Q. How much trash did city crews collect last weekend in the Kentwood and Worth-Peeler Additions in the first Saturday of the city's annual CLEAN program?

A. The city collected 70 cubic yards of large items of trash in six hours, which translates into three dumptruck loads and two or three dumpster loads, according to City Manager Don Davis. This Saturday, crews will work on the Northside, including every street north of the railroad and south of Interstate 20. Large items should be placed on the curbs before 8 a.m. Saturday, he said.

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN - Final state consideration of an operating permit for the embattled Stacy Dam reservoir project in West Texas stalled temporarily Tuesday, but it won't be sputtering long. The Texas Water Commission, after fielding three hours of testimony on the project, postponed a final decision because of last-minute concerns from the city of Austin and downstream irrigators on the Colorado River.

But the commission, which frequently recesses hearings for weeks to negotiate agreements on such concerns, said it will reconvene Thursday to continue the Stacy hearing.

"I think we're all aware that we need to get this moved out," said Commissioner Lee Biggart. State lawmakers, he explained later, are waiting for a decision on the Stacy project before acting on a proposed statewide water plan that is mired in a House-Senate conference committee.

The commission's decision to recess the hearing temporarily followed a claim that a complicated agreement worked out between two river authorities, once bitter enemies, may not guarantee the flow of enough water downstream from the project to protect existing water rights.

Roger Nevola, an attorney for Austin and the irrigators, told the commission he does not oppose the Stacy project but wants to ensure the proposed permit for the reservoir adequately protects his clients.

Nevola said he only obtained a draft copy of the proposed permit hours before the commission hearing.

The Big Spring-based Colorado River Municipal Water District has been seeking approval of the reservoir since 1978. The district, which plans to build a 554,000-acrefoot reservoir near Ballinger, plans to sell the water to a wide area of West Texas, including San Angelo, Big Spring, and possibly Abilene.

Owen Ivie, general manager of the district, expressed only minor frustration at the delay. "I don't consider it a setback," he said. "I just consider it time and suspense."

Final Texas Water Commission action on the proposed reservoir will end one of the state's longest and most bitter water rights fights.

The Austin-based Lower Colorado River Authority, which operates the Highland Lakes chain downstream of the Stacy project, originally opposed the project on the grounds that water needed for the project already was obligated to downstream users. A Texas Water Commission permit originally issued for the project was canceled by the Texas Supreme Court and ordered back to the commission for further study.

Pressured by state lawmakers, the competing river authorities hammered out an agreement now under commission review that could authorize the construction of the Stacy project.

The agreement calls for the Lower Colorado River Authority to transfer 113,000 acre-feet of its water rights at Lake Buchanan to the upstream district for the Stacy project.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District would have to release water from the Stacy reservoir downstream when Lakes Buchanan and Travis drop below 65 percent of capacity.

Those releases, however, would not be required if the Colorado River Municipal Water District needs the water to meet municipal demands.

The increase in employment for March shows more people employed in part-time jobs and in seasonal, agriculture-related fields, Wallis said.

"There is more farm work" this season, Wallis said. Increased rainfall has eased a economic crunch which hit West Texas last year in the face of a drought.

Although the number of people working is up from February, figures show that more people were unemployed in March than February. Wallis said that could be attributed in part to an increased labor force.

Figures show the March labor force to be 16,727, up from February figures of 16,314.

The total number of people working in the county during March was 15,704, compared to February figures of 15,382.

Wallis said unemployment for March was listed at 6.1, compared to a figure of 5.7 percent in February.

"Even though that figure is up, everything else is up, too," Wallis Jobless page 2-A Contractors also will bid on placing a water-repellant sealer on the brick masonry walls and caulking the ledges and windows.

Clayton said the sealing was needed on the walls because there was water damage on the interior plaster walls on the side aisle flashing was not in a leakable situation," Clayton said.

The walls behind the downspouts, however, have signs of apparent mold and stains, Clayton said. The caulking and the joints were gone around the windows as well, he said.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford also complained about the leakiness of the building. "When it rains, you can't throw the lights because there's a puddle under the switches," he said. "We've had people stand on crates to turn the lights on." That puddle probably was caused by a hole in the proscenium arch, which was about in that area, Clayton said. He also said mortar joints in the brick were in "amazingly good condition" but that they wanted to put a 20-year sealant on the bricks to protect them.

Rutherford and Councilman Gary Don Carey also expressed concern about ensuring that contractors did place the right amount of sealant on the walls, saying that was an area where the contractor could easily cut costs

In response to their concerns, City Manager Don Davis said city building and construction inspectors would watch the contractors "damn closely."

Much of the bid cost will depend on the number of tiles that need to be replaced, Clayton said. Contractors would have to "physically count the number of broken and missing tiles" and add a percentage for breakage because of the brittleness of the tiles

Gray, whose wild flower photographs hang in the park's mountaintop museum, said he believes visitors want to know what's on sprawling Scenic Mountain, which lures about 130,000 visitors a year.

When he finishes directing a $50,000 water system project this year, Gray plans a directory for the park's legendary limstone carvings.

And maybe in time for the park's 50th anniversary next March, he will have assembled a museum exhibit on the Civilian Conservation Corps, which built the park during the Depression.

In addition to looking after Scenic Mountain's animal inhabitants and human visitors, Gray has become a curator of cactus, a promoter of prickly ash, a leg man for the shin oak.

He's the proud godfather of flora adorning the mountain's rolling bluffs and ragged crevices.

Gray, superintendent on the summit for four years, put the finishing touches this week to the park's nature trail, a two-year-proect that turned an old Civilian Conservation Corps rock walkway into living museum of native West Texas plants and trees.

With the help of a biologist from the state's Parks and Wildlife Department, Gray catalogued the greenery that decorates Big Sprng's historic hill.

Interpretive signs, describing the botany of the butte, now guide park visitors along the one-third mile nature trail ascending from the prairie dog town through the

Loyalty to the land

Oilman refuses millions of dollars for old family 'plot'

OLD OCEAN (AP) - John Holland Bannister turned down an offer for an old slave cemetery, plantation house Texas and some woods Topic and ranch land that others would have found hard to refuse.

But to the man who spent 30 years in the oil business and gave up a big house in Houston to move to the country, choosing land over money came easily.

"Now what would I do with all that money? I don't want a big house. I had all that, and I gave it up. I want the land. You're never poor if you have land," said Bannister.

Bannister, 62, had another good reason to look past the seven-figure offer from Phillips Petroleum - a reason deeply rooted in history.

He is the great-great grandson of one of the first Anglo settlers in Texas, John Sweeny, who was given the land in 1833 by Stephen F. Austin.

Austin gave Sweeny 50,000 acres which Sweeny split among his nine sons. John Sweeny Jr. received the bulk of the land, 15,000 acres, which he turned into a plantation.

Sweeny's descendants over the years have sold all but the acreage now owned by Bannister, his brother and a cousin. Bannister moved back to the old homestead in 1981, and this is where he says he's doing to die - just like John Sweeny Jr.

Part of the once-fertile land that for so many years produced cotton and sugar cane now accommodates a Phillips petrochemical complex.

In the mid-1970s Phillips approached Bannister about selling the remaining 1,000 acres for future plant expansion.

"The idea of selling the land just turns me off," says Bannister. "My ancestors settled here when all this was forest. They had to clear the trees out before they could farm the land. They didn't come to speculate but to start a new life."

Another man shares Bannister's attachment to this land. This is where the parents of Thomas Jefferson Ellis Jr. were laid to rest, and this is where Ellis, better known to friends as T.J., says he says Ellis, 78, who has been caretaker here for seven years. "I'm going to keep it going as long as I can.

Ellis is a retired farmer and Phillips employee. He grew up on a nearby farm and recalls playing ball as a child on the plantation.

He remembers the row of long, narrow slave houses that once stood where cattle now roam, the schoolhouse and the church, the pecan trees that once lined the dirt road to the plantation house.

Ellis, who has spent most of his life and reared five children here, says the physical reminders of an era when people were bought and sold do not bother him.

"That's history, and this is the present. We're all friends now," he

About 50 descendants of the plantation slaves still live in the area. The only requirement for burial in the cemetery, Ellis says, is to be one of those descendants.

No one knows exactly where the slave graves are located because none are marked, says Ellis. They wre either never marked or the markers have been lost or deteriorated over the years.

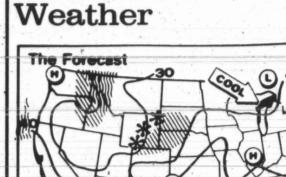

The plantation that surrounds the cemetery was converted to a ranch in the 1940s, and most of it is now leased as pasture. Bannister reserves a small section for his own 30 head of cattle. This way, he reasons, "I can have a piece of steak anytime I want without going to the supermarket."

The original plantation house remains in good shape. Bannister leases the building to a family who maintains and repairs it in lieu of rent. The house has been expanded over the years, but has retained its original grandeur and most of the nails, wood and bricks slaves used to build it in 1837.

The two-story house is far too big for Bannister and his wife, Nancy. The couple live in a smaller house on Texas 35.

Right behind their home towers the refinery. Adjacent to it is an antique shop the couple operates.

The shop is only former slave house still in existence. Bannister's mother had it moved from the plantation in 1948 to serve as the town's first post office.

street repair bids

Councilmen award

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

"There is lot of history here,"

City councilmen Tuesday night awarded the contract for street construction under two state grant programs to the apparent low bidder, despite a request to award the work to a Big Spring company.

South Texas Construction of Midland, the apparent low bidder, received the $752,773.75 contract. South Texas Construction had paved streets under an earlier state grant program in the "bird streets" area, according to city staff.

Price Construction Co. of Big Spring, which estimated the work at $781,406.75, was the only other bidder on the project.

Before the council awarded the bid, Bobby Price of Price Construction asked the council to consider his company's bid, saying there was less than 5 percent difference in the two bids.

We're a local firm and they're outside the community. Their home office and owners are in England," Price told councilmen. Because Price banks in Big Spring and pays local sales taxes, the company brings more money into the community, he said.

City attorney Doyle Curtis, however, told councilmen that state law requires the council to award the bid to the lowest responsible bidder, and that proof must be resented that the apparent low bidder was not responsible.

"There's not any position in the law for allowing favoritism to local companies," Curtis said.

Councilman Harold Hall, who made the motion to award the bid to South Texas, told Price, "Sonny (Price, president of the company) and I are near and dear friends.

But under the circumstances, we must go with the low bid."

Price Construction did receive the contract for the city's assessment paving program, for which it was the only bidder. Price bid the work at $50, which homeowners on opposite sides of the street would split for a cost of $25 per linear square foot if there is 70 percent voluntary participation.

At 100 percent voluntary participation, the cost would be $17.50 for property owners, because the city would pay a larger share of the cost. Property owners on the three streets already approved for the program who have signed the petition for paving may still sign up to avoid the city placing a lien against their property for the paving costs. Councilmen also awarded the work on the city's water and sewer lines under phase III of both the Texas Community Development Project and the Capital Im-

QUINCY, Ill. - A doctor who compiled a scrapbook of newspaper accounts of the 1982 Tylenol killings and other crimes didn't necessarily intend to take similar actions. a judge ruled in the doctor's trial on charges he poisoned co-workers.

"Someone, anyone certainly, could contend that that (compiling the scrapbook) was a bit unusual," Judge Dennis Chashman said Tuesday in denying a prosecutor's effort to introduce evidence of the scrapbook's existence into Dr. Michael Swango's aggravatedbattery trial.

WASHINGTON - Senate Republican leader Robert Dole called on President Reagan today to cancel the planned visit to a German military cemetery.

Interviewed on the NBC-TV 'Today' show, Dole said he had "made it clear that I think it's a mistake. I think they should find another place or not make the Bitburg visit.'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - The death of former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the "country lawyer" who presided over the Watergate hearings that led to the resignation of a president, has cost the nation a "towering historical figure" who championed the Constitution.

Ervin, 88, died of respiratory failure Tuesday at North Carolina Baptist Hospital's Bowman Gray Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Roger Rollman. Kidney failure contributed to his death, Rollman said.

A critic of the civil rights movement and a supporter of individual civil liberties during his 20 years in the Senate, Ervin was hailed by former Gov. Jim Hunt as a man who "loved the Constitution more than any man alive today."

"He protected it during its time of greatest crisis and helped write history for our state and nation," Hunt said. "He will truly be recorded as a towering historical figure and all North Carolina will forever be proud of him.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who called Ervin his mentor, adviser on constitutional matters and friend, said, "A giant has fallen ... dedication. I've never known a more remarkable American than Sam Ervin."

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over trials involving the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in 1972 and the subsequent White House coverup, said: "I was very fond of him and admired his patriotism, his dedication to his work and above all, his courage.

Ervin's strict interpretation of the Constitution defied easy political classification. He sided with liberals and conservatives in becoming one of the chamber's most respected authorities on Constitutional law.

Ervin battled affirmative action proposals, the Equal Rights Amendment, surveillance of dissenters during the Vietnam War and efforts to return prayer to public schools

For him, it was all the same battle - preserving the Constitution.

Ervin's independence made him a natural choice when Senate leaders sought a chairman for the sensitive and potentially explosive hearings on Watergate in the summer of 1973. To Ervin, the scandal that led to the resignation of President Richard Nixon was the nation's biggest tragedy since the Civil War.

"In the Civil War, there were many redeeming features of sacrifice and valor displayed on both sides," he said. "But there was no sacrifice or spirit of sacrifice, or no valor, really, displayed on the part of those responsible for the Watergate hearings, except to sacrifice their character." However, he added, "We do have this encouragement. We were able to weather the Watergate affair with all our essential institutions of government intact."

Former Sen. Sam J. Ervin, the self-styled "country lawyer" whose homespun humor make him a folk hero, died Tuesday at the age of 88.

During the Watergate hearings, "Senator Sam" Tshirts and buttons sprouted across the nation. But Ervin, his bushy eyebrows telegraphing moral indignation and blue-gray eyes twinkling at the onset of a joke, insisted he was "just an old country lawyer.

Ervin was born Sept. 27, 1896, in the foothills town of Morganton, one of 10 children.

His father, Samuel J. Ervin Sr., was a self-taught lawyer who "hated the oppression of government, and I guess instilled in me the idea that, after all, the greatest threat to our liberties comes from government, not from others.

After fighting in World War I and armed with a law degree from Harvard in 1922, he returned to Morganton and married Margaret Bell.

Burke County elected him to the state Legislature, where he helped defeat a bill that would prohibit the teaching of evolution in public schools, saying "Such a resolution serves no good purpose except to absolve monkeys of their responsibility for the human race.

5 die in raving crowd

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil - Five people were trampled to death by a delirious crowd fighting for a last glimpse of the body of President-elect Tancredo Neves.

Hundreds more were injured when the wildly chanting multitude Tuesday toppled an iron security fence in front of the governor's palace in Minas Gerais state where the body of the 75-year-old leader lay in state, authorities said.

Neves, whose political career spanned 50 years, died Sunday of an uncontrolled bacterial infection and complications from seven operations. He was first hospitalized March 14, hours before his scheduled inauguration as Brazil's first civilian leader in 21 years.

Neves' body was to be flown on an airforce plane today for burial in his hometown of Sao Joao Del Rei, a city of 53,000 located 115 miles south of here. President Jose Sarney, Neves' family and government ministers were to fly by helicopter to the town, where Neves' body was to lie in state until his funeral late this afternoon

Soviets wanted secrets

LONDON - Five Soviet officials expelled by Britain for alleged spying are believed to have been trying to obtain advanced laser technology secrets on submarine navigation, the Daily Telegraph reported today.

British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told the House of Commons Tuesday that the government had irrefutable evidence against the five but refused to disclose what they had allegedly been discovered doing.

The Daily Telegraph, which is known to have good contacts in defense circles, said the five "are believed to have been trying to obtain top secret information about the advanced technology involved in underwater navigation of nuclear submarines."

Albania rejects the larger world

The communist world has produced some grotesque societies but none more bizarre than Albania, whose leader Enver Hoxha died recently, having ruled the Balkan country for 42 years.

The Stalinist state, strategically situated between Greece and Yugoslavia on the Adriatic Sea, is one of the world's most closed and impoverished societies.

Paranoia pervades this garrison state - one that is constantly poised to repel potential invaders. Bomb shelters dot the countryside and pillboxes peek from distant hillsides. Secret police prowl the city streets, making sure that no one talks to foreigners, prays, or sings in public. Most Albanians are forbidden to own cars, homes, or land. Individual gardens are permitted, but the state punishes anyone caught selling produce.

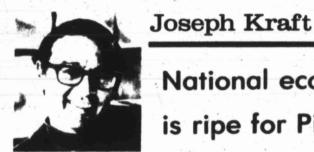

In fact, Albania takes its Marxist-Leninism so seriously that the government regularly assails the "revisionist" regimes in Moscow and Peking. Early on, Comrade Hoxha promised his people that they would go without bread before they violated their communist principles.

And he kept his word,

Consumer goods are in short supply because the government refuses trade with "decadent" nations. The average monthly salary is $80, and the monthly wage cannot, by law, exceed $157.

The Soviet Union is eager to re-establish diplomatic relations with Albania in order to gain access to an Adriatric port. The chances of such a reconciliation seem remote, inasmuch as the Albanian government abruptly rejected Moscow's message of condolences. Nor is the Stalinist state apt to turn toward the West anytime soon.

Nevertheless, the Soviet Union changed somewhat after Stalin died, and China was not the same after Mao's death. In time, Albania may become less rigid with the passing of Enver Hoxha's brutal regime.

WASHINGTON - In his latest venture, the incandescent star of the oil patch, T. Boone Pickens, lights up the vast $3 trillion stage that is the whole national economy. His latest move to take over another oil company shows the extent to which major corporations investors pass the bonds on to financial institutions - mainly pension funds and savings and loan banks — with which they are associated.

National economy is ripe for Pickens

If the tender is successful and Pickens acquires just over 50 percent of the stock, he next has to deal with the owners of the 49 plus percent of the Unocal stock. They will probably be paid off in bonds of even higher risk issued by Newco and marketed by Drexel Burnham. If all goes well, Pickens acquires Unocal. He then reduces costs or sells off assets. The majority of the stockholders enjoy a substantial appreciation - from below $40 to $54 per share. Drexel Burnham and those who loaned to Newco make a killing. The social value of such transactions, while not immediately apparent, is strongly argued by Pickens. He asserts that oil companies only know how to do one thing - dig for oil. But digging for oil, at a time of glut and falling prices, has been a bust. The diggers either hit dry holes or find oil at uncompetitive prices. So Pickens claims that they are wasting stockholders' money, that there has to be a change of ownership and a consolidation of the industry. He represents himself as the friend of the stockholders and the agent of consolidation.

Nicaragua's drug scheme

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR WASHINGTON - Federal investigators have urned up a new witness who claims fugitive financier Robert Vesco and high Nicaraguan officials operated a mammoth drug-smuggling scheme.

Last fall we reported the secret testimony of Jitze Kooistra, an international fugitive who was arrested in this country and agreed to give authorities information on the Vesco drug setup as part of a plea bargain.

Now our associates Donald Goldberg and Corky Johnson have learned details of the Vesco operation provided by Jim Herring, who worked with Kooistra. Herring was a Customs Service informant who was instrumental in the destruction of a Texas operation that smuggled high technology to Cuba Herring and Kooistra are both scheduled to testify this week - under heavy security precautions before a Senate Labor subcommittee chaired by Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla.

Herring says he was contacted by a Vesco associate and asked to help Sandinista officials establish a cocaine network. He claims to have made several trips to Managua, carrying benzine and other chemicals used to cut pure cocaine and increase the profits.

According to Herring, he would be met at the Managua airport by a Nicaraguan who served as Vesco's contact with the Sandinista regime. This nan would lead Herring unchallenge transport plane, which would fly him to an old rice plantation on the opposite shore of Lake Managua. The plantation had been owned by the late Anastasio Somoza, the dictator overthrown by the Sandinistas in 1979

At the plantation, Herring says, he would instruct the Nicaraguans how to cut coke to stretch, say, 25 kilograms of the stuff into 30, 35 or 40 kilos. On.at least one occasion, Herring says, Vesco himself was there supervising the operation.

On another occasion, Herring says, he was introduced to Interior Minister Tomas Borge in Managua. Borge was told that Herring was working on "the special project," Herring says.

Borge has repeatedly denied that either he or the Sandinista government has been involved in drug trafficking. Six years ago, I confronted Vesco, who then lived in Costa Rica, about his alleged involvement with drugs. He agreed to take a lie detector test, which he passed at that time.

Herring claims he always stayed at the Intercontinental Hotel in Managua, the fanciest and most expensive in the capital. He says the bills were paid by the Nicaraguan government.

Herring later was involved in an operation along with Vesco - that shipped 29 kilos of cocaine to Europe in a crate containing a marine winch. The profits from that deal that were owed to Nicaraguan fficials were sent back in cash by a Nicaraguan ambassador using the diplomatic pouch.

By KEELY COGHLAN The folk-hero of a generation is dead.

The sight of former Sen. Sam Ervin presiding over the Senate Watergate hearings at the height of the scandal is forever etched in my mind. How could he not be? I think the Watergate hearings were the only continuing real-life drama that was able to pre-empt the afternoon soaps

Day after day, I saw Sam raising his bushy eyebrows in disbelief over the outrageous statements of the Watergate defendants.

Each time Gordon Liddy, Bob Haldeman. John Ehrlichman and John Dean would claim they had no knowledge of the Watergate breakin and cover-up, Sam's eyebrows would get a little bit higher, and a little bit higher, and a little bit higher until you wondered if he had any forehead left to raise them.

I came of age politically watching the Watergate hearings on the television set. In the afternoons my mother would tune in to Sam and the Watergate menagerie, while she muttered that it was all partisan politics and a plot to get Nixon

My belief that presidents were good and capable men eroded during that era of disbelief. How can you respect a man who stalled and lied to Congress and the Supreme Court?

How can you trust a man who says, "I am not a crook," and then makes a 50-vard dash to a waiting helicopter and California? The answer is you don't.

About the only man who seemed above reproach in the political chaos was Ervin. In a strange way he came to symbolize the durabiliare being increasingly burdened by debt. This leveraging of America goes on apace, and, to flagging prosperity and reviving problems with Latin American debtors, it adds new worry about the health of the American financial structure.

Pickens, having made highly profitable passes at several larger oil companies, is now using his Mesa Petroleum as the base for a takeover of Unocal, a $13 billion company headed by a tough, maverick oil man, Fred Hartley. Hartley is resisting with lawsuits and various other devices, and the fight is due to go all the way.

The opening gambit was purchase by Pickens of 13 percent of Unocal's stock, which has moved up from under $40 per share to over $50. The cost was $1.2 billion, borrowed from a consortium of banks. The collateral is the oil and gas owned by Pickens' own company, Mesa Petroleum.

The next move, now underway, is a tender offer by Pickens to buy from present holders of Unocal shares just over 50 precent of the stock, at a price of $54 per share. That will cost another $3.5 billion.

The tender offer is financed by a new company to be called Newco, which holds the $1.2 billion of Unocal purchased so far. Newco borrows another $1 billion from the banks on margin. Newco also issues $2.5 billion of high-yield, high-risk bonds secured mainly by the hope that Pickens will grab off Unocal so its assets can pay off the bonds.

Drexel Burnham Lambert, the hottest of the investment banks, markets these so called "junk bonds" among a group of wellknown clients. The group includes bold investors sometimes called "raiders," such as the Bass family from Texas, the Belzberg family from Canada, Carl Icahn from New York and Pickens himself. These

But it is far from clear that Pickens will acquire over 50 percent of Unocal stock, or - even if he does go over the mark - that he will gain control of Unocal management.

Suppose the Unocal deal doesn't go through. Suppose it is queered by a recession, or falling oil prices. Imagine it runs afoul of resistance by Hartley's board, or some of the litigation brought by Hartley against Pickens. If that happens, then what?

Well, there will be anywhere from $5 to $10 billion of high-risk debt owed by Newco. But Newco won't have any disposable assets. On the contrary, the Unocal stock it owns wouldn't even yield enough to pay the interest on the Newco debt. Art club gets shabby treatment

To the editor:

I don't know who wrote the Friday editorial but I'm glad to find out someone on that paper is alive and well! We can't lose PBS. It is our last hope for sanity. China honors their national treasures. their old potters, writers, artists, etc..

While I'm at it, where is the paper of yesteryear? Why can we not get anything in the paper unless it is condensed, if at all. I'm a member of the art club here and .. the last coverage we had the photographer was as enthusiastic as a wet noodle, yet the town doesn't hesitate to ask us to help out when they need a crowd or such. We don't draw a crowd, but we help! We might if we got some publicity.

We do have some good artists in town. I admit some are better than others, but they deserve a chance. From the cooperation we get in this town, it makes me ashamed of our town, when compared with others.

We finally got to show in Furr's window and I have a feeling it is because of our president and our college art teacher. Cheesecake is gaining in popularity

By TINA STEFFEN Lifestyle Editor

Cheesecake is vying for top honors in the race for America's favorite dessert. In fact, it tied for first place with apple pie in the most recent Gallup Eating-Out Poll.

Most people speak in superlatives when they describe cheesecakes. They are considered by many Americans to be the most sensational desserts ever created.

Cheesecakes have a long history, dating back to ancient Greece. According to legend, small cheesecakes were given to the athletes of the first Olympic Games in 776 B.C. to give them energy. The earliest written cheesecake recipe may be found in the world's oldest cookbook, which was written by a Greek and published in 228 A.D.

Ancient recipes for cheesecakes usually called for cheese, eggs, cream, honey and spices. Countries around the world have adopted this recipe, coming up with their own versions. The French call them "Coeur a la Creme," and the English call them "cheesecake tarts."

Cream cheese, the traditional cheesecake base in America, was invented in 1872 in upstate New York. Cheesecakes took a giant step toward stardom with the development of cream cheese in America.

But you don't have to save your cheesecake craving for dining out. They can be made at home, too. Here are some cheesecake preparations tips:

• Cream cheese blends best when it has had a chance to soften. To soften cream cheese, allow it to stand at room temperature thirty minutes. To soften in a microwave oven, remove foil wrapper. Microwave on medium (50 percent) 30 seconds for each 8-ounce package.

 Crumbs for cheesecake crust can be made quickly with the use of a blender or food processor. When using a food processor, best results are achieved by using the shredding disc. When using a blender for crumb making, be sure to break the crackers before placing them in the blender, and process by turning the blender off and on.

• It is best not to open the oven door during baking, unless the recipe calls for it. Sudden changes mperature may affect the bak-

Military retirement putting U.S. on red alert

By TIM AHERN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - At age 41, when most men are in the prime of their careers, a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force or Army can retire on an annual pension of more than $20,000 and go to work for a defense contractor.

That's what more than 2,000 people have done in the first four years of the Reagan administration's defense build-up, a situation that has led to renewed calls for changes in the military retirement system.

Next year, the government will pend $18 billion to pay the pensions of 1.4 million retirees. By the end of the century, that figure is projected to increase 21/2 times to $45 billion a year.

But even the most severe critics admit that a Congress seeking to reduce the federal deficit is reluctant to change the military retirement system.

"Congress hasn't been able to deal with it before because of the political sensitivity. Perhaps this time we can do something, but I don't know how good our chances are," said Rep. Les Aspin, in outlining a proposed change.

Aspin, a Wisconsin Democrat who is chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has long supported changes that would reduce the ever-growing cost of military retirees.

But at a recent hearing by Aspin's committee, the four uniformed chiefs of service, who often disagree on major issues, all firmly opposed any moves to trim pensions.

Military pensions began after the Civil War as a method of encouraging troops to leave the Union army. Over the years, the number of retirees drawing pensions remained relatively low. In 1950, for example, there were only 58,000.

Then, the government changed its policy, deciding for the first time to maintain a large peacetime military force and to seek younger personnel. Military people, instead of remaining in the service for 35 to 40 years, were encouraged to begin leaving after 20 years.

As a result, the number of retirees and their pension costs began rising - from 58,000 in 1950 to 300,000 in 1960, to the current total, approaching 1.5 million.

A person can retire after 20 years at half of base pay. If he or she stays for another 10 years, the pension rises to a maximum of 75 percent of base pay: Leaving before the 20-year mark results in no pension.

Since military personnel can retire in their early 40s, that leaves them time to begin a second career in private industry.

Military pensions are taxable. The amount of a pension varies greatly. According to the Pentagon, a sergeant first class receives $702 monthly if he retires now after 20 years while a lieutenant colonel gets $1,706.20 a month.

But the system has another feature: Increases are tied to the Consumer Price Index, rising with the inflation rate in a manner similar to increases in Social Security payments.

Force colonel who retired in 1974 after 32 years in the service, now gets $3,639.04 a month. Hennrikus, egislative director of the Retired Officers Association, says that's about double what he got 11 years

The spotlight was recently turn-ed again on pensions by Budget Director David Stockman, who told Congress in February that the system was "a scandal ... an outrage.'

Stockman complained that "institutional forces in the military are more concerned about protecting their retirement benefits than they are about protecting the security of the American people."

Veterans' groups and congres-sional defenders of the system were quick to attack Stockman, but even some of his critics conceded that reform might be in order.

"I do think we need to take a look at the pension system," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., one of the Senate's most widely respected defense experts.

According to Aspin, one reason Congress has done relatively little on retirement reform is because "the services and the lobbying groups were united and strong in their opposition to any change."

Reform is not a new concept. Since 1970, there have been nine studies, including five sponsored by the Pentagon, and all recommended changes. The latest Defense Department review proposed limiting 20-year veterans to 35 percent of base pay, rather than 50 percent.

Aspin's approach to trimming the pension is simple: Cut the amount of money appropriated by Congress to the Defense Department for pensions and thus force the Pentagon to come up with details of how to reform the system.

Two years ago, Congress chang-

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: 1 think you should set us straight on the measles situation. My daughter was in college last year when there was a rare case of measles. It happened to be a roommate of hers.

The health clinic had my daughter vaccinated against measles, even though she had already been vaccinated when she was a baby. That was in the early '60s. Wasn't she protected then for life? Could the second vaccination have harmed her? - Mrs. P.P.L.

I'll allay your fears first by telling you that the revaccination will not affect your daughter's health, even were she protected by prior vaccination or prior exposure to the virus.

Now, as to the measles vaccination history. It is a success story marred somewhat by confusion in the early years of the program. In the very early period one of the vaccines used was the less effective "killed virus" kind. In addition there was some variance in the timing of the vaccination. As a result, there now exists a small group of Americans who, even though they were vaccinated as babies, may still be unprotected. All of this means that the effort to totally eradicate measles as a health threat will be delayed until these few have been identified and protected. Most of that group happens to be of about college age, and that is why you now may hear of occasional outbreaks on campuses. The victims received a less effective vaccine or were vaccinated without regard for the presently recommended timing (first birthday or after).

No more N-power plants, predicts expert

NEW YORK (AP) - No new nuclear power plants are likely to be started in the United States this century because of high expense, unpopular image and uncertain regulatory climate, the head of one of the nation's largest electric utilities said Tuesday.

12-A

"In time you'll see nuclear plants (being built), but not for a long time," said W.S. White Jr., chairman of American Electric Power Co. Inc. "Personally, I do not think we'll see any new plants started before the year 2000."

Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co., a subsidiary of American Electric Power, is a partner in the troubled Zimmer power plant in Cincinnati. That project, started in 1972, was 97 percent completed when the owners decided last year to convert it to a coal-fired generator at an additional cost estimated at $1.7 billion, doubling the original outlay.

"All the chief executive officers I've talked to wouldn't give a minute's thought to starting a new (nuclear) plant at this time," White told reporters at a luncheon. If a chief executive proposed such a project to his board, the directors "would try to get him committed," he said.

Of the 22 large power plants in the American-Electric Power system in the Midwest, only the Donald C. Cook project in Michigan is nuclear. and its units became operable in 1975 and 1978.

The Department of Energy said that in 1984 nuclear energy replaced hydroelectric power as the second-largest source of energy for generating electricity. Almost 14 percent of the electricity generated in the United States last year came from nuclear reactors, compared with 56 percent from coal-fired generators, still the largest power source.

But with problems of cost overruns, plant cancellations, environmental challengesand lengthy licensing battles, no new reactors have been ordered in the United States in five years. according to Petroleum Intelligence Weekly, an energy industry newsletter.

White predicted coal mining will become more expensive as thicker coal seams are depleted. something that may drive up electric costs high enough to make economic considerations a major argument for expanding nuclear power.

Tuesday night, the Nuggets bested the Spurs 115-112 in San Antonio, ending a 15-game losing streak in the Spurs arena. Last Saturday, San Antonio won 113-111 in Denver, breaking an 8-game losng stretch there

Tuesday's victory gave the Nuggets a 2-1 advantage in the best-offive series. The next game in the Western Conference playoff is Friday

"I hope this takes care of that home court thinking," Fitzsimmons said after Tuesday's game. "I always said there was never a home court advantage in this series.'

Denver Coach Doug Moe admitted he was concerned about his team's losing streak in San Antonio

"But now it's over. I knew it would take a great effort to end it," he said.

The Nuggets were paced on the scoreboard by Alex English who finished with 27 points. Calvin Natt added 21.

"The Spurs played brutal, but we are used to that," English said in the locker room. "This team has a lot of heart and we are scrappy. I think we can win again Friday. George Gervin led the Spurs with 30 points. Mike Mitchell and Artis Gilmore had 23 apiece.

Big Spring High School shot putter PAULA JOLLEY practices her technique during a workout for the 5A regional meet being held in Lubbock May 4 and 5 in Lubbock. Jolley was the loneLady Steer qualifier to the meet.

Jolley set for regionals

By STEVE BELVIN Staff Writer

Last year at the District 4-5A track meet, Paula Jolley made a vow to herself - never let the district meet be her last meet of the season.

"I made a promise to myself that I would make it to regionals from now on," said the Big Spring sophomore shot putter. Last week Jolley backed up her words by finishing second in the district 4-5A meet in Abilene. This qualified her for the regional meet in Lubbock May 3-4.

Jolley's throw of 38-7 put her on the heels of rival Debora Washburn of Odessa Permian. Jolley has split with the senior in six meets. "I like throwing aginst her," said Jolley of her confrontations with Washburn. "She pushes me and makes me throw farther.'

Jolley's rise to success in the shot put ring has come at a whirlwind pace. Last season she placed in only one meet - the district meet. She surprised the field with a throw of 35-7; good for third place. "The third place at district gave me confidence, I knew that I could throw over 35-feet and place. That's when I told myself that I would never come in third place again."

This season Jolley took up where she left off. She has constantly improved from 37-8 to 39-3. She's scratched on a couple of throws over 40-feet. "My goal is to throw at least 42-feet and place in the top two," she said of her upcoming encounter in Lubbock.

She credits much of her success to shot put coach Terry Benner. "Coach Benner has made me concentrate on getting across the ring. My speed in the ring is much better."

Big Spring coach Randy Britton says Jolley stands a fair chance at the regional competition. "It's hard to tell from year to year," said Britton. "Last year around 39-feet qualified to state. We'll just have to see what the other districts have. But I think she has a good chance if she gets her head together."

The "head problems" Britton refers to is a bad case of nerves, Jolley has shown throughout the season. Jolley agreed with her coach. "I just get real nervous and I don't throw as well," she said. 'I've matured a lot this year but I still get too nervous.

"It's like at the district meet. I knew I had beaten everybody there so there was no need to worry. But I got nervous and finished second. Washburn got one good throw and beat me.

But the Lady Steers shotputter is hoping all of nervousness will be left behind at the regional meet. "I'd like to get ahead early. I throw better when I'm in the lead. Some shot putters let up when they have the lead. It makes me push myself harder.

Astros down Cincy, 6-4; Rangers lose fielder Kevin Bass says that for him, baseball is just a matter of dowhat he does best - tryinging hard.

"One day you get the good pit-ches, another day they pitch you tough," Bass said after Houston beat the National League Cincinnati Reds 6-4 on Tuesday. "Tonight I got some good pitches. I just swung hard and just kept swinging hard; that's my motto." Bass drove in four runs with a homer - his second in as many nights - and two singles, matching his 1984 total. "This was probably my best game in the major leagues," he said.

It was his third straight game as a replacement for Astros regular right fielder Terry Puhl, who is on the disabled list with a hyperextended elbow

"Kevin's hit the ball real well," Houston Manager Bob Lillis said. He has given up some power that we've needed. It's been a lift for

Bass, who cracked RBI singles in the first and third innings, belted a hits, seven walks, three New York two-run homer in the fifth inning off Cincinnati starter John Stuper, 2-1

Once again, the Chicago Cubs are riding the Sutcliffe & Sandberg express

"He really looked determined before the game," Cubs Manager Jim Frey said after Sutcliffe, last year's National League Cy Young winner, scattered eight hits and blasted a long home run Tuesday night to lead Chicago past the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0.

Sandberg, the NL's Most treal's winning run. Valuable Player last season, was batting just .143 and had not driven home a run this year before he homered in the fourth inning. "I'm glad he got a hit," Frey said. "He's in one of those streaks batters to lose the game. right now where you just have to fight your way through it."

In other NL games, Montreal beat Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings, St. Louis trimmed New York 8-3, Atlanta tripped San Diego 4-2 and San Francisco nipped Los Angeles 2-1

Sutcliffe, 3-1, had won 16 straight regular-season games before losing his last start in Montreal. Sutcliffe, an admitted "sore loser," did not allow a Pirate runner past second base third inning with a single against five home runs and 11 RBIs. Home Mike Bielecki, 1-1, and then homered in the fourth.

Chicago Cubs can play," Sutcliffe said. "The only thing we've been doing is playing good, solid feel confident against," Brunansky

Rick Mahler, the top winner in the major leagues, raised his record to 4-0 by winning his fourth start of the season. Mahler went the first seven innings, allowing five hits, and Bruce Sutter finished up for his third save.

Dale Murphy, leading the majors in home runs and runs batted in, doubled home an Atlanta run in the first inning. That brought his RBI count to 22 in 13 games this year. Giants 2, Dodgers 1

What does Fernando Valenzuela have to do to win?

Valenzuela has not allowed an earned run in 33 innings this season, yet saw his record slide to 2-2 when San Francisco scored twice in the fifth on a two-run error by Dodgers shortstop Dave Anderson.

Cardinals 8, Mets 3

Andy Van Slyke tripled and doubled and Lonnie Smith singled twice and stole three bases for freeheeling St. Louis.

The Cardinals combined eight errors and five stolen bases to win.

The game was tied 2-2 in the bottom of the third inning in St. Louis when action was delayed for 68 minutes by rain. When play resumed, Jack Clark bounced into a forceout that let Smith score from third base to put the Cardinals ahead for good.

Expos 5, Phillies 4

Meanwhile, Toronto took a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning only to see the Kansas City Royals score five times off relief ace Bill Caudill and make off with a 7-6 victory.

"I guess I was right after all when I said last week in Baltimore that it wouldn't be the last time," said Caudill, who was hit hard on April 13 as the Orioles scored six times in the eighth inning, rallying from a 7-2 deficit for an 8-7 victory."It just came a lot quicker than I expected. But it won't continue. I'm too good a pitcher for that to happen and I didn't get here on a fluke. I'll hear a lot more applause before the season's over."

Royals 7, Blue Jays 6

Caudill relieved Doyle Alexander after seven innings and breezed through the eighth but got in trouble in the ninth when Jim Sundberg and pinch-hitter Dane lorg opened with singles and Willie Wilson was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Caudill stormed from the mound when plate umpire Drew Coble awarded Wilson first base.

"He made an attempt to get hit and not an attempt to get out of the way," Caudill said. "That changed the whole perspective of the ballgame. Instead of bases loaded, there's one out with runners at first and second."

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Kirk Gibson had three hits, including a two-run bloop double to snap a fifth-inning tie, and Dan Petry, Bill Scherrer and Willie Hernandez combined to scatter nine hits as Detroit snapped a twogame losing streak.Petry gave up six hits in 6 2-3 innings. Pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble's bases-loaded single capped a tworun rally against Milwaukee relief ace Rollie Fingers in the bottom of the 10th inning. After Milwaukee had gone ahead 5-4 in the top of the 10th on Ted Simmons' RBI single, Fingers took over from Bob Mc-Clure, who had retired all 10 batters he faced.

TOO LATE

JUDGE SARAH HUGHES

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wednesday, April 24, 1985

Judge Hughes dead at age 88

U.S. Justice swore in Johnson after Kennedy's death

DALLAS (AP) - U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, who swore in Lyndon B. Johnson as president after the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, has died at the age of 88.

Mrs. Hughes, who had been appointed to the bench by Kennedy, died about 11 p.m. Tuesday at Presbyterian Hospital, said Lois Swan Jones, an aidé to Mrs. Hughes.

Mrs. Hughes had not heard any cases for three years after suffering a massive stroke and entering a nursing home, Ms. Jones said. She was hospitalized in February, the aide said.

She swore in Johnson, a fellow Texan, as president aboard Air Force One on Nov. 22, 1963, after Kennedy was pronounced dead from a sniper's bullet.

"I'm sure she'd like to be remembered for swearing in Lyndon Johnson, but she'd also like to be remembered for some of her good judicial decisions," Ms. Jones said.

She launched her political career with a successful bid for the statehouse in 1930 and was re-elected twice. In 1935, she became the first woman appointed a st teb: ja?En Texas and was re-elected seven times before Kennedy named her to the federal bench in 1961

Mrs. Hughes was a women's rights activist whose best argument was her own success at law and politics. Impudent lawyers, doubletalking witnesses and political opponents learned to fear and respect her.

She stood 5-foot-1 and weighed just over 100 pounds, but she was a stern jurist who ran a nononsense courtroom, often silencing men twice her size and half her age.

The late President Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, were personal friends of hers, and when Kennedy was assassinated, Johnson called for her to give him the oath of office.

Ranger claims Lucas statement absurd

By The Associated Press

Henry Lee Lucas' claims that he confessed to scores of murders he didn't commit, with the help of inside information fed him by law enforcement officers, is absurd, Texas Ranger Bob Prince says.

Prince, who headed a Texas Rangers' task force in the Lucas investigation, said Tuesday that to believe Lucas is to assume "a mass conspiracy ... of officers throughout the United States to clear these cases. That's ridiculous."

The Ranger sergeant issued the denial from his office in Austin after Lucas held a news conference earlier Tuesday in Waco to publicly recant his confessions of hundreds of slayings across the country over a 10-year period. 'He's got everything in the world to gain by getting people to believe he didn't kill anyone," Prince said, calling Lucas' state-

"Lucas has personally led officers back to well in excess of 100 crime scenes. He has brought up information on crimes that they were totally unaware of because it is out of their jurisdiction," Prince said.

"Do you believe the word of a convicted murder and a habitual liar, or do you believe the word of law enforcement officers across the United States? Were they all duped?'

Lucas, 48, a one-eyed drifter from Virginia, said at his news conference Tuesday that he was able to provide inside information about many of the murders because investigators led him to the scenes of crimes, provided him information about the murders and even showed him photographs of the scenes.

vestigating the authenticity of his claims. Lucas was brought to Waco on April 12, and has testified for more than 11 hours in front of the Waco grand jury, which also listened to the testimony of approximately six other witnesses. The grand jury recessed on April 18, but is scheduled to reconvene on May 3.

Over the objections of State Attorney General Jim Mattox, a federal judge ordered Lucas to be transferred to San Antonio, where he was to testify at 1 p.m. today before a federal grand jury that sought to determine whether questioning officers had violated

Parking lot puts cover on nudist beach

AUSTIN (AP) - The natural beauty of Hippie Hollow, a Lake Travis area long favored by those who prefer to enjoy their beaches au naturel, is being spoiled by construction work, sunbathers complain.

"We come out here to get away from the asphalt," said a sunbather who asked to be identified only as Marvin. "But now you come here and see the same thing," he said while standing in lot at near the nude beach area.

A grant from the Texas Parks ly $400,000 in Travis County bond rocks," Marvin complained. funds are being used to pave a parking lot, put in two restroom buildings with decks, build a ticket booth and grade a 4,700-foot lakeside trail. The county leases Hippie Hollow from the Lower Colorado River Authority.

It was the trail that sunbathers grumbled about most over the weekend.

"It's a highway," a man iden-tified as Gary told the Austin American-Statesman. "It just looks like overkill. The trail is the middle of a new, paved parking within 10 feet of the waterline at Honts' assistant. some parts."

natural form," he said. The changes are designed to make Hippie Hollow cleaner and safer, Honts said. In recent years, more beer cans and bottles than sunbathers have lined the rocky banks of the hollow, officials said. Trash has been thrown down the hill and, when it rains, it washes into the lake, said Sueann Brady, Before the new trail was cut

"You literally couldn't keep it from being a trash receptacle. We're still digging bottles out of there that have probably been there 10 years," Honts said.

The trail also will make Hippie Hollow more accessible to emergency vehicles when a swimmer is injured, Ms. Brady said.

"I think in the long run, Hippie Hollow had to be upgraded, not in the sense of changing the type of swimming that goes on there or changing the type of sunbathing that goes on there," Honts said.
