Q. Are they going to make another Star Trek movie? Will Spock be in it?

A. Filming on the new movie will begin this summer, and Leonard Nimoy — who plays Spock — is scheduled to direct. The studio, as in the past, is refusing to reveal anything about the story line. Captain Kirk might not appear in the movie since William Shatner, who portrays Kirk, is still negotiating his contract and claims he has been asked to star in another project to be filmed at the same time.

However, Nimoy said on his Nickelodeon show last weekend that he thought Shatner would be signed. Nimoy directed "Star Trek III."

3 killed in DMZ gun battle

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A gun battle broke out today after a Soviet tourist fled while touring the area around the truce village of Panmunjom, the United Nations Command said. The command said two North Koreans and one South Korean were killed and an American soldier was wounded.

The official North Korean radio said three people were killed "on the North Korean side" in "the Soviet defector incident," and that one other person was seriously wounded.

A United Nations statement said the shooting started after North Koreans, following the Soviet tourist, crossed into the southern half of a small joint security area in the demilitarized zone that has divided the Korean peninsula since 1953.

The South Korean and American casualties were not identified, pending notification of relatives. The American was reported to be hospitalized in stable condition.

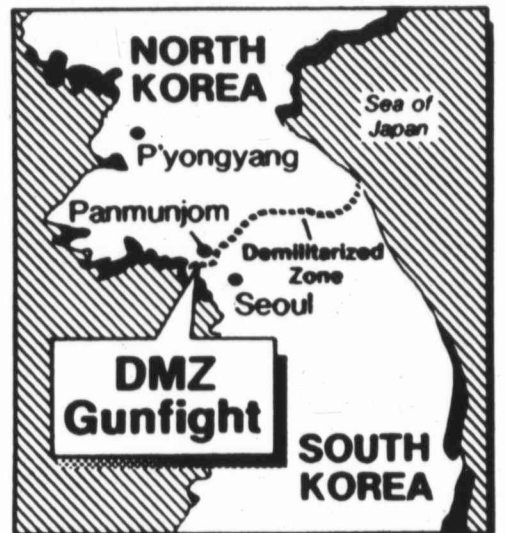

Neither American nor South Korean officials would identify the Soviet, saying only that he was a member of a North Korean-sponsored tour of the 800-yard diameter joint security area that surrounds the truce village.

But Kyodo News Service in Japan identified him as Basil Mapuzak, 22. The state-run (South) Korean Broadcasting System said he was a "Russian tourist guide."

U.S. and South Korean troops took "defensive actions against an armed attack on the UNC (United Nations Command) side of the joint security area at Panmunjom," the United Nations Command said in a statement.

"Between 20 and 30 security guards from the North Korean People's Army intruded across the military demarcation line about 11:50 a.m. (8:50 p.m. CST Thursday), firing at an apparent defector from a North Korean-sponsored tour of the joint security area," it said.

Computer chips, cow chips and rural robots

National Geographic News Service

The 21st-century cow may be free of disease, gain weight without synthetic hormones, and wear a computer chip under its skin so that the farmer can track its vital signs.

The 21st-century corn plant should be able to resist insects, frost, and drought, and brim with nutrition, unsullied by commercial fertilizers. It, too, may bear a microchip, linked to a computerized irrigation system.

The 21st-century farmer may step out the door and aim an infrared gun at his crop to determine if it is dry, or at his animals to see if they are feverish. He may use seawater for irrigation and only the sun for power.

FARMER AS TECHNICIAN

He'll spend less time on a tractor and more time at his computer, programming minute details about his crops, plugging into data gathered by orbiting satellites, and keeping up on the latest in genetic manipulation. Farming, 21st-century style, will be a highly sophisticated business.

"American agriculture will essentially be an industrial process," says Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, an agricultural economist at Texas A&M University. "At least half our food will be produced by one percent of the farms. The only small farms that survive will be part-time operations."

In laboratories and greenhouses across the country, discoveries and inventions are blossoming that will shape and perhaps revolutionize agriculture of the future. While designed to save money and labor for the farmer, the innovations also

U.S.-Soviet arms talks scheduled

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Ending a yearlong stalemate, the United States and the Soviet Union are opening new negotiations in Geneva on Jan. 7-8 in an effort to curb nuclear weapons and space weapons.

"We are ready for genuine give-and-take with the Soviet Union with the purpose of reaching concrete agreements," Robert C. McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser, declared.

A joint announcement by the superpowers on Thanksgiving Day said that Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were designated to begin the new talks.

Although the session will formally end a yearlong deadlock, McFarlane cautioned that the quest for an arms agreement was likely to be difficult.

"I would not say that this is a milestone of conclusion but, rather, an opening of a process that will be difficult and sustained over time," he said.

The meeting represents the first face-to-face negotiations on strategic and medium range nuclear weapons in a year, and the first U.S.-Soviet talks on space weapons since 1979. "We enter the talks in January in the spirit of honest compromise and getting results," McFarlane declared.

Without mentioning the extreme U.S.-Soviet hostility that marked most of Reagan's first term, McFarlane said:

"We are at a moment where each side has decided to make a determined effort to reduce tensions."

No bones about it: turkey day is quiet

Staff and wire reports Thanksgiving in Big Spring was a quiet celebration as most families gathered for dinner and watched football games on television.

The Big Spring Fire Department responded to one report of a fire at 5 p.m. yesterday. Firemen put out a mattress fire at 1110 Austin and cleaned up the bedroom within about 35 minutes, according to a department report.

Firemen estimated the damage at $2,000, according to the report.

A few minor car accidents occurred in the city limits yesterday, but no one was injured, according to Big Spring Police reports. No motor vehicle accidents occurred outside city limits in Howard County, according to sheriff's reports.

The Salvation Army in Big Spring served its traditional turkey dinners to Howard County residents and to transients, and inmates of the county jail also received turkey dinners, paid for from county funds.

In contrast to the Thanksgiving feasts enjoyed by many Texans throughout the state, about 100 people in Houston marched two miles from a downtown park to a Baptist church to call attention to the plight of starving people in Ethiopia.

And thousands of elderly and needy residents of the state gathered Thursday for free meals of thanks — many of them at two traditional giant affairs in Fort Worth and San Antonio.

U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, who organized the Houston march, planned to leave for Ethiopia today to study relief efforts in the drought-stricken African nation.

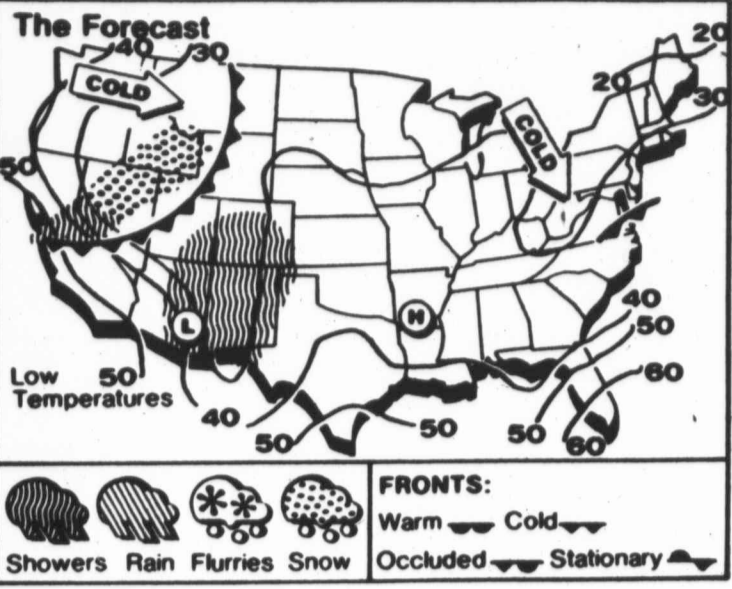

Raul Jimenez Sr. had no idea what he was starting when he offered a free Thanksgiving turkey

Town for sale

Blighted North Texas city trying to 'inch' by

EASTVALE (AP) — When hard times hit, some people hold yard sales to earn extra money, and that's just what this city is doing.

Eastvale, a city declared blighted by Denton County commissioners and its City Council, is selling its last lot of land — by the square inch.

Mayor Bert Eubanks said the city is selling the land for $10 a square inch in hopes that Texas' popularity will bring the city enough money to repair roads and install working water and sewer systems.

"We're advertising this sale nationally," she said. "I also think it would make great Christmas gifts for relatives in the north. This way people can own land in Texas. I think it (Texas) is still popular enough because of the (TV show, "Dallas") and because of Texas itself."

The sale could bring as much as $9 million if the entire 900,000 square-inch parcel of land across from City Hall sells, but Mrs. Eubanks said she doesn't hope for that much.

"I'm, sure there's no way we will get $9 million, but even if we just get half of that it's $4.5 million and a quarter of it is $2.25 million and we can do all kinds of things with that," she said.

The City Council has asked the governor to declare Eastvale an emergency situation so it can get some federal assistance for its severe problems, Mrs. Eubanks said, but it has not yet heard from the governor.

Residents have moved away and businesses have "packed up and left town" because the water situation is so bad, she said.

The city has two small water tanks for its citizens, who never know if they will get water when they turn on the faucet, Mrs. Eubanks said. Last winter the city was without water 15 days.

Mrs. Eubanks said she got the idea to sell the land from a man in Boston, Mass., who read about Eastvale's plight in The Boston Globe. The man suggested the city raffle off an acre of land at $25 a ticket and give the winner of the land a Stetson hat.

"Well, I looked into the legalities of it, and a raffle is against the law in Texas. Plus, we don't have an acre of land. So I thought about it awhile and decided we could sell the one lot we do have."

People across the country have expressed an interest in Eastvale's situation, she said.

"This thing has just mushroomed," she said. "I've been interviewed by the Canadian Broadcast Network, the Mutual News Network, People Magazine, Channel 4 and Channel 8 and a bunch of newspapers and radio stations. It's nice to know a lot of people are interested and care about the problem."

Many people already have placed orders for pieces of the land, she said. Before the sale began she had sold five of the 1-inch lots.

"We're shooting to sell as much as we can by the end of the year," she said. "We've got to buy a back hoe and fix our roads. They keep getting worse and worse and I'm really scared about what's going to happen in the winter."

When it rains, she said, cars can't make it up hills because of the large potholes and slick roads. The school district can't get its buses up the roads to pick children up for school. The postal service has threatened to cut off service unless the city repairs its roads.

If the city receives enough money from the land sale, she said, the roads will be fixed first "because they're so dangerous." Then the other problems — water and sewer — will be worked out, she said.

"I'm much more optimistic about our city now that we're doing this," she said.

The pieces of land are tax deductible, Mrs. Eubanks said.

dinner to 250 senior citizens in Fort Worth 12 years ago.

Thursday, the 52-year-old executive of the Jimenez Food Products Co. offered free meals to an estimated 18,000 people in Fort Worth and San Antonio with help from grocery stores, local governments and organizations, citizens' donations and volunteers.

"The good Lord has been good to me and my family, and I wanted to show my thanks," Jimenez said Wednesday while preparing for the feasts.

About 145 turkeys, 90 gallons of green beans and sweet potatoes, 180 pounds of corn bread mix and 700 pounds of gravy mix were prepared for the Fort Worth dinner alone.

"I had a dream to do something for senior citizens," said Jimenez, whose company has grown to annual sales of $30 million. "They have already lived their lives, and many of them have nowhere else to go on Thanksgiving."

Across Texas, groups and organizations sponsored charity dinners of all sizes. In Dallas, the Salvation Army prepared about 1,000 dinners for the homeless.

Talks

tives, format and agenda for the new talks, McFarlane said.

His announcement was made at the White House.

In a move that symbolized the tense state of superpower relations, the Soviets stalked out of nuclear arms talks a year ago to protest NATO deployment of new U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe. Efforts to revive those talks have so far failed.

While McFarlane said the new talks will focus on strategic nuclear weapons, medium-range nuclear weapons and space weapons, he added it was not yet known whether the separate suspended nuclear talks will ever be revived.

Senior citizens in San Antonio began pouring into the Henry B. Gonzalez Exhibit Hall at about 9:20 a.m. — an hour before the food service began — and by 2 p.m., 8,000 meals had been served, said Mike Llamas, an aide to Mayor Henry Cisneros and volunteer at the Jimenez dinner.

"Each year it gets a little bit larger," he said. "We've had more support from the community this year. It's hard to pinpoint, but I would say that the larger turnout is because of the fact that we got so much more support from the local press, the public officials and the business community that we didn't have in past years."

A large group of senior citizens danced, he said. "It's a cheerful, joyous thing," Llamas said.

Company officials estimated the crowds at about 8,000 in Fort Worth and nearly 10,000 in San Antonio.

"I have tried to set an example for other business people," Jimenez said. "It has to be a community effort to share the spirit of Thanksgiving."

At the Salvation Army in Dallas, Sam Harris, homeless and jobless, said he felt welcome. "I have a lot to be thankful about," he said.

USDA seeking comments on milk marketing order

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is asking for comment from farmers and dairymen on a recommendation affecting the Texas federal milk marketing order through Nov. 30.

The recommended decision is based on a public hearing in Texas in October 1983, according to Edward Coughlin, a dairy official with the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service in Washington, D.C.

Comments should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, Room 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

According to Coughlin, the current order would be amended to increase the plant location adjustment to Class I and blend prices by 18 cents per hundredweight in Zone 8 (Houston) of the market area.

A second amendment would revise the procedure for computing the uniform price to provide for a reduction in the producer-settlement fund reserve.

However, three major proposals were denied. They include proposals that would have restructured the pricing of milk in the marketing areas by decreasing prices in northern zones and increasing prices in the south and established plus location adjustments for Class II uses in certain zones.

Also denied was a plan that would have revised pooling standards for supply plants by giving authority to the AMS dairy division authority to temporarily increase or decrease shipping requirements by 10 percentage points based on market conditions.

The exact recommendation was published in the Oct. 31 Federal Register. Copies also may be obtained from C.E. Dunham, market administrator, P.O. Box 29529, Dallas, 75229 or Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Nations overlook differences to fight famine

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — An international effort to ease a catastrophic famine here has provided a diplomatic opportunity for the United States and other Western countries.

But Ethiopian officials and foreign envoys based here say they doubt that the influx of mostly Western aid will prompt the military government to significantly loosen its close ties with the Soviet Union.

"We're here only for humanitarian reasons right now," remarked an official of the U.S. Agency for International Development. "If our relations improve, that's a bonus." That official, like other Western and Ethiopian sources, spoke on condition he not be identified.

An Ethiopian official, observing that the Americans were attaching no strings to the aid, said: "This time they are showing signs of maturity. They are concentrating on humanitarian concerns, rather than political things."

The United States has become the biggest single donor of humanitarian aid to Ethiopia, providing about $19 million worth of aid in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. The United States also has pledged $60 million more for the new fiscal year.

In the short term, the United States is expected to be allowed soon to upgrade its diplomatic representation here to ambassadorial level. The U.S. ambassador was asked to leave in July 1980, and since then the embassy has been headed by a charge d'affaires.

A longer-term effect of the famine assistance may be the winning over of thousands of ordinary Ethiopians who know that much of the food coming into the country is from the United States. One diplomat said the aid is creating a reservoir of goodwill toward the West that would be beneficial if there ever is a change of government.

But Ethiopia, a country of about 42 million people occupying a strategic position in the Horn of Africa and along the Red Sea, is likely to remain for the foreseeable future the Soviet Union's biggest investment and staunchest ally in Africa.

Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam, at a rare news conference on Nov. 16, thanked the people of the United States and Western Europe for the outpouring of aid for more than 6 million people estimated to be suffering from a prolonged drought and famine.

But Mengistu also said the Soviet Union and other Eastern Bloc countries had helped Ethiopia make more progress in the past decade — since the ouster of Emperor Haile Selassie in September 1974 — than it had made in the previous 40 years.

Much of the Soviet aid has been in the form of military hardware, perhaps $3 billion worth by Western estimates, to fight secessionist guerrillas in the northern provinces of Eritrea and Tigre and to counter any threat from neighboring Somalia.

Food aid from the Eastern Bloc has been minimal. It was only after Ethiopia received substantial pledges of famine relief from the West that a somewhat embarrassed Soviet Union said it was sending 300 trucks, 24 helicopters and 12 cargo planes to help transport the food aid.

"We're winning over their stomachs," a Western diplomat said of the food aid.

Fires claim 7 during holiday

By The Associated Press

Thanksgiving Day fires killed four members of an Illinois family and an elderly Texas man who apparently tried to warm his home with a hot plate, while Michigan authorities investigated the cause of a mobile home blaze that killed two young brothers.

Fire broke out early Thanksgiving morning at a house in East Peoria, Ill., killing a couple and two children, authorities said. A third child was in critical condition early today.

The couple and an infant son were sleeping in a front bedroom of the single-story home when fire broke out in a living room chair, said East Peoria Fire Chief Terry Brewer. The other children were sleeping in a rear bedroom.

About 25 firefighters extinguished the blaze in about 10 minutes.

Killed were Carl Houston, his 22-year-old wife, Mary, their 8-month-old son, David, and a 1½-year-old son, Charles, Brewer said.

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — Two French Air Force Transall transport planes collided and crashed during a mission to test aircraft performance Friday in southwestern France, killing 13 people, military authorities reported.

In Paris, the Defense Ministry said there were no survivors of the crews of either aircraft in the low altitude collision.

Plant working below par

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. — The Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant Unit 1 reactor will generate at 30 percent of its rated capacity at least through the weekend after reaching that level for the first time in its 16-year history.

The reactor reached an output of 310,000 kilowatts Thursday and was serving 300,000 customers, said Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spokesman Ron Weinberg. Testing at that level will continue for several days, Weinberg said.

20 hospitalized after spill

TULSA, Okla. — Twenty people were taken to a fire station for showers and several vehicles were impounded for testing after "probable PCBs" spilled from a capacitor on a utility pole knocked down in a traffic accident, authorities said.

The twenty firefighters, police officers, reporters and others were sent home in jail clothes after decontamination Thursday, said John R. Wickersham of the Tulsa City-County Health Department.

Court re-indicts man

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has reinstated the manslaughter indictment against a man who allegedly failed to get medical help for his girlfriend's 3-year-old son after she beat the child.

The court said Wednesday that allowing Russell Clark, 27, of Marshfield, to avoid trial would be saying that only a legal guardian or parent must seek medical care for a child's injuries.

A lower court judge had dismissed the indictment almost a year ago against Clark, who did not summon medical help for Nicky DiStefano after his mother, Catherine, beat and kicked the boy, according to court records.

Man files $20 million suit

MILWAUKEE — A 20-year-old man is suing 20 friends for a total of $10 million, claiming they didn't warn him when a friendly football game in October 1981 became a grudge match that left him paralyzed.

Steven Noeske said this week that the hard decision to take his friends to court was made easier because any money probably would be paid by insurance companies.

Two players have said Noeske was picked up and his head violently driven into the ground by a player on the other team, his attorney, Victor C. Harding, said. None of the players wore protective headgear or padding.

New rules douse plane fire danger

Since 1965, about 80 percent of the 914 fatalities in U.S. airline accidents involving fires were caused, not by the flames themselves, but by smoke and toxic gases and the inability of passengers to see their way to exits. In recognition of those problems, the Federal Aviation Administration now has adopted sensible new rules that ought to enhance passenger safety.

The airlines are required by 1987 to install seat covers that provide more resistance against fire reaching polyurethane foam padding, which when ignited emits dense smoke and toxic fumes. The rule would apply only to planes having a seating capacity of 30 or more passengers.

Because smoke rising from an interior fire tends to concentrate in the higher parts of the cabin, passengers often aren't able to see exit markings higher on the walls. The new regulations, therefore, require exit routings to be marked lower on the walls and on the floor.

A third new requirement is the installation of smoke detectors in aircraft lavatories and galleys, the sources of many fires. Early detection will give passengers and crew added time to deal with an emergency and successfully evacuate the airplane if necessary.

It's good to see that the FAA has followed through this way on the results of various studies of airline accidents involving fires. Those studies long have stressed that smoke and toxic fumes are far more lethal than the flames. Further, the new requirements should lead to the use of more fire-resistant materials in new airliners at the time of manufacture.

A PTA manual for nuclear attack

When the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory recently recommended that factory workers protect themselves from nuclear attack by jumping into large pools of water with "as much clothing as possible, and remaining four feet under, spending as little time as possible at the surface for air," almost everyone laughed.

I was one of few who didn't. At one time I was involved with nuclear civil defense, and believe me, it's not easy to come up with solutions that will satisfy everyone.

In 1962, after the Cuban missile crisis, I was elected by the PTA as civil defense co-ordinator of the Horace Mann Public School in Washington, D.C.

There were few guidelines in those days for an elected official of the PTA when it came to a nuclear attack, other than to have pupils crawl under their desks until the all-clear sounded.

So I had to start from scratch. I still have the memorandum I composed for dissemination to all the teachers.

"In the event of a pending nuclear attack on the Horace Mann Public School, every teacher will blow his or her whistle three times.

"All non-essential classes will be canceled as well as field trips to the White House and the Smithsonian Institution.

"Students will line up in the halls in an orderly fashion. Anyone who engages in horseplay will be immediately sent to the principal's office for punishment.

"Assuming there will be 20 minutes before a nuclear weapon reaches Washington, those pupils who wish to go to the bathroom may do so. Teachers will use their own judgment as to which ones really have to go and which ones are faking it.

"Since drinking water may be in short supply, students should be urged to use the fountains in the halls before the attack. I am now in touch with the civil defense authorities to see if Horace Mann is eligible for food rations that can be stored in the janitor's closet and be made available in case the children get hungry after hostilities cease.

"It will be the principal's job to listen to the radio and keep in touch with what is happening outside the school. When the missile is five minutes from target all pupils will be told to sit on the floor against a wall and place their heads between their legs. Once they are assured that their students have done this, the teachers may then sit on the floor as well and take the same position.

"In the event that Horace Mann is totally destroyed, the principal, at his own discretion, may order all the students to be bused to the closest school in the district that has been spared.

"The most important thing for teachers is to avoid panic and anxiety, which will only upset many children who have never been under a nuclear attack before.

"One way of doing this is to pretend it's just a game like 'Show and Tell.' Another might be to sing 'Row, Row, Row Your Boat.'

"After the attack is over, and the fallout ashes have settled, classes will be dismissed and students will be told to go directly home. It's quite possible that it will take several weeks to get the school repaired, in which case students will have to make up their classes during the summer vacation.

"All teachers will be expected to study this memorandum, as they will be questioned on it at the next PTA meeting."

Now I assume there are some people out there who may be skeptical of the extreme measures I recommended.

But I would like to remind them that in 1962 civil defense was in its infancy and quite primitive. No one knew then what the Livermore Laboratory knows now. And that is, in the event of a nuclear attack, you can save yourself by jumping into a large pool of water with all your clothes on.

Looting a pension fund

WASHINGTON — Ten years ago Congress passed legislation intended to protect pension funds from mismanagement by employers or looting by outsiders.

Unfortunately, the law failed to put fire into the bellies of Labor Department officials entrusted with its enforcement.

As a result, according to an unreleased General Accounting Office report, unexplained Labor Department inaction failed to stem the flow of $24 million in pension-fund loans to Morris Shenker, a prominent St. Louis attorney who has been linked by government investigators to organized crime.

The money was lent to Shenker from 1973 to 1977 by trustees of the Southern Nevada Culinary Workers and Bartenders Pension Trust Fund.

"I never got a dime from that fund which wasn't secured by good collateral," Shenker told my associate Tony Capaccio.

The Labor Department disagreed. It belatedly pressed charges against Shenker in 1977 and 1982, the obtained federal court judgments earlier this year ordering him to repay $33.9 million in principal and interest owed to the pension fund.

Shenker's response to the judgments was to file for bankruptcy to protect his assets during an appeal of the decision.

Shenker noted accurately that two attempts to settle the dispute failed. He said it was because Labor Department officials "did everything they could not to settle," and added, "all they wanted to do was get Shenker."

God cares about everyone

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I guess I have always thought there is a God, but I never honestly thought I would ever have any need of him. Now I find I can't cope with some of the problems I am facing, and wonder if God can help. Do you think he cares about someone like me? — Mrs. F.N.

DEAR MRS. F.N.: Often we suppose that God treats us exactly the same way we treat him. But God is not like that — and we should be thankful for that, because even when we love him deeply, our love is only a pale reflection of his love for us. But I suspect you feel that because you have been indifferent to God, God therefore must be indifferent to you. But that is not true.

God loves you, and he is more concerned about you and your problems than you are.

The GAO report, made at the request of Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, cited several leads pointing to Shenker and pension-fund trustees that were not pursued by the Labor Department.

"In view of the continuing allegations regarding the trust's activities, we believe Labor should have started its investigation sooner," the GAO reported. It noted: "In September 1975, Labor had information questioning the trust's financial management. Similar allegations continued through 1976."

As for Shenker specifically, the report said: "Labor also received allegations that Mr. Shenker obtained an additional $57 million in alleged illegal and imprudent loans from two other pension funds. In addition, Labor knew that, according to the Department of Justice, Mr. Shenker had connections with alleged organized crime figures."

Shenker retorts: "The only thing I know about organized crime is what I've read in the newspapers." But the GAO report repeatedly made the connection. It quoted a Labor Department memo dated May 25, 1976, which identified Shenker as "a well-known labor attorney with hoodlum connections."

And the GAO quotes a former Labor enforcement official as saying: "Labor was aware prior to 1970 of allegations about Mr. Shenker's relationships with alleged organized crime members and knew that the Justice Department had investigated him."

New farm bill sprouts growing support

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Heritage Foundation, a conservative think-tank, says old farm laws that allow the government to impose production curbs on farmers in order to boost prices should be scrapped in favor of programs oriented to world market conditions.

Although that is not a new idea, the Heritage Foundation's plan has been circulated widely within the Reagan administration and among key members of Congress, which is the chief architect of U.S. farm policy.

One of the main tasks of Congress will be to put together a farm bill to replace the current law, which is due to expire next year. Major crops such as wheat, corn, cotton and rice are covered, along with dairy supports, food stamps, conservation and foreign food aid.

The foundation's blueprint for agriculture is included in an extensive new study — "Mandate for Leadership II: Continuing the Conservative Revolution."

By any measure, the report said, the supply-and-demand situation for major crops "is now out of balance" and is hurting farmers.

"The imbalance results from direct federal actions and the Reagan administration's inability to correct problems caused by Congress and the preceding administration," the report said.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block for some time has urged a "market-oriented" philosophy as an alternative to current and past farm law.

'The government's going to get agriculture so screwed up that we won't have a chance of survival...if we don't back away and let economics work the best we can.'

Block, in a talk a week ago to a group of state legislators meeting in Washington, put it bluntly:

"The government's going to get agriculture so screwed up that we won't have a chance of survival — we really are — if we don't back away and let economics work the best we can. Otherwise, we're really going to mess it up."

Block said, "I think in the final analysis, agriculture will be better off if we can arrive at support programs that are basically safety-net type supports, and situations where the market dictates the price."

The Heritage report cited price support loan rates, diversion payments for idling land, target price payments, the "farmer-held reserve" grain storage program and other devices as inducements to further production when operated unrealistically.

As a first step, the administration should adjust price support loan rates, target prices and the farmer-held reserve so that those "will balance supply and demand at the prevailing world price," the report said.

"Action also needs to be taken to end the government's ability to control the industry," the report said. "The law should be repealed that allows the secretary of agriculture to impose production control and acreage limitation mechanisms for the principal production agriculture commodities. They do not work."

The chapter in the Heritage report was written by George S. Dunlop, who heads the staff of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is chairman of the committee.

Others who worked on the report include Hyde Murray, House minority counsel, and D. Gale Johnson of the University of Chicago, a well-known advocate of market-oriented agricultural policy.

In describing the "first-term experience" of the Reagan administration, the report noted that agriculture is the largest industry in the United States, with farm assets equal to about 70 percent of the capital assets of all manufacturing corporations.

But agriculture also "is the most unpredictable business in America," because producers are at the mercy of events beyond their control.

Going to war with yourself

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
On Nov. 12th, an Associated Press story on that day's sniper attack in Eugene, Oregon said a Eugene law enforcement official described gunman Micheal E. Feher as "dressed and ready to go to war."

The 19-year old college student killed one man, wounded another and fatally shot himself at University of Oregon's Autzen Stadium.

Feher was ready to go to war with himself all right. It's tragic that he took a victim with him and horrified a national audience in the process.

The president of Feher's fraternity house was quoted as saying that Feher had "problems with studies, problems with women, problems that you and I could deal with." Another frat house member said Feher was faddish and jumped from one thing to another. It's a bit more complicated than that.

I graduated from the University of Oregon in December of 1976 and left Eugene a month later.

It had been a four year roller coaster ride as most college experiences are. No one likes to admit it but the suicide rate keeps climbing on our nation's campuses.

I was determined to succeed and graduate like most bright-eyed adolescent freshmen are.

But then I began dreaming of other things too — to the degree that I forgot about graduating all together from college and Eugene for that matter.

Instead of competing against other journalism majors in Eugene, I spent a term at the southern Oregon coast and gave my life other priorities like giving outrageous poetry readings and talking to born-again Christians who were former cranberry harvesters.

Notions of attaining personal grandeur became a little unrealistic. I wanted to be a Volkswagen mechanic in my spare time, marry my girlfriend with no idea as to what to do for a living, earn a blackbelt in karate and write prolific novels.

Talk about unrealistic expectations, but then — find a college student who doesn't experience unrealistic notions.

It wasn't funny then. It was life and death. When my girlfriend and I split up — the world had ended.

That's when my father stepped in. That's what parents are there for. They knew where to guide me.

With their help and direction, I changed my major and began studying again. I wanted to graduate, which I did, and move on with my life.

I can thank my parents for that. I wish Feher could have done the same.

Future farms in U.S. will be high-tech in the hills

have a larger purpose.

The world's population is expected to reach eight billion by early next century, nearly twice that of 1984. Foreign markets for American farm products are expected to grow. A report by a Washington research organization, Resources for the Future, predicts a 70 to 100 percent increase in global demand for U.S. food and fiber by 2020. Helping to feed the world will be all the more difficult if arable land, fertile topsoil, and fresh water continue to disappear and the number of American farmers keeps dropping.

CUSTOM-DESIGNED CROPS

Perhaps no new technology has greater applications for agriculture than has biotechnology, which includes several forms of genetic engineering. By isolating specific desirable genes in one organism and transferring them to another, scientists are custom-designing new farm products. Unlike conventional crossbreeding, which is restricted to related strains and can take several generations to create the desired progeny, the new genetic engineering can combine any two organisms and achieve results in only one generation.

"I would think that by early in the next century, most of our major crops would have been replaced by others that are more nutritious, easier to digest, cheaper to grow, higher in yield, and less susceptible to pests," says Daniel D. Adams, chairman and chief executive officer of Advanced Genetic Sciences in Greenwich, Conn.

The value of new genetic improvements to U.S. crops is predicted to soar to $10 billion a year after 2000, according to a detailed study by L. William Teweles & Co. of Milwaukee.

The study says that key cereal crops — corn, wheat, rice, and sorghum — as well as many vegetables will be transformed before 2000 and that the new plants' seeds will be in wide use by farmers in the first quarter of the 21st century.

Advanced Genetic Sciences is well on its way to creating frost protection for plants. After determining that certain bacteria promote formation of ice crystals, scientists isolated the bacterial ice-producing gene and removed it.

When applied to crops, the new, altered bacteria crowd out the original variety, lowering the plants' freezing point. Used on a large scale, the new bacteria could lengthen growing seasons and push the nation's crop belt hundreds of miles north.

Other companies, such as Agracetus of Middleton, Wis., are designing disease- and pest-resistant plants. "They definitely should reduce the use of chemical pesticides," says Dr. Winston Brill of Agracetus. Some specialists predict, however, that the use of herbicides — weed killers — could go up as herbicide-resistant crops are developed.

AUTOMATIC FERTILIZERS

Brill and other U.S. scientists also are trying to cut the farmer's dependence on expensive nitrogen fertilizers. Leguminous plants such as soybeans don't need fertilizer; bacteria on their roots process nitrogen from the air. Brill's research is aimed at splicing these "nitrogen-fixing" genes into those of other crops or at transferring nitrogen-fixing bacteria to the crops to make them self-fertilizing.

Genetic engineers have their microscopes trained on farm animals as well as plants. Biological vaccines, some of them made from recombinant DNA rather than a whole virus, already are in use and are proving more effective than conventional vaccines, says Dr. Franklin Pass, president of Molecular Genetics Inc. of Minneapolis.

The company also is engineering biological hormones, but they may be only stepping stones to new, improved farm animals that grow more quickly without heavy use of antibiotics. "I don't think we're going to see cows that look like elephants," Pass says. "The goal is economic relief for the farmer. Animals growing faster means less feed consumption."

Most U.S. beef cattle and other animals are bred conventionally today, but artificial insemination will be used more in the future. Experimental techniques that trick nature will be applied widely in the next century, predicts Dr. George Seidel, professor of physiology at Colorado State University.

Animal embryos can be manipulated in a variety of ways to improve and multiply offspring. The embryonic cells of a cow with favorable genetic traits, for example, could be removed at an early stage and split in half; one half could be returned to the mother for development, the other half frozen. If the offspring met expectations, the frozen half could be thawed, weeks or even years later, and allowed to develop.

The superior animal's embryo theoretically could be divided into many parts, each one planted in a surrogate mother for development into identical offspring, or desirable genes could be injected directly into a fertilized egg of a pregnant animal. "These techniques might mean lots of offspring per cow each year instead of only one, and creation of a different animal for every environment," Seidel explains.

FEWER COWS, FARMERS

Genetic engineering is raising environmental, ethical, and economic concerns for the future. "A genetically produced growth hormone for cattle could greatly increase milk production, and the response could be a one-third reduction in the nation's dairy herd," says Jack Doyle, director of the agricultural resources project of the Environmental Policy Institute. "Fewer dairy cows mean fewer dairy farmers."

Doyle foresees other hazards as genetic engineering becomes more sophisticated, spawning plant-growth regulators, synthetic seeds, microbial pesticides and viruses, and genetically enhanced bacteria. "Who will decide whether these products are safe, economical, and efficient in fostering agricultural production?" he asks.

Almost everything a farmer uses will be electronically monitored on most future farms. Traditional record-keeping systems are on the way out, says Norman Brown, who raises hogs near Aledo, Ill., and also sells computer software.

But computer accounting is only the first step toward an all-electronic farm, which will give new meaning to the phrase "cow chip." A few dairy cattle already wear transponders that beam radio waves to a computer.

As a cow enters a feed stall, the animal's identification number on her transponder is read by a sensor and relayed to the farmer's computer. "The computer would already know that cow number 301 is in her eighth week of lactation and producing 60 pounds of milk a day," says Scott Sklare of Valmont Industries in Valley, Neb. "Based on output, the computer would calculate quantity and nutrient

ROBOTS AND SATELLITES

Next century's farm hands will include robots that could edge out migrant workers, says Wayne Rasmussen, an Agriculture Department historian. "We'll see a continuing disappearance of back-breaking labor on farms," he says.

And farmers undoubtedly will seek more guidance from satellites. Microwave-beaming satellites, for example, will peer through clouds and the crop canopy to evaluate soil moisture.

First Presbyterian gets new pastor

By KIM KIRKHAM
Religion Editor

Big Spring's First Presbyterian Church is "in like Flynn."

Flynn V. Long Jr., 56, is the new minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Big Spring. He moved to Big Spring Nov. 15.

Long decided to go into the ministry while attending Austin High School in Austin. "My father was a minister, and I guess I was taken under the care of the Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry in about 1944." His father-in-law and his father's three brothers also were Presbyterian ministers.

Long considered entering another occupation but "I finally decided I could serve best as a minister in the church."

His parents' "devotion to the church was a major influence on my life," said Long. "I think my father spent a good deal of time sharing with me the things he did in the ministry, and that was extremely helpful for me in understanding what it's all about." Long believes that First Presbyterian Church of Big Spring is a strong church, and "it has a very wide variety of people in it. I think it has the potential for a very full ministry in education, service and caring ministries.

"It's a congregation with a long tradition of support for good causes, interests, life of this city and Howard County. It's a ministry I look forward to continuing and enhancing," he said.

"I hope the church will be able to broaden its ministry to young adults and single people," he said. "I think one of the things that we're gonna be doing here at this church is to develop some well-defined goals for the direction of the church."

Long said his wife, Grace, is "deeply devoted to the church and very interested in its life and its workings. She's been very active in the life of the church." They have four children.

A graduate of Davidson College in Davidson, N.C., Long also graduated from Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Austin. He did his graduate study in the Department of History at the University of Texas at Austin.

His interests include the history of the Presbyterian Church and folk and country music. He "fiddles around a bit" with the guitar and five-string bango and plays bagpipes.

He recently started painting miniature (54mm) lead productions of soldiers.

"It's a good church, a good city, and a good place to be," said Long about the First Presbyterian Church and Big Spring. Long is happy to be back in West Texas, "because I dearly love this part of the country."

"I like the land. I like its people. I like the spirit of the place, and I feel very much at home here."

Amy Grant is a hit singing about Jesus

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeature Writer

Amy Grant's "Age to Age" album has been certified gold, which means it has sold more than 500,000 copies. The unusual thing is that it's a religious album — they don't often go gold.

In October, Miss Grant sold out 6,000-seat Radio City Music Hall in New York. She had a seven-piece rock band, in which her husband, Gary Chapman, plays guitar, three backup singers and a sophisticated lighting system. The songs were mostly loud, with a rock beat. Miss Grant, her long, curly hair loose and trendily dressed, is 23, pretty, wholesome-looking, and projects a likable sincerity.

Her eighth album, out last spring on Myrrh Records, is "Straight Ahead." In an interview, she says, "I can't imagine anybody who isn't at least interested in what I'm singing about rushing out and buying a bunch of Amy Grant records. But people will tell me after a concert, 'I never heard of you until tonight. A friend suggested I come.'"

Lyrics of songs she writes and songs she chooses to sing don't deal with such topics as drugs, Miss Grant says. "I would say I'm not dealing with the resulting problems, but dealing with the symptoms. My songs talk more about our self-esteem and who we are in God's sight. If you don't feel like anybody gives a flip about you, it's hard to care that much about yourself."

"I just want to tell kids they're important. I need that myself; I need to feel like somebody cares."

"It's funny the things that insecurity will make you do — draw attention to yourself, do stupid or self-destructive things. Hopefully my songs deal with more the root instead of saying you've got to live by my rules."

Miss Grant, born in Augusta, Ga., youngest of four girls, grew up in Nashville, in a religious household. "We went to the Church of Christ. It had a lot of heart but a lot of rules. There were no instruments in the church; all music was vocal. I stood next to Kathy, who's eight years older, and she told me there are notes on the page. If I wanted to sing with the rest, I should figure them out and follow them. By about fourth grade everybody knew a little how to read music."

All four Grant sisters sang. "For some reason I was the one who started writing," Miss Grant says. She was 15. "I just was interested in telling other people about Jesus. I was thinking there are a lot of kids out there that are so wrapped up in not wanting to go to church they're not understanding that God is a whole lot bigger than church."

"I felt like saying, we've talked about sex and let's party, now let's talk about the eternal significance of the fact we're here."

Word Records, the largest company recording Christian music, signed her to its contemporary label, Myrrh.

After her first album, "Amy Grant," publishers submitted songs for her second album. "My Father's Eyes" became the title song. When the album-release party, for all participants in the record, was held in Nashville, Miss Grant met the song's writer, Gary Chapman.

"He asked me for a date. I liked somebody at the time and said no. I flew back to South Carolina, where I was a freshman in college. He called me on the phone and apologized. He said he knew I was dating but he thought he'd give it a stab. I thought he was an interesting fellow to call back.

"He'd send tapes and notes, 'Here's your next hit song.' I thought he was joking and I'd write back the song was weak. He lost all respect for my musical opinions."

"The summer after my sophomore year, my brother-in-law and his partner, who managed me, decided Gary should do a war-mup act for my concerts. They'd seen him perform somewhere.

"My personal feeling on love is, if you're with somebody long enough and have an inclination toward one another, chances are you'll fall in love. I know there are people who meet for the first time and fall in love. A lot of times it comes from being stuck in a situation."

"The summer came to an end and I was missing him already and we hadn't even got the tour. Two years later he asked me to marry him, and now we've been married over two years."

"When I started writing songs I wanted to shy away from having people not understand what I was saying because they didn't understand the words I was using." The religious, like the computer mavens, have a jargon and Miss Grant doesn't use it.

Miss Grant often is asked if she's going to move into pop music. She says, "My heart is really in what I'm doing. Singing about something so much bigger than me really puts life in perspective. And singing is a release. The release is not just the sound and feel of it but what the song is saying. I'll be singing at concerts sometimes and thinking I'm getting more out of this than anybody."

PARADE AND CONCERT — The Wesley and Dorothy Pearce Family (pictured above) recently returned from a Canadian tour where they appeared on the TV program, "It's a New Day." The family will be one of several featured in concert following the Christmas Parade, Dec. 1. Churches and individuals wishing to march in the parade or perform in the concert at the Howard County Courthouse following the parade, should contact Sig Rogers at 267-6970 or the Chamber of Commerce.

National defense topic of recent DAR program

Helen Ewing gave a program on National Defense at a meeting of Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, Nov. 17. The meeting was at home of Mrs. John Cobean.

Mrs. Ewing spoke of an address by William Simon to the National Defense Luncheon in Washington, D. C., entitled "Nathan Hale's Vision." Nathan Hale was 26 years of age and a school teacher. When the struggle for independence began, he volunteered for a new unit called Rangers, composed of the best young soldiers Connecticut had to offer. He volunteered for a mission behind the British lines. He was betrayed, captured and brought to New York. The British pressed him for information about the rebel forces, its strategy and its numbers. He refused to talk, so he was hung. His last words were, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

During the meeting, a message from the National President General and a report on National Defense were given. Lola Kilman was appointed National Defense chairman. Mrs. Cobean was appointed chairman to bring a message from the National President General.

State Regent Mrs. W. D. Tiner of Waco dedicated a pecan tree, which was planted by the State DAR Nov. 12 at the Veterans Administration Medical Center. A bronze memorial to all veterans was placed at the foot of the tree. Mrs. Tiner's project as state regent is to plant a tree at each Veteran's Hospital.

Mrs. Tiner also dedicated the tree which the local chapter planted in honor of George Washington's Birthday on the VAMC grounds. Following the dedication, a reception honoring Mrs. Tiner was hosted by the local chapter. Guests from the two chapters in Midland and the chapter in San Angelo were present.

The next meeting will be at 12 p.m. Dec. 15 in the home of Mrs. Curtis Driver.

Dear Abby

Volunteers spin their wheels

DEAR ABBY: It seems that walkathons are becoming increasingly popular. This has bothered me for a long time, so I decided to get it off my chest.

I cannot see the relationship between charity and how far a person can walk. On the other hand, I could see some relationship if the volunteer walkers were sponsored for performing a meaningful service instead of walking.

For example: How about a "trashathon" to see how many bags of litter the volunteers could pick up off the land? Or how about a "windowathon" to see how many senior citizens' windows could be washed by volunteers? Or "readathons" to see how many pages volunteers could read to nursing home patients whose eyes have failed them? Or how many letters they could write for nursing home patients? Or how many senior citizens' yards could be raked or otherwise cleaned up?

I think you see my point. Why should walkers expend all that energy just to wind up with sore feet and aching muscles from walking until they're ready to drop?

It seems to me that if people want to volunteer their energy for charity, they might as well do it in an activity that's both productive and charitable.

ENERGY CONSCIOUS,
GODDARD, KAN.
DEAR CONSCIOUS: Right on!

Dr. Donohue

Walking pneumonia is virus-caused

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What are the symptoms of walking pneumonia? How is it diagnosed?

Reader: Walking pneumonia is a term popularly used to describe pneumonia not caused by bacteria. Viral pneumonia is an example. It's the kind that usually doesn't prostrate us or make us feel quite so bad as does the bacterial type. There may be the cough, fever, chest pain, muscle ache and headache, but they're not as severe. The person's reported symptoms along with lab tests distinguish viral from bacterial pneumonias.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is it true or is it not true that a person who is allergic would fare better moving to the North? — M.E.

If the allergy is seasonal, that is, occurring with the timing of pollen shedding from trees, grasses and weeds, then exposure time is less in the Northern climate than in the South. There can be as much as nine months of pollen exposure in warmer climates.

You must know, however, what pollens you are allergic to and where those pollens are prevalent. It's my experience that the disruptions in lifestyle and family ties outweigh any expected freedom from allergy afforded by a move to a new climate. If it is to be done, the best idea is to make a trial visit of some length.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: We would like you to settle our controversy about meat tenderizers. My husband says it's poison and that it does the same thing to our innards that it does to meat — tenderizes them. I say that it doesn't do that. What's your opinion? — Mrs. C.C.

Consider it settled. The tenderizer is destroyed by heat. And what is not destroyed by stomach acid. Did your husband really believe we were all tenderiz-

Cowboys nip 'Pats on last second field goal

ALL DAY LONG — New England Patriots quarterback Tony Eason looks downfield as he is hit by Dallas Cowboys defensive end Ed Jones during second period action of Thursday's Thanksgiving game in which the Cowboys won 20-17. The swarming Cowboys defense sacked Eason 10 times, two shy of the NFL record.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys went from a joke to a juggernaut in just four days. "We came back from one of the worst losses in franchise history," said running back Tony Dorsett after the 20-17 Thanksgiving Day victory over the New England Patriots. "People had lost respect for the Cowboys."

Dallas, whipped 14-3 by the winless Buffalo Bills on Sunday, extracted some respect from Patriot quarterback Tony Eason.

The Cowboys sacked him 10 times, most ever against a New England team, and safety Michael Downs returned an interception 27 yards for a touchdown.

Still, it took a 23-yard field goal by Rafael Septien with four seconds to play to subdue the Patriots.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you all but I'm happy to announce the Cowboys aren't dead yet," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It was our best game of the year. We really played good defense."

The Cowboys moved a half game ahead of Washington and the New York Giants in the National Conference Eastern Division with an 8-5 record. New England is also 8-5 and alive for a wild card berth in the American Conference East.

Dallas quarterback Danny White, coming back after a two-week absence, threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Tony Hill and directed the game-winning drive. His 16-yard pass to Doug Cosbie set up Septien's kick.

Dallas led 10-3 at halftime and stretched the advantage to 17-3 in the third period on the White to Hill connection.

Eason refused to be rattled and threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to Derrick Ramsey and sneaked across for a touchdown from a yard out to tie the score 17-all with 1:58 left.

White, replacing young Gary Hogeboom who was benched because of Dallas' punchless offense, directed a flawless drive to the Patriot 6.

After Dorsett ran 16 yards, White hit Doug Droney for 13 yards, Hill for 11 and Cosbie for 16.

Septien's kick was perfect and New England's wild series of laterals after the kickoff failed. "The Dallas defense did not surprise us at all," said New England Coach Ray Berry. "You just have to look at their past history. They get awfully tough in November and December."

Berry said the Patriots should be a better team with the experience. "I told our squad after the game that Dallas has actually done us a favor in some respects," Berry said. "A football game is a test. It reveals where you are. What we found out today is that we are not prepared good enough to win a close game like this one."

Landry said, "It was a great game for us. After last week, I'm sure New England was somewhat eager to play us after scoring 50 points (against Indianapolis) and then seeing our films. If you have any character at all, you are going to play your best."

White completed 21 of 41 passes for 288 yards and Hill snagged 8 for 125 yards.

Eason was on target 19 of 38 times for 204 yards but suffered 57 yards of losses on traps.

"White hit the passes to keep us in the game," said Landry. "He did a good job of moving the ball under the circumstances, considering we have such a patched up offensive line."

The Cowboys lost starting guard Kurt Petersen with a twisted ankle early in the game.

The victory, Dallas' 13th against 3 losses and a tie on Thanksgiving, assured a 20th consecutive non-losing season.

"I didn't want to be on the first Cowboy team not to make the playoffs since 1974," said Dorsett.

Eason said he'd like to play Dallas again.

"I'd like to have another shot at them," he said. "Their defense did a good job of mixing things up."

Buffaloes searching for playoff win number two

By STEVEN BELVIN
Staff Writer

BALLINGER — It will speed versus size when the Forsan Buffaloes meet the Lometa Hornets in a class A area clash Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Ballinger.

Coach Jan East's Buffaloes will have their hands full with the District 8-A champs which is a squad with plenty of size, according to Forsan coach Jan East.

The Hornets (9-2), coached by Bill Miles; are coming off a 27-9 bidistrict win over Eden. They are a large team, averaging 210 pounds per man on the offensive line; but they are a young squad; with only two seniors starting.

"They are a big team, but they don't appear to have exceptional speed," said coach East. "They line up in different formations and like to run the power sweep. Hopefully our speed will offset their size."

The Buffaloes are coming off a 19-6 win over O'Donnell, a game in which East said his squad gave up too many yards on the ground (200). "We gave up too many yards but we made some big plays when we needed them," said East of his defense which is allowing one touchdown per game. "We got hurt with the sweep and we'll see more of it this week."

The Forsan offense was potent as usual, racking up 220 yards on the ground led by quarterback Todd East and running backs Mitch Hays and Wayne Wright. The trio combined for 220 yards as Hays garnered 88 in 17 attempts. He now has 1,146 yards for the year.

Forsan fullback Wayne Wright has been coming around lately, indicated by his 60 yards in 13 tries last week. Quarterback Todd East was also a terror on the ground.

CRAIG CREEL
...to start versus Lometa

The 6-4 senior rushed 10 times for 72 yards, giving the Buffaloes a well balanced rushing attack.

This week also brought a pleasant surprise to the Buffaloes as they worked their way into the Harris Poll top 10 for the first time this season. They have a 10th place ranking and are favored by six points over Lometa.

"The kids don't care about the point spread, but they are proud to finally get into the top 10," explained East. "I think it will give them more incentive to win and stay there."

Forsan will be without the services of offensive and defensive lineman Marvin Kendrick who underwent knee surgery this week to repair damaged ligaments suffered in the win versus O'Donnell.

Craig Creel, who East says filled in admirably last week, will get the start this week.

Lions end Packers win streak at four

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The defeat was devastating and heart-breaking for the Packers who saw their winning streak snapped at four games and their slim chance for a National Football League playoff berth all but disappear.

It embarrassed Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg.

"That was probably the worst 60 minutes of defensive football I've seen. It was horrible," Gregg said after the 31-28 Thanksgiving Day loss to the Detroit Lions. "This put us out of any hopes for this year. It was embarrassing in front of a national television audience."

"We'll have to struggle like the devil to break even, now."

Green Bay, which has not won five successive games since 1966, slipped to 5-8, and has to win its remaining three games to finish at .500.

Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson, who completed 24 of 33 pass attempts for 395 yards and three touchdowns, said his club went into the game with aspirations of its own.

"Today, we were ready to play. I don't think it would have mattered who we were playing, it just happened to be Green Bay," Danielson said. "Winning on national television shows everybody we're not a joke franchise. We just haven't done what it takes to win some of the close games this season."

Of Detroit's 13 games, 10 have been decided by six points or less. However, the victory over the Packers only improved the Lions' record to 4-8-1. Not exactly what was expected of the defending NFC Central division champs.

"We're not embarrassed by the way we've played this year, just like the outcome," Danielson said. "This team has played hard all year and we're not going to give up now."

There were two key factors in the game. Detroit's receivers made clutch catches to keep drives alive. As a result, the Lions had possession of the ball 44:47 compared with only 15:13 for the Packers.

The Lions finished with a 33-14 edge in first downs and outgained the Packers 518 to 306 in total yards.

"They wanted to show the U.S. they're not a bad team," said Green Bay tight end Paul Coffman, whose only catch went for a 44-yard touchdown. "The Lions' offense did a super job of holding on to the ball. Maybe we should have scored a lot more when we had the chance."

In the first quarter, it looked as if the Packers could turn it into a rout. Gerry Ellis scored on a 40-yard end run and Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey tossed the TD strike to Coffman and — just like that — Green Bay had a 14-0 lead.

Danielson hit rookie tight end David Lewis on a 10-yard TD pass early in the second quarter, but Dickey answered with a 7-yard scoring pass to Eddie Lee Ivey that put the Packers ahead 21-7.

However, the Lions scored a TD and a field goal in the last 1:14 of the first half and Gregg felt that might have turned the game around, even though Green Bay still led 21-17.

Danielson tossed a 21-yard TD to Lewis and, after a 35-yard punt by Bucky Scribner, the Lions sent in reserve quarterback Mike Machurek who put up a 48-yard "Hail, Mary!" pass that Mark Nichols brought down among five defenders to set up Eddie Murray's 32-yard field goal as time ran out in the second quarter.

"The field goal just before the half was the difference in the ball game," Gregg said. "You can't coast or glide in this league or you'll get your teeth kicked out, and that's what happened today."

Detroit fullback James Jones scored on a 1-yard dive in the third quarter and Danielson pitched a 21-yard TD strike to Jeff Chadwick at 8:45 of the fourth quarter to put the Lions ahead 31-21.

NHL Thanksgiving action

Whalers pound Pittsburgh, 9-3

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Hartford Whalers spent Thanksgiving feasting on a porous Pittsburgh defense and reaped a 9-3 National Hockey League victory that snapped a three-game losing streak.

"I suffered through our last few games when we couldn't score," Coach Jack Evans said after Thursday's explosion. His team had scored just nine goals in the last seven games. "Tonight, everything went in for us."

Hartford's third line of Greg Malone, Bobby Crawford and Torrie Robertson combined for four goals and nine assists. Each scored a goal within a 3:29 span of the second period when the Whalers broke away from a 2-2 tie.

"We've been getting opportunities but we haven't been finishing plays," said Malone, who tied a club record with five points and netted a pair of goals.

The Whalers forechecked consistently, something that was missing during recent games, and the pressure resulted in several breakdowns by Pittsburgh.

"We were very weak defensively, especially in our end," Pittsburgh Coach Bob Berry said. "We played with intensity for the first five minutes and it slipped away quickly."

Mike Bullard scored at 6:09 to give the Penguins a 1-0 lead but the Whalers struck for two goals within a 1:34 span to take the lead. Mark Johnson, who also scored twice, scored at 10:06 and Malone followed.

In the second period, Moe Mantha tied the score at 4:59 but the Whalers got goals from Crawford, Malone and Robertson in a 3½-minute spurt to break the game open.

Canadiens 3, Black Hawks 2.

Guy Carbonneau had a goal and two assists for host Montreal. One of his goals came on a 60-foot wrist shot that fooled goalie Murray Bannerman. The other, the game-winner, came at 15:12 of the third period when Carbonneau split the defense and snapped a wrist shot off the goal post and into the net.

"I'll tell you one thing," said Bannerman. "I never realized that Carbonneau could shoot like that. He got two like that tonight and they were really good shots. He just snapped them."

Florida officials: 'NCAA unfair'

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has never imposed such severe sanctions as against the University of Florida, and the organization should reduce them to maintain its reputation for fairness, the school said in a formal appeal.

The appeal complains that the stiff sanctions, including three years' probation and loss of 20 athletic scholarships, for wrongdoing in the Florida football program don't take into account the school's cooperation throughout the probe.

"The University of Florida, in complying with the letter and spirit of NCAA legislation, and in an effort to show good faith, cooperated with the NCAA to the maximum extent possible," wrote lawyer Jim Quincey in the appeal released Wednesday.

The Southeastern Conference on Tuesday ruled the Gators will not be eligible to participate in any bowls this year, but postponed a decision on whether Florida could keep its new conference title.

Last Saturday, Florida beat Kentucky 25-17 to clinch its first-ever SEC championship in 52 years. Florida officials also announced interim Coach Galen Hall had been named to the permanent job.

"The institution was told by the NCAA enforcement staff that such actions would be taken into account," Quincey said, adding that new President Marshall Criser "had the right" to expect the corrective steps would be considered for leniency.

The Florida appeal of the 59 infractions cited by the NCAA asks that the third year of probation be immediately suspended as compensation for its cooperation. The current NCAA plan allows suspension of the final year only if Florida controls its football program for the first two years.

The appeal blasts NCAA plans to take away 20 scholarships over two years and reduce the total number of scholarships to 85 next year, plus make only 75 scholarships available in 1986-87.

Schramm to oust negative players

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm, voicing his displeasure with his struggling team, says some players who are "negative influences" will be gone from the roster by next year.

"Next year we need to eliminate the players who are not willing to contribute to the team concept," Schramm said.

Schramm said he is disturbed with what he calls "finger-pointers" and says the overall team attitude has eroded the last few weeks.

He declined in an interview with the Dallas Times Herald to name names of those players he thought were "negative influences."

"We have some players who are finger-pointers and who always want to say it's somebody else's fault," Schramm said. "That depreciates the team concept."

"Some players tend to be positive influences and some need to be negative influences. We need to emphasize the positive and it's time to reduce the negative ones."

Schramm also said the Cowboys will try to acquire some veteran players through trades during the off-season — a rare strategy for the Cowboys who currently have only two players — John Dutton and Mike Renfro — acquired through player-for-player trades.

"It's not our normal pattern, but we could make some trades," Schramm said. "There's one thing about the Cowboys: we've always been willing to change our methods when we've needed to."

Running back Tony Dorsett,

Schramm said, is a "positive influence" even though he has recently chided teammates, in general, for a lack of team effort.

"Tony Dorsett has given us everything he's got this season," Schramm said.

The club president said he has discussed his feelings with Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, who makes all decisions regarding trades and releases of players.

"We usually have the same feelings about things like this. We tend to agree on most things. You don't work with somebody for 25 years and not know how they think and feel," Schramm said.

Landry, however, said he preferred not to comment on the subject.

"I have enough worry about the rest of the season," Landry said.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is excellent for handling business matters but reserve the evening for your mate and have a fine time together.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can easily convince partners to join you in some new plan of activity that can bring benefits to all concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Early decide how to make your home more functional and charming and then get right to work on this.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A good day for shopping around for luxurious pieces you have long wanted, and then do other shopping as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A fine day for getting the mechanisms that will make your home run more smoothly and efficiently. Entertain this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You feel that the world is a fine place today and can accomplish a good deal while in this mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Any conference you may have with another can bring good results at this time. Do something to prove your loyalty to your mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study the best way to get a campaign working that agrees with your own philosophy of living.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more discriminating where friends are concerned and choose the ones that will be in your life for a long time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Many situations arise whereby you understand your capabilities better and can become more prosperous in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do very well in business since the nature is a blunt and honest one, and there is also the ability to work with the hands. Slant the education along such lines and add some foreign languages since there is bound to be some travel. One who will need much encouragement.

Oasis of peace

Jew-Arab community strives for unity, peace

STRUGGLE FOR RECOGNITION — Jewish and Arab high school students talk during a seminar in the village of the Neve Shalom, Israel, where Arab and Jews live together and hold workshops where the students get to know the other's culture.

NEVE SHALOM, Israel (AP) — On a rocky hilltop overlooking biblical battlefields in the Ayalon valley, 10 Israeli families have built up a small but vigorous settlement they call the Oasis of Peace.

What makes this village unique is that the 60 or so residents are both Israeli Jews and Arabs, trying to make their life together a model for a society in which the two communities live apart with deeply rooted hostility and mistrust.

It is 100 acres of land leased from the nearby Trappist monastery at Latrun is located in what was a "no-man's land" between the West Bank and Israel before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. There are a dozen single-story white houses, a sheep-pen, beehives, an olive grove and two small schoolhouses.

Life in Neve Shalom, Hebrew for Oasis of Peace, centers on the school where four-day workshops are held three times a month for Jewish and Arab high school students.

"We started the School for Peace because we realized it was not enough to gather a group of people who live together," said Jacob "Kobi" Sonnenschein, a 31-year-old physicist and Israeli army reserve officer who is one of the original settlers.

"Just living together does not have any influence outside," he said. "We decided that somehow we had to disseminate the idea."

Since 1980, about 5,000 Arab and Jewish students have attended the workshops, including 1,500 this year. The workshops are handled like encounter groups; students talk freely about their impressions of each other and such sensitive subjects as sex and politics.

Lectures are also given on the Arab-Israeli conflict, a subject offered only to high school seniors as an elective course in the public school curriculum.

For Elizabeth Tahan, 16, a Palestinian Christian from Jaffa, mixing with Jewish teen-agers was not a new experience. "I have Jewish friends at home, and we talk together about everything. But I met some new friends here and we agreed to keep in touch."

But for Shirley Singer, 15 from Tel Aviv, it was a new and somewhat disconcerting experience.

"On the social level we have very good relations here. But when it comes to discussing politics, it's as if we didn't know each other at all," said Miss Singer.

The goal, Sonnenschein said, is not assimilation or integration of the two ethnic groups but getting to know and respect each other's culture, traditions and religious beliefs. For example, he said, that meant learning to appreciate Arab music "which I couldn't stand to listen to for more than five minutes at a time."

Despite their efforts at equality, the Israeli culture appears to dominate. Even though the population is evenly divided, Hebrew is the language spoken among the Arab and Jewish residents as well as the visiting students.

Elias Idi, a 24-year-old Arab counselor who has lived for two years at Neve Shalom, noted that the settlement was originally founded in the early 1970s by a Dominican priest, the Rev. Bruno Hussar, as an experimental community for Moslems, Christians and Jews.

"Today we tend to view the problem more on a national basis than a religious basis, more as one between Palestinians and Israelis than between the three religions," said Idi, a graduate of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. "Our message is that the problem can be dealt with through education, in a non-violent way, so there can be co-existence."

Like the pre-state settlers who founded kibbutz collective farms in Israel, the first residents of Neve Shalom lived in tents without electricity, running water, telephones and other utilities. The community still lacks an adequate sewage system and paved roads.

"We have had many difficulties," said Sonnenschein, interviewed in his home overlooking the monastery near the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway. "First and foremost, we have not been recognized by the authorities in Israel as a village."

Official recognition means more than winning acceptance. It means financial help for an infrastructure such as roads and utilities that is afforded to most communities in Israel and the West Bank.

Yitzhak Agassi, spokesman for the ministry of interior which approves new settlements, said the government had not recognized Neve Shalom as a village because the settlers had established their community without seeking advance approval from government agencies.

"We have an order of priorities in our spending plans and these things cannot be settled after the fact. It is now their responsibility," Agassi said in a telephone interview.

He rejected the idea that the government was discriminating against Neve Shalom because Arabs and Jews lived together. "They get the same treatment as anyone. We'd react the same to any partisan settlements whether Arab, Jewish or Hottentot."

Neve Shalom's budget for the current year is $250,000, funded mostly by grants and donations from abroad. It includes a $70,000 Ford Foundation grant for education projects.

Heritage group grades Reagan

President rates 62 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was a time when the Heritage Foundation drew little attention. The private research group clearly doesn't travel the middle of the road. Its scholars are deeply conservative.

But since Ronald Reagan moved into the White House people have begun to sit up and take notice. The president and the "think tank" are on similar wavelengths, although its new publication, "Mandate for Leadership II; Continuing the Conservation Revolution," indicates some important differences.

Mandate, a report designed to guide Reagan's second term, is chock full of proposals on national security, foreign policy, defense, education and social welfare. Some were "leaked" this week, others were officially released. Many more are to be announced next month.

Four years ago, "Mandate I" offered the new president more than 2,000 recommendations. Heritage kept watch, and after Reagan's first year in office it issued a report card. His grade: 62.

He will score "a little bit higher" in the second term, Edward J. Feulner Jr., the president of Heritage, predicted at a news conference Tuesday.

That's problematic, at this point, although in addition to the philosophical kinship there are Heritage alumni in posts at the White House, the State and Education Departments, and elsewhere throughout the administration. Perhaps the most attention-getting proposal was that the United States should consider supporting insurgents in such Marxist countries as Nicaragua and Afghanistan when U.S. interests are imperiled.

Use of American troops is not specifically endorsed. In fact, the support may be merely vocal; a way of bolstering the rebels by letting them know they are not alone. Even so, the idea is controversial and could conjure up memories of U.S. intervention in Vietnam, Central America and other troubled regions.

On arms control, while Reagan is steering the country toward negotiations with the Soviet Union, the Heritage proposals are extremely skeptical of both the process and of Moscow. The report warns that past agreements have not enhanced U.S. security and recommends not making arms control the centerpiece of American foreign policy. Widespread Soviet cheating is charged.

Moreover, "Mandate" recommends the president announce "at an early date" that the United States is ending its voluntary compliance with the unratified 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation agreement. At the very least, the report says, the terms should be allowed to expire, on schedule, at the end of 1985.

There are proposals also to construct a U.S. missile defense in Wyoming.

Irish leaders criticize Thatcher's comments

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Anglo-Irish relations suffered a severe jolt Thursday when Irish leaders criticized remarks made by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher about efforts to end the Northern Ireland conflict.

The dispute blew up Wednesday night when Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald accused Mrs. Thatcher of making "gratuitously offensive" comments on the proposals he brought to London for their two-day summit meeting that ended Monday.

The next day FitzGerald, who had hoped to win British support for his moderate position, faced opposition calls in Parliament for his resignation. He rejected them.

Irish Deputy Prime Minister Dick Spring said the breakdown of dialogue threatened peace efforts. Foreign Minister Peter Barry said Mrs. Thatcher's attitude could only benefit the Irish Republican Army's guerrilla war to drive the British out of Northern Ireland.

The Irish had pinned high hopes on the summit and had expected some British openness toward the three options FitzGerald brought to London — unification of the partitioned island, confederation or joint Anglo-Irish authority over Northern Ireland.

Mrs. Thatcher, at a news conference, rejected them all. According to Irish officials she also dismissed FitzGerald's contention that Northern Ireland's problem stems from the alienation of the province's Roman Catholic minority from British rule.

Asked in the House of Commons whether she was "gratuitously offensive" to FitzGerald, she replied curtly that she was in "total disagreement" with the phrase, adding: "I do not understand his comment in any way."

A Thatcher aide who spoke on condition of anonymity said, "the Irish will always want to go further than we. ... We want to go very, very slowly."

Northern Ireland was created in 1922 when the island was partitioned — the south into an independent republic and the north into a British province.

The north has long been dominated by its Protestant majority, descendants of 17th century settlers from England and Scotland. They swear allegiance to Britain, while most Roman Catholics feel a bond with the Republic.

Barry said Mrs. Thatcher's post-summit remarks were "very unfortunate. ... The only winners from what she said can be the IRA. We don't want to see that and I'm sure she does not either."

The Irish made clear they did not want to break off their dialogue with Britain.

"It's difficult at this time to know what will happen," said Spring, "because if dialogue breaks down we have very severe difficulties."

But he added: "There is a determination to set out and try to make progress in relations. If we resign ourselves to the fact that progress cannot be made it is a disastrous defeat for both sides."

Unification of the island has been a cherished national goal of the Irish Republic since it was founded, and is written into the constitution.

FitzGerald is known to favor disengaging his country from that pledge, but he governs by a narrow coalition majority, vulnerable to pressure from the nationalist opposition.

There is growing exasperation among Catholics in Northern Ireland over Britain's refusal to give the Irish Republic a say in their affairs.

"If anybody says that alienation does not exist in Northern Ireland, he's not living in the real world," said John Hume, leader of the Social Democratic and Labor Party, the largest Catholic faction in Northern Ireland.

He called Mrs. Thatcher's attitude "contemptuous and hostile."

He told a radio station anti-British feeling in his city, Londonderry, was so high that if Britain's Northern Ireland secretary, Douglas Hurd were to visit "he'll need an army of tanks to bring him in there."

Dissidents boycott PLO meeting

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization's legislative body held its second day of meetings here today despite a boycott by Syrian-backed dissidents who declared the session illegal, charging it lacked a quorum.

At the opening session, Jordan's King Hussein praised the PLO as the sole representative of Palestinians and asked it to join him in offering Israel peace in exchange for return of occupied Arab lands. Barely a decade ago Hussein expelled PLO guerrillas from Jordan in a bloody conflict.

Arafat loyalists said he mustered 257 members of the 384-seat parliament — four more than required for a quorum — and this was seen as a vote of confidence in his leadership of the PLO, which has been weakened by infighting since its fighters were expelled from southern Lebanon by Israel in 1982.

Splits in the PLO widened when Syrian-backed rebels forced Arafat and his supporters from the northern Lebanese port of Tripoli last year.

"Arafat falsified the names of representatives of the union members and popular organizations to cover up the lack of quorum," the government-controlled Syrian newspaper Tishrin charged today.

Damascus-based PNC speaker Khaled Fahoum, an independent who sided with Arafat's opponents, told a news conference in Damascus on Thursday night that the Amman meeting was "a tragedy."

He said 177 members, more than one-third, had boycotted the meeting and that no quorum was present. "This means the meeting is illegal and consequently the former PNC remains the only valid PNC," Fahoum said.

Stringent security measures caused a 50-minute delay in today's session in the Jordanian capital. All members were frisked three times by Jordanian security officers before they were allowed into the meeting hall in suburban Amman.

In Israel, a spokesman for Prime Minister Shimon Peres said today the Israeli leader does not believe the PLO will take up Hussein's appeal to try diplomacy.

"We don't believe that the PLO will accept his call to take the political path. Past experience has shown that divisions in the Arab world, including the PLO, have only sparked competition over a radical line," Uri Savir said.

Hussein told the Palestinian delegates they could join Jordan in an initiative to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict or "go it alone" with Jordan's support.

He said he believed a Jordanian-Palestinian move should be based on U.N. resolutions calling for Israel to withdraw from occupied territories and for Arab recognition of Israel's right to live within secure boundaries.

"The principle of 'territory for peace' is the landmark that should guide us to an initiative to present the world," he said.

Palestinians are a majority in Hussein's Jordan, which until the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, controlled the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Britain may join U.S. in pullout of UNESCO

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced Thursday it will join the United States in pulling out of UNESCO unless the U.N. organization makes management and budget reforms by the end of 1985.

Britain, the United States, the Netherlands and other Western nations have criticized the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization as over-politicized, badly managed and often anti-Western.

The long-expected move by Britain, one of UNESCO's founders, brought cries of protest and "Shame!" from opponents in the House of Commons when Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe announced it.

"This is a shameful decision and ... is simply following the line of the United States," said one opposition legislator, whose name was not given in a radio broadcast of the Parliament session.

The United States served notice last Dec. 28 that it would leave the Paris-based organization at the end of 1984, and all indications are that the plan will be followed although UNESCO's 51-nation executive board put a ceiling on budget growth at its October meeting.

The United States was assessed about 25 percent of UNESCO's two-year budget of $374.4 million for 1984-85, but has agreed to pay only $46.8 million for 1984.

Britain contributes 4.9 percent of the budget, or about $6.25 million annually.

"We have not been satisfied that value for money has been obtained," Howe said. "Nor were we satisfied that the developing world has been getting value from (UNESCO). We acknowledge that some progress has been made. ... But much remains to be done."

He noted that a UNESCO general conference has been scheduled for Sofia, Bulgaria, next October and he said it would "have a key part to play" in reforms.

But he added, "We cannot be confident at this stage that adequate reforms will necessarily have been made by the end of 1985 and it would be wrong not to safeguard our position."

Under UNESCO rules, a nation must give a year's notice before withdrawing.

A UNESCO spokesman in Paris, Dileep Padgaonkar, said, "We regret (the decision) all the more because it was on United Kingdom territory that the organization's founding charter was signed 39 years ago."

He said the UNESCO director-general, Amadou Mahtar M'Bow of Senegal, would reply to the British notice later.

"It is to be hoped that the government of the United Kingdom and the many British specialists who take part in UNESCO activities will continue actively to contribute to the execution of the organization's programs in the interests of international cooperation and to preserve the universal character on which UNESCO depends," Padgaonkar said.

The British move came despite strong opposition from Commonwealth nations and European Common Market member states. They argued that Britain could better achieve reform by staying in UNESCO.

The Western bloc nations, plus Japan contribute 85 percent of UNESCO's budget.

The organization was founded in 1946 to contribute to peace and security through promotion of cultural, educational and scientific collaboration among its members.

But in recent years conflict has developed between the Western bloc, which provides most of UNESCO's funds, and Third World nations that are the main beneficiaries of UNESCO aid programs.

UNESCO has also become a forum for Soviet and radical Third World initiatives on press controls, human rights issues and against Western positions on arms control.

Here are three reasons SAS makes the most comfortable shoes you can buy.

SAS® shoes are Genuine Handsewn Mocs. This design allows the shoe to take the shape of the foot.

The SAS® True-Moc construction surrounds your foot with soft, pliable leather. You actually "Walk on Leather!"

The SAS® Supersoft® Sole puts a cushion of softness between your foot and the hard ground.

- Genuine Handsewn Leather
