SS office on hit list in budget

Staff and bureau reports
WASHINGTON — The Big Spring Social Security office, according to a House committee, is listed among those in the nation likely to be closed or "downgraded," but a spokesman for the Social Security Administration said the list is not reliable.

Bruce Carter, manager of the local Social Security office, said he had "no inkling of our closing." He said he has received no communication concerning the local office.

Carter added with a laugh that "we're always the last to hear." He said he was concerned only because "in the back of your mind, you have to be," but that he had no evidence that the local office would be affected by nationwide cuts.

The only information he had on the closing of Social Security offices around the nation was "that it would be taken on an office-by-office basis," he said.

The Big Spring office employees 16 people, Carter said. The office in Big Spring reportedly would change as a result of budget cutbacks by the Department of Health and Human Services, according to a staff member of the House Select Committee on Aging.

The list was obtained by the committee from within the Social Security Administration, according to a committee staff member, who declined to be named. The list was drafted following President Reagan's request in the 1986 federal budget that 17,000 employees be eliminated from Social Security by 1990.

"It's not a credible list," said John Trollinger, deputy press officer for the Social Security Administration.

He acknowledged the administration is conducting a review of its offices and that "there will be some changes" as the review continues.

But, he added, "there are no plans to axe any social security offices. We're in the process now of evaluating all our regional offices nationwide to ensure that they're providing the kind of service they should be," he said.

According to the list released by the select committee, 770 of the nation's 1,340 local social security offices will either close or be

Muse merger

Airline fares may take off with purchase

Staff and wire reports

Southwest Airlines' proposed $60 million purchase of rival Muse Air Corp. could result in higher fares for travelers who have benefited from the fierce competition between the two neighbors.

Judy Richbourg, a travel agent with Skipper Travel Agency in Big Spring, said that Southwest and Muse both charge $45 for a one-way weekday flight to Dallas. A one-way ticket on the weekend is $30.

Southwest has announced that the price per ticket to Dallas will increase by about $4 or $5 on March 17. Ms. Richbourg said she expects a similar ticket hike by Muse Airlines. No word of what ticket prices will be for Muse has been released, she said.

Southwest is planning ticket hikes on several of their flights, but not on service to Houston. A one-way weekday flight to Houston on either Southwest or Muse now costs $70, and a weekend flight costs $55.

Ms. Richbourg said Southwest Airlines is well-known for low ticket prices. "Southwest hasn't had a fare increase since 1984." Both airlines have struggled to offer low prices, she said.

Muse "has fluctuated more. I think they have been trying to keep their heads above water," Ms. Richbourg said.

Ms. Richbourg said Muse may have been hurt because it offered fewer flights to fewer destinations than did rival Southwest.

But Ms. Richbourg said she is pleased that Southwest is considering a purchase of the struggling Muse.

"I think Muse is a real good airline." She said in addition to the no smoking policies aboard Muse planes, the airline's planes are "nicer and the attendants are friendly. I'm glad to know the airline is not going down the tubes. I think the merger will be good."

Analysts said Southwest likely would still continue to offer low, if slightly higher, fares on its route, and use Muse as a high-class carrier at higher fares.

"I think you might see differential fares," said Robert Joedicke, an analyst at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. in New York.

"It's somewhat the same in the retail business. We have Gimbel's here catering to the masses, and we have Saks Fifth Avenue catering to the upper level of the spending spectrum," he said.

Under terms of the deal, announced Monday, Southwest will offer shareholders in ailing Muse cash and stock valued at more than $60 million.

The offer delivers a $6 million to $8 million profit to Dallas financier Harold C. Simmons for his recent $16 million investment and brings feuding executives Herbert D. Kelleher and M. Lamar Muse together again.

Kelleher, Southwest's chairman, had fired Muse as Southwest's president in 1978 after a Muse power play backfired. Muse had been president and chief executive since 1971, when Southwest was founded.

In 1981, Muse founded his namesake carrier, dubbed "Revenge Air" in the industry, and began flying in direct competition to Southwest.

In its announcement Monday, Southwest said Muse would continue operating as a separate airline under its current name, and would retain its current workers. Both Muse and Southwest are based at Dallas' Love Field.

Lamar Muse would become vice chairman of Southwest's new subsidiary, and the acquisition is subject to approval by shareholders and the U.S.

Liquor petition is filed

BY SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Never say die when it comes to changing Howard County's mixed drink prohibition.

That's what Micheal Russell said after turning in 2,560 signatures to the county tax assessor's office yesterday.

"We're going to wait around now and see how many (signatures) get popped out," Russell said.

He and Gary Hopper arrived 10 minutes before county tax assessor Dorothy Moore closed the office at 5 p.m.

They had been collecting signatures since Feb. 8 when a petition application containing 10 signatures was filed in the county clerk's office requesting that the current mixed drink law in Howard County's Precinct 1 be changed.

The law says a mixed drinks may be served only in private clubs. It has gone uncontested since 1952.

"We don't know how many of our signatures will qualify," Russell said.

Ms. Moore said she and her staff will be busy the next few weeks validating petition signatures by comparing names with those on the county's application voter cards.

State law states that signers of the petition must be registered voters in Precinct 1, which roughly conforms to city boundaries.

The number of required signatures must be at least 35 percent of the total precinct vote cast in the last governor's election. That number amounted to 2,421 valid signatures, according to calculations from the county clerk's office.

"We knew about 2 p.m. this afternoon that we had more than 2,400 signatures," Russell said yesterday.

Russell said people collecting signatures knew they needed about 20 percent of all registered voters in the precinct because local voter turnout was high in the last gubernatorial election.

"It's difficult to get 20 percent of the population to sign," Russell said. "We got a little bit more than we needed. We don't know how many qualified."

Russell said many residents want to see the law changed but that they refuse to sign because of the stigma attached to endorsing petitions.

"Petitions have a bad name around here," Russell said.

Another problem encountered by Russell and other people who collected signatures was a lack of organization in the initial stages.

"It took two weeks to really get organized," Russell said. "We only had about 10 people working in the beginning."

If the tax assessor's office certifies the petition, county commissioners have 30 days to call for an election.

Russell said if the number of signatures does not meet requirements, he immediately would initiate another effort to change the law.

Hearings called on Stacy Dam

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — New hearings on the controversial Stacy Dam reservoir planned in West Texas have been scheduled at the Texas Water Commission for April 23.

Meanwhile, proponents of that new reservoir project near Ballinger — the Colorado River Municipal Water District of Big Spring — got some good news during a brief appearance before the three-member commission Monday.

Several groups holding Colorado River water rights downstream of the proposed reservoir have dropped opposition to the project in the wake of a negotiated settlement between the Colorado River Municipal Water District and the Lower Colorado River Authority.

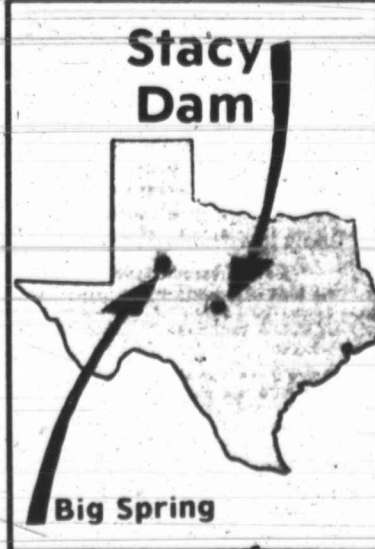

Those groups lobbied unsuccessfully in the late 1970s for the Texas Water Commission to reject the original permit authorizing Stacy Dam on the grounds it would impair their existing water rights.

The original permit authorizing Stacy, invalidated by the Texas Supreme Court late last year, has been returned to the water agency for more review.

In addition to the Stacy project, the commission also will begin hearings April 23 on the Lower Colorado River Authority's application to transfer 113,000 acre-feet of water annually to the Big Spring district to aid in the development of Stacy.

That application is pivotal to meeting a chief objection by the Texas Supreme Court — the lack of Colorado River water available for appropriation for the project. The reservoir, if constructed, would supply domestic water to a wide area of West Texas, including Big Spring, San Angelo, and probably Abilene.

Howard College drama gets excellent rating

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Howard College received an "excellent" rating on its production of "Waiting for Godot" this weekend at Wharton County Junior College during the Texas Junior College Speech and Theatre Association one-act play festival.

Tim Haynes, director of the Howard College drama department, said 13 colleges participated in the contest. The Howard College drama department received one of the highest ratings given during the festival.

"Waiting for Godot" was written by Samuel Beckett. The production will be staged locally at 7:30 p.m. March 25 and 26 in the Howard College auditorium. Tickets may be reserved by calling Howard College.

Howard College students brought home a number of other awards from the festival, including four awards for acting. Winning the "Critics' choice" awards were Kennedy Pugh, Ronda Fowler, Kim Beckham, and Michael Walker.

Haynes said 250 students from various colleges attended the festival and only about 25 of those received acting awards.

Alan White and Ken Owens received an award for sound design for the production. Kim Beckham received an award for makeup design.

Other students participating included Amy Ragan, Lanton Hamby, Kelly Ryan and Brande

Moseley. The set was designed by Amy Christensen.

Howard College students have not participated in the Wharton festival since 1976, Haynes said.

"I was very pleased with the level of performance that the students demonstrated," Haynes said. "We were working under a strict time frame for the overall production. The students who acted in the production were technicians and had to set up the entire set and run the show."

Students were working with "a different type of stage than what we have at Howard College, so it was a little difficult to adapt to a new performance space with minimal rehearsal time."

Haynes said students had about 1½ hours on stage to prepare for the performance.

Haynes said the experience was valuable for the students because "in educational theatre, it is important that students be exposed to a variety of theater styles. This production is what I would call an experimental production for us and one that we have worked on since December. The students have had a great deal of input into every level of the production."

Haynes said the students participating in the producing "rallied to the occasion. They learned a great deal and had a good time doing it."

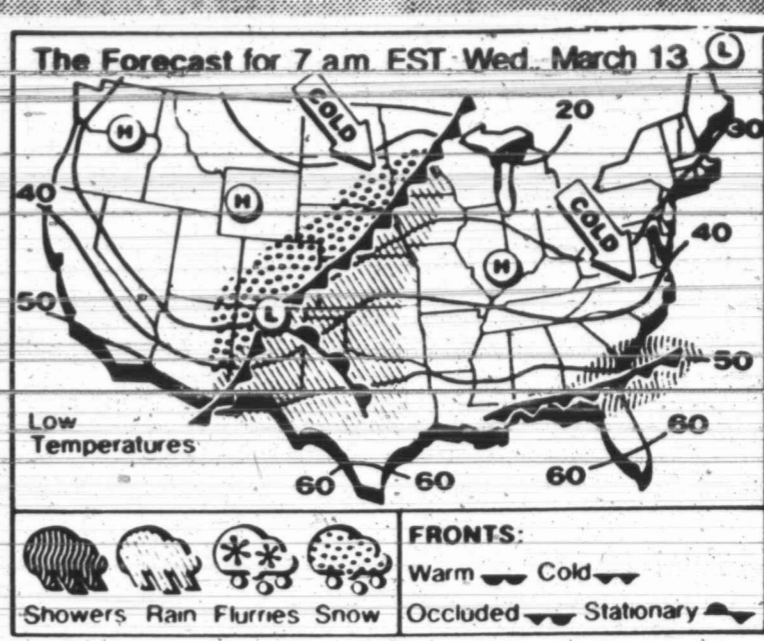

HC students also brought home a gag award, presented by Wharton County Junior College, called, "I want my M-TV Award."

Local

Cloudy skies and cool temperatures are forecast today. Highs this afternoon will reach only the upper 60s. Winds will be southeasterly, 10 to 20 miles per hour and gusty. Tonight, a 20 percent chance of rain is in the forecast. Lows will fall into the mid 50s. Winds will be southeasterly, 10 to 20 miles per hour. By Wednesday, look for a 20 percent chance of rain, highs in the mid 60s and northerly winds, 10 to 20 miles per hour.

State

Light rain triggered by a slow-moving cold front dampened the northeast part of the Texas Panhandle today, while drizzle sprinkled portions of the Hill Country, and forecasters predicted more precipitation later.

The front stretched from just north of Lufkin to near Junction and westward into the Big Bend near Sanderson.

The National Weather Service said a small area of rain was also detected offshore in the northwest Gulf of Mexico south of Galveston, and fog developed along the upper coast and over the Hill Country.

Skies elsewhere in the state were partly cloudy to cloudy, with fair conditions over the south plains, the Edwards Plateau and the Rio Grande.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS — Rain east of the mountains tonight, and all sections Wednesday. Lows tonight mid 30s Panhandle to near 60 Concho Valley. Highs Wednesday mid 40s Panhandle to mid 80s Big Bend of the Rio Grande.

Burglars strike at 4 locations

A red and white Ford pickup truck was stolen Monday from 1305 Utah, according to police reports.

Owner Dale Worthan of Box 204 told police the car, which had "Small Fishing and Rental Tool Co." written on its sides, was valued at $16,000.

Stan Partee of 2811 MacAuslan told police someone stole an 18K gold Rolex watch, valued at $12,500; a man's 18K gold ring, valued at $5,000 and a brown leather purse from a brown 1981 Cadillac between 11 p.m. Sunday and 9:30 a.m. Monday.

More than $2,163 in clothing, stereo and office equipment were taken in two burglaries Sunday night, according to police reports.

Burglars broke into the 11th Place Clothing store early Monday morning, smashing a glass window. Damage was estimated at $100.

Taken from the store were: 55 blazers, valued at $1,100; 7 women's suits, valued at $483; seven denim jackets, valued at $175; and an undisclosed number of blue jeans.

More than $1,750 in office equipment and $413 in stereo equipment was taken from the Wesley United Methodist Church at 1206 Owens, a report stated.

Items taken include: two typewriters, a calculator, a camera, two electric heaters, a cassette player, amplifier, a record player, a turntable and speakers.

Tim Winn of Knott told police someone stole a television, a stereo and a turntable from a house at 1104 Runnels between Feb. 14 and this weekend.

Mrs. Alma George told police someone stole a 23-inch color television, a cedar chest with linen, china and silver from her ho at 1470 Scurry in the last week.

David Rhotan of 12 Village Road told police someone stole more than $900 in tools from his grey 1983 Ford pickup truck this weekend.

Julius Spacer of Lyons told police someone took a cast-iron claw foot bathtub, a wash basin, a toilet tank and tools from his house between January and Saturday.

Don Osborne of State National Bank at 901 Main told police people forged two checks at the bank Monday. The first check was written and cashed inside the bank for $200. The second was cashed at the drive-in window for $45, the reports stated.

The second check was taken in a burglary, according to the report.

Dealon Stanley of 613 Tulane told police someone stole $190 of fishing rods and reels and a six-gallon gasoline tank from his boat Saturday evening.

Police early today arrested Charles Yarber, 25, of Gail Route in the 1700 block of Lancaster on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Police also arrested Jay Turner, 26, of 2505 E. 25th at the intersection of Avenue E and Simler on suspicion of DWI and on Department of Public Safety warrants.

Police also arrested Rory Jay Lawson of 2003 Jennings in the 500 block of E. 17th Monday afternoon on suspicion of driving while license suspended.

Sheriff's Log

Deputies nab Hebronville man

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Alberto Pina Guerra, 40, of Hebronville Monday morning at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

He was charged with revocation of probation for failure to stop and render aid in Nueces County.

He was later released to Nueces County officers.

Big Spring police transferred Pedro Rodriguez, 53, of 3913 Dixon after he was arrested for Texas Department of Public Safety traffic warrants and a Midland County warrant charging him with theft.

He was released on bonds totaling $5,600.

John E. York, 23, of Amarillo was transferred yesterday to Howard County jail to face charges of revocation of probation on a prior DWI charge and issuing a bad check.

Judge Milton Kirby set bonds totaling $6,000.

Police transferred Katherine M. McDaniel, 20, of 113 E. 16th to county jail after she was charged with interfering with a lawful arrest.

She was released on $500 bond.

Police transferred Edna Rita Smith, 48, of 1709 Ayilford to county jail after she was arrested for DWI.

She was released on $1,000 bond.

Rory Jay Lawson, 21, of 2003 Jennings was transferred by police to county jail after he was arrested for driving while license suspended.

He was released on $500 bond.

Accident victim hospitalized

A 9-year-old Big Spring boy remains in the hospital today after his bicycle collided Monday evening with a car at the intersection of Goliad and 21st streets.

Calvin Lewis Tarpley, 9, of 1909 Runnels is in "excellent" condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said. Calvin suffered only minor injuries in the accident and was kept overnight for observation, she said.

The driver of the car, Thomas Raymond Doane, 28, of 1408 Runnels, was uninjured in the accident, according to the police reports.

The accident occurred at 5:58

p.m., when Calvin, riding a blue BMX bicycle, collided with Doane's 1978 red GMC Sierra pickup truck, the police report stated.

Doane had been driving south in the outside southbound lane of Goliad when the accident occurred. According to the police report, Calvin was headed east on 21st, ran a stop sign and pedaled into the path of Doane's car.

Doane's car skidded for 66 feet before the impact occurred, and skidded another 10 feet after the collision, according to the report.

A.F. transport plane crashes

FORT HOOD (AP) — A C-130 military transport plane with eight people aboard crashed today and burst into flames south of Gatesville in Central Texas, killing at least two people, officials said.

Two crewmen were injured and four were unaccounted for, said Fort Hood spokeswoman Jeanie Kitchens.

The plane crashed about 11:15 a.m. near the northern boundary of Fort Hood in the vicinity of a tank trail and a main road, she said.

It was on a "low level mission" from Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene to Fort Hood, said Airman 1st Class Michael Skinner at Dyess. He would not elaborate.

Anna Middleton, a dispatcher for the Gatesville Police Department, said firefighters from several neighboring towns had been sent to the scene.

"Right now, they're fighting a big fire around it. You can see the fire from town, about two miles away. It's almost right on the highway," Ms. Middleton said.

An eyewitness, Gatesville resident Anita Nichols, said the plane was one of three flying in formation.

"One of them just kept getting lower and lower and lower," she said. "I thought, 'Oh my gosh, there's no landing place there.' All of a sudden, he went down and the whole thing burst into flames."

The plane was assigned to the 314th Tactical Airlift Wing at Little Rock Air Force Base, Skinner said.

Troopers charge man in crash

Atilano Guerra Jr., 31, of Bastrop was charged with driving at an unsafe speed by Texas Department of Safety troopers early Monday morning after a single vehicle mishap on Highway 87 near the Tubbs addition.

According to a DPS report, Guerra fell asleep at the wheel of a freightliner that was towing a trailmobile. The freightliner, traveling north, veered across the roadway and struck a guardrail and bridge culvert.

The accident occurred around 4 a.m.

Guerra was taken to Malone-Hogan and treated for possible injury.

downgraded. The Big Spring office was placed in the category of offices which may be downgraded, consolidated or closed." The designation was based on the fact that the office has between 15 to 25 employees or is within 25 miles of another large field office, according to the select committee staff member.

The Big Spring office was not included among those offices most likely to close" since it employs more than 15 people, the staff member said.

She said the list was "leaked" to the select committee in handwritten form, and that the list corresponds to closures that would be made under provisions of a memo sent in January by the administration to Social Security's regional commissioners.

Trollinger said the administration's study of regional offices would take "several years" to complete, although changes in the structure of offices or the closure of some offices could occur in the meantime as a result of the study process.

"We are looking at smaller offices (for changes), but just because an office is small does not mean it will be closed," he said.

Muse

Transportation Department, Southwest said.

Muse Air never recorded an annual operating profit since it was founded four years ago. In 1984, Muse lost $17 million on revenues of $101 million. Southwest earned $49.7 million in 1984 on revenues of $535.9 million.

Under the agreement, Southwest said each of Muse's 4.64 million common shares would be exchanged for $6 cash, 0.125 share of Southwest common stock and 0.125 of a five-year warrant to buy one Southwest share for $35.

Analysts valued the package at between $9 and $11 per share.

Southwest's common stock closed Monday at $24.25 a share, up $1.12½ in consolidated trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Muse closed at $8.37½ a share on the American Stock Exchange, down 25 cents.

Commissioners delay vote on county trapper's dismissal

Howard County Commissioners tabled a measure concerning the vacated position of county trapper until the March 25 meeting.

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said he relieved past trapper Randy Lewis of his duties at the first of this month.

Kirby said Lewis had been suffering from personal problems.

"He wasn't doing his job," Kirby told commissioners.

"We'll wait till next time about a decision to handle it," Kirby said about the opening.

He said his office was receiving many letters from persons who were interested in filling the position.

In other related employee matters, commissioners unanimously approved a salary increase for Sara Mott who works in the district attorney's office and Sonya Zimmerman who was appointed a part-time clerk in the county library.

Commissioners also signed a resolution submitted by the district clerk's office that asks the state to raise office fees for filings of court petitions and responses.

Commissioners also:

- Voted unanimously to accept Brian Road in the Tubbs addition as a county road.

- Discussed with a salesman from Advanced Telephone Systems of Big Spring, the possibility of installing a centralized phone system that would serve all county offices.

- Approved February homestead requests from the county tax assessor's office.

- Tabled discussion and action for an automatic door opener for the west entrance to the courthouse.

Firemen battle house blazes

House fires Monday destroyed one home north of Big Spring and severely damaged another in the county, according to Big Spring fire department reports.

Both fires caused an estimated $25,000 damage each, the reports stated.

"It's kind of unusual that we would have two in the same day," Fire Chief Carl Dorton said today.

A stucco house on Davis Road, located one-quarter mile from the intersection of Davis and Gail, was gutted at 3 p.m. in the second of the two fires.

The house's resident, Jerry Jones, was uninjured in the fire. The house is owned by Lillian Bohannon.

Firemen arrived at the scene at 3:02 p.m. to find fire and smoke pouring out of two bedroom windows on the southeast corner of the house, according to the report.

As the three firefighters were attempting to douse the flames, fire broke out through the front door and living room window, the report stated.

Firemen used 800 gallons of water before they were able to knock down the fire and start an overhaul of the house, the report stated.

Firefighters returned to their station at 4:30 p.m.

Earlier Monday, firemen battled a fire in a house 2½ miles north of the Old Gail Highway, according to department reports.

When firemen arrived at 10:13 a.m. at the John Paul Amos house on Gail Route, the building was still closed up, the report stated.

The three firefighters sent to the scene used 100 gallons of water to extinguish the flames, concentrated mostly in the kitchen and utility room, the report stated.

Firemen returned to the station at 11:22 a.m.

Inmates go on rampage

BOISE, Idaho — About 80 inmates went on a rampage at the Idaho State Penitentiary on Monday in a two-hour disturbance that left four officers slightly injured, officials said.

The disturbance ended at 6:15 p.m. when tactical officers fired tear gas and stormed the close-custody unit of the 750-inmate facility, said Eugene Larson, the prison's deputy director. No inmates were injured, but the prison sustained up to $100,000 in damages, said Larson.

The trouble started around 4:15 p.m. when the close-security inmates, upset about a change in hours at the prison commissary, refused to get in their cells for a prisoner count, Larson said.

After a standoff of about 1 1/2 hours, the inmates began to destroy items in their cells, then used chairs and tables to break into the central core area, Larson said.

Pacemaker problems

ANAHEIM, Calif. — People who rely on pacemakers should have them monitored frequently because the devices, which control abnormal heart beats, fail much sooner than predicted by their manufacturers, a cardiologist says.

Dr. Leonard Dreifus, who conducted a nationwide study of 21,750 pacemaker users, told the American College of Cardiology's annual meeting that the worst device lasted only 31 percent of the time its manufacturer predicted, while the best lasted for 82 percent of its projected lifespan.

But the physician from Philadelphia's Lankenau Hospital said Monday that patients who use the devices "are not dropping dead like flies," because lithium-powered pacemaker batteries fail gradually and the failure of other components usually is not fatal.

Frequent monitoring can detect problems before patients become ill again due to abnormal heart rates, he said.

Bank of Boston blues

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Bank of Boston told a Senate panel today that poor judgment and carelessness led his bank to violate the law designed to prevent money laundering — not a desire to help organized crime.

But Sen. William Roth, R-Del., chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, said for all the attention the bank paid to the Bank Secrecy Act, "they may as well have thrown the Comptroller's notices, the law, and the regulations in the trash."

Meanwhile, Comptroller of the Currency C. Todd Conover disclosed to the Senate panel that federal bank examiners in 1982 were unfamiliar with regulations requiring the bank to report its international currency transactions.

Delegates begin discussion on arms reduction

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union resumed arms control talks after a 15-month lapse today, despite the death two days ago of Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

On the eve of the talks, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the new Soviet Communist leader, urged Washington to join Moscow in reducing nuclear weapons stocks and preventing outer space from becoming an atomic battleground.

Vice President George Bush, departing Geneva for Chernenko's funeral, told reporters: "All mankind desires peace. Today, at this hour, those hopes focus on the commencement of arms control talks here in Geneva." Bush was in the Swiss city for a conference on Africa.

The American delegation to the arms control talks, led by Ambassador Max M. Kampelman, arrived at the Soviet mission on the outskirts of Geneva at 11:03 a.m. (5:03 a.m. EST).

Their arrival was delayed momentarily when a representative of Western anti-nuclear groups walked from the mission where he said he had delivered a message asking for a moratorium on nuclear tests and deployment during the Geneva arms talks.

As the unidentified man walked away, police approached him and they were surrounded by newsmen. Finally the way was cleared for Kampelman and his aides to pass through the mission gates.

Within sight of the mission was an anti-nuclear banner hanging from a huge crane. The banner, put up by Greenpeace, said "Put Words Into Action, Stop Nuclear Testing Now."

The start of the talks was delayed for about 15 minutes as Kampelman and his co-negotiators, John Tower and Maynard Glitman, signed a book of condolences for Chernenko. Then the Americans were greeted by Victor Karpov, the chief Soviet negotiator, and they paused for photographs before beginning their talks.

Today's session at the Soviet mission will set the work schedule for what is likely to be extended negotiations. Actual bargaining was expected to begin on Thursday, taking up strategic nuclear weapons, missiles in Europe and space defense in three separate forums.

Gorbachev made his plea during his speech on Monday accepting the top Soviet post of Communist Party leader, a day after the death of Chernenko.

Gorbachev called for a freeze on nuclear arsenals, a "major reduction of the arms stockpiles and not the development of ever new weapons, be it in space or on Earth." He said he hoped the talks would yield an agreement so "the peoples of the world would sigh with relief."

The Soviets declined an offer by the chief U.S. arms negotiator, Max Kampelman, to delay the opening session because of Chernenko's death, according to Kampelman's spokesman, Joseph Lehman.

"We cannot promise quick progress" in the arms talks, Lehman said, "but we certainly can seek it. If the Soviet interest is as serious as ours, we are hopeful that a common ground can be established."

Kampelman is new to arms control talks, while the Soviets have designated a veteran of the bargaining sessions, Karpov, as chief negotiator. Lehman said he hoped the two men would "establish an immediate relationship that can make progress possible."

The principal U.S. goal is sharp reductions in offensive missiles. The Soviets, however, intend to focus on preventing the U.S. search for an anti-missile shield in space.

2 plan Harrod's buyout

LONDON — If the government approves, London's famed Harrod's department store will come under the control of three wealthy Egyptian brothers who launched a major buying spree of stock in the store's parent company.

The al-Fayed brothers announced Monday that they spent $138 million to increase their stake in the House of Fraser from 29.9 percent to 51.03 percent.

The stock they bought included a 6.3 percent stake sold by the Lonrho conglomerate, which has waged a six-year fight for Harrods and announced it is still interested in making a takeover bid.

Israelis kill 37 in raid

ZRARIYE, Lebanon — Police said today that 37 people were killed and 32 wounded in an Israeli raid on the Shiite Moslem town of Zrariye that the Israeli command claimed was being used as a staging area for guerrilla attacks.

Among the dead were two Lebanese soldiers and 17 militiamen from "Amal," Lebanon's largest Shiite militia. The other victims were civilians, according to the police report on the Monday assault.

The raid on the town outside the Israeli occupation zone came a day after a suicide truck bomber killed 12 Israeli soldiers and wounded 14 others in an attack just north of the border.

Zrariye is 15 miles northwest of Metulla, the Israeli border town just south of the spot where the bomb-laden pickup exploded, destroying a truck in an Israeli army convoy carrying troops north.

Iran reports air attack

Iran claimed three Iraqi planes fired rockets at a residential area of north Tehran before dawn today, killing five people and injuring four.

In a dispatch received in London, Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency IRNA also announced that Iran had launched a missile attack on the northern Iraqi oil center of Kirkuk, site of Iraq's oil pipeline to the Mediterranean.

IRNA also said an Iranian offensive inflicted heavy casualties on Iraqi forces in Iraq on Monday night. It gave no other details.

Men take 11 hostages

OTTAWA — Two armed men, calling themselves members of the Armenian Revolutionary Army, burst into the Turkish Embassy today, injuring the ambassador and a security guard, authorities reported.

They said the men had taken 11 hostages. Sean Brady, a spokesman for Canada's foreign affairs department, said the ambassador's wife and children were among the hostages.

He said the ambassador and a police officer were barricaded in a separate part of the building.

U.S. losing jobs to strong dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The overvalued dollar has cost the United States nearly 2 million jobs because of a resulting flood of foreign imports, a new study shows.

The study, scheduled for release today at a hearing of the congressional Joint Economic Subcommittee on Economic Goals, concludes the United States must reduce the federal budget deficit in order to make the nation more competitive in world markets.

An overvalued dollar makes foreign goods less expensive in this country and makes U.S. goods more expensive overseas.

"Our export sales are approximately 15 percent lower and our imports 15 percent higher than would have been the case with a normal dollar value," the report said.

"The sharp appreciation of the dollar since 1980 has cost 2 million jobs — 1.5 million in manufacturing alone — and cut national output by 4 percent," said the study prepared for the subcommittee by Data Resources Inc., an economic research firm based in Lexington, Mass.

The report was released by the subcommittee's vice chairman, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who said, "Our trade policy is off the track, and the dollar's devastation is widespread."

The U.S. trade deficit last year was more than $120 billion, including $79 billion in the manufacturing sector.

The report says the overvalued dollar has cost 144,000 jobs in California; 104,000 in New York; 97,000 in North Carolina; 92,000 in Pennsylvania; 75,000 in Michigan; 73,000 in Ohio; 69,000 in Texas and 57,000 in Illinois.

The dollar has risen in value because of high interest rates, which stem from ballooning budget deficits, the report says.

"The greater the federal deficit, the stronger the federal government's demand for funds," the report concludes. "The greater the demand for funds, the higher the level of interest rates; the higher the level of American interest rates ... the greater the demand for dollar investments."

The study proposes reducing the deficit by limiting growth in entitlement programs such as Social Security. The report also suggests reducing indexing of the personal income tax and limiting defense spending in areas such as retirement benefits. Other suggestions include raising personal income taxes.

The study advises against an increase in business taxes, saying that would tend to reduce formation of capital.

The United States, says the report, also must "push aggressively" to have its trading partners grant equal access to U.S. exports, which now face many barriers from foreign countries.

"A logical, but admittedly extreme, answer to a country which does not deliver reciprocal access might be an across-the-board tariff on U.S. imports of all the recalcitrant partner's products," says the report, "with the tariff revenues split between rebates to the general U.S. taxpayer public, and export subsidies on U.S. goods shipped to that country."

The study says that "to put the nation back on its optimal growth path, domestic fiscal policies must be carefully adjusted to bring down the cost of funds in the United States, thereby enhancing fixed investment and returning the dollar to a competitive value."

War brews over the grocery bag

Anything, it seems, is worth fighting about when there's money to be made. How else to explain the public-relations war being waged between the plastics and paper industries over the best kind of grocery bag to use? If you've been to the supermarket lately, you know what we're talking about.

Alongside those tried, trusty and true brown paper bags that Americans have relied on and treasured since 1883 you'll see a lump of limp, shapeless, non-biodegradable plastic containers that the plastics lobby would try to convince you is the way to go.

Their argument is that plastic bags are more easily portable — at least for those who go to the store on foot — because they have handles, that they don't leak all over the place when something wet gets loose, and that they can just as easily be used as garbage containers as the paper variety. They are also cheaper for the supermarket, at about 2.6 cents apiece, compared with 4.4 cents for paper bags, and they require less storage space.

The obvious response to this propaganda barrage is that paper bags stand on their own, so to speak, in your trunk, are biodegradable, make a better waste container, can be cut up and used to wrap books or make Halloween masks, and — here's the telling punch — are actually cheaper overall because supermarket checkers can pack them 18 percent faster than the plastic.

It shouldn't come as any surprise that these opposing claims come from the respective industries struggling to win the hearts, minds and bulk orders of supermarket chains around the country. But what about the poor consumer? Surveys have been conducted, of course, and it turns out, not too surprisingly, to be a mixed bag. But the majority of us are quite happy with our brown paper bags, thank you.

We took our own poll, of course, at a meeting among colleagues. A summary of the spirited debate that took place would be unprintable, but the result was a resounding victory for the paper-baggers, which may account for the somewhat biased tone of this editorial. This is a war for the survival of a way of life, after all, and we're taking no prisoners. At least on paper.

Riding the dollar has its ups, downs

So you're bored with your hum-drum job? Looking for a line of work that offers excitement and danger? I've got just the thing. Not lion taming or skydiving or joining up with the contras in Nicaragua — those are for the timid. If you really want to test your bravery, become a currency trader.

Lately, riding the dollar has been more, um, eventful than jumping on a Brahma bull. Getting off can be even trickier, since you can go broke just as easily on other currencies.

There is no market quite like this one. Week before last, Paul Volcker mumbled something suggesting that money was going to be a little tighter and the dollar rose like a rocket. Last week, he warned vaguely that the dollar might weaken and it promptly nosedived.

Paul Volcker saying the dollar may weaken is like God personally informing you that you're in the running for a place in Hell. It gets your attention, because the man can make it happen. Whether Volcker will do so is anyone's guess, but last week the market wasn't eager to bet against his prediction. Whether he should take steps to weaken the dollar is a hard question, too.

A strong dollar is, on balance, a good thing. If you doubt it, compare the health of the economy today with its condition five years ago, when the dollar was chronically anemic. But the dollar is less the cause of anything than the symptom.

The main source of its recent strength is general confidence in the fundamental health of the U.S. economy. Real interest rates are high in large part because real returns on investment are high. High rates are supposed to choke off capital formation, but in this economic expansion they haven't. In fact, investment has boomed. That's because investors fully expect the payoff from their projects to exceed the cost of borrowing.

There are good reasons for their confidence. Economic growth has been brisk. Inflation has been low. The federal government, which under Jimmy Carter was often downright hostile to profits, has trimmed taxes and eased regulation. Basic advances like the computer revolution hold out the prospect of dramatic improvements in efficiency and productivity.

It isn't just the state of the U.S. economy that affects the demand for dollars, but also how it compares with its rivals. The economies of Western Europe have been struggling for some time — their average unemployment last year stood at 11 percent, higher than ours in the depths of the 1981-82 recession. This is largely because European leaders haven't taken the steps Ronald Reagan has to curb government, enhance the attractiveness of productive activity and unleash the private sector.

Obviously, there are disadvantages to a strong dollar. The most obvious is the pain inflicted on exporters and businesses which compete with imports, whose prices are driven steadily down by growing competition from abroad. But an abrupt decline in inflation is bound to make casualties out of producers who profited from rising prices. That is regrettable, but not regrettable enough to justify reversing policy.

Still, there is such a thing as a too-strong dollar. At some point, disinflation can become deflation. Some supply-side economists think it already has, and the dollar's continuing climb (at least until last Wednesday) makes the claim at least plausible.

What the Federal Reserve Board should aim at is price stability — neither inflation nor deflation. So far the economy's growth argues against faster monetary expansion. But if the dollar starts to soar again, the Fed ought to be alert for signs that the economy is stalling for lack of money.

In this case of the dollar, predicting is a hazardous game. That's what makes trading in currencies the last refuge of the jaded thrill-seeker. It may be a headache, but it's never a bore.

OAS says 'yes' to luxury items

WASHINGTON — Extravagance in the furnishing of Washington's diplomatic residences is of no concern to American taxpayers — except when the diplomat involved is the secretary-general of the Organization of American States. The U.S. government pays 67 cents of every dollar in the OAS budget, which is currently running at $93 million a year.

At a time when an OAS spokesman admitted that "we are facing serious problems with the budget," the organization has spent nearly $150,000 to spruce up the secretary-general's residence in a high-rent district of the capital.

The casual OAS attitude toward money surfaced last year when it was revealed that the former secretary-general, Argentine millionaire Alejandro Orfila, was still drawing his salary from the OAS months after he went to work for a public-relations firm. The official residence was refurbished for his successor, Jose Baena Soares of Brazil.

There is no doubt that the mansion, valued at $1.8 million, required some serious repair work. Floors were rotting, windows and doors had to be replaced, plaster was crumbling and a new retaining wall was needed.

But some of the other expenditures seem to be for things a diplomat might be expected to provide for himself — instead of charging to the taxpayers. OAS documents obtained by my associate Donald Goldberg list some of the little luxuries bought for the Baena Soares home:

- Two king-size, one queen-size, one full-size and two twin mattress-and-box spring sets, at a total cost of $2,780.49.
- A series of mirrored glass doors and wall pieces: $1,931.95.
- A 19-inch color TV: $527.77.
- $3,100 worth of linens, blankets, towels, napkins, tablecloths, quilts, comforters, placemats and pillows.

The OAS spokesman said the refurbishing project had been approved before Baena Soares' election as secretary-general last March. If so, the elegant touching up continued after Baena Soares moved in. One detailed document "for refurbishing at residence of Ambassador and Mrs. Baena Soares" was dated Oct. 5, 1984. It gives a room-by-room rundown on drapes and upholstery:

- Pongee-textured, floor-length draperies in the hallway: $800.
- Floral-print drapes and matching sofa fabric in the library: $3,000.
- Drapes and fabric in the family room: nearly $3,000.
- Master bedroom drapes and upholstery: $4,000.
- Son's bedroom curtains: $1,300.

The total bill for the drapes and upholstery work done in the fall came to more than $24,000. The OAS spokesman said the organization's Permanent Council had approved all the costs of refurbishing the secretary-general's residence, but my sources are skeptical that the council was informed of the details. They also say that when inquiries were made by my associate, officials quickly passed word to employees not to talk.

HELP ON THE WAY?: Better late than never, I guess. Congress finally seems to be taking an interest in the confusion caused by the Justice Department's breakup of AT&T. If a bill introduced by Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., is passed, Ma Bell's orphans will get some help from the Federal Trade Commission.

The bill would plug a regulatory loophole by giving the FTC authority to keep tabs on the various long-distance services being offered to the public with a maximum of competitive hustle and a minimum of enlightenment.

Economists predicting recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy, which just completed a year of the strongest growth in three decades, could very well be in a recession next year, economists say, but the downturn will be less severe than the last recession.

That is the forecast of many of the nation's top economists. Even those who are not calling for an outright recession believe the country will be in a hybrid known as a "growth recession" next year.

In a growth recession, the nation's output of goods and services — the gross national product — keeps expanding but at a pace that is so slow that the unemployment rate begins rising as well.

The traditional view is that the GNP needs to grow at an annual rate of at least 3 percent to create enough jobs to accommodate a growing labor force.

But the nation's Big Three economic forecasting firms — Wharton Econometrics, Chase Econometrics and Data Resources Inc. — all call for growth in 1986 below 2.5 percent. By comparison, the economy grew 6.9 percent last year, the strongest increase since 1951.

Lawrence Chimerine, chief economist at Chase, said his firm expects a growth recession to begin in late 1985 and continue into the first half of 1986.

"We don't think we will have a serious recession, but by no means are we forecasting buoyant growth," he said.

As a result, Chimerine and many other economists have an equally bleak outlook for unemployment, predicting virtually no improvement in the jobless rate over the next two years.

The civilian unemployment rate reached a post-Depression peak during the last recession of 10.7 percent in November 1982.

While unemployment dropped dramatically during the early part of the recovery, those big gains have disappeared. The government said Friday that unemployment stood at 7.3 percent of the civilian workforce in February, 0.1 percentage point higher than the jobless rate last June.

Even the Reagan administration is predicting unemployment will be down only slightly to 7 percent by the end of the year.

The administration, however, is more optimistic about the economy's overall performance, forecasting growth of 4 percent annually for the next four years with no recession in sight through the end of this decade.

While the consensus among private forecasters is for growth this year of 3.5 percent to 4 percent, the estimate for next year is much lower. A recent survey among members of the National Association of Business Economists found that a majority believed the next recession would begin in 1986.

Ben Laden, president of the association, said this view was only slightly more pessimistic than the mainline forecasting firms.

"The difference between our forecast of a mild recession and the slowdown they have is relatively small," he said.

Laden, who is chief economist for T. Rowe Price Associates, an investment firm, said he expected the economy would dip into a short recession from April through September of next year.

He predicted it will be a mild recession with the unemployment rate rising to only 8 percent before growth resumes in the final months of the year.

One reason many economists believe the next recession will be milder than the steep 1981-82 downturn is that some of the problems that plagued the economy through the 1970s — soaring oil prices and high inflation — are no longer present.

Those economists who believe the economy can escape an outright recession think the Federal Reserve Board will come to the rescue by pushing interest rates lower if growth begins to weaken. The central bank did just that last fall after growth slowed dramatically from July through September.

"We see inflation staying low and that will give the Fed the flexibility to keep the expansion going," said Robert Wescott, senior economist at Wharton.

Uniformly, economists cite huge federal budget deficits as the reason they believe this recovery will not last as long as the average expansion.

The budget deficit, economists believe, gobbles up the money the private sector needs to expand and drives up interest rates. While high interest rates attract overseas investment, this pumps up the value of the dollar and bloats the country's foreign trade deficit.

The strong dollar has drawn imports into the country in record numbers because the products are now cheaper while making U.S. exports more expensive and thus harder to sell overseas.

The country's budget deficit is expected to hit a record $222.2 billion this year and the trade deficit, the difference between what the country imports and what it sells abroad, is projected to total $140 billion, up almost four-fold since 1982.

The huge trade deficit translates into lower domestic growth because U.S. firms are losing out both in their overseas sales and in competition with imports.

Not every economist shares in the widespread pessimism. Some believe that Congress will make significant cuts in the budget deficit this year, averting any danger that credit will be crowded out.

One of the most optimistic is Jack Albertine, president of the American Business Conference.

"I think there will be significant government spending reductions in 1985 and we will have average growth for the next five to six years," he said. "The conventional economic wisdom has been absolutely wrong for the past three years."

Shaw snubs Texans in horse racing vote

To the editor:
I was appalled by the way our State Representative Larry Don Shaw used the minorities in this state of Texas as the pawns in the political battle of House Bill No. 440. Rep. Shaw was against Bill No. 440, which would allow pari-mutual horse racing in Texas.

When Rep. Shaw had to face the polling majority, he resorted to dirty politics with his use of minorities in the middle. State and federal governments consider minorities to be Women, Hispanics, Negroes, Asians, Indians, and etc. By using minorities, one hand washes the other. This tactic takes away all rights of every American in a free society. The minorities should have their freedom of choice to invest in a race track, or to bid on a construction contract. It should not be mandated by laws by percentage points, but rather by freedom of choice. Just a straight vote on a stated issue was too much to ask of our representative.

As for organized crime, and other states surrounding Texas, they didn't want this bill to pass either. They would stand to lose control of their bettors and money if it were legalized.

A pari-mutual race track is heavily policed and audited by officials in every state. A state racing commission governs every track. Each person employed or actively engaged in racing is checked and finger printed before being licensed. Therefore, accused or convicted felons and criminal activities are restricted from a pari-mutual track. It is of importance to all that the tracks are actively policed.

Well, people, I do hope as taxpayers you are ready for new and more taxes. As the state budget demands more taxes, our schools demand more money, county and city governments will also need an increase as our economy presses downward — Are you ready for this? Shaw believes that you would rather pay more taxes!

Drug combination helps shingles pain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor had me on Tegretol for shingles pain, which has gone on unabated now for more than four months. And there is no sign of it even getting a bit better. Now my doctor wants to try me on more potent medicines. It is a combination of drugs. What kind is he referring to? Is there any drug you can recommend? — J.S.

Many drugs are being tried for relief of post-shingles pain, and Tegretol is one that has helped some people. Unfortunately, you were not in that category. I don't know what specific drugs your doctor has in mind next. One notable combination is of amitriptyline and fluphenazine. That may be it. The amitriptyline is good for nighttime relief, and is, in fact, taken at bedtime for that reason. The other drug I mentioned is taken in varying dosage schedules during the daytime. Success rates as high as 75 percent have been reported with this combination.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My son has been diagnosed as having keratoconus of the eyes. He has worn contact lenses for six years. Could that have caused the problem? I would like to know the seriousness of this disease and something that we can do to help him. — Mrs. H.J.

Keratoconus is the thinning of the cornea that results in a cone-shaped bulge. Vision is distorted by the abnormal bending of light rays through the cornea, the clear covering over the iris and pupil. I can't relate your son's problem to wearing of contact lenses.

In fact, contact lenses are used often to hold in the bulge and correct vision. The cause of keratoconus is not known, but it was a problem long before contact lenses came on the scene. If keratoconus progresses and the bulging increases, then a corneal transplant is the effective treatment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I suffer from Morton's neuroma. I take Dolobid for it but it doesn't seem to be working. Is surgery the only answer? — Mrs. G.M.

Any neuroma means a growth of nerve tissue. The Morton's kind occurs in nerves on the bottom of the foot, the ball area, often near the third and fourth toes. If the tissue swells sufficiently it can compress nerve fibers and cause pain. Some are helped with metatarsal pads to distribute body weight and take pressure from the nerve area.

Non-steroidal pain medicines like yours are usually of some help, and sometimes steroids are injected into the area of the swelling to shrink the tissue. If these methods don't bring relief, then surgery to relieve the pressure is considered.

Garden clubs to host district convention

The Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs will host the 39th Annual Convention of District I of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. at Holiday Inn, March 19-20.

Wanda Sparkman, national accredited flower show judge and design instructor, will critique exhibitions during the "Fantasy of Spring" program, March 19. Mrs. Sparkman began her garden club work in New Orleans, La. and eventually became a nationally accredited flower show judge there in 1960 and received her life certificate in 1969.

She worked with the Women's Division of the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce and the mayor's office on many civic projects and presented many horticulture and design programs on WDSU-TV and the educational channel. Mrs. Sparkman also taught classes in flower arranging throughout Louisiana. Since that time, she has moved to Odessa where she has been active with many Odessa civic, cultural, art and business organizations. Mrs. Sparkman is a past president and charter member of Mildred Fly Garden Club and past president of Odessa Garden Club, Council of Odessa Garden Clubs, Judges Advanced Study Club and Southern Zone Judges Council. She is second vice director of District I Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. and will serve a second term as new instructors chairman for the Texas Garden Clubs, Inc.

WANDA SPARKMAN ...to critique

Mrs. Sparkman became a flower show schools instructor in 1982 and has presented programs and taught schools in Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, New Mexico and Texas. She will represent Texas at the National Flower Show in Nashville, Tenn. and will exhibit an entry in the design division. Exhibitors in this show were first recommended by their districts, then state organization, and finally chosen by a committee. This is a high honor for her.

Among the events taking place during the pre-convention period, Mrs. L.G. Clinton Jr., president of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., and Mrs. John M. Jacobsen Jr., director of District I Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., will be honored during a tea, March 19. That evening will be concluded by a pre-convention dinner and style show by J.W. Charde's at Big Spring Country Club.

The convention begins March 20 with a breakfast at the Patio Room of Holiday Inn. Gary Tabor, superintendent of parks for the City of Big Spring, will speak at the event. A program "Landscaping with Color" will also be presented.

Mrs. J.K. Somerville will preside at the general assembly, during which the district business meeting will be held, district awards presented, and 1985-1987 officers installed. A luncheon will honor district and state officers, scholarship recipients, convention chairmen and youth communication recipients will begin at 12:15. Mrs. Sparkman will present a program "Spring Into Action" prior to the convention's conclusion.

Dear Abby

Man responds about removing cowboys hats

DEAR ABBY: On the subject of cowboys wearing their hats indoors: In more genteel times, restaurants had coatrooms, which had proper spaces for hats and someone to watch them and prevent their being pilfered.

Nowadays, if a restaurant has a coatroom at all, it is "at the customer's risk" and has no place even to hang a hat. Often not even a peg exists, necessitating either wearing the hat during meals or putting it on the seat of an adjacent chair, subject to being slopped on by careless waiters, or sat upon by incoming customers!

I sometimes hang my hat on any convenient projection from the wall, be it steer horns, false beams or a bookcase. In rowdier places, I have been known to take out a knife, stick it in a wall plank and hang my hat thereupon.

Lucky (and rare) is the home nowadays that has a hall closet, much less one with room for anything but a ski cap. Throwing the coats on the bed in the spare bedroom often results in coats landing atop a hat and crushing it — sometimes the coats even have people still in them!

DEAR ABBY: Your column about the cowboy hat reminded me of a story that circulated in the Houston area about the former Houston Oilers coach, Bum Phillips, now coach of the New Orleans Saints.

Bum always wore his 10-gallon hat, which made him easily identifiable on the sidelines at football games. However, he never wore his hat when the Oilers played at home in the Astrodome.

A reporter once asked Bum why he never wore his cowboy hat at a home game. As the story goes, he replied, "My mama taught me that a gentleman always removes his hat when he enters a home, and the Astrodome is home to me."

MARCIA B., TEXAN

DEAR ABBY: I know why cowboys always wear their 10-gallon hats. An honest-to-God cowboy wears his hat to shade his eyes from the scorching sun, but his face gets tanned anyway, taking on the look of leather. Meanwhile his forehead is as fair as a newborn baby's bottom, and if he removes his hat, he will look silly with his tan face and his pale forehead, so he never takes his hat off unless he's going to bed.

COWBOY'S GIRLFRIEND

DEAR ABBY: Who said a cowboy never removes his hat? I just saw Gene Autry on the news. He was all dressed up in his spiffy western clothes, including a beautiful 10-gallon hat, but when a lady approached him, I noticed that he took his hat off. Now, there's a gentleman for you!

Come to think of it, John Wayne always took his hat off in the presence of a lady, and so did Hopalong Cassidy, Gary Cooper and George Montgomery.

LOVES OLD WESTERNS

DEAR ABBY: True. All of the above had good manners. Also hair.

Dottie Sampley
ABWA Woman of the Year

Dottie Sampley was chosen as 1985 Woman of the Year by Scenic Chapter, American Business Women's Association for her "community contributions, Scenic Chapter service and achievements in her career." Dottie, who was born and raised in a rural community near Lubbock, has been in agriculture nearly 25 years. She began with USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Lubbock, right out of high school. In 1974 she moved to USDA Federal Crop Insurance Corporation as a clerk typist; when she asked to be a field adjuster her supervisor said, "You've got to be kidding," because women were not working in the field. Dottie became a field adjuster, then field supervisor, and was promoted to district director in 1981, one of the first women to achieve that position since the USDA-FCIC was established in 1939! Dottie's district, which includes Howard County, was recently expanded from 12 counties to 35! She supervises 16 contract loss adjusters. Her other responsibilities include public relations and distributing information to the public and farming community. Dottie transferred here from McKinney in 1981 with daughter, Dawn, 16, and son Shawn, 21. Dottie has served as ABWA liaison with the Salvation Army for Dress An Angel for Christmas program. She's an active member of BSHS Band Boosters and other school parent support groups. Dottie "loves people," enjoys country music and dancing, and likes to read — "mostly crop insurance procedures."

Moscow in mourning

Soviet citizens pay tribute to Chernenko, welcome new party chief

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet citizens lined up in freezing temperatures today to view the body of late President Konstantin U. Chernenko, and soldiers chipped ice from gutters and scrubbed streets and sidewalks to prepare for his funeral.

Mikhail S. Gorbachev, 54, an agronomist and lawyer chosen to succeed the 73-year-old Chernenko as Communist Party chief only four hours after the death announcement, told the party central committee Monday he was ready to seek "termination" of the arms race and stressed the need to build the economy.

He said he was offering a freeze of nuclear arsenals and an end to deployment of missiles. If the United States responded in kind, "the peoples of the world would sigh with relief," he said.

The smooth transition came on the eve of the resumption of U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms control talks in Geneva, Switzerland. The talks had been suspended for 15 months.

Gorbachev's picture dominated morning editions of the national Soviet newspapers, adding to the air of briskness that surrounded the swiftest transition in Soviet history. Chernenko's photo was on the second pages. In the past, deceased leaders were on the front page.

Chernenko, who died Sunday night of lung, heart and liver ailments, is to be buried Wednesday under the cobblestones of Red Square.

Gorbachev led the other nine members of the ruling Politburo in viewing the body again today, and Gorbachev offered his condolences to Chernenko's widow, Anna Dmitrievna Gorbachev, who heads the funeral commission, had also led some Politburo members into the House of Unions Monday night to view Chernenko's body.

With the announcement of Chernenko's death, Moscow and the rest of this vast country went into official mourning — the Soviet Union's third succession in 28 months.

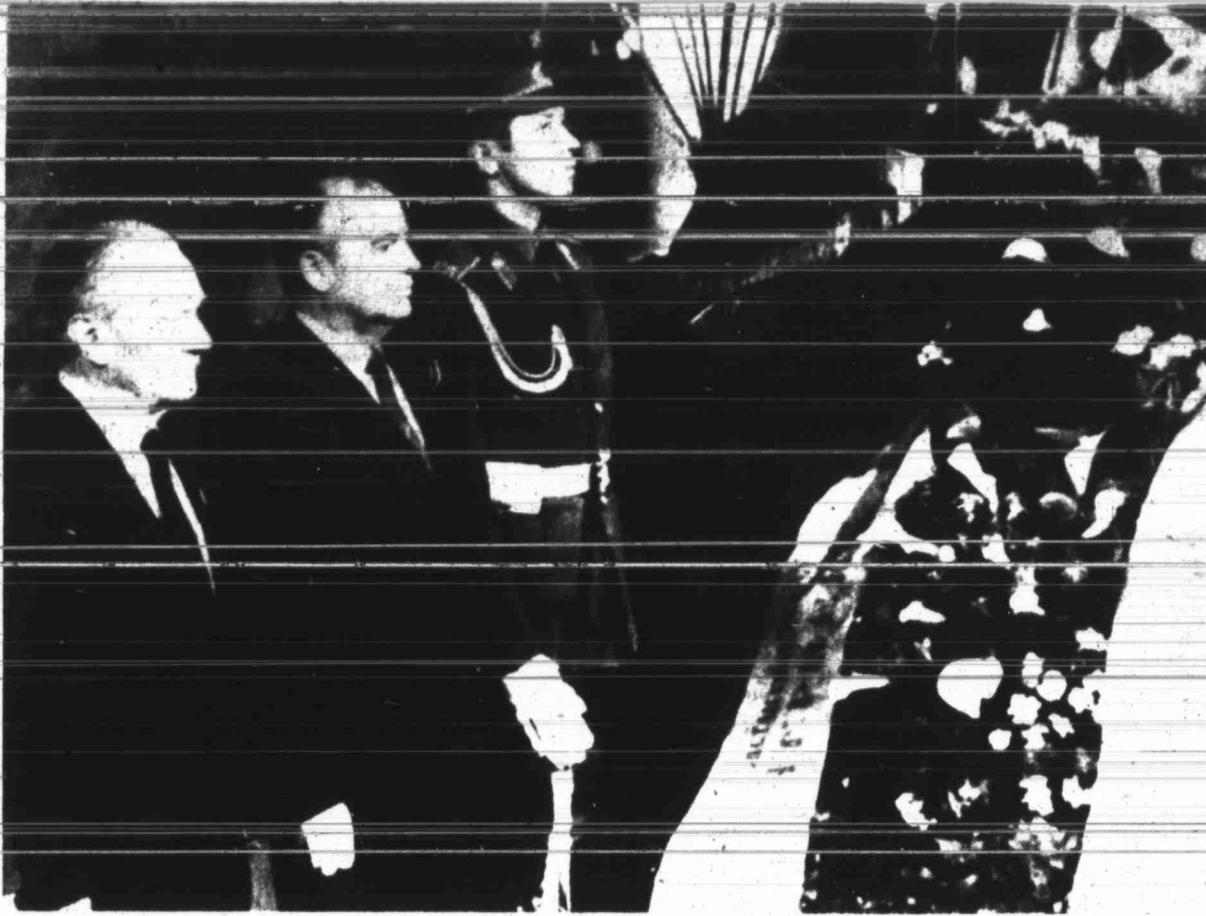

Workers draped lampposts with black-trimmed flags and store windows replaced their regular displays with portraits of the departed leader. People lined up to view Chernenko's body as it lay in state in a flower-bedecked bier in the House of Unions.

The heart of Moscow was made immaculate overnight by squads that cleaned thoroughfares and used metal staves to chip away black ice from gutters in preparation for the funeral.

President Reagan sent a message of condolence to the Soviets, saying, "I wish to reiterate the strong desire of the American people for world peace."

The American chief executive told reporters he eventually would "like to have a talk ... a meeting of minds" with Gorbachev. But he ruled out attending Chernenko funeral, saying he "didn't see anything that could be achieved" by coming to Moscow.

Vice President George Bush, Secretary of State George Shultz, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, French President Francois Mitterrand, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and India's Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi were expected to arrive later today or Wednesday to attend the funeral.

China, a rival communist giant since the 1960s, congratulated Gorbachev on his becoming party leader and announced that Vice Premier Li Peng would attend the funeral.

Under gray, overcast skies, thousands of police and soldiers lined the streets between the Kremlin and the House of Unions. The Hall of Columns was permeated with the aroma of evergreens from hundreds of wreaths. An orchestra played mournful music. Sentries formed files leading up a staircase where a two-story-high portrait of Chernenko hung.

In the mourning room, Mrs. Chernenko sat with other family members to the right of the casket watching columns of people move swiftly by the mass of red, purple and white flowers that covered all but the dead leader's head and shoulders. Mrs. Chernenko was also visited by the widow of former President Leonid I. Brezhnev, Victoria. Starting with Vladimir I. Lenin in 1924, the death of a Soviet leader had been reported on front page of every Soviet newspaper. Dailies like Pravda, the party organ, bordered the page in black and ran quarter-page photographs of the dead ruler.

This time, Chernenko's picture was on the second page, and it was half the customary size. Every newspaper ran a lead story announcing his death, but the rest of the front pages were devoted to Gorbachev, including a portrait and a story on the plenum at which he was formally named general secretary.

"It's so striking that he's on the front page, but once you've got a general secretary ... he's it," said a Western diplomat, who spoke on condition he not be identified. The youngest of the remaining Politburo members, Gorbachev is also the youngest man to win supreme Kremlin power since Josef V. Stalin became leader at age 45 in 1924.

Gorbachev's speedy selection was viewed by Western diplomats in Moscow as a Kremlin effort to end the period of transition that has characterized Soviet leadership since Brezhnev's death on Nov. 10, 1982. Brezhnev was succeeded by former KGB chief Yuri V. Andropov, who died 15 months later and Chernenko's term lasted just short of 13 months.

"I think there had been an understanding" about who would succeed Chernenko, one diplomat said.

Western diplomats cautioned against expecting rapid changes under the new leader. They noted that Gorbachev was among the handful of Kremlin powerbrokers crafting the nation's foreign and domestic policy under both Andropov and Chernenko.

"He's certainly never distinguished himself as a hardliner, but there's nothing in his record that would show he would be more inclined to be conciliatory toward the United States," said one diplomat, who like others spoke on condition she not be identified.

Soviet citizens interviewed along major thoroughfares of the capital expressed concern for the revolving nature of the Kremlin leadership over the past three years, but also stated support and optimism for a future under Gorbachev.

"I am glad because, for one thing, he is younger than the others," said one elderly woman.

"I think our party is acting correctly in putting Gorbachev in this post because he is very far-sighted and very smart," said a young taxi driver.

Gorbachev's acceptance speech to the Central Committee was notable for the lack of anti-American rhetoric that usually punctuates major Kremlin addresses on world affairs.

Gorbachev said the Soviet Union values the "successes of the relaxation of international tensions achieved in the 1970s" and would welcome peaceful agreements with Western nations. He also said the policies forged under Chernenko's predecessors, Brezhnev and Andropov, "remain unchanged."

Gorbachev is considered a staunch supporter of Andropov's reform-minded economic policies, including the crackdown on corruption and inefficiency, and efforts to boost individual initiatives for Soviet workers.

In addition to the party general secretary post given to Gorbachev, Chernenko's death left open two other positions — chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet and head of the secretive Defense Council.

The Presidium chairmanship, equivalent to president or head of state, is awarded only at one of two annual sessions of the national parliament. The defense post seems to go automatically to the general secretary, generally without public announcement.

While the Supreme Soviet could decide to bestow the title of head of state to another Kremlin figure, it was Gorbachev who stressed the importance of consolidating leadership power in a single person when he nominated Chernenko for president last April.

Gorbachev: new-style Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the youngest man to head the Communist Party in six decades, stands on the verge of a career that could continue into the next century, if he remains a master of Kremlin politics.

Gorbachev, at 54 the youngest member of the Politburo and a member of the ruling body less than five years, represents a new generation of Soviet leaders — a group unmarked by party service under Stalin's iron rule, well-educated and reared in the postwar years that saw major advances in Soviet living standards.

"Gorbachev seems to be a dynamic and strong person and so ... I hope we will have a chance to engage with him and to work constructively with him," Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Monday. "He's a vigorous young man and we expect to be dealing with him as the future unfolds."

Watchers of the secretive Kremlin don't expect the man who succeeded deceased party general secretary Konstantin U. Chernenko, 73, on Monday to make any drastic changes soon.

But his Monday acceptance speech offered some hints about the directions he will pursue.

Gorbachev pledged to strive for an arms control agreement so "the peoples of the world would sigh with relief."

While stressing Soviet defense would be maintained at a level sufficient to deal a "crushing retaliatory strike" against aggressors, he also said he wanted to transfer the Soviet economy "to the tracks of intensive development."

The new leader also said the party's "first precept" would be strengthening ties with other Soviet bloc nations, and called for "a cardinal improvement of relations" with China.

Western diplomats in Moscow, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, gave varying interpretations today of the speech. One called it "quite a positive speech" for its lack of anti-U.S. invective, while another was struck by the difference in Gorbachev's style.

"He is saying the same things, but when he says them it somehow seems different," he said.

Reagan says he is willing to meet new Soviet leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he is "more than ready" to meet with the Soviet Union's new leader, but the White House insists it must be under the same terms that were set — but never met — for talks with three earlier Kremlin chiefs.

Reagan pledged Monday to deal "with an open mind" with Mikhail Gorbachev, 54, the new Soviet Communist Party chairman and successor to Konstantin U. Chernenko, who died Sunday.

In an official message of condolence, the president told the Soviets, "At this solemn time, I wish to reiterate the strong desire of the American people for world peace. Although the problems which divide our countries are many and complex, we can and must resolve our differences through dialogue and negotiation."

Reagan passed up an opportunity to meet Gorbachev following Chernenko's funeral, scheduled for Wednesday, by tapping Vice President George Bush to head the official U.S. delegation to Moscow.

Bush performed the same job at the deaths of former Soviet leaders Leonid I. Brezhnev in 1982 and Yuri V. Andropov in 1984.

Other delegation members are Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Arthur Hartman, U.S. ambassador to Moscow.

The president made a five-minute visit to the Soviet Embassy in Washington on Monday to sign a book of condolence, which had been placed on a table in front of a picture of Chernenko.

Steve's Tuff

By Steve Belvin

A baseball treat

Talk about a hot baseball team, that's the Howard College Hawks, managed by Bill Griffin.

It's too bad Jack Barber Field doesn't have any lights and the Hawks have to play all of their home game in the afternoon when most people are working. I feel sorry for the fans who have a desire to be at the games but can't because of work conflicts. You are missing a real treat.

The Hawks are currently 13-2 and show no signs of slowing up. Indicative of the Hawks sterling play was this past weekend's three-game sweep over conference foe Northwood Institute. A series which Hawks pitchers allowed a meager seven runs on 16 hits. Meanwhile, the Hawks bats banged out 40 hits for 35 runs.

This is an entirely different Howard team from the squad last season that qualified for the Texas Junior College State Tournament and finished the season with a 28-19 record.

Only a handful of the players are back from the power-hitting Hawks of 1984.

Now HC baseball is composed of getting a single, going for the steal or playing some hit-and-run games with the defense. In other words the Hawks are making things happen themselves. The big reason for the change from their past conservatism is that Howard has a new crop of players with good foot speed, something that was missing last season.

Perhaps the most pleasant surprise for the Hawks this season is the emergence of a consistent pitching staff. Only twice have Howard's pitchers been hit hard this season. It's a welcomed relief for the hitters when they know they don't have to score 10 runs to get a win.

Then there are the Hawks bats. Last year they were sluggers who lived and died by the power game. This year they've knocked seven homers, well off the pace of last season's total of 65 round trippers.

Homeruns are nice, but there is something about seeing a well-timed bunt, hit-and-run or a double steal. Homeruns are so anticlimatic. Singles and stolen bases add more pizzazz to the game. For that matter, the Howard Hawks have really jazzed up their game this season.

So here's a tip from your local sports writer. Any chance you get to see the Howard College play, take it. If not, you'll be missing some high flying Hawk-ball.

Three Olympians on 1st team Ewing tops All-Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — Xavier McDaniel of Wichita State, who could become the first player to lead Division I players in both scoring and rebounding, already holds a distinction among those selected to The Associated Press' All-America basketball team.

McDaniel, a 6-foot-7 senior, wasn't a unanimous choice in the voting released Monday. All the others were — Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale, St. John's Chris Mullin and Memphis State's Keith Lee.

Heading into this week's NCAA tournament, McDaniel was tied for the scoring lead with Loyola of Chicago's Alfredrick Hughes. Each has a scoring average of 27.4 points. McDaniel also is averaging 15 rebounds a game.

McDaniel led Wichita State to the Missouri Valley Conference tournament title in an upset over Tulsa, earning the Shockers an automatic NCAA berth. McDaniel has shot 56 percent from the field this season.

"It's a great honor," said McDaniel in Wichita, Kan. "I always got honorable mention wherever I played. But I wouldn't have been disappointed if I didn't make it."

As far as his shooting goes, McDaniel said he likes to work the offensive boards because of his great leaping ability. He also said he gets the green light from Coach Gene Smithson often, but said, "If I scored 30 points and had one assist and we lost, I'd be upset. I like to give the ball up, too.

PATRICK EWING

"Even when I'm on the fast break, three on one and I'm in the middle, nine times out of ten, I'm going to pass it to one of the wing guys."

Ewing, Tisdale and Mullin helped the United States win the Olympic gold medal team last summer, an opportunity McDaniel missed when he was passed over on the invitation list. Their teams are top-seeded for the NCAA playoffs along with Michigan.

Ewing, an intimidating 7-foot, 240-pound senior center who no doubt will be the No. 1 draft choice in the National Basketball Association draft, led the defending NCAA champions to a 30-2 record, including the Big East Conference tournament. He averaged 14.6 points, 9.7 rebounds and blocked 121 shots.

He hit 64 percent of his shots from the field this season, boosting his career total to 2,096 points. He also grabbed 1,277 rebounds and blocked 479 shots in four seasons.

Tisdale, a 6-9 junior center, paced Oklahoma to a 28-5 record this season, including the Big Eight Conference regular season and tournament crowns. Despite being double- and triple-teamed, he averaged 25.5 points on 57 percent field goal shooting and a 10.2 rebound average. He became the top scorer in Big Eight history in running his career total to 2,570 points.

Tisdale's highest scoring game this season was 55 points against Southwestern (Texas). Whether he makes himself available for the NBA draft this year or next, he is expected to be among the stop choices.

Mullin, a 6-6 senior guard, guided St. John's, the Big East regular season winner, past Georgetown 66-65 last January with his scoring and passing ability. He scored 25 points against the Hoyas in the Big East tourney title game but their defense hampered his passing game, holding him to one assist.

With a soft left-handed jump shot and accurate foul line proficiency (82 percent this season), he became the Redmen's leading career scorer this season with 2,350 points. He averaged 19.5 points with 52 percent field goal snooting and led the Redmen to a 27-3 record.

Lee became the leading scorer and rebounder in Memphis State history this season. The slender 6-10 senior averaged 20.4 points and 9.6 rebounds in leading the Tigers to the Metro Conference titles, regular season and tournament, with a 27-3 mark.

Lee, a 50 percent shooter from the field this season, has poured in 2,331 points and grabbed 1,301 rebounds in his career.

Len Bias of Maryland, Kenny Walker of Kentucky, Jon Koncak of Southern Methodist, Johnny Dawkins of Duke and Mark Price of Georgia Tech were selected to the second team.

A.C. Green of Oregon State, Roy Tarpley of Michigan, Dwayne "Pearl" Washington of Syracuse, Sam Vincent of Michigan State and Hughes made up the third team.

Bey, Holmes shape up for title bout

LAS VEGAS (AP) — "I've never been in this shape in my life," says David Bey, who once weighed 296 pounds when he fought as an amateur.

"I feel like Clark Kent." Bey's telephone booth Friday night will be a 20-foot ring at the Riviera Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, Nev., and his Superman suit will be a pair of boxing trunks.

He will try to leap over Larry Holmes and into the International Boxing Federation heavyweight championship.

Some boxing observers feel that the veteran of six years in the U.S. Army and 14 pro bouts, who now fights at 225-230 pounds, has a solid shot to beat the 35-year-old Holmes, who says this will be his last fight.

"He's going have to retire because he won't have the title any more," said Bey, who wants to give himself a birthday present and honor his late father. Bey will be 28 three days before the scheduled 15-round fight, which will be held on the third anniversary of the death of Joseph Bey.

In Holmes' last fight, he looked dull in stopping James "Bonecrusher" Smith on cuts in the 12th round Nov. 9 at Las Vegas. Bey possesses more fighting skills than Smith.

The fragmented heavyweight division — three champions and not enough good challengers for one champion — being what it is, Smith can earn a shot at Greg Page, who holds the World Boxing Association title, by beating Tony Tubbs in a scheduled 10-rounder on the Holmes-Bey card. The other champion is Pinklon Thomas, who is recognized by the World Boxing Council.

Page got a title-winning shot at Gerrie Coetzee Dec. 1 despite having lost two straight fights. The second of those losses was on a 12-round unanimous decision to Bey, who weighed 224½, last Aug. 31. That was Bey's second fight of 1984 and the second decision for the Philadelphian, who has scored 11 knockouts. He also beat Leroy Caldwell over 10 rounds March 9 at Las Vegas in his first fight in seven months, and ring ruse showed.

Holmes blames a year's layoff for a lot of his problems against Smith.

Bey joined the Army in 1974 at age 17 to get off the streets, and it was while in the service he took up boxing. He was known as the Dancing Bear.

He also was called unkind things during his amateur career in which he packed a punch as well as a punch in compiling 54-5 record, with 47 knockouts, 42 of them in the first round.

"They were only three-round fights as an amateur, and I didn't have to train," Bey said, explaining his "blimpness."

Bey weighed 272 when he turned pro Nov. 6, 1981 with a second-round knockout of James Douglas at Pittsburgh, but he was down to 237 for his second fight, a first-round knockout of Larry Ham in the first round Feb. 24, 1982. Since then he has fought in the 225-pound range since.

The year of 1982 has been Bey's busiest. He fought eight times, winning seven by knockout and one on a six-round decision. One of victories was a fourth-round stoppage of George Chaplin Nov. 26 at Pittsburgh.

Bey scored three knockouts in three fights and in 1983, then won the two decisions last year.

On his left forearm Bey wears a tattoo that serves as a guide on how to pronounce his name. It is a heart pierced by an arrow under the inscription: "Bay."

A lot of people will know how to pronounce Bey if he keeps Holmes from joining Rocky Marciano as the only heavyweight champions to have retired without losing a fight.

DAVID BEY goes through the motions with LARRY HOLMES in Las Vegas at their pre-bout press conference. HOLMES will seek to retire with an undefeated record following their scheduled 15 round fight this Friday.

Tech No. 17 in AP poll

(AP) — Georgetown, which was the No. 1 team in The Associated Press' preseason college basketball poll 17 weeks ago, finished as the No. 1 team in the final rankings and Texas Tech made its way into the top twenty for the first time since 1976.

The Hoyas, the top seed in the East region in this week's NCAA tournament, were the No. 1 team for all but five of those weeks as they fashioned a 30-2 record and captured the Big East postseason tournament.

Following the Hoyas, who received all 63 first-place votes from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters in Monday's poll, were the other three teams that received top seeding in the other regions.

The defending NCAA champions entered last year's tournament with a No. 2 ranking, behind North Carolina, which was eliminated in the regional semifinals by Indiana.

Michigan, the top seed in the Southeast Region, moved from third to second in the final poll, while St. John's, the No. 1 seed in the West, exchanged places with the Wolverines. Oklahoma, the top seed in the Midwest Region, held fourth from last week's poll.

In addition to the Hoyas, who never fell below second during the season, eight other teams held a ranked position from the preseason poll through the final rankings.

St. John's, Oklahoma, Memphis State, Georgia Tech, Duke, Illinois, Kansas and Syracuse were the other teams to remain in the Top Twenty for the entire season.

North Carolina wasn't in the preseason poll, but the Tar Heels jumped into the rankings the next week and stayed there, reaching fifth.

Thirty-six teams made their way into the Top Twenty during the year with Arizona, Kentucky and Texas Tech making the briefest appearances — one week each.

Kentucky and Texas Tech took vastly different tacks though, as Kentucky was ranked 18th in the preseason poll and never returned, while the Red Raiders waited until the final week of the season before being voted into the No. 17 slot.

Of the teams voted into the preseason poll, 12 were in the final poll. The Nos. 3, 4, 9 and 10 teams were among the eight that didn't finish as ranked teams.

Bullets stop Bulls, 119-112

By The Associated Press

It might be Michael Jordan's year, but it was Jeff Malone's night.

Malone, a second-year sharpshooter from Mississippi State, scored 37 points and limited Jordan to 21 Monday night in leading the Washington Bullets to a 119-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls.

In other NBA games Monday night, it was Cleveland 122, Indiana 110; Milwaukee 121, Atlanta 115; Detroit 121, the Los Angeles Clippers 114; and Dallas 103, Seattle 100.

Jordan, held seven points below his scoring average, spent most of the fourth quarter sitting alongside Coach Kevin Loughery after Washington surged to a 103-88 lead.

Malone, whose point explosion marked his third straight 30-plus outing, helped Washington build a 65-59 halftime lead. Chicago pulled within 71-70, but Washington quickly rebuilt the lead to 80-70 on the way to a 99-88 edge entering the fourth quarter.

Gus Williams added 22 and Cliff Robinson 20 for the Bullets, while Quintin Dailey led Chicago with 24.

Cavaliers 122, Pacers 110

World E. Free led the offense with 28 points and John Bagley added 22 for Cleveland, which used a full-court trapping defense to overcome a 16-point, first-half deficit. Free and Bagley each scored 10 points during a third-period rally that drew Cleveland into a 90-90 tie after three periods.

A layup by Steve Stipanovich with 9:17 to play gave Indiana a 96-95 lead, but Cleveland went on a 14-1 tear over the next 4½ minutes to clinch its seventh win in eight games.

Clark Kellogg scored 27 and Herb Williams added

22 for Indiana, which has lost six in a row.

Bucks 121, Hawks 115

Sidney Moncrief and Terry Cummings each scored 28 points for Milwaukee, which used a pair of spurts to send Atlanta to its fifth straight loss.

Dominique Wilkins, who led Atlanta with 24 points, converted a three-point play with 1:04 left to pull the Hawks within four points. But two baskets by Milwaukee forward Aton Lister settled things.

Pistons 121, Clippers 114

Detroit center Bill Laimbeer scored 28 points and Kelly Tripucka added 22, including 12 during the decisive fourth quarter. Laimbeer and John Long each scored 10 points as the Pistons overcame a 63-52 halftime deficit to forge an 89-89 tie after three periods.

Derek Smith led the Clippers, losers of 10 straight, with 29 points and Junior Bridgeman added 21.

Mavericks 103, SuperSonics 100

Brad Davis, the league's free-throw percentage leader, hit a pair of free throws with one second left to secure the 701st coaching victory for Dallas Coach Dick Motta.

Consecutive three-point baskets by Tom Chambers and Jack Sikma, the latter with two seconds remaining, allowed Seattle to cut the lead to 101-100. Davis was fouled on an inbound play and the guard, who has connected on 90 percent of his attempts this season, hit both attempts to give Dallas the win.

Mark Aguirre had 29 points for Dallas and Chambers 26 for Seattle.

Atlanta Hawks ANTONIE CARR gives Milwaukee Bucks SIDNEY MONCRIEF (4) a hard bump as Moncrief goes up for two in NBA action last night.

Williams leads Arizona rout over Jacksonville

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona Outlaws quarterback Doug Williams, stung by recent criticism of his inability to generate offense, says he has temporarily silenced his detractors.

Williams threw three touchdown passes — two to tight end Ron Wheeler — while running back Reggie Brown also scored three times Monday night in the Outlaws' 41-21 rout of the Jacksonville Bulls in a United States Football League game.

"I was 40-for-60 passing in the first two games and that's not bad. But we only had 23 points and people were getting on me for that," Williams said. "I'm the type of guy who doesn't care how many points you get when you win. That's what people really remember, whether you win. Then they read the stats."

Ahead 13-7 at halftime, Arizona turned a fumble recovery and a controversial reception into 14 quick points which sealed its second victory in three games.

Jacksonville fell to 1-2 before a crowd of only 13,025 at 70,021-seat Sun Devil Stadium. There were 7,514 announced no-shows with the rain-plagued game televised both locally and nationally on cable.

Although TV replays disputed wide receiver Greg Anderson's 47-yard reception to the Bulls' 17 early in the third quarter, the officials said the replays were inconclusive and let the catch stand.

Williams then fired a four-yard strike to Wheeler and a two-point conversion pass to Brown for a 21-7 lead with 10:49 left in the third period.

Outlaws defensive tackle Kit Lathrop recovered a fumble at the Jacksonville 27-yard line 37 seconds later and Brown made it 27-7 on a 1-yard run.

A 12-yard touchdown pass from

Buck Belue to wide receiver Aubrey Matthews narrowed the Bulls' deficit to 27-14 with 24 seconds left in the third period.

But Brown's 16-yard run 3:05 into the final quarter and one-yard burst 3:46 later — set up by linebacker Ed Smith's interception — padded Arizona's lead to 41-14.

Matthews' third touchdown catch — a nine-yard pass from backup quarterback Robbie Mahfouz — closed out the scoring with 5:29 to go in the game.

"We got beat by a good football team. We made too many mistakes to beat anybody tonight," said

Bulls Coach Lindy Infante. "We made some errors that put us in terrible field position. We had no excuses. The weather wasn't that bad and it didn't have any effect on the outcome. They deserved the victory."

Outlaws Coach Frank Kush said "this is the type of ballgame this team is capable of playing. We told the team we could be more than a first-half football team. We made ourselves a great number of opportunities and that big lead was a luxury."

Williams' two-yard touchdown pass to running back Allan Clark had opened the scoring 56 seconds into the second quarter. It was set up by safety Kelvin Middleton's 28-yard interception return to the Jacksonville 3 on the first period's final play.

A 38-yard scoring strike from Williams to Wheeler 5:17 before halftime made it 13-0.

The Bulls closed the gap to 13-7 with 33 seconds remaining in the half on Belue's 4-yard pass to Matthews.

Williams finished with 14 completions in 21 attempts for 190 yards while Belue was 20 of 35 for 156 yards.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR WED., MARCH 13, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is no time to take chances and especially where anyone in a position of authority is concerned, so ask no favors and take care of your health. Afternoon and evening are favored.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A private worry could deter you from handling a new situation that could prove lucrative, if you permit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Both a private anxiety and a friend can cause confusion in the morning, but later you can enjoy the social side of life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An argument between a partner and a high official could prove worrisome in the morning, but later you handle business admirably.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may have to handle some outside affair in the morning which could interfere with your duties.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Schedule your hours wisely so that you can handle both business and social affairs well. Plan on a romantic evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A family tie and one in business do not agree, so be tactful and keep them apart, but keep promises to both wisely.

LIDRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Don't leave your work and go off on a spree which could prove costly. You can have a good time with friends later in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend lavishly for amusement in the morning and later you can enjoy yourself inexpensively. Cut down on expenses.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not commit yourself to anything in the morning that could cripple you later. Save the fun for the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a chance to get ahead fast in the morning if you do not fuss over what cannot be helped.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get the cooperation of friends for the big goals you have in mind and they can be successful. Plan the future intelligently.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning is not good for getting a favor from a bigwig, but after lunch, you get your way easily.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will need good food and plenty of rest during adolescence to become strong and healthy. Slant the education along lines of imports and exports, and add foreign languages to the curriculum. Stress religious training.

By The Associated Press
It might be Michael Jordan's year, but it was Jeff Malone's night.

Malone, a second-year sharpshooter from Mississippi State, scored 37 points and limited Jordan to 21 Monday night in leading the Washington Bullets to a 119-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls.

In other NBA games Monday night, it was Cleveland 122, Indiana 110; Milwaukee 121, Atlanta 115; Detroit 121, the Los Angeles Clippers 114; and Dallas 103, Seattle 100.

Jordan, held seven points below his scoring average, spent most of the fourth quarter sitting alongside Coach Kevin Loughery after Washington surged to a 103-88 lead.

Malone, whose point explosion marked his third straight 30-plus outing, helped Washington build a 65-59 halftime lead. Chicago pulled within 71-70, but Washington quickly rebuilt the lead to 80-70 on the way to a 99-88 edge entering the fourth quarter.

Gus Williams added 22 and Cliff Robinson 20 for the Bullets, while Quintin Dailey led Chicago with 24.

Cavaliers 122, Pacers 110

World B. Free led the offense with 28 points and John Bagley added 22 for Cleveland, which used a full-court trapping defense to overcome a 16-point, first-half deficit. Free and Bagley each scored 10 points during a third-period rally that drew Cleveland into a 90-90 tie after three periods.

A layup by Steve Stipanovich with 9:17 to play gave Indiana a 96-95 lead, but Cleveland went on a 14-1 tear over the next 4½ minutes to clinch its seventh win in eight games.

Clark Kellogg scored 27 and Herb Williams added

22 for Indiana, which has lost six in a row.

Bucks 121, Hawks 115

Sidney Moncrief and Terry Cummings each scored 26 points for Milwaukee, which used a pair of spurts to send Atlanta to its fifth straight loss.

Dominique Wilkins, who led Atlanta with 24 points, converted a three-point play with 1:04 left to pull the Hawks within four points. But two baskets by Milwaukee forward Alton Lister settled things.

Pistons 121, Clippers 114

Detroit center Bill Laimbeer scored 28 points and Kelly Tripucka added 22, including 12 during the decisive fourth quarter. Laimbeer and John Long each scored 10 points as the Pistons overcame a 63-52 halftime deficit to forge an 89-89 tie after three periods.

Derek Smith led the Clippers, losers of 10 straight, with 29 points and Junior Bridgeman added 21.

Mavericks 103, SuperSonics 100

Brad Davis, the league's free-throw percentage leader, hit a pair of free throws with one second left to secure the 701st coaching victory for Dallas Coach Dick Motta.

Consecutive three-point baskets by Tom Chambers and Jack Sikma, the latter with two seconds remaining, allowed Seattle to cut the lead to 101-100. Davis was fouled on an inbounds play and the guard, who has connected on 90 percent of his attempts this season, hit both attempts to give Dallas the win.

Mark Aguirre had 29 points for Dallas and Chambers 26 for Seattle.

Atlanta Hawks ANTONIE CARR gives Milwaukee Bucks SIDNEY MONCRIEF (4) a hard bump as Moncrief goes up for two in NBA action last night.

Williams leads Arizona rout over Jacksonville

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona Outlaws quarterback Doug Williams, stung by recent criticism of his inability to generate offense, says he has temporarily silenced his detractors.

Williams threw three touchdown passes — two to tight end Ron Wheeler — while running back Reggie Brown also scored three times Monday night in the Outlaws' 41-21 rout of the Jacksonville Bulls in a United States Football League game.

"I was 40-for-60 passing in the first two games and that's not bad. But we only had 23 points and people were getting on me for that," Williams said. "I'm the type of guy who doesn't care how many points you get when you win. That's what people really remember, whether you win. Then they read the stats."

Ahead 13-7 at halftime, Arizona turned a fumble recovery and a controversial reception into 14 quick points which sealed its second victory in three games.

Jacksonville fell to 1-2 before a crowd of only 13,025 at 70,021-seat Sun Devil Stadium. There were 7,514 announced no-shows with the rain-plagued game televised both locally and nationally on cable.

Although TV replays disputed wide receiver Greg Anderson's 47-yard reception to the Bulls' 17 early in the third quarter, the officials said the replays were inconclusive and let the catch stand.

Williams then fired a four-yard strike to Wheeler and a two-point conversion pass to Brown for a 21-7 lead with 10:49 left in the third period.

Outlaws defensive tackle Kit Lathrop recovered a fumble at the Jacksonville 27-yard line 37 seconds later and Brown made it 27-7 on a 1-yard run.

A 12-yard touchdown pass from

Buck Belue to wide receiver Aubrey Matthews narrowed the Bulls' deficit to 27-14 with 24 seconds left in the third period.

But Brown's 16-yard run 3:05 into the final quarter and one-yard burst 3:46 later — set up by linebacker Ed Smith's interception — padded Arizona's lead to 41-14.

Matthews' third touchdown catch — a nine-yard pass from backup quarterback Robbie Mahfouz — closed out the scoring with 5:29 to go in the game.

"We got beat by a good football team. We made too many mistakes to beat anybody tonight," said

Bulls Coach Lindy Infante. "We made some errors that put us in terrible field position. We had no excuses. The weather wasn't that bad and it didn't have any effect on the outcome. They deserved the victory."

Outlaws Coach Frank Kush said "this is the type of ballgame this team is capable of playing. We told the team we could be more than a first-half football team. We made ourselves a great number of opportunities and that big lead was a luxury."

Williams' two-yard touchdown pass to running back Allan Clark had opened the scoring 56 seconds into the second quarter. It was set up by safety Kelvin Middleton's 28-yard interception return to the Jacksonville 3 on the first period's final play.

A 38-yard scoring strike from Williams to Wheeler 5:17 before halftime made it 13-0.

The Bulls closed the gap to 13-7 with 33 seconds remaining in the half on Belue's 4-yard pass to Matthews.

Williams finished with 14 completions in 21 attempts for 190 yards while Belue was 20 of 35 for 156 yards.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WED., MARCH 13, 1985. GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is no time to take chances and especially where anyone in a position of authority is concerned, so ask no favors and take care of your health. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A private worry could deter you from handling a new situation that could prove lucrative, if you permit. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Both a private anxiety and a friend can cause confusion in the morning, but later you can enjoy the social side of life. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An argument between a partner and a high official could prove worrisome in the morning, but later you handle business admirably. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may have to handle some outside affair in the morning which could interfere with your duties. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Schedule your hours wisely so that you can handle both business and social affairs well. Plan on a romantic evening. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A family tie and one in business do not agree, so be tactful and keep them apart, but keep promises to both wisely. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Don't leave your work and go off on a spree which could prove costly. You can have a good time with friends later in the day. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend lavishly for amusement in the morning and later you can enjoy yourself inexpensively. Cut down on expenses. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not commit yourself to anything in the morning that could cripple you later. Save the fun for the evening. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a chance to get ahead fast in the morning if you do not fuss over what cannot be helped. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get the cooperation of friends for the big goals you have in mind and they can be successful. Plan the future intelligently. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning is not good for getting a favor from a bigwig, but after lunch, you get your way easily. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need good food and plenty of rest during adolescence to become strong and healthy. Slant the education along lines of imports and exports, and add foreign languages to the curriculum. Stress religious training. "The Stars impel; they do not compel." ## County receives tax payment

Howard County received a check of $117,591, part of some $68.8 million in local tax payments set to 991 cities by State Comptroller Bob Bullock earlier this month.

March checks represent taxes collected on sales made in January and reported to the Comptroller by Feb. 20.

The March payment compares to $93,149 received at this time last year. 1985 payments to date for Howard County are $416,838, compared to 1984 payments at this time of $373,953.

Bullock said the increases in city payments around the state resulted from the way cities process money and did not necessarily indicate anything about the economy.

A breakdown shows that Big Spring received $114,175 of the March payment. Coahoma received $2,263 and Forsan received $1,151.

Martin County received a payment of $3,544, compared to $3,377 received at this time last year. 1985 payments to date for Martin County are $11,966.

Mitchell County received a payment of $19,231, compared to $21,590 last year. Colorado City received $18,125 of the March payment, while Westbrook received $1,106.

Around the state, Houston's check was the largest — $11.7 million. Dallas received $8.8 million. San Antonio received a payment of $4.2 million.

Grand jury reviews 10 cases

An arson suspect is among 10 cases that grand jurors are expected to review when they convene at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the Howard County Courthouse.

According to a list released by the district attorney's office, grand jurors will decide whether to indict Albino Noyola, 32, of 1202 Madison.

Noyola was arrested last month on a Big Spring police warrant charging him with committing arson in a house owned by attorney Robert Miller located at 1615 Cardinal on Feb. 2.

According to a report, firemen arrived at the vacant house early in the morning and found the living room furniture in flames. Arson investigator Burr Lea Settles said that the furniture was set on fire.

An arson report was filed with police by the house's occupant, Margie Noyola.

Grand jurors also will pass judgment on defendants:

- Mary Ann Hayes, 21, of Thrifty

Lodge No. 111, charged with burglary of a building on Dec. 17.

- Ralph Hilton, 21, of 1404 Tucson, charged with burglary of a building on Dec. 1.
- Lorenzo Jackson Jr., 20, of 906 NW Second, charged with aggravated robbery on Jan. 31.
- Ljonsa Lee Jimenez Jr., 25, of 1106 S. Johnson, charged with felony driving while intoxicated.
- William D. Riley, 27, of 307 San Jacinto, charged with issuing a bad check on June 6.
- Robert Valentine, 25, of 205 NW Third, charged with aggravated robbery on Jan. 31.

Jurors also will hear evidence against three other men who could not be identified positively from available public records:

- A man charged with theft by check that occurred on Jan. 2.
- A man charged with aggravated assault on Jan. 26.
- A man charged with sexual assault of a child.

Ag subcommittee schedules hearing Saturday in Abilene

The House Agriculture Subcommittee on Cotton, Rice and Sugar will conduct a public hearing Saturday in Abilene on the 1985 farm bill, according to U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

The Abilene hearing, scheduled to start at 9 a.m. at Abilene Cooper High School at 3639 Sayles, is one of two the subcommittee will host on the proposed bill. The hearing will give farmers a chance to testify on cotton programs and other issues, such as credit, Stenholm said.

Rep. Jerry Huckaby, D-La., the subcommittee chairman, will attend the meeting with Stenholm and other members of Congress. The other subcommittee hearing will be Friday in West Monroe, La.

"Before we draft an omnibus farm bill this year, I want our farmers and agri-businessmen to have this one last chance to give us their opinions and advice. This is important before we start mark-up on the '85 farm bill," said Stenholm, who has served four terms on the House Agriculture Committee.

"Recently in Congress we have been dealing with quick-fix, short-term relief for the farming industry, but this isn't the answer," he said. "The ultimate answer is in coming up with a long-term farm policy that will allow stability and profitability to return to agriculture. This is the opportunity for farmers to have a hand in developing such a policy."

Tax board studies personnel policies

Members of the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District will discuss the possible approval of a new personnel policies and job description manual.

The tax appraisal district meets at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the county courtroom of Howard County Courthouse.

Best of bad Hemingway: 'The tollway belle's for thee'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The old man was granted the grace of no more Monday, for he lived many short, happy lives in the 8th International Imitation Hemingway Competition.

Each battled bravely the white bull that is paper with no words to come up with the only requirement — "one really good page of really 'bad' Hemingway."

Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea" seemed to be the prime target this year, with entrants writing various old men stories of their own.

But it was the tale of a belle in a milk-white BMW at a tollway that caught the judges' eyes.

"In the late summer of that year, we lived in a condo in North Dallas that looked across the highway to the discos and honky tonks of the Rue St. Bubba," began the winning piece by Peter Applebome, a writer from Dallas.

Applebome wrote of the protagonist's fight with the tollway woman's boyfriend.

"And when we finished, there were no winners, just men doing what men must do. And the pain was washed away but the image of the woman stayed with me like a blessing and a curse," he wrote.

Eventually the protagonist's own girlfriend learns his secret yearning.

"There was a look of great terri-

"In the late summer of that year, we lived in a condo in North Dallas that looked across the tollway to the discos and honky tonks of the Rue St. Bubba."

ble sadness in her eyes. She knew about the woman of the tollway. I knew not how. I started to speak but she raised an arm and spoke with a quiet and peace I will never forget.

"I do not ask for whom's the tollway belle," she said. "The tollway belle's for thee."

The judges "laughed a lot," entry from among 25 finalists in the competition, included author Ray Braubury, Hemingway's son Jack, Los Angeles Herald Examiner book editor Digby Diehl, advertising executive Paul Keye, author Barnaby Conrad, and columnist Jack Smith.

Among the many entries that focused on the adventures of old men, there was the page that told of the old man who had gone 14 days without wearing his teeth.

"It is funny that you do not wear your teeth and that they sit on an open magazine beside your bed," said the small boy who truly seemed to be his grandson. "I would be proud to clean your teeth and hand them to you."

"But the boy is not his grandson. 'I do not fish,' said the old man, 'and if you were truly my grandson you would know that.'"

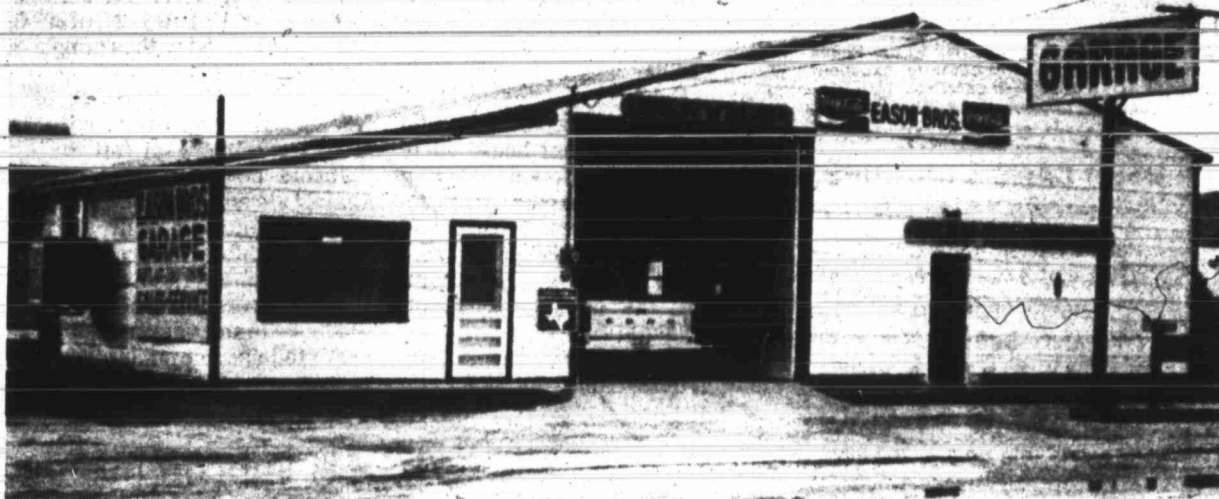

"...Clean your own teeth," said the small boy.

Then there was the old man who had gone 84 days without a martini. Now he had one before him, "and it was clear and chilled and it reminded him of the cold streams in Spain where he would fish for trout..."

"There are no trout in these martinis," he said to the young couple at the table next to him... The couple looked at their martinis and then at him."

Best of all was the old man who sat at the bar, "stalking his drink."

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Eason Bros. Garage is a family-owned business established in 1947. Located at 507 West 3rd St., the garage specializes in general repairs, air conditioner service and state inspections.

Take domestic cars To Eason Bros. Garage

With so much emphasis being placed on service of foreign cars, it's refreshing to find a garage that specializes in domestic car repairs.

That garage is Eason Bros. garage, located at 507 W. 3rd St. It was founded by Hershel and Carl Eason in 1947. In those succeeding 37 years, the Eason brothers built a solid reputation for quality repair service, always concentrating on American made cars.

H.L. Eason, Jr., is now manager of the garage, a second generation continuing in the founders' footsteps.

In addition to general repairs — brakes, tune-up and the like — Eason Bros. Garage features air conditioner sales and service. And it is an official State Inspection garage.

Eason Bros. Garage guarantees its repairs. It is the quality of its work — and the willingness to meet the customer's criteria — that have consistently caused one car owner to recommend the garage to other car owners. Many customers have been coming there for years.

The staff includes Judson Lloyd and Jeff Hunt, mechanics.

New customers are welcomed by the friendly staff. No appointment is necessary; just drive by and discuss your repair problems with them. You'll be impressed with their roomy, well-equipped building and careful attention to your car.

Wise Buy.

If you give a hoot about finding new customers, you'll advertise your products and services in this handy directory. In addition to your ad, you get a business feature — plus it's repeated in the Window Shopper. Ask your Herald ad person about it.

It's fun to hunt for gifts at Inland Port 213

When was the last time you went on a good old fashioned Easter hunt? Shopping at Inland Port 213 brings back the thrill of the hunt and the satisfaction of finding a basket full of goodies.

Here's a store with an endless array of pretty gifts and accessories for the home. Roy Peet has gathered treasures from around the world — including Germany, Italy, India, Portugal, Switzerland, Romania, Japan, China, Austria, France and the U.S.

Every counter, shelf and wall is utilized to display the 1001 wonders of this unusual shop. There are new things arriving every week.

For Easter gifts or to set a special Easter table, Roy has a selection of religious gifts, religious figurines, decorative brass and copper table accessories, including mugs, trays, relish dishes, candelabra and animal figures.

For collectors, Inland Port 213 has one of the largest selections of Hummel Figurines in the Southwest. There are Anri wood sculptures from Italy and precious cloisonne from China.

Inland Port's fine jewelry department always has a selection of diamonds, emeralds, lapis, rubies, and pearls, including the new Majorica manmade pearls.

Part of the fun of shopping at Inland Port 213 is the thrill of the "hunt."
