Stenholm drops bid for Speaker

Tip O'Neill has clear shot at fifth term as Speaker of the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas dropped his conservative challenge to Democratic Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. today, clearing the way for O'Neill's uncontested nomination to a fifth and final term as powerful leader of the House of Representatives.

"Had I made the decision to run it could very well have become a destructive situation rather than a constructive one" for the Democratic Party, Stenholm told reporters less than an hour before the party caucus called for Democrats to elect their leaders for the next two years.

Stenholm, who met with the Stenholm calls it quits.

71-year-old O'Neill on Friday, said he felt assured that conservatives would have a "voice at the table" of Democratic leaders, a step that is essential to dealing with the "deep problems in our party."

He and other conservatives have complained about their treatment in the past at the hands of party leaders, and Stenholm said that as a result of his discussions with O'Neill, there is now "an opportunity for us to work together in solving some of those problems."

He said he had met with other conservatives earlier in the day, and then telephoned O'Neill before informing reporters of his intention not to run.

Stenholm's announcement eliminated the only known obstacle to the re-nomination of the Speaker, a Massachusetts liberal who has said he intends to serve in the post for two more years.

The Democrats were preparing for the new Congress as House Republicans re-elected Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois their leader for the next two years. Michel, 61, first won his post in 1979, and was unopposed for a new term.

Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi was re-elected whip, the No. 2 job in the Republican hierarchy, while Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a potential 1988 presidential hopeful, won a new term as caucus chairman.

Stenholm said he received promises from the speaker that conservatives would be given a greater say in House decisions in the next session, including establishment of a new leadership advisory group that would include a conservative member, as well as the possibility of a new position of House deputy majority whip that could go to a conservative.

"In the past, conservatives have been underrepresented," Stenholm said. He said he still felt O'Neill was the wrong man to lead the majority party in the House but, "It was important that we change the See Stenholm page 2-A

Ex-city resident shot, killed at Tyler plant

TYLER (AP) — A Tyler city employee and former Big Spring resident was found shot to death early Sunday, shortly before a telephone caller claimed the victim had been "executed" by a secret organization, police said.

The body of John Clayton, 35, was found at 12:08 a.m. Sunday, at the southside wastewater treatment where he worked a night shift since Oct. 18, investigators said. He had been blasted twice in the lower back by a shotgun.

Police went to the site after they received a call from a woman who said that someone had been shot at the treatment plant.

"Somebody called in and reported a shooting," said Police Sgt. Eddie Clark.

About 12:40, a man called the Tyler Morning Telegraph and identified himself as a member of the United Forces of Worldwide Liberation. He told the newspaper the group was responsible for the slaying, which he called an "execution," the newspaper reported.

Big Spring municipal employees who had worked with Clayton before he moved said they had heard of the group — but did not know if he had been a member.

"He was a hard worker," said Howard Shivers Sr., who had been his supervisor.

Tom Decell, Big Spring public works director, said Clayton left the city to find a better paying job and had been reliable and ambitious.

Reading from what sounded like a prepared statement, the caller claimed that UFWL had executed Clayton because his actions had betrayed the organization, the newspaper said.

The man refused to identify himself, give an address or phone number, and would not elaborate on the organization, the Morning Telegraph said.

The FBI said it had not heard of the UFWL, the newspaper said.

1 killed in rig mishap

A 22-year-old West Odessa man was killed Saturday evening in an oil rig accident in northwest Martin County when he was trying to repair the rig, according to Martin County sheriff's deputies.

Steve Johns, 22, of Odessa was killed at 5:45 p.m. Saturday when he was struck on the head and neck with a piece of pipe on the oil rig he was trying to repair, Martin County sheriff's deputy Mike Welling said.

Johns was pronounced dead at the scene of massive head and neck injuries at 8:15 p.m. Saturday by Martin County Justice of the Peace F.E. Kennedy.

The delay in pronouncing Johns dead occurred because deputies were trying to determine whether the oil rig, which was near the county line, was in Martin or Midland County, Welling said.

The accident occurred at Tahoe Drilling Co. Rig No. 2 on the Nell Ranch in west Martin County, about 22 or 23 miles northwest of Stanton, according to Welling.

Aides seek cuts in defense spending

Reagan, senior aides turn attention to 1986 budget

Reagan evaluates budget cuts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan turned his attention again today to drafting a 1986 budget plan that leaders of Congress and his own administration insist must restrain defense spending to win support for potentially sharp cuts in popular programs.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president was meeting twice today with a dozen senior aides to go through the government's innumerable programs and come up with ways to top more than $40 billion off the $206 billion deficit projected in fiscal 1986, which starts next Oct. 1.

Speakes said that at today's first meeting, the president and his aides were continuing to look at domestic spending programs. If they get that out of the way, he said, the group may tackle the defense budget in the afternoon.

Final defense numbers probably won't be agreed on until next week, he said.

At the end of last week, there was growing support for a selective freeze to keep spending on government programs at about $830 billion, the sum projected for the current 1985 fiscal year. Not included are interest payments on the national debt, expected to run about $130 billion in 1985.

Within that hold-steady option, some programs, like Social Security and defense, would continue growing, while others would be trimmed back or perhaps scrapped altogether. Programs on the cutting board range from Medicare and Civil Service retirement benefits to urban development grants for cities and the Export-Import Bank.

Even though the president hasn't begun working on defense spending, members of Congress already are urging that the Pentagon accept a share of the budget trimming in order get the deficit down.

Indeed, they were joined on Sunday by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan who said "I do feel the Defense Department has to be part of this package and I have made these views known both to the president and to (Defense Secretary Caspar) Weinberger."

Regan, appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," said work on slashing the deficits must take precedence over overhauling the tax system, even though his department just proposed revamping the tax code.

"Deficit reduction is by far the most serious problem facing us, the administration and the Congress," said Regan, who revealed during the interview that the president had asked him to stay on in his Cabinet post.

Sen. Robert Dole, the Kansas who was just elected leader of the Senate's Republican majority, agreed. "We've got to get on with deficit reduction. It's got to be the first order of business," he said.

Dole urged tackling the deficit problem with a "freeze-plus." "We can't get there just with a freeze. We're going to have to include defense, we're going to have to zero out some programs, we're going to have to try to figure out a way to save about $200 billion over the next three fiscal years," he said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

The red ink soared to a record $195.4 billion in 1983 and was $174.3 billion in 1984.

Cyanide gas leak kills 269 in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Poisonous cyanide gas leaking from a Union Carbide insecticide plant seeped through a sleeping central Indian city during the night, leaving 269 confirmed dead, thousands injured and the death toll expected to rise.

Arjun Singh, the chief minister of the state of Madhya Pradesh, said in a radio broadcast that 269 people were confirmed dead in Bhopal, the state capital. He told reporters at least 10,000 people were injured. He said 2,000 people remained hospitalized, and 8,000 others were treated at hospitals and released.

Singh said the number of confirmed deaths was expected to climb. The United News of India said the unofficial death toll was more than 300.

UNI correspondents said bodies of men, women and children had piled up outside the main morgue in Bhopal, capital of Madhya Pradesh state, about 370 miles south of New Delhi.

Several thousand people were taken unconscious to hospitals, UNI said. Many people were found dead in their houses and many survivors fled in panic to neighboring towns after the gas leak occurred late Sunday night. Dead water buffalo and other animals lay in the streets.

Police arrested four officials of the Union Carbide plant in connection with the leak from an underground storage tank, UNI said.

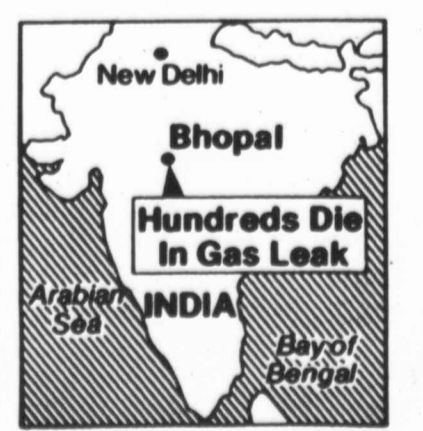

The news agency, quoting unidentified official sources, said those arrested were the assistant works manager, the production manager, the plant supervisor and another supervisor. It said the charges were not disclosed.

Police and state officials in India could not be reached for comment because telephone exchanges were engaged this morning. At Union Carbide's international headquarters in Danbury, Conn., Ed Van Den Aemele, the manager of corporate media relations, was in a meeting and unavailable to reporters, his secretary said.

The factory was closed, the leak sealed and a judicial inquiry was ordered. A team of investigators from the Central Bureau of Investigation rushed to the scene.

All government offices and schools in Bhopal were closed and markets and businesses were shut for the day.

Saga of the Swamp Man

Former alligator hunter making name as wood sculptor

SHEPHERD (AP) — Before moving to the piney woods here four years ago, he was known as the "Florida Swamp Man." A man who knew the swamps better than the alligators, he then illegally hunted or the game wardens hunted him as he deftly moved from tree houses to makeshift camps in the murky, soggy marshlands.
Today, Frank Hunter is using a chain saw to carve himself an entirely new reputation in Texas. One that has nothing to do with swamps, hunting or alligators.
In fact, about his only encounter with his old adversary — the alligator — these days comes when he meticulously chips a chain-saw sculpture of one from a tree trunk.
"It's like an automatic chisel," says Hunter, gently rubbing the sharp chain of his powerful saw.
"The hardest part is keeping my hands from going to sleep when I use it a long time. There is so much vibration. And the noise is so bad. I sometimes use ear plugs."
With an easy touch, he brushes the saw against the cheek of his half-finished sculpture of Uncle Sam. Tiny chips of wood fly into the air like snow flakes dancing in a breeze.
Oddly enough, detailing is not impossible with a chain saw. He demonstrates this as he shapes the cheek bone. He uses no other carving tools.

CHAIN SAW SCULPTOR — Chain-saw sculptor Frank Hunter's subjects range from busts of people to the alligators and Seminole Indians he came to know in Florida.

He'd always had a knack for painting and drawing. The only time he ever got decent grades in school — before dropping out in the seventh grade — was through his art.
"My science teacher used to like me to draw bugs and animals full-size in colored chalk," he recalls.
Today, he has 25 chain-saw carvings to his credit, including Indian heads, country and Western singers, birds and alligators. His alligators are the most popular, though.
A 40-year-old bearded man with collar-length hair, he has a natural affinity for the alligators. In some ways, he has more in common with these beasts, which can be traced back to prehistoric times, than he does modern society.
Hunter's treks into the swamps started when he was still in diapers. His father, a noted "big cat hunter," used to take him deep into swamplands for weeks at a time, where they lived in Indian-style huts or tree houses.
As he grew older, Hunter's favorite pastime was to go cove hunting for alligators. He would straddle a small cave, duplicate the alligator's grunting sound and then attack it with a hatchet whenever the gator jumped out.
"It was a thrill. I like the personal contact and challenge," he says. "Today, they use baited hooks to snare gators in the water. Then, when they're weak and no fight in them, they shoot them. It's like tying a deer to a fence and blasting it."
When he hunted the alligators, he avoided using his guns whenever possible. He not only liked the challenge, but he didn't want to attract that much attention.
"Game wardens used to hunt me in packs, but they only caught me once," he recalls. "Sometimes they would follow me from my home, and it would take several hours before I lost them with my air boat. I could be a few feet away from them, and they never knew it."
Hunter grew up in Immokalee, Fla., on the edge of the Big Cypress Swamp. "It was nicknamed 'the last frontier town' because it had Western-style buildings.

It became apparent that we are unable to change the coach. If you can't change the coach, you change the game plan."
Stenholm said that O'Neill "is perceived as being the cause of our federal deficits. ... The speaker, in the eyes of many, in Texas and in the South, is the problem."
Stenholm's decision provided the only semblance of suspense at a housekeeping meeting of Democrats getting ready for the formal convening next month of the new 99th Congress.
Because Democrats will command a 253-182 majority in the new House of Representatives, their nominee for speaker is automatically assured of election, meaning that O'Neill will hold onto the post he first assumed in 1977.
Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, 62, was unopposed for a fifth term as majority leader, and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri had no opposition in his bid to succeed Rep. Gillis Long of Louisiana as chairman of the party caucus. Long has served two terms, the maximum allowed by party rules.
Rep. Mary Rose Oakar of Ohio was unopposed for the post of caucus secretary, a post being vacated by Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York. Ms. Ferraro, who was Walter F. Mondale's vice presidential candidate, did not seek re-election to the House.

O'Neill and Wright were said by aides to be ready to reappoint the party's two other leaders, Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington as whip and Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas as deputy whip.
O'Neill has said he intends to step down after the two-year Congress that convenes early next year.
But Stenholm's flirtation with a challenge was a symptom of the struggles taking shape within a Democratic party that has lost four of the last five presidential elections, and has come up a minority party in the Senate three elections in a row.
"I told him our concern is that the Democratic Party must start rebuilding now," Stenholm said after his private meeting with the speaker on Friday. "The recent election shows that we must start making some drastic change in our party image, if we are going to avert another setback in the next election."

King plans for democracy

LONDON — King Fahd of Saudi Arabia reportedly is planning to establish a parliament and authorize a constitution as the first steps toward building democracy in his kingdom.

In an interview at his palace in Riyadh with the Sunday Times of London, he said he would create an assembly "within three or four months" to consult with him on the changes.

The initial members of the assembly would be appointed and would begin work later next year on drafting a constitution, Fahd was quoted as saying.

Officer killed in shooting

BASTIA, Corsica — One policeman was killed and two wounded by gunfire from a passing car in this northern Corsican city during a series of shooting and bombing incidents on the French Mediterranean island.

Stephane Swigon, 23, died of gunshot wounds in Bastia's hospital, officials said. He and two wounded fellow officers were on patrol when their police car was attacked Sunday.

On Saturday, about 1,000 Corsican nationalists attended a demonstration in Ajaccio demanding political prisoner status for protesters jailed while fighting for Corsican independence.

The rally deteriorated into clashes with police, followed throughout the night by bombings around the island and three other sniping incidents, authorities said. No one claimed responsibility for the attacks, but authorities said they were similar to past attacks by the outlawed Corsican National Liberation Front.

Leader favors amnesty

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Uruguay's president-elect, Julio Sanguinetti, reportedly plans to grant an amnesty for political prisoners jailed during the 11 years the armed forces ruled his South American nation.

The Rio magazine Veja, in an interview published Sunday, quoted Sanguinetti as saying he planned to free political prisoners arrested for opposing the country's military regime, but not left-wing guerrillas jailed before the 1973 coup.

The weekly news magazine also quoted Sanguinetti as crediting former U.S. President Jimmy Carter's human rights efforts for enabling Uruguay to hold its Nov. 25 elections, the first democratic vote since the military seized power in 1973.

Russian bishop ordained

MOSCOW — The Rev. Yuozas Preikisas was ordained a bishop in Lithuania's Roman Catholic Church at a ceremony in the ancient Lithuanian religious center of Kaunas, Tass reports.

The official Soviet news agency said the ceremony Sunday was performed by Archbishop Liudas Povilonis and drew "a large number of believers" and priests.

STRIKE SIGN — Chicago Teachers Union President Jacqueline Vaughn opens a meeting of the union's House of Delegates Sunday in Chicago.

430,000 pupils idle as teachers go on strike

CHICAGO (AP) — Negotiations broke off Sunday between teachers and the nation's third-largest school district, and the Board of Education ordered all public schools closed as the union called a strike for Monday that would idle 430,000 students and up to 40,000 employees.

"All Chicago public schools are closed until further notice," Orpen Bryan, a deputy schools superintendent, said at a news conference Sunday night as the board drew up contingency plans for the strike.

Earlier in the evening, Chicago Teachers Union President Jacqueline Vaughn announced that the strike would begin at 7:30 a.m. by 28,000 members of the union and 12,000 non-teaching union members.

"It's a tragic situation and the blame lies squarely on the backs of the members of the Chicago Board of Education," she said, reading from a statement following a meeting of the union's House of Delegates.

Picket signs were distributed to teachers Sunday, along with instructions detailing picket line duty. Picketing will begin at 7 a.m., said John Kotsakis, an aide to Ms. Vaughn.

Talks broke down early Sunday morning despite a board offer that satisfied one of the union's most pressing demands, on medical insurance. Other major issues in the dispute are pay and the school board's cost-cutting plans.

The Board of Education said it would be instructional programming Tuesday for students over a Chicago public radio station, Bryan said. He and James Maloney, another deputy superintendent, said that students had been given homework Friday and told to take their textbooks home at that time because of the possibility of a strike.

The Chicago Park District announced earlier that hours at 117 of its parks would be extended in the event of a strike in order to provide activities for idle schoolchildren, and a group called New World Christian Ministries said it would begin offering alternate school programs. Negotiations are scheduled to resume at 1 p.m. Monday, and Ms. Vaughn held out hope that a settlement could be reached quickly.

"There's a hopeful sign in that the board will be meeting with the union to continue negotiations tomorrow... and we are determined to work for a speedy resolution of this matter," said George Munoz, board president, who appeared before reporters with Bryan and Maloney. Munoz refused to answer questions.

Many delegates attending the union meeting Sunday said they believed that teachers wouldn't return to classrooms before January. But, Ms. Vaughn said, "I expect to be back very soon. I am seriously optimistic that we will be back in the classroom sooner than January."

However, she said the strike would last at least through Tuesday, even if a settlement was reached Monday.

The teachers have been working since August 31 under last year's contract.

A closed-door meeting of the school board also was planned for later Sunday night, according to a board spokesman.

Gov. James Thompson criticized the union and school board shortly before departing for the Republican Governors' Convention in Des Moines, Iowa.

"They'd better find a better way to run the school," said Thompson, whose daughter, Samantha, is a pupil in the city's school system. "The whole thing's going down the drain."

However, board negotiator Raul Villalobos said, "We gave the union an offer which they have not yet refused." He added that the board is willing to resume talks whenever the union is ready.

Guards quell disturbance

HONOLULU — Guards used tear gas to quell a disturbance by inmates who broke furniture and started a fire after officials refused to remove a 670-pound inmate who died of an apparent heart attack, a prison spokesman said.

No injuries or serious damage occurred in the six-hour disturbance Sunday in a 49-inmate dormitory at the Oahu Community Corrections Center, a medium-security facility, said Hawaii Corrections Division spokesman Chapman Lam.

Plutonium inside pipes

RICHLAND, Wash. — Officials say 10 to 13 kilograms of plutonium unaccounted for at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation is trapped inside new pipes installed at the plant before it restarted in November 1983.

The missing plutonium, one of the most toxic and long-lived radioactive elements, does not pose a danger to workers at the plutonium-uranium extraction facility or to the public, Department of Energy officials said.

Ministers' wives jailed

PITTSBURGH — Five ministers' wives, including the wife of a pastor who was jailed for refusing to relinquish his pulpit, face trespass charges after trying to enter a Lutheran church despite warnings, police said.

Nadine Roth, 33, whose husband, the Rev. D. Douglas Roth, is serving a 90-day jail term, was arrested on a charge of defiant trespass. It was the second Sunday Roth's supporters have been arrested at the church. Roth lost his pulpit because of his activities to publicize the plight of unemployed workers in the industrial Monongahela Valley.

Canker detected in trees

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Trees in eight Florida citrus nurseries that received grafts from a canker-infested grove must be destroyed, and the nurseries will be put under a 12-month quarantine, officials said.

Canker was confirmed Tuesday in a section of a nursery owned by Franklyn Ward, whose Ward's Citrus Nursery in Avon Park was destroyed when the plant-killing disease was found in late August.

Up to 1 million trees in an estimated eight other citrus nurseries across the state that were grafted with budwood from the scion block since Aug. 30, 1983, and trees within five feet, must be burned, officials said.

U.S. economy on decline

NEW YORK — The nation's economy apparently slowed in November as production and employment declined and inventory levels were unchanged, the National Association of Purchasing Management said in its monthly report.

The Purchasing Managers' Composite Index rose slightly to 52.1 percent in November from 50.8 percent in October, after dropping to 49.6 percent in September, according to the report issued Sunday.

Grenadians go to polls after 5 year absence

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Grenadians vote today to restore an elected government for the first time since a coup 5½ years ago by leftists whose rule ended with the U.S.-led invasion in October 1983.

The United States is officially neutral in the election of a 15-member Parliament, but its clear preference — and that of U.S. investors, island business leaders and pro-American allies in the Caribbean — is the moderate New National Party headed by Herbert Blaize, a 66-year-old attorney.

Among Blaize's challengers are supporters of Maurice Bishop, the pro-Cuban prime minister whose slaying in a power struggle prompted the U.S. invasion, and of Sir Eric Gairy, a proclaimed mystic and former independence leader whose use of strongarm tactics against leftist opponents led to his ouster in a 1979 coup.

Gairy, 62, was not a candidate in today's election but indicated he would lead the government if his Grenada United Labor Party captures a majority, presumably by having a winning party member step aside in his favor.

Grenadians last voted in 1976, when they elected Gairy to head their government two years after independence from Britain. He then defeated a coalition — united in its dislike for Gairy — that included Blaize and Bishop.

The United States has provided nearly $50 million in development aid since the invasion, but U.S. officials and many prominent Grenadians fear a Gairy-led government would bring back violence and instability that would scare away tourists and investors.

More than 48,000 people — all but 1,000 of the eligible voters — were registered to cast ballots, election officials said. The paper ballots will be counted by hand.

Fifty-two candidates competed for the 15 seats. Under the parliamentary system adopted from Britain, the party winning a majority of the seats will form the government.

Blaize's party was formed in August from three moderate-to-conservative parties.

The Maurice Bishop Patriotic Movement campaigned using the symbol of an airplane, referring to the new international airport here, mostly built with Cuban labor and money and recently completed with U.S. aid.

The Reagan administration had claimed that the airfield, a major project of Bishop's, could be used to accommodate Soviet fighter planes. After the invasion, Cuban advisers and workers building the airport were forced to return to Cuba.

Gairy's party campaigned under a star, to reflect the extraterrestrial interests of its leader, who advocates research into unidentified flying objects.

Apparently fearing retaliation from the leftists he repressed before the coup, Gairy, who ended self-exile in the United States in January, rarely appeared in public since his return.

Bill Ingle, an American whose recently opened toy factory employs 80 Grenadians and who reportedly contributed to Blaize's campaign, has said he will close operations if Gairy wins. Ingle said Gairy threatened him.

Members of the Grenada Hotel Association, which like most island businesses support Blaize, said they were warned during a meeting with Gairy that he will "deal with them later."

Guards kill 20 prisoners

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Army guards today killed 20 rebel prisoners trying to escape, the day after guerrilla attacks on two fishing villages left 11 people dead, the government said.

The deaths were among 194 reported since Friday in skirmishes involving rebellious Tamils.

Others slain in scattered violence across northern Sri Lanka included a Tamil rebel killed by a night watchman, an army sentry and a member of a rebel band who fired at him, one person in an unarmed but unruly crowd that marched on a fishing village and an army guard killed in the rebel prisoners' escape attempt, authorities said.

The government radio said the army guard was killed by rebels attacking an army camp in Vavuniya in an attempt to free comrades being held for suspected terrorist activities. As the prisoners tried to escape, the broadcast said, other guards opened fire, killing 20 rebels.

Tamil separatists killed 11 residents of two fishing villages populated by Sri Lanka's dominant Sinhalese community on Sunday, the government said.

People Profile

CHARLENE COOK — an employee of 7-11, 1209 11th Place

Clerk's friendliness is sunshine to customers

"It's a fun job," says Charlene Cook, 33. She's a clerk at 7-11's 1209 11th Place store. The key to her job is being friendly.

"I like being out in the public and meeting people and this is one of the best ways," she said. Her job involves "helping people in a round about way."

"Maybe they (customers) come in grumpy, and they might leave in a half-way decent mood because you joke with them and get them out of it," she says.

Ms. Cook went through special training in which she learned how to stock and order merchandise, run the cash register and greet people. She has been with the convenience store chain for six months.

When not at work, she spends her time painting, reading and bowling. She also enjoys taking care of her children Ean, 8, Michael, 5, and twins Patricia and Catisha, 14 months.

Dr. Donohue

Skin infection disturbs sweat glands

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has hidradenitis suppurativa, a skin infection. Despite his medicine there does not yet seem to be any improvement. Could you inform us about this disease? There must be something to do to clear this up or provide some relief. — D.W.

Hidradenitis suppurativa (you pronounce it hi-DRAD-en-ITE-iss sub-PURE-uh-TEE-vuh) is a most distressing condition that takes close cooperation with the doctor to resolve. Hidradenitis refers to infection — of the sweat glands — and suppurativa to the pus-producing nature of the infection. It most often affects the sweat glands under the arms. An unfortunate aspect of this infection is that it may leave scarring in one spot, then sprout in another. The infection spreads by way of abscess tunnels under the skin.

This can be a very stubborn infection. About all I can do for you is reinforce your husband's faith in his doctor's regimen. The antibacterial lotions and antibiotics by mouth are standard treatment. And I gather from your letter that these are the medicines to which you refer.

A few tips may help. If your husband is overweight he should reduce. And he should take other steps to, minimize skin chafing. Loose-fitting garments reduce chafing and permit air to get to the infected areas. Keep the skin as dry as possible. Use antiseptic solutions to clean the infected skin areas.

I hope his medicines and these steps help and that he is able to control this infection soon. If they don't help, then the doctor will consider surgery. In resistant cases, it is necessary to remove infected skin tissue. If the area is extensive, grafting may be needed. And if one area becomes hard and red, an incision may have to be made so that drainage can occur. I hope things improve soon and that surgery will not be necessary.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 11 years old. I should be getting breasts by now. I have a little, but my friends are my age too and they already have breasts. What should I do? — No name.

When you become an adult you will remember your childhood in terms of happy memories. You'll forget the concerns which now seem monumental, including the one caused by comparing your body development with that of your friends. But let me put your mind to rest.

Not everyone develops at the same time exactly. Girls develop breast buds, round buttons of tissue beneath the nipples, about two years before their first period. But those first signs of breast development can occur anywhere between 8 and 14 years. (The first period can come as late as 16 and as early as 10.) The rate of further development varies as well.

So wait patiently. Don't compare yourself with others — in brains, beauty, or breast development. You're a oneer, a one and only creation. Make the most of that.

Dear Abby

Readers say shut door to trick-or-treaters

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you. Your campaign to abolish the tradition of trick or treat on Halloween is unreal. Why deny children the fun of dressing up in costumes and going from door to door to show off and collect a few treats just because a few rowdies have abused the custom?

I usually agree with you, Abby, but this time I think you were wrong to suggest ending a cherished tradition that is second only to Christmas for some children. Please let us know how the voting went.

LOVES CHILDREN IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR LOVES: My readers voted 500-to-1 to abolish trick or treat.

Please understand, I see nothing wrong with dressing children (under 12) in costumes and sending them around the neighborhood to show off and collect a modest treat, but trick or treat has escalated to extortion by teen-age hoodlums. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for having the courage to suggest that trick or treat be abolished.

I refuse to spend my retirement money for candy or anything else kids don't need.

I'm no Scrooge, but each year on Halloween, I turn off my lights and hide upstairs, reading by flashlight until the dread hours of trick or treat are over.

W.K.H., LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for condemning trick or treat. It's high time somebody did.

A few years ago I opened my door to a band of trick-or-treaters and gave them some good apples. They took them, threw them on my lawn and started to threaten me, so I quickly shut the door and called the sheriff. I was told, "It's only a game. It's Halloween!"

The next morning my lovely white brick wall had been spray-painted red and my windows had been pelted with eggs. When I told my neighbors I was outraged, they said I was "un-American."

Please run that column every year, Abby.

S.M.F. IN COLORADO

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I agree that trick or treat should be abolished. When our children were small, we followed the crowd and went along with it. When they came home after touring the neighborhood, there would be squabbles over which sibling had the better "haul." Much of what they brought home gathered dust until Christmas. Then it was thrown out.

Each year Halloween grew increasingly repugnant to us. As you say, "It's legalized blackmail" — a poor concept to instill in children. Finally after several years of dreading Oct. 31, I thought, "Why should I go against my principles to follow the sheep?" So, instead, on Halloween we took our children to a restaurant for a festive dinner.

They never felt deprived, and I hope they respect us for holding out against a bad custom. It's a shame more parents don't put down a firm foot and behave like responsible guardians.

Distinguishing sound information difficult

You could become a victim of misinformation if you don't know much about diet and health, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

With an increasing amount of nutrition material in the media and health claims in advertisements, distinguishing sound from unsound information is difficult, says Marilyn Haggard.

Learning something about nutrition is worthwhile, she says, since misinformation can aggravate or create health problems. Diseases like diabetes or cancer can worsen if you ignore medical diagnosis and treatment in favor of a "miracle vitamin cure."

Taking large amounts of vitamins in the mistaken notion that this will improve your health can also affect medical tests, says the nutritionist. In the case of diabetes, too much vitamin C can give a false positive or a false negative on some urine tests for diagnosis and management of the disease.

Fad weight-loss diets can even lead to disease, notes Haggard. For example, it's possible to starve to death on a macrobiotic brown rice diet.

Even if misinformation doesn't directly affect your health, it may cause you to waste money on unnecessary food, gadgets and vitamins. Or you may trade good food habits for poor ones and a balanced diet for an imbalanced one, she says. "Consumers can best protect themselves by recognizing that a single diet or food can not cure health problems or guarantee weight control," says Haggard.

No scientific evidence shows that arthritis, cancer, heart disease and other chronic diseases are cured by eating specific foods, she explains. Instead, a balanced diet of meat, poultry, legumes and fish; dairy products; fruits and vegetables; and enriched or whole grain breads and cereals will provide all the nutrients anyone normally needs.

Also beware of personal testimonies and stories, says Haggard, since they are not scientific studies. When a person loses weight from eating a particular food, it does not mean the food caused the weight loss. The person may have done other things to change his lifestyle, such as increased exercises, that actually result in the weight loss.

Everyone gets tired and has occasional pains. Many causes could produce such universal symptoms. But if the cause is nutritional, it should be diagnosed by a physician who will prescribe medication if it's warranted.

Be skeptical, ask for evidence about diet or nutrition ideas and use your right to evaluate, cautions the nutritionist.

If you want to know whether a nutrition or diet book is reliable, check book reviews from the professional nutrition journals.

Wellness more than freedom from symptoms of illness

"Wellness" is much more than freedom from the symptoms of illness, says health educator Dr. Mary Ann Huessner.

"It's a way of life which requires a conscious commitment to the highest level of physical, mental, social and even spiritual development," said Huessner, a specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service home economics program.

The key to achieving wellness is self study of your lifestyle, and then an effort to reducing personal health risks, she says.

Reducing health risks generally includes the following:

- Avoiding cigarettes and drugs and following sensible drinking habits.
- Developing better eating habits to avoid both overconsumption and undernutrition.
- Increasing exercise to counter-balance today's sedentary lifestyle. As little as 15-30 minutes of vigorous exercise three times a week will help you have a healthier heart, eliminate excess weight, tone up muscles and sleep better.

• Learning to handle the inevitable stresses of daily living. Unhealthy responses to stress can cause a variety of physical and mental problems.

• Safety consciousness at home, work, school, play and on the highway. Even simple actions like buckling seat belts and keeping poisons out of the reach of children can greatly reduce safety risks.

Schroeder reported in serious condition

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder, the second person ever to receive a permanent artificial heart, says the plastic pump beating in his chest feels like "an old-time thrashing machine" but he thinks life is "fantastic."

Meanwhile, doctors announced today they have upgraded his condition from critical to serious.

In a 10-minute interview with Dr. William C. DeVries, the surgeon who performed the implant on Nov. 25, Schroeder said that he had experienced "no pain, no discomfort" with his heart.

He thanked his family and residents of his hometown for their support.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing said today that Schroeder had a great weekend, "the blahs are gone completely."

His condition was upgraded, and his heart and vital signs are stable, said Lansing, chairman and medical director of the Humana Heart Institute.

Doctors are still looking for potential signs of infection and will be for the next few days, he said.

Depending upon Schroeder's strength, they may begin a series of tests with three drugs to gauge his response to the substances. They would like to experiment with the power systems that drive the heart, increasing and decreasing the speed of blood through the circulatory system, Lansing said.

The interview was conducted at 10:30 p.m. Sunday at the Humana Heart Institute and released today by medical officials. At the time, Schroeder's heart was being powered by his 11-pound portable Heimes driver.

Before surgery, the 52-year-old Jasper, Ind., man said his heart had weakened so much that "I just could barely make it in and out of the house."

Schroeder said that he had to be helped into the hospital by his sons when he was admitted Nov. 11 and had to place his head between his legs to conserve his strength.

Asked by DeVries how the mechanical organ felt, he said, "Just like a thrashing machine — an old-time thrashing machine."

While his wife, Margaret, Dr. Peter Heimes, developer of the portable power unit, and Dr. Robert Jarvik, developer of Schroeder's mechanical heart, looked on, Schroeder said he feels well enough now that he thinks he could remove the oxygen tube running into his nose.

When Schroeder entered the Louisville hospital, he knew he had just 40 days to live.

"Since this operation I think I have 10 years," he said.

Schroeder told DeVries that he hoped one day to return to a normal lifestyle, going fishing and watching ballgames.

"My goals are just to be the same way I was when I was 40."

Schroeder spent three hours on the portable pump on Sunday — which was the second anniversary of the first artificial heart implant.

300,000 apply for residency

MIAMI (AP) — Cubans who fled their communist homeland in the 1980 Mariel boatlift can begin applying for permanent U.S. residency today, possibly opening the door for more than 300,000 relatives still on the island to follow.

Until now, about 125,000 refugees have lived in legal limbo, barred from filing for citizenship under the Cuban Adjustment Act of 1966 because Congress had hoped to pass new immigration laws.

"A vast majority of the people want to bring relatives from Cuba," said Juan Clark, a sociology professor at Miami-Dade Community College who last spring surveyed 514 randomly selected refugees here.

The Cubans came to Florida during the boatlift from the port of Mariel from April 15 to Oct. 15, 1980, after Cuban President Fidel Castro expressed his indifference to their leaving.

The Cuban Adjustment Act allows Cubans who left their Caribbean island nation after the 1959 communist revolution to eventually seek U.S. citizenship. After Congress' failure to pass new legislation, the Reagan administration allowed the "Marielitos" to apply for residency under the 1966 act.

The only refugees who will not be allowed to apply for residency are some 1,000 being held in U.S. prisons because of criminal convictions while in Cuba.

Resident status allows immigrants to bring in spouses and unmarried children. Citizenship will allow the immigration to the United States of the refugees' parents, siblings and married children and their families.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates that each refugee brings in an average of 1.5 relatives once residency status is achieved, and a similar additional number of relatives once citizenship is attained.

These estimates are based on historic immigration patterns set by Cuban exiles, said Virgil Salois, a deputy district director for the INS who is coordinating the Mariel residency application process.

If the expected arrivals conform to past patterns for Mariel refugees, most will settle in Dade County, which includes Miami, swelling the population and having a heavy impact on politics, housing and ethnic mixture.

"I figure most of them will become Republicans," said attorney Victor De Yurre, a Reagan-Bush fund-raiser. "They are Republicans like most Cubans are nowadays."

The new residents could swell voter rolls as early as the 1986 election if the INS fulfills its pledge to allow Mariel Cubans to apply for citizenship five years from the date they came to the United States, officials say.

"It will totally change the political balance" in Dade County, said Siro de Castillo, a refugee resettlement coordinator.

Dade County's population is about 1.7 million, half of it Hispanic. About 500,000 residents are of Cuban origin.

In Union City, N.J., Mariel refugees formed lines outside a chapel Sunday as social workers inside helped them.

Raiders rebound, dunk Dolphins, 45-34

By the Associated Press

Dan Marino grabbed the record. The Los Angeles Raiders grabbed the game.

The defending Super Bowl champions responded to playing a first-class opponent as they usually do — with timely defense and superb offense. The Raiders used three touchdown runs by Marcus Allen and a pair of Mike Haynes interceptions, including one he ran back 97 yards for a score, to outlast the Miami Dolphins 45-34 Sunday.

It was the fifth time in as many tries that a Tom Flores-coached Raider team has beaten a Don Shula-led Miami squad.

Marino threw four touchdown passes for Miami, which had been 6-0 at home, to set a National Football League mark for TD tosses in one season with 40. But his two mistakes which Haynes returned for a total of 151 yards and Allen's skills were too much for the Dolphins, now 12-2.

"We haven't had a great year, haven't played especially well," said Allen, who rushed for 158 yards and scores of six, 11 and 56 yards. "Regardless of how we did today, we wanted to get better, to build and improve for the playoffs."

If the Raiders manage a victory or tie in either of their two remaining games — against Detroit and Pittsburgh — they'll earn at least a wild-card berth.

Seattle and Denver took opposite routes to clinching playoff berths Sunday. The Seahawks, now tied with Miami for the AFC's best record after belting Detroit 38-17, lead the Broncos by a game in the West. Denver was upset by Kansas City 16-13 but sneaked in to at least a wild-card spot when New England was beaten 33-10 by St. Louis.

The Patriots can only make the playoffs by winning their last two games while the Raiders lose their final two.

The AFC Central tightened up because of a pair of overtime contests. Houston edged Pittsburgh 23-20 and Cincinnati beat Cleveland 20-17. The 7-7 Steelers lead the Bengals by one game.

Dallas and the New York Giants climbed back into a deadlock with Washington for the NFC East lead at 9-5. The Cowboys blitzed Philadelphia 26-10 and the Giants beat their local rivals, the Jets, 20-10. The Redskins had outscored Minnesota 31-18 Thursday night.

The Los Angeles Rams remained in the NFC wild-card hunt with a 24-21 verdict over New Orleans. San Francisco, which already has clinched the NFC West and the best overall record in the conference, finished off a perfect road season with a 35-17 win at Atlanta.

Elsewhere Sunday, it was Buffalo 21, Indianapolis 15 and Green Bay 27, Tampa Bay 14.

Tonight, Chicago — the NFC Central champion — is at San Diego.

"We will be back here," Haynes promised. "It was the type of game where we just had to keep fighting. We feel good now going into the next couple of games."

"This game pointed out more than any other why they are the best and what we have to do to be the best," said Shula. "When we needed to make the plays, we didn't make them."

Haynes got Los Angeles started with his 97-yard TD run with a Marino pass in the first quarter.

"I knew Marino would be throwing the ball a lot and we were going to be getting chances to get our hands on the ball," said Haynes.

Marino, who threw for 480 yards, recovered to hit Jimmy Cefalo with a 4-yard touchdown pass, Mark Clayton on 64 and 11-yarders and Mark Duper for nine yards.

But each time the Dolphins climbed closer, Allen came through. He clinched matters with his 56-yard dash with 1:43 to go.

"You can never rest against the Dolphins," he admitted. "We like to play the Dolphins because I enjoy playing good football teams," said Flores. "Good football teams bring out the best in good football teams."

Seahawks 38, Lions 17

Dave Krieg threw a club-record five touchdown passes to lead Seattle to its eighth consecutive victory. If the Seahawks win their final two games — against Kansas City and Denver — they will be the AFC West champs.

"It doesn't matter how you score as long as you score," said Krieg, whose 29 touchdown passes rank him second to Marino. He completed 27 of 38 passes. "Throwing five touchdown passes is something that just happens. You don't come into the dressing room thinking you can throw five touchdown passes."

Chiefs 16, Broncos 13

Rich Karlis, Denver's barefoot kicker, hit the upright with a field goal attempt in the final seconds for the second straight game. Last week, he had a chance to lift the Broncos into a tie with Seattle but hit the right upright. This time, Karlis' 42-yard boot with 10 seconds left struck the left upright and bounded away.

Nick Lowery kicked three fourth-quarter field goals for Kansas City, which snapped a four-game losing streak.

"It felt good when I kicked it," said Karlis. "When it got to about the 10, it started fading to the left and I knew it wasn't going to be any good."

"I can face myself a little bit better because I know I kicked it well this time. It just missed. Obviously, this is not something I want to become famous for."

Cardinals 33, Patriots 10

St. Louis stopped making turnovers — it had 19 in the last four games — and forced a key fumble by Craig James that linebacker Thomas Howard ran in for a touchdown in the first period. Otis Anderson rushed for 136 yards to pace the Cardinals, 8-6 and one game in back of the pack in the NFC East.

Oilers 23, Steelers 20

Joe Cooper's 30-yard field goal 6:53 into overtime as Houston handed Pittsburgh its first overtime loss ever. The Steelers are 5-1-1 in OT.

Houston won the toss for the overtime kickoff, marched 63 yards to the Steelers' 13 and Cooper — a midseason replacement for injured Florian Kempf — won it.

Bengals 20, Cleveland 17

Jim Breech's 35-yard field goal was decisive in Cincinnati's costly victory. Quarterback Turk Schonert separated his right shoulder and wide receiver Cris Collinsworth sprained his left ankle.

The Bengals forced the extra session when sub QB Boomer Esiason hit Anthony Munoz on a tackle-eligible play with one second remaining.

Giants 20, Jets 10

Cowboys JOHN DUTTON (78) and JIM JEFFCOAT celebrate a safety over grounded Eagle quarterback Joe Pisarcik.

Defense keys 26-10 Dallas win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Solid defense, a timely interception and the running of Tony Dorsett kept the Dallas Cowboys in a three-way tie for first place in the National Football League's National Conference East.

The Cowboys beat the Philadelphia Eagles 26-10 Sunday and remained even with the Washington Redskins and New York Giants. Each has a 9-5 record.

"We played awfully good defense and our kicking game was solid," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. He said the offense "didn't play good until we started to move the ball in the third period."

Dallas held the Eagles to 38 yards running and 135 passing and had seven sacks of Eagles' quarterback Joe Pisarcik, who started his first game in four years because of an injury to Ron Jaworski.

The Cowboys led 7-3 at halftime, thanks to a 38-yard touchdown return on an interception by safety Dennis Thurman, who picked off a pass intended for tight end John Spagnola.

"The quarterback thought we were playing man-to-man but we were in double coverage. The quarterback read it wrong," Thurman said.

"I knew it was six points when I caught it, because nobody was in front of me," he added. "I showed that 4.4 speed of mine and got into the end zone."

Dorsett carried 22 times for 110 yards, 99 of them coming in the second half despite his being sidelined for most of the second quarter after knocking heads with Ray Ellis.

"I saw the replay and that was just a good hit," Dorsett said. "Fortunately I was able to come back and play the second half."

The big day put Dorsett over the 1,000-yard mark for the seventh time in eight years. The only season he missed the 1,000 plus mark was 1982, the year of the strike-shortened season.

Dallas took a 7-0 lead in the first period on Thurman's interception return. The Eagles made it 7-3 in the second period after a Dorsett

Houston, Flutie no flukie: Cotton picked as top match-up

By The Associated Press
As expected, Doug Flutie got the Heisman Trophy — and an unexpected date with the University of Houston.

Boston College's 5-foot-9 1/4 inch quarterback, major-college football's all-time passing and total offense king, threw for 276 yards Saturday as the eighth-ranked Eagles wound up the regular season by pummeling Holy Cross 45-10.

BC had hoped to play Texas in the Cotton Bowl, but the 13th-ranked Longhorns lost for the third time in their last four games, bowing to Texas A&M 37-12, and wound up in the Freedom Bowl.

Meanwhile, Houston, which wasn't really in the picture until last week, had the good sense to suffer two of its four losses outside the Southwest Conference and made it to the Cotton Bowl by defeating Rice 38-26. The Cougars intend to enjoy it for a while.

"We will worry about Doug Flutie when we get to him," said Coach Bill Yeoman. "He is too good to worry about all the time. You worry about someone when you don't know what they are going to do. We know what he is going to do — just come out and play well."

Heisman's DOUG FLUTIE will color Cotton Bowl.

As the unpredictable regular season came to an end, there was one final shocker for the harried bowl committees. Eleventh-ranked Auburn was bumped out of the Sugar by losing 17-15 to Alabama. Instead, the Tigers bumbled their way into a Liberty Bowl date with Arkansas while LSU backed into the Sugar Bowl.

That drew an immediate reply from LSU Coach Bill Arnsparger, who said: "I feel like we've won it outright as it was. You never get anything given to you in football. I've been coaching for 35 years and I've never had anything given to me. I feel like our squad earned the right. We earned it every week."

The bowl lineup looks like this:
Holiday — Brigham Young-Michigan; Orange — Oklahoma-Washington; Sugar — Nebraska-LSU; Rose — Ohio State-Southern Cal; Gator — South Carolina-Oklahoma State; Cotton — Boston College-Houston; Aloha — SMU-Notre Dame; Liberty — Auburn-Arkansas; Florida Citrus — Florida State-Georgia; Freedom — Texas-Iowa; Sun — Maryland-Tennessee; Fiesta — Miami-UCLA; Bluebonnet — Texas Christian-West Virginia; Hall of Fame — Kentucky-Wisconsin; Peach — Virginia-Purdue; Cherry — Army-Michigan State; Independence — Virginia Tech-Air Force; California — Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Toledo.

Bulls look over Jordan

Chicago coach says celebrated rookie not the only hero

By the Associated Press
If the Chicago Bulls are to become winners this season, they realize they can't count on rookie Michael Jordan to be their hero every game.

The Bulls, playing their seventh road game in 10 days, got 28 points from backup guard Quintin Dailey and 23 from Orlando Woolridge, including the game-winner with 14 seconds left, to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 113-112 in a National Basketball Association game Sunday night.

"Michael is getting a lot of press and he deserves it, but we have to play together a lot more and play good against good teams," Dailey said. "There's a lot of work to do, but we're learning. The trip home will feel real good."

The Bulls finished their western trip with a 3-4 record, including a sweep of the Clippers and Lakers in Los Angeles.

In the only other NBA games, Boston bombed Cleveland 122-99 and Philadelphia edged New Jersey 114-112.

The Lakers, who got 32 points from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, led 33-25 after one quarter and extended their advantage to as many as 17 points in the second period before Chicago rallied to cut the deficit to 61-58 at halftime.

Dailey hit two jumpers to give Chicago its first lead of the fourth quarter at 111-110, but Byron Scott, who hit eight of 10 field goals and had 18 points for Los Angeles, put the Lakers back in front with a 6-footer.

Jordan, who had 20 points for the Bulls, six under his average, then missed a shot that was rebounded by Woolridge, who scored the game-winner.

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said it was Dailey who was responsible for the Chicago victory. "Dailey hurt us two or three times," he said. "He hurt us more than Jordan. Woolridge got some good rebounds, but it was Dailey that hurt us." "All I do now is go out and do my job and then go back to the bench," said Dailey, who connected on half of his 22 field-goal attempts. "It's like that commercial where that hitter sits on the bench the whole game and comes in and hits a home run."

Celtics 122
Cavaliers 99

Boston completely outclassed Cleveland in the first half to improve its record to 15-1, equalling the team's previous best start established in the 1957-58 season.

The Celtics outscored the 2-15 Cavaliers 70-42 in the first half, with Larry Bird netting 21 of his 23 points and Kevin McHale 18 of his career-high 30. Coach K.C. Jones used substitutes for most of the second half and Bird played only 21 minutes.

Roy Hinson had 24 points and 14 rebounds for the Cavaliers, who lost to Boston 110-104 in Cleveland Saturday night after leading by 15 points.

Nets 112

Philadelphia got 34 points from Moses Malone and 31 from Julius Erving, but had to hold off a late New Jersey rally to win.

The Nets trailed 96-87 with 7:30 left in the game, but they cut the deficit to one twice in the final minute. But Erving hit three of four free throws in the final 16 seconds to keep the 76ers ahead.

Otis Birdsong led New Jersey with 28 points, while Buck Williams added 25 points and 14 rebounds.

With 4:26 gone in the third period, Danny White hit Ron Springs at about the Eagles' 45 and the running back carried it into the end zone to complete a 57-yard touchdown.

After the ensuing kickoff, Dallas tackle John Dutton tackled Pizarcik in the end zone for a safety to make it 16-3.

Before the third period ended, the Cowboys drove 63 yards on 11 plays for another TD that boosted the lead to 23-3. Dorsett carried the ball on the first five plays for 35 yards. Timmy Newsome capped the drive with an 8-yard sweep into the end zone.

The Eagles drove 87-yards on six plays for their only TD of the game in the fourth period. The key play was a 36-yard pass interference call that gave them a first down at the 2. Pizarcik threw 2 yards to Vyto Kab for the score. Dallas finished its scoring with 1:51 left in the game on a 32-yard field goal by Rafael Septien.

Pizarcik completed 23 of 44 passes for 190 yards and had two interceptions. White was only 8 for 25 for 125 yards and had four interceptions. Dorsett had one interception on a halfback pass.

Lady Steers drop 3 in tournament

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring High School Lady Steers dropped all three tournament basketball games here over the weekend, but Coach Carol Niemeyer said the hoop squad "played well."

Short two senior starters who were left behind because of disciplinary reasons, the Lady Steers lost to San Angelo Lakeview 52-30 Friday night and came up short twice on Saturday, losing 71-37 to San Angelo Central and 68-53 to Lamesa.

"Considering we only had six players, we played well," Niemeyer said. "We just played as a team. That's the most important thing we're trying to learn now. "Especially when you don't have any height. That's fundamental, more than anything else."

Big Spring's Monique Jones scored in double figures in all three games in the North Angelo Lakeview Invitational Tournament.

Lakeview placed first, followed by Central and Lamesa. Four teams participated in the tournament.

The Lady Steers travel Tuesday night to Lubbock to take on Dunbar High School in an 8 p.m. non-conference tilt. Junior varsity action begins at 6:15 p.m.
