Council scuttles auditorium bid

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Labeling the lone bid for roofing repairs to the Municipal Auditorium "excessive," councilmen Tuesday night scuttled the bid and rewrote specifications for the project.

Texas Roofing Co. of Odessa had submitted a bid of $144,000 to repair the roof and seal the windows and walls, more than double the estimate of $60,000 by the city's architecture firm.

The bid was called "quite excessive" by

City Manager Don Davis, who recommended the council rebid the work as three separate items to increase the number of bidders and to simplify the project.

Part of the high cost may have been the expense of scaffolding around the entire building, according to Bennett Reeves, the principal architect with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock. The firm has been retained as the city's consultants for the restoration of the historic auditorium.

Bidding the work as three separate items also will "allow us to pick and choose the items if the bids come in excessive again," said Dennis Clayton, an architect with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper.

Asked by council members about the accuracy of the firm's estimate, Clayton replied, "Yes, we're relatively comfortable with our estimate. We consulted with a local roofer, a reputable roofer, and we're comfortable."

The firm's principal architect, Bennett Reeves, however, cautioned that just because the firm believes the estimate is good does not mean it should be taken as the market price for the project.

According to Reeves, the city should seek bids once more. If the city receives two or three bids around $100,000, then that should be considered the market rate "regardless of what we estimate."

The firm's estimates were based on work for similarly tiled roofs in Lubbock at Texas Tech University and church buildings, Reeves said.

A few days before the city took the bids, "we had a hailstorm in Lubbock that raked

Showers soak the Crossroads

By KEITH BRISCOE
City Editor

As Robert Frost might say, the rain Wednesday morning crept in on tiny cat feet after muffled thunder purred softly at dawn to tell farmers of yet more precipitation in an unusually wet year.

Gentle rain lighted on the area before sunrise, soaking cropland already lush with moisture. For some farmers, however, the average 1-inch rain this morning was just too much of a good thing, and they'd like to see a pause in the whole kit'n'caboodle.

Rainfall amounts ranged from a whisker to a washout, from a trace to 1 1/2 inches.

- Boyce Hale on the Sterling City Route called in with a reading of 1.45 inches about 10:30 a.m. He guessed around 2 inches had fallen in the southern part of the county, adding that the Garden City Highway in some spots was immersed in water by 10 a.m.
- At the other extreme was the U.S. Big Spring Field Station, which officially recorded .16 inch at 8 a.m. this morning. That small amount kept the city 4 inches above its normal of 7.66 for the year.
- In Luther, they're worried about their cotton, and they're worried about the rain. "We're don't need it," exclaimed Mrs. F.C. Junek. Her husband, who counted several acres standing in water before today's downfall, said he wished the showers would wait until mid July.
- But in Knott, they're proud of their cotton, as evidenced by Larry Shaw: "I think we've got the best potential we've had since I've been farming."

Shaw, speaking from the Knott Co-op Gin, said the northwest section of the county had received over one-half inch of rain by 10 a.m.

Seasoned Lomax grower Gene Perry, who like all West Texas farmers witholds predictions until the crop is harvested, managed to say he's "optimistic" about his cotton. He reported "a heavy downfall" in the area about 10 a.m., but no rain reading had been taken.

Mrs. Travis Reid of Coahoma sounded like a weary pharaoh as she recounted her spring battles against plagues of locusts and heavy rainfall. The family has had to replant their crop three times, she said, and she had no enthusiasm for checking her rain gauge this morning.

The rain, riding a carpet of solid gray clouds, kept temperatures unseasonably cool. The low Tuesday night was 57 degrees, just a cat scratch away from the record of 52.

Oil activity increases in county

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The number of active oil wells in Howard County rose 1.5 percent in 1984, and the county also registered an increase in the number of barrels produced.

According to figures from the Capitol Appraisal Group of Asutin, Howard County oil wells produced 14,152,133 barrels in 1983. For 1984, county wells produced 14,198,996 barrels.

The number of oil wells rose from 4,306 in 1983 to 4,424 in 1984, the company said.

Howard County also saw an increase of 70 new mineral leases granted, valued at approximately $45.5 million.

Capitol Appraisal determines the values of oil and mineral properties for the Howard County Tax Appraisal District, which is holding hearings this week on individual property valuations.

"We gather a lot of our data from the Texas Railroad Commission," said Jon D. Neely of Capitol Appraisal.

The appraisal group was busy all day Tuesday, "representing the (Howard County Consolidated) appraisal district in explaining assessment values to tax payers," said chief appraiser Gene Pereira.

Property owners challenging this year's value estimates have been scheduled to air their complaints through Friday at the Howard County Courthouse.

"Most tax appraisal districts will utilize a firm such as their's (Capitol), because it's such a specialized firm," said tax board member Rob Roberson.

Roberson said the cumbersome

Tax plan sours a good cup of Texas tea

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON - The House Ways and Means Committee, once well-stocked with members from "oil patch" states, may look like the Alamo this summer as a handful of congressmen struggle against long odds to save oil and gas tax incentives.

The tax-writing committee will be the first to work on President Reagan's tax reform plan, and the committee's chairman and other congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest have said oil and gas could be a target.

Only two Texas congressmen on the committee, along with one apiece from

'The Democratic losses in the last election really hurt Texas on the major committees in the House.'

John Bender, top aide to Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin.

Oklahoma and Louisiana, directly represent a strong interest in the oil and gas industry. Many of the committee's 32 other members are far more interested in rescuing the deduction for state and local taxes and see higher taxes for the energy industry as one way to do it.

The Treasury Department's first tax reform proposal would have almost wiped out the industry's incentives, described as essential by Texas Gov. Mark White and other state officials in bringing millions of dollars in oil and gas investment into the state.

President Reagan and Vice President George Bush intervened late last month to restore one of the major incentives in the final plan sent to Congress by the administration. But congressional staff members and industry spokesman say it will be tough even to save the industry's deduction for intangible drilling costs, a write-off for non-salvageable materials and labor in a drilling operation.

Reagan already proposed a five-year phase-out of the industry's other major incentive.

"The Democratic losses in the last election really hurt Texas on the major committees" in the House, said John Bender, top aide to Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, one of the Texans on Ways and Means.

The Reverend Charles Stanley, right, of Atlanta, stands with the Reverend Winfred Moore of Amarillo, after Stanley was re-elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention by defeating Moore.

Baptists unite to elect president

DALLAS (AP) - Signs of reconciliation pervaded the record-size Southern Baptist Convention today, bolstered by a strong pledge of cooperation by new top officers from both sides in the keen feuding between fundamentalists and moderates.

But edgy notes remained. Shortly after the vast convention on Tuesday re-elected the fundamentalist incumbent, the Rev. Charles Stanley as president, it overwhelmingly elected his moderate opponent, the Rev. Winfred Moore, as first vice president. Arms about each other's shoulders, they pledged close teamwork in leading the nation's largest Protestant denomination, which has been wracked by sharp dissension between moderate and fundamentalist factions.

"I think we'll get along great," said Stanley, 52, an Atlanta pastor. He told a news conference his heart had immediately warmed toward Moore when they first met recently and that he was "more than willing" to work with him.

Moore, 65, an Amarillo, Texas, pastor, defeated Stanley for the top office by a vote of 24,453 to 19,795, said. "I think you're going to see everybody in this convention coming closer together than you've ever seen them before."

An additional conciliatory move came in a "crisis-resolution" report before the convention today, backed both by Stanley and Moore and calling for a "peace committee" made up of representatives of both sides in the struggle.

If approved, it would investigate points at issue, involving agencies, seminaries and other units of the of the 14.3 million-member denomination, and bring in recommendations.

Karen Ann Quinlan: 1954-1985

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — Karen Ann Quinlan, who found death in the arms of her weeping mother more than nine years after her case established the right to die with dignity, showed "how far we can go to preserve life," her father said today.

Miss Quinlan died at the age of 31 at 7:01 p.m. Tuesday in the Morris View Nursing Home here of "respiratory failure following acute pneumonia on top of a chronic vegetative state," said Dr. James Wolf.

"Please let us mourn in peace," the mother, Julia Quinlan, said in a brief interview today at the family's home.

The Quinlans, deeply religious and daily visitors to their daughter's bedside, in 1976 won a landmark court order allowing them to remove a respirator from Karen to spare her continued "agony" and to honor her expressed wish never to be kept alive through extraordinary means.

"I think there are a lot of lessons to be learned by how far we can go to preserve life," Joseph Quinlan said today. "Death is not so much to be feared. Everything in this world is temporary. We shouldn't really fear death that much."

The father, although weary, said he and his wife are strengthened by their belief in an afterlife. He called life "a trial."

The historic case began when Miss Quinlan lapsed into a coma on April 15, 1975, apparently after consuming several gin and tonic drinks at a party after taking what doctors said was a "therapeutic" dose of a mild tranquilizer and aspirin.

"She had been embraced ... as someone with whom the world could empathize," said Paul Armstrong, the family lawyer who argued the case. "I think Karen has moved into the pantheon of the American myth."

The moment of death was "one of great reverence and sense of loss that I could read in Julia's face, who was embracing Karen and was weeping quietly," said Armstrong, who was at the nursing home.

Miss Quinlan developed pneumonia five days ago and "in the last 36 hours, it certainly seemed like she was in more distress than in any of her last 10 years," Wolf said.

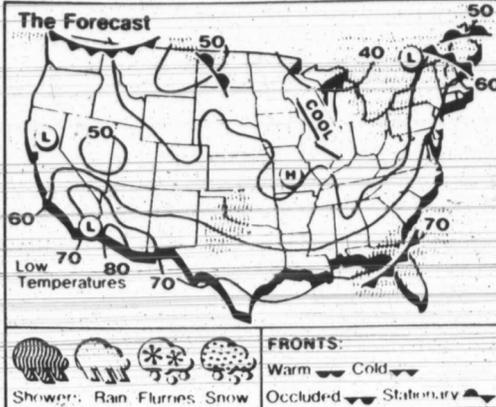

No antibiotics were administered, although a non-prescription drug was given to reduce the fever, and by late afternoon, death was "clearly imminent," the doctor said.

Monsignor Thomas Trapasso, the family's spiritual adviser, described the Quinlans as "in some sense relieved" because Karen's death "had always been on their minds."

Trapasso said burial would be Friday or Saturday at Our Lady of the Lake Church in Mount Arlington. An autopsy was scheduled for today.

"Karen Ann Quinlan's 10-year sleep is over and God has called her home," said Bishop Frank J. Rodimer of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Paterson, to which the Quinlans belonged.

18 people arrested in Dallas drug bust

Several of the 18 people arrested on a sting operation by federal and local authorities are lead from the Drug Enforcement Administration in Dallas Tuesday morning. An official said the arrests were a result of a three-year operation.

DALLAS (AP) — A three-year sting operation based in Texas and stretching into several states has netted 18 more arrests and another seizure of a laboratory where amphetamines allegedly were produced, a federal official said.

The undercover investigation, dubbed "Operation Dry Gulch," has so far resulted with the arrests of 198 people and one of the largest ever seizures of chemicals and equipment used to manufacture mostly amphetamines and methamphetamines, said Phil Jordan, Drug Enforcement Administration special-agent-in-charge for Texas and Oklahoma.

Since the operation began in June 1982, more than $2 million worth of chemicals and laboratory equipment used to manufacture drugs at about 60 laboratories has been seized, along with about $1.6 million in assets, Jordan said.

Agents from the DEA, Texas Department of Public Safety and Dallas police arrested 18 people in the Dallas area Tuesday, and nine others named in a federal indictment remained at large Tuesday evening, Jordan said.

Those arrested Tuesday were charged with federal conspiracy to produce amphetamines for sale, he said.

Since the operation began in June 1982, 180 others have been arrested with about 150 of those arrests made in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Jordan said. Arrests and seizures also have been made in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

task of determining values for mineral right property holders entails assessing remaining reserves, evaluating equipment that removes the reserves and figuring utilities on the property such as power set stations, telephones and gas connections.

tions for resolving them at the convention next year.

Nevertheless, hints of continuing strains surfaced in a rash of resolutions facing the 44,000 "messengers" from congregations across the country, nearly twice the total ever attending an annual assembly in the denomination's 140-year history.

There also were some firmly unwavering notes in Stanley's post-election remarks, particularly about seminaries that fundamentalists have charged are infected with liberalism about the Bible.

Asked if he would do anything to make professors toe the line, he said there are "limitations to academic freedom" which also "needs accountability."

He said it would be up to the "peace committee" to deal with the situation, adding, "I think we do have problems. We need to deal with them honestly, openly and in a Christ-like fashion."

Questioned repeatedly about links with the Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of Moral Majority of which Stanley was an officer until a year ago, Stanley said they are friends and share numerous stands on social issues.

However, Stanley emphasized he took those stands — such as opposing abortion and favoring prayer in public schools — as an individual "strong Christian citizen and not a right-winger."

Asked his view of a proposal to modify the bylaws by which the president appoints a key committee that indirectly determines trustees of denominational institutions so as to spread authority to three top officers, he said: "I think it should remain just like it is." That presidential sway over the makeup of institutional trustees is what has injected partisan passions into the contest for the top office, with moderates claiming the strife stemmed from a fundamentalist drive for power.

On the other hand, fundamentalists claimed the dispute involved views of doctrine and campaigned for curbing what they called liberal trends about the Bible in Southern Baptist institutions.

Fundamentalists have held the presidential office for six years, gaining expanded strength among trustees. The new term for Stanley indicated further gains in those governing spots.

Stanley, asked why he had ignored consultation with state officers as promised in his key committee appointments last year, said he had consulted them, and they made many suggestions. But he added:

"I had personal opinions of my own." He said only he had responsibility to make the appointments, and he felt it wise to follow his judgments. A survey of state officers found their suggestions largely ignored.

However, Stanley said there was a "greater spirit of cooperation" at the convention than in the past, and that participants are "more sensitive than ever" toward one another.

He said, "we should look for every way of respecting and accepting one another. I don't mean we have to agree. But we need to accept one another as persons."

"We still need to get over this humper of rejection and criticism," Stanley said.

be done for about $150,000. "I cannot imagine that you would want to change the character of the building, though," he said.

Councilman Russ McEwen said the city could not afford to roof the auditorium.

The council unanimously adopted Councilman Johnny Rutherford's motion to rebid the work as three separate jobs.

'Sweethearts' reign over Cannibal Draw

Cannibal Draw participants honored their "sweethearts" last Saturday night besides letting women attend the reunion for the first time.

The get-together was held at La Posada restaurant. Cannibal Draw is an annual meeting that brings together persons who grew up in east Big Spring. The event was started by Mack Underwood in 1977 and was previously a reunion just for the boys. Last year, the boys approved a motion allowing women to attend the get-together. "Sweethearts" are parents of Cannibal Draw children. According to a press release written about last Saturday's reunion, Kelly Mize is the only living father. The eldest man attending the reunion was Albert Rutherford who is 86 years of age.

Mothers who are still living include: Lillian Patton, who was the oldest participant in the event at 87 years of age; Delia Herring, Alta King, Alma Crenshaw, Sally Coats, Lucille (Cable) Thomas, Kate Foster and Kelly Mize.

Out-of-towners who attended the reunion include: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robinson of Midland; Lorraine (Crenshaw) Francis of Midland; O.C. and Esta Hart of Conroe; Ethyle (Hooser) Schaad of Ft. Worth; Buster and Lillie Mae Bray of Ft. Worth; Clifton and Pauline Sanders of Austin; Henry and Bessie Fisherman of Houston; Cecil and Louise (Robinson) Tumbleson of Paramount, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Smith of Midland; Jesse and Marie Andrews of Irving; Groville Tish Malone of Lubbock and Jess and Obera Angel of Stanton.

Cannibal Draw participants decided to hold their ninth reunion on June 14, 1986.

For the record

The Big Spring Herald incorrectly reported Monday that Terry Lynn Darden, 32, of Ponderosa Apartments was arrested on suspicion of second offense of driving while intoxicated following an accident.

Darden was arrested on the DWI offense but was not involved in an accident, according to police reports.

Anthony Guzman, 22, of 707 E. Sixth was the driver involved in an accident with a Continental Trailways Bus Sunday morning.

The Herald also incorrectly reported in Tuesday's paper the name of the driver in a two-car accident who received a citation for failing to yield the right-of-way on entering an intersection. Accord-

United pilots strike costly

CHICAGO — Hawaii's lieutenant governor, saying a strike by 5,000 pilots against United Airlines has cost the state as much as $100 million a day, urged the two sides Tuesday to resolve their dispute.

Lt. Gov. John Waihee told United President Jim Hartigan the 25-day walkout has severely disrupted Hawaii's tourism industry, and has cost the state $57 million in direct income.

"With the multiplier to businesses, it's about $100 million per day," Waihee said, referring to the ripple effect of the losses on the state's economy. "As a result of United not flying, we have lost an average of about 1,600 people per day coming to the state of Hawaii."

Shuttle ready for takeoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A thorough flight readiness review has confirmed Monday as the launch date for space shuttle Discovery with a crew of five Americans, a Frenchman and a Saudi Arabian prince.

Officials here, at Houston's Johnson Space Center and at NASA headquarters in Washington conferred by teleconference for more than five hours on Tuesday, discussing the readiness of the spaceship, the booster rockets, the tracking systems, the crew and all other aspects of the flight.

Agency spokesman Dick Young reported, "They found no constraints. We're go for June 17." The launch was set for 7:33 a.m. Monday.

UAW talks progress

ROSEMONT, Ill. — American Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers have cleared the first major hurdle toward a new contract by agreeing to let one of three union locals negotiate separately the repayment of concessions.

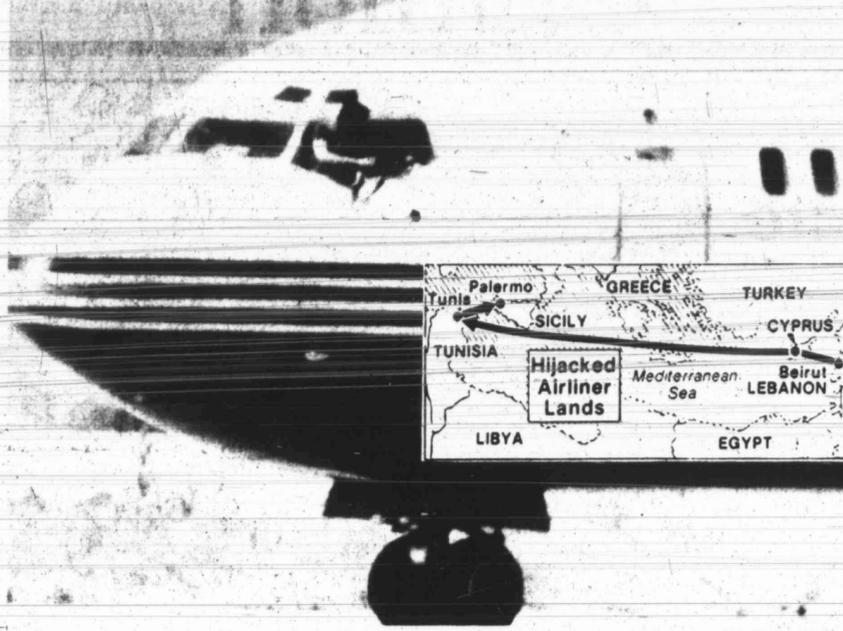

The issue of how to repay workers for concessions they made in their 1982 contract has been a sticking point since the sides first met in March.

The UAW locals — covering the auto manufacturing plant in Kenosha, Wis., an associated metal stamping plant in Milwaukee, and a Jeep Co. manufacturing unit in Toledo — represent about 8,500 employees.

Abortion stance gets OK

INDIANAPOLIS — Presbyterians voted Tuesday night to retain their pro-choice stance on abortion, but expressed concern about the termination of pregnancies only for convenience or to ease embarrassment.

In a voice vote, delegates to the 197th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA) overwhelmingly approved a committee report that urged the church to support the personal decision of a woman faced with an unwanted pregnancy.

A hijacker fires an AK-47 assault rifle from the cockpit of a Jordanian airliner Wednesday morning. The hostages released and the plane was blown up by fire hijackers.

Hostages freed

Hijackers release prisoners, blow up jetliner

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hijackers of a Jordanian jetliner released their remaining hostages today and set off three explosions in the Boeing 727 as it stood on the runway of the Beirut airport, an airline official and witnesses said.

A small cloud of white smoke billowed out of the shattered cockpit as the hijackers raked the plane with automatic weapons fire, witnesses said.

Then two more explosions rocked the plane, and set it on fire, witnesses said.

Royal Jordanian Airlines Vice President Munib Toukan said in the Jordanian capital Amman: "It's confirmed that the hijackers released the crew and the passengers and blew up the aircraft ... then ran away."

The explosion came nine minutes after the hijackers' 2 p.m. (7 a.m. EDT) deadline for blowing up the jetliner if Chedli Klibi, secretary-general of the 21-member Arab League, did not appear to negotiate with them.

All the 48 passengers and 17 crew members reportedly held hostage were believed to have been evacuated before the explosion and the gunfire.

Release of the passengers and crew members and the explosion came shortly after the hijackers demanded that a bus be brought up to the plane.

An airport official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said a bus was sent out to the jet, which was parked about 100 yards from the middle of the tarmac at the Beirut airport.

The hijackers earlier opened fire at two Moslem militiamen who drove a jeep to within about 25 yards of the plane. No one was hurt.

The gunfire came soon after the pilot received permission to move the plane about 100 yards away from the middle of the tarmac. The plane was hijacked in Beirut on Tuesday, flew west as far as Sicily, returned to Beirut, attempted to fly to Syria and then came back to Beirut.

The Shiite Moslem militiamen, apparently without authorization from the control tower, drove around the hijacked jet. Gunfire, including colored tracer shells, burst from the plane. The militiamen sped away.

It was not clear why they tried to drive up to the plane, but Amal officials have been key figures in the negotiations with the hijackers, since they flew back to Beirut on Tuesday night.

The hijackers set the 2 p.m. deadline early today, and shortly afterwards threatened to blow up the jet, 65 passengers and crew, and themselves if Klibi did not leave Tunis, Tunisia, within an hour to meet with them. However, that deadline passed without incident as officials in the Beirut control tower told the hijackers they were working on the demand.

Arab League officials in Tunis said Tuesday that Klibi was out of the country, but did not say where.

The hijackers' spokesman, who identified himself as Nazih, told the control tower after the shooting: "I want results soonest, whether positive or negative, otherwise I'll start doing negative things inside the plane. Is that clear?" Nazih means "honest" in Arabic.

The hijackers released nine of the 57 passengers after a long flight over the Mediterranean.

Tax plan harmful, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate Finance Committee are using such words as historic and laudable to describe President Reagan's tax-overhaul plan, and such phrases as unfair and harmful to explain why it must be changed.

"It tends to soak the middle class," Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., who co-authored the president's 1981 tax cut, said Tuesday as Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III outlined Reagan's latest tax initiative to the committee.

Roth pointed to White House estimates that 17 percent of the people with incomes between $15,000 and $20,000 would pay higher taxes under Reagan's plan; 22 percent of those between $20,000 and $30,000, and 28 percent of those making between $30,000 and $50,000.

"Those aren't rich people," Roth said.

But Baker replied, "The people who get those tax increases are for the most part those taking advantage of tax shelters ... (and) itemizing their deductions."

Senate Republican Leader Robert J. Dole of Kansas noted that present law allows a single person $88,000 taxable income before the top, 50 percent, tax rate.

Israelis, PLO must negotiate

There is a rustle of movement on the West Bank diplomatic front. King Hussein of Jordan, looking beleaguered but a bit more confident than usual, told Washington that Yasser Arafat told him he would accept Israel's right to exist in exchange for a return of Arab lands. That would be an historic step forward for the Palestine Liberation Organization, which continues to swear in its charter that Israel doesn't have the right to exist.

But despite Hussein's claim, Arafat has not publicly recited the magic words, "I will accept U.N. resolutions 242 and 338." Until he does, Hussein's diplomatic effort will be whistling in the wind.

The noise coming from the Middle East is the roar of Israeli bulldozers clearing land for settlements on Arab land, the rattle of machine guns in the Palestinian camps in Lebanon and the cacophony of voices speaking for the dispersed and divided PLO.

In comparison to the millimeters of progress registered by diplomats since the Camp David Treaty, tanks have ground up miles of terrain and terrorists have turned up acres of earth for graves. Israel is finally leaving Lebanon, battered and humiliated, three years after marching in with the secret aim of destroying the PLO. And Arafat, who lost a base for his organization and saw it dispersed from Tunisia to Syria, where an anti-Arafat pro-Syrian faction is harbored, has landed in Amman seeking the talks he scorned three years ago.

As long as Israel and the Palestinians fail to speak directly to each other, to recognize each other's right to exist and to negotiate a settlement, the sounds coming from the Mideast will continue to be the wailing of widows and the scream of ambulance sirens. The aim of U.S. diplomacy must be to keep talks going, to get the parties to speak directly to each other.

Recognition, in all its forms, is the key to a diplomatic solution: recognition that both Israel and a Palestinian entity have a right to exist, recognition that killing diminishes both peoples and endangers their futures, and recognition that time is running out for a trade of land for security.

Steve Chapman

Hussein deserves a break from U.S.

King Hussein of Jordan, who has been taking small but definite steps toward direct negotiations with Israel, has been properly rewarded by the U.S. Congress. Introduced last week was a resolution sponsored by no fewer than 69 senators opposing any sale of advanced weapons to the Hashemite kingdom until it enters formal peace talks. No good deed goes unpunished.

The resolution is as pointless as it is gratuitous. The non-binding resolution doesn't actually forbid a sale. And no one imagines that the Reagan administration was planning to send out a batch of F-16s in tomorrow's mail. Should a sale be proposed, Congress will have plenty of time to say its piece.

President Reagan, who last year had to cancel a shipment of anti-aircraft missiles to Jordan because of congressional opposition, needs no reminder that Hussein will have to offer tangible progress toward a settlement to get more U.S. aid. Reagan's attitude toward the Jordanian-Palestinian initiative has not been exactly overzealous. Until last week, when the king came to Washington to plead his case, the administration had been skeptical to a fault.

The resolution can't do any good and may very well do some harm. For Hussein, starting down the road to peace means taking serious risks, internal and external. An American commitment to support his effort will make it easier. An insistence on humiliating him if he fails to march at a prescribed pace will not. It will only bolster radical Arabs who believe the U.S. will not reward moderation.

The resolution, like a similar foreign aid amendment approved by a House committee, probably is less aimed at influencing Jordanian policy than at pandering to Israel's more zealous American admirers. In classic fashion, it allows Congress to pretend to direct foreign policy, without accepting responsibility for its results.

The exercise is all the more unwise because it trivializes serious questions. Jerusalem would have grounds for concern if Jordan were to get the sort of sophisticated American weaponry that until now has been reserved mostly for Israel. Replacing the F-5 fighter planes Jordan now has with F-16s would narrow Israel's margin of safety by sharply reducing the time it would have to foil an attempt to hit its coastal cities.

On the other hand, the mobile Hawk anti-aircraft missiles Jordan reportedly wants are, as Brookings Institution expert William Quandt says, "as close to a purely defensive weapon as you can find." They would pose problems, of course, for an Israeli attack, provoked or otherwise.

A surprise Jordanian attack would be drastically out of character for Hussein, who has always preferred co-existence with Israel, if only for reasons of prudence. No one seriously suspects him of harboring military ambitions against Israel. This is the same leader who virtually boycotted the 1973 Arab-Israeli war. With or without F-16s, Jordan would face almost certain devastation in a war with its neighbor.

In any event, no American president is likely to give Jordan our most sophisticated weapons without a believable assurance — like a peace treaty — that they won't be used against Israel. Reagan knows that if Israel has to take expensive countermeasures, the U.S. surely will end up sharing the bill.

Hussein's real concern is Syria, which opposes his peaceful gestures and which has a formidable military machine. It may be true that Jordan's best protection lies in Syria's fear of Israeli intervention. But the king can't base his defense on the hope that Israel will come to the rescue — particularly in light of its bitter experience in Lebanon.

Mining political favor

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — For four months ending last week, the Mine Safety and Health Administration employed a $170-a-day consultant with curious credentials for the job. His previous experience was in political ballyhoo, unrelated to the safety of the nation's miners.

In fact, while Justin R. Swift was being paid as a consultant on mine safety matters, he managed to squeeze in two missions as a White House "advance man" — for Vice President George Bush's trip to Grenada and President Reagan's trip to Spain.

A former public-relations and marketing specialist with the Sheraton, Marriott and Quality Inn hotel chains, Swift worked for the Reagan-Bush re-election campaign and was managing director of this year's inaugural balls.

"After the inauguration, Jane Kenny (special assistant to Bush) got me placed in my present job," Swift told our reporter Mark Woolley. "Anyone considered friendly to the White House was helped along."

Helping along political friends is done by every administration, of course. But the mine safety agency seems a peculiar dumping ground for political plumbers.

"Most people in MSHA have a strong background in mining," said Sy Holzman, assistant staff director of the House educational, labor, health and safety subcommittee, which oversees the agency.

And the timing is certainly questionable. "Unfortunately, the Reagan administration wants to cut $5.4 million and 117 positions for fiscal year 1986," Holzman said. "These cuts include our safety inspectors. The (House) appropriations committee needs to address the increase of mine-related deaths before cuts are made."

An aide to Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Key., said: "I hope nothing disastrous happens because of his lack of knowledge in the field of mining."

Swift's work at the mine safety agency was described by a high-level official as "highly sensitive," though mainly in the area of public relations. His proposal for a National Mine Safety Week was rejected by his superiors, but Swift was in charge of coordinating the dedication of a bronze statue in Beckley, W.Va., shortly before he left the agency at the end of May.

Swift's political advance work was approved by David Zegeer, assistant labor secretary for mine safety. "The advance work that he has done for Bush since he has been with this office has been on our time," Zegeer said. "We've been told that the work is non-political."

Swift said Bush's office paid him "food money" for his advance work. This amounted to $1,400 on the 10-day Grenada trip in February. The State Department paid for the rest of the trip.

HOAX OF THE WEEK: A leaflet offering advice to ex-convicts recently arrived in our office, stating in bold type: "Being in Prison is the effect of the Emotional Problem which qualify's you for Emotional Disability." It lists the "New Legislative Unemployment Insurance Benefits" available to ex-cons under "Bill of Rights 4190" for prisoners. According to the leaflet, felons returning to society can collect more than $500 a month.

There are, of course, no "emotional disability" benefits available for ex-convicts.

We tracked the spurious leaflet to the Southeastern Training Center in Lancaster, Ohio, where the supervisor, Terry Morris, labeled it a hoax.

Former prisoners have a tough enough time without needlessly irritating authorities with claims for non-existent benefits. Morris plans to call in the local bunco squad.

LUCRATIVE LOOPHOLE: Pollution Control Bonds are another good idea that has been distorted by crafty corporate lawyers into an unintended tax break for a few big corporations. Originally, these tax-exempt (and thus lower-interest rate) bonds were intended to encourage industry to clean up the environment.

But in 1983, the Internal Revenue Service ruled that, the way the law was written, radioactive waste systems on nuclear generators qualify as "pollution control facilities." That did it. Nuclear power companies began floating the subsidized bonds to finance major costs of their reactors, such as waste-handling systems, cooling equipment and air conditioners.

Now Pollution Control Bonds have become the largest single source of capital for some companies.

If Jordan decides to make peace with Israel, then it will deserve the help the U.S. customarily provides its friends.

Today is Wednesday, June 12, the 163rd day of 1985. There are 202 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 12, 1939, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was dedicated in Cooperstown, N.Y. — 100 years to the day on which Abner Doubleday is purported to have invented the sport. Historians, however, doubt Doubleday was the true inventor of baseball.

On this date:
In 1776, the state of Virginia adopted a Bill of Rights — the first colonial legislature to do so.

In 1838, the Iowa Territory was organized.

In 1917, the Secret Service extended its protection of the president to his family as well.

In 1963, civil rights leader Medgar Evers of Mississippi was shot to death near his home.

In 1971, Tricia Nixon and Edward F. Cox were married in a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

In 1979, a 26-year-old cyclist, Bryan Allen, flew the man-powered Gossamer Albatross across the English Channel.

Ten years ago: A court in India ruled that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had illegally won her seat in Parliament in 1971, and had to give it up. Under Indian law, that would have meant giving up the office of Prime Minister as well. Mrs. Gandhi vowed to fight.

Five years ago: Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira died at the age of 70 after suffering a heart attack.

One year ago: The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that employers may not be forced to scrap seniority plans that favor white males in order to protect affirmative action gains by minorities and women when hard times hit.

Today's birthdays: Banker David Rockefeller is 70. Movie producer Irwin Allen is 69. Actress Uta Hagen is 66. Vice President George Bush is 61. Singer Vic Damone is 57. Actor-singer Jim Nabors is 53. Jazz musician Chick Corea is 44.

Controversy peppers Reagan's SALT promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan won applause from congressional liberals and moderates with his decision not to undercut the SALT II treaty, but one angry conservative said, "the Soviets are popping their vodka bottles and laughing at how stupid the United States is."

The president decided Monday that when a new Trident submarine, the USS Alaska, undergoes sea trials later this year, the United States will dismantle an older Poseidon missile-firing submarine in order not to exceed the missile limits set by the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty known as SALT II.

Sen. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, said the decision should give Moscow cause for celebration.

"We're actually talking about going ahead and dismantling a perfectly good submarine," Symms told reporters.

"I think it smacks of unilateral disarmament; I think it smacks of appeasement. It harkens back to the days of (former British Prime Minister Neville) Chamberlain knocking under to Adolf Hitler," he said.

"My view of it is that ... the Soviets are popping their vodka bottles and laughing at how stupid the United States is that we would dismantle a perfectly good weapons system to comply with a treaty they never did comply with," Symms said.

Symms' outraged rhetoric was not matched by other members of Congress who commented on Reagan's decision, including Idaho's other Republican senator, James McClure, who noted: "It's fair to say some are not happy about the Poseidon decision."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he believes Reagan has "wisely rejected the dangerous counsel of right wing opponents of arms control who want to scuttle this important agreement."

And Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., a former secretary of the Navy, said, "the president discarded the misplaced advice of those who wanted the United States to abandon our adherence to SALT II — advice that would have condemned us to an unrestrained arms race."

'My view of it is that ... the Soviets are popping their vodka bottles and laughing at how stupid the United States is that we would dismantle a perfectly good weapons system to comply with a treaty they never did comply with.'

Chafee said he thought the decision not to undercut the SALT II limits was "a good idea," while noting that all sides agree the Soviets should be held accountable for any treaty violations — as Reagan said he planned to do.

"There are people in the Senate who question the future application of the policy the president has announced," said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, the Senate's deputy GOP leader. "But there is bipartisan support for the president's decision now."

"We think this enhances our position in Geneva," Stevens said in reference to the ongoing U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in the Swiss city.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said he believes that in the future there should be "a careful examination of whether we want to take out additional submarines or whether we should remove land-based missiles, which are much more vulnerable."

"That's the only part of this decision I question," Nunn said.

Stevens said he will hold hearings on that issue, focused on cost comparisons between dismantling a Poseidon — which in treaty terms means removing its missile firing tubes — and removing land-based missiles.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Reagan's decision is "in the best security interests of the United States and does not let the Soviets off the hook."

Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas said Reagan has "set up a good test of Moscow's true intentions."

Dole said continued violations and no display of good faith at the arms talks will alert the United States to act "to ensure our national security."

"I think he's substituted arms control for an arms race," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "It's more than I would have thought possible. Had he done otherwise, I think world opinion would have gone strongly against him and the Soviets would have gained a huge propaganda coup."

Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., also lauded the decision, saying: "For a president who never met an arms control treaty he liked, this is remarkable testimony to the merits of SALT II."

Reagan had weighed several compromise options, including a wait-and-see approach involving the dry-docking of a Poseidon sub.

The Alaska's 24 multiple-warhead missiles would have exceeded the ceiling of 1,200 set by the treaty. Retiring a Poseidon will keep the United States two missiles below the limit.

Reagan said that despite Soviet violations, he wanted to retain the treaty as an interim framework toward deeper mutual reductions in nuclear weapons.

Reagan ordered the Pentagon to review strategic programs he could accelerate "as a proportionate response" to Soviet failure to correct treaty violations.

Although the 1979 pact was never ratified by either nation, both have agreed not to undercut its major provisions, especially those dealing with numerical limits on nuclear warhead delivery systems.

SALT II, which Reagan condemned as "fatally flawed" before winning the presidency, expires at the end of the year.

Oil in the family

Midland museum built by patriarch of the patch

MIDLAND (AP) — Oil made this city of flat, planes and sharp angles that juts out of a vast pancake landscape. And it made rich men out of wildcatters like the late George T. Abell.

Men like him abound in Midland, where it is said the poor are easy to spot because they wash their own Cadillacs.

Abell wasn't content to bask in his wealth. He wanted a monument to the black gold that made it possible and to the special breed of men that wrenched it out of the harsh West Texas earth.

"The oil business has been good to him and he wanted to pay it back," said petroleum historian Berte Haigh.

Abell's vision crystallized as a museum dedicated to oil, oilmen and the oil patch.

He got together a group of like-minded oilmen, charted a non-profit corporation and started raising money. In 1975, they unashamedly valentined to the oil business opened.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum now attracts about 50,000 visitors a year. They include everyone from school kids to roughnecks to visiting delegations from behind the Iron Curtain, said director Ed Rowland.

Unlike most museums, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum is not devoted to acquiring valuable artifacts, he said.

"We collect very little," Rowland said. "We rely heavily on exhibits, slide shows, things like that."

The museum is dedicated wholeheartedly to educating visitors about oil, the petroleum industry and the 115,000-square-mile Permian Basin.

"Everybody thinks an area like this has no history, that it's just dry flat terrain," said Rowland, who worked his way through college roughnecking in the oilfields.

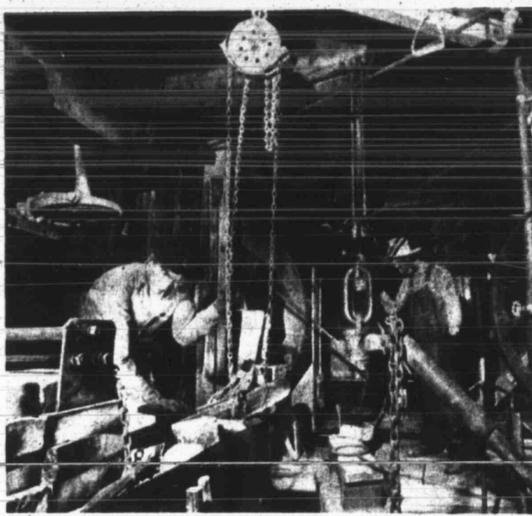

Visitors can see what the basin looked like 230 million years ago, when it was a warm, shallow sea teeming with the marine life which eventually metamorphized into oil.

They can view a simulated well blow-out.

"It's one of the few exhibits I've ever seen that's guaranteed to get the attention of eighth graders," Rowland said, as the soundtrack roared and the artificial flames flickered wildly.

The museum also tries to communicate a sense of how limited a resource petroleum is.

"We have a 20 to 40 year window to decide what to base our society on instead of petroleum," Rowland said, gesturing to the five-screen theater devoted to the future of the energy industry.

Although the museum puts a low priority on acquisitions, it owns a collection of antique drilling rigs that it claims is the world's largest.

Midland has weathered 60 years of boom and bust to become a glossy little city.

Halley's Comet return won't be a ball of fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Halley's Comet, which returns to Earth's skies late in November, likely won't be as dramatic as many laymen think, scientists say.

The comet will be behind the sun much of the time, invisible to the unaided eye, says Harlan Smith, director of the University of Texas' McDonald Observatory.

Unless one is far from city lights and equipped with a telescope or binoculars, the comet will be hardly noticeable among the rest of the stars in the night sky of the Northern Hemisphere, Smith said.

The comet named for Edmond Halley sweeps through the inner solar system and past Earth once every 76 years as part of a long, elliptical orbit that takes it beyond the orbit of the planet Neptune.

Halley was a British astronomer who first calculated the orbit of the comet in 1682. The comet is known to have been observed as far back as 240 B.C. by Chinese astronomers. But until Halley's work, it was thought that each sighting was a fiery new comet rather than another visit by the same body. Comets also were associated with the deaths of kings and other unfortunate events.

The previous visit of the comet, in the spring of 1910, was not much more exciting, despite widespread fears of imminent doom.

But Halley's came closer to the Earth then and was visible in the Northern Hemisphere just after sunset and before sunrise for about six months, and grew brighter each day.

As the orbit of the Earth took it through the tail of the comet, some Americans braved widespread reports of poison gas to gather on rooftops to party, and to use empty champagne bottles to catch what they thought would be lots of red dust.

Halley's appeared over Austin in late May 1910. It was visible just after sunset, halfway up the sky from the eastern horizon and, coincidentally, on the night of a lunar eclipse. A newspaper reported the eclipse was memorable, but the comet was not.

"Austinites saw Halley's much-advertised comet last night, but the celestial derelict failed to do any spectacular tricks," the paper said. "The comet appeared as a blurred star. (It) seemed to be frightened, probably on account of the moon going into total eclipse."

At the Westminster Manor retirement home in Austin, some residents who saw the event elsewhere in 1910 still share that opinion.

W.A. Cunningham, 81, a UT professor of chemical engineering, remembers his own reaction at age 6 in the West Texas town of Comanche.

"I was very disappointed," said Cunningham. "It was a kind of fuzzily bright star, and if you looked closely you could see dust particles behind it but no tail as such. It was white rather than red. I remember my dad said to look at it because I might never see it again."

Mary Bowman, an 83-year-old retired professor of English at East Texas State University and a former editor of college textbooks, was 8 when the comet appeared over her house in Greenville, in Hunt County northeast of Dallas.

FAA clears Continental for takeoff

WASHINGTON (AP) The Federal Aviation Administration declared Continental Airlines a safe airline Tuesday, although it said a detailed inspection of the carrier disclosed sloppy record-keeping and 20 safety violations.

The agency said the findings should put to rest allegations of dozens of serious safety violations at Continental, many of them brought during the past year by the Air Line Pilots Association, whose members are on strike against the carrier.

"They're a safe airline and they're equipped and staffed to continue to be a safe airline... It was sloppy record-keeping," said William J. Ayton, who supervised a 24-member team of FAA inspectors that examined Continental's operations.

The inspection covered six weeks beginning last March and included examination of Continental's records, pilot training, ground and maintenance facilities and dozens of en route inspections.

But the FAA finding was challenged immediately by the pilots union, whose members struck Continental in September 1983 after the airline reorganized under the bankruptcy laws and nullified its labor contracts.

Since then, the airline has rapidly rebuilt its operations, using other pilots. "We think it's a continued cover-up on the part of the FAA," Capt. Harold Martinsen, ALPA's director of accident investigation, told reporters. He accused the FAA of ignoring various training and procedural violations at Continental during the past 20 months.

But FAA officials, briefing reporters on their findings, called the airline's safety record on par with that of other carriers and said Continental "continues to have an adequate level of safety."

The 20 violations were in addition to nearly 100 "discrepancies" in which inspectors found fault but no violation of regulations, the FAA officials said. Many of them might be found at other airlines if they underwent a similar inspection, the officials said.

'Mi casa es su casa' Mexicans tell tourists

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Northern Mexicans — battered by a tourist scare that is keeping many Americans out of their country — would like to know just one thing: "Why?"

In a region where the words "mi casa es su casa," or "my house is your house," are offered from the heart, people are genuinely perplexed — and hurt — by what they call "exaggerated" reports of violence against travelers in Mexico. What Americans don't know, they say, is hurting Mexico.

Mexico's problems started in October when American diplomatic sources said the U.S. Embassy was considering calling for an advisory warning tourists of possible dangers in Mexico.

Although the embassy shelved the plan after Mexican officials promised more police security in troubled areas, the damage to Mexico's image already had been done.

The American Automobile Association began warning members to use caution when driving in Mexico after four travelers died during September, three of them murdered on highways.

Meanwhile, the cases of six missing Americans in Guadalajara and the kidnap-slaying of American drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar have fueled the already hot controversy.

Tourism Secretary Antonio Enriguez Savignac reported recently that the number of visitors arriving by road to Mexico fell off by 17 percent in the first three months of this year, although travel by air remained steady.

He said foreign income generated through tourism — $2 billion in 1984 — was up by 11 percent so far this year.

Gov. White signs bills to fight child abuse

New legislation will provide funds for Children's Trust Fund

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has signed into law two bills designed to help Texas communities fight child abuse and neglect.

"These two bills will safeguard the physical and emotional well-being of the children in Texas," White said Tuesday in a ceremony held in the shade of a tree on the playground of the Austin Community Nursery School.

The governor was assisted by Christina Flores, a 3-year-old student.

Later, at White's urging, the little girl laboriously wrote "Christi" under White's name at the bottom of a measure establishing a Children's Trust Fund. The trust fund in the state treasury would provide grants to community groups for child abuse and neglect prevention programs.

The fund would be financed through an increase in marriage license fees, from $7.50 to $25. The fund would get $12.50 out of each license and counties would get $5 for issuing the license.

A new nine-member Council on Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention would be created to oversee the trust fund.

"Texas child care workers confirmed almost 37,000 cases of child abuse or neglect in our state last year," White said. "This is 37,000 too many."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, Senate sponsor, said there would be no cost to the state or any local government in creation of the trust fund.

The other bill signed at the nursery would authorize criminal background checks for those who operate or work in day care centers. White said passage of the bill makes Texas eligible to receive $800,000 in federal funds to train day-care employees.

Later, in his Capitol office, White also signed into law:

— A bill allowing private fire-fighting firms to exceed speed limits and use flashing lights when going to an oil or chemical fire.

— A bill to tighten up regulations on the use of dealer plates on new cars. "By limiting these licenses to bonafide dealers, the state can pick up maybe $5 million the next two years," said Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, a sponsor of the measure.

MARK WHITE Signs child abuse legislation.

Gramm tabs prosecutor for U.S. attorney position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marvin Collins, a Fort Worth prosecutor who says he plans to concentrate on the "burgeoning" drug problem, was nominated by Sen. Phil Gramm on Tuesday to be U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Texas.

Collins, 42, replaces James Rolfe, who is not seeking reappointment to the four-year job.

Rolfe created a stir last month — after he had said he would not seek reappointment — when he wrote a letter to a federal judge in Washington seeking leniency for his friend, Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris, who had pleaded guilty to charges connected with an insider trading scheme.

At a news conference in Gramm's office, Collins declined to talk specifically about the Rolfe letter, which was disavowed by Justice Department officials.

"The ethical standards in our office will be high," is all Collins would say about the matter, but when asked if he would ever send a letter to a judge on a case, Collins said, "Probably not on behalf of a defendant."

Gramm, R-Texas, said Collins would take office on Monday as an interim appointee approved by the federal judges in the district, which covers 100 Northwest Texas counties and includes Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene, San Angelo and Wichita Falls.

Rolfe is leaving Friday to return to private practice.

Gramm's nomination of Collins now goes to the White House, and then through Senate confirmation proceedings.

Collins said one of his first priorities in the office will be to increase cooperation between state and federal law enforcement agencies, especially in the area of drug trafficking in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

"The drug problem is burgeoning in that area. I don't think it has anything to do with lax law enforcement," he said. "I think it has to do with that being such a fast-growing area."

He does not want the office to let up on prosecution of "white collar" crimes, like that involving Harris, who pleaded guilty along with former Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Thayer.

But, Collins, said, "I tend to have more interest in the traditional areas of law enforcement, like drugs."

Shaw bill gets signed, twice

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White apparently liked a bill by Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, so well that he signed it twice.

The bill, making it harder to get dealer automobile plates, was signed into law Monday by White and then signed again in a formal ceremony Tuesday morning.

Shaw, who co-sponsored the bill with Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, attended the Tuesday session.

The measure tightens eligibility standards for the plates, making them available only to dealers who register with the state and meet other criteria.

The Texas Department of Highways issues the plates to let automobile dealers operate their vehicles without obtaining titles or registering them with the state.

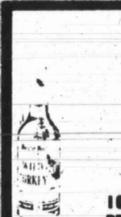

But supporters of the newly signed bill said the plates have been too easy to obtain. The state cannot collect state fees or taxes on those vehicles when a person other than a dealer later sells the car to someone else, they said.

A dash of salt preserves family culinary history

By GERALDINE SATTERWHITE

Abilene Reporter-News
ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The idea of a Rucker family cookbook has been tossed about for several years, and nobody is exactly sure who thought of it first.

It may have been born when one of the sons of Joseph Herman Sr. and Mary Ophelia Fuller Rucker came to grips with the fact that one day he would have to leave the country home just north of the State School where at mealtime the table was piled high with the foods he took for granted even during the Great Depression — fresh or home-canned fruits and vegetables; chicken fried in home-rendered lard; milk, cream, butter and buttermilk from the family dairy and the good things made from them.

Maybe the idea could be credited to a daughter of the late couple who, when she started to date, began to pay a lot more attention to how her mother put those delicious foods together.

"Mama was a good cook," Melba Rucker Boozer says, "but she didn't particularly enjoy cooking. I guess it was because she had to do so much of it to do."

At any rate, "The Rucker Family Cookbook" is a reality, compiled by the oldest daughter, Alice Rucker Allen, with cover design by her husband, Howard, and calligraphy by her daughter, Wanza Allen Grantier. There are contributions by families of each of the nine Rucker children — Joe Herman Rucker of Fresno, Calif.; Alice Allen of Austin; Lucille Chessmore of Fort Worth; Ruth Hickok of Houston; Juanita Marshall of Midland; Morris Rucker of Houston; Lloyd Rucker of Celina and Harold Rucker of Richardson — and Mrs. Boozer, who lives with her husband, Van, in the old Rucker home in Abilene.

It's hard, family members say, to tell who's prouder of the book — the children or grandchildren. Because Mary Ophelia Rucker didn't always cook by a recipe, many of the family favorites in the book and credited to her have been worked out through trial and error by daughters and daughters-in-law. The 500 recipes on almost 300 pages include modern-day favorites of Ruckers and contributions by cousins and other relatives who got interested during plans for the book at extended-family reunions held every two years.

Mrs. Allen set a recipe deadline at family meeting time two years ago, but it had to be extended. At last summer's reunion she had copies for proofreading and she spent most of last year working on the book.

"We owe her a debt of gratitude for her consistent work," Melba said. "She did all the typing, she and her family read proof, and she did all the footwork for printing."

The cover design by Howard Allen was a surprise to the rest of the family. Working from old pictures, Allen, a registered architect, depicted the house as it was when young Ruckers worked their dairy farm chores around classes at Abilene schools and McMurry College.

Both Joseph Herman Rucker and Mary Ophelia Fuller came to Taylor County with their parents when they were very young, he to Caps and she to the Iberis community and Tuscola area. They met and were married May 30, 1915.

They farmed first, then went into the dairy business in the 1930s. They moved to the small farm where the children grew up in January of 1936, leased additional adjoining land and grew feed for the cows on their farm at Hamby.

They bottled and delivered their Grade A raw milk to residences in the area and small neighborhood grocery stores.

J.H. Rucker was commissioner of Taylor County Precinct 1, which included Abilene, when he died in 1957. The family operated the dairy until the early 1960s, and Melba, who married in 1963, was the last to leave home. Mrs. Rucker continued to live in her home until she fell and broke a hip in 1965, then lived with the children. But her home was kept intact for special family occasions, like Mother's Day and Christmas, until her death in 1972.

The Boozers bought the home in 1974 and remodeled it. "We couldn't think of anybody else living there," said Melba. "We wanted it still in the family."

In addition to the book title, Wanza Grantier did in calligraphy the grace her grandfather said before each family meal and the cover pages for each of the book's 13 recipe categories.

On page 299 there's a family roster including children and their spouses, grandchildren and their spouses.

The book is family-oriented throughout. Mary O. Fuller Rucker's recipe for Turkey and Dressing, Rucker Style, submitted by Alice Allen, is written in narrative style and includes everything a Rucker needs to know about the traditional holiday treat.

Roberta Josephine Cox Edwards' every-summer-day-fried-chicken-for-dinner recipe takes a step-by-step approach from 1. "Look all the likely candidates for slaughter over carefully," and 2. "Point out the biggest one to your dog and say, 'sic 'em.'" to 21. "Pour gravy into a big bowl. Be sure some grease is still swimming around the top of the gravy. It's more fattening that way." Some steps — No. 14, for example, are judgment calls. "Just before the grease bursts into flames, drop the floured chicken pieces into the grease."

Notes at the end of several recipes tell family stories.

Note: (Under Lucille Rucker Chessmore's Chocolate Pie) "I obtained this recipe when in high school, and it is the one used at home on Saturdays to make pies for Sundays. I doubled it to make 2 pies, often substituting cocoa mixed with the sugar for the chocolate. Scalded milk was used in place of the water. Many Saturdays I made 2 chocolate pies and 2 lemon pies to have enough for the meal on Sundays. We never knew how many people we would have (family, friends, preacher, etc.). L.R.C."

NASHVILLE SOUNDS — Nashville songwriter Chris Dodson performs one of his songs during a Nashville Jam Session Sunday evening at Big Spring Country Club, which also featured Sonny Throckmorton, Cliff Cochran, Bruce Channel, Casey Kelley, Bill Graham, Charlie Walker and Johnny Bush. The event was part of the four days of festivities held in conjunction with the Third Annual Shriners' Signal Peak Pro-Am Golf Tournament here.

Chapter installs new officers

Betty Bain and Richard Mitchell became worthy matron and worthy patron during the officer installation of the Laura B. Hart Chapter #1019 Order of Eastern Star Saturday at the Masonic Hall at 21st and Lancaster.

The hall was decorated with baskets of pink roses, the worthy matron-elect's flower, and praying hands, her emblem. Music performed by Lida Boland preceded the installation while Craig Fryar lighted candles, Kristi Fryar presented the Bible, and Dana Fryar and Jaime Bane presented the square and compasses. Outgoing Worthy Patron Nathan Dalton opened the meeting and Louise Dalton, out-going worthy matron, welcomed guests.

Faye Lewis, past matron of Bardwell Chapter #560, was installing officer. She was assisted by: Jimmie Faye Bynum, past matron of Bardwell Chapter, installing marshal; Dee Martin, installing chaplain; Lida Boland, installing organist; Gladys Fiveash, installing secretary; and all past matrons of Laura B. Hart Chapter.

Other new officers installed were: Marzee Wright, associate matron; Paul Sweatt, associate patron; LaVera Mitchell, secretary; Dianne Bynum, conductress; Jean McKendree, associate conductress; Evie Eastham, chaplain; Mary Ellen Allen, marshal; Hazel Reed, organist; Ruth Sweatt, Ruth; Louise Dalton, Esther; Lois Singleton, Martha; Mary Lou Chenault, warder; and Nathan Dalton, sentinel.

A program performed by Mitchell, soloist, and Boland, organist, followed the installation. Gifts were presented to the worthy matron and worthy patron from their corp of officers and to the worthy matron from installing officers and the Past Matron's Gavel Club. The worthy matron and worthy patron then presented inspirational addresses. E.A. Fiveash gave the benediction. A social followed the ceremony.

Several grand officers, worthy grand matron's committee members and members of Grand Chapter Texas Order of Eastern Star were among the special guests attending. Members of seven Order of Eastern Star chapters from surrounding towns were among those in attendance.

Dear Abby

Wife's pregnancy causes marriage to crash

DERA ABBY: I am 22 years old, married for eight months, and I just found out I am six weeks' pregnant. (It was an accident.) My husband blames me for my carelessness. He says he doesn't want the responsibilities of being a father and he wants his single life back. He ordered me to get an abortion, but I can't see myself killing my unborn child, so now we are separated. I now feel that he doesn't care about me anymore, but I still love him and miss him terribly. We were so happy before this happened. I want my husband, but I can't kill our baby. We are both Catholic. What shall I do? SPEECHLESS DEAR SPEECHLESS: You need counseling to find out why you still "love" a man who would leave you because you became pregnant. He needs counseling, too, but your first order of business is to look after yourself. Please talk to your priest. He can comfort and counsel you. And feeling as you do, under no circumstances should you abort your child. DEAR ABBY: Six months ago, my husband and I bought a lovely old home from an estate. The elderly woman who had owned it had died, and some of the furniture was sold with the house. About two weeks after we moved in, I was putting my china away, and what do you think I found tucked away in the back of the dining room cabinet. An envelope containing $700 in cash, and several pension checks made out to the woman who had died! Immediately I telephoned the daughter of the woman whose home it had been. I told her what I had found, and in less than an hour her husband was at my door to pick up the envelope. He didn't stay 30 seconds, and never even said "Thank you"! I told several friends about this, and they all said I should have kept the money, that the dining room set was sold with the house, and I was entitled to whatever was in the cabinet. I felt better giving it back, however, even though no one would have known about the money in the cabinet had I not mentioned it. In retrospect, I can't believe they didn't offer me even $10 just for the heck of it! CINDY DEAR CINDY: I think you did the right thing by returning the money. And the beneficiaries of your honesty are for the birds. (Cheap, cheap?) DEAR ABBY: What's bugging me? I'll tell you what's bugging me. I'm a grown man, and I have a problem I am too ashamed to admit to anyone else. When my brother and I go to lunch together, he usually brings someone else along, or else we are invariably joined at the restaurant by a third party — usually a friend of his whom I also know. When there are three guys, the two of them carry on a conversation and I am completely left out. Maybe it's my fault for falling into this trap, but I can't very well tell my brother not to bring anyone and I can't really ask a person to get lost if he wants to join us for lunch. I wouldn't mind a third person, but I'm getting tired and fed up just sitting and listening to two other people talk to each other. EXCLUDED DOWN SOUTH DEAR EXCLUDED: Your brother and the third parties who invariably join you are rude and insensitive. Look for more compatible luncheon companions.

Dr. Donohue

Not all behavior change means Alzheimer's

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My family says my elderly mother has Alzheimer's disease. Her symptoms started six months ago. They are in the form of fantasies of fear. She gets messages from imaginary people. They hide in rooms, etc. She is worn out at the end of a day trying to convince me that all this is true. I also get worn out trying to dispel these myths. She's usually very alert and has a good memory, no speech impairment, no stroke. I even take her around stores in a wheelchair. Is this Alzheimer's or multi-infarct dementia, which you spoke of recently? — J.G.

I know what a problem this presents for you, but I wonder if it reflects something other than either Alzheimer's or multi-infarct dementia (many small strokes). In both those conditions there can be delusions similar to the kind your mother has, and behavioral changes are part of both pictures. But we must be careful not to attribute all such symptoms to Alzheimer's, especially in the face of the enormous publicity recently afforded that disease. In Alzheimer's as, indeed, in multiple infarct situations, there are other signs of brain deterioration — memory lapses, language difficulty, and a loss of the sense of one's surroundings. So your mother really doesn't exactly fit the picture of either.

If I were you I would take my mother to the doctor for an opinion. You may find she has a treatable condition. One that comes to mind is normal pressure hydrocephalus, something that can be corrected with a rather simple surgical procedure. Or, and this is frequently the cause of such mental aberrations in the elderly, one of her medicines can be involved. Her medicine schedule needs a review. During this time of disturbed thought, she needs a structured environment, one with which she feels familiar, comfortable. She needs the kind of support you are obviously providing. She needs proper nutrition. She doesn't need off-the-top-of-the-head assumptions about the basis of her present difficulties. I do suggest she be checked for a possibly correctable condition. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Are lettuce, celery, and raw carrots roughage? — R.L. Yes, they are roughage (fiber) foods. It proves that you cannot always depend on the texture of food to tell you how much fiber is in it. You have to have chart for that.

Downtown parking law stalls in council

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Parking in Big Spring may be hazardous to your health or, at the very least, risky business, councilmen decided Tuesday night.

During a 30-minute discussion of traffic commission recommendations on business parking, Councilman Henry Sanchez humorously suggested that the city install signs stating, "Parking at your own risk."

The council ended the discussion by tabling the recommendations until after it meets in work session.

The commission's recommendations would have changed parking at six businesses while allowing "sidewalk" parking at 88 other businesses to remain unchanged.

Earlier, councilmen had let a motion die by Councilman Johnny Rutherford to adopt the traffic commission's suggestions.

Under compromises reached by the traffic commission, Coordinator of Traffic and Planning Sherrill Farmer and business owners, changes would have occurred at these businesses:

- Shroyer's Motor Co. at 424 E. Third. Parking lanes would be painted at a lesser angle on the east side of the service building to allow pedestrians a walkway.
- Bob Brock Ford at 500 W. Fourth. Two spaces would be eliminated at the curb on the west side of the exit driveway in front of the new car dealership, and a restricted parking area would be marked.
- The Hamby & Mouton law firm offices at 200 W. Third. The three head-in parking spaces on the east side of the building on Scurry and Third would be changed to two parallel parking spaces.
- Danny's T-Tops at 403 Gregg. A sidewalk would be painted on the walkway by the curb, but space would remain for parallel parking next to the building.
- Mrs. Baird's Bread at 411 Nolan. Concrete bumpers on the Fifth Street side would be rearranged to delineate a parking line on Nolan St.

- The block stretching from 300 to 306 E. Third, which includes parking for A-1 Sheet Metal, Willie's Cafe and The Storeroom. One parallel parking space would be placed at the Storeroom. Angle parking of a lesser angle than 90 degrees would be painted from the single parallel space west to the driveway of A-1 Sheetmetal, leaving a walkway.

The city would pay for painting costs. Under the commission recommendations, the city would enforce the sidewalk parking prohibition on a complaint basis, according to City Manager Don Davis.

The recommendations, however, ran into opposition from City Attorney Doyle Curtis, who said he was "scared" by the city's potential liability if an accident occurred.

Mayor Pro Tem Harold Hall also said he was scared of possible liability and million-dollar lawsuits. "You all understand we could be sued," he said.

"It scares me to death," said Councilman Russ McEwen. "We hire someone to give us legal advice."

"And we don't accept it," said Hall.

Rutherford, however, said he felt the traffic commission's recommendations are good.

"You can go to one extreme and then you can eliminate 65 percent of the parking in downtown," he said. "Parking is essential to every business in this town. If parking per se is a risk, then we have to insure against it. I think insurance is the only answer."

McEwen, an independent insurance agent, however, said the city "could not buy that amount of insurance." "I don't want to prevent parking ... but angle parking on Third and Fourth streets is our largest potential problem," he said.

Curtis was advocating parallel parking over angle parking.

Coahoma OKs deposit fee for center

Coahoma City Councilmen approved a motion made Tuesday evening during a regular meeting, to charge a $20 deposit fee for the use of the Coahoma Community Center.

"Some have been leaving it filthy. We've been having to pay for it to be cleaned," said Coahoma Mayor Eleanor Garrett.

A group that pays $20 per night for the use of the community center will be refunded $10 if they clean it afterwards, Garrett said.

Councilmen also approved a motion that asks for a $.25 charge per sheet for the use of the copying machine in city hall, Garrett said.

In other action taken on the meeting's agenda:

- Councilmen selected Reed Oil's bid to provide gasoline, diesel and oil for city vehicles.
- Formally hired Steve

Phernetton of Coahoma to mow the grass at the city cemetery.

- Tabled a request for new radios for city employees.

"We need to spend money on other priorities," Garrett said.

- Approved a motion that grants city employees one-half day sick leave per month.

- Paid monthly bills. Garrett said a major portion of the installation costs of the new water line have now been paid for.

Baldwin wins opening bout; amateur boxing history made

From staff and wire reports
Big Spring featherweight Jamie Baldwin moved his way into the semi-finals of the Western Junior World Cup Championship with a technical knockout of Don Kummula of Anoka, Minnesota.

The TKO came with two minutes left in the first round at Ft. Bliss Army Base. The win moves Baldwin closer to a berth in the World Cup Finals which will pit the winners of the western region against the winners of the eastern region, whose competition is being held in Lake Placid, N.Y. The victors of the east-west competition will gain a berth on the United States Olympic Boxing Team.

Baldwin will be in action tonight. At the time of publication his opponent was not yet known.

The highlight of the first night's competition came when amateur boxing history was made when John Reyes of Wichita Falls won his preliminary round match.

Reyes was declared the winner by virtue of a new rule in amateur boxing that allows the ringside physician to suspend a bout in order to examine a boxer and determine if the bout should continue.

Ringside physician, Lt. Col. Bert Tankleff, stopped the fight 2:03 into the second round when Robert Giepert of Gretna, La., was receiving a number of blows without protecting himself.

"I stopped the bout because the boxer was in obvious difficulty," said Tankleff. "I thought he might get hurt because he was virtually defenseless."

"I think it is an excellent rule," said Tankleff. "The referee is involved in the count and separating the boxers while I am looking just at the injured boxer. I think it's great."

The rule was proposed and approved at the annual meeting of the USA Amateur Boxing Federation (USAABF), the national governing body for amateur boxing in the U.S. This tournament is the first time the rule has been in effect since its passage.

Other winners in the competition included bronze medalists at the U.S. Championships Steve Young of St. Louis and Lupe Lopez of Commerce City, Colo., both at 119 pounds; Carlos Valdez of Austin, Texas, 112 pounds; and John Clouden of Kenner, La.

Henning wins Signal Peak

By CHARLIE ALCORN

Dallas club pro Greg Henning fashioned a 3 under-par 68 to go along with an opening round 70 to capture the Third Annual Shriners Signal Peak Pro-Am by three strokes while the team of Doug DeSive, Omar Jones, Carl Small, Brad Small and Dan Johnson withstood a strong challenge by Henning's group to claim the 1985 team title with a 28 under-par two day total 114 Tuesday at the Big Spring Country Club.

Henning started the day of two strokes behind first day leader Rives McBee but made up ground steadily with consistent play over the 6,940 yard par 71 layout. McBee and a group including Terry Dear, George Clark, Guy Bailey and Richard Hale all tied for second place at 141.

In team best-ball match play, DeSive's team need a course record tying 56 to beat out the hard charging Henning, who along with teammates Monte Rhodes, Bill McClendon, Joey Williamson and Jack Williamson fired a collective final round 58 to finish one stroke back at 114. It was the second team title in a row for DeSive, who was assistant pro at the Big Spring CC for 18 months before moving to Midland's Ranchland Hills CC.

Henning collected $1000 for his first place finish in the professional end of the tournament, while

Here are some of the winning team members at the Third Annual Signal Peak Shriners Pro-Am charity tournament held Monday and Tuesday at the Big Spring Country Club. From left to right are: Ranchland Hills pro DOUG DESIVE, CARL SMALL, DAN JOHNSON and Big Spring CC club pro GARY HAMMER.

DeSive's team each pocketed $350 for their winning efforts. The tournament gave out a total of $16,675 in prize money and gift certificates to the winning teams.

The best two day total for a team playing with a celebrity was football great Sammy Baugh's group who finished the tournament with a 17 under-par 125.

Tournament finance director Charlie Lewis deemed the tournament and charity benefits a great success, quoting a gross figure of $75,000 received through the four day event. "We won't know for another week or so what our net charity will be," commented Lewis. "But we should be very close to our projected goal of $40,000."

Watson, Ballesteros relish foul weather golfing at U.S. Open

TOM WATSON (left) and his caddie, BRUCE EDWARDS, joke with LEE TREVINO as they warm up on the practice putting green Tuesday at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Michigan. Practice rounds continue Wednesday for the 85th U.S. Open.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Under almost any circumstances, Seve Ballesteros and Tom Watson can be expected to play major roles in golf's major championships.

Under the circumstances prevailing at the 85th U.S. Open Championship — cold, rainy weather — their positions are enhanced.

"It's not very good," Ballesteros said of the steady rain, chilly temperatures and blustery winds that curtailed practice Tuesday at the Oakland Hills Country Club course.

"But it's often much worse than this in Europe" where he plays most of his schedule, said the Spaniard who has won two Masters and two British Opens.

"It'll probably be in the 40's when I tee off Thursday morning," a dripping wet Watson said after a practice session played in 50-degree weather, with 20 mph winds and steady, cold rain.

"But," he said, smiling broadly while he towed his hair, "I've still got my lucky ski cap."

"You know, I've had lots of requests for that cap. Somebody's 95-year-old grandfather would like to have it, things like that. But I just write back and say 'sorry.'"

"I'm keeping it."

Watson has a history of playing some of his best, most productive golf under adverse weather conditions. He calls his 69 in some of the worst weather in American golf history at the 1979 Memorial tournament one of the finest rounds of his career. He achieved that score while wearing a ski cap, layers of sweaters and foul-weather gear — and a large smile.

His career, of course, is spiced by one U.S. Open victory, two Masters championships and is highlighted by five British Open titles, several of which were won in cold, wind and rain.

And that was the forecast for the Open: rain continuing today with a high near 60, and possible showers through Friday.

Ballesteros, relaxed and easygoing as he often is when he's playing his best, shrugged.

"I'm very confident now," he said. "It's just right. I'm playing good, but not too good."

He raised his hand on an ascending plane.

"Moving up. Getting close to very good," he said.

And Watson, who collected a record sixth Player of the Year designation last season but hasn't won since, also pronounced his game sound and solid.

"I'm playing much better," he said.

"For a while, I was having trouble with the long game. I solved that, and then started having trouble with the short game."

"Now, my short game is very good," he said, "and I'm still driving the ball well. That's going to be important here, of course. But I have my game, and I have my strategy for the course. Now, it's a matter of getting it done, getting on with it."

Miami downs Texas for CWS crown

Miami's MIKE FIORE is congratulated by teammates after he scored on a passed ball in third inning action of the championship game of the NCAA College World Series. Miami won the game 10-6.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The Miami Hurricanes, billed by Coach Ron Fraser as the "happiest team in America," were overjoyed with the results of their final game of 1985.

"This is a special team, unlike any other we've had," said Fraser after the Hurricanes downed Texas 10-6 in the NCAA College World Series Tuesday night. "We've had better talent, but this team had the chemistry and that's what made the difference. This team didn't know how to lose."

Miami made use of five Texas errors, including four in the first three innings, to jump to a 6-0 lead, and the sixth-ranked Hurricanes never looked back.

Greg Ellena, selected the tournament's most valuable player, had four of the Hurricanes' 14 hits as Miami ended a 64-16 season with its second national title. Miami won its first title in 1982.

"This one feels better than the first one," said Fraser. "I thought we did what we had to do tonight — go out there and score some runs. We didn't feel we could win a 2-1 game."

Miami did win a 2-1 game with two unearned runs against Texas Sunday night. The teams were rained out Monday.

The rest gave relief ace Rick Raether a needed breather to strengthen his tired arm. He went 3-1 in Saturday in a 6-5 win aided by Ellena's two-run, game-winning homer over Mississippi State and pitched 3-1-3 in the 2-1 win over Texas to pick up his second series victory. He also notched three saves in the series.

Kevin Sheary, Miami's starting pitcher and 7-4 on the season, picked up his third tournament win with 6 2-3 innings against the Longhorns.

"I felt if Sheary could give us seven strong innings, I knew Raether was good for eight and nine," Fraser said.

While Sheary and Raether put the lid on Texas hitters in all but a three-run seventh, the Hurricanes took advantage of their hot bats and five Texas errors.

"They gave us the first half of the ballgame and that was important," said Fraser.

"They looked a little tight at the beginning and we came out swinging the bats," said Miami's Calvin James.

"We made mistakes," said Texas second baseman Billy Bates. "Miami played tough, and it is tough to beat somebody when they score 10 runs, and that was due to a lot of mistakes we made."

Texas, ranked third and finishing 64-14, was runner-up for a second straight year. The Longhorns were beaten 3-1 in the title match with Fullerton State a year ago after winning the 1983 championship.

Miami became the fifth team to come out of the losers' bracket to win two straight games against the winners' bracket champ. The last team to accomplish that feat was Southern Cal against Arizona State in 1972.

The championship game's 16 runs also made it the highest scoring CWS title game. The previous record was 15, set in the first CWS title game in 1947 when California beat Yale 8-7, and tied by 1958's final won by Southern Cal over Missouri, 8-7.

Miami won the title game without all-tournament catcher Chris Magno, who was hospitalized Tuesday afternoon with a blood clot in his right arm. He was listed in good condition at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, where he is expected to remain for a week.

"Losing Magno spurred this team on," Fraser said. "They went out there with a job to do and did it."

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA NEVER CHANGE. SOME DO.

U.S. Savings Bonds. Paying Better Than Ever.

Portland Head Light has been a beacon to ships approaching Maine's rugged coast for as long as anyone can remember. And for many, its weatherworn setting is the picture of beauty. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate. Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7½%.

You can purchase Bonds at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Mets, Phils play role of record breakers

By The Associated Press
The much-maligned National League hitters, led by the much-maligned Philadelphia Phillies, proved for at least one night that runs are not that tough to come by. With Philadelphia's Von Hayes equalling a major league mark with two first-inning homers in a record-setting 26-7 victory over the New York Mets, NL teams combined to score 74 runs in five games Tuesday night, an average of nearly 15 per game. The league had been scoring just 7.6.

NL Roundup

Hayes, who had just two hits in his last 33 at-bats, started the game with a solo homer off Tom Gorman, then capped a nine-run outburst with a grand slam off Calvin Schiraldi — one of three bases-loaded homers hit in the NL.

"We've been kicked, stomped and buried this season, so many guys were hungry," said Hayes, who may have understated his case by calling the performance the best of his career.

"We turned it loose tonight," said Manager John Felske, whose Phillies got the most hits — 27 — and scored the most runs in the team's 103-year history. "We scored more runs tonight than all of June."

He wasn't kidding. Entering the game, the Phillies — who also set team records for most doubles (10), extra-base hits (14) and total bases (47) — had scored 25.

And they weren't alone in their assault on a night when only one pitcher — Houston's Mike Scott — hurled a complete game. All told, 36 pitchers gave up 121 hits.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 5, Chicago 3; Pittsburgh 13, St. Louis 2; San Francisco 5, Atlanta 4 in 18 innings; and Houston 11, San Diego 0. Rain postponed the game in Cincinnati between the Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I was mad at myself," said Hayes. "I wasn't being patient. Tonight, I waited to get my pitch. You try little things and the big things happen."

Ironically, Hayes didn't think he was going to play. When he came to the park he looked at the middle of the lineup and didn't see his name. "My head drooped a little bit."

Then he noticed he was in the National League page 3-B

Yanks 'drop' close one to red-hot Blue Jays

By The Associated Press
The New York Yankees got a terrific pitching performance from Ed Whitson and a dramatic, two-out home run from Dale Berra in the bottom of the ninth inning. Then the bottom dropped out in the 11th because second baseman Willie Randolph dropped a throw.

"We didn't look too good in the field," Martin said after Tuesday night's 4-1 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays in 11 innings. "We had a double play that we didn't get."

Martin referred to an error by Randolph, who dropped a throw from Berra after the third baseman fielded a grounder by Willie Upshaw with one out and runners on first and third in the 11th. Presumably, if Randolph had caught the ball, the Yankees would have turned a double play and killed the rally. As it was, it allowed the Blue Jays to score the tie-breaking run.

and I had to watch the runner at third. I had to have four eyes to make that play. It wasn't a routine double play."

In the American League's other games, Milwaukee beat Boston 5-3; Texas stopped California 6-4; Chicago turned back Seattle 7-1 and Oakland beat Kansas City 4-3. Two games were rained out — Baltimore at Detroit and Minnesota at Cleveland.

Pinch-runner Louis Thornton scored from third on Randolph's error. A two-run single by Buck Martinez added a couple of insurance runs for the Blue Jays, who broke a three-game losing streak.

The Blue Jays were within one out of a 1-0 victory, but Berra homered in the bottom of the ninth off Gary Lavelle. Lloyd Moseby drove in the first run of the game with a sacrifice fly in the third off Whitson, who pitched 9 1-3 strong innings and gave up only six hits while striking out seven and walking only one.

leadoff spot for the first time since coming to the Phillies from Cleveland two seasons ago.

"I thought they must be kidding me," Hayes explained. "Two days ago I was cleanup hitter."

The Phillies and Mets tied or set three NL or major league marks.

—Most extra-base hits by one club (14), tying the NL mark held by Pittsburgh against Atlanta in 1970, and Montreal against Atlanta in 1978.

—Most extra bases on long hits by one team (34), breaking the major league mark of 32 by the Boston Red Sox against the St. Louis Browns in 1950.

—Most extra bases on long hits by two teams (40), tying the NL record shared by the Milwaukee Braves (27) and Brooklyn Dodgers (13) in 1954, and Chicago Cubs (26) and New York Mets (14) in 1967.

There was more. Juan Samuel, who had five hits, and Rich Schu, who had four, tied the major league record for at-bats in a nine-inning game with seven each.

And the Mets had a few of their own.

The outburst accounted for the most runs and hits ever against New York, which gave up 19 runs to Montreal in a 1973 game and 22 hits in a 1966 loss to Atlanta.

"It's a game I'll never forget," Manager Dave Johnson said in reviewing the three-hour, 21-minute affair which featured 33 runs and 40 hits.

With his fourth and fifth homers of the season, Hayes became the 21st player in major league history to hit two home runs in one inning. He tied and set other corresponding records, including hits and total bases in an inning.

Hayes singled in the second inning as the Phillies added seven more runs to take a 16-0 lead. He drove in his final run by walking with the bases loaded in the fifth.

The Phillies had scored 23 runs on three occasions, the most recent when they beat the Cubs 23-22 in 1979 with Mike Schmidt hitting four home runs.

Cubs 5, Expos 3
Leon Durham's eighth-inning grand slam erased a 3-1 deficit as Chicago increased its NL East lead to 3½ games over New York and four over Montreal.

"I knew the bases were loaded when I came up, but it didn't really dawn on me it was a grand slam until I crossed the plate," said Durham, whose sixth homer of the year came off Gary Lucas.

Lucas had come on after Randy St. Claire, 1-1, walked two batters to load the bases.

Reliever George Frazier, 3-1, got the victory. Lee Smith pitched the final inning to collect his 15th save.

Pirates 13, Cardinals 2

Veteran Rick Reuschel, who started the season in the minor leagues, pitched and batted the Pittsburgh Pirates out of a seven-game losing streak. Reuschel, 3-0 since his recall from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League, scattered six hits over seven innings and drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

Reuschel, 3-0, hit a two-run single during a three-run Pittsburgh second inning against Neil Allen, then added an RBI single as the Pirates made it 10-0 with a six-run third. Pittsburgh totaled a season-high 18 hits with all 12 Pirates appearing in the game getting at least one.

"Reuschel threw the heck out of the ball," said Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog.

Both Bill Madlock and Tony Pena hit their third homers of the season for the Pirates.

Giants 5, Braves 4

Bob Brenly had made up his mind that 10 innings was just about all he could take.

"If it wasn't in the dirt or over my head, I was going to swing at it," Brenly said of the Gene Garber pitch he hit into left field to score David Green from second base and end the longest game ever played in Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium.

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for San Francisco, which had only two runs in 46 innings and went six before scoring three in the seventh Tuesday. The loss ended the Braves' longest winning streak of the year at three games.

Bob Horner, playing first base for the second straight game, hit two homers for Atlanta, his fifth and sixth.

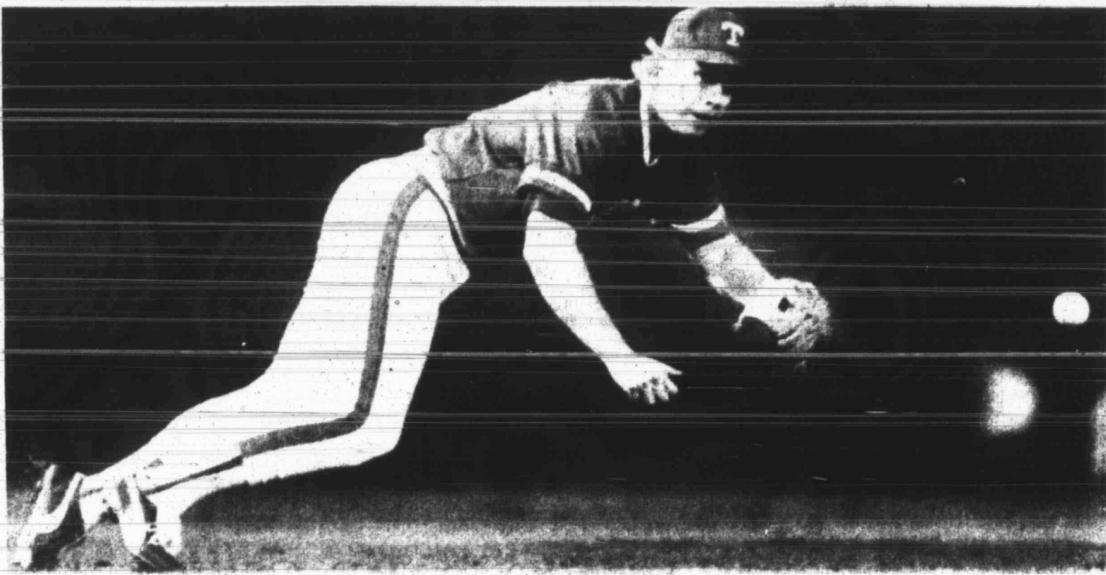

The Giants pounded out 17 hits.

Astros 11, Padres 0

Mark Bailey borrowed a bat from injured Houston teammate Jose Cruz and hasn't been the same since.

"I'm going to keep on using it until he says I can't anymore," said Bailey, who has five straight hits over two games, including a grand-slam homer off San Diego's Craig Lefferts that punctuated a 13-hit Houston attack.

Scott, 5-2, pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout and complete game of the season.

Texas Rangers third baseman BUDDY BELL leaps for the ball hit by California Angels Brian Downing in the fourth inning at Anaheim Stadium. Bell recovered in time to make the throw to second base to force out Reggie Jackson.

Tinseltown pays tribute to new world champions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sign held high by one fan of the Los Angeles Lakers told it all: "Let The World End, I'm Happy Now."

There were a lot of happy people lining the streets of Los Angeles and attending a ceremony at City Hall Tuesday to honor the Lakers for winning the National Basketball Association championship.

There also were a few unhappy people near the steps of City Hall who were briefly crushed against water-filled barrels serving as crowd-control barriers. That development along with moderate heat caused the festivities to be cut short.

About 30 people received medical treatment, most of them because of heat prostration. Only one person required hospitalization, a 16-year-old boy who fell out of a tree.

Police Lt. Dan Cooke said four people were taken into custody for minor offenses and were later released. There were no arrests, he said. One man taken into custody was "stark naked attacking a television truck," he said.

At least 6,000 people swarmed around the front steps of City Hall where the Lakers were presented with a proclamation by Pat Russell, the City Council president and acting mayor, and Ethel Bradley, wife of Mayor Tom Bradley.

Fans in the front said they arrived at 6 a.m. or earlier for the noon ceremony.

In addition to Johnson and Abdul-Jabbar, Dr. Jerry Buss, owner of the Lakers, Coach Pat Riley and forward Kurt Rambis addressed the fans briefly.

Abdul-Jabbar was the last player introduced to the fans and received the biggest ovation. He acknowledged the applause by holding both hands aloft with his index fingers extended in a "number one" sign.

The parade and a rally later in the day at the Forum parking lot in nearby Inglewood capped two days of celebrating. An Inglewood Police Dept. spokeswoman said a crowd of 7,000-8,000 attended the rally. There were no incidents.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Ted Simmons capped a three-run seventh inning with a tie-breaking, two-out double as Milwaukee beat Boston to snap the Red Sox's eight-game winning streak.

Danny Darwin, 6-4, scattered eight hits in eight innings while becoming only the second pitcher to beat the Red Sox in the last 13 games. He struck out eight and walked three.

Bruce Hurst, making his first relief appearance since April 5, 1983, replaced Boston starter Roger Clemens at the beginning of the sixth and took the loss, his fifth in seven decisions.

Rangers 6, Angels 4

Dave Rozema pitched five innings to win his first start in six weeks and Texas slugged four solo homers to beat California.

Rozema, 3-4, entered the game with a 9.39 ERA for his last 11 outings, all in relief, but held the Angels without an earned run. Greg Harris worked the final four innings, striking out six as he picked up his fourth save.

Hitting home runs for Texas were Pete O'Brien, Cliff Johnson, Larry Parrish and Oddibe McDowell.

White Sox 7, Mariners 1
Tim Lollar held Seattle to one run over 6 1-3 innings and Rudy Law drove in two runs with a triple to lead Chicago over the Mariners.

Lollar, 2-2, scattered five hits, walked four and struck out four in leading the White Sox to their fourth straight triumph. Dan Spillner finished the game with 2 2-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Law's triple capped a four-run second inning for the White Sox, giving them all the runs they needed. Seattle's Billy Swift, 1-1, making his first major league start, yielded seven hits and five runs in 5 2-3 innings.

A's 4, Royals 3

Carney Lansford's two-out single in the bottom of the ninth off reliever Mike LaCoss scored the winning run for Oakland.

Picciolo started the rally with a one-out single off Kansas City starter Bud Black, 5-6. After Donnie Hill walked, LaCoss relieved Black and struck out Alfredo Griffin on a 3-2 pitch.

Calaveras County makes no bones about its name

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. (AP) — Calaveras County, where authorities unearthed "a truckload of bones" in a possible mass murder case, is best known for light-hearted frog jumping contests. But the Gold Rush county takes its name from another grisly discovery more than a century ago. Explorer John Marsh and his party discovered many Indian skeletons and skulls when they arrived at the present Calaveras River in 1836 or 1837.

Afterward, they always called the place Calaveras, meaning "skulls" in Spanish, according to "California Place Names."

Marsh, a doctor, later established a ranch near Antioch, east of San Francisco. He was murdered in 1856 by three of his neighbors.

Historians believe the large number of Indian skeletons and skulls Marsh found were due to famine or battles over fishing rights, according to Richard Terry, senior librarian in the state library's California section.

On Monday, authorities continued searching a hillside and cabin near the town of West Point where they have already removed 50 shopping bags full of human bone fragments taken from shallow graves. One occupant of the cabin committed suicide Thursday after being arrested in San Francisco; a second man is being sought.

The small county of 26,300 on the west slopes of the Sierra Nevada was immortalized by Mark Twain, who lived for a time near Angels Camp in the county. His 1865 story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," told of miners in Angels Camp betting on whose frog could jump the farthest. One frog, "Dan'l Webster," failed to jump after his stomach was filled with buckshot.

The rural foothills county held its first official frog jumping contest in 1928 to celebrate the first paved street and has continued the tradition each year with a county fair and frog jumping contest.

Calaveras County, about 150 miles east of San Francisco, was one of the original 27 counties created when California became a state in 1850. Now there are 58 counties. The county is rural and rugged and its only incorporated city, Angels Camp, has a population of only 2,230.

But the names of its towns reflect the wild, open history of its Gold Rush days: Rail Road Flat, Angels Camp, Mokelumne Hill, Jesus Maria, Milton, Copperopolis, Murphys, Jenny Lind, Dogtown, Bummerville.

George or Henry Angel started mining at a creek in the county in 1848, shortly after the discovery of gold that year near Placerville, about 50 miles to the north. By 1853, Angels Camp was known as one of the richest gold diggings of the southern mines.

Another hot town was Murphys, established as a mining camp in 1848 or 1849 by John Murphy, of the Stockton Mining Co. Mokelumne Hill, named for a Plains Miwok Indian village, was another mining center, dominated by French miners who called the booming town Les Fourcades.

The county even gave its name to a mineral, calaverite, a gold telluride with some silver.

With the end of the Gold Rush, the county quieted down and became mainly a recreation site with several reservoirs, the Calaveras Big Trees State Park with sequoia trees, and caves, including Moaning Cavern and Mercer Cavern.

Forensic specialists excavate an area looking for bone fragments from a hillside around a cell. Authorities have taken bags full of bone fragments from the area. Another grisly discovery was made in the same area over a century ago giving the county (Calaveras County) its name. Writer Mark Twain made the area famous in one of his short stories.

Counselor arrested for kidnapping

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman who had worked for nearly two years as a counselor for battered women will not fight extradition to California where she faces felony charges of child stealing and false imprisonment.

Sharon Murphy, 35, had been living with her 9-year-old son under an assumed name to avoid arrest, authorities said. Officials caught up with her last week and returned her son, Colin Johnson, to his grandmother, author Maya Angelou.

Ms. Angelou took him to California and Colin's father, Guy Johnson, who was given legal custody in 1980, officials said. The boy became the object of a nationwide search after he was snatched from his father's home in Santa Rosa, Calif., in 1981.

"I think I might not see my son again for a very long time," Ms. Murphy told the Austin American-Statesman. "I had no choice but to give him back; they had me."

Ms. Murphy, known as Sharon Murphy Johnson when she fled California, described herself as "an in-the-street social worker" doing everything she can to resolve marital problems, including custody fights, for her clients.

"She's one of the best counselors we've ever had," said Judy Reeves, her supervisor at the center. "Everybody here loves her."

"So many battered women who come to the center from out of state have assumed names," she said. "I guess it was assumed she had custody of her son."

A native of Oklahoma, Ms. Murphy moved to California to study psychology and met Guy Johnson — the son of Ms. Angelou, a black activist, author and poet.

The two divorced in 1977 with Ms. Murphy claiming her husband beat her repeatedly. But California authorities said she never proved the claim. She was given custody of her son and raised him alone for 2½ years earning $630 a month and living in a housing project.

In 1980, the boy was placed in the custody of his father by a court that ruled he could provide for the boy better than she could, Ms. Murphy said.

"I was completely shut out of his life," she said. "The only way I could remain a part of my son's life was to do what I did."

Cosby Show propels NBC to the top

Miss USA 1985, Miss Laura Martinez-Herring, was enthusiastically greeted by thousands as she paraded along Mills Street in downtown El Paso Monday. The 21-year-old El Paso native is the first Hispanic and first naturalized citizen to win the Miss USA title.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Bill Cosby ratings juggernaut steamed over the opposition as it carried NBC to another victory in the Nielsen ratings for the week ended June 9.

"The Cosby Show" was first again, and two of NBC's other Thursday night shows were in the Top 10. In all, NBC had six shows in the Top 10 and second-place CBS had four.

Third-place ABC was virtually out of the running. Its highest-ranked show was "Who's the Boss?" which tied for 20th place.

NBC was first the previous week, ABC second and CBS third. The network also won the May sweeps, one of the periods when the nation's television stations are closely monitored to determine advertising rates.

The pro basketball championship finals on CBS took two places at the top of the ratings. Game four last Wednesday was in a three-way tie for sixth place. Game five on Friday was 18th. The Sunday wrapup game in which the Los Angeles Lakers triumphed over the Boston Celtics four games to two was not in prime time.

NBC won the week with a network average of 13.9 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. CBS was second with 13.0 and ABC was third with 9.8. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.9 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to

The popular Cosby Show along with star Bill Cosby topped the ratings one more week. NBC had six television shows in the Top 10 Nielsen ratings.

ABC said a portion of the audience for the week was siphoned off by the non-network broadcast of the Billy Graham Crusade. It said ABC and CBS were affected from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, all three networks from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, and CBS from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday.

All the network averages were down from the previous week, but viewing traditionally falls off during the summer months.

Here are the Top 10: "The Cosby Show," NBC, first; "Family Ties," NBC, second; "Miami Vice," NBC, third; "Remington Steele," NBC, fourth; "Simon & Simon," CBS, fifth; NBA finals Game No. 4, CBS, "Dirty Work" on CBS, and

"Cheers" on NBC, three-way tie for sixth; "Riptide," NBC, ninth; "Kate & Allie," CBS, 10th.

CBS was first again among the evening news shows, NBC was second and ABC was third. The ratings: CBS 10.7, NBC 9.5, ABC 9.4.

Here are the Top 20 rated television programs as compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week of June 3-9. Listings include the week's ranking, with season-to-date ranking in parentheses, rating for the week, and total homes. An "X" in parentheses denotes one-time-only presentation.

'Rambo' tops box office; 'The Goonies' place second

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Goonies," Steven Spielberg's modern-day pirate tale about pint-size adventurers, zoomed into the No. 2 box-office slot by taking in $9.1 million during its first weekend of release.

But Sylvester Stallone's "Rambo: First Blood Part II" remained the top earner, with $10.2 million over the past weekend, bringing its three-week total to $70.4 million.

Among the other top box-office earners over the weekend were "Fletch" with $6.3 million, "A View to a Kill" with $4.5 million and "Perfect" with $4.2 million.

Overall, box office business this past weekend was off about 20 percent from the same period last year.

Last summer's biggest hits — "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Ghostbusters" and "Gremlins" — were a tough act to follow. All eventually topped $150 million, making 1984 the first summer with more than one movie grossing $100 million or more.

Barry Reardon, Warner Bros. distribution president, said he is confident that "Goonies" will remain a big earner through the summer.

Reardon also said that last summer's big receipts were caused partly by Hollywood releasing all its major films at the beginning of the season — which led to a soft middle.

This summer distribution companies are holding back a month before releasing such films as "Back to the Future," "Return to Oz" and "Cocoon."

Here are the top 10 films at the box office over the weekend, followed by distributor, weekend gross, number of screens, total gross and number of weeks in release.

1. "Rambo: First Blood Part 2;" Tri-Star; $10.2 million; 2,074 screens; $70.4 million; three weeks.
2. "The Goonies;" Warner Bros.; $9.1 million; 1,705 screens; $9.1 million; one week.
3. "Fletch;" Universal; $6.3 million; 1,303 screens; $16.5 million; two weeks.
4. "A View to a Kill;" MGM-UA; $4.5 million; 1,566 screens; $30.2 million; three weeks.
5. "Perfect;" Columbia; $4.2 million; 1,344 screens; $4.2 million; one week.
6. "Brewster's Millions;" Universal; $3.8 million; 1,404 screens; $24.4 million; three weeks.
7. "Beverly Hills Cop;" Paramount; $1.1 million; 827 screens; $221.7 million; 26 weeks.
8. "Witness;" Paramount; $728,000; 501; $63.8 million; 18 weeks.
9. "Police Academy 2;" Warner Bros.; $683,574; 722; $63.8 million; 11 weeks.
10. "Desperately Seeking Susan;" Orion; $642,005; 530; $23.6 million; 11 weeks.

Proposed Medicare freeze won't hurt care for elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says its proposed one-year freeze on Medicare payment rates to hospitals will not affect the quality of health care available to the nation's elderly.

Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler formally proposed the freeze Monday, saying the rates "will allow high quality health care to proceed," while "restraining the growth of Medicare program costs."

But the changes are opposed in the health care industry, where officials say care may suffer and much of the cost will be passed on to private patients.

The payment freeze, published in Monday's Federal Register, would implement part of President Reagan's 1986 budget program. HHS officials say it will save $1.8 billion during the year.

In issuing the proposed regulation, the department said the rising cost of medical care is more than offset by past overpayments. Those overpayments, it said, occurred through use of unaudited cost figures in calculating payments and through past overestimates of medical inflation. The overpayments were high enough that the government would be justified in reducing Medicare payments, the department said. However, it said it decided against such a reduction because it "would appear to be punitive of the hospital industry," which was not responsible for the calculations.

The new rates implement the third year, and the final transition year, of a new payment system for Medicare, the government's health program for the elderly and disabled.

The prospective payment system puts specific treatments into one of some 470 "diagnostic related groups," with a specific payment set for each. The plan is intended to bring medical costs under control.

The rates have changed each year during the transition to put more stress on the standard rate and less on the individual hospital cost figures. The rates also are supposed to be adjusted each year for overall cost increases.

The department says it projects a 4.85 percent increase in costs to hospitals, but said it also calculated a 6.2 percent overpayment to hospitals based on past errors.

And, it included a 1.5 percent reduction as a "policy target adjustment" — the department's estimate of what hospitals should be able to save through increased productivity, savings from technology and elimination of waste.

The net change, then, would reduce payments by 2.85 percent, the department said. However, it said actually reducing the payments "would have adverse effects, not only relative to the expectations of the affected hospitals, but on the development and acceptance of the prospective payment system."

The proposed regulation is subject to public comment for 30 days.

Reagan's stand on SALT II gets mixed reviews

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan won applause from congressional liberals and moderates with his decision not to undercut the SALT II treaty, but one angry conservative said, "the Soviets are popping their vodka bottles and laughing at how stupid the United States is."

The president decided Monday that when a new Trident submarine, the USS Alaska, undergoes sea trials later this year, the United States will dismantle an older Poseidon missile-firing submarine in order not to exceed the missile limits set by the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty known as SALT II.

Sen. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, said the decision should give Moscow cause for celebration.

"We're actually talking about going ahead and dismantling a perfectly good submarine," Symms told reporters.

"I think it smacks of unilateral disarmament; I think it smacks of appeasement. It harkens back to the days of (former British Prime Minister Neville) Chamberlain knuckling under to Adolf Hitler," he said.

"My view of it is that ... the Soviets are popping their vodka bottles and laughing at how stupid the United States is that we would dismantle a perfectly good weapons system to comply with a treaty they never did comply with," Symms said.

Irate taxpayers assault taxmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Irate taxpayers are turning surly and sometimes throwing punches at federal tax collectors, the Internal Revenue Service says.

IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Eggers Jr. told the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee last week there were 789 threats and assaults against the service's 7,527 revenue officers last year, up from 531 in 1983.

"Anger and frustration" at an image of unfairness in the tax code are to blame, Eggers told the panel in plugging for President Reagan's plan to overhaul the income tax system.

IRS spokesman Larry Batdorf says the number has been climbing every year.

While only a tiny number of taxpayers get violent when the tax man comes to call, the problem has been an increasing worry to the IRS.

Training of agents now includes classes by the IRS inspection service in defense and how to spot trouble before it happens. In 1983, Michael Dillon, 61, of Stafford, N.Y., became the first IRS revenue officer to be shot and killed in the line of duty. He was sitting at a kitchen table, trying to collect a $332 tax bill from James F. Bradley of Cheektowga, when he was shot three times at close range with an M-1 rifle.

Bradley, 65, is awaiting sentencing after being convicted by a jury May 25 of first-degree manslaughter.

Batdorf says most incidents happen when revenue officers show up to collect overdue taxes. He says, though, that taxpayers have been known to voice threats or even throw punches in IRS offices while their returns are being audited.

Gorbachev calls for overhaul of USSR economy

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Tuesday said the Politburo has ordered the redrawing of the next Five-Year Plan, and called for an overhaul of "outdated" economic policies he linked with the Brezhnev era.

In a report to a Central Committee conference on the Soviet economy, Gorbachev said the plan had been sent back to those who drafted it because "serious criticism was expressed, which necessitates that work on the draft be continued."

Official adoption of the plan by the Supreme Soviet is due at the end of this year. The Five-Year Plan governs the enormous state apparatus that runs the Soviet economy.

Gorbachev's speech, distributed by the official news agency Tass, gave his most specific recommendations on the Soviet economy since he assumed leadership of the party in March.

He said all construction projects must be reviewed and halted where warranted.

More capital will be spent to retool factories rather than building new but technologically obsolete plants, Gorbachev said.

Energy and raw materials will be conserved, he said, and the quality of goods should be improved.

Gorbachev called for more attention to market forces, including consumer demand, to help improve the quality of goods. "It is necessary to remove everything outdated so that the cost-conscious economic mechanism, so to speak, could operate unimpeded and literally rap inefficient economic executives over the knuckles," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev, 54, became Communist Party chief on March 11 after the death of former leader Konstantin U. Chernenko. He has made domestic issues the focus of his leadership and warned that members of the old guard resisting change should "get out of the way."

Soviets deploy elite troops in Afghanistan

ISLAMAAD, Pakistan (AP) — Elite Soviet commandos trained in behind-the-lines operations are spearheading the current offensive in Afghanistan's Kunar valley against anti-Marxist guerrillas, Western sources said Tuesday.

The Western diplomatic sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said two commando units of 1,000 men each led about 10,000 Soviet troops through the Kunar valley to relieve the besieged Afghan garrison at the strategic border town of Barikot late last week.

An estimated 115,000 Soviet troops are now in Afghanistan supporting the country's Marxist government in its battle against Moslem insurgents.

The Western sources confirmed earlier reports from Afghan guerrilla-commanders that the Soviet commandos had occupied peaks overlooking the Kunar valley, preventing ambushes of the armored Soviet ground force.

The guerrillas also said Soviet helicopters landed commandos to the rear of guerrilla units, blocking their retreat as the armored columns advanced.

Soviet commandos — known in Russian as Spetsnaz — are elite special operations troops of the Red Army, according to Western intelligence reports.

Often disguised as friendly troops and speaking the local language, they are trained to operate behind the lines and infiltrate high-security targets, the reports say.

The Pentagon has claimed that Spetsnaz and Soviet KGB agents assassinated Afghan President Hafizullah Amin in 1979. His successor, Babrak Karmal, then invited Soviet troops into the country.

Western military intelligence reports have said that, in the event of a war in Europe, Spetsnaz troops would be sent in to assassinate political leaders and military commanders in NATO countries, and to seize and destroy command posts.

A guerrilla counteroffensive is not expected in Afghanistan until later this month, when the Moslem daytime fasting period of Ramadan ends and the guerrillas can operate without restriction, the Western sources said.

The Kunar attack, according to guerrilla commanders and Western intelligence sources, is part of a Soviet drive to seal the Pakistani border and cut off incoming guerrilla supply convoys.

Large Soviet forces are reported to be building up along the border further to the south in Paktia province, and Soviet forces have reportedly begun search-and-destroy missions in the area.

Several Afghan soldiers in an army unit supporting the Soviet force in the Kunar reportedly deserted and tried to get across the Pakistani border, one Western source said. The soldiers were caught in the open by Soviet helicopters and gunned down as they ran for the border, the source said.

East Germany, U.S. swap spies

BERLIN (AP) — In a scene that could have appeared in a Cold War spy novel, the United States and East Germany exchanged 27 people Tuesday on a bridge linking East and West at a Berlin checkpoint.

The swift exchange of the 27 prisoners was one of the largest postwar spy swaps ever. The United States released four Eastern Europeans indicted or convicted on spy charges for 23 East bloc prisoners.

Two others covered by the exchange agreement remained in East Germany, a U.S. statement said.

Under cloudy skies, the two sides eyed each other warily as they accompanied buses to a white line dividing the Glienecker Bridge between West Berlin and East Germany.

The Glienecker Bridge has been the scene of numerous dramatic exchanges, including the 1962 swap of American U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for the Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

East Germany brought 25 Eastern Europeans who had been held prisoner in Poland and East Germany, according to a statement released by the U.S. Mission in Berlin.

The statement said two of those covered by the agreement remained in East Germany "out of concern for personal business and the welfare of family members."

"It has been agreed with (East Germany) that these two persons will not be subject to further imprisonment and may if they choose depart for the West within two weeks without further condition," the statement said.

"It has been agreed that family members of all 23 persons who wish to do so will be allowed to join them within a short time," the statement said.

Bavarian Radio called the exchange one of the largest East-West espionage swaps since World War II.

Those freed by the United States were identified as Alice Michelson and Alfred Zehe of East Germany, Marian Zacharski of Poland and Penyu Kostadinov of Bulgaria.

Zacharski, the best known of the four, was sentenced to life imprisonment on Dec. 14, 1981, for conspiring to transmit information relating to the defense of the United States.

The government said that, as West Coast sales manager of the Polish American Machinery Co., Zacharski recruited an American radar engineer employed by the Hughes Aircraft Co. to pass on documents relating to advanced radar designs and the TOW anti-tank missile.

Recipes feature Tex-Mex style of Mexican cuisine

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Mention Mexican food and everyone's eyes light up. Mexican food in this country is heavily influenced by the area — Tex-Mex, Mexi-Cal, Arizona-Mexican and New Mexican foods differ greatly. Try these easy Mexican favorites from the San Antonio area.

TEX-MEX BRUNCH — Celebrate any Sunday with a festive south-of-the-border brunch. Hacienda Brunch Eggs and Picante Corn Muffins provide the ideal menu.

HACIENDA BRUNCH EGGS
1/2 lb. bulk pork sausage
1 1/2 lbs. (2 large or 3 medium) baking potatoes, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes (about 2 1/2 cups)
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup picante sauce
1 medium red or green pepper, chopped
4 eggs
1 ripe avocado, peeled, seeded and sliced
Dairy sour cream
In 10-inch skillet, lightly brown sausage; drain. Stir in potatoes, onion and picante sauce. Cover and cook until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in pepper. With back of large spoon, make 4 indentations in potato mixture; break an egg into each. Cover and cook 3 to 5 minutes or until eggs are cooked to desired doneness. Top with avocado slices. Serve with sour cream and additional picante sauce. Makes 4 servings.

PICANTE CORN MUFFINS
1 cup all-purpose flour
3/4 cup yellow cornmeal
1 1/2 tps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs, lightly beaten
6 Tbsps. picante sauce
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted and cooled
Combine flour, cornmeal, baking powder, baking soda and salt in large bowl. Add buttermilk, eggs, picante sauce and butter. Stir just until ingredients are blended. Fill 12 paper-lined medium-sized muffin cups almost full. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 1 dozen.

TEX MEX TOSTADAS
12 tostada shells
3 cups Easy Frijoles Refritos (see below)
3 cups Picante Meat Filling or Picante Chicken Filling (see below)
Shredded Monterey Jack, Cheddar or Colby cheese
Shredded lettuce
Chopped tomato
Guacamole (optional; see below)
Picante sauce
Heat tostada shells on cookie sheet in 350 degree oven for 5 to 7 minutes. For each tostada, spread shell with about 1/4 cup Easy Frijoles Refritos; evenly top with scant 1/4 cup meat or chicken filling. Garnish with cheese, lettuce, tomato and guacamole, as desired. Top with picante sauce. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: If tostada shells are not available, fry corn tortillas, one at a time, in 1/2-inch deep hot oil until lightly browned and crisp, turning once. Drain on paper towels.

Refried beans are an essential part of any Mexican meal because they are so economical, delicious and nutritious. Beans are protein and fiber rich, and they provide significant amounts of vitamins and minerals. Refried beans keep well in the refrigerator and they can be frozen for months. You must sort through beans carefully before thoroughly washing and rinsing in tap water, to make sure no small stones, pieces of dirt or shriveled, discolored beans are present. Note: "refritos" does not mean "fried again" in Spanish. This easy San Antonio method requires no frying at all.

EASY FRIJOLAS REFRITOS (Refried Beans)
1 lb. dried pinto beans
8 cups water
1/2 cup picante sauce
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 Tbsp. salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 cup butter or margarine
Sort through beans, discarding any foreign material. Thoroughly wash and drain beans. Combine beans, water, 1/2 cup of picante sauce, onion, salt and garlic in Dutch oven. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover. Simmer 3 to 4 hours or until beans are tender and may be mashed easily, adding water as needed and stirring occasionally. Drain beans, reserving liquid. Return beans to Dutch oven or transfer to large bowl of electric mixer. Add butter and remaining 1/4 cup picante sauce. Beat at low speed on electric mixer until beans are as smooth as you prefer, adding reserved cooking liquid a small amount at a time until desired consistency is reached. Add salt to taste. Makes 4 1/2 cups beans, about 9 servings.

PICANTE MEAT FILLING
1 lb. ground beef or pork
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup picante sauce
1 tsp. ground cumin
1/2 tsp. salt
Brown meat with onion and garlic; drain. Stir in remaining ingredients; simmer 5 minutes or until most of liquid has evaporated. Serve as a filling for tacos, tostadas or burritos. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PICANTE CHICKEN FILLING
3 cups shredded or finely chopped cooked chicken or turkey
1/4 cup picante sauce
1/2 cup green onion slices
1 tsp. ground cumin
1/2 tsp. oregano
Combine ingredients in saucepan; simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve as a filling for tacos, tostadas or burritos. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

GUACAMOLE
1 large ripe avocado, peeled, seeded and mashed
2 Tbsps. picante sauce
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. salt
Combine ingredients; mix well. Makes about 1 cup.

SAN ANTONIO TACOS
12 taco shells
Picante Meat Filling or Picante Chicken Filling
Shredded Cheddar, Colby or Monterey Jack cheese
Chopped onion
Shredded lettuce
Guacamole (optional)

Picante sauce
Heat taco shells on cookie sheet in 350 degree oven for 5 to 7 minutes. For each taco, fill shell with scant 1/4 cup meat or chicken filling. Top with cheese, onion, lettuce, tomato and guacamole, as desired. Top with picante sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

BUENOS BURRITOS
12 (8 to 10-inch) flour tortillas, heated
Picante Meat Filling or Picante Chicken Filling
4 cups (16 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese or a combination of cheeses
Shredded lettuce
Sour cream
Picante sauce
For each burrito, spoon scant 1/4 cup meat or chicken filling down center of tortilla; top with 2 heaping tablespoons cheese. Fold tortilla over one end of filling; roll. Serve with lettuce, sour cream and picante sauce, inside or over burritos, as desired. Makes 6 servings.

Gardener shares knowledge of herbs

By SARA CASHEN
Associated Press Writer
COVENTRY, Conn. (AP) — For 35 years, Adema Grenier Simmons has been tending her Caprilands herb farm in northeast Connecticut. But, unlike most small gardeners, Mrs. Simmons has also been sharing her garden, homestyle herb cooking and sage advice about herbs. The offer has attracted people from throughout New England, in bus tours, school classes and private parties. Some of them grow herbs themselves; others are just curious, looking for a relaxing day in the countryside. "Herbs are plants that are of use to man for flavor, for fragrance, and for medicinal purposes," she said on a recent afternoon. "And for magic and fun," she added. The feisty woman talks about herbs and their powers with the air only found in an authority on the subject. Her best known book, "Herb Gardening in Five Seasons," has been available for 22 years in more than a dozen editions.

In addition, Mrs. Simmons has written 30 other works on herbs, from "The World of Rosemary" to the "The Bride's Book of Herbs." The latest, "Herbs Are Good Companions," focuses on the history of vegetables and accompanying recipes. But the gardens themselves are the sign of her know-how. Spread over about five of her 50 acres, each is arranged around a theme, like the Shakespeare garden that features the poet's herby quotations and the herbs they poeticize. Almost everywhere, the smells are strong. Growing in the gardens are more than 300 varieties of herbs — common ones like sage and parsley, and more obscure ones, like anchusa and weed poke. Mrs. Simmons' interest in herbs began in the 1930s, when the native New Englander was working as a buyer for a group of department stores in Hartford. Gourmet stores were just coming into vogue, she said, and so she started her own herb garden, to keep up professionally. Before focusing on herbs, Caprilands was a side project for Mrs. Simmons. In fact, the name is derived from the Latin word, capri, for goat; originally, goat-raising was what Mrs. Simmons had in mind for the property. But the stony, dry farmland is ideal for growing herbs — there's plenty of sun and good drainage. Mrs. Simmons starts her days by weeding and surveying the gardens. Then, after tea at 11 a.m., she settles into her throne-like wooden chair in the bay window of the tiny bookstore and greets her visitors. With a wool blanket over her shoulders and dried flowers and herbs hanging around her, she autographs books and answers questions. "The house is over 200 years old, and I'm only slightly younger," she said defiantly, in response to a question about her age. Mrs. Simmons oversees all operations at the farm, with help from her staff of more than 30, family members including two granddaughters, and long-time friends. "When everybody leaves, it's mine," she said of the farmlands.

"I come out in the early evening and sit in the gardens. And the world turns to gold." For the last five years, business has been terrific, Mrs. Simmons said. The harvesting of the herbs begins in June, with the final push coming to get everything in before the frost hits. Fall is also the season for wreathmaking, and the workers can't put them out fast enough for customers who buy on site and through mail-order. After a lecture on an herb-related subject and a tour of the gardens, the culinary test of herbs begins. Visitors share tables in the 18th-century farmhouse amid woodcuts, pine cones, and cloved apples. It's a Capriland tradition not to tell its guests what they're eating, so often the meal turns out to be a guessing game. The atmosphere is warm and lazy, with time to get to know fellow diners and appreciate the peculiar tastes. After the meal, Mrs. Simmons describes the meal. This day it was an apple-sherry wine, with a variety of canapes. A curry-corn soup and garden salad preceded the main course of applesauce, pork casserole, herb rice pilaf and peas. Dessert was an applesauce cookie cake.
