Soash Howard County's ghost town

By LUIS RIOS, Staff Writer

SOASH — One man's dreams of grandeur and prosperity were swept away by the harsh West Texas sandstorms and the historic drought of 1910, almost 75 years ago to this day.

Soash, now merely a ghost town 20 miles north of Big Spring, was destined for greatness by a land promoter from Waterloo, Iowa, named W.P. Soash and labeled "The Empire Builder."

The only building still standing from the township, located five miles west of Vealmoor off County Road 1785, is the concrete skeleton of the once-grand Soash State Bank.

This promising land venture on the West Texas plains ruined Soash, who never fully recovered from the financial losses and anguish he suffered when his promising town crumbled before him.

But in 1909, Big Spring was buzzing over the new settlement and the antics by a fellow named Soash.

The Midwest land promoter had purchased 300,000 acres of rangeland from the legendary Col. C.C. Slaughter's immense Long S Ranch. To attract settlers and potential land buyers, Soash advertised in Midwest newspapers and farm journals.

His advertisements literally screamed of a paradise on the West Texas plains.

Ohio and Iowa newspapers ran this advertisement in 1909: "Soash, The Great Empire

Builder, has gone into the heart of the great state of Texas and purchased outright 300,000 acres of the richest and best land in the agricultural belt, and this splendid body of farming land is now on the market at Low Prices on Easy Terms. This land was secured from Col. C.C. Slaughter, the great land and cattle king of Texas, and is known as Big Springs Ranch located in Martin, Dawson, Howard and Borden counties." And Midwesterners came by the droves to the land of milk and honey they had read about in Soash's advertisements. The entire city plat of Soash was filled by March 10, 1910 — only 10 months after the advertisements ran.

To accompany his outlandish advertisements enticing people to West Texas, Soash had an elaborate and detailed plan laid out for his town.

One Big Spring resident recalls when she and her family arrived in Soash from Ohio in March 1911.

Mrs. Angeline Shaw, 81, said neither Soash nor Slaughter told her father, W.M. "William" Peterson, of the disastrous drought of 1910, only a year before their arrival. Mrs. Shaw said she was 7 when her family sold their property in Ohio and made the long trek to Big Spring by train.

"They told my dad you could make two crops a year in Texas," Mrs. Shaw said. "When we got here they didn't give you a chance to talk to any of the farmers around here; they drove you straight to Soash, you stayed at their hotel and you made the deal there at their bank."

"They (Soash and Slaughter) did business with Dad in the basement of the bank. Dad paid $30,000 cash for the land he bought. They didn't give him a deed for the property. He farmed the place for one year and never got the deed."

She said her father kept on asking for the deed to his property before two cowboys from Soash put an end to his asking.

"Dad just kept asking for his deed," she said. "They had two cowboys who took my dad out to the breakers and told him to dance while they shot under his feet. They told him, not to mention the deed again. And he didn't."

Mrs. Shaw said she remembers going to school in the basement of the bank building before the schoolhouse could be built. Ed Simpson, also a resident of Big Spring, served as the school teacher, she said.

W.M. Peterson built a store in Soash which he later moved to Knott at the request of Ackery residents. Mrs. Shaw said there were a few buildings in Soash still at that time.

A map of Soash shows eight sections of the town divided into 169 city blocks and 28 major streets, all named by Soash himself. Soash had planned for a community school, churches, an electric power plant, a bank, a city park in the center of town, a hotel and several mercantile exchanges.

In a 1969 interview with the Big Spring Herald, former Soash bank employee W.E. Smith said at one time the bank was labeled, "the finest bank building between Fort Worth and El Paso."

The streets running north to south were given numbers from 1 to 14 and the streets running east to west were named after prominent personalities, according to a historical account in the July 3, 1969, issue of the Herald.

The streets had names like McDowell, Wescott, Townsley, Slaughter, Scheel, Leonard, Main, Soash, Borton, Aspinall, Penny, Jackson, Fisher and Shnell avenues, according to a map that shows, Texas and vicinity showing the acreage tracts for what it labeled "fruit and truck farms."

Soash, with the help of Bob Slaughter, Col. Slaughter's son, he built a "village" which included a two-story, 40-room hotel, a brick building, a garage to house 30 cars and other buildings. He also had plans for a flour mill, cement block factory, canning plant and other city parks. The hotel was later moved to Lamesa and operated as the Kelly Hotel. It was destroyed by fire in 1936.

The initial blow dealt to Soash's dream in 1910 came when the Texas and Pacific Railway and the Santa Fe Railroad failed to run through Soash and intersecting at Big Spring.

According to one historical account, "Big Spring businessmen pooled their resources and launched a move to have the railroad go through Soash. The railroad was to connect with the Texas and Pacific Railway, east of Big Spring; and ultimately, the sponsors hoped would go to San Angelo. The route was approved by the railroad; but the track was never built."

But progress still came to Soash. A businessman named Rufe Slaughter opened a general store as did J.M. Heffernan. Another man, Bill Horn opened a cafe. Soash planned to build a $40,000 mansion and had the basement dug out for it. Construction on the mansion was never started.

Then came the mammoth drought which eventually drove the Midwesterners off the parched land back to their homes. The land office in Soash closed in the summer of 1912 and the settlers from Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and Ohio abandoned Soash.

Soash is nothing more than a ghost town located west of Vealmoor on U.S. Highway 87. But tales of its brief and colorful history are still being told.

Soash, wanting to make an impression on the potential land buyers, sent a 20-car passenger train to the Midwest to bring the buyers to Big Spring. Awaiting the contingency was a fleet of some 10-15 Buick automobiles waiting to take them to Soash.

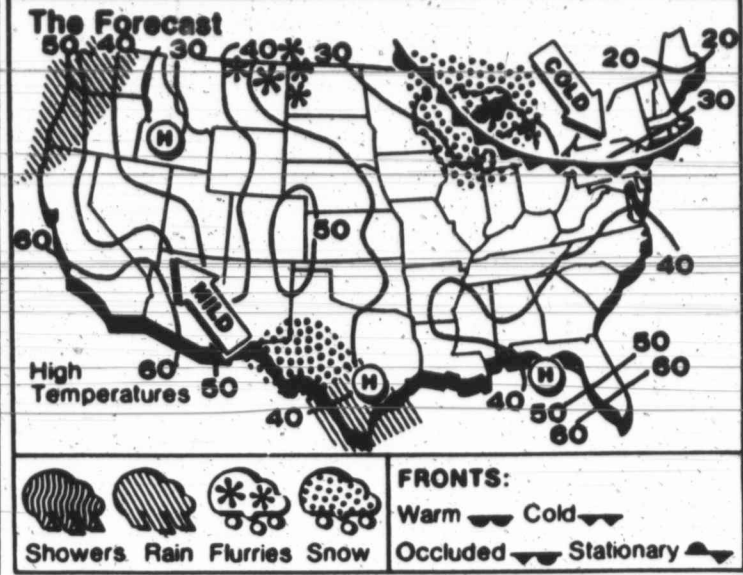

Soash hired a brass band to play on the potential buyers' arrival in Big Spring. Rumor has it more Big Spring residents turned out for the gala when the excursion trains pulled into the train station Wednesday.

The people were then set up at the 40-room hotel at Soash at the expense of the land promoter. The following day they were shown the land, which was selling a $30 an acre.

One of the biggest attractions witnessed at Soash was the July 4, 1909, picnic when 2,000 people attended the activities. The festivities were actually held July 5 because the 4th fell on a Sunday.

The city that Soash dreamed of never was. Only the ghosts of the early day pioneers remain.

Iraq attacks Iran ship

MANAMA, Bahrain — An Iranian bulk carrier, the 18,000-ton Iran-Emdad, was attacked and crippled by an Iraqi jet fighter in the northern Persian Gulf.

No one was wounded in the attack Friday that blasted the stern of the freighter as it was heading with ballast for the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas. The attack occurred south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

The raids brought to eight the number of attacks claimed by Iraq in the gulf this year.

Lebanese open road

JIYE, Lebanon — The army began its long-delayed move to open the coastal highway that links Beirut with Israel's occupation zone in southern Lebanon today, and two bombs went off in the capital, killing two people and injuring at least 25.

The army troops were greeted with cheers and showers of rice and roses today as they moved down the coastal highway, a road that has been closed by civil war fighting for 11 months.

Soldiers from the 12th Brigade were carried by more than 20 trucks, armored personnel carriers and jeeps, and accompanied by seven French-made AMX-13 tanks flying Lebanese flags.

Thais brace for attack

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand — Thai troops constructed a wall of barbed wire along the Thai-Cambodian border and a key frontier commander said today that Vietnamese troops might strike another Cambodian rebel base soon.

Maj. Gen. Salya Sriphen told reporters Thai soldiers today completed laying three to four miles of barbed wire to demarcate the frontier at Ampil, a Cambodian resistance base recently overrun by the Vietnamese.

Joshua Nkomo shot at

HARARE, Zimbabwe — A crowd fired bullets and hurled stones at a car carrying Zimbabwe opposition leader Joshua Nkomo to a campaign stop in a southern town, he said Saturday.

The opposition leader told The Associated Press supporters of Prime Minister Robert Mugabe fired nine bullets into his bullet-proof car Friday, but did not injure anyone.

French send reinforcements to New Caledonia

By the Associated Press

NOUMEA, New Caledonia — French Premier Laurent Fabius said in Paris on Saturday he was immediately sending 1,000 additional troops to this French-ruled South Pacific territory to help break the "cycle of violence" that left three dead and dozens injured in two days of rioting.

New Caledonia's territorial government declared a state of emergency earlier in the day after police killed two Melanesian pro-independence leaders in a gunfight in an isolated area on the west coast about 55 miles from here.

Police enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed in Noumea after 24 hours of street battles between security forces and anti-independence European residents. By evening, calm had returned to the streets of the capital.

Officials said 33 people — 29 police and four civilians — were hurt and 48 people were arrested. The rioters hurled rocks, bottles and gasoline bombs at police, set fire to seven buildings and dozens of cars, and looted stores, police said.

The renewed violence scuttled France's hopes that the struggle between Europeans and militant Melanesians, the original inhabitants of this island group, could be resolved by a referendum in July without further bloodshed.

Jean-Marie Tjibaou, leader of the Kanak Socialist National Liberation Front, the Melanesian independence movement, reacted to the deaths of the two front leaders by rejecting the referendum and calling for immediate and complete independence from France.

New Caledonia was acquired by France in 1853. Melanesians, known locally as Kanaks, now comprise a minority of about 40 percent of the 142,500 inhabitants.

The French plan had initially received a positive response from the front. The plan called for a "continued association" under which France would retain responsibility for internal and external security of the territory.

It also proposed specific safeguards for the Europeans in New Caledonia who wished to retain their French nationality.

There are already 2,280 French military police and 3,000 regular army troops in New Caledonia.

5 arrested for child sex

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Five men have been arrested and charged with 169 counts of sexual molestation and abuse of nine children, and a prosecutor said authorities are investigating whether the suspects made a "snuff movie" in which children were killed on camera.

The reported abuses and molestations occurred in 1982 and involved four children who had been left in the care of one of the suspects, and five of their playmates, authorities said.

Sharon trial to jury

NEW YORK — Ariel Sharon's $50 million libel suit against Time Inc. goes Monday to a federal jury that must decide whether the magazine knowingly and recklessly defamed the Israeli cabinet minister in a report about the 1982 slaughter of hundreds of Palestinians in Beirut.

Two days of bitter final arguments by lawyers for both sides concluded Friday, capping a weeklong series of developments in the hotly contested trial that began Nov. 13.

GM recalls 9,300 X-cars

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. has recalled 9,300 X-cars for replacement of suspension bolts that could fracture and damage the rear brake hose, making the cars more difficult to stop, the company said.

The cars are 1984 Buick Skylarks and Oldsmobile Omegas.

GM said in a statement that the bolts were not made to specifications, with the problem limited to one assembly plant. The only plant making both those cars in the 1984 model year was the Willow Run plant in Ypsilanti.

High winds rake L.A.

LOS ANGELES — Winds gusting to 80 mph Saturday shattered windows, blew down trees, overturned trucks and caused power outages for 50,000 customers throughout Southern California, officials said.

The Santa Ana winds should taper off Sunday, but north and northeastern gusts of 20 to 35 mph will continue to sweep below canyons and in the valleys, the National Weather Service reported.

The winds broke windows and downed power lines that sparked fires. Jack Miller.

Kennedy vows fight for Namibian freedom

By the Associated Press

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa — Jeered by whites and cheered by larger black crowds, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Saturday he will return home to seek independence for the disputed territory of South-West Africa, and to oppose President Reagan's policy toward South Africa.

Kennedy told several hundred people in the black township of Katutura outside Windhoek that the next time he visited the territory, known widely as Namibia, he wanted to see it independent according to a long-standing United Nations plan.

"I will go back to the Senate of the United States to say I have met brave men and women in Namibia, whose only desire is to be free," he said outside a Roman Catholic church where he met church and nationalist leaders for two hours.

Among topics discussed by the leaders and the Massachusetts Democrat were the long-delayed, United States-led negotiations for Namibian independence, and allegations by blacks of police and military atrocities.

Kennedy said he would work to end the Reagan administration's policy of constructive engagement with South Africa, "which has been an ineffective and bad policy."

Constructive engagement is the policy of political and economic contacts with South Africa seen by the Reagan administration as the best way to promote peaceful change in South Africa, where a white minority of 5 million rules over 22 million voteless blacks.

Hundreds of nationalists greeted him in the black township of Katutura.

Many in the crowd were backers of the South-West Africa People's Organization, which operates as a legal political party.

Aspirin warning due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aspirin manufacturers will help develop product labels that warn of a possible link between aspirin and the often-fatal childhood disease Reye's Syndrome, the Food and Drug Administration says.

Many drug companies had balked on Wednesday when the FDA sought label warnings against the use of aspirin to treat children or teen-agers who have influenza or chicken pox without a physician's approval.

Tax & financial planning

INFLATION REDUCES TAXES

A provision in the Economic Recovery Act of 1981 goes into effect in 1985. It is the provision that calls for an inflationary adjustment to the tax rates, the standard deduction ("zero bracket amount"), and the personal and dependency exemptions. The tax indexing rate for 1985 is 4.1%. The January withholding tables issued by the IRS reflect this adjustment, meaning slightly more take-home pay for individuals.

The upper and lower limits of each tax bracket have been adjusted by 4.1%. The table below compares the 1984 and 1985 tax brackets for joint returns to give you an idea of how much benefit this adjustment means to you.

Tax Rate	1984 Bracket	1985 Bracket
0%	$ 0 - 3,400	$ 0 - 3,540
11	3,400 - 5,500	3,540 - 5,720
12	5,500 - 7,600	5,720 - 7,910
14	7,600 - 11,900	7,910 - 12,390
16	11,900 - 16,000	12,390 - 16,650
18	16,000 - 20,200	16,650 - 21,020
22	20,200 - 24,600	21,020 - 25,600
25	24,600 - 29,900	25,600 - 31,120
28	29,900 - 35,200	31,120 - 36,630
33	35,200 - 45,800	36,630 - 47,670
38	45,800 - 60,000	47,670 - 62,450
42	60,000 - 85,600	62,450 - 89,090
45	85,600 - 109,400	89,090 - 113,860
49	109,400 - 162,400	113,860 - 169,020
50	162,400 -	169,020 -

The standard deduction for singles in 1985 will be $2,390, an increase of $90; for married couples it will be $3,540, an increase of $140. The personal and dependency exemptions increase from $1,000 to $1,040.

A 4.1% inflationary adjustment will strike most people as insignificant; however, if "indexing for inflation" is retained as a permanent part of the tax law, the result will mean substantial savings to you.

Clinic bombings are un-American

Since May of 1982, abortion clinics have 30 times been targets for bombing, firebombing and arson. That statistic is a chilling statement about Americans' reasonableness and belief in their freedoms. Worse, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has issued a warning that abortion clinics may be the object of new violence in coming days, as the nation approaches the anniversary of the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortions.

Americans react with horror to terrorist acts in foreign countries. We condemn such acts unilaterally when they occur in Iran, or India or elsewhere beyond our shores. But the violence here, instigated by rabid reactionaries who react to a difference in point of view by unleashing destruction, is much worse. It is worse because America touts her respect for authority, and holds strong support for its system of government and tolerance for opposing points of view. America puts her good name in a Bill of Rights and constitutional government. America is above the violence that occurs with frightening regularity in less-civilized countries.

A spokesman for the National Organization for Women said "the terrorism that's occurring is not against buildings but is terrorism against women." Whether that is the case, or whether it is simply perpetrated by malcontents who invoke violence when they cannot get their way, it is a situation that all Americans should find abhorrent.

State suffers budget hangover

AUSTIN — Money talks, the saying goes, and lack of money screams. If we apply that to the 1985 legislative session, we can expect the granite Capitol to sound like Jerusalem's Wailing Wall.

The Texas Legislature is in no way out of money. Its members still will spend billions and billions before packing up and going home.

There is lots of money, but much of it is locked into dedicated funds at a time when the state's income from taxes on petroleum and natural gas is dropping due to the current worldwide energy glut.

Failing an emergency in the Middle East that reduces the oil surplus, the outlook for the state's spendable income is not good. Thanks in part to last summer's special session's spending on school reform and highway improvements, the amount available for running existing programs the next two years is less than for the current biennium. And the state's population continues to grow.

Actually, our income problems aren't any worse than what many states have been putting up with for a long time, but Texas lawmakers in past sessions have been fiscally drunk with a bubbling economy and a seemingly endless growth in energy taxes.

Twenty years ago the Legislature approved a $3.9 billion, two-year spending plan. This year's Legislative Budget Board recommendation for the coming two years is $25.7 billion.

The growth in expenditures was made possible by a growth in income. Like most of us, the Legislature found ways to spend every extra cent that came in.

There was some talk a few years ago about putting some of that money away for the proverbial rainy day. Former House Speaker Bill Clayton promoted that idea, but even the crafty and powerful Mr. Clayton couldn't put the brakes on the budget binge. It was just too much fun spending the money. Now the fun is over, and hangover time is here.

Reportedly, the reaction of some legislators is to try to find a place to hide out during these less-fun financial times.

In contrast with previous sessions, the lieutenant governor, who presides over the Texas Senate, and the House speaker have not been inundated by requests for appointment to budget-writing committees.

With money tight, apparently some legislators want to avoid the headache of dividing up the funds among the state's fund-hungry offices and departments.

It's hard to blame them too much. Those who do the job will find upset state officials and special-interest lobbyists lining up in their offices to explain in detail why their pet project should be exempted from any belt-tightening.

Those legislators who participate directly in the budget-writing process are going to be in a position to make a few people happy and a lot of people angry.

The less-involved lawmakers can be totally sympathetic to every special-interest group while saying, "There's nothing I can do." From a political standpoint, that's not a bad position to be in.

From a representational standpoint, however, it leaves much to be desired. In reality, the budgeting of state money becomes more important as the money available shrinks, and those who serve on budget-writing committees will have even more power than in the past.

Budget writers also will be in the best possible position to protect their local state institutions from severe budget cuts. That's a rather narrow, provincial way of looking at a legislator's duties, but it's part of the real world.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, will wield more power than ever as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. That committee is more important than its counterpart, the House Appropriations Committee, because the Senate doesn't tamper with its recommended budget.

Business in the 31-member Senate is handled on a more personal level than in the 150-member House. Individual senators talk privately with Finance Committee members and, by tradition, accept the committee's report without change.

In the House, on the other hand, long amendment fights on the Appropriation Committee's budget bill are traditional. This year may see a budget floor fight that will make the previous ones seem tame in comparison.

The hook, line and rebate

Whoever invented rebates was a marketing genius. He devised a sales technique that relies on one of the oldest known human traits — laziness. It's perfect. It offers unbelievably low prices and the certainty that many consumers will never take the time to send off for their rebate checks.

The idea is to market merchandise on the premise that the purchase price isn't really the purchase price. The rebate cost is so ridiculously low that no reasonable person will pass up the opportunity.

Of course, manufacturers can only offer these fantastic savings with knowledge that a high percentage of people will buy something, fully intending to take advantage of the rebate. The rebate serves to save their guilt over buying the merchandise in the first place.

"We don't need a new can opener for $18," she says.

"It only costs $15 after the rebate," he replies, with a touch of condescension.

The reason I know this is simple: Why else would merchandisers go to the extraordinary expense of administering rebates to millions of people when they could just as easily knock a like amount off the purchase price to begin with.

There may be another reason, although the evidence is tenuous. Perhaps the rebate scheme is a plot to employ consumer advocates in the media.

The people who make their living acting as intermediaries between the public and the rebate administrators have a vested interest in seeing rebates continue. A great deal of their work — and thus their justifications for paychecks — involves rebate trouble-shooting.

I bought a fancy flashlight for a Christmas present. It's the kind you keep plugged into the wall, and it stays constantly charged and ready for use. In fact, it does more. While it's sitting in its own handy wall holder, it's really keeping constant vigil over the home's power supply. If the electricity should go off, this flashlight starts flashing. That tells you two things, that the power is off and where the flashlight is.

Pretty handy, huh. I probably wouldn't have bought it — it was more money than I wanted to spend — but this fancy flashlight was an absolute steal. I mean, it was on sale, first of all. But there was a rebate, too. Five dollars, just for the asking.

I got it home and put it in a special place so it wouldn't get wrapped before I cut what I needed off the carton for proof-of-purchase. According to the rebate form, all I needed to do was fill out a form, send in the sales receipt, cut out the Underwriters Laboratories symbol (with serial number) off the box, stick it all in an envelope, lick it, stamp it and wait six to eight weeks for my $5.

When I gave the gift, the recipient tore off the wrapping and saw the jagged hole in the box. "Rebate, huh," he said.

I realized yesterday that although I bought this gift in November, I still hadn't sent off for my rebate. I started filling out the form and read, in small print at the bottom: "This offer expires January 1, 1985."

Well, I've got two choices. I can accept my injustice with dignity and grace. Or I can call every Action Line columnist in West Texas and get them to intercede in my behalf. I ought to do the latter; it helps keep columnists employed. But I probably won't. After all, it's a pretty good deal even without the rebate.

Operation Moses: Let my people go

By ARTHUR MAX

JERUSALEM — Israel's secret mission to rescue Ethiopia's Jews from famine and poverty reflects a nation's deeply felt duty to take care of its own.

From secret diplomacy to daring military operations, Israel has demonstrated time and again that it considers Jews in distress to be urgent family business.

Jubilation swept Israel when the story broke last week of the clandestine rescue of Ethiopian Jews. Pride united this often-squabbling country, reminiscent of the joy when Israeli commandos rescued hijacked hostages from Entebbe airport in Uganda in 1976.

In that operation, commandos were flown 7,000 miles to free more than 100 hostages, mostly Israelis and Jews who were held by Palestinian terrorists aided by the Ugandan army of former dictator Idi Amin.

Israel's fundamental national purpose is to be a refuge for the Jewish people. The concept is enshrined in its declaration of independence, which says the Jewish state "shall be open to Jewish immigration and the ingathering of the exiles."

Clandestine operations to bring Jews to Israel predate the nation's birth. Secret groups smuggled Jews out of wartime Europe to Palestine through a British naval blockade.

The gathering of scattered exiles has never stopped and, according to the Central Bureau of Statistics, more than 40 percent of the nation's 3.2 million Jews are immigrants from 100 nations.

In 1949, when Israel had a Jewish population of 600,000 and was recovering from the first Arab-Israeli war, the Jewish agency negotiated a secret agreement with Yemen to allow its 45,000 Jews to leave.

Yemen's Jews streamed on foot into the port city of Aden, where Israeli planes met them in a massive operation called the "Magic Carpet" which lasted for 18 months.

In 1950, Iraq lifted its anti-emigration laws for Jews on condition they take no more than the equivalent of $16 out of the country. The independent Jewish Agency, which is responsible for immigration, launched an airlift called "Ali Baba" which lasted 18 months and brought 121,000 Jews out of Iraq.

In all, 684,201 Jews immigrated to Israel from its independence in May 1948 to December 1951, doubling the nation's population. In its first five years, Israel built 345 towns, villages and farming communities to house the immigrants.

Since the 1970s Israeli diplomacy has focused on winning emigration rights for the 3 million Jews in the Soviet Union. In the past 14 years, about 150,000 have arrived in Israel but immigration has slowed to a trickle with less than 1,000 coming in 1984.

The 1979 Islamic revolution in Iran also resulted in an exodus of Jews, but details of the numbers were not known.

The rescue of Ethiopian Jews was named "Operation Moses" after the prophet who led the Hebrews out of slavery in Egypt to the promised land.

It was an appropriate name for the rescue of an ancient community that by legend traces its roots to Jewish notables from Jerusalem who accompanied Menelik, the son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, when he returned to Ethiopia more than 2,900 years ago.

The rescue effort began 18 months ago and has brought the number of Ethiopians in Israel to about 13,000, according to Jewish Agency officials. Since an airlift began last November, a Belgian charter airline said it brought 7,000 Ethiopians to Israel via three European cities on 35 flights.

The airlift remained secret for two months until it was officially acknowledged last week by Israel's government. The last flight arrived Saturday, and intense international publicity was blamed for bringing the operation to a halt.

Israeli officials said about 4,000 Ethiopian Jews were stranded in refugee camps when the mission was stopped. The Jewish Agency, which has smuggled Jews out of dozens of countries since the Israel was founded, said 8,000 to 10,000 Jews remain in Ethiopia.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres, addressing Israel's parliament on Tuesday, vowed that every effort would be made to continue the rescue.

"No economic difficulty and no internal hardship, no geographic distance and no political obstacle will stop or delay the rescue efforts for immigration," Peres said.

ARTHUR MAX, stationed in Tel Aviv, reports on events in Israel and the Middle East for the Associated Press.

Around The Rim

The children of Israel

By KEITH BRISCOE

"Funny, you don't look Jewish." That worn-out rejoinder was heard again last week when the world witnessed scenes of black Ethiopian Jews completing their airlift exodus to Israel.

A response more comical — but also more tragic — came from the Arab League, which forced Sudan to close its airbases to Operation Moses. A spokesman for the League said the thousands of refugees streaming into Israel from Ethiopia can't be Jewish because they're black.

That's ignorant, racist propaganda that may cost the lives of many black Jews stranded in Sudan awaiting emigration to their ancient homeland. Cut off from the mainstream of Jewish history for two millennia, these African Jews (Falashas) now are fleeing from political strife, drought and hunger.

They wish to live in the land of their ancestors, and beleaguered Israel responded with a massive airlift. No Jew doubts the Falashas' ancestry.

According to rabbinical studies, the Falashas left Israel during the last years of King Solomon's reign to settle East Africa. The majority of them are not descendants of converts from other African peoples; in other words, they have always been black.

The Arab League, which sponsored a U.N. resolution in 1979 equating Zionism with racism, fails to understand or admit that Jewish civilization historically has been enriched with a mixture of races.

Lying astride the juncture of three continents, the land of Israel has always counted blacks, blondes and Asians among its predominantly Semitic population. Persian historians noted a great diversity in the racial and ethnic makeup of King David's empire.

The Falashas brought home by Operation Moses have been welcomed by other Israeli blacks: Jews from India, Yemen, Indonesia and all parts of Africa and even America. If the Falashas don't look Jewish, then maybe the Arab League can tell us what a Jew looks like.

The publicity given the Falasha exodus may give fresh insight to world history. Because blacks are a constituent member of the Hebrew people, perhaps some of the great Jews of the Bible were black.

Makes you think, doesn't it? Was Jesus black?

How to finish after starting

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a problem setting realistic goals for my life. I get enthused about some new project and make it my priority, but after a while I get bored or something and never finish it, and then I just get discouraged. I'm a great starter but a poor finisher, but I don't know what to do about it. — M.E.

DEAR M.E.: I suspect many people have this problem to some degree; most of us find it easy to become interested in a project and then we lose interest as time goes by.

Let me suggest two practical steps you ought to take whenever you are thinking about some new project. First, ask yourself if it is a realistic project for you to undertake, especially based on your past experience. Second, ask yourself — before you get involved in the project — what specific steps it will take for you to get the project finished, and what the cost will be to you in time and energy.

First semester report cards were handed out Thursday, one week into the first six weeks of the second semester. The Coahoma schools Christmas holidays started December 21. Students returned to school on January 2. During the Christmas holidays, the varsity boys and girls basketball teams played in a tournament in Jayton. We would like to congratulate the bands on their "most impressive" Christmas concert. This year's concert consisted of music ranging from "White Christmas" played by the junior high to "Gremlins" played by the high school. About 400 enthusiastic parents and friends enjoyed an afternoon of music, filled with the Christmas spirit. The big red band had its district tryouts in Abilene yesterday.

The eight grade basketball girls have had a great year so far with a record of three wins and no losses. Coach Gina Farmer has great expectations for them. Farmer says, "The girls have the winning attitude and the winning ability."

Basketball girls have "winning attitude"

The seventh graders had a very impressive record of 12 wins and 2 losses. The girls show their skill and optimism in practice every day. Their team goal is 14 wins and a zero in the loss column. Coach Farmer says, "With their drive and determination, I know they'll be great."

The varsity girls' played Crane Jan. 8. The game started at 5 p.m. The freshman boys and girls played in Reagan County on Thursday. Friday, varsity and jr. boys and girls played Ozona in Coahoma.

4-inch snowfall blankets area

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Motorists are being urged to stay off the roads today as continued snow is forecast for Big Spring and vicinity and a winter storm warning is posted for the Permian Basin.

Snow began falling in Big Spring early Saturday morning and by late afternoon up to 4 inches had accumulated on city streets. Motorists driving around the city were experiencing trouble with traction as the snow became packed and icy.

The snow extended as far west as El Paso. Road conditions toward Abilene were said to be extremely hazardous, and the Interstate between Big Spring and Midland was snow packed and hazardous, said a spokeswoman from the Midland Department of Public Safety. Snow was also falling on Highway 87 toward San Angelo and snow was reported throughout the Texas Hill Country.

A Big Spring police spokesman said Saturday afternoon that there were a number of "fender-benders" reported throughout the city but no major accidents had been reported by late afternoon. Some motorists became stranded and needed the help of professional wrecking services to get their cars off sidewalks and out of roadways.

A spokesman from the Sheriff's Department said no county roads had been blocked off by late Saturday afternoon, but officials were on the lookout for anticipated icy conditions which might call for blockades before today. County road crews were patrolling the area Saturday spreading sand over icy areas.

Midland Regional Air Terminal said most flights for Saturday had been cancelled due to snowy conditions. A spokesman for American Airlines said, "We've cancelled all our flights to Midland because they have no snow removal equipment." Once snow is cleared, flights will resume, she said.

She said conditions in Dallas were clear and cold but that forecasters there were predicting up to an inch of snow by today.

An employee of Greyhound Bus Station said Saturday afternoon that buses were running slightly behind schedule but were getting out locally. He said he wasn't sure what continued snowfall throughout the night would do to the schedules by today.

Capt. Carroll Braun of the Salvation Army made repeated calls to the Trailways Bus Station to see if any buses might be stranded in the city overnight. However, Michael Deggs of the Salvation Army said buses were being halted "further down the line" and that no stranded passengers were in the city.

As the Christmas holidays rolled around, a feeling of excited restlessness swept through Sands high. Students dreamed of sleeping until noon and being free from homework. Although, before this could happen, students studied for captured third place. The mustangs have started their District games. Good luck.

With the holidays behind us, we look forward to the new year with enthusiasm. Have a good year.

CFCS started back to school Thursday. All the students had a wonderful vacation, then came back to school, only to find the desks were not painted; however, the walls were.

Students had a balloon-popping time at brother Weddle's birthday party last Wednesday. Students enjoyed cookies and cake, but the most fun of all was in making the teachers' ears ring by popping balloons. Water balloons were not allowed. Everyone had a good time showing brother Weddle how much they greatly and dearly appreciate this noble person.

CFCS' One-hundred's club was announced last week. Brandi Fortune was in first place with an extraordinary score of nineteen 100's. Brandi had a tough race with Corrie Yanke. Yanke made second place with eighteen 100's for the quarter.

Did mysterious planet kill dinosaurs?

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The extinction of the dinosaurs may have been caused by a mysterious Planet X that periodically pulls swarms of comets into a collision course with Earth, a new theory says.

The new theory contends that Planet X circles the sun in a shifting orbit outside the known planets. Every 30 million years, the orbital shifts carry the planet into a belt of comets, said Daniel Whitmire, one of the theory's authors.

When that happens, the planet's gravity pulls a cluster of comets out of the comet belt. Some of those comets strike Earth, spewing up vast dust clouds that can change the weather and even spell death for some species of animals and plants.

The dinosaurs became extinct 65 million years ago, and extinction peaks also occurred 34 million years ago and, to a lesser extent, 11 million years ago.

The Planet X theory is one of many being considered by scientists as explanations of the extinction peaks. Another is the possible presence of Nemesis, a "death star" that would cause the extinctions in a manner similar to Planet

X, by causing comets to rain periodically on Earth. Other researchers suggest that huge interstellar dust clouds caused the peaks.

The latest theory, described Friday by Whitmire and co-author John Matese at a Symposium on The Galaxy and The Solar System sponsored by the University of Arizona, was developed to try to solve two mysteries.

The first is a pattern in fossils that suggests mass extinctions may have occurred regularly on Earth approximately every 26 million years.

The second is the problem of unexplained slight variations in the orbits of Neptune and Uranus, two of the outermost planets.

Astronomers had suspected for more than 50 years that an undiscovered planet was altering those orbits, but they had thought the problem was solved with the discovery of Pluto, the outermost known planet, in 1930.

That explanation fell apart in 1978 when it was found that Pluto's mass was only a thousandth that of Earth — too small to cause the orbital variations, Whitmire said.

In a publication of their theory in the Jan. 3 issue of Nature, a leading British scientific journal, the two researchers from the University of Southwestern Louisiana said their description of Planet X is the first to provide solutions to both the periodic extinction problem and the orbital variation problem.

The theory also suggests how astronomers might find Planet X. Matese said it was likely that Planet X would be discovered in five or 10 years, if it exists.

An alternative theory holds that the mass extinctions were produced by a death star called Nemesis that orbits the sun and periodically comes close to Earth, pulling comets in its wake.

If Nemesis exists, it, too, is likely to be found in the next decade, Matese said.

"The bottom line is which of these objects gets discovered," he said. "If neither is found, that is evidence there is no periodicity" in prehistoric extinctions, he said.

Not all scientists who study fossils agree that mass extinctions occurred in a regular cycle. But evidence is growing that the dinosaurs, at least, were wiped out by weather changes.

Athletes of the Year

By Charlie Alcorn

1984 was a year of Olympian proportions in the sporting world. Although it is well into 1985, and time to put the past year's feats to rest, I would like to take time to comment on the winners of the 1984 AP Athlete of the Year award winners, Carl Lewis and Mary Lou Retton.

Of course 1984 was an Olympic year, and the year's sporting news was dominated by the hugely successful Summer Games, America's first since 1932. Both winners were Olympians. Lewis, the fabulous sprinter-long jumper, who duplicated Jesse Owens' feat of four gold-medals in the 100 and 200 meter sprints, 400 meter relay, and long jump; and Retton, the fireplug gymnast, who won America's first medal in Olympic gymnastics by capturing the gold in the women's individual competition.

I thought it appropriate that these two splendid representatives of our country receive the award after their unprecedented successes, both individually and as members of a United States Olympic contingent that won a record 83 gold medals.

Another Olympian winner was Peter Ueberroth, the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee chairman, who masterminded the Summer Games and was named Time magazine's Man of the Year for "the person who has most significantly influenced the events of the past twelve months".

While Ueberroth was the main man behind the scenes in Los Angeles, Carl Lewis and Mary Lou Retton had some fairly significant influence in the respective sports as well.

It was Retton who first found the spotlight as she vaulted into the homes of millions of Americans. She battled the latest Rumanian gymnastic phenom, Ecaterina Szabo, to a dead heat going into the final event of the women's individual all-around competition.

After Szabo's 9.5 in the floor exercise, the only way that Retton could win the gold medal was to score a perfect 10 in the vault, an event that lent itself rather well to the stocky West Virginian's powerful leaping ability.

As we all know, Mary Lou hit that perfect 10 with a vault that will go down as one of the gutsiest single performances in Olympic history. In a matter of seconds, Retton had vaulted herself from almost total obscurity to one of the world's most celebrated athletes. That vault and her performances on the whole were the stuff of legend and most certainly the right stuff to earn her selection as Female Athlete of the Year 1984.

While I was among the many who viewed Miss Retton's gyrations on the tube, I was fortunate enough to view Mr. Lewis' greased lightning act in person. I happen to be the son of a legitimate Olympic track and field buff, so it was no mere coincidence that my father and I were in attendance for each and every one of Carl's bursts into the history books. And what a sight the man was to behold. I have never seen anybody with a physique so finely tuned and the presence of mind to make that body perform as no other man before.

I personally couldn't have cared less what the media perceived Carl Lewis to be, and when it came time to perform, the man was never less than awesome. The one feat that epitomized Lewis' complete superiority over his Olympic competitors was the single, 28-foot long jump he made to win the gold medal in the event. The he beat most of the world's best long jumpers by more than a foot on his first and only attempt was truly astounding. The fact that he was booed for not taking any more jumps was a sad commentary on the "Carl Lewis Media Deluge," which had the crowd frothing at the mouth for Lewis to break Bob Beamon's world record. Any knowledgeable track fan would have known that it was senseless for Lewis to risk an injury and ruin his chances of winning the 200 meter and 400 meter relay, but so it goes with the modern super star athlete. Even when they are perfect it is sometimes not enough.

Lendl upsets Connors in Masters

NEW YORK (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, on the brink of elimination, roared from behind to win the final five games and defeat Jimmy Connors 7-5, 6-7, 7-5 Saturday and advance to the final of the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships against John McEnroe.

Earlier, McEnroe played textbook-perfect tennis as he blasted Sweden's Mats Wilander 6-1, 6-1 in the other semifinal.

The nationally televised final (NBC, 12:30 p.m. EST) is worth $100,000 to the winner, while the runner-up will pocket $60,000.

Where McEnroe needed exactly one hour to dispose of the fourth-seeded Wilander, Lendl battled for nearly three hours before getting past Connors. And even then, it appeared as if it would be Connors taking the court Sunday against McEnroe instead of the Czech right-hander.

With the Madison Square Garden crowd of 18,741 cheering his every shot, Connors, second-seeded in this 12-player, season-ending event, was on the brink of elimination in the 10th game of the second set as Lendl led 30-40 on Connors' serve. A service break would have given Lendl the second set 6-4 and the match.

But the 32-year-old left-hander from Sanibel Harbor, Fla., the oldest player in the tournament, received a break when Lendl netted a forehand, knotting the score at deuce. Connors won the next two points with a backhand volley and a backhand down the line.

The two then held serve to force a tiebreaker, which Connors won 7-5.

Connors ripped out to a 3-0 lead in the final set, breaking Lendl at 15 in the second game. He stretched his lead to 5-2 before Lendl, seeded No. 3 and ranked third in the world, began his remarkable winning drive.

Lendl began by serving a love game as he won 20 of the final 24 points. And when he finished his remarkable run, rifling winners off both sides, it was Connors who was finished.

"If I gave up, I wouldn't be standing here a winner," said Lendl, who has lost twice to Connors in the U.S. Open championship match. "I feel much stronger and I'm moving much better. I feel like I can play four or five hours and not even get tired out there."

"I think Jimmy got slow on his feet there at the end. Because of that, he missed easy shots."

Against McEnroe, Lendl said he was "going to try to give it my best. I'm going to run down every shot if I can."

Lendl came from two sets and a break down to defeat McEnroe in the title match of the French Open last week. He lost to McEnroe in their last official meeting, in the final of the U.S. Open last September.

McEnroe was magnificent as he trampled Wilander in his rush to the final. The Swede, who won his second consecutive Australian Open last month, had nothing in his arsenal to even threaten the world's top-ranked player.

JIMMY CONNORS takes out his frustration by trying a new backhand after missing a shot in his match against IVAN LENDL.

"I've played better than that, but I played well today," said McEnroe. "I think he was off his game; I was on my game."

The left-hander from New York, his famed temper in check, did whatever he wanted in the hour-long match. He dominated the baseline rallies, punctuated points whenever he came to the net with decisive, sharp volleys, and tossed in two aces and three service winners for variety.

Wilander, ranked fourth in the world on the Hewlett-Packard-ATP computer, never threatened McEnroe, winning only eight points on the New Yorker's serve in the entire match.

Generals offer Flutie big contract

Boston College's DOUG FLUTIE, seen here with brother Darren, has reportedly been offered a 5 million dollar contract with the New Jersey Generals.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Jersey Generals, in their negotiations to sign Doug Flutie, reportedly offered the Boston College star quarterback a four-year, non-deferred deal worth more than $5 million, the New York Times said Saturday.

The Times, quoting unnamed sources familiar with the talks, said the United States Football League team had gone beyond any previous offer of money ever made to a rookie football player and were ready to pay the Heisman Trophy winner about $1.3 million a year.

Quarterback Steve Young of the USFL's Los Angeles Express has a contract worth an estimated $5.5 million for four years, but some of the money is deferred. The non-deferred part of the contract is worth about $4.2 million, and the Generals' offer is said to exceed that, the newspaper said.

Herschel Walker, the Generals' star running back, is believed to have the richest contract in pro football on a yearly basis, averaging about $1.3 million annually. Walker, also a Heisman winner, signed that contract as a second-year pro not as a rookie.

Flutie, in Japan with his family for Sunday's Japan Bowl college all-star game, said before the game he would prefer to wait to hear a counter-offer from the National Football League before deciding whether to sign with the Generals.

"It (the Generals' offer) gives me some security, something the NFL will have to push to reach," Flutie said. He said the offer "was in the area" of what he was looking for in a contract.

Flutie said Friday from Tokyo that he had not spoken to his agent, Bob Woolf, in two days and did not know details of the Generals' offer. But he said that "if the contract is something I feel the NFL can't compete with" then he would not wait for the April 30 National Football League draft.

Woolf said he could not make a commitment to the Generals until he discussed the proposal with Flutie and that he wanted to wait to see what the NFL would do.

Woolf said he held all-night negotiations ending Friday morning with Generals President Jay Seltzer in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"They are impressive figures," Woolf said of the contract offer. "However, I don't think the USFL is going to let it stay on the table forever. Donald Trump has said he would not want the talks to go on any later than the first week of February."

Donald Trump is the Generals' owner.

The Buffalo Bills own the right to the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft and are permitted to negotiate with Flutie now. However, the Bills said Friday they still have not decided what they will do with the pick.

"I'm trying to give the NFL an equal chance," Woolf told the Times, "but it's tough to conduct business this way. I know Doug is going to ask where we stand in the NFL. Some clubs are trying to get the right to talk to us."

Woolf declined to say what teams were trying to trade up in a deal to get the top pick from the Bills.

Michael Porter: The Hawks' All-American boy

By STEVEN BELVIN
Staff Writer

Ask any opponent the Howard Hawks have played this season and they'll tell you that Michael Porter is an excellent basketball player.

The 6-4 sophomore guard from Harrisburgh, Miss., has been the stellar performer in the Hawks 7-7 record this season. Porter's 21 points, five assists and four steals per game average speaks for itself. He's a man that makes things happen on the court.

Many experts will agree that the total value of a player is measured not just on the field, but off the field as well. In that case, Porter is as valuable as they come since he is on the Dean's List for the second consecutive year.

Porter's All-American court play is matched by his success in the classroom, and the pre-dental student will tell you he's just as proud of his 3.6 grade point average as he is of his basketball stats.

Talking with the quite-spoken Porter, one can tell that he takes his education seriously. "I realize that the next four or five years will dictate how well I do in life. Dentists make pretty good livings and I'd like to be able to have anything I want," said Porter.

Porter admits that studies have not been so important to him in the past. "I take my studies a lot more seriously now that when I was in high school. I had a B-average, although I really didn't try that hard."

MICHAEL PORTER is serious about academics as well as basketball.

When he signed to come to Howard last season his studies picked up and so did his basketball game. Taking the basic requirements for freshmen, Porter's 3.6 GPA enabled him to enter the academic fraternity Phi Delta Kappa. He also spends some time tutoring students in various courses.

In his first year at Howard, Porter blossomed as a college basketball player. He was the unsung hero of the squad that went 28-4 and was defeated 56-55 by Western Texas College for a trip to National Junior College Tournament.

Although Porter was overshadowed by sophomore teammates Jerry Stroman and Dwight Harris, he was consistent day in and day out. He finished the season averaging 15 points and three steals.

This season was a question mark for Michael Porter and his basketball career at Howard College. With the news of coach Mike Mitchell leaving and all of his teammates not returning, he had doubts himself.

In fact, Porter almost took his services down to Houston Baptist for his sophomore year but changed his mind at the last moment. "I had signed a letter-of-intent with Houston Baptist but started having second thoughts and decided to come back to Howard."

It was a big change from the veteran-laden squad of a year ago. First there was new coach Ed Sparling and a host of first year players. Porter was the only returning letterman. To make matters worse, five of the recruits were ineligible, leaving Howard with seven players.

Porter's role quickly went to that of team leader, which he quickly accepted. "The situation with this new team didn't bother me that much. I think it was harder on coach Sparling than any of us."

Sparling admits it was a big adjustment for him on his new team, but says it was made easier with Porter accepting a leader's role. "Michael is a good leader; the team looks to him as its leader. I think he's the only one that understands me," he chuckled.

With so many young players, Porter has had to adjust to the role of point guard, as compared to last season's off-guard and forward positions. His stats indicate that he has performed well. In addition to being the conference's fourth-leading scorer, he ranks high in free-throw percentage (.875) and field-goal percentage (.520). Not many point guards can compare with figures like that.

His play has earned the accolades of Sparling, prompting Howard's coach to call him a bona fide All-American candidate and one of the best guards he's ever coached. That's taking in some good guards, when you consider that Sparling coached ex-NBA greats Freddie Brown at the University of Iowa and Nate Archibald at the University Texas at El Paso.

"At this stage of his development and career, Michael Porter is similar to those guys (Archibald and Brown)," said Sparling. "As far as his work habits, dedication and daily improvement go, every day he gets better."

Porter is quick to credit Sparling with a lot of his success, along with S.H. Blair High School coach Johnny M. Hurt and ex-HC coach Mike Mitchell. "I've had some good coaches in my career, and my dad was a football coach at my school," he said.

With his fast-rising success, Porter knows that more than a few major colleges will be wanting his services after this season. "I want the school to have a good pre-dental program with a high level of acceptance after graduation."

Does pro ball stick in the back of Michael Porter's mind? "It didn't until this year. I only saw basketball as a way to get a free education."

Spoken just like an All-American — on and off the court.

DePaul downs Coogs, 69-58 South wins Senior game, 23-7

CHICAGO (AP) — Marty Embry was fighting a cold Saturday, but couldn't remember whether you're supposed to feed it or feed the fever. So he garnered enough points and rebounds Saturday to keep everything and almost everybody content.

"I never did learn how that goes," Embry laughed after his 17 points and 11 rebounds, both game-high totals, fueled No. 13 DePaul's 69-58 win over Houston in a nationally televised contest.

"But I did have a little problem with wind because of the cold and we've just come off a very hard, intense week of practice," he said. "I didn't like it, but I think it's already paying off."

Embry got an early rest when he fouled out with 2:31 left.

DePaul Coach Joey Meyer agreed with Embry's assessment of the past week, adding, "If he (Embry) plays like that with a cold all the time, he can have a cold all year long."

Embry put together 11 first-half points, including six straight during a key 12-2 DePaul run early in the game that pushed the Blue Demons towards an eight-point edge by intermission.

The Cougars managed to get closer than that just once in the second half, after Alvin Franklin's jumper at 2:04 pulled them within 4-58.

But Greg Anderson missed a pair of free throws less than a minute later that would have put Houston within striking distance, and Lemone Lampley countered with a three-point play at 1:05 to start DePaul on the road to its 10th win in 13 outings and stretch a consecutive-game winning streak at home to 34.

Judging by his mood after the game, Houston Coach Guy Lewis may have been nursing a cold as well.

"We missed our free throws. We missed our wide-open field goal attempts," he said. "Our inside people didn't play very tough. We didn't play very well."

It was the first meeting between the two teams and DePaul moved quickly from an 8-5 deficit in the opening half to a 17-12 lead near the 10-minute mark as Embry and Tyrone Corbin, who finished with 11 points, began dominating the play inside the lane.

The Blue Demons padded the cushion to 23-15 at 8:50, but Rickie Winslow, who led the Cougars with 16, stuffed a pair of rebounds within about four minutes remaining to bring Houston back to within two.

DePaul, however, proceeded to peel off the final six points of the opening half to build the lead it never relinquished.

Houston, 10-4, also got 12 points from Eric Dickens and 11 from Franklin.

Lampley finished with 11 for DePaul.

Senior Center Joe Kleine scored 22 points as Arkansas halted a late Texas rally Saturday night to defeat the Longhorns 64-58 in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

Kleine was unstoppable in the first half, hitting seven-of-seven from the field and six-of-six from the free-throw line and leading the Razorbacks to a 38-24 halftime advantage.

With sophomore center John Brownlee and senior forward Mike Wacker leading the way, Texas charged back in the second half to get within three at 50-47 with 9:13 remaining. Texas' Carlton Cooper missed a layup, Arkansas' Charles Balentine swished a 20-footer and Kleine drove to a dunk that made it 54-47. Texas never got closer than five points the rest of the way.

Kleine finished with 12-of-19 from the field and 8-of-8 from the foul line. He was Arkansas' only player in double figures. Balentine and William Mills were next with nine points each.

Brownlee hit nine of 12 from the floor and both of his free throws for 20 points. Wacker was 7-of-10 from the floor and 4-of-6 from the line for 25 points and he had a game-high nine rebounds.

Arkansas climbed to 3-4 in SWC play and 12-4 overall for the year. Texas fell to 9-5 and 2-2 in conference play.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Michael Adams scored 24 points in leading 12th-ranked Boston College to a 69-66 Big East basketball victory over Seton Hall Saturday night.

Adams hit for two baskets and all four free throw attempts in the final three minutes as the Eagles, evened their conference record to 2-2.

Seton Hall, 9-6 overall and 0-4 in the Big East, fell behind by 15 points in the first half in front of 3,562 fans before freshman Martin Salley sparked a comeback.

The Pirates ran off 11 points in a row, including seven by Salley, to cut the halftime deficit to 39-35.

Salley finished with 17 points. Ricky Burton also had 17 for Seton Hall, while Big East scoring leader Andre McCloud had 18, two below his league average, after getting only four in the first half.

Seton Hall grabbed an early lead, but a run of eight unanswered points, four by Adams, put BC ahead to stay. The Pirates managed to close to within one point before Adams took charge at the finish.

No. 14 Louisiana Tech, led by guard Wayne Smith's 18 points, staged a furious rally to subdue a fiery Texas-Arlington team 76-65 in Saturday night's Southland Conference-opener for both teams.

With a 1-0 SLC record, Tech is now 13-1. UTA dropped to 8-6 overall with its third straight loss.

Tech held a 34-32 lead at halftime, and it led by eight points, 56-48, with 8:29 to go.

But UTA roared back with eight unanswered points to tie the game at 56 with 5:29 to go on Bob Hughes' breakaway dunk. It was still tied at 58 with four minutes to go, but Robert Godbolt made a key three-point play to give the Bulldogs a three-point lead.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Damo Allen of California State-Fullerton fired two touchdown passes in the final five minutes and 19 seconds and Georgia's Kevin Butler kicked three field goals as the South downed the North 23-7 in the Senior Bowl all-star football game Saturday.

Allen, brother of Los Angeles Raiders star Marcus Allen, threw a 45-yard scoring strike to Alabama's Paul Ott Carruth with 5:19 to play and then hit Joe Jones of Virginia Tech with a 10-yard scoring pass with 1:23 left.

The pass to Jones came after Texas Christian's Sean Thomas raced 29 yards to the North 7 after intercepting a pass.

Butler, kicking pro-style — without a tee — for the first time, had field goals of 30 and 32 yards in the first half. He then erased a 7-6 deficit when he drilled a 49-yarder with 10:34 left in the game to put the South ahead to stay.

Butler, the fourth all-time leading scorer in major college history, missed a 50-yard attempt in the first quarter and had a 51-yarder blocked by Brian Noble of Arizona State. It was the first blocked field goal attempt of Butler's career.

Parker rings Freedom win

ATLANTA (AP) — Kevin Parker of Fort Valley State connected with Calvin Magee of Southern University on a 34-yard touchdown pass and Carl Blue of Jackson State scored on a 2-yard run to lead the Southwestern Athletic Conference to a 14-0 victory over the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference in the Freedom Bowl Classic Saturday.

Defense dominated the college football all-star game despite the presence of such offensive standouts as receiver Jerry Rice of Mississippi Valley State. The MEAC defense held Rice in check except for one 40-yard reception.

In the second quarter, linebacker Ladell Wills of Jackson State sacked MEAC quarterback Brian Sloan of Howard University, forcing a fumble that MEAC recovered at its own 2. A subsequent punt by South Carolina State's Alonzo Braddy was downed at the MEAC 34, setting up Parker's pass to Magee with 1:40 left in the half.

Wills also helped set up SWAC's other score, falling on a fumble by MEAC's Reggie Rucker of Bethune-Cookman at the MEAC 25. Five plays later, Blue scored from the 2 with 2:09 left in the game.

MEAC drove to the SWAC 14 in the second quarter, but Leon Thomasson of Texas Southern snared a Sloan pass in the end zone for one of his two interceptions.

Magee finished the day with 71 yards on four catches and was named the game's most valuable player.

Blue led all rushers with 64 yards in 21 carries. Rucker picked up 46 yards in 10 tries and caught two passes for 39 yards.

Dave Risner is an artist, using the human body as his canvas.

The owner of T's and Too's at 114 W. 2nd, Risner began tattooing 10 years ago. "I wanted to tattoo people, so I went to a tattoo artist and asked him to teach me." He served an apprenticeship for a year.

"I don't know what it is about a person that makes them want to get a tattoo other than they're kind of neat. I like them," said Risner. They "tell a little bit about a person's individuality. It's a mirror impression of a person's personality."

"I can draw anything. The artwork is the easiest part," he said. "I try to make every tattoo different than a tattoo that I have done before."

Risner uses a tattoo machine loaded with one needle for fine lines or three needles for thicker, bolder lines. "It works just like an electric pen." But, "it (needle) is going as fast as a sewing machine or even faster."

Getting a tattoo is "a feeling you've never had before in your life," said Risner. He explained the feeling as a cross between a bee sting and a match burning on the skin. "It's more annoying than anything."

"You can't get hurt getting a tattoo," said Risner. "Sometimes people faint, and the only thing that hurts is their ego. You can't get a tattoo and not bleed, because I'm gonna poke you a million times." But "it's not half as bad as what people think. It's all in your mental attitude. If you go in there thinking it's gonna feel bad, it's gonna."

"I'm not saying that everyone in the world should get a tattoo. Sometimes I try to talk them out of it." Risner tries to convince people against having someone's initials or name tattooed on them, because they may not be with that person forever. "I don't want to put anything on anyone that they're gonna regret."

A TATTOO ARTIST — Dave Risner sits in his tattoo studio in T's and Too's, 114 W. 2nd. The downtown shop also specializes in T-shirts, ear-piercing and silk screening. Risner has been a tattoo artist for the past ten years.

He refuses to tattoo persons who have been drinking. "I realize that a lot of times tattoos are a spur of a moment thing. That's how I got my first one." Risner also does not give tattoos to diabetics, pregnant or breast feeding women, or persons taking heart medicine.

By law, he cannot tattoo anyone under the age of 19 without their parents' consent. Because of his moral convictions, Risner will not tattoo a person's face or hands. "I don't want to screw up anybody's life so to speak."

"Since you're gonna wear it the rest of your life, it's a good thing to think about it." But "if you're gonna do it, go to a professional or don't do it at all."

Tattoos can be removed by skin graphs or laser beam, but it is extremely expensive, Risner said. Both methods usually leave scars. Using skin-toned cosmetics made for tattoos, he can fade or cover up the "jailhouse" or homemade tattoos.

The state doesn't require a tattoo artist to be licensed; however, Risner has been awarded a certificate stating that he uses the best equipment.

"I've got the best sterilizer there is. I've got the best ultrasonic cleaner, but anytime you get a scrape or anything there's a chance of an infection. (But) it's not gonna come from me."

"My main concern is if the person takes care of the tattoo the way I tell them to. If they do that, they'll have no problems."

The average tattoo costs $25 and takes 25 to 30 minutes to apply. "I guarantee my tattoos for life. If your colors fade, come back to me, and I'll put the color in for nothing." People ages 19 to 50 are the main ones who get tattoos, said Risner. "The youngest person I ever tattooed would be about 16 years old. It's gonna be pretty tough for anyone younger to convince their parents to sign the consent form."

"Women are just like guys. They like tattoos just as much, if not more than guys."

"Women have always gotten tattoos," he said. "Way back in the 20s, women were getting them." They had their lips tattooed red and their cheeks highlighted with a permanent blush. A well-known surgeon is now tattooing women's eyes with the eyeliner look, said Risner. "They say it's new, but it's not new."

"Now the hot rage is fingernail tattooing," he said. This is not permanent. As the fingernail grows out, so does the tattoo.

For Risner, the hardest part of tattooing is the responsibility. "From the time a person sits down in my chair and I start the tattoo, I'm under an extremely large amount of pressure simply because I can not make a mistake."

Risner gave a tattoo to a man who won Best Out of State, taking a first prize ribbon in a State Tattoo Convention in California.

"There's not another store like this store in the whole United States," Risner said about his downtown shop which he and wife Marjorie own. They have more than 350 T-shirt designs, and do ear-piercing and silk screening. Risner also designed the logo for the Heart of the City campaign to revitalize the downtown area.

"Once your name gets out and your work gets out, if you're good, you'll get business," said Risner. "I've got a pretty good line of clientele. I do a pretty good amount of work."

PRECISION WORK — While applying a tattoo, Dave Risner is under much pressure. He cannot make a mistake because tattoos are permanent and the person will most likely have it the rest of his life. Electric needles used in tattooing move as fast or faster than a sewing machine.

DESIGN — Tattoos are popular with women. Risner tattooed an eagle on this woman's back. Risner says women like tattoos as much, if not more than men.

Hotline says, 'Help is only a phone call away'

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

It takes courage to telephone a stranger and talk about a problem. But that call could be a lifeline, and that's why Crisis Hotline is here.

Crisis Hotline is a telephone number people can use when they need to talk about a problem. It's also volunteers donating their time to assist others in getting the help they need. "Sometimes people just need to talk and don't have anyone to talk to, and we are a good sounding board," says Kay Hepner, hotline organizer. The Crisis Hotline number, 267-4111, is open from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

"Sometimes it's easier to talk to a stranger. Especially since you can remain totally anonymous if you choose," Mrs. Hepner says. "A million questions could be beating you to death in your mind, but you don't know who to ask about them."

"The volunteers don't have the answers," she says, "but they know where to get them." The hotline has a resource of agencies and individuals who are experts in many areas and are available for help and referrals.

Calls coming into the hotline range from how to get something done, such as "who can help me with paying my bills?", or "where is a vet?", to how to help someone with a crisis. "All I can do is listen, and that really is kind of frustrating because sometimes you can't help them more and they want you to do something," Mrs. Hepner said. "When we answer someone, we usually try to give them a choice of referral places."

All hotline conversations are confidential. However, occasionally a volunteer who is unsure about the way he handled a situation discusses it with other volunteers without revealing names. The volunteers discuss many ways to handle problems and often offer each other guidance on handling calls better.

...hotline coordinator

In one call, the volunteer helped a woman list the pros and cons of why she shouldn't go back to her husband. They were able to get the facts out so the woman could make a rational decision.

Another woman the hotline helped came to one of the volunteers she knew and gave her a bottle of pills to get rid of. The woman was tempted, scared and wanted help. She was a potential suicide. The woman was referred to an agency and received help. She is alive today.

The hotline gets some calls asking for help with an alcoholism or chemical abuse problem. The problem with these calls, Mrs. Hepner says, is that unless the person is ready to accept his problem and change his life there isn't anything a volunteer can do.

"Communication is the key," she says. "We may think people are doing okay, but we find out otherwise through talking with them. You have to talk and question without being judgemental. That's hard to do."

The Crisis Hotline is a committee of The Chemical People and was organized by Mrs. Hepner and Addy Brown when its parent organization was formed a year ago. The hotline became operable in June. "We had to do training and gathering people to be volunteers (before then)," Mrs. Hepner said. Donations from several service organizations have helped the hotline pay its telephone bills.

"(The hotline has) grown, but we need a little more growing. We are trying to expand (to more evenings), but we don't have enough volunteers and covering four nights a week is next to impossible."

"What we need more than anything right now is some more volunteers. The more we have the easier it is on everybody," Mrs. Hepner says. Anyone interested in volunteering may call the hotline number during its hours or Mrs. Hepner at 267-6535 during the day. The next training session will be Feb. 5.

The people who volunteer for the hotline are "very caring about other people," Mrs. Hepner said. They come from a variety of ages and backgrounds. "We are not counselors. We are just people who care to listen and can refer (callers) to others who can help," she said.

Some volunteers have experienced problems at home, and "everyone has experienced personal problems at some time," she said. With this background and their training, the volunteers understand what a person is feeling.

The volunteers are busy people, Mrs. Hepner says. "You know the old saying, 'When you need something done, find a busy person.'" Most volunteers work at steady jobs, volunteer for other things and have families.

The volunteers are trained by professionals to communicate with the callers well enough to help them. In five two-hour training sessions, they are taught to ask open-ended questions that make callers express themselves and not just answer yes or no. The professionals teach volunteers about problems they will encounter and how to analyze the types and seriousness of the calls they will receive.

When the hotline is in operation, two volunteers man phones at a time working three-hour shifts. Four people work the two three-hour shifts during one night. With 18 volunteers, the Crisis Hotline coordinators try to keep the phones manned, as well as accommodate the volunteers' personal schedules.

The hotline averages about one call a night right now. Even though it's been publicized, Mrs. Hepner believes many people do not realize it's available. "I'm surprised we aren't getting more phone calls because I know there are people out there needing it." She cites the crimes, chemical abuse, child abuse and other problems reported daily by the media as her proof.

"It's frustrating to sit there between phone calls, but I know we've helped at least one person," Mrs. Hepner says. Knowing the hotline has helped one person makes volunteering for it worthwhile, she adds.

Butler-Black

The First United Methodist Church of Sulphur Springs was the setting for the Dec. 29 wedding of Pamela Ann Butler and Dr. David Black. The Rev. Gaither L. Day, pastor, officiated at the 5:30 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.Y. Butler, 3202 Fordham. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Black, Sulphur Springs.

The couple was wed before a prie-dieu flanked by arrangements of white chrysanthemums in brass urns. The altar focal point featured a massive design of diamond white gladioli, Fuji Chrysanthemums, burgundy roses and mauve carnations. Areca palms, wedding ferns and soft candlelight created the backdrop for the ceremony. Votive candles placed in tiers of greenery encircled the chancel rail and windows of the sanctuary. Music was provided by Frank Anderson, vocalist.

The bride wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta with re-embroidered French Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls and crystallettes. The fitted basque bodice was covered with matching lace and featured a yoke of Belgium net on a sweetheart neckline. Matching lace motifs molded the high collar and trailed appliques down onto the yoke. The bodice back was closed by a row of self-covered buttons from the collar to the waistline. Mutton sleeves of net, applied with matching lace, were fitted at the wrist and ended in finger points over the hand. The A-line skirt of organza over taffeta had lace, seed pearls and crystallettes adorning the front in a Cameo pattern with clusters of matching lace appliques scattered around it. A row of lace edged the hemline in a scalloped effect. The back of the skirt featured a wide row of richly beaded and crystallette scattered lace cascading downward from the bodice back onto the skirt and cathedral train in clusters.

MRS. DAVID BLACK
...formerly Pamela Butler

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a matching two-tiered, cathedral-length veil of illusion with a rolled edge and scatters of pearl centered blossoms. The veil was held by a Juliet cap adorned with matching lace, seed pearls, and crystallettes.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses centered with a cymbidium orchid. Whisks of gypsophelia and stephanotis blossoms touched with pearls enhanced the arrangement. The bouquet was tied with French lace and ribbons.

JaJan Adair of Corpus Christi was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Black of Arlington, sister of the bridegroom, Beth Butler of Baton Rouge, La., cousin of the bride, Jeannie Pearson of Houston, Sherri Pitts of Ballinger and Kathryn Whitfield of Corpus Christi. Andi Huffstetler was flower girl.

Don Huffstetler was best man. Groomsmen were Greg Mitchell, Clint Irwin, Bob Willard, Tony Flippin and Alan Spencer. Ushers were Mitch Wasko, Kyle Pitts, Marc Thompson, Mike Mitchell. Frank Anderson was a candlelighter.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted at a reception at the Sulphur Springs Civic Center. The bride's table featured a five-tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh flowers. The table was decorated with an arrangement of burgundy roses, mauve carnations, white pom-poms and cascades of springeri in a silver candelabrum. The bridegroom's table was centered with an arrangement of fern in a crystal bowl and an ivory candle. Groupings of azaleas and ficus trees transformed the reception area into a garden setting.

The bride graduated from Mary Carroll High School in Corpus Christi and attended Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. She is attending East Texas State University in Commerce. The bridegroom graduated from Sulphur Springs High School in Sulphur Springs and Texas Tech University. He earned his doctorate in veterinary science from Texas A & M University in College Station. He is a veterinarian in Sulphur Springs.

Following a Caribbean cruise, the couple will make their home in Sulphur Springs.

Q.: We've a conventional mortgage at a good interest rate and would like a buyer to assume the mortgage. However, there is a "due-on-sale" clause in our mortgage which worries us. Will we "get burned"?
A.: The "due-on-sale" clause is a standard provision in many conventional mortgages. When you sell your house, your lender can demand payment in full on the outstanding balance of your mortgage. The buyer would then have to negotiate his own mortgage. However, most lending institutions don't enforce the clause, but may raise the interest rate. (FHA and VA loans don't contain the "due-on-sale" clause and, therefore, can be assumed at the original interest rate.) Realizing assumable mortgages are helping strengthen the current home buying market, 14 states have recently moved to restrict the lender's ability to enforce the "due-on-sale" clause.

KEEPING IN TRIM

A regular trim is good for the hair, especially if it is worn long. Long hair is more prone to splitting because it is older hair. After a hair has initially split, the split can deepen and travel up the hair shaft. The hair then tends to look skimpy. A trim gets rid of the split ends, so the hair is healthier and will grow better. It is not that hair grows any better from the scalp. It simply looks better. Keep your hair looking better with a regular trim. Hair must be maintained to look its best.

When it comes to looking your best, you don't want to put yourself in just anyone's hands. At LA CONTESSA, we have built our fine reputation on quality styling, cutting, perming and coloring. Our staff represent the caliber of professional that you can rely upon for the finest in beauty care. Plan to visit with us soon. We are conveniently located at 1508 Marcy. Our salon is open to serve you Tues.-Sat. Tel. 267-2187.

Acne drug may cause birth defects

Caution to pregnant women: The drug isotretinoin (Accutane) taken orally in treating cystic acne may cause birth defects, says Family Circle. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists advises doctors to discontinue use of Accutane in pregnant patients and to recommend that sexually active women taking the drug use contraceptives for the duration of the treatment.

Three recently reported cases of abnormalities show a possible relationship to use of the drug during the first three months of pregnancy. In each case, the defects were major nervous-system abnormalities.

The bride wore a beige Victorian gown of taffeta and organza. The gown was fashioned with a high Victorian neckline, trimmed with lace, ribbon and mother of pearl beads, and long fitted sleeves trimmed with lace and ribbon. A beige satin ribbon belted the waistline. To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a beige hat decorated with flowery lace, which held a chapel-length train.

The bride carried a bouquet of pink, burgundy and white roses mixed in with other flowers. The bouquet was tied with pink, burgundy and white lace streamers.

Donna Bryan was matron of honor. Harvey J. Durbin was best man. Ushers were Nick Williams, Chuck Williams and Chris Williams, all brothers of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The bride's table featured a white two-tiered wedding cake decorated with pink and burgundy flowers. The cake was topped with a glass figurine of two swans forming a heart. Pink and burgundy flowers lined the base. The table was draped with a white linen cloth trimmed in lace. The bride's bouquet decorated the table.

The bride is a graduate of Wellington High School in Wellington and is employed by Big Spring State Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from Big Spring High School and attended Angelo State University in San Angelo. He is

Dear Abby

Woman fears every lump is sign of cancer

DEAR ABBY: Cancer, cancer, cancer! Every time I feel a lump, a bump or something that seems to have appeared out of the blue, I go running to the doctor to find out if it's cancer. Then I feel like a fool when I'm told it's a normal part of my anatomy. Am I crazy? I'm 25 years old and in good physical condition. I don't smoke, don't take birth control pills, and I drink only on occasion. Maybe I wouldn't be so paranoid if somebody told me I was not a "high-risk" candidate for cancer. Abby, what are the odds of someone like me developing cancer at my age? When should I go to the doctor? How long should I wait after noticing a lump, a bump, etc.? The American Cancer Society stresses the importance of early cancer detection. Yet how can a person distinguish between possible early cancer and something that's not serious without looking like a hypochondriac? Please ease my mind. CANCERPHOBIC ing, so since you don't smoke, you are less likely to develop cancer. And keeping your alcohol consumption low reduces your risk of liver and esophageal cancer.

Don't worry about appearing to be a hypochondriac. Early detection of cancer saves many lives and may reduce the extent of treatment needed. For women, regular breast self-examination is essential. It's a simple technique you can learn from your doctor or your local American Cancer Society.

DEAR CANCERPHOBIC: As a 25-year-old woman, you have a 98 percent chance of NOT developing cancer in the next 10 years. Cancers of the lung, head and neck are strongly linked to smok-

Dr. Donohue

Blood sugar tank usually on low

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I don't eat anything on the day I race, and I have got me wondering. How much sugar is there stored in my blood for use in exercise? Would sugar water help me, do you think?

Of course, the high-carbohydrate diet in the days preceding the race provides far more sugar stores than the one I mentioned. But even if you are doing that, I would still think it wise to eat something a few hours before a run. In fact, you can even sip sweetened water during your run.

If you are on a normal diet the blood sugar energy tank is pretty much on low. There's only about 15 to 20 grams of sugar there, about 80 calories worth — not very much. That means there is a pretty rapid switch to other storage areas. The muscles, for example, have 275 grams (1,100 calories), the liver 120 grams (480 calories). After that is depleted, you start making new sugar from your protein and fat stores.

I am asked about sugar concentrations in such drinks. Don't make it too sweet. About an ounce and three-quarters of sugar in a quart of water is preferred by many runners. You should give it a trial, though, before doing this in competition. That is because of the general caveat attached to use of sugar solutions. Sugared water doesn't leave the stomach as rapidly as does plain water, so it can linger there and slosh around, making the runner uncomfortable.

I don't know why you prefer to fast or for how long you do fast prior to a race. But if you are doing so for 24 hours beforehand you are definitely affecting your energy
