Gate keepers

Q. Why doesn't the high school have someone to patrol the parking lots during school hours?

A. According to Superintendent Lynn Hise, the high school employs gate keepers who periodically walk through the parking lot during school hours to check on parking permits.

"Basically, they are gate keepers," Hise said. They are not on a regular patrol, he said.

Gladys Perkins was a little surprised to find this lightbulb still burning after 27 years.

Brightly burning bulb discovered after 27 years

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Light bulb, light bulb burning bright.

It's been doing just that for 27 years at Gladys Perkins' house at 1402 Austin.

"The night (Monday) it was thundering and lightning — I came back to the laundry room to put the window down and I noticed a little pinstripe of light running across the ceiling," Perkins said.

The laundry room, a bedroom and bathroom were added on to the house in 1958, Perkins said.

On Thursday, Marvin Watson, a friend of Perkins' who was repaneling the laundry room, climbed through a ceiling trap door to enter the attic.

He pried a louver off and found a 150 watt Westinghouse light bulb burning brightly.

"It was red hot. It was too hot to hold," Watson said.

The bulb was screwed into a removable socket. Watson unscrewed the socket.

Perkins said the light was originally outside of the house. It had apparently been turned on when the remodeling was taking place, and no one had bothered to turn it off, she said.

"The switch that turns it out is enclosed in the walls somewhere. We found the breaker in the closet," Perkins said.

The light was covered up because wallpaper lining the walls would not allow the light to shine through. When Watson removed the wallpaper recently to begin the paneling job, the light escaped through the cracks in the wall.

"I never dreamed of them (contractors) enclosing a light bulb," Perkins said about the remodeling job performed in 1958.

According to her statistics, Perkins said she has paid about $700-$800 "to burn a light bulb in my attic for 27 years."

Perkins' brother-in-law Gill Delorme who is from Stuart, Fla. and a current visitor in town, said they had contacted Texas Electric Service Co. to find out how many kilowatt hours had been registered for the burning bulb.

"They didn't even know," Delorme said. Delorme had hoped that the local electric company would log information about kilowatt hours but the company had no information to use in calculating the cost of the long-burning bulb.

Perkins said she calculated the cost of the burning bulb by determining a kilowatt usage rate of $.09 per hour. She arrived at this figure by reviewing her past electric bills.

"I think that's incredible," Perkins said about the bulb's 27 year performance.

"It's caused a lot of excitement. That's quite something," she said.

"It is something," Watson added.

Stores ready to defy Blue Law

Staff reports
At least one Big Spring retail store already has decided to open for business on Sundays after Gov. Mark White signs a repeal of the state's Blue Law.

K mart, located at East FM 700 and Birdwell, will open on Sunday, Sept. 1, the date the repeal becomes effective, said manager Steve Trezise.

Some store managers in Texas, however, say they won't wait for an official repeal and will open tomorrow in defiance of local authorities.

Big Spring police are warning against jumping the gun, promising to close down any store that opens before the Blue Law is repealed. Last December, police forced the closing of K mart and TG&Y, which tried to open one Sunday during the lucrative Christmas shopping season.

"If we get a call, we will take action," said Sgt. Pam Jordan. "We will go down like last time and get the manager's name and present the case to the county attorney."

Managers at TG&Y and Wal-Mart said Friday they did not know if their stores would open on Sunday after the law is repealed.

Officials in other parts of the state are split on enforcing the Blue Law during its dying days.

While the Harris County district attorney said he will not sit idle if department stores in the area open on Sunday, the Travis County attorney said he won't prosecute violations of the blue law.

J.C. Penney and Foley's announced this week they will open Sunday even though Gov. Mark White hasn't signed a bill passed by the Legislature this week to repeal the 24-year-old blue law.

"Merchants like Foley's and Penney's are setting a poor example about what they are in the community," Harris County District Attorney Johnny B. Holmes said.

"By opening their stores on Sundays, they're choosing what law they want to abide by," Holmes said. "What if the citizens took the same attitude about choosing the laws they wanted to obey? It would be chaos."

But Travis County attorney Ken Oden said he would only prosecute if the stores forced employees to work on Sunday when they weren't willing to do so.

"Our position right now is that there is an obvious intent to change the law, and we are in a transitional period," Oden said. "It would have to be egregious conduct by a merchant before I would consider prosecution under the present law."

Legislation repealing the Blue Law — which prohibits the sale of 42 items on consecutive weekend days — is awaiting the signature of Gov. Mark White. White said he intends to sign the measure. When it is signed, repeal would be effective Sept. 1.

Foley's vice president Dan Hagan said Thursday that Foley's stores plan to open this Sunday.

"If you asked me if I felt badly about violating the law, I'd like to point out that a lot of the companies

City loads up 'skeeter eater'

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Got some pesky mosquitoes dive-bombing you at dusk in imitation of the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor?

Call Skeeter-busters!

City crews are not actually listed under the Yellow Pages as "Skeeter-busters." They will, however, come out and spray areas with heavy infestations of mosquitoes, said City Public Works Director Tom Decell.

To combat the mosquitoes, crews are using a chemical pesticide, approved both by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the state. The chemical is applied by a "skeeter eater," or fogging machine.

The crews are spraying the mosquitoes early in the morning and in the evening in areas near stagnant water and lakes, including Beal's Creek, the Jones Valley area near One Mile Lake and near Howard College, he said.

In addition, the city is spraying areas on a complaint basis. According to Decell, crews are trying to spray areas which citizens complain about within two to three days.

Decell plans to fight the pesky pests before they begin their buzzing operations, he said.

He has ordered larvicide tablets that can be dropped into stagnant water to kill mosquitoes in larvae form or before they are hatched.

"It's a lot easier to kill a million mosquitoes in the water than to kill a million mosquitoes in the air," he said.

To have spraying in your area, call 263-8311 and ask for the public works department.

NAACP slates dance

The second annual Black and White Ball is scheduled at 8 p.m. tonight at the Halliburton building on the grounds of the Homestead Inn.

The semi-formal event, sponsored by the NAACP, is open to the public, according to Charlene Voorhies of the NAACP. Tickets are $12.50 per couple and $10 per single and are available at the door.

Voorhies said the purpose of the Black and White Ball "is two fold. The primary purpose is to raise money for operating funds. And the second is to have a special, different event."

The NAACP discovered last year that, "There are no formal balls in Big Spring," Voorhies said. "Everyone likes to get dressed up and have a night on the town. It is a different kind of social event."

Last year's ball "was a huge success," Voorhies said. The event last year featured a style show and a "stump presentation." Because it was so successful last year, the stump presentation will be repeated during tonight's ball.

Voorhies explained that a stump presentation is a friendly competition between different fraternities, such as Alpha Phi Alpha. Participants present an outline of what their fraternity does in a kind of a song and dance skit.

Former resident to perform in concert

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Crowds stand at attention when tenor Michael John White sings.

White, who lived in Big Spring briefly, sings the national anthem before the start of all Houston Astros, Rockets, and Oilers games.

And although everyone has their horror story of flubbing the lines on the Star Spangled Banner, White has made only one error. "I repeated one line once," he said.

He returns to Big Spring this weekend — where his aunt and uncle, Alpha and Garland Morrison, still live — to perform the first concert of his Easter Seals benefit tour. He will be accompanied by pianist and organist Steve Kline.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. tonight at the First Baptist Church. Tickets are $15. All poster and ticket sales will benefit Easter Seals.

White will include selections from Broadway musicals, opera and Neapolitan songs in his concert. In addition, he will perform songs made famous by renowned tenor Mario Lanza.

Among the songs he will probably perform are "The Impossible Dream," "O Sole Mio," and "The Lord's Prayer."

In addition, Kline will perform a solo organ recital.

From here, White and Kline will perform in Houston and then in California. White is scheduled to sing the national anthem for the Los Angeles Dodgers game in June and to perform at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel in November.

White was born in Landshut, Bavaria, Germany. He made his operatic debut at 20 as the lead tenor in the Gilbert & Sullivan Society's productions of "Patience" and "The Gondoliers" at Jones Hall.

He appeared with the Houston Grand Opera Company between 1976 and 1979. He trained at the University of Houston, Houston Baptist University and the New York City Opera under tenor John Drury.

He also has performed for former President Gerald Ford, Vice President George Bush and President Ronald Reagan at the Hilton Hotel in Houston. White has made two 45 recordings on the Bellaire label and an album on the Equity label.

Kline was born in Gettysburg, Pa., and majored in music at Wichita State University in Wichita, Kan., where he trained under Robert Town.

He accompanies White on a full-time basis and serves as the organist for the New Hope Lutheran Church in Missouri City, Texas.

Friday night, White sang yet another national anthem, this time to open the Midland Angels game. He broke into singing the anthems before sporting events eight years ago, "by calling and calling and calling and calling and calling."

Eventually, the Astros hired him, and then the Rockets and finally the Oilers.

"I opened major rodeos for two years," singing the national anthem, he said. "But I had to stop. The dirt was too bad."

MICHAEL WHITE
He trained formally as a singer because "it's what I do best," he said. "I've been doing it all my life."

Police Beat

Coahoma woman assaulted

A Coahoma woman was assaulted Friday morning at Lakeview Elementary School, she told police.

Susie Kinman was treated at the Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room for bruises on her back and a bite mark on her stomach, the police report stated.

She was assaulted by a person she knows who struck her on the back with a blunt, hand-held object, possibly brass knuckles, according to Lt. Jerry Edwards and the police report.

Police arrested Tonya Starr, 22, of 1312 Dixie at her home on two warrants for less than $20. One of the warrants was a capias pro fine warrant, meaning she must pay the fine to be released.

Police Friday morning arrested John Hyden, 31, of Lubbock at the police station on a warrant for simple assault.

Mom sues police

NEWARK, N.J. — A 6-year-old boy was locked in a darkened police cell for throwing stones at a car and was ordered to be quiet when he cried for his mother, an attorney for the boy's mother charged Friday.

The youngster has suffered emotional and psychological damage as a result of the alleged incident last June and is undergoing treatment, said lawyer Fredrick Schreck, who represents Mary Linen and her son Kenneth.

Ms. Linen, in a lawsuit filed Thursday in federal court, accused the Newark police of assault and battery, false imprisonment and cruel and unusual punishment. The suit seeks unspecified damages.

Police spokesman Lt. Armando Fontoura said he could not discuss the specific accusations because of the pending litigation.

"Suffice it to say that there are gaps between the allegations ... and those reports that we have from the police officers that were involved in this incident," Fontoura said.

Comatose woman dies

ALBANY, N.Y. — A woman who gave birth after being left paralyzed and comatose due to a mistaken injection of an anti-cancer drug into her spine, died Friday, a hospital official said.

Lillian Cedeno, 21, received the injection Feb. 27 and slipped into a coma 11 days later. Her 2-pound daughter was delivered three months premature by Caesarean section on March 16, but suffered respiratory problems and died after 24 days in an intensive care unit.

Ms. Cedeno, who received an injection of vincristine, a medication intended for use in the bloodstream, died Friday evening, said Albany Medical Center spokesman Elmer Streeter. He said the cause of death would be announced after an autopsy.

Ms. Cedeno had been admitted to the hospital Feb. 14 for treatment of facial swelling.

Airline still talking

CHICAGO — United Airlines and its striking pilots resolved their dispute Friday over a proposed two-tier wage scale, but are still trying to produce a back-to-work agreement in the eight-day walkout, a mediator said.

The resolution of the two-tier issue, a key sticking point in the negotiations, was announced by Helen Witt, head of the National Mediation Board.

"We're farther along than in the past," she said at a news conference.

Ms. Witt declined to provide specifics on how the issue was resolved. "It is behind us," she said.

Last stand

Shiite Moslems close in on Palestinians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslems closed in on Palestinians making a last stand in the shattered Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps Friday, and assaulted another sprawling complex that is the last guerrilla stronghold in Beirut.

"It's a big battle. It looks like they're trying to storm in. Our fighters are holding," a Palestinian spokesman told The Associated Press by telephone from the Bourj el-Barajneh camp in south Beirut.

He said the Amal militia assaulted the camp at dusk behind tank fire from a Shiite army brigade, after six days of firing into it from the perimeter. There are an estimated 3,000 Palestinian fighters in Bourj el-Barajneh.

At the Sabra camp in west Beirut, 1 1/2 miles to the north, a handful of Palestinians blazed away at hundreds of militiamen and Shiite army regulars advancing through the rubble behind heavy tank and machine-gun fire.

"We're fighting foot by foot. They're putting up a hell of a fight," an Amal militia officer said in a smoke-filled alleyway 20 yards from the Palestinians' last bastion behind a block of riddled houses.

"A lot of the Palestinians sneaked out last night. They left these guys here to fight us. I think they're dead men," he said.

A Palestinian spokesman said by telephone: "This looks like the final assault in Sabra. Amal is closing in behind a murderous barrage of 6th Brigade tank fire. We've lost large chunks of the camp."

The guerrillas who left Sabra apparently slipped through the Shiite lines by a network of tunnels they are known to have built years ago under it and the adjoining Chatilla camp. Amal militiamen said they believed the Palestinians went to Bourj el-Barajneh.

Police reported at least 12 people killed and 110 wounded Friday. At least 100 bodies from earlier battles were removed from the camps by civil defense teams and taken to hospital morgues already filled with corpses.

That raised the known casualty toll to at least 338 killed and 1,473 wounded since the Shiites assaulted the camps Sunday to keep the Palestinians from regaining the Lebanon power base they lost in the 1982 Israeli invasion.

Cardinals visit homes

VATICAN CITY — The 28 men who are about to be installed as cardinals spent Friday greeting pilgrims from their home countries, meditating and making last-minute adjustments to their bright red ceremonial vestments.

The crush of cardinals-in-waiting made it a frantic Friday at Gammarelli Brothers, the tiny, dark shop in the heart of Rome where prelates were ushered through for final fittings of their vestments — predominantly red to symbolize the blood of religious martyrs.

But New York Archbishop John J. O'Connor announced he would wear altered garb that had belonged to his predecessor, the late Cardinal Terence Cooke.

Archbishop Bernard F. Law greeted a planeload of pilgrims from the Boston area at Rome's Ciampino Airport, helping them with their suitcases.

"I am surprised by the incredible show, this beautiful manifestation of faith," Law told his visitors.

Churchmen and politicians flew in from around the globe for the public consistory Saturday at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) in St. Peter's Square, in which Pope John Paul II will crown the new princes of the Roman Catholic Church with a scarlet tri-corner hat.

Libya denies plot

TRIPOLI, Libya — Libya denied Egyptian charges that it was behind a plot to blow up an embassy in Cairo with a truck bomb.

A report Friday by JANA, the official Libyan news agency said: "The Egyptian regime ... knows that the Egyptian people and not alleged elements from abroad ... are the ones concerned."

The JANA account accused Egyptian authorities of fabricating "rumors and lies" about Libya to distract attention from its domestic problems.

The Egyptian government said Thursday it had foiled a Libyan plot it said had been planned for Wednesday. The embassy was not named, but a government-owned newspaper in Cairo said it was the U.S. Embassy.

Soldier's return sought

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa asked Angola on Friday to return a South African soldier captured during what Angola claimed was a sabotage mission against an American-run oil complex.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha also asked that Angola return the bodies of two soldiers reported killed in the operation, according to a Foreign Ministry statement.

'Peanut' gives up fight for life after 64-hour fight

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — The smallest of the six remaining Frustaci septuplets, a 1-pound boy nicknamed Peanut, died of respiratory and heart failure Friday after a 64-hour struggle for life, and his tearful father said, "We have to be grateful we have five living."

"Even though he was a tiny tot, he was able to bring into the world a love about him and a spirit about him that nobody can forget," said Samuel Frustaci, his voice breaking.

Patricia Frustaci, 30, was given a sedative and held the dead baby in her arms for about an hour after his death at 12:34 a.m. Friday, doctors said.

The conditions of the surviving three boys and two girls were unchanged Friday, with all listed in critical but stable condition as they have been since they were born Tuesday 12 weeks premature by Caesarean section. The seventh baby was a stillborn girl. Doctors had said the first 72 hours would be the most critical in determining their chances for survival.

"The hardest thing for Patti is she never got a chance to see him (before he died) and that is a sad thing," Frustaci said. He said a joint funeral would be held for the girl, designated as baby G, and the 10 1/4-inch-long boy, designated as baby F but nicknamed Peanut.

The death prompted doctors to delay Mrs. Frustaci's release from intensive care, which had been planned Friday, until no earlier than Saturday, officials said. Plans for a possible Friday night visit to the surviving babies — whom Mrs. Frustaci has yet to see — were canceled.

Controversial segments of 'Doonesbury' pulled

FAIRWAY, Kan. (AP) — Six installments of "Doonesbury" that satirize the anti-abortion movie "The Silent Scream" were too controversial to be distributed, a Universal Press Syndicate official said Friday.

It was the first time since the comic strip went into national syndication 15 years ago that it has not been distributed to newspaper subscribers, said Lee Salem, editorial director of Universal Press.

The syndicate and Doonesbury creator Garry Trudeau agreed not to distribute the strips, said Salem. "The Silent Scream" shows a fetus cringing and opening its mouth while undergoing an abortion. Anti-abortion activists say the movements show the fetus to be in pain. Others dispute that interpretation.

The withheld "Doonesbury" strips set up a sequel called "Silent Scream II," Salem said.

In "Silent Scream II," an abortion occurs within 12 minutes of conception. The narrator names the fetus "Timmy," refers to the mother as a "murderess," and reports that the fetus' last words were "Repeal Roe vs. Wade," referring to the U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing abortion. "Doonesbury" has drawn criticism for satirizing political issues and people, including President Reagan, and some newspapers publish it on their editorial pages instead of with other comic strips.

In the withheld strips, Trudeau "takes some of the lines of thinking (in "The Silent Scream") and exaggerates them," Salem said. "We thought it was an exceptionally controversial subject and that despite Garry's good treatment of it we thought that a lot of editors would not use it. We felt that the material was so controversial that it might kill the strip altogether."

The strips were printed in the June 10 issue of The New Republic under a special arrangement. Salem said Universal Press and Trudeau agreed to let the magazine use the strip because "we thought it could be released elsewhere in publications which had an appropriate audience."

Native plants popular for landscapes

As energy costs increase and time for devotion to home landscapes decreases along with the ever increasing concerns for conservation of water, native plants have become more popular and certainly more practical in our West Texas landscapes.

A fairly new native being introduced in the landscape trade is the "Hope" Desert Willow. The "Hope" desertwillow, Chilopsis linearis (Cav.) Sweet., was released in 1980 by the Agricultural Experiment Station at New Mexico State University and the Plant Materials Center of the USDA Soil Conservation Service, as a native ornamental.

ORIGIN — Seed of "Hope" was collected along U.S. Highway 82 near Hope, N. M. The original plant was growing on the side of an arroyo that feeds into the Rio Penasco.

DESCRIPTION — "Hope" desertwillow belongs to the family Bignoniaceae, which is family of Catalpa and Trumpet-Creeper, and not the willow family Salix. The genus Chilopsis refers to the lip-like appearance of the corolla, and the species linearis signifies long and slender seed pods and leaves. The leaves of "Hope" are about 1 cm wide and 15 cm long. In landscape settings it produces a large shrub — up to 9 m. high. Seed pods are narrow and long about 8 cm. in width and up to 20 cm. in length. Flowers of "Hope" are white with a yellow throat. When soil moisture is adequate, the plants flower from late June until late summer. Flowers vary from 2.5 cm. to 3.8 cm. long and are tubular in shape.

ADAPTATION — "Hope" desertwillow is adapted from western Texas to southern California and southward to Mexico. Albuquerque is approximately the northern limit for desertwillow in New Mexico.

The natural environment for desertwillow is along dry washes. It appears to have a low water requirement, when compared with most commercially available shrubs and trees.

AVAILABILITY — Cuttings in limited quantities are available to experiment station workers, commercial nurserymen, and arboreta from the New Mexico Crops Improvement Association, Box 3CI,

New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88003.

Native grasses can be attractive and functional in a naturalized landscape. They are often insect and disease resistant, and they can be maintained with less water than often used sculptured types such as bluegrass or bermudagrass. Further, native grasses can aid in stabilizing disturbed areas. Tall growing grass species often make excellent specimen plants alone or with other native plants. Individually, massed, or mixed with native shrubs or vines, native grasses add natural beauty to the landscape and help control erosion.

Most of the native species described here are available from commercial nurseries that specialize in native plants. Seed not available commercially must be collected from native sources. Grasses, unless they have underground creeping rootstalks (rhizomes), are difficult to establish from transplants. Direct seeding on a prepared seedbed is the most satisfactory method of obtaining grass strands. Seed cool-season species in the early fall. Warm-season species may be seeded any time between May 1 and July 15.

When they are planted to take advantage of seasonal rains, native grasses are relatively simple to establish. After they are planted, the soil should be kept moist for 7 to 14 days, depending upon the temperature. Once native grass is established, it may require supplemental water if the annual rainfall is less than 15 inches. An application every two to four weeks during the growing season is usually adequate. More frequent applications may produce more growth, but producing a verdant native turf by watering can be more difficult than with traditional species.

Normally mowing after native grasses are established is not necessary. However, even where mowing is practiced, newly established grasses should be allowed to flower before the first cut to encourage reseeding. The most common native grasses used in West Texas landscapes include buffalograss.

Buffalograss is a warm-season bunchgrass that forms sod. It grows 4 to 12 inches tall in moderately heavy sods, in eastern New Mexico at elevations of 3,000 to 7,000 feet. It is usually found in mixed stands with blue grama and side-oats grama. Sod houses were usually made with this species. Buffalograss and blue grama (Short grasses) adapt to arid conditions principally by drying out under moisture stress and becoming dormant. When water is available again, plants revive quickly. It is a low maintenance grass, drought tolerant and tolerant of alkali soils, but it has poor shade tolerance and turns yellow-brown quickly during a dry period when supplemental water is not provided.

Buffalograss forms a dense, tough sod with short foliage of grayish-green (sage green) nap that, with occasional water, retains color from late spring to hard frost. The root system is moderately deep. Mowing is not necessary. If the sod is mowed, it should be cut infrequently to a height of 2 to 3 inches.

If the planted area is well watered, applications of up to 6 ounces of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet per month will encourage a vigorous attractive turf. Buffalograss is dioecious (sexes on separate plants). The male plants have flowers on tall and showy spikes; the female plants have bur-like flowers on very short stalks. Buffalograss does well on heavy soil, but plantings on sandy soils have been successful in New Mexico. No seed are produced when soil moisture is low. One cultivar adapted in New Mexico is "Tex-oka." If seed are collected for planting the seed should be collected in a local ecotype, within 150 miles of the planting site.

Freshly collected seed have an initial low germination of 10 percent. Germination increases as seed ages. If treated (mechanical scarification), germination may reach 75 percent. Most commercially available seed have been treated. About 2 pounds of treated seed per 1,000 square feet is sufficient to produce a dense sod usually within two months. Since plants spread rapidly by surface stolons, plugs may also be used. Each plug should be about 4 inches square, spaced 3 to 4 feet apart. Planted in this arrangement an area will be covered in two growing seasons. Once established buffalograss turf will withstand moderate to heavy water.

Reunion honors Nelia Tompkins

The Tompkins family had a reunion in honor of Nelia Tompkins May 11-12 at the home of Charles and Marie Tompkins, Todd Road. Ages of the guests ranged from 20 months to 87 years and included four generations.

Thirty-year-old movies were shown Saturday night. A brunch was served Sunday morning, Mother's Day. A pinata filled with candy was broken by the children.

Attending were Nelia Tompkins' son, Charles F. Tompkins, his wife Marie, and his son Tommy. Tommy's wife Rhonda, son Troy and daughters Tonya and Trisha also attended.

The daughters of the late Jocile Kittinger, Jana Collins of Irving, Calif. and Kandi Frederick with her son Okemah from Des Moines, Wash. attended. Doris Ortiz, daughter of Nelia Tompkins, attended with her husband Larry, and son Ronnie Lowery. Lowery's sons Jay and Chris, and daughter Connie Lambert with her daughter Bobbette also attended. Nelia Tompkins' daughter Patsy Ann Henry attended with husband Don, and sons Kim and Mike. Also attending were Mike's wife Sandy and daughter Leslie.

Nelia Tompkins moved to Big Spring in 1932 with her husband, the late Homer Tompkins. She worked at Homer's Grocery and Market, Edwards Heights Pharmacy and Cunningham Phillips. Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. C.H. McDaniel, owned Big Spring Hardware for many years.

Weight control class to be offered

As a result of the Health Fair, a class, "Nutrition for Weight Control," will be offered to provide additional education. To accommodate more people's schedules, two sessions will be presented.

The class is offered at 3 p.m. Tuesday or 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Both sessions will be conducted in room 212 at the Veteran's Administration Hospital. The class is sponsored by West Texas Dietetic Association and Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Pre-registration is not required but will help in preparing an adequate supply of materials for all participants. Call the County Extension Office (267-8469) to register or for more information. There is no charge to participate in the class which will be taught by dietitians and Extension home economists. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Obesity is one of the greatest health concerns in America. In the past 80 years the population has become fat; yet people are consuming fewer calories. Mechanization, spectator sports and sedentary jobs have contributed to a physically inactive lifestyle. Although we are eating fewer calories, we are burning even fewer.

Five-hundred persons participated in the weight screening at the Health Fair last week. One in 5 of those weighed are obese (greater than 20 percent of ideal body weight). Only 1 in 20 are underweight (less than 15 percent below ideal body weight).

Our preoccupation with overweight and the belief that overweight is because of overeating is illustrated by the vast array of fad diets and weight reduction schemes available. Controlling calories alone probably won't result in permanent weight loss. The body's almost immediate reaction to a reduction in calories is a reduction in the basal metabolism rate. Within 24 hours after calorie restriction the metabolism rate will decrease by 15-30 percent. The body just gets more efficient in order to maintain the current weight. This defeats the purpose of the diet.

Restricting calories to lose weight often has to go so low it's impossible to get the essential nutrients. The metabolism rate remains at the lowered level even if the calories are increased which puts the body in prime condition for a rapid weight gain. 95 percent of those who lose regain the weight within 1 year.

A balanced diet including a variety of foods from all four major food groups plus exercise will yield long term weight control benefits.

City Restaurant Association planning meeting June 3

By LISA MUSSEY
Staff Writer

Good taste and better service. These are only two of the goals for the newly formed Big Spring Restaurant Association.

The association will have a membership drive at the Golden Corral at 2:30 p.m. June 3, said secretary Mike Connelly. The organization is hoping to include all area restaurants as members, he said.

Connelly, manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken, was the initiator of the organization. He said the group wants to work on cooperation and not competition.

He said local restaurants were not able to serve their customers and present Big Spring to tourists properly due to a lack of information regarding variable increases in business.

"We represent Big Spring," Connelly said. Area restaurants often get "snowed under" because they don't know when to expect heavy business and as a result customers receive bad service, he said.

The association can solve this problem with the information it can acquire, he said.

Dues are $20 per month or $200 per year, said Maureen Everett, treasurer of the association and manager of Denny's Restaurant.

The organization intends to work not as individual restaurants but in unity to provide information on all school events, conventions and benefits. Member restaurants can then prepare for supply and labor increases, said president Janice Jordan, owner and manager of the Burger King.

The association will run advertisements encouraging residents and visitors to eat at its restaurants, she said.

Non-association restaurants do not receive proper notification of events that could affect business, she said. Groups do not tell every restaurant they plan to visit and do notify the association because "it cuts down on the amount of communication and improves the quality of it," she said.

The BSRA is based on another local association at Levelland where Connelly served as vice president. Because of his responsibilities with other stores, he said he is only temporarily serving as secretary for BSRA.

BSRA involves no competition between businesses, vice president Sean Thornton said. "The competition is left in the restaurants and not brought in the meetings," he said.

"There is power in numbers," Connelly said, "by uniting we're all going to win."

One important aspect of the local association is it will benefit restaurants regardless of size, Thornton said. He is the manager for the Golden Corral.

Big Spring Athletics plans to move into new location at Highland Mall

Big Spring Athletics will have Highland Mall as its new home beginning July 1, said store owner Dick Helms.

The store is now located in downtown Big Spring. Helms said he is "very positive" about the move. "I'm as positive as I was when we moved to Big Spring eight years ago."

Helms said he is moving because he needs additional space. The Highland location will have about 1,000 more square feet than his present location on Main Street.

Although Highland Mall is losing Montgomery Wards this summer, Helms said he does not consider the move to the mall a "shaky move."

"That's where the future retail growth is going to be," Helms said. He said building along FM 700 to the east of the mall should improve traffic in the area.

Despite his optimism about the move, Helms is sorry to leave the downtown area, another area of town which has suffered in recent years.

"I have a lot of good friends downtown. I'm attached to downtown. I believe it's on its way back." Recent interest in the area and the renovation of the Settles Hotel should boost the area, Helms said.

Big Spring Athletics is opened from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Construction on Wendy's to begin

Land for a new Wendy's Restaurant to be located at the corner of Fourth and Gregg was purchased Thursday, according to Felicia Armstrong of WestWend Operations, Inc.

WestWend is franchise owner, Armstrong said. Armstrong is marketing and advertising director. Owners of the franchise are Ray Hawkins of San Angelo, Bob Witmer of San Angelo and Louis Rochester of Odessa.

The local restaurant will be the 11th one owned by WestWend. A twelfth store is being constructed in Abilene.

"I assume construction will begin next week," Armstrong said. "We always try to start right away" (after closing.) A building at the site which housed Big Cheese Pizza must be demolished before the Wendy's Restaurant is built.

Armstrong said the new restaurant will be 40 feet by 67 feet (2680 sq. ft.) and will feature a solarium.

"That's new. We don't have any other stores like this," Armstrong said. The restaurant will seat 104 people.

The restaurant should open by Sept. 1 or earlier "if the weather cooperates," Armstrong said.

She is anticipating hiring 80 employees for the grand opening. An average employee count will be from 45 to 50 employees.

First Federal to note anniversary

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY
First Federal Savings and Loan Association will be celebrating its 50th anniversary in June with week-long special activities beginning June 17 and a big open house on Sunday, June 23. During this celebration they will be giving away prizes of gold (appropriate for the golden anniversary.)

Under the strong leadership of Charles Beil, First Federal has prospered to expand to other communities with branch offices in Midland, Odessa and Snyder. The institution has been enlarged six times since its founding and now has 53 employees.

Beil will be inducted June 1 as president of the Texas Savings and Loan League for a one-year year. The induction will take place in Vancouver, Canada at the annual convention. The League, headquartered in Austin, coordinates educational and legislative activities on behalf of the 275 savings and loan associations operating in Texas.

Long active on the state and national levels in industry progress, Beil recently completed a term as vice chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas. This is one of a network of 12 regional banks that constitute the Federal Home Loan Bank System.

The new owner of Highland Mall is Strathnaver Properties Inc. with Bill Becker, a member of that firm, being the on-site administrator during the transition period. He is excited about the prospects for the mall and expects to be announcing several new tenants and additions.

Dick Helms of Big Spring Athletics is moving his store to the Highland Mall July 1. The store is the exclusive Boy Scout merchandise distributor for Big Spring.

David Wrinkle, executive of KBST Radio, has started an excitng program called the Business Bulletin every Wednesday morning at 7:10 a.m. It features interviews with local business people on what's happening in their businesses. David expects the program to be a positive look at our economy, businesses, employers and employees.

Newspapers are handy targets for criticism. Editor John Rice is willing to listen to legitimate suggestions and ideas for improving the Herald. Therefore, he is forming a citizens advisory committee to meet monthly to discuss problems, offer solutions and develop a stronger newspaper-community relationship. This is your chance to be a part of the solution. Call John today and volunteer to serve on that committee.

Dallas-based Bill Haehnel, science demonstrator for Southwestern Bell Telephone, made a special trip to Big Spring to speak at the Blue Blazers monthly luncheon. While here he also spoke to the ABWA Phoenix chapter.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Antidote to problem

By TOM PETERS
Question: Can one simple device be fun, profitable, a source of corporate team building and an antidote to the busy executive's tendency to get out of touch with customers?

Answer: Yes. The device: the VPI, or Volume Producing Item.

Wal-Mart Stores' growth has been phenomenal, from $60 million per year in sales to close to $7 billion in just 15 years; from 15 to 750 stores in that same period. Moreover, profitability increases have matched volume increases step by step. Yet with growth, in 99 of 100 cases, comes executive detachment from the market; and with detachment comes the seeds of eventual decline.

Wal-Mart, led by the indomitable Sam Walton, has battled the negative side effects of growth as successfully as any company I know. Executives, including Sam himself, are regularly out and about with their customers. The terrible "Taj Mahal" phenomenon has not set in: Wal-Mart's Bentonville, Arkansas, headquarters are every bit as spartan as they were a decade ago.

Of all Wal-Mart's defenses against hardening of the corporate arteries, the VPI is my favorite. Each of the top few dozen executives (and, as of this year, their spouses, too) picks out an item of store merchandise that he or she will directly sponsor throughout the year. For instance, Sam (who chooses three items instead of one in deference to his position) has selected a five-gallon plastic fisherman's bait bucket. He will be responsible for tracking its progress throughout the year, for pushing store managers to merchandise it aggressively, for giving those managers ideas about how to display and price the item and for keeping tabs on it whenever he's in a store.

The greatest beneficial effect of the program is simply that it keeps everyone's hand in the business in a very direct way. In a word, each Wal-Mart executive remains an engaged merchant. The hoopla that has arisen around VPI's contributes to that effect. All the executives must publicly announce their choices. Moreover, they must religiously track sales and margins and — for good or ill — report on them, regularly and in full public view.

The program also is fun and engaging. It is humanizing — and often humbling. Some items bomb; they just won't move. The program thus effectively reminds the now-greats of a nearly $7 billion operation of the vagaries of the real world that are lived daily by their field forces.

Finally, the program is yet another source of profit. The energy marshalled in selecting, tracking and reporting on the VPI's often results in whopping big sales volumes.

(1) Develop a highly visible program to keep the entire management group involved directly in customer selling and servicing activity.

(2) Make the program practical, by means of direct assignment of customer responsibility and by means of a scorecard which regularly reports on the results of the program.

(3) Try to inject some fun into the process.

(4) Review the results of the staying-in-touch activity regularly, especially with regard to (a) the customer perceptions you run across and (b) the road blocks to better responsiveness to customers which you encounter among the company's field force.

One might belittle the above by asserting that executive involvement distorts the process of getting in touch. ("Of course customers respond to a honcho," one might say.) My experience, however, is to the contrary. If the executive is truly willing to get his hands dirty, he or she will eventually run into all the same hurdles that stymie his or her field people. Nevertheless, it's worth a try.

Graduates of Leadership Big Spring attend ceremony

Graduates of the Leadership Big Spring program attended a commencement ceremony Thursday at the Big Spring Country Club.

The graduates, the second class to complete the program, attended programs from September to May prior to their graduation, LeRoy Tillery, executive director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said.

Eighteen people graduated, Tillery said. They include Betty Looney, Jay Phinney, Terry Wegman, Stephen Pocsik, Pat Hardy, Larry Futch, John Bingham, Sue Warren, Stephen Herren, John Weeks, Carmen Phillips and Virginia Bolew.

Other graduates include Bonnie Long, Richard Hoolahan, Michael Russell, Linda Arsiaga, David Ziebell and Craig Brace.

Johnnie Lou Avery was speaker. Emcee for the event was Johnnie Rutherford, a graduate of the first Leadership Big Spring session last year.

Graduates received certificates signifying their participation in the program. Rutherford introduced each graduate and discussed their contributions to various projects in the city.

Tillery said the second Leadership Big Spring session "was a success. We lost a few along the way" due to conflicts of time. Graduates must attend seven of nine meetings to complete the program. The group meets once a month from about 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Plans are underway for the third class which will begin meeting in September.

Drive nets cash for association
 Employees of ERA Reeder Realtors collected $257 Thursday night for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, according to Connie Helms, one of the agents for the agency.

Four employees participated by collecting door-to-door in various neighborhoods around the city. Helms said, "ERA is a sponsor of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. It is the only organization we sponsor nationally. We have what is called 'A Day in May for MDA' for the annual drive.

Helms said the realty company will present the money raised during the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon in September. The group will travel to Midland to make the presentation.

Graduates to meet June 6
 Graduates of the Industrial Team training program, sponsored through the Big Spring Area

Chamber of Commerce, will meet June 6 for lunch at the Holiday Inn, according to LeRoy Tillery, executive director of the Chamber. Tillery said the group met for six-weeks during a special training session.

C.L.E.A.N. program set
 The C.L.E.A.N. program, a youth-employment program designed to clean up the city, will kick off June 3, according to LeRoy Tillery of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. Tillery said anyone desiring to contract with the C.L.E.A.N. cleanup crews should contact the Chamber at 263-7641. The program will make bids on the project, Tillery said.

The City of Big Spring will be coordinating efforts with the program this year and will be patrolling Third and Fourth Streets in an effort to keep the major thoroughfares free of debris.

C.L.E.A.N. crews will be concentrating on commercial areas and are not in competition with "kids who clean up yards" for extra summer cash, Tillery explained.

Conoco employees retire recently
 Nine Conoco employees who live in Big Spring have retired under a new early retirement opportunity program.

The former employees were a nine of 11,500 who retired from the parent company Dupont. The workers' tenure with Conoco ranged from 15 to 40 years.

The people include: Jack H. Corder of Midland; LeRoy Dolan of the Sterling City Route, Burl D. Griffith of Forsan, Charles T. Hilbrun of Southland Apartment, Marion D. McMann of 605 Steakley, Mildred Olive of 2518 Albrook, Ray N. Prater of 3215 11th Place, Stewart Anderson of 3611 Calvin, and Claude Van Vleet of Gail Route Box 442.

Business highlights

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic car sales soared by 18.2 percent in mid-May compared with a year ago, the major automakers say.

Analysts attributed the gains to consumer confidence in the economy and sales incentive programs such as low financing rates.

Compared with a year ago, General Motors Corp. said Thursday sales in the May 11-20 period were up 16.8 percent, Ford sales rose 24.4 percent and Chrysler sales were up 22.1 percent.

"This is the kind of news that Detroit can pop some champagne corks on," said Arthur Davis, an automotive industry analyst at Prescott, Ball & Turben in Cleveland.

Among the four small producers, No. 4 American Honda Motor Co. Inc. sales of Ohio-made cars were up 2.8 percent over last year, American Motors Corp. sales were down 32.6 percent and Volkswagen of America Inc. sales were up 6.2 percent.

Nissan Motor Corp. USA sold an estimated 600 cars in the period. It wasn't making cars in the United States a year ago.

In all, the seven U.S. manufacturers sold 268,009 cars in the period, up 18.2 percent from 226,797 a year earlier.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply edged up $100 million in the second week in May, the Federal Reserve Board reported.

The increase, which was in line with analysts' expectations, left the M1 measure of the money supply above the upper limits of the Fed's growth targets.

In the credit markets, the Thursday report was virtually ignored, with interest rates barely changing after the figures were released.

"Since the Fed dropped the discount rate there's very little reason to believe it is willing to change policy anytime soon," said Maury Harris, chief economist at the security firm PaineWebber Inc.

Astros strafe Cubs, 6-2, at Wrigley

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Doran knows what his job is and he worked it to perfection Friday in leading the Houston Astros and Nolan Ryan to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"That's the best game I've had this season so far as getting on base is concerned," said Doran, who reached base on all five of his plate appearances with three hits and a walk and an error.

"That's what I'm supposed to do as the leadoff man, get on base and have the other guys drive me in," said Doran, who is off to the best start of his career with a .290 batting average and a team high of 25 runs scored.

Doran's good start contrasts with his previous two seasons. "I didn't pick up a bat during the winter and didn't create any bad habits," said Doran. "I've had a lot of luck and breaks this year. A cheap hit here and a broken bat single there. Last year it was the other way around."

While Doran was scoring three runs and driving in another, Ryan became the first pitcher this season to pitch a complete game against the Cubs. It was second complete game of the season and the 200th of his career as he hiked his career record against the Cubs to 12-3.

Ryan scattered seven hits and struck out seven, boosting his major league leading career total to 3,942.

"I can't say I enjoy pitching against them," said Ryan of his success against the Cubs. "I know when I was with the Mets I drew them a lot."

Ryan didn't allow the Cubs a hit until the fourth when Thad Bosley doubled home a run. By then Doran and the Astros had staked him to a 3-0 lead.

Doran doubled and scored on a single by Denny Walling in the first. Phil Garner and Mark Bailey both singled in the third with Garner scoring Craig Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Ryan bunted Bailey to second and Doran followed with a run-scoring single.

Ryne Sandberg hit his sixth homer of the year in the sixth inning. "I hung a breaking pitch to him and you can't do that in this ball park," Ryan said.

Doran got that run back in the seventh when he singled, stole second and scored on a single by Terry Puhl.

In the ninth, Doran reached on an error and scored on a triple by Terry Puhl who scored on a sacrifice fly by Walling.

"You can never get enough runs in the ball park," said Doran.

Irwin takes Memorial lead

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Hale Irwin, a non-winner for more than a year, compiled another bogey-free, 4-under-par 68 and established a four-shot lead Friday in the second round of the $600,000 Memorial Tournament.

Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion and the 1983 winner of this event, completed two trips over Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield Village Golf Club course in 136, eight shots under par. He has played without a bogey, a course record.

"A quirk of fate that I was able to make the saving pars when I needed to," he said.

"It wasn't the spectacular shot-making you might expect in a bogey-free round," said Irwin, whose last victory came in the 1984 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

"I think I managed my misses very well. It was not as if I was knocking the pins down on every shot. But then, Muirfield Village is not the course on which you shoot at the pins every times. It suggests you play to the fat part of the green, away from the trouble spots. Generally, that's what I tried to do."

"But I was not always successful. I got in some trouble spots."

As an example, he pointed to the second hole, where he drove far to the right, under trees, played his second to the left rough, and then got up and down from 122 yards, hitting a 9-iron to 25 feet and dropping the putt.

"That kept the round from falling apart. That was the glue," he said.

An international trio — South African Nick Price, Canadian Dave Barr and American Bill Kratzert — were tied for second at 140.

Price, who played his first nine holes of the tournament in 40, got around the rolling hills of the Muirfield Village Golf Club course in 67, 5-under and the best round of the day. Kratzert, who signaled a turnaround in his career with a victory in Pensacola last winter, shot 71. Barr had a 72 despite bogeys on two of the last three holes.

Lon Hinkle and Jim Simons, who shared the first-round lead with 67, both dropped back. Hinkle had a 75 and led a large group at 142. Also at that figure was Gil Morgan, who had a wildly erratic round of 72 that included five birdies, an eagle, three bogeys and two double bogeys.

Simons went from a 67 to 77.

But he was not alone in his difficulties.

The tournament host, founder, course architect, defending titleholder and only two-time winner, Jack Nicklaus, shot 76, including 41 on the back, and had a 147 total, 3-over par. Tom Watson had the same 36-hole score after improving to a 72.

U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller failed to qualify for the final two rounds with 152. Ben Crenshaw, long noted as one of golf's most accomplished putters, four-putted the ninth hole on the way to a 78 and 151.

HALE IRWIN urges a missed birdie putt to halt on the 13th green during the second round of the Memorial Tournament Friday. IRWIN finished 8 under-par for the lead in the tournament.

Lamar's SAL LOSTRAPPO applies the tag as JEFF REBOULET of LSU slides safely into third for a stolen base in the top of the seventh inning of NCAA Central Regional action Friday in Austin. REBOULET scored in the inning but Lamar won the game 4-3.

Sooners, Lamar notch victories

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Keith Hamilton and Bill Rogers combined on a five-hitter Friday as Oklahoma defeated Grambling 5-2 to advance in the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament.

Oklahoma, 55-12, will meet Lamar, 4-3 victors over Louisiana State Friday, at 4:30 p.m. Saturday. The winner will play No. 3-ranked Texas.

Grambling, which lost to Texas Thursday night in 12 innings, was eliminated from the double elimination tournament.

Oklahoma jumped on Grambling starter and loser Martin Foley, 7-4, for two runs in the top of the first on a Rusty McGinnis single that scored Scott Ferguson and Kevin Pearson. The Sooners added one in the fifth and two in the sixth to take a commanding 5-0 lead.

Grambling didn't score until Eric Taylor came home in the sixth on one of Oklahoma's two errors. Hamilton, 6-0, got the win.

Lamar 4, LSU 3

A throwing error by Louisiana State pitcher Clay Parker in the bottom of the ninth allowed Junior Lemons to score and gave Lamar, 33-23, their second round victory and eliminated LSU.

Lamar entered the bottom of the ninth trailing 3-2. David Cortez, 4-for-4 on the day, singled and scored on Lemons' double. John Frankie laid a bunt down the first-base line and Parker fielded the bunt but threw it by first baseman John Dixon, enabling Lemons to score.

"What can I say? You just can't predict this team," said Lamar coach Jim Gilligan. "Junior went to right field like we wanted, and Frankie did a great job, his hit made my year."

LSU struck for two in the fourth as Joey Belle singled in Tim Sossamon and Rob Leary, and then added one in the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Sossamon scoring Marty Lanoux.

Lamar, Southland Conference champions, began their comeback in the seventh when Eric Lastropo scored on an LSU error. The Cardinals brought home another run in the eighth when Jerald Clark came home on another of LSU's four errors.

Lamar's Jimmie Terrill, 3-4, came on in relief of starter Dirk Tidwell in the fifth inning to pick up the win. He scattered seven hits while holding the Tigers scoreless.

Parker, 8-2, on in relief in the seventh, took the loss.

Supreme Court rules 'Play Ball'

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court said "play ball" Friday, blocking a district judge's order that had declared the no-pass, no-play rule unconstitutional and guaranteeing the state high school baseball playoffs will be played.

"We're delighted the court has acted this quickly," said Attorney General Jim Mattox, who earlier in the day personally filed an appeal of the lower court's decision.

Mattox also said he believes the high court ultimately will uphold the controversial no-pass, no-play rule.

"I think the fact that the (Supreme) Court has taken the action that it has is probably a good indication about what ultimate ruling will probably be," he said.

The no-pass, no-play rule was a cornerstone of last year's sweeping school reform law. It bars students from extracurricular activities, including sports, if they are failing any class.

The rule took effect earlier this year. Since then, more than two dozen lawsuits have been filed challenging it, and judges are deciding different ways.

Mattox said the conflicting rulings in state district courts had created confusion about whether the state Class 5A high school baseball playoffs could continue.

District Judge David Dunn in Orange had upheld the no-pass, no-play rule Thursday, but within hours Judge Marsha D. Anthony in Houston declared it unconstitutional and ordered that the rule not be enforced.

The stay issued by the Supreme Court on Friday blocks Ms. Anthony's ruling. The high court scheduled oral arguments on her decision for June 19.

"The stay ... will in effect allow the state championship playoffs to go forward," Mattox said.

"I think this court realizes the importance of bringing about a consistency between these two district court orders and also the importance to these young people, allowing them to go on and play this championship tournament," he said.

"With 25 to 30 lawsuits filed already — and football season still some months away — we can expect nothing by chaos until this issue is resolved. A speedy resolution by the Texas Supreme Court is the most reasonable way to end this controversy," Mattox said.

Bobby Hawthorne, spokesman for the University Interscholastic League, said the area playoffs would be concluded by midnight Saturday. Single-game regional playoffs will be held May 27, 28 or 29, he said, and quarterfinals will be played May 30, 31 or June 1. The state 5A championships will be held June 6-7, as previously scheduled.

"I am a former high school baseball player myself, and I recognize what these young people are going through," Mattox said. "Particularly the seniors realize they may never get to play again. They want to resolve it."

"Sometimes, young people learn more on the sports fields than what they learn actually in the classrooms. One thing they've got to learn, of course, is that they've got to go by the rules that are set up."

"Most of them are doing that. Most of them are cooperating. They're studying. They're passing," he said.

The attorney general criticized Ms. Anthony's handling of the case.

"I heard one of the members of the state Legislature say if she wanted to pass laws, she probably ought to run for the state Legislature," he said.

"But I think she just made an incorrect decision. She was very untimely in the way she handled the matter. She kept us waiting for the last two days trying to get an order out of her."

PGA adopts 'Cal Peete Rule'

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — A new, tough rule — dubbed by some players "the Cal Peete Rule" — aimed at strengthening the requirements for the Vardon Trophy — has been adopted by the PGA and the PGA Tour, The Associated Press learned Friday.

The rule, governing withdrawals and disqualifications in connection with the tour's statistics, was approved at a closed-door meeting of the PGA Tour Policy Board Tuesday night. It also was approved by the PGA board of directors in a telephone poll conducted by PGA President Mickey Powell.

"It's a hard rule and that's what we wanted," Powell said by telephone from his office in Lebanon, Ind.

"In effect, it says that any player who tees it up on the first hole has to complete that round and post a score. No exceptions," he said.

If a player withdraws — for any reason — before completing the round, or is disqualified for any reason, he will be ineligible for any of the tour's statistical categories for the year. He also will be ineligible for the coveted Vardon Trophy, which is awarded by the PGA to the player with the low stroke average on the tour.

Current rules provide that no score go on the record if a player withdraws during the course of a round, and no score is entered if he is disqualified.

"We don't want a player who is having a bad day to just pick it up and have that score wiped off the boards," Powell said. "It could happen in the last tournament of the year, with a player in contention for the Vardon having a bad day, and he withdraws or doesn't sign (his card and thus is disqualified) and wins the Vardon that way. Now, under the new rule, that can't happen," Powell said.

The new rule will go into effect — and tour players notified officially — next week at the Kemper Open in Bethesda, Md. The rule change will not be retroactive.

At least two players who attended the Policy Board meeting, but who asked that their names not be used, referred to the new requirements as "the Cal Peete Rule."

The rule change is an apparent response to widespread criticism and complaints of numerous touring pros over recent actions of Calvin Peete, who won the Vardon Trophy last year with a scoring average of 70.56.

Peete, who has won two tournaments and ranks fifth in the Vardon standings with an average of 70.53 this year, withdrew from the Sea Pines-Heritage Classic in April after playing the front side in 41. He said he was ill. The score did not count on his Vardon average.

Earlier this month, in the Tournament of Champions, Peete was disqualified after he was unable to determine the exact number of strokes taken on the fifth hole. Peete took four to reach the green, then took at least five strokes with the putter, several times hitting the ball while it was in motion.

"We later figured out that his score on the hole should have been 20," said Curtis Strange, Peete's playing partner during the round.

With the disqualification, Peete's score for that round was not entered in the records.

The AP learned Peete was fined by a tournament official and later assessed a much heavier fine — $5,000, one of the largest ever assessed in golf — by PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman in a meeting with Peete at Beman's office in Ponte Vedra, Fla. In keeping with PGA Tour policy, neither of those actions was made public.

"Calvin agreed to the fine and apologized to the players," the commissioner said later.

Peete's withdrawal from the Heritage and disqualification at the Tournament of Champions touched off a storm of criticism from other touring players, none of whom wished to be identified.

"If you're in the running for the Vardon, it sounds like sour grapes, and if you're not, somebody is sure to make it out that the complaint is racial in nature," one tour player said.

A tour spokesman said Peete's record, going back to his rookie year in 1976, was given intense scrutiny and only "one or two times" that he had withdrawn or been disqualified "could not be logically, adequately explained."

Peete, the most successful black player in the game's history, has won 10 tournaments, including nine since 1982, more than any other man on the Tour.

For the record

The Herald incorrectly reported that local pitcher Pete "Jinx" Valenzuela had been credited with the win in Texas Southmost's 5-4 victory over Howard College May 17. Joe Perez of Southmost was the winning pitcher in the game. In addition, Valenzuela's record was incorrectly reported as 9-2. His correct 1985 record is 5-3.
