Councilmen deny Heckler is harassed

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Bailbondsmen and former city council candidate Danny Heckler Tuesday night again leveled charges of harassment at city officials during the council meeting.

According to Heckler, who has received citations for vehicles parked on his sidewalk, city officials enforced a year-old ordinance prohibiting sidewalk parking against only his business.

"The downtown area has a parking problem. Basically, what started this was they were trying to get at me," Heckler told council members.

"Why does it take two police officers to come up to my business and give me a citation? I think it's harassment," Heckler said. "What started it was I sent a letter out on my campaign. It said stuff about Mr. (Don) Davis (the city manager) and PWD (a private corporation). What the hell do you call it if it's not harassment? I'm tired of it."

Councilman Johnny Rutherford did not agree that Heckler was harassed but said, "there is some validity to the thing not being enforced for over a year or two."

In a meeting between merchants, the city attorney, city manager, mayor, municipal judge and Rutherford, officials agreed not to issue tickets for sidewalk parking violations until after a study of the parking problems at each business.

City manager Don Davis had estimated then that most businesses would be able to receive a permit for customer parking at their businesses.

Heckler said he appeared before the council because he was upset that he received a certified letter last week giving him 10 days to remove a portable sign on his sidewalk. The ticket violated the no-citation agreement, he said.

Councilmen told Heckler the sign violated a different ordinance.

"It's two entirely different things. It's a sign obstructing the right-of-way and the visibility. I don't recall Johnny (Rutherford) coming up here at that time and calling us and saying we were harassing him," said Councilman Russ McEwen.

Rutherford had told Heckler earlier that he had received notice to move a portable sign two years ago, when he first started business, and had complied.

"We're not harassing you," McEwen said.

Coahoma picks up trash issue again

By LUIS RIOS
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — City Council members Tuesday afternoon unanimously approved a proposal to present the city's attorney with recommendations for a new trash collection contract.

Mayor Pro-Tem Barbara Robertson and Mayor Eleanor Garrett told the councilmen of some of the recommendations for a possible contract with Gerald King, who has contracted to collect trash.

Some of the proposed changes include:

- Change rates currently being charged by the Kings;
- Collect trash at food

establishments three times a week (the Kings currently haul trash once a week);

• Maintain the contract for one year, to be reviewed and possibly renewed after that period;

• Require the Kings to meet insurance requirements as requested by the city.

Garrett said the proposed rate change will mean more money for the city.

"We figured it out and the city will get a little more money," Garrett said. "But we desperately need it."

The rates will not adversely affect what the Kings are currently making, she said. The recommen-

Oilmen split over public drilling logs

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A move to force oil well operators to make their confidential "electric logs" public won tentative House approval Tuesday in a close 75-61 vote.

Approval on the second of three readings came despite claims that the effect of the bill is like forcing Coca Cola to turn over its secret soft drink formula.

A final vote is slated for Wednesday in the House before it heads for the Senate.

The so-called electric log readouts detail geological characteristics of the formations surrounding a well, and are valuable in helping geologists find new and promising drilling sites.

Bill sponsor Tom Craddick, R-Midland, said a major reason for the legislation is that a lot of that valuable log information is lost or destroyed.

Instead of being lost forever, he said, it should be made available to the public within three years "in order to help find new sources of energy for the future."

Rep. Richard Williamson, D-Weatherford, tried to kill the bill and amend it to give drillers more time to keep their logs secret. But all attempts failed.

"I'm concerned we're taking something a driller paid for and in three years we're going to make it public property," Williamson said, adding that such a move is an unconstitutional seizure of private property.

As amended, Craddick's bill would require operators to file a copy of every log run on a new well with the Railroad Commission within one year.

On request, the commission would keep that log confidential for two more years for land-based wells and four years for offshore wells.

For those operators failing to turn over a well's log, the Railroad Commission could order the well with the missing log shut down.

Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas, said the bill gives the state "an opportunity to develop oil resources in a logical fashion."

Bruce on loose: wed day is Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock star Bruce Springsteen has married model Julianne Phillips and the newlyweds are enjoying their honeymoon in an undisclosed location. Or are they?

In today's New York Daily News, society columnist Suzy reports the New Jersey singer-songwriter remained in Oregon with his bride-to-be, and the couple were to be married later today after staging a phony wedding earlier this week.

Miss Phillips' mother, Anne, today denied the report, saying, "They got married on the 13th."

However, Mrs. Phillips declined to comment when asked if a reception was planned for today.

Suzy said the ceremony early Monday trumpeted around the world as the real thing was instead a run-through which was passed off as the wedding to clear the throng of reporters and fans from the bride's hometown of Lake Oswego, Ore.

According to the report, all involved in Monday's cloak-and-dagger service were aware the genuine wedding would be today. Suzy reported the nuptials would most likely occur in the 25-year-old Miss Phillips' home or at Our Lady of the Lake Church in her hometown.

Springsteen, 35, has gained worldwide attention since the release of his 1975 "Born to Run" album, which landed him on the covers of Time and Newsweek in the same week. His current album, "Born in the U.S.A.," has been at the top of the charts since its release 11 months ago.

Neither Springsteen nor Miss Phillips has been married before.

Execution at midnight

De la Rosa asked for forgiveness before his death

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas prison inmate Jesse de la Rosa, professing love for his stepmother and asking forgiveness for his sins, was put to death by injection early today for the 1979 slaying of a San Antonio convenience store clerk.

De la Rosa, 24, was pronounced dead at 12:17 a.m. CDT, four minutes after a lethal dose of chemicals was injected into veins in both arms.

He made his final statement staring at the ceiling. He told his stepmother, Carmen, who was in the death chamber with him, "I love you."

"God forgive my brothers and sisters for sins I have committed," de la Rosa said in Spanish in his final words.

His stepmother, who was accompanied by the condemned man's father, Luciano, replied in English, "You'll never die because you'll always be in my memories."

His father added in Spanish, "God forgive my son."

De la Rosa then added, "God, I give my life for my brothers and sisters.

JESSE DE LA ROSA

When he gasped and his stomach buckled, his stepmother began sobbing. She was comforted by his father, who also was in tears.

The couple left the prison without further comment.

De la Rosa's execution, the third carried out this year by the Texas Department of Corrections, came after two days of unsuccessful appeals by his attorneys.

Late Tuesday, the U.S. Supreme Court voted 7-2 to deny him new hearings. Then Gov. Mark White, as he has in previous death sentences, refused to grant a 30-day reprieve.

On Monday, de la Rosa was turned down by a federal appeals court and the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Attorneys sought a hearing to consider what they said was new evidence — sworn statements from de la Rosa, his brother and two unnamed people who said de la Rosa did not kill Masoud Ghazali, a former Iranian Air Force captain working as a clerk in a 7-Eleven store.

"They say because Jesse has waited so long, it's really not new evidence," attorney Ralph Lopez said.

"Those issues were raised and not accepted by the courts," Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

"Justice as determined by jury and the court was carried out tonight."

White, in giving a reason for his decision, also said no new grounds were presented that already had not been reviewed by the courts.

After sleeping in his cell outside the death chamber early Tuesday, de la Rosa spent the bulk of the day visiting with 18 relatives.

He was "pretty calm" throughout the day and showed no emotion when told that his final appeals had been rejected, prison spokesman Charles Brown said.

After a steak dinner for his final meal, he spoke by telephone for about 20 minutes to a longtime friend, Margie Garcia of San Antonio, and shortly after 8 p.m. he received communion from a prison priest, the Rev. Stephen Walsh.

It was the second death date for de la Rosa, who said in an interview a week ago that he was coerced into confessing to the slaying of Ghazali. He refused, however, to identify the triggerman.

ations will be presented to the City Attorney Robert Miller sometime this week, said Garrett.

The council and Garrett also took some time from the meeting to recognize the work of former councilman Lawrence Aberegg, who died early Tuesday morning of a heart attack.

Garrett said Aberegg had been instrumental in much of the public works begun by the city. She also said he had worked closely with city crews on street repairs.

Aberegg, along with Cecil Welch and John L. Ferguson of Martin County, helped spread caliche and make street improvements in the Foster Addition.

The city also voted to contract certified public accountant Steve Stone to serve as the city's auditor.

Approved a recommendation to remove a partition in the back room of city hall to make more space available for filing cabinet space, a possible office for the mayor and also more room for the Coahoma volunteer fire department.

The councilmen tabled a proposal to change the salary for emergency help after hours and weekends for city maintenance.

Parking

"I wouldn't admit to it either, Russ," Heckler replied.

Heckler also complained that he was the only person to receive tickets for sidewalk parking before the temporary no-tickets decision pending the outcome of a city study.

Councilman Larry Miller denied that Heckler was singled out when the first letters giving 10 days' notice on sidewalk parking were issued. "You were one of 56 letters sent out," Miller told Heckler.

The majority of the letters mailed out in February and March were sent to residences, with the exception of Heckler and about five other downtown businesses, according to records Police Chief Rick Turner had after the meeting.

When Heckler asked about parking at Miller's business, Carver Drive-In Pharmacy at 310 E. Ninth, he replied: "If you can park on my sidewalk, I'll eat it."

Heckler also called on councilmen to enforce the no-parking policy for all merchants. "You can either enforce it all or you can all go to hell."

"You watch your mouth," new Mayor Pro Tem Harold Hall responded.

"I'm mad," Heckler said.

Head Start students at the Lakeview school are busy working Wednesday morning. The program celebrated its 20th anniversary of existence. The program was started in 1945 by President Lyndon Johnson.

Students' concert tops Head Start anniversary

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

In the summer of 1965, 200 disadvantaged Big Spring children between the ages of 3 and 5 and half a million others nationwide helped the federal government test a promising program.

That program was called Head Start. And after 20 years of service "It seems to be surviving strongly," Big Spring program director Dr. E.S. Morgan said yesterday.

Last night the program celebrated its birthday in the Lakeview School Gymnasium, which is now the Head Start center in Big Spring. Children in the program gave a spring concert and Lynn Wise superintendent of schools delivered a speech to the approximately 300 gathered for the party.

Mayor Clyde Angel proclaimed the day "Head Start Day" in honor of the program's birthday.

"We had a great turnout," Head Start clerk Minga Rangel said. "It was beautiful."

She said that the children received inspiration from the superintendent's speech and sang "happy birthday" to the program.

Refreshments were served and all participants in the program past and present were recognized by Dr. Morgan.

"The whole idea (of the program) is to provide an environment where children can feel good about themselves and others," Morgan said.

The original project was launched by President Lyndon B. Johnson's Office of Economic Opportunity in 2,350 communities across the nation.

The first Big Spring Head Start classes were then begun in Lakeview, Cedar Crest, Boydston and Bauer schools. Keith Swimm was the first Big Spring program director. Harold Bentley took his place in 1975 with Morgan replacing him in the fall of 1976.

Head Start still follows the same guidelines as in 1965, Morgan said and has had few changes. The primary objective is to ensure that no child lacks environmental stimulation or opportunity to develop his or her full range of abilities, he said.

Secondary objectives are to increase knowledge among parents and involve them in the educational opportunities of their child.

Morgan said that in addition to this, physical and dental examinations are given to students when they enroll in the program. These examinations are often the first the children have received.

"We catch a lot of medical problems in the children early," said nurse Glenda Low. One that she felt was a major discovery was finding that a child was deaf when the parents had thought, that he simply could not talk.

"If its just one child, one family and we get them on the right track, it's a good feeling," she said.

"If he (a student) is physically able or capable and well nurtured, he will learn in school," he said.

The program has eight components, Morgan said, education, health and dental, handicapped, nutrition, parental involvement, mental health, social service, and administrative duties which he handles.

Morgan said Head Start overcomes the problems of underprivileged and handicapped children early in order to make their school years more productive.

He quoted President Johnson as saying in 1965, "The success of this year's program and our plans for years to come are symbols of our national commitment to the goal that no American child shall be condemned to failure by the accident of birth."

Morgan said what makes the program a big success in Big Spring is not only the 24 employees in the program but the large contribution of the parents.

He said that he believed parents were the prime educators of their children. What was surprising to him, he said, was that the involvement of parents in their children's education drop considerably after completion of the program for their children.

In 1970, Morgan said the program took on Lakeview as its education center. Since the original program begun he said it has served over 4,000 Howard County students.

Bank lowers prime rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Bankers Trust, the nation's eighth-largest bank, cut its prime lending rate today by a half percentage point to 10 percent, its lowest level in more than 6 1/2 years.

Analysts had been predicting a cut in the prime rate for several weeks because the interest rates set in the money-markets, where banks get a sizeable portion of their lendable funds, have fallen.

The reduction by Bankers Trust, the first in the industry since mid-January, put the widely watched interest charge at its lowest level since October 1978.

The prime rate is a benchmark against which banks measure rates on other short-term loans to small- and medium-size businesses. Large businesses are often able to borrow at rates below the prime rate, while many smaller borrowers frequently must pay more.

The prime rate is also important to Third World borrowers, many of whom pay interest charges pegged to the prime rate.

Reagan gets pickled

CHICAGO — Pickle Packers International has named President Reagan Pickle Person of the Year because he "has gotten into a lot of pickles this year, but he has gotten out of them, too."

Bill Moore, executive vice president of Pickle Packers International, said Tuesday the president's pickles included "a number of hotly contested appointments," as well as the furor over a joking comment Reagan made about bombing the Soviet Union before a radio broadcast last year.

As a symbol of the honor, Moore said the president would receive a three-foot inflatable plastic pickle May 23, which is the first day of International Pickle Week.

Moore said the pickle awards have gone to other presidents, including Richard Nixon, who won one during the Watergate period.

Convicted killer escapes

CHICAGO — Two inmates, including one convicted of killing Washington cardiologist Dr. Michael Halberstam in 1980, have escaped from a prison here, according to the U.S. marshal's office.

The two apparently made their escape Tuesday night by breaking a window and a portion of the surrounding wall, then lowering themselves with an electrical extension cord, said Peter Wilkes, a spokesman for the office.

He identified them as Bernard Welch, 45, of Great Falls, Va., serving 143 years to life for the murder of Halberstam, and Hugh Thomas Colomb, 31, of Rutland, Vt., serving 48 years on various charges.

Death toll reaches six in MOVE group bombing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police using a huge crane today dug through the charred ruins of a radical group's house, seeking more bodies after a daylong siege by police and a fire that also set the neighborhood ablaze.

All or parts of six charred bodies, two of them the remains of children, were removed Tuesday from the ruins of the house formerly occupied by the group MOVE.

Meanwhile, the mayor defended a decision to drop a bomb on the house as appropriate although it "did not turn out as intended," while critics said police overreacted and should have been aware of the danger of fire.

And the city's police commissioner said officials now believe the MOVE members who had been barricaded in the house had a hand in starting the fire, and said members apparently had spread flammable material around their compound.

Representatives of the health department, fire department, medical examiner's office and mayor's office joined police in the search for bodies.

"I imagine it's going to be an all-day thing," said police Detective Jerry Whartenby.

Fire Commissioner William Richmond described the unidentified remains found Tuesday "as two male adults, one female adult, parts of another adult, one female child, and multiple parts of at least one other child."

Some reports had said as many as 12 adults and 10 children had been holed up in the house before the police tried to clear them out. Other reports about the squalid fortress said that MOVE members had dug a labyrinth of tunnels from the basement, and police were looking for signs of escape routes.

The fire that damaged or destroyed dozens of homes in the middle-class neighborhood broke out after police dropped a bomb on the roof of MOVE headquarters.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode, who denounced MOVE as a group "dedicated to the destruction of our way of life," said he accepted responsibility for the fire, though he said it was not known who started it. He promised the estimated 225 neighborhood residents who were displaced by the fire that the city would pay to rebuild their houses. Damage is estimated at at least $5 million.

Police Commissioner Gregore Sambor, interviewed today on the "CBS Morning News," said, "We did not create any fire."

"The fire did start inside the house," said Sambor, who ordered the bomb dropped. He said police had tested the bomb on wood-and-tar paper structures without starting any fires.

"To the best of our knowledge, the MOVE members had spread flammable material in their compound and in neighboring areas," he said, in explaining why the fire burned so hot and spread so quickly.

MOVE members had said they were "prepared to die," he said.

MOVE follows a philosophy espoused by its founder, Vincent Leaphart, who later took the name John Africa. Its members, who use the surname Africa, eschewed contact with bureaucracy and kept scores of dogs and welcomed rats into their home as part of their back-to-nature outlook.

Some residents said the police overreacted.

U.S.-Soviet cooperation

VIENNA, Austria — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz today stressed the importance of U.S.-Soviet cooperation, recalling the "victory for reason and peace" that resulted from the creation of a free and neutral Austria after World War II.

Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko attended ceremonies marking the 39th anniversary of postwar Austria a day after airing "a lot of differences" during a six-hour meeting.

In a speech prepared for delivery at ceremonies in Vienna, Shultz said the nine years of U.S.-Soviet negotiations over Austria may provide a lesson for current talks in Geneva on nuclear weapons and in Vienna on troop reductions.

Shultz said East and West, working in a spirit of cooperation and goodwill, "can find ways to work together for the benefit of all concerned." He called the agreement on Austria a victory for neither side, "but a victory for all — a victory for reason and peace."

Pope off to Luxembourg

AMERSFOORT, Netherlands — Pope John Paul II, concluding his conflict-ridden Dutch visit with a staunch defense of church doctrine, travels today to predominantly Roman Catholic Luxembourg.

The pontiff was scheduled to go by helicopter from the central Dutch city of Amersfoort, where he spent the night at a convent of the Sisters of Notre Dame, to Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport for the one-hour flight to Luxembourg's Findel Airport.

In Luxembourg, John Paul's first scheduled stop was the 17th-century Cathedral of Our Lady to meet with 1,000 sick, handicapped and aged people. In the evening, the pope was to say Mass for workers and immigrants outside a steel plant.

An estimated 96,700 people, more than a quarter of Luxembourg's population of 365,000, are immigrants. The largest groups are Portuguese and Italians.

8 kidnap U.N. official

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Eight gunmen armed with assault rifles and pistols kidnaped an Irishman who is acting director of a U.N. relief agency as he drove to work in a Muslim west Beirut today, an agency spokeswoman said.

Meanwhile, sectarian fighting raged in Beirut for the 18th straight day and two senior Lebanese Christian leaders appealed for Syrian intervention to stop the fighting. Four people were killed and 110 wounded, raising the 18-day toll to 96 killed and 513 wounded.

Wafa Tanir, a U.N. spokeswoman, said Aidan Walsh, an assistant director of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency, was abducted in the seaside Manara neighborhood.

Dotson meets accuser, accepts apology

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Dotson, face-to-face with the woman whose rape accusations sent him to prison six years ago, told a national television audience today he had accepted her apology and they "shook hands."

"I more or less had to get some things out and meet the person," said Dotson during an interview on NBC's "Today" show with Cathleen Crowell Webb, who has recanted her assertions that Dotson raped her.

"She's a different person today than eight years ago, and I just had to meet her."

Both said they had talked Tuesday night in a meeting arranged by their lawyers prior to their television appearance.

"Well, it was a mutual meeting, mutual agreement," Mrs. Webb said. "I, of course, apologized for what I don't think I could apologize enough. It was a friendly meeting."

Asked if he accepted her apology, Dotson replied, "Oh, yeah. We shook hands."

"She paid me back by coming forward," Dotson said, commenting on Mrs. Webb's earlier statement that she wished she had a million dollars to give him.

Mrs. Webb said despite Gov. James R. Thompson's refusal to clear Dotson's rape conviction, "I believe the people of America know Gary Dotson is innocent ... He's not a rapist. He doesn't have the character of a rapist."

The meeting followed high-level jockeying by the NBC and ABC television networks for the first interview with the two side by side, with "Today" winning a battle over ABC's "Good Morning America." Interviews on both ABC and CBS followed.

Arrangements for the meeting were made after Thompson on Sunday commuted Dotson's 25- to 50-year sentence to the six years already served.

Test pilot killed in crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of only two prototypes of the F-20 Tigershark military jet crashed during a practice flight in Canada, killing the test pilot, according to a spokesman for Northrop Corp., which made the single-engine fighter.

The cause of the crash Tuesday in Goose Bay, Labrador, was unknown, said Tony Cantifo.

He said the pilot, 40-year-old David Barnes, of Palmdale, was practicing routines for the Paris Air Show when the plane went down. Barnes joined Northrop in 1982 as an engineer-test pilot, Cantifo said.

It was the second fatal crash of an F-20 in seven months. Pilot error was blamed for the first F-20 crash, which killed Northrop's chief test pilot, Darrell Cornell, during a demonstration near Seoul, South Korea, last October.

Northrop still has an F-20 undergoing flight tests at Edwards Air Force Base.

Opinion

Memory ID cards may be too good

Soon people with Blue Cross and Blue Shield health insurance in Maryland will carry plastic cards with a life-saving memory.

The "Life Card" is the size and shape of a credit card. But instead of raised letters, giving name and identification number, it has a programmable area using laser technology similar to that used for video discs and compact audio discs.

The card can be encoded with up to 800 pages of information. The patient's medical record — doctors, treatments, hospitalizations, drugs — can be decoded by a computer, making the patient's entire case history available.

The card costs less than $2 to produce. The decoding equipment costs less than $1,000.

This card will revolutionize medical record-keeping. It will allow patients to carry their own medical histories in their wallets. The patient will give authorization to have his records read, preserving privacy. Currently, patients have no physical control over who reads their medical records kept in office files.

The advantage for medical treatment is obvious: Physicians will have access to their patient's entire medical history.

The advantage to the insurer is also clear: Detailed hospitalization records and other billing records will be available at each office or hospital visit.

The potential for adapting record cards is great: Military dog tags, welfare records criminal dossiers, employee records, education transcripts could all be similarly encoded and carried by individuals.

The potential for abuse is also grave: Record cards could be used to violate the right of privacy, guaranteed by the Constitution.

Technology is the vector that best defines the progress of civilization. It cannot be halted. But its use must be guided and controlled by law. Personal records must be kept private, no matter whether they are printed on paper or inscribed by laser on plastic.

Wall Street diction tops Texas twang

How come a talented fellow like me has never made it into the ranks of high-powered executives? I know you've wondered about that, and if you want to know the truth, the question has crossed my mind, too.

Pondering it inevitably fosters dark suspicions. After all, my persistent failure to transcend workday mopey couldn't have anything to do with ability. I mean, you don't need too much talent to ride around in limousines, run up restaurant bills on the company expense account and get your brains beat out by foreign competition, which is about all our present executives know how to do. No, it must be something else. But what?

Thanks to the Wall Street Journal, the bible of the boardroom set, I've found the answer. It's not my wardrobe, my club memberships, my sense of humor, my political leanings or the fact that I wouldn't know a debenture from a car-buretor. It's my voice. However much I love the sound of it, it's weighing me down like a ball and chain as I try to ascend the corporate ladder.

Judging from the advice the Journal recently offered to aspiring managers, success resides not in managerial acumen or financial wizardry, but solely in the voice box: "When you speak, you color your ideas with the way you sound. Tunes, rhythms and inflections convey moods and attitudes that may undermine your intended meaning. On the other hand, an executive who is in command of his own voice is rarely misinterpreted by his staff."

There are all sorts of traps an untutored tongue can lead you into. Sloppy diction, says the Journal, makes you sound uneducated. Ditto for an "ethnic or regional accent." A nasal monotone? "Could signal a general lack of enthusiasm." A guttural voice? Implies "a belligerent attitude." "Sibilance" suggests "irritability."

This just shows how far I am from mastering executive fundamentals. Here I always thought my boss's efforts at oral expression were meant to communicate his belligerence, irritability and general lack of enthusiasm, thus inducing the state of terror required to keep me working like a field hand. Poor misunderstood soul, he merely lacked adequate voice training to convey his real meaning.

Once you know what constitutes adequate voice training, it's surprising that anyone has it. To hear the Journal tell, it means learning to manipulate the heart, lungs, rib cage, stomach muscles, lips, tongue and teeth with the facility of Van Cliburn interpreting Rachmaninoff. "When you deliberately exhale and inhale through the abdominal muscles and ribs, you activate the entire torso. You focus your speaking away from the chest and throat to the large central muscles," etc., etc.

I don't find it hard to believe that this sort of skill is required to win a starring role in the Metropolitan Opera, or possibly even the Rotary Club's high school oration contest. But it never occurred to me that proper use of the abdominal muscles is essential to tell the help to get cracking or else face prompt unemployment.

Obviously that's why I'm still toiling away as a scribbler instead of smugly pulling the levers of power in the boardroom. I would have sworn that eliminating my monotone, softening the harsh edges in my diction and cleaning up that Texas accent would accomplish nothing beyond making me sound like a 90-proof jerk. But now the Wall Street Journal tells me that the executive suites are reserved for those who sound like TV anchormen. With this kind of advice, it could be the 23rd century before American businesses catch up with Japan.

And furthermore — whoops, better stop now. My boss is bellowing at the top of his lungs, "If I don't have that column in 15 seconds you're going to be working the night police beat in the Budapest bureau!" He probably doesn't mean it the way it sounds, but I'd rather not take the chance. Who knows? Maybe he's already had his voice training.

Defense bid gets royal treatment

WASHINGTON — Bowing to the wishes of the reclusive sultan of Oman, U.S. officials are on the verge of an apparently unprecedented move: awarding a foreign company a major contract for secret American military work.

The prospect is so unnerveing to security-minded U.S. experts that announcement of the contract has been held up for four months while the Pentagon, the CIA and the National Security Council investigate the matter.

Complicating the situation is the fear of offending the sultan, whom the Reagan administration has high hopes of converting into a loyal American ally similar to the late shah of Iran.

The contract in question is for the "caretaking" of three Omani facilities, which the United States has already spent more than $200 million improving. The facilities can be used by the U.S. Central Command (formerly the Rapid Deployment Force). One of the facilities will house highly sensitive communications and intelligence equipment.

Oman is the only state in the strategic Persian Gulf area that has agreed to let U.S. military forces use bases on its territory in a crisis.

Although the caretaking contract is ostensibly worth about $50 million, Pentagon sources told us it could well blossom into a $2 billion bonanza for the winning company. Aware of this, 14 U.S. firms — and one British company, Airwork Ltd. — sent representatives on a site visit in October 1983 and submitted preliminary bids on the project.

Three U.S. companies — Northrop, Bendix and EG & G Intertech — wound up on the "short list" of bidders after U.S. government reviews. Each firm spent $200,000 to $1 million on its bid.

That's when Sultan Qabus bin Said's whim of iron made itself felt.

The 44-year-old absolute ruler's British advisers — including his old Sandhurst buddy, Timothy Landon — made it clear to the Pentagon that they weren't happy about the exclusion of Airwork Ltd. from the contract.

Landon, who has made millions as the sultan's most influential adviser, and Eric Bennett, a British officer detached to serve as chief of the Omani air force, visited the Pentagon more than a year ago to solicit contracts for British firms in Oman, including Airwork.

U.S. officials were understandably reluctant to turn their sensitive equipment and a lucrative contract over to a British firm, which would somehow have to obtain U.S. "secret" clearance. But they were equally reluctant to antagonize the sultan or his British friends, who seemed to have the inside track with the monarch.

The touchy matter remained in limbo for months. Then on March 17, 1984, U.S. Ambassador John Countryman in Oman sent a secret cable to Washington disclosing that the Omani foreign minister had given him a diplomatic note requesting that Airwork be awarded the contract.

Another cable 10 days later reported that a Briton high in the Omani military had suggested — in an obvious effort to make the Airwork award more palatable — that the contract be given to a joint venture of the British firm and an American one, Vinnell Corp.

On April 2, Secretary of State George Shultz secretly cabled the U.S. ambassador that he accepted the Omani foreign minister's request as the authoritative view of the sultan. But still the contract award has been held up for the various investigations by U.S. agencies.

"We're kind of caught in one of those foreign policy binds," a high Pentagon official told us. "The sultan and his boys are squeezing everybody, which makes it a difficult situation. We want to get our (military) requirements taken care of over there and do it the right way, but we're getting pressure to do something that is very marginal, and that's where the damn rub comes in."

PRISONERS OF LOVE: Coeducational federal prison facilities for young offenders are bearing fruit in unanticipated ways: Young female inmates are having children as a result of inter-sex mingling during work and recreation periods.

Though men and women are segregated from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., this wasn't enough to prevent 57 births, 33 elective abortions and eight miscarriages in the federal prison system during fiscal 1984.

One 23-year-old inmate who gave birth to a child last September and expects another this fall, blames the government for putting her in an environment that leads to such natural consequences. She has submitted a claim against the Bureau of Prisons, demanding $10 million for allowing her to become pregnant.

DRUG-BUSTER UPDATE: We reported recently on helicopter harassment and other Fourth Amendment violations visited upon innocent residents of northern California's "marijuana mountainsides" by federal-state drug-busters. California law-enforcement officials, who had let the rural families' complaints go unchallenged in court, subsequently leaked their contradictory claims to a sympathetic reporter.

But the federal judge's findings we quoted — and his order to the drug-busters to stop trampling on citizens' constitutional rights — have now been upheld by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. It added that law-enforcement teams are prohibited from "deliberate, knowing and intentional helicopter flights under 500 feet over residential structures, persons and vehicles."

Power plants help cut energy use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a projected increase in U.S. energy consumption, Americans will use less oil and also rely less on foreign sources for it in 1985, largely because of new coal-burning and nuclear power plants, the government said Tuesday.

The Energy Information Administration estimates that energy consumption this year will rise another 2 percent atop the 4.6 percent increase in 1984 — a jump that reversed four years of steady decreases.

Even with the increase in consumption, Americans will still use 5 percent less energy in 1985 than they did in 1979, when a revolution in Iran doubled oil prices and set off widespread efforts to both conserve energy and develop alternatives for imported oil.

In its quarterly short-term energy outlook, the Energy Information Administration predicted U.S. oil consumption this year will fall 130,000 barrels per day, or about 1 percent, from the 15.7 million barrels consumed daily in 1984.

Oil imports are expected to drop 190,000 barrels per day as domestic production rises 120,000 barrels to 11.1 million barrels daily, according to the agency, which is an arm of the Department of Energy.

Scott Sitzer, an analyst for the agency, said most of the decrease in petroleum consumption represents falling demand for residual fuel oil, "especially by electric utilities."

The completion this year of several new coal-burning power plants and up to a dozen nuclear units begun in the 1970s will replace nearly one-fourth of the remaining oil-fired electrical generating capacity in the nation, according to EIA figures.

Sitzer said new coal-burning plants are expected to produce 74 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity in 1984 with new atomic reactors adding another 40 billion kilowatt-hours.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission now has plans to grant operating licenses to 11 new atomic plants this year, putting the total number of operating nuclear plants in the country at close to 100.

The new coal and nuclear plants will reduce oil's remaining share of the nation's total electricity production from 5 percent in 1984 to 3.8 percent in 1985. Just five years ago, oil produced more than 10 percent of the nation's electricity.

As for gasoline supplies, they should be adequate to meet summer vacation travel demands, the agency said. A 1.7 percent increase in fuel efficiency in the nation's automobile fleet over last year will largely offset a project 2.5 percent increase in the number of miles Americans are expected to travel in 1985, Sitzer said.

All of the projections are based on the assumption that economic growth, as measured by the Gross National Product, will drop from 6.9 percent in 1984 to 3.1 percent this year. They also assume that crude oil prices will remain at about $28 a barrel.

For other energy sources, the agency projects that:

- Coal consumption will rise about 6 percent to 835 million tons in 1985, while domestic coal production rises about 1 percent to 890 million tons.

- Natural gas consumption will rise about 3 percent to 18 trillion cubic feet a year, while domestic gas production remains stable at 17.2 trillion cubic feet.

- Electric power generation will increase a total of 3 percent in 1985, compared with a 6 percent increase last year.

Pack attack

By KEELY COGHLAN

CLUB FED — The pack was at its finest, a-howl'n' and a-yippin' at everything but the moon.

What do you get when you dump a double handful of journalists, cameramen and photographers on the doorsteps of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp and tell them to watch for two celebrity prisoners?

You get frustration. You get jokes about the water, about the dust — if I hear one more person say, "Well, Lubbock just blew by," I will just scream — about the nightlife in Big Spring.

And of course you get the jokes about the prison. Everything from sniggers that Ralph Lauren designs the uniforms to quips about the caviar and champagne at lunchtime. (Reliable sources deny both.)

When stockbroker Billy Bob Harris, the first of the dynamic duo convicted for lying about an insider stock trading scheme, rolled up in his Ford Bronco, the rabid pack was unleashed.

"Did you bring your tennis racket?" "Do you play golf?" "Do you think this is easy time?" Smelling blood, they jumped over cars in the parking lot to shove mikes into Harris' already grim face.

Harris probably learned how to spell relief "P-R-I-S-O-N."

To be fair, the Dallas and state reporters must have asked him about his prison sentence — whether he was being singled out — before. Maybe that was old news, at least to them.

But did they really expect the man to say a word when confronted by such an obvious, "oh, you're going away for sun and fun" mentality?

I didn't. I don't think it too important whether Harris' shirt was tan or lavender. And I can almost — almost — see why former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer slipped in the back door.

Yeah, the hot issues of the gay were how much sun we were getting, who was in the car that went by, will we make our flight, where will we "do" lunch, and what everyone had done to be exiled to Big Spring for the day.

Some journalists might say I lack the instinct for the jugular. Not so; some questions deserve the hard-ball approach. But "do you plan to work on your tennis game?"

For this they flew a crew down from WFAA in Dallas?

It seemed utterly fitting that we were deciding where to send out for lunch when we found out Thayer had slipped by. The whole day had become surreal, waiting for Godot.

As Hemingway would say, farewell to sunburnt arms.

Plaque attack in fair

The significance of dental health care will be emphasized at the 4th annual Big Spring Health Fair at the Big Spring Mall Saturday, according to Dr. Alice Haynes, director of the dental hygiene program at Howard College.

Up to 98 percent of all children will at some time in their school lives experience tooth decay, disease of the supporting tissues or other deviations from normal dental health.

To assist persons in recognizing the importance of good oral hygiene, the phase contrast microscope will be demonstrated. A small amount of plaque will be removed from the surfaces of the teeth of people participating in the screening at the health fair. This microscope will allow participants to view the live oral microorganisms in the plaque on a television monitor, Haynes said.

According to Haynes, contrary to popular belief, it is not food particles that frequent brushing supposedly removes that cause most dental diseases. Instead, the culprit is plaque, a colorless accretion of mouth bacteria that adheres to surfaces of the teeth and gum crevices.

Howard College dental hygiene students will be assisting local dental hygienists in demonstrating proper brushing and removal of plaque with dental floss and other dental tools. By denying the bacteria the sugar with which they react to form tooth decaying acid, most people could keep their mouths healthy, according to Dr. Haynes.

Local dentists will also be there to complete dental charts on children for identification purposes. Dental identification has received much publicity for being an invaluable tool in identifying lost or missing children. Child registry handbooks are being donated by the Big Spring Dental Study Club, according to Dr. Charles Rainwater.

The Big Spring dental community will be performing this service in conjunction with Sgt. Fred Pace of the Big Spring Police Department. Pace will also be available for children's fingerprints.

The dental health screening educational exhibit is one of 50 different health screening — educational exhibits to be offered at the fair, according to Barbara Holdampf, chairman of the event.

Fire damages roof of shed

Firemen Tuesday evening extinguished a roof fire on a vacant shed at 1314 Mesa, according to reports.

Six firemen in two pumpers arrived at the fire at 7:12 p.m. to find the roof burning, according to Arson Investigator Burr Lea Settles.

The fire caused about $200 damage to the roof of the shed, Settles estimated. The cause of the fire has not been determined but it started on the outside of the structure, he said.

Firemen had extinguished the fire and returned to the station by 7:33 p.m., Settles said.

Because the house was vacant, firemen do not know who the owner is, he said.

Firemen also doused flames in discarded bedding on fire in a stream bed one mile east of FM 700 on the 11th Place Extension, according to reports.

Three firemen responded to the report at 12:36 p.m. and had put out the fires in two mattresses and a pillow by 12:56.

nurse's uniform from the Vietnam era; Lucy Griffith in the early 1800s London Style (during that era, those who cared for others as nurses were considered low-lives until Nightingale turned the profession around); Claudia Turner in a late 1800s Florence Nightingale uniform; and Zasser Gatson in a World War I nurse's uniform.

Glasscock 4-Hers win awards at District 6 Fashion Show

Glasscock County 4-Hers took three of the top 11 awards presented at the District 4-H Fashion Show in Odessa, County Extension Agent Kathryn Burch said.

First place awards went to Tiffany Jost, Paula Wilde, and Charlene Schraeder.

Jost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jost, constructed green crop pants with matching plaid short shirt. Her award was presented in the Junior II Non-Tailored Division.

In the Junior II Tailored Division, Wilde fashioned a suit of red, white and blue. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilde.

Schraeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Schraeder, qualified to compete in the active sportswear division at the state meet in Lubbock this summer. Her entry was a sporty shorts set of soft green and plaid matching shirt.

Glasscock County 4-Hers also brought home other awards. Michele Pechacek won first place in the textile show for sewing machine competition. Her entry was a plastic-lined cosmetic bag. She also took third in the senior division.

Kristi Jones was third in the daytime non-tailored. Jackie Halfmann was third in evening and specialty wear. Audrey Strube placed second in Junior I specialty wear. Her entry was baby doll pajamas in a teddy bear print.

Dear Abby

Foursome uncoupled by feelings

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago I found a wonderful man I'll call Joe. We are perfect for each other in every way. Joe introduced me to his best friend, "Jack," who is married to a girl I'll call Joyce. Well, Joe and I and Jack and Joyce became a regular foursome.

I sensed a definite closeness between Joyce and my Joe, so I half-kidnappingly asked Joe if he had ever been to bed with Joyce. He said yes, but that was before he met me. Well, I just freaked out! I refused to socialize with Joyce, and I told her why.

Joe thinks I'm being childish and selfish, but I can't help it. Every time I look at Joyce I visualize her in bed with my Joe and I can't handle it.

The foursome is broken up, and Jack doesn't know the real reason. Joyce told him that she and I had a falling-out. (He doesn't know what happened between Joe and Joyce before he married her.)

I realize that what went on between Joe and Joyce happened before he knew me, but I still resent the fact that she once shared the same kind of special relationship with my Joe that I now have. Whose fault is this mess? It's not my fault that I can't look at Joyce without wanting to cry.

ANONYMOUS IN OHIO

DEAR ANONYMOUS: For openers, you shouldn't have asked Joe if he had ever been to bed with Joyce. (It's none of your business.) And Joe shouldn't have told you. You are childish and unfair to refuse to socialize with Joyce, thus breaking up the foursome.

The solution would be to take a more realistic and mature attitude about something that happened before you were even in the picture, then bury the hatchet. But not in Joyce's back.

Dr. Donohue

Aspirin: a matter of how much

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Both my sister and I have rheumatoid arthritis. I am using only aspirin to control mine. She's taking a medicine called naproxen for hers. We both seem to get the same effect, yet I'm told her medicine is better than mine. Should I be on naproxen for best results? — W.M.

The best medicine is the one that works best for you with the fewest side effects. As banal as that statement may appear it is demonstrably true when you are speaking of a drug that must be taken for very long periods, such as those to control arthritis.

There are two reasons for giving any medicine to an arthritic. One is for pain relief and the second for control of the joint inflammation. Aspirin has both these effects. So does your sister's medicine (naproxen). However, to benefit from aspirin's inflammation-fighting qualities you have to take large doses and some people can not tolerate that. They may develop stomach irritation. Fortunately for them, drugs like naproxen can suppress joint inflammation with smaller doses.

As with many of the other non-steroidal, anti-inflammatory drugs, naproxen offers a valuable option. That doesn't make it innately superior to aspirin. It's disadvantage, which your sister can tell you, is that it is more costly than aspirin. So all in all, if you are doing well with aspirin, stick with it. There's no need to change.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been told I'm allergic to penicillin. With the threat of infection ever present, I am worried. Can you set me at ease? — A.R.

I hope so. Your concern is a valid one and one often expressed. But don't lose any sleep over it. Many people are allergic to penicillin, myself included. Other antibiotics can be used to treat the same infections for which one normally might turn to penicillin. So neither you nor I need fear. We are not out in left field.

In the extremely rare situations where only penicillin will do, we could first be desensitized to the drug, then given it without harm. But it is hardly ever necessary to do what with the plethora of alternative drugs available.

Parkinson's disease afflicts more than 200,000 Americans, with 38,000 new cases reported annually. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Coping with Parkinson's," is a practical patient and family guide to treatment, therapies, and drugs used for control. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.50 for postage and handling.

Necklace trends show all lengths

NEW YORK (AP) — Necklaces will come in all lengths this summer, reports Kae McCulloch, fashion director of the Jewelry Industry Council.

Among the styles expected to be popular are collars, chokers, lariats, opera lengths and ropes. The "twisters" — several strands in one necklace with mixes of gold, pearls and beads — will continue to have fashion appeal, she says.

Winds bend skyscrapers

Dallas office workers flee downtown buildings

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds of office workers fled from downtown skyscrapers when winds up to 80 miles per hour caused the high-rise towers to sway like trees.

Chandeliers shook, windowpanes rattled, and buildings creaked and groaned as a tornado-bearing storm passed over downtown Dallas at about noon Monday and went on to damage more than 90 homes on the city's southeast side.

No serious injuries were reported in Dallas, but at least one death was attributed to the storm as it swept through North Texas.

The swaying of office buildings up to 72 stories tall frightened office workers, who scurried for lower floors at the height of the storm or fled into underground tunnels.

"The curtains were going back and forth, the chandeliers were swinging. It was like an earthquake," John Hirsch, who planned to eat at the Petroleum Club but went instead to an underground tunnel restaurant, told the Dallas Times Herald.

At Interfirst Plaza, the new 73-story building designed to safely sway as much as 3 feet at the top, rattling windows prompted bank workers on the 20th floor to head for the lobby.

But architects and engineers said the swaying was simply a "good test" of the buildings' flexibility.

"A building is expected to move," said Jack Germak of Germak/Terka and Associates, a Colorado wind engineering firm. "It's elastic. It's like a stalk of corn and will bend over."

Germak, who keeps statistics on wind velocities in cities, said the gales that blew through Dallas occur about once every 100 years.

The steel skeleton of a building is "very, very flexible," said Raymond Powell, an architect and civil engineer who teaches at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

A high-rise is able "to stretch and to come back to its original shape," he said.

To those who found themselves swaying hundreds of feet in the air on Monday, those words are not that reassuring.

Employees of W.R. Grace Inc., for example, abandoned their 34th-floor offices when the windows rattled violently and the building reverberated with loud bangs and popping noises as lightning hit the roof.

But in the end, building managers reported only minimal damage — a few collapsed revolving doors, one burst window and some leaky window frames.

Dallas' tallest passed their tests. And the tower workers returned on Tuesday under sunny skies.

Council rejects proposal for 2 'through' streets

By KEELY COGHLAN

Staff Writer

City Council members unanimously defeated an ordinance that would have made E. 10th and Sixth streets through streets, saying the proposal could make some intersections more hazardous.

Councilmen said they were concerned about changing a four-way stop at the intersection of State and Sixth streets to two-way, because residents had requested the four-way stop less than three years ago.

"The citizens came to us and asked us to make it a four-way stop," Russ McEwen said, before the council voted to overturn the traffic commission recommendation.

"Traffic on Sixth comes down a hill, like the hill down Circle. Nearly all the residents have had to barricade their yards with steel barriers," said Johnny Rutherford.

"At the drop off that hill, if you are doing 30, it's an ideal situation where you'll be doing 40 by the time you're at the bottom of the hill," he said.

McEwen said he preferred making 10th and 11th another through street, saying Sixth was too close to Fourth to become a main traffic corridor.

Councilman Henry Sanchez, however, said 10th might also be a problem because of the location of churches.

Council members also spent 45 minutes discussing nominees for the civil service commission during a special session, but took no action.

The council tabled bids for the purchase of equipment for the city landfill, saying the bids were "confusing." Public Works Director Tom Decell was ordered to meet with bidders to discuss the items bid and a maintenance contract.

The city also passed an emergency ordinance that would dedicate $400,000 of city funds for street and water line work in the Banks and Rosemont additions. The money would match $300,000 of state money if the city receives a grant for the work from the Texas Department of Community Development.

Councilmen also accepted five plats for subdivisions, including the Coker Industrial Park at E. Third St., the City Savings Subdivision on F.M. 700, the Big Spring Savings Subdivision on FM 700, the Phillips Subdivision on E. Fourth Street, the Pollard Subdivision at E. Fourth and McEwen and the Carey Subdivision on FM 700 where the La Contesa Beauty Salon is located.

The council awarded the low bid on lawnmowers to Tilson-Godsey of Odessa for $16,261.52, after discussing an 18-month warranty offered by the other bidder, Hobbs Trailer of Odessa. City staff were ordered to include specifications for warranties on future bids.

Councilmen also elected Harold Hall mayor pro tem, named Henry Sanchez to the audit committee, and reappointed John Taylor and Clyde McMahon Sr. to the Colorado River Municipal Water District Board of Directors.

The council also approved on first reading an ordinance that would annex a lot at the east end of Highland Drive, and accepted dedication of an eight-inch water line in the Big Spring Savings Subdivision.

In addition, the council approved the marking of parking spaces and direction of one-way traffic in the city parking lot in the 300 block of Johnson.

And the council agreed to grant a temporary permit for a mobile home on the northwest end of property owned by Ralph Gossett and fronting on W. Highway 80. The home would be used as offices and for caretaker of the Irea Oil Co., a drilling company.

William N. Looney of Arkansas, left, was installing a gas line near Interstate 40 when this 1-foot alligator rose out of a small water hole. Wildlife officers caught the alligator and identified it as one of 18 put in Fish Lake in 1977. It was transported by truck to another location in the state. The photograph was taken in Morrilton, Ark.

Yuppie haven...

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. Treasury Department's tax simplification proposals could make Texas a haven for young urban professionals — Yuppies — looking for a place where taxes are lower, the state comptroller's office says.

"Corporations commonly move in search of more favorable tax climates. Now tax experts are advising young urban professionals ... to move for the same reason," says the latest issues of the comptroller publication Fiscal Notes.

"Where?" the report said. "Texas, of course."

If enacted, the Treasury Department plan would abolish the federal income tax deduction now allowed for state and local taxes paid.

"Eliminating the deductions for state and local taxes would significantly increase the amount residents pay in federal taxes. People in states such as Texas, which touch residents only lightly with state taxes, would fare best," the comptroller's report said.

The report said residents of high-tax states would be hit the hardest under the treasury plan. Among those states are New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Maryland, Minnesota and California.

As an example, the report said a two-income couple living in New York City and earning $25,000 a year with typical deductions would find their tax bill 23 percent higher under the proposal.

A suburban professional couple commuting to New York to work and earning $30,000 annually would owe 54 percent more, the report said.

According to the report, the average Texas would have little to lose under the tax simplification plan.

or oilman's hell?

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal "tax simplification" proposals could cost 175,553 jobs in Texas the next six years and lose the state $1 billion in oil and gas revenue, Gov. Mark White has told President Ronald Reagan.

White said in a letter to Reagan that Interstate Oil Compact Commission studies show U.S. Treasury proposals concerning the oil and gas industry "could result in a reduction of approximately $3.5 billion per year in drilling expenditures and a loss to the state the next six years in Texas of 176,553 jobs and over $1 billion in anticipated state revenue."

"Rather than abandoning proven practices, this is the time for stabilizing the capital markets, so we can go forward in finding and producing new domestic energy resources which are the foundation of our national security," White said.

Oil ruling fuels panic

Schools say they've been robbed of mineral tax

AMARILLO (AP) — Superintendents in the Panhandle say their school districts will suffer financial problems because of the Texas Railroad Commission's "white oil ruling," but local bankers downplayed the impact of the decision.

The commission voted 3-0 Monday to adopt a staff recommendation that rules in favor of Phillips Petroleum Co. and against independent oil men, who are drilling natural gas and treating it with refrigeration units to create the white oil.

The reaction in the Panhandle was swift.

"I think that we just dropped $100,000," said Rex Peoples, superintendent of Groom Independent School District. "Fifty-five percent of our minerals will be declared ineligible."

The $100,000 loss in school funding represents 10 percent of the district's annual budget, Peoples said.

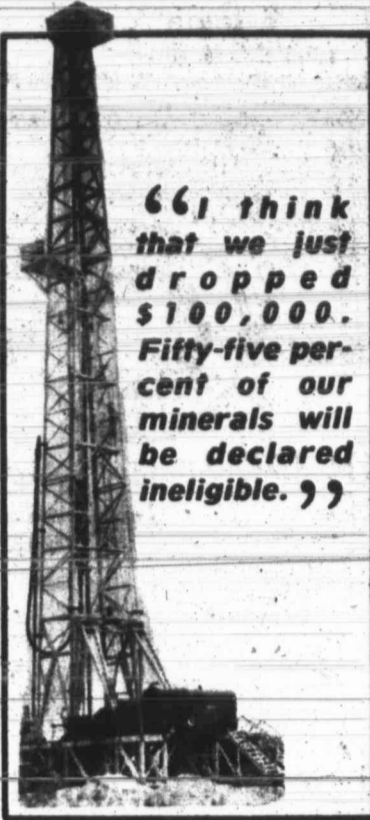

"We're going to have to start scaling down our program," he said.

Tom Harkey, White Deer Independent School District superintendent, said the district could lose up to a quarter of the its yearly budget because of the ruling.

"We could lose as much as $300,000 to $600,000," he said. "It could have a pretty devastating effect."

Harkey said 45 percent of the district's local tax base comes from independent oil drillers.

"If we loose a lot of our tax base because of this it will necessitate a tax raise," he said. "We're just waiting for the bad news. It's very difficult to figure out a budget for the coming year when you don't know how much tax money you're going to have."

Jim Holmes, superintendent of Panhandle Independent School District, said it would be days or weeks before the full impact of the commission's ruling is known.

"Obviously it's going to be very detrimental unless it's overturned," he said. "Everything's pretty sketchy at this point."

But several bankers said the Panhandle oil fields will survive as they did before production of white oil began. "We do not feel this is the end of the oil fields here," said Charles Cook, president of First National Bank in Borger.

The Panhandle Field is the largest gas field in Texas, underlying 1.5 million acres in eight counties — Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth.

Oil and gas reserves are worth an estimated $27 billion, and Phillips and others have been aligned for 3 1/2 years against independents who produce white oil, a water-white liquid produced by chilling vapors to as low 20 degrees below zero.

An oil well is defined as a well that produces one or more barrels of oil per 100,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Phillips alleges that independents achieve this ratio only by using refrigeration units, or "LTX units," to chill gas to a liquid the independents call crude oil.

By classifying the substance as oil, producers can drill one well every 10 acres. If classified as gas, no more than one well per 640 acres could be drilled. Independents own the oil rights in the huge field, while Phillips and other major energy companies control the natural gas rights.

The railroad commission ruled that wells with LTX units must be retested within 75 days and shut down if they do not meet the present gas to oil ratio.

The full effect of the commission's decision won't be known until after wells with LTX units are retested, said Floyd Watson, president of First National Bank of Tampa.

Wiesel Senate guest

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a resolution Tuesday inviting Elie Wiesel, a survivor of Nazi death camps at Birkenau, Buna, Auschwitz and Buchenwald, to speak to the Legislature on May 22.

"Imparting the important message that the Holocaust should never be forgotten, Mr. Wiesel has roused the conscience of the world," said the resolution.

Denver fights off LA; Boston wins second

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said there might be a slight difference of opinion about the defense the Denver Nuggets used on Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the second game of their playoff series.

"They played a very physical game," Riley said. "They keyed on Kareem. Some call it good defense ... and others call it karate."

Denver Coach Doug Moe's view, of course, tended to support the "good defense" view after the Nuggets downed the Lakers 136-114 Tuesday night to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association series 1-1.

"What a game, what a game!" the elated Moe said of the contest that saw Abdul-Jabbar sent to the showers when he drew two technical fouls, the second for wrestling the Nuggets' Danny Schayes to the floor late in the final period.

"We were playing — they were the ones throwing elbows and tackling us," said Moe, whose club hosts the next two games, on Friday and Sunday.

Alex English scored 40 points, including 19 in the final quarter, as the Nuggets sprinted away after leading by just 99-86 at the start of the period.

The Lakers, plagued by poor shooting (47.1 percent) and turnovers (24) throughout the game, grew increasingly frustrated as the Nuggets took control in the fourth quarter.

That frustration erupted when Abdul-Jabbar, held to 4-of-16 shooting from the floor and 13 points, scuffled with Schayes, Denver's reserve center.

Abdul-Jabbar's automatic ejection for drawing two technicals came after Schayes and the Lakers' Earvin "Magic" Johnson tangled briefly under the Nuggets' basket. Abdul-Jabbar grabbed Schayes and rode him to the floor and held him there. No punches were thrown.

Abdul-Jabbar and Schayes had exchanged shoves a minute before the incident, with that resulting in the Los Angeles center's first technical.

Abdul-Jabbar, out of the game with six minutes to play and the Lakers trailing 113-97, quickly left the Lakers' locker room and was not available for comment.

"I was not out there trying to elbow people, particularly not Abdul-Jabbar," Schayes said. "He's the greatest player that ever lived."

"He was under the assumption that I was elbowing him in the face every time. Magic said I hit him in the face and then Kareem — just came up and put a choke hold on me."

Johnson said: "He (Schayes) elbowed me in the chin and I went over to tell him and then it all broke loose."

Dan Issel added 22 points for the Nuggets, and Calvin Natt and Elston Turner contributed 18 points each.

Byron Scott led the Lakers with 22 points and James Worthy had 17.

Celts 106

76ers 98

Although Larry Bird's shooting touch was on vacation for most of the game, the Boston Celtics had someone else to keep the Philadelphia 76ers at bay until Bird found the range.

Bird was 4-of-17 from the field for the first three periods Tuesday night, but Kevin McHale's 16 first-half points kept the Celtics close until Dennis Johnson and Robert Parish led a 32-18 third-quarter surge that put Boston in control.

Bird then found his shooting touch in the fourth quarter, scoring 13 of his game-high 24 points to keep the Celtics ahead en route to a 106-98 victory that gave them a 2-0 lead over the 76ers in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

While Bird finally got untracked, Andrew Toney, the 76ers' best shooter, never did stop clanging the rims, finishing 3-of-17 from the field and scoring only seven points.

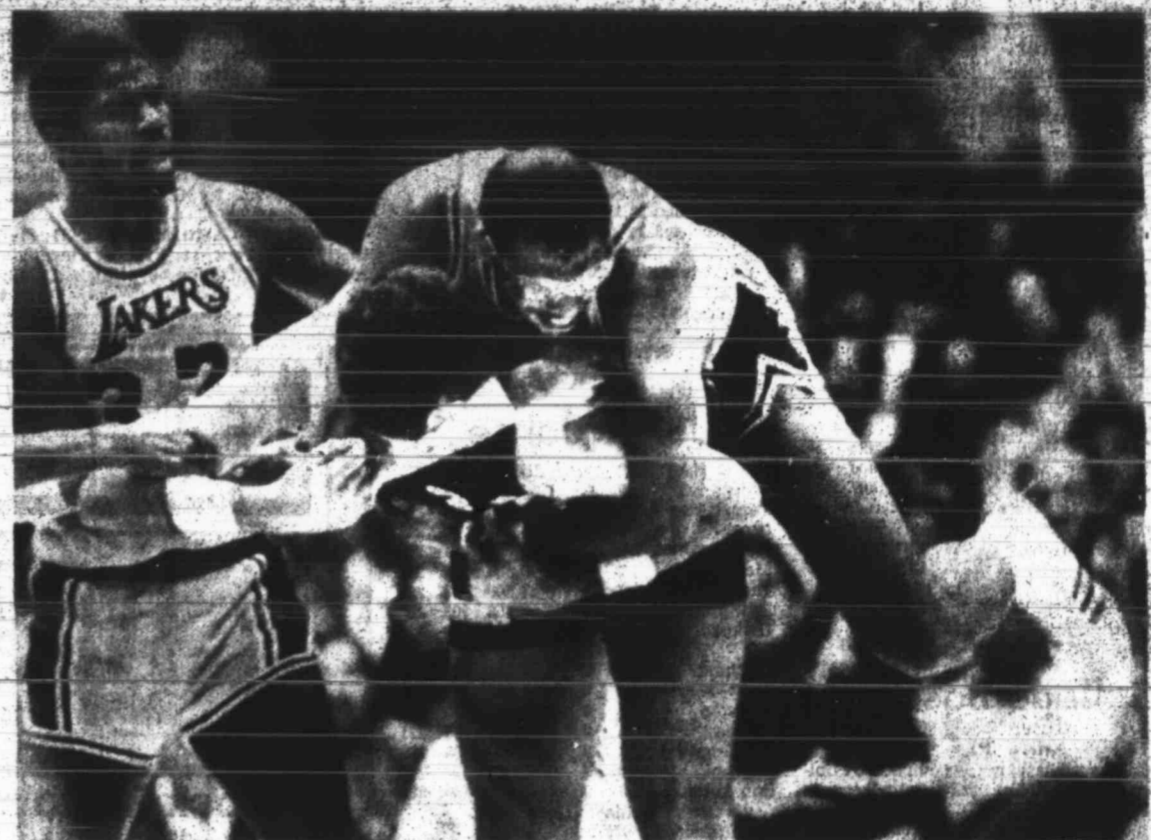

"Until the fourth quarter, my shots weren't falling either," Bird said when asked about Toney's slump. "But I had guys who picked me up and he didn't. One guy's shooting isn't the biggest factor in deciding the game."

"I can't remember when I have shot as badly as this game," said Toney, who often has been a thorn in Boston's side with a deadeye jumper. "If I had made half of my shots tonight we would have won."

The series resumes with Games 3 and 4 in Philadelphia on Saturday and Sunday.

In the first 16 minutes of Tuesday's game, Philadelphia appeared to have enough to survive without Toney, using a 26-9 spurt to take its largest lead at 38-25. But McHale, who finished with 22 points, scored six during a 20-10 run that helped the Celtics trim the deficit to 52-46 at halftime.

"We were surprised that we were only down six at the half," Bird said, "and we came out in the second half confident that we could come back. We played very well in the third quarter. Too bad I wasn't involved in it, but D.J. and Robert did a great job."

Johnson scored 10 of his 22 points in the quarter and Parish added nine of his 13 points and eight of his game-high 16 rebounds as the Celtics turned the six-point deficit into a 78-70 lead going into the final period. With Bird finding the range, the 76ers could get no closer than four points in the last 12 minutes.

Julius Erving led Philadelphia with 22 points, while Moses Malone had 20 points and 13 rebounds. Clint Richardson, playing 30 minutes in relief of the downtrodden Toney, scored 15 points.

"Philly had a great game, both offensively and defensively in the first half," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "We got anxious and made bad shots and bad passes. In other words, we were ugly. We showed a lot of patience and got in the third quarter, then in the fourth period Larry finally started to put the ball in the hoop."

Astros' extend winning streak to four

HOUSTON (AP) — Astros Jerry Mumphrey, Bill Doran and Craig Reynolds boosted their batting averages to help rattle a previously relentless Montreal pitching staff and give Houston a four-game winning streak.

Craig Reynolds led the way with four hits and Mumphrey and Doran each collected three to aid a 17-hit Astro attack en route to a 10-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Tuesday night.

"You can't let up," said Reynolds. "We've done that in the past and it has cost us some ball games."

Reynolds inflated a .246 average into a .288 mark when the Astro shortstop recorded his fifth career four-hit game.

"I'm not swinging the bat as well as I have in the past," Reynolds said. "The ball is just falling in."

Montreal pitcher Joe Hesketh supported that idea and still believes the Expo pitching staff is solid.

"We battled tough last night," said Hesketh. "Tonight they were not hitting the ball hard, they just hit it into places where we didn't have men."

Mumphrey, who came into Tuesday night's contest hitting .238, went 3-for-4 and collected three RBI to pull with three of Jose Cruz for the team lead in runs batted in.

Doran, who had hit home runs in his last two outings, came close again but tripled to highlight his three-hit performance and boost his average to .303. The Houston second baseman also extended his hitting streak to 10 games.

"We found some holes tonight, and Mumphrey broke loose," said Astro Manager Bob Lillis.

In addition to 17 hits, rookie Ron Mathis, 2-1, the Astros' fifth starter, and second-year pitcher Mark Ross combined on a seven-hitter to shut down the Montreal attack.

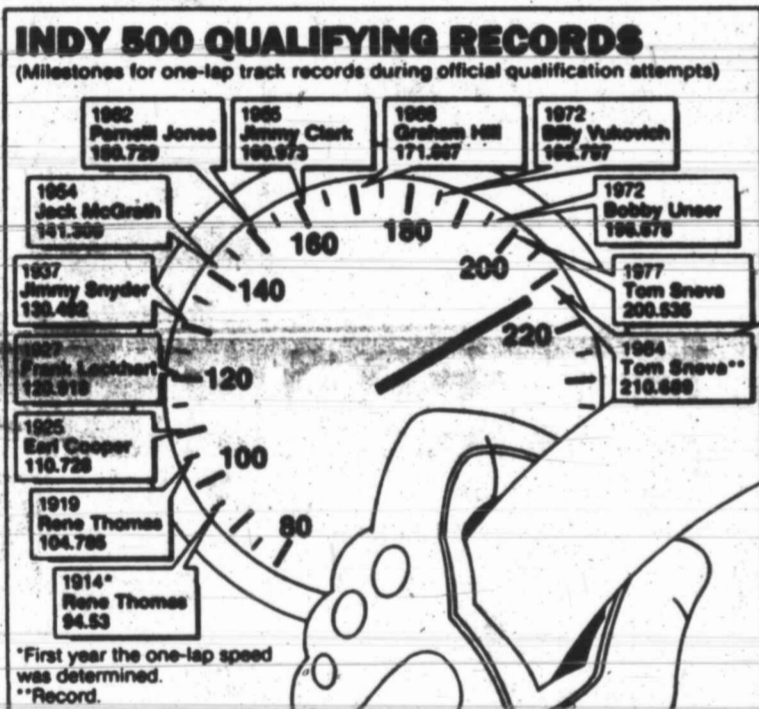

"It's a tough situation, but I just try to stay in shape," said Mathis about being in the fifth spot in the rotation. Houston took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Phil Garner doubled, Mark Bailey walked and Reynolds lashed a two-run double down the right field line.

The Astros added two more in the third off losing pitcher Steve Rogers, 2-3. A leadoff double by Denny Walling, an RBI single by Mumphrey along with Terry Francona's throwing and a run-scoring single by Bailey made the score 4-0.

Singles by Doran, Terry Puhl, Walling and Mumphrey added three more runs in the fourth off reliever Ed Glynn.

Indy rookies looking to upstage veterans

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Raul Boesel, Jim Crawford, Arie Luyendyk, Ed Pimm and Michael Roe are hardly household names and their reputations mean little to the railbirds who move along pit row during practice for the Indianapolis 500.

Those fans will ignore the Indy rookies when drivers like Tom Sneva, Rick Mears, A.J. Foyt and Mario Andretti are around to sign an autograph or pose for a picture.

Luyendyk, Pimm and Roe made it into the tentative field for the May 26 race during the opening session of time trials last Saturday. Boesel and Crawford, along with Indy rookies like Jacques Villeneuve and John Paul Jr., continue chasing that magic combination of speed and performance that would put them in the final 33-car field when time trials conclude Sunday.

The Indy rookies arrived here this month sharing the dream of being in a race car for that dramatic moment when the cars zoom past the starting line in the world's richest auto race.

The trip to Indianapolis for these seven rookie hopefuls covered many miles and progressed over widely varied paths.

Boesel, 28, of Brazil, won a karting championship at 17 after giving up equestrian show jumping. He moved into Formula Fords in 1979 after abandoning engineering studies, raced for two years on the Formula One circuit and spent 1984 driving Formula Two in South America.

Boesel was clocked at 205.432 mph for a lap around the 2.5-mile oval on Monday, a speed he was unable to reach on Tuesday. But he remains confident he can place his March-Cosworth in the starting lineup this weekend.

"I'm very happy with the way things are going today," he said in one of the few breaks he took while working the car under the guidance of veteran driver and car owner Dick Simon. "It's a little windy today but we know we can put it in the race."

He says the experience of Simon, who at 51 has qualified for his 14th Indy 500, has been invaluable.

"He tells me what he knows about the track, its conditions under all weather possibilities and things like that. Then we work with the car to make it comfortable."

Luyendyk, 34, achieved an Indy first by becoming the first driver from the Netherlands to qualify. A veteran of Formula Ford and Formula Three racing who came to the United States in 1983, he was the quickest rookie qualifier with a 206.004 average in one of the seven Cosworth-powered Fords to make the field so far.

"Our whole team is new to Indy," said last year's Super Vee champion, who finished eighth in his only 1984 CART race. "We're learning, trying to build it up step by step."

Unlike the sport's stars, Luyendyk wasn't concerned with going for the pole as a quick qualifier.

"We were not in position to battle for the pole," he said. "You have to be realistic. Those people who were going so quick last week have been here many times before. We're new to this."

And he's driving with a respect for the Speedway and its unforgiving walls.

"The Speedway is so fast that you have to be comfortable in the car, its handling and with yourself. You need to be able to come into the turn with the feeling that you're sure the car is going to stay there," he said.

"You don't go into the corner like an idiot and say, 'I'll just see how it goes coming out of it.' It's a challenge to build it (speed) up."

KC rallies past Orioles

Associated Press
Sooner or later, the Kansas City Royals were bound to break out of it. They finally did.

Frank White, George Brett and Jim Sundberg hit home runs in the fourth inning Tuesday night to carry the Royals over the Baltimore Orioles 5-3. Kansas City scored all five of its runs in the fourth, the team's biggest inning of the season.

The Royals had been mired in a slump until they met the Orioles. The victim of the long-ball assault was Baltimore starter Scott McGregor, who slipped to 1-4.

In other American League games, Seattle blanked Boston 5-0, Toronto tripped California 6-3, Detroit beat Texas 4-1, New York popped Minnesota 10-7, Chicago nipped Cleveland 2-1 and Oakland downed Milwaukee 6-3.

Mariners, Red Sox 0
Mike Moore scattered seven hits for his fourth career shutout, and first since August 1983.

Visiting Seattle staked Moore, 4-3, to a 4-0 lead after two innings. Alvin Davis and Steve Henderson had RBI singles in the first, and Phil Bradley had a run-scoring single and Al Cowens delivered an RBI double in the second.

The Mariners chased Boston starter Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 4-2, in the third inning.

Blue Jays 6, Angels 3
Damaso Garcia, the leadoff batter in Toronto's lineup, continued to look more like a cleanup hitter. Garcia, who went 8-for-13 with seven runs batted in during a weekend sweep of Seattle, cracked a two-run single with two outs in the sixth to break a 3-3 tie.

Jesse Barfield hit his sixth home run for the Blue Jays, while Lloyd Moseby snapped an 0-for-19 slump with a two-run triple.

Doyle Alexander, 5-1, pitched 6 2-3 innings for the victory. Bill Caudill worked the ninth for his seventh save.

Tigers 4, Rangers 1
Lou Whitaker raised his AL-leading average to .386 by going 3-for-4, including his second home run in two games.

Whitaker singled in the first inning, went to second on a balk by Charlie Hough, 3-2, and scored on a single by Lance Parrish. Whitaker drilled a two-run homer in the second.

Milt Wilcox, 1-1, went five innings for the victory.

Yankees 10, Twins 7
Ken Griffey's grand-slam home run capped a six-run rally in the seventh inning that again led New York over visiting Minnesota.

The Yankees trailed 7-3 going into the seventh, but relievers Pete Filson, Rick Lysander and Curt Wardle walked four straight batters in losing the lead and the game.

Reliever Brian Fisher worked 3 2-3 innings to win his first major-league decision.

White Sox 2, Indians 1
Greg Walker's two-out single in the eighth inning drove home Ozzie Guillen from second base to lead host Chicago to victory.

The game was delayed by rain for one hour and 18 minutes at the start of the fifth. No game has been rained out in the major leagues this season.

A's 6, Brewers 3
Pinch-hitter Dusty Baker's two-run double broke a 2-2 tie and keyed Oakland's five-run rally in the ninth inning against Milwaukee reliever Rollie Fingers.

Ray Burris went the first eight innings for the Brewers, allowing just four hits, and left with a 2-1 lead. But the visiting A's then roughed up Fingers, 0-2.

NL Roundup

And the new starting shortstop for the Chicago Cubs is...the old starting shortstop, Larry Bowa.

The 39-year-old veteran has won, for now, his fight with 22-year-old Shawn Dunston for the regular role. Bowa had two hits and drove in two runs as the Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 Tuesday night.

After the game, the Cubs announced that Dunston, struggling with a .194 average and nine errors in the field, had been demoted to their AAA farm club in Des Moines.

Padres 6, Cardinals 2
"I'm not as good as that 7-0 record," said Andy Hawkins after pitching five innings to gain the victory. "I'm not making many good pitches. I'm very hittable but I've got guys back there who can make the plays."

Hawkins gave up five hits, including homers to Andy Van Slyke and Darrell Porter, before departing in the sixth. Mark Thurmond earned his first save with four innings of two-hit relief.

Mets 3, Braves 1
Roger McDowell was perfect in relief, pitching 4 2-3 innings and combining with Calvin Schiraldi on a three-hitter as New York won for the seventh time in eight games.

McDowell, 3-1, replaced Schiraldi after Claudell Washington's homer. Schiraldi left with pain in his right foot, which was struck by Washington's infield single in the first inning. The Mets, winners of 11 of their last 15 games, learned after the game that Schiraldi's toe had been broken by the smash.

Giants 3, Pirates 1
Mike Krukow tossed a five-hitter, clubbed two doubles and drove in two runs to lead the Giants. Krukow, 3-2, lowered his earned run average to 1.45 in pitching his third complete game of the season.

Their pitchers have four RBIs in the Giants' last two games. Jim Gott hit two homers Sunday.

Phillies 7, Reds 1
Charles Hudson gave up just one hit over eight innings, but left for a pinch hitter in the top of the ninth with Philadelphia ahead 4-0. "Any time you've got a shutout going — not only me, but any pitcher would be upset," Hudson said. "But I'm not going to cause any bad vibes. I'll just leave it at that."

It was Hudson's first start of the season after 12 relief appearances. Don Carman finished, allowing two hits and a run.

Oilers crush Chicago in Conference finals

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Paul Coffey, Jari Kurri and Wayne Gretzky, the heart of the Edmonton offense, responded to their biggest challenge of the season with a record-shattering performance.

The trio combined for six goals and 15 points Tuesday night to spark the Oilers to a 10-5 whipping of the Chicago Black Hawks. That put Edmonton within a victory of subduing the stubborn Black Hawks in their best-of-seven National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal series. The teams return to Chicago Thursday night for Game 6 of the Campbell Conference finals.

The Oilers knew they needed an explosive showing from the trio after being shackled in two losses in Chicago.

"Everyone just did our own job," explained Kurri, who had three goals and two assists after failing to score in Chicago.

It marked the third time that Kurri has scored three goals in a game in this year's playoffs, tying the record for most three-goal games in one playoff year.

"We were a little nervous before the game. But after the first period we felt happy, comfortable," Kurri added.

They weren't exactly in a comfortable position, however, tied 3-3. Edmonton needed two goals by Kurri and one by Mike Krushelnyski to offset the first three of five Chicago power-play goals.

What was evident after the period, however, was that the Oilers were getting the skating room they needed. They fired 17 shots at goaltender Murray Bannerman, their offense was flowing better and Coffey was having little trouble moving the puck up ice.

"There's a little more rink here, you have a chance to wind up," said Coffey.

He wound up with a goal and five assists, the most points ever in a playoff game by a defenseman. His ninth goal and 25th point tied playoff records for defensemen set by Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins and Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders, respectively.

Flyers 2 Quebec 1

When the dream met reality for Murray Craven, he found one moment of glory in an otherwise undistinguished effort.

"It's my dream to be playing now, and to score then — it was my most important goal," said Craven, who connected on a 2-on-1 break with Brian Propp with 4:59 remaining Thursday night to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 2-1 victory over the Quebec Nordiques in Game 5 of the Campbell Conference finals. "I didn't do anything special all night. It was not one of my best efforts."

The Flyers can wrap up the series and advance to the Stanley Cup finals with a victory in Game 6 at Philadelphia Thursday night.

It was not a particularly memorable game for any of the Flyers except goalie Pelle Lindbergh, who made 30 saves and kept the Flyers close until they found some rhythm.

"I just wanted to come back and play a good game after I played a so-so game the other night," said Lindbergh, who allowed only a goal by Jean-Francois Sauve at 7:02 of the second period with Quebec holding a two-man advantage.

The Flyers wasted five power plays, including a four-minute job in which they didn't even attempt a shot at goalie Mario Gosselin. Actually, they wasted practically the entire first two periods, which enraged Coach Mike Keenan.

"Mike said we didn't show we were hungry enough and that they (the Nordiques) wanted it more than we did," Craven said of a tongue-lashing Keenan administered prior to the final session. "Mike gave us a very stiff talking to."

Keenan's lecture worked. One minute into the third period, defenseman Mark Howe intercepted a poor clearing pass by Gosselin. Howe's pass into the crease was tapped in by Joe Paterson.

The Flyers got the winner when Propp fed Craven for a 25-foot shot which bounded in off Gosselin.

Boone, Unocal battle stalled

Oilman wins courtroom skirmish in takeover bid

LOS ANGELES (A) — A three-month battle by oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. to seize control of Unocal Corp. remains in limbo after Pickens won another skirmish in court but failed to gain more time immediately from company shareholders.

In a victory for Pickens, a Wilmington, Del., Chancery Court on Monday issued a preliminary injunction forbidding Unocal from proceeding with an offer to buy back about 29 percent of its stock at above-market prices unless an investor group headed by Pickens is permitted to participate.

Unocal is offering to pay $72 per share, or $3.6 billion, to repurchase 50 million of its shares. The move would benefit shareholders who participate but would burden the company with debt, making it a less attractive takeover target. Unocal wants Pickens excluded from the offer.

Unocal Chairman Fred Hartley said the company will appeal to the Delaware Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Hartley said it won't be known for a week whether Pickens succeeded in his proxy fight to adjourn Unocal's annual meeting and delay election of its directors for two months.

The postponement would give the Pickens group, Mesa Partners II, extra time to continue its takeover efforts and put up its own slate of nominees for the board.

Without the postponement, Pickens would be forced to wait a year until the next annual meeting before having another opportunity to win control of the company. That would be costly because Pickens is paying interest on about $1 billion borrowed to finance the takeover bid.

The Pickens group is Unocal's largest stockholder with 13.6 percent of Unocal and is offering $54 per share, or $3.46 billion, for another 64 million shares.

Kindergarten kids picket classes in one-day strike

CHICAGO (AP) — It was back to the ABCs Tuesday for kindergarten pupils who picketed their school in a one-day strike after the woman who had taught them for the past eight months was bumped in a seniority move.

One of the tiny strikers, Teryan Lewis, 6, said she was "walking around in circles ... to get Mrs. Dalton back."

Andrea Dalton, a substitute teacher who had taught at the William Claude Reavis School since September, was removed from the class seven weeks before the end of the school year when a regular teacher returned from sick leave.

"This just doesn't make sense," Mrs. Dalton, 41, said Monday. "These are just kindergarten kids who don't understand."

Only seven of her 28 ex-students showed up for the morning class Monday, while nine others picketed outside Reavis with their parents urging them on.

"I am just destroyed. I've been working hard with this class and they are progressing," Mrs. Dalton said. "They know their ABCs, they know their numbers, and can even print their names like first-graders."

Tan seekers help double cancer rate

NEW YORK (AP) — The American quest for a suntan has helped double the rate of a deadly skin cancer in the past 10 years, but the disease is curable if its multi-hued, irregular blotch on the skin is found early enough, the American Cancer Society says.

Malignant melanoma, which is expected to develop in about 22,000 Americans and kill 5,500 people this year, has risen at a faster rate than any other cancer except lung cancer, the society said.

Expressed in cases per 100,000 population, melanoma rose from 4.1 cases in 1970 to 8.8 cases in 1981 among women, and 4.3 cases in 1970 to 10.2 cases in 1981 among men, said Dr. Arthur Holleb, the society's senior vice president for medical affairs.

Melanoma remains much less common than other cancers. Some 144,000 cases of lung cancer and 119,000 cases of breast cancer are expected this year, for example.

The main reason for melanoma's increase, the society says, is increased exposure to the sun, which can lead to various skin cancers many years later. The society recommends avoiding the sun between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., when ultraviolet rays are strongest, and using protective clothing and sunscreen preparations.

Holleb said melanoma is curable if found early enough. The idea is to remove the cancer before it spreads to other parts of the body, such as the brain, bone, liver and lung, said Dr. Darrell Rigel, co-director of the pigmented lesions section of the skin and cancer unit at the New York University Medical Center.

Early melanoma usually can be removed under local anesthesia, he said.

Ford recalls 135,600 cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has recalled 135,600 vehicles, including 1981-model midsize cars and 1985-model four-wheel-drive vehicles and subcompact cars, the automaker has announced.

In addition, General Motors Corp. is calling back 34,000 subcompact 1985 Chevrolet Cavaliers.

Ford announced Monday it is recalling 119,000 1981-model cars for replacement of a choke pull-down motor to ensure acceptable control of emissions.

The recall covers 1981-model Fairmont, Zephyr, Granada, Cougar, Mustang, Capri, Thunderbird and XR-7 cars equipped with 4.2- or 5.0-liter engines. Tests have revealed that the emission levels of some cars may exceed applicable federal standards, Ford spokesman John King said in a statement.

Ford also recalled 15,200 of its 1985 Mustang, Capri, LTD and Marquis cars for possible replacement of a power brake booster assembly, which could crack and reduce braking ability, the automaker said.

About 13,000 of the models were still in dealer inventories, King said.

A third Ford recall involved 1,400 of its 1985 Ranger four-wheel-drive vehicles with 2.3 liter fuel-injected engines for replacement of fuel supply and return tubes. The tubes could be forced out of position and rub against the front driveshaft, which could lead to fuel leaks, the statement said.

Official says administration hiding Medicare information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee chairman accused the Reagan administration Tuesday of hiding information Congress needs to decide hospital rates for treating Medicare patients.

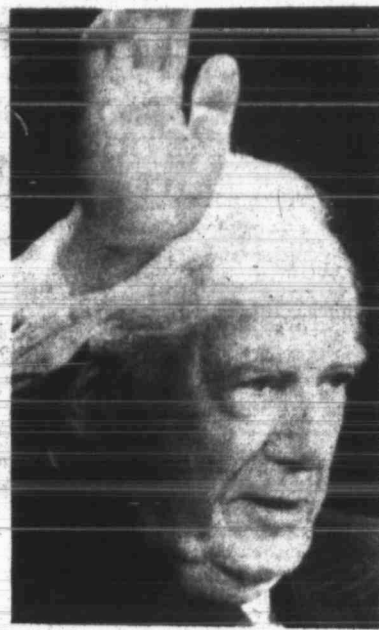

"You're following a course of presuming if we don't have information, we won't legislate," Rep. Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee's subcommittee on health, told Carolyn P. Davis, administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration.

"I think you have information and you're hiding it. That could have a disastrous effect. ... To cheat poor elderly people out of Medicare is a sin, it's a crime, it's an obscenity. ... I think you're being gamed by some mindless budget saver," he said.

Stark told Mrs. Davis, "I think there is strong sentiment in this room to provide additional funds to hospitals with higher proportions of low-income patients."

Mrs. Davis said HCFA has not completed studies on the so-called "disproportionate share" issue — whether hospitals serving a disproportionate share of poor people have higher costs that should be taken into account in deciding their rate of reimbursement under Medicare.

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER

Justice seeking changes in law

Burger asks attorneys, judges to consider drastic measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger today asked the legal profession to consider making drastic changes in American law.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the American Law Institute, an organization of lawyers and judges, Burger said, "We need a study of how the litigation process is conducted to answer the question: Is there a better way?"

The nation's highest ranking judge urged the group to study, for example, the possibilities of eliminating personal and property damage lawsuits, juries in complex cases and trials in "multiple disaster" cases.

"Has not the time come for a careful, thoughtful, objective examination of the whole litigation process under the common law?" Burger asked.

"One question could well be whether the traditional lawsuit is the fairest and most efficient means of dealing with personal and property damage cases," he said.

Burger said another focal point could be "our traditional 'cross section' jury of lay persons" in complex antitrust or securities fraud cases.

"Should we take a close look at the so-called English Rule that when a case is too complex for an average jury of lay persons to grasp the case should be tried ... by a judge?" he asked.

He also questioned whether traditional jury trials are the best way to handle multiple disaster claims, such as airplane crashes.

"Are we addicted to litigation because it is exciting?" Burger asked. "Because it is fascinating? Because it is dramatic? Because it gives the advocates' egos full rein?"

Unwanted newborns on decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The share of newborn Americans who are "unwanted" has declined, although many were conceived sooner than their parents had planned, new government figures show.

"A substantial decline in births that were unwanted at conception occurred between 1973 and 1982," the National Center for Health Statistics reported Tuesday.

The study said the proportion of unwanted babies fell from 14 percent of births to married women in 1973 to 10 percent in 1982, with the result that the percentage of "wanted" newborns grew from 86 percent to 90 percent.

The study noted, however, that at the same time the share of wanted but mistimed births climbed slightly, from 26 percent to 28 percent. Mistimed births are those which occurred earlier than the parents had intended.

The health statistics center, a part of the Department of Health and Human Services, defined a "wanted" birth as one in which the mother intended to have a child at some point, although not necessarily at the time conception occurred.

"It is important to emphasize that an 'unwanted birth' is not necessarily an 'unwanted child'; many children whose conceptions were not wanted nonetheless become cherished members of their families," William F. Pratt and Marjorie C. Horn wrote in their study.

The proportion of unwanted births to married women increased steadily by age, the study said, from only 6 percent among women aged 25 to 29 to 13 percent in the 40-44 age category in 1982. The same pattern occurred in 1973, the authors reported.

Formerly married women had twice as many unwanted births as those still married.

Organization announces new program against polio

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pan American Health Organization announced today a $100 million vaccination program intended to eradicate polio in the Western Hemisphere by 1990.

Dr. Carlyle Guerra de Macedo, director of the organization, told a news conference that the organization is encouraged by the recent elimination of smallpox around the world and believed that a final five-year push could achieve the same result for polio in North and South America.

"It is feasible today to interrupt the transmission of wild polio virus in the hemisphere by 1990," de Macedo said. "We are convinced that it is possible to reduce the number of cases from 500 annually to zero."

"The time has come for us to say that it is unacceptable for any child in the Americas to suffer from polio."

Polio has long been one of the most feared infectious diseases, spreading in the summer season and leaving permanently crippled children and adults in its wake. In the 1950s, however, vaccines were developed by Drs. Jonas Salk and Albert Sabin to prevent the disease. Both Salk and Sabin attended this morning's announcement.

Their vaccines have virtually eliminated polio.

Police head OK'd plan to bomb house

Neighborhood goes up in flames as Philadelphia police battle radical group

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia police say they couldn't break a siege of a radical group's fortress because of unexpectedly heavy fortifications. And when they set a fire while trying to blast a bunker off a roof, they were left with a choice of taking casualties or letting the neighborhood burn.

"The house is going to go before one of my guys is going to go," fire Commissioner William Richmond said late Monday, as a six-alarm fire raged out of control across 2 1/2 blocks, eventually destroying 60 homes.

"As I've said before and I'm going to say again, my men are not going to take gunfire. It's as simple as that."

In the last assault on a MOVE home, in 1978, one officer was killed and five firefighters were wounded. Managing Director Leo A. Brooks said police stakeout teams trying to secure the area for firefighters were confronted by four MOVE members.

"Four people came out of the back of the MOVE house, two were observed turning east, the other two disappeared, because down in there was a significant amount of smoke and water," said Brooks, a retired Army general who served two active tours in Vietnam.

"As the two started east, the police officer said, 'Hit the ground.' Whereupon one person, a female, hit the ground and the male opened fire."

"They turned and went in the other direction whereupon a very similar act was reported by the forces in that area in which they fired again and returned. We didn't return either of those fires."

"But then they disappeared back into the smoke and it was at that point that we had to protect the firefighters who were in those houses because we didn't know whether they (MOVE members) were in the Pine Street side or whether they were in the Osage Street side of the alley," said Brooks.

After a gun battle at dawn Monday that left two officers slightly injured, police waited 10 hours before their next attempt to take the rowhouse.

The situation was complicated by the amazingly strong fortifications MOVE had erected.

Brooks said the bunker was made of 12-by-12 lumber, tree trunks and steel and was several layers thick. He said long blasts from snorkel squirts — hydraulically operated high-pressure fire hoses — and from small grenade charges didn't dent the bunker. The front of the rowhouse was opened by gunfire, revealing "a log cabin within a house."

"We began thinking of some alternatives ... when we discovered just how strong that bunker was on the roof," Brooks said.

Police Commissioner Gregore Sambor took full responsibility for ordering the explosive device dropped on the MOVE bunker.

'Skid Row' relative refuses help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Chicago woman who traveled to this city's Skid Row for a park-bench reunion with a homeless 61-year-old cousin she saw in a newspaper photograph said Tuesday she is abandoning her effort to bring her relative home.

"She's got her own plans, and she's not going to let anybody change her mind," Barbara Whittington, 43, said of her cousin, Helen Oliver. "We talked and she refused my help and everybody else's help."

"So I give up. I feel satisfied now because I do know that she is alive. She's not living in the best of surroundings, but she's managing and she wants to do this," Mrs. Whittington said.

Mrs. Whittington and her daughter, Deirdre, 23, arrived in Los Angeles on Monday to look for the cousin they had not heard from in a year and had not seen for seven or eight years.

On Saturday, they saw a photograph of Mrs. Oliver in the Chicago Sun-Times, taken when she and about 50 other homeless people were evicted from a shantytown erected in a downtown Los Angeles park for shelter and to protest a lack of adequate housing.

Mrs. Oliver, her cat and three dogs remained at the park after Justiceville's wood and cardboard shanties were demolished by city cleanup crews.

Hypoglycemia — it's more than just feeling hungry

By ELLEN B. HOLZMAN
Harte-Hanks News Service

It's 10:30 a.m., and you had your breakfast several hours ago. Still, you feel hungry, maybe a little weak with an inward trembling.

Could it be hypoglycemia? "I think people don't realize they can feel those symptoms just with low blood sugar. That's not hypoglycemia," says nutritionist Patty Gygax.

"These symptoms are common. Sometimes you get hungry at 10:30 a.m. That's normal. It just means you're going to need lunch soon."

Gygax, a newspaper columnist and nutritionist for a San Diego hospital, remembers that five years ago hypoglycemia had the status of a "fad" disease. Doctors would give tests that were not always accurate, she says, and mistakenly diagnose patients as hypoglycemic.

Hypoglycemia means low blood sugar, but "hypoglycemia is not a disease. It's a symptom of a disturbance of the metabolism."

Gygax said low blood sugar in hypoglycemic patients isn't caused by lack of food, but because the patient produces too much insulin, a hormone that transfers sugar to the cells for energy.

When too much insulin is produced, sugar is transferred to quickly to the cells, and there isn't enough sugar in the blood. And the problem can't be alleviated by just eating high sugar foods because the body simply will produce more insulin, creating a vicious cycle.

Symptoms of hypoglycemia include anxiety, hunger, inward trembling, blurred vision, confusion, bizarre behavior, convulsions and a rapid heart beat.

There are two categories of the disorder — fasting and reactive or functional hypoglycemia. Symptoms of fasting hypoglycemia, such as bizarre behavior, begin six to eight hours after a meal. There are several possible explanations, including alcoholism or a tumor on the pancreas or liver.

The pancreas produces insulin, and a tumor on or near it can cause the production of more insulin. Since the liver stores sugar, damage to it can result in chronic low blood sugar.

Heavy drinking robs the body of blood sugar by blocking the conversion of protein and fat into blood sugar, Gyax explains. In addition, heavy drinkers don't feel hungry and don't eat properly, further lowering blood sugar.

Reactive or functional hypoglycemic symptoms occur two to four hours after eating. Gyax said this condition occurs most often in people whose pancreas is on the verge of malfunctioning.

But hypoglycemia can be managed through "diet therapy," Gyax said. The therapy "is based on the fact that sugary foods stimulate the pancreas to produce insulin immediately. So, to avoid insulin production, you're recommended a diet rich in protein and fat and moderate in carbohydrates."

Proteins and fats do include sugar, Gyax says. But they are released into the system more slowly than carbohydrates, keeping the production of insulin on an even keel.

Also complex carbohydrates, like whole wheat bread, contain complex sugars that in turn break down more slowly in the system than simple sugars like candy.

Usually, diet therapy includes three meals and three snacks with protein included in each. A sample breakfast for a person with hypoglycemia would include a fresh orange, one poached egg, one slice of whole wheat toast with a teaspoon of margarine, a cup of milk and herbal tea. The eggs and milk provide the protein and are musts, Gyax explains.

A required bedtime snack would consist of half a peanut butter sandwich without jelly and a cup of milk.

The diet avoids concentrated sweets like honey, jam, pie, ice cream, canned fruits and candy bars.

Also, hypoglycemics should avoid alcohol and caffeine. Caffeine can create symptoms like irritability and hunger that are similar to hypoglycemia, she adds.

Gygax says many parents believe their children have hypoglycemia because they seem to react badly to sugar.

"It has even been alleged that as many as 90 percent of juvenile delinquents and convicted criminals suffer from low blood sugar," Gyax says.

But research has turned up no evidence that eating too much sugar is linked to hypoglycemia or behavioral disorders such as depression, hyperactivity or criminal behavior. In 1983, a study compared the effects of drinks with sugar, sweetener and water on 53 young adults. Researchers discovered none of the three beverages had any effect in changing mood.

Hypoglycemia is a rare disorder and theories that it is common among criminals are probably based on research not accepted by the medical profession.

"A lot of kids eat a lot of sugar," Gyax says. "It's good to cut back just for a better overall nutritious diet. I think snacks are fine, but it's better if they supply something. Soda and other sugar snacks only supply calories."

U.S. Border Patrol breaks top alien smuggling ring

EL PASO (AP) — A six-month operation by the U.S. Border Patrol has broken up an alleged alien smuggling ring that operated out of a truck stop in this West Texas city, officials say.

Dubbed "Operation Chevron," the agency's investigation resulted in the arrest of 30 alleged smugglers and 97 illegal aliens, said James Selbe, associate chief patrol agent in charge of the Border Patrol's anti-smuggling division in El Paso.

Selbe said the suspected smugglers generally used commercial truck drivers to transport illegal aliens from an El Paso truck stop near the interstate to easterly destinations.

Of the 30 people arrested on smuggling-related charges during the past six months, 17 were truck drivers, Selbe said. The 13 others were Mexican nationals who allegedly brought the aliens across the Rio Grande into this country.

All the illegal aliens were from Mexico, Selbe said.

The Border Patrol said it learned last November that a smuggling operation was based at the truck stop. Several tips were received, leading the agency to dispatch several undercover agents to the area to mingle with the alleged smugglers, Selbe said.

Most often, he said, groups of two, five or six aliens were transported to the truck stop, where they would wait for designated trucks. Then, they would stay in the sleeping compartments of the vehicles while being transported, he said.

Other times, Selbe said, truck drivers would pick up aliens at other sites.

He added that the usual price charged for each alien to be smuggled into the United States was $150.

"Most of the truck drivers were opportunists. They saw a chance to make some money, tax-free," he said.

Selbe said the companies for which the truck drivers worked and employees at the truck stop were not implicated in the alleged operation.

"We've always known that haul commercial truckers do haul aliens," Selbe said. "But it's been impossible for us to conduct a thorough search on every truck that passes through the checkpoint."

He said that with "Operation Chevron," agents at the truck stop would notify check-point agents as to which vehicles to search.

Selbe added that the six-month operation had halted smuggling at the truck stop.

Victim, suspect facing charges

Witness accounts to be referred to Dallas grand jury

DALLAS (AP) — Witness accounts about the alleged brutal beating of an 18-year-old shoplifting suspect by employees of a store will be referred to a Dallas County grand jury, authorities said.

Police said a shoplifting charge also is pending against the teenager, who store customers said was beaten by store employees with a shovel and iron clamp after he allegedly tried to steal a radio.

Store employees have declined to discuss the incident, although an assistant store manager said of the witness accounts, "That's not the way it happened."

In separate accounts to the Dallas Morning News, which tracked down witnesses from police reports, customers who saw the beating incident at the Manufacturers Outlet store described it as "barbaric" and said many of them, screaming and crying, pleaded desperately to let the man go.

The suspect finally escaped by breaking through a window, then collapsed in a pool of blood outside the retail store. He was treated for lacerated tendons and muscles in his left arm, and received stitches to close head wounds after the Friday incident.

Witnesses said the beating was brutal and that the man had reason to run for his life.

"I've never seen a man beaten like that, and I'm still having nightmares," said Betty Brown, 54.

Ms. Brown said she was hoarse from imploring store employees to stop.

"No one who hadn't seen it could ever believe a man could be beaten like that," she said.

Another witness said she was scared by the violence.

"They wanted to kill the guy, and what for? A radio. A radio that none of us saw," said Anita Hernandez, 29.

The assistant store manager said he had consulted an attorney and could not discuss the incident. Other store employees also have been told not to comment.

Dallas police said Tuesday that a misdemeanor theft charge is still pending against the teen-ager, and that witness allegations of aggravated assault by store employees will be referred to a Dallas County grand jury.

James Hawkins, president of Gibson Products Inc., which owns the store, said the company is doing an internal investigation.

"If wrong tactics were used, we'll plan appropriate action," Hawkins said. "But we won't punish them for trying to stop a shoplifter and protect our property."

Customers at the store said about 20 people, many of them screaming and crying, pleaded with store employees to let the man go. One witness said she fainted in reaction to the blood and violence.

Others said their children were badly shaken.

"They beat and beat and beat him," said Anna Buchanan, a Baptist minister who was at the store.

"He plunged against the window. I began to scream, and my children were screaming. I was sure they were going to kill him."

"Not one time did he ever try to defend himself," she said. "It was just devastating. It was just barbaric."

Accounts from seven witnesses in various places inside and outside the store agreed on the series of events.

Cattle manure used as energy

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Burning cattle manure from feedlots could boost the profits of lot owners by providing an efficient new source of energy, a pair of Texas A&M University researchers say.

John Sweeten, professor of agricultural engineering, and K. Annamalai, a mechanical engineering professor, said Tuesday the manure could supply lots with up to six times more energy than is used in the form of steam and electricity.

Feedlot owners could sell the excess energy for profits, the researchers said.

"The basic technology now exists for manure power plants," said Sweeten, who specializes in waste management. "Cattle feedlots in Texas produce nearly 4 million tons of manure each year, and these wastes are too much to be used for crop fertilizer in some years."

Sweeten and Annamalai said they have proved through combustion experiments that manure burns much like Texas lignite. They have worked with the Valley View Energy Corp., which hopes to build a manure-fired plant near Hereford to supply about 5 percent of Austin's power by 1987.

The researchers say cattle feedlot manure burns efficiently, producing a higher percentage of gas than lignite and containing 4,000 to 6,000 Btu of energy per pound depending upon how much moisture and soil the manure contains.

The researchers now are conducting additional laboratory experiments to determine acceptable operating conditions and net energy production.
