Mail Troubles

Q. I recently got a piece of mail that looked like an invoice, but it turned out to be an order for purchasing by mail. Is there some kind of regulation against this?

A. Yes, according to Big Spring Postmaster Frank Hardesty. The Postal Service has strengthened regulations to prevent the mailing of solicitations disguised as invoices, bills or statements of account. "This is not a bill" must appear prominently on the mailing. If you receive such a mailing that violates this regulation, please bring it to Hardesty.

GOP search

Clements wants one good man to oppose White

DALLAS (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements says he may have to run for governor next year unless he can find a strong Republican opponent for Democratic Gov. Mark White.

Clements has spent much of the past six weeks talking to people like Roger Staubach and Ross Perot but none of those has given much inclination to run for governor.

Clements is still searching for qualified candidates to carry the GOP banner against White next year, the Dallas businessman said in an interview with The Dallas Morning News.

Despite past statements that he wouldn't run for office again, Clements said there is a possibility he himself will oppose White, who stunned Clements with an upset win in 1982.

"With all the ifs and ands and buts, which makes it speculative, I guess you'd have to say that's probably correct. But it's not anything I'm wanting to do or I'm running for," Clements said.

Clements met last weekend with some high-ranking Republican officials to discuss potential candidates, including himself, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Clements said his recruitment drive is not aimed at any particular candidate.

"I'm not trying to recruit one of my big buddies in order to say this is my candidate. If we can get two or three or four viable, outstanding and highly regarded candidates, why not?" Clements asked.

Weekend rains cover area

Twister kills three in Throckmorton, storms drench state

Staff and wire reports

Several North Texas counties were warned to expect heavy flooding today in the aftermath of drenching rains that fell overnight.

Although Howard County was not under a flash flood warning, the area did receive a substantial amount of rainfall and hail this weekend.

According to the U.S.-Big Spring Field Station, Big Spring received a total of 33-hundredths of an inch of rain and hail this weekend, including 22-hundredths of an inch Saturday and 11-hundredths Sunday night.

The accumulated total rainfall for the year is now 3.96 inches. Normal rainfall for the year to date is three inches, according to field station statistics.

South of Big Spring, the town of Forsan received 1.1 inch this weekend, six-tenths Saturday and five-tenths Sunday, Forsan Mayor O.W. Scudday said.

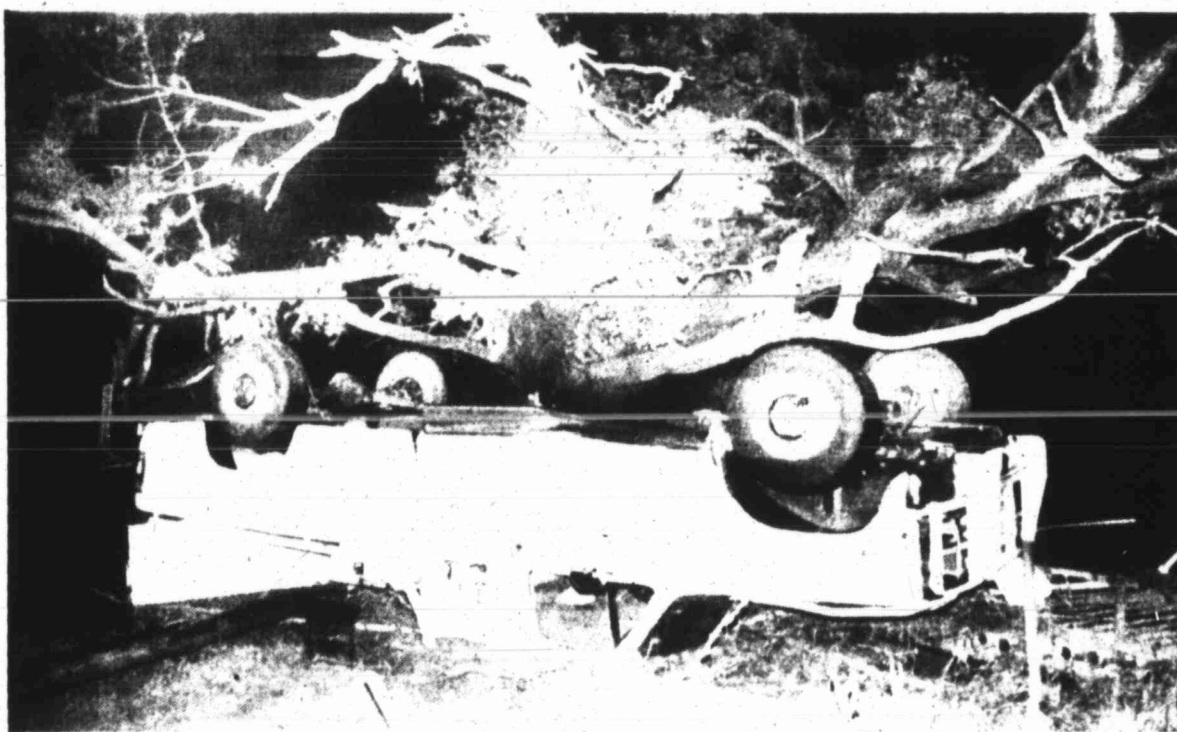

Farmer Larry Shaw of Knott said he received 1.8 inches of rain this weekend. Knott, however, received between four-tenths of an inch and six-tenths of an inch, he said.

"It didn't rain much in the south. It rained pretty much in a line west and northeast from Knott north to Ackerly," he said. He also said he was told farmers in the Brown Community had received as much as 2½ inches of rain this weekend.

The rain was timed well, Shaw said. Farmers had needed one more good rain to plant their crops, he said.

Shaw said his fields also received hail about the size of golf balls that covered the ground. His fields, however, were not damaged by the hail, he said.

In Big Spring itself, Tommy

A boat owned by Martin Curtis of Elbert was found next to an overturned pickup truck after Curtis and his parents were thrown from their homes when a tornado destroyed their residence in Throckmorton County Sunday evening.

Hart of 1750 Purdue said he received 56-hundredths of an inch of rain during the weekend.

At least 44 Texas counties were under a tornado watch early today, including Howard, Glasscock and Mitchell Counties. In addition, flash flood warnings were issued for several of those counties, as heavy rains fell on ground already saturated by storms earlier in the weekend.

The tornado watch, which expired at 6 a.m., was along a 70-mile path extending from San Angelo and Big Spring to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

Tornadoes touched down Sunday evening along the Throckmorton and Young county line between Olney and Throckmorton, leaving three people dead and at least two more injured.

Closer to home, four tornadoes were spotted late Sunday afternoon at Lake Champion, located 3½ miles southeast of Colorado City. No one was injured in any of the tornadoes.

Other tornadoes were reported near Archer City and Iowa Park.

Elsewhere, heaviest rainfall was reported at Timpson and Tenaha, nearby towns in Shelby County, about 30 miles northeast of Nacogdoches. The National Weather Service said 4.80 inches of rain fell at Tenaha and 4.62 inches at Timpson, where power lines and numerous trees were reported down.

More than 3 inches fell this morning in several West Texas towns in the Abilene area, and reports of street flooding were numerous.

The weather service said the Little Wichita River in Henrietta, about 20 miles east of Wichita Falls, was near bankfull by daybreak, and officials warned residents that flooding was imminent in low-lying areas.

Winds were mostly from the south to southeast across most of the state, except for southwesterly breezes across the Texas Panhandle and the Trans Pecos. Wind speeds were generally in the 10 to 20 mph range.

Overnight temperatures were in the 50s behind a weak cold front that stretched across much of West Texas.

HC commissioners hear presentation for detention center

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners today heard presentations on new juvenile detention centers and the ownership of Shaffer Ambulance.

Margy Thompson, 118th District chief juvenile probation officer, presented the court with the initial results of her study of new juvenile county detention centers in Texas.

One of the centers commissioners will study is the recently built detention center in Fort Stockton.

Commissioner David Barr requested Thompson collect information on construction costs and sizes of the facilities during the commissioners' last meeting two weeks ago.

Barr said he requested the information so commissioners could better plan the state-mandated center, which will serve Howard, Martin and Glasscock Counties.

Federal mandate stipulates juvenile inmates must be housed "out of sight and out of sound" of adult prisoners by Dec. 31.

Currently, juveniles are being housed in the former grand jury quarters on the fourth floor of the Howard County Courthouse.

The court and the county judge have discussed several sites for the proposed detention center, including a building at the Big Spring Airpark and the current city jail, if a new jail is constructed.

In fact, the Industrial Foundation had approved a tentative contract with County Judge Milton Kirby for the lease of a building at the airpark.

At a later stage in the process, commissioners will review building standards set by the state juvenile commission, they said.

Commissioners also unanimously approved a motion made by Barr to transfer a contract from John Korell of Shaffer Ambulance to Charles Ginn, who said he was considering the purchase the ambulance service.

The switch in ownership could occur by May 1, he told commissioners.

"I think he (Ginn) can give the county and city good service," Commissioner Louis Brown said before the vote.

He said Korell would be working for Ginn if the switch in ownership went through. "He (Korell) wants to get rid of the responsibilities of running an ambulance service," Brown said.

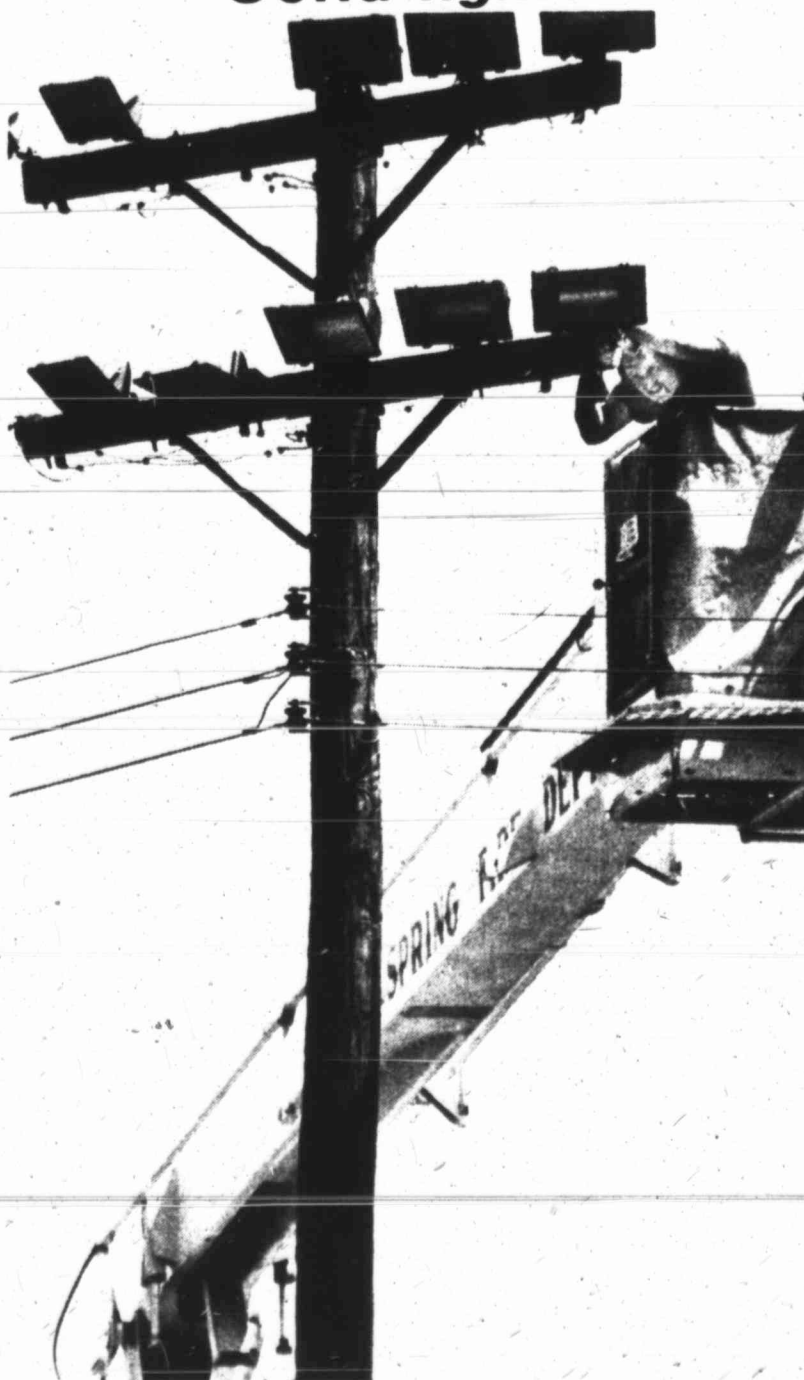

The ambulance committee approved the transfer last week, he said.

The ambulance committee is composed of City Manager Don Davis, Fire Marshal Jim Ryals, Brown, Dr. Bruce Cox and Malone-Hogan Hospital Administrators Charles Weeg and John Bingham.

Brown said the committee was established five years ago to help review state and federal regulations the service must comply with. He said he had never known Shaffer to violate a regulation.

Ginn said he would add eight or nine paramedics to the service if he assumed ownership. Shaffer Ambulance currently uses five vehicles to serve the county, he said.

District confident of hearing

Officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District are confident that a double-barrelled hearing Tuesday before the Texas Water Commission will result in granting of the Stacy Reservoir permit.

Starting at 1:30 p.m. in the commission's hearing room, testimony will be presented in concurrent applications on transfer of 113,000 ac. ft. under the Lower Colorado River Authority's Lake Buchanan permit to the Stacy site, and granting of a permit to the water district for the Stacy reservoir.

Parties to the original permit hearings have reached an agreement to this effect, and so far no opposition has been indicated to the proposal. Since there is a voluminous record on the first hearing, only brief testimony is anticipated from LCRA and CRMWD officials and engineers.

"Details have been hammered out between interested parties, and we are hopeful the Commission can act favorably that day," said John L. Taylor, CRMWD president.

The reservoir 25 miles southeast of Ballinger on the Colorado River will impound 554,000 ac. ft. of capacity. The CRMWD, LCRA and others have agreed that water above certain minimums may be released until Stacy clients have a need for all of it.

If the Commission grants the permit that day, the CRMWD board is expected Thursday to take several steps activating the project which first was sought in 1977.

The new spymaster

Top Israeli secret service agent inks thrill into novels

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Isser Harel, the spymaster who built Israel's secret service into an organization respected for daring and precision, now spends his time pottering among rose bushes and writing thrillers.

The retired chief of the Mossad intelligence service and its longest-reigning head is as nondescript as John Le Carré's fictional British spy chief, George Smiley.

Even though the wizened, 5-foot-2 Harel is the antithesis of the dashing James Bond, the Russian-born Israeli personality took part in many operations.

"It wasn't a desire for adventure that brought me into that business," Harel said during a three-hour interview at his home in suburban Tel Aviv.

"What propelled me all these years was a feeling of a mission, a duty," said Harel, whose career began before Israel was founded in 1948.

He said he was convinced that all means were justified to safeguard the Jewish state against the Arab and other enemies who sought to destroy it, but he is proud of what he called "the moral standards" he set in Mossad's early days.

According to newspaper accounts, Harel once fired an operative for using free tickets to take a girl to the movies, tickets that the man was supposed to use to eavesdrop on Soviet agents meeting at the theater.

Harel has been retired for 22 years, but he is almost obsessed with several of his old cases that were never closed, especially that of Nazi arch-criminal Dr. Josef Mengele, who slipped out of Buenos Aires just a few weeks ahead of Harel in 1960.

His best-known caper was the abduction from Argentina of Adolf Eichmann, the officer in charge of Nazi Germany's liquidation of six million Jews.

Harel and his men located Eichmann in Buenos Aires, kidnapped him and flew him to trial in Israel, where he was convicted and hanged in 1962.

It was not the most complicated or dangerous operation he took part in, said Harel, but one of the few that ever became known. By law, even the name of the Mossad chief is kept secret. The Israeli public only discovered Harel's name several years after he resigned.

Harel stepped down in 1963 after a dispute with his patron and then-prime minister David Ben-Gurion. "I was forced to leave. I could not work against my principles," he said.

He won't talk about the exact reason he quit, but newspaper files indicate that he and Ben-Gurion disagreed on how Israel should deal with former Nazi German scientists working in Egypt on rockets and atomic weapons.

Harel advocated all-out war against them and the West German government, while Ben-Gurion insisted the leaders in Bonn were innocent of collusion with what was a private German enterprise.

Harel does not deny that Mossad was responsible for several letter-bombs mailed to the scientists. "The Germans were a threat to Israel," he said with a shrug.

Several years after retiring, he was elected to the Knesset (Parliament). But when his term ran out in 1974 he turned to lecturing, writing — including two thrillers — and indulging his passion for opera and Chinese food.

The only thing he regretted, Harel added, was having to end his search for Mengele when he resigned. "I had invested more efforts in looking for Mengele than I did for Eichmann," said Harel.

The Israeli plane which flew to Buenos Aires to pick up Eichmann brought, on Harel's orders, an armed commando unit which was to infiltrate the house of an American family to find out whether its members were "on the level" or were covering for Mengele.

But on the same day, Harel recounted, "we got information that the Americans were bona fide and Mengele had left the city several weeks before."

The search for the Nazi doctor who performed cruel genetic experiments on Jews at the Auschwitz death camp led Harel's agents to the jungle area where the borders of Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil meet. They pinpointed a heavily guarded mansion in the Paraguayan town of Encarnacion as Mengele's refuge.

Sheriff's Log

Woman injured in collision

A Big Spring woman suffered severe injuries when she fell asleep at the wheel of her car early Saturday morning that was traveling west bound on the south service road of Interstate 20.

Rita Lynn Gillis, 17, of 1006 Nolan was listed in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital Monday morning. According to a Texas Department of Public Safety accident report, her car traveled over the east bound lane of the service road and ran into a ditch.

Sheriff's deputy Jimmy Wallace arrested five Howard County juveniles in connection to a series of burglaries that took place in Forsan. Four burglary of buildings that include Bud's Gas Station, Bob's Grocery Store, the Forsan Stadium concession stand and a Forsan High School classroom have been charged against the juveniles. A burglary of a motor vehicle has also been charged against the individuals.

Sheriff A.N. Standard said parents of the juveniles had been contacted about the incidents and that the five youths ranging from ages 13 to 16 had been "referred to the juvenile department for disposition."

Deputy Wallace investigated another burglary incident Sunday afternoon reported from the Suburban East Mobile Home Park on Route 3. Manager Robert Mitchell told the deputy that two juveniles gained entry into his office and broke into a coin machine. Two juveniles, ages 7 and 5, were charged with the offense.

3 remain stable after wreck

Three Big Spring residents remain in Malone-Hogan Hospital today after being injured Saturday night in a two-car accident on S. Highway 87.

All three — Dewey Dwayne Hodnett, 21, of 2609 E. 24th; Guy Seely, 33, of Sterling City Route; and Clifford Hart Jr., 21, of 3234 Drexel — are in stable condition at the hospital. They treated for bone fractures and multiple lacerations, according to a hospital spokesman.

Two of the three were pinned inside the car Hodnett was driving, a 1979 brown Toyota Celica, and had to be freed by the fire department's Jaws of Life.

Also, two passengers in the other vehicle, a white and grey Chevrolet Silverado 30 pickup truck, suffered injuries in the accident. Treated and released were: Nichole Tyler, 13, and Linda Raines, 36, both of 603 Holbert, the hospital spokeswoman said.

The driver of the pickup, Clyde Wayne Raines, 25, also of 603 Holbert, was not treated at the hospital, the hospital spokeswoman said.

According to police reports, Hodnett was driving north on S. Highway 87, and Raines was making a left turn off Highway 87 onto Driver Road.

Raines pulled into Hodnett's lane of traffic, and then attempted to pull back into the left lane, but was not able to avoid the collision, the report stated.

According to the report, Raines had failed to yield the right of way to Hodnett.

According to the fire department report, firemen had to force the hatchback open first to free one victim through the rear of the car. To free the other victim, the four firemen had to force open the roof, doors and seats.

Damage to the Celica was estimated at $5,000, according to the fire department report.

Walk-America campaign tops goal

With a record setting crowd, the March of Dimes Walk-America campaign raised $21,800 Saturday, according to Bill Laster, member of the executive board of the March of Dimes. The goal for the 10-mile march was $20,000.

Home-style sentence

NEWPORT, R.I. — A teen-ager who fired twice at a car after an argument was sentenced to spend six months at home, leaving the house only to go to work and perform court-ordered community service.

Superior Court Judge Albert E. DeRobbio on Friday imposed the sentence on Joseph Marques, 18, who pleaded no contest to charges he fired two shotgun blasts at the car of a man who had argued with him and his father in November. No one was injured.

The judge said he believed a suspended sentence or probation would have been insufficient punishment. But DeRobbio also was convinced he "had to do something more than just send someone to jail."

The penalty he imposed requires Marques to do 1,000 hours of community service and continue his job as a harvester of quahogs on Narragansett Bay. Marques can leave home for other purposes only if he first gets permission from the court.

Volcano roars to life

VOLCANO, Hawaii — Kilauea, the world's most active volcano, roared to life again and hurled lava 1,000 feet into the air as it resumed an eruption that began 27 months ago, scientists said.

The fountaining Sunday in a remote section of Hawaii Volcanoes National Park fed a mile long river of molten rock that flowed in a southeasterly direction, posing no immediate threat to developed property, officials said.

Scientists could hear the roar of the eruption and see its glow in the night sky from the observatory at the summit of the volcano, about 12 miles from the eruption site known as the Pu'u O'o Vent, said Wil Tanigawa, a physical science technician at the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory of Hawaii Island.

The 32nd phase of activity began with lava fountaining 1,000 feet into the air above the rim of a 600-foot spatter cone that has built up since the eruption began Jan. 3, 1983, Tanigawa said.

Rape victim says she lied

CHICAGO — Cathleen Crowell Webb, who has recanted a rape charge that sent a man to prison six years ago, says she lied about being attacked in order to preserve the only happy home life she had ever known.

"In the end I think this is all going to come out right," Mrs. Webb wrote in the latest issue of People magazine.

Meanwhile, an appeals court today was to consider whether to set bond for Gary Dotson, who is serving a 25-50 year sentence in the case.

Dotson, 28, had been free on bond briefly earlier this month after Mrs. Webb came forward with her recantation, prompting a court hearing.

Argentine coup

President tells nation of plot against government

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) —

"Traitors" have plotted a coup against President Raul Alfonsin's 16-month-old elected government, he told the nation on the eve of today's trial for nine former military rulers.

In a televised address to the country Sunday night, he said, "I denounce to the Argentine people the divisive activity of those who predict chaos and anarchy."

"The maddest have approached high officials of the armed forces with diverse proposals ranging from presumed coalition Cabinets to a government overthrow."

"There is not going to be any episode of this nature, in the first place because those who would try it would have to count on the complicity of the armed forces, and this is not going to be given," Alfonsin said.

He did not identify the alleged plotters, but said the military officials they approached had informed the government of the scheme. "The situation is being controlled by the constitutional government," he said. "The armed forces of the nation are loyal to the constitutional authorities."

The president called on Argentines to attend a pro-democracy rally in Buenos Aires Friday and show their support of the government. And he noted, "There are tensions created or aggravated by the trial of the military juntas."

Nine generals and admirals who were members of the military juntas that ruled the country following a coup in 1976 go on trial today in a civilian court. Charges against them include murder, torture and kidnapping in connection with the "dirty war" between the armed forces and left-wing guerrillas in the late 1970s.

A commission created

Argentine President Raul Alfonsin, addresses the nation Sunday to summon the citizenry to a rally in defense of democracy next April 26.

by Alfonsin's government, which took office in December 1983 following elections the previous October, reported at least 9,000 people disappeared during the anti-subversion campaign. It said the majority were civilians suspected of leftist views but innocent of any terrorist activity.

The defendants are ex-presidents and former army commanders Jorge Videla, Roberto Viola and Leopoldo Galtieri; ex-navy commanders Emilio Massera, Armando Lambruschini and Jorge Anaya, and former air force chiefs Orlando Agosti, Omar Graffigna and Basilio Lami Dozo.

More than 2,000 witnesses are scheduled to testify in the trial before the six-man federal Criminal Court of Appeals in downtown Buenos Aires. Court officials expect the proceedings to last at least three months.

Human rights groups and leftist political parties planned a rally to coincide with the trial's start at 3 p.m. to call for the punishment of all participants in the repression.

Prosecutor Julio Strassera has said he would present details of some 700 cases of disappearance.

Dollar edges up abroad

LONDON — The dollar edged higher early today in quiet trading as investors waited for new signals about the American economy. Gold also was little changed.

"The dollar is likely to move in a narrow range," a Frankfurt dealer said. "I don't see any sharp moves."

Since February, when the dollar reached record heights, the U.S. currency has lost roughly 20 percent of its value against most currencies in a selloff prompted by the slowing of the U.S. economic recovery and worries over the American banking system.

Dealers said investors were looking ahead to several key economic indices due out later this week — including the Consumer Price Index which is expected to indicate an increase in inflation when it is released Tuesday, and the March reading on durable goods orders which also is expected to rise. Investors are awaiting hints from the U.S. Federal Reserve on the future course of interest rates.

Kohl rejects Jews appeal

BERGEN, West Germany — Chancellor Helmut Kohl told concentration camp survivors that Germans must accept "guilt" for the Holocaust, but rejected an appeal from Jewish leaders' to suggest that President Reagan cancel his visit to a military cemetery.

Kohl spoke Sunday at a Jewish memorial gathering marking the 40th anniversary of the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp's liberation by Allied troops. His speech was broadcast live on West German television.

"Bergen-Belsen ... remains a mark of Cain branded in the minds of our nation, just like Auschwitz and Treblinka, Belzec, and Sobibor, Chelmo and Majdanek, and the many other (Nazi camp) sites testifying to that mania for destruction," Kohl told 5,000 people at the camp site in northern West Germany.

Japan also top importer

TOKYO — Japan, now under heavy pressure from its trading partners to open up markets to foreign products, is already one of the world's biggest importers.

In 1984, Japan imported $136 billion worth of goods, about $1,100 for each of the nation's 120 million people. That is roughly on a par with the United States, but less than in the highly interdependent European countries.

What ranks other nations is that the Japanese have built up their formidable trade surpluses by what many critics regard as a kind of economic colonialism — importing less expensive raw materials to produce manufactured goods that are then sold to the countries that provided the raw materials.

Of total imports last year, almost half, or $60 billion worth, consisted of crude oil, coal and other fuels to keep Japan's factories humming.

Brazilian president dies; new leader named

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Jose Sarney, named president following the death of Tancredo Neves, promised a mourning nation today he would carry out the policies of the man who died before he could take office as Brazil's first elected leader in 21 years.

Neves, 75, died Sunday night of heart and lung ailments, after a 39-day struggle through seven operations that began hours before he was to have been inaugurated.

Sarney, 54, a compromise candidate who had previously been allied with the nation's military party, was declared president at a special session of Congress in Brasilia today.

Sarney had been acting president since March 15, when everyone in the new civilian government took office except Neves, who had undergone emergency intestinal surgery.

"Our program is Tancredo Neves' program," Sarney said in a breaking voice on national radio and television early this morning. The government decreed eight days of mourning and declared today a national holiday.

Neves' coffin, draped with the Brazilian flag, was taken on a fire truck from the Sao Paulo's Clinical Hospital to Congonhas airport for the flight to Brasilia, 700 miles away.

Thousands stood or watched from rooftops along the eight-mile route to the airport. As the 40-car cortege passed, many applauded and waved white handkerchiefs.

A banner strung across the avenue said in Portuguese, the Brazilian language, "We have no reason to fear. The hour is to the strong, who do not lose faith or hope."

Neves' body will be on public view throughout the day in the capital, Brasilia, officials said. On Tuesday, foreign dignitaries will pay their respects, and military honors are scheduled.

The coffin will be taken Tuesday afternoon to Neves' birthplace, the town of Sao Joao del Rei, 550 miles southeast of Brasilia, officials said.

Government spokesman Antonio Britto announced Neves' death on television at 10:23 p.m. (8:23 p.m. EST) Sunday at the Heart Institute of the Clinical Hospital in Sao Paulo.

About 300 Brazilians, many weeping and some screaming, gathered outside the hospital. The crowd sang the national anthem. Police took away some who were hysterical.

"This never should have happened. Tancredo meant hope," Sebastiao Mesquita de Paula, a 51-year-old accountant, said outside the hospital. Nearly everyone in the nation of 134 million referred to Neves by his first name.

In the past 50 years, the public life of Tancredo Neves was an integral part of the hopes and ideals of Brazilians: Union, democracy, social justice and liberty. From now on, Brazil will have to attain those ideals without the leader it has just lost," Britto said.

The new president promised to govern with "morality, austerity, honor and responsibility," help the poor, fight inflation and proceed with Neves' plan to call a special assembly to rewrite the constitution to allow direct elections. Neves and Sarney were chosen by an electoral college.

Neves had suffered from abdominal pain in the weeks following his January election, but had delayed medical care while forming his new government and meeting with world leaders, including President Reagan in Washington. He was rushed to a hospital for emergency abdominal surgery just hours before his inauguration. He was transferred from a Brasilia hospital to the one in Sao Paulo, where he had six more operations.

Dr. Warren Myron Zapol, a physician from Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston said Saturday that Neves was suffering from fibrosis, a hardening of the air sacs in his lungs, because of high doses of oxygen being pumped into his lungs.

Lebanese Christian militia calls for ceasefire on Sidon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The commander of Lebanon's largest Christian militia said he would order his troops to stop firing on the southern port of Sidon today in a unilateral ceasefire for the good of the nation.

Samir Geagea, chief of staff of the Lebanese Forces militia, told a news conference at his east Beirut headquarters he has ordered a "comprehensive ceasefire" as of 4 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) "even if the ceasefire is only from one side." He said he would withdraw his fighters Tuesday from the outskirts of Lebanon's third largest city.

Police and hospitals reported that 110 people have been killed and more than 475 wounded.

Competition will cut defense costs

Competition is entering the defense contracting business, and although it is a slow and frustrating process, it is worth the effort.

Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. is one of the administration's most aggressive advocates of competition in contracting, focusing his attention on providing secondary sources for various military supplies. The secondary sources give the government an option and prevent the primary source from establishing outlandish prices. "We have never had a case where the price did not come down dramatically as soon as the second source started producing," he says.

The Competition in Contracting Act, authored by Illinois Sen. Alan Dixon, became law last year. While focusing primarily on the acquisition of spare parts, the law also requires the design phase of all new weapons systems include plans for establishing competition within the system.

The argument for "sole-sourcing" or "single-sourcing" is the same argument used by advocates of any monopolistic practice: It is more efficient and less costly to have one company do a job than to have several competing for the job.

It does cost more, initially, to do business with several companies. Each of those companies must tool up for the job and each will receive only part of the contract. The unit-price — or the cost of each item being manufactured — will be somewhat higher than if a single company received all the work.

But if one company has a monopoly on a weapons system, it also has a monopoly on future deliveries, spare parts and other maintenance supplies. The government then is faced with dealing exclusively with a single source of supply or purchasing an entire new weapons system. The supplier usually can charge what he pleases in these situations because the government has few options.

The long-term competitive considerations outweigh the relatively small initial costs involved in requiring competition in defense contracting and prevent the government from being held hostage by a single source of military supply.

Tough decisions in Central America

In Central America, the American people are torn between the memory of Munich and the fear of Vietnam. Despite the region's geographic proximity and political importance, there is no consensus on what the United States should do there. The government, as a result, is unable either to act decisively in the region or to withdraw once and for all.

Congress balked at President Reagan's proposal to send $14 million to the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, and his latest "peace plan" evoked only scorn in Managua. Aid to El Salvador continues, despite congressional reluctance, but it owes its precarious survival largely to the appeal of one man — President Jose Napoleon Duarte. Thus American policy flounders, as it has for most of the last decade.

One obstacle is that Americans have no clear idea of their chief goal in Central America, nor of what burdens they will accept in pursuing it. Their various desires are often at war with one another.

They wish to promote democracy — but they tolerate anti-communist dictatorships. They want to keep the Soviets out — but they have trouble justifying our efforts to overthrow a leftist government established by popular revolution. They prefer self-determination to the imperialism of the past — but they feel threatened by communist influence in our own backyard. They don't want another Cuba — but neither do they want U.S. troops bogged down in a guerrilla war.

These sentiments have been exploited by both the administration and its critics. Reagan portrays the Sandinista regime as ruthlessly totalitarian, while painting the contras as "freedom fighters" and exalting El Salvador as a flourishing democracy.

But the Sandinistas have allowed Nicaragua's first real election in decades, flawed though it was, and their human rights record surpasses that of many American allies. Many of the rebels are former members of Antonio Somoza's brutal National Guard. While El Salvador has made progress, the atrocities of the security forces and the right-wing "death squads" indicate there is a long way to go. Reagan's critics are no more honest. They would have us believe that the Sandinistas are sincere democrats whose country is too small to threaten anyone, that the contras are more creations of the CIA, and that Duarte is a pawn of right-wing elements.

In fact, the Sandinistas' repression goes well beyond what might be excused in a civil war. The contras are as much the product of popular disenchantment as of U.S. help. Aside from its alarming military buildup, Nicaragua has funneled help to the rebels in El Salvador, and its Soviet ties could make it a real danger to the United States. Salvadorans may not have bright hopes of escaping despotism, but what hopes they have lie in the Duarte government.

All this hubbub is necessary because of conflicting American goals. The critical error of both the Right and the Left is assuming that what advances lofty moral ideals also serves American security interests.

Thus, says the administration, we can simultaneously promote democracy and protect ourselves. Thus, say Reagan's critics, we can get out of Central America without fear of the consequences. What is good for the U.S. is good for Central America, says the Right. What is good for Central America is good for the U.S., says the Left.

But only occasionally do these glib propositions match reality. The goals of democracy and self-determination don't necessarily serve U.S. interests. Nor do undemocratic governments, regardless of their ideological tint, necessarily threaten us.

The point of our policy should not be to remake Central America into the image of the U.S. Nor should it be to let Central Americans determine their own fate regardless of the danger to our military interests. There is a way to reconcile self-determination with American security. But it will require a different approach.

Garn was first space tourist

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — History's first space passenger, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, will launch the age of man's routine commuting through the galaxies. He will be followed into space by a new generation of travelers who will voyage to the outer reaches of the solar system, build laboratories on the moon and begin the settlement of Mars.

These great expectations are not science-fiction yarns. They are part of the planning of space scientists for the decades ahead — as feasible now as the Apollo project and the space shuttle when they were just sketches on a drawing board.

Here are a few projects that are already in the planning stage:

- Future astronauts are scheduled to establish laboratories on the moon, with satellite communities to house scientists.
- They will "terraform" the environment of Mars, melting its permafrost into life-sustaining water and introducing plant life that will, in turn, beget breathable oxygen. In time, domed islands of humanity will appear on Mars' surface.
- If essential industrial activities on earth become dangerous to our fragile biosphere, they will be transferred to space where they will be harmless.
- Scientists may be able to assemble in space solar-powered satellites that can capture the sun's energy and transmit it to earth.

Garn is the right man, meanwhile, to represent the public as the first space tourist. He not only is an elected representative of the people, with specific responsibility of overseeing space expenditures; he has a romantic's enthusiasm and a pioneer's optimism about the challenge of the stars. Yet he is a fiscal conservative, a no-nonsense, can-do senator who doesn't believe in squandering the taxpayers' money.

Federal funding for celestial projects is coveted for things on earth — subsidies for the poor, handouts to the rich, appropriations for pork-barrel projects.

jects. There is an undoubted appeal to the claim that we can't afford to chase moonbeams in space while we have unmet needs down below. But it is an argument that rests on bad arithmetic and blinkered vision.

The long-term budget for extending man's reach into infinity and expanding his knowledge 10,000-fold amounts to one-half of 1 percent of our gross national product. The federal government throws away five times more money, according to the Grace Commission, on waste, fraud and inefficiency.

Historically, it has been discoveries — whether the opening up of new continents or new vistas of knowledge — that have been the best antidotes to poverty, squalor and disease. The voyage of Columbus, for example, made possible the most successful anti-poverty program in history: the great migration of destitute peoples to the new world.

The selection of Garn for this historic space mission has been criticized by the press. The senator doesn't mind. "I would rather fly in space," he told us, "than serve in the Senate."

Footnote: The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will issue a special, historic patch to commemorate the Garn flight. The senator has asked that all proceeds from the sale of the patch ($5) be donated to the Young Astronaut Council, 1015 15th Street, N.W., Suite 905, Washington, D.C., 20005.

KEEPING THE LID ON: Pentagon boobahs have put on a brave show of outrage at the recent exposures of fraud and waste in some of the nation's biggest defense contracts. But behind the bombast there's a quiet, effective effort afoot to keep the public from finding out too much about Pentagon procurement.

The tell-tale signs are in the Defense Department's latest "information, operations and reports" annual catalog. Actually, it's not what's in the catalog that's revealing, but what's been left out.

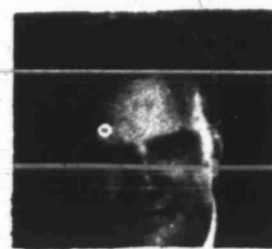

A series of reports and manuals on Pentagon procurement is no longer available through the department.

- Among the missing:
- Contract-awards and procurement reports listing details of contracts given to big and small companies on a state-by-state basis. These used to be issued on a monthly or quarterly schedule.
 - A series of manuals describing complicated procurement procedures.
 - Detailed reported on contract awards that used to be available on microfiche.

Adding to the difficulty of information seekers, the documents that are still available cannot be obtained from the Pentagon's information office. According to the catalog, they must now be obtained from other federal printing offices.

In short, according to industry sources who used to rely on the publications, the Pentagon's new policy has practically put an end to available information on contract awards.

Job pressure worries wife

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has always had a lot of pressures in his job, but they seem to be getting worse. Frankly, I don't see how he can take much more, although he is too old to change jobs. It just seems like there is no answer. — Mrs. K.E.

DEAR MRS. K.E.: I don't know exactly how God will help you and your husband — but I do know that he will help and guide you if you turn to Him. God is interested in our problems because He loves us, and He is able to help even when we think our situations are hopeless. The Bible urges, "Cast all your anxiety on him because he cares for you" (1 Peter 5:7).

Therefore, commit your lives and future to God. If you have never opened your heart to Christ, ask Him to come into your life and forgive your sins, and then commit each day to Him. True, it is hard to trust God when the way seems dark — but God can be trusted because He knows what is best for us. The Bible says, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

How will God help your husband? He may help by giving him strength to cope with the daily pressures he feels, or God may show him some specific ways in which he can lessen the pressure. He may open up a way for your husband to share his problem with his supervisor — who may not be aware of the problem and will want to help. God may even open the door to another job.

No situation is a deadend when we know Christ. He is always with us, and when we look to Him, He will help us. And when we look at things from Christ's point of view, many of the pressures and irritations we feel every day fade into insignificance because we know the important thing is eternity.

Council to review bid specifications on auditorium roof

The Big Spring City Council tonight will decide whether to approve bid specifications for repair of the Municipal Auditorium roof.

According to a memo by Public Works Director Tom Decell, "the roof does not need a wholesale removal and replacement."

Instead, the bids will require contractors to: replace broken and missing tiles with similar materials, repair and replace copper flashing where the roof meets the structure, seal around the windows and vertical mortar joints around the windows and replace and repair the rain gutters and downspouts, the memo states.

Bids would be opened May 21 and awarded May 28. The bid does not include the heating and cooling system because engineers and architects have not yet decided on how to include an air-conditioning system in the building, the memo states.

Council members will award the contract for improvements on the building that will house the new baler for the city landfill.

According to a letter from Decell to the council, he is recommending the low bidder, Johnston Construction of Big Spring. The cost set by Johnston for all improvements, including the base bid of $64,892 and alternate bids, will be $80,732, slightly over the budgeted amount of $80,000.

The alternates included blown insulation, electrically operated service door on the north side of the building, a cable tray and reinforcement of the north floor where heavy trucks will be unloaded.

Council members also will award bids for street and water line improvements under Phase III of the Capital Improvements Program and the Texas Department of Community Affairs Project; the voluntary paving assessment program; and sanitation trucks.

The city will set bid specifications for 2 1/4-inch fire hose and baler support equipment; elect a new mayor pro tem, appoint an outside auditing firm; and authorize a grant application with the Texas Community Development Program.

In addition, they also will consider transferring the city's contract with Shaffer Ambulance to its new owner, Charles Ginn.

Lucas' relatives refute murder claims

NORTH EAST, Md. (AP) — Family members of convicted killer Henry Lee Lucas say there's no way he could have killed as many as 600 people in 26 states as he has claimed.

Betty Crawford, who was married to Lucas in 1975 and lived with him for two years before they were separated, and Almada Kiser, Lucas' half-sister who said she saw him nearly every day for three years, say his claims are phony. "They can execute and get rid of him," Ms. Crawford said. "I haven't seen him for eight years and I don't want to see him again."

But still, she said, he didn't have time to kill so many people while he lived with her.

"I will not lie for him one way or another," said Mrs. Kiser, of Port Deposit. "I don't see how in the world he could have committed the murders when he was right around (here) when it was going on."

Mrs. Kiser said she saw Lucas "about every day" between 1975 and 1978 when he worked in a junkyard her husband used to operate.

After serving eight years in a Michigan prison for the murder of their mother, Mrs. Kiser said, Lucas lived in Cecil County and neighboring Pennsylvania between 1975 and 1979. Lucas is suspected of killing at least 65 people during those years, including murders in Texas, California and Colorado.

"He couldn't have been in two or three places at one time," said Trooper First Class Francis E. Dixon, assigned to the state police barracks here. "It's totally impossible."

Dixon investigated Lucas' claim that he killed an 8-year-old Perryville girl in Cecil County and dumped her body either in a shallow grave in North Carolina or into a quarry in Chester County, Pa.

"I don't believe him," Dixon said. "I have been here for 17 years, and there's been no 8-year-old missing."

Lucas has confessed to killing as many as 600 people, and law enforcement officials nationwide currently attribute 189 slayings to the one-eyed drifter.

But evidence made public last week by the Dallas Times Herald suggests the 48-year-old condemned killer is a fraud who concocted details to keep himself off death row.

State briefs

Men linked to two robberies

ARLINGTON — Police say two men jailed in connection with the shooting of an Arlington police officer are also suspects in the robbery of a savings and loan association.

Police spokesman Jim Willett said statements from a witness linked the shooting of Officer Timothy Bell to the robbery of Gibraltar Savings and Loan 10 minutes earlier.

Bell was gunned down Friday as he tried to stop a car speeding through a residential neighborhood. Johnny Andrew Gilbert, 26, of Wills Point, was arrested late Saturday in a waiting room at the Dallas Veterans Hospital after an informant told police that the man might be there visiting a relative, police said.

The other man, identified as Kenneth Wayne Dryden, 23, of Quinlan, was arrested at a home near the community of Lone Oak in Northeast Texas about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Fire chief quits in five minutes

HOUSTON — Fire Chief Robert L. Swartout says he quit his job with five minutes notice because he didn't think he owed the city any more than that.

Swartout quit on Friday, April 12, leaving the note on Mayor Kathy Whitmire's desk at 4:25 p.m. It said his resignation was effective at 4:30 p.m. the same day.

City officials tried unsuccessfully over that weekend to find Swartout for an explanation of his resignation, but could not reach him at his Houston apartment.

On the following Monday, Swartout began the 1,500-mile drive back to Seattle, where he had been fire chief before taking the Houston post.

In a copyright story Sunday in the Houston Post, Swartout said he quit after only 3 1/2 months on the job because the city administration did not understand the workings of the department.

"There's so much ill feeling between the administration and the department it amazes me," he said during an interview at his Seattle home.

Mrs. Whitmire said she was surprised by the resignation and that Swartout's departure was "bizarre."

"There are a lot of ways to handle what I did," Swartout said. "If I was going to call her, I would have gone by and talked to her before I left. But I don't think I owe her or the city of Houston anything. They got their dollars' worth out of me while I was there."

Mrs. Whitmire has refused to release the contents of Swartout's letter, but the Post published a copy obtained from the ex-fire chief.

The letter said that during his term as fire chief, Swartout realized "that having a first-class fire department is not a high priority" in the Whitmire administration.

Tarrant Co. gets black mayor

Runoff elections Saturday swept two incumbents off the Dallas city council and gave Tarrant County its first black mayor.

One of the losers in the bitter Dallas campaigns was a 65-year-old Dallas councilman who angered minority groups by suggesting that some criminals should be hanged from the county courthouse.

But Jim Hart refused to concede to economics professor Bill Milkie, a political unknown, and said he will ask for a recount if Milkie's 52-vote margin holds up without corrections.

Milkie, who got into the race only days before the filing deadline, said he ran because he was concerned about statements that Hart made in the past year, including Hart's assertion in a letter that illegal aliens "with no moral values" were destroying some Oak Cliff neighborhoods.

Hart, who was seeking a second term, also was quoted extensively when he suggested that some criminals be hanged on the courthouse square and left for several days as a message to others. He also said thieves' fingers should be cut off.

Hart said the statements merely reflected the feelings of his constituency.

Another Dallas City Council incumbent, 29-year-old investor and real estate broker Paul Fielding, also was beaten.

Fielding fared well only in black precincts and garnered only 42 percent of the vote to 58 percent for neighborhood activist Lori Palmer, who trailed in the first election two weeks earlier, but who had the active support of other candidates.

Five killed in head-on collision

DENISON — A head-on collision near here killed five people, including three members of an Oklahoma family, the Department of Public Safety said.

The accident, which also killed two Arlington residents and injured a 1-year-old girl, took place at 1:44 a.m. Sunday on U.S. Highway 69 about 1.5 miles north of Denison near the Texas-Oklahoma border, said DPS spokesman David Wells.

According to a DPS report, a 1978 Pontiac sedan turned across a crossover point of a median and began traveling south in the north-bound lane. The vehicle traveled a short distance before colliding head-on with a 1975 Dodge station wagon, which was northbound, Wells said.

The victims included Jack David Novak, 43, of Arlington and John Anthony Novak, 6, both of Arlington, who were in the Pontiac.

Three Durant, Okla. residents — identified as Mark Rennie Huff, 25, Shelley Huff, 25, and Mrs. Huff's 7-year-old daughter, Celina M. Hancock — also were killed.

The Challenge Facing Big Spring

AN OPEN LETTER TO BIG SPRING

Dear Big Spring Friend:

We are facing a challenge. It is a challenge of such magnitude that I want to appeal to every resident... every business within our community to help us meet it. As you may know, your Big Spring Salvation Army is conducting its first-ever capital gifts campaign to build and renovate local facilities to serve two generations yet to come. Present facilities have served us well for nearly 50 years... but the age and condition of buildings, plus the vastly increased local need for Army services, have combined to make this a most crucial time since The Salvation Army was founded here in 1929. The total of capital improvements (broken into four phases) is $753,000... certainly a challenging goal for a community-wide campaign.

The Mabee Challenge

We have just been informed that The J.E. and L.E. Mabee Foundation of Tulsa, Ok. (the Mabee family is based in Midland) has approved a $250,000 Challenge Grant to "The Light of Hope Campaign" contingent upon our community contributing the additional $503,000 necessary to meet the overall goal. We are most grateful to The Mabee Foundation for its generous expression of support for this much needed community project. Infusion of this money to the campaign from "outside" of our community will go far in helping to meet the need, as well as provide a very real boost to our local economy. Now, it all depends upon us.

Your Army is Food, Shelter & Clothing...

You may know about the work of The Salvation Army during its one-half century in Big Spring. Probably, you know us most for our four best-known programs...

Disaster Relief... When disaster strikes, your Salvation Army is there to provide food, hot coffee, beds or guidance. We've been "on call" locally and through two world wars around the globe. Christmas Cheer... Each year, hundreds of resident families are helped through food baskets, toys, parties and dinners. Thanks to you, more than 2,400 individuals were served during the 1984 Christmas holidays. Emergency Lodging... The Salvation Army lodge serves more than transient men, women and children... though this continues to be a large part of our work. Increasingly, emergency lodging is provided to local residents who may be victims of abuse or abandonment... particularly women and children. Social Services... More than 1,100 welfare orders or cash grants were given to those in need during 1984. Help included furnishings, clothing, shoes and food vouchers.

And So Much More...

Perhaps you don't know about some other very important Army community programs... part of the more than 20 services which your Salvation Army provides each day.

Children's Feeding Program... In the Summer of 1985, we expect to feed more than 100 children each day with a hot noon-day meal. Approximately 45 per day were fed in 1984.

League of Mercy... Army volunteers made 3,224 visits to sick and elderly shut-ins during 1984. For many, this "ray of hope" was their only outside contact.

These programs (and others) for youth and adults have been conducted in facilities that have become increasingly inadequate to meet the community's needs. Families and individuals helped have increased 300% in the past three years... with more than 70% of the services provided going to residents of Big Spring.

The Challenge of the Future...

To continue service to future generations, your Salvation Army proposes to expand and renovate facilities as follows:

- CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW CORPS ACTIVITIES AND SOCIAL SERVICES CENTER ON SAN ANTONIO STREET. This multi-use facility will serve all of the social service, youth and adult activities of The Army for many years to come. Programs like the children's feeding program, welfare assistance and corps activities will be housed. The land upon which the building is to be built was donated several years ago by The Dora Roberts Foundation.
- RENOVATION OF THE EXISTING EMERGENCY LODGE. With the creation of new space, existing lodge facilities may be expanded to better accommodate women, families and children who are in need of emergency shelter.
- RENOVATION AND REFURBISHMENT OF THE DORA ROBERTS CITADEL. This building has proudly served corps activities for more than 50 years. Refurbishment will allow multiple use of the facility... perhaps, as a shelter for battered wives.
- CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE. Hundreds in our community are served through shoes, clothing and furnishings from our Thrift store. The truly needy are provided these items at no charge.

Completion of these facilities, based upon the age and use of past facilities, should allow The Army to serve growth for yet two generations to come.

Together, We Can...

So, there's our challenge. First, to assure that we continue to assist the truly needy in the Big Spring tradition. Second, to meet the generous challenge of The J.E. and L.E. Mabee Foundation to our community.

Can we do it? Yes, but only if each of us pledges our support sacrificially as we have been blessed. Pledges to the campaign may be made on a 3-year (four tax year) basis and may be paid annually, quarterly or monthly. Already, approximately 55 concerned citizens have stepped forward with more than $225,000 in gifts and pledges.

Not all of us can do much. But, each of us, doing what we can, will help assure that the challenge is met. Thank you, Big Spring, for helping to "meet the challenge."

Sincerely,

Johnnie Lou Avery

Registrar keeps up with younger generation

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Although she's 46, Shirley Matthews keeps up with the younger generation.

Registrar at Big Spring High School for 5 years and mother of four, Matthews feels that working around young people has helped her understand her children better. "I feel like that it has kept me more aware of the situation," she says.

Beginning work in the Big Spring Independent School District 18 years ago as a teacher's aid, Matthews worked at an elementary school for three years until the close of Webb Air Force Base and the resulting closure of several elementary schools.

She then had a choice of working at another elementary school or the high school. Choosing the high school, Matthews worked in the guidance office for three years before becoming registrar. "I felt that this was a chance to keep up with the younger kids," she said.

Although Matthews has 27 hours of college, practical experience is what got her this far, she says. "Most of it's been learned by trial and error."

KEEPING RECORDS — Registrar at Big Spring High School, Shirley Matthews has worked as custodian of all student records and the school's bookkeeper.

Custodian of all records — "It's a full time job," she says. When a student transfers to Big Spring High, it is Matthews' responsibility to get the students records from the previous school. She works year around. In the summer, she averages grades and ranks students according to their grade point and posts grades on transcripts.

Matthews finds her job interesting, challenging and frustrating at times. At the beginning of the school year and towards graduation, she is the busiest.

The most enjoyable part of her job is meeting people. She especially likes young people. "If you don't like kids, you shouldn't be around schools," she says.

The part she dislikes is balancing books at the end of the month. She also does not like telling a student he can't graduate because he doesn't have enough credits or hasn't taken required courses.

The challenge of Matthews' job is making sure everyone has a transcript, a code number and a locker. Seeing that the checkbook and the ledger balance at the end of the month also is challenging.

In her spare time, Matthews enjoys reading and being with her family. She is married to Joe Matthews.

Dr. Donohue

Ulcerative colitis a difficult burden

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 34 and being treated for severe ulcerative colitis. It started around age 30. I am on Azulfidine, prednisone and cortisone enemas. All three specialists I've seen have said the same thing — cause unknown, cure uncertain.

Is there any research center that can help me as far as prevention of flare-ups, foods to avoid, or anything I can do? My medicine makes me weak and fatigued, also depressed. Will vitamins help? My current doctor says that Azulfidine is the No. 1 choice to treat my condition. What can I do? — S.B.

Any doctor who's treated this difficult disorder can readily sympathize with you, S.B. Your doctor's unpleasant evaluation is correct. Despite nearly a century of study, no cause for these intestinal-tract ulcers has been found, no permanent cure developed. We do know that these aren't the same kinds of ulcers people develop in their stomachs or duodenums, those that are related to peptic acid, for example. Yours are the kind that appear lower in the tract, especially in the large bowel (colon). And they are multiple.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had reconstruction of my fallopian tubes. I was told they had become blocked as a result of an old infection. My doctor said the tubes are now open. When I asked him what my chances are of becoming pregnant, he just shrugs his shoulders and says "better than before." Well, thanks for nothing. What does he mean? — J.R.D.

He means that even with your fallopian tubes (the ones that provide passage of ova from the ovaries to the uterus) open, pregnancy is not 100 percent assured. And (I hate to tell you this!) it may even be less than 50-50.

Why is this so? Because the tubes, opened or not opened, may have vestiges of damage incurred during your old infection. That may discourage passage of ova (eggs). And the chances of fertility being restored following restorative surgery depend on other factors — just where in the tubes the blockage occurred, as an example.

I don't think you need consult any more doctors. The treatment you are getting for your severe episodes — the abdominal cramping and other symptoms — is standard. Your medicine is used for its anti-inflammatory action. Don't lay all your symptoms to your medicine. Stomach upset, headache and rashes might be caused by your sulfasalazine (Azulfidine), but things like weakness, fatigue, cramping, or any depression you might experience seem to be part and parcel of the illness itself.

There are no general food guidelines, except a possible link to milk intolerance or the cramping effects of alcohol or caffeine. If you are malnourished because of the diarrhea (which may occur in some) you would need vitamin supplements, but I'm sure your doctors are watching for that.

Stick with your present program. Your doctors will advise you if and when surgery might be needed. That's not necessary for all patients.

Let me give you my newest address for a group that can help you, psychologically and in matters of control. Write to the National Fon-

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I sometimes find medical terminology a bit obtuse, and even a bit silly. Take your great pains to define the difference between being obese and being overweight. Can't you find better letters to answer? Why quibble about such terms? If a person is fat, he's fat, right? — H.W.

Normally, the subtle shadings of meanings of such terms is lost in the jungle of popular usage. But there are distinctions in medical terms, and sometimes they're important. It may seem a bit silly to stretch for distinctions until you are searching for a word that fits the person who weighs more than the weight tables say he should but who has a normal or low percent of body fat. That person is, indeed, overweight, but he is not obese. He might be, and probably is, a very active, athletic individual.

Dear Abby

Those who don't pay could get burned

DEAR ABBY: There is absolutely no justification for the actions of the Salem, Ark., volunteer firefighters who stood around and watched a $150,000 home burn down because the owner hadn't paid the $20 annual dues.

I am a volunteer firefighter in Boles, N.M., and I sincerely hope that what happened in Arkansas doesn't reflect on all volunteer firefighters.

The majority of us are hardworking, dedicated people whose only pay is the satisfaction of helping others.

Our priorities are:
1. Rescuing people from burning buildings.
2. Protecting adjoining property from catching fire.
3. Putting the fire out.

Nowhere is there any mention of money. I hope the citizens of Salem, Ark., will do something to correct this problem.

TAMI HARRIS, CAPTAIN,
BOLES ACRES

VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT. DEAR ABBY: Please point out the fact that there are three Sailems in Arkansas. They are: Salem, Ark., in Fulton County; Salem, Ark., in Pike County; and Salem, Ark., in Saline County.

Abby, please make it clear that the volunteer firemen who refused to fight a fire because the homeowner had not paid his $20 dues were not from Fulton County — they were from Saline County.

I feel that people who would stand by and let a home burn when they could have saved it should not be allowed to be firemen.

DONNA JUSTUS,
NEWPORT, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed that you would criticize the volunteer firefighters for refusing to risk their lives to save the home of someone who was too cheap to pay $20 a year to protect it.

If you don't carry automobile insurance and are involved in a collision, do you really think you could call an insurance agent and say, "Quick, write me up a policy to cover the wreck I just had!"

W.W. McCULLOCH,
WENATCHEE, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: So you think the volunteer firefighters should have saved that $150,000 house even though its owner had not paid his $20 annual dues? Oh sure, just like Blue Cross should pick up your $50,000 hospital bill even though you failed to pay your premiums, and the Los Angeles Police Dept. will respond to a burglary in Santa Monica.

I have no sympathy for a nut who owns a $150,000 home and refuses to pay a measly $20-a-year fee in case he has a fire. He took a gamble and lost!

If the volunteer firefighters had fought that fire, nobody in the community would ever pay his dues again. Why should he, if he can get the same service free?

FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

DEAR ABBY: I would like to defend the action of the firefighters. We have a similar situation in Rantoul, Ill. The taxpayers support our volunteer fire department within the city limits. Protection is offered to residents and businesses outside the city limits for a fee of $25 annually.

Most residents pay the fee willingly, but some ignore the bills repeatedly.

I have instructed our chief to respond only to save lives (not property) should we receive a call from anyone who consistently fails to pay.

If people were allowed to pay at the scene of the fire, there would be no incentive to support the department through fees.

The homeowner whose home was burned made his choice long before the fire started.

MAYOR, VILLAGE OF RANTOUL, ILL.

BERNARD LANGER of West Germany urges a birdie putt to roll on the first hole of the sudden-death playoff at the Heritage Golf Classic Sunday.

Langer makes it two wins-in-row

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Bernhard Langer said he's playing too well to quit.

So the West German, now the winner of consecutive tournaments on the American Tour, added this week's Houston Open to his schedule. "I had committed once, then pulled out. But I decided to go since I'm playing so well now," said Langer, who followed up on his Masters triumph in Augusta, Ga., with a playoff victory over Bobby Wadkins Sunday in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

Wadkins did not make a bogey over the final 18 holes, did not miss a fairway and missed only two greens in an extremely solid performance.

"I really feel I've got to where I can win a golf tournament," he said. "I thought it might be this tournament."

But it was not to be. He and Langer, who had his adventures on the way to a closing 70, completed the regulation 72 holes at 273, 11 shots under par on the Harbour Town Golf Links, one of the game's most demanding courses.

It ended one hole later, when Wadkins hit into a greenside bunker and couldn't get it up and down, and Langer two-putted for the $72,000 prize that lifted him to third place on the American money-winning list at $256,667 — including $100,000 in the last two weeks.

Langer, who became the first German to win one of golf's major titles with his victory in Augusta, became the first man since Gary Player in 1978 to follow up a major triumph with a victory the following week.

He joined Mark O'Meara, Curtis Strange, Calvin Peete and Lanny Wadkins as the only two-time winners on the 1985 American circuit and will try to extend his string in the Houston event that was hastily added to his crowded schedule.

"I hadn't planned to play so many in a row, said Langer. "I thought four in a row might be too many. But I'm playing so well." "I am very confident, and the confidence is growing and growing. I hope to have a shot at it in Houston next week, but in this game you never know," he said.

Hal Sutton and Tim Norris shared third place here at 274, one shot out of the playoff. Each had a closing 67. They were followed by Mike Smith, 67-275, and Larry Nelson, 70-276.

Guards carry Rockets by Jazz

By The Associated Press
Guards Lewis Lloyd and John Lucas, not the Houston Rockets' young and heralded front line, are the reason they are even in their playoff series with the Utah Jazz.

In Friday night's 14-point defeat to the Jazz in the opener of their first-round National Basketball Association series, starting guards Lloyd and Lionel Hollins managed only 19 points.

On Sunday, the Rockets got 27 points from Lloyd and 18 from Lucas, who was making his first start since his suspension for drug use last December, en route to a 122-96 victory and a 1-1 series deadlock.

The Rockets' game plan was to run, thus negating the shot-blocking and intimidation of 7-4 Jazz center Mark Eaton.

NBA Playoffs

The Houston front line of Ralph Sampson, Akeem Olajuwon and Rodney McCray scored 19, 16 and 16 points, respectively.

The Rockets led 29-25 at the first-quarter break and ran away to a 63-43 halftime lead. Houston extended the margin to 78-54 midway through the third period before foul trouble enabled the Jazz to narrow the deficit slightly.

Jeff Wilkins came off the bench to lead the Jazz with 22 points. Adrian Dantley added 15 and Thurl Bailey scored 13.

Pistons 121, Nets 111

Isiah Thomas scored 29 points and reserve forward Terry Tyler tallied all of his 16 points in the fourth quarter as Detroit rallied to beat New Jersey.

The Pistons led 64-59 at halftime after Thomas ended the second period with a three-point basket from beyond the midcourt line. But the Nets outscored Detroit 31-23 in the third period to take a 90-87 advantage into the final 12 minutes.

Then Tyler took over in the fourth quarter. His three-point play with nine minutes left gave the Pistons the lead for good at 95-94. Albert King led the Nets with 27 points, while Buck Williams had 23 and Micheal Ray Richardson 22.

Bucks 122, Bulls 115

Terry Cummings scored 30 points, Sidney Moncrief added 25 and Paul Pressey 22 to pace Milwaukee's balanced attack against Chicago.

The Bucks broke away from a 95-95 tie with 8½ minutes to play on consecutive buckets by Cummings, Pressey and Craig Hodges. The Bulls never got closer than three points thereafter.

A fight nearly broke out between Woolridge and Moncrief with 50 seconds left in the game when Orlando Woolridge was fouled while driving to the basket. Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery was hit with a technical foul for his protest of the call.

Michael Jordan led Chicago with 30 points, while Woolridge added 26.

76ers 113, Bullets 94

Andrew Toney, who missed the final four games of the season because of an ankle injury, hit 13 of 22 shots from the field and scored 31 points in Philadelphia's romp over Washington.

The 76ers took control of the game with a 16-8 spurt in the third period, expanding a four-point lead to 72-60 with 5:12 remaining. The closest the Bullets came after that was eight points.

Julius Erving added 23 points and Moses Malone and rookie Charles Barkley each had 14 rebounds for the 76ers.

Jeff Malone, who left the first playoff game with a wrenched back, scored 30 points to lead the Bullets.

Hawks split with Hill County

HILLSBORO — The Howard College Hawks split wins with Hill County Rebels in a doubleheader Sunday in Region play.

After dropping a 4-1 decision in the first game, Howard rallied back with an impressive 11-1 victory. The game was called in the sixth inning because of the 10-run rule.

The Rebels came away with a surprise win in the opener against Howard pitcher Bryan Willis. Willis pitched a good game himself, allowing only five hits and two earned runs. Hill got all of its runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Howard got on the scoreboard in the first inning. Dan Lanfear reached base on an error and hot-hitting catcher Eddie Citronelli, moved him to third with a double. Lanfear scored when Roland Gonzales grounded out.

Citronelli had a good game at the plate, going 3-for-3 including two doubles. He closed out the three-game series going 7-for-10 with four doubles and five RBI's.

The scored stayed a 1-0 until the bottom of the sixth. The Rebels got two hits, coupled with two Howard errors; which led to four runs.

Willis' record fell to 4-3 for the season.

HAWKS SOAR IN SECOND GAME

The Hawks came out smoking in the second game as they sent 12 batters to the late while scoring eight runs. Lanfear led the charge by collecting two singles in the inning. Gonzales, Joe Cuellar and and Roland Lopera all got singles in the spurt. Robert Navarro added a double in the inning.

Howard added a run in the third when Ortiz singled, stole second and scored on Lanfear's third hit of the game. Howard ended its scoring in the sixth. Pinch-runner Keny Merritt scored on a wild pitch and Lopera scored on a single by Gonzales.

Hill's lone run came in the sixth. Chris Segrist moved his record to 4-0 with his three-hit pitching performance. Howard's overall record is now 29-8 for the year.

Astros, Rangers garner victories

ATLANTA (AP) — Even though Dale Murphy represented the winning run, Houston Manager Bob Lillis did not hesitate to call for an intentional base on balls when the National League's hottest hitter stepped to the plate.

Claudell Washington and Rafael Ramirez had opened the eighth inning for the Braves with consecutive singles and moved up on a sacrifice by pinch hitter Albert Hall.

After Astros reliever Phil Dawley walked Murphy, Lillis called in Dave Smith who got Atlanta catcher Rick Cerone to hit into a double play and persevere Houston's 4-2 victory over the Braves Sunday.

Astros, giving up four hits as he gained his first decision in three starts. He said he was pleased with having struck out Murphy twice.

The Astros got a run in the first inning after Walling and Jose Cruz got consecutive singles off Atlanta starter Len Barker, 0-1. Walling took third on Cruz' single and scored on a wild pitch by Barker.

Knepper led off the third with a walk and went to third on a throwing error by Brad Komminsk, who attempted to double Knepper off first after catching Bill Dolan's looping liner to shallow left field.

Kevin Bass singled Knepper home, and after stealing second, scored on a double by Walling. Cruz then singled to drive home Walling.

Rangers 5 Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Texas pitcher Mike Mason says keeping the Milwaukee Brewers' bats under control can simply be a matter of altitude.

Mason said he delivered his pitches high Sunday as the Rangers completed a sweep of a three-game weekend series with a 5-2 victory over Milwaukee.

"I moved the ball in and out," he said. "The kind of team they are, if it were down three or four inches, they'd have hit it. This way, they popped up."

Milwaukee did not get a run from

Mason until the eighth inning, long after the Rangers had utilized what they call a new sense of teamwork.

Third baseman Buddy Bell, who drove in two Ranger runs, said the three victories are sweet compensation for losses earlier in the season when the club's batting was less impressive.

Bell helped Mason and reliever Dave Stewart by making a pair of diving stops that allowed him to throw out two runners.

Texas took a 1-0 lead against Milwaukee starter and loser Ray Burris, 1-2, in the third inning. With one out, Toby Harrah walked and Gary Ward singled him to third. Bell followed with an RBI single.

Slaughter hit his first homer of the year with two outs in the fourth.

Texas Ranger pitcher MIKE MASON delivers a pitch during Sunday's 5-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers at Milwaukee County Stadium.

Cougars win SWC golf

LAKEWAY (AP) — Steve Elkington fired a final round 67 Sunday to take medalist honors and boost the Houston Cougars to the championship at the 60th annual Southwest Conference golf tournament at the Hills of Lakeway course.

The Cougars needed Elkington's five-under par performance to hold off Arkansas and fast-closing Texas.

Houston started the day only two shots ahead of Arkansas with the host Longhorns only 13 shots behind. The Cougars were able to maintain the margin over the Razorbacks and won the title with an 898 score, compared to a 900 shot by Arkansas. Texas made up 10 points over the final 18 holes and finished third at 901.

Elkington had to overcome teammate Billy Ray Brown for individual honors. Brown led after Saturday's second round at 2-under par 142 while Elkington was in fourth at 148. Brown shot 76 Sunday and finished second at 218, three strokes behind Elkington.

Bob Estes, a freshman from Texas, closed with a 76 and finished third at 220.

The Big Spring Cardinals pushed thier record to 4-0 by taking a doubleheader from the Odessa Astros yesterday at Roy Anderson Complex.

Frankie Rubio went the distance in the Cardinals 8-0 first game win. Rubio pushed his record to 2-0 for the season. He struck out nine, walked five and allowed five hits.

Big Spring got 11 hits. John Morelion, Beef Armendariz and Robert Rubio all got two hits in the game. Frankie Rubio hit his third homer of the season and Joe Martinez added a double.

After falling behind 6-2 after the second inning, the Cards rallied to take a 10-6 win in the second game.

Morelion, Rubio and David Drake all had extra-base hits in the game.

Flyers take 2-0 lead in NHL playoffs; Canadiens rally past Nordiques 6-4

By The Associated Press
Sooner or later, Brian Propp was going to act like the 43-goal scorer he was during the National Hockey League season.

Sunday night, he did just that with a three-goal performance in the second period to lead the Philadelphia Flyers over the New York Islanders 5-2. That victory gave the regular season champions a 2-0 edge over the Islanders in the Patrick Division finals.

And the Flyers are proving that their surge down the stretch during the regular season — in which they won 16 of their last 17 — was no fluke.

Elsewhere Sunday, it was Montreal over Quebec 6-4 and Chicago downing Minnesota 6-2 to even their series at 1-1. On Saturday, Edmonton grabbed a 2-0 edge over Winnipeg with a 5-2 decision as Paul Coffey tied a Stanley Cup mark for defensemen with five points (two goals and three assists).

All the series resume Tuesday night, at Uniondale, N.Y., Quebec City, Bloomington, Minn., and Winnipeg.

Philadelphia grabbed a 3-0 lead on a goal by Ed Hoepfer and two by Propp in the first period, then coasted. Goalie Pelle Lindbergh stopped 26 shots for his fifth consecutive playoff victory.

The Islanders "played tired tonight," said left wing Bob Bourne. "We are not going on net enough. Their forwards block you out real well. We are trying too hard and shooting so hard we're missing the net."

Canadiens 6, Nordiques 4

Mats Naslund's second goal of the game with 4:52 remaining, when he converted a backhand pass by defenseman Rick Green, was the winner. Naslund also scored in the second period, capping Montreal's comeback from a 2-0 deficit and giving the Canadiens a 4-2 lead.

But the Nordiques tied it 4-4 after Michel Goulet and Peter Stastny each scored his second goal of the game in a 45-second span early in the third period. Serge Boisvert, Chris Chelios, both on power plays, Mike McPhee and Bob Gainey, into an empty net with 58 seconds remaining, also scored for the Canadiens.

Black Hawks 6, North Stars 2

At Chicago, Curt Fraser scored two goals in a five-goal second-period blitz for the Black Hawks, who handed the North Stars their first playoff loss. The teams combined for five goals in 3:06, eclipsing the mark of five in 3:20 set by Minnesota and Philadelphia on April 29, 1980.

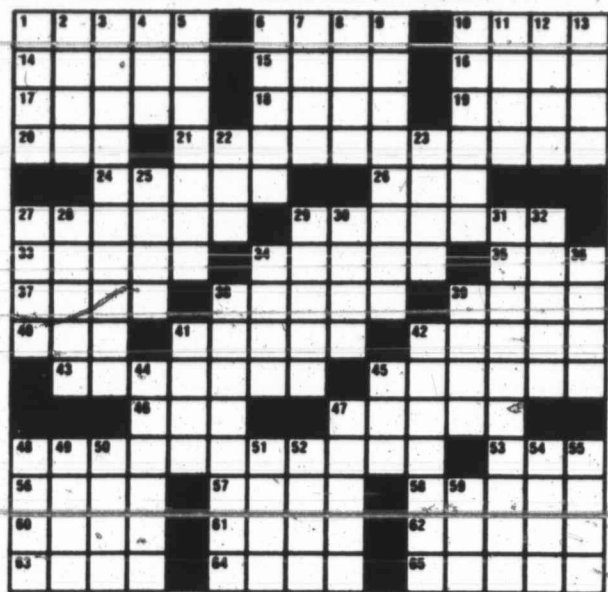

Chicago's Keith Brown opened the barrage at 1:12, tipping a slapshot by Darryl Sutter past Minnesota goaltender Gilles Meloche. Ken Yaremchuk made it 2-0 15 seconds, then Minnesota tied it when Dino Ciccarelli drilled a wrist shot over goalie Murray Bannerman's shoulder at 2:48, and Tony McKegney connected on a 35-foot slapshot at 4:07.

Fraser closed the record-breaking performance by smashing the puck through a crowd and into the net at 4:18. He tipped in a Doug Wilson shot later in the period.
