suburb of Mexico City. The disaster is one of the worst gas explosions in history.

Death toll reaches 324 in gas plant explosion

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Firemen working by the light of flashlights buried 275 unidentified victims of fiery gas explosions in a huge mass grave on a hillside northeast of the neighborhood where they died.

The victims buried late Tuesday night were among at least 324 people killed when explosions at a liquid petroleum gas storage and distribution center showered flames, debris and sections of tanks onto homes in the area at daybreak Monday. Guided by the headlights of a jeep and 10 flashlights held by policemen, the fire fighters quickly filled the grave.

Most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition. They had been removed from the neighborhood and held in a makeshift morgue while survivors filed by them

Tuesday in an attempt to identify missing relatives.

However, Col. Eustorgio Perez Becerril, deputy police director for the state of Mexico, said authorities decided to bury the unidentified victims after the stench in the morgue intensified.

"One stage of the accident has ended here," he said. "Tomorrow we will see what is to be done with the people who lost their homes."

The explosion and fire destroyed or seriously damaged homes in about 20 square blocks of the neighborhood of San Juan Ixhuatepec in Tlalneantla, a suburb on the northern edge of Mexico City. Hector Garcia Vasquez, a federal police spokesman, said more than 100,000 people were evacuated from the area.

Thousands of people began returning to their homes Tuesday near the area devastated by the gas tank explosions, some still wondering whether they would find relatives lost when they fled the early morning fire and many questioning whether they should continue to live in the area.

Dozens of residents pushed to the edge of an area that was still cordoned off, trying to convince officials to let them return to their homes.

Judge may block fortune

DETROIT — A judge has agreed to consider blocking distribution of the $40 million fortune of the family of automotive pioneer John Dodge after a request was made by a woman claiming to be a long-lost Dodge daughter, possibly a Siamese twin.

Wayne County Probate Judge J. Robert Gragg took under advisement Tuesday the request by Frances Mealbach, 69, who said she believes she is a twin of Frances Dodge, who died in 1971 at age 57.

GM Corp. may recall cars

DETROIT — The federal government has asked General Motors Corp. to consider recalling 29,000 Chevrolet Chevette subcompact cars while it decides whether to order the recall because of potential rear-brake lockup.

GM spokesman Harold Jackson said Tuesday the company believes there is not "an unreasonable risk."

Men won't appeal cases

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — Two of four men convicted in the Big Dan's Tavern pool table rape trial won't appeal their sentences and a third has postponed an appeal, officials said.

A court session Tuesday was canceled after attorneys dropped requests for sentence review for two men and asked for a continuance for the third, said Patricia Ellis, assistant Bristol County district attorney.

Four men were convicted in May on charges of aggravated rape in connection with the March 1983 incident. Two men were acquitted.

Edward Harrington, a defense attorney, said the four are proceeding with a request for a new trial.

Official gets prison term

BOSTON — A former General Services Administration official, sentenced to four years in prison for trying to extort nearly $20,000 from a shopping mall developer, said he was remorseful and asked the court to consider him an example to others because he pleaded guilty.

Lawrence F. Bretta, 56, the former commissioner of public buildings for the GSA, was sentenced Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Andrew Caffrey.

High food, gas prices drive up consumer index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, driven by more expensive gasoline and food, rose a moderate 0.4 percent in October, the government said today. The 1.8 percent gasoline price hike was the steepest since May 1983.

With just two months left in 1984, however, inflation this year is running at 4.2 percent, slightly better than analysts' predictions of a 5 percent rise for the year.

As for last month, analysts laid fully half the blame for higher prices on the increases for gasoline and food. Food prices, which had fallen in September, rose 0.4 percent.

But those analysts said the news for consumers was not as bad as it might appear from the new figures. Virtually all the higher gasoline prices were recorded in the West, primarily in California, with the department's seasonal adjustment process accounting for much of the rest of the gain. Gasoline prices had risen 1.1 percent in the previous month after declining throughout the summer.

Analysts still maintain that the surge in gasoline prices will be short-lived, as oil-rich nations struggle to cope with shrinking worldwide demand. For instance, those experts point out, the most recent wholesale price cuts forced on petroleum exporters have yet to work their way to the pump.

Nor should food prices continue to climb, said the analysts, who likewise said the seasonal adjustment mechanism produced higher prices than those consumers actually paid.

Because of that, said department analyst Patrick Jackman, "I don't think the food increase is the start of a trend. The real key is that prices in the marketplace did not go up as much as we are reflecting" in today's report.

Indeed, while the department reported seasonally adjusted gains for all the major food components of the index, shelf prices were actually down across the board.

Seasonal adjustments are made every month to remove predictable, periodic factors from the price calculations. Last month, gasoline prices at the pump nationwide were up an average of just 0.7 percent. But, with seasonal adjustment, the increase became 1.8 percent because those prices normally fall 1.1 percent in October as demand tapers off from the peak summer driving season.

Despite the recent gasoline increases, prices are still 13.0 percent below their peak of March 1981.

Dear Abby

America's bounty extends to millions of homes

DEAR READERS: By popular demand, here is my traditional Thanksgiving column: Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day, so take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for.

How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands — maybe millions — are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans' hospital? Or a rehabilitation clinic for crippled children?) If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal cords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't.

How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, call someone. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. Concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds.

Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on the door at midnight. And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences — nothing to keep you here.

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving Prayer; perhaps you will want to use it at your table tomorrow:

O, heavenly Father: We thank thee for food and remember the hungry.

We thank thee for health and remember the sick.

We thank thee for friends and remember the friendless.

We thank thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.

May these remembrances stir us to service.

That thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving and may God bless you and yours.

Love, ABBY

Dr. Donohue

New diabetics frequently 'brittle'

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have recently been diagnosed as being diabetic — after being in a coma. I am on insulin now. My doctor says I am a brittle diabetic. What does that mean? I am having trouble regulating my sugar, but the doctor says in time this will improve. I am a little confused. I wonder if you could talk about this in your column. — Mrs. K.H.S.

Brittle means hard to control, that the diabetic is swinging between high and low blood sugar levels. Sometimes this results from the diabetic's production of antibodies against the insulin being injected. That makes the insulin less effective in lowering blood sugar.

This points up the fact that insulin regulation can be complex for some patients. The person's natural insulin production by the pancreas may be continuing to some degree, adding to the effect of the injected kind. Fortunately, today your problem is not encountered very often, thanks to development of new insulin preparations, use of better diet regimens, and newer techniques of checking blood sugar at home. I am sure that in time you will lose the brittle part of your diabetes.

Most diabetics eventually do very well in control. You will have to stay in close contact with your physician during this period. The newer non-animal insulin might be considered if you are not presently using that.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is the most practical thing a person can do to reduce the chances of having heart problems stemming from high cholesterol? There is so much said about this these days. Is it really worthwhile to have the blood tested for this? — M.D.S.

I can't think of any more valuable first step than to have the test to which you refer. In fact, the American Heart Association does urge greater utilization of this relatively inexpensive test for patients "at risk." That means those over 40, because we all tend to get too much cholesterol and fats in our diet and by that age the results usually are evident.

After that, and based on the blood test findings, the doctor can suggest an appropriate diet, which can range from very restrictive to mildly restrictive of cholesterol and fats. A stringent diet reduces fat to about 20 percent of total calories, a moderately restrictive one to 25 percent, and a mildly restrictive one to 30 percent. As for cholesterol, eliminating egg yolk, the most important source, reduces the blood level significantly.

Draper gives demonstration to Hyperions

Kelly Draper demonstrated several flower arrangements for Thanksgiving and Christmas at the 1948 Hyperion Club meeting Nov. 15 in the home of Mrs. Ross Boyken.

Draper showed several wreaths and different ways to display them in the home and on the door. He said that grapevine wreaths can be used year around by using Indian corn and schucks and changing the bow for the different times if the year.

Draper said to always have a candle on holiday table. He made a pumpkin arrangement with flowers. Lucille Boykin won the arrangement.

Instead of the usual Christmas exchange, the club voted to make a donation to the Rainbow Project. The club also will help with the Big Spring State Hospital Christmas party.

The next meeting will be Dec. 20 in the home of Mrs. Clayton Bettles.

'Chain saw' doctor found guilty of murder

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) — Nineteen months after authorities fished a torso out of the Mississippi River, a jury convicted chiropractor James Klindt of second-degree murder in his wife's death and chain saw mutilation. The verdict was announced Tuesday after 15 hours of deliberation over two days by a jury in Woodbury County District Court, where the case was moved from Scott County because of extensive publicity. Klindt was originally tried in Keokuk, but that ended in a hung jury. Joyce Klindt's parents, Eugene and Virginia Monahan, collapsed into each other's arms, crying softly after the verdict was read. "I'm just extremely happy," said Mrs. Monahan. After Judge James Havercamp read the verdict, Klindt, 36, quickly ducked his head between his legs and then thrust it back up. He was escorted out of the courthouse by sheriff's deputies to be returned to the county jail.

The prosecution contended Klindt, of Davenport, had killed his 33-year-old wife on March 18, 1983, cut up her body with a chain saw, and then drove his air boat out on the Mississippi River in sloughs north of Princeton and dumped the pieces. Scott County Attorney William Davis contended during the trial that Klindt had fallen in love with Terrie Kuehn, a 27-year-old hairdresser, and was trying to secure a divorce.

Woman held captive in box for 7 years

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — Psychological counseling will be sought for a 27-year-old woman who was kidnapped while hitchhiking seven years ago, imprisoned in a box in handcuffs and leather restraints and raped by a man neighbors described as "normal as anyone," police said. "We don't understand the mind, the torture, the fears that a person goes through in that situation," John Faulkner, police chief of this rural ranching and agricultural community of 9,000 people, said Tuesday.

Although the woman, first kept in a small crate barely big enough for her to move, was freed last May in order to get a job, she returned to her captor each night because of threats he made against her life, Faulkner said.

A man identified by police as Cameron Hooker, 31, was being held today in lieu of $500,000 bail after pleading innocent Tuesday to multiple felony charges of kidnap, rape and sodomy, Faulkner said.

Hooker, a millworker, was arrested Sunday after he had allowed the woman to consult a minister who encouraged her to contact her family, Faulkner said. Police would not divulge when the woman was released or her present whereabouts, but said her mental and physical condition appeared good.

The police department has requested expert help from San Francisco and Sacramento to assist in the case, particularly "professional help in the psychological hostage-bondage area. We have never dealt with this type of situation before," Faulkner said.

Police said the woman, then 20, was abducted while hitchhiking on a Red Bluff street, taken at knife-point by Hooker to his home and imprisoned in a box in his basement, bound by handcuffs and leather restraints.

She was kept in a small, double-walled box for a year following the abduction, then transferred to a larger, home-built crate in which she had room to stretch out, police said. They did not say how long she was kept in the boxes at a time.

"The box was like you or I would consider home," Faulkner said.

Doris Miron, owner of the Kings Lodge motel, said the alleged victim worked for her for four months last summer, then abruptly quit.

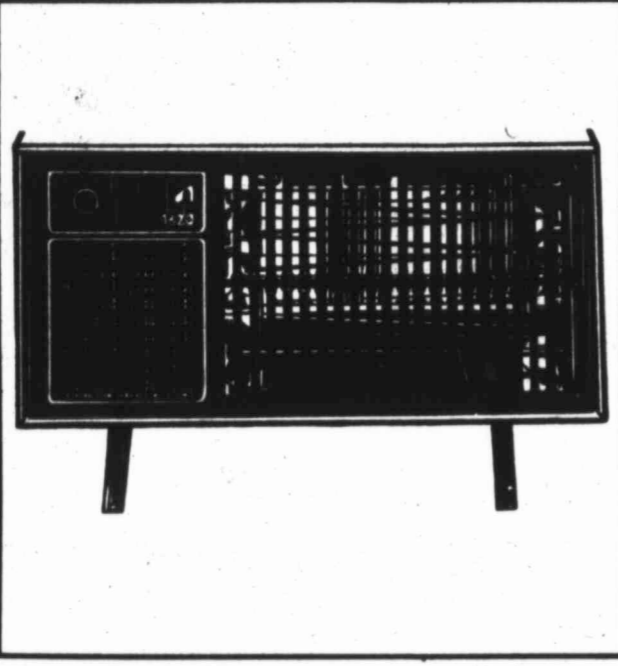

"She worked for me, and she was the best one of the 40 maids I had here," Mrs. Miron said. "She was sweet and pretty and honest — she was the only one I would have trusted behind the counter as a clerk."

"She used to ride her bicycle to work every day," Mrs. Miron said, adding that the woman often went swimming in the motel pool with Hooker, his estranged wife and Hooker's two young daughters.

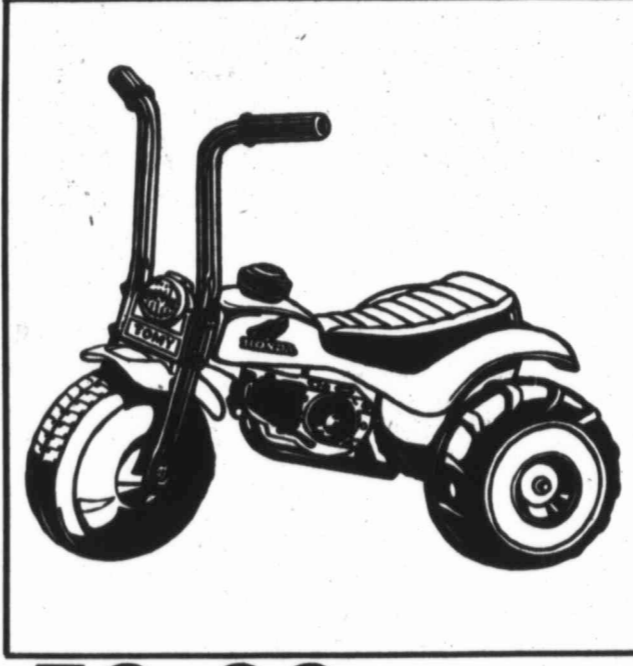

Gloria Winstead, a friend of Mrs. Miron's who also knew the alleged victim, described her as "real sweet. She used to make Strawberry Shortcake dolls and sell them."

Drop season opener 68-66

Mistakes costly in Steers loss

By STEVEN BELVIN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Steers were their own worst enemies in last night's 68-66 season opening loss to the Brownfield Cubs.

Big Spring had a miserable shooting night from both the free throw line and floor while allowing the class AAA Cubs to beat them badly on the offensive boards. To top things off, a Steers player even forgot what end he was on and scored a basket for Brownfield.

But it wasn't the wrong basket that spelled defeat for the Steers. It was the fact they shot 35 percent from the floor and a miserable 38 percent from the line, connecting on only 12 of 34 attempts.

In fact, the first half could have easily been a Big Spring blowout. Remarkably Brownfield only behind 27-24 at the half since it committed 18 turnovers. The trapping Big Spring defense accounted for 13 steals in the first half alone. Bernard Williams and Arthur Jackson combined for nine of the thefts.

The Cubs offensive board work and shooting kept them in contention during the first 16 minutes of play. They hit 45 percent of their shots from the field and out-rebounded the Steers 22-16.

Big Spring took a quick 13-7 behind two baskets each by Williams and Jackson, who led the Steers in scoring with 24 and 17 points respectively.

Early in the second period the Cubs took a 14-13 lead and the game was nip-and-tuck the remainder of game with 18 points and 18 rebounds. Ellis had 12 of his 14 points in the second half.

The Steers never led in the final stanza as Brownfield built up a 58-50 lead with just over four minutes remaining in the contest.

The Steers slowly battled back as Williams came through with six points down the stretch, but it wasn't enough. The killing blow for Big Spring was that it sunk only 3 of 11 free throws in the last three minutes of the contest.

Brownfield, now 1-1 for the season, made 26 of 58 field goals for 45 percent while sinking 16 of 27 free throws. They out-rebounded the Steers 47-35 as Frank Herrera and James Swoopes added 14 and nine boards respectively. The half. Jackson's top-of-the-key jumper at the buzzer gave Big Spring a three-point halftime lead.

Early in the third period Big Spring stretched its lead to 38-33 as Williams hit from the corner, Mike Leuschner scored off a offensive rebound and Sidney Parker hit two free throws.

That's when the Cubs started their comeback led by guard Clint Ellis and post player Joel Ross. Allen hit four baskets in-a-row and Ross scored on two offensive rebounds. In a four minute span the Cubs outscored Big Spring 12-4 to take a 45-42 lead going into the final quarter.

The 6-3 Ross was a thorn in the Steers side all night, finishing the Leuschner led the Steers with 11 rebounds.

Steers coach Mike Randle just shook his head when asked about his team shooting. "I can't believe how cold we were from both the foul line and floor. I think a lot of it was first game pressure. They beat us on the boards because our big men were coming outside for the ball because we weren't passing it inside to them."

The Big Spring mentor was pleased that his team committed only eight turnovers the entire game.

JV's drop close one

In junior varsity action Big Spring lost another close one, 69-67, after fighting back from a 20 point deficit in the first half.

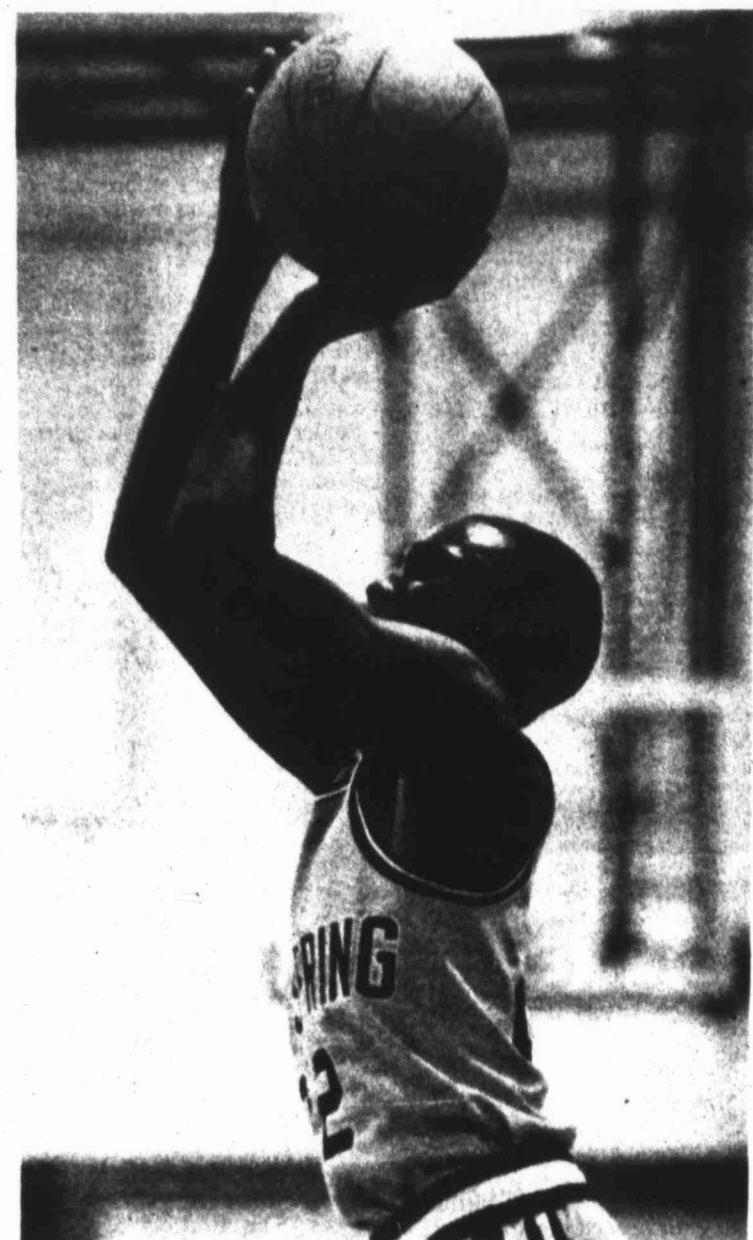

Charles Young led the Steers with 18 points. Chip Lopez and Brian Mayfield added 16 points each.

The Steers will be in action again next Tuesday when they host Lamesa with junior varsity starting at 6:15 and varsity at 8 p.m.

Davis named AL rookie of year

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Mariners loses on the field and at the gate since the start of the American League franchise in 1977, have a couple of winners in rookies Alvin Davis and Mark Langston.

Langston, a left-handed pitcher, was runner-up in the voting.

Davis received 25 of the 28 first-place votes and 134 points to beat Langston, who had the other three first-place votes and 82 points. Davis and Langston were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

On Tuesday, first baseman Davis was named American League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"It's a dream come true," Davis said Tuesday in a telephone conference call to Seattle from his home in Riverside, Calif.

Cowboys change quarterbacks — again

Danny White back in the saddle again

DALLAS (AP) — Danny White once again is being called upon to rescue the floundering Dallas Cowboys.

The veteran White was the incumbent starting quarterback in training camp but Gary Hogeboom beat him out. Three weeks ago White regained the starting job only to get hurt.

Now, Dallas Coach Tom Landry needs him again following a humiliating 14-3 loss to the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

Landry said Tuesday that the Cowboys need someone to "spark us up."

And benching Hogeboom wasn't the only change he made for the Cowboys' Thanksgiving Day National Football League game in Texas Stadium.

Landry also tabbed Timmy Newsome as the starting fullback over Ron Springs and said Doug Donley would replace Mike Renfro at flanker.

Landry wouldn't go so far as to say White was the starter for the remainder of the Cowboys' regular season play.

"I have no idea what's going to happen next week. We'll just have to wait and see," Landry said.

Landry said "Danny will do a good job directing the offense. He knows it so well."

Hogeboom has thrown twice as many interceptions (14) as he has touchdown passes.

"We're struggling trying to win right now with Gary in there," Landry said. "He played pretty well against Buffalo but got erratic at the last."

Despite their problems, the Cowboys are still tied with Washington, and the New York Giants atop the National Conference Eastern Division with 7-5 records.

Monahans noses out swimmers

The Monahans boys captured first place in the 400 yard freestyle relay, the last event of the night, to nip the Steers swimmers 42-41 in a dual meet held last night at the YMCA pool.

Other top finishers for the Steers were the 200 yard relay team of Houghton, Chase, Cade Loftin and Brigham Young with a time of 1:31.2. Charles Moore also scored a first in the 200 freestyle with a clocking of 2:11.3.

Diver Louis Morelion kept up his winning ways by taking first with a total of 183.85.

Other first place finishers were Loftin in the 100 butterfly (1:02.5), Martin in the 100 freestyle (58.6) and Ferguson in the 500 freestyle (5:53.3).

Monahans time of 3:53.38 nipped the time of 3:58.4 recorded by the Steers in the 400 freestyle relay, gaining the meet win.

Monahans outdistances Lady Steers

The Monahans girls swimmers easily outdistanced the Lady Steers by a margin of 57-24.

The Lady Steers only first place finish was recorded by Lisa Salazar in the 100 breaststroke. She recorded a time of 1:22.7 to out-distance the second-place finisher by two seconds.

The 200 medley relay team of Victoria Logan, Salazar, Hartley Newell and Rose Meier finished second in a time of 1:47.23. The four-some of Annie Guitierrez, Tiffiny Milch, Meier and Newell placed second in the 400 freestyle relay in a time of 4:31.30.

Rockets tower over Detroit

HOUSTON (AP) — Three first-round draft choices are paying off for the Houston Rockets.

Ralph Sampson, Rodney McCray and Akeem Olatujwon poured in 74 points Tuesday night as the Houston Rockets beat the Detroit Pistons 123-117 in a National Basketball Association game.

The Rockets took Sampson and McCray in the first round of last year's NBA draft and Olatujwon in the first round of this year's picks.

The 7-4 Sampson, who was switched from center to power forward to make room for 7-foot rookie center Olatujwon, followed up a 43-point performance against San Antonio with a 28-point, 17-rebound showing against Detroit, providing Houston with its 10th win in 12 games. The Rockets are 8-0 at home.

Second-year forward McCray said Houston still has to establish itself in away games.

Although the Rockets jumped out to an early 18-point bulge, the Pistons made them uncomfortable late in the game. The Rockets trailed by six points when former Atlanta Hawk forward Dan Roundfield scored 13 consecutive points in the third quarter.

Roundfield just returned from the injured list. He scored a game total of 22.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are being pressured to complete certain responsibilities, so get busy and do just that. Then start in on the new and more profitable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have an opportunity to keep promises you made to your partners during the day, and then you can look into new interests.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have been planning how to get your work done more efficiently, and by evening should have the help you desire.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Make the preparations for amusements well so that they work out just fine later.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Although your responsibilities at home are rather confining, do them carefully and tonight all should be bright and cheerful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Gaining data you need is possible during the day, and then the evening can be charming at home where you like to be.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make the right decisions concerning monetary matters for the days ahead, and in the evening consult with experts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Consistently go after your aims in a positive fashion and gain them, then huddle with associates and plan the future better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to handle that credit or vocational affair very well now, but in the evening go after some personal ambition.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can certainly get your advanced ideas across to the right people, and then to a bigwig who can give you backing you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very magnetic and full of life from earliest days, and all this energy should be directed in the right channels; sports are fine. Later in life your progeny will be able to express self very well and do fine in whatever has to do with lecturing.

Castro's Cuba in a quandary

Debt, falling sugar prices may lead to different economic system

By the Associated Press
Communist Cuba, caught between collapsing sugar prices and ballooning foreign debt, is taking a hard new look at its economic system, American analysts report. And it is doing it in a surprisingly public way.

Beginning this month, Cuban planners are holding meetings across the island on whether recent reforms decentralizing economic power and allowing some free enterprise are working, the Cuban Communist Party newspaper Granma reports.

A party study group has concluded, meanwhile, that factories and other Cuban enterprises have been given too little autonomy to do their jobs.

"It's really incredible," said economist Sergio Roca, a leading U.S. specialist on the Cuban system. "Party leaders talk about these things among themselves. But I have not seen these kinds of admissions in the Cuban press in years and years."

Although Fidel Castro's government may seem preoccupied with U.S. hostility, Central America and African wars, it is clearly hard at work on something closer to home — the domestic economy and next year's pivotal Third Congress of the Cuban Communist Party.

The debate at the December 1985 Congress should be "rather vigorous," Jorge Dominguez, a noted Cuba analyst at Harvard University, said in a telephone interview.

"It will be between those who say, 'You promised us all these wonderful things if we liberalized our economy, but we haven't done well,' and those who say, 'If we hadn't liberalized our economy we'd be in even worse shape.'"

Cuba's 10 million people are in an economic corner. The world price of sugar, which accounts for four-fifths of Cuba's exports, has dropped to below 6 cents a pound, from as high as 76 cents nine years ago. Cuba's national bank president, Raul Leon Torras, has compared the sugar crisis to "the worst moment of the Great Depression."

The open-market price affects only about one-third or less of Cuba's sales — the rest is sold to Soviet-bloc countries at much higher guaranteed prices. The U.S. State Department's chief Cuba-watcher, Kenneth N. Skoug Jr., estimates the current Soviet subsidy of Cuba equals $12 million or more a day.

The sugar earns Soviet rubles that go right back to Moscow for Soviet oil. Rubles cannot buy the manufactured goods, technology and expertise the Cubans need from Western Europe and Japan. For that, they must sell their sugar at paltry prices on the dollar market.

At the same time, Cuba's foreign debts are mounting.

It has negotiated an extension on loan repayments of $350 million due in 1984 to Canadian, Japanese and West European banks and governments. But the biggest debt comes due at the end of 1985 — the equivalent of more than $10 billion owed to the Soviet Union, borrowings continuously "rolled over" since the 1960s.

The Cuban reforms, designed to boost productivity in a notoriously inefficient economy, were introduced beginning in the late 1970s. They give local enterprises greater decision-making powers, use prices and "profits" to control the economy, offer worker incentives, and allow craftsmen and farmers to sell production privately.

Roca, of New York's Adelphi University, told a reporter the public debate emerged earlier this year in the official Cuban news media, when a Communist Party study panel on "enterprise profitability" complained that, despite the reforms, local production units still had insufficient economic power.

Then, on Oct. 22, Granma disclosed that the national planning board would hold meetings in workplaces across Cuba to determine whether the reforms are being properly carried out, and whether some "insufficiencies" are "due to the very conception of the new economic system."

Visitors to Havana also note a new candor in the press — open criticism of unproductive factories, poor restaurant service and similar problems.

"There's a struggle going on," Roca said. "Publicly the policy is still for decentralization, but there is still a very strong remnant in favor of the old system. The next battleground will be the party Congress."

The Cubans also have put a new task force to work studying how to de-emphasize sugar and diversify the economy, a goal that has eluded Castro's revolutionaries for 25 years.

Cuba is trying to build up its nickel, citrus and tourist industries and expand trade contacts, long hobbled by the U.S. economic embargo. But the Soviet bloc still accounts for almost 90 percent of Cuban commerce, and the Cubans are plowing ahead with an all-out push for a 12 million-ton sugar harvest by 1990, a 50-percent increase.

"It is utterly absurd," said Wayne S. Smith, the diplomat who headed the U.S. Interests Section in Havana in 1979-82.

"The whole future of sugar as an export commodity is at best uncertain. You've got substitutes, corn syrup, artificial sweeteners, coming on the market. And here they are putting more and more land in sugar," Smith said in a telephone interview.

Whatever the current economic uncertainties, ordinary Cubans seem largely unaffected.

Smith, who visits Cuba periodically, said the people appear better dressed and better fed than just a few years ago, though luxuries remain few and expensive. "They're resilient," said Dominguez. "They're not very diversified, not very efficient, they depend on one crop, one country. But the one thing they're good at is that they deal well with international economic adversity."

Soviet aid is still the keystone, however. And at the party Congress next year, the analysts believe, Cuba will again swallow its hopes for economic independence and announce a new long-term "rollover" of its Kremlin debt.

Treasury calling for tax code overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department has finished making the key decisions on its recommendations of an overhaul of the country's tax code with the final version expected to go to President Reagan by Dec. 1, officials said today.

Treasury officials were saying nothing publicly about what is in the plan, but Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan has said in the past he favors a modified flat tax. Such a tax would eliminate numerous deductions in the current tax plan in favor of lowering tax rates.

Roger Bolton, deputy assistant secretary for policy, planning and communications, said the Treasury Department group that has been working for the last 10 months had completed its work and the numerous separate decisions made were being put into a single package for Regan's final approval before the package is sent to the president.

It is possible that Regan, after seeing how all the tax changes work together, will make some alterations, Bolton said, but the changes are expected to be minor.

"For the most part, all of the decisions have been made and barring something unexpected, there won't be major changes," Bolton said.

Regan was meeting today with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Business Conference and other big business lobbying groups to discuss tax changes.

Bolton said that the meeting was not to brief the lobbyists on the package but rather to listen to their views on tax changes the administration should make.

However, business groups were likely to give Regan an earful since they have expressed quite a bit of unhappiness at two proposals in particular that are supposedly in the plan. One is accelerated depreciation, a key business tax break approved by Congress at the administration's urging in 1981.

Under this provision, businesses that invest heavily in real estate, plants and machinery are allowed large write-offs. Also rumored to be on the administration's hit list are business investment tax credits.

Even though the plan has not yet gone to the president, business groups are mustering their lobbying effort.

In a letter sent to the president Tuesday, the National Association of Manufacturers urged Regan to reject any suggestions to get rid of the two business tax deductions.

"It is hard to think of any single tax policy decision that would be more damaging to sustained economic growth or have a more detrimental effect on the ability of American businesses to compete in the world economy," wrote Alexander Trowbridge, president of NAM.

USSR proposes U.S.-Soviet meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko has proposed to the United States that Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko meet early next year, and discussions are under way to decide on "a mutually agreeable agenda," an administration official said today.

The Soviet leader proposed the meeting in a note delivered last Saturday to the State Department by a high-level diplomat, said the official, who informed the Associated Press only on condition he not be identified.

The official said Moscow was a possible setting, but that Shultz and Gromyko might meet somewhere else in Europe. The Soviets have already said they were not insisting on their capital for the talks.

Significantly, the official said, Chernenko did not insist on a withdrawal of new U.S. missiles from Western Europe or raise any other preconditions for a Shultz-Gromyko meeting. However, the official said, it was not clear whether the Soviets intend to discuss space weapons or to have broader talks dealing — as the Reagan administration prefers — with medium and long-range missiles, as well.

The official called Chernenko's message "truly encouraging," and that the administration was letting Moscow know it considered the proposal a positive development. He said he was "looking to some sort of joint announcement in the next couple of weeks" on a Shultz-Gromyko meeting.

Meanwhile, Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden said today that President Reagan and Gromyko had accepted a proposal for separate arms control and nuclear disarmament talks between Australian officials and high-level U.S. and Soviet officials also early next year.

The Australian government has been working on the proposal since March 1983, Hayden said. The names of the U.S. and Soviet officials who will attend the talks with Hayden and Prime Minister Bob Hawke in Australia have not been released.

However, the U.S. official in Washington said it was not clear whether the invitations to Shultz and Gromyko would "overlap" or if the Hawke government, which faces elections on Dec. 1, intends to deal with the two superpowers separately.

A Shultz-Gromyko meeting would be seen as an icebreaker, designed to end the year-long suspension of negotiations to cut back U.S. and Soviet intermediate and long-range nuclear weapons.

Chernenko last Friday urged a renewal of the spirit of detente from the 1970s and said Moscow was ready for arms control talks if Washington was. He issued no demands and listed no conditions.

The negotiations broke down in Geneva, Switzerland, a year ago when the United States refused to postpone the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe targeted on Soviet territory. The Soviets countered by expanding their own deployment and increasing the submarine force within striking distance of the United States.

It was considered significant that Chernenko did not repeat the Soviet demand that the U.S. missiles be withdrawn as a precondition for resuming negotiations.

The two sides began to inch toward a new dialogue after Reagan, in a United Nations speech in late September, suggested sidestepping Geneva by establishing a new "framework" to work out differences between the two superpowers.

Gromyko then called on Reagan and Shultz in Washington, and along with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, asked the administration through diplomatic channels to elaborate on the Reagan proposal.

The pace quickened last week when a top Soviet embassy official here told the Associated Press and the Washington Post that his government was interested in pursuing Reagan's idea.
