QUIET THOUGHTS.

by a Regular Reader of The Thoughts for all.

"When we are out of sympathy with the young, then I think our work in this world is over."

I have taken George McDoualds words as a subject. No truer words were ever spoken.

To the young belong the earth, the whole future and its boundless possibilities of achievement and of distinction. Happy tha man or woman who as age begins to creep on and old friends to disappear, is ever ready to bestow needed love and sympathy on the young to enter with fresh interest and zest into the hopes and plans of a new generation. By this means alone can one be est day of all the week, children saved from relapsing into the fatal lethargy physical and mental, which is the foreruner of certain decay. It will be difficult to do this however, unless stimulated thereto by association with yonger persons whose eager ness to learn from the experience of their elders will supply the desired impulse and whose regard will amply reward our efforts. young and wild I remember one How many homes are there from which ,laughter and youthful merry making are sternly excluded by the selfishness of a father or mother who has no symppathy began whistling when in dashed with youths natural cravings the land ady and said: I dont mind for pleasure and change?
