Spring Howard College faces 7% cut

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — A tentative legislative budget proposal would cut state funding for Howard County Junior College by 7 percent next fiscal year while the average cut would be 15 percent statewide, a community college group said Monday.

Howard College would receive $1.7 million in state funds, compared with the $1.9 million it was appropriated this year. The number does not include money for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, which is funded separately and was not addressed in the group's figures.

No figures were available today on what such a cut in funding would do to local tuition rates. However, according to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a tuition hike for junior colleges was not included in his proposal to raise statewide tuition.

The budget for Western Texas College, located in Snyder, would be reduced by 19 percent, from $2.2 million to $1.8 million. Speaking to the House Higher Education Committee's budget panel, Stewart McLaurin, president of the Texas Public Community/Junior College Association, warned of possible job layoffs, larger classes and other problems if the budget reductions are adopted. The state provides about 65 percent of the funding for Texas' 48 community and junior college districts.

Because enrollments did not climb as much as expected this year, a formula based on those figures will provide less money for the next two budget years, he said. Using tentative enrollment figures in December, House-Senate budget leaders recommended a more than 10 percent budget cut for junior

But, McLaurin said, with newly updated figures, that cut would amount to an average of 15 percent for the schools. The figures vary widely by school, depending on growth rate and how close enrollment projections matched reality, he said.

Budget leaders had recommended a $402 million appropriation.

Teen death Shooting probed by grand jury

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Howard County grand jurors began considering evidence Monday afternoon concerning the shooting death of a San Angelo youth last Nov. 26 by a sheriff's District Attorney Rick Hamby said the hearings would continue through today. Grand Jurors will decide whether criminal charges are warranted in the death of Joe Garza, 16. Garza was shot and killed by Deputy O.D. Majors at a roadblock south of Big Spring after a high-speed car chase with Big Spring police.

The grand jury is composed of 12 people who began serving a six-month term on Monday There are three women and nine men, including four persons with Hispanic-surnames.

Hamby said grand jurors should make a decision whether to indict the law officer or not by Wednesday atternoon. The grand jury is considering 26 other cases also, Hamby said.

Reynaldo Cantu, former district attorney of Cameron County, had been assigned by the Texas Prosecutors Council to review the shooting death.

Hamby asked the council on December 4 to appoint a special prosecutor to insure "fairness and objectivity" in the investigation. Majors was removed from patrol duty by Sheriff A.N. Standard following the incident.

Besides the shooting case, grand jurors were scheduled to hear 26 other cases filed by the district attorney's office, including nine burglaries, three forgeries, three thefts, four aggravated assaults, two robberies, one bribery, one possession of a prohibited weapon, one unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, one possession of marijuana, and one driving while intoxicated

At his first news conference since becoming the new educa-tion secretary this month, Bennett defended the Hatch Act regulations that require schools to get parents' permission before giving children any psychological tests or inquiring about their personal beliefs.

Director dies of heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Film maker Henry Hathaway, who worked his way up from prop man to director and helped John Wayne win his only Oscar in "True Grit," died following a heart attack. He Hathaway died Monday afternoon at the UCLA Medical Center, where he was admitted two weeks ago following the heart attack, hospital officials said.

Hathaway, who began directing low-budget Westerns in 1932, made 60 films, including such classics as "The Desert Fox," the 1951 film about World War II German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel starring James Mason, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," the 1935 adventure starring Gary Cooper and "Call Northside 777," the mystery with James Stewart in 1948.

"True Grit" in 1969 was one of six John Wayne films he directed, including "Sons of Katie Elder,"
"North to Alaska," "The Legend of the Lost," "Circus World" and
"How the West Was Won," which Hathaway co-directed with John Ford and George Marshall.

Born in 1898 as Henri Leopold de Fiennes in Sacramento, Hathaway was the son of a vaudeville actress and a stage manager.

The family moved to Hollywood, and he became an actor at age 10, performing in short Westerns. He quit sehool at 16 to work at a soda fountain in suburban Venice, got a job through his mother at Universal Studios and worked his way up from prop man to assisting such pioneer, directors as Josef von Sternberg and Victor Fleming. He credited Fleming with giving him his first big break as a director.

Famous balloonist killed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) -History-making adventurer Ben Abruzzo, who dreamed of flying around the world in a balloon as a modern-day Phileas Fogg, had a fearless sense of indestructibility right up to his death, a fellow balloonist said.

"He came close to death many times when I was flying with him," said Ron Clark, 44, who with Abruzzo and two other men became the first to cross the Pacific Ocean in a balloon in 1981. "I always felt that he had nine lives.

Abruzzo, 54, and his wife Pat, 52, died Monday in the fiery crash of a twin-engine Cessna 421 that sheared treetops as it cleared a mobile home park, bounced across Interstate 25 and landed in an open field.

Also killed in Monday's crash were Beverly Mullin, 47; Barbara Quant, 55; Cynthia Miller, 50; and Marsha Martin, 54.

Abruzzo was piloting the group to Aspen, Colo., for a ski vacation when the accident occurred, said Albuquerque police Sgt. Roy Manfredi.

"He always was an adventurer. I don't think he ever had any fear of death or dying," said Clark.

Abruzzo made history in 1978

when he and two other Albuquerque millionaires, Maxie Anderson first trans-Atlantic balloon flight in the Double Eagle II.

It was on the second attempt that the Double Eagle II lifted off from Presque Isle, Maine, and landed six days later in a barley field outside Paris.

The three balloonists received gold medals from Congress and the National Geographic Society.

Abruzzo then said he wanted to build "a bigger balloon — and it can be done — and we'd go to a higher altitude and we'd go around the world in 30 days, fly all the way around the world, entirely circumnavigate the globe."

Had he done it, he would have bettered Phileas Fogg's record in Jules Verne's novel, "Around the World in 80 Days.'

The Pacific flight took off from Nagashima, Japan, and crashlanded 6,000 miles later in northern California in what Newman described as "the worst storm in 20

"It was a flight that was very and Larry Newman, completed the challenging," Clark said Monday. "And it was a feeling of great accomplishment. But there were a lot of ups and downs in the flight and a lot of things we went through

Agent nabs smugglers

ALBURG, Vt. - An undercover agent hired to drive illegal aliens to New York City arrested three people accused of belonging to a ring that smuggled up to 400 Haitians a year into the United States through Canada, the U.S. Border Patrol said.

The three Haitian natives living in Montreal were arrested Saturday after arriving at an Alburg house to meet with the agent, the Border Patrol said.

The ring allegedly charged an average of $1,200 per alien for its services, said Chief Patrol Agent Wayne Preston.

King Fahd faces opposition in White House talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - King Fahd of Saudi Arabia is facing stiff resistance as he appeals to President Reagan for U.S. pressure on Israel to make concessions to the Palestinians.

Fahd returned to the White House today for more talks, over breakfast, with Reagan.

The discussions took place against the backdrop of Monday's announcementthat Jordan's King Hussein and the Palestine Liberation Organization had agreed on "a framework for common action" toward peace in the Mid-Reagan on Monday registered his support for the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians at the start of Fahd's five-day visit. But he stressed the Arabs would have to negotiate an agreement with Israel that also guarantees the country's security.

So far, only Egypt has taken that step. Reagan and his senior advisers are urging Fahd to make it possible for Hussein to follow by giving him the support of the influential Saudis.

Until then, a senior U.S. official told reporters, the administration would devote its efforts to such "building blocks" as urging Israel to provide a better life for Palestinians living under Israel's jurisdiction. The major break would come the day that Jordan is able to announce its readiness to move into direct negotia-tions," said the official, who demanded anonymity.

The announcement Monday in Amman, Jordan, by PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat did not provide any indication of Jordan's role in a possible peace initiative. In an interview published in today's editions of The New York Times, Reagan said peace in the Mideast could not be achieved without Hussein "or at least with the permission of the Palestinians representing them in direct negotiations with the Israelis The senior U.S. official said it was clear the Arabs would not be satisfied if Reagan appointed a special envoy to the Middle East. "They would like us to use our in-

"They want results, they want action," he said. For years, U.S. diplomacy has focused on Hussein as the logical negotiating partner for Israel. Hussein has consistently declined, but last December he resumed talks with Arafat.

"Let's wait and see what the facts turn out to be," the senior U.S. official said.

Reagan, in toasting Fahd at a White House dinner Monday night, praised the friendship between the Saudi and U.S. people, calling it a "vital force in the world."

Reagan, noting that "the future of the Middle East is one of peace," told Fahd that he looks forward "to building on what we've accomplished today.

In his remarks, Fahd invited Reagan and his wife Nancy to visit Saudi Arabia, and lauded the "ties of friendship between our two countries.

Reagan said he and the king "have established a real friendship" through their talks. He said he "didn't know" whether he would accept the king's invitation to come to

The president added that he was "pleased" with the Arafat told reporters that the PLO and Jordan had agreed "to follow up together, the Jordanians and Palestinians, to find a just solution to the Middle East crisis, according to our PNC resolutions and to this agreement between us and his majesty."

Hussein had proposed such a joint strategy in a speech to the opening session of the Palestine National Council the PLO's parliament - during its meeting in Amman in Prince Bandar, the Saudi Ambassador to the United States, said of the reported pact: "Any agreement between Arabs is good. God knows we need some. Bandar said he had few details of the reported agreement, and therefore it had not come up in discussions between the king and the president.

Chernenko on vacation

MOSCOW - President Konstantin U. Chernenko is vacationing outside Moscow and will not receive visiting Greek Premier Andreas Papandreou, a Soviet official said

Chernenko's absence is expected to further fuel speculation about his health. He is reportedly ailing and has not appeared in public since late last year.

There have been conflicting reports on the health of the 73-year-old Chernenko, and foreign diplomats had been hoping a meeting with the Greek official might provide clues on his medical condition.

Diplomats had said the question of whether he would meet with Papandreou had been kept open until the last minute because of his

'Star Wars' bets on uncertainties

A new study says President Reagan's "Star Wars" defense program will cost more just for research than the entire proposed budget for such programs as the MX missile and the B-1 bomber. That eye-opening statistic should be given its due in this time when budget-cutting is a priority on Capitol Hill.

"The goal of rendering strategic nuclear missiles obsolete implies developing a virtually perfect defense against nearly 1,400 land-based Soviet ICBMs containing over 6,000 independently targetable warheads," says the report by the Council of Economic Priorities.

The price tag for all this is impossible to know, since the Strategic Defense Initiative ("Star Wars") program is barely in the research and development phase, the report says. But it estimates the total program could cost $400 billion to $800 billion if it goes directly into full-scale development after the current five-year research and development phase.

That total is considerably more than the budget deficit for this entire year — currently projected to be $220 billion.

Many millions of people would be killed if even a small number of nuclear missiles evades a defense system and a multi-layered approach would have to be taken to build a "leakproof" defense, the study says. Each of the layers would need independent sensors, weapons and control systems and would have to be defended themselves against attack from nuclear, laser or conventional weapons.

As an alternative to this "crash program of questionable value and astounding cost," the council is recommending a more limited research effort aimed at exploring likely weak links in strategic defense systems. "This would provide a hedge against Soviet breakthroughs," the study says, without the possible uncertainties and the astronomical costs of "Star Wars.'

And, too, it would keep us from carrying the potential for nuclear holocaust into yet another sphere — space — where the Soviets and other world powers will follow in this deadly game of leapfrog. A strong defense is undoubtedly the best offense in keeping the horrors of war at bay. But with nuclear overkill already in the double digits, reasonable people have to question how much defense is too much defense. We hope inquiring minds in the Congress think "Star Wars" through as the process of budget dissection continues.

Riggins affair is the datk of Pisu

The big story in Washington was back taking a catnap. not the president's budget or the took at a Washington game.' Press Club black-tie affair honoring new members of Congress.

The accepted version of what happened is that the Redskin running back was the life of the party at his table, which included Justice Sandra O'Connor, Virginia Gov. Chuck Robb and staffers of People magazine. When the politicians started making speeches, John just stretched out on the floor and went to sleep, not even waking up in time to hear Vice President George Bush.

Waiters stepped over him gingerly as they poured coffee and Justice O'Connor excused herself from the table, explaining she had an early day at the court. After the speeches were conclud-

The capital's social arbiters have been discussing the incident ever Many people have fallen asleep

during speeches at large black-tie functions in Washington, but this is the first time anyone can recall someone actually sacking out on the To put the incident into perspective you have to understand the Washington Redskin game plan. Riggins was the only running back the team had. For 16 games he was asked to pick up four or five vards with 300-pound guards, tackles and linebackers trying to pull him down. He did the job manfully and without complaint, despite the fact that the Redskin offensive line wasn't what it used to

Therefore, friends say, Riggins came off the season very tired and he's been trying to catch up on his sleep ever since. Since the majority of the people in the ballroom were Redskin fans, they saw nothing wrong with the running

Youth offer ties that bind

WASHINGTON — In a move that could lead to better Soviet-American relations, President Reagan and Chairman Konstantin Chernenko have approved the idea of establishing ties between America's Young Astronauts and Russia's Young Cosmonauts.

This raises new hope that by exchanging visits and sharing dreams, Young Astronauts and Young auts might lead the way to peaceful coopera

In behalf of the Young Astronaut Council, I wrote a letter to Chernenko proposing the affiliation. I pleaded that we are passengers together on a great spaceship called Earth, which cannot be broken into pieces, with the Soviet Union and the United States assigned separate orbits. The letter was handcarried to Moscow last month by my daughter Tanya.

Two weeks later, the Soviet Embassy called to report that Chernenko had read the letter and that his response was "positive." Then the Soviet diplomat inquired cordially, "Did Tanya enjoy her visit to the Soviet Union?'

I said she had a glorious time and had come home favorably impressed. "Too bad she doesn't write the column, petorted the Russian, with a chuckle. What are the next steps?

First, I have invited the Young Cosmonauts, with White House approval, to send a delegation to watch a space launching and tour our space facilities.
"From this small beginning," I wrote, "I look forward to the day that our astronauts and your cosmonauts will explore the vast cosmos together. We are merely scratching the surface of knowledge so profound, so illimitable, so beyond our present understanding that we should waste no time nor energy on petty disputes."

Second, each Young Astronaut will be encouraged to write a letter to a Young Cosmonaut, explaining why they should become friends and what they might hope to accomplish together in space. Those who write the best letters will be selected for future exchanges, all expenses paid. Other exciting prizes

Third, the International Aeronautical Federation has adopted the Young Astronaut program as the best way to achieve "peace through space." Under the federation's auspices, the Young Astronaut program will be offered to other nations and ties will be sought between Young Astronauts and Young Cosmonauts around the world.

Every generation, if it is to fulfill itself, needs a dream to inspire it, an adventure to ennoble it. Seldom have young people had the incentive that space now offers.

For half a millennium, the spirit of maximum adventure has awaited new Columbuses and Magellans. Now, for our children, it is at hand and on a scale far more vast. Footnote: The Young Astronaut Council is recruiting 6-to-16-year-olds for future space exploration. All who sign up will be eligible to participate in the "Letter to a Young Cosmonaut" contest. For particulars, write to the Young Astronauts, 1015 16th Street, N.W., Suite 905, Washington, D.C., 20005.

If the Young Cosmonauts accept our invitation to attend a space launching, their host will be Pepsi-Cola, one of the sponsors of the Young Astronaut program. Another sponsor, Disney World, will invite the Young Cosmonauts to its Florida resort.

ARMING THE CONTRAS: Since the congressional cutoff of U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan contra guerrillas, the anti-Sandinista forces have been getting weapons from "surrogate CIAs" countries friendly to the United States that are willing to keep the arms and ammunition flowing as a way of ingratiating themselves with the Reagan administration.

One ironic result of this arms traffic is that the anti-communist Nicaraguan guerrillas are being supplied with Soviet-bloc weapons.

The three biggest arms sources for the contras— now that the CIA's arsenal has been put off limits— are Israel, Egypt and South Africa. Each country has been sending the contras Soviet-made arms captured from various guerrilla groups or, in the case of Egypt, provided originally by the Kremlin.

The Israelis captured huge quantities of weapons from the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon. The South Africans captured Soviet weapons in occupied Namibia and during sorties into Angola. Both countries stoutly deny sending any arms to the contras, but a short, cryptic press communique in Israel last year disclosed that auditors had discovered the "disappearance" of more than $250 million worth of arms from military warehouses in the past three years.

In the jungles of Nicaragua not long ago, my reporter Jon Lee Anderson saw Egyptian army submachine guns of Soviet design in the hands of contra guerrillas. Egypt has been getting its arms from the West in recent years, and apparently is unloading some of its huge stock of Soviet weapons, acquired in the 1960s and 1970s when the Kremlin had hopes of making Egypt a Soviet satellite. Like Israel and South Africa, Egypt denies sending arms to the

In addition to the "Big Three," the contras have been getting aid from other countries on an unofficial basis. The suppliers include South Korea, Taiwan, Venezuela and Colombia. And contra sources say that since last August, when the CIA aid pipeline finally ran dry, they have been successfully soliciting "private aid" in the United States. They have been most successful, they said, with individuals who used to work "in the U.S. government" and now are employed by defense contractors.

'Weak' youth wants help

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am just too easily influenced by the other people in my high school. I know some things are wrong, but I get in a group and before I know it I am ing along with the crowd. I guess I am just a weak person. — D.G. DEAR D.G.: The first step is to see your problem and admit it and you have done this. The next step is to do something about it.

Where can you turn for the moral courage and spiritual strength you need? Your friends won't help you .. you can't help yourself ... but God can! He does not want you to do things which are wrong and hurt you, because He loves you. And because He loves you, He wants you to turn to Christ and seek His forgiveness and help. The Bible says that God "gives strength to the weary and increases the power of the weak" (Isaiah 40:29). Get on your knees right now and ask Jesus Christ to come into your heart.

Then ask yourself why you have a problem with what we call peer pressure — the tendency to go along with the crowd, even when you know what they are doing is wrong. Perhaps you give into their pressure because you are afraid of losing their respect and friendship, and you want them to approve of

But often people secretly admire someone who has the courage to do what is right. And the most important approval you can have is God's approval, for His love never

You also need to seek out other friends who will help you do what is right. Become active in a church where Christ is preached, and where there are other young people who are seeking to live for Christ. Biting the bullet ... and other cliches

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer

It's budget time again on Capitol Hill, and that means biting the bullet, fishing or cutting bait and making sure everything is at least on the table if not on the front burner. Nothing seems to bring out cliches like economic debates, and President Reagan's submission last week of his $974 billion budget for fiscal 1986 set off an avalance of them — so to speak. "The time has come to bite the bullet,"

Budget Director David Stockman declared in congressional testimony. Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete

V. Domenici, R-N.M., upped the ante, tellng a National Press Club audience that Reagan's proposed budget cuts require "that we bite 25 separate bullets."

When not chewing a mouthful, Domenici is following other pursuits. "It's time to fish or cut bait, and I'm ready to fish," he told members of his committee.

But Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., wants to know why Reagan wanted to put deficit reduction and tax revision "on different tracks ... If we could put those two goals on one track, we would have a chance of really solving this deficit dilemma.' And House Minority Leader Robert

Michel, R-III., says he has doubts about trying to put tax simplification "on a fast "There may be two tracks, but the first track is deficit reduction," weighs in Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan. Sometimes Reagan's tax-simplification plan isn't on the tracks at all, but on a stove. Several members of Congress say the tax plan should await its turn "on the back burner," until deficit reduction is accomplished. But Dole says he thinks "tax simplification is on the front burner" although he isn't sure if the burner was turned on. Then there is the budget table, frequently mentioned but never seen. When House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray III, D-Pa., mentioned at a news conference that "everything is on the table," including Social Security benefits if necessary, Domenici, his Senate counterpart, proclaimed:

"I'm glad the chairman of the House Budget Committee says all things are on the table. I think that's right. We've been saying that for weeks."

Stockman told lawmakers that if they want defense spending cuts, they should propose specifics and "put some of that stuff on the table with members behind it and maybe you'll get floor debate." Stockman also noted in the same appearance: "He (Reagan) didn't take Social Security off the table, House Democrats took it off."

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said, "If the president doesn't put it on the table, it's not on the table.

And, said Dole, "If we keep putting stuff off the table, there won't be anything left on the table."

If you have the signs, the chances that you have Raynaud's are pretty good. But even if you do, diagnosis doesn't stop there, for the same signs can appear as part of other illnesses — lupus or scleroderma. Raynaud's can exist all by itself, but you're not the one to decide.

The point is that you can't leap to treatment conclusions. It's only when the patient has no other disease in the picture that the simple measures, like avoidance of cold-triggering situations and keeping the extremities warm. alone suffice. And it's only when Raynaud's is not being controlled this way that you turn to drugs. The medicine I mentioned was nifedipine. Others that have been tried include prazosin. Defer tax on profit from home sale

By ROBERT METZ (11th of series)

Rules that allow taxpayers to defer the capital gain on sale of a home generally work to the taxpayer's advantage. But there are pitfalls.

It was one such pitfall that snag-ged Vice President George Bush. The Internal Revenue Service has insisted that he pay tax on the gain from the sale of his former home in Houston, even though the proceeds were invested in a costlier house he purchased in As a rule, capital-gains taxes on such sales are deferred so long as the new residence is bought and occupied within two years of the sale of the old residence. But there's a catch: The new home must be the taxpayer's principal residence.

Bush moved into the vice president's official residence during the critical period for establishing the Maine home as his principal residence. He was forced to pay the tax but has done so under protest.

The IRS likes highly publicized cases like this because it reminds taxpayers to watch their p's and

But if you're cautious, the tax deferral rules will usually work to vour benefit.

Item: If you sold your principal residence in 1984 and replace it by the same date in 1986 with a residence costing as much or more, the tax on the gain is deferred, though not forgiven.

You can keep deferring taxes on gains by buying ever costlier homes If you sell out and move to an apartment after you reach age 55, you may permanently avoid capital-gains taxes on profits of up to $125,000. That sum will go a long way to pay for retirement. In broad outline, that is how the tax deferral

Remember that the initial investment plus improvements and fix-up expenses immediately prior to selling are the "cost basis" of the home and reduce the accumulating capital gain. But be sure to make a distinction between improvements and repairs. Repairs simply maintain a home. Improvements, on the other hand, add to a home's value, prolong its life or adapt it to new Painting your home and repair-ing leaks and cracked plaster are repairs. Adding a finished recreation room, a new bedroom or bathroom are all improvements.

Because you can recapture such investments at the time of a sale, it is important to keep all receipts and records. For how long? As long as you own your home, whether it be five years of 20 years, and then for an additional three years to protect you in the event of an audit by Tax trap: This can be a lifelong chore. Each house in the capitalgains cycle may be improved and, thus will affect cost basis.

There are also offsets from the selling price. Selling expenses typically include the realtor's commission, advertising and legal ex-penses, escrow fees and charges. Deduct the total of the charges from the selling price, and you have the adjusted sales price, which is the important consideration for tax purposes.

If you buy a more expensive replacement home, the cost of the new home, minus your deferred gain from your previous home, equals the adjusted cost basis of your new home. It is this figure that will be considered the base line for your gain when you sell this home in the future.

In the future, if you sell your new home for more than its adjusted cost basis, you'll have a capital gains. But the tax on that gain could be deferred again.

Rent-paying kids learn cost of living

DEAR ABBY: To "Furious in for room and board! When I finished my schooling and entered the working world, I, the child, was required to pay my parents room and board every week. My family was fairly well off, so at first I was angry, but my parents told me it was for my own good — that it would teach me responsibility and prepare me for the "real" world.

They were right. That's how I learned the value of money - how to spend it and how to save it and how to live within my means.

HEREFORD (AP) - The selection of a Texas site for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump was made by "a bunch of consultants who didn't want to get any manure on their Gucci's" by coming out to talk to area residents, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

Hightower joined Gov. Mark White and area residents at a Monday hearing to lambast the Department of Energy for what they said was the agency's faulty research about the proposed Panhandle site.

The DOE "is making the same mistake with the disposal of high-level nuclear waste that this nation has made with the creation of high-level nuclear

"I don't believe they (DOE officials) know what they're doing," White said.

Hightower agreed, saying, "We can't believe their nonchalant assurances and we don't trust them."

Hightower said the government's environmental assessments of the Deaf Smith County site are inappropriate. They were made, he said, by "a bunch of consultants who didn't want to get any manure on their Gucci's and didn't want to tarnish some of their own preconceptions so they didn't really come out here and talk to the business people and the farmers of the area.

The hearing, called by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was before the U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works subcommittee on nuclear regulation.

Tech gets OK for university system

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The Texas Senate approved legislation Monday that would put Texas Tech University in Lubbock on equal administrative footing with Texas A&M University and the University of Texas.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, would create the Texas Tech University System to monitor the university's academic institu-tion and its medical school, the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Currently, one president supervises both operations. The legislation authorizes the gradual establishment of separate president positions for both branches, and one system office to coordinate both operations Montford, during brief Senate debate, shunned a suggestion that the approach would lead to another level of administrative bureaucracy. The system concept, he said, "creates another level of efficiency relative to a major university." He said the system approach is "imperative from a management approach." No money would be appropriated to the school to begin the system concept during the 1986 or 1987 fiscal years because of strained state revenues.

"I would not be so foolhardy to attempt such (an appropriation) if it did" include an appropriation of state funds, Montford said.

County seeking architects for youth detention center

Howard County commissioners will interview architects for construction of a new county juvenile detention center when the court meets on Feb. 25. Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said the item will be included on the next meeting's agenda.

Federal mandate requires that juvenile detention centers must be separate facilities by Dec. 1985.

We really need someone to tell us how large a detention center to build and we also need to plan it for future expansion," Commissioner Bill Crooker said yesterday afternoon after the court had adjourned.

Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Margy Thompson had requested during the court's morning session approval to apply to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for a grant to finance construction of a new detention center. Application deadline for the grant is March 1.

Kirby said the court did not vote on Ms. Thompson's request because "we need to do some more work on it before we can apply.' An architect's plan had to be submitted with the application, Kirby Crooker said if the court approved a request for the grant, the county would have to see if it could attain a grace period from the commission since meeting the March 1 deadline would be virtually impossible.

Ms. Thompson, Crooker and Commissioner Louis Brown made plans yesterday afternoon to travel to Midland on Feb. 20 to visit the Midland County detention center.

SAN ANGELO — Coahoma's Leslie Kirkpatrick canned a soft jump shot with five seconds remaining to complete a 34-33 comeback win against the Sonora Lady Bronchos in an exciting district 7-3A playoff game Monday night at the San Angelo Central gymnasium.

In a low scoring ball game that did not see the first field goal scored until the 5:57 mark of the second quarter, Coahoma provided 14 fourth quarter points to pull out the hard fought win. Kirkpatrick led the offensive surge with eight point in the period and a game high 17 points on the evening.

Earlier the Bulldogettes had found themselves in dire straights, down 29-20 with 7:00 minutes remaining. Sonora had taken a 25-20 lead into the final period and then scored two quick baskets resulting in the nine point lead.

'We got into a run with them during that period, and we couldn't af-ford to do that, especially with a hard pressure team like Sonora. I told the girls to slow the pace down and they had the discipline to do it," commented head coach Bill

It was a slow road back, but Coahoma was up to the challege. Led by the post duo of Kirkpatrick and sophomore Shanna Fowler, who picked off a number of key rebounds in the final period.

Coahoma started their comeback with a driving hoop by Brandi Kloss to pull within five. After a pa-tient defensive stand, Fowler hit a bucket at the 3:43 mark to pull the Bulldogettes to 29-26.

Sonora would not give up easily, however. Broncho leading scorer Gina Heffernan hit a jumper and fellow post Kate Mathews converted two free throws to give Sonora a commanding 33-26 lead with 2:45 left.

This set the stage for Kirkpatrick's command performance. The 5'10 junior put back up a rebound with 1:30 remaining to cut the Broncho lead to 33-28. After

With 5:22 left in the game brought the ball down and fired an errant outside shot. Kirkpatrick was there to grab the rebound and put it back in with :45 seconds left, Sonora was unable to convert either of two intentional foul shots, and once again Kirkpatrick connected, this time a beautiful baseline jumper with three Bronchos draped over her. This brought the Bulldogettes to within one, 33-32.

> Sonora again had a chance to extend their lead with 17 seconds remaining, but failed to convert the one-and-one. Fowler and Jancey Cunningham brought the ball up court for what would be the final shot of the game. Fowler had con trol of th ball at the top of the key with 10 seconds left and found Kirkpatrick, who instantly drew a crowd. But Kirkpatrick was not to be denied as she whirled to the baseline and canned a ten foot jumper that caught nothing but tory and second place in district

Baylor puts clamps on No. 9 Mustangs 94-90

WACO, Texas (AP) — The Baylor Bears used four freshmen and a junior college transfer to pull off a stunning 94-90 victory over Southern Methodist that has made a tight affair of the Southwest Conference basketball race again.

The loss Monday night, the third straight for the Mustangs, not only will likely drop them from the nation's Top 10 basketball circle but places them in jeopardy of losing the SWC lead if they stumble again on Wednesday night, when Texas A&M invades Moody Coliseum in

Two weeks ago, the Mustangs were 15-1 for the season and 6-0 in SWC play and were on the verge of being voted the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

An upset by Texas Tech in Lubbock on Jan. 26 derailed those plans and dropped SMU to No. 4. Then the Mustangs lost last Wednesday to Arkansas and on Saturday to North Carolina State in overtime to tumble to No. 9 in the rankings released Monday.

And then came Monday night's match up with Baylor, which was last place in the SWC going into the

"I can't tell you what an empty feeling this is," SMU point guard Butch Moore said after the Mustangs' third straight loss. "It seemed like we were a half step off all night. We dropped the ball, we d layups, everytning

Earlier in the conference race, SMU had demolished Baylor, 95-63, in Dallas.

'We're not freshmen any more. We're not junior college transfers any more. Tonight, we were winners," a jubilant Jim Haller, Baylor's head coach, exclaimed after the victory.

The upset threw the league race into a scramble. SMU fell to 18-5 for the year and 8-3 in SWC play, just a half game ahead of Texas A&M, which can move past SMU into first place if it can beat the Ponies on Wednesday.

"We ran into a great team tonight," SMU coach Dave Bliss said. "The last four games, Baylor has played super basketball. I think more than our situation,

Baylor deserves a lot of credit." Bliss added, "We've just got to bounce back. We're mentally tired. I've had us on the road for so long

(four of the last six games), it will be good to get home. Haller said his team went into the game expecting to win.

"After playing Arkansas into overtime and losing by two at A&M, we learned how to play in big games," Haller said.

"This is our biggest win of the season, but it's the first of many such wins by these freshmen. To be winners, you've got to make the clutch plays. We made the big plays. The win improved Baylor's record to 2-8 in the SWC, pushing them ahead of Rice into eighth place, and raised the Bears' season. mark to 9-12.

"We didn't give Baylor enough respect," Moore said, "We gave up 94 points. That's the most we've given up this season. There's no reason for that."

Haller played freshmen Michael Williams, Eric Johnson, Frank Williams and Darryl Middleton, along with junior college transfer Edwin Mitchell, for the final 12:14 of a tightly-played game that saw 13 lead changes.
The Bears held a 76-74 lead with 3:34 left in the game when the Bears began pulling away at the free-throw line. Williams, a Dallas native, hit 9 of 10 free throws, Mitchell was 5 of 6 and Johnson added two more to thwart SMU's comeback chances.

'I wasn't nervous.' said Williams, Baylor's best charity shooter (76 percent). "There was a lot of talk around the free-throw line, but it didn't bother me. I was feeling good."

The Bears held an 88-84 lead when SMU's Carl Wright drove the baseline for a bucket, but was called for charging with 1:07 left in the game. Wright's basket counted, but Mitchell hit the two free throws to give the Bears a 90-86 lead.
Wright then missed a 15-foot jumper 10 seconds later before
Williams iced Baylor's win with two more free throws with 32 seconds left.

All told, Baylor hit 28 of 36 free throws. They entered the game shooting only 62.1 percent.

"It's about time some of those free throws starting falling for us," said Haller. "How many games have we lost because of poor free-throw shooting?"

Williams, who also had a career high 10 assists, wasn't the only freshman to shine on this night. Johnson, who has been in a shooting slump all season, came off the bench to hit nine of 10 field goals and all six of his free throws to score a career-high 24 points.

Middleton also scored a careerhigh 12 points with eight rebounds. and his dunk gave the Bears a 83-76 lead with 2:15 left in the game.

The Mustangs got little help from 7-foot center Jon Koncak and Wright. Koncak scored 12 points and had seven rebounds, but fouled out after playing only 28 minutes. Wright hit only 5 of 19 shots and scored 12 points. His 1-for-8 shooting the first half kept him on the bench until the final 5:49 of the Koncak hit a follow shot to give SMU its final lead, 60-59, with 11:54 showing. The closest the Mustangs could pull after that was 76-74 after Koncak's three-point play with 3:52 left in the game.

It was then that Wright may have sunk deeper into Bliss' doghouse. Wright fouled Williams and the Baylor freshman calmly hit both free throws, giving the Bears a 78-74 lead with 3:34 left.

It took Wright only 12 seconds before taking an off-balance shot. He missed the attempt and fouled Mitchell going for the rebound. Mitchell hit both free give the Bears an 80-74 cushion.

Moore tried to rally the Mustangs, driving the lane for a bucket just six seconds after Mit- game Monday night. chell's free throws. Williams then committed one of his three turnovers. SMU's Larry Davis missed two free throws, but teammate Johnny Fuller got the rebound.

The Mustangs failed to capitalized when Moore missed a 15-footer and Koncak then fouled out battling the 6-1 Williams for the rebound, Williams hit one of the two free throws. Fuller missed an easy shot, and Baylor's Paul Kuiper rebounded, hitting Middleton with an outlet pass for his easy dunk that raised Baylor's lead to six points with 2:15 left on the clock.

Queens lose, 77-67

LEVELLAND - The Howard College Hawk-Queens suffered s tough blow in their bid for a regional playoff berth as they dropped a 77-67 Western Junior College Athletic Conference decision to the South Plains Lady Texans.

The loss dropped the Queens' conference slate to 5-6, good for fifth place. Amarillo College is currently fourth with a 6-5 slate. The top four teams in the conference advance to regional playoff action.

Howard has three games remaining with top ranked Odessa College, Clarendon and New Mexico Junior College.

"This was a very costly loss," said HC coach Don Stevens. "We needed to beat the teams that are in the lower half of the conference. Now we must beat Clarendon and New Mexico JC to have any kind of chance. It's going to be real hard to beat Odessa.'

A cold second half led to Howard's downfall. The Queens sunk only 40 percent of their shots in the second period after taking a 30-29 halftime lead. Meanwhile the Lady Texans hit 66 percent of their shots (22-35) in the half.

Behind the scoring of guards Molly Early and Lorri French, the Queens battled back from a 29-21 defict to take the lead at the half. Early scored 19 points, Tammy Winnsmann added 17 points while French contributed 13 points, six assists and eight rebounds

The Lady Texans came out smoking at the start of the second half as they hit 11 of their first 17 attempts while taking a 48-36 lead at the 10-minute mark.

Sam Woodward

President, Big Spring Symphony Assn. Sam Woodward first visited West Texas in 1978 when he attended a relative's wedding in Midland and "was overcome by this absolutely compelling urge to live out here." He left his job as co-director of Tupelo, Miss., City Schools String Instruments Program to become manager of Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale. On the Symphony's tours to Big Spring, Sam met members of the fledgling Big Spring Symphony Assn., and became unofficial advisor on budgeting, obtaining grants and finally on the formation of Big Spring Symphony Orchestra which debuts March 9. "It was a tonic to work with people here. I was impressed with their openness, enthusiasm and commitment." Sam moved to Big Spring, now serves as cultural consultant to local arts organizations on a State Arts Commission grant to the Chamber of Commerce. He believes that with the "restoration of the auditorium and amphitheatre we can become the site of a regional musical festival." A native of Fort Worth, Sam is a cellist trained at Puerto Conservatory of Music, studying under Marta M. de Pablo Casals. He has performed with Puerto Rico Symphony, New Orleans Philharmonic Orchestra, Memphis Symphony, Memphis Opera Orchestra; and as principal cellist with Mobile Symphony, Memphis Concert Orchestra and Tupelo Symphony. He was on the music faculty at University of South Alabama. A graduate of University of Alabama School of Commerce & Business Administration, Sam is vice president and business manager of Faye's Flowers. In his leisure time Sam enjoys gourmet cooking.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get busy at whatever will improve the conditions at your home and have more harmony there. Socialize in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Come to definite decisions' early and then get right to work on whatever you have early and then get right to work on whatever you have planned to do. Action is the keynote. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to see how to have more prosperity in the future. Now confer with an expert and get fine advice. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to study your ambitions carefully and take the right steps so that you can gain them more easily.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't get bogged down with the details of a new interest but consider the overall picture more carefully. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day for being you gregarious self and seeing as many good friends as you can. Make new acquintances.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study how to make your job pay off handsomely now and also gain in prestige. Be your efficient self. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very locquacious ye; be interesting to others, since there is brilliance in this nature. But teach early to first study all the facts before expressing the self otherwise your progeny could get into trouble innocently. One who can then become very successful in life.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

United States avoid it." Castro also reaffirmed his desire for improved relations with the United States but said it will not accept demands by Washington that Cuba end its close allegience to the Soviet Union

"I am a revolutionary, and I shall always be a revolutionary, and I will not change a single one of my principles for a thousand relations with a thousand countries like the United States," the Cuban leader said. "If someone thinks that we are going to sell out, or that we are going to give up our banners, our flags, or that we are going to change our ideas, that is an error. Cuba is a country that cannot be bought, and countries that are bought are simply not respected."

The interview was the latest in a series of recent contacts with the U.S. media, members of Congress and American church leaders in which Castro has expressed interest in an accommodation with the United States. He said that policy is based on Cuba's "obligation" to ease global tensions but that his country is in no hurry. The United States would benefit more than Cuba from an easing of East-West tensions because the "fabulous cost of the arms race cannot be sustained by the U.S. economy," he said. In taking up Cuba on his offer,

Responding to previous over-tures by Castro, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said last week that while the "lines of communication" remain open, Cuba has "taken very little action" toward better relations.

He said the "fundamental disagreements with Cuba include that country's "subversive activities in Central America and South America ... large deployments of Cuban troops in Africa ... close allegience to the Soviet Union ... and their violation of human rights."

Speakes said the United States wants to see action from the Cubans, not "only words."

In response, Castro said his intention is not that the United States believe what we say but rather simply to analyze our ideas, and to go deeper in them and to make objective analyses of events. It is not a matter of faith, of confidence; it is a matter of objectivity."

Mining company gambling on hopes of new gold rush

LOWER LAKE, Calif. (AP) - A mining company is gambling that millions of ounces of gold are buried in the lush Blue Ridge Hills. It's spending $270 million to get to the ore, reviving memories of California's gold rush.

The gamble, for Homestake Mining Co. of San Francisco, centers on the price of gold. Richard W. Stumbo Jr., Homestake's chief financial officer, estimates it will cost $300 to produce each ounce of gold at the new mine. That's the level gold prices have been hovering at

"If you thought gold was going to sit at $200 to $220, you'd have to close it," Stumbo said. But Homestake's financial man doesn't think that will happen.

"A fair price for gold in today's dollars is closer to $400," Stumbo

Although the Homestake mine will scar the land for decades, opposition from environmentalists has been muted.

Those who oppose the plan are a vocal but distinct minority. The jobs and taxes the facility will generate make most people eager to bring the gold rush back to California. On Feb. 5, Homestake began extracting the first quartz-laden gold ore from a huge hole in the ground. Microscopic gold dust is being extracted from the ore by a complex and costly process far removed the large amounts of cyanide used from the pick-and-shovel method used by the state's early miners. Homestake expects to turn out its first gold bar in early March.

Over the next 25 years or so, Homestake plans to extract about 3 million ounces of gold from the pit, carving it eventually to one mile long, a third of a mile wide, and 450 feet deep. A reservoir created by the diversion of a stream sits a few hundred feet from the pit and will supply the 960 gallons of fresh water needed each minute for the operation.

Five miles away is the plant that will produce the gold and a pond that will collect the project's waste, which will include some of in removing the gold from the rock.

The idea doesn't please many farmers whose land surrounds the 8.000 acres owned by Homestake. Their opposition, plus the complexity of planning such a project, delayed the mine's groundbreaking until last August, four years Homestake discovered gold at the

But many environmentalists, including the local chapter of the Sierra Club, say Homestake has tried hard to meet their concerns about the mine's safety.

Homestake's attempt to recapture the gold rush did not come cheap. The company estimated it has spent $245 million on the new Homestake begins its operation at a time of declining gold prices that are eroding Homestake's revenues and profits.

Sales for the first nine months of 1984 were $248 million, down from $255.4 million during the same period of 1983. Profits took a bigger slide, dropping to $27 million, or 55 cents a share, for the first nine months of 1984, compared with Midway Plumbing & Supply is a total service and supply store for Big Spring and the surrounding area, according to Gary Belew, co-owner.

Midway Plumbing and Supply has equipment and expertise to properly repair gas, water and sewer lines and install quality septic systems.

In keeping with its desire to provide total service for customers, the firm carries a complete selection of parts for do-it-yourself plumbing projects.

Midway Plumbing is now located in a new solar heated building across I-20 from its previous location. The building houses a larger shop area, larger showroom and a display area for sales and information on solar systems. A large selection of fixtures and faucets are on display along with a complete line of hot water heaters.

Gary Belew and Arvin Henry, co-owners of Midway Plumbing and Supply, stress that their company's aim is to provide quality service to their customers.
