The award is for fiscal year 1986, Airport Administrator Hal Boyd said. The city currently is resurfacing the main runway, he said.

Coahoma official dies at 68

Coahoma City Councilman Lawrence Aberegg, 68, died early this morning of a heart attack at his home.

According to a relative, Aberegg died of a heart attack at 1:30 a.m. today.

Aberegg was serving his second year of a two-year council term, according to City Clerk Jo Anne Keenan. He was elected in April 1984, she said.

According to former Coahoma mayor Pat Harrison, Aberegg was semi-retired. He had operated his independent oil well service company, the Welcome Well Service, since the early 1940s, according to Noralee Mays, whose daughter was Aberegg's daughter-in-law.

"All the people who work for the city are real shocked," Harrison said. "We sure have lost a good worker for the city. I'm stunned."

Aberegg, she said, had been out at the city's water yard Monday, talking to city employees. "He'd been spending quite a bit of his time trying to get the streets fixed in town. It's quite a loss."

During his term on the city council, Aberegg was known for his opposition to a trash-collection ordinance. Aberegg fought the ordinance before being elected to the council and continued to oppose proposals that the city shut off water services to those citizens who failed to pay their trash-collection bills.

He was born in Jacksburg, W. Va., where he later married his wife, Margueret Thomas, in October 1935, Mrs. Mays said.

Aberegg was a member of the Church of Christ.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Judy Jackson of Coahoma and Brenda Amonett of Denver City; three sons, Royce D. Aberegg of Gorman, Harold Aberegg of Sand Springs and Tommy Aberegg of Abilene; and two sisters and one brother.

Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Tornado alley

Twisters, savage storms batter besieged East Texas

Staff and wire reports

A sand sphere enveloped Big Spring yesterday afternoon, tarnishing a crystal-clear day that began dramatically with warning sirens trumpeting the approach of a pre-dawn tornado.

The contrasting weather here, however, was mild compared to the violent conditions of the rest of the state.

Weather forecasters said "more thunder-showers were in store for an already battered East Texas today, following severe weather that took the life of one man and injured at least 22 others.

Lewis Silvey, a Leon County construction worker, was killed when lightning hit a tree where he and four co-workers were having lunch Monday near Jewett.

A Leon County sheriff's deputy said they were injured during a lightning storm which preceded the high winds, heavy rains and tornadoes that pummeled the state, damaging more than 200 homes.

"Freak accident. It wasn't even raining at the time," said Sheriff's Deputy Kevin Allen, who said the area had a "real bad lightning storm."

Two co-workers with Silvey were listed in stable condition at Leon County Hospital in Buffalo, and two others with minor injuries were treated at the nearby Jewett clinic.

The National Weather Service said late Monday night that showers and thunderstorms were continuing across the eastern third of the state and could produce more strong winds, lightning and hail.

Most residents who were hurt Monday received minor injuries from flying debris. The majority of the injuries occurred in Greenville and Paris in northeast Texas.

Greenville Police Lt. J.W. Jordan said Citizens General Hospital reported five or six people had been treated for broken bones and other injuries.

A hospital spokesman said details on those injuries were not immediately available.

In Paris, where the storm blew through a 25-square-block residential area, seven people were reported injured. Police Chief Charles Whitley said names of those victims were not available.

Two of the seven were motorists who were treated for minor injuries after winds lifted a roof from a Paris business and rocketed it into their cars, said Lamar County Chief Deputy Jim Parker.

Whitley said at least 20 homes and two businesses sustained very serious damage.

In Dallas at Lake June School, four children received minor cuts when a 20-foot stained glass window exploded inward on about a dozen 3-year-olds settling down for a nap.

In Midlothian, two customers at a Dairy Queen were cut when winds blew out plate glass windows.

County stalks support for wheat farmer

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

County Commissioners yesterday lent their support to Big Spring farmer Elbert Long's attempts to donate 225,000 pounds of wheat to famine-ravaged Ethiopia.

The commissioners approved the motion by member Louis Brown in an effort to try to cut federal red tape, which has prevented Long from harvesting the wheat grown on his set-aside acreage and donating it to Africa.

Brown said afterwards that people should send telegrams to Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, and Texas Sens. Phil Gramm, R, and Lloyd Benson, D, to support changes in the Department of Agriculture law regarding set-aside acreage.

"We're going to try and cut out the red tape and bend the law. The only other option that Long has with his wheat is to plow it up," Brown said.

Stenholm staff aide James Terrell in Washington, D.C., said he disagreed with the focus of Brown's plan.

"It would be more effective if they contacted the United States Department of Agriculture. That's where the change has to be made," Terrell said.

Farmers who become members of federal farm support programs must set aside a certain percentage of their acreage and grow a cover crop on this land, said Marla Cathey, program assistant for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Big Spring.

Under current federal agricultural programs, the cover crop may not be harvested for shipping to commercial markets.

The set-aside law is aimed at reducing surplus of crops, she said.

Farmers "can either leave it standing or plow it up," Cathey said, referring to set-aside crops.

"They get no benefit from it. They run plows over it and they just destroy it," Cathey said.

Stenholm's office has tried for more than a year to change the set-aside regulation, Terrell said. He and Stenholm have spoken with Agriculture Secretary John Block and to the White House in the past about changing the regulation, but neither institution would change its mind, he said.

The USDA has some justifications for its set-aside compliance for farmers who join federal support programs, Terrell said. One reason was giving the department control "in policing commodities and making sure the crops go into the proper channels," he said.

"Charles and I don't agree, though, with restricting a farmer from giving away his crop to the needy," Terrell said. "We're on this fellow's (Long) side. And we'll continue working at changing the regulation."

Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Assistant Superintendent Jan Schmidt is confronted by frustrated reporters after former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer is admitted to the prison by a back entrance.

Thayer slips into prison

Former No. 2 defense official ducks press corps

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

"Club Fed" has had its share of famous prisoners, including con man Billy Sol Estes and the alleged "King of the Cowboy Mafia," Rex Cauble.

Two of the latest in a long line of inmates — former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer and Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris — entered the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Monday to begin terms for lying about insider stock dealings during a federal investigation.

Both were admitted Monday to the prison camp amid intense coverage by out-of-town media representatives, who speculated about the passengers in every car that drove by and swapped jokes about "Club Fed" and Big Spring water.

Thayer, 65, managed to avoid the reporters and entered the prison about 1:30 p.m. through a back door.

He drove towards the front gate of the prison and spotted a pack of reporters awaiting his arrival, camp assistant superintendent Jan Schmidt said.

The former chairman of Dallas-based LTV Corp. then arranged with officials to enter the minimum-security prison through a back gate, she said.

"He (Thayer) didn't wish to be confronted," Schmidt said. "He called and requested not to come in through the front entrance."

Camp officials who ushered Thayer in through a back entrance were not extending him special privileges, Schmidt said. "We have an obligation to protect the prisoners' right to privacy."

El Paso native wins Miss USA title

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Laura Herring, a 21-year-old from El Paso, tearfully accepted the 1985 Miss USA crown Monday night and will represent the United States in the Miss Universe Pageant.

The tall brunette was crowned at the end of the 34th annual pageant by last year's queen, Mai Shanley of Alamogordo, N.M.

The winner, who in addition to English speaks Spanish and French, is a student at Algon College in Switzerland and has been a social worker in India.

She will represent the United States in the Miss Universe Pageant in Miami July 15.

The first runner-up, Miss New Mexico, Brenda Denton, 21, of Hobbs, will take over if Miss USA is unable to fulfill her duties during the coming year.

Miss Denton is a substitute school teacher who said she wants to own a boutique. She holds an associate degree in computer science from Texas Tech University.

Second runner-up is Miss Illinois, Laura Bach, 23, of Elmhurst. Third runner-up is Miss Louisiana, Saïre Joubert, 22, of Shreveport; fourth is Miss Minnesota, Kari Lee Johnson, 20, of Minneapolis.

The initial field of 51 delegates was pared down to 10 semifinalists and then narrowed down to five finalists.

The other semifinalists were: Miss Arizona, Michelle Ducote, 22, from Tempe; Miss Hawaii, Tina Machado, 25, of Honolulu; Miss Massachusetts, Mercedes Waggoner, 21, of Boston; Miss Missouri, Amy Coverdale, 22, of Columbia; Miss Oklahoma, Sophia Henderson, 21, of Tulsa.

The finalists were chosen on the basis of a swimsuit and evening gown competition before a panel of 11 judges in the contest, televised live with hosts Bob Barker and actress Joan Van Ark.

The 51 contestants from the 50 states and the District of Columbia were vying for $175,000 in cash and prizes.

A panel of 11 judges last week scored the contestants in evening gowns and swim suits, and judged them from personal interviews.

Michelle Ducote, Miss Arizona, took first place in the State Costume Competition, dressed as an Aztec warrior, during opening ceremonies.

Miss Kentucky, Robyn Overbey of Calvert City, won the Miss Photogenic competition.

Just competing for the title was a crowning achievement for Marty Browning, the blond, green-eyed Miss Tennessee, who is deaf.

"I don't let people tell me I can't do something. When I set my mind to do it, I know I can," said the 24-year-old from Chattanooga.

Although Miss Browning suffered 87 percent hearing loss at birth, she learned to live in a hearing world without sign language and without an interpreter.

"A handicap is only a handicap if you let it become one," she said.

Miss Browning, who won the Miss Amity title in voting by her peers, reads lips and responds unhesitatingly in a soft-spoken voice and Southern accent.

She earned a degree in deaf education from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and teaches hearing-impaired preschoolers in Chattanooga.

Her parents discovered when she was 2½ that she had an incurable inner-ear problem.

"I had a fear she would rely on signing rather than speech," said her mother, Launa, a teacher. "I went to the library, checked out every book I could find on deafness, and made her ask for everything before I'd give it to her. ... She had to learn to talk."

Her father, Bill, a chemist, said he gave up long ago trying to tell her she couldn't do something.

"When we found out she was deaf, it just broke our hearts. And now ..." he said as his eyes filled and his voice choked.

For the record

A statement by City Councilman Gary Don Carey reported in Monday's Big Spring Herald needs clarification. The article reported Carey said the Big Spring City Council supported the petition drive for liquor-by-the-drink.

Carey actually said, "I tend to believe" the council would support getting the issue on the ballot.

Mayor Clyde Angel said Monday afternoon no formal poll of the council has been taken.

The public records published in Saturday's newspaper contained two typographical errors. Under Marriage Licenses, the name Lelyle Dawn Hernandez should have read Kelly Dawn Hernandez. The address should have read 2512 Hunter.

County OKs legal fees for two former officials

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County will pay retainership fees for Attorney Malcolm C. Schulz of Abilene to defend former county officials Bill Tune and Harvey Hooser in federal court in Abilene July 8.

Tune and Hooser have been named as defendants in a slander suit filed by former Big Spring State Hospital Superintendent Grace Renee Ferguson.

Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown said commissioners voted unanimously on the request because Tune and Hooser "were elected county officials on official county business at the state hospital" during the time the slander supposedly occurred.

In other commissioner court action Monday:

- Commissioners approved a request for money to help finance a new ambulance for the Emergency Medical Services for Ackerley.

Thayer

Continued from page 1-A taking office in January 1983, was ordered to report to the prison by 1 p.m., but was delayed by the phone call to the prison, Schmidt said.

"There were no repercussions. He drove by and saw the crowd and he called us," she said.

Thayer and Harris, 45, both pleaded guilty March 4 to obstruction of justice, admitting they lied to investigators probing their stock dealings.

Attorneys for the two, bolstered by an extraordinary collection of letters that included one from former President Ford and one from a Justice Department official, urged that their clients be sentenced to community service.

But U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey in Washington rejected the pleas Wednesday when he handed down the four-year sentences, along with $5,000 fines.

The maximum sentence for the offense is five years in prison and $5,000 fines.

Thayer, however, does not have to serve a minimum sentence before parole, according to Schmidt. "The papers he brought with him indicate he can be paroled at any time" by the federal parole board, she said.

The pair also agreed last week to pay the government more than $900,000 to settle a civil suit stemming from the insider stock trading scheme.

Harris arrived at the prison at 11:25 p.m. in a tan Ford Bronco, pulled two bags out of the back of the truck and walked through the front door of the administration building.

He refused to answer questions about his sentence, ignoring the reporters and photographers who jumped onto cars to get closer to him.

When asked whether he brought his tennis racket, Harris replied, "I don't play tennis."

Dressed in a tan, white and lavender-striped knit short-sleeved polo shirt and slacks, Harris was tight-lipped throughout his check-in.

"My attorneys told me not to make any comments," he said. He declined to comment on whether he thought he and Thayer were unfairly singled out as an example.

Ms. Schmidt said Thayer and Harris would undergo medical examinations, interviews and educational and psychological testing this week, and then would be issued work assignments.

"We try to match jobs and abilities," Schmidt said.

When asked what job they might have for a former assistant secretary of defense, Schmidt smiled.

"If he has office skills, he might want to do that. If he wants to work outside, he could be on the landscape crews."

The fenceless prison camp has two factories, one that makes plastic containers for the U.S. Postal Service and one that makes electrical cable.

The two men admitted giving false statements to the Securities and Exchange Commission when they investigated an insider trading scheme involving Thayer and Harris.

Thayer later admitted the scam was set up to make profits for Sandra K. Ryno, a close personal friend. The scheme, in which Thayer passed inside information to Harris, netted $2 million in 1982 for Thayer and seven associates, the government charged.

CIA says no to bombing

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency says it didn't conduct training "related to" a Beirut bombing in which 80 people were killed, but House and Senate members are calling on the agency to shed more light on its counterterrorist operations.

The CIA issued a statement Monday following reports that a CIA-trained and -supported counterterrorist group, acting without agency approval, was responsible for the March 8 attack in Beirut.

The bombing occurred outside the home of Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, a Shiite leader who reportedly has been involved in attacks on U.S. installations.

The counterterrorism operation was canceled by the CIA shortly after the bombing because of fears that the U.S. links to the group might become public, according to The Washington Post.

Drugs for nursing homes

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration will be called before Congress to explain how elderly nursing home residents ended up as unwitting or unwitting test subjects for experimental drugs, the chairman of a House health subcommittee says.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., announced the hearings Monday into what he said appeared to be "a complete breakdown in protections — both ethical and legal — which would protect our elderly from being exposed to potentially dangerous drugs without their knowledge or consent."

"That these events took place in a nursing home is reprehensible," said Waxman. "That they occurred in violation of clear federal restrictions raises serious questions about the adequacy of federal enforcement resources."

Waxman, chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee on health, called the situation "a shocking illustration of the Hippocratic oath turned on its head."

Bishops aid farmers

WASHINGTON — No less than the security of the nation's food supply could be at stake in American family farmers' fight for survival, Roman Catholic bishops declared today in an appeal for government help.

In a draft statement, as in last November's wider-ranging draft "pastoral letter" on the U.S. economy, the bishops support more government intervention than the Reagan administration favors.

Policemen search for radical group members

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police searched today for armed members of the radical group MOVE who fled a siege that climaxed when a police helicopter bombed their headquarters, setting a fire that destroyed up to 60 houses and left the neighborhood "like a war zone."

"We still have police in the area looking for them. We have the area surrounded and are watching for them," said police Detective Thomas McCormick of the MOVE members who eluded more than 150 officers who laid siege to the group's row house on Monday.

One MOVE member was captured Monday, and two children were carried from the scene, officials said.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode said he accepted responsibility for the "devastating" fire. He said police would not have dropped the bomb if they could have foreseen the result, and added he believed officers showed "tremendous restraint" during the siege.

The violent confrontation with members of the back-to-nature group came after police tried to evict MOVE members from their building, which was equipped with a steel-plated rooftop bunker complete with gunslits.

Residents had complained of assaults, robberies and a stench at the house. Police had obtained warrants for four MOVE members charging them with harassment, criminal conspiracy, possession of explosives, disorderly conduct and rioting, said police Lt. Al Lewis.

Police surrounded the MOVE house Sunday and evacuated about 200 homes in the area. On Monday morning, the group refused to leave, demanding instead that nine members imprisoned for a 1978 shootout that left a police officer dead be released from prison.

A 90-minute gunbattle erupted after MOVE's refusal, and police used tear gas and water cannon in an attempt to flush the members from the building. The front of the building was torn open under the pressure of the deluge.

The row house remained under siege with periodic exchanges of gunfire until 5:27 p.m. Monday, when a state police helicopter dropped a bomb on the rooftop bunker. Minutes later, a plume of smoke began rising from the roof. Soon flames were raging across the top of the house.

The bomb was not an incendiary device but an explosive designed to blow a hole in the reinforced house to give police a larger target for tear-gas canisters, police said.

Pope gives outdoor Mass

BEEK, Netherlands — Pope John Paul II, subjected earlier to heckling by youthful protesters, told Roman Catholics at an outdoor Mass today that they must defend traditional family values he said are under attack from progressives.

Celebrating Mass for an estimated 45,000 people in the Catholic heartland of the southern Netherlands on the final day of his controversial Dutch tour, the pontiff delivered a staunch defense of church doctrine.

A day after reiterating his refusal to let women become priests, John Paul also said the church must continue to oppose divorce and birth control.

Such issues have caused deep divisions between the Dutch church's large progressive wing and traditionalists backed by bishops that John Paul appointed. The divisions have led to protests against the pontiff during the first-ever trip to the Netherlands by a pope.

Socialists win elections

ROME — The pro-Western coalition of Socialist Premier Bettino Craxi has turned back a Communist challenge in local elections, winning 58 percent of the vote to 30 percent for the Communists, according to official figures released today.

Craxi welcomed the vote of confidence in his five-party government, at 21 months already the third-oldest in postwar history, saying it brought a "factor of stability in Italian political life."

Complete results from the voting Sunday and Monday for 15 regional governments showed Craxi's coalition had garnered 58.1 percent of the vote to 30.2 percent for Western Europe's largest Communist Party, according to the Interior Ministry.

Alessandro Natta, Communist Party secretary, expressed disappointment but vowed Monday night to "continue the struggle."

Shultz, Gromyko meet

VIENNA, Austria — Secretary of State George P. Shultz met today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, after calling for "patience and persistence" in addressing superpower differences over arms control and other issues.

Shultz went into the Soviet Embassy here for the closed-door talks without speaking to reporters.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Yefremov was among those greeting Shultz, but Gromyko could not be seen at the door.

English revision needs refining

The Soviet Union, which has claimed responsibility for most of this century's major inventions and scientific breakthroughs, is in the process of revising part of the English language. Soviet editors of special editions of the Oxford English Dictionary have changed the definitions of key political words so they conform with Communist Party doctrine.

In the Soviet edition of the Oxford Student's Dictionary of Current English, "socialism" is defined as "a social and economic system which is replacing capitalism." The Soviet edition of the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary of Current English defines "capitalism" as the system "replacing feudalism and preceding communism."

Both dictionaries define "communism" as "a theory revealing the historical necessity for the revolutionary replacement of capitalism by communism." On the other hand, "imperialism" is defined "as the highest and last stage of capitalism." And "fascism" is defined "as a form of reactionary, nationalistic, antidemocratic, anti-communist, bourgeois movement and regime, typical of the era of imperialism."

George Richardson, chief executive of the Oxford University Press, concedes that dictionaries are frequently adjusted to suit individual countries and that the publisher has a responsibility to make sure the definitions do not offend anyone. Still, he is stunned that the Soviets have distorted these definitions to suit their ideology.

Then again, we're not surprised. The Soviet Union, which has demonstrated such a penchant for distorting history, is certainly capable of a little lexicographical legerdemain as well.

Political law punishes opinion

To the ramparts, men! Mothers, lock up your daughters! Farley Mowat's on his way! This infamous Canadian writer had been denied entry to the United States by a vigilant sentinel guarding our border, but the cowardly Reagan administration, faced with complaints from the Canadian government, lamely decided on appeasement.

An avowed socialist and environmentalist who writes on wildlife issues, Mowat had planned to fly to Los Angeles in April to promote his latest book. He was denied entry under a McCarthy-era law that says foreign communists and anarchists aren't welcome here.

After a couple of embarrassing days, Washington agreed to let Mowat in for his book tour. But now he's miffed and refuses to come.

In any case, he stoutly denies any communist connections, past or present. But the Immigration and Naturalization Service, our border thought police, apparently had another excuse for keeping him out. Back in 1968, Mowat was quoted in a Canadian newspaper as saying he had fired a .22 caliber rifle at a U.S. Air Force plane. Sound dangerous? Well, a .22 might do some damage to a rabbit, but it wouldn't be much use against a B-52.

Mowat also says that in 1956, he and some friends had publicly threatened to steal an American atomic bomb from a Strategic Air Command base in Newfoundland and detonate it in a nearby lake. Given evidence like this, I will concede that Mowat may be a fool. But the INS has no business keeping people out for premeditated silliness.

Besides, Mowat isn't nearly as foolish as the law under which he was excluded. It tries to isolate Americans from anyone who is not normal in every way — the mentally retarded, the insane or formerly insane, sexual deviates, drug addicts, alcoholics, beggars, prostitutes and the ever-present polygamists.

That's just for starters. The law disinherits foreigners with unacceptable political views, which includes anarchists, communists, members of "totalitarian" parties, anyone who favors overthrowing the U.S. government and those advocating "opposition to all organized government." The latter clause would keep out some of my fellow libertarians, who don't even like the disorganized kind. In case we've missed anyone, those of you contemplating activities "prejudicial to the public interest" can also get lost.

All this would be funny if it didn't have the full power of the U.S. government behind it. Certainly we ought to keep out terrorists, KGB agents and other truly dangerous people. But the point of this law is not to prevent violence. It has been used to keep out such frightening characters as novelist Gabriel Garcia Marquez, the widow of the late Chilean president Salvador Allende, and a middle-aged British economist who had briefly been a member of the Communist Party back in the 1930s.

The authors of this law, and the people enforcing it, obviously regard ideas as communicable diseases. Foreigners carrying microbes of anarchism or communism or other alien creeds have to be quarantined lest they infect healthy Americans.

But unlike measles germs, ideas have other ways of transmission — like books. As the law stands, the U.S. government can't ban Marquez' writings, which have sold millions of copies. Doing so would violate the First Amendment. It can't even prevent him from personally arguing his case for American ears, since he can do that via telephone, tape recording or broadcast transmission. All it can do is keep his body from crossing the border. What on earth does that accomplish, except making the INS a fit object of ridicule?

It would make sense to keep Mowat out if there were any evidence that he is dangerous to the U.S. government or anyone else. But there isn't. The political exclusions in the law serve only to punish people for having the wrong opinions. If we're going to do that, let's start with the people who enacted it.

Tax lanes open for shipping firms

WASHINGTON — Shipping companies have avoided millions of dollars in federal taxes and the Maritime Administration may have violated the law to let them do it, according to the Transportation Department's inspector general.

The vehicle of these unintended tax breaks is the Capital Construction Fund Program, created in 1971 to help U.S. shipping firms raise money to expand their merchant fleets. The companies could defer income tax on deposits they made to the fund, then draw against the money when they decided to build more ships.

The program was designed to encourage the companies to compete in international trade routes with other countries' merchant fleets. And the law is explicit in allowing withdrawals from the fund only for building ships that will carry goods to and from the United States. But the IG found that Maritime had allowed the companies to use the fund for ships that were engaged in unqualified operations.

The result was a multi-million-dollar tax dodge permitted by the Maritime Administration, according to the IG. In profitable years, the shipping companies would dump money into the construction fund to cut down on their taxes. In the lean years, little or no deposits were made because "they would not result in a tax savings."

By rights, they should have paid the deferred taxes if they used the money for unqualified ships. But in practice, Maritime approved the questionable withdrawals, the IG found.

More than $173 million in withdrawals was found by the IG to have been used to build ships not authorized by the law. "Up to $79.9 million in government revenue was lost as unpaid deferred taxes on the withdrawals," according to the IG report, which was obtained by our associates Corky Johnson and Donald Goldberg. And assuming a 10 percent cost of borrowing to make up this lost tax revenue, "the U.S. Treasury's annual financing cost increased by up to $7.9 million," the IG pointed out.

"There is no assurance (the) deferred taxes will ever be collected," the IG reports states, adding:

Improper screening worries Justice

Burger opposes improper questioning of judicial candidates

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals anxious over President Reagan's chance to appoint some 300 federal judges by 1988 and fuming over what they say is the improper screening of prospective judges by "right wing" senators may find solace in recent comments by conservative Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

In a May 7 interview with The Miami Herald, Burger said judicial nominees should refuse to answer congressional queries about their opinions on issues such as abortion.

"If I were before a committee I would decline to answer any such question, and a judge ought to decline," said Burger.

Nominees might find it difficult, however, to follow that advice in the face of aggressive questioning. Sen. Strom Thurmond, the South Carolina Republican who chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee, is not willing to rein in his colleagues during confirmation hearings.

Committee staff member Mark Gooden said last week that Thurmond will not comment on Burger's remarks but added, "The senator believes that each member of the Senate has the right to ask any nominee any question. You can't start limiting that right."

Gooden said Thurmond is concerned about the need for the judicial selection process to be "regularized" — so that nominees confront the questions at the Judiciary Committee's confirmation hearings, and not before.

"While such tax deferral-avoidance benefits make this program very popular with the companies involved, the benefits being received are far greater than those intended."

Maritime officials vehemently dispute the IG's contention, insisting that the shipping companies eventually do pay back the tax money. But for various reasons — changes in tax laws or collapse of shipping companies — the agency's statement "that deferred taxes are recouped with no loss to the government" is just not correct," the IG stated.

The evolution of the construction fund into a tax shelter — with Maritime's blessing — was made clear in one example cited by the IG: A company that had never made a deposit to the fund suddenly dumped in $10.4 million with the agency's approval. This enabled the company "to avoid additional taxes assessed by the Internal Revenue Service."

The tax-deferral system was described by the IG report as unfair to "taxpayers in general who must make up for the additional interest costs and the unpaid taxes."

The IG cited as an example of unauthorized ships built with the fund 55 vessels costing $97 million for use in oil service in Africa, Mexico, South America and the Middle East by Houston Natural Gas Corp. of Texas, Tidewater Inc. of Louisiana and Nicor Inc. of Illinois, also used the fund to build ships for operations that were not qualified, according to the IG. The Maritime Administration approved all the withdrawals.

"Fund benefits were just not intended to aid in the acquisition of such supply vessels," the IG wrote.

Footnote: Spokesmen for Tidewater Inc. and Houston Natural Gas Corp. had no comment. A Nicor spokesman said his firm had adhered to Maritime Administration regulations. A Maritime spokesman did not respond to our request for comment.

Billy Graham

Being loved, loving others is God's plan

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I get upset whenever a television program comes on that shows a happy family. Our family life when I was growing up was never like that. My parents were always cold and indifferent, and I never felt anyone loved me. Now I have trouble believing anyone — even God — cares about me. — J.K.F.

DEAR J.K.F.: No, it is not easy for someone in your situation to accept the love of others. For one thing, as you were growing up you were deprived of the opportunity to see and sense what real love is like. Also, perhaps you have grown up feeling that the reason no one showed love to you was somehow your fault — that you were unlovable and unworthy of love. Your experience, incidentally, shows vividly why parents should do all they can to show and tell their children that they love them.

But God wants you to overcome this. Most of all, he wants you to understand that he loves you, and he also wants to help you learn to love others. He wants to give that love to you as a fruit of the Holy Spirit in your life.

How has God proved that he loves you? He has done it the same way a human parent proves his love — by both telling us and demonstrating it to us by His actions. God tells us repeatedly in His Word, the Bible, that He loves us: "I have loved you with an everlasting love" (Jeremiah 31:3). And God has demonstrated His love to us, especially by sending His son to die on the cross as a sacrifice for our sins so we could become part of His family. "This is how we know what love is: Jesus Christ laid down his life for us" (1 John 3:16).

Accept by faith that God loves us, and ask Jesus Christ to come into your heart as your lord and savior. Then let his word teach you every day about his love. When you do, Christ will begin to change you and give you a new understanding of his unchanging love.

Dr. Donohue

Histoplasmosis usually quite mild

Dear Abby

Psychologist says walk is abusive

DEAR ABBY: I cannot work until I react to the letter in your column about the two brothers, 9 and 11, who had to walk 14 miles a day for five days because they were suspended for creating a disturbance on the school bus. That means they had to walk seven miles each way, and would have to walk two hours while their father comfortably drove his car behind them.

They had to spend approximately 10 hours each day walking and learning. There is no way that those children could pay attention in school after walking at least two hours before school started.

Please contact a sports physician and an educator and learn if walking that distance is not only child abuse, but brutal mistreatment. Suggest to their father that he walk 14 miles for one day while trying to do his work.

He was teaching his children that he was a heartless creature who preserved his personal comfort in the car while they built up blisters on their feet if they did not have top-quality shoes and socks.

SADDENED PSYCHOLOGIST EVANSTON, ILL.
DEAR PSYCHOLOGIST: Granted, the punishment was harsh, but to repeat my comment: "As long as the boys were in no danger, I think the punishment fits

For the record

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Williams were listed incorrectly in an anniversary announcement in Sunday's Big Spring Herald. The Williams have two children: Darlene McElreath of Fort Worth and Clydette Kidd of Keller. Others listed in the article are the couple's three grandchildren. The couple will renew their vows in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary at 3 p.m. Saturday at Calvary Baptist Church.

the crime. I see no child abuse here. In my book, those parents cared enough about their children to discipline them."

DEAR ABBY: The letter accusing the parents of child abuse because they made their kids walk 14 miles forces me to comment. I am the father of four boys, now 18 to 24. At various times their mother and I have:

1. Had the police find and bring home — at 3 a.m. — one boy who had exceeded his curfew. (His keys were confiscated on the spot.)
2. Grounded another for a month, including the Christmas holidays, for "conduct unbecoming a gentleman." This required him to find his own way to and from school and work. (Twelve miles — no car.)
3. Forced another to live elsewhere until he agreed to comply with our household rules.
4. Physically decked another for insolent language.

The net result of such "child abuse": All four are and were merit scholarship college students, three are National Merit Scholarship winners, one is a summa cum laude college graduate, and another is a Ph.D. graduate student.

Each boy has worked since the ages of 14. And all have come to me at one time or another and said, "Dad, I'm glad you drew the line and held it when I was off base."
FIRM DAD IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was told recently that I have histoplasmosis. All I know is that it is a fungus transmitted by birds in the Ohio Valley. Can you tell me more? I am 79.1 — Mrs. H.B.H.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor had a chest X-ray taken because I hadn't had one for many years. He said it was OK except for some histoplasmosis on the lungs. He said it wasn't anything to worry about. Can you comment? He said I must have gotten it years ago. — O.C.

Histoplasmosis is a common fungal infection, the organism being abundant in the Ohio Valley, but by no means limited to that area. It's frequently noted only by its calling card, perhaps a few minor lung flecks noted on a chest X-ray. Most of the time the person has histoplasmosis without knowing it. Some may have flu-like symptoms — cough, fever, headache. Very few ever develop serious infection, when the fungus may spread to many parts of the body.

Birds don't transmit the illness directly, but their droppings do create an environment in which the particular fungus thrives. There's nothing to worry about. Those lung spots are evidence of previous inflammation points where bits of calcium collected. The fungus is found practically everywhere in the world. And people living in the Ohio Valley need not fear that anything horrible is going to happen to them.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I hope you can help me with this continuous hissing sound in my head.

It's worse than ever when I lay down to sleep, and sort of eases up during the day. So far as I know I'm in good health. I have had this hissing for the past three or four months. I'm going on 70. — B.B.

Most of us have ear noises to some degree, more pronounced when we least appreciate them — when trying to get to sleep, for example. Still, it is worth the effort to try to determine their cause, for there are some correctable ones. Often simple lack of proper sound-wave conduction from something as common as ear wax compaction causes them. Some sufferers may have a slight buildup of fluid in the middle ear. Older people might lay ear noises to a bone disturbance, otosclerosis, or it may signify a circulation disturbance. These kinds of problems usually produce the hissing kind of noise, like yours — sort of like listening through a seashell.

I can't be too much help with this most common of all complaints from my readers. If a treatable cause is pinpointed, then eliminating that ends the noises. I have on occasion heard of success through use of the tiny hearing aid-type devices that emit sounds to mask the ones heard inside the ear. You might try that.

Health Fair focuses on child identification

Missing, James H. Andrus from Sanoma, Calif. Born July 20, 1976, James was abducted November 24, 1976. If you see this child or have information concerning this child please call toll-free 1-800-431-5005.

This information was recently passed on the Associated Press wire service in an effort to find a missing child. Because of incidents like James' individuals, organizations and businesses nationwide are working to solve missing children cases and put an end to child abduction.

More than 200,000 children under the age of 18 are reported officially missing each year in the United States, says one organization involved in solving missing children cases. Victims of abduction by an estranged parent or stranger, or runaways. Many will be sexually or criminally exploited. Many will be murdered.

Locally, the Fourth Annual Health Fair will place its focus on children by helping parents register identifying information about their children in case it's ever needed. Barbara Holdampf, coordinator, says parents can take their children to the fair and request a Child Registry Handbook.

With the help of Sgt. Fred Pace of Big Spring Police Department, several screenings results at the fair will be entered in each handbook for child identification purposes. Offerings for children include fingerprinting and child identification, puppet shows to educate children and their parents about child abuse, diabetic and dental screening for the young. The handbooks are being made available through the Big Spring Dental Study Club.

Holdampf expects fifty booths at the fair, all offering information and counselling on health matters. In addition to the child identification screenings, the fair also has booths offering other screenings such as blood pressure, diabetes and hematology.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Green Acres Offers a Reason For Landscaping

Some people seem to spend years of their time and lots of money in an effort to come up with a aesthetically pleasing yard. Still others seem to have it all together and need only mow their grass on a weekly basis. Those who have the seemingly effortless lawn have probably spent some time having a landscape developed for them. Debra Lusk, owner of Green Acres Nursery, offers a reason for landscaping and yard maintenance: "General landscaping and yard maintenance provides a more pleasing environment." A well-kept, well-planned yard is much nicer to look at than one that has a hodge-podge of planting with no particular order. Let the professionals at GreenAcres do your yard maintenance and landscaping for you.

Debra and her staff offers a nice friendly service. Customers are welcomed to ask advice, and can be confident of the experience and knowledge the staff has.

Green Acres Nursery carries a wide selection of trees, bedding plants, tropicals and shrubs.

Green Acres, 700 E. 17th, is open 7 days a week for your convenience.

Up Up and Away With Balloons From Rainbarrel

The Rainbarrel General Store lives up to its name — "general store." It stocks a variety of merchandise and is a great place to buy gifts, process film, mail packages and letters. While you're there have lunch in the Goldmine located next door (there's a door in between).

Rainbarrel is featuring one of the largest selections of balloons in the area, with 40 different shapes and styles on display to choose from. Buy one or buy a bouquet and have them personalized at no extra charge. They have balloons such as Garfield, "It's a boy," "It's a girl," Carebear, love balloons, and funny balloons.

Look to Rainbarrel for a complete selection of gifts such as stationary, greeting cards, shadow box figurines, Jelly Bellies (President Reagan's favorite jelly beans), wind chimes, a delicious variety of famous candies and a line of gifts just for men. It's so handy to buy a greeting card or a gift and mail it at the same time, at the Rainbarrel's U.S. Postal Sub-Station. For a small fee, Rainbarrel will wrap your gift and mail it right there.

The Rainbarrel offers same-day service on film processing and on 5x7 enlargements from 35 mm film. They can process all brands and sizes of film including Kodak disc. All film processed is on Kodak paper.

With everything that Rainbarrel has to offer, why run all over town trying to find something for that special person when they have such a wide selection of gifts ideals. The Rainbarrel is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday thru Saturday at College Park Shopping Center.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite cyclic changes now taking place, by using charm and showing interest in others' standpoints, you can make these new arrangements work very much to your advantage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are wisely focusing on financial and property matters today and can add to personal assets. Relieve tensions by being ethical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Others may oppose your personal aims but be diplomatic. Outsiders could give you trouble, but your mate can make you happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to replace difficult newcomers to gain more tranquility and avoid any schemes being perpetrated on you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get busy at whatever is of a practical nature and forget emotional desires that could bring you trouble. Be charming.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Changes may take place where your career is concerned, but this will be for the best. Look for more fascinating interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some long-time partner could take leave of you, but other associates soon come into your life for greater progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Charming an important person in the outside world is wise now, but avoid problematical affairs of a practical nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to have an altercation with one who does not agree with ideas you have, and then co-workers will be cooperative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Rid yourself of antiquated ideas and systems and get your existence on a more streamlined basis.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of that extravagance where entertainment is concerned and be happy within your family circle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Doing something that others will not like at home could bring trouble for you. Do some visiting of friends and neighbors.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Much care in motion and in speech should be exercised today. Look about you tonight, and see how you can improve your home.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have magnetic personality and can get anything he or she wishes by a mere smile, yet will be very thoughtful and kind with others. Provide a good education so that your progeny can be a big success in life and can extend many favors to others as well.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Cruz powers Astros; Tiger bats pound Rangers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Jose Cruz hadn't hit a home run in the Astrodome since July 4, 1983, so he wanted to savor his solo homer that landed high in the right field stands as the Astros defeated the Montreal Expos 3-2 in 10 innings Monday night.

Cruz, who hit 12 home runs on the road last season, hesitated on the first base line to watch his towering home run.

"I don't hit many home runs and it's been two years since I hit one here," Cruz said. "I was just lucky. In this ballpark, I don't try to hit home runs, I just try to make contact and hit the ball hard."

Jerry Mumphrey got the game-winning hit, a 10th inning, pinch-hit single that drove in Terry Puhl from second. Puhl had singled and stole second with one out.

"Puhl stole second to set up the run and then Jerry came up with the key hit," Astros Manager Bob Lillis said.

Dave Smith, 4-1, got the win in relief and Jeff Reardon, 1-1, was the loser.

"Reardon made a good pitch. I just fought it off and got the hit," Mumphrey said. "The ball was just outside the reach of the center fielder."

The Expos tied the game 2-2 with a run in the ninth on Terry Francona's RBI single off Smith.

Until the ninth-inning rally by the Expos, Nolan Ryan had checked Montreal on five hits in eight innings and held a 2-1 lead before he was lifted for reliever Frank DiPino.

Ryan walked but one batter in his eight innings on the mound and struck out seven, boosting his all-time major league-leading total to 3,929.

Houston Astro shortstop DICKIE THON is tagged out by Montreal first baseman DAN DRIESSEN as THON took too big a lead off first base. The Astros beat the Expos 3-2 on a 10th inning home run by JOSE CRUZ.

DETROIT (AP) — A pre-game chewing out by Manager Sparky Anderson shook a lot of the Tigers out of their doldrums Monday night and it also had an enormous effect on Lou Whitaker — who has been the team's hottest hitter.

Whitaker, Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish all homered to power the Detroit Tigers past the Texas Rangers 7-4.

Whitaker's homer, his fourth, led off the Detroit first and cleared the roof in right field.

"I knew it went over the fence, but nothing like what happened," said the surprised Whitaker, who doesn't weigh more than 160 pounds after a full meal. "It was really just a base hit to me. I'm not really the kind of guy to think about stuff like that. I'm glad I didn't take that pitch, though."

"I've seen times when we've started like that and then played badly the rest of the game."

It marked the 20th time a ball has been hit out of Tiger Stadium — 18 over the right field roof. Ruppert Jones, on June 24, 1984, was the last to hit one out. Others who have accomplished the feat include Ted Williams, Mickey Mantle, Reggie Jackson and Gibson.

"I'm in good company, huh?" Whitaker said, laughing. "It's amazing, that's all I can say. I was surprised then, I'm surprised now and I always will be surprised."

It also marked the 12th time in his career that Whitaker has led off with a home run.

"You know what? I didn't realize it," Anderson said. "I said, 'That didn't go out, did it?' Because I didn't see it bouncing around nowhere."

In the second match, Williams played Mary Kay Honensee of Miles and lost in a very tight match, 6-3, 4-6, 9-11. Honensee lost in the finals to Region 1-1A champion Joanna Thompson of Hartley, who Williams split sets with in the Regional finals.

The heat is on for Indy speed burners

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway is a huge test facility this week, with non-qualified drivers searching desperately for speed and those already qualified working to make their cars fast and comfortable for the May 26 Indianapolis 500.

Danny Ongais, one of those already qualified, suffered a setback Monday when he lost control of his March race car and skidded hard into the first-turn wall, suffering bruises to both knees and badly damaging the nose and left side of his car.

Ongais, who has crashed during the Indianapolis 500 twice in the last four years, was taken from the track to nearby Methodist Hospital for X-rays.

Dr. Terry Trammell, an orthopedic surgeon who has operated on Ongais in the past, said Monday night that the driver suffered bruises on his right knee and on the outside of his left foot and wasn't admitted.

Ongais qualified Saturday in the middle of the sixth row at 207.220 mph. If the car cannot be repaired, Ongais would be able to start from the rear of the 33-car grid in the Interscope Team's backup March.

Ongais, who will be 43 next week, had just turned a lap at 210.256 mph when the car went out of control going into the first turn. He made a half-spin 260 feet into the outside wall with the left side of the car. He then slid another 100 feet near the wall, went slightly airborne and hit the wall again. The car then made another half-spin off the wall, crossed the track and came to rest in the infield grass near the second turn.

Sixteen of the 29 drivers who qualified for the tentative lineup in the first two days of time trials made appearances during Monday's practice session on the 2.5-mile oval.

Don Whittington, who stepped in to the March vacated by Gordon Johncock when the latter retired Friday, was fastest at 212.012 mph. That was a bit quicker than the four-lap average of 210.991 that earned him the sixth spot in the tentative lineup.

All of the others were over 200, with Mario Andretti's Lola at 210.921, Emerson Fittipaldi at 210.624 and Ongais at 210.526 before his accident.

Last year's Indy winner, Rick Mears, also practiced above 205 mph on Monday, but he was in his backup car while his already-qualified March was being rebuilt "from the ground up."

The only non-qualified drivers on the track Monday were veteran Tom Bigelow and rookies Jacques

Villeneuve of Canada and Raul Boesel of Brazil. But activity in the garage area was furious as about a dozen cars were readied for practice and possible qualifying attempts Saturday and Sunday.

Once the remaining four places are filled this weekend, the slowest cars in the lineup will be bumped one by one by any faster qualifiers. Time trials are scheduled to end at 7 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Front-row qualifiers Pancho Carter and Scott Brayton didn't practice on Monday. The other front-row qualifier, Bobby Rahal, practiced in his backup at 200.892.

Other quick times included 206.469 by last year's runner-up, Roberto Guerrero, in his backup car; 206.280 by 1983 winner Tom Sneva, whose year-old track record was bettered by nine drivers on Saturday; 206.043 by Pete Halsmer; and 205.432 by Boesel.

Howard Holmes was clocked at 206.091, while Kevin Cogan did a 205.198, Josele Garza of Mexico a 207.564, and Michael Andretti, Mario's 22-year-old son, a 205.432.

Renegades win third over 'Slingers, 21-20

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Orlando Renegades, barring a collapse in the final six weeks of the season, will surpass the modest goal set by first-year Coach Lee Corso.

With their 21-20 victory over San Antonio Monday night, the Renegades amassed their third victory in 12 games this year. They have six chances to top their 3-15 record in 1984 when they were the Washington Federals. That mark was the worst in the United States Football League.

"We've matched the Federals' record of last year, which was one of the goals," Corso said. "Now, we've got to try to build upon that and win."

The Renegades won Monday with two long touchdown passes and a little bit of luck in the form of two missed extra points by San Antonio.

Renegades wide receiver Jerry Parrish ran under a 50-yard bomb from quarterback Reggie Collier for one touchdown. Then, Jackie Flowers turned a short pass from Collier into a 45-yard scoring play.

"Our receivers made the big plays and that was the difference," Corso said. "We asked them to give us two more yards after every catch, and they gave us a lot more than that."

Despite the two long catches, the Renegades didn't lock up what Corso called "the most exciting USFL game this year" until a fourth-down pass from San Antonio quarterback Rich Neuheisel fell short of receiver Don Roberts deep in Orlando territory with time running out.

San Antonio Coach Jim Bates, who watched his team fall to 3-9, said he was impressed by the Renegades.

Queens sign Massie

Howard College Hawk-Queen basketball coach Don Stevens announced the signing of Houston area standout Stephanie Massie to a scholarship Monday.

Massie led her Sugarland Dulles squad to an impressive 28-5 record this year before falling to eventual state runner-up Victoria in the state 5A playoffs. She was selected to the 25-5A All-District first team and was also named the District's Most Valuable Player. Massie was also selected co-player of the year by the Houston area sportswriters in 1985.

The 5'11" post averaged 16 points and 12 rebounds a game while shooting an impressive 60 percent from the floor.

"I feel that Stephanie will have an impressive impact on our Conference next year. She is a strong athlete and possess the natural talents necessary to excel," commented Stevens.
