Q. While watching the playoffs, I noticed the Miami Dolphins had the number "20" on their helmets and the Chicago Bears have the initials "GSH" on their shirtsleeves.

Why? A. Both the Dolphins and the Bears are wearing the symbols to remind them of deaths - in the Dolphins' case, of a teammate, and in the Bears', a former coach and owner, George Halas. Halas also founded the National Football

The Dolphins' former halfback, David Overstreet, died during offseason in a car wreck. He played at Oklahoma University and at Big Sandy High School in Texas.

Spring Shultz, Gromyko resume talks

GEORGE SHULTZ

U.S. officials hush on first round talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today began a second round of talks on resuming arms negotiations, after an extended opening meeting that lasted into early afternoon.

A splokesman at the U.S. diplomatic mission said the first Shultz-Gromyko session, in the Soviet mission, ran from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. — an hour longer than scheduled. The second meeting, this time in the U.S. mission, began he could give no details of the first meeting Monday. The talks represent the first direct U.S.-Soviet dialogue on the arms reduction issue since late 1983.

Gromyko arrived at the American mission in a grey Mercedes limousine flying the Soviet flag. His car was escorted by a Swiss police car with gun muzzles protruding from the

The cars negotiated around green crash barriers in front of the heavily protected U.S. mission just beyond the Geneva city limits.

Gromyko, hatless, wore a grey top coat. He was greeted by Arthur Hartman, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, and by Paul Nitze, arms negotiation adviser to Shultz. A light snow was falling.

The Soviet foreign minister smiled and waved to newsmen as he entered the U.S. mission. Then, during a two-minute session for photographers, Gromyko and Shultz engaged in an animated conversation punctuated by laughter.

Someone asked Gromyko, who was carrying a writing pad, "Have you got that in your notes?" Gromyko tore off a sheet of paper

This reporter slipped into Ampil at 10 a.m. and watched panicky guerrillas shout "There are tanks coming!" and then run away hollering "Let's go, let's go!, when armor broke through Ampil's three outer defense rings and plunged into the heart of the tion Front headquarters.

At least 20 guerrillas were killed, part of the base was destroyed and some of it was occupied by the Vietnamese, who seemed to have the upper hand after a day of fighting, said intelligence sources in the Thai army's Eastern Task Force.

Front officers interviewed in the Thai village of Ban Sangae, directly across the border from the battlefield, said about half the camp was seized.

About 5,000 non-communist guer rillas were defending Ampil.

The Vietnamese laid down a big artillery barrage and then launched the assault, spearheaded by tanks, Thai officers said. More tanks — as many as 20 by some accounts - were in action today than on any other single day in six years of fighting on the Thai-Cambodian

From neighboring Thailand, the Thai military has been monitoring fighting between the Cambodian resistance forces and Vietnamese occupation forces.

The strike at Ampil was expected, since the Vietnamese were celebrating the sixth anniversary of capturing Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. The Vietnamese, who are Soviet-allied, invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and drove the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge regime out of Phnom Penh on Jan. 7, 1979

Maj. Gen. Salya Sriphen, Thai Eastern Force commander, told reporters that the Ampil defenders destroyed three of the Sovietsupplied T-54 tanks and two M-113 armored personnel carriers condition of anonymity, said some guerrillas pulled out of Ampil, at least briefly, to seek safety near an anti-tank ditch on the Thai side of the border. Several ran from the tanks faster than three fleeing reporters.

Salya said the Liberation Front reported it had offered stiff resistance in blunting the initial Vietnamese push.

Thai army units were dug in across the frontier and more than 4,400 Thai civilians were evacuated from the area as stray shells landed across the border. Four Thai troops were wounded by fragments from the strays, Salya said.

The International Committee of the Red Cross reported at Ban Sangae that 22 wounded Cambodians from Ampil had been evacuated into Thailand and rushed to the Red Cross border hospital

Minister defends S. Africa in conference with Kennedy

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)
- Sen. Edward M. Kennedy met today with Foreign Minister R.F. Botha, who said later he defended his white-ruled nation's policies and didn't agree with Kennedy about anything.

"It would be naive ever to expect me and Senator Kennedy to reach common ground. He cannot even reach common ground with the Republicans in the United States, and the Republicans are to the left of us," Botha told reporters.

Kennedy, a Massachusetts Democrat who arrived Saturday on a fact-finding mission about the status of the black majority in South Africa, did not talk to reporters after meeting Botha in a government guest house in suburban Pretoria

He left with his entourage for an impoverished black village whose inhabitants are to be forcibly moved under South Africa's policy of dividing the country into "white," "black" and "brown" areas according to the color of one's skin.

"I told him in so many words that we do not agree, and he sees things differently from us, and that's it," said Botha

"I said to him the South African government is against the forceful removal of people. But that must not be confused with removals that must take place, whether they are whites or blacks, for hygienic and medical reasons. There is a difference. No government can forever say that it will allow squatting in an uncontrolled way in their country, just as the Americans would not allow it anywhere in

Of the millions of South Africans forced off their land under the segregation policy known as

Kennedy is touring South Africa as the guest of Bishop Desmond Tutu, a black who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for speaking out against apartheid, and the Rev. Allan Boesak, a mixed-race clergyman who heads the World Alliance of Reformed Churches.

An editorial comment by the government-controlled South African Broadcasting Corp. said Kennedy was touring South Africa as part of groundwork for a run for the U.S. presidency in 1988.

The pro-government Citizen newspaper, under the headline "Anti-K," editorialized that, Senator Kennedy, a leading liberal, is totally opposed to this country in the blinkered manner of many other liberals.

Kennedy, on his arrival from New York, was greeted at Jan-Smuts Airport by black-nationalists shouting "Go home, Kennedy." They said Kennedy's visit turned their fight against apartheid into a tourist attraction, and they wanted no help from what they called an imperialist nation.

RESERVE ADDITIONS VS. PRODUCTION

Oil boom hurting the '80s

Staff Writer

The drilling boom of the late 1970s is catching up today in terms of reserves, according to economists with the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA).

According to the Department of Energy, new crude oil reserves umped over 1.5 billion barrels during 1983. Deborah Rowell of the PAA said the reserves are a reflection of oilpatch activity in the late 1970s and the figures prove that there is a long lead time between discovery of a well and actual production.

"It has taken this long for the drilling boom in the late 1970s to translate into additional reserves," Ms. Rowell said. "It is imperative that policy makers recognize this long lead time when acting on issues involving America's energy security. Ms. Rowell said, "about one-fifth of crude oil reserve capacity is reported at the time of discovery. It then takes roughly five more years before the remaining reserves can be verified through development

Police transfer rape suspect

An 18-year-old Watseka, Ill., man she was assaulted by a man she wanted on Illinois warrants for aggravated sexual assault and homicide Sunday morning was transferred from the Big Spring city jail to the custody of sheriff's deputies from Iroquois County in Illinois.

Big Spring Police arrested 11 p.m. Saturday and midnight Treece Thursday in an apartment Sunday, Susie Kinman of 1002 N. in Big Spring after receiving an Main told police. anonymous tip from Crime

Treece and another Watseka man already in custody in Iroquois County - 25-year-old William Braid - are accused of breaking into a neighbor's home in Watseka. abducting a 15-year-old girl, Jessica Hosick, raping her at Treece's apartment and again in a wooded area and fatally shooting

According to Iroquois County authorities, Treece allegedly shot Miss Hosick four times in the head Dec. 26 and left her to die in a wooded spot near Onarga, III.

Big Spring police Lt. Jerry Edwards said local authorities do not have any warrants on Treece or suspect him of committing any crimes in the Big Spring-Howard County area.

Treece arrived in Big Spring last Monday to visit his brother, who lives in town, but was not arrested at his brother's house, according to Edwards.

Then Shultz picked up the banter, describing how a labor arbitrator he once knew "would write furiously on the right hand side of his note pad and every once in while make notes on the left hand side."

Both sides have made it clear that the two-day meeting here is likely to set the foreign policy tone for President Reagan's second term, and the outcome of the talks could affect the entire range of U.S. Soviet relations.

Yet they ventured no predictions of success. At best, Shultz hopes to reach agreement with Gromyko on a schedule for the two sides to negotiate after their discussions end Tuesday. 'These are not talks to negotiate

Ms. Rowell said natural gas reserves are exactly the opposite. "The majority of gas reserves are reported initially with the remaining added in subsequent years. The drop in gas reserve additions that began in 1981 is fairly indicative of the decline in gas well drilling since then.'

Council to consider contracts

members will consider approval of three contracts with the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce to fund the chamber's Tourist and Convention Bureau at their 6:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting at City Hall.

The contract would provide funds to the chamber to be used for promotional advertising of the city and attracting conventions to town. The money also would be used to attract tourists by partially funding and promoting the arts in the city and to promote the city as a site for industry. Under the contract, the city would turn over one-half the amount of the hotel-motel tax collected, usually $120,000, according to City Secretary and Finance Director Tom Ferguson.

SAN FRANCISCO — A foul-up that voided laws against selling the drug PCP, or "angel dust," should have little impact as long as prosecutors rely on statutes not affected by the errors, anassistant attorney general said.

A one-letter mistake in a revision of state drug laws accidentally invalidated statutes against selling or manufacturing PCP, or phencyclidine, when it went interested Jan. 1.

U.S. production takes dip

NEW YORK — A decline in the nation's production last month showed that the November increase was an anomaly in a continuing downward trend, according to the National Association of Purchasing Managers.

The economy "shows no immediate sign of improving," said Robert J. Bretz of Pitney Bowes Inc., chairman of the association's business survey committee.

20,000 turn out for gala

PHILADELPHIA — Themes in the Mummers New Years Day Parade ranged from classics like "Cleopatra Arrives in Rome" to the hit movie "Ghostbusters" as an estimated 20,000 people turned out for the twice-delayed event

Members of the 56 organizations that make up the Mummers filled 2.5 miles of the city's main street Sunday with pomp and partying, sporting colorful costumes as they marched down the route with their distinctive strut.

Relief agency halts airlift of Ethiopian Jews

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The airlift of thousands of Jews from drought-stricken Ethiopian has been halted, a relief agency official says, but efforts were under way to-day to resume evacuation of the estimated 10,000 Jews remaining there.

A spokesman for the independent Jewish Agency, which was helping the Israeli government resettle the Ethiopian Jews, said Sunday that a refugee flight scheduled for the weekend had been canceled.

Shafer Stollman, the spokesman, said the Ethiopian government, which is Marxist and which broke relations with Israel after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, was upset over premature publicity and ordered the flights halted.

But another Jewish Agency spokesman, Zvi Eyal, said Sunday that European airline companies, which he declined to name, offered to help bring the remaining Ethiopian Jews to Israel. He estimated that in addition to 10,000 Jews left in the northeast African nation about 4,000 more were in refugee camps in Sudan.

The Times of London today reported diplomatic speculation in Israel that "some military style operation" may be mounted to rescue at least those Jews stuck in refugee camps in the Sudan.

London's Daily Mirror reported today that Israel had begun to fly transport planes to makeshift dirt airstrips in northern Ethiopia to take out the remaining Jews. That report was unconfirmed.

report was unconfirmed.

A Belgian charter company, Trans European Airways, said Saturday it was terminating its flights to pick up the Jews. Belgium's transport minister said about 7,000 Ethiopians had been flown to Israel from Sudan on a total of 35 flights since November.

Sudan's government has said it was not involved in the airlift in any way.

Refugees in Israel and political leaders from both the left and the right said premature publication of news of the mission had led to its cancellation, and angry Ethiopian Jews called the publicity a "conspiracy" to halt the sudden influx of immigrants.

The immigrants have been sent to more than a dozen Israeli cities and downs. Israeli newspapers have said some communities resisted the immigrants' arrival, considering them backward.

The mission was well known among journalists in Israel for more than a month, but the Israeli military censor banned its publication.

Opposition legislators said that when the parliament

meets on Wednesday they will seek no-confidence motions to try to tumble the government for its part in revealing the mission.

Reporting in Tel Aviv on the controversy over the publicity, the Maariv newspaper said too many people knew about Operation Moses, as the airlifts have been called, before word of it was leaked to the public.

The news leak began abroad when Jewish Agency chairman Aryeh Dulzin asked American Jews in New York state on Nov. 20 to help raise $100 million for a special operation to settle the Jews in Israel.

"Although I am not free to discuss this subject in public, I am free to tell you that the Jewish Agency is prepared for a sudden jump in immigration. One of the oldest of Jewish tribes is about to return to its homeland," Maariv quoted Dulzin as saying in New York last November.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A former French Cabinet minister who spent nine days in Afghanistan with rebels fighting the Soviet-backed Marxist government says Western countries should step up arms supplies to the guerrillas.

Jean-Francois Deniau, at at a news conference Sunday, said he entered Afghanistan secretly on Dec. 27. Most Westerners are barred from traveling there.

"More weapons, a greater unity among insurgents and international awareness of the Afghan situation are the three essential elements needed to force the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan," Deniau said.

7 killed in train collision

CALPULALPAN, Mexico — Seven people were killed and 182 injured when a passenger train derailed on a curve near here, authorities said.

Two U.S. citizens and one Briton were among the injured, the U.S. Embassy reported Sunday. It did not identify them, but said none was seriously hurt.

PEKING — China will concentrate its capital budget on 169 key projects in 1985, with a strong emphasis on energy, the State Planning Commission announced today.

The official Xinhua news agency, which reported the announcement, gave no expenditure figures. China's capital construction budget for 1984 was equivalent to $15.7 billion.

Pope consecrates bishops

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II consecrated seven new bishops from Africa, Europe and Latin America during a special Mass to mark the Roman Catholic feast day of the Epiphany.

More than 10,000 people weathered heavy snow to watch the pope ordain the bishops, one of whom was from John Paul's native Poland. Assisting the pontiff during the ceremony was Polish Archbishop Andrzej Maria Deskur, a longtime friend of John Paul.

The pope consecrated Monsignor Kazimierz Gorny as titular bishop of Pertusa, Poland, and as auxiliary bishop of Krakow.

Marijuana growers hit jackpot

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. marijuana growers, for the first time filling more than half the nation's demand, harvested a record $16.6 billion worth of pot in 1964, according to the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws

The estimated domestic harvest was worth 20 percent more than the 1983 crop and continued to make marijuana America's second most valuable agricultural product, NORML said in its annual cultivation report

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that the nation's corn crop last year was worth $19.5 billion, followed by hay at $11.5 billion and soybeans at $11.3 bill.on. Last year, the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control estimated marijuana could be worth from $10 billion to $50 billion a year in the United States.

Illegal domestic pot farmers raised about 11 million pounds in 1984, or 55 percent of the 20-millionpound total amount available to the 30 million or more Americans using marijuana on a regular basis, according to NORML.

The group, which advocates legalization of marijuana, said that in 1983, U.S. grown marijuana accounted for about half the pot available in this country.

The organization said it based its figures on published reports, news articles, personal interviews and law enforcement estimates and reports.

NORML said about threequarters of the 1984 domestic crop was sinsemilla — specially cultivated seedless plants that have a higher potency and bring growers about $1,850 a pound, compared to $500 a pound for regular plants.

"The two most notable trends emerging in 1984 are an increase in indoor marijuana growing and personal-use growing," the report said. "Marijuana consumers are smoking less, consuming better quality marijuana than in the past and paying higher prices for domestically grown marijuana."

NORML said U.S growers are benefiting from reduced pot imports, especially from Colombia, where cocaine is a more profitable drug.

The report estimated that 25 percent of all U.S. marijuana is produced indoors under plant lights by some 200,000 commercial growers and an estimated 4 million people who cultivate it for personal use in basements and closets.

"Indoor growing has become highly sophisticated and technological," said the NORML report, prepared by Joanne C. Gampel, director of the Council on Marijuana and Health.

While the number of indoor commercial growers remained stable in 1984, the personal-use growers grew by one-third last year as a response to law enforcement efforts and the rising street price of not according to the report.

pot, according to the report.

NORML said threats by law enforcement agencies to spray outdoor crops with herbicides such as paraquat helped foster so-called personal "victory gardens" that produce from four ounces to two pounds of pot a year.

The growing trend toward indoor pot farming is making detection far more difficult for local police and federal drug agents, NORML said

NORML said its findings "indicate the futility of marijuana enforcement. It is virtually impossible to control this market, just as it was impossible to control moonshining during alcohol Prohibition."

A California Court of Appeal decided recently that William Bartling had the constitutional right to refuse medical life support, and this sensible ruling should spare other terminally ill patients the indignity of being connected to machines against

To be sure, there is danger whenever society sanctions the death of terminally ill patients, particularly if it's remotely possible that a cure could be discovered for their disease. Also, it is conceivable that a patient might be pressured into such a decision by relatives impatient for their inheritance.

But neither was the case with Mr. Bartling. The 70-year-old man was forcibly kept on a respirator for six agonizing months at Glendale Adventist Medical Center in Glendale, Calif., even though he repeatedly directed the doctors to disconnect nim. Moreover, Mr. Bartling, who suffered from emphysema, arteriosclerosis, a malignant lung tumor, chronic respiratory failure, and an abdominal aneurysm, had signed a living will and other documents ordering that the treatment cease. Yet a superior judge rejected his pleas, and he remained on a respirator until his death Nov. 6, the day before the appellate court agreed to hear his case.

Although we are confident that the hospital officials acted in good faith, believing they had a responsibility to preserve Mr. Bartling's life, they nonetheless prolonged his suffering. And that is the crux of this or any other case involving a patient with an incurable disease.

The wonders of modern medical technology should be used to improve — not diminish — the quality of a patient's life. And when a lucid individual determines that his life has become intolerable on an artificial-support system, he should have the right to be disconnected.

Evidence links CIA, drugs

WASHINGTON - A former CIA agent, who is under indictment for fraud and perjury, claims a superior asked him to take part in a CIA-sponsored drug-smuggling operation. The ex-agent, Ronald Ray Rewald, told confidants that when he declined, the CIA dropped the matter.

Rewald's charge is the latest in a spate of reports dating back to the 1970s that the CIA has been involved in international drug trafficking. It also raised new questions about an Australian bank scandal four years ago that cost investors millions of dollars.

The Australian bank, Nugan Hand Ltd., was run by former CIA and U.S. military officers. It served as a "laundry" for illicit heroin and arms syn dicates, which it also helped to finance. The bank collapsed following the apparent suicide of its cofounder, Australian entrepreneur Frank Nugan in Rewald's accusation of CIA drug trafficking turned in in the course of an investigation by my Hawaiian investment firm that Rewald headed Bishop, Baldwin, Rewald, Dillingham & Wong.

Rewald insists that the CIA has acknowledged only low-level involvement with BBRD&W, and categorically denies any involvement in the drug

A business card of a former CIA director was in Nugan's pocket when his body was found. His partner, Michael Hand, and several members of the bank's board had ties to the CIA. Yet the agency vehemently denied any connection with the bank after I sent Van Atta to Australia to investigate reports of CIA ties.

The parallels between Nugan Hand Ltd. and BBRD&W are striking. For example, Nugan Hand, with 22 offices around the world, offered investors atleast a 15 percent return on their money — high for the 1970s. BBRD&W had 16 offices in various countries and - reflecting the higher interest rate of more recent years — offered investors a generous 20 nercent return

Like Nugan Hand, Rewarld's investment firm was hip-deep in active or retired CIA employees. My staff has identified at least 17 BBRD&W employees who were CIA agents, a dozen other CIA employees and officials who had contact with the firm, plus a dozen more CIA-related individuals who invested a total of at least $890,000 in BBRD&W.

In fact, several sources close to the Rewald case have suggested that his Honolulu investment company was being specifically groomed to take over Nugan Hand's role in CIA operations throughout the Pacific basin. Rewald told his attorneys it was around 1980, when the Australian bank collapsed that the CIA began expanding its operations with his ill-starred company. "The way we set up our opera-tion is the way they (Nugan Hand) set up their operation," Rewald said.

It was in 1982, to the best of Rewald's recollection, that he was approached by a senior CIA official and asked if he would help in a CIA drug-smuggling operation. He remembers being told that something in Australia "had fallen through," and that BBRD&W was "needed to take over an operation that had failed."

When Rewald told the CIA official he had no one in his firm with experience in drug operations, the CIA man contradicted him and named a BBRD&W employee who had been a longtime CIA contract agent active in Southeast Asia. Rewald still declined the drug assignment, and "things were not forced on me," he said.

purge the company's files of CIA references.

"They were very, very concerned that we were involved in cocaine or heroin trafficking for the agency," Rewald recalled. "And when we went through our files, I was very, very concerned and I told them we weren't. ... When they got done, they realized that

Before the CIA's ambitious expansion hopes for BBRD&W could be implemented, a Hawaiian television station ran a financial expose of Rewald and his company. Staying in a Honolulu hotel room under a false name, Rewald watched the show, then slashed

My first job in journalism

By CHARLIE ALCORN Big Spring. The West Texas

Never in my wildest dreams of gainful employment did I ever once consider the prospect of landing my first job in such an unusual location. As far as I was concerned the only place to start a career in journalism was somewhere romantic like New York City or Los Angeles

What a cozy place the journalism library at Washington and Lee University was, the perfect place to dream about a fabulous career in journalism. One full of intrigue and headlines. As I would peruse through various national magazines such as Time and Rolling Stone, dreams of free lance assignments would rare through my head.

I pursued my dream of writing for a large magazine with great zeal, going to several interviews in New York only to be shot down time and again by the same line, "son, how do you expect to get a job on this magazine with a B.A. in Geology and no experience other than a few assignments with the Ring tum-Phi" (Washington and Lee's school rag).

Yes, reality set in fairly quickly after a few recitals of that line and I decided that I better restrict my job search to more familiar territory, like South Texas.

Finally, after deciding that there was no way that anybody was going to hire an aspiring journalist with a geology degree, I went to the University of Texas School of Journalism to apply for graduate school. When I went up to the office where the applications were kept I spotted a job opening bulletin board for the graduates who would be getting out in December.

And there it was, an opening for sports writer at the Big Spring Herald just waiting for some master's degree holder to come and grab. Fortunately for me it was still two weeks from graduation and after consulting my Texas state road map I decided I better get on out to Big Spring, pronto. Naturally I fell in love with the town, people and Herald (the fact that it was 70 degrees in the middle of December may have had something to do with it).

It's a long way from New York City (or any place else for that matter) and I could not be happier, smack in the middle of the West Texas Crossroads.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Insight

Political money can buy anything

By PHILLIP SWANN WASHINGTON - If you plan on making a contribution to your congressman's next campaign, beware that he may use it to buy Christmas gifts for his colleagues or perhaps even fatten his bank account.

In theory, a candidate can spend campaign funds for "only bonafide campaign puroses," according to House rules. However, the House rarely acts on a violation of the rules, leaving it to the member to define,

In 1984, bonafide campaign purposes included the purchase of editorial cartoons (Sen. John Tower); paying personal legal fees (Rep. Charles Wilson); and financing a staff member's business trip to West Germany (Rep. Marvin Leath).

What's more, a member elected before 1980 can pocket any money left in his campaign when he leaves office. In 1980, Congress passed a bill prohibiting a departing member from converting leftover

if that's the way he wanted to spend the For example, former representative Jack Hightower, the Vernon Democrat who was first elected in 1974, can keep approximately $30,000 left over from his losing campaign against Republican Beau Boulter. However, Hightower says he will not pocket the money. He will leave it in his campaign committee in case he decides to run again in Any member in office before 1980 could raise a million dollars, retire and buy a lifetime pass to the Club Med in the Bahamas.

A cynical person could argue that the 1980 exemption might encourage a congressman to lose on purpose.

Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., finished his 1984 campaign with a surplus of $269,529. However, Minish raised more than $80,000 in the last few weeks of his race. And, according to some contributors, his aides begged for

An 11-term congressman, he lost by 12 percentage points.
At first, Minish refused to say what he would do with the cash, but a spokesman acknowledged that he was considering keeping it.

"Whatever he does, it will be legal," the spokesman said. After several contributors to his campaign expressed their displeasure, the congressman said he would try to refund the money. Most congressmen seem to regard a camed $50 to buy a wedding gift for Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, according to a campaign finance report.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, the Hunt Republican who did not have a serious re-election opponent this year, used part of his $400,000 surplus to make several $1,000 contributions to GOP congressional candidates.

This was perfectly legal. And for Loeffler, a member of the House Republican leadership, it was good politics.

But did Clayton Jackson of Kerrville, who contributed $20 to Loeffler's campaign, make the donation so he could turn around and give it to some candidate in Illinois?

What if Jackson didn't support that candidate?

ON ANOTHER MATTER: As the new Texas congressional delegation gathered in Washington on the eve of being sworn into office, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth broke with tradition and invited Republicans to join Democrats in what has been a traditional Wednesday luncheon gathering of House Democrats.

With 10 Republicans now part of the 27-member House delegation, senior GOP members are aiming to make the Wednesday luncheon sessions bi-partisan. Does the invitation to Republicans last week amount to opening up the sessions to all Texas House

Not necessarily, several Democratic sources believe. "We'll have to take it one day at a time," an aide to Wright said of the effort to bring Republicans and Democrats together over lunch in the Capitol.

If parents are really that hard up, I can see asking their children to help out once in a while, but as for charging them room and board, like I say, Abby, I think that stinks. FURIOUS IN DALLAS

DEAR FURIOUS: Read on: DEAR ABBY: Concerning how much grown, employed children should pay for living at home: Regardless of whether the parents need the money or not, their children need to learn responsibility. Furthermore, parents who allow their children to live at home for free are teaching their children to be irresponsible.

I've seen grown children live at home for years, spending their earned money only on things to pamper themselves. Consequently they never learn how to deal with responsibility in the real world.

How can parents not see this? CONCERNED IN ARIZONA DEAR CONCERNED: Many parents (consciously or unconsciously) provide their grown children with all the comforts of home indefinitely for free as a way to keep them from trying their wings and leaving the nest.

So what may appear to be generosity is in reality a holding

My boss is a fine man and we get along well in the office, but whatever gave him the idea that lunching with him is some sort of "gift" is beyond me. Rather than a gift, it is actually a tense hour during which I must pretend to be totally engrossed in what he has to say (always about himself) and thank him yet for the privilege of being a one-woman audience for his boring monologue.

I make a good salary and lunching out is no big deal for me. (I do it every day.) His company is nothing special either. I see him eight hours a day, five days a week.

I can think of no way to decline his invitation without causing hard feelings. Perhaps a word in your column would wise up my egomaniacal boss — and others aboutit. - L.M. The trachea is the windpipe. You can feel it in your neck, a solid tube right in the middle of the throat. The esophagus is the swallowing tube that transports food to the stomach. It lies behind the

Although both of these structures arise during fetal development from the same tissue, they normally, of course, are separated along their lengths. But in rare occurrences they may sort of merge, with a tunnel (fistula) connecting them - a tracheo-esophageal

Prompt surgical correction is, of course, essential. Otherwise food swallowed can get into the wind-pipe and into the lungs, a very serious condition. And often another problem, an incomplete formation of the eophagus, may exist along with the fistula. The esophagus may not connect to the stomach. That can be a fatal

So both problems must be corrected. It appears from your letter that your daughter is in good

Today, surgery is usually successful in correcting these developmental errors by closing the fistula and reconnecting the esophagus to the stomach (if that problem is present). Some children may have a regurgitation problem, as food refluxes from the stomach into the esophagus. It's similar to heartburn in adults.

You should stay in close touch with your doctors and let them know of your baby's symptoms. They can check them out first hand. He may advise a thickening

In most cases, the symptoms of asthma (spasmodic narrowing of the breathing tubes) are pretty diagnostic - the breathing difficulty, coughing, etc. That's especially true when this has been a consistent pattern of such symptoms over

It is necessary to turn to laboratory tests if there is some question of another respiratory ailment involved. And testing may be used to determine the cause of the asthma, for example a specific Spirometric tests to measure lung function help confirm the problem and its severity. And in what is called a "challenge" test, a drug (methacholine) is inhaled in small amounts. If the patient does not respond with asthma symptoms (passage narrowing) asthma can be ruled out. But diagnosing the basic asthma problem can usually be done by observing the patient during an attack.

Matchmaker Woman helps adopted children find biological parents By BRENDAN RILEY

Associated Press Writer CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) Some were parted by war, others by the stigma of out-ofwedlock pregnancy. But 1,200 of those adopted children have been reunited with their biological parents by Emma May Vilardi, who has 25,000 more people waiting "for a face resembling their own. 'The most frequent reaction is that they feel free for the first time, and feel like a great weight has been lifted from them," said Mrs. Vilardi, a former municipal historian from New Jersey who has been matching children with their natural mothers for a decade.

Mrs. Vilardi, 62, runs the International Soundex Reunion Registry, and she contacts agencies worldwide for help. She charges no fees, but accepts

"I've been accused of being a do-gooder, but I believe everyone has equal rights. And I feel denial of genetic and biological information is a denial of a person's own heritage and own self-identity, said Mrs. Vilardi, who has a 41-year-old son.

Most people who seek Mrs. Vilardi's help were given up for adoption as infants. Some come from families split up by divorce, institutionalization.

Mrs. Vilardi tries to match background information supplied by the applicant with her reference material. Until recently, she did it all manually. Now she is beginning to use a computer, but, to protect confidentiality, she never places names in the computer.

Sometimes adopted children and their mothers simultaneously seek help from Mrs. Vilardi. When the background check reveals strikingly similar information, the

Mrs. Vilardi got into the registry work by helping senior citizens who were having trouble getting Social Security benefits due to inadequate birth records. Her own mother, who was adopted, had a similar problem.

Her mother, who was orphaned at the age of four, didn't have any interest in discovering who her natural parents were until she was ready to retire in her 60s. Mrs. Vilardi said her mother's pension was held up, because she couldn't prove she was a citizen.

"I had offered for many years to help her find out who her natural parents were, but she said no. Then it became imperative for her to find out. So we were able to accomplish that also," said Mrs. Vilardi, who

Mrs. Vilardi's interest in genealogy is not new. She was town historian for 17 years in Kearny, N.J, and has done research for the state of New Jersey and the U.S Civil War Centennial Commission, helping to locate battlefields and other places of historic importance.

Last year, Mrs. Vilardi picked up 10,187 registrations by adopted children and parents looking for their offspring, and she made more than 125 matches.

Although there are many happy endings, Mrs. Vilardi also encounters a great deal of pain.

Lebanon, Israel return to bargaining table

NAQOURA, Lebanon (AP) -The Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal talks resumed today after a holiday recess with both sides holding to the positions that have stalled the negotiations for Military negotiators of the two nations met for the 12th time since Nov. 8 at the heavily guarded headquarters of the United Nations peacekeeping force in this ebanese border town.

Lebanon's chief negotiator, Maj. Gen. Mohammed Hajj, was asked before the start of the meeting whether he was bringing any new proposals to the talks, which recessed on Dec. 20.

In reply, Hajj referred to a speech Sunday by Lebanese President Amin Gemayel reiterating his rejection of Israeli demands to deploy U.N. troops deeper inside Lebanese territory once Israel's 20,000 troops are withdrawn from south Lebanon.

Israeli chief negotiator Brig. Amos Gilboa, asked whether the Israeli delegation would walk out of the talks if the Lebanese position did not change, said: "We will be obliged to consider whether there is any purpose to continue the

The Israeli newspaper Haaretz quoted unnamed Israeli sources as saying that if no progress is made at the talks today, Israel will refuse to set a date for the next meeting.

Haaretz quoted the same sources as saying Israel would then consider the talks "frozen" pending some sign of progress without formally stopping the negotiations.

During the last negotiating sesion, Israel threatened to walk out of the U.N.-sponsored talks if Lebanon did not change its position. Gemayel's statement, made to a group of foreign diplomats and carried on state radio, appeared to dispel earlier reports that the Lebanese might propose a compromise. "Israel has to submit a comprehensive timetable for complete withdrawal from all Lebanese territory and must go ahead practically in preparing for withdrawal of its forces and those it controls," Gemayel said:

"Lebanon will not give in to Israel's point of view on isolating a Lebanese territory from the rest and turn the presence of United Nations troops in that area into a cover for a direct Israeli presence or one through Israel's allies," he said.

Israel invaded Lebanon in June 1962, saying it needed to make its northern borders safe from attack by Palestinian terrorists. It wants the U.N. force to patrol the northern edge of its occupation zone in southern Lebanon, about 37 miles inside Lebanese territory. Lebanon insists the U.N. force be deployed only along the Israeli-Lebanese Negotiators for Israel have also demanded that the South Lebanon Army, an Israeli-backed militia, guard the border after Israeli troops are gone. Lebanon wants the South Lebanon Army disbanded.

Meanwhile, a Shiite Moslem leader, Nabih Berri, headed back to Beirut from the Syrian capital of Damascus after meetings on a stalled plan to have the Lebanese army take control of the coastal highway from Beirut to southern Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, Berri's ally in the civil war between Moslem and Christian militias, said Berri had been authorized to solve problems in the blan. Jumblatt and Berri met with Syrian and Libyan officials in Damascus.

Plans to deploy the Lebanese army along the highway have failed. Druse and Christian militias, who now control the road, objected to the plan.

Israeli officials say the army's failure to take over the coastal highway shows that Lebanese forces are incapable of protecting Israel's border.

Lebanon wants the army in place because it fears that an uncoordinated Israeli pullout could ignite fighting in southern Lebanon similar to one set off by the Sept. 4, 1983, Israeli withdrawal from

Zaccaro indicted NY fraud scheme

caro, the husband of former Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro, has been indicted on one count of scheming to defraud, a source close to the case told the Associated Press today.

Zaccaro, a real estate broker whose financial affairs became an issue in his wife's campaign, was to be arraigned later in the day, said the source, who spoke only on condition of anonymity

The exact nature of the charge was not divulged, but published reports have pictured Zaccaro as being investigated by the Manhattan district attorney's office in connection with both the sale of some apartment buildings in Queens and a loan from a credit union.

The district attorneys office announced an 11 a.m. news conference to reveal "two indictments in connection with a fraud investigation." The office would not comment further until the news

Zaccaro's lawyer, John Koegel, has declined to confirm that his client had been indicted. But he said Zaccaro was "looking at all of his options, and considering

He denied that the case involved falsification of a sales contract for five apartment buildings in Queens, which was reported by the New York Times.

"That's completely wrong," Koegel said. "It's on another matter

The plea would be entered "shortly, possibly tomorrow (Monday)," the newspaper said in Sunday's editions.

Manhattan District Attorney's office spokeswoman Mary deBourbon would not verify accounts that the husband of the three-term congresswoman may be pondering a guilty plea, or detail possible charges

The Times said one indictment involved the alleged falsified sales contract; the other, a loan from the credit union of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

The latter involves a $550,000 loan by the credit union in 1983 to John DeLorenzo, a real estate investor who is not a credit union member and therefore ineligible to borrow money from it, according to federal auditors. DeLorenzo reportedly got the money to buy a building in a sale that Zaccaro cobrokered with the credit union's DeLorenzo used the funds to purchase an apartment building he later hired Zaccaro's company to manage. After a federal examiner ruled the loan illegal, DeLorenzo repaid it, the Times said.

Astronauts prepare for first U.S. classified mission

 A practice countdown was completed successfully today for America's first classified man-inspace mission, a Jan. 23 deployment of an advanced spy satellite within listening range of the Soviet

The rehearsal, which began at 1:40 p.m. Sunday, was concluded at 8:03 a.m. with a simulated liftoff. The five-man astronaut crew was in the cockpit of the shuttle Discovery for the final 21/2 hours of the test. Discovery was moved to the launch pad Saturday.

"It appears the countdown demonstration test has been completed successfully with only a few minor problems," reported Hugh Harris, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The purpose of the practice is to make certain all spacecraft and rocket systems are ready for flight and to familiarize the astronauts with the final hours of the countdown.

Instead, written progress statements will be issued every eight hours.

After the countdown test before each of the previous 14 shuttle flights, the astronauts held a news conference. The Pentagon said the crew would only pose for pictures at the pad today, but would not answer questions.

Sources familiar with the project have told The Associated Press the satellite is an advanced model of earlier satellites that intercept radio, telephone and satellite communications and relay them to American intelligence agency receivers.

The sources, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, said the satellite is capable of gathering radio data from Soviet missile tests. They said the payload, named SigInt, for signal intelligence, will be positioned in stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator, south of the Soviet Union.

The commander of the allmilitary crew is Navy Capt. Thomas Mattingly. The others are Air Force Majs. Loren Shriver, Elison Onizuka and Gary Payton and Marine Maj. James Buchli.

Researchers poll high school seniors for drug abuse

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - The percentage of high school seniors using cocaine has not changed since 1979, despite a growing aversion to marijuana, alcohol and cigarettes, according to a government-sponsored study released today.

"We observed a sharp increase in cocaine use between 1976 and 1979, but since, the rates of use in this age group have been relatively stable," said Lloyd D. Johnson, one of three University of Michigan social psychologists who conducted the nationwide study of 17,000 high school seniors for the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

"Still, usage levels are troublesomely high," Johnson said. Sixteen percent of the seniors surveyed last spring had used cocaine at least once, 12 percent had used it some time in the previous year and 6 percent were monthly users, he said. Johnson, of the university's Institute of Social Research, said more seniors view cocaine as dangerous and disapprove of its use, but there is an indication of increasing use, especially in the Northeast

Meanwhile, 85 percent of the seniors disapproved of regular marijuana use in 1984, compared with 65 percent in 1977, the study

"Concern about both the psychological and physical effects of regular marijuana use has shifted dramatically over the last seven years," resulting in "an increasing number of young people terminating or reducing their use after some initial period of involvement," Johnson said.

"While most seniors do not view experimental or occasional use of marijuana as partiularly risky, between one-half and two-thirds of be the only battle in the war on all seniors personally disapprove of these behaviors," he said.

Five percent of the seniors had used marijuana at least 20 times in the previous month, down from 5.5 percent in 1983 and from the peak of 11 percent in 1978. Twenty-five percent said they used marijuana occasionally, vs. 37 percent in 1978.

"This substantial downturn in use of marijuana in the face of continuing widespread availability illustrates the critically important fact that drug abuse can be dealt with effectively through reducing the demand for drugs, not just the supply," Johnson said.

"Young people must be convinced that using abusable substances is not in their best interest, and they must be given the social skills and social support necessary to act

"In fact, in the long run, this may schools nationwide.

drugs which society can really

The study also showed that 67 percent of seniors had used alcohol in the previous month, with 5 percent drinking daily. In 1979, those figures were 72 percent and 7 percent, respectively.

Reports of occasional heavy drinking fell to 39 percent in 1984 from 41 percent the previous year - the first decline since the study began 10 years ago.

Cigarette smoking, which had fallen by nearly one-third between 1977 and 1980 and leveled off for several years, dropped from 41 percent in 1983 to 39 percent last year, Johnson said.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse, part of the Department of Health and Human Resources, annually surveys 17,000 seniors in about 140 public and private high

Ship how I don't look too happy now," said offensive tackle Jon Giesler, whose exhausted face was devoid of emotion, "but my insides are happy. It probably won't come out until I get home. I'll be bouncing off the walls

Earlier in the day, Giesler was banging into pass rushers intent on smothering Dolphin quarterback Dan Marino. Giesler and the rest of the Miami offensive line did their jobs — preventing the Steelers from recording a single sack — and Marino did his part — passing for 421 yards and four touchdowns 46-yard touchdown toss to Mark Clayton. Then, the National Football League's MVP caught fire in the final two minutes before intermission, connecting on six of eight, including a 41-yard touchdown to Mark Duper and a 23-yarder to Joe Rose to set up a 2-yard Tony Nathan touchdown

That put the Dolphins up 24-14, and a 36-yard scoring pass to Duper early in the third period turned the game into a rout.

"They were blitzing us more than in the first game," said Marino, comparing the playoff game with the Dolphins 31-7 conquest of the Steelers early in the regular season. "But we like blitzing teams. It gives the offense a chance to make the big plays." Only if the offensive line manages to hold off the defenders long enough for Marino to spot his receivers. They did that Sunday. "Our offensive line works well together, we commu blitzes," said Giesler. "And when we didn't pick it up, Dan managed to

"I've said all along, if you give Dan Marino time, he'll lead you to the promised land."

Although the Dolphins have been to four previous Super Bowls and won two National Football League championships, none of the current players has been on a title-winning team.

"The last time we were in the Super Bowl," Judson recalled, "people said it didn't count because it was the strike season. And then we lost (27-17 to Washington in Super Bowl XVII) and that made it worse. We want to go out and make up for that one."

Defensive end Doug Betters said all the records the Dolphins set on the way to their 16-2 mark will mean nothing if they don't beat the 49ers Jan.

"That Washington game always comes back to you," he said. "It's hard to forget. We got to the Super Bowl and didn't deliver. We don't want akland in 1980 Marino completed 21 of 32 passes and didn't throw the ball in the final 11 minutes after hitting eight of nine earlier in the second half. He threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to Mark Clayton in the first quarter, 41-and 36-yarders to Mark Duper in the second and third and finished off the Steelers with a 6-yard flip to Nat Moore in the That just about obliterated any notice of Mark Malone's afternoon. The Pittsburgh quarterback hit 20 of 36 passes for 312 yards and touchdowns covering 65 and 19 yards to John Stallworth in the second and third quarters and 29 yards to Wayne Capers with 25 seconds to play.

Even before Marino cranked up the Miami offense, its defense and some ill-timed Steeler mistakes - took Pittsburgh out of the game.

Pittsburgh, staying almost exclusively on the ground, controlled the ball for the first five minutes and was approaching the Miami end zone when offensive pass interference by Stallworth wiped out his catch at the 11. On the next play, Malone was intercepted in the end zone by William Judson and four plays after that, Marino and Clayton had Miami on the scoreboard.

Pittsburgh fied it on Rich Erenberg's 7-yard run later in the first period and was driving again early in the second when Walter Abercrombie's 23-yard run to the Dolphins' 9 was called back by a holding penalty. Eventually, Gary Anderson missed a 53-yard fieldgoal attempt.

Almost immediately, Von Schamann restored the Dolphins' hooked up on their 65-yard bomb.

Pittsburgh led 14-10 with 2:52 to go in the half. That's when Marino showed what Shula meant when the Miami coach said after the game: We always have the feeling that we can do things in a hurry. When something negative happens, our offense just says, 'Go for it!' and it sually works out

Marino got the lead back - for good, as it turned out - in just 82 seconds, completing passes of 13 yards to Duper and 16 to Clayton before Duper ran past Chris Brown and caught the TD toss at the left edge of the goal line.

Malone had 1:30 to work with, so he tried to match Marino. But Blackwood got in the way, in-tercepting him at the Steelers' 39-yard line 69 seconds before halftime.

On second down, Marino hit Jim-lead, then Malone and Stallworth my Cefalo in the end zone for 24 yards - but the TD was nullified because Cefalo had been flagged for illegal motion.

No problem. Marino passed 28 yards to tight end Joe Rose at the 1 and, on third-and-2, Nathan ran it in. It was 24-14 — and the game was essentially over. Marino really nailed it down at the start of the second half - 78 yards in four plays, the last one the 36-yarder to Duper, who survived a premature tackle by desperate defensive back Sam Washington (Miami declined the passinterference call) and trotted in after making the catch at the Steeler 10.

Stallworth, who finished with 111 yards receiving, his record fifth postseason game over 100 yards, then caught his second TD pass. That gave him 12 postseason TD passes, another NFL record.

Abdul-Jabbar leads LA over San Antonio Spurs

Earvin Johnson was out with a sprained finger, so Kareem Abdul-Jabbar put on a magic show of his

Abdul-Jabbar hit a 12-foot jumper as time expired Sunday night to lift the Los Angeles Lakers to a 99-98 National Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs, who had taken a one-point lead with three seconds left on two free throws by Artis

"Tonight we had to make our own breaks." said Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers in the game with 28 points and all rebounders with 11. "It seems that things were going against us. It was a nice game to win, and not having Magic in there caused things not to flow smoothly, but we played hard like we always do and things worked out for the best."

The Spurs were expecting Abdul-Jabbar, the NBA's all-time leading scorer, to take the final shot, but Michael Cooper, who 13 points and 14 assists for the Lakers, managed to get the ball in to him. He decided against taking his famous sky hook in favor of a jump shot from the baseline.

"There were four guys surrounding me waiting for the hook, but I used my baseline jumper," Abdul-Jabbar said. "We practiced that over the last week and the only time I use it is when I don't have the hook. Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday night, Portland swamped Indiana 118-101 and Utah mauled Houston

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said the key to the game-winning basket was getting the ball to Cooper on the throw-in after a timeout.

"As soon as the ball went into Kareem, we were going to have a shot and we just had to wait and see if it would drop," Riley said.

'We played some good defense down the stretch and we made things happen," Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "But give the Lakers credit for getting down player. I have no complaints on the last play. You can't determine if it's going to go in or not. We did all e wanted to do. He made a fabulous shot."

Gilmore, who defended against the shot, said, "He did the unexpected. I expected him to come back into the lane for the hook shot, and he went the other way and just made an incredible shot. Johnny Moore led San Antonio with 27 points, while Gilmore had 23 for the Spurs who rallied to take the lead after trailing 77-71 at the end of three quarters. Earlier, the Continued from page 1-B ching the 1972 Miami team's record for wins; the Dolphins are 16-2. San Francisco has been installed as an early 2½-point favorite, just about what oddsmakers give for the home-field edge that the 49ers should have.

The game will be played in Stanford Stadium, just 30 miles down Route 101 from the 49ers' Candlestick Park.

The first and most obvious is the quarterback matchup of Miami's record-breaking Dan Marino and the man considered one of his few peers, Joe Montana of the 49ers.

But more important may be the one between Marino and the 49er defense that has now gone 11 quarters without allowing a touchdown - indeed, the only score against San Francisco in the playoffs came on an interception return by Harry Carson of the New York Giants in San Francisco's 21-10 victory a week ago.

Sunday, it was primarily a case of San Francisco doing to Chicago what Chicago had been doing to others all year long - the Bears' 72 regular-season sacks were an NFL record and they registered seven more in terrorizing Joe Theismann and eliminating the defending National Conference champion

Washington Redskins a week ago. Chicago moved the ball consistently only twice - following the opening kickoff, when it reached the San Francisco 24 before Bob Thomas' field goal attempt was wide right, and again late in the third quarter, when, trailing 13-0, the Bears got to the 49er 21.

But then Fuller was thrown for consecutive eight and 11-yard losses by Dwaine Board and Gary Johnson and that was that. Dave Finzer punted and San Francisco went on its only sustained drive of the day, 88 yards in eight plays capped by Montana's 10-yard scoring pass to Freddie Solomon that made it 20-0 and put the game away.

Despite that dominating defense, three drives inside the Chicago five and some new wrinkles from the fertile brain of Coach Bill Walsh, the 49ers led only 6-0 at intermission on 21- and 22-yard field goals by Ray Wersching.

The most egregious error came on a first down and goal from the Chicago two on which Montana, with Solomon a good step-and-ahalf behind safety Gary Fencik in the end zone, just floated the ball up and gave Fencik time to leap and intercept it.

Nor did Walsh's wrinkles do much but give Miami something to think about going into the Super

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 8, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until evening you have an excellent chance to consider improved means to be more prosperous and to get the approval and backing of those in high office.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine ideas for advancing and can make the right contacts today, and tonight adhere to tried and true ones.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can improve conditions at home appreciably by the work and thought you put into them. Steer clear of a demanding person. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) State your ideas to regular allies and gain their approval and aid. Take it easy tonight and rest up.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Plan just how you can become more prosperous in the future during the daytime and then cut down on expenses.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Go to see that bigwig who can open new doors of opportunity for you during daytime and then be kind and gentle.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into the privacy of your study and think over what your true desires are in the morning, and then plan how to gain them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Off early with a fine friend to gain some wish that means much to you but don't to gain some wish that means much to you, but don't spend too much in the evening. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you do something thoughtful for bigwigs, they will gladly give you backing you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A fine day for expansion and growth, so get busy early at that. Forget worries and limitations tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a new method to handle business affairs that need your full attention. Some special thought for your mate brings results. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get together with your dynamic partners and they will assist you with projects that are important to you. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study the work ahead of you carefully and cooperate with fellow workers who have good ideas for expansion.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will view everything from its greatest perspective and can have a wonderful career where big business, government and other important outlets are concerned. Give the finest academic training that will well equip your progeny for great success.
