Escapee

HICKORY HILLS, III. (AP) — The fuss being made about an escaped alligator relative named Fred might be worse than the creature's bite, say the animal's owners and zokeepers.
Police say they are concerned over the safety of neighborhood dogs and cats because of the missing 4-foot-long cayman. But Ray Pawley, the Brookfield Zoo's curator of herpetology, said there's no need to worry — Fred will eat only bite-size animals.
"This animal is less of a menace than a good-sized possum or a raccoon. They're predators, but one this size would eat only bite-sized animals — frogs, fish or crawfish," he said.
Fred is the pet of John Kamysz, 22. He vanished from his cage earlier this week in this Chicago suburb.

Downtown festival slated today

By KEELY COGHLAN

Downtown will show a fresh face for the Heart of the City festival today following a last-minute scrubbing by CLEAN crews, merchants and federal prisoners.
Big Spring Federal Prison Camp inmates joined youths in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's CLEAN program and downtown merchants in picking up the streets near the courthouse Thursday and Friday night in preparation for today's fair.
Visitors to the festival will be able to step back into history while taking a tractor tour of Historic Big Spring with county historian Joe Pickle or walking through the Pot-ton House. Pickle guides his hourly tours through the past between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.
Take a stroll across the courthouse lawn and catch the strains of the country music of the Outlaws Prison Band, the Hispanic music of the Grupo Fama Band, the homespun jug band tunes of the Hot Potato Band and the gospel of the Hillcrest Baptist Singers.
Festivities get underway at 9:30 a.m. with the Senior Olympics, which includes a wheelchair race, frisbee and softball throws and a 50-yard walk, all directed by emcee Cathy McNulty of Channel 7 KOSA-TV's "High Noon" program.
Toddlers can get into the act in a diaper derby and big wheel race. The diaper derby begins at 10 a.m.; the Big Wheel race at 11 a.m.
Wilson the Mystic will display his magical tricks at 1 and 3 p.m. Earlier in the day, puppeteer Kelly Draper will pull a few strings of his own to produce magic of another kind with a sci-fi review at 11:30 a.m.

Deadly rattlers can't stand heat

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Watch your step.
It's slithering snake season. "With all the rain that we've received, there's more undergrowth which makes it a little more dangerous of stepping on snakes. People should take precautions," said snake expert Kirk Kirkham.
Another snake expert Wayne Pierce says rattlers can't tolerate the recent hot temperatures and will seek places that provide shade. "The additional rain provides more food for the venom. Vegetation growth makes it difficult to see the bare ground," Pierce said.
Kirkham said it is very difficult to find snakes right now because they are hiding under rocks. Other places that snakes seek shade are rocky ledges, old cellars, unused septic tanks and caves.
"I went hunting a week ago and didn't see any snakes," Kirkham said.
Though he doesn't hunt for snakes, Pierce said the best time to capture rattlers is in mid-March and April.
"They den up basically like animals in hibernation during the colder months. When the temperatures begin warming up, they start coming out of their dens," Pierce said.
He said that rattlers usually travel together the first 72 hours upon leaving their dens. They resume their duties of hunting, breeding or whatever, Pierce said.

Record temps hit state in early heat wave

FORT WORTH — Texans are used to hot weather, but they don't normally turn their air conditioners up full blast until about mid-June.
This spring, though, a heat wave has hit Texas early, breaking previous records and bringing an early reminder of the summer ahead.
Like their neighbors around the state, Big Springers suffered with the heat several days this week as temperatures rose above 100 degrees.
At Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Thursday it was 103 degrees, two degrees higher than the previous record for that date set in 1928, the National Weather Service said.
Earlier in the week, Amarillo set a new record of 100, four degrees higher than the previous one. Abilene tied its record for the date with a reading of 103.
At least eight cities from Wichita Falls to Laredo topped 100 on Thursday.
The normal high temperature for this time of year in most of the state is the upper 80s, meteorologists say.
Perhaps the best that can be said is that humidity has not been a major factor in most places, according to the National Weather Service.
Meteorologist Buddy McIntyre said the "heat index," which measures humidity, has been only a couple of degrees higher than the actual temperature in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.
While the air has been a little soggy in the early morning, it dries out by the time the mercury climbs to the century mark in the afternoons, McIntyre said.
Weather service forecasters in Fort Worth are predicting only slight relief for the area this weekend with a cold front that isn't expected to push very far south.
McIntyre said the front was expected to sag into West Texas as far south as the Midland area, but angle northward to the Red River, ignoring much of the state.
At least it should cool Wichita Falls, which hit 105 this week.
McIntyre said temperatures behind the front were about 10 degrees cooler.
"If that front gets south of our area, we would be a little cooler," McIntyre said.
The extended outlook covering June 5-9 calls for above-normal temperatures and near normal precipitation, according to McIntyre.
He said it's too early to tell whether the early 100-degree readings are a sign of a long, hot summer.

Living a dream

Couple spent 10 years on a sailboat

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer
Living a dream is almost impossible today, but Doyle and Virginia McClain of 1308 Virginia proved it could be done by spending 10 years on a sailboat.
The fulfilling of their dream started with a vacation cruise from Miami to Trinidad in 1971. Two years later vacationing became the two Texans' way of life. They spent 1 1/2 years on a 27-foot sailboat in an excursion that began off the Galveston coast and took them to the Florida Keys and then the Bahamas. In 1975, their new life continued on a 33-foot vessel named The Reverie.
"We just decided to do it," McClain, 68, said. The couple met no objections from his family when they announced they were going to spend their savings on a sailboat and a foreign lifestyle. "Her family thought we were just completely crazy though," he said.
The couple has covered more than 10,000 miles on the water. The French Islands were a favorite spot where the couple anchored often. Mrs. McClain, 66, said the islands were their favorite spot.
"When you go into the French Islands, everyone is a Frenchman," McClain said. He and his wife enjoyed the hospitality offered to them from the occupants of the islands. One religious group there called the Bahia "just took us in as if we were family," he said. "It made no difference that we were not of their faith."
McClain said that everywhere they went the couple carried dictionaries but it was still hard to communicate. "They'd just laugh at us," he said. Mrs. McClain said sometimes the hardest thing was just buying groceries.
Port authorities would often search the McClain's boat as they docked in various areas. One of McClain's favorite memories is of a boat search held in the Dominican Republic. During this search, he jokingly told his wife that the man was looking for "pistoles and marihuana."

Days later, as McClain left the boat with their laundry, he was informed that an inspector would like to see him. He was asked during this conference, to his and the inspector's amusement, to show what a brassiere was. The inspectors had gotten the word off Mrs. McClain's laundry list. The inspector finally told McClain he was looking for the "pistoles and marihuana" he had been informed McClain had. The inspector learned quickly the report had been a result of McClain's sense of humor.
Before their sailing adventures, McClain was an electrician in Fort Worth. He and his wife Virginia have two sons, Michael, 39, who lives in San Diego and Richard, 36, who lives in Salt Lake City.

The oldest graduate

Grandfather becomes oldest rookie cop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lewis Ellis, a 53-year-old grandfather who does 100 push-ups a day, graduated Friday from the Police Academy, becoming the oldest rookie police officer in the city's history.

"I'm anxious to start," said the academy's oldest graduate after the ceremony on the athletic field for him and 117 other cadets averaging half his age.

Ellis was "a great inspiration for me and the others," said cadet Bama Ford. "He helped me get through (the training)," added Ford, who looked about 25 years Ellis' junior.

As he accepted congratulations from his colleagues, the class' most popular graduate said the six months of rigorous physical training were no problem.

"I've always been interested in physical fitness, so the physical demands of training didn't worry me," said the 6-foot, 180-pound father of eight, whose daily regimen of 100 push-ups, 200 sit-ups and five miles of running during the past 25 years made the police training regimen a piece of cake.

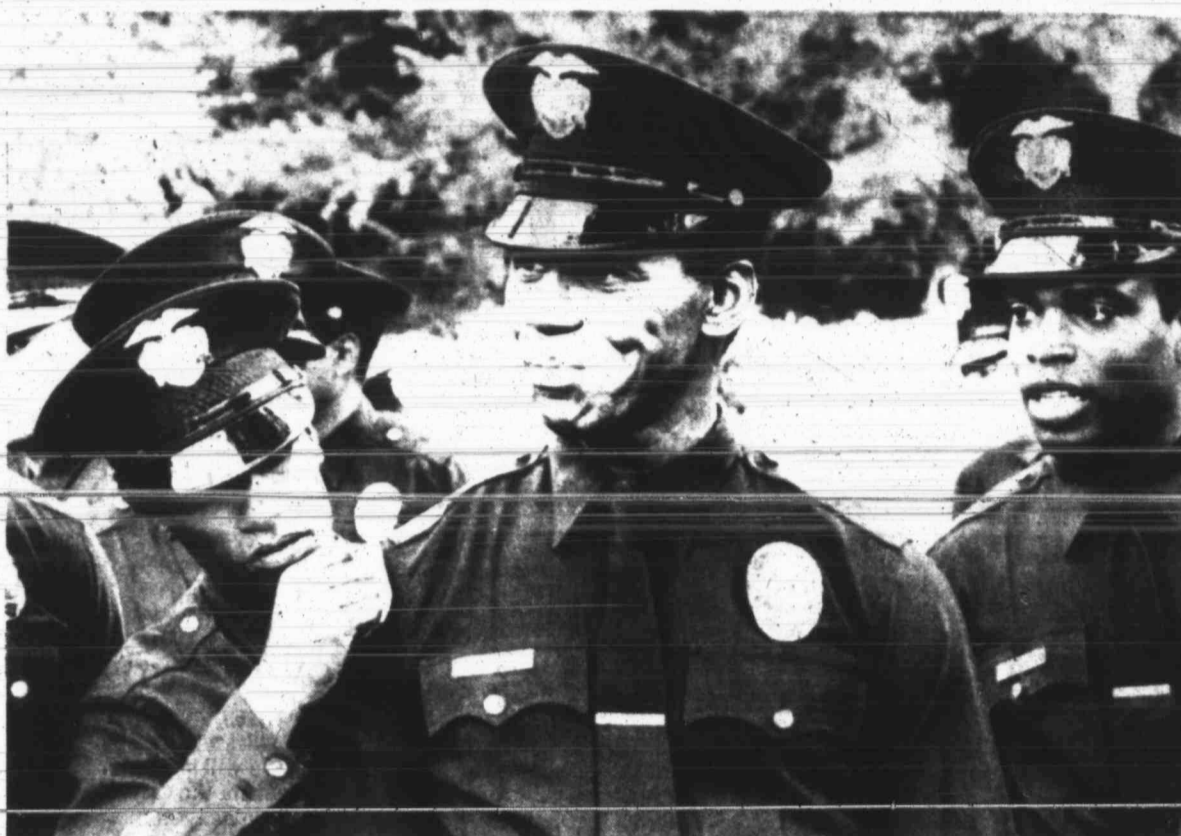

At the academy, he had to do only 125 sit-ups to get the maximum score.

"I'm looking forward to starting Sunday at 3 p.m.," said Ellis, whose first assignment is with the West Los Angeles Division.

During the ceremonies, police Chief Daryl Gates made a brief reference to Ellis — addressing the trainees as young people, pausing, and saying: "We run into difficulty using that term here today. But he is young, he's an inspiration."

The average age of the two classes that graduated Friday is 26.8, or half his age, according to the academy.

As Ellis graduated, his family led the crowd of 700 in sustained applause.

Fellow graduate Bernard Barber brushes a bit of lint off the shoulder of 53-year-old Lewis Ellis prior to graduation ceremonies at the Los Angeles Police Academy Friday.

"I'm proud of him; it was a challenge for him," said son Dexter Ellis, 24, who joined at least eight family members in a rousing cheer for his father when he accepted the diploma from Gates.

"I knew he would succeed," said daughter Julie Ellis, 26.

Wayne Ellis, 30, said his father's success "didn't surprise me. His philosophy has been: If you want to do something, go ahead."

It was Wayne's passing desire to be a police officer that got his father, a 19-year former Southern California Rapid Transit District supervisor, into the Police Department.

He had gone to the department to pick up a job application for his son, who later decided not to apply.

"The lady behind the desk gave me a strange look," he recalled in an interview earlier this week. "And I said, 'Don't worry, it's not for me.' But she said, 'It wouldn't surprise me if it were. There's no age limit any more.'"

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had struck down the age limit for law-enforcement applicants, Ellis learned. With that in mind, "I kept the application for myself," he said. Although his family was dubious, Ellis, a former reserve officer who holds a degree in public administration, decided it was time for a career change.

"My eight kids were grown," he explained. "If they were younger, I'm not sure it would have been right for me to quit a steady job. But now my baby daughter's 20..."

Ellis said he was looking forward to police duty. "I like dealing with people, helping people in the community," he said. "And now I'll be doing it full time."

2 robbery suspects arrested after chase

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Two men suspected of robbing, kidnapping and in some cases sexually assaulting clerks at some 20 motels in six southern states were arrested and charged Friday after trying to ram a state trooper patrol car pursuing them, authorities said.

The two Mobile men, who are cousins, were held in Montgomery County Jail on Friday night under $200,000 bond. Both were charged with kidnapping and robbing a female motel clerk in Montgomery on May 3 and a male motel clerk early Friday in Clanton, Martha Earnhardt, a state trooper spokeswoman said.

The two men are suspected of robbing and kidnapping and in some cases sexually assaulting other clerks at about 20 motels beginning May 1 along interstates in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas, Ms. Earnhardt said.

Sixteen law enforcement officials from Alabama and four other states met privately in Alabama on May 21 to share information about the motel robbery-kidnappings, Ms. Earnhardt said. That information proved instrumental in arresting the suspects Friday morning, she said.

Ms. Earnhardt said Andrew Carl Alexander, 27, and his cousin, Ricky Ricardo Alexander, 22, were arrested about 4 a.m. Friday in Montgomery after being chased by state troopers.

The arrests followed robbery-kidnappings earlier Friday morning at two motels located about 40 miles apart along Interstate 65 in north-central Alabama.

Ms. Earnhardt said a male clerk, who was robbed and abducted in a car by two men at a Quality Inn in Birmingham about 2:10 a.m., was released about 35 minutes later at the Pelham exit on Interstate 65.

Another male clerk, who was robbed and abducted at the Holiday Inn on I-65 in Clanton at 3:15 a.m., was released some 30 minutes later and found handcuffed to a tree off Alabama Highway 14 near Prattville, she said.

Minutes after the Holiday Inn clerk was released, state trooper Dan Darden stopped a 1984 Renault on I-65 in Montgomery because it matched the description of the vehicle used in the robberies.

Authorities, who held a news conference in Montgomery late Friday afternoon, gave the following description of the arrest.

After the vehicle was stopped, Andrew Alexander, a passenger, left the Renault with his hands in the air, then jumped back into the car and it sped south on I-65.

State trooper John Golden joined the chase at I-65 and the Southern Bypass around Montgomery. The Renault tried to ram into his patrol car. When the two vehicles collided, the Renault spun out of control and came to a stop in the median.

There, Andrew Alexander and the driver, Ricky Alexander, surrendered without incident, authorities said.

Ms. Earnhardt said, both men were charged Friday with robbing and kidnapping the male clerk at the Clanton motel that morning and with robbing and kidnapping a female clerk at a Days Inn in Montgomery on May 3. Andrew Alexander also was charged with reckless endangerment as a result of the collision with the patrol car, Ms. Earnhardt said.

Neither man was immediately charged in connection with the robbery and kidnapping Friday morning of the male motel clerk in Birmingham, she said, or with any of the other crimes at motels in Alabama and the other states.

Meanwhile, a newspaper in Macon, Ga., quoted Peach County sheriff's deputy Jimmy Jones as saying that female motel clerks were raped or forced to perform oral sex in some of the other motel robberies and that at least two people were shot.

Jones said clerks in motels along interstates in Peach and Henry counties in Georgia had been robbed and kidnapped this month by two men.

Peso continues to fluctuate

EL PASO (AP) — The value of the peso against the dollar continued to fluctuate Friday at border exchanges, apparently sent diving by gloomy economic rumors in Mexico.

From Hidalgo to Brownsville in the Rio Grande Valley, the exchange rate varied from the 270s to the mid-280s on Friday, up about five pesos from Thursday.

In Laredo, exchanges varied from 265 to 286 on Friday, an increase of from five to nine pesos over Thursday's rate.

In El Paso, the peso's value against the dollar has dropped as much as 15 pesos since Wednesday, reaching 285-to-1 at some banks and 280 at most exchange houses.

The official rate set by the Mexican government is 221.60 pesos to the dollar for certain commercial transactions and 239.66 pesos on the so-called free market. But in Mexico City, one currency exchange house on Friday posted a rate of 290 pesos.

A row of exchange houses on International Boulevard in Brownsville had exchanges in the 270s and one as high as 285-to-1.

Linda Walker, a Brownsville bank executive, said rumors of an oil price change and labor union negotiations in Mexico, could blamed on the run for strong U.S. dollars.

"I think there are a lot of pesos on the market right now and it's making the dollar expensive against the peso," she said. "Now why there are a lot of pesos in the country I really don't know."

She said border banks get rid of pesos as quickly as possible.

"A lot of banks in the Valley are very cautious about the peso. I don't think any bank has a large concentration of pesos. We get rid of them daily," Ms. Walker said.

In Hidalgo, across from Reynosa, Mexico, the exchange rate was 270 pesos to $1.

Rattlers

mid-March. Females will usually drop a liter in August and September. A liter is composed of anywhere from 18-30 baby rattlers, Kirkham said.

"Once a female drops a liter — she keeps on going," Kirkham said. The female does not take part in any mothering duties.

Malone-Hogan Hospital Emergency Room Coordinator Debra Wallace said the emergency room received a snake bite case last Sunday. The victim had been bitten while he was in the Forsan area, Wallace said.

"The best thing to do if you get bitten," Wallace says, "is to immerse the bitten area in cold water or cover it with ice."

She also suggests elevating the bitten area above the heart.

"Most people have trouble or problems applying tourniquets. It can cause more damage than good," Wallace said.

She said that after first aid has been applied to a snakebitten person, the victim should be rushed to the hospital.

Pierce suggests that persons should watch what they're doing. "Don't get scared or terrified if you happen to come upon a snake," Pierce said for anyone who encounters a rattler. "You'll more liable to step on him. Just back away and he will too."

"A bulk of the snakes are in the boonies. Snakes want to avoid people. They will go to areas where there are less people around," Kirkham said.

Sailboat

McClain said they were fortunate to have enough money saved to buy a boat and start out on the sea. "You don't have to be rich to do it," he said. "It's actually cheaper to live on the water than on land."

According to a financial journal kept during their years on the boat, their expenses ranged from $4,413.04 in 1976 to $8,724 in 1980. Mrs. McClain said these figures were accurate. "If we bought a coke, we wrote it down," she said. Expenses were considerably higher in 1980 due to flights made home for the family.

The only expense was food. Mrs. McClain, who doesn't like fish, felt like they ate a lot of it; while he said he never got enough. They carried a three to six month supply of canned goods and only bought fresh vegetables, bread and ice during their trip.

He said the trip was never boring because they both love to fish and swim. "You could always do that," he said. The only other requirement to enjoy this type of life was "you have to like each other." Mrs. McClain said that going for days in such a small space made the second requirement a must.

McClain said weather never seriously hampered their voyage. While anchored in the Virgin Islands, they experienced winds of 60 to 75 miles per hour and heavy rains. They thought that this was bad until they were told the other side of the islands were met with 10 to 20 feet high waves.

The couple said they enjoyed "every bit" of their sailboat life, but "wanted some of the comforts of home." This was the reason behind their decision to come back to life on land. They decided to make Big Spring their home to be close to McClain's sister, Mrs. John Quigley of 609 Washington. Quigley had been their United States contact during their voyage.

The McClains are enjoying life in Big Spring, but they say their travel days are long from over. They have a motor home and say "there's still lots of the United States and lots of Texas we haven't seen yet."

TMI challenged

COATESVILLE, Pa. — Two former cattle farmers who fought for six years to keep the Three Mile Island nuclear plant closed plan a federal court battle to block a restart approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

"Don't let anybody think we've lost. It's not over," said Norman Aamodt, who has argued before the NRC against restarting the plant.

"We are neither bloodied, nor bruised, nor discouraged. We may have been knocked down, but we're not down for the count. When the bell sounds, we'll be ready for the next round," he said.

Aamodt and his wife, Marjorie, met with their lawyer after Wednesday's 4-1 vote by the NRC authorized restart of the undamaged Unit 1 reactor. They said they will sue on Monday in the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia to fight the vote. The state and a citizens group, TMI Alert Inc., have already appealed to the federal court.

Unit 1 was shut down for routine refueling on March 28, 1979, when its companion reactor was crippled in the worst commercial accident at a U.S. nuclear plant. Unit 1 had remained dormant by order of the NRC.

Lab result 'incorrect'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Lab results showing traces of insulin on a needle that Claus von Bulow allegedly used in an attempt to murder his wife probably were incorrect, a professor of medicine testified Friday.

Prosecutors say the needle, found in a black bag allegedly owned by von Bulow, was used in a second try by the Danish-born financial consultant to murder Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with the sugar-regulating hormone.

But Dr. Arthur Rubenstein, chairman of the Department of Medicine at the University of Chicago, said discrepancies in three separate tests at Bio-Science Laboratories indicated the substance recorded probably was not insulin.

Spy ring information

NORFOLK, Va. — A former Navy officer sent his brother a letter while jailed on espionage charges that may contain information on the spy ring they are accused of running, according to court documents made public Friday.

John Walker Jr.'s brother, Arthur J. Walker, turned over the sealed letter to FBI agents when he was arrested Wednesday in Virginia Beach on a charge of supplying his brother with military secrets to turn over to the Soviet Union.

John Walker's son Michael, a sailor on the USS Nimitz, has also been arrested and charged in the case. The older Walkers both are retired Navy officers.

Ceasefire ends

Syrian troops to move into Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — With Syrian troops reported ready to move into Beirut, Shiite Moslem fighters overran the Sabra refugee camp Friday and captured its last band of Palestinian guerrilla defenders.

Revoking a cease-fire Moslem militias declared hours earlier, Amal militiamen and Lebanese army troops overwhelmed the last holdouts in Sabra and massed for an assault on the neighboring Chatilla refugee camp.

The Shiite Moslems have been battling Palestinians in the camps for 12 days in fighting that has claimed more than 420 lives.

"Sabra has fallen after heroic battles by our men," a Palestinian spokesman said. Other Palestinians said jubilant Shiites started dynamiting Sabra's tin-roofed houses and "leveling the camp bit by bit."

Amal stopped reporters from entering Sabra and the Palestinian reports could not be confirmed.

Reporters saw the bloodstained bodies of 10 Palestinian fighters, still wearing ammunition belts and bayonets, lying in a soccer stadium outside Sabra.

Radio stations said up to 80 guerrillas were shot dead as they tried to escape from the camp at dawn. Amal said it captured the last 20 Palestinian guerrillas holding out.

But Palestinian sources said 30 guerrillas were captured by Amal and the 6th brigade. "They include senior officers," one Palestinian spokesman said.

There were widespread reports that Syria was prepared to send troops to the Lebanese capital to end the bloodshed. Reporters in the Bekaa Valley 20 miles east of Beirut, said Syrian soldiers had been placed on alert and were moving into new positions.

The movements heightened speculation that President Hafez Assad of Syria had agreed to intervene. Newspaper reports said President Amin Gemayel requested Syrian military help during a meeting with Assad in Damascus. Gemayel flew back to Beirut on Friday, but said nothing about the outcome of the talks. The pro-Syrian daily al-Hakika said the Syrian government has decided to send troops to Beirut. Several sources said Syrian intervention was imminent.

Syria, the main power broker in Lebanon, has some 30,000 soldiers in the northern and eastern parts of the country. The Syrian troops were sent to Lebanon in 1976 under an Arab League mandate to stop the civil war. They remained in Beirut as a peacekeeping force until Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982 and then pulled back to the Bekaa.

The fall of Sabra was crucial for the outnumbered Palestinians who have been outnumbered and fighting against superior firepower. It opened up new routes for a final Shiite push into Chatilla by Amal and soldiers of the Lebanese army's predominantly Shiite 6th Brigade.

Security tightened

NEW DELHI, India — Authorities tightened security across northern India Friday, fearing terrorist attacks by Sikh extremists in reprisal for the army assault last June on the Golden Temple, the Sikhs' holiest shrine.

Sikh leaders in Punjab state have called for peaceful observances of "Ghallughara" — Massacre Week — to begin on Saturday to honor some 1,000 Sikhs killed in the battle at the temple in Amritsar.

Government officials said they believe Sikh militants might mark the occasion with violence attacks designed to provoke Sikh-Hindu riots.

The Golden Temple attack was ordered by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi after her government claimed that Sikh militants, demanding more religious and political autonomy for Punjab, were using the temple as an armory and a base for terrorist attacks. Mrs. Gandhi was assassinated Oct. 31 by two Sikh security guards.

Air raids recounted

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq and Iran both reported "retaliatory" air raids on each other's cities Friday, with Iraq claiming its warplanes struck the Iranian capital of Tehran and also shot down an Iranian warplane in a dogfight.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said a "lone enemy aircraft" dropped bombs on Tehran and was chased away by anti-aircraft fire and Iranian planes. The report, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said three people were wounded in the attack, but "little damage occurred." It made no mention of the possible loss of one of its planes.

In Baghdad, a military spokesman said that in addition to Tehran, Iraqi jets also struck the Iranian cities of Qazvin and Kashan.

The spokesman, who was not identified in keeping with military regulations observed since the war began in September 1980, said the Iraqi planes "carried out fierce and devastating raids and returned safely to base."

Bodies wash ashore

URIR CHAR, Bangladesh — The bodies, many of them very small, still wash ashore a week after the fearsome storm in the Bay of Bengal. The government said Friday that most of the thousands swept into the sea were children.

Troops are helping survivors build tin huts to replace flimsier ones crushed by the huge waves that struck the flat islands and delta settlements a week ago.

Navy landing craft bring food, water and medicine to the 3,000 survivors on this island, one of the hardest hit by the storm last Saturday.

White signs Blue Law repeal Friday afternoon

AUSTIN (AP) — The bill repealing the Sunday-closing Blue Law was signed Friday by Gov. Mark White, who said he is convinced Texans won't be forced to work on Sundays against their will.

The bill was passed earlier this month by the Legislature and several major department stores already have been opening for business on Sundays even though the repeals doesn't take effect until Sept. 1.

Mark McKinnon, a press aide to White, said the governor signed the bill late Friday afternoon.

The Blue Law, enacted in 1961, has forbidden the sale of 42 items on consecutive days of the weekend, effectively closing most stores on Sunday.

The law has prohibited sales of furniture, clothing, hardware, appliances and automobiles, among other merchandise.

After the repealed law takes effect, only the sale of automobiles will be prohibited on Sunday.

Lawmakers continued the ban on car dealers at the request of their dealers association.

White, who has said for more than a week that he intended to sign the repeal legislation, had insisted that legislators include safeguards against forcing employees to work on Sundays.

"After reviewing the legislation, I am confident that protections against employees having to work a seven-day week and honoring citizens' rights to observe religious ceremonies are in place," White said Friday.

According to state officials, allowing Sunday sales should bring the state between $24 million and $40 million in additional sales tax revenue. White noted that in a brief statement released after he signed the bill.

"The signing of this bill will generate revenue needed for the indigent health-care program the Legislature worked so hard to pass in the final days of the session," White said.

That $70 million program — funded by several sources — will provide medical care for pregnant women, newborn infants and others too poor to obtain it on their own.

Repeal of the Blue Law has been sought for several years, but seldom made much progress in the Legislature. Repeal had been fought by owners of small businesses who feared that a Sunday opening option would lengthen their work week as they tried to compete with larger merchants.

Backers this year, including numerous national chain stores, mounted a full-fledged lobbying effort to convince lawmakers to repeal the Blue Law, a direct descendant of 19th Century Sunday closing laws.

White also signed legislation to give cities broader authority over billboards.

'Old Cola Drinkers' want old Coke back

SEATTLE (AP) — Coca-Cola tinkered with part of America's heritage when it changed its 99-year-old formula for the popular soft drink, says a man who's launching a grass-roots campaign to get the old Coke back.

"This is not a joke. We are very serious," Gay Mullins said Friday of his new organization, the Old Cola Drinkers of America. He said the group, which grew out of a bunch of people talking in a Pioneer Square restaurant a week ago, just doesn't think "Coke is it" any more.

"I'm not a protester," he told a news conference. "But there are people who come to me and say they are Coke drinkers. They prefer it to milk. A hamburger with Coke is like apple pie with cheese.

And it's just not the same."

Mullins, 57, a former medical engineer at the University of Washington, said he hopes to rally tens of thousands of disgruntled Coke drinkers across the country to pressure the Atlanta-based Coca-Cola Co. to bring back its old brew.

If that fails, he said he's thinking of filing a class-action lawsuit in Atlanta that would seek to make the traditional drink available.

"The grounds of this suit is that we feel Coke has been around 99 years and we feel it is public domain," Mullins said.

"We want Coca-Cola to put the old Coke back on the shelves or to give the formula to someone else so they can produce the old Coke," he said.

Another alternative, he said, would be to make a lifetime supply of the old Coke available to members of his organization.

"We'd be willing to pay for it," he said.

In Atlanta, Coca-Cola spokesman Ron Coleman said Friday he had not heard of Mullins or his group. But he said the company has no plans to return to the old Coke.

"There can only be one Coca-Cola," he said. "Coca-Cola is the world's leading soft drink. To come out with two of those products would just defeat the purpose."

Coca-Cola announced April 23 it was changing its top-secret formula, making it slightly sweeter. Company Chairman Roberto Goizueta described it as a "smoother, rounder, yet bolder taste ... a more harmonious flavor."

Not to Mullins. The new Coke he tasted "was sweeter, flatter, and it didn't have that old zing," he said.

Mullins, who repeatedly stressed he has no ties with Coca-Cola or any other beverage maker, claims to have signed up 1,000 members so far. "It didn't take long. We called friends, and friends called friends."

Mullins, who's owned and managed real estate since his retirement from the university in 1968, said he's committed $30,000 to the old Coke movement and has set up a nationwide, toll call phone number, 1-900-410-2000, where people can call for more information. His group receives 25 cents for each 50-cent call.

5 die as school bus collides with truck

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP) — A truck collided with an oncoming school bus Friday, killing five people, including four students and the truck driver, and injuring 21 people, authorities said.

The tractor-trailer careened off the bus and struck another truck, and a car struck the rear of the second truck, a witness said. The cabs of both trucks burst aflame.

"I saw kids everywhere," said Highway Patrol Sgt. Steve Taylor, one of the first on the scene of the accident, which occurred about 3:20 p.m. near this eastern North Carolina community. "There were kids mangled and screaming and crying. It was one of the worst accidents I've ever seen involving kids or anyone."

Four students, aged 10, 11, 12, and 13, were killed by the accident, said state trooper C.W. Oakley.

The produce truck crossed into the wrong lane on U.S. 13, struck the bus and ripped its side off, then collided with another tractor-trailer, said Dennis McKinney, a truck driver who saw the accident. He said a car then struck the rear of the second tractor-trailer, which was carrying soybeans.

"She (the bus driver) was doing her best to keep away from him," McKinney said. "It threw the bus off the road like it was a piece of paper."

"The bus hit the ditch. Then the fire started," McKinney said. "I jumped out as soon as it all stopped. I headed for the kids. They had been thrown 10 to 12 feet from the bus. It ripped the whole side off the bus."

The driver of the soybean truck managed to escape the burning cab of his rig, but the produce truck driver could not be saved, said

Donald Hart, deputy chief of the Snow Hill Fire Department.

"There was too much fire to try to pull the guy out," Hart said. "The other guy (the soybean truck driver) said it was all he could do to get out of the truck himself."

Two injured people were taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital in Greensboro, and 19 injured people between the ages of 6 and 14 were taken to Wayne County Memorial Hospital in Goldsboro, according to spokeswomen for the hospitals.

Summer is the deadliest time of year

Summer is a time for fun. But the mixture of automobiles, fatigue, water and alcohol can also make it among the most dangerous times of the year.

A few simple precautionary measures can keep you from becoming a grim summer holiday statistic.

Start early enough to reach your destination without hurrying. Remember that a day at the beach or park is tiring. If you're weary and want to get home quickly, it may affect your judgement behind the wheel. A lengthy stay in the sun at a lake or beach can also affect your night vision. If you have been drinking alcohol on your outing, let someone else drive.

Alcohol is also a contributing factor in many water-related accidents. Use of alcohol, plus fatigue caused by the nature of water sports can produce many faulty decisions and a loss of reaction time in an emergency.

Swimming accidents account for more than 150 deaths in Texas each year, and boating another 100 or more. But there are fatalities each year associated with all types of water activities, including fishing and wading.

Don't swim alone, or while chilled or overheated, overly tired or just after eating. Distances over water are deceiving, and many drowning victims die from attempting to swim across a lake or after abandoning a boat which has overturned or run out of gas, even though the boat stayed afloat.

All boaters should wear life preservers. And children should wear a life jacket at all times around the water. Children and adults often fall into the water from places that are assumed to be safe, such as docks, bridges, boats and the sides of the pools.

A backyard pool can be a special danger to small children. Children should never be left unattended by a responsible adult when near a swimming pool — whether it's an in-ground pool, a large above-ground pool or a small child's wading pool. In the time it takes to answer the telephone or check the food on the stove, an unattended child can drown, even in shallow water.

The best thing parents can do is give children swimming lessons at an early age and then make sure they are properly supervised around water.

Take precautions to make your summer a safe one.

Why fruit trees fail to bear

Many are questioning why fruit trees have failed to bear. Fruit trees normally begin to bear fruit soon after they are old enough to flower. Nevertheless, the tree's health, its environment, fruiting habits, and the cultural practices used influence its ability to produce fruit. Adequate pollination is essential to fruit yield.

One favorable condition may reduce yields or prevent the bearing of any fruit. You can control some factors contributing to fruit production.

BEARING AGE — Most fruit trees are propagated by grafting or budding the variety on a root stock. When purchasing nursery-grown trees, their tops will be one to two years old while the roots may be one to two years older. The age (from planting) when trees can be expected to bear fruit depends on the type of fruit being grown: apple, apricot and sour cherry (three to five years); peach (two to four years); pear and plum (four to six); quince and sweet cherry (five to seven). Dwarf fruit trees may begin bearing fruit one to two years earlier than standard-sized trees.

TREE HEALTH — Trees must be healthy to produce quality fruit. Weak or diseased trees produce poor quality fruit or no fruit at all. The first step is to keep trees from insects and diseases.

CLIMATE AND WEATHER — Flowers and young fruits of trees in West Texas frequently are injured by late spring frosts. Injured flowers may appear to be normal, but if the pistils (center parts of the flower) are killed no fruit will be produced. Time of bloom varies with species. The earliest to bloom is the almond, followed by Japanese plums and apricots. Peaches are next, followed by sweet cherries, pears, European plums, sour cherries, and apples. Varieties also vary in time of flowering. Make selections from varieties that are late blooming and that are recommended for West Texas.

In some areas, although the tree may grow, fruit may not mature because the frost-free season is not long enough. Most commercial pecan varieties can only be grown in West Texas.

POLLINATION — Flowers of fruit trees must be pollinated to produce fruit. Without sufficient pollination, they may blossom abundantly but will not bear fruit.

Varieties which bear fruit from pollination among their own flowers are said to be "self-fruitful." However, many varieties cannot produce fruit from their own pollen. Those requiring pollen from another variety are called "self-unfruitful." Some trees, like pecans, have separate male and female flowers on the same tree. If the male pollen is shed before the female flower is receptive, fruit-set becomes a problem.

Some species of fruit trees do not fit conveniently into either category. Pistachios have male trees that produce pollen and female trees that produce fruit. To grow them successfully, it is necessary to plant at least one male tree for every eight female pistachio trees.

Most apple trees are self-unfruitful. Plant at least two varieties near one another. "Golden Delicious," a self-fruitful variety, and "Jonathan" are the most common pollinators used.

In general, a pollinator should be considered for all pear varieties, even though "Kieffer" and "Duchess" set good crops without pollinators. Most pear varieties, especially "Bartlett," are susceptible to fireblight disease; "Moon Glow" and "Kieffer Starking Delicious" are resistant.

Most peach varieties are self-fruitful. However, if you are planting "J.H. Hale," "Stark Honeydew Hale," or "Stark Hale Berta Giant," you need to plant another variety to assure adequate pollination.

The lack of fuzz on the fruit is the main difference between a nectarine and a peach. Nectarines are usually smaller and have a distinctive sub-acid flavor. Nectarines do not need pollinators. Their flowers are more susceptible to frost injury than peaches, and the fruit is frequently scarred from injury by insects.

Leading varieties of apricot trees are self-fruitful. However, a pollinator will increase production. "Goldrich" and "Perfection" varieties must be pollinated to bear fruit.

Japanese plums bloom earlier than European plums and for this reason they will not usually pollinate each other. "Stanley," the number one European type, is self-fruitful. "Bluefre" and "Stanley" are not the most common pollinizers for European plums. "Redheart" is one of the best pollinators for Japanese plums. "Santa Rosa," one of the most widely planted Japanese plums, and "Methley" are self-fruitful.

With the exception of "Stella" and "Compact Stella" all sweet cherries need a pollinator to bear well. As a general rule of thumb, dark colored varieties will pollinate dark varieties, and light colored varieties are recommended to pollinate other light ones.

Most sour (pie) cherries bear heavily without a pollinator, they are hardier and bloom later than the sweet cherries.

Occasionally, fruit trees bear heavily one year and sparsely the next. This is called "biennial bearing." The spring-flowering buds of most hardy fruit trees formed during the previous spring or summer. Therefore, an especially heavy crop one year may prevent adequate bud formation for the following year, or may seriously weaken the tree.

Biennial bearing of apples is difficult to alter or correct. Sometimes by chemical or hand thinning, when fruit-set is extra heavy, you can induce a return to normal yearly production. Thinning should be done early, soon after fruit-set, before flower buds for next season are initiated. Thin fruits to approximately three to five inches apart.

CULTURAL PRACTICES — Fruit trees need good cultural practices during the season to maintain an adequate number of good leaves for quality fruit production. About 30 to 40 good-sized, healthy leaves are needed to produce one good-quality apple.

Trees need full sunlight for best production. Inadequate sunlight delays the beginning of fruit bearing and may reduce the amount of fruit. Avoid placing fruit trees where they will be shaded by buildings or by other trees.

Your trees will grow more vigorously and bear better if they have adequate space to develop root systems. Do not plant them where roots of forest or shade trees will compete with them. To reduce competition from weeds or grass, cultivate, mulch or apply weed killer.

Prune young trees to train them to systems suitable for the species. Strong branches are needed to support the weight of a heavy crop. Severe pruning may stimulate excessive upright growth, which delays flower production and reduces yields.

4-Hers gather for annual Roundup

More than 2,000 4-H members, adult leaders, friends of 4-H and county Extension agents will gather on the campus of Texas A&M University June 4-6 for the annual Texas 4-H Roundup.

The 4-Hers will be participating in 39 different contests and events, ranging from demonstrations in consumer and mechanical skills to livestock and horse judging and public speaking, says Gayle Hall, 4-H specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System. The Extension Service is the parent organization of 4-H, a program for youth between the ages of 9 and 19.

Roundup activities will begin with the State 4-H Food Show and State 4-H Project Show the first day. An opening assembly at 7 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium will officially kick off Roundup activities. Don Clark from Salt Lake City, Utah, will speak on "Self-competition."

Two 4-H alumni will be recognized at the assembly, and four individuals and businesses will be honored for their long-time support of 4-H. Also, 99 outstanding 4-H members will be awarded scholarships totaling more than $500,000.

Competition in various contests and method demonstrations will be held the second day of Roundup. To compete in these contests, 4-Hers must have won at the county and district level to qualify for state competition. Roundup contest winners will be recognized at an assembly at 8 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium.

The State 4-H Project Show will be open for viewing at 10 a.m. June 5 in the Memorial Student Center of the A&M campus. The show provides an opportunity for 4-Hers to demonstrate their expertise in certain project areas which they have developed over the years.

A luncheon June 5 will honor 28 outstanding 4-H adult volunteer leaders from across Texas, two from each of 14 Extension Service districts.

4-Hers attending Roundup will choose from a number of career workshops presented by the Texas A&M University staff on the final day. The workshops will include agriculture, engineering, business and veterinary medicine.

Tonya and Bill Arencibia are the new owners of the Sportabout in the Big Spring Mall. Herald photo by Tim Appel

Couple opens sports store

Bill and Tonya Arencibia are the owners of the Sportabout, a new sports equipment store located in the Big Spring Mall. The store has been opened about two weeks.

Arencibia is a Big Spring native. He returned to Big Spring to take over ownership of the store. He and his wife had been living in Lubbock and Arencibia had been working as a territorial supervisor for Fleming Foods, Inc.

Because the couple wanted to own their own business, the Arencibias began looking for something they wanted to do.

"I thought Big Spring would be a place of opportunity," Arencibia said. He's optimistic about the new store because, "I grew up in Big Spring. One of the few things to do is sports. People will still play sports" despite the ups and downs of the economy. "That inspired us to look into the sports business."

The Sportabout is part of a national franchise with more than 160 stores, Arencibia said. Headquarters are located in Coon Rapids, Minn. The company stocks a warehouse with goods and also supplies stores directly from name-brand manufacturers.

"We carry equipment from 250 suppliers," Arencibia said. "Anything we don't carry we have a catalogue department. We can special-order from that."

Arencibia feels he can offer competitive prices on sports equipment and sports wear because of his connection with a national franchise.

The Sportabout offers a full line of sports equipment, shoes, clothes and other items related to the sports industry. Arencibia plans to expand the shoe department over coming weeks.

Arencibia is a graduate of Texas Tech. His wife is a Lubbock native. Both are 26 years old.

Mrs. Arencibia will handle inside sales at the store while Arencibia will handle "team sales and outside sales." He plans to cover an area of about an 80 mile radius and will be talking to schools and companies in the area to merchandise his sports equipment.

Service fills area need

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Johnnie Randle, wife of high school head basketball coach Mike Randle, has worked eight years as a secretary. She decided she wanted to be an entrepreneur and work for herself. After doing market research, she found a big demand for maid service in the Permian Basin and chose to start the Rockne Maid Service at 2707 North Big Spring in Midland one month ago. In that time she has already contracted with 32 clients located in all sections of Midland. She has a large staff of maids that she trains, bonds and schedules.

Because the response has been so positive, Johnnie is already expanding. She opened an office last week in Odessa at 400 W. Fourth and will open a Big Spring office in June at the Colonial Club Office Center.

Johnnie says the service is especially appealing to women who work as maids because they receive such benefits as a retirement plan, social security, paid vacations, workman's compensation, and income tax withholding. They also receive professional training.

Clients benefit by having bonded maids, maid supervision and more efficient help.

Dr. Robert Rember, pathologist at Malone and Hogan Clinic, was recognized by the American Medical Association for educational achievement in medicine. Rember exceeded annual AMA requirements for continuing medical education for the past three years. Rember has been in Big Spring since 1979.

Leadership Big Spring is a program aimed at developing community leaders. The year-long program completed the 1984-85 class in May with these graduates: Betty Looney, Jay Phinney, Terry Wegman, Stephen Pocsik, Pat Hardy, Larry Futch, John Bingham, Sue Warren, Stephen Herren, John Weeks, Carmen Phillips, Virginia Belew, Bonnie Long, Richard Hoolahan, Michael Russell, Linda Arsiaga, David Ziebell, and Craig Brace. These 18 energetic, enthusiastic people can do a lot to make Big Spring work better.

Even though the Salvation Army's Light of Hope Capital Campaign is not yet quite over the top, we are so optimistic that plans are already underway for a victory celebration. We've already decided on a date, tentatively chosen a speaker and invited representatives from the Mabee, Meadows and Roberts Foundations.

From the very beginning of this campaign, six-weeks ago, G.C. Broughton and I were confident the ambitious goal could be reached, but the generosity of both those in and out of town has surprised both of us. G.C. put together a team of about 25 people who have made this happen and quickly...three quarters of a million dollars in six weeks. Somebody has faith in Big Spring! One half of this money came from outside the community. This will create immediate jobs as we build new facilities and renovate the 44-year-old building currently used. The needs are being met — thanks to people who care.

Congressman Stenholm has agreed to make the special trip to Big Spring to help "break ground" for the new service center. That ceremony will take place July 2. Count on it!

Quick business facts: Floyd Travis and Mike Arnold have bought Crossroads Restaurant at 1810 South Gregg. After taking it over about six weeks ago, they have been in the process of refurbishing and making some good changes. They said their goal is to provide the friendliest service in the cleanest environment with the best food.

Republic Mineral Corp. on Interstate 20 plans to have a ribbon-cutting and open house soon for their new building.

Jerry Brooks is the new manager of the Pizza Inn. Delivery is a much used service for this long-time fixture of the Big Spring food scene.

Interesting statistics: Approximately 60 memorials are received each month at the Heritage Museum. This is a big part of that budget income.

Last month, 326 RSVP volunteers gave 4,844 hours of service to this community. If they had been paid only minimum wage, the payroll would have been $16,812 for one month.

DETROIT (P) — American Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers union plan to begin labor negotiations next week toward a new contract covering the nation's oldest auto assembly plant.

AMC has threatened to close the 83-year-old Kenosha, Wis., plant unless the union grants substantial concessions on wages, benefits and work rules. The plant makes the Renault Alliance subcompact car and a hatchback derivative, the Renault Encore, which have been selling poorly.

The talks will begin Monday afternoon in Milwaukee, the company and union said Thursday.

The current three-year contract covering Kenosha and an associated metal stamping plant in Milwaukee expires Sept. 15, but AMC says the situation is so critical that it cannot wait that long for a new, less costly contract.

No deadline for concluding the talks has been set, but AMC has threatened to close the Milwaukee plant on Sept. 16 and a company source said AMC expects to get a new contract for both plants "well before that."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can use high-technology exports to improve ties with China and India and alter those nation's relations with the Soviet Union, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said.

Baldrige made the comment Thursday as he discussed with reporters a trade mission to the three countries that he completed last week.

The secretary said China and India each have huge populations and need to improve their economies.

"If you took China by itself... you're looking at a quarter of the world's population and you're looking at a country that has to supply work for over 30,000 net new job entrants a day," Baldrige said.

In 1982, Baldrige said, the United States approved about $500 million worth of licenses in technology. In the first four months of this year, he said, the government approved such licenses at an annual rate of about $3 billion.

"I think in the case of both China and India, we have a chance, really, to change the relationship of those countries to the U.S. and the Soviet Union," Baldrige said.

NEW YORK (AP) — An unexpectedly large $4.5 billion bulge in the nation's money supply in mid-May may make it more difficult for the Federal Reserve Board to relax its credit policy further, an analyst says.

The surge reported Thursday was twice as large as most analysts had expected and bond prices slipped afterwards.

"You can assume that the Fed is not going to ease further at least until the June (policymaking) meeting," said Elliott Platt, an economist for the investment firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. "It puts their policy on hold."

The Fed said M1 rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $582.3 billion in the week ended May 20 from $577.8 billion the previous week. M1 includes cash in circulation, deposits in checking accounts and non-bank travelers checks.

For the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $574.8 billion, a 9.7 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain-decline from the previous 13 weeks.

The Fed has said it would like to see M1 grow between 4 percent and 7 percent from the fourth quarter of 1984 through the fourth quarter of 1985.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Safety is a must

By TOM PETERS

The Bhopal tragedy is felt almost as acutely in the United States as it is in India. It has given a massive and at least partially deserved black eye to American multinationals and to the American chemical industry. It does seem fairly clear from press reports that there was at least a double standard of sorts in play — a laxity allowed in India that would not have been tolerated in the United States. I am an expert on neither the Bhopal crisis nor the Union Carbide Corp. However, I can say one thing for certain. The accident didn't happen at a Du Pont plant. And I, at least, think that's not a coincidence.

E.I. Du Pont de Nemours started as an explosives company in 1802, 183 years ago. That the company made explosives in doubtless the root of its passion for safety. Today Du Pont's safety record is 1700 percent (17 times) better than the chemical industry average and 6800 percent (68 times) better than the average of the U.S. manufacturing industry as a whole.

How does a giant company get to be 6800 percent better at anything major, let alone something as important as safety? In a word, Du Pont lives for safety. Formal procedures are vital, but as one senior Du Pont executive said to me long before Bhopal, "It's important that you not spend too much time delving into the formal attributes, the procedures, the structures. The pervasiveness goes far beyond that."

A Du Pont general manager, with several billion dollars of business under his comm and, stunned me with the following remark: "If I had to choose between having a minor, on-the-job, lost-time accident and losing a top customer, I'd clearly choose the latter. Wilmington (corporate headquarters of Du Pont) would probably not find out about the specific lost customer. However, (Chairman Edward Jefferson) would hound me for two or three straight executive meetings about the lost-time accident."

Du Pont launched a new safety campaign a short time ago because of a spate of off-the-job accidents. Not major ones, not accidents caused by drunken driving or wild motorbike racing, but such things as twisted ankles from weekend softball games. The word from the top make it clear that such things shouldn't happen. (As one senior Du Pont said to me, "When they say that, it means that if accidents occur on your watch, they will somehow or other reflected directly in your incentive compensation.")

Safety is alive — and visible — in every corner of the Du Pont company. Take the annual report. The lead paragraph, year in and year out, is a statistical update on the safety record. Moreover, Du Ponters say that virtually every meeting, regardless of the subject matter — personnel, accounting, manufacturing, research — invariably begins with a report on safety. And every accident, no matter how small (a cut knee in a parking lot in Asia,) is the subject of a report which lands on the desk of the chairman (who is running a $35 billion company) within 24 hours of its occurrence.

Recently Du Pont instituted a major program on quality improvement. Conspicuously missing from the program was safety. A shift in emphasis? No. Why, then? "It's obvious," a Du Pontier replied. "Safety is much too important to be part of any program."

A colleague from Crown Zellerbach Corp., manufacturers of paper products, relates another Du Pont story. The company invested many millions in a chemical plant in the southeastern United States. They got it up and running. Then a minor accident occurred. They shut down the plant to try and correct the program. They did not and got it up again. And another small accident happened. This was not Bhopal; the accidents involved nontoxic chemicals. Then a shutdown and another retooling. And after the plant was up, another accident. After the third round, Du Pont simply shut down the plant and bit the bullet on the entire investment. That is, if the venture was going to be plagued by a string of accidents — no matter how minor by others' standards — it was simply not for Du Pont.

Du Pont smells of safety, as IMB does of customers. Hats off to Du Pont. It deserves our highest praise. Moreover, from Du Pont we can come to understand the basis of a lasting distinctive competence. To attempt to achieve distinction is no easy matter. It requires nothing sort of passionate, obsessive, day-in and day-out (decade-in and decade-out) attention. How does your company measure up — relative to any attempted distinction — by Du Pont's tough standard?

(This column is distributed by Tribune Media Services Inc.)

AT&T communications vice president Robert Ranalli holds a Washington news conference Friday where he reacted to a ruling by the Federal Communications Commission which says phone customers who do not chose a long distance phone service will be randomly assigned one by their local telephony companies. Ranalli said his company has voiced concern over customer understanding of this action and will help educate the public about the change.

PUBLIC NOTICE
CITY OF BIG SPRING PUBLIC WORKS DIVISION PUBLIC NOTICE
IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE MAXIMUM CONTAMINATE LEVELS FOR TRIHALOMETHANES
The City of Big Spring is required under the Safe Drinking Water Act to reduce the maximum contaminant levels for Trihalomethanes below the 100 micrograms per liter limit. In order to comply with this public law the City of Big Spring will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant in the treatment processes and to maintain a residual throughout the distribution system. The combination of chlorine with ammonia does not allow the chlorine to alternately combine with the naturally occurring organic acids to form Trihalomethanes. Thus, the system will be able to be in compliance with the maximum contaminant levels for Trihalomethanes.
The change from the previous routine of water treatment to the use of Chloramines at the treatment plant can cause serious problems to persons dependent on dialysis machines then Carbon Filters are not employed to prepare for the dialysate. A condition known as Hemolytic anemia can occur. Therefore, the general public is hereby placed on notice that on July 15, 1985, the water treatment with process within the City of Big Spring water system will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant. Dialysis patients may be affected by this change, therefore, it is imperative that the pre-treatment scheme used for dialysis units provides some means such as, charcoal filters for the removal of the chlorinating (disinfecting) agent. In addition, the use of Chloramines for disinfecting the potable water system will require different pre-treatment prior to being utilized in aquariums and other uses where the disinfectant agent would prove a hazard to the proposed use. Anyone having any questions with respect to this process, are urged to contact the Director of Public Works or the Big Spring Health Department.

Baseball hit by another drug scandal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A federal grand jury, which touched off fears of a widespread cocaine scandal in major league baseball by calling players to testify, charged seven men Friday with 165 drug counts. No ballplayers were named in the indictments.

The court papers were handed up Thursday and unsealed Friday following a 14-month investigation in which at least 11 players testified. But Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said it was too soon to say the sport had escaped the probe unscathed.

The indictments, released by U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson, listed only the names of those charged and the dates of alleged drug deals. They did not detail sites, dollar amounts or the names of those who may have purchased drugs.

Five of the indicted men are from Pittsburgh, including a former bartender at a popular club visited by players. Two, including a former caterer for the Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse, are from Philadelphia.

Most of the charges dealt with cocaine distribution.

Dale Martin Shiffman, 33, an unemployed photographer from suburban Bethel Park, was charged with most violations — 111 counts. They include 108 for alleged cocaine distribution and three for the alleged use of a telephone to violate federal drug laws.

Shiffman was denied bail at a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Ila Jean Sensinich and will remain in custody until a preliminary hearing June 7.

Also charged are: — Shelby S. Greer, formerly of Pittsburgh, now of Philadelphia, 10 counts involving cocaine. Greer was released on $50,000 unsecured bond. FBI agent Robert Craig testified that Greer, previously identified as a friend of Cincinnati Reds outfielder Dave Parker, traveled throughout the country "for the specific purpose of distributing cocaine." Among the cities that Greer allegedly visited were Denver, Houston, St. Louis, San Diego, Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

— Curtis Strong, 38, Philadelphia, 16 counts of distribution of cocaine. Known as "Chef Curt," Strong is a caterer who, for a while this season, supplied food in the Phillies' clubhouse. He surrendered to the FBI in Philadelphia and was released on $100,000 bond.

— Jeffrey L. Mosco, 30, Pittsburgh, 12 counts of cocaine distribution. He is a former bartender at Michael J's, a suburban bar said to be frequented by Pirates players. He was released on $50,000 bond.

— Kevin M. Connolly, 27, Pittsburgh, one count dealing with cocaine distribution. He is self-employed with an air conditioning and heating company. He was released on $50,000 bond.

— Thomas P. Balzer, 27, Pittsburgh, one count also dealing with cocaine distribution. He was identified as an employee of Connolly's at Budget Air Conditioning and Heating. He was released on $50,000 bond.

Connolly and Balzer were charged jointly with one count of cocaine distribution conspiracy.

— Robert William McCue, 38, Pittsburgh, 13 counts of distribution of cocaine. Authorities said he was in custody in Pittsburgh.

Most of the alleged violations occurred, according to the indictments, between 1981 and 1984.

Each of the 165 counts, except three which involve using a telephone to aid in the distribution of cocaine, carry a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison, a $25,000 fine and a special parole of three years following release from prison.

The three telephone counts involve Shiffman and each carries a maximum four-year prison term.

Conley wins second NCAA long jump title

AUSTIN (AP) — Arkansas' Michael Conley overcame a leg cramp and won the men's long jump title for the second straight year in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships Friday with a leap of 27 feet, 2 inches, equalling his meet record.

The victory gave the Razorbacks a big boost in their battle with Washington State for the team title.

The long jump was the first of three finals in which Conley was entered Friday. The others were the 200-meter dash and the 400-meter relay.

He also will defend his title in the triple jump final Saturday.

Conley said he suffered a "fatigue cramp" in his left leg when he ran through the pit for a foul on his first jump in the final, after leading the 11-man field through the prelims with a jump of 26-6 1/4.

After that aborted attempt, Arkansas trainer Kent Caulfield quickly massaged Conley's ailing leg. And the Razorbacks' senior, the team captain, responded perfectly, hitting his winning jump on his next try.

The 27-2 matched the meet record Conley had set in 1983, when he finished second to Ralph Spry of Mississippi, the winner with a wind-aided 27-5 1/4. Wind-aided marks do not qualify for meet records.

Conley's winning jump last year was a wind-aided 27-0.

He is the first long jumper to win two consecutive NCAA outdoor titles since Carl Lewis of Houston did it in 1980 and 1981 with jumps of 27-4 3/4, windaided, and 27-0 3/4.

Lewis was in attendance at the University of Texas' Memorial Stadium Friday to watch his sister, Carol, compete in the women's long jump final.

He also watched Conley perform and congratulated him on his victory, his eighth in NCAA competition. Conley's total includes five indoor titles.

Conley said that when he started to push off on his first attempt in the final, "I couldn't drive off the runway. So, on the next jump, I wanted to go for it, even if I fouled. I wanted to go over 27 feet."

Meanwhile, Arkansas Coach John McDonnell was thinking in the opposite direction.

"I hope he's smart enough to pass," McDonnell said while nervously watching the long jump competition in the stands.

Conley eventually passed — on his sixth attempt, when he had the title clinched.

"This is the first time I got the (meet) record and won," he quipped.

Conley said he had no regrets over his arduous schedule in this meet.

"I'm glad I'm in four events," he said. "If I didn't compete in four events, I'd always wonder 'what if?'"

"I want to leave (collegiate competition) with no regrets."

"I'm in good shape and this is my last NCAA meet."

The long jump was worth 13 points for Arkansas — 10 for Conley's triumph and three for John Register's sixth-place finish at 25-11 3/4.

Ray Humphrey of Georgetown wound up second, leaping 26-4 1/2 on his final attempt, and Nigerian Yussuf Ali of Missouri, the 1983 World University Games champion, was third at 26-2 1/4.

Washington State also got an early victory Friday, when Tore Gustafsson took the hammer throw title with a heave of 246-10, a meet record.

The next two finishers also surpassed the previous NCAA mark of 244-2 by Southern Methodist's Robert Weir in 1983, with Kjell Bystedt of San Jose State the runner-up at 245-3 and Ken Flax of Oregon third at 244-5, the best ever by an American-born collegian.

Gustafsson and Bystedt are from Sweden and have been competing against each other since they were 16.

JOE DIAL, Oklahoma State pole vaulter, clears the bar at 18-6 to win the pole vault at the NCAA Track and Field Championships in Austin's Memorial Stadium.

Archer takes Kemper lead

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — George Archer battled a driving rain and an aching back Friday to shoot a 3-under-par 69 and take a one-stroke lead over Larry Mize in the second round of the $500,000 Kemper Open at Congressional Country Club.

Playing in the morning when the rain fell its hardest over the suburban Washington course, Archer had two birdies and two bogeys on his front nine for an even par 36, but fired four birdies and a bogey on his second nine for a 3-under 33.

Archer's two-day 137 total was one stroke better than that of another morning player, Mize, who had 70-68-138, but put some space between him and first-day leader Hale Irwin, who shot a 3-over 75 for a 141 total and a four-way tie for fourth place despite playing under clear skies in the afternoon.

In third place, three strokes behind Archer, were Barry Jaeckel and Willie Wood. Tied with Irwin were Jeff Sluman, Doug Tewell and Ron Hinkle.

Curtis Strange, the tour's leading money winner, led a group of six who were 2-under par 142 while defending champion Greg Norman was among eight who ended the day with 143.

Eighty-one players made the cut of 3-over-par 147, the lowest score in the six years the Kemper has been played at Congressional. Last year, 78 players made the two-day cut to continue playing Saturday and Sunday with scores of 150.

Archer, who was two strokes behind Irwin in a tie for second with three players on Thursday, said he was pleased with his play despite the morning long rain.

"I didn't think we were going to get the round in, but it let up after awhile," said Archer after his round. "The greens shed the water beautifully."

"I didn't know there were that many birdies out there," he continued. "Two rounds in the 60s is good for me. In fact, it's amazing."

Archer, who has been plagued with back problems and underwent major surgery in 1978 for deteriorating discs, had his best finish of the year three weeks ago at the Byron Nelson when he finished tied for 12th. He has, however, made the cut in 15 of the 17 events he has entered, withdrawing once and not making the final two days of play only once — at the Memorial Tournament last week.

"I made a lot of putts, that's the key," he said of his round. "Last week, I couldn't make anything and they are supposed to be good greens. This week, I've made 10 or 12 real good putts."

Hilly Congressional is taking its toll on the 45-year-old Archer, a pro since 1964.

"My back is really something," he said. "I'm in constant pain going up and down those hills. My back is tough but it's good enough to keep playing."

Archer said his biggest problem with his back "are those airport seats which bother me more than anything. Maybe I ought to buy a coffin and just ship myself from town to town."

Oilers want another title

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers have just finished winning their second straight Stanley Cup. Now, Glen Sather, the team's coach, general manager and president, wants even more.

"We have to be concerned with staying in the same frame of mind as the last two years," said Sather, who will decide soon whether to return as coach or turn over the bench duties to assistant John Muckler. "Our team is a good, young team with an average age of 25 or 26 and a lot of guys ... just getting to their primes."

"But next year, when they come to camp, they'd better be ready to win their jobs. There will be competition for their jobs, so they have to come in great shape and be ready for the challenge."

The Oilers finished off their latest challenge Thursday night by beating the Philadelphia Flyers 8-3 to win the Stanley Cup in five games. Edmonton lost their first game in Philadelphia, won Game 2 on the road and then took the next three games at home.

Edmonton, which beat the New York Islanders to win its first Cup, was 15-3 in playoff games this season — going 15-0 at home.

Sather said he thought the second Cup was even more difficult to win and imagines the third would be even tougher.

"I tell the guys in training camp that it doesn't matter what you did last year," he said. "It's what you do this year that counts."

Wayne Gretzky, the cornerstone of the Oilers and the National Hockey League's most dominant player, agreed with his coach.

"I don't think you can ever rest on your laurels, on what you did in the past," said Gretzky, who established a playoff mark with 47 points on 17 goals and a record 30 assists. "You have to want to keep getting better because everyone else is out to improve and beat you."

The Oilers have the nucleus to remain atop the NHL for some time. In Gretzky, they have the most dangerous and creative scorer in the game.

Arkansas wins in 14 innings

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Keith Kerns went from goat to hero as he singled home the winning run to give Arkansas a 1-0 victory in 14 innings over South Carolina in College World Series baseball Friday.

The backup second baseman missed a squeeze bunt one pitch before his game-winning in the second longest game in the national college tournament's history. Only the 1-0, 15-inning victory for Ohio State over Washington State in 1965 was longer.

The Razorbacks opened the bottom of the 14th with a walk to Jeff King and a double to left by Norm Roberts. Mark Jackson was walked to load the bases with nobody out.

Coach Norm DeBrynn tried to squeeze bunt King home but Kerns, substituting for shortstop Derrick Richardson, missed the bunt and King was tagged out. Kerns then delivered the game-winning single to right to score Roberts.

The victory moves the 50-13, fourth-ranked Razorbacks to Monday's winners' bracket game against the winner of the Oklahoma State-Mississippi State game later Friday.

Lopez leads LPGA tourney

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Nancy Lopez birdied the hole Friday where she had drawn a two-shot slow play penalty a day earlier and widened her margin to four shots midway through the LPGA Championship.

Lopez shot a one-under-par 71 for a two-day total of 136. Rookie Cathy Kratzert and Alice Ritzman, a pair of non-winners, were the prime challengers for Lopez, who has won an unequalled 30 tournaments since 1978.

Ritzman, playing late in the day on the Nicklaus Sports Center's Grizzly course, birdied her final hole to move into a second-place tie with Kratzert, the sister of PGA tourist Billy Kratzert.

Ritzman matched par of 72, well after Kratzert posted her second straight 70. They were at 140, four strokes below par going into the third round today in this, the second of four annual women's majors.

Alice Miller, No. 1 on the 1985 money list and winner of the Nabisco Dinah Shore, this year's first major tournament, climbed into contention. She shot 70, good for a fourth-place tie at 141.

Phillips advances in NAIA play

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — Tom Berger pitched a two-thirds-innings of shutout relief as Phillips University took a 13-6 victory Friday over Northern Kentucky University in the losers bracket of the NAIA World Series.

Berger entered the game with one out in the bottom of the sixth inning and Phillips clinging to a 7-6 lead. He allowed only a double to Gary Flowerdew the rest of the way, striking out four and walking three batters.

Berger, now 7-3 on the season, was credited with the victory by virtue of a better relief performance.

Flowerdew led Northern Kentucky with two hits and an RBI.

Spinks ready to box again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two years after his fiancée was killed, leaving him with their 2-year-old daughter, Michael Spinks says he's finally shaken his depression and wants to fight again.

The undisputed light heavyweight champion, who meets unheralded Diamond Jim MacDonald Thursday, said for the first time since Sandy Massie was killed in a January 1983 car crash he's looking forward to a fight.
