How's that? Health care

Q. Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital takes a $1500 deposit for maternity patients, atleast 2 to 3 months before the due date, regardless if there is insurance involved or not. Why don't they pay interest for the amount of time they hold this deposit? Why isn't it possible to just bring in the money upon time of check in?

A. A spokesman from the credit department of Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital said that the money is taken early because generally, if the bill for the hospital's service is not paid early, it is never paid. No interest is paid on any deposit held by Hall-Bennett because the hospital is a non-profit organization, the spokesman said.

Hostage plight enters 5th day

Administration expects long ordeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, preparing for the possibility of a long hostage drama in the Middle East, is arguing that the hijackers of TWA Flight 847 could achieve their key demand by releasing their American captives and simply letting events unfold as planned in Israel.

The terrorists have been demanding the release of 700 to 800 Shiite Moslems taken prisoner by Israel during its withdrawal from southern Lebanon. Israel has said previously it would release them in time, as it has several other batches of Shiites prisoners.

position to proceed with their announced plan.

Meantime, a U.S. aircraft carrier battle group and a Marine amphibious unit have been ordered into the eastern Mediterranean, said a Pentagon official who spoke only on condition of anonymity. He said the action was precautionary.

Over the weekend, members of the elite Delta Force commando unit left Fort Bragg, N.C., for the Middle East, government sources said.

Reagan, who kept to his regular schedule of appointments Monday, was expected to be questioned in detail tonight about the crisis. The president planned to go ahead with a previously scheduled news conference, to be broadcast nationally at 8 p.m. EDT.

Shortly before the president faces reporters on national television, the body of a young Navy diver murdered by the hijackers at Beirut airport was due to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base.

Robert Dean Stethem, 23, of Waldorf, Md., was murdered because the terrorists "needed to make an example of somebody, and he was a symbol because he was military," said his brother, Kenneth, 24, also a Navy diver. Their parents, Richard and Patricia Stethem, are both retired from the Navy.

The White House suggested the hostage ordeal, which began last Friday, could drag on indefinitely.

"It might take time," said a senior official, speaking only on condition he not be identified. "We're willing to be patient."

Many area cotton fields still hold rain from the recent storms. Farmers are scrambling to replant before the next showers.

Boll 'em over boys

Area farmers hope for normal cotton crop

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Cotton fields are sprouting hopes of beautiful bolls.

Spring downpours that drenched drought-stricken fields have given farmers the prospect of an excellent year.

In many cases, the rains — at least three more inches than normal in most parts of the county — have flooded fields, forcing farmers into a mad scramble to replant in between showers.

Farmers are looking forward to producing at least a normal size crop, around 80,000 bales, although cotton prices are expected to be soft this year. Drought severely damaged their 1983 and 1984 crops; last year, only 9,000 bales were produced in the county.

The fields possibly could produce a record crop for the county, but only if "everything falls absolutely right."

"We would have to go a long way to beat the 1979 or 1981 crop," County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Director Tim Hall said. "I hope we can at least come close."

According to Hall, farmers planted between 75,000 and 80,000 acres in cotton this spring. He predicts a possible yield of a bale an acre.

"Production-wise, they're gung-ho," Hall said. Still, they would have to break the record with significantly higher yields, because of a federal cotton program requirement that farmers must set aside 30 percent of their acreage. No cash crop can be grown on that land, according to Hall.

According to county Agricultural Extension Agent Don Richardson, this optimism is shared by most farmers. "It looks real good. The fields are in pretty good shape."

Richardson, however, said it would be hard for farmers to beat the 200,000-bale record of 1979. To do that, farmers would need a dry period of a few weeks, a good rain in July and August "and no hail."

Even farmers in Lomax, which suffered from the severe drought the longest, are optimistic. Neil Fryar, whose cotton is looking "very well," said his fields had received 4½ inches of rain in

Liquor-by-the drink proponents submit petition

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Citizens for a Choice members Mike Russell and Gary Hopper made it to the courthouse in time Monday afternoon.

They delivered 2,643 total signatures to Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore's office. Persons signed petitions calling for a local option election to be held on Precinct One's current mixed liquor drink law.

According to Precinct One's current mixed drink law, persons who wish to be served mixed alcoholic beverages must be members of an establishment that serves mixed drinks. Persons who wish to join clubs that serve mixed drinks must pay club fees and be accepted for membership.

"Out of the total number of signatures we collected, we believe 2,570 do everything to abide by the state regulations," said Russell.

Moore's office deputies will begin checking the signatures to see if they are valid. Persons who signed the petitions had to include their voter registration number and residence address. The number and address will have to match their voter registration certificates.

Citizens for a Choice had to collect a minimal 2,421 signatures to call for an election.

John Steiner, head of the legal division in the Secretary of the State's office in Austin, said if the registrar validates the minimal number of signatures, she will present it before the commissioners court for certification.

Commissioners would then call for an election that would have to be held from the 21st to the 30th day after they order it.

"They (commissioners) should call for an election the same day the signatures are certified unless they have doubts about it and want to investigate the signature drive," Steiner said.

Russell said efforts to collect signatures netted more registered voters.

"This was a good opportunity for a registration drive. Person who otherwise never voted, have now registered to vote. They can make a difference," Russell said.

Permian Basin not affected by drop in Mexican oil prices

Compiled from staff and wire reports

A $1.50-a-barrel cut in the price of Mexican heavy crude oil "should not have too much effect" on the Permian Basin oil industry, according to an industry spokesman.

A debt-ridden and economically ailing Mexico, the largest single source of oil for the United States, announced the cut Monday under pressure from buyers and a sagging world market.

Because the cut appears to be limited strictly to heavy crude oil, "it shouldn't have too much bearing" on producers here, said Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Producers Association of Midland.

"We don't have too much low gravity oil here," Thompson said.

However, "the cut will have an effect," he said. "There's an effect whenever there are rumors that OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) will drop their price."

PEMEX, Mexico's national petroleum monopoly, supplies the United States with 800,000 barrels of crude daily, Thompson said. "I think they ought to put an import fee (on the Mexican crude)," he said.

Domestic producers have one bright spot, Thompson said. "As the price goes down, the windfall profits tax goes down also. Of course, that made the government look other places for income. It's a 'Catch-22.'"

The reduction means an annual loss of $443.3 million in revenue from oil, the country's No. 1 export, and is expected to further aggravate 3½ years of economic troubles.

"A dollar-fifty is quite a drop when they have been 25 or 26 cent cuts," Thompson said.

Permian Basin producers would be affected if the Isthmus price were to drop, Thompson said. The area industry's prices also are affected when Mexico's price cut follows a warning by oil minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia, a leading OPEC member, that prices may drop sharply if the organization cannot police itself.

Yamani was quoted as saying that unless OPEC members started complying with the cartel's price and production limits, oil prices could drop below $20 a barrel, a level last seen in 1979.

"Part of Yamani's threats are purely threats," Thompson said. "He's threatening his cohorts in OPEC. All the countries are cheating on their agreements with OPEC. They're overproducing and overcharging."

If OPEC did drop the price to $20 a barrel, "he could put the (petroleum industries in) North Sea and Algeria out of business," Thompson said.

White oil nixed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has sided with its staff against "white oil" producers in the Panhandle Field, and also has indicated it may search for possible violations by well operators in that huge field.

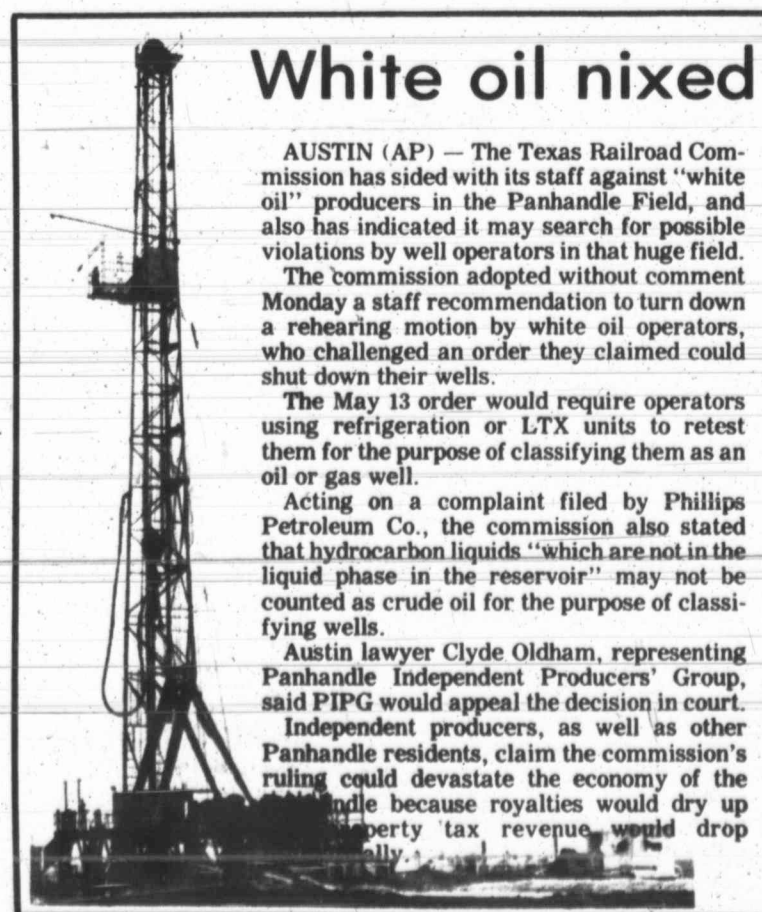

The commission adopted without comment Monday a staff recommendation to turn down a rehearing motion by white oil operators, who challenged an order they claimed could shut down their wells.

The May 13 order would require operators using refrigeration or LTX units to retest them for the purpose of classifying them as an oil or gas well.

Acting on a complaint filed by Phillips Petroleum Co., the commission also stated that hydrocarbon liquids "which are not in the liquid phase in the reservoir" may not be counted as crude oil for the purpose of classifying wells.

Austin lawyer Clyde Oldham, representing Panhandle Independent Producers' Group, said PIPG would appeal the decision in court.

Independent producers, as well as other Panhandle residents, claim the commission's ruling could devastate the economy of the Panhandle because royalties would dry up and property tax revenue would drop sharply.

Life in the oil fields is the world to Galaxy Oil employee

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — He has worked in the oil fields all his life, and though he is well past retirement age, he wouldn't dream of quitting now.

W.T. "Red" Hester, production superintendent at Galaxy Oil Co., 4309 Jacksboro Highway, got his start in the oil industry at the ripe age of 15.

"My daddy was running a pulling machine back when you pulled rods and tubing with a horse, just like an old stump puller. He got sick, and I had to go to work to make a living," Hester said.

"I guess it grows on you. The biggest part of the people that started in (the oil industry) stayed in it," he said.

Hester worked as a roustabout in the oil fields until 1937, when he became a roughneck on drilling rigs. After three years of that, he got into drilling with C.Y. Gorman Drilling Co.

In 1954, Hester hung up his hardhat when he took a job as production superintendent for Petroleum Investment Co. When Galaxy Oil bought out the company in 1973, Hester retained his position and has been there ever since.

"I've enjoyed it all; that's why I'm still working," he said.

The only part of his work he could complain about, Hester said, is the time he has had to spend sitting in his office in recent years. He'd still much rather be out in the field.

Life in the fields can be dangerous at times, Hester said. During his years in the oil patch, he has lost the end of a thumb and suffered a broken leg, arm and ankle, he said.

And then there was the time when workers were dynamiting a well in Petrolia, Texas, by dropping a can of nitroglycerine down the hole and igniting it. "I was a half a block away when it went off. It just scared me to death. It seemed like you could feel the ground jar," Hester said.

"All accidents are mostly due to

W.T. "Red" Hester, production superintendent at Galaxy Oil Co., of Wichita Falls, got his start in the oil industry at the ripe age of 15. "My daddy was running a pulling machine back when you pulled rods and tubing with a horse, he got sick, and I had to go to work to make a living," he said.

carelessness — mine was. I worked on a drilling rig for 20 years, and I had one man killed. It was carelessness there. He fell out of a derrick," he said.

But oil field safety has improved over the years, Hester said. "We've been fortunate; we haven't had as many people hurt in the last 10 years."

"We've got more safety rules you have to go by. Way back yonder, you wore whatever hat, shoes and clothing you wanted. Now you have to wear safety-toed shoes and a hardhat," Hester said.

Modern equipment has improved safety as well, he said. Take the use of nitroglycerine, for example.

"You never hear of anyone shooting nitro in wells like you used to. They've got jet guns that shoot wells now," he said.

Work in the oil field has undergone a vast number of changes through the years, Hester said.

One change has been in pulling equipment, which pulls rods and tubing out of the casing in wells after drilling is completed, he said.

"We went from horses to old Fordson tractors to pull wells. From tractors, we went to pulling machines on trucks," he said.

Back in the days of tractors, the charge for pulling wells was one-half cent per foot, Hester said. Now, charges are by the hour — $65 an hour for shallow wells and up to top $125 an hour for deep ones.

The most significant change has been in work schedules and wages, Hester said.

"You used to pump wells with an old Superior engine with power-pulled rods and iron. It had hand-wheel power. Now, you have electric individual pumping units," he said.

"You used to work seven days a week for so much money a month. When I started, I got $2.50 a day working 12 hours a day. When I started as a roughneck on a drilling rig I got 37 to 75 cents an hour," he said.

Now, workers put in 45 hours per week, and the pay has vastly improved, Hester said.

"I've worked on about everything there is to work on in the oil field. Things are 100 percent better now. I think every day something comes up that's better for the working man," he said.

And Hester is one working man who says he could never retire and just sit and reminisce about the good old days in the oil field. He'd rather be out there doing it all over again.

Officials investigate chemical spill

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

City, railroad and federal officials today continue to investigate a chemical spill from a stationary tank car on the Union Pacific Railroad tracks near Runnels and First streets.

No one was injured in the spill and officials said the site where the hydrochloric acid leaked through a tank car no longer posed a threat.

The hydrochloric acid, a corrosive chemical used in the oilfield industry, remaining in the tank car was unloaded Monday afternoon and transferred outside the city.

The chemical leaked a little but we neutralized it with soda ash and water. We neutralized it quickly," said John Terrell of Justin Transfer Co., who coordinated the unloading.

Some of the chemical leaked when the tank level neared the hole where the leak occurred because of the air pressure, he said.

According to Terrell, transferring the acid from the defective tank car to trucks took four hours and filled four trucks. The tank car contained 19,000 gallons, "but we don't know how much we lost yet (in the first leak)," Terrell said.

Earlier Monday, a safety crew from Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. refinery patched the hole with neoprene rubber, steel and a chain, according to City Public Works Director Tom Decell.

The chemical, which had been diluted with water to 36 percent, was manufactured by Mobay Chemical Corp. of Eldon, according to Joe Eddleman, a corporate representative from the Houston area at the site.

Eddleman said the chemical had been sold to Reagent Chemical Co. of Midland. The chemical had been shipped from Eldon, but officials did not know its destination, Fire Chief Carl Dorton said.

"We came down to see how things were and see if they needed any information about the chemical," Eddleman said. "It (the transfer) looks like everything's just fine."

The patched tank car and eight other cars contaminated by the chemical must be washed down, and the water put into a temporarily constructed earthen dam. The water would then be sucked up by a machine so the soil is not contaminated, according to officials.

Also on the site Monday afternoon were firemen, city emergency management director Hal Boyd, railroad officials and a representative of the Federal Railroad Administration.

The federal official was investigating the spill to determine how and why it occurred, and if any federal regulations were violated. He said he could not comment on his investigation.

Dorton and other officials speculated that the acid probably ate a hole through a weak spot in the inner rubber lining.

Sheriff's Log

1 released on $11,000 bonds

Howard County sheriff's deputies released Bobby Lee Edmondson, 24, of 1208 Main from county jail after he posted bonds totalling $11,000.

The bond amounts were authorized by County Judge Milton Kirby. Edmondson was arrested on June 3 and charged with involuntary manslaughter and revocation of probation for a prior driving while intoxicated conviction.

The third-degree manslaughter felony was filed against Edmondson following a two-vehicle accident on North Birdwell Lane last month that resulted in the death of a 24-year-old Big Spring man.

According to a Texas Department of Public Safety accident report, Edmondson was attempting to pass William Hankins, 24, of Big Spring and his vehicle collided with the rear of Hankins' car.

As a result of the collision, Hankins' car veered into the west bar ditch and overturned. Hankins died in Lubbock General Hospital as a result of injuries received in the collision.

Deputies arrested Albino Noyola, 32, of 404 Benton at the C & C Lounge Monday evening. Noyola was warranted for arson from a grand jury indictment.

Deputies arrested Adam Vela, 24, of 402 N.W. 11th on charges of probation and peace bond violations. He remains in county jail in lieu of bond.

DPS trooper Mike Dawson arrested Ricky Lin Wallace, 19, of 307 Edwards on warrants charging him with outstanding fines. Wallace was released after paying $156.50.

Jesus Juado Marquez, 67, of 311 N. Scurry was released from county jail after posting $10,000 bond on a grand jury indictment charging him with indecency with a child.

Deputies arrested Curtis James, 23, of Interstate 20 Trailer Park No. 8 on a simple assault warrant. He was released on $500 bond set by Justice of the Peace China Long.

Deputies arrested Gilda Sharp, 36, of 3706 Connally on a peace bond warrant issued from Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin's office. She was released on $500 bond.

A person from Coahoma told sheriff's deputies yesterday that he had seen an electric motor fall off the bed of a yellow compact pickup in a Coahoma street Monday morning. The motor is a Lima Brand 60 horsepower unit.

Planting

the last month, forcing him to replant one field twice.

That puts his annual rainfall at 5 1/2 inches, which he says is good. "We went a long time without getting any," he said.

In Knott, Paul Hopper's cotton crop is "just now kicking in gear. In 10 days to two weeks, they'll have their Sunday britches on."

Hopper said he is hoping for "good, warm, sunny weather." Other farmers are looking for a brief clear spell to dry the lower "buffalo wallows" sprinkled throughout the county, said Hall.

Elbert Long of the Elbow Community said his cotton also is doing well, despite having to replant some fields.

But all is not blue skies for farmers. Jumbo grasshoppers are plaguing fields near pastures.

"The cotton's doing good, but we still have the grasshoppers," said Janie Reid of Coahoma. "We're hoping that soon the cotton will get to where they can't reach it. In two of the fields where we replanted so many times, the cotton is pretty young."

While farmers are worried about the munching grasshoppers, they soon may have to battle other cotton menaces, boll weevils and boll worms.

"It's still real early for the weevils," according to Hall. He said the cotton foe could put in an appearance in a month to six weeks.

"We always have something to worry about, don't we?" Hall said. The bluest note of all is the low prices farmers and agricultural officials are predicting. Currently, cotton prices are hovering around 46 to 50 cents, about the same as the ASCS loan rate.

"It's not real hopeful," said Richardson. "But it's better to get a good crop and low price than to have no crop."

"It won't bail very many of them out like they need. A good strong price and a good crop would just do wonders," Richardson said.

He and Hall credit the low prices to a poor domestic demand, poor exports, the strong dollar, increased cotton inventories and competition by other countries for the same markets.

"A lot of cotton will come in at government loan prices," Hall said. The cotton will be put in storage because it won't bring enough to pay for raising it, he said.

Farmers don't have to repay the program loans for cotton, but if they don't, they forfeit their crop to the federal government, he said.

"In the 10 years I've been here, less than 100 bales have done that. Somebody has always come in and bought the stuff," Hall said. This year, however, he may have more forfeited. "We're getting back into the ground market prices."

"I know without a doubt, they'll see poor prices," Hall said.

Hopper needs only two words to express his disgust with the current prices: "They stink."

"Hostage crises, wars or rumors of wars" lower prices for cotton, Hopper said. He has no explanation. "You think they would go up. I figure every time we're in a hostage situation the prices should rise. Guys have got to have uniforms."

"But they drop," he said.

Mayors nix tax reform

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Defenders of President Reagan's budget and tax plan say they would benefit the nation's cities, but the president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors calls the proposals "potentially devastating."

"The Reagan reforms promote fairness for some, but only tax penalties for cities," New Orleans Mayor Ernest Morial said Monday. "It would transfer an enormous financial burden from the national government to the people of the cities."

About 160 of the nation's mayors listened politely as Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce said the entire country, including cities, would prosper if Congress adopts Reagan's vision of "fiscal discipline."

But the mayors clearly backed Morial, who urged them to demand tax reform that is "for, not against, America's cities."

Quakes rock California

SAN DIEGO — Two minor earthquakes jolted a wide area of Southern California on Monday night, shaking buildings, but resulting in no injuries or serious damage.

The first quake struck shortly after 5 p.m., measuring 3.9 on the Richter scale of ground movement, and was centered in coastal waters four miles southwest of downtown San Diego, said Dennis Meredith, a spokesman for the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

At 6:23 p.m., a quake measuring 3.7 on the Richter scale struck at Barstow, about 150 miles northeast of San Diego, Meredith said.

"Nobody felt it," Meredith said, adding that the quakes were not related.

Family spy ring, recruits

Laura Walker Snyder, an Army veteran and daughter of accused Navy spy mastermind John A. Walker Jr., says her father almost persuaded her to join the family spy ring that the government says he ran for 18 years or more.

"I came that close to agreeing to do the same thing ... to please my father," she says.

Police in Prince Georges County, Md., near Washington, D.C., said Mrs. Snyder seized her 5-year-old son Christopher during the weekend from the front lawn of the apartment where the boy had lived with his father, Phillip Mark Snyder. The couple separated three years ago.

Since neither parent had legal custody of the child, Mrs. Snyder's action was not illegal and no charges have been brought against her, said Robert Law, spokesman for the county police.

Hijacked: Day 5

Hijackers release 3 hostages; others still captive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Greek folk singer Demis Roussos and two other hostages from the hijacked TWA jetliner were released today at a news conference held by a Shiite Moslem militia leader. But at least 30 other Americans were reported held in scattered Shiite Moslem neighborhoods in Beirut.

The release came at a packed news conference at the west Beirut house of Justice Minister Nabih Berri, leader of Lebanon's dominant Shiite militia, Amal.

The hijackers of TWA Flight 847 had said earlier they would release all their remaining Greek hostages. They threatened to destroy the Beirut airport control tower if they were asked to free anyone else.

The Shiite extremists who hijacked the plane last Friday, with 153 passengers aboard, demanded the release of more than 700 Shiite prisoners in Israel and two Shiites held in Spain for trial. The remaining hostages are believed to be Americans.

The identities of the two people released with Roussos were not immediately available. CBS News earlier quoted Berri as saying Roussos, his American secretary, Pamela Smith, and another American would be freed.

The singer was seen being taken into the apartment building that houses Berri's home before the news conference, accompanied by a blonde woman and a dark-haired young man.

Sources in Lebanon had said three or four Greeks were held by the hijackers. However, the U.S. State Department said it believed only one Greek remained in captivity. There was no immediate explanation for the discrepancy. The release came after Berri's representative at the airport, Bassam Tleiss, contacted the plane's cockpit and said since the Greek government had released Ali Atwi, who said he was a hijack conspirator, the hijackers should release the remaining Greek captives. Atwi was released on the first day of the hijacking.

Troops ignore ceasefire

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Shiite Moslem forces battled Palestinian guerrillas trapped in Beirut refugee camps without letup through the night, ignoring a Syrian-sponsored ceasefire accord declared in Damascus to end the bloodletting.

Police said 11 people were killed and 25 wounded in the fighting which began at dusk Monday and continued through this morning. By police count, 595 people have been killed so far and 2,381 wounded in the war over the camps.

Meanwhile three shells struck the Karakoun Druse neighborhood of west Beirut early today as Christian-Moslem fighting raged along the capital's dividing Green Line. Police said three people were killed and five wounded.

The fighting kept all road links between Christian east Beirut and the Moslem western side closed for a seventh day.

USA for Africa seeks aid

NAIROBI, Kenya — American singer Harry Belafonte says a loss of public interest in the famine affecting much of Africa would be catastrophic.

He and other members of the group USA For Africa, which recorded the hit song "We Are the World," said at a news conference Monday that they had plans to keep the drought and famine before the public eye for at least another 18 months.

Belafonte was instrumental in enlisting 45 pop stars to record "We Are the World" last Jan. 28 as part of a fund-raising effort by the United Support of Artists for Africa. The single, heard on U.S. airwaves all winter and spring, has earned $50 million so far.

IRA bomb kills officer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Guerrillas hiding on a hilltop blew up a police car with a remote-control land mine today, killing one traffic officer and seriously wounding another, police said. The outlawed Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the blast.

The two traffic policemen had just left a police station in Kinawley, near the Irish border, when their car was blown up by a land mine packed with an estimated 1,000 pounds of explosives, according to Belfast police headquarters.

Police said the explosion blew a 30-foot wide crater in the isolated, country road.

Details of the substance of the meeting were kept secret under the confidentiality agreement between the two sides.

Corpse mutilated in Mengele ID case

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Citing broken bones and other abnormalities, police suspect that someone may have mutilated the corpse that they believe belonged to Nazi fugitive Josef Mengele in an attempt to disguise its identity.

"There is a suspicion that someone may have tried to deform the cadaver," Romeu Toma, federal police chief in Sao Paulo, said at a news conference Monday.

"We believe the purpose was that the corpse not be identified."

An 18-member forensic team planned to do tests today to determine whether the bad condition of the body was caused by violence or by water and earth.

Tuma said the team hoped to have a final identification by the end of the month of the skeletal remains, exhumed June 6 in the town of Embu, 17 miles from Sao Paulo. Police believe the body belonged to Mengele, the "Angel of death" of the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Shuttle crews inspects Arab satellite today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's international crew inspected an Arab communications satellite today, found that a possible problem was a false alarm, and went ahead with plans to launch it from the shuttle's cargo bay to join a Mexican payload deployed earlier.

A sensor monitoring the Arabsat satellite had indicated that a 6-foot solar panel may have opened prematurely, making a launch impossible. Mission Control directed the astronauts to remotely open a protective sunshield and take a close look at the payload with a television camera mounted on the end of the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm.

The TV picture relayed to the ground showed the solar panel clamped firmly in place.

"It looks good to us," said astronaut John Fabian. "We like the pictures we see; that should wrap it up," said Mission Control.

Ground experts had said earlier they were convinced that they were dealing with a faulty sensor because there was not enough room inside the sunshield for the panel to unfold.

"We do believe it's a micro-switch failure at this point, but you do everything possible to make sure that's what it is," flight director Milton Heflin told reporters Monday night.

A consortium of 22 Arab nations is paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $11 million to launch Arabsat, the same price the Mexican government paid for Monday's deployment of that country's first communications satellite, Morelos-A.

Rewriting British social history

In a move that critics likely will take as an attempt to repeal the last 40 years of British social history, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Tory government has announced a complete overhaul of Britain's cradle-to-grave welfare state. The reforms proposed will affect nearly everyone now receiving benefits, with possible exception of the physically disabled.

With 20 million beneficiaries (over a third of the population) and a cost for this year of $50 billion, the British welfare system is one of the most advanced in the world. Begun just after World War II, the British government now provides not only pension and unemployment benefits and a socialized medical system but maternity grants and death benefits for funeral costs, as well.

The core of the Thatcher reform is to phase out the present national pension system and replace it with one under which workers and employers contribute to either an occupational or personal pension fund. The government also wants to end the maternity and death grants on the grounds that the individual grants are "hopelessly inadequate for the task."

Needless to say, many Labor members are outraged and even some Tories argue that the proposal "promises maximum political discomfort." Still, it is difficult to see how the present system can continue without some changes. With an aging population, British pension costs are going to skyrocket in the early 21st century. Cost constraints alone are going to force reform.

Reagan rhetoric adds substance to SALT II

WASHINGTON — The distribution of power in the second Reagan Administration finds precise expression in the decision to abide by the SALT II treaty even though it has not been ratified.

The White House rhetoric sounds tough. But control over most substantive issues — foreign policy as well as taxes and the budget — has passed out of the White House. Mr. Reagan had been assigned the role of hanging semi-tough.

On budget matters the point is obvious. The serious work is being done by Budget Director David Stockman and the Republican Senate leadership under Bob Dole. The President has had to go along with their moves to cut defense and Social Security. He will probably have to go further as Dole and Stockman work out a compromise with the House Democrats. The threat of a veto — implied in the smart-aleck dare to "make my day" — is rhetoric.

As to foreign policy, the heavy input comes from the State Department under George Shultz and the National Security Council under Robert McFarlane. The Defense Department, under Caspar Weinberger, and the Central Intelligence Agency, under William Casey, are consulted, of course, and their positions tend to be amplified by the White House noise-makers under Pat Buchanan. But Pentagon procurement scandals and defense budget problems have sharply reduced the Weinberger clout.

The big losers in the decision against renouncing SALT II were Weinberger, Casey and Buchanan. All three had laid great stress on Soviet "violations" of SALT II. Weinberger's chief guru on strategic matters — Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle — had advertised his views in a public speech on the subject. The rhetorical side of the White House had backed up the hard-line view by recalling that, in the 1980 campaign, Reagan had attacked the SALT II treaty as "fatally flawed."

But Shultz fought hard against a formal break with SALT II, and mobilized forces that could not be ignored. At a meeting of the NATO Council in Lisbon, allied foreign ministers to a man supported the Secretary of State in resisting an overt breach of the rules.

Earlier both Houses of Congress had passed by overwhelming majorities resolutions opposing formal denunciation. The clear implication was Congress would make the already sticky going on the defense budget a lot stickier if Reagan departed from the terms of the treaty.

The national security adviser,

McFarlane, deftly appropriated the uniformed military. The Joint Chiefs of Staff were asked whether, from a strictly military view, it would be better to honor SALT II and its mechanism for checking violations or to kick free of the treaty restraints. Their judgment was that the military outcome was, in the words of one senior official, a "wash."

With that mandate in his pocket, McFarlane then drafted language that made it possible to honor the treaty for the time being while also nodding in the direction of the previous assertion that SALT II was "fatally flawed." The key proviso, announced by Reagan, is to deactivate for six months a submarine due to be scrapped under SALT II. Thus Reagan awaits Soviet performance on arms control before finally going along with the treaty by totalling the sub. The President reserves the right to react in response to any actions by Moscow perceived by this country to be violations of the treaty.

The upshot is postponement of a deliberate effort to destroy the Geneva arms control negotiations. The talks can proceed for several more months before the U.S. thinks again about breaking the SALT II treaty in a way that might lead to a Soviet disavowal of the whole process. With a little progress in the Geneva talks, the treaty can be kept intact. Moreover, it is not as though the U.S. was leaving arms control success up to something the Russians couldn't deliver. It will be enough for Moscow to agree to a summit in the near future.

So the President's decision is a technical victory for Shultz and McFarlane. Those hoping for an easing of Soviet-American tensions have reason to sound two cheers. For the betting in Washington is that the Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev, will agree to a summit sometime before the Party Congress in February.

But if substance saved the day from rhetoric, rhetoric is not nothing. There is a difference between saying the wrong thing and saying the right thing, and it matters in national leadership. By saying the wrong thing, Reagan has so far marred his second term.

He has alienated the Democrats and a considerable fraction of his own party. He has put off the allies, and handed cheap propaganda openings to the Russians. He has failed to seize unambiguously the historic opportunities for a second term. Instead of rising to the statesman's role, he has made himself the faltering leader of an embattled, ideological faction.

Five major powers ride high on path to nuclear disaster

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — In the 40 years since the first atomic bomb exploded in the New Mexico desert, the world has rushed headlong down the path of nuclear proliferation. So far, the possession of nuclear weapons by five major powers has acted as a successful deterrent.

But the possibility is growing that the nuclear arsenal is getting out of control. Familiarity seems to have bred contempt for the consequences of a nuclear exchange; officials in Washington — and presumably in the other nuclear-power capitals — are thinking what was once called the unthinkable.

Consider the testimony of a top Strategic Air Command general at a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee. According to the transcript, classified "secret," he made the obligatory bow to "the complex interaction of many elements" that add up to deterrence, but then said ominously: "However, should deterrence fail between strategic nuclear powers, all but one of these factors become irrelevant, and we must then look to the ultimate measure of merit: raw military power."

The general then proceeded, through 41 pages of testimony, to plead the case for deploying hundreds and even thousands more nuclear warheads in this country and abroad.

We doubt that even the experts of the Strategic Air Command, let alone President Reagan and his advisers, have a clear idea of just how extensive the world's nuclear arsenal has become. A fresh picture is presented in a new book, "Nuclear Battlefields: Global Links in the Arms Race," by William Arkin and Richard Fieldhouse.

The book is sure to create an uproar in Congress and the Pentagon, and will probably touch off anti-nuclear demonstrations and an FBI investigation. But the furor should not obscure the serious purpose of the book: to give the public enough facts for an informed debate.

With a minimum of rhetoric and a maximum of mind-numbing facts and figures, the book sets out to list every nuclear warhead and every facility related to the production and deployment of nuclear weapons. Though the amount of classified information on Soviet nukes is impressive, the authors can be faulted for inadequate treatment of other Soviet areas, such as civil defense. Nor is there any mention of Israel's nuclear arsenal.

The greatest shock for most Americans will be the discovery that there are nuclear warheads practically in their backyard. Only 22 states and the District of Columbia have no nuclear warheads within their borders. The greatest contiguous warhead-free zone is a roughly Y-shaped, 15-state cordon sanitaire stretching from the Atlantic Ocean (Delaware and Maryland) to the Mississippi River, north to the Canadian border (Minnesota) and south to the Gulf of Mexico (Alabama and Mississippi).

The authors have prepared a chart that ranks the states by the number of warheads and also by nuclear facilities. Surprisingly, the two states with the most nuclear weapons are on the eastern seaboard, not the Great Plains where the intercontinental ballistic missiles are deployed.

South Carolina heads the list, with 1,962 warheads. The Navy weapons station at Charleston stores 1,482 warheads, mostly as spares and for submarines being overhauled. Three subs berthed there account for the remaining 480.

No. 2 is New York, with 1,900 warheads, all of them at the Seneca Army Depot in the Finger Lakes region. A secret Pentagon report we have obtained discloses that the Army has been stockpiling warheads for neutron bombs there since 1981. These and other warheads were made from nuclear material recovered from 1,200 "retired" 8-inch artillery shells, which yielded about 78 tons of highly enriched uranium or alloys.

The rest of the Top 10 and the number of nuclear warheads in each are North Dakota (1,510), California (1,437), Washington state (1,172), Michigan and Texas (630 each), Virginia (542), Louisiana (530) and Arkansas (430).

NAMING NAMES: Ronald Reagan is an admired and popular president, but by one pop-sociological yardstick he doesn't measure up to some of his predecessors. Thousands of proud American parents named their children after charismatic presidents like Jack Kennedy and F.D.R. ("How can he be a dud or a stick-in-the-mud when he's Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones?") asked a popular song of the '30s. "But a study of birth certificates over the past four years shows no similar rush to name baby boys Ronald Reagan Whatever."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Turkey is having trouble with Marxist-indoctrinated Kurdish guerrillas entering the country from Iran and Iraq. Intelligence sources charge that the KGB is training some of these insurgents in Moscow, Baku and Odessa, in the Soviet Union, and in Varna, Bulgaria.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Reagan tax plan is for the very...

The mail has been pouring in on tax reform.

Dear Sir,
I keep reading in the newspaper that the only people who will benefit from tax reform are the very rich and the very poor. How can the very poor benefit from a change in the tax laws?

Larry of Lafayette Park

Dear Larry,
The very poor will gain in this way. Their capital gains taxes will be cut from 20 percent to 17.5. So, for example, if a poor person sells a piece of investment real estate or a block of stock he will profit tremendously from the reduced rates. Secondly, while poor people may not be able to subtract the interest on their vacation homes, they will still be able to deduct the interest on their principal residences. Thirdly, even though poor people will be limited on deducting business travel and entertainment allowances, they will be able to keep more of their minimum $3.50-an-hour income.

Dear Sir,
My company makes computer chips. We have a sky box for the Dallas Cowboys home games where we entertain our customers. Under the new tax bill we will not be able to deduct the cost of the box. How can we sell chips if we can't take our clients to watch the Cowboys play?

Dear Horatio,
For starters you might make a computer chip that works.
Dear Sir,
Why is the President so insistent that state and local taxes no longer be deducted from your federal taxes? He keeps referring to my state as a wasteful spender.
Worried New Yorker

Dear Worried New Yorker,
The President doesn't like your state because you have a Democratic governor, and if Mr. Reagan can make life miserable for him, Mr. Cuomo won't be able to get his party's nomination in 1988.
Dear Sir,
How much revenue will President Reagan's tax reform bill bring into the Treasury?
Just Curious

Dear Just,
The President's tax simplification is "revenue neutral," which means that by the time the lobbyists and Congress get through with it, there will be a lot less money coming and the deficit will grow even larger than it is now.
Dear Sir.

Then why is he doing it?

Dear Just,
You already wrote in a question. Let someone else have a chance.
Dear Sir,
Why doesn't President Reagan in his tax reform speeches mention that the real reason people are so mad at the present system is because the IRS computers don't work, and the people who work for the Internal Revenue System are always trying to scare the hell out of us.
Frightened Silly

Dear Silly,
When the President talks about tax abuse he never likes to point the finger of blame at anybody. It's just not his style.
Dear Sir,
My brother and I are two people who believe that the more complicated the IRS tax forms are the better it is for the American people. We say Washington should keep their cotton-picking hands off the 1040 form. Could you please pass on this message to Mr. Reagan and the Congress?
H&R Block

Dear H&R,
It's done.

Dr. Donohue

Cellulitis can spread rapidly

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you tell me about the condition cellulitis? My sister had to go to the hospital for 10 days and was very sick. She had been sick for four days, thinking it was cold, until her leg swelled and turned red. It's still red, but the swelling has gone down. Her doctor is letting her out of the hospital to go home, but she has to keep in touch with him. What caused this? How long does it last? — Mrs. G.

Cellulitis is an infection of skin cells and the tissue directly under them, usually because of invasion of a germ (like staph or strep) through a tiny skin puncture or a break or from a boil. Once established, spread can be rapid, and in a matter of a few days the skin can turn red, hot and tender. If the infection isn't controlled the germs can invade further, getting into the blood to cause even greater and more widespread problems. This may have been happening in your sister's case.

Most cases of cellulitis respond to treatment with antibiotics, and just how long that takes depends on the severity of the infection. Some people can be treated at home with antibiotics taken by mouth, whereas others, like your sister, require hospitalization and intravenous antibiotics. In any event, you can almost always expect an uncomplicated recovery from cellulitis.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My 5-year-old son has a bed-wetting problem. It really doesn't bother me that much, but when I mention it to my doctor during checkups he suggests I give him Tofranil before bedtime. He is a healthy child, small for his age, although normal and a very sound sleeper. He is well-adjusted and happy. He sometimes wets within an hour of going to sleep. Other times it doesn't happen until 5 a.m. But it is a nightly occurrence. Can you discuss the medicine? — S.M.

Maybe this will help you make a decision: Approximately 15 percent of all children at age 5 wet their beds. By age 10 the percentage drops to 5 percent, and by 12-14 years, only 2 percent still have the problem.

Sometimes bed-wetting simply is caused by a slight lag in development of nerve control of the urinary bladder. If you are uneasy with the idea of control drugs, seek a second opinion so that you and your doctor can make a joint decision. The drug you mention does help, but some doctors report a relapse into bedwetting once it is stopped.

If the boy were my own son, here is what I'd do: I'd calmly wait out the problem in hopes he would catch up with the statistics of declining bed-wetting incidence I spoke of above. I would avoid anything that places mental stress on him. I would take some practical steps, like having him avoid liquids after dinner. If in a couple of years there was no progress, I would turn to things like the awakening devices on the market, and finally, if needed, to the medicines.

Bed-wetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Blood deposits pay interest to others

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the woman who wanted to "build up a blood bank in case someone in my family needs a transfusion." You responded: "It makes no sense to me, and so does the idea of giving one's own blood to store at the blood bank in case a family member needs a transfusion."

Abby, there are several problems with this concept:

Blood banks do not operate like money banks: One cannot simply put blood away and draw it out at the time of need. Instead, the nation's nearly 4 million patients whose lives are saved by transfusions each year depend on the selflessness of a steady stream of donors who come into the blood bank regularly, to give blood for anyone who might need it.

Even if blood could be stored beyond its 35-day outdating period, it is highly unlikely that there would be sufficient numbers of units of the right type to meet transfusion needs from the immediate family.

The American Association of Blood Banks, the American Red Cross and the Council of Community Blood Centers have jointly recommended against donors routinely specifying who will receive their blood, stating that a widespread attempt to "direct donations" would seriously disrupt the nation's blood donor system because donors might refrain from routine blood donations while awaiting requests to provide specific individuals with blood. Additionally, the organizations stated that there is no scientific basis for the assumption that blood from An increasing number of women are exercising corporate clout, and the men over whom they wield power will have to get used to their style.

The way women react to power varies, and, according to Cosmopolitan, while some studies indicate they differ from their male colleagues, others find little difference between men and women executives in top positions.

Muriel Siebert, former head of the New York State Banking Department, the first woman to be a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and now the head of her own brokerage firm, enjoys breaking the rules of once all-male areas.

"I think it takes a woman to make a bold move at times," she said, "because the men are more involved in catering to the old-boy network."

Katherine Graham, publisher of Newsweek and The Washington Post, finds successful women must overcome several traits — a tendency to be too perfectionist and detail-oriented, a reluctance to delegate authority, and over eagerness to please.

Other observers say women lack aggressiveness, are unable to play as team members and are inclined to let emotion rule them.

Corporate America, however, is full of feminine exceptions.

Wendy Stuart, a school teacher turned manager of organizational development at Honeywell, explained why she switched from a traditional woman's job to corporate management.

"I enjoy having the ability to change things, to influence people, to help an organization," she said. "In teaching, I had an impact on a few kids, but I felt like an accessory to their lives, a necessary evil. That wasn't fun — this is! Here I have influence over people who are tough, knowledgeable, sometimes very brilliant. They are the movers of industry."

Psychologist Phyllis Chesler outlined women's business image: "A woman can be the soft mother figure, nurturing, a conduit of information. She can be the team player, with cards close to the vest and the three-piece suit."

Ellen Harris, a first vice president at Mitchell Hutchins, an investment firm, rejects the feminine image.

"As you move along," she said, "you find you've got to make decisions, and you've got to implement them. You have to be competitive, you have to be quick, you have to be smart. The women I admire are those who basically think like men."

All powerful women must contend with sexism, and Stuart of Honeywell said, "I used to get on my soapbox every time I ran across what I perceived to be a sexist remark or attitude."

"Now, unless a man is being blatantly discriminatory, I ignore him. I have a job to do, and I can't get it done if I concentrate on altering a set of attitudes that are deeply embedded in the culture. That's a job in itself."

Judy Bloomfield, a school principal turned corporate executive, found another problem.

"Your worst enemies are often other women," she said, "people who are not in positions of power and who should look up to you, but instead resent you terribly."

Meryl Lauster found keeping aloof was helpful.

"Keeping a healthy distance from subordinates is one of the most important lessons I've had to learn since I moved up from a nurse's job and became a hospital administrator," she said. "Wielding real power is an experience I had never fully understood."

Aggressiveness can be a male road to corporate power.

"Many men get ahead because they're willing to kill," Bloomfield said. "They'll knife anyone in their way right in the back. Their rationalization is, 'If I don't do it, someone else will.' They just have to get to the top in any way they can. Women have a difficult time doing that."

Women don't have to adopt that kind of aggressiveness to succeed. Siebert cited Olive Beech, who took over and built up Beech Aircraft after her husband's death.

"She looks feminine, even now in her 80s," Siebert told Cosmopolitan. "I remember her sitting in this Wedgewood blue-and-white room — she'd seemed so very dainty. But man, did she run a company!"

By Steve Belvin

The test of time

To me he will go down as the greatest player to perform on the hardwood. A man with an abundance of ability and a burning desire to win.

With a unstoppable hook, which would become affectionately known as the sky-hook, he captured the hearts of basketball fans all over the world. At the age of 24 he led the Bucks to their only NBA world title, his second year in the league.

Fifteen years and a name change later, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was unanimously named the series MVP after leading the Los Angeles Lakers to a 4-2 win over the Boston Celtics. In 1971 he averaged 26.6 points in the playoffs. He averaged 25.7 points and nine rebounds in the Boston series. That's what I call consistency down through the years.

The world championship is the third the Lakers have won in their Jabbar-era, having won the crown in 1980 and '82.

The 7-2 living legend was the catalyst in this series. He was the wheel that kept the Lakers' machine running. He showed the basketball world that a 38-year-old man had a strong enough winning attitude to hustle up and down the court for six hard games against the most physical team in basketball.

His proved why he's the NBA's all-time best after suffering a dismal outing in game one. He was totally dominated by his counterpart Robert Parish. Jabbar finished the game with 12 points, three rebounds and totally embarrassed.

After the first game, it was vintage Jabbar. He overwhelmed the Celtics with his patented sky-hook. When they surrounded him he precisely passed outside to wide-open teammates. Defensively he contained Parish to remainder of the series. The turning point came in the second half of game three when Jabbar held the Celts center without a point or rebound. The great ones play hard on both ends of the court.

He says next season will be his last and he will defend the crown with pride. Others say he can play until he's 64.

Whenever he retires, whether it's on a losing note or another world championship, Jabbar has stood the test of time in the 70's and 80's better than any other NBA player.

Good crop awaiting NBA draft

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America Chris Mullin of St. John's, certain to be a first-round choice, says that waiting for the National Basketball Association draft is like waiting for Santa Claus.

"Today is like Christmas Eve," Mullin said Monday at a pre-draft press conference. "I probably won't sleep at all tonight. People ask me who's going to take me and when I say I don't know, they act like I'm keeping something from them. But I really don't know."

The only one of next season's NBA rookies who is sure of his future is Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, a 7-foot center whose fate was sealed May 12 when the New York Knicks won the "Patrick Ewing Lottery" by earning the right to draft first in the first round of today's draft.

"Patrick will make an immediate impact on the NBA and elevate the New York Knicks," NBA scouting chief Marty Blake said. "He can be almost as dominant as Bill Russell when he arrives. But no man can do it alone."

The 7-foot Ewing, a three-time All-America from Georgetown, said he had no personal goals as a pro player "except to win. There's pressure whatever you do but I just want to try my best. I always give it my all to win."

After Ewing, 6-9 forward Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma and 7-0 Benoit Benjamin of Creighton were ticketed to go 2-3 by Indiana and the Los Angeles Clippers, or 3-2, depending on which of the two eligible underclassmen was taken by the Pacers.

The Indiana Pacers, with the No. 2 pick, said they decided over the weekend who they will take, but weren't announcing the pick in advance.

"We've spent many hours talking to coaches, evaluating and watching films," Pacers Coach George Irvine said. "The first player we take will be someone we feel is in the best interest of our team — now and in the future."

Tisdale, at the same news conference as Ewing, said he is "excited and anxious to get it over with. Everyone asks me where I'm going, but I just don't know. If Indiana or Los Angeles picks me, I feel I can excel either place."

He was non-committal about which team he preferred, but he acknowledged that Indiana would be closer to the Oklahoma lifestyle.

"Oklahoma has a lot of cattle and chickens and if I'm taken by Indiana I'm used to doing nothing," he said.

Seattle and Atlanta were expected to follow the Top 3 by taking 6-7 forward Xavier McDaniel of Wichita State and 7-0 center Jon Koncak of Southern Methodist, respectively.

Others expected to go quickly were center Joe Kleine of Arkansas, forward Karl Malone of Louisiana Tech, swingman Detlef Schrempf of Washington and Mullin.

The first-round draft order after Atlanta is Sacramento, Golden State, Dallas, Cleveland, Phoenix, Chicago, Washington, Utah, San Antonio, Denver, Dallas with two consecutive picks, Detroit, Houston, Boston, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, the Los Angeles Lakers and Portland.

If Mullin remained available, he could be tabbed by Cleveland, which said it was very impressed when he visited the Cavaliers last week.

"They said they would take me if I'm still available when they pick ninth," Mullin said.

Jabbar, Gretzky get new set of wheels

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Wayne Gretzky were honored Monday as winners of Sport Magazine's Most Valuable Player awards for their respective performances in the National Basketball Association and National Hockey League championship playoffs.

Both Abdul-Jabbar, the most prolific scorer in NBA history, and Gretzky, who set a Stanley Cup playoff record for points and assists, received vehicles from Ford Motor Co. Abdul-Jabbar was given a Thunderbird and Gretzky a 4-wheel drive Bronco II.

In capturing the Conn Smythe Trophy for leading the Edmonton Oilers to their NHL title, Gretzky won the only major award that has eluded him that he has been eligible for in his sensational six-year career. By scoring 47 points on 17 goals and 30 assists in 18 playoff games, he broke his own record of 38 points and 26 assists, set last year.

Arlington police officers stand into the house where three bodies were discovered late Monday night. The dead were identified as Renee Lemieux, 12, Danielle Lemieux, 14, and John Paul Bradley, 17.

Police investigate stabbing deaths

ARLINGTON (AP) — Two sisters and a male teenager were found stabbed to death in a duplex in this North Texas city, police said. All three bodies, which were found Monday night in different rooms of the duplex, had several puncture wounds, investigators said. The sisters were identified as Renee Lemieux, 12, and Danielle Lemieux, 14. The third victim was identified as John Paul Bradley, 17, who was temporarily staying at the house, police said. Joann Lemieux, mother of the victims, said she returned home from work at about 10:15 p.m. Monday and found her youngest daughter bound and gagged on the bathroom floor. The body of the other sister was found in a bedroom by paramedics who responded to the mother's plea for help. Police searching the home found the body of the teen-age boy hidden beneath dirty linens in a laundry room more than an hour later, police said. Police spokesman Jim Willett said the boy was sent to the Lemieux's home by a church because he "didn't have anywhere else to go." Detective W.A. Douglas said there were no signs of forced entry into the duplex. He said the three slain youths were last seen alive about 7:30 a.m. Monday when the mother left for work.

Lawmakers complain to White about vetoes

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas legislators are unhappy with Gov. Mark White's veto of their bills, particularly that he didn't discuss lawmaking problems before voiding the Legislature-approved measures. "One of the governor's aides called me Sunday afternoon, read me the veto proclamation, wished me a happy Father's Day, and then hung up," said Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio. "The governor did not talk with me," said Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, who protested two vetoes. "I think I could have explained to him both issues." "I did not even receive the courtesy of a phone call to advise me of the veto," complained Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, who protested the veto of a bill that would have increased the state's responsibility to help defend state employees involved in court fights. Blake said one veto was in the general appropriations bill and took away $325,000 allocated Stephen F. Austin University to pay claims in a federal court decision. The other was a Blake bill that would have allowed Texas residents to write directly to members of the Texas Railroad Commission or the Public Utility Commission concerning matters pending before the regulatory bodies. "It's not that I object to him vetoing bills but I do think he should touch base with the sponsors and tell them beforehand and give them a chance to explain why the measure was passed," Blake said. White said he vetoed the claims money because there were no claims to be paid at this time and if claims appear they could be paid by the comptroller or presented the 1987 Legislature.

Couple dies in auto crash

HOLBROOK, Ariz. (AP) — A Mesquite, Texas, couple was killed Monday when the car in which they were riding ran off Interstate 40 and overturned, according to the Arizona Department of Public Safety. Jose A. Capalla, 59, died of head and internal injuries while his wife, Felice, 58, was pronounced dead at the scene of massive head injuries, the DPS said. The driver, Mercedes C. Pineda of Mesquite, daughter of the Capallas, was admitted to Winslow Hospital for treatment of head injuries.

Astros, Smith nip Braves, 4-3

ATLANTA (AP) — Houston's Dave Smith retired all seven Atlanta Braves' batters that he faced for his 11th save, but he felt retiring Glenn Hubbard for the last out was especially important.

"A one-run lead in this ballpark is nothing. That is why I wanted to get Hubbard out," Smith said. "I hated to see (Dale) Murphy and (Bob) Horner come up (the next two men in the batting order). Even with Murph not hitting the way he can, he's so strong he can hit it out any time, and besides he owns me."

Alan Ashby had three hits, including a double in the sixth inning that broke a 3-3 tie, to lead the Astros to a 4-3 victory over Atlanta Monday.

Smith, who has become the ace of the Houston bullpen this season, replaced winner Nolan Ryan, 8-3, in the seventh inning after Horner singled to move Hubbard to second base. He got Terry Harper to ground out, ending the threat.

Ryan scattered nine hits in 6 2-3 innings while striking out eight batters and walking two.

He now has 100 strikeouts for the year and ran his all-time record career total to 3,974, only 26 short of becoming the first pitcher in history to record 4,000 strikeouts. His 100 for the season includes 16 against the Braves.

"They (the Braves) are kind of like us. They've had a lot of injuries and their lineup has changed. They had three guys I have never seen before," Ryan said. "It's (still) hard to get enough runs in this ballpark."

Ashby's sixth-inning double came with two outs and the score tied for the third time.

Barbee scored on a hit by Rodriguez, who led the Oilers with two hits.

The Oilers will host the Andrews Braves in a doubleheader Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Roy Anderson Complex.

Red Sox split with Midland

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Red Sox split a doubleheader with the Midland Expos Sunday.

Adam Yanez raised his record to 2-0 as he got the win in relief when the Red Sox nipped the Expos 12-11 in the first game. David Anguiano had three hits, Mechie Sarmiento and Fernie Paredes collected two hits each.

The Expos won the second contest 7-4. Ron Finnell (3-1) took the loss. Ernie Garcia, Yanez and Finnell all got two hits in the game.

The Red Sox record is now 17-2 for the season. This Sunday they will travel to Colorado City to take on the C-City Pirates.

Boston red-hot in AL East

BOSTON (AP) — Forget about the Detroit Tigers defending their World Series championship, skip the Baltimore Orioles rehiring Earl Weaver, ignore the New York Yankees and their squabbles with Manager Billy Martin and don't worry that the Toronto Blue Jays have the best record in baseball.

The real story in the American League East right now is the Boston Red Sox.

"We've played very, very well," Boston Manager John McNamara said Monday night after the Red Sox extended their winning streak to six games by rallying past the Tigers 3-2. Dwight Evans hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give Boston its 17th victory in its last 19 games.

The Red Sox, who were in sixth place and 10 games behind Toronto on May 26, are now in second place and trail the Blue Jays by 2 1/2 games.

"We just have the attitude not to quit," said winning pitcher Al Nipper. "A little luck is involved, but there's some skill, too."

In other AL games, New York hammered Baltimore 10-0, Milwaukee beat Toronto 2-1 and Kansas City blasted Minnesota 10-3.

Mike Easler started the Boston ninth with a single off Detroit relief ace Willie Hernandez. Evans then connected on an 0-1 pitch and sent it just over the screen atop the right-field fence for his seventh home run of the season.

"I just swung and the thing went 326 feet, four inches," Evans said. "I know it didn't clear the fence by any more than that."

Yankees 10, Orioles 0

Rickey Henderson went 5-for-5 and Ron Guidry pitched a five-hitter for his sixth straight victory as New York sent Baltimore to its first loss under new Manager Earl Weaver.

The Orioles had won four straight games — three under Weaver — before the visiting Yankees jumped all over Scott McGregor, 5-6.

Dave Winfield drove in four runs and Henderson's first career five-hit game keyed a 17-hit attack. Henderson also drew a walk, stole a base, scored three times and drove in a run.

"We ought to wave him down to first and try to pick him off," Weaver said of Henderson. "Why waste all those pitches?"

Don Mattingly, batting second in the New York lineup behind Henderson, had two doubles, a single and three walks. Mattingly and Henderson reached base all 12 times they came to the plate.

Brewers 2, Blue Jays 1

Moose Haas pitched a three-hitter and Milwaukee used an appealing play in sending AL East-leading Toronto to its fifth straight loss.

The host Brewers led 2-0 when Len Matuszek led off the eighth with a single for the Blue Jays. One out later, Lou Thornton hit a ball that skipped past right fielder Ben Oglivie and rolled to the fence.

Matuszek scored on the play and Thornton reached third. But, the Brewers appealed that Thornton had missed first base and umpire Terry Cooney called Thornton out.
