How's that?

No temps

Q. I enjoy reading the information supplied on the large, electronic sign outside of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, but I was wondering why the sign no longer displays the temperature. I miss the temperature reading and was hoping the college would resume it.

A. Tony Claxton of Howard College programs the sign. He said that the thermostat which registers the temperature for the sign is malfunctioning and it provides an incorrect figure. To avoid confusion, Claxton disconnected the thermostat. Plans are to repair the thermostat and to resume displaying the temperature.

Gas prices fuel inflation

Permian Basin doesn't see spillover from oil revenue

Staff and wire reports

Soaring gasoline prices sent the inflation rate up 0.5 percent last month, the government reported today, but increased gasoline prices could have little or no effect on the Permian Basin petroleum industry.

Analysts said the overall rate increase at the retail level, the sharpest since January 1984, stemmed mostly from actual higher gasoline costs plus an unusual seasonal adjustment factor that made the final figure look even worse.

Although food prices held steady, motor fuel costs ended a three-month decline and rose 3.8 percent after falling 2.6 percent in the previous month.

Perry Bolger, president of the Independent Petroleum Producers Association in Midland, said he could not predict what would happen to crude oil prices or explain the reasons for the increase in gasoline prices.

"Gasoline prices are a function of marketing—and the major oil companies," he said. "They're attributing the increase in inflation rates to gasoline prices?....I don't think that per se is going to have any effect on the Permian Basin."

Crude oil prices, usually the predictors of gasoline prices, also have risen in the last few weeks, according to members of the Permian Basin oil industry.

Bolger, however, said that while the spot market for crude oil has risen, the average for the regular market was extremely low for the last quarter. "The nets are probably lower than they've been in the last five or six years," he said.

"The spot prices and the future markets are strong right now. But the actual realization (of those prices) has not materialized," Bolger said. "Prices have not increased appreciably at the wellhead. Most purchasers are not paying more."

"The posted price for crude has been strong at a traditionally weak time. The heating season is over and we haven't started the peak gasoline usage season in the summer. The weaknesses in anticipated prices haven't developed like the so-called experts predicted," he said.

Bolger said he did not know what caused the stronger than anticipated prices: whether OPEC reduced production, whether companies were replenishing depleted inventories or other causes.

"Crude oil has firmed up. There's been a strong demand in the first quarter," said Ted Collins with HMG Oil Co. of Midland. "But it's a short-lived run. Prices are probably more likely to go down (in the long run)."

A front-page article in the Wall Street Journal today also predicted that crude oil prices would fall.

"Nobody knows what the price will do," Bolger said in response to the Wall Street Journal article. "Most of the media and the world want the prices to go down. For us, it's a disaster."

Sandstorm swarms in dust debut

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Just when you thought it was safe to go out on a springtime day in West Texas, the season's first sandstorm blew into town.

Before 8 a.m. today the irritating grit triggered by high winds was in everyone's eyes. But instead of the usual springtime complaints, most folks were commenting this morning about how lucky this area has been in avoiding the springtime ritual.

Two years ago, a vicious storm crippled traffic along Interstate 20. A bus went off the road and weary travelers aboard had to be brought back to a Big Spring terminal to await another bus. The travelers, unaccustomed to the dust, watched the storm with wide eyes from the safety of the terminal.

Before the day was over, a number of cars and trucks crashed along the Interstate and travelers advisories were posted for West Texas drivers.

Last year West Texas was caught in a devastating drought and sandstorms were almost a daily occurrence. The lack of rain and hot West Texas sun dried fields and turned the top layers of soil into fuel for the wind.

The cycle was broken last fall when heavy rains fell across West Texas. This spring the area has been blessed with additional rains and the official rainfall tally for Howard County is running about an inch ahead of normal for this time of year.

J.D. Bilbro of the U.S.-Big Spring Field Station said today that the area is benefitting from the extra moisture and the fields are in good condition. The sand in the sky is the

Panhandle puzzled over

'white gold'

By The Associated Press

Oil and gas producers are feuding in the Texas Panhandle over "black gold" that is as clear as water and flows as cold as ice in the middle of the summer.

The independent operators who drill for it call the stuff "vaporized crude oil" or "casinghead gas," a natural by-product of oil drilling.

Lawyers for the major energy companies, who want to shut off the taps, refer to the independents as "refrigerator operators" and their product as "frozen gas," "albino oil" or "Panhandle light."

To the towns and school districts in the area, the issue is money, pure and simple. If the majors win their case, the money stops.

It comes down to this: If you call it gas, you can drill one well on 640 acres. If you call it oil, you can drill every 10 acres — or 64 wells in the same space as one gas well.

The controversy has wound its way to Washington where the federal government will be in the unlikely position of telling Texans what oil is.

An administrative law judge ruled that independent producers were violating natural gas price regulations, but the full Energy Commission must rule on the case.

There's an estimated $27 billion worth of oil and gas beneath the Panhandle Oil and Gas Field, an area larger than Delaware. For Panhandle communities that rely on the revenue, it's vital that "white oil" be classified as oil and not as gas.

"Business is dead in Pampa, Texas," said Pampa lawyer David Martindale, who represents the 300-member Consolidated Royalty Owners Association.

"One-half the economy is based on oil and gas, and 80 percent of that is independent operators. These people are afraid to spend — they're not buying cars, they're not doing anything. They're going to wait

County explores work farms for detention kids

Center plans go to architects

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioner Paul Allen added a new twist to discussions about a proposed juvenile detention center when he told the court Monday he'd like to see a county work farm for young offenders.

"We could get those kids out on the farm and put them to work," he said. "Ranch work is great. It would be better instead of having them running around and breaking up stuff."

Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Margy Thompson said later she agreed with Allen's idea and had even contacted the state's juvenile commission in Austin about setting up work farms to detain juveniles.

Thompson said the commission told her that even though there is no precedent for juvenile work farms, such a method could be employed as long as child labor laws were followed.

"I'd like to see a long-term facility for kids that allowed them to work and continue going to school," she said. "The kids that go to the TYC (Texas Youth Corrections) are allowed to clean their rooms, but not hold jobs."

Thompson said detaining juveniles in Big Spring would be better than transferring them to a facility in other cities.

Commissioners decided to contact two local architects to study existing buildings that could be remodeled for a center.

Thompson said she was told by commissioners they were looking at the former C.R. Anthony building on Main street across from the courthouse.

"They were going to ask some local architects to do some sort of preliminary work at proposed sites and then meet back at the next commissioners court meeting," Thompson said.

Commissioner Bill Crooker said the architects would be given a set of building standards proposed by the American Correctional Association and adopted by the Legislature.

"We're having them (architects) look into cost and feasibility factors based on the standards," Crooker said.

Thompson had presented each commissioner with a report of her findings regarding construction costs and sizes of detention centers in Henderson, Belton and Fort Stockton.

She said that Henderson housed its juveniles in rooms containing bunkbeds — something she would speak out against for Howard County.

"I'd like to see a room for each kid so they would be self-contained," Thompson said.

Thompson also gave each commissioner a copy of building standards adopted by the Legislature.

Tornadoes rip through East Texas

At least 12 tornadoes blackened Central and East Texas skies Monday, demolishing mobile homes and spawning baseball-sized hail and heavy rains that flooded streets in several cities, authorities said.

Funnel clouds in Kyle, about 20 miles south of Austin, around 7 p.m. destroyed several mobile homes, city administrator Merle Wilkins said.

"That's 'Merle' as in 'Haggard,'" she said. "And that's what I'm going to be before the night's over."

The high winds "wiped out" several mobile homes but apparently caused no injuries, Ms. Wilkins said, adding that homeless families were being sheltered at city hall overnight.

In nearby Caldwell County, the National Weather Service said a tornado downed trees and fences and damaged some mobile homes.

Earlier Monday, six funnels were sighted in Smith County near Tyler and one touched down in Lindale, but none caused any injuries or major damage, Sheriff's Deputy Charlie Baker said.

At least four other tornadoes, some accompanied by baseball-sized hail that caused an undetermined amount of damage, dipped down in the Waco area but did no damage or injuries, authorities said.

Only one of the tornadoes touched down on land and another dissipated after sucking up tons of Lake Waco water, said Lt. Lewis Barber of the McLennan County Sheriff's Department.

"Our luck is holding so far," Barber said Monday night. "And the cell seems to be breaking up now, so we ought to be OK."

The only funnel to hit land was southwest of Lake Waco in Pauline and Roland Caldwell view the wreckage of their daughter's mobile home which was blown into their brick house by a tornado about 7 p.m. yesterday between Kyle and Buda. Mrs. Caldwell, her daughter and two grandchildren fled mobile home for the house after sighting the tornado.

Speepleville, but it immediately — and harmlessly — ricocheted into the clouds, Barber said.

Another tornado that moved out over Lake Waco shortly after 4 p.m., turned into a waterspout and then dissipating within minutes. At least two other tornadoes were reported over Crawford and McGregor southwest of Waco, but caused no damage or injuries, Barber said.

The National Weather Service posted a tornado watch for most of North and East Texas until midnight Monday as forecasters warned of the possibility of severe storms bearing hail, heavy rain of up to four inches and high winds.

Monday was the third straight day that violent springtime thunderstorms erupted across the state. On Sunday, a tornado killed three people in Northwest Texas.

About 13 residences in Duncanville and the Oak Cliff section of Dallas were damaged Monday morning when a front bringing high winds and thunderstorms rumbled through the area, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

Heavy downpours tied up morning traffic in Dallas.

A small frame house "exploded" Sunday when it took a direct hit from a tornado near the Young County town of Olney in Northwest Texas. The bodies of an 88-year-old man, his 85-year-old wife and their 64-year-old son were found nearby, authorities said.

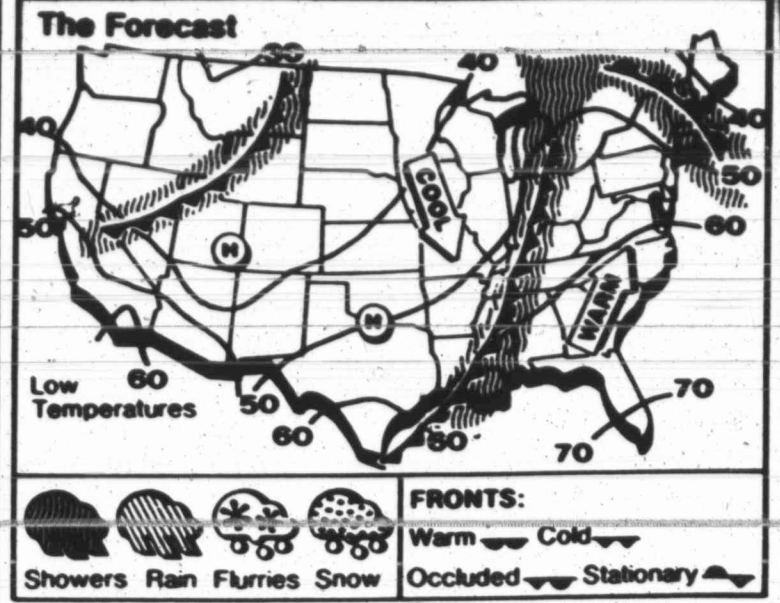

"This is the worst I've ever seen," Sgt. Joe Hall of the Young County sheriff's department said.

Trees were split apart, power lines ripped down and barns destroyed as several tornadoes bounced around the area, officials said. Several other homes in the area had flooded yards.

The fatal twister that claimed three lives at about 6:20 p.m. Sunday was one of "at least seven" tornadoes that were reported to have touched down in Throckmorton and Young counties late Sunday afternoon, civil defense officials in Throckmorton said.

At least three other people were injured as the result of twisters that struck the area, authorities said.

Weather

Local

Today's weather features fair skies with highs reaching the lower 80s. Winds are blowing northwesterly, 10 to 20 miles per hour. By Wednesday, skies will be fair and temperatures warmer with highs near 80. Southerly winds will be blowing 10 to 15 miles per hour.

State

Flash flood watches remained in effect for the eastern one-half of North Texas and central portions today and at least one twister was reported in the wake of severe thunderstorms that caused property damage and flooding across the Lone Star State.

The National Weather Service said one of these thunderstorms produced a funnel cloud near Killen shortly at 1:15 a.m., but a dispatcher for the Bell County sheriff's department said there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Two injured in car collisions

Two Big Spring residents, a 32-year-old woman and a 14-year-old boy, were injured in separate accidents Monday and early today.

Both Dianne Standefer Cash, 32, of P.O. Box 3737 and Christopher Reynolds, 14, of 4109 Parkway were treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Reynolds was injured Monday evening in a hit and run accident when an unidentified driver in a pickup truck collided with his bicycle. Police are continuing to search for the driver, according to Lt. Jerry Edwards.

According to police reports, Reynolds was riding his bicycle east on Alamesa. The pickup, a brown and beige Ford Ranger, was traveling south on Wasson when the collision occurred at 4:50 p.m. in the intersection of Wasson and Alamesa.

According to the report, the driver stopped to check if the boy was hurt, then drove off without leaving information so he could be contacted and without calling the police.

Police have no leads on the identity of the driver, beyond a description of the truck, Edwards said. The year model was estimated to be between 1982 and 1985, according to the report.

Cash was injured slightly early today when her car was forced off the road and into a guardrail along the 1600 block of the W. 11th Place Extension.

Cash told police she was traveling west on the 11th Place Extension when an unidentified vehicle passed her about three feet east of FM 700, forcing her 1979 blue Ford Thunderbird off the road, the report stated.

The two cars did not collide and the other vehicle did not stop, according to the report.

The exact time of the accident is stated as unknown but Shaffer Ambulance was called at 12:30 a.m., according to the accident report.

WT Chamber of Commerce recognizes Big Spring men

Ralph McLaughlin was appointed as district vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce board of directors during a meeting this weekend in San Angelo.

Owen Ivie was elected as a board director during the meeting.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce includes a number of Texas cities. Delegates from around West Texas gathered in San Angelo for workshops and seminars, LeRoy Tillery, executive director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said. The meeting culminated Monday night with a banquet and presentations of the West Texas Cultural Achievement Awards.

Steve Baldwin, an instructor at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, received one of the awards in recognition of his work as a playwright. Other honorees included Covell Jones, a Granbury sculptor known as the official artist of the State of Texas, Watt Reynolds of Albany, known for his efforts to restore West Texas homes and ranch land, and Lewis Fulks, a set designer and dinner theater director at Abilene Christian University.

Byron Price accepted an award on behalf of the Panhandle-Plains Museum in Canyon.

Police Beat

Thief takes checks from truck

Four payroll checks were taken from a brown 1978 Ford pickup truck between 2 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 p.m. Sunday, Danny Chadwick of 2911 W. Highway 80 told police.

The four checks, from Herzog Construction Co., totaled $2,131, according to the police report.

Vandals Monday damaged the front passenger seat of a blue 1985 Nissan, owner Felecia La of One Courtney Place told police.

The incident occurred between 5 and 6:30 p.m. Monday at her apartment, according to police. Damage was estimated at $300.

Cars also were vandalized at the Highland Pontiac dealership and Classic Auto Sales, both on FM 700, this weekend, according to police reports.

Bill Laster of Highland Pontiac told police someone stole three center caps for wheels and two firebird emblems, valued at a total of $75, from a yellow 1985 Pontiac Firebird. Vandals also damaged the Fiero emblem and paint on the car, causing $100 damage, the report stated.

In addition, vandals damaged the front and back emblems on a silver 1983 Audi 5000 turbo, Danny Eagle of Classic Auto Sales told police. Damage was estimated at $50.

A blue 20-inch girls' 10-speed bicycle was stolen from the Little League field behind Howard College between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Friday, Mrs. Jerold Wilson of 707 Tulane told police. The bike was valued at $100.

Sandra Woods of 2610 Fairchild told police someone she knows assaulted her at 10:30 p.m. Monday. She was taken to Malore-Hogan Hospital, where she was treated for cuts and bruises, the police report stated.

Luanna Franco of 1002 N. Main told police someone she knows struck her with a fist. She received a cut and a swollen lip, the report stated.

Tina Hillyer of 1200 Gregg told police someone she knows assaulted her at 10 p.m. Monday.

Jeannie Rowe, a clerk at the 7-Eleven store at 1209 E. 11th Place, told police someone stole three cartons of cigarettes, valued at $27, at 9:40 p.m. Monday.

Police Monday night arrested Doyce Wayne Taylor, 17, of Vealmoor in the 200 block of E. 23rd on suspicion of being a minor in possession of alcohol.

118th District jury sentences man to 12-year prison term

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

A Big Spring man who pleaded guilty to robbery was sentenced Monday to 12 years in prison by a 118th District Court jury.

Robert Lewis Valentine, 25, asked for a jury to assess punishment after he balked at the term offered by the district attorney's office in a plea bargain agreement.

Valentine, of 205 N.W. Third, pleaded guilty earlier to the Jan. 31 robbery of Allen Grocery at 205 E. Third. He was taken Monday evening to the state penitentiary in Huntsville.

District Judge James Gregg said that Valentine elected to plead guilty but asked for a jury to hear details of the case and determine the sentence.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said he had offered a plea bargain prison term but Valentine elected to have a jury decide the sentence.

"My plea bargain to him was more (longer sentence term)" than what the jury gave him, Hamby said, but declined to say what his offer had been.

In his final arguments before jurors, Hamby said that the law allowed them to set a sentence anywhere from 5 to 99 years for the crime. He asked jurors to assess a punishment of 15 years and one day. Any term over 15 years would have meant that Valentine would not be released on bond pending appeal, should he decide to appeal the sentence.

Robert Miller, Valentine's court-appointed attorney, told jurors he believed that eight years was a reasonable sentence for the defendant.

Valentine, confined in the county jail since his arrest in February, had been on parole since Oct. 25, 1984. He previously served 30 months in state prison after breaking his probation for a motor vehicle burglary that occurred in April 1983. His parole was revoked earlier this month by the Texas Parole Board.

Sandstorm

Because of rains over the weekend, Bilbro said most farmers will be spending the next few days in their fields, "turning up damp soil."

Bilbro said after every rain the fields will blow because the rain smooths out the surface of a field, melting clods of soil and drying the top layer into a slick, smooth surface that is very susceptible to high winds.

"Farmers are doing everything they can" to protect the fine particles of top soil that blow away during high winds, he said.

"The high winds dislodge the particles" and soon "the whole field is blowing," he said.

Albino oil

If the independents lose, Pampa Mayor Calvin Whitley said, "the economic impact would be quite severe from all appearances."

"Things like that snowball," the mayor said. "One merchant is hurt, then another and so on."

Tom Harkey, superintendent of the 500-student White Deer school district, said 48 percent of his tax base comes from independent oil producers caught up in the controversy.

The district has estimated it would have to lay off four or five of its 49 teachers — "and possibly more" — if the independents lose, Harkey said. If they lose, the value of their property drops, and school property tax revenues drop too.

"It would have a tremendous impact on our district," he said. "You betcha, it sure would."

The Panhandle field is the only place in Texas where oil and gas rights are still sold separately. The Texas Railroad Commission,

"Anytime they have a rain of any consequence" farmers head for the fields and plow under the top layer to "disturb the top soil — roughen it up."

Heavy clods and moist, underground layers of soil will hold down the field and keep it from blowing, Bilbro said.

Although today's sandstorm is mild compared to last year's, area law enforcement officials are advising travelers to be cautious if they have to journey out of town.

Areas to the north of Big Spring were reporting hazardous conditions this morning. A spokesman in the sheriff's office in Lamesa said this morning that conditions are "pretty bad, especially west of Lamesa. Everyone should drive with caution."

which controls the state's oil industry, issues drilling permits after deciding what is an oil well and what is a gas well.

Major energy companies control the natural gas wells in the area; they left the slow-producing oil wells to independents. The independents, however, found a way to turn a vapor from the wells into a liquefied natural gas.

They call it "white oil."

The majors have gone to the Railroad Commission and to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission complaining that the independents are not producing oil at all, but are taking natural gas that belongs to the majors under the old long-term contracts.

In 1977, the commission's chief counsel ruled that "white oil" could count as oil if mixed with a small amount of crude.

In 1978, the Natural Gas Policy Act raised the price of gas produced from newly drilled oil wells.

The white oil boom was on.

Sheriff's Log

County answers runaway calls

The Howard County sheriff's office received two reports of runaway juveniles Monday afternoon.

The first report was from a woman who lives in the Midway area. She reported that her 14-year-old daughter had run away from home on Saturday evening. The daughter is described as a white female, five feet in height, 85 to 90 pounds with short medium brown hair. She was last seen walking toward Big Spring wearing blue jeans, a black sweater jacket with grey sleeves and white tennis shoes.

The second report was from a

Forth Worth woman who said her daughter had run away from home Monday morning. The missing juvenile was described as a white female, five feet in height, 145 pounds with blond hair. She is believed to be traveling with a white male, age 16, six feet in height, 195 to 200 pounds with long brown hair. They were last seen driving in a white Chevrolet Cavalier.

Persons who have information or have seen the runaways should contact the sheriff's department.

Big Spring police transferred Karen Lynn Rogers, 21, of 2107 S. Gregg to county jail after she was charged with two counts of driving while license suspended and failure to maintain financial responsibility. She was released on bonds totalling $2,000. She was later arrested by sheriff's deputies on warrants charging her with owing the county fines. She was released after paying fines amounting to $582.

Police transferred Charles Harvey LaRue, 18, of Coahoma to county jail after he was charged with driving while intoxicated and making alcohol available to a minor. He was released on bonds totalling $1,500 and set by Sgt. Troy Hogue of the Big Spring Police Department.

Teamsters head testifies

CHICAGO — The President's Commission on Organized Crime refused to delay Jackie Presser's testimony until a federal probe is completed in Cleveland, ordering the Teamsters head to appear today for labor racketeering hearings.

Forcing Presser, who became union president in 1963, to testify before the climax of the investigation of alleged ghost employee payments in a union local he headed would be "highly unfair," his attorney, John R. Cimaco, said Monday.

Because of that probe, in which the Justice Department has recommended that Presser be indicted, Cimaco said in a letter to the panel that he has advised Presser to "exercise his Fifth Amendment rights before the commission."

The request to delay Presser's testimony was unanimously denied, said commission member Sam Skinner, a former U.S. Attorney in Chicago.

Pan Am sells to United

WASHINGTON — Pan American World Airways, which for more than half a century has stood as America's flagship airline around the globe, is selling the Pacific. Price tag: $750 million cash.

The deal, in which United Airlines is to purchase Pan Am's profitable Pacific division, was announced by the two airlines Monday after months of secret negotiations between the chief executives of the two carriers.

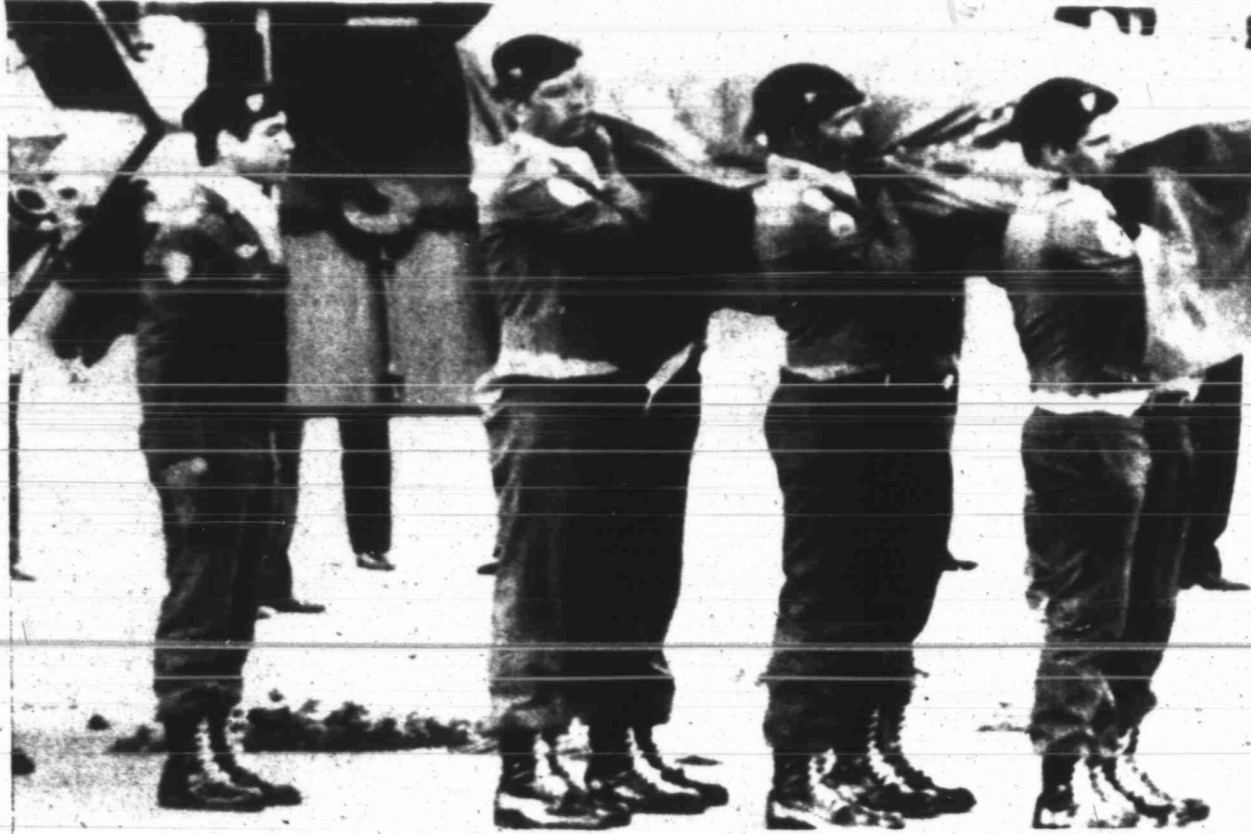

If it meets government approval, the agreement will signal an end to an era of aviation history for Pan Am. The airline pioneered air travel across the vast ocean that separates the United States and Asia, flying the first commercial routes in 1935 with its famous "China Clipper."

Republicans cry 'thief'

WASHINGTON — Angry Republicans, declaring "war" to try to frustrate the seating of a Democrat in a hotly disputed Indiana congressional election, kept the House in session all night and into the morning today.

Republican leaders said the around-the-clock session was just one of a number of disruptive measures they would use to dramatize their contention that the Indiana 8th District election was "stolen" by Democrats.

"This is going to continue tomorrow and the next day and the next day and the next day, because these feelings aren't going to end," declared Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ind., at daybreak to a nearly deserted chamber.

President-elect buried in presidential colors

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Weeping Brazilians stood in long lines to view the body of President-elect Tancredo Neves, draped with the green and yellow presidential sash that illness prevented him from wearing in life.

"Tancredo didn't die, he's in the heart of the people," throngs carrying national flags chanted for the man whose election last month marked the end of 21 years of military rule.

Neves, who died Sunday at age 75 after a series of operations, officially was unable to receive the presidential sash because his illness prevented his inauguration last month.

Foreign dignitaries planned to pay last respects today and offer condolences to President Jose Sarney. Sarney was vice president until Monday when the Congress declared the presidency vacant, automatically making him head of state.

The casket was to be taken today to Belo Horizonte, the capital of Neves' home state of Minas Gerais, 445 miles southeast of Brasilia, to lie in state there before burial Wednesday in Neves' hometown, Sao Joao del Rei.

Neves, whose political career spanned 50 years, fell ill hours before he was to be sworn in March 15 as Brazil's first civilian president in 21 years, and underwent seven operations in four weeks.

People throughout the nation held special religious services Monday. Hundreds of thousands of people in the southern industrial city of Sao Paulo followed the procession that carried Neves' flag-draped coffin from the hospital where he died to the airport en route to Brasilia.

Sarney declared Monday a national holiday, and thousands of people in Brasilia gathered on the route along which the coffin was carried from the airport to the palace. Crowds reached out to touch the flower-covered armored vehicle that carried the coffin.

A military squad carried the casket up the marble ramp into the presidential palace. The armed forces fired a 21-gun salute and bands played the national anthem.

The wooden casket was opened to show Neves' face and upper chest through a glass cover. "I wanted to say goodbye," said Diva Buena, 40, a housewife who sat on a curb near the palace. "I had hope until the very end."

A Roman Catholic Mass was celebrated in the presidential palace Monday night. Outside, the crowd took on a festive mood. Fireworks were set off, vendors sold soft drinks and popcorn, and a group of teenagers ran in a pond outside the twin-towered Congress building.

"I'll stay here as long as I can," said Maria Neves, 48, who was waiting to enter the palace Monday night.

Police stop campaigner

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Security police detained a leading anti-apartheid campaigner today as he got off a commercial flight in Port Elizabeth in the riot-torn eastern Cape Province, a source close to the campaigner said.

The source told The Associated Press he was with Patrick Lekota when 5ved escorted Lekota to a car and drove off. The source said he asked for an explanation, and was told only that Lekota was being detained.

Lekota, a black, is the national publicity secretary for the United Democratic Front, the nation's largest multi-racial organization opposed to South Africa's legal system of racial segregation called apartheid.

The Front claims to represent 600 organizations, which include some 2 million people.

Arms talks recess today

GENEVA, Switzerland — The U.S.-Soviet arms talks recessed today after 54 hours of meetings on nuclear and space weapons in the first six-week round.

The final session was a two-hour meeting at the U.S. arms control offices between all six key U.S. and Soviet negotiators, headed by Max M. Kampelman and Victor P. Karpov, and their aides.

Karpov refused to answer questions from waiting reporters both when he entered the building and when he left. Both sides have consistently declined comment on the substance of the talks, citing their confidentiality agreement.

As the session opened, the Soviets filed through a reception line of their U.S. opposite numbers.

Politburo enlarged to 13

MOSCOW — Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev enlarged the Politburo to 13 full members today at a meeting of the party Central Committee.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced that KGB chief Viktor Chebrikov, 62, was promoted from alternate to full membership on the ruling body. The other new full members are Nikolai Ryzhkov, 55, and Yegor Ligachev, 64, who heads the party's powerful organizational department.

Chebrikov had been an alternate, or non-voting member of the Politburo. Ryzhkov and Ligachev are both members of the party secretariat, but were not alternate members of the Politburo. Kremlin observers said they believed it was the first time since Andrei A. Gromyko was named a full Politburo member in 1973 that a member was drawn from outside the ruling body.

Demos oppose Reagan on Nicaraguan aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a foreign policy battle reminiscent of the Vietnam era, congressional Democrats are directly challenging President Reagan's plan for renewed aid to Nicaraguan rebels and pressing instead for revived U.S. peace talks with the leftist Sandinista government.

As Congress prepared for showdown votes today on $14 million in aid, the White House rejected proposed Democratic compromises, charging that they denied a negotiating role for the CIA-backed Contras, who have been fighting since 1981 to oust the Sandinistas.

"We sort of had a fundamental difference on whether the Sandinistas ought to negotiate with the Contras," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan. "The Democrats don't think that's necessary."

The issue brought about 2,000 demonstrators to the gates of the White House Monday morning following a rally at the Lincoln xE8 Sokf the chanting, poster-waving protesters of Reagan's foreign policy sat down and blocked three driveways onto the White House grounds before being arrested.

The administration, which broke off bilateral talks with the Sandinistas last year, contends that the Nicaraguan government must negotiate with its internal opponents. But the Sandinistas have refused talks with the Contras, calling them a CIA creation.

Both the House and Senate scheduled votes today on the issue, with House Democrats confident they have the votes to block Reagan's initial plan, which would provide $14 million that could be used for military aid, and a milder GOP alternative.

The House Republican proposal, sponsored by Minority Leader Robert Michel of Illinois, would ship $14 million in non-lethal aid to the Contras through the U.S. Agency for International Development, instead of the CIA as Reagan asked.

A House Democratic plan would give $10 million to Nicaraguan refugees through the Red Cross or United Nations and set aside $4 million for implementing a possible peace settlement.

But on Monday, attention focused on the White House, where the demonstration against Reagan's Nicaragua policies led to about 300 arrests for disorderly conduct and demonstrating without a permit, and where Senate Democrats presented a compromise plan to Reagan and Senate Republicans.

A day-long meeting — briefly attended by Reagan — failed to achieve a compromise.

The Senate Democratic plan would give the Contras $14 million in food, clothing and medical supplies, if Reagan agrees to resume bilateral talks with Nicaragua and the Contras accept a cease-fire. It also calls for economic sanctions against Nicaragua and possible resumption of military aid to the Contras if the Sandinistas do not negotiate in good faith.

"We believe that (peace) cannot occur unless there is dialogue between the parties in Nicaragua and it won't succeed — even if it begins — as long as there is a big arms buildup" on the Sandinista side, said a senior White House official, who refused to be identified by name.

President lobbies for budget proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opening a lobbying campaign for approval of a politically risky budget plan curbing Social Security increases, suggested today that Congress "stop making excuses and start showing some backbone and leadership."

Appealing for support of a package that would kill 17 domestic programs including Amtrak and the Job Corps, Reagan said, "We can no longer afford to finance everything."

The president made his appeal in an address to the National Association of Realtors. In a full-page advertisement in today's Washington Post, the association called Reagan's budget plan "big, bold, brave." The audience gave him a cheering, hand-clapping welcome.

The president asked the group, "Do you think the American people want their taxes increased? Or, do you think Congress should stop making excuses and start showing some backbone and leadership?"

He said that if the 1984 election proved anything, it was that Americans overwhelmingly oppose a tax increase. "I will not be a party to a tax increase," Reagan pledged.

The speech was a prelude to a presidential address from the Oval Office at 8 p.m. EST Wednesday. Reagan told the real estate brokers that in his first term "we turned a crisis situation around. In the second term we have the opportunity to set our country on a course for a decade of unparalleled prosperity."

He dismissed various alternatives to his budget plan, such as an across-the-board freeze in federal spending.

"We should use this opportunity to trim programs that are wasteful, ineffective and unnecessary; many of which should never have been funded with federal tax dollars in the first place," Reagan said.

At the same time, he promised to keep in place programs protecting the poor, disabled and elderly, calling that responsibility "a moral imperative."

Reagan singled out Amtrak and the Job Corps for particular criticism. "As a people, we must set priorities," he said. "Those programs, whose costs outweigh their benefits, should be terminated."

He said the Job Corps costs taxpayers $15,200 for a year's training of each student. "For that kind of money, we could send them to Harvard for one year."

And Reagan said government subsidies cut $35 from the price of every Amtrak ticket. "They just keep shoveling in those tax dollars but it's you the people who are getting railroaded."

A compromise endorsed by Reagan and Senate Republican leaders would chop proposed spending for fiscal 1986 by $52 billion and reduce expected deficits to below $100 billion by 1988 without raising taxes. Democrats see the GOP plan as ammunition they can use in next year's election campaign, and Republicans are worried they will be vulnerable.

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T Communications"), in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") hereby gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of rates for its services. The new rates will be effective May 14, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the PUC. All customers and classes of customers would be affected by the proposed rates.

AT&T Communications has filed a reprice of its tariffs designed to more closely recover access and other costs for WATS and 800 Service and all private line services including Channel Services, Foreign Exchange (FX), DATAPHONE Digital Service, and OCC Facilities.

Also proposed is the institution of a charge for Directory Assistance to begin to recover access costs incurred for such service and increases in rates for operator assisted AT&T Long Distance calls. The initial minute charge for all AT&T Long Distance calls and additional minute rates for AT&T Long Distance calls 51 miles or less are proposed for increases to reflect the access charges approved by the PUC for such calls.

The proposed new rates for all services would result in an increase in adjusted test period revenues of $139 million or 12.7 percent.

A complete copy of the proposed tariffs are on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. ## Look homeward on poisonous air Protection against toxic air pollution in the United States is not much stronger than in Bhopal, India, where more than 2,000 people were killed last December by a sudden release of lethal methyl isocyanate. Few rules exist to control emissions of that and other hazardous chemicals, and thousands of tons of such poisons are released into the atmosphere every year. Those findings, contained in a recent congressional study, point to the need for quick federal action to control toxic pollutants.

Last month's survey, prompted by worry that a repeat of the Bhopal disaster might occur in this country, showed that America's air is more polluted than commonly thought. The survey found the worst pollution in states such as Kentucky, West Virginia, Louisiana and Texas, which have many petrochemical plants and refineries — and which also have higher-than-normal cancer rates.

Scientists have long warned that exposure to toxic air pollutants can cause cancer and other severe illnesses, but the Environmental Protection Agency seems reluctant to listen. Although the Clean Air Act directs the EPA to regulate toxic pollutants, in 14 years the agency has set standards for only asbestos, benzene, beryllium, mercury and vinyl chloride. A handful of other pollutants are regulated by states and local governments, but permitted emission levels vary widely. Dozens more known carcinogens are entirely unregulated. Instead of moving quickly to plug the loophole, the EPA seems to be doing the opposite: In addition to stalling in setting standards for currently uncontrolled substances, the agency now contemplates relaxing its rules for vinyl chloride, one of the few toxic pollutants it does regulate.

Congress can end the EPA's bureaucratic backpedaling when it reauthorizes the Clean Air Act later this year. Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House health and environmental subcommittee, and Minnesota's Sen. Dave Durenberger both plan to introduce amendments to the law that would force the EPA to act within a few years to regulate toxic pollutants.

Their plan recognizes that every year the EPA delays in controlling toxic pollutants means thousands of endangered lives. Breaking the bureaucratic logjam on toxic pollutants would be a major stride toward the Clean Air Act's basic goal: for all citizens, air safe to breathe.

Give-and-take in Central America

What should the United States do in Central America? For the past six years, since a revolution toppled the government of Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, that question has dominated American foreign policy. Yet neither the American people nor their leaders can agree on an answer.

The biggest stumbling block is the confusion of American interests with American ideals. We all like to believe the two are synonymous: it spares us unpleasant choices. But on the Central American isthmus they often are incompatible. The United States cannot withdraw from the region without serious risks to its strategic interests. Nor can it impose its democratic ideals without high costs and excessive involvement.

Recognizing these facts is the beginning of wisdom about Central America. Fortunately, there is a way to protect U.S. security while minimizing its direct interference in the region.

The approach has been called "Finlandization," mirroring as it does the Soviet approach to its non-communist neighbor. But the policy is no different from the established United States posture toward Mexico. It means insisting that the nations of Central America take no measures that directly threaten American security — while promising to let them run their other affairs as they choose.

Just as we ignore the Mexican government's corruption, one-party rule and habitual anti-American rhetoric, we would ignore left-wing repression in Nicaragua and right-wing repression in Guatemala. In exchange, we would expect Central American governments to follow the Mexican example, keeping a prudent distance from the Soviets and leaving their neighbors alone — under penalty of prompt and vigorous U.S. military intervention.

That doesn't mean abandoning the hope of encouraging democracy. The right approach is to leave undemocratic governments alone — but to provide help to those countries that want to cultivate popular rule. Military and economic aid to El Salvador, if such aid is helpful, would be maintained as long as the government demonstrates progress. But aid to prop up despotic regimes would be ended.

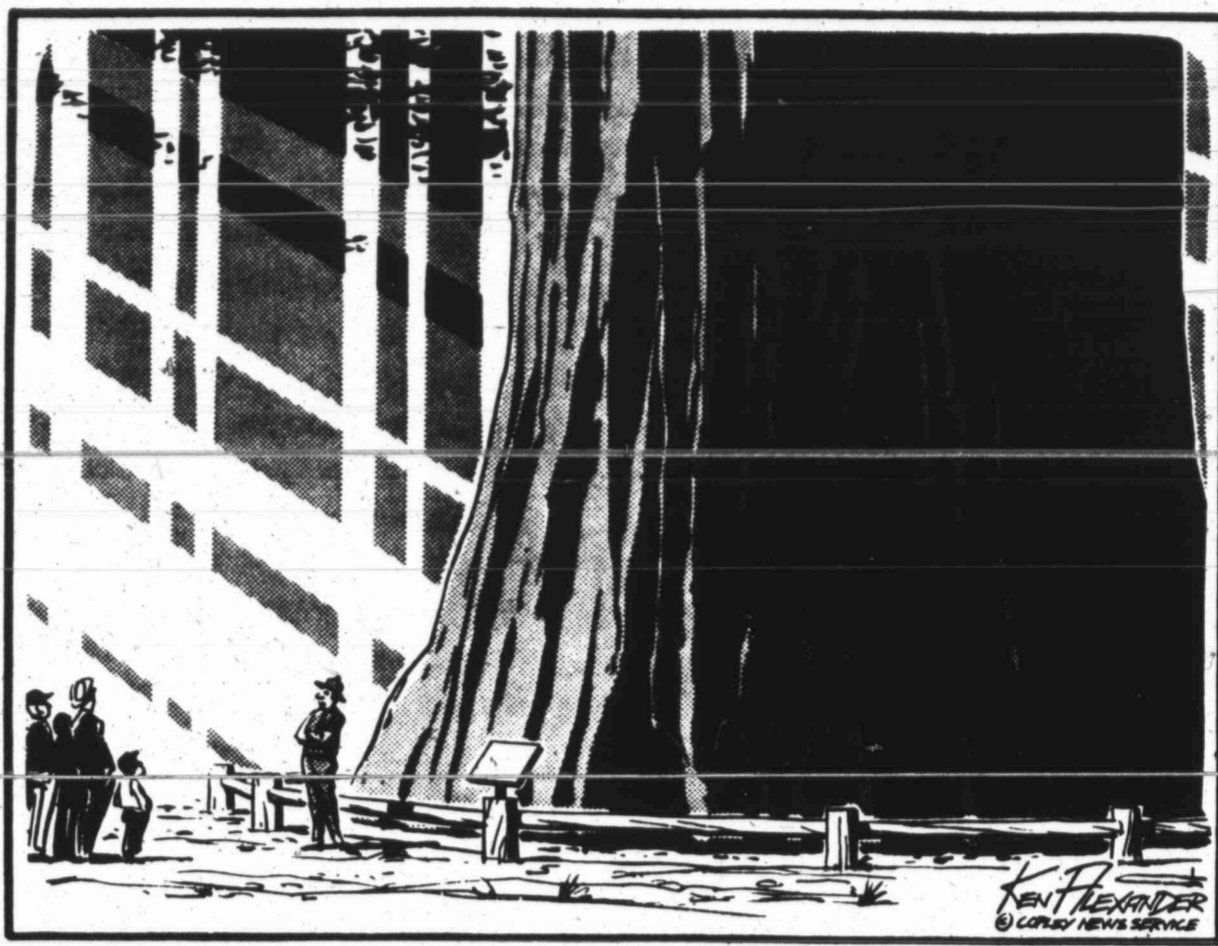

What about Nicaragua? United States assistance to the contras would be cut off if Managua agrees to send home its Soviet and Cuban advisers, stop buying arms from the Eastern bloc and quit supporting the Salvadoran rebels. The Sandinistas would be allowed to pursue Marxist policies — subject to the tolerance of their own people — but not to become a Soviet military outpost.

This approach won't guarantee enlightened, humane governments throughout Central America, as many Americans on either end of the political spectrum would like. But this country doesn't have the resources, the will or the ability to do that. To succeed, United States policy must have realistic limits.

"Mexicanizing" Central America would require both the administration and its opponents to lower their expectations. The president would have to give up his dream of overthrowing the Sandinistas. Congress would have to accept a permanent military role in the region.

But these concessions are the only way to bring clarity and coherence to a policy hopelessly tangled by divergent goals. This approach would maximize American security while minimizing American costs.

Congress' pass-along gang

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler received virtually identical letters from seven distinguished members of Congress recently, protesting a plan to save the government several million dollars on the purchase of prescription drugs for the needy.

By no coincidence, the congressional letters were almost verbatim versions of a "suggested draft" proposed by lobbyists for the National Association of Chain Drug Stores.

The target of this mini-campaign is a report by the department's inspector general, Richard Kusserow, recommending changes in the purchase of drugs for poor patients under the Medicaid program. Essentially, Kusserow urged that the discounts pharmacists get from wholesalers and manufacturers be passed along to the federal government.

Instead, Kusserow found, the drug stores have been reimbursed on the basis of "average wholesale price" figures, provided by the industry itself.

While noting that virtually all drugs purchased wholesale by the pharmacies were heavily discounted, the report stated that "the Medicaid program does not receive any benefit from these discounts." Kusserow stated that almost 80 percent of the $1.7 billion that Medicaid spends on prescription drugs each year is reimbursed on the basis of the wholesale figures.

Kusserow estimated that restricting the use of wholesale figures for reimbursement would save Medicaid "at least" $360 million over the next five years. But the chain drug store association, in its letter to the members of Congress, claimed Kusserow's methodology resulted in a "skewed and inconclusive report." The $360 million in savings, the association said, is "simply illusory."

Seven nearly identical copies of the lobbyists' "suggested draft" were sent to the Health and Human Services Department by Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, and Reps. Richard Shelby, D-Ala.; Henry Hyde, R-Ill.; Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y.; Charles Wilson, D-Texas; William Hefner, R-N.C., and Tony Coelho, D-Calif.

Shelby, Addabbo and Coelho adopted the association's suggested phraseology word-for-word in this key paragraph: "It has been brought to my attention that this report contains serious arithmetical as well as theoretical flaws." The more cautious Matsunaga changed "contains" to "may contain."

Hyde, Wilson and Hefner used the association's suggested line: "Thus, the IG's obsessive focus on (wholesale figures) simply obscures reality." But for some reason Hyde dropped the lobbyist-suggested line that the inspector general's report "does little more than attack a straw man of the department's own construction." Wilson and Hefner liked the straw man metaphor and used it verbatim. Seventeen other congressmen simply passed on letters from irate local druggists.

A spokesman for the association told our associate Tony Capaccio that the approach to Congress followed years of unsuccessful attempts to get the Health and Human Service Department to study the entire reimbursement issue. "We ran out of patience," he said. "We couldn't get a response out of the bureaucracy."

The association's largest campaign donations since 1981, incidentally, went to Shelby ($2,150), Hyde ($1,950) and Addabbo ($1,550).

Footnote: Hyde's office insisted that the congressman's letter included "wholesale changes" from the association's suggested draft. Shelby's office candidly acknowledged that putting a group's letter over a member's signature is "not unusual." Addabbo's office said such a letter was "something we would have done for just about anybody."

Demo plan ices Reagan budget

By PHILLIP SWANN Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — A House Democratic proposal to freeze all government programs — including defense and Social Security — is threatening to put President Reagan's budget plans on ice.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, and several other conservative Democrats, whose votes are considered key to the president's hopes of victory, this week endorsed a one year across-the-board freeze on all federal programs.

Democratic members of the House Budget Committee, who met privately this week to discuss a freeze as an alternative to the president's plan, are expected to unveil such a proposal shortly.

The plan would reduce the federal deficit, projected this year at $216 billion, considerably more than the president's spending blueprint which calls for sharp cuts in domestic spending but small increases in defense and Social Security.

"I'm a little skeptical that there's a magic answer," said Stenholm, referring to the president's contention that economic growth will erase the federal deficit. We have to do something about the growth rate of entitlements."

But many Republicans predict the freeze proposal will melt later this spring when members begin floor debate on Social Security and other popular programs.

For example, Rep. Ralph Hall, a conservative Democrat from Rockwall, this week said he supports a freeze on all government programs — except Social Security. We have to be politically realistic," Hall said, referring to Social Security. GOP officials say Hall's view is shared by most Democrats, many of whom have pledged to fight any effort to reduce the cost-of-living adjustment for Social Security.

In fact, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, said this week that perhaps fewer than 10 percent of House members support freezing Social Security benefits for one year.

Thus, if Social Security gets an exemption, the GOP argument goes, members will argue that other popular programs should as well. Suddenly, the freeze proposal will turn to slush and conservative Democrats will warm up to the president's plan.

Sure, a good many Boll Weevils (the nickname for conservative Southern Democrats) support the freeze," said Rep. Beau Boulter, the Amarillo Republican who sits on the House Budget Committee.

But it's just rhetoric. I don't see (House Budget Committee Chairman Rep.) Bill Gray keeping Social Security in a freeze proposal. It will never pass."

Rep. Tom Loeffler, the Hunt Republican who is a member of the House GOP leadership, said he expects the House will eventually seek a freeze on total spending — the goal of the president's plan.

The president's budget has set the tone and clearly established a target," Loeffler said.

Still, the president's proposal has even come under fire from several Senate Republicans who argue that it cuts too deeply in domestic spending. The Senate Monday will begin debate on the plan, which was negotiated recently by the White House and Senate Republicans.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, this week expressed concern that many senators will seek several budget-busting amendments to the proposal. He urged his colleagues to vote against any proposal that would add to the deficit.

This is the most important vote we will take all year," Gramm said.

However, many members are clearly reluctant to approve a budget that slashes several domestic programs but increases defense spending. Democrats say this explains why the freeze proposal has grown in popularity.

"With a freeze, it's a shared sacrifice," said Rep. Albert Bustamante, a San Antonio Democrat who supports a freeze. Everybody takes his lumps."

Becoming a Christian

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How exactly can I become a Christian? Should I join a certain church or something, or what should I believe? I really feel a need of God in my life but don't know how to begin. — M.C.

DEAR M.C.: There is no more important question you can ask — and God wants you to know the answer because He loves you and wants you to come to know Him personally.

The crucial thing is to open your heart to Jesus Christ. How can you do that? First of all, realize you are a sinner in the eyes of God, and you need God's forgiveness and mercy. Sin will keep you out of Heaven, and until your sins are washed away you have no hope of eternal life. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Second, realize God has provided a way for your sins to be forgiven and for you to have eternal life. Yes, you deserve to die as punishment for your sins. But Christ — who was God's Son and without sin — took your sins and your punishment upon Himself when He died on the cross. He died in your place, because He loves you. "For Christ died for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God" (1 Peter 3:18).

Then reach out and accept the gift God offers you — the gift of forgiveness and salvation. How do you do that? By confessing to God that you are a sinner, and asking Jesus Christ to come into your heart as your Lord and Savior. "The gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23). You can accept Christ by inviting Him into your heart with a simple prayer of faith.

Then believe that God has saved you. Satan will try to tell you otherwise — but God has promised that Christ "is able to save completely those who come to God through him" (Hebrews 7:25). Give your life to Christ right now.

Today

By The Associated Press Today is Tuesday, April 23, the 113th day of 1985. There are 252 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: April 23, 1564 is generally regarded as the birthdate of the English poet and dramatist William Shakespeare. He died on the same date 52 years later.

On this date: In 1789, President-elect George Washington and his wife moved into the first executive mansion, the Franklin House, in New York.

In 1791, the 15th President of the United States, James Buchanan, was born in Franklin County, Penn.

In 1896, the Vitasec system for projecting movies onto a screen was demonstrated at a music hall in New York City.

In 1940, about 200 people died in a dance hall fire in Natchez, Miss.

In 1968, the Methodist Church and the Evangelical United Brethren Church merged in a ceremony in Dallas to form the United Methodist Church.

In 1969, Sirhan Sirhan was sentenced to death for the assassination of New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The sentence was later reduced to life imprisonment.

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford told an audience at Tulane University that the Vietnam War was over "as far as America is concerned."

Five years ago: With the flow of Cuban refugees arriving by boat increasing, the U.S. Justice Department warned that boatowners who transported refugees illegally would be subject to penalties.

One year ago: It was reported that Elizabeth Bouvia, a cerebral palsy victim who had demanded the right to starve to death in a hospital, had apparently changed her mind.

Today's birthdays: Actress Janet Blair is 64. Former actress and U.S. ambassador Shirley Temple Black is 57. Fashion designer Halston is 53. Singer-songwriter Roy Orbison is 49. Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, is 47. Actor David Birney is 46. Actor Lee Majors is 45. Actress Sandra Dee is 43. Actor Herve Villechaise is 42.

Get the facts about hard-cooked eggs

DEAR ABBY: You gave the erroneous impression that hard-cooked eggs (especially those that have been colored) are unsafe to eat after one day. As the test kitchen supervisor of the American Egg Board, I hasten to inform you that properly cooked, cooled and stored hard-cooked eggs are quite safe to eat for at least a week.

Certainly, cracked eggs, or eggs that have been out of refrigeration for up to 24 hours even under the best of conditions, should not be eaten. If the weather is very hot, the time element should probably be shortened. In a home situation, colored eggs that have been kept refrigerated as much as possible following the coloring, dyeing and hunting processes should also be safe for up to one week.

Easter egg hunts conducted by park districts or community groups pose a more hazardous risk because unless eggs are properly refrigerated, there can be considerable risk. A food poisoning outbreak at a Modesto, Calif., egg hunt last year received considerable press coverage, but in that case, the hundreds of eggs involved were not properly handled, so the results were not surprising.

I am enclosing a pamphlet containing some valuable information about the incredible edible egg, along with the five basic methods of egg cooking.

Dr. Donohue

Hypochondria can be a bum rap

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Our elderly grandmother has all sorts of complaints. We feel they are just that — complaints. She is a living example, I guess, of the hypochondria that comes with age. I had a chat with grandma's doctor a week ago, and we were discussing this very thing. When I told him our family's view of her troubles, he got angry and hollered. He said older people are no more hypochondriacs than young people are. I thought this might make an interesting discussion. What do you think about this matter? — V.G.

I agree that this is one of the unfortunate canards attached to our older citizens, and doctors are not without guilt in perpetuating it. I was very interested in your letter, which arrived almost at the same time an article appeared in one of the psychological journals touching on it.

According to a review of a study, hypochondria appears not to be age-related. Psychologists Paul T. Costa and Robert R. McCrae reporting in The American Psychologist, the journal of the American Psychological Association, find that the individual who makes excessive and exaggerated medical complaints in old age is probably the same person who has made them all his or her life. They studied records of 900 men age 17 to 98 over an 18-year period. Generally, those with high neuroticism levels reported two to three times as many physical symptoms as did the best-adjusted individuals.

The false notion about the elderly is fostered by the fact that older people use a larger proportion of hospital time. But that is primarily due to the chronic care required by the few. Age appears to influence medical complaints only insofar as it increases the burden of actual disease, Costa and McCrae report. The persistence of the elderly hypochondriac stereotype adds to frustrations older people sometimes experience in not having complaints taken seriously.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter wears contact lenses, the extended-wear type. I wore them for awhile and always took them off at night, but she tells me she can wear them for a whole month at a time. I find this hard to believe. Please comment. I think she is asking for trouble. — P.O.

The American Optometric Association agrees with you. All lenses, including the so-called extended-wear type, need to be removed occasionally for cleaning, at least. For some that may be once a week, for others every few days. It is in the early days of use when the frequency matter is settled. The faster debris in tears builds up on the lenses the more often they must be taken out for cleaning. According to AOA, your daughter's is one of the more persistent myths of contact lens use.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How many food calories makes a pound of body weight? — R.B.

The figure most used is 3,000 calories for a pound.

A Big Spring WINNER!

Al Valdes A Long Time Friend

Al Valdes, one of Big Spring's greatest supporters, has been chosen as a Big Spring Winner, for his devotion to the community. Al loves America and Big Spring with a deep appreciation that most citizens can't fully understand. Al was born and raised in Havana, Cuba and came to America in 1946 to play professional baseball. He knows first-hand the repressions and reprisals in other parts of the world, including his homeland, that most Americans have never known. Al has served his community well and tirelessly. He has been a board member of the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes, United Way, and Volunteer Services Council. Al has been president of the Couples Class at First Methodist Church, where he was actively involved in church programs. He is president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, of the YMCA board, is a 12-year member of the school board and has served many years on the Cosden Credit Union Board. To put in a nut shell — Al loves life! It shows in everything he does and in his love for people. It also shows in his constant giving to programs and projects to better his corner of the world, and in his love and devotion to his family, friends and his country. Al is a winner and touches all the citizens of Big Spring in many special ways everyday.

Police officers charged with torturing suspect

NEW YORK (AP) — Two police officers were arrested Monday night and charged with inflicting "medieval torture" on an 18-year-old narcotics suspect by using an electric stun gun, a prosecutor said.

Sgt. Richard A. Pike, 50, of Selden, and Officer Jeffrey W. Gilbert, 33, of Elmont, were charged with assault in the second degree, a felony, Queens District Attorney John J. Santucci said.

Acting Police Commissioner Patrick J. Murphy said both officers were suspended immediately without pay.

Santucci told a news conference that the suspect, Mark Davidson, was burned Wednesday night with a device shaped like a hand-held tape recorder that had two electronic prongs.

The officers were arrested for "infliction of what you might consider a medieval torture on an 18-year-old individual in custody," the prosecutor said.

"This kind of behavior will not be tolerated," Murphy said. "There is no room in the Police Department for policemen who engage in this kind of behavior."

Murphy said the device, which Santucci described as "a stun gun, a zapper, any number of names," was recovered April 17 — the night of the incident — in a stolen automobile.

Earlier Monday, Davidson identified two of the six officers who he said applied 43 electric shocks during a 20-minute session after his arrest on a marijuana-selling charge.

Davidson identified the officers — a taller man and a bearded man — from police photos provided by Santucci's office, said Davidson's attorney, Marvyn Kornberg.

"The shorter man is the man who held him down, while the taller man applied the prod," Kornberg charged.

Davidson was "absolutely sure" of the identifications and that he had made both "without hesitation," Kornberg said.

Davidson was shown three separate sets of photos, and identified two of the six officers who he claimed tortured him, Kornberg said.

Davidson said Sunday that "I was in pain. I was pleading with them to please stop. The pain was so bad. They said they would do it all night."

Davidson, a high-school senior, said the police also slammed his head against a wall and punched him in the eye, stopping only after he falsely confessed to taking $10 from an undercover officer in a marijuana sale.

"They kept saying, 'Tell us where the money is,'" he said. "I just wanted to go home. I wanted it to stop."

"The facts as alleged are horrendous," Mayor Edward I. Koch said. "It appears ... that something happened to this young man that resembles torture."

Wounds were found on Davidson's body, said Tom McCarthy, a spokesman for Santucci.

Kornberg, quoted the youth as saying the shocks were administered by a small box with a pair of six-inch wire prongs.

Police officer Jeffrey W. Gilbert, 33, of Elmont, N.Y. is escorted from Queens Borough Hall in New York Monday night after he and another officer were charged with inflicting "medieval torture" on an 18-year-old narcotics suspect with an electrical stun gun.

CBS board takes aim on Turner

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Turner's hostile multibillion-dollar bid for CBS Inc. is "grossly inadequate" and would be "financially imprudent," says the board of directors of the nation's leading television network.

CBS also said Monday that in light of "pejorative statements" by Turner about minority, religious and ethnic groups, his proposal would undermine the network's broad acceptance by the American public. It did not specify what those pejorative statements were.

As a result, CBS said, it has urged its shareholders in a letter to reject Turner's bid for their shares.

Alex Swan, a spokesman for Turner Broadcasting System Inc. in Atlanta, said CBS's reaction was no surprise.

CBS also said Monday in a filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission that it does not plan, in response to Turner's offer, a merger or reorganization; a purchase, transfer or sale of a substantial amount of assets; a tender offer or acquisition of CBS or another company's stock.

Organization tabs housewife National Mother of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — A Nebraska housewife named National Mother of the Year said she owes the honor to her "terrific kids" — all 10 of whom flew to New York to surprise her at the ceremony.

"I think it's my children who deserve it," said Louise Monaco Cimino of Omaha, surrounded at a news conference Monday by her six sons and four daughters, their spouses and two of her 14 grandchildren.

Mrs. Cimino, 61, was selected from among 47 finalists representing 46 states and Puerto Rico. The contest is the work of American Mothers Inc., which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. The Mother of the Year award is intended to spur interest in Mother's Day, May 12.

The group selects its award winners on the basis of their success as mothers, their religious convictions and community involvement.

Mrs. Cimino, a Roman Catholic who attends Mass daily and is involved in a variety of community activities, said she abandoned a career as a teacher to become a mother.

"I was always going back to it, but I never had time," she said. "I think that girls who aren't in careers are made to feel that they aren't doing important things and raising a family is the most important thing they can do."

Of her sons, two are lawyers, three are doctors and one is in medical school. One daughter is a nurse and three are educators. All 10 children have post-graduate educations. They range in age from 22 to 39.

One of her daughters-in-law, Sue Cimino, said she was tipped Friday that Mrs. Cimino would be winning the award and immediately began telephoning family members to coordinate a trip to New York. Only three of the children live in Nebraska — the rest are in California, Illinois, Louisiana and Kentucky — but by 5 p.m. Sunday, all had been contacted and agreed to go.

When Mrs. Cimino walked to the podium at the Waldorf-Astoria to accept the award, a spotlight was beamed on her assembled family standing on a balcony in the multitiered ballroom.

"I was shocked," she said. "I couldn't believe they could keep it a secret."

She said she won the award "because I have such terrific kids. I feel they're all accomplished professionals, and just super human beings."

But she also gave a share of the credit to her husband, Bob, who owns a small conglomerate in Omaha which includes trucking and cement companies.

He returned the favor, saying, "I'm her greatest advocate. I absolutely believe she deserved it. She's done an outstanding job."

Mrs. Cimino offered this tip to mothers: "Just keep the children busy and involved in the right things — sports, education, music, friends."

"Keep them in line," her husband added with a smile.

"That was his job," Mrs. Cimino said. "I was a little on the soft side at times."

Prisoner seizes hostage

NORFOLK, Mass. (AP) — An inmate seized a female employee of the overcrowded Norfolk state prison Monday and held her hostage while negotiators bargained for her release, correction officials said.

A 37-year-old inmate, who was not identified, took the civilian employee hostage at about 12:15 p.m., said Joseph Landolfi, a correction department spokesman.

Nine hours later, all lines of communication remained open to the prisoner and his hostage, Landolfi said.

"That's a good sign," he said. Correction Commissioner Michael Fair joined the negotiators at the prison, Landolfi said.

All other inmates were immediately locked in their cell in the medium security institution.

Fun at district meets

With baseball season in full force I didn't get a chance to cover many track meets this season. So I was more than happy when I received a chance to cover the District 5-A and District 6-A boys and girls track meets this past weekend.

Track and field has always been one of my favorite sports, from both participation and work standpoints. When a regional berth is at stake, it brings out the best in the competitors.

The District 5-A meet in Klondike and 6-A meet in Forsan was no exception.

The O'Donnell girls were the class of the 5-A meet. It's no easy measure for a 11 competitors to win a track meet, but that's just what the Lady Eagles did.

The Lady Eagles put forth that extra effort to outscore a Ropes team which had beaten them every meet they competed against each other.

Two Klondike girls rose to the occasion by turning in career-bests to advance to regionals. Half-miler Sylvia Serato ran a gutsy race to finish second and Michelle Hogg copped a silver medal in the shot.

O'Donnell was the favorite in the boys division and it methodically rolled over the competition. Their winning formula was simple — perform up to your capabilities.

The Klondike boys showed some character in the meet. After getting upset by O'Donnell in the 400 meter relay, the Cougars responded by winning the 1600 relay over second place O'Donnell by some 50 meters.

Klondike hurdler Scott Runge competed well against the odds. Running with a pulled hamstring muscle, he gave up his spot on the sprint relay to Rudy Landin, then proceeded to win the 300 hurdles in easy fashion.

But perhaps the most courageous performance came from Dawson 1600 meter runner Jacquin Rodriguez. No more than 15 minutes after winning the metric mile, Rodriguez came back and ran a fine anchor leg in the 1600 relay. That's guts for you.

The 6-A meet in Forsan was really heated, despite the downpour of rain.

It was a Cinderella story for the Sands boys team as they nicked and dimed their way to a district championship over favorites Forsan, Highland and Roscoe.

I can't think of a more fitting way for Jim White to leave Sands High School than with a district crown under his belt. His team deserved the win because they came through in the clutch.

The clutch happened to be the last event of the meet, the 1600 relay. Sands needed to finish at least third to overtake front runner Loraine. After coming that far, the Mustangs weren't about to fall short. They did indeed finish third to lay claim to the title.

Then there was the Forsan 400 relay team that had smoked opponents all year long. Being a heavy favorite in the event, most thought the best race would be the one for second.

The Buffaloes did win going away but there was one major problem — they passed the baton out of the exchange zone on the final leg. A possible state-bound relay would never get its chance. One could see the hurt and disbelief on all the relay members faces.

But the disqualification didn't take the wind out of the Buffaloes sails. They battled back and capped off the day by winning the 1600 relay and finishing 11 points from the championship.

Performers like Loraine's Aundra Rose, Roscoe's Nathan Richburg Garden City's Doug Hoelscher, Forsan's Mitch Hays and Sands' David Ybarra, all who will compete in at least two events in regionals, made the boys division enjoyable.

Then there are performers like Sands freshman hurdler Jay Fryar, who finished third in the 300's, fourth in the 110's and third in the high jump, barley missing the trip to region. But without his performance, the Sands boys would have finished in fourth place.

The girls top performer would have been a toss-up.

Highland's Brande Owens scored three wins in the field events. Garden City's Gena Schaefer looked sharp by winning the 800 and running impressive anchor legs on the victorious 800 and 1600 relays. But you can't overlook the dominating performance by Grady's distance runner Shanna Hale. Hale made wins in the 1600 and 3200 races look too easy. She lapped the field in the 3200 and almost lapped the field in the 1600.

All in all it was an enjoyable two days of track coverage for me. I witnessed some fierce track competitors and some heated team races.

I had almost forgot what I had been missing.

Steroids use common in Texas

WACO (AP) — As federal and state authorities probe the illegal distribution of anabolic steroids in Texas, a survey of Southwest Conference schools indicates that use of the powerful hormone derivative drug is far from uncommon.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported that conclusion in copyright stories after surveying of nearly 50 current and former SWC coaches, trainers, doctors, athletes and Olympians.

"I'm sure if I said none of our players used steroids, it would be the most ridiculous statement I could make," Texas Christian football coach Jim Wacker said. "No coach knows who has and who hasn't. Steroids are very prevalent."

The Tribune-Herald also reported Sunday that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the State Board of Pharmacy are conducting separate investigations of possible illegal distribution of anabolic steroids.

The newspaper's investigation follows a flap at Baylor University, where basketball coach Jim Haller resigned Feb. 22 after a tape recording made by a player showed the coach discussed steroid use.

"I feel steroids are everywhere," veteran Baylor track coach Clyde Hart said. "I don't think you can put boundaries on it."

The FDA is trying to do just that, however, in its examination of large distributors of anabolic steroids that may be selling the drugs without prescriptions in Texas and elsewhere, said William Sedgwick of the agency's Dallas office.

"There are some rather large distributors in this area that we are looking at," Sedgwick said, "but looking at them in light of their distribution not only in Texas but throughout other parts of the country, too." Sedgwick would not disclose where the FDA investigation is centered in Texas. But he said the state "is one of those major centers in the country from which the products are being distributed."

The FDA investigation in Texas is part of the agency's nationwide effort to dry up illegal sources of anabolic steroids in the wake of reports of athletes suffering physical damage and possibly even death from the drugs, officials said.

"We're not fooling," said Ed Nida, FDA spokesman in Washington, D.C. "This turns healthy young men into steers."

Anabolic steroids are prescription drugs with limited medical uses, such as helping anemic and cancer patients gain weight and strength.

But over the last three decades, their use among athletes in several sports, particularly the weight events in track and field and in football, has spread greatly, experts say. And because anabolic steroids build bulk, their use among body builders and weightlifters has skyrocketed, experts say.

Fred Brinkley Jr., executive director of the state pharmacy board, said he knew of no anabolic steroid manufacturers in Texas, though he said athletic supply houses distributing the drugs may exist.

He said his agency is examining complaints — at least three are documented — of anabolic steroid sales without prescriptions and the improper prescribing of the drugs for athletic enhancement.

"Our interest is: Are pharmacists selling this drug without a prescription to people in body building or whatever, or are they

Hough finally wins against Baltimore

By The Associated Press
After Opening Day this season, Charlie Hough was wondering if his knuckleball would ever beat the Baltimore Orioles.

"I have had a pretty tough time in the past with this ballclub," Hough said Monday night after twirling a two-hitter to lead the Texas Rangers past the Orioles 6-1.

Hough had lost all five of his prior decisions against the Orioles, although one of his more frustrating outings was a no-decision on Opening Day in Baltimore.

That afternoon he pitched six innings without allowing a hit. But he was taken out of the game trailing 2-1 after walking eight batters.

This time, in Arlington, Texas, Hough retired the final 19 Baltimore batters. Along the way, he walked just two while striking out eight.

In other AL games, Cleveland beat Detroit 6-4, Kansas City trimmed Toronto 2-0, Milwaukee defeated Chicago 4-2, Minnesota pounded Seattle 9-5, and California downed Oakland 6-1.

Hough began the game on an ominous note. Jim Dwyer led off with a double in the first inning and came around to score on a wild pitch.

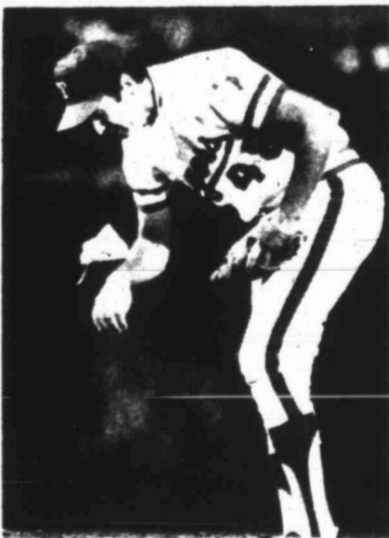

But that was all that Baltimore would get, while the Rangers gave all Hough would need with three runs in the bottom of the first.

Texas batters hit for the cycle in the first inning in roughing up Scott McGregor, 1-1, who lasted just 1 1/3 innings. Toby Harrah, who went 3-for-3 to raise his average to .421, led off with a single and Gary Ward tripled. Buddy Bell delivered a sacrifice fly and Larry Parrish then homered. Cliff Johnson doubled later in the inning.

An RBI double by Harrah and a run-scoring single by Ward chased McGregor in the second. Pete O'Brien homered in the eighth off reliever Sammy Stewart.

Indians 6, Tigers 4

Tony Bernazard continued his strong start with an RBI single during a three-run fourth inning and a double that sparked a three-run seventh. Bernazard, who hit just .221 last season, is 9-for-21 so far in

Tennis star stabs himself

TYLER (AP) — Jorge Jimenez, ranked fourth nationally in college tennis singles, may not be able to recover from self-inflicted stab wounds in time for this year's national tennis tournament, his coach says.

Jimenez, a 21-year-old All-America tennis player for the University of Texas at Tyler, was hospitalized Saturday after stabbing himself repeatedly in the neck, according to a Tyler police report.

He is scheduled to be released today, police said.

Police said the incident occurred after Jimenez began fighting with an acquaintance shortly after 1 a.m. Saturday. The Texas-Tyler Patriot tennis team had just returned from a dual meet in Waco against St. Edward's University.

Texas-Tyler tennis coach Fred Kniffen said he doubts Jimenez can recover in time for this year's national tournament, set to begin May 20 in Kansas City, Mo.

Jimenez is ranked No. 4 in singles in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and was a runner-up in singles at the 1984 national tournament.

Jimenez, of Monterrey, Mexico, has been ranked as high as No. 1 in singles among NAIA players this season. He and partner Ricardo Henning of Brazil are the top-rated NAIA doubles team.

No charges have been filed in the incident.

Padres hang on for 5-3 win over Braves

By The Associated Press
Six months later, Andy Hawkins is still pitching as if the San Diego Padres were in the World Series.

The lanky right-hander from Texas, whose sparkling middle-inning relief work was in sharp contrast to San Diego's general pitching collapse against the Detroit Tigers last October, has picked up where he left off by winning his first three starts. He scattered two hits over seven innings Monday night as the Padres beat the Atlanta Braves 5-3.

Terry Kennedy's fourth homer of the year, a two-run shot in the bottom of the first, brought San Diego within 3-2 and the Padres tied it in the second on Garry Templeton's grounder.

NL Roundup

In the decisive seventh, Carmelo Martinez drew a leadoff walk from reliever Zane Smith, 1-1, and was sacrificed to second. Kurt Bevacqua batted for Hawkins and was given an intentional walk.

Alan Wiggins' fly ball moved Martinez to third, and he scored on Tony Gwynn's third hit of the game, a single to left. Rick Camp replaced Smith, and Steve Garvey, playing in his 2000th major league game, greeted him with a single to score Bevacqua with an insurance run.

Dodgers 3, Giants 2

Dave LaPoint, 0-3, no-hit the Dodgers until Mike Marshall singled leading off the seventh, and took a one-hit shutout into the ninth. But with two outs in the ninth, he walked Marshall and Guerrero tagged the next pitch into the left-field bleachers to tie the game.

Phillies 9, Expos 1

Garry Maddox snapped a 1-1 tie with a two-run, fifth-inning double and Wilson capped a five-run, eighth-inning uprising with a two-run homer as the Phillies won their third straight. Winning pitcher Shane Rawley, 2-0, reached on a fielder's choice and Juan Samuel singled before Maddox connected off Montreal starter Joe Hesketh. Hayes knocked in single runs in the first and seventh and added a two-run single in the eighth.

Andre Dawson's solo homer accounted for the only Montreal run.

Astros 4, Reds 1

Scott, 1-0, allowed only three hits and an unearned run through eight innings, but surrendered singles to Dave Parker and Wayne Krenchick in the ninth to prompt a call for Smith, who earned his second save. Jay Tibbs, 0-3, was the loser for Cincinnati.

Denny Walling snapped a 1-1 tie with a single in the sixth and then scored ahead of Jerry Mumphy's triple. Kevin Bass added insurance with an eighth-inning homer.

Mets 7, Cardinals 6

Strawberry highlighted a three-run Mets first with a two-run homer off Cardinals starter John Tudor, 0-2, and Foster tagged a solo shot in the third to give New York a 6-0 lead.

Calvin Schiraldi, 1-0, earned his first major-league victory despite being touched for five runs in six innings. New York relief ace Jesse Orosco surrendered his first earned run of the season, but pitched out of a ninth-inning jam to earn his second save.

Vince Coleman and Lonnie Smith each drove in two runs for St. Louis.

Pirates 5, Cubs 3

Steve Kemp's two-run, bases-loaded single in the sixth inning snapped a tie and allowed the Pirates to end a five-game losing streak.

McWilliams, 1-1, tired in the eighth when the Cubs reached him for two runs. Don Robinson pitched out of that jam and John Candelaria worked the ninth for his third save.

Kemp, activated Sunday after undergoing off-season shoulder surgery, singled and scored the first Pirate run in the third inning on Johnny Ray's two-out double off Dick Ruthven, 0-1.

The Cubs tied it briefly on Leon Durham's first home run of the year, a solo shot in the fourth.

Gunslingers fall to Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Invaders looked invincible during the first half of their USFL Monday night game against San Antonio.

But in the second half, they left much to be desired. Oakland's 27-20 victory over the Gunslingers proved that the 5-3-1 Invaders are capable of getting on top and staying there, but head coach Charlie Sumner still has his doubts.

The Invaders took advantage of San Antonio quarterback Rick Neuheisel's five turnovers in the first half and jumped out to a 20-0 lead. But they got a scare when Neuheisel threw three touchdown passes in the second half to rally the 3-6 Gunslingers.

Neuheisel was intercepted once and fumbled two times in the first period. The Invaders capitalized on each giveaway, scoring a pair of touchdowns and a field goal.

In the second quarter, Neuheisel fumbled again and was intercepted in the end zone, but the Invaders could not put San Antonio away.

Oakland place kicker Novo Bojovic hit a 52-yard delivered a crushing hit during San Antonio's first offensive series. "That early pop definitely left me foggy," said Neuheisel, who completed 13 of 22 passes for 208 yards. "I was seeing stars every time I'd take a step. I probably shouldn't have been in there, but I wanted to make up for the mistakes."

Neuheisel played flawlessly in the final two periods, hitting wide receiver Jerry Gordon on touchdown passes of 12 and 44 yards and running back Don Roberts with a 7-yard scoring pass.

Steroids

filling these prescriptions using poor professional judgments because these drugs are not indicated for that type of condition or activity?" Brinkley said.

The Tribune-Herald, through nearly 20 interviews with local body builders, weightlifters, athletes, physical fitness center owners, doctors, Baylor athletic officials and law officers, has found that anabolic steroids are frequently sold without prescriptions in the Waco area. In the late 1950s and early 1960s, steroids were confined mostly to athletes in track and field programs, former Olympian and Texas A&M shot-putter Randy Matson said.

Since then, though, they have spread to other athletes and into the SWC's major sport — football, Matson and others said. And the evolution also has extended into other sports such as swimming, baseball and even basketball, officials said. "You'll find that there always are going to be some athletes in any program who are going to find their way to steroids," said Arkansas trainer Dean Weber. "And they're going to use them because they're convinced this enhances their strength and overall athletic performance."

As evidence of the growing use, athletic officials cite former Baylor basketball player John Wheeler's admission earlier this year that he took steroids in hopes of gaining weight and strength.

"All of us at a conference level in sports medicine have been suspicious for years that this was going on and wanted to come to grips with the problem of how to deal with it," said Dr. Ray Covington, Baylor's team doctor.

SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said use of anabolic steroids "probably is" a problem among member schools, but that it's only reflective of the problems of society.

Competition prompts Coca-Cola to market sweeter soda

NEW YORK (AP) — Coca-Cola Co. announced today it has sweetened the 99-year-old secret formula of the world's No. 1 soft drink, and analysts said the move was a response to Coke's loss of ground in the highly competitive cola market.

The change already had archrival PepsiCo Inc. crowing that Coke isn't "the real thing." Executives of the Atlanta-based Coke told reporters at a news conference for what it called "the most significant soft-drink development" in its history that the new formula was discovered by chance during the development of Diet Coke, which was introduced in 1982.

While declining to say what changes had been made in Coke, Coca-Cola Chairman Roberto C. Goizueta described the new formula as "smoother, rounder and bolder." "The best has been made even better," he said.

Earlier, after a meeting of Coke executives and securities analysts, David A. Goldman of the investment firm E.F. Hutton said the company reported it had produced a sweeter Coke in "response to the fact that brand Coke has lost significant market share."

Hugh Zurkuhlen, an analyst at Salomon Brothers, said the new Coke would start appearing on store shelves by May 8 and existing supplies of Coke should be off shelves by Memorial Day.

"If anything, it will stimulate the growth of the soft drink business. I don't think that it will hurt Pepsi," he said.

He said Coke executives said the formula had been sweetened, but that Pepsi would still be sweeter.

"It's smoother, so you'll drink more of it," Zurkuhlen said. Coke's bottles and cans won't change, except for the word "new," he said.

The meeting kicked off a 27-commercial advertising blitz featuring comedian Bill

Cosby touting the changed Coke.

Pepsi, No. 2 in the $28 billion soft drink market, moved quickly to take some of the fizz out of Coke's hoopla.

"After 87 years of going at it eyeball to eyeball, the other guy just blinked," PepsiCo said in a full-page advertisement addressed to Pepsi bottlers and company personnel. In a press release the company said, "The announcement by Coke is clearly an admission that it's not the real thing."

The ad also announced that employees of the soft-drink division would be given the day off Friday to celebrate. In addition, Pepsi planned to distribute free samples of its product in New York City today.

Coke turns 100 in May 1986. It still is the most popular soft drink in the world but has lost ground to Pepsi since 1980, when Coke held 24.3 percent of the domestic soft-drink market.

DeWee's Fashion for Mother's Day

What could be lovelier for Mother on Mother's Day than a coordinate group by Tan Jay in peach, taupe, and aqua. For your Mother on Mother's Day hit DeWees Fashions, 4200 West Highway 80.

Billy DeWees has a stunning selection of fashion attire for your vacation plans. For the fuller figure, Billie presents Alfred Dunner in colors of fuschia and lavender. Blouse sizes range from 38-44, pants and skirts sizes 30-38.

Fashion coordinate groups by Dana Point and Joyce are arriving soon. Coming in are a selection of dresses for the mother of the bride.

The well-dressed woman will travel well in white, peach and lemon in separates from Haberdashery, sizes from 8-18.

Customers can select from active sportswear, blouses, sweaters, rompers, shorts, skirts, split skirts and pants, are now 25% off. Personal, a group featured in Billie's new catalogue, are now 1/3 off and in sizes 10-16.

Other vacation attire, such as cool cotton dresses come in fresh colors and easy care fabrics, in sizes 4 petite thru 20 1/2.

Billie says that good taste knows no size, and she stocks a selection of fashions from junior size 4 to half-size 20 1/2.

DeWee's Fashions is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday thru Saturday.

Protect Your Vehicles Now With All Weld Carports

Independent Welding Services has been building carports and patio covers in Big Spring for three years and plans to stay in this community indefinitely. Gary Faulkner, owner, stands behind his work. A satisfied customer list is available for the customer. Independent Welding strives for reliability and sincerity in all business matters.

All materials are of fine quality. The building of a carport or patio cover meets all professional standards. The steel structure of your carport or patio cover can be painted to match your home's color scheme.

West Texas elements are hard on cars. Wind, hail, dust, and sun can ruin your car's finish and lessen its value and attractiveness. For many West Texans, carports are the answer.

Independent Welding Service provides free estimates and can suggest size and design for every situation. To get your carport or patio cover underway before summer weather begins to take its toll, call Gary at 263-6346 or 267-5378.
