Another hijacking

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A Norwegian man hijacked a domestic flight with 116 passengers aboard today and demanded to speak to Norwegian leaders, the director of Braathen SAFE airline said.

The Boeing 737 landed safely at Oslo's Fornebu airport at 3:28 p.m. (9:28 EDT) after being hijacked during a flight from Trondheim to Oslo, Anders Fougli, the director, told an Oslo radio station.

"Around 90 passengers have already left the plane unharmed. The situation on board the plane is unclear. We don't know the identity of the hijacker," Fougli said. He said the hijacker was a young Norwegian.

There was no word on the fate of the other 26 passengers and five crew members.

State garners support in oil dispute

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration Thursday offered support for legislation to pay the state of Texas $375 million for accrued revenue from oil and gas production from offshore sites in which federal and state ownership is disputed.

Should Congress adopt such a bill, Texas and other states with oil and gas royalty interests on the Outer Continental Shelf would receive 27 percent of bonuses, royalties and interest.

While Gov. Mark White appeared more pleased with the latest offer, he urged the Texas congressional delegation to hold out for 37.5 percent.

"I have maintained, as have other governors from most affected states, that a fair share of the state revenues is 37.5 percent of the off-shore oil lease revenues," White said in a prepared statement.

In addition to providing the lump sum settlement, for accrued revenue from offshore oil and gas production since 1979, the legislation would provide a payment of approximately $30 million next year.

Payments to the state in future years would depend on oil and gas drilling activity in the areas, which extend three miles beyond the state-owned 10-mile limit offshore.

The federal government has been holding the disputed offshore oil and gas income in an escrow account for the states of Alabama, Alaska, California, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

Should the offer of 27 percent be deemed acceptable and the law enabling it enacted, all the states would receive the same percentage share.

Gov. Mark White and other coastal state governors in April rejected an offer by the federal government to pay states 16.23 percent of the oil and gas royalty and bonus revenue from the federally-owned land, known as "8-G land."

The governors said they would settle for 37 1/2 percent of the royalties.

In announcing the new offer, Sen. Phil Gramm said the proposal amounts to an increase of approximately 65 percent over the earlier offer by the Interior Department.

House OKs increase for Star Wars project

Few know complex plan, congressman says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is increasing spending on "Star Wars" research aimed at finding a futuristic shield against nuclear attack even though few of its members understand the complex subject, one knowledgeable congressman says.

The House gave 256-150 approval late Thursday to a $2.5 billion Star Wars budget for fiscal 1986 after more than seven hours of debate and several votes on other spending levels.

This year's Star Wars budget is $1.4 billion, and President Reagan had sought $3.7 billion for 1986. The Senate has approved $2.95 billion, and the two chambers now must agree on a final figure in a conference committee.

The $2.5 billion spending level was recommended by the House Armed Services Committee, and the panel's chairman said it was the committee's stamp of approval which you support for that total.

"What you're dealing with is a highly technical subject that people don't feel comfortable with, that they don't understand," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said of the high-technology plan, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

"They wanted something to vote for so they picked the committee position," Aspin explained. "People needed something to hang their hat on and they don't know much about the technology."

The House turned down, 315-104, Reagan's $3.7 billion request. Suggested amounts of $2.1 billion and $2.9 billion also were rejected.

The votes came as Democratic-controlled chamber worked through a bill providing most of a proposed $292 billion Pentagon budget for fiscal 1986, which starts Oct. 1. The total freezes spending at current levels with no provision for inflation.

The Republican-run Senate already has authorized defense spending of $302 billion and differences will have to be worked out later in a conference committee.

Two years ago, Reagan announced his Star Wars program and said it would be aimed at discovering if it was possible to build a defensive shield that would make nuclear weapons obsolete.

That has started a national debate, with some scientists arguing the goal is possible and others contending it is so technologically unachievable that it will be a waste of money and only lead to a renewed arms race.

The Pentagon is currently granting research contracts, while overseeing studies looking at defenses using lasers, particle beam weapons, hyper-velocity plasma guns and a variety of other futuristic ideas.

No total system will be deployed before the next century at the earliest, although some components could be tested before the end of this decade, Pentagon officials have said.

Before approving the budget Thursday, the House gave voice vote approval to a measure ordering the Pentagon to provide more information about Star Wars and what the Soviet Union might do to counter the system.

During the debate, Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., noted that critics "have said, rather automatically, that this won't work. But how do they know?"

Hostage Peter Hill, 57, of Hoffman Estates, Ill., right, speaks as Dr. Arthur Toga, 33, of St. Louis looks on during a news conference at Beirut Airport Thursday. The five American hostages hijacked by Shiite Moslem gunmen aboard a TWA jetliner Thursday night appealed to President Reagan "at all costs, that no direct military intervention take place" to rescue them from their captors.

Hijacked: Day 8

Leaders consider releasing two Americans

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem militia leaders today were considering releasing two of the 40 American hostages from the hijacked TWA jetliner and letting them fly out of Lebanon for medical treatment, informed sources reported.

Hundreds of Shiite Moslems chanting "Death to America" and hailing the hijackers as "Heroes of Islam" demonstrated at Beirut airport today but were kept away from the hijacked plane by militiamen.

An airport official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Shiite Amal militia was "examining the condition" of Jimmy Dell Palmer, 48, of Little Rock, Ark. to decide if he should be freed.

An Amal official, who also refused to be identified, said Palmer was recently taken to an unidentified clinic in Beirut to be treated either for a heart condition or lung illness.

The militia official said Claude Whitmoyer, in his late 30s, of Severn, Md., might also be released for health reasons. But the militiaman said he did not know the nature of Whitmoyer's illness.

Palmer and Whitmoyer are among the 40 hostages who have been held since the Trans World Airlines Boeing 727 was hijacked a week ago on an Athens-to-Rome flight.

The three-man crew is aboard with the TWA plane, guarded round-the-clock by Shiite Moslems. Thirty-seven other hostages were being held in scattered positions in Beirut, the Amal leaders said.

The hijackers killed one person, U.S. Navy Petty officer Robert Dean Stethem of Waldorf, Md., who was buried Thursday at Arlington National Cemetery. The rest of the passengers and crew were released.

Nabih Berri, the head of the Amal militia who has taken responsibility for the hostages, told CBS television network Thursday one of the hostages was ailing, but did not name him.

"If the man is not so well, I will send him to the United States," Berri told CBS interviewer Dan Rather.

After Moslem militants called for a show of support for the hijackers, who are demanding that Israel release Arab prisoners, up to 1,000 bearded men, and women clad in black garments, marched onto the tarmac, only 600 yards from where the hijacked Boeing 727 has been parked since Sunday. They waved banners with slogans written in Arabic and English.

"America is the mother of terrorism," read one. "America is the biggest Satan," read another.

Beating their chests with clenched fists in the traditional Moslem expression of anger, they chanted: "Death to America, Death to (President) Reagan," and "Down with Israel, Down with France, Down with Britain."

Nervous Shiite gunmen quickly ringed the TWA plane and pointed their AK-47 rifles at the mob to keep them from getting closer to it. The crowd left the airport two hours later.

BILL CLEMENTS
 Committee drafts former governor.

Hance or Clements? The GOP dilemma

DALLAS (AP) — A project led by five Republican activists to "draft" former Texas Gov. Bill Clements to return to the governor's mansion also is a move to wield Texas influence in the 1988 presidential elections, they say.

"We're focusing on Texas problems but we're also focusing on the 1988 presidential elections," attorney Bill Elliott said Thursday.

"We think it's vital that Texas have a Republican governor if we're going to have any influence in the '88 elections," said Elliott, who headed Clements' victorious 1978 campaign.

Elliott is heading a five-member group that is organizing a "Draft Clements Committee."

Meanwhile former congressman Kent Hance in a visit to San Antonio said he would make up his mind by August or September if he will make a run for the governor's mansion in 1986.

Hance, on his first visit to the Alamo City since changing from the Democratic to the Republican Party, said he is 95 to 96 percent sure he will run for governor.

The former congressman from Lubbock said Republican U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler also is a strong possibility for the governor's mansion.

The group met privately with Clements last Thursday to tell the Dallas millionaire oilman of their plans to spend an estimated $50,000 gathering support and soliciting vote pledges, Elliott said.

"I didn't know a thing in the world about it," Clements said. "When Bill Elliott called me, I didn't know what he was calling about."

In late April, Clements said he was serious about a bid to reclaim the governor's post, but indicated he would run only if none of the other potential GOP candidates had built necessary support by fall.

Several Republicans have indicated they may run for governor. They include Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt and former Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, a former Democrat who recently became a Republican, at the urging of Sen. Phil Gramm. Clements has withheld his endorsement of either.

Two weeks ago, Clements told reporters who asked him in Austin about a possible race for governor that he was "not thinking about it at all."

She's a coal miner

Job hunting leads woman to the East Texas coal mines

BECKVILLE (AP) — When Perry and Shirley Berry moved back to Beckville from Longview, it was for Perry's job as an oilfield pumper.

Mrs. Berry wasn't able to keep her housecleaning service and gave it up to stay home with the four children.

But one income wasn't enough. So, Mrs. Berry entered the job market. "I went job hunting and I have looked ever since I've been here," she said.

The only jobs available paid minimum wage and didn't make a big difference in the family budget. Mrs. Berry decided to try something different.

She signed up for the Coal Employment Project, a non-profit organization that helps women gain the education and confidence necessary to get a non-traditional job.

Mrs. Berry wants to be a coal miner.

Susan Hudson, project coordinator, worked with Mrs. Berry and 18 other women who sought the security and higher incomes of jobs in the coal mines of East Texas.

The project was founded with a grant from the Ms. Foundation in 1977 in the coalfields of Appalachia because studies showed "women did have unusual problems going into a male-dominated industry," Mrs. Hudson said.

Those problems included everything from sexual harassment to lack of knowledge to identify tools.

The project just recently expanded to the Texas and the pilot program of the project, funded by Levi Strauss, took place here in Shirley Berry of Beckville poses near a strip-mining area in East Texas where she lives. Berry signed up for the Coal Employment Project, a non-profit organization that helps women gain the education and confidence necessary to get a non-traditional job. Berry says she wants to be a coal miner.

Longview in May.

During the 10-day project, the women studied all aspects of working in the coal industry from union relations to body conditioning.

"We are offering to the companies the best-prepared women for the job they'll ever see," Mrs. Hudson said. "They're willing to put up with the dirt and the rotating shifts and all that."

Mrs. Berry certainly is. "I'm used to hard work and I'm not afraid of hard work," she said.

Mrs. Berry grew up on a hay farm and said that's where she got her fascination with equipment. That farm was located on land that has since been surface mined, and Mrs. Berry said she often drives through the area to watch the mining.

"I've always been fascinated with it," she said.

Even though she has no specific background in coal mining, Mrs. Berry is confident she will get a job.

"They do hire people off the street who don't have the experience," she said.

Her husband is very supportive of her efforts. Berry said that at first he had reservations about his wife holding a coal mine job, and then realized he had nothing to worry about.

"I work with women on my job and I figure she'll be all right," he said. "Right now she seems to be all excited. I'm all for it."

Mrs. Berry has already applied for jobs at a coal mine and power plant and says now she just has to wait.

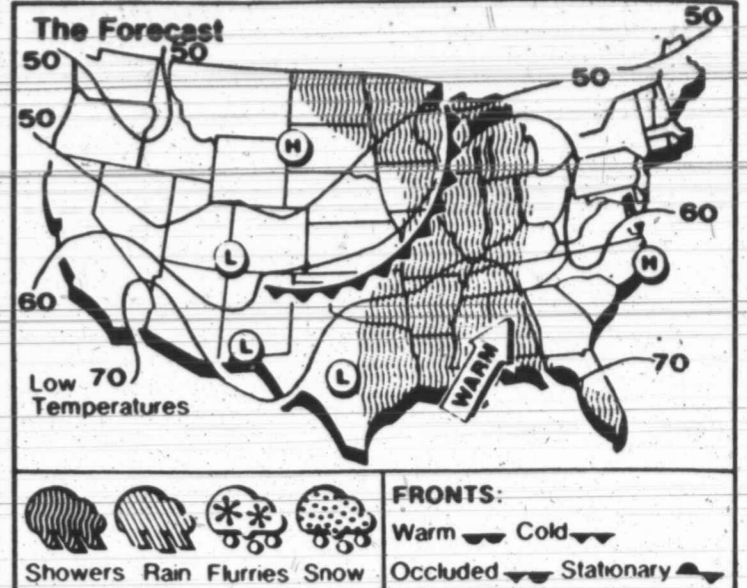

Completing the project is not a guarantee of getting a job, Mrs. Hudson said.

"It's a women's advocacy foundation," she said. "It doesn't guarantee placement."

Mrs. Berry said she knows that, but still feels better about completing the project.

"This just gives me a better insight into what I can do," she said.

Drug suspect freed on bond

A 34-year-old Big Spring woman was released from federal custody Wednesday afternoon on $500 bond for a federal drug charge.

Dorothy Jean Moser, 34, of the Barcelona Apartments was arraigned Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Phil Lane in San Angelo federal district court on a charge of possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, according to Lane's secretary.

Bail has not been set for a 27-year-old Denison man, arrested Tuesday evening with Moser in Big Spring in a "buy-bust" undercover law enforcement operation, Lane's secretary said.

James Burger, 27, of Denison was arraigned on a charge of conspiracy to possess a controlled substance with intent to distribute, she said. Burger is scheduled to appear at another hearing at the first of next week, she said.

He and Moser were arrested Tuesday by Big Spring police, an agent from the Drug Enforcement Agency and an undercover out-of-town policeman.

According to Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner, the couple was arrested in the parking lot of Rip Griffin's Truck Stop at Interstate 20 and N. Highway 87 when Burger picked up Moser after an alleged drug sale.

According to Turner, Moser sold 7 ounces of what police believe is powdered amphetamine to two undercover officers in a motel room at the Mid-Continental Inn.

District OKs water sales

Water sales contracts with Midland, San Angelo and Abilene were approved Thursday by directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Each of the cities will receive rights to approximately 15,000 acre-feet of water a year from the Stacy Reservoir in return for paying a little more than 16 percent of the $2.3 million project cost, according to Joe Pickle, district board secretary.

The cities will "pay up front" their percentage of the estimated costs for the project, which will be approximately $400,000, he said in a written release.

All of the contracts are subject to final approval by the three cities' councils and are subject to final approval by voters in those cities on Aug. 10.

Abilene's contract is the only contract that differs from the others since it is officially through the West Central Texas Municipal Water District headquarters in Abilene, Pickle said.

Directors authorized the district to file an application with the Texas Department of Water Resources to amend the Stacy permit to allow for diversion to Abilene, according to the release.

The filing for the amendment was necessary, Pickle said, because Abilene is in the Brazos River basin and Stacy is in the Colorado River basin. Under Texas law, water cannot be exchanged between basins without a permit.

The diversion is part of the Stacy Dam settlement between the water district and the Lower Colorado River Authority. The Stacy Dam will be located 25 miles southeast of Ballinger.

First Southwest Co. of Dallas was named as financial agent, and McCall, Parkhurst and Horton were chosen as bond attorney's.

Board member John Currie said in the meeting that the district would proceed with the project even if one of the three cities should fail to ratify the contract.

In other business, the board approved an additional $17,000 expenditure from the administrative budget section to cover an unfunded obligation from last year to increase employee benefits.

Jury sentences Anton man

A Howard County District Court jury Thursday afternoon sentenced an Anton man to 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Santos Duran Jr., 30, of Anton had pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to a charge of delivering a controlled substance, methamphetamine, in April 1983.

Three witnesses testified on behalf of Duran before the jury, District Attorney Rick Hamby said.

Duran, who was represented by Lubbock attorney Bill Wischkaemper, had asked the jury to sentence him, according to Hamby.

Hamby said Duran's trial "was a companion case to Ricky Gomez," who is now serving a sentence in the TDC. "We are very pleased with the jury's decision," Hamby said.

Government to issue crop insurance

From staff reports Federal Crop Insurance Corp. Manager Merrit W. Sprague announced this week that the corporation will continue to offer crop insurance directly through the federal government.

According to the announcement, FCIC will offer the insurance through its Master Marketers Agency for the 1986 crop year.

Since implementation of the Crop Insurance Act of 1980, crop insurance has been sold by both Master Marketers, agents for the sales and service of policies written by the federal government, and also by private insurance companies selling identical policies.

"We have extended our role in selling crop insurance," said FCIC District Director Dottie Sampley.

Wednesday's decision was reached after more than three months of study and deliberation, Sprague said.

On March 11, Sprague proposed in a formal rule-making action that FCIC abandon its direct routing function and become strictly a reinsurance company, thus leaving sales and service of crop insurance policies to private commercial insurance companies, reinsured under agreement with FCIC.

According to Sprague, the decision not to convert to strictly a reinsurance function was based on several factors, including the administration's commitment that crop insurance be available to all farmers as directed by the Crop Insurance Act of 1980.

"The kind of program and operation that I am recommending is one that is fair for most competition and ensures a high quality of service to the policy holders," Sprague said.

According to FCIC District Director Dottie Sampley, the decision means that besides selling the insurance directly through the corporation, the FCIC will continue to use its own adjusters on the policies it has sold.

"We will see some drastic changes. I don't think there will be major changes in the program, but in the housekeeping and records," Sampley said.

Police Beat

Burglars drop into building

Burglars broke into the Broughton Implement Co. office at 910 N. Lamesa Highway Wednesday night by coming through the ceiling, according to police reports.

Steve Newton, an employee, told police burglars damaged the ceiling, the sheetrock wall and a black iron office safe. Damage was estimated at $300.

The burglary occurred between 6:15 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday.

A white 1975 Pontiac was stolen Thursday afternoon from the driveway of 1311 Elm, according to police reports.

Car owner Susie Mendez told police a man she knows drove away in the car at 12:30 p.m. without her consent. The car is valued at $1,000.

Chad Musgrove of 1201 Madison told police someone stole an AM-FM stereo and cassette deck from his 1978 Ford Mustang between 6 p.m. and 10:45 p.m. Thursday. The car was parked on the west side of the Spring City Garage at 3911 W. Highway 80 when the stereo, valued at $270, was stolen.

Wallace Viasana of 1901 Scurry told police that burglars broke into his house between 7:40 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday.

Taken were: a 19-inch black and white television set, valued at $50; a men's gold dice ring, size 7½, valued at $150; a man's silver and turquoise ring, size 7½, valued at $11; and a man's gold horseshoe ring with a brown stone, size seven, valued at $35.

The front wooden door and the screen door also were damaged.

Man gets 7-year probation

A 26-year-old Lamesa man pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon to an aggravated assault charge in 118th District Court.

District Judge Jim Gregg sentenced Reynaldo E. Sanchez, 26, of Lamesa on seven years probation. He also is required to pay $10,000 in restitution.

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Terry Lynn Darden, 32, of Ponderosa Apartments on a warrant charging him with violating his probation for a prior driving while intoxicated conviction. He was released on $1,000 bond.

William Douglas Graham, 46, of 605 McNew remains in county jail today after County Judge Milton Kirby denied Graham bond. Graham was arrested by deputies on a warrant for outstanding county court fines.

2 injured in collision in Sand Springs

Two Howard County residents were injured slightly Thursday afternoon in a two-car collision in Sand Springs.

Ben Dwayne Neel, 18, of Route 1 was admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital Thursday, where he is being treated for lacerations, a hospital spokesman said. He was a passenger in a car driven by David Scott Warneke, 17, of Route 3.

Warneke was not injured, according to Department of Public Safety Trooper Glen Redmon.

The driver of the second vehicle, Mary E. Grummitt, 39, of Route 1, was treated and released at Malone-Hogan, the spokesman said.

According to Redmon, Grummitt was attempting to turn left on Hooser Road from the eastbound lane of the north service road of Interstate Highway 20 when the accident occurred at 4:20 p.m.

Warneke, driving a 1981 Pontiac, struck her from the rear while traveling in the eastbound lane, Redmon said.

Redmon said he issued a ticket for failure to control speed to avoid a collision to Warneke.

Doonesbury and Italians

NEW YORK — A recent "Doonesbury" comic strip series "attacks the fiber" of Italian-Americans, says the leader of an ethnic coalition who asked the state attorney general to see whether legal action is possible.

The series of strips by cartoonist Garry Trudeau is "inflammatory to Italo-Americans because it takes a typical Italo-American we're very proud of — Frank Sinatra — and castigates him," William D. Fugazy, president of the Coalition of Italo-American Associations, said Thursday.

What it says is he's a sort of racketeer and mobster," Fugazy said in an interview Thursday night before a monthly meeting of the coalition.

Nun fired for immorality

ROCKFORD, Ill. — A former novice nun suing a school board that fired her for immorality says she learned the day her rape-conceived son was born that she'd been charged by the board with a moral defect.

"I was holding my son and I was crying because I didn't know if he was the defect or I was the defect," Jeanne Eckmann tearfully told a jury in her $25 million federal civil rights suit against the Hawthorn School Board.

Lawyers for the rural school district 20 miles east of Rockford planned to cross-examine Miss Eckmann today about her conflicting versions of the rape she said occurred in a motel room in November 1980.

Funeral for slain hostage

ARLINGTON, Va. — Robert Dean Stethem, the 23-year-old Navy diver slain by Islamic fundamentalist hijackers in Beirut, was buried with full military honors at Arlington National Cemetery near the gravesites of fellow servicemen killed in Beirut and Grenada.

He was remembered for an "unbroken spirit that will remain with us for years to come."

In a breaking voice, Stethem's commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. George "Buzz" Seltzer, told the victim's parents during Thursday's ceremony that he was killed because he "refused to yield" the pride in his uniform.

Brown cleared of charges

LOS ANGELES — A tuxedo-clad Jim Brown praised the U.S. justice system after rape and assault charges against him were dropped because of what the prosecutor said was "the contradictory nature of the proof."

"First of all," the actor-athlete said Thursday after he emerged from a packed courtroom.

Federal Police Chief Romeu Tuma, center, wearing eyeglasses, is surrounded by reporters Thursday as he explains the "24 points of similarity" in photos found in Brazil believed to be Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele.

Mengele melee

Forensic experts to make body identification

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Forensic experts arrived at police headquarters today to prepare conclusions on whether an array of tests on bones, handwriting and photographs indicate that a body unearthed 15 days ago belonged to the notorious Nazi doctor Josef Mengele.

"I believe that in 24-40 hours we will have a definite conclusion," said Romeu Tuma, the chief of federal police in Sao Paulo, on Thursday. "Everything points to a positive identification."

Newspaper reporters and Brazilian and foreign television crews crowded into Tuma's 18th-floor office today as the experts arrived.

The newspaper Jornal do Brasil claimed today that the final report's conclusion would say: "There is great probability that the remains examined were of Josef Mengele." The paper claimed it had a copy of the report.

Tuma, chief of federal police in Sao Paulo, said Thursday that experts compared known photos of Mengele and those of the man whose body was unearthed and found similarities in the eyes, ears, nose and forehead.

Bits of cloth found with the skeleton were identified by Austrian immigrant Liselotte Bossert, who along with her husband, Wolfram, claims to have sheltered Mengele in Brazil.

A Brazilian forensic team has been aided by American and West German experts in the effort to determine if the remains dug up June 6 from a weed-covered grave in a Sao Paulo suburb are those of the Nazi fugitive.

Mengele has been hunted for decades by West German and Israeli authorities, who say he ordered the deaths of more than 400,000 people at the Auschwitz death camp in Poland. If alive, he would be 74.

Israeli experts and other Nazi hunters have expressed doubt that the body is Mengele's.

Tuma said two passport-sized photos of the real Mengele, one from his application to join the SS, the elite Nazi guard, in 1938 and one from an Argentine passport application in 1956, were compared with nine photos taken between 1968 and 1979 of the man police believe was Mengele.

Police believe that man lived in Brazil at least 18 years and drowned in 1979 while swimming at an Atlantic beach resort.

Black and white prints discovered at the Bossert home showed the alleged Mengele at a barbecue and in a formal portrait. He also was pictured on an identification card under the name Wolfgang Gerhard.

The name is one of several aliases, including Pedro and Peter, that police believe Mengele used while in Brazil.

Pilot grounded in Russia

MOSCOW — An American pilot who brought his single-engine plane to the Soviet Union on an officially sanctioned "friendship flight" left Moscow today after spending three days locked in a transit hotel because he did not have a visa.

Millard Harmon, a 59-year-old retired college administrator from Delmar, N.Y., landed with a Soviet navigator at Sheremetyevo Airport Tuesday after a 3-hour, 45-minute flight from Helsinki, Finland.

"I have a clean bed and they feed me, but I just can't communicate with anybody," Harmon said earlier today. He said he was surprised the Soviets allowed him to take the telephone call from The Associated Press.

Soldiers kill American

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — U.S. Embassy officials had no explanation for the fatal shooting of an American man by Honduran soldiers near the Salvadoran border, and a Honduran military spokesman said the incident was under "detailed" investigation.

The victim's identity was being withheld pending notification of relatives, whom the State Department had been unable to locate as of Thursday evening.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Art Skop said Thursday the American was shot Wednesday by members of the Honduran Armed Forces' 12th battalion near the town of Cayagua.

A U.S. embassy source said a six-man Honduran patrol reportedly ordered the American and another person to halt and fired when the two began running. He said the identity of the other person, who escaped, was not known.

In a brief letter made public late Thursday night, Levesque said he will step down as premier as soon as his party picks a successor, which should be done in 90 days.

Tax overhaul will hurt middle-income Americans

Top Senate tax writer forecasts modification of Reagan's proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's top tax writer said Thursday that President Reagan's overhaul plan apparently would hurt middle-income Americans and, if so, probably will be redrawn by the administration before Congress votes on it.

"I have a hunch that the president will want to modify his plan accordingly," Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, told a news conference.

Packwood said, however, that Reagan's proposal is not dead and still could reach the president's desk by Christmas if the House approves it by mid-October.

"Does this mean that I'm backing away from tax reform one inch?" Packwood said. "Not on your life."

Packwood said the Treasury Department already is double-checking the plan's effect on those in the $20,000 to $60,000 income range.

Reagan probably will seek alterations without prodding from Capitol Hill if the Treasury Department tells him middle-income earners would suffer, Packwood said. He said he would ask administration experts to study an upcoming State of Oregon analysis of the plan.

"I think it may show that the incidence of taxation would fall on middle-income taxpayers more than the president realized or on more of them than he realized," Packwood said.

He said that would not square with the goals Reagan seeks to accomplish with his proposal and that the president has no desire to place a greater burden on the middle class.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Democrats on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee have been suggesting since Reagan unveiled the plan last month that it would take a disproportionate bite.

The measure would reduce the number of brackets from the current 14 to three; lower rates, with the maximum dropping from 50 percent to 35 percent; tax employer-paid health benefits, end deductibility of state and local taxes and alter the revenue code in a variety of other ways.

The dangers of the all-terrain vehicle

Those three-wheeled all-terrain vehicles, the latest recreational off-road craze, look as solid as houses. But appearances deceive. Over the past three years, there have been more than 125,000 serious ATV injuries and 161 deaths — in many of these instances, to youngsters who had no idea of the risk they were taking.

The injury rates are astonishingly high — the frequency of hospitalization is five times as great as for other off-road vehicles, such as minibikes and trail bikes — and growing astonishingly fast. In just the past two years, the number of severe injuries has multiplied eightfold; and in the first four months of 1985, there's been a further 80 percent jump in injury rates. Almost half the time, the victims are under 16 — and in a quarter of the cases, they are children under 12.

Some of these accidents are doubtless due to too little training and too-easy riding. But the evidence gathered by the Consumer Products Safety Commission strongly suggests that the design of many ATVs is inherently dangerous. Three-wheeled ATVs flip with such regularity because, in order to turn, the rider must induce instability — must lift one of the rear wheels off the ground, balancing the ATV awkwardly on two wheels, one front and one rear. Meanwhile, the rider must shift his weight, but not his body, away from the turn — exactly the opposite of how the rider turns a bicycle or motorcycle. The likelihood of spills during that tricky maneuver — and the likelihood of accidents when turns are being made at 40 and 50 mph — is the ATV's hidden hazard.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has put its engineers to work, figuring out precisely what makes these ATVs so unstable. Down the road, there may be a recall. Meanwhile, some manufacturers are improving ATV design — building four-wheel ATVs with a lower center of gravity — to make them more stable. It shouldn't take a seven-figure liability judgment award to an ATV accident victim for the manufacturer to conclude that the nearly 2 million ATVs already in use pose a safety hazard that requires prompt industry response.

Playing politics for Middle East peace

WASHINGTON — A burst of high-level personal diplomacy has cleared a broad area of common ground for a new move toward peace in the Middle East. Jordanians, Palestinians, Israelis and Americans all agree on the need to get together soon.

Differences on many thorny procedural items appear to be bridgeable. But everything could suddenly go smash on a request by Jordan for a sale of sophisticated weapons.

Confusion veiled the recent maneuvers at the outset. Top leaders acted personally and set themselves apart from their closest collaborators. Thus in Israel, Prime Minister Shimon Peres was out of step with Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin. In this country, assistant secretaries were not in harmony with Secretary of State Shultz and President Reagan.

King Hussein of Jordan led the dance. At meetings with Reagan and Shultz he said Jordan was prepared to enter direct negotiations with Israel and a delegation of Palestinians before the end of the year. He said Yasser Arafat of the Palestinian Liberation Organization would acknowledge the legitimacy of Israel by accepting United Nations Resolution 242. All Arafat wanted in return, Hussein asserted, was a preliminary meeting among Americans, Jordanians and Palestinians.

Arafat, for his part, held himself aloof from the turmoil of PLO politics by staying in the royal palace in Jordan. In an interview with the Wall Street Journal he said he was not Hussein's "monkey." He said he would only accept Resolution 242 after the Americans had granted the Palestinians "self-determination" — a code word for an independent Palestinian state. But he did not totally repudiate Hussein.

The U.S. clearly wants to lend aid and comfort to the king. But in different ways. At the assistant secretary level, American officials seemed partial to Hussein's suggestion that he be given protection against hostile Arabs by putting the negotiations under the "umbrella" of an international conference including the Russians. But Secretary of State Shultz repudiated that notion. Instead he, and even more the Pentagon, seemed to favor showing support for Hussein by going through with a long-pending arms deal.

On the Israeli side Foreign Minister Shamir and Defense Minister Rabin both denounced sharply the international conference, the arms sales and the role being prepared for the PLO. But Monday in a speech to the Knesset Prime Minister, Peres altered the position markedly. He came up with a plan that would bring Jordanians, Palestinians, Israelis and Americans to the conference table in three months.

Under the Peres plan there would be an attenuated role for an international conference including Russia. There is also a formula for including Palestinians that some see as a half-open door for PLO sympathizers.

Several considerations explain the differences between Peres and his associates. The Labor Party headed by Peres is linked in a national coalition with the Likud bloc headed by Shamir. Shamir is due to succeed Peres as prime minister in the fall of 1986. But if Shamir was sufficiently provoked, he might withdraw from the "marriage of convenience," thus opening the way to a bid by Peres for election in his own right. So Peres has an incentive to advertise personal differences with Shamir as a prelude to an election campaign. All the more so if — through an international conference — he could get Russia to resume full-scale diplomatic relations with Israel.

But one item now puts Peres wholly at odds with the U.S. — arms sales to Jordan. If the U.S. announces a deal soon, the Israelis would feel bilked.

The need for Administration prudence, in these conditions, hardly needs underlining. Certainly there is no reason to move speedily on arms to Jordan. If accord really is shaping up, a little wait now would make congressional approval of the arms deal relatively easy.

Air Force to contractors: 'Kiss and we won't tell'

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — When a defense contractor cracks the whip, the Pentagon jumps obediently through the hoop — even when the contractor is one of such demonstrated malfeasance as General Dynamics.

The Air Force, for example, has agreed to pay General Dynamics any costs it may incur if it condescends to help investigate technical problems with its own F-16 fighter planes.

Yet General Dynamics is under no obligation to help with accident investigations. Should it decide to do so, the Air Force has agreed to keep the company's findings secret.

We've been exposing the costly sins of the military-industrial complex for more than three decades, but it's still a jolt to learn that the Pentagon kowtows so abjectly to defense contractors.

The Air Force not only admits the shameful agreement but defends it on pragmatic grounds. The Air Force claims that if a contractor was forced to help investigate defects in its products, and was not promised that embarrassing facts would be kept secret, the company might be less than truthful.

The Air Force's startling disclosure of the way it does business was made in response to a lawsuit filed by our associates Donald Goldberg and Indy Badhwar under the Freedom of Information Act.

They had asked for secret Pentagon accident reports, including one on the fatal crash of an F-16 in Utah in 1981, which led the Air Force to ground its entire fleet of 269 F-16s, citing problems with the flight-control system of the $16 million aircraft.

We assumed that for $16 million the Air Force would expect a plane to fly or demand an accounting from the manufacturer. Even a $6,000 automobile carries a warranty.

But to our astonishment, the contract between the Air Force and General Dynamics was a classic example of "buyer beware." Here's how it was explained in a sworn statement by Lt. Col. Alex J. Ranciglio, legal adviser to the Air Force Inspection and Safety Center:

"The contractor shall be reimbursed costs incurred in connection with mishap investigation and related tests or analysis. Nothing I have found in the contract, however, specifically requires General Dynamics Corp. to provide evaluation and analyses after an aircraft mishap.

"Further, there is no penalty provision in the contract governing the refusal of a contractor to provide such technical assistance."

In this case, General Dynamics did provide assistance to the Air Force. But the Air Force refuses to release data the company provided. A

Justice Department attorney's statement explained why:

"It is important to the military branches that when investigating an accident, they have access to reports provided by the manufacturers without regard to possible adverse reflections," the statement said, apparently referring to public outrage over fatal flaws in a multi-million-dollar weapon.

"Further," the statement added, "the candor of information supplied voluntarily in confidence may be substantially greater than that of information compelled to be produced with the knowledge that it will be made public."

If the Pentagon truly believes this, it is extraordinary. Applied to the Justice Department's own operations, for example, it would mean discarding subpoena powers and trying to wheedle information out of underworld bosses by promising not to make it public — and paying them for their testimony to boot.

Footnote: Ranciglio's statement called the protection of contractors' embarrassing secrets a "long-standing practice of the Air Force," and said that "defense contractors, including General Dynamics, are briefed on the confidentiality of the information ... approximately every 18 months."

WATCH ON WASTE: An unknown number of part-time federal employees switch to full-time status in their last two or three years on the job. This allows them to qualify for much larger pension benefits, roughly equal to employees who had spent their entire careers working full time. How widespread and costly is this practice? The government has no idea, since no records on this type of job change are kept. But all the agencies we've contacted acknowledged that it is common practice, and a General Accounting Office source said, "The potential for abuse is tremendous."

DO I KNOW YOU?: Not so long ago, Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler was a Republican member of Congress from Massachusetts. But she seems to have risen so far above her "humble" past that members of Congress who might be troublesome find it difficult to get in touch with her. Rep. Edward Feighan, D-Ohio, for example, has been trying to get Ms. Heckler on the phone since January to discuss allegedly cancer-causing food dyes that she allows to stay on the market. Ms. Heckler won't accept or return Feighan's repeated calls.

Medicare-Medicaid anniversary gala

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, which wants to cap Medicare and Medicaid benefit payments to save money, plans to spend nearly $350,000 this summer to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the programs.

The Health Care Financing Administration, a division of the Health and Human Services Department, has drawn up plans for a series of news releases, films and ceremonies keyed to the July 30 anniversary.

A copy of the plan obtained by The Associated Press says the effort would describe programs in a manner that, among other objectives, "supports administration initiatives."

It calls for anniversary ceremonies at the White House or at Health and Human Services headquarters; newspaper columns to be written under the byline of HHS Secretary Margaret M. Heckler and feature articles for weekly newspapers and magazines.

It would spend $15,000 on 5,000 press kits for every major daily newspaper in the country, containing enough material that a reporter "could prepare several articles on the programs."

In case statistics, charts and news releases are not enough, the plan also calls for "sample articles" to be enclosed. Another $9,000 would be spent to provide feature articles for weekly newspapers.

It also calls for spending $12,500 on 400 videotape kits for television reporters, containing tape showing Mrs. Heckler giving statements on Medicare and Medicaid, as well as file tapes of President Lyndon Johnson signing the bills in 1965. Audio tapes also are planned for radio reporters.

The bulk of the money — $292,500 — would go for "audio-visual activities and materials," most of it for production and distribution of two films. The plan says an anniversary film will cost $75,000 to produce, plus another $50,000 to make and distribute prints.

A second film, a 15-minute basic description of the programs, will cost $40,000 to produce, plus $50,000 to make and distribute prints. The film, however, "can do little more than cover the basic description and some of the most important facts about coverage," the plan says.

The biggest recent initiative of the Reagan administration has been to propose limits on Medicare and Medicaid spending, however.

HHS this month proposed to freeze 1986 Medicare payments to hospitals at their 1985 levels, saving the program $1.8 billion.

Reagan's budget also called for increases in the amount elderly people pay for Medicare "Part B" supplemental insurance. The president also proposed a cap on Medicaid payments at $22.2 billion, $1.3 billion below current cost projections.

Dennis Siebert, press spokesman for the Health Care Financing Administration, confirmed the content of the plan, but said some of it likely will not be implemented because of time constraints.

"At this time, I don't think we're going to be able to do all the things," he said. Asked for an estimate, he predicted the ultimate cost at somewhere between $250,000 and $350,000.

However, he noted that Medicare and Medicaid spend $95 billion a year, or about $184,000 a minute, making the cost small by comparison. He also defended the expenditure as valuable in informing people of their benefits.

"What we want to do is use the occasion to call attention to the benefits," Siebert said.

Lying tongue is deadly sin

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Does the Bible say anything about gossiping? There is a person in our church who takes delight in the latest gossip, and it has really hurt some people. Some of the things she has spread have been very untrue, but no one seems to know what to do about it. — Mrs. E.W.

DEAR MRS. E.W.: The Bible is very clear: Gossip can be very harmful, and it is wrong. One of the Ten Commandments declares, "You shall not give false testimony against your neighbor" (Exodus 20:16). The Bible also commands, "Do not lie. Do not deceive one another ... Do not go about spreading slander among your people" (Leviticus 19:11,16). "A lying tongue" is one of the so-called "seven deadly sins" which the Lord despises (Proverbs 6:17).

The Bible tells us to avoid spreading things that are not helpful to people. "A gossip betrays a confidence, but a trustworthy man keeps a secret" (Proverbs 11:13). Instead, it commands us to use our tongues to encourage others and help them spiritually. "Make the most of every opportunity. Let your conversation be always full of grace, seasoned with salt" (Colossians 4:5-6). Is this your goal?

It is harmful for this person to be allowed to continue to gossip — for the sake of others and for her own sake as well. Point out this problem to your pastor; it may, after all, be something of which he is unaware. Then urge him to speak with this woman privately and tell her that what she is doing is wrong. She may never have stopped to think about her actions, and how damaging her tongue can be to others; she may instead be doing it to call attention to herself — which is wrong.

She needs to face the fact that her gossiping is sin, and she needs to turn it (and her whole life) over to Christ as Lord. She needs God's forgiveness, and she also needs to seek the forgiveness of those she has hurt.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Summer solstice: crowd at Stonehenge

STONEHENGE, England (AP) — Barbed wire and a massive police barricade discouraged hundreds of hippies from approaching the prehistoric Stonehenge monument today to observe the longest day of the year. But authorities permitted about 40 people to hold summer solstice celebrations.

Chanting, "We are at one with the infinite sun," about 40 people calling themselves Pagans for Peace marched in a pouring rain around the double ring of stones at dawn.

They held "various celebrations and then disappeared," said Peter Mills of the English Heritage Commission that controls the 4,000-year-old monument. He said the group had pledged not to cause trouble and was allowed to walk only outside the barbed wire protecting the stones.

About 800 hippies camping 17 miles west of the monument had threatened to try to break through the police lines in defiance of a court ban. By mid-morning, no movement from the camp was reported and the wind-swept section of Salisbury Plain was drenched with rain.

Hundreds of police and security guards with dogs patrolled the two-square-mile site. The police presence followed a court injunction banning an illegal rock festival held by hippies for the past 12 years as part of summer solstice celebrations.

Stonehenge, some 80 miles west of London, was closed to all visitors from Thursday through Sunday morning to enforce the court ban.

Wiltshire County Police Chief Donald Smith said Thursday that hippies would be arrested if they moved toward the site.

About 150 hippies, including whole families, who call themselves the Rainbow People are at the center of efforts to observe the solstice at Stonehenge.

Called hippies by the British media because of their unconventional lifestyle, the Rainbow People live on the road and in campsites in converted trucks and buses. Some of the men sport long hair and beards.

The National Trust, a charity incorporated by Parliament to preserve places of historic interest or natural beauty, obtained the ban on the Stonehenge festival because the site was damaged in previous years.

Regarded by experts as one of Europe's most important prehistoric monuments, Stonehenge was believed to have been designed during the Bronze Age as a religious gathering place.

Hippies shelter from the rain at the edge of a barbed-wire fence at Britain's prehistoric monument Stonehenge early Friday morning. Miles of barbed wire and hundreds of security guards and police with dogs ringed the monument Friday.

Soviet satellite stuns skygazers

Falling space object puzzled people from Michigan to Ohio

By The Associated Press

A Soviet satellite falling to Earth created a light show that entranced and puzzled skygazers from central Michigan to northern Ohio, authorities said today.

The bright lights appeared just before midnight Thursday and lasted less than a minute, decreasing in intensity from north to south. People who saw the lights kept telephone lines buzzing to radio stations, newspapers, airports and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Kay Cormier, public affairs officer for the North American Aerospace Defense Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., said the display was due to "decaying man-made space object. It was the payload of a Soviet satellite, Cosmos 1530, launched January 11, 1984."

She said NORAD got "myriad" telephone calls, all from Ohio, as the satellite broke up and burned in the atmosphere.

She said it is not unusual for man-made space objects to start dropping out of orbit and into the atmosphere. That happens an average of once a day, she said, but it is unusual for a chunk of one to get far enough to create such a light show. She can only recall visible burning of such objects about four times in the past two years.

Many aren't seen because they come out of orbit over an ocean, she said. "They're really a spectacular display when they start burning in."

Star Wars laser beam tracks down shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A bluish-green laser beam flashing through the darkness from a wind-whipped mountain peak in Hawaii successfully tracked orbiting Discovery today in the first space shuttle test of President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan to build a shield against nuclear missiles.

The low-power four-watt laser was triggered by the Air Force as the shuttle and its seven-person crew streaked 220 miles overhead at 17,400 mph, slightly faster than a missile warhead.

"We have the target in sight," astronaut John Fabian reported as he sighted the streaking laser. "It's bluish-green... It pulsed for awhile and locked on steady for short periods."

"Sounds like we got some definite tracking," Mission Control responded.

The laser target was a many-angled mirror the size of a dinner plate mounted in a shuttle window. The reflector was to bounce the beam back to the ground station atop Mount Haleakala, a 9,954-foot peak on Maui.

The decision to fire the laser was made at the last minute. Just half an hour earlier, winds up to 80 mph buffeted the mountain and Air Force officials said the laser equipment probably would not operate under those conditions. They gave the go-ahead when the wind speed dropped.

It was a second try for the test. The first failed on Wednesday because ground controllers goofed by sending Discovery's computer instructions in feet instead of in nautical miles. Discovery, instead of pointing the mirror at Hawaii, aimed it in just the opposite direction as it searched for a non-existent mountain 9,954 miles out in space.

In sending up new computer pointing figures today, Mission Control said, "We've rechecked these numbers a couple-three-four times, and we're pretty confident in them."

The Air Force will analyze the data to determine just how well the test went.

The test, the first of scores of Star Wars experiments planned for the shuttle, could help determine how well a laser can track a fast-moving missile warhead. For a laser weapon to destroy or disable a target, it must focus on it long enough to heat its interior elements.

It also was to gather data on how much the light diffuses while traveling through the atmosphere and how corrections to such spreading can be made. To be effective a laser beam must remain concentrated.

The blue argon laser, which started out as a 5 mm pinpoint of light, was expected to expand to a circle 30 feet in diameter in the brief second it took to reach the shuttle.

The exercise also could contribute to another plan under study in which ground lasers would be fired at orbiting mirrors, which would redirect the beams to strike missiles and warheads.

The Star Wars research is aimed at determining if a combined space- and ground-based system can intercept and destroy ballistic missiles in flight. The program is formally known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The astronauts on Thursday made it 4-for-4 on satellite launches — a record for a shuttle crew — by dispatching a science payload named Spartan to scan for sources of X-rays and hot gas in a large cluster of galaxies in the constellation Perseus and in the center of our Milky Way.

One Spartan goal is to examine a suspected black hole 180 trillion miles from Earth in the center of the Milky Way.

Immaculate Heart losing long-time church member

By KIM KIRKHAM
Religion Editor

After serving a quarter of a century at Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church, Kathleen Williams is moving.

A long-time resident of Big Spring and member of the church, "Kay" will leave June 25 for Derby, Kan. where she will live less than one mile from her daughter, Mary Margaret Orsman.

The oldest active member of the Altar Society, Williams helps with fund raising activities at the church. "I've been 38 years old 47 times," she says. She also does volunteer work at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Known as the lady who always wears a hat to church, Williams sticks up for what she believes and lets people know what she thinks, she said.

A going away party will be given Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the church's Social Hall. All Williams' friends are invited.

Although she will miss "all my dear friends," Williams will be no stranger in Derby where she will attend a Catholic church she attended while living in Wichita, Kansas during World War II.

From 1942 to 1945, Williams was a quality control inspector at Boeing Aircraft Company in Wichita. She returned to the base in 1951 and worked until she retired in 1963 and moved back to Big Spring.

At the age of seven, Williams moved to Big Spring in 1908 from Fort Worth with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Morgan. Her father built St. Thomas Catholic Church and the house at the corner of 15th and Scurry which is now a dentist's office.

Williams attended St. Ignatius Academy in Fort Worth, Mercy Academy in Stanton, and South Ward, St. Thomas Parochial and Big Spring High School in Big Spring. Following graduation from B.S.H.S. she went to Texas Women's College in Fort Worth.

She taught for four years during the 1960s at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Coahoma. Williams also taught at St. Thomas Catholic Church.

She married the late P.K. Williams July 7, 1920 at St. Thomas Catholic Church. They had three daughters of which two are living. Williams has 12 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

J.P. Smith descendants have reunion

The descendants of the late J.P. and Joan Smith, farmers in the Knott community in the early 1900s, met June 8 in Stanton for their annual reunion.

Mrs. Haskell Caffey, 92, of Stanton is the only surviving member of the J.P. Smith family, of which there were 12 children. Caffey attended the reunion with her three children and their spouses.

Out of state guests included Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith from Evergreen, Colo., grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Smith. Another grandson, Fred Arnett from Durant, Okla., also attended.

Dr. Donohue

Causes of lip problem run gamut

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My granddaughter, age 13, has a redness on both sides of her mouth, the corners where the lips meet. The dentist told her mother that it was a lack of vitamins. She takes vitamins every day, but it doesn't seem to be getting any better. It is upsetting to her mother because of the appearance. I thought at first that it was the lip balm she uses, but she has used it so long that it doesn't seem possible that it would start giving her trouble now. Please give us your opinion on what might be causing it and what can be done about it. — Mrs. J.I.

Your granddaughter shares this problem (angular cheilitis) with many others. You have to eliminate a wide array of possible causes, beginning with the lip balm, even though she has been using it a long while. She may have switched brands recently to cause the problem.

I can only list some of the other possible causes. Many times, it comes about from some mechanical misalignment in the mouth that allows saliva to seep into the corners. An example of this occurs in some elderly people who have poorly-fitted dentures. People who bite their lips or who continually wet them and have them dried out by wind develop cheilitis. Infection cannot be discounted, and the chief organism involved is candida. Another is the bacterium, staph.

Many times fissures appear, caused by some nutritional deficiency, and the condition's name changes to "cheilosis." And iron deficiency should be considered, especially in a young girl who may be having menstruation problems.

The dentist was referring to a deficiency of riboflavin, a B vitamin. That, too, can cause such a problem.

I would have the girl examined. Treatment will, of course, depend on the cause.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: If you travel out of the country and pick up amebic diarrhea, can you expect to have problems later on, after it's been treated? Does the amebic dysentery affect the decision-making process? — S.M.

Once the ameba organism has been killed with drugs, there should be no significant effects years later, if that is what you mean. There is an exception to this. If the ameba got to the liver and if the drug was effective only in killing it in the colon, then you might develop liver problems later. Blood tests will tell if this has happened.

I don't know just how to answer your second question. Will this affect the decision-making process? Brain involvement with this infection is exceedingly rare. And, in fact, so is the liver scenario I outlined above. I give you the examples for the sake of completeness. But 99 times out of 100, appropriate treatment of amebic diarrhea ends the problem for good.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When a peptic ulcer began acting up a couple of months ago, my doctor put me on Tagamet. When the ulcer problem cleared up he told me not to stop the medicine, but instead quit smoking. I have been a two-pack a day man for about 20 years. Would stopping now avoid a return of the ulcer problem? — J.N.

The recurrence rate in peptic ulcer is quite high under the best of circumstances, but studies now tell us it is considerably lower when the patient stops smoking after healing has taken place. In fact, a recent study showed that non-smokers had a lower recurrence rate, even without taking the medicine as a preventative.

Dear Abby

Campaigns filled by oldster's giving

DEAR ABBY: My sister is 91 years old and no longer sufficiently mentally competent to handle her financial affairs. She had some money in her checking and savings account, but during the last presidential campaign she wrote checks for close to $4,000 for various candidates. She received glowing letters thanking her for her last contribution and asking for more money. Abby, she thought these candidates were writing personal letters to her, so she sent them whatever they asked for. She was handing out checks left and right. Last January she became very ill, both mentally and physically. She had to give up her apartment and come and live with me and my husband. We are elderly ourselves and not in very good health. (We were recently appointed her legal guardians, but she has very little money left to "guard.")

I have all her canceled checks and the names and addresses of all candidates she gave money to. I wrote them, explaining the situation and demanding that they return her money. Not one of them has returned a dime!

Not only that, but she is being solicited by other politicians. I have written to them and asked them to take her off their lists, but they haven't. Instead the list is growing!

Do you have any suggestions on how we can get some of that money back?

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your letters are probably being fed into a computer and answered by a processing machine. Save your postage. You stand about as much chance for a refund as a snowball in Palm Springs. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I hope you can answer. My dad was married three times.

With wife No. 1, he had a son.
With wife No. 2, he had two daughters.

With wife No. 3, he had me.
What relation are his son and daughters to me — stepbrother and stepisters? or half-brother and half-sisters?

Would wife No. 2 and wife No. 3 be his son's stepmothers? Would wives No. 1 and No. 2 be any relation to me?

ALL SCREWED UP IN OHIO
DEAR ALL SCREWED UP: The son and two daughters of your father are your half-brother and half-sisters. Wives No. 1 and No. 2 would be no relation to you. But wife No. 2 would be the former stepmother of your half-brother, and your real mother would be his stepmother.

NCAA cracks down

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's member schools today began tackling the potentially messy job of trying to clean up college athletics by cracking down harder and making the risks greater for those who continue to break the rules.

The fifth special convention in the NCAA's 79-year history, which concludes with today's all-important business session, has been termed by NCAA President John R. Davis, director of Oregon State University's agricultural experiment station, as "a landmark . . . representing as it does a singular opportunity to begin correcting the course of intercollegiate athletics, especially in the area of integrity."

Although a number of amendments to the original 12 pieces of proposed get-tough legislation were to be introduced, clear sailing was predicted as a record number of college presidents gathered to do something about those who would continue to live outside NCAA law.

The toughest piece of legislation, Proposition No. 3, which contains the so-called "death penalty" provision, would distinguish between "major" and "secondary" rules violations and would empower the NCAA's Committee on Infractions to prohibit a school from fielding a team in a particular sport for up to two years if its athletic program is found guilty of two major violations in a five-year period. The two violations would not have to be in the same sport and only the second sport involved would face a suspension.

That proposal led to the first rift in what had previously been total solidarity in the presidents' anti-crime crusade. Davis, speaking on behalf of the powerful policy-making NCAA Council, said the group's interpretation of the proposal was that schools given a probation of at least one year with sanctions (i.e., no bowl or TV privileges) in the last five years would have one conviction on their record when the new legislation takes effect Sept. 1. William B. Hunt, the NCAA's assistant executive director for enforcement, said as many as 25 schools — including Florida, Illinois, Southern Cal and Clemson — could be affected.

However, the Pacific-10 Conference planned to introduce an amendment to the legislation prohibiting any retroactivity prior to Sept. 1. "Our amendment would not take into account (punitive) actions taken in the past when (Proposition 3) was not in existence," said UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young.

The Council's interpretation drew sharp criticism from Marshall M. Criser, president of the beleaguered University of Florida.

"I don't believe this organization, or any other, should pass ex post facto legislation which, in effect, increases the severity of penalties imposed on programs within the last five years," Criser said.

Florida, which was slapped with a three-year NCAA probation with severe sanctions last year, won its first Southeastern Conference football championship in 1984 but was stripped of the title last month by a 6-4 vote of the SEC presidents.

Criser opposed that action but said shortly thereafter that the "only salvation" for college athletics is for the NCAA membership to adopt the proposed stricter enforcement rules.

Massimino rejects Nets offer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Nets, stunned by Rollie Massimino's decision to reject a lucrative offer to coach the team, plan to wait a few days before renewing their search for a successor to Stan Albeck.

Massimino on Thursday turned down a reported 10-year contract that would have paid him $375,000 a year for the first four years, opting to stay and coach in the secure surroundings of Villanova University.

"We're back at square one again," said Nets President Bernie Mann. "He was our No. 1 choice. It certainly is disappointing. We put a lot of effort into it."

Mann and team officials met Thursday afternoon and decided to table the search for a coach until after the National Basketball Association meetings in San Francisco.

"We're going to let the dust clear," Mann said. "We'll meet next week and throw some names on the table."

Mann did not say if there were any leading contenders for the job, but added that he prefers hiring a college coach.

However, Massimino's rejection was an embarrassment to Nets officials who had called an afternoon press conference to introduce their new coach. The club never named Albeck's replacement, but Mann had said Massimino was offered the job and added that he felt he had a handshake agreement with him.

Massimino said he never accepted the job. But Massimino's lawyer, Jerold K. Levien, said that Massimino had reached "a handshake agreement," only to change his mind.

"What turned the tide," Levien told The New York Times, "were segments of the transaction that we felt the Nets were changing. They were changing the deal on things like fringe benefits and a life insurance program and certain other items."

"Mr. Massimino felt he was being put in a position of renegotiation," Levien said. "That, coupled with his deep feelings for Villanova, made the difference."

Nets spokesman Jim Lampariello refused comment on Levien's statement. "We're not going to get into a situation where we'll argue about anything that happened during the negotiations. I'm not going to comment on it."

Attorneys for the Nets and Massimino met through the early morning hours Thursday and Mann said he left the team offices at the Meadowlands sports complex at 6 a.m. EDT, thinking a deal had been settled.

"We talked with Rollie about every 30 minutes on the telephone," he said. "I didn't know until I was called this morning that we didn't have a deal."

Massimino, who guided the Wildcats to the NCAA basketball title this past season, announced his decision in a statement released by the suburban Philadelphia school about 7:15 a.m., about seven hours before the Nets were to hold their news conference.

"I felt it was in the best interests of my family, Villanova, our players and Jake Nevin to stay at Villanova," the 51-year-old Massimino said. "The decision was very trying and tiring."

Mann said he was surprised by the decision and added that Massimino has not telephoned him since making it.

"I think he came under a lot of pressure," said Mann. "No, it wasn't from his family. I think it was from people connected with the school."

The decision left the Nets without a coach. New Jersey let Albeck out of the final year of his contract and the Illinois native signed a three-year deal with the Chicago Bulls on Monday.

Massimino could not be reached at his home or at the university, but his wife, Mary Jane, said in a telephone interview Thursday: "I am happy with whatever decision he was happy with."

The $375,000 yearly salary would have made Massimino one of the highest paid coaches in the league, experts said.

Little League quarterfinals provide plenty of action

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

In a less than textbook perfect game, the International League Pirates literally walked past the National League Lions by a score of 24-11 in the quarter-finals of the City Little League Tournament at Lawson Field.

Both teams had pitching problems but it was the Lions who suffered the most as four different pitchers issued out 27 walks. In all Lions hurlers walked in 11 runs. Ben Islas went the distance for the Pirates. But he also suffered control problems. He issued out 14 free passes but gave up only four hits and struck out seven, which was good enough for the win.

The second inning spelled doom for the Lions, who finish the season with a 7-10 record. Leading 3-1 going into the bottom of the second, they saw their lead go to a 15-3 deficit as the Pirates sent 20 batters to the plate; on their way to scoring 14 runs.

Sixteen walks killed Lions hopes as they used four pitchers in the stanza. Starter Tim Duffey was relieved by Nick Roberson who eventually gave up duties to Chris Rosenbaum. Rosenbaum fared the best of the lot, going three and one-third innings and finishing the game.

The only hit in the big Pirates second was a double by catcher Felipe Saiz that scored two runs.

Saiz and first baseman Santos Martinez swung the hot bats for the Pirates. Saiz got a double and triple, scored three runs and drove in three runs. Martinez also doubled and tripled while scoring five runs and driving in three.

The other top hitter for the Pirates was Islas, who doubled, scored four times and drove in two runs.

The Lions made the game interesting in the top half of the third when they crossed the plate five times, cutting the lead to 15-8; the closest they would get the remainder of the game.

The big blow was a triple by Cobos which scored three runs.

Cobos and Joe Conway were the only Lions to get extra base hits off Islas. Conway doubled in the fifth inning, driving in Nick Roberson. Roberson and Rosenbaum each got singles for the Lions.

The Pirates up their record to 17-3 for the season. They advance to the semi-finals tonight versus the Texas League Tigers tonight at 6 p.m.

Red Sox 6 Hawks 4

The Texas League Red Sox, the defending city league champs, moved closer to their second title by handing the American League Hawks a 6-4 loss.

Thomas Hernandez took the win for the Red Sox while Shannon Coots was losing pitcher for the Hawks. Hernandez limited the Hawks to three hits, two were by Coots, who blasted his 15th homer of the season in the last inning.

Top hitters for the Red Sox were Angel Villa, Alonza Parras, Ricky Escovedo, Hernandez and Oscar Valencia.

The Red Sox, now 14-3 for the season, will face the American League Colts tonight at 8 at the American League Park.

Colts 7 Cardinals 4

Colts cleanup hitter Louis Soldan did just what he's supposed to do, clean the bases. The fourth batter in the American League's team lineup lifted his team to victory with a grand slam in the fourth inning. The blow came with the National League Cardinals leading 4-3 at the time. Soldan's hit propelled the Colts into the semi-final round versus the Red Sox tonight at 8 p.m. at the American League Park.

John Downy was the winning pitcher for the Colts, now 15-2 for the season.

Tigers 8 Rangers 3

The Texas League Tigers moved into the semi-final round by taking a 8-3 win over the Rangers, the champs in the National League.

The Tigers, runner-ups in the Texas League behind the Red Sox, got the win from Demos Morales, who went the distance. Neal Mayfield was the losing pitcher for the Rangers.

Modern medicine leads in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Tony Sills and Fuzzy Zoeller turned the first round of the $500,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic into a tribute to modern medicine.

Sills, who has undergone surgery five times in the last 11 years, shot a 7-under-par 65 Thursday to take the opening round lead and Zoeller, who had back surgery nine months ago, was in second place just one shot behind.

"I'm in real good health right now, but I had a lot of serious medical problems in the past," said Sills, who had his colon removed nine years ago and has undergone surgery three times since then.

"You realize there are other things in life than hitting a golf ball, more important things than just missing a two-foot putt," Sills said.

"Golf has given me so much," he added. "I've never won on the tour. It's very important to me, but it's just so early in the tournament to be thinking about winning now, and I'm going to try not to."

Sills fought through qualifying attempts six times before he finally earned his tour card. He's been in position to win only once since joining the tour in 1983, and that came earlier this year at New Orleans where he led after three rounds, but finished in a tie for fourth place.

Sills wrested the opening lead during the afternoon after Zoeller completed play in the morning.

Conditions at the 7,008-yard

Atlanta Country Club course were ideal throughout the day, and 66 players in the 156-man field broke par and 21 others matched par.

Sills got his round going with birdies on the first three holes. He had only two bogeys — once when he three-putted from 25 feet and again after hitting the first of his two bad drives of the day on No. 10. The other errant tee shot came at 11, but he scrambled back and birdied the par-5 hole by sinking a 20-foot putt.

Astros win third; down Braves, 2-0

ATLANTA (AP) — Houston's Bob Knepper was visibly disappointed when he failed to retire light-hitting Paul Runge with two outs in the ninth inning, prompting Manager Bob Lillis to remove him from the game.

Knepper got the first two outs in the ninth Thursday night, but Bruce Benedict singled and pinch-hitter Runge walked. That forced Lillis to call on Dave Smith, who came on and retired Claudell Washington to protect the 2-0 shutout for the Houston left-hander, 7-3.

NL Roundup

"It's bad when you pitch well and come out of the game disappointed," said Knepper, who scattered six hits over 8 2-3 innings, walking four and striking out two. "I'm disappointed for not finishing stronger."

Phil Garner's two-run homer in the eighth inning snapped a scoreless duel between Knepper and Atlanta's Rick Mahler, 10-6. The homer came after a walk to Alan Ashby, only the fourth baserunner allowed by Mahler.

Knepper is now 6-0 in road games this season, and that statistic has him surprised.

"It's usually just the opposite," he said. "Pitchers usually pitch better at home."

Mahler yielded two-out singles to Denny Walling in the first and seventh and a walk to Ashby leading off the fifth. He faced only one batter over the minimum over seven innings. Mahler left with one out in the ninth after Bill Doran collected the Astros' fourth hit.

"I felt like I threw the ball real good," Mahler said. "That makes it even tougher to lose. It was one of those times when we didn't get any runs."

Knepper allowed five hits in the first seven innings but allowed a runner to reach third only once.

In the fifth, Benedict led off with a single, went to second on Mahler's flyout and after a walk to Brad Komminsk, took third on a infield out. Knepper escaped by getting Dale Murphy to pop out.

The Braves had two men on base in the second and sixth but failed to score. It was the eighth time the Braves have been shut out this season.

Mets 5, Cubs 3
In a season dominated by anomalies the New York Mets swept a series that may, just may, put them back on course.

After a fast start that saw the Mets catapult to the top of the National League East, New York saw its bullpen crumble, its batting average sink and its earned run average inflate. The misery for the Mets culminated in three straight road losses to Montreal last weekend, dropping the New Yorkers to fourth place.

On Thursday, George Foster hit his 12th career grand-slam homer in the third inning and rookie John Christensen followed with a bases-empty homer to give the Mets a 5-3 victory and a series sweep. The loss was the ninth straight for Chicago, their longest losing streak since dropping 13 straight games in June 1982.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 0
Danny Cox scattered nine hits and pitched his second consecutive shutout, and Willie McGee singled home Vince Coleman in the first inning and scored on Andy Van Slyke's double for all the runs Cox would need.

Cox, 9-2, has not yielded a run in 23 straight innings. It was his third shutout of the season and he lowered his earned run average to 2.20.

Padres 6, Giants 5
Terry Kennedy hit a two-run double off reliever Mark Davis to lift LaMarr Hoyt to his seventh victory in his last seven starts.

With the Giants leading 5-3, Mike Krukow walked pinch-hitter Al Bumbry to open the eighth. Krukow was relieved by Davis, who issued a walk to pinch-hitter Jerry Royster. After fouling off a bunt, Tony Gwynn singled to center to score Bumbry and move Royster to third. Kennedy scored both runners with his double.

Pirates 2, Expos 1
Rick Rhoden pitched a three-hitter over seven innings and drove in the winning run with a fifth-inning double as the last-place Pirates defeated the first-place Expos for the third time in four games.

Rhoden, 5-7, snapped a personal three-game losing streak. Al Holland allowed two hits over the final two innings to record his fifth save.

Chicago White Sox catcher MARC HILL attempts to tag Oakland A's MICKEY TETTLETON who scores on a hit to centerfield in the 6th inning of Oakland's 12-1 win over Chicago.

Bickerstaff named Sonics coach

SEATTLE (AP) — Bernie Bickerstaff, who for 12 years served as assistant coach of the Washington Bullets, was appointed head coach of the Seattle SuperSonics.

Bickerstaff, 41, replaces Lenny Wilkins, who was made the general manager after the Sonics missed the playoffs last season with a dismal 31-51 record.

Palmer leads Senior TPC

BEACHWOOD, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, refreshed by a two-week rest, registered a 5-under-par 67 for a one-stroke lead over Don January in the first round of the $240,000 Senior Tournament Players Championship.

Palmer, the defending champion, had three birdies on the front nine and three more on the back while faltering only once with a bogey.

Duquesne players expelled

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two of four Duquesne University basketball players accused and later cleared of rape were expelled from school for two years and stripped of their athletic scholarships, a university spokesman announced.

Gregory Harrison, 20, of Lynn, Mass., and Eric Compton, 19, of Long Beach, N.Y., were expelled for two years, stripped of full athletic scholarships worth about $8,000 per year and told if they enroll after two years, they can never rejoin the basketball team or live in the dorms.

Mariners crush Rangers, 11-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When it rains it pours, and when baseball players hit it's contagious, says Al Cowens.

And Cowens should know. Playing for the first time since fouling a ball off his foot eight games ago, he contributed two hits, including a home run, and four runs batted in to a 20-hit Seattle Mariners' attack Thursday night that Cowens said reached epidemic proportions.

"When there are a lot of guys hitting, it's contagious," Cowens said after the Mariners' 11-3 victory over the Texas Rangers. "It's good to have a lot of guys hitting. You'll win more ball games that way."

AL Roundup

The 20 hits tied a club record set on Aug. 30, 1981 against the Cleveland Indians as eight Seattle players had a multiple-hit game.

Phil Bradley, Ivan Calderon, Jim Presley and Donnie Scott each had three hits and Cowens, Jack Perconte, Alvin Davis and Spike Owen had two hits.

"That is how you get 20 hits in a game," Bradley said. "When everybody's getting two or three hits."

"It wasn't all that badly played a game," said Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine. "We made a few mistakes here and there but the six-run (third) inning hurt us."

Matt Young, 6-8, pitched five innings, giving up three runs and five hits. Young walked one and struck out four. Karl Best pitched the final three innings for his fourth save.

Loser Burt Hooton, 3-2, gave up seven runs on 11 hits in 4 and 13 innings.

"Burt is a good pitcher," Owen said. "He didn't throw real well tonight but we were hitting great."

Blue Jays 6, BoSox 5
The Toronto Blue Jays would like to forget about last week's nightmarish four-game sweep by the Boston Red Sox.

They erased some of that memory with a hard-earned 6-5 victory over the Red Sox Thursday night.

"You don't forget a sweep, no matter how long it is before you play that team again," said Damaso Garcia, whose two-run triple in the seventh inning keyed the Blue Jays' comeback victory. "We needed this one tonight. This is the kind of win that can do a lot for a club."

A's 12, White Sox 1
Rookie left-hander Tim Lincecum allowed four hits in eight innings and Bruce Bochte, Alfredo Griffin and Carney Lansford hit home runs to lead Oakland over Chicago.

Birtasas, 4-1, gave up just four hits in eight innings, striking out four and walking six before Steve Ontiveros came on to pitch the ninth.

Bochte belted his second homer with a man on in the seventh inning. Griffin hit his second with two on in the eighth and Lansford followed with his ninth. All three homers came off reliever Bob Fallon and were part of a 16-hit Chicago attack as all White Sox starters hit safely.

Tigers 10, Yankees 9
Mike Armstrong uncorked a wild pitch while facing Lance Parrish in the 10th inning, allowing Lou Whitaker to trot home from third with the winning run for Detroit.

The Yankees held a 9-6 lead going into the bottom of the ninth, but the Tigers tied it against Righetti on RBI singles by Kirk Gibson and Parrish and a run-scoring fielder's choice grounder by Barbaro Garbey.

Rickey Henderson, who stole two bases in the first inning to tie California's Gary Pettis for the league lead with 28, snapped a 6-6 tie with a two-out homer in the New York eighth.

Angels 4, Indians 0
Reggie Jackson slugged his 513th career home run, moving him alone into 10th place on the all-time major league list, and Ron Romanick pitched a four-hitter as California beat Cleveland.

Jackson's home run sparked a second inning during which the Angels scored all four runs, giving Romanick his eighth victory against three defeats.

Twins 11, Royals 8
Kirby Puckett hit a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning to rally Minnesota over Kansas City, ending the Twins' three-game losing streak.

Puckett, who had ended an 0-for-15 slump with a third-inning single, tripled to cap a four-run seventh that brought the Twins back from an 8-5 deficit. He had four hits and four RBIs in the game.

The teams totaled 33 hits in the game — 17 for the Twins.

Wyoming girl leads NIRA finals

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Maryann Birrel of Casper College in Wyoming was the only new leader to emerge Thursday night during second go-round action at the College National Finals Rodeo at Montana State University.

Birrell had a time of 14.41 seconds in barrel racing to move into first place ahead of Margo Deckert of Southwest Texas.

Deckert clocked a 14.49-second ride in barrel racing Wednesday night to lead the event until Birrell's performance.

The go-round leaders in the rodeo's other eight events stayed the same Thursday night, with just a few changes in the top five.

Current men's leaders are: Michael Barker, Sam Houston, in bull riding with an 82 score; Eddie Jarnagin of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, in bareback riding with a 74 score; Mike Merchant of Tennessee-Martin, in saddle bronc riding with a 79 score; Tony Currin of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, in calf roping with a time of 9.0 seconds; and Chip Gatlin of Sam Houston State, in steer wrestling with an effort of 3.8 seconds.

Nolan Twisselman of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo and Clay Hurst of West Hills continue to lead team roping with a 6.9 time.

Jinita Williams of Sul Ross leads the breakaway roping with a time of 2.3 seconds, and Tara Olsen of the University of Wyoming is ahead in goat tying with an 8.0-second clocking.

The second go-round ends Friday night, and the top 10 finishers in each event will advance to Saturday night's short go-round, which concludes the week-long rodeo.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning delays should be accepted in their stride since you will find that a new resourcefulness arises to show you how to handle issues in an intelligent and sensible manner.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can be very creative in the morning, but later you may have to rise above annoyances that may come up.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get the situation at home better organized in the morning, since a complex matter may come up there later.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your shopping done early and run other errands before you handle some problematical affair that needs your personal attention.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You can get details of bills and collections nicely handled early, but later some problem may arise that can be annoying.
LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to improve your appearance, but don't try to force any personal wishes on others.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is important that you handle personal matters in the morning, and later, you can work on regular duties that you may not enjoy.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good morning to pursue whatever is of intimate importance to you, but later you have to use tact in asking for favors.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy at your duties that are not connected with the outside world and you can get much done. Avoid one who likes to harass you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Before you get into any new interest or take a trip, be sure to comprehend every facet connected with it.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Tying up any loose ends of business or other practical affairs is wise now. Make the most of this strange day.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day for keeping promises you have made and for showing appreciation for favors.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Utilize some time to get your surroundings improved so that you can be more comfortable in them.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to study the over-all issues of any situation and also the details connected with it, and this ability can produce an important person when reaching adulthood, provided a good education is given, as well as much encouragement. Permit to participate in sports.
