Claus von Bulow found innocent

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Claus von Bulow was found innocent today of twice trying to murder his heiress wife with insulin injections, more than three years after jurors in his first trial convicted him on the same charges.

The verdict followed about 14 hours of deliberations over four days. The jurors had deliberated just one hour and five minutes today before informing Judge Corinne P. Grande that they had reached a verdict. Von Bulow's lover, Andrea Reynolds, gasped and burst into tears on hearing the verdict.

Cosden resumes full operation

By LISA MUSSER Staff Writer

The Cosden Oil & Chemical refinery, damaged by a March 26 fire, is resuming full operations today, company officials said.

"We're going to take it back up to full capacity today," Mark Palmer, assistant public relations director for American Petrina Inc., parent company for Cosden Oil & Chemical Co., said this morning.

Cosden representatives said earlier that the spectacular fire, which destroyed portions of the crude oil processing unit and a computerized control center, started when a rubber hose carrying crude oil ruptured near a row of burners, causing the oil to ignite.

No serious injuries were experienced from the fire, which sent fireballs roaring 80 to 100 feet in the air and forced a four-hour closure of Interstate 20.

The shutdown did not force any of the plants 400 workers to take time off, Palmer said, because they were all used in repairing damages to the plant. He said that the company hired additional temporary workers to aid in the return to capacity production.

No damage estimates and repair costs could be given, Palmer said.

Cosden resumed production slowly. In mid-April, the plant began producing up to 20,000 barrels of diesel fuel daily, about one-third of its capacity in the first stage of returning to capacity production.

This stage included bringing the "cat-cracker," a unit which helps blend gasoline, back on-line, Palmer said in April. The unit was down because it was controlled by instrumentation in the crude unit's control room, which was destroyed in the fire.

In the next step in the remodeling process, the company got the control room operating again, Palmer said. There was no damage to the structure, he said, but all of the instrumentation was destroyed by the fire.

Palmer said that now that the plant is back to full production, it is better equipped for refining than it was before the fire. The refinery now is equipped with the "most up-to-date" electronic systems available, he said.

During the shutdown, gas prices in the Big Spring area rose between 2 and 10 cents, service station owners said earlier.

Jane Daughette, who owns Ray's Fina at 501 E. FM 700 with her husband, said this morning that their station will "hopefully benefit" with lower prices from Cosden's return to full capacity. However, she said she was not sure capacity production by the refinery would have any affect at all on theirs or other area stations.

Baptists brace for big battle at convention

DALLAS (AP) — Feuding Southern Baptists trooped into this city today for what some are calling the "big shootout" — a battle between rival camps over control of the country's biggest branch of Protestantism.

Their confrontation comes on the convention's opening day Tuesday, pitting insurgent fundamentalists against moderates in a fight for the denomination's presidency and its immense appointive powers.

An unprecedented outpouring of congregational "messengers" from across the nation — at least 30,000 — is expected for the affair. It was preceded by a round of preaching and prayer at today's pastor's conference.

The convention caps a year of political-style, often harsh campaigning in a conflict marked by suspicions, finger-pointing, spying and accusations of distortions and lying.

"We're in such a mess that only God can get us out of it," says the Rev. James Pleitz of Dallas.

Seeking to avoid what some have figuratively termed a "wholesale bloodbath," the heads of state Baptist conventions today were to put finishing touches on a proposed mediation plan.

But it was considered too late, barring an upset of the scheduled agenda, to avoid the collision facing the 14.3 million-member denomination.

Fundamentalists, a strictly conservative element in the generally conservative denomination, charge a "liberal drift" from the Bible in national church agencies and institutions and want it purged.

Moderates, denying any such tendency, call the charge a smokescreen for a political power drive to crush the Baptist heritage of individual freedom in interpreting the Bible and to impose creedal restrictions.

"If it isn't stopped this year, the takeover will be complete," says the Rev. Larry McSwain, a professor at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

The Rev. W.A. Criswell, fundamentalist pastor of Dallas's First Baptist Church, told an overflow crowd of more than 5,000 Sunday that unnamed foes are questioning the Bible's "full scientific and historical accuracy."

"God who made the universe wrote the book," he said.

Reagan gives OK to SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has informed Mikhail Gorbachev of his decision on compliance with the unratified Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today.

Reagan is expected to announce later in the day that he will largely adhere to the nuclear arms control pact, but also take selective action to show America will match any Soviet violations of the accord.

The president, after weighing numerous options for keeping to or rejecting the accord over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, planned to inform congressional leaders of his decision at midday, Speakes said. Members of the National Security Council staff were to make phone calls detailing the decision, he said.

"Also, a letter from President Reagan went to (Communist Party) Chairman Gorbachev," Speakes said, adding that it would be delivered in Moscow through diplomatic channels.

The spokesman said that also were sent to U.S. embassies in allied countries and would be delivered today.

Speakes refused to comment on details of the president's decision, saying only that Reagan had informed Gorbachev of it.

An administration official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the president was ready to approve a policy of "proportionate responses" in order to keep the pact technically alive, yet also show that the United States is able to react to reported Soviet violations of the treaty.

White shines bright in the eyes of Texans

Texas Legislature, governor receive good marks in recent poll

By DR. DAVID HILL Texas Poll Director

Texans' evaluations of Gov. Mark White and the state Legislature improved slightly during the first two-thirds of the 1985 legislative session, according to a recent Texas Poll.

The most recent poll surveyed 1,001 Texans between April 15 and 30. Among other things, it asked Texans to evaluate the performance of White and the Legislature as excellent, good, fair or poor.

White's performance was rated excellent or good by 46 percent of those interviewed, fair by 30 percent and poor by 16 percent.

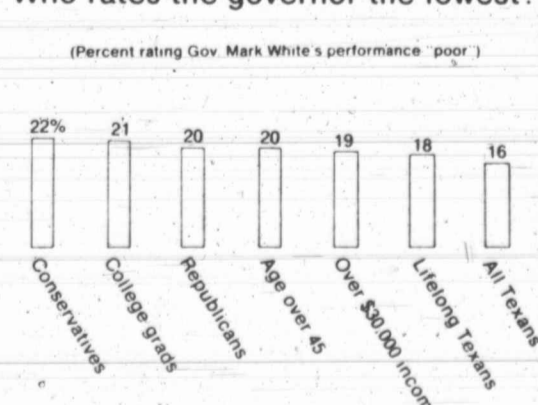

The same question was asked in an earlier Texas Poll in October, when 43 percent of all those interviewed rated White's performance as excellent or good, 31 percent as fair and 16 percent as poor. The April respondents rated the Legislature's performance in this way: 41 percent said excellent or good, 40 percent said fair and 9 percent said poor. In October, 35 percent rated the Legislature's performance as excellent or good, 44 percent as fair and 7 percent as poor. The Legislature began its biennial regular session in January and ended it on May 27. The April Texas Poll was conducted before legislators finished work on several key items, including repeal of the state's Blue Law, a state budget, a mandatory seat-belt law and raising the drinking age to 21.

Texans rated their Legislature higher than residents of six other states where the National Network of State Polls asked the same question last year.

White's excellent and good rankings, by contrast, place him in the middle of the eight governors that NNSP respondents rated in the last year.

White, a Democrat, was rated better in his own party than in the general population. He was rated excellent or good by 54 percent of the Democrats, fair by 26 percent and poor by 11 percent.

White also was rated highly among blacks (52 percent excellent or good), Hispanics (55 percent), 18- to 29-year-olds (58 percent), liberals (53 percent) and newcomers (53 percent).

'Coke is the real thing'

Coca-Cola will always be it to El Paso businessman

EL PASO (AP) — As far as Clarence O. Brown is concerned, no matter what they do to the formula, Coke always will be it. Brown retired earlier this year as vice president of Magnolia Coca-Cola Bottling Co. after spending most of his adult life in the soft drink business.

He was with the El Paso "pause that refreshes" company much of that time. So, while wife Dolly has cabinet after cabinet filled with collections of salt and pepper shakers, figurines and white china cats (with blue eyes), Brown has remained true to symbols of his bread and butter: Coca-Cola memorabilia.

He prizes bottles that range in size from a 2-foot-high one, made for a Coke sales promotion by the Owens-Illinois glassworks, to a 6-ounce one, the original Coke bottle used in El Paso by Magnolia. The small one bears the company's name molded into the clear green glass.

Another, translucent and colorless, contained fruit-flavored sodas of Magnolia's own formulations.

"That dates back to before 1911, the year that Hope Smith (owner of Magnolia) first brought Coke to El Paso," he said.

Still another bottle, of clear, colorless glass, has a metal loop attached to a stopper inside the bottle.

"This is the original 'pop' bottle," Brown said. "They put dry ice into the soda mixture and the gas forced the stopper closed tightly. Then, when you'd push the stopper in to open it, the escaping gas made a loud POP!"

An ornate white and gold ceramic dispenser is a reproduction of one used in early drugstore soda fountains, Brown said. He has two Coke radios — one a miniature vending machine and the other an eye-fooling replica of a bottled drink.

A Coke recipe card file includes instructions for "adding life to your cooking" by using the soft drink to prepare such dishes as baked ham and sweet potatoes, beef Polynesian, chicken Hawaiian turnovers, lamb patties on eggplant slices and a company buffet casserole.

When he was a 13-year-old in his Texas Panhandle hometown of Groom, a friend whose father was in the construction business brought several dynamite caps to school.

Brown took one home, not realizing the danger. It blew up in his hand in the family living room, taking two fingers from his right hand. Later, in a hunting accident, the index finger was blown off his left hand.

He quit school soon after the dynamite incident, and regrets that his education went no further than the seventh grade.

"I did all right without all my fingers," Brown said. "I can fix anything, but I could have gone further in the company if I'd just had more education."

Brown arrived in El Paso in 1937, en route home to Groom after a trip to Arizona.

"I was just passing through," he said, "but I liked it here so I stayed."

He worked for an El Paso smelter until 1942 when he went to Empire Bottling Co., the El Paso Dr. Pepper distributorship, later bought by Magnolia. In 1962, he returned to the smelter and stayed until 1963 when he went back to the Coke bottler as plant superintendent of production.

After an unsuccessful attempt by Brown and others to buy the company when the Smith family put it on the market in 1974, Brown stayed on and the next year became Magnolia's vice president of operations.

Brown serves Coke to guests in Coca-Cola design paper cups, and a rack of Coke coffee mugs stands on the family breakfast table under a Tiffany-style Coke ceiling light fixture.

"Myself, I drink only Diet Coke because of a high blood sugar condition," he said, "but I've tasted the new Coke and it's a good drink. But it's not the old Coke."

"It's supposed to taste more like, you know, Pepsi," frowning as he said the name of the competition.

In addition to the promotion items, Brown treasures handsome plaques that hung on his office wall at the Magnolia plant at 11101 Gateway West, among them three that commemorate Brown's selection as Superintendent of the Year for Coke's Southwestern U.S. Area.

"After I won that three years in a row, they just stopped giving out the award," he said.

The Browns have a daughter, Barbara Hoch of El Paso, and a son, Tom, of Chattanooga, Tenn., five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Tom is following in his father's footsteps, Brown said.

"He's a plant operations manager there in Chattanooga, and he's been named No. 1 in the nation several times," he said.

Tom's company? Brown frowned again, then said with a laugh: "Wouldn't you know, it's Pepsi."

Council to discuss parking law

Big Spring City Councilmen Tuesday night will listen to recommendations from the Traffic Commission concerning the city sidewalk parking ordinance that has angered some businesses in the downtown area.

According to the meeting's agenda, Big Spring City Manager Don Davis made a presentation to the Traffic Commission on May 31, and suggested that most of the parking problems could be solved by designing some alternative parking plans such as redefining sidewalks or parking lines or the angle of parking.

The Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. at the City Council room.

Davis presented a list of 94 businesses located in the central thoroughfares that have parking in the public walkway. Out of the 94, six businesses were identified to have problems with walkway parking. Traffic commission members voted to recommend to the council that the city staff contact those businesses where special problems exist and try to develop alternative parking plans that would alleviate most of the hazards.

Also listed on the meeting's agenda:

• Councilmen are also scheduled to approve plans, specifications and authorizations to advertise for bids for Phase I of a paving and lighting improvement project for a runway at Big Spring McMahon Wrinkle Airport.

Plans and specifications were submitted by Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc. of Abilene to Airport Manager Hal Boyd's office last week.

• Councilmen will also be recommended to vote in approval of rejecting bids submitted for the City Auditorium Roof Repair project.

In a letter addressed to Director of Public Works Tom Deel, an architect from Parkhill, Smith & Cooper recommends that the bids should be rejected due to the amounts exceeding the firm's estimates.

The letter recommends that the city should take bids for "revised documents" on June 27 and the awarding of the work should be made in a city council meeting scheduled for July 9.

Tax review board to hear protests

The Howard County Tax Appraisal Review Board will begin public hearings this week for property owners who wish to protest their value estimates.

Tuesday at 9 a.m. in the Howard County Courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

Real and personal property owners can voice their complaints from Wednesday through Friday beginning at 9 a.m. in the courtroom.

For the record

There was an error in the public notices listed in last Saturday's edition of the Herald.

The Herald mistakenly listed a suit filed in 118th District Court as: State National Bank vs. Bob Brock, suit on note.

The defendant is not Bob Brock, but Bob Beck of Midland, an oil driller. State National Bank is seeking to recover more than $500,000 from Beck on unpaid notes.

The suit in no way involves Bob Brock or Bob Brock Ford of Big Spring.

According to an accident report,

SALT II

Continued from page 1-A showing some kind of restraint, but also include a proper response (to the Soviets) on the part of the United States," the official explained.

The "proportionate responses," he said, involve the dry-docking and postponing the dismantling of a Poseidon nuclear submarine, as well as speeding up the development of the Midgetman missile.

The six-year-old treaty places a ceiling of 1,200 missiles with multiple warheads on each side. The United States would exceed the limit later this year when a new Trident submarine, the Alaska, goes on sea trials carrying 24 missiles.

Dry-docking the Poseidon would keep the United States under the missile limit, but such a procedure is "costly and non-productive," the official said, so another task might be found for the submarine once its missiles were removed. Usual procedure in the past has called for dismantling such a submarine six months after being taken out of service.

1 killed at coal plant

LAUGHLIN, Nev. — Superheated steam blasting from a ruptured high-pressure pipeline spewed into the crowded control room of a coal-fired power plant, killing one worker and burning 15 others, nine of them critically, authorities said.

The 30-inch-diameter steel alloy pipe burst at 3:44 p.m. Sunday during the shift change at Southern California Edison's Mohave Generating Plant, while 20 people, about twice the normal number, were present.

2nd poison outbreak

SKOKIE, Ill. — Health officials say a new wave of salmonella poisonings that may have sickened over 200 people could be connected to the recent outbreak of the disease that struck thousands in six states.

The latest case has been tentatively linked to corned beef from a delicatessen that serves 2,000 pounds of the meat a week to customers in the Chicago area. As of Sunday, there were six confirmed cases of salmonella, at least 13 people hospitalized with suspected poisoning and over 203 reported complaints about the disease.

Train blast rocks city

PINE BLUFF, Ark. — An explosion that sent a huge fireball several hundred feet into the air rocked Pine Bluff today as firefighters stood watch over the burning wreckage of a derailed train that forced the evacuation of about 4,000 people.

The blast at 6:45 a.m. sent a wave of heat to the command station 1½ miles from the site where the 42 Cotton Belt Railroad cars — 10 of them carrying toxic chemicals — derailed Sunday.

Inmates kill guard

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. — San Quentin prison today was in the second day of a lockdown imposed after a guard was stabbed to death in a maximum-security area where some of the most violent inmates are kept.

Sgt. Howell Dean Burchfield, an 11-year Corrections Department veteran, was stabbed by an inmate late Saturday while counting inmates, prison spokesman Lt. Frederic Everly said Sunday.

Kidnapped in Beirut

American professor abducted in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An American professor was kidnapped in Beirut today, and U.N. officials said they have lost contact with 21 Finnish U.N. soldiers held hostage by Israeli-backed militiamen in south Lebanon.

Timur Goksel, spokesman for the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon or UNIFIL, said the force "lost all contact" with the Finns on Sunday. The U.N. peacekeeping force had been in touch by radio with the soldiers since they were captured by militiamen of the South Lebanon Army on Friday.

Security sources said the hostages have been taken out of the UNIFIL security zone to the South Lebanon Army's main base in Marjayoun, 37 miles northeast of the U.N. force's headquarters in a Lebanese border town on the Mediterranean.

The sources said the move could mean a "prolonged period of detention" for the Finnish soldiers. Their captors had said they would free the U.N. soldiers if Shiite Moslem guerrillas hand over 11 SLA men they hold. They have accused the Finnish troops of complicity with the Moslems.

Goksel said the 19 Finns held in Adaiseh were taken to Marjayoun on Sunday, and the two held in Qantara were taken out today in a convoy with "heavy Israeli presence — mostly civilian cars," to an unknown destination.

"I presume they are with the others in the Marjayoun barracks," he added. They previously were held in two groups in the village of Qantara near the Finnish battalion's base and a nearby village.

Goksel also said a U.N. investigation into the "whole affair" began today, including whether the 11 South Lebanon Army militiamen were defectors, deserters or captured.

He said the investigation would also deal with contentions that Finns escorted the militiamen into Shiite-held territory in the direction of the port city of Tyre without prior coordination with UNIFIL's headquarters.

Col. Jean Pons, French deputy force commander of UNIFIL, is in charge of the investigation, Goksel added.

U.N. sources said Israelis were present during the period in which the Finns were held in Qantara and Adaiseh.

Thomas Sutherland, dean of the agriculture faculty at the American University of Beirut, was kidnapped as he drove toward Beirut's Moslem sector from the city's airport Sunday, Lebanon's police commander said.

Maj. Gen. Osman Osman said gunmen shot out the tires and a window of Sutherland's car on the airport highway, grabbed the 53-year-old Scottish-born American and sped off. Sutherland lives in Fort Collins, Colo.

Sutherland, who had flown in from London shortly before, was the eighth American kidnapped in Lebanon since March 1984. One former hostage said he escaped, but seven are still missing. No one claimed responsibility for Sutherland's abduction.

On Sunday, the South Lebanon Army seized and then released a French colonel who was trying to negotiate the release of the Finnish U.N. soldiers, and the militia's leader.

Gunman kidnap dean

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Gunmen kidnapped the American agriculture dean at the American University of Beirut, after shooting out the windshield and tires of a limousine carrying him from the international airport, a university spokesman said today.

Thomas Sutherland, 53, a Scottish-born veterinarian from Fort Collins, Colo., became the eighth American to be kidnapped in Lebanon since March 1984. Seven still are missing. One apparently escaped from his captors. Four Frenchmen and a Briton currently also are believed held by kidnappers.

French colonel seized

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An Israeli-backed militia seized and then released a French colonel who was trying to negotiate the release of 21 Finnish U.N. soldiers held by the group, U.N. officials said.

Meanwhile, Shiite Moslem militiamen turned heavy fire on Palestinians holed up in two Beirut refugee camps, killing 16, and other Moslem factions battled in the northern Lebanon city of Tripoli, police said. U.N. spokesman Timur Goksel announced Sunday morning that the South Lebanon Army militia had taken Lt. Col. Jean-Michel Blemdjian, hostage.

Afghans plan attack

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — An Afghan rebel commander says more than 2,000 guerrillas are regrouping to counterattack Soviet forces that reportedly have gained full control of Afghanistan's Kunar Valley.

Barhanuddin Rabbani said Sunday the anti-communist insurgents were reassembling in Kunar province to start hitting back at the Soviet force after being driven back in desperate fighting that got down, in the end, to hand-to-hand combat. Soviet troops controlled the valley after breaking through late Friday to the besieged border town of Barikot, guerrilla and Western intelligence sources said.

Iraqi jets raid Iran

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iraqi jets attempted fresh air raids against the Kurdish-inhabited regions of Iran today, a day after killing 78 Kurds and wounding more than 120 in a bombing run against a Kurdish refugee camp, reported Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency.

IRNA said Iranian air defenses forced the Iraqi plane to flee from the city of Bakhtaran, capital of the Kurdish province of the same name. There was no confirmation from Iraq, which has been at war with Iran for almost five years.

Is it Mengele or not? Experts disagree on ruling

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Experts disagree over whether the remains of a man who died six years ago belonged to Nazi death camp doctor Josef Mengele and a Brazilian official says no one may ever be 100 percent sure of the identity.

Forensic experts today begin examining the remains of the body, which was exhumed last Thursday from a grave in a town outside Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city.

The remains have been kept in sealed plastic bags locked in a refrigerator at the Sao Paulo morgue.

In Frankfurt, West Germany, prosecutor Hans-Eberhard Klein said today he was investigating Hans Sedlmeier, a Guenzburg attorney, and his wife, for obstruction of justice. Klein would not elaborate, but on Saturday he told the AP that letters found in the attorney's house led authorities to theorize that Mengele might be dead.

Romeu Tuma, director of the federal police in Sao Paulo, said he has asked the United States and West Germany for classified war documents to conduct a handwriting analysis of notes they believe Mengele wrote. They were found at the home of an elderly Austrian couple.

Mengele, who would be 74 if alive, is the most-wanted Nazi war criminal. Nicknamed the "Angel of Death," he is held responsible for the deaths of about 400,000 Jews at the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz, Poland.

Tuma said Mengele's dental records from 1937 were at the morgue. He said authorities still were waiting for information on the height and bone structure of the Nazi fugitive.

Assistant morgue director Jose Antonio de Mello said seven teeth found intact in the skull unearthed last week would help in the identification, which he said could take up to two weeks.

Even then, "It is quite possible that we will not be able to give a 100 percent positive identification of the remains," he said.

The man believed to be Mengele drowned Feb. 7, 1979, in Bertioiga, a beach resort 47 miles from Sao Paulo. The body was buried the next day under the name of Wolfgang Gerhard.

Weekend twisters leave three dead

By The Associated Press

Scattered power outages and battered buildings remained today as the cleanup began after a weekend of thunderstorms that hurled high winds, hail and tornadoes that killed three people and injured more than three dozen in the north woods of Wisconsin and Michigan.

"What else can we do?" said Nancy Anderson, whose 88-acre resort near Minocqua, Wis., was heavily damaged when a twister Saturday threw tree trunks onto camper trucks and buildings, killing one camper and injuring others.

"I'll just follow my mother's example," Mrs. Anderson said. "She walked in this morning, picked up a rag and started cleaning."

About 40 people were staying in cottages and campsites at the Cedar Falls Resort operated by Mrs. Anderson and her husband, Robert, when the tornado hit.

"It was so loud we didn't even hear the trees crashing around us," said Timothy C. Staffeld, 37, of Richfield, who was in a boat on the Willow Flodge, hurrying back to the resort when the twister hit. "We didn't even know any trees had fallen until after the storm had passed."

Authorities said a woman was fatally injured at the resort by a falling tree, and a man was killed in nearby Minocqua when a tornado blew most of his summer cottage into a lake.

The injuries totaled 16 at the resort in Oneida County and about 25 in neighboring Price County, authorities said.

In Michigan, authorities said a man was killed Saturday night when winds knocked a tree limb onto his tent in Shakey Lakes County Park in the southern Upper Peninsula.

"The northwest part of the state got hit really hard," Fred Keyes, a forecaster with the National Weather Service in Ann Arbor, Mich., said Sunday. Nearly 40,000 people were left without power Sunday after the severe weather had passed. Service was restored by Sunday night to most of about 30,000 Lower Peninsula homes between Traverse City and Jackson, said Consumers Power Co. spokesman Dan Bishop.

Kick violence out of soccer

England's reputation for civility took a serious beating with the rioting that resulted in the deaths of about 40 British and Italian fans attending a European soccer championship match in Brussels.

Such atrocities are not limited to British soccer fans who, observers say, started the trouble. The carnage in Brussels was the 10th outbreak of violence within the last two years and the fifth in the month of May. (A soccer riot actually was one of the events that led to the war between El Salvador and Honduras in 1969.)

The disgraceful conduct of fans for a Liverpool team, however, was especially embarrassing to their country, as the televised manslaughter horrified millions of Europeans.

It led British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to comment that those responsible "have brought shame to their country" and to call for a wide-ranging inquiry into the tragedy. The findings are to augment a report by England's Association of Chief Police Officers, which investigated four other violence-plagued matches in England this year.

That report urges a ban on alcohol, searches of fans entering stadiums, better segregation and control of crowds, the use of closed-circuit television patrols and tougher sentences for the troublemakers. Many of these precautions, it should be noted, are in common use in the United States, which is fortunate in that most sports violence here is limited to players on the field.

Some psychologists are not surprised by soccer violence, contending fans trade sportsmanship for deadly chauvinism because national pride is at stake.

The person who can find a way to stop soccer fans from fighting these deadly surrogate wars without requiring matches played in empty stadiums deserves to have the World Cup renamed in his honor.

Shooting pope a madman's act

The opening shots of the papal assassination hearings in Rome set some limits on what has been an unbounded universe of suspicion.

The strong probability is that the would-be assassin is a weirdo from the far right. The Russians may have played a role through the Bulgarian connection. But if so, they probably acted only within a sharply defined window of time.

Before the current round of testimony began, conspiracy theories ran riot. To consider plausibility was to invite attack as a Communist dupe. In those conditions, there evolved a view of total Soviet guilt.

The plot was supposedly set in motion on the accession of John Paul II in 1978. Mehmet Ali Agca was picked for the assassin's job and trained for years by Communist secret police officials ultimately responsible to the KGB in Moscow. Agca's right-wing connections were written off as disinformation — designed to obscure the Communist source.

But in the first days of the current hearings two points emerged with clarity. First, Agca defined himself more sharply. He told the court: "I am Jesus Christ. It's true. I announce the end of the world. Everyone will be destroyed."

Theorists of elaborate conspiracy still see in that pronouncement a signal to conspirators. But some close students of the affair — notably the Turkish journalist Ugur Mumcu — have long put down Agca as a "megalomaniac." His recent outburst lends weight to that view. Thus Robert Kupperman, an American student of terrorism not prone to discount conspiracies, acknowledged the other day that Agca was a "psychopath."

The second bit of evidence came from Omar Bagci, the Turk who smuggled into Italy the gun Agca used for the attempted murder. On the stand, Bagci acknowledged that he brought in the gun — though not that he had foreknowledge of a plot against the Pope. He also named three other Turks whom he associated with Agca. All three were members of the same right-wing organization. They had ties to Bulgaria through a smuggling operation (guns for drugs) which the gangster state managed in cooperation with a Turkish combine that linked right-wing activities and crime.

The systematic role played by Turkish right-wingers is thus confirmed. They did work with Agca, and it is now harder to take seriously the claims that he was deliberately given a right-wing profile to disguise the Communist role in the assassination plot. They were all involved in smuggling. It thus becomes legitimate to look, in a reasoned way, at the exact circumstances which drew Agca and the Bulgarians together.

The odds are strong that, at the beginning at least, Agca was not employed to murder John Paul. Agca reached Sofia in or slightly before July 1980. At that time the Bulgarians had two uses for a hit man of their own. One was for patrolling the drug traffic through Western Europe. A second was as a tool of revenge on Bulgarians who deserted the secret police. So there is reason to believe Agca started out as a terrorist working for the Bulgarian-Turkish connection.

According to Agca he began working in the papal assassination plot in July, 1980. But that date has some problems when set against the background of Russian-Polish relations. The election of John Paul II as Pope in 1978 would not have jolted the Russians so much. After all, Moscow had worked with many Polish clerics, including the Pope in his previous role as Archbishop of Cracow, before. Matters only got truly hot in Poland when the independent trade union movement, Solidarity, was recognized in August, 1980.

Even then all signs were that the Russians could manage Solidarity and its leader Lech Walesa through the Communist Party machine in Poland. But early in 1981, the party organization fell apart on the issue of Solidarity. The party secretary, Stanislaus Kania, was prepared to use force against the workers. But the defense minister, Wojciech Jaruzelski, refused. In January, 1981, Jaruzelski took over as prime minister, and by March he had consolidated his power.

The saint behind bars

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — It's rare when our prison system actually rehabilitates an inmate, as it is supposed to do. That's what makes the case of Jerry Van a cause for quiet celebration.

The 38-year-old Van is extraordinary in many ways. He grew up poor in a small town north of Detroit and drifted into street crime while still in his teens. From that classic start, he moved west and became involved with prostitution, drug and arson rings.

In 1978 he was indicted on racketeering and extortion charges, and he is currently eight months away from parole eligibility after serving more than six years in prison.

Van's reformation began in 1979, when he provided inside information on crime and corruption to law enforcement agents. Ever since, he has waged a tireless crusade against what he believes are improper practices by the Justice Department and some of its officials. His only weapon has been a telephone, which he uses to reach reporters, including our associate Indy Badhwar.

Van's persistence eventually paid off. A congressional subcommittee began an investigation. The President's Commission on Organized Crime talked to him. And the Justice Department conducted an internal investigation. Though the department reportedly has exonerated its own officials, our sources tell us that much of Van's information was corroborated.

Meanwhile, Van says religion has become the driving force in his life. He believes God wants him to continue his crusade against corruption when he gets out of prison, and he thinks politics is the best approach.

"I am fully aware that my background is a hindering fact," he wrote in a letter to us, "but what is more important is that I am sorry for what I did ... I love my God, therefore I must at all costs serve the people he loves. I cannot shrink from my past wrongdoings. I must use them as a steppingstone to better my life and my surroundings."

A lawyer for a prestigious California law firm, who met Van through a prison reform project, had this to say about him:

"Jerry is sincere in his convictions. He wrestles daily with a lot of bitterness because he got jerked around a lot. But he has a heart as big as anyone. He helps anyone he can help from inside prison. He has ambition and drive. ... He feels deeply the need to fulfill his debt to society. He uses the telephone as a pulpit from which he preaches to the outside world against corruption."

Van is pitiless in his self-appraisal. He admits that for most of his life he has never had a twinge of self-doubt. In the depths of evil and degradation, he saw "on a first-hand basis the terrible faults that confront a decent society."

Today, Van has confidence of a different sort. "Now I have the ability and the knowledge to make a difference," he says. He credits his metamorphosis to the people he got to know both inside and outside prison.

"It is true," Van wrote, "we do live two lives — the one we learn from, then one we live thereafter. I have been taught well."

As a mark of sincerity, Van has refused the chance prison officials gave him to move into a halfway house — a move most prisoners would jump at. But Van is determined to pay his debt in full, and remain in prison until he is paroled.

For once, at least, the system appears to have worked.

CONSUMER REPORT: Deregulation of air travel this year is opening up some mind-boggling bargains for students and others who can afford to be flexible about when and where they fly. The removal of restrictions on fares, charter memberships and other gimmicks has led to a flood of overseas flights and a large pool of unsold tickets.

This has given discounters who buy and resell seats even more to work with than in recent years. Such firms as Airhitch (New York City), Discount Travel International (Narberth, Pa.) and Stand-Buys (Southfield, Mich.) are anticipating their best year ever. Here are some examples of the wild and crazy bargains they have offered:

Cincinnati to Cancun, Mexico, roundtrip plus seven nights in a hotel, $299 (Stand-Buys); New York City to Canary Islands, roundtrip plus a week's lodgings, $199 (Discount); New York City to Rome, Athens and other European points, one WAY, $160 (Airhitch).

Discount and Stand-Buys offer packages or air travel alone and charge modest membership fees. Airhitch offers only air service and charges no membership fee; it is setting up offices in Europe to take care of flexible fliers headed west.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Saudi Arabia's King Fahd is depending on Americans for his personal security as well as his country's. At a meeting of Persian Gulf potentates earlier this year, two armed guards stood vigil outside the royal suite all night. They were Americans.

Australia has had bad luck monkeying with Mother Nature by importing non-indigenous creatures to its hospitable environment.

In the absence of natural predators, for example, rabbits brought in 200 years ago quickly multiplied and became pests. The latest tinkering has proved as disastrous. Giant toads introduced to gobble up insects on northern Australian sugar cane plantations have proliferated and are hopping south in awesome numbers. Some are said to be as large as small chickens.

Look to God for strength

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My ex-husband kidnapped our two children several months ago. I don't even know where they are right now, and it is about to drive me crazy. I miss my children and feel like I'm worthless without them. What can I do about it? — Mrs. T.E.D.

DEAR MRS. T.E.D.: I am not in a position, of course, to give you advice about your legal rights; you should consult a lawyer about this, or perhaps there is a social service agency in your community that can help you. You might ask your pastor about some of these resources.

First, perhaps God is using this tragic situation to show you your own need of Christ. You need his forgiveness and you need his strength every day. Have you ever committed your life to him? If not, realize that he wants you to become part of his family through faith in Christ. Invite Christ into your heart now, and then "cast all your anxiety on him because he cares for you" (1 Peter 5:7).

However, there are two other things you ought to do, both for your sake and the sake of your children. First, pray for them. You don't know their situation, but God does, and he is able to work in ways that are beyond our understanding, even in the midst of difficult situations. Don't just pray that God will bring them back, but that he will watch over them and help them. Frankly, I don't know how God will answer that prayer, but God loves your children even more than you do and wants them to grow up to be people that love him and serve him.

Second, no matter what happens concerning the return of your children, you need to realize that you are not worthless. You are very valuable in God's eyes — so much so that he sent his son to die on the cross for your sins. Yes, God also knows what it is to lose a child — and because Christ died for us and rose again, we can know beyond doubt that God loves us.

Dear Abby

Woman resents suggestions

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old woman who prefers not to shave her legs or underarms. My hair is naturally quite dark and plentiful — too plentiful to maintain every two days. I find shaving a nuisance and uncomfortable.

My problem? Non-acceptance at public and private swim centers and exercise clubs. I was asked to (a) cover my legs with tights; (b) wear shorts with leg-warmers; (c) wear slacks; (d) resign from a swim class. So far, I have done none of the above.

Isn't this a form of sex discrimination? Or am I living in a geographical area that is out of step with the rest of the nation?

I would like to hear how other women handle this sort of public insult.

person was a smoker. I think that should be included in the report of the death, don't you? I DON'T SMOKE (ANYMORE)

DEAR I: Yes. I'm sure most people would like to know.

DEAR ABBY: On Mother's Day, you reprinted a prayer the Jews recite on Yom Kippur to honor the memory of a deceased mother. It was a most poignant one for me; it was my wife's birthday, and my parents' anniversary, and the first anniversary of my mother's death.

As I lit the Yarezeit candle and said Kaddish, I looked up at my mother's picture on the wall and recalled what you have said so many times: "Show love to your parents; it's later than you think." I was good to my mother. I told her and showed her by my actions that I loved and appreciated her.

But, Abby, I could have done even more.

When I see my young son, so cute and mischievous, I realize how my mother must have loved me as a toddler, even as I love my son. She once said, "You will never really appreciate your parents until you are one." Now I know she was right, but there is no way to let my mother know.

She died a slow, painful death caused by lung cancer. A heavy smoker all her adult life, she knew the risks, but was unable to break the habit. It broke her. And it broke my heart.

Please keep plugging away at the two points you mention periodically: Don't smoke — it'll kill you; and love thy mother and father. When they die, they're gone forever.

Dr. Donohue

Old hay harbors troublesome mold

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please tell me the treatment for, and all you know about, allergic bronchopulmonary aspergillus. — R.W.G.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband, who is 45, comes down with terrible wheezing and shortness of breath, and our doctor feels sure he is allergic to the hay in our barn. He advises us to either keep him out of the barn or clear out the old hay, which he says is the cause.

Have you run into this problem? — Mrs. O.N.

The aspergillus mold occurs widely in nature: in soil, in water, and in decaying vegetation. It's my guess that O.N.'s doctor suspects this as the cause of her husband's respiratory problems.

For some, especially those who already have asthma, inhaling spores of this old sets off particularly severe attacks, similar to those brought on by pollens. Moldy hay is a prime hiding place. If attacks are recurring, lung damage follows (the bronchopulmonary reference).

Treatment is three-pronged. First, you have to stop the acute attacks, for which steroid medicines are used along with other drugs that help dilate the breathing tubes. Second, you want to prevent subsequent attacks as much as possible. Drugs such as cromolyn or low doses of steroids help. The third aspect of treatment hardly needs mention — avoiding places where the aspergillus is abundant. For some this can demand a change of occupation.

I know the question that usually goes unasked in such matters — why are some bothered by this mold and others are not? The answer lies wrapped in the mysteries of allergy itself, how some of us react to elements common in our environment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, while out of state I suffered bur-sitis in my knee. I went to a doctor and he gave me medicine and recommended bed rest. On my return home, my own doctor said the fluid should have been drawn out from the swelling. The out-of-state doctor said they don't do that anymore. I am confused. What is the correct thing to do? — A.P.S.

Differing opinions don't always mean one is right and the other wrong. Otherwise there would be only one way to skin a cat.

One respected way to treat bursitis is to apply ice for 20 minutes three times a day for two days while taking anti-inflammation drugs, like aspirin. If that doesn't bring the swelling down then you drain the fluid.

An equally-respected method is to drain the fluid right away to see if there is infection or some other cause of the bursitis. If the swelling hasn't gone away with the rest, medicine, and the cold-pack therapy, then I would drain it. You've left me hanging. How's your bursitis now?

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Cave installed as Downtown Lions Club president

Dr. James Cave was installed Tuesday evening as the 59th president of the Downtown Lions Club.

Others taking office in ceremonies conducted by Hubert J. Frerich of Garden City, president-elect of the District 2A-1 Eyebank, were: Royce Clay, Tom Arcand and Carl Smoot, vice presidents; Doug Morris, secretary; Ford Farris, Liontamer; Gary Richardson and Dr. Richard Cauley, tailtwisters; and Lane McMillan, Dee Elrod, Joe Horton and Avery Falkner, directors.

Cave presented a plaque to Dick Helms, retiring president, after the installation at a ladies night affair in the Howard College Cactus Room.

Bruce Hogenmiller and Mike Nance were inducted as members by Past District Governor Joe Pond. Special awards went to key committee chairmen including: Arcand, hamburger fundraiser; Farris, lightbulb sales; McMillan, programs; Dub Martin, sight conservation; Morris, crippled children's camp; and Clay, queen's contest. Ernie Boyd was announced as chairman of the 2-A1 convention to be hosted by the club in 1986.

The club raised more than $4,000 for humanitarian work during the past year, including more than $1,000 for eye glasses to children, support of several youth projects, crime-stopper materials, and 100 percent support of the crippled children's camp, eye bank and Lions International Foundation, said Helms.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Confusion exists in the morning about an activity that appeals to you, but it soon passes, and if you're alert to an unusual condition, you'll be able to turn it to your advantage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be alert to danger in the business world in the morning, and then a fine opportunity may present itself from far away.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A successful business person of your acquaintance can give fine advice for getting ahead, so follow it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't light into a good friend about some promise made, and later you can discuss your ambitions with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't mix into an altercation between a family tie and an outsider, and then you can carry through with inspired ideas.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't run away from your work because you get a flash idea that is not good, and later you can enjoy good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you don't commit yourself early to some new interest, you can easily get some family matter properly handled.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An associate gives you a new idea which is not very good, so forget it and later get routines improved with other partners.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't waste time talking to a stranger and then you can find some new and profitable kind of income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't be extravagant where luxury is concerned, and find more modern ways of increasing income.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Postpone handling that vexing matter at home and plan the future more wisely so you can be more successful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit some outside affair to get you away from your work. Be with persons who can assist you to make personal progress.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't waste time gossiping in the morning, and then you can handle outside affairs with intelligence.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will wonder whether it is better to remain at home or go out, so early teach to plan his or her time wisely and both spheres can be enjoyed. Upon reaching maturity, your progeny will want to travel a good deal, so be sure to add foreign languages to the curriculum.

Explosion rocks derailment site

4,000 evacuated from homes

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — An explosion that sent a huge fireball several hundred feet into the air rocked Pine Bluff today as firefighters stood watch over the burning wreckage of a derailed train that forced the evacuation of about 4,000 people.

The blast at 6:45 a.m. sent a wave of heat to the command station 1 1/2 miles from the site where the 42 Cotton Belt Railroad cars — 10 of them carrying toxic chemicals — derailed Sunday.

"There's been no one hurt, and you want to keep it that way," said Leon McGoogan, director of the Office of Emergency Services. "The possibility of future explosions certainly is there as long as the fire is there."

He said railroad officials were not sure what car exploded, but planned to move in slowly to take air samples. The findings could affect whether officials order more evacuations, he said.

"If there was a lot of combustion, the hazardous material is consumed and the danger is reduced from poisonous gases," he said. "We hope that it was a really good explosion in that respect."

"I think the good Lord was with us," said Fire Chief Ray Jacks, who added the explosion likely rearranged the tank cars, which could help or hinder efforts to control the fire.

"We were going to feed off of an 8-inch main there within 2,000 feet of the fire. We were going to try to extinguish it. Now, we're going to let it settle down a little while and then we're going to take a look at it," Jacks said.

Lynn Roberts, who lives across a road from the command post, said the blast "sounded just like a sonic boom."

Jim Johnson, public relations director for Cotton Belt, said shortly after the blast that authorities didn't know what had exploded. On Sunday, officials had expressed concerns about two cars containing vinyl chloride, a chemical that is flammable and can generate a poisonous gas if it burns.

"What just happened down there was that a commodity became overheated for the shell of its car," Johnson said, "and whether or not there was actually any kind of rupture to the tank car, we don't know, initially, the cause of it. But we do know the car itself became too highly pressurized to be contained."

He said the blast would "change a lot of things because we've got to think up a new game plan because we've got a different situation."

Intense heat and the threat of toxic gas and explosions had earlier forced firefighters to retreat from the derailment, about a mile southwest of this city of 56,300. Officials had said they probably would let the fire burn itself out.

Authorities began evacuating residential neighborhoods within a mile of the fire shortly after it broke out, sending up a huge column of billowing black smoke visible for miles.

Red Cross workers set up cots for evacuees at the high school gymnasium in nearby Watson Chapel and in the southeast Arkansas city's convention center.

Firefighters attacked the blaze without success. "They found out that because of the chemical composition of the materials burning, water is not that effective," said Gary Talley of the state Office of Emergency Services.

An explosion rocked the early-morning vigil by state and local authorities Monday near the site of a 42-car train derailment. Fire burned through the night near the chemical-laden cars and the explosion at 6:45 a.m. sent a vapor cloud and a pillar of black smoke hundreds of feet into the air.

Blast kills 1, damages plant

LAUGHLIN, Nev. (AP) — Superheated steam blasting from a ruptured high-pressure pipeline spewed into the crowded control room of a coal-fired power plant, killing one worker and burning 15 others, nine of them critically, authorities said.

The 30-inch-diameter steel alloy pipe burst at 3:44 p.m. Sunday during the shift change at Southern California Edison's Mohave Generating Plant, while 20 people, about twice the normal number, were present.

"The area where the rupture occurred looks like a bomb exploded," plant manager Stan Heard said.

The dead man was identified as Daniel Norman, 30, of Bullhead City, Ariz., said Edison spokesman David Barron.

Twelve of the injured were taken aboard five helicopters, an airplane, and an ambulance to Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital in Las Vegas, about 90 miles to the north, and one man was airlifted to Maricopa County Medical Center in Phoenix, Ariz.

Eight of the 12 victims at Southern Nevada were listed in critical condition early, said Tina Ravish, a nursing supervisor.

Wilander unbeatable on French red clay

PARIS (AP) — With all the fuss over top-seeded John McEnroe and defending champion Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, no one paid much attention to Sweden's Mats Wilander, who sneaked into the final of the French Open tennis championships and grabbed the silver trophy for the second time in four years.

"No one thought I would win this tournament, and I didn't expect myself to win either," Wilander said. "It's easier to fight hard when there's no pressure."

The 20-year-old Swede, who had not won a tournament this season, on Sunday combined a perfect game plan with determination to upset the heavily favored Lendl 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

"I didn't play the best tennis of my career, but I played the right tennis to beat Lendl on clay," Wilander said of the 3-hour, 13-minute center court contest. "My tactics worked 100 percent."

In the women's final, played on Saturday, Chris Evert Lloyd surprised fellow American and tournament favorite Martina Navratilova 6-3, 6-7, 7-5 in what both players called "the closest and most suspenseful match" in their long rivalry.

Keeping the ball deep to Lendl's backhand, Wilander patiently worked his way to the net, catching Lendl going the wrong way and pounding volleys past his long reach. As the Swede gained confidence and momentum, Lendl's hard-hitting offensive baseline game faded into defensive counterpunching. It was Wilander's fifth Grand Slam final and fourth victory. Lendl has been in seven Grand Slam championship matches, winning just one — the French Open last year.

"Losing is very upsetting, no doubt about that," Lendl admitted after the match. "If I played steady, he was taking short balls and coming to the net. And when I tried to be aggressive, I was missing. Neither strategy took me where I wanted to go."

Lendl, the No. 2 seed with four tournament victories this year, started strong. He hit winners from the backcourt and keeping Wilander on the run. But in the last three sets, it was the Swede who set the pace, breaking Lendl's serve nine times.

Wilander, known for his quiet demeanor, surprised the crowd as he began yelling at himself in Swedish with gestures and facial expressions reminiscent of American Jimmy Connors and Frenchman Yannick Noah.

"I didn't feel very good in the first set," Wilander said. "But once I got going, I knew I was going to control the match. I felt his game fading and the match was going right into my hand. I think Lendl got nervous, so I was doing that to keep my concentration."

Wilander made the tennis world take notice in 1982 when, at the age of 17, he outlasted clay court veteran and 1977 French Open champion Guillermo Vilas to become the youngest player ever to capture the men's singles here. Just a year earlier, he had won the French Open junior boys' title.

LA dethrones Celts in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers were quietly building a dynasty. Now, in the home of basketball's biggest dynasty, they have put a crowning piece on their structure of greatness.

The Lakers, fortified by infrequent failures, erased a stain from their reputation Sunday by beating the Boston Celtics 111-100 to claim their third National Basketball Association title of the decade.

Los Angeles' 4-2 victory in the series avenged a seven-game loss in last year's finals when Boston captured its 15th NBA title. That Celtics' triumph came on their own famed parquet floor before their own vocal fans at Boston Garden, where they had been 8-0 in final games of championship series.

On Sunday, the floor and fans again were Boston's. But the game belonged to the Lakers as they won their ninth championship.

"This victory is sweeter now because we've broken their stranglehold on us," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said after the Lakers' first victory in nine finals against the Celtics. "There comes a time when you have to plant your feet firmly and take a stand."

"They can never knock us anymore or torment us anymore and that's what they did last year."

Just as the Celtics were the team of the 1960s by winning 10 of the 11 NBA titles from 1959 through 1969, the Lakers are the team of the 1980s after playing in their fifth title series in six years.

They were losers in that round the past two seasons. On Sunday, Boston's Larry Bird found out how losing can overshadow success.

"When you lose, you're a failure no matter what you've done all season," said Bird. "Right now, we are losers."

The Lakers learned from being losers.

Last season's final series, in which Boston had a 31-rebound advantage, sparked barbs about the Lakers being laid-back Californians. This time, the Lakers matched the Celtics shove for shove and rebound for rebound. Boston's edge off the boards was just 259-256.

"It was up to us to take it. No one was going to give it to us," said Riley, who has taken his team to four consecutive finals. "It's like writing a book, an autobiography. It's cathartic. Everything's been purged."

Another setback, a 148-114 loss in the opening game, also helped the Lakers.

"Personally, Game 1 was embarrassing," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 12 points and three rebounds in that contest but ended up as the unanimous choice for the series' most valuable player. "I knew I could do better than that. I had to prove it."

He did it by scoring 121 points in the Lakers' four victories, including a team-high 29 in Sunday's clincher.

Los Angeles also avoided the late-game errors of last year's title round when it lost the second game after having a two-point lead and the ball with 15 seconds left and the fourth game after leading by five in the final minute.

"When I came out early to practice today I thought, 'we have our chance,'" said Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had 14 points, 14 assists and 10 rebounds for the Lakers. "It was a long year year living with defeat. This year we didn't make mistakes. We made the plays to carry the game out."

In Game 5, Boston cut an 18-point Lakers lead to four. In Game 6, the Lakers' 12-point third-quarter bulge was trimmed to 86-82 with 8:56 left in the game. Unlike last season, Los Angeles refused to fold. "We didn't want a seventh game," said James Worthy, who had 28 points for the Lakers. "They made a great comeback but we were able to hold them off."

The game was tied 19 times in the first half, which ended with the score 55-55. The 20th tie, at 57-57, was the last.

Abdul-Jabbar and Worthy hit field goals before Kevin McHale, who led Boston with 32 points, made the score 61-59 with a short jumper. With the score 65-63, the Lakers went on a 14-4 run to build a 79-67 bulge.

Maltbie wins playoff

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — For Roger Maltbie, the playoff victory over Ray Floyd and George Burns in the Manufacturers Hanover Westchester Classic was worth $90,000. And it quite possibly carried, Maltbie said, a greater value. "It restored some self esteem," said Maltbie, who won three times in his first two years on the PGA Tour and was considered one of the game's more promising young players before going into a nine-year tailspin. His last victory was in the 1976 Memorial tournament.

His next one did not come easily. Two shots back with two holes to play, Maltbie had to putt on a birdie-birdie finish to gain a tie with Burns and the veteran Floyd at 275, nine under par at the end of the regulation 72 holes over the Westchester Country Club course. Maltbie and Burns each had a 70 over the last round and Floyd, despite the handicap of a hooking driver, closed up with a 6-under-par 65.

In the playoff, all three players had routine two-putt pars on the first two holes. On the third, Burns and Floyd each came out of apparent disaster with great saves of par, while Maltbie missed a chance to win it when his putt of about eight feet slid by the hole.

On the next hole, the fourth of the playoff, Floyd and Burns each put themselves in deep trouble off the tee on the par-3 hole — Floyd well to the left of the green and Burns in a buried lie in a bunker — and Maltbie hit a 4-iron to within about eight feet.

"I figured if I was going to do it, I had to do it there," he said. "You only get so many chances."

And he did, rolling in the putt that made him a winner again. "What a relief it is to have won," Maltbie said.

Miami catcher CHRIS MANGO and pitcher RICK RAETHER embrace after Miami upset Texas 2-1 to stay alive in the College World Series. The two teams will play tonight at 7:10 for the national championship.

Miami nips Texas, 2-1

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Miami went to its stopper, relief ace Ric Raether, to hold off the hard-charging Texas Longhorns and force another championship game after Sunday night's 2-1 Hurricane win in the NCAA College World Series.

The side-arming right-hander had to do the same thing the night before in Miami's 6-5 thriller over Mississippi State to stay alive in the double-elimination tournament.

A Texas win Sunday would have given Miami its second loss of the tournament. Now, the two teams face off again tonight at 7:10 p.m. CDT to decide the national collegiate baseball champion.

"I am dead tired. I was tired when I came in," Raether said following his three-and-one-third innings of two-hit, shutout relief against Texas, now 64-13.

"We went with Raether early but tonight was our championship game," said Miami catcher Chris Magno, who scored the tying run after a lead-off triple in the sixth.

"We've had trouble scoring runs so I thought we could at least get a fly ball," Magno said. "When I saw the ball head for the fence I knew I had to go for three."

Magno scored on Chris Hart's safety squeeze bunt.

"Coach told me to watch for a bunt and when it got past the pitcher, I went," Magno said.

Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson said the squeeze "was not a surprise. We were ready for it. We could have had him (Magno) at the plate if (Billy) Bates had made a good throw."

Magno's hook slide just managed to get under Texas catcher Robbie Byers.

It was Bates' dropped foul pop fly that actually gave Magno a second chance on the triple.

Texas, which had been behind in every game of the series, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when David Denny led off with a double down the left-field line. Denny moved to third on a ground out and scored on an infield error.

Don Rowland scored the winning run when he walked to lead off the bottom of the eighth.

Rowland scored the game-winning run two outs later when Rick Richardi's grounder to third was bobbled by Texas' Dodd Johnson. It was third-ranked Texas' fourth error of the game and second unearned run off losing pitcher Greg Swindell, 19-2.

Niekro wins record game; Rangers, A's split

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitching a shutout is one thing — and not a bad thing at that — but it's the complete game that counts, Houston Astros pitcher Joe Niekro says.

Niekro got it all Sunday night when his record-setting, two-hit shutout combined with a hot-hitting Astros squad to defeat the San Francisco Giants 5-0 in a National League game.

His teammates supplied the 10-hit offense that helped get the victory, Niekro's 138th, that made him the winningest career Astro pitcher. After his seventh attempt, he passed Larry Dierker to obtain the honor.

But the 40-year-old knuckleballer, 3-6, was more happy about a complete game.

"The five-run lead was great and it was nice to get the shutout and complete game," Niekro said.

His last complete outing was August 24 against St. Louis, and he shut out Cincinnati last June 12, 7-0.

"I had a pretty good knuckleball, but it wasn't my best of the season," Niekro said. "But when you just walk one guy and give up two hits, you have to feel good."

The knuckleball was effective enough as Niekro pitched his fourth career two-hitter.

"I think he threw more knuckleballs tonight than I've seen him throw," said Giants' third baseman Bob Brenly. "He normally throws more fastballs and sliders over the corners during a game, but tonight you saw more knuckleballs when he got ahead of the hitters."

Houston Manager Bob Lillis, too, was happy with the hitting performance, noting that "we had a lot of games where we didn't score him (Niekro) very many runs."

Terry Puhl, Mark Bailey and Craig Reynolds did most of the damage at the plate, each collecting RBI off losing pitcher Dave LaPoint, 2-6.

Reynolds gave the Astros a 1-0 lead in the second inning when he collected a run-scoring triple to right field, and Puhl made it 2-0 by driving in Kevin Bass who had led off the fourth with a double.

Bailey accounted for the rest of the scoring by driving in Jim Pankovits and Puhl, who had each singled, with a three-run homer in the sixth. Bailey replaced an injured Alan Ashby in the fifth and drove a 3-2 pitch over the left field wall for his third home run of the year.

"I've had some trouble catching all season and have had some passed balls," Bailey said. "That's why I was so glad to get the home run."

The win gave Houston a three-game sweep over San Francisco and should give them some momentum as they prepare to play the division-leading San Diego Padres in a three-game series starting tonight.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It was perhaps the worst possible day for the Oakland A's to be faced with a double-header.

"Of course there's no good day for a double-header, as far as I'm concerned," said Oakland manager Jackie Moore after the A's split with the Texas Rangers on Sunday. "Our pitching staff is well overworked right now and we are hurting. We just didn't have anyone left by the end of the day."

Oakland's Dave Kingman kept a bad situation from getting worse by breaking a 5-5 tie in the nightcap as the A's took a 6-5 victory over the Rangers when the first game 8-5.

Relievers Keith Atherton and Tom Tellesman were sidelined for the day with minor illnesses.

After left-hander Jeff Kaiser gave up a two-run homer to Toby Harrah in the seventh inning to pull the Rangers to a 5-5 tie, Moore handed the ball to A's reliever Jay Howell, 4-3, who pitched the final three innings without giving up a single base runner.

"It's a good thing the game ended after nine innings," Moore said. "Because I didn't have anyone else. I would have only used Atherton in an emergency."

Texas manager Bobby Valentine was able to get six strong innings out of right-hander Burt Hooten in the second game, before going to left-hander Chris Welsh, 0-1, who was originally slated to start the game.

"Hooten and Welsh gave us 100 percent today," Valentine said. "But it was just a case of us running out of time."

Mike Davis also sliced a two-run homer for the A's in the nightcap, his 14th homer of the season. Bruce Bochte and Dwayne Murphy each slugged homer solos.

In the first game, the Rangers took advantage of eight walks by A's pitchers and rallied for five runs in the fifth inning to post an 8-4 victory.

"From the time we walked the lead off batter, that game stunk," Moore said. "We gave away too many runs — pitching, defense, everything. I don't even want to talk about it. It was an all-around bad game on our part."

Texas right-hander Dickie Noles gave up 11 hits in seven innings, but it was still good enough to post third victory against six defeats.

"I gave up a lot of hits but I didn't think I was hit hard," Noles said. "I was relieved to finally get a win. I feel as though I've built up my stamina."

Valentine said that although his team is in last place in the American League West, he feels things are about to turn around for the Rangers.

"If this were a 70-game season, I'd be real worried," Valentine said. "We can't do anything about what's happened in the past. So all we can do is keep on playing good baseball. Which I think we're doing right now. We're showing the ability to come back and we're getting good pitching."
