It is a well established fact that chant who advertises goes much farther than the one spent with the man who "don't b'levein advertisin." The regular constan advertiser sells more goods (and better goods usually) for a given price than does the non-advertiser, because his place of business is so much better known to the public, and he has scores of customers to his unprogressiv ive competitor's one.

Trade Prospects

The prospects of trade for the ature are always more or less of theory and whether they point to ill or good must be taken according to personal views of the prophet, yet there are signs and conditions that make and unmake trade to an extent that opinions are not only to be swayed and changed by them but render opinionsextremely which lous when they are put in ridiculous when they are put in opposition. The directions of the pre sent and immediately past trade and the tendemcies of the trade which is in the immediate future all point with unmistakable and unchangable evidence to one thing that eannot be disputed with reason-business is hardly yet on the rising crest of the great wave of prosperity and that wave is not yet within the sight of any beach on which it will of any beach on which it will break andscatter.
The base of this condition lies on the fact that the farmers of the country are now better off than they have ever been known to be. The prosperity of trade to be. The prosperity of trade depends on the agriculturist, the depends on the agriculturist, the man nearest the soil, and when he is in abundance the rest of the world is also living on the fat of the land. Grain and cotton tates have never before seen a ers and have never before seen the degree of independence that has come to the man of the soil who can pay his stuff as he goes along without having to be carried a year by the store keepers. This is especially true of the cotton districts, when it has always been the expectation and the rule to eat up and wear out the year's crop before it was picked. The pen le who are so greatly wealthy in the products or their Sarma are also the people who will spend because they have it to spend Nuse they have it to spend.
Numerous instances of this gre prosperity are being given, inprosperity are being given, indeed they sometimes seem to be repetitions of those which have already been rendered as testinony. From the grain lands of Kansas comes the story of a naional bank, founded under the last banking law, which opened fore closing time had deposits o a hundred thousands dollars, al belonging to farmers. From the cotton section of Texas come the stories of men with money in the bank who never knew before bank who never knew before what a bank book was, of colored laborers with private accounts and better yet, of the farmer ho have spent lifetimes makin, earnings tie to the last end of a ast year's debt's, but are now last year's debt's, but are now emancipated from the bonds of old customs that have kept them so long below the level of being even with life. Farmers are trying ing to loan their money at an interest half as great as that which they paid themselves a few years ago, and are unable to find takers are willing to run the risk.
These are but instances which tell of the condition and charactor of prosperity that is attached to the sons of the soil, they but the pointers which tell where and how will be the business of the months to come. They are as certain and sure in their forecasts as that night and day will follow each other. The tendency of this trade, as indicated in the course it has already taken, is of better classes and the shutting off of business in the oheaper and unsatisfactory qual il Thd unsatisfactory qual il. There is no exaggeration in the statement that the consuming trade of the country is in a better way than it has been since the country began existence, and promises more for the future. -The Drygoodsman.

Skull And Cross Bones.

Messrs. W. A. Johnson and Ira Kutch who were here last night from Scurry county said was a condition of affairs that ed a day or two ago from the Scoggin & Brown ranch. A few mornings since young Bert Brown, a son of Boley Brown, went out to the wash shelf and turned over the bowl he dised to him. On opening it and examining the contents he diskull and a cross drawing of a kull and cross bones on an ory within should leave the counould be killed.
It is not known that Bert Brown has any enemies. He land, and it is presumed that the cowardly party or parties who sent the threat are of a class of people who want possegsion of nother man's property. The ame spirit prompted the same owardly procedure a few years go, when C. Hall a cottloman of letter.
It will be noticed that in Kent here seems to be a kind of a dark ight rider element, which needs Incial attention. If they can ony be ferreted out and given sugh ed out to the gang that was nip-ned in the bud in ped in the bud in Scurry county of '98, it may serve to put them and the country on notice that no such means to ceogaire a titlo will be tolarated in an intelig at and civilized community.-Colorado Stockman.
"In the spring time when plants "re making strong and rapid be given to training them," writes Eben E. Rexford, in the March Ladies' Home Journal. "If neglected in this respect they soon get beyond control, and the only way to bring them into subjection then is by sacrificing a good deal of the growth they have made. This there is no need of doing if the training is begun in he right way and at the right ime. If a branch is inclined to utgrow ot'ers, pinch offthe end of it, and keep all such branches of it, and keep all such branches from growing, by pinching until ther tianates chance branohes have had a is not builiy and compact make it so by pinching off the end of all the beanches. Keep up this treatment until as many branchef hevo started as you thiak the slagtought to have. If you detrath It to one stalk until it reachalloe height you desire, and nip off its top and tree it to be top to form the branches at ree. If you want a shrubby plant begin the pinching process when it is small, thus forcing it to branch close to the pot. The to branch close to the pot. The old saying of 'as the twig is bent old saying of 'as the twig is bent-the tree inclines' applies pertinently to the training of plents when in their eariy siag ou un usvelopment."
