By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

An infant girl abandoned Thursday afternoon by two suspected shoplifters has been turned over to the state Department of Human Resources, Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

The 21-month-old infant was found in the 1600 block of E. 18th Street, abandoned by two women suspected of shoplifting from the K mart store at 1701 E. 18th St., according to police reports.

Child Protective Service caseworkers took custody of the girl Thursday night, Edwards said. Police have contacted the infant's mother, Edwards said. "However, it doesn't look like she was involved in the shoplifting," he said. "We're still investigating."

According to Edwards, one of the suspects involved in the shoplifting incident appears to have been babysitting the child.

Asked whether the child would be returned to the mother, Edwards replied, "I don't know what they're going to do with her. That's up to DHR."

Laura Luis, midland protective services supervisor, said she could not comment on placement of a specific child but only on hypothetical situations.

"The usual procedure is to place the child in a foster home or an emergency shelter. We would then work with the family to make conditions safe for the child to go home," Luis said.

"If the situation does not improve, we then try to place the child with a relative if we can be assured of the child's safety," she said.

When questioned about the procedures if a babysitter had abandoned the child, Diits said, "Our main concern is to check the situation and make sure the same situation does not happen again."

No arrests have been made in the case, but police have several leads and suspects. Patrolman John Sautter, who is investigating the case, was interviewing suspects and the mother this morning, Edwards said.

Police were called at 3:30 p.m. to the 1600 block of 18th Street on a report of an abandoned child.

"A passerby saw what was going on and picked up the child and called us," Edwards said. The child had been left in the alley by the fleeing women, he said.

K mart employees, who had chased the suspects from the store on foot, collected the stolen merchandise, also dropped in the area by the women, Edwards said.

According to police reports, the women abandoned both the child and the merchandise, valued at a total of $169, to escape capture by the store employees. All the merchandise was recovered, Edwards said.

The stolen goods recovered with the baby include a telephone-radio, valued at $70; two dresses, valued at $11 each; six pair of girls' shorts, valued at $7 each; a nylon handbag, valued at $11; and three tool sets, valued at $24.

Circus at Marcy Elementary

Lions and tigers and bears took to the stage at Marcy Elementary School for the annual circus. The circus, staged by kindergarten children at the school, has become a happy tradition at the school. The children staged several performances of the show, including nighttime performances for parents and friends and performances during the day for their classmates.

Texas students struggle under no pass, no play rule limited his track time and increased his classroom-studying time.

His story is but one extreme. Across the state, athletes, coaches and parents are lamenting the tough new reforms that, effective this spring, have cut into one of the state's favorite pastimes — high school sports.

"I think it's crazy," said Duncanville track coach Bob Romback. "I don't think you need to punish a kid just because he's dumb. It offends me that they are zeroing in on sports and extracurricular activities."

"To me, they're addressing the wrong issue. I think in our society, morals and values are the most important thing."

The no pass, no play rule, which bans students from sports and extracurricular activities for a six-week period if they fail one course, was greeted with an uproar when report cards came out this spring.

And football coaches, immune

Yet the rule has drawn high marks from many, who argue that kids are in school for learning, and that for years, little learning has taken a back seat to other endeavors.

SWCID makes bid for center

By CAROL BALDWIN

Four Gallaudet College administrators from Washington, D.C., stopped briefly in Big Spring Thursday to scout out a possible site for a Gallaudet regional center that would provide a number of services for both deaf and hearing individuals.

Big Spring and the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf are being considered for the regional center. Gallaudet officials are also considering other sites in Texas.

Malcolm Grossinger, Dr. Robert

Davila, Dr. Marvin Garretson and Jack Gannon met with instructors, staff and students at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf before embarking on a tour of SWCID, Howard College and the city.

Davila, vice president for the pre-college program, said Gallaudet has established regional centers, similar to college extension centers, in Massachusetts, California and Kansas. Administrators are seeking sites for at least two more centers in the near future.

"We are building up a network of extension centers. We see gaps in the arrangement," Davila said, explaining the interest in placing a center in the Southwest.

Texas is being considered as a site for the center because "there is a very large deaf community in Texas," Davila said.

The first center was established in 1977 in Kansas. Davila said all of the existing centers have been successful in offering seminars and workshops.

Davila said the centers offer public awareness programs, training programs in deafness, centers

Foulups, bleeps, blunders

Reagan witnesses first week of misfortune and miscues

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan, who always seems to be able to make things go his way, has had a perfectly awful series of gaffes, miscues and slip-ups in the last week that rekindle memories of Jimmy Carter's bad luck and Jerry Ford's bad balance.

Outstripping all the others, of course, has been a chain reaction since the announcement that the president would lay a wreath at a German military cemetery next month.

Each of Reagan's repeated attempts at an explanation succeeded in digging him into deeper trouble with incredulous leaders of American Jewish groups and veterans' organizations that have strongly supported the president in the past.

President Reagan shows three of his faces of annoyance and displeasure after this week's many ill occurrences. The pictures are all AP file photos.

AP analysis

After Reagan defended his plan to visit the Bitburg cemetery by saying the young soldiers buried there were victims of Nazism "just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps," an American rabbi called the president's suggestion "morally unconscionable and politically outrageous."

And Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel, on the eve of a scheduled visit to the White House to accept a Congressional Gold Medal from Reagan, pleaded with Secretary of State George P. Shultz to "tell those who need to know that our pain is genuine, our outrage is deep and our perplexity is infinite."

Michael K. Deaver, Reagan's event planner and image polisher who has taken much of the heat for the Bitburg fiasco, had barely recovered himself from the embarrassing disclosure that he had used his diplomatic status on an official itinerary-mapping trip to Europe to buy himself a luxury German car at an extraordinary discount.

But the president's smiling visage was being buffeted elsewhere as he struggled to keep up with an unusually heavy schedule that combined an all-out fight for aid to Nicaraguan rebels with a tough battle for budget cuts and a steady stream of visits from foreign leaders.

On Monday, as he kicked off his rhetorical drive to discredit Nicaragua's leftist government, Reagan was photographed kissing a lovely little girl presented to him as a refugee from Nicaraguan tyranny.

She turned out to be the U.S.-born 6-year-old daughter of a family that has lived in the United States for 15 years, long before the Sandinistas gained power in Managua. Both her parents are in international banking.

Drawing whatever support he could for his campaign, however, Reagan used a visit by Colombia's President Belisario Betancur to propose a cease-fire and negotiations between the Nicaraguan government and U.S.-backed rebels, coupled with a demand for $14 million in aid to the rebels. The money would be for non-lethal supplies if the talks went forward, weapons if they didn't.

Betancur spoke warmly of Reagan's peace plan, but days later, back in his own country, the South American leader publicly rejected any proposal for outside military aid to the rebels.

Undeterred, Reagan claimed on Wednesday to have received a verbal message from Pope John Paul II supporting "all of our activities in Central America."

Later, a statement by the Apostolic Nunciature, the Vatican's embassy in Washington, stressed that the pope gave no endorsement to "any concrete plan dealing, in particular, with military aspects," such as those proposed by Reagan.

The president picked the time for the showdown over the rebel aid plan by slipping a report to Congress that required House and Senate votes on the issue within 15 days. It was a tactic similar to the one he has used effectively to win votes on the MX missile program at the start of a new round of U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva.

But this time, with the administration in a much weaker starting position, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., an ardent opponent of aid to the Contras, pressed for an almost simultaneous vote in the two chambers as quickly as possible. Reagan, calling that "immoral," abandoned his insistence upon giving the Contras military aid if peace talks failed and accepted a proposal that would effectively limit the assistance to non-lethal supplies.

Even the light moments didn't go well for the former actor with a usually keen sense of timing.

At a state dinner Wednesday night, as American Ballet Theater star Fernando Bujones finished a spectacular dance solo, Reagan took his wife, Nancy, by the arm and stepped on stage to thank the performer.

"We haven't finished yet," a startled Bujones told the president.

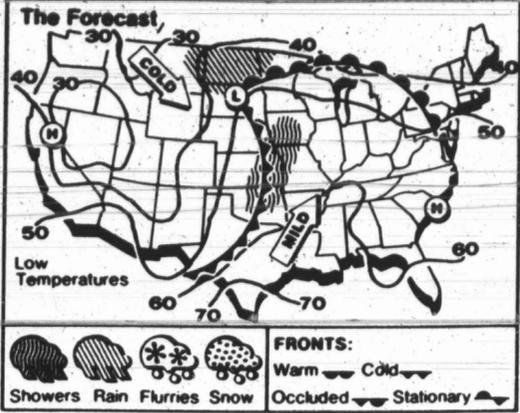

Reagan, with an embarrassed gesture, returned to his seat to watch Bujones and his partner, Marianna Tcherkassky, resume the performance with a grand pas de deux from Don Quixote.

About 5 minutes later, when the dancers were really finished, the Reagans approached the stage again.

"We were trying to get into the act," the president explained.

Man arrested on theft charge

Police Thursday afternoon arrested a 21-year-old Big Spring man on a warrant for theft by appropriation.

Stephen Taylor Christian, 21, of 1107 Goliad was arrested at 2:59 p.m. in the 2200 block of Main Street.

Police Wednesday morning arrested Ismael Paredes, 17, of 1901 Monticello at 807 11th Place on warrants for assault and traffic violations.

Police Wednesday afternoon also arrested Yvonne Acuff, 26, of 120 Airbase at her home on warrants for fraud and traffic violations.

Sheriff's Log

One arrested on warrants

Andrews County sheriff's deputies arrested Mitchell Hollis Wilson, 25, of Andrews on a Howard County warrant charging him with revocation of probation for a prior driving while intoxicated judgment. He was later released on $1,000 bond.

Big Spring police transferred Ismael Paredes, 17, of 1901 S. Monticello to county jail after he was charged with assault. He was released on $1,000 bond set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Jimmy Lee Paul, 19, of Route One Box 377 on a warrant charging him with revocation of probation for a prior theft over $200 and under $10,000 judgment.

Sheriff's deputies issued Ignacio Cano, 26, of 2904 Cherokee a peace bond. He was released on $2,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Squabble results in 3 arrests

A family squabble in north Big Spring last Tuesday resulted in the arrest of three persons by Big Spring police and the issuance of four peace bonds from Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin's office.

"One woman filed for the peace bonds after her husband's brothers jerked him out of the house and beat him up," said Heflin.

Edwards said police arrested and charged with disorderly conduct Michael Martinez, 27, of Route 1 in Sand Springs; Andrew Martinez, 19, of 1201 Mesquite; and Thomas Martinez, of 706 N. Goliad. Michael Martinez was also charged with assault, Edwards said.

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Michael Martinez and Andrew Martinez Thursday morning on peace bond warrants. They were released on $1,000 bonds. Deputies also arrested Mary Louise Martinez, 27, of Route 1 in Sand Springs and Mary Helen Montanez, 30, of 4201 Walnut on peace bond warrants. They were released on $1,000 bonds.

Woman injured in two-car wreck

A 29-year-old Big Spring woman was injured slightly Thursday in a two-car collision in the intersection of Gregg and W. 10th streets.

Mary Lou Marquez, 29, of 500 N.W. Sixth was treated and released from Hall-Bennett Hospital, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

The four passengers in Marquez' 1978 black Ford Mustang and the driver of the other car, Jeffrey Lynn Jones, 42, of Route 3, were not injured in the collision.

According to police reports, Marquez was travelling east in the left lane of the 300 block of W. 10th. Jones, driving a 1981 silver Oldsmobile Delta 88, was headed north in the right lane of the 1000 block of Gregg.

Marquez had entered the intersection when Jones ran a red light and collided with her car, the police report stated.

for information for professionals in the field of deafness, and programs for professionals such as doctors and lawyers who work with the deaf.

Making his first trip to Big Spring college, Davila said there was a need for programs such as SWCID in the Southwest.

Sam Hill, SWCID executive director, said the centers "offers mainly non-credit" courses for professional development. Students benefit also from the use of Gallaudet materials prepared specifically for deaf education.

Gallaudet would provide up to $50,000 for a full-time director for the center and a secretarial staff. The regional center will be set up to accommodate the needs within the region it serves, Davila said.

Professionals from Gallaudet College, "the world's most complete center on deafness," would be available to lead the seminars and workshops, he said. The center would draw on the skills of professionals in the field of deafness from the region served.

A decision on where to locate the center will be made this summer, Davila said.

"There are 100 postsecondary programs for the deaf and 6,000 students in those programs," he said. "Fifty percent of those students attend Gallaudet College or the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (in Rochester, N.Y.)."

"Kids will look at 'where can I go to get the training I need,'" Davila said. SWCID and other post secondary institutions must provide that, he said, in order to be successful.

Gannon, director of Gallaudet alumni relations, was making a return visit to SWCID. He said he was impressed with the local facilities. "I've seen many schools," he said, adding that the local facility was "modern."

He said he is hopeful that tuition here will be reduced. "That's very important," he said. He also urged local officials "to publicize the program. There are 4,500 deaf kids in Texas."

"I don't know of anyone who is on a drill team who will make their living on a drill team. But when it comes to English, math, science or social studies, these courses equip people to have a good life."

Says Gary Hetrick, a sophomore at Dallas Skyline High School: "They felt the system was too slack in the first place. They're doing this to make the system stricter. Some students were used to barely getting by. Now they're having to exert themselves and they haven't gotten the hang of it yet."

"There's a lot of pressure on the individual teacher to make the decision to pass or fail a student," said Lake Highlands athletic director Joe Bob Johnson.

Out in far West Texas in the Andrews Independent School District, Superintendent James Pennington is wrestling with the 10-day absence rule.

Only 10 school days can be missed for extracurricular activities and Pennington said, "Our kids are not going to be able to participate as much as students in more densely populated areas."

"Travel is a real problem," said Pennington, who has rescheduled many activities on weekends.

But educators and athletic officials seem to agree that the toughest test for no pass, no play, will come next fall — high school football season.

"That's when the heat will turn up some more," said Paul Galvan of the Fort Worth Independent School District, who is better known as an excellent collegiate basketball referee. "The rule was needed but there may have to be some modifications."

At the Richardson Independent School District, a recent survey showed an eighth of the participants on the sidelines because they failed a course.

Attacks on Catholics

NEW YORK — Workers linked to an Arkansas evangelist have hung thousands of "hostile anti-Catholic" posters in more than 18 states in the past month, according to Catholic and Jewish anti-defamation groups.

The poster distributors — including 13 people arrested in five communities — work for evangelist Tony Alamo, who says the pope is behind a Nazi conspiracy, according to the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights.

The posters express "as vicious and hostile anti-Catholic sentiments as we have seen," said Carol Lister of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

In a telephone interview, Alamo refused to say whether the distributors were following his orders, but added: "I agree with the posters 100 percent" and said he would help the alleged distributors pay court costs.

California quake drill

LOS ANGELES — Emergency planners put parts of California through a giant drill, evacuating schools and containing "toxic spills," to prepare public agencies for the devastating earthquake officials say is inevitable.

Officials in seven Southern California counties pretended the great quake struck at 9:03 a.m. Thursday on the southern San Andreas Fault and caused extensive damage, said Vern Paule of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The exercise, part of Earthquake Preparedness Week, was conducted on the 79th anniversary of the earthquake that devastated San Francisco in 1906 with a shock estimated to have been 8.3 on the Richter scale, killing at least 700 people and leaving 300,000 homeless.

About a half hour after the drill, began a real quake measuring 3.6 occurred 90 miles northeast of San Francisco, but caused no harm.

Infant found in basement

CADILLAC, Mich. — The father of a 3-week-old infant being treated for pneumonia says he feared the girl had been abducted before she was found in a hospital basement under a foot of soiled sheets.

The girl, Hilary Harris, had apparently been gathered up with the dirty laundry, said her father, Fred Harris, a Wexford County sheriff's deputy.

She may have been there for 90 minutes, he said. "I don't see how it could have happened," said Harris.

Vince Morrissey, the hospital's vice president for public relations, was out of his office and not available for comment Thursday.

Elie Wiesel, a survivor of two Nazi concentration camps and chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Commission, addresses a ceremony at the Capitol Thursday.

The ceremony marked the 40th anniversary of the liberation of Jews from concentration camps in Germany and the end of World War II.

Presidential priorities

Jewish leader dismayed at Reagan's decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying he will not cave in and cancel a visit to a German cemetery where Nazi SS soldiers are buried, is preparing to meet face to face with a Jewish leader who says the president has brought "pain and shame" to Americans.

Reagan was scheduled to present the Congressional Gold Medal today to Elie Wiesel, a survivor of two Nazi concentration camps and chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Commission. The White House ceremony was arranged before the uproar about Reagan's planned cemetery visit.

At a ceremony at the Capitol on Thursday marking the 40th anniversary of the liberation of Jews from concentration camps at the end of World War II, Wiesel said he understood the administration's efforts to "deal delicately with German sensitivities."

"But what about American sensibility?" he asked. "Did no one consider the pain and the shame some, if not most Americans, would feel upon learning that the president of the United States, for whom we have genuine admiration and affection, plans to visit a cemetery in which there are a good number of SS graves?"

In an interview, Wiesel said he had been weighing whether to have the event postponed or to go ahead with it and use the occasion to reiterate his opposition of the cemetery visit in person.

The White House said Reagan would use the ceremony to call for observance of Jewish Heritage Week.

Reagan, speaking to editors and broadcasters at a White House luncheon, said he had no plans to cancel the visit to the small military cemetery in the southwestern German town of Bitburg.

"I think that it would be very hurtful and all it would do is leave me looking as if I caved in in the face of some unfavorable attention," the president said.

He conceded that some of the 2,000 or so graves in the cemetery are those of SS troops — "the villains, as we know, that conducted the persecutions and all."

But he said most of them were youths about 18 of age "drafted into service to carry out the hateful wishes of the Nazis."

Shuttle Discovery glides home safely

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts, their homcoming delayed 99 minutes by rain, glided safely back to Earth today at the end of a bittersweet journey that astronaut Sen. Jake Garn hailed as proof that "man is needed in space."

The 103-ton space plane, its final dash across central Florida heralded by sonic booms, dropped out of a clear sky and onto a 15,000-foot runway three miles from the launch pad it left a week ago and where shuttle Challenger is perched, 10 days from liftoff. Like the landing, Discovery's launch had been delayed by rain.

With commander Karol Bobko at the controls, the shuttle touched down at 8:55 a.m. EST, swooping in from the south after making a series of wide circles above this spaceport. The ship had traveled 2.5 million miles.

"The Swat Team is home," said

Mission Control, referring to the makeshift, flyswatter-like tools the astronauts used in an unsuccessful attempt to repair a satellite.

As the shuttle rolled to a stop, Mission Control told the astronauts, "I think you blew a right-hand outboard tire."

Thousands of spectators at the landing strip and along nearby rivers and highways viewed the landing, the fifth here in 16 shuttle flights and fourth in succession.

An hour before touchdown, Bobko and pilot Don Williams fired braking rockets more than 200 miles above the Indian Ocean to slow the shuttle's speed and start it on a supersonic dive through the atmosphere.

The astronauts were to have landed at 7:16 a.m., but rain clouds near the landing strip prompted Mission Control to instruct them to stay up one extra circuit of the globe.

Triple-murderer executed in Va.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Triple-murderer James D. Briley, the leader of the nation's largest death-row escape, was executed Thursday night in Virginia's electric chair, where his brother was put to death six months ago.

Briley was pronounced dead at 11:07 p.m., said Kathi King, a spokeswoman for the State Penitentiary.

Earlier in the day, inmates at the prison rioted to try to block his electrocution, injuring nine guards and a prisoner. The disturbance prompted an indefinite lockdown at the 800-inmate institution.

Briley, 28, was executed for the murders of a pregnant woman and her young son. He lost two last-ditch appeals to stay his execution.

$10.45 million painting

LONDON — The J. Paul Getty Museum of Malibu, Calif., has paid a world record price of $10.45 million for "The Adoration of the Magi," a painting by Italian Renaissance artist Andrea Mantegna.

But Timothy Clifford, director of the National Gallery of Scotland in Edinburgh, said after the Thursday bidding that he would try to block the necessary export license and start a fundraising effort because he thought the almost-500-year-old painting was part of Britain's heritage.

"That is my opportunity to come in and match the sum of money the Getty Museum has paid," said Clifford.

Jet crashes in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — A U.S. Air Force jet crashed at sea on a routine training mission in northern Honduras and the fate of the two crew members on board was unknown, the U.S. Embassy said.

The two crew members, both Americans, were believed to be dead, but U.S. soldiers continued searching for them, said an embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The names of the missing crew members were not released.

Wreckage of the OA-37 training bomber was found 15 miles northeast of Punta Sal, a port 217 miles north of Tegucigalpa, the spokesman said. The site is near Honduras' northeast coast, south of Belize, far from the Nicaraguan border.

India's big spy roundup

NEW DELHI, India — India's biggest spy case in nearly 40 years of independence, revealed early this year, involved 11 agents from the Soviet bloc and France who served here as diplomats, according to an official document.

The document accuses 19 Indians, 12 of them government officials, of providing secret information on India's defense, finances, commerce and foreign policy.

Priest bans witch's talk

SHEFFIELD, England — An Anglican priest has banned a witch from giving a lecture to local townswomen at a parish church hall, saying witchcraft is "anti-Christian."

Pat Crowther, High Priestess of the Sheffield Coven in northern England, said she was to have lectured to the women's guild Wednesday night on the history of witchcraft, but was banned by the Rev. John Marsh.

"I suppose he thinks I would arrive on a broomstick wearing a pointed hat," said Ms. Crowther.

ROTC cadet dies after run

ABILENE (AP) — Authorities say a 25-year-old ROTC cadet who collapsed at Hardin-Simmons University near the end of a two-mile run that was part of a physical test died of apparent heart failure.

Albert Lewis Fitts was pronounced dead at 2:50 p.m. Thursday at Hendrick Medical Center by Taylor County Justice of the Peace Samuel Matta, who ordered an autopsy.

Major James P. Ellis of the HSU Military Science Department said Fitts, a junior at McMurry College, collapsed shortly after noon while running with 20 other cadets taking the "routine Army Physical Readiness" test.

Ellis said the test for all cadets, being given at Parramore Field, also involves sit-ups and push-ups and is given twice a year.

Fitts recently passed a physical examination at Dyess Air Force Base that "revealed no difficulties," he said.

Laredo officials detect brucellosis in milk

LAREDO (AP) — County health officials were warning residents of this South Texas city to limit their purchase of milk and dairy products to approved sources following confirmation that four women were treated for brucellosis.

The women told the Webb County Health Department of Wednesday that they had eaten unpasteurized cheese or raw milk before getting sick.

Linda Brand Miller, a Webb County health educator, told the Laredo Times at least four cases of brucellosis have been confirmed at a local hospital. No health department officials could be reached by telephone by The Associated Press to determine where the women were treated or their conditions.

Other health department officials told the newspaper all the women who contracted the disease had purchased and eaten a white, round cheese. They said the unlabeled cheese was home-wrapped in aluminum foil.

Jose Pepe Gonzalez, health center director, said he believes the suspect dairy products are being made in Nuevo Laredo, across the border in Mexico.

But Webb County health officials would not blame the cases of brucellosis on cheese being sold door-to-door in the Laredo area.

Ms. Miller said brucellosis can also affect other animals including sheep and goats. She said the disease, also known as undulant fever or Malta fever, it cannot be transmitted from human to human.

"Brucellosis can only be spread from animal to man in one of two ways: through direct contact with a diseased animal or, alternatively, through consumption of unpasteurized milk or milk products, especially cheese," she said.

Spokesmen at two Laredo facilities, Mercy Hospital and Doctors Hospital, said they had not treated anyone for brucellosis.

"The symptoms are rather vague because brucellosis sets in slowly and because it has an incubation period that can range from five to 30 days," Ms. Miller said. "It mimics a variety of conditions, but a doctor will recognize it immediately," she said.

Robbers use stun gun in Dallas robbery

DALLAS (AP) — A store clerk incapacitated by a stun gun watched a two men robbed him of $1,000 then fled, police said.

It was the first time the gun had been used as a weapon to incapacitate a victim in a Dallas robbery, police said Thursday.

"Those things are for sale to the public — there's no restraints on them," said robbery Lt. Gerald Calame of the Dallas Police Department.

The men, armed with both a pistol and the electronic device, entered the cashier's office of the Safeway store as it was closing at 11 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

One held the pistol on clerk David Eastwood, 18, while the other pressed a stun gun to his back for about 30 seconds, the clerk told police.

"It was a painful, shocking experience," Eastwood said. "He put it on me, and at first I didn't know what was happening — then I realized I was being zapped."

Eastwood said he collapsed and was incapacitated for several minutes. The robbers fled on foot with about $1,000 from the open safe, police said.

Paramedics gave Eastwood a clean bill of health, but the clerk's back was sore and marks remained visible where the stun gun was held to his back, Eastwood said Thursday.

Dallas police have been using stun guns experimentally since Feb. 1. Officials say the device was effective in stopping fleeing suspects in more than half of the cases in which they were used in March.

Opinion

Let's not lose PBS to Michelob Light

Imagine the perennially urbane Alistair Cooke pausing in his introduction to "Masterpiece Theatre" for a 30-second tribute to the superior holding powers of Poli-Grip.

Or "Nova" interrupting an exploration of the wonders of the insect world to allow a pitch for Raid.

Or the cast of "Tosca" warbling the Michelob Light song from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera.

Thankfully, public television viewers thus far have been spared. But commercial messages, once unthinkable on the Public Broadcasting Service, are making discreet advances these days, thanks to shrinking taxpayer support of public broadcasting and a 1984 ruling by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC permitted what is called "enhanced underwriting" — something more than the mere mention of a corporate sponsor's name, but something less than a full-blown commercial. As a result, photos of specific products, familiar slogans and even brief musical jingles are turning up on PBS.

Does all of this make you a bit uneasy? Congress might well ask why any tax dollars should support public television, given the fact that enhanced underwriting brought in $57.1 million in corporate contributions to public TV last year (an increase of $19 million over 1983). Another danger, now that the door is open part way, is that advertisers will want still more freedom to sell their images and wares. PBS is already said to be considering more liberal rules.

But it's a fact that public television is in a painful financial bind. PBS' budget for the current fiscal year is a little over $150 million, $50 million less than during the Carter administration. And despite aggressive (and sometimes obnoxious) on-air pledge drives, only one in eight public television viewers contributes.

So you can hardly blame public TV for welcoming corporate aid. Until Congress and the viewing public are willing to support this national treasure at the level it deserves, you can expect to see more Madison Avenue on the public airwaves. And ultimately you may see four commercial networks — with nothing resembling public television.

Betting on sports evens the odds

We have our latest college basketball scandal. These are getting to be as regular as the ducks flying south for the winter. Police have arrested eight people, including three Tulane University players, who are accused of arranging to shave points in two games so that informed bettors could beat the point spread. If convicted, each player could get five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Whoa there! Wait just a minute. Isn't it kind of harsh to lock some poor jock in the state prison with murderers and robbers because he purposely muffed a couple of free throws? Isn't it odd for a prosecutor to protect the interests of the saps who got swindled? And while we're at it, why do we have laws against "sports bribery" anyway?

Take the last question first. John Noonan, a law professor at the University of California at Berkeley and author of a new book about bribery, says the U.S. is "virtually unique in the world" in outlawing this type of chicanery. Elsewhere, athletic institutions have to police themselves.

Do we really need to drag the law enforcement authorities into this? Why can't the NCAA clean its own house? Newspapers (if they're anything like the one I work for) have no trouble enforcing self-imposed ethics rules that would constrict the 12 apostles. The various professional and amateur leagues ought to be able to find their own ways to prevent point-shaving.

I suppose you can come up with a plausible rationale for some kind of law against bribing athletes to fix games. People who pay money to see two teams compete assume they'll see honest competition. If a player accepts a bribe to take the night off, the fans unwittingly get fleeced.

But this sort of fraud, though worthy of punishment, isn't a real danger to the lives and property of innocent people. Given the abundance of violent criminals in New Orleans and elsewhere, it's not obvious why police and prosecutors should spend their time breathing down the necks of shady ballplayers.

And the sentences are way out of proportion to the crime. Each of the hapless Tulane players could spend five years in prison. A lot of burglars and robbers get off a lot easier than that.

This draconian treatment of the mopes who fix ballgames reflects our ridiculous reverence toward sports. Nowadays, centerfielders and running backs are not just admired but worshipped. Idols who make the mistake of proving themselves humanly corruptible are asking for big trouble.

Prosecutions like this also betray our confusion about gambling. After all, who gains most from rooting out athletic corruption? The gamblers who make their wagers in the belief that sports are clean. They're the ones who are hung out to dry when somebody rigs a game.

But that's what they deserve, right? Protecting gamblers against deception would make sense if gambling were legal, as it ought to be, but in most places it isn't. Why should the New Orleans DA spend the taxpayers' money to protect reprobates from the consequences of their vice? Why not let the crooked gamblers teach the honest ones a lesson?

In any case, sports wagers would be more interesting if the government turned a blind eye to corruption. Instead of considering how healthy a forward's knees are, the better would have to scrutinize his moral character. Regular church attendance might count for more than a deadly jump shot.

Come to think of it, the best way to stamp out betting on sports is to ignore corruption. Then the only people who would want to place bets would be the fixers. And who would the sharpies bet against? Faced with this unpleasant turn of events, they'd have no more reasons to fix games.

The wrath of a 'Mad Dog'

WASHINGTON — David Sullivan is a former CIA analyst whose friends call him "Mad Dog." He's a pivotal behind-the-scenes power in the fight over the MX missile and U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations.

The story of Sullivan's rise to influence is a case history of the way things work in Washington. Educated at Harvard, Sullivan served in Marine Corps combat intelligence in Vietnam and eventually wound up in one of the CIA's most sensitive jobs: analyzing Soviet strategy and nuclear force modernization. He soon discovered that the Soviets were violating SALT I and other treaties with the United States.

But when Sullivan presented his evidence, he was stonewalled by agency higher-ups. This was during the Carter administration, which didn't want evidence of Soviet violations of SALT I endangering President Carter's attempts to negotiate the SALT II agreement.

Frustrated, Sullivan committed bureaucratic hara-kiri: He delivered his report on Soviet violations to a sympathetic congressional aide, Richard Perle. This violated the First Commandment of bureaucratic government: Thou shalt not go out of channels.

Realizing his days in the CIA were numbered, Sullivan quit and went to work for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. He wrote numerous articles on Soviet duplicity for various publications.

When Ronald Reagan became president, Sullivan was given a top post at the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. His friend Richard Perle, became a high official at the Pentagon.

Sullivan's "mad dog" pursuit of Soviet violations guaranteed that his tenure at the disarmament agency would be brief. Frustrated once more, he left for the more sympathetic environment of Capitol Hill, becoming a senior policy adviser to four conservative GOP senators, Steve Symms and James McClure of Idaho, and Jesse Helms and John East of North Carolina.

In this capacity, Sullivan has ghosted a series of letters from the Fearsome Four to their Senate colleagues, President Reagan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and CIA Director William Casey, reminding them of Kremlin perfidy. A recent campaign, for example, tried to get the Pentagon and the CIA to acknowledge that the Soviets now have more than 8,500 ICBM nuclear warheads, instead of the 6,500 they profess to have.

Surprisingly, the Reagan administration, while fulminating about the "Evil Empire," was reluctant to reveal information it had on Soviet arms-treaty violations. The White House finally did so in a secret report early last year — after Symms (with Sullivan at his elbow) had done some high-powered prodding.

Sullivan, the consummate behind-the-scenes operator, has become an irascible and influential monkey wrench in the machinery of U.S.-Soviet arms-control negotiations. It's not just because he now has some committed ideological hardliners backing him; it's because his early warnings on Soviet weapon development turned out to be dead accurate.

Even liberal critics concede that Sullivan is "brilliant" and an opponent to be reckoned with, though they claim — with some justice — that he occasionally stretches the facts to make a polemical point.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Insight

The selling of America to Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ask a dozen experts why the United States has so much trouble selling products in Japan and here's what they'll say:

—It's not so much tariffs on foreign products, although Japan has some.

—It's not so much quotas or other restrictions, although Japan has some of those too.

—And it's not that there's a Japanese xenophobia; in fact, they love some familiar American names — Coca-Cola, McDonalds, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Schick, Gillette, even Disneyland.

So why then is the United States buying $37 billion more from Japan than it is selling there? And why is this trade gap prompting desk-pounding in Washington and talk of a trade war, why this undercurrent of protectionism in the United States?

To a person, these experts will say the big problem is the high value of the U.S. dollar. Its strength makes Japanese goods cheaper to buy here, and makes American goods more expensive to buy there.

Second, there's a cultural barrier. The country's web of business relationships and bureaucratic structures can seem impenetrable. For some products, they may be impenetrable.

And the third reason they'll cite is a problem that lies here, with American manufacturers and sellers — a lack of knowledge of what Japan is like and what its consumers want, an impatience to do years of work learning the language and the market and a reluctance to make a long-term commitment in time, money and people.

Without question, they say, the dollar is the big problem. Next to it, other barriers and questions about American product quality pale.

"The overwhelming thing is the exchange rate," said Lawrence Krause, senior fellow in economics at the Brookings Institution. "The magnitude is so great that nothing is a close second."

Economists say the strong U.S. economy and high interest rates, encouraged by the country's huge deficit spending, have boosted the dollar's value against the yen and other currencies. Foreign money pours into the United States seeking its high interest rates, in part financing the federal government's borrowing and bidding rates up further.

"The strong dollar, in effect, becomes an export tax of 30 to 40 percent" on American products, said Philip Trezise, also a senior fellow at Brookings. "If you in fact put on a tax of 40 percent, you're not going to export that much."

The overvalued dollar isn't a problem unique to Japan trade. It hampers American manufacturers in sales to nearly all countries; the United States' overall trade deficit last year reached a record $124 billion.

But Japan is this country's second largest trading partner, behind Canada, and judging by the cars on almost any street, its most visible.

The dollar problem is so great, experts say, that even if Japan were to open its markets to American products such as telecommunications equipment and agriculture, the trade deficit would only inch down a few billion dollars, if that.

Moreover, Krause contends the dollar's overvaluation means that even if the United States did export a lot more products to Japan, the United States would find more imports pouring in here too.

"Until we get a decline of the dollar, we're not likely to see any significant diminution of the trade deficit with Japan, even if the Japanese do take major steps to increase purchases of American products," said I.M. Destler, senior fellow at the Institute for International Economics.

"That's the bind we're in," he added. "Because it's trade, we think trade policy ought to solve it. It's a trade problem, but it's not a trade policy problem." Japanese tariffs aren't the problem, most experts agree; they will be among the lowest in the industrialized world after a scheduled final round of reductions.

Japan places import quotas on some products, notably agriculture, but they are generally in areas sensitive for domestic political reasons, just as the United States has tried to protect textiles and some other sectors, the experts say.

That is not to say Japan's markets are open, though.

George R. Packard, dean of the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, says the Japanese word "keiretsu" represents the hidden cultural barrier many American would-be exporters run into.

"It's a web of relationships that go back 50, 100, sometimes 300 years in a highly cultured society," he said. "It means an interlocking web of relationships in which a parent corporation has a lot of subcontractors who traditionally supply it with materials or services. The relationships go far beyond contract work."

It means, he said, that distributors and manufacturers in Japan deal with one another over generations. They resist new players, be they American or Japanese. The business relationships are seen as more than contracts, but as continuing obligations.

Krause contends this is more than a benign network. It is, he said, "reinforced by hardball mechanisms."

Around The Rim

Family secrets, deep and dark

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Four generations of family have passed through its interiors. I'm sure its walls have retained family secrets.

A girl I once dated in El Paso told me it looked like a gingerbread house from the outside.

Hardly. Maybe from the outside but not from the inside.

Last week, I spent my birthday with my father in El Paso at my aunt and uncle's house on Rim Road. The house overlooks downtown El Paso. The neighborhood was one of the city's first elite. The eccentric wealthy lived here at one time. They earned money the good old fashioned way — they inherited it.

My uncle died in 1980. He was a contractor and after he married my aunt in 1931, they had an opportunity to design a dream house. They never had children. Nephews and nieces were treated as such.

Within the nobility of all family lines bad blood exists. You see it when a new generation steps in to take the place of their ancestors.

Greed surfaces. There's a fight for power. Confidentiality, trust and support are revoked.

I suppose any old house that has stayed within family lineage could tell those stories.

During the later stages of my aunt's life — when she required medical care around the clock, my older brothers and I broke the tension by laughing at the maid's belief that the house possessed a ghost.

The maid was frightened when my aunt would experience bad nightmares and scream in her sleep.

My aunt died in 1983. She suffered from Parkinsons disease and had been heavily sedated with L-dopa medicine for years.

That was why she had nightmares, we told the maid.

After arriving in El Paso last Saturday, I told my father I was going to turn in early. It had been a long exhaustive drive from Big Spring.

I had a horrible dream that night and woke up to my own scream. My dad asked me about it the next morning.

Put your ear to the walls, Father. You'll hear them laughing.

Make litterbugs pay for dirty city

To the editor:
I think the program 4 by 4 is a great thing. But I think it is a disgrace to look back in a month or two and can't tell where they cleaned up. Why can't our city government enforce the litter law? Why not make people who litter or let their lots grow up clean it up or make them pay for it. Hit them hard enough in the pocketbook and we will have a clean city this year around.

University honors local co-ed twice in one week

University of Texas accounting junior Teresa Ann Alexander was honored twice by the university and its student body last week.

Alexander, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Alexander of 2714 Carol, celebrated her birthday by being crowned the UT Sweetheart 1985-86, April 9. The coronation was a feature of the Round-Up Carnival that week. She was nominated by the Admissions Office and is a member of Phi Chi Theta and Campus Crusade for Christ.

As the UT Sweetheart, Alexander is the official hostess of the university. She will host academic and athletic recruiting and alumni events, represent the university at the Cotton Bowl Parade and various campus activities, and serve on the Student Involvement Committee.

To become the UT Sweetheart, candidates are nominated by student or campus organizations and evaluated on the basis of appearance, grade point average and involvement in campus activities. Five semi-finalists are selected and the student body elects the winner.

"I feel it is a real honor to be a representative of the University. I feel it is very important, especially for incoming students, to be able to relate to someone on the same level," she said about becoming sweetheart.

Saturday, Alexander was honored during the University's 37th annual Honors Day Awards Luncheon for excelling scholastically. To be honored she had to have a 3.5 grade point average or higher and at least 30 semester hours of credit at UT and 60 or more hours of credit overall. Her grade point average is 3.7.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander went to Austin, April 12, for the Honor's Day activities that took place Saturday. They attended the Round-Up Parade Friday, which featured their daughter as UT Sweetheart.

Dance for Heart event to raise funds for health organization

As many Texans choose dance as a form of exercise, the Howard County Heart Association will sponsor Dance for Heart April 27 at Big Spring Mall.

Dance for Heart is a statewide fundraising event, benefitting research and education programs of the American Heart Association. The event is the result of a partnership between the International Dance-Exercise Association (IDEA) and the Heart Association. IDEA members encourage students to participate in the event, while Heart Association volunteers work to coordinate and promote locally.

According to James M. Atkins, M.D., president of the American Heart Association in Texas, "This partnership is rewarding for both organizations. Both are promoting aerobic dance as a good way to exercise the cardiovascular system. Exercise, along with proper nutrition and not smoking, will help prevent heart disease and stroke."

Dance for Heart is for anyone who enjoys dance, be it aerobic dance, ballroom dancing, square dancing or jazzercise. Funds are raised through pledges based on the amount of time spent dancing. Each participant recruits sponsors who make pledges based on the number of minutes the participant dances. Sponsors may wish to make a flat donation. Participants may dance during as many of the six 45-minute sessions between noon and 5 p.m. as they wish.

Organizations participating in the Big Spring Dance for Heart include the YMCA, Jazzercise, the Fitness Connection, the Dance Gallery and Big Spring Squares. The square dancing club will perform from 3:45 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The event is not limited as to who can participate. Local joggers, walkers, cyclists or anyone interested in cardiovascular fitness can attend, says Cindy Robinson, coordinator.

Patrice McKinney from Western Texas College in Snyder will conduct a freewheeling session. "Freewheeling is aerobic dance, but you just follow the leader. So, no experience or knowledge of dance steps is needed," said Robinson.

For more information, contact a participating organization or Robinson at 267-2766.

Dear Abby

Skirmish could become major wedding battle

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married next month to a man who's in the Navy. Three months ago "Charlie" sent me a letter he had received from his mother in which she had-mouthed my mother something terrible! Our families are worlds apart, and I think Charlie's mother feels inferior and insecure, and has a chip on her shoulder.

I was so spaken when I read the awful letter downgrading my mother, I read it to my parents. Now my mother says that she will not attend my wedding unless Charlie's mother apologizes to her. Charlie's mother says no apology is necessary because she didn't say anything to my mother's face.

I got along fine with Charlie's mother before this happened. Whose fault was it? And what should I do?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: If you're looking for someone else to blame, start with Charlie's mother who wrote the letter downgrading your mother. Then blame Charlie for his poor judgment in sending that letter to you. Next blame yourself for reading it to your parents. What should you do? Try to get this family feud resolved so that at the sound of the (church) bell, everybody doesn't come out swinging.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a fine-looking woman with an outstanding figure. She has never owned a bra and probably never will. She says bras are uncomfortable, she's proud of her figure, and she has nothing to hide. In fact, she wears as little as possible.

I am proud of the way she looks, but my family is not. They have called her a "loose" woman. Well, she is not loose. I like the way she dresses and personally bought her blouses and sweaters that show off her full figure because I think a little jiggle and bounce under her clothes looks nice.

Tell me the truth, do you think a woman who wears no bra is loose — or is it just my family?

PROUD OF MY WIFE

DEAR PROUD: A "loose" woman is one who is lacking in moral restraint. One who flaunts her full figure is merely lacking in judgment.

You obviously care what your family thinks or you wouldn't have written, so to minimize family criticism, minimize the "jiggle and bounce" in the presence of family.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I was very much in love with a man who didn't like my youngest son, so I stopped seeing him. Now I have met another man I like very much. He is good to my child, and we have a lot in common.

My problem now is that my older son joined the Navy and left me with Attila, his Great Dane. I live in a small apartment with no fenced yard. Since this Great Dane is little more than a puppy, he can be quite irritating. He's too strong and undisciplined for me to take for walks. My new friend dislikes dogs.

It's almost impossible to find a home for Attila — no one wants such a big animal. Having him put to sleep would make me feel guilty; he's a very sweet-tempered animal.

What on earth should I do? Shall I just wait until my son returns on leave, and let him remove the dog as he sees fit? If I keep him, it will be the end of my romance.

WORRIED SICK IN SUBURBIA

DEAR WORRIED: Check with your vet about obedience classes for Attila (he's old enough). And try to persuade your friend to go along. Observing how he handles frustration could give you valuable insight into what kind of husband he'll be.

Dr. Donohue

Do elderly need water prescription?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I read frequently in your column of elderly people having dry mouths. In our home, where we care for an elderly person (79), we have found the simplest of all answers — four square glasses of water, plain old water, each day. We schedule it just the way we do medicine for him, my father. It isn't that he is mentally unable to understand the need, but he just forgets, and for some reason he just doesn't get as thirsty as other people. Is there a reason for that? Anyway, I think it is a good tip for others in the same situation. L.J.

I agree, even though many things besides inadequate hydration can account for buccal membrane dryness. You have to also look to some of the medicines he may be taking. Many drugs commonly used by elderly patients promote such membrane drying.

But I don't want to detract from the importance of your valuable observation. Published reports have, in fact, noted a reduced thirst instinct in people as they grow older, and some doctors are actually going so far as to "prescribe" a certain number of glasses of water each day for elderly patients. If a person is getting the equivalent of six to eight glasses of fluid daily, he is getting what is needed for proper hydration. If the person has diarrhea, then that amount might be greater.

Another reader, J.H., asked me some time ago about counting coffee, tea, and alcohol intake as an ounce-for-ounce equivalent for plain water. You can't do that because all these substances act as mild diuretics. A fever is the important clue to inadequate fluid levels.

Pre-nuptial shower honors bride-elect Dacia Loudamy

Dacia Loudamy, bride-elect of Steve Roen, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower at the home of Linda Park, Saturday.

Hostesses for the event included Park, Dorothy Burrow, Margaret Cervantes, Angie Cole, Lela Hardy, Margie Hill, Judy Lewis, Patricia McKinney, Lucille Norris, Debbie Scott, Cindy Stovall, Rose Teeler and Kenny Kay Young. The hostesses presented the honoree with a vacuum cleaner.

Special guests were the bride-elect's mother Mrs. Loy Loudamy, and the prospective bridegroom's mother Mrs. J.D. Roen. Guests were served from a table decorated with apricot-colored flowers.

The couple will wed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wash, May 18.

103-year-old Margaret McArdle saw the first Fiesta Battle of Flowers Parade in 1891. Thanks to recent surgery she is no longer blind and will be able to view this year's parade for the first time in years.

Special birthday gift

103-year old San Antonio woman's eyesight is restored

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Margaret McArdle got a special gift for her 103rd birthday this year — she regained her sight.

Blind since 1981, Mrs. McArdle underwent cataract surgery in February and regained her sight in her left eye.

Now she can see well enough to enjoy the upcoming Fiesta parades in San Antonio.

But she likely will watch the festivities on television, since her legs are a little weak and she navigates in a wheelchair.

Mrs. McArdle, who witnessed the first Fiesta Battle of Flowers Parade in 1891, says the last event she watched on television was the wedding of Prince Charles and Princess Diana in July 1981.

"But that was all just a big blob," she recalls. Mrs. McArdle, a resident of Hillside Manor Nursing Home, says she now will be able to resume one of her favorite pastimes — watching sports.

"I really like sports, mainly baseball and football," she said.

She moved into the nursing home four years ago "and couldn't tell what anything looked like. Now that I can see again, everything is just real pretty."

Mrs. McArdle says she has not decided if she will have cataract surgery on her right eye.

Austin heads list of top Texas cities

ARLINGTON (AP) — A university study ranks Austin as the best place to live in Texas, but last-place Brownsville still has aesthetic assets like "beautiful sunsets," a researcher says.

The survey on the quality of life in the state's 52 largest cities by the University of Texas at Arlington ranks Austin first, then San Antonio, Dallas, Midland and Houston.

On the bottom of the list are Tyler, Texas City, Paris, Killeen and Brownsville.

The authors of the study said it takes into account only things that can be measured, rating the cities on eight major "quality of life" elements — transportation, culture and recreation, public safety, housing, politics, education, economic opportunities, and health and the environment.

Researched by UTA's Institute of Urban Studies, the survey used data from the 1970 and the 1980 U.S. Census and dozens of reports from agencies and private organizations, said authors Richard Cole, the institute dean, and professors Delbert Taebel and Ann Smith.

Released Tuesday, the study measured everything from the condition of plumbing in homes to the number of bowling lanes available in a city.

"Obviously, quality of life is subjective, but there are some elements that can be measured, and that's what we tried to do," Cole said. "Other people may have different views."

Steve Bosio, executive vice president of the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce, said he is a "little upset" about his city's being ranked as the state's worst city to live in.

"I'm not sure of the criteria they used to rank us, but I think you need to take into account our location, the beach, the (Mexican) border — our different way of life," Bosio said.

Study author Taebel said Brownsville should not take offense at its last-place showing.

"Brownsville might come out 52nd, but it might have a beautiful sunset that can't be captured with numbers," he said.

The following is the ranking of Texas cities in the study, entitled "The Quality of Life in Texas Cities."

1. Austin, 10.00 rating; 2. San Antonio, 9.98; 3. Dallas, 9.23; 4. Midland, 9.18; 5. Houston, 9.17; 6. Denton, 9.16; 7. Temple, 9.04; 8. Corpus Christi, 8.91; 9. Amarillo, 8.88; 10. Abilene, 8.85.

11. Fort Worth, 8.82; 12. El Paso, 8.74; 13. Hurst, 8.73; 14. College Station, 8.72; 15. Kingsville, 8.61; 16. Garland, 8.60; 17. Lubbock, 8.58; 18. Nacogdoches, 8.57; 19. Carrollton, 8.49; and, 20. Mesquite, 8.46.

21. Plano, 8.43; 22. Waco, 8.38; 23. Arlington, 8.28; 24. Irving, 8.24; 25. Victoria, 8.21; 26. Del Rio, 8.12; 27. Richardson, 8.12; 28. Wichita Falls, 8.09; 29. Odessa, 8.05; 30. Beaumont, 8.03.

31. San Angelo, 8.01; 32. Duncanville, 7.99; 33. Sherman, 7.97; 34. McAllen, 7.88; 35. North Richland Hills, 7.81; 36. Bryan, 7.80; 37. Port Arthur, 7.77; 38. Galveston, 7.76; 39. Texarkana, 7.68; 40. Baytown, 7.64.

41. Haltom City, 7.60; 42. Pasadena, 7.58; 43. Lufkin, 7.57; 44. Harlingen, 7.56; 45. Grand Prairie, 7.54; 46. Longview, 7.51; 47. Laredo, 7.50; 48. Tyler, 7.40; 49. Texas City, 7.00; 50. Paris, 6.95; 51. Killeen, 6.76; and, 52. Brownsville, 6.45.

Minnesota blasts Black Hawks 8-5

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Down 3-0, the Minnesota North Stars were in the perfect position to fold up their act, just as they had done many times during the National Hockey League season. Instead, they came alive just as they were being counted out.

The North Stars won the Norris Division last year but were a dismal fourth this season with a 25-43-12 record. A slew of injuries and indifferent performances by the healthy players were the main cause of the team's fall.

But the North Stars are vindicating themselves for their horrid regular season. They swept first-place St. Louis in the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs and stormed back from that 3-0 deficit to hand the Chicago Black Hawks an 8-5 whipping Thursday night. That gave Minnesota a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven divisional final.

Elsewhere in quarterfinal openers Thursday, Quebec edged Montreal 2-1 in overtime on Mark Kumpel's goal in the Adams Division; Stanley Cup champion Edmonton got two third-period goals to subdue Winnipeg 4-2 in the Smythe, and Philadelphia blanked the New York Islanders 3-0 behind goalie Pelle Lindbergh in the Patrick.

The Oilers-Jets play again Saturday, while the other three series resume on Sunday.

Nordiques 2, Canadiens 1 — At Montreal, the Nordiques' only American put in a shot from the right-wing boards that Canadiens' goaltender Steve Penney couldn't get his glove on at 12:23 of overtime. The Nordiques, who finished three points behind first-place Montreal in the Adams this season, were 1-6-1 against the Canadiens during the season.

"I was trying to stay wide on the play, Michel Goulet got me the puck and I got rid of it quickly," said Kumpel, a 1984 U.S. Olympian. "I knew the defenseman was coming up on me, so I just shot, looked up and it was in."

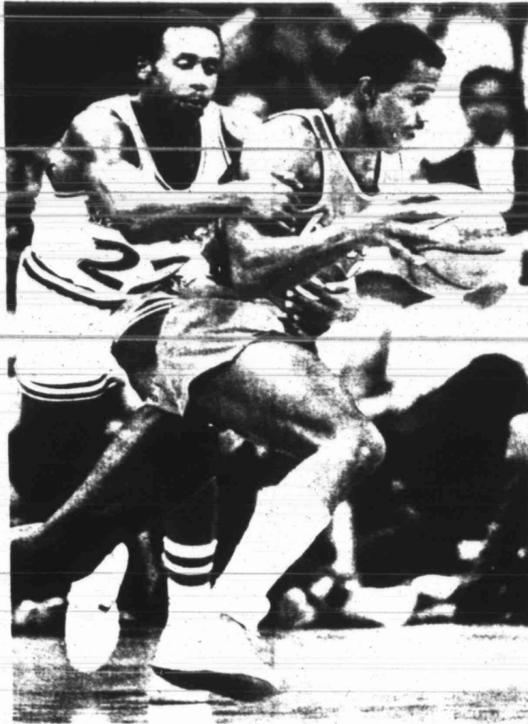

Brent Ashton had Quebec's other goal, while Lucien DeBlois scored for Montreal.

Oilers 4, Jets 2 — At Edmonton, Paul Coffey's shot bounced into the net off Winnipeg defenseman Dave Babych's skate six minutes into the third period, then Wayne Gretzky added an empty-net goal for the Stanley Cup champions. The Oilers have won seven consecutive playoff games against Winnipeg, which was missing injured stars Dale Hawerchuk and goalie Brian Hayward.

Gretzky scored his first playoff goal and had two assists for Edmonton, which also got goals from Mark Napier and Jari Kurri. The Jets kept pace through two periods with goals from Bengt Lundholm while they were shorthanded, and Paul MacLean.

Flyers 3, Islanders 0 — The visiting Islanders appeared listless after their historic comeback in the opening series, beating Washington in five games after dropping the first two. Rick Tocchet contributed a goal and an assist and Brian Propp set up two goals for the Flyers.

Tim Kerr and Ron Sutter also scored for the Flyers and Lindbergh blocked 22 shots for his first playoff shutout and second over the Islanders this month.

Boston upends scrappy Cavs

By The Associated Press

On a night of National Basketball Association playoff romp, it figured that the defending champion Boston Celtics would be one of the rompers. But the scrappy Cleveland Cavaliers had other ideas.

Boston rolled to a 70-58 halftime lead, but Cleveland rallied to take a 121-117 edge late in the fourth period. Boston's experience — and the scoring of Kevin McHale — saved the day as the Celtics held on for a 126-123 victory in the opening game of a best-of-five first-round series.

In other games, Los Angeles buried injury-riddled Phoenix 142-114; Denver ripped San Antonio 141-111; and Detroit clobbered New Jersey 125-105. In the other tight match, Dallas needed two overtimes to get past Portland 139-131.

"I'll tell you one thing, we can play with them," Cleveland guard World B. Free said. "We didn't win the game, but we played a hard game, not the way they thought it would be."

"They know how to play down the stretch. We're just learning," added Cleveland Coach George Karl, whose Cavaliers brought a 36-46 record into the playoffs against the NBA's winningest team. "I thought we had a good chance to beat them, and I know we can beat them."

Larry Bird scored 40 points for Boston, but it appeared that performance might not be enough. But McHale, who added 26 points, took charge by scoring nine points in the last four minutes. His basket and free throw ignited the late Boston comeback after Cleveland had built a three-point edge. And, after Free canned a shot for a 123-122 Cavaliers' lead, he added two more baskets to settle the issue.

"Our players have been saying for the last week and a half that we respect Cleveland, but no one believed us," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said.

Roy Hinson led the Cavaliers with 24 points, John Bagley hit 22 and Free 18.

Lakers 142, Suns 114 — Los Angeles scored a playoff-record 45 points in building a 21-point first-period lead and coasted home. Mike McGee led the Lakers with 22 points and guard Earvin Johnson added 18 points and 19 assists. "We didn't know what they might do against us," Laker Coach Pat Riley said, "but they came out and challenged us. I thought we were very sharp and focused. We played as well as we could, I think, for a stretch of about 10 minutes in the first half."

Nuggets 141, Spurs 111 — Alex English scored 33 points and Calvin Natt 25 for Denver, which took advantage of George Gervin's first-half foul trouble. The high-scoring Spurs guard played only eight minutes of the first half because of three quick fouls and failed to score a point. Denver, meanwhile, hit 61 percent of its shots in roaring off to a 68-51 bulge.

The 141 points represented the most Denver has ever scored in an NBA playoff game, and the 30-point victory margin was the club's widest ever in the playoffs.

Mike Mitchell led San Antonio with 23 points, Johnny Moore had 18 and Gervin finished with 16.

Pistons 125, Nets 105 — Detroit, a loser five times in six regular-season games with New Jersey, built a 19-point first-half lead and never looked back. Bill Laimbeer led the way with 23 points.

Laimbeer scored 10 of his points in the first quarter and guard Isiah Thomas added 11 as the Pistons cruised to a 39-26 lead. The last tie was 6-6 with 10:06 remaining in the quarter. Then, with Laimbeer hitting for eight points, the Pistons went on a 25-6 spree during the next six minutes that put the game away.

Mavericks 139, Trail Blazers 131 — Rolando Blackman scored 43 points, including the baskets that tied the game at the end of regulation and the first overtime, then hit three baskets to overcome a 125-121 Portland advantage in the second overtime.

Blackman hit a driving scoop shot with four seconds to play to send the game into overtime tied at 112, and duplicated the feat with just six seconds to play in the first overtime to tie it at 121-121.

In the second overtime, Kiki Vandeweghe, who led Portland with 25 points, scored twice to give Portland a quick 125-121 lead. But Blackman scored three straight buckets and Mark Aguirre, who finished with 27 points,

Evert-Lloyd drops Bunge

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd has been on a roll lately. But when play resumes in the quarterfinals of the $250,000 Women's Tennis Association Championships, she'll be facing upset-minded Gabriella Sabatini of Argentina.

Lloyd, who cruised into the quarterfinals Thursday by shutting out ninth-seeded Bettina Bunge 6-0, 6-0, knows the match won't be an easy one.

"I'd rather not play her (Sabatini) in the quarterfinals," Lloyd said. "That has to be the toughest quarterfinal in the draw."

The 14-year-old Sabatini upset fifth-seeded Carling Bassett 6-4, 6-3 to advance to the quarterfinals.

"Chris is too tough," Canada's Bassett said after the match. "But if Chris wasn't in her bracket, Sabatini would be in the finals." Sabatini was one of two unseeded players still alive in the tournament. The other was Virginia Ruzici, who survived a three-set battle against unseeded Anna Maria Cecchini.

Meanwhile, second-seeded Hana Mandlikova dispatched 17-year-old Debbie Spence 6-3, 6-2, and No. 14 Kathleen Horvath upset eighth-seeded Sylvia Hanika 6-4, 7-6 (7-3).

In other matches, third-seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch eliminated Petra Huber 6-3, 6-0, while tenth-seeded Steffi Graf knocked out seventh-seeded Pam Casale 6-4, 6-2.

Big Spring thinclads ready

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

The Steers and Lady Steers track teams will be competing in the District 4-5A track meet Saturday at Abilene's Elmer Gray Stadium. The meet is expected to be among the most hotly contested districts in the 5A state ranks.

The meet is the stepping stone to Regional competition. The top two finishers in each event will advance. It will pose a big challenge for coach Randy Britton's young track teams, but a few BSHS athletes have legitimate chances to advance to Regionals.

Although neither Big Spring team figures to be in the thick of the team race, Britton and his tracksters are looking forward to the meet. "Our main goal is to run some personal bests and get personal satisfaction out of that," said Britton.

Freshman high jumper Brian Mayfield stands the best chance of prolonging his track season since he has the district's best effort in the high jump. His leap of 6-7 is three inches better than his closest competitor, C.L. Bowman of San Angelo Central.

"Brian has a good chance," said Britton. "In fact, if he keeps his head, I don't think anyone will come close to him."

Half-miler Dax McCracken is

BRIAN MAYFIELD ... high jump favorite another Steer that has a chance at Regionals. His time of 2:00.2 is the third best in district. Other top Steer performers include intermediate hurdlers Brian Reid and Dewayne Sherman. Both have chances to run in the low 40's or high 39's.

Last week the Steers 400 relay team of freshmen Charles White and Danny Williams plus juniors Sherman and Reid clocked a season-best of 43.9. "We can run at least a 43.4, if we get our handoffs down," said Britton. Britton is expecting a 3:26 1600 meter relay time from the foursome of Cedrick

Banks, Sean Jackson, Sherman and Reid. "If we run that, (3:26) we can get into the top five," concluded Britton.

Britton expects the boys district race to come down between Midland Lee and Odessa Permian.

The Big Spring girls hopes ride with weight personnel Paula Jolley and Amanda Solis. Jolley, a sophomore, had the district's best throw in the shot (39-3) and discus (119-6).

Solis, a junior has thrown 38-4 in the shot and 113-0 in the discus. Britton hopes to accumulate a lot of points from the duo. "We could possibly go 1-2 in each event. A lot depends on how the girls do in their first event of the day."

High jumper Cari Brooks (4-8), along with long jumper (16-7) triple jump (35-2) specialist Monica Lockridge, should score some points.

Big Spring's top running hopefuls are hurdler Connie Swinney (17.2), 200 meter runner Katrina Thompson (27.70) and quarter-miler Michelle LaGrand (64.0).

Britton lists the girls team favorites as Odessa Permian and San Angelo Central.

The meet gets underway at noon with the field events. Running preliminaries get started at 1:30 p.m. Finals are scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Steer netters to end season

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Of the many team sports that Big Spring High School offers, tennis has the longest season of them all. Running from September through April, the Big Spring netters will wind up their 1984-85 season in Abilene this weekend at the 4-5A District tennis tournament.

Coach John Strahl's charges practice four to five days a week at the Figure 7 Tennis Center and have played in 17 tournaments through the winter and spring. Despite the long hours of practice and tournament play, the boys and girls have kept their academic priorities straight. The combined team grade point average is a sterling 88.0.

Strahl points to the more relaxed attitude he takes with his players when they are faced with academic conflicts. "First off, all these kids are very smart. They are disciplined student-athletes who can articulate and take instruction well. They know that school comes first and that I am willing to work around scheduling problems if they occur. It has been a joy to work with these kids all year."

Along with the fine work they have accomplished in the classroom, the Steer netters have also gained respect in the 4-5A tennis circles as well. "In years past playing Big Spring meant more or less a free match," commented Steer doubles player Charlie Bott.

"I think we have gained a lot of personal respect in 4-5A this year due to our improved play."

Although Strahl does not think that the Steers will vie for the 4-5A championship this year, his young squad could be a factor in the future. Seven of the twelve Steers slated to play in the District tournament are freshman and only two seniors, co-captains Linda Arroyo and Kristi Grimes, will graduate from the team. "It's kind of a mixed blessing having such a young team. We're not as competitive as we would like to be, but the experience for the young kids is invaluable," commented Strahl.

Heading up the boys contingent will be junior singles players Victor Coots and Mark Slate. Bott will team up with freshman Quade Weaver for one of the doubles teams. Freshmen Aaron Allen and Taff Wennik will comprise the second doubles squad.

Abilene High looks to have the inside track in the singles competition, while the doubles teams from Midland Lee and Odessa Permian are favored.

The Lady Steers will feature freshmen Lara Cunningham and Amber Logback in singles play. Arroyo and Grimes will anchor the girls doubles teams along with freshmen Angie Wilson and Kendra Madry. Abilene High is again heavily favored in the girls singles competition. The Eagles should also fare well in the doubles match play along with Midland Lee.

In 1984 the Steers finished seventh as a team at the 4-5A tournament. Strahl thinks his team might surprise a few people this year. "The top team is definitely Abilene High, with Central, Permian and Lee battling for second. We could conceivably finish as high as fourth if the kids stay loose. But this is traditionally an awfully tough tennis district. (Abilene) Cooper won a string of 9 consecutive state titles in the 1970's."

Play will begin at 8 a.m. Friday at Rosemont Park in Abilene. Semifinals and finals will be held on Saturday. The district champion team as well as singles and doubles finalists will advance to the Regional tournament.

Lady Steers drop in 4-5A golf

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Lady Steers dreams of qualifying for the Regional tournament were shattered by a less than spectacular final round at the 4-5A district golf tournament in Midland Thursday.

The Lady Steers were in contention for the second regional qualifying slot, 40 strokes behind host Midland High. The girls could not make up the difference, however, and in the course of the day they were caught by Odessa Permian who took sole possession of third place.

The lone bright spot for the Lady Steers was the continued fine play of Pam Martinez. Martinez fired a 92 for the day in Midland and had a cumulative total of 284 for four rounds. Martinez was named the 4-5A All-district team by virtue of her 8th place finish in the tournament standings. Abilene Cooper's Michelle Hapack was the 4-5A medalist with a four day total of 235. San Angelo Central's Lisa Faber joins Hapack at Regionals with a second place total of 262.

In the team competition, San Angelo Central won the championship with a combined four round total of 1116. Midland High finished second at 1200 and will join the Central contingent at the Regional tournament.

Individually for the Big Spring A team, Martinez finished with a four day total of 284. Maureen Mitchell had a 112 for the day and a 331 total for the tournament. Karen Brodie fired a 112 on the day and finished up at 330 for the tournament. Michelle Cox had a 105 in Midland and a four day total of 322. Heather Varley rounded out the A team efforts with 124 at Midland and a four round total of 365.

Final round scores and four day totals for the Big Spring B team are as follows: Rebecca Read 111-367; Tami Burnsed 122-388; Dede Durst 134-383; and Julie McVay 134-417. Holly Mott did not complete the required four rounds.

Area Tennis

O'Donnell, Forsan tops in Class A

O'Donnell dominated District 5-A tennis play here Wednesday as only one Crossroads Country netter advanced to regional play.

Borden County sophomore Kelli Williams advances to the region tournament for the second time by defeating Diane Sullivan of Wellman 6-2, 6-0 in the girls singles championship. Williams finished second in second in state doubles competition last season.

Girls doubles play was a all-O'Donnell affair. Kathy Bessire and Stacy Bessire downed teammates Valatie Clark and Rhonda Forbes 6-2, 6-2.

In the boys singles championship, Ricky Garza of Loop defeated David Olivas of O'Donnell 6-1, 5-7, 7-5.

The boys doubles competition was a match that lasted over three hours. In the end it was O'Donnell's Jay Edwards and Cody Crouch defeating Klondike's Lane Turner and Mitch Mitchell, 7-5, 3-6, 14-12.

16-A

Forsan and Garden City dominated the action at the District 6-A tennis tournament held Wednesday at Big Spring's Figure Seven Tennis Center.

In the boys team title race, Forsan edged out Garden City 40-30. In the girls race both teams tied for the championship with 25 points each.

In the girls singles championship Danette Holdampf of Garden City defeated Susan Blaylock 6-0, 6-0. Dana Hill of Forsan defeated teammate Melanie Mann 6-2, 6-4 for third place.

In the girls doubles championship, Peggy Johnson and Danielle Clere of Forsan downed Melanie Richburg and Jackie Womack of Highland, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1.

Sands Lisa Iden and Sherry Perry downed Kristy Graham and Chris Williams of Roscoe, 6-2, 6-4 for third place.

In the boys singles championship, Garden City sophomore Corry Turner downed Burt Patterson of Forsan 6-0, 6-1. Fred Garza of Grady downed Leland Bearden of Sands 6-4, 6-2 for third place.

The boys doubles championship went to Tom Thompson and Mark Smith of Forsan, who defeated Garden City's John Brennan and Ruendo Lopez of Garden City 6-4, 6-4. David Henson and Kelly Garrett of Forsan downed Garden City's Dean Munn and Hector DeHoyas 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, for third place.

The Region 1-A tennis tournament will be held May 1-2 in Levelland.

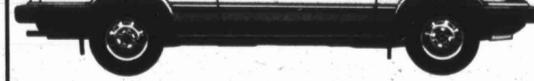

Like money in the bank.

In today's economy, you have to be careful with your investments. Maybe that's why so many people decide to buy a Honda. They know they can get a good return on that investment if they ever decide to sell.

Hondas have traditionally maintained one of the highest resale values of any car sold.

Which just goes to show that if you take good care of your Honda, you can likely bank on it.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FOR RELEASE SAT., APRIL 20, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full new moon brings most everyone right down to earth about what they can do to have better relations of a practical and material nature. Use a down-to-earth approach.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your monetary status well and do whatever is needed for improvement. Analyze every bit of information you get.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be practical in handling personal matters and think before you reach any definite decisions. Avoid accidents.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Look into right sources for the data you need and then apply it to improve present conditions. Take no risks with loved ones.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Study your personal desires and find the right and best way to gain them. Take some time to be alone today.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can handle outside matters very well, provided you are tactful with bigwigs. Do nothing to ruin your credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to run off to some new place or activity, but important duties would suffer thereby. Be happy at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You think you can handle some financial affair and thereby get out of the red, but it could make matters worse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have a chance to get fine arrangements made in the outside world and should not permit family to interfere.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have work to do that requires your careful attention since slovenliness could cost you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to put across some fine talents. Although your ideas work well in the morning, be careful in the afternoon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to have the cooperation of kin for whatever you have in mind concerning family interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to the questions of others, but don't make any definite replies as yet until you have given them more thought.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be interested in practical affairs from earliest youth and therefore the education should be more along the academic and philosophical lines, with foreign languages added since it will be easy to make money.

Texans more likely to have been 'born again'

By DR. DAVID HILL
Texas Poll Director

Texans are more likely than other Americans to have asked people to accept Christ as their savior, according to the Texas Poll.

The poll found that Texans are more likely to engage in certain religious activities than Americans as a whole, but newcomers to the state and young people could make Texas more like the rest of the country in the future.

The poll found significantly more Texans than Americans as a whole have "tried to encourage someone to believe in Jesus Christ or to accept him as his or her savior."

Among Texans, about two-thirds (64 percent) have evangelized, while fewer than half (45 percent) responding to a nationwide 1980 Gallup survey had.

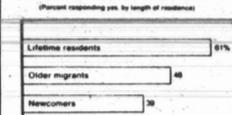

The Texas Poll also found that more than half of the state's adults (54 percent) have had a "born again" religious experience. National surveys since 1980 have consistently placed the national figure at 38-40 percent.

Those groups also were less likely to say they had been born again. Among the younger Texans, 49 percent reported having had such an experience, while 62 percent of the older people did. And 39 percent of the newcomers said they had been born again, while 61 percent of the lifetime residents did.

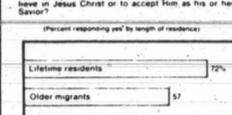

Among all Texans, 54 percent said they had "been born again or (had) had a born-again experience — that is, a turning point in your life when you committed yourself to Christ." Another 38 percent said they had not had such an experience, and 8 percent expressed no opinion.

Fewer new Texans 'born again,' involved in evangelism

Q: Would you say that you have been born again or have had a born-again experience — that is, a turning point in your life when you committed yourself to Christ? (Percent responding yes by length of residence)

Q: Have you ever tried to encourage someone to believe in Jesus Christ or to accept him as his or her savior? (Percent responding yes by length of residence)

Source: Texas Poll, January 1985. Based on a random telephone survey of 1,000 Texans. Margin of error is plus or minus 3 percent for the total sample and plus or minus 4 percent for subgroups of 100 or more. For subgroups of 50 or more, the margin of error is plus or minus 5 percent.

Baptists (77 percent) were the most likely religious group to report having been born again, perhaps reflecting the emphasis on that term among Baptists. Among Methodists, 45 percent said they'd had such an experience.

And 37 percent of the Catholics reported being born again, in this case perhaps reflecting the lack of emphasis on that phenomenon in the Catholic Church. About half (51 percent) of the members of other religious groups said they'd been born again.

The proportion of those who have been born again decreases with:

• Education — 64 percent of those with less-than-high-school educations, 54 percent of the high-school graduates and 44 percent of the college graduates.

• Income — 60 percent of those in families with family incomes under $10,000, 57 percent of those in families with incomes between $10,000 and $30,000, and 47 percent of those with family incomes above $30,000.

• Hometown size — 65 percent of those in small towns and rural areas, 53 percent of those in mid-sized cities (population 100,000 to 850,000), and 49 percent in the state's four largest cities.

Other groups whose members reported being born again more frequently than the average were blacks (68 percent), East Texans (71 percent) and Democrats (60 percent).

The poll also found that 80 percent of Texans believe in life after death. Ten percent don't, and 10 percent have no opinion.

The Texas Poll is a nonpartisan telephone survey of public opinion sponsored quarterly by Harle-Hanks Communications Inc. and conducted by Texas A&M University's Public Policy Resources Laboratory. The most recent poll interviewed 1,000 Texans Jan. 17-21. The sampling error is 3 percent in either direction.

First United Methodist continues programs

First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry, is continuing its spring programs this Sunday. The programs also will be held April 28 and May 5.

A dinner will be served at 6 p.m. in Garrett Hall each of these Sunday evenings. Cost is $5 per family and $1.50 per person.

Entertainment presentations during the dinner follow. "Moses and the Freedom Fanatics," a musical by the children's choir, will be presented Sunday. "The Bells of First United Methodist," a presentation by the bell choir, will be given April 28. Theater anyone? The drama classes of Spring Specials will perform May 5.

The Spring Special classes begin at 7 p.m. each Sunday night.

FAMILY FOCUS SERIES: On Sunday, R.H. Weaver will talk about the formulation of wills followed by questions and answers. Aleisa Dale will speak on step-parenting, Kelly Preston will teach single parenting, and Jerry Kelly will discuss coping with stress in a dual career, all April 28.

Keith Wiseman will teach money management May 5. Practical application of budgeting principals and setting financial priorities will be presented.

YOUR HEALTH SERIES: The hiemlich maneuver will be taught by Dave Lambert Sunday. Wayne Carroll will teach the basic Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation maneuvers April 28. On May 5, Craig Brace will give an introduction to wellness. This course will cover stress management, self-responsibility, nutritional awareness, physical fitness and environmental sensitivity.

OTHER CLASSES: "How to be Your Own Best Self," taught by Joan Weir, is designed to help persons discover new strengths and to come to understand and accept others in their diversity. The class is open to adults and youth.

Richard Foster will teach "Celebration of Discipline: The Path to Spiritual Growth." A four-part film series based on the best selling book, this course will give the learner an in-depth study of prayer, meditation and classical spiritual disciplines as well as service, worship and solitude. Adults and youth may attend.

For adults, Tim Haynes, Dolores Norred and Larry McLellan will teach a theater class. The group will develop either a reader's theater or a brief drama. It will not meet May 5. Laurie Churchill, Will Johnson and Ginny Zobeck will lead "Singin' N Dancin'." Youth are encouraged to bring their joy for dancing and love of music and share their talents together.

"Creative Dramatics" will be led by Alice Haynes and Susan McLellan. Children grades K-6 will act out stories and readings. Rueleen Freeze and Ada Narem will direct "Quilting for Beginners." The final three classes will be devoted to learning how to machine quilt a basic design.

In "For Young Children," directed by Carol Brickham, children to kindergarten age will meet in their regular classrooms where they will participate in a variety of activities designed for their age group.

Kids are special at Nazarene church

The theme for Sunday's services at First Church of the Nazarene will be "Children are Special." During the morning worship service, the Rev. Carl Powers, pastor, will receive children into church membership.

Sunday School classes begin at 9:45 a.m. for all age groups. At 10:50 a.m. worship is provided for children ages four and five in Kinderchurch and for children in grades one through five in Children's Church.

The "Children are Special" emphasis continues at 6 p.m. with several children scheduled to receive baptism. Music will be featured along with a sermon by Powers.

Lancaster Learning Center provides weekday care and learning opportunities for infants through pre-schoolers, as well as before and after-school care.

Dr. Rick Davis evangelist for revival

Dr. Rick Davis, pastor of First Baptist Church in Stanton, will be the evangelist for "Days of Revival" at East Fourth Street Baptist Church beginning Sunday. He is the former pastor of Midway Baptist Church.

Leading the singing will be another former Midway Baptist Church staff person, Kerry Wood.

She is in full-time music evangelism and lives in Childress.

Services will be Sunday through Friday. Sunday service times are 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, the service begins at 7:30 p.m. Noon services will be held Tuesday through Friday. The public is invited.

Abilene church presents 'What is Man'

The Sanctuary Choir and Orchestra of First Baptist Church of Abilene will present "What is Man?" Sunday. The service begins at 7:15 p.m.

The oratorio by Ron Nelson will be presented in the church Sanctuary at Third and Orange Street. The public is invited, and no admission will be charged.

James Pearce is the director with Dr. James D. Woodward of Shawnee, Okla. as narrator. Soprano soloist is Dr. Jeri Graham, also of Shawnee, Okla. David Robinson of Fort Worth is baritone soloist.

Water district finances OK

The Colorado River Municipal Water District field steady financially through the first quarter of 1985 despite weather abnormalities that reduced deliveries, according to a press release distributed from the water district's office.

The district recorded a net budget deficit of 2.4 per cent for the period. Total income was $2,599,221 or 8.23 per cent under budget estimates. Water sales amounted to $2,597,715, down 6.63 per cent from estimates.

Expenses were recorded at $1,525,834 or 9.10 per cent under budget.

The total operating and maintenance expense amounted to $1,448,025. Electric power accounted for $1,071,634 of the total maintenance cost. This was 14.10 per cent less than estimated for the period.

The district's first quarter income amounted to $1,073,387.

"It's not a true net amount because you have to pay interest and bad debts," Joe Pickle, secretary to the board of directors at the water district, said.

Time capsules

Q. Where can I buy a time capsule?

A. According to Joe Pickle, county historian, every group in Big Spring that has buried a time capsule had made their own, taking a section of pipe or a metal box and soldered or welded it shut. He suggests using a plastic container as being cheaper if just one person is doing a time capsule.

Other persons have suggested using a small casket or an oilfield lead container.

Israeli farming methods studied

By KEELY COGHLAN

Staff Writer

Using saltwater to grow cotton and, at the same time, doubling or tripling yields may seem as tall a Texan tale as any story about Pecos Bill.

The myth, however, may become a reality if West Texas farmers employ methods developed by Israelis, according to Knott cotton producer Larry Shaw.

Shaw, one of 38 Texas members of the Texas-Israeli Exchange, returned Thursday from a meeting in Austin with Israel deputy minister of agriculture Abraham Katz-Oz.

The Texas-Israeli Exchange is an agriculture, trade and energy exchange program associated with state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's office. The program has 25 Israeli committee members.

Katz-Oz, who also belongs to the Labour Party and is a member of the Israeli legislative body, the Knesset, was in Texas this week on a three-day agricultural tour.

"I was kind of excited," Shaw said. "I asked him if they grew any cotton down there. And he (Katz-Oz) said they were growing cotton like nobody's business using saltwater and calcium sulfate."

"He said they were getting three to 3½ bales an acre," Shaw said. Farmers in Howard County have yields of one-half to one bale of cotton per acre.

According to Shaw, the Israelis use four tons of calcium sulfate per acre to neutralize the alkaline soil and use animal manure as fertilizer.

Shaw said he was unsure about the economic costs of the saltwater program, but said Katz-Oz told him it was economically successful.

"He told me they make more cotton with the saltwater than with regular water, maybe because of the manure," he said. "I was trying to figure it out."

"We have several spots in Howard County that are sub-irrigated and are gradually salting out. I don't know if this could bring any of that back. It would be worthwhile if it didn't cost too much," he said. "It would be just as feasible if you had some top-notch land to bring it back for the cost of new land."

Both cotton and grain sorghum are grown at Katz-Oz' kibbutz, an Israeli collective farm, Shaw said. The Israelis also are getting high yields on pecans, Shaw said. "They make 6,000 pounds of pecans to the acre with drip irrigation. In Texas, the highest yield is 2,000 to 3,000 pounds."

Their drip irrigation system is computerized, automatically distributing fertilizer and water at the right time. Although the system would be expensive to install, Katz-Oz said it improved their cost-efficiency, Shaw said.

"They have a limited amount of water, more so than we do (in West Texas)," Shaw said. "He had a hard time understanding our farm program because we are trying to cut back. They've never had a problem where they've had to cut back. They've always had to get maximum efficiency."

Water also is a main concern for Shaw page 2-A

Murder suspect released

A Big Spring man who was indicted by the Howard County grand jury earlier this month and charged with murder, was released from county jail early Friday evening on bonds totalling $35,000.

District Court James Gregg ordered that a $75,000 bond set for the release of Jorge Lee Chavana, 21, of 817 W. Eighth be reduced to $25,000.

Chavana and Angel Martinez, 22, of 808 Magnolia were arrested by Big Spring police on March 19 and charged with the beating death of 81-year-old Maurine Terrell. She was assaulted in her home at 1400 Scurry on March 5 and died three days later in Lubbock General Hospital from head injuries suffered during the attack.

Justice of the Peace China Long had set bond at $75,000 apiece for the suspects' murder charges. Each man was also charged with burglary by the Big Spring police. Bond for the burglary charges was set at $10,000 apiece by Long.

"I felt that was an adequate bond amount to insure that he (Chavana) would be here for trial. He has no prior record and his family is here in Big Spring," Gregg said about his decision.

Gregg said that he and District Attorney Rick Hamby had a telephone conversation with Attorney Tony Chavez of Odessa who is representing Chavana. Chavez and Robert V. Garcia Jr. of Odessa were named as sureties for Chavana's appearance in court.

Hamby announced on March 21 that he would call a special session of the grand jury to hear evidence presented against Chavana and

Double jeopardy

Reforms tough on migrant students

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer
Fourth in a series

PHARR — Tears began to flow from Mary Balboa's eyes and her voice cracked as she told how important an education is to her and her migrant family.

The 18-year-old high school junior has worked in the fields all her life, but she hopes an education will keep her from doing that forever.

Her hope may be fading because, ironically, state education reform measures have made it tougher for her to stay enrolled in school, school officials said.

Migrant students, some teachers and administrators say, are in "double jeopardy" in a world of economics vs. education.

On one hand, they must work to help out the poverty-stricken family. On the other hand, many know they need an education to avoid going back into the fields year after year.

Restrictions on missed classes and other reforms have hit hard among migrants. For them, finding the middle ground between work and school is difficult, some teachers said.

About 50 percent drop out of school between ages 14 and 18, disenfranchised with the educational system and believing they need to help support the family, educators said.

"My father tells me I have to take advantage of the opportunities," Miss Balboa said, wiping tears from her eyes. "I put everything into my (school) work."

Another student, Paul Castillo, said he does not want to work in the fields all his life.

"I want to be something better for the whole family. I don't want to see my little brothers and sisters like me. I don't want to see them migrate. I just hope I can get a diploma and go to college and try to get in and own a business and stay with the family," he said.

Jesse Vela, coordinator of the Texas interstate migrant program, said state educational reformers seemed to have forgotten about the estimated 100,000 migrant students when formulating their new guidelines.

Migrant students do get tutors to help them, but many times, Vela said, that is not enough.

"They are in double jeopardy," Vela said. "We are nailing in the final nails in the coffins for them."

The average income of a migrant family is around $6,000. Many of the families live in "colonias," unincorporated shanty towns that lack indoor plumbing and electricity.

The students, from kindergarten to high school, must travel and work with their families. They leave sometime in April and follow the harvests in northern states during late spring and summer. Children 12 and under usually attend school during that time. The older children work in the fields beside their parents.

The migrant families return sometime in October and the children enroll in schools, several weeks after the others.

To keep up with the rest of the class, they must do a great deal of make-up assignments that leave little time for extracurricular ac-

Strict new laws put crimp in activities

By SHEILA ALLEE

Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas' new strict laws on public school attendance have put a crimp in James Cates' future plans.

The 17-year-old is thinking about becoming an agriculture teacher and hopes his current participation in livestock shows will prepare him for his career.

But House Bill 72 only allows students 10 unexcused absences a year, making it difficult for Cates and hundreds of youngsters like him to participate in livestock shows. Students who miss more than the limit fail their courses.

The expositions usually last at least a week, forcing students either to miss school or have a parent or teacher look after their animal some of the time.

"I'm hoping they either add some days or change it," said Cates of Nacogdoches. His entry, Pouter, was the grand champion pole hereford in the recent San Antonio Stock Show.

"When you become a teacher you have to know these things," he said as he prepared to put his hereford on the auction block.

"If they're (students) passing, I don't see what it's hurting," he said.

Mary Nan West, president of this year's San Antonio show, agreed.

The attendance requirement, she said, "is going to have a great impact on the youngsters. I feel the bill should be modified so these children can pursue education in agricultural endeavors."

Participation in stock shows, she said, "teaches young people a great many things. How to win and how to lose. How to raise and show an animal."

At the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth, participation among school-age youngsters was off 20 percent at competitions held on weekdays this year.

"We attribute that 20 percent to the school rule," said spokesman Delbert Bailey.

Bailey said show rules were modified to allow someone other than students to take care of show animals during part of the exposition.

"We feel like the youngsters lost something from the standpoint of not being able to visit with other youngsters from elsewhere in the country. It's an educational aspect they're not going to learn in the classroom. We feel like it's a bad deal."

Paul Castillo, a sophomore at Pharr-San Juan-Alamo High in the Rio Grande Valley, works on a literature paper. Castillo, a migrant student, leaves school in April and returns in October. A story on the situation facing these students appears above, and at left is an article on how reforms are affecting students participating in agriculture-related events.

Water district finances OK

The Colorado River Municipal Water District held steady financially through the first quarter of 1985 despite weather abnormalities that reduced deliveries, according to a press release distributed from the water district's office.

The district recorded a net budget deficit of 2.4 per cent for the period. Total income was $2,599,221 or 8.23 per cent under budget estimates. Water sales amounted to $2,597,715, down 6.63 per cent from estimates.

Expenses were recorded at $1,525,834 or 9.10 per cent under budget.

The total operating and maintenance expense amounted to $1,448,025. Electric power accounted for $1,071,634 of the total maintenance cost. This was 14.10 per cent less than estimated for the period.

The district's first quarter income amounted to $1,073,387.

"It's not a true net amount because you have to pay interest and bad debts," Joe Pickle, secretary to the board of directors at the water district, said.
