LULAC elects new president

Conservative businessman expected to change group's tone

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The conservative San Antonio businessman elected president of the nation's oldest Hispanic organization says he hopes to shift the focus of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"The members want to see tangibles on a local basis, on the home-front basis, on the bread-and-butter issues," Oscar Moran, 40, said.

Membership services and raising scholarship funds will be a priority for LULAC under Moran.

But Moran added that LULAC still will work for such issues as bilingual education and programs to reduce the dropout rate of Hispanic youths and against an immigration bill that would penalize employers who hire illegal aliens.

He said after his overwhelming victory Sunday that he also would seek out new members, concentrating in California and the Midwest. Moran, an insurance regulations analyst for the U.S. Automobile Association, who is the past LULAC Southwest regional vice president and also is active in San Antonio civic affairs.

He describes himself as a political independent and was a strong supporter of then-Texas Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, in 1982.

Moran said he believes outsiders have seen LULAC as tilting toward the Democratic Party over the past six years, and he hopes to establish a non-partisan image similar to that enjoyed by the League of Women Voters.

Moran also said that LULAC should have a definite agenda and goals before undertaking initiatives.

The mood of its members, he said, is "one of impatience... a subdued anxiety waiting to get on with the Hispanic agenda."

"There is a feeling we haven't quite yet delivered," Moran said. "I would hope at the time of my departure we can look back... and see LULAC in the vanguard of the Hispanic movement across the country and be able to have LULAC viewed as the organization to ensure that the decade of the '80s was the decade of the Hispanic."

He also said he opposes any direct intervention of U.S. troops in Central America, but probably won't be making any trips to Cuba or Nicaragua as his predecessor, Mario Obledo, did during this two one-year terms.

Texans toast hostage release

By The Associated Press
Champagne, tears and prayers greeted the news that 39 American hostages — three of them from Texas — had been set free from 17 days of captivity in Lebanon.

In Corpus Christi, about 20 homeowners began untying yellow ribbons about noon Sunday, when the release appeared certain. The ribbons had fluttered for much of the hostage ordeal.

"We took them down as soon as we had heard the hostages crossed the border into Syria," resident Lydia Alvarado said.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, issued a statement saying he was pleased with the hostage release. But he also added a sober note to the day.

"We must not forget, though, that one of the hostages did not make it home alive and that seven Americans kidnapped in Lebanon, are still being held," he said.

In Dallas, an interdenominational service was scheduled for noon today in Thanks-Giving Square. In addition to the bells in Thanks-Giving Square ringing for three minutes, a moment of silence was planned for Robert Stethem, the Navy frogman killed on the first day of the crisis, and for the seven Americans kidnapped in Lebanon earlier.

Among Texans, there were calls for military retaliation against the Lebanese group that held the hostages from a hijacked TWA flight, but also pleas for patience in U.S. dealings with the Middle East. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said,

"It is imperative that those who are guilty of hijacking and murder be turned over to American or international authorities to stand trial and face punishment. I think it is important that we hold the Shiite militia responsible."

Truck driver Daniel Goldwin of Houston said in an interview at a Mesquite truck stop Sunday that he feels the United States should strike at the organization behind the hijacking.

"I'm tired of getting pushed around," Goldwin told The Dallas Morning News.

Another truck driver, Henry Keiner of Ontario, Calif., said he couldn't understand why the United States held off from an assault at the airport where the hostages were being held captive.

"We know the guy in charge, yet we don't get him. I don't understand. We put him on TV, but we don't put them in jail," Keiner said.

The Rev. Jerold Shetler of Preston Hollow Presbyterian Church in Dallas said he cautioned his parishioners "against any impulsive or vengeful act" and "prayed for patience and a spirit of reconciliation and peace."

Max Zucker, rabbi at the Congregation Tiferet Israel in north Dallas, returned from Israel on Wednesday. He said Israel probably will release its Lebanese prisoners in the next few days.

"My first reaction is, 'Let's retaliate.' But that's going to bring about counter-retaliation, so I'd have to rely on the wisdom of the men and women in Washington and in Israel," Zucker said.

Blaze singes school

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

A fire Sunday morning at Washington Elementary School is being investigated today as a possible arson, according to Burr Lea Settles, fire investigator.

The blaze, reported at 1:11 a.m. Sunday in the teacher's lounge of the school at Birdwell and Monticello, caused $20,000 in damages, according to the report.

No one was injured in the fire, which Settles labeled "incendiary in nature."

"There was no reason for the fire to start in the location it started," he said.

Settles said he had not found evidence of a flammable liquid being poured to start the fire, but "flammable objects were present" in the room.

Among the flammable items stored in the lounge are duplicator fluid for a copying machine and paper goods, Settles said.

Because the fire was in the teacher's lounge, juveniles might be involved, he said.

Firefighters received a report of smoke south of Washington at 1:11 a.m. On their arrival in the area at 1:14 a.m., they spotted smoke spewing from the roof on the west end of the building, according to the fire department report.

The firemen then crawled onto the school's roof and saw flames licking the teacher's lounge, located in the middle wing, the report stated.

To get to the blaze, the first group of firefighters at the scene used ladders to reach the roof of the one-story brick building. Dragging hoses, they then crawled over

Say Watt? Beach Boys return for 4th

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fourth of July is near and the Beach Boys are planning a return trip to the nation's capital. This time, James Watt is setting off no firecrackers of opposition.

In fact, Watt is a business partner of a Washington consultant who is promoting the Beach Boys' tour. The former secretary of the interior raised presidential eyebrows two years ago by accusing the Beach Boys of "attracting the wrong element" and banning them from the capital's annual July Fourth festivities.

Now he is "fully behind" the group's participation, says Joseph Strauss, a Washington consultant and president of the foundation that is putting together the tour.

Though a partner in Phoenix Associates, Strauss' consulting business, Watt has no connection with the Beach Boys' tour. But Strauss described the former interior secretary as "a staunch environmentalist and supporter of the Beach Boys."

The group's lead singer, Mike Love, said he has no hard feelings toward the controversial Watt, who replaced the Beach Boys with Las Vegas casino singer Wayne Newton, who he described as "patriotic and family oriented."

"James Watt never said anything bad about the Beach Boys," Love said in an interview. "He said rock music attracts the wrong element, and that's true."

"Rock groups do sing pornographic lyrics, satanic lyrics, but we're certainly not one of those groups. We're no more satanic than Pat Boone."

Tough turf for GOP

Republican leads special election, but Demos claim victory

By The Associated Press
Republican Edd Hargett, former National Football League quarterback with the New Orleans Saints and the Houston Oilers, fought his way into a runoff with Democrat Jim Chapman in a special election in Texas' 1st Congressional District.

Both parties claimed the results showed their strength in conservative Northeast Texas. Hargett, 37, will face Chapman, former Hopkins County district attorney, in a mid-July or early August runoff to fill the seat vacated by Sam B. Hall Jr., who was appointed a federal judge.

Saturday's election drew national attention and financing as Republicans, who enlisted the support of Vice President George Bush, tried to take a seat the Democrats have held for more than a century.

In complete but unofficial returns, Hargett had 29,814 votes, or 42.2 percent, to Chapman's 21,370 votes, or 30.2 percent.

About 70,000 votes were cast. Five other Democrats and one independent finished far off the pace.

"We're very excited about the results. I had two goals, one was to win by 10 percent and the other was to get over 40 percent. And we accomplished both of them," Hargett said.

"I'm just tickled we've done as well as we've done. Everything was just about as we predicted," he said.

Chapman, 39, said he thought the vote was an indication that the Democratic base was not eroding.

"There's no greater indication (of Democratic strength), I think, than what's been demonstrated today," Chapman said.

"If a candidate can only get 41 percent of the vote and outspend the other candidates 2-to-1, that indicates that Texas is still Democratic country."

Chapman's supporters said the runoff will be a different story, since instead of six Democrats dividing the Democratic votes, it will be one Democrat against one Republican.

"The Democratic National Party has stayed in the background throughout the primary. Now that there is only one Democratic candidate, I think the posture of the party will change," Chapman said. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and other Texas Democratic officeholders will hold a series of fundraisers on July 8 for Chapman.

U.S. Rep. Tony Coelho of California, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, termed the election a "devastating loss" for the Republicans.

"Despite $750,000 and a large Democratic field, Hargett could not run away from his Republican label," he said. "This is a tremendous victory for Texas Democrats and a devastating loss for national Republicans."

But U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, a former Democrat who switched parties and won a landslide victory in November, saw it differently. "It's a good showing, and I'm proud of the result," Gramm said. "I think we've got momentum."

This is a tough district. You have to realize that in 100 years, there has not been one single Republican elected."

Since no candidate in the field of eight — including six Democrats — won more than 50 percent of the vote, the top two vote-getters will meet in a runoff.

Former Democratic state Rep. Sam Russell was third in Saturday's balloting with 13,099 votes, or 18.5 percent. State Rep. Jim McWilliams had 3,410 votes, or 4.8 percent. Former state treasurer Warren G. Harding, retired businessman Carl Brown and independent candidate Fred Wieder each had less than 4 percent of the vote.

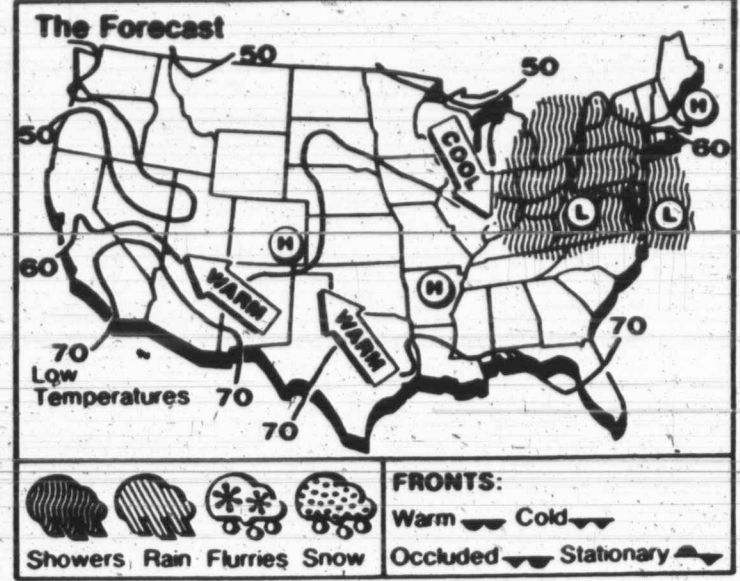

About 20.8 percent of the 339,158 voters in the district cast ballots Saturday.

The district stretches from Paris near the Oklahoma border to San Augustine in the southeast. About 20.8 percent of the 339,158 registered voters cast ballots Saturday.

The eight contenders in the race all labeled themselves conservatives, but there were some differences. Hargett was an electric cooperative engineer and farmer who was heavily supported by the GOP machinery. His campaign has been boosted financially and personally by state and national Republicans, including a visit by Bush and other VIP-laden trips across the district.

One of several Democratic candidates who put "conservative" on their letterheads, Chapman, of Sulphur Springs, is a two-term district attorney.

Weather

Local

High winds and low clouds swept across the Crossroads Country Monday morning, but the skies were expected to clear for more pleasant and warm summer weather.

State

Hot temperatures were on the menu for Texas today, with widely scattered thunderstorms in Northeast Texas and far West Texas, but clear skies elsewhere.

A weak low-pressure system in the Panhandle was blamed for thundershower activity late Sunday and early today. A high-pressure system off shore in the Gulf of Mexico was responsible for light southerly winds and clear skies over most of the state, the National Weather Service said.

Most Texans awakened to temperatures in the 60s and 70s. Overnight readings ranged from 66 at Houston, Cotulla, Hondo and Midland to 76 at Wichita Falls. Temperatures were expected to hit the 90s by afternoon for most places, although the mercury was likely to approach 105 in the Big Bend.

The weather service said rains in extreme Northeast Texas would develop as a low-pressure system moved southward out of Oklahoma. But the rest of North Texas was expected to remain dry and warm through Tuesday.

Hearing set for white oil suit

AUSTIN (AP) — A hearing on the lawsuit filed against the Texas Railroad Commission by 19 "white oil" operators in the Panhandle Field has been set for Tuesday morning, court officials said Monday.

The suit challenges a May 13 order of the commission which requires wells with "low temperature and/or high pressure" — LTX — facilities to retest their wells within 75 days.

Cosden owners change Fina title

Beginning today, Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. of Big Spring will be merged into American Petrofina Co. of Texas, which is changing its name to Fina Oil and Chemical Co.

Fina Oil and Chemical Co. said it will continue to be the parent corporation of Cosden. Cosden will be operated as a division of Fina Oil.

For the record

Daniel Wayne Wise, 17, of 1412 Tucson, was incorrectly named as being arrested for suspicion of theft in Sunday's Big Spring Herald.

Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said a records error mistakenly listed Wise in connection with the theft case. That theft occurred at the 7-Eleven store at 401 Johnson early Saturday morning.

Wise was arrested in the 300 block of East 21st Street on suspicion of a minor in possession of alcoholic beverage, police said.

Druse, Shiites clash

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Druse and Shiite Moslem militias clashed in street battles in west Beirut today, hours after 39 American hijack hostages were freed from 17 days of Shiite captivity in the Lebanese capital.

Police said at least two people were killed and six wounded in fighting that erupted at the morning rush hour in the commercial Hamra district and the residential neighborhoods of Zarif, Aishe Bakkar and Tallet Khayat.

Soldiers' cars bombed

ATHENS, Greece — A bomb went off under a car owned by an American serviceman, destroying the vehicle and triggering a fire that gutted four other cars outside a hotel used to house U.S. officers, police said.

No one was injured in the blast, which a police spokesman said took place at about 3 a.m. A U.S. military spokesman said at least three of the burned-out cars belonged to American military personnel.

Israel in austerity plan

JERUSALEM — In a 24-hour meeting that ended this morning, Prime Minister Shimon Peres' government invoked emergency powers and approved a wide-ranging austerity program aimed at curbing Israel's soaring inflation.

The plan takes effect immediately under emergency decrees signed by Peres which allow the government to bypass parliamentary legislation and suspend all labor agreements. Officials said it was the first time in the country's 37-year history that such measures were imposed for economic reasons.

Palau assassin at large

KOROR, Palau — Police continued to hunt for the assassin of President Haruo I. Remeliik as this Western Pacific island republic prepared for the funeral of its first elected leader, who was gunned down outside his home.

Palau has a population of 14,000 living on eight of the chain's 200 islands 600 miles east of the Philippines. Remeliik, 51, re-elected in November to a second four-year term a leader of the Republic of Palau, was shot four times as he walked to his house from his car early Sunday.

Zimbabwe goes to polls

HARARE, Zimbabwe — Black Zimbabweans went to the polls today in a vote that could hasten Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's goal of a one-party state in which he would hold undisputed political power.

Canyon blaze 'explodes' through San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Thousands of people were evacuated and hundreds remained homeless today after a wind-swept brush fire destroyed up to 70 homes as "the air literally exploded" in the city's worst residential blaze in 20 years, authorities said.

The 300-acre fire that raced up a canyon below fashionable Normal Heights was one of nearly a dozen blazes that charred about 33,000 acres Sunday as temperatures reached record highs in Los Angeles and San Diego.

Police estimated damage in Normal Heights at $5.2 million, with many of the destroyed homes costing up to $250,000 apiece. Mayor Roger Hedgecock declared a city emergency and asked Gov. George Deukmejian for a disaster declaration, making the area eligible for state and federal loans.

Several fire storms broke out at the height of the blaze, said fire Capt. Larry Carlson. "The air literally exploded. There would be homes OK, and then five or six of them would just go up."

A second San Diego County fire swept across 3,000 acres, killing a goat, two cows and a horse and burning three homes and two ranch sheds about 15 miles east of the city near Mount Miguel, said Dena Zay, spokeswoman for the California Department of Forestry.

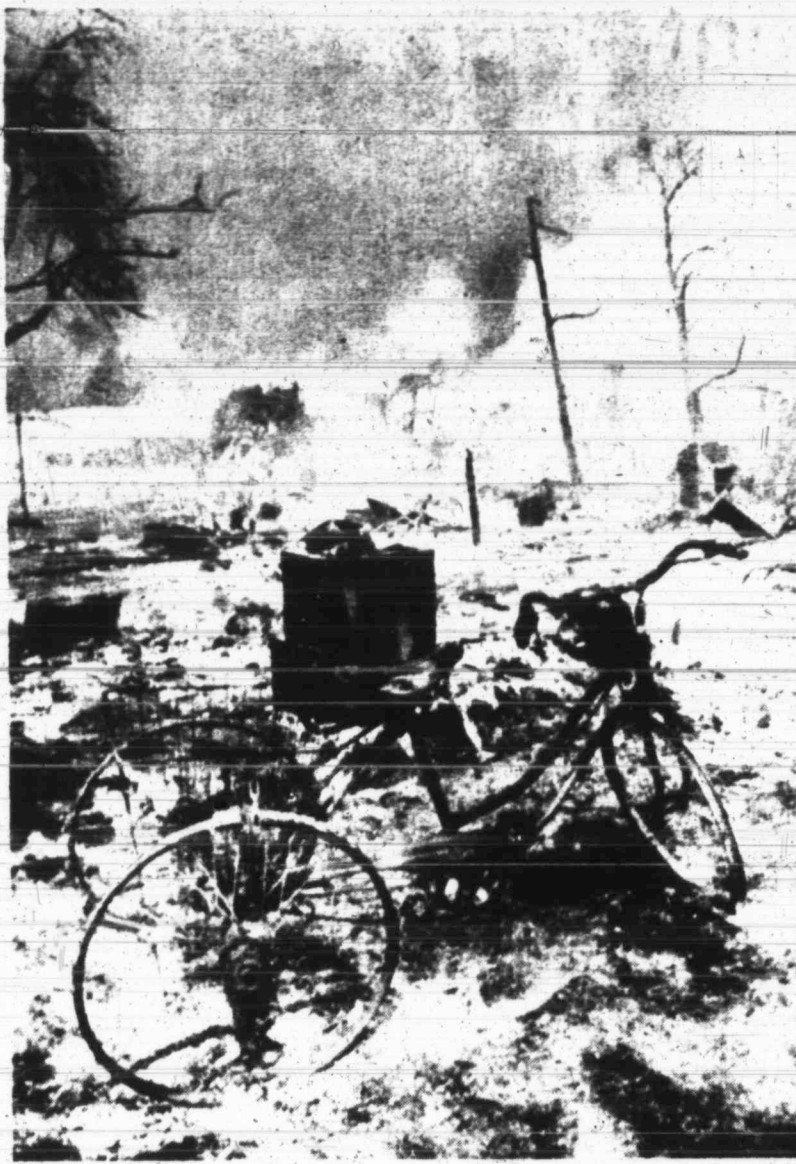

Three San Diego television stations that have transmitters atop Mount Miguel — KPBS, KUSI and KTTY — were off the air for several hours after power was cut for the safety of firefighters, utility officials said.

Firefighters also battled erratic winds, high temperatures and rugged terrain trying to contain a blaze that charred 19,400 acres in the San Jacinto Mountains near Palm Springs, about 100 miles north of San Diego.

Authorities ordered about 20 residents of Carlisle Canyon near Lake Sherwood, 40 miles west of Los Angeles, to flee as flames blackened more than 2,500 acres, destroying a mobile home. A second Ventura County blaze charred 90 acres near Santa Paula, about 10 miles farther northwest.

Another brush fire, in the Sequoia National Forest 150 miles north of Los Angeles, was controlled Sunday after burning 7,643 acres, the U.S. Forest Service said.

Authorities evacuated residents in an area of Ventura County northwest of Los Angeles threatened by two more brush fires — one blackening more than 1,000 acres in the Hollywood Hills of Los Angeles, dotted with expensive homes, did no damage to homes, said fire spokesman Larry Ford. The 25-acre blaze and a few smaller ones were quickly doused, he said.

The Normal Heights fire began about noon Sunday in dried-out brush that covers dozens of small canyons beneath Normal Heights, an upper middle class neighborhood about eight miles northeast of downtown San Diego.

"This is the biggest fire that I've known of in 20 years," said police Capt. Tom Hall.

The blaze was controlled late Sunday, said fire spokesman Logan Bellows.

About 20 firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation, heat exhaustion and minor injuries, officials said.

San Diego Gas & Electric Co. spokesman Dave Smith said the utility cut power to 5,000 customers in the area for about six hours before restoring it to 90 percent of the homes Sunday night.

Between 1,000 and 1,500 people were evacuated at the height of the fire and 100 to 150 would not be able to return to their damaged or destroyed homes, said Hall. About 400 people were processed through a Red Cross shelter but most found places to stay with family or friends, said spokesman Pat Sutton.

David Swearinga, 80, disobeyed police orders and returned to his house in mid-afternoon, grabbing his 84-year-old sister's fur coat and jewelry.

2 die in funeral gunfire

LOS ANGELES — A sheriff's deputy attending a Chinatown church service with friends shot and killed a gunman who walked in and opened fire, killing the head deacon and an assistant pastor, authorities say.

Dang Bow Jow, 46, died at the First Chinese Baptist Church on Sunday after he was shot by sheriff's Deputy Donald Leverence, who was off duty. Fook Kong Li, 58, the head deacon, was shot in the head and chest and died at Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center.

Oklahoma goes wet

OKLAHOMA CITY — Across-the-bar liquor sales became legal in 24 wet counties and illegal in 53 dry counties today, and authorities say they won't waste any time checking reported violations of the state's new liquor laws.

The new law also bars happy hours statewide. By Saturday, between 1,000 and 1,100 drinking establishments had applied for a license to operate in wet counties. Clubs that applied for a license by late Saturday afternoon are eligible for temporary permits.

Father visits slain kid

MIAMI — A man who admits fatally shooting his comatose 3-year-old daughter in a hospital because he "didn't want to see her hurt anymore" was allowed out of jail to pay his last respects.

Charles Griffith, charged with first-degree murder for the shooting Friday night in the intensive care unit at Children's Hospital, was denied bond Sunday by Circuit Judge Ronald Friedman. But the judge granted Griffith permission to visit the funeral home where his daughter, Joy, lay.

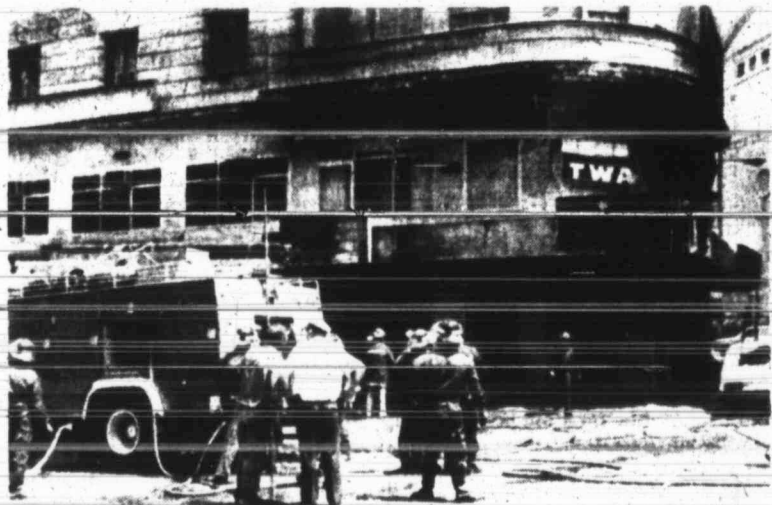

Shipbuilders on strike

BATH, Maine — Workers at Bath Iron Works set up picket lines today at plants here, in Brunswick and in Portland after overwhelmingly rejecting a contract calling for new workers to earn less than current employees.

Picket lines went up at midnight Sunday outside the plants, several hours after a "split-the-hair" meeting in which more than 3,400 workers in favor of a strike moved to one side of a room in the Augusta Civic Center and about a dozen remaining on the other side in opposition.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A man charged with refusing to register for the draft says he plans to call the head of the Selective Service System and a former Libertarian presidential candidate to testify in his federal trial.

Madrid airline offices bombed; 9 are injured

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A bomb exploded in the basement of a building housing TWA and British Airways offices in the crowded center of the Spanish capital of Madrid today, injuring nine people, many of them seriously, police said.

A few minutes later, two bombs also exploded at the Royal Jordanian Airlines offices only 200 yards away causing no injuries, police said. A third bomb found at the Royal Jordanian Airlines was defused.

Police initially thought the first bomb had exploded inside the TWA offices.

The attack occurred a day after the 17-day ordeal of TWA Flight 847 ended with the release of the 39 American hostages in Beirut, Lebanon, but it was not known if the Madrid bombing was related to the TWA hijacking.

Minutes after the first bomb exploded, a man with a machine gun opened fire on the offices of the Jordanian airline, police said.

Nine people were injured in the basement explosion at 12:15 p.m. at the TWA and British Airways offices on Madrid Gran Via Avenue, several of them seriously, police said.

Police said the explosion seriously damaged three parked cars and broke glass panels of nearby stores and offices.

Police identified two of the victims as Bridger Limer, an American citizen, and Abdullah Albaelousi of Bahrain. Neither was injured seriously, police said. No further details were immediately available.

Police said no injuries were reported in the shooting incident at the Jordanian airline offices. Police sources said a man with a machine gun shot at the office from a window in a nearby 18-story building.

The sources said the office windows were hit. Police said two people were arrested in connection with the shooting, and said they may have been responsible for planting the bombs in the Jordanian airlines office. The nationality of the suspects was not immediately available.

Shortly afterwards, police said two bombs exploded at the Jordanian Airlines office, causing no injuries. They said a third bomb was defused.

It was not known if the bombings of the Royal Jordanian Airlines were linked to the explosion at the building housing the TWA and British Airways office. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for either incident.

'Hostage' might have been bomb

During the 1950s there was a British movie about a little man who stole a nuclear bomb and blackmailed the world. He was gentle and had a good cause, as we remember, and so he was a sympathetic character. And, of course, the film had a happy ending.

But what will happen if a fanatic Shiite Moslem steals a bomb?

They got through the notoriously weak security in Athens. But terrorists have breached tougher security in Germany, England, Israel and the United States. And spies from the United States, Soviet Union and England regularly infiltrate each other's military and government agencies.

Reacting to the latest skyjacking, many Americans called on their government to get tough. But President Reagan, like former President Jimmy Carter whom he maligned for inaction, has discovered that it's hard to get tough when hostage lives are at stake, and you can't shoot an enemy when you don't know exactly where he is.

A skyjacking is bad enough when it involves 40 or several hundred passengers. It is terrible for those who go through the ordeal and for their families, and it shocks the nation. But suppose that instead of human beings, a nuclear bomb is skyjacked or stolen?

The world is filled with nationalistic movements and religious fanatics, and eventually it will be virtually impossible to prevent a well organized group of para-militarists from obtaining a bomb. It may be stolen or it may be obtained from a sympathetic dictator, such as Moammar Khadafy of Libya.

According to recent reports the world now contains some 50,000 nuclear warheads. Most of these are controlled by the United States and the Soviet Union, each of whom can blow up the Earth many times over.

A bilateral nuclear disarmament agreement between the two superpowers would reduce the risk of nuclear war. It also is the only way to prevent smaller nations from obtaining the bomb. And this will reduce the risk of nuclear blackmail by terrorists.

Behind the scenes in hostage crisis

At some point in time, and no one knows exactly when, the coverage of a hostage crisis becomes as important as the event itself. Whether we like it or not TV news is diplomacy and diplomacy is TV news.

I was therefore not surprised to find Farley Glitchfield, news director at the Sky Network Company, in the SNC situation room looking at a bank of monitors last week.

A voice came over the loudspeaker. "The U.N. Ambassador of Israel refuses to discuss what his government intends to do with the 700 Shiite prisoners his country is holding."

Glitchfield said, "Did you tell him his government's position is vital to Bob Haircomb's lead hostage story tonight?"

"Yes, I did, and he said things were too delicate for him to go on the air with any statement."

"Then dump him and go to one of the Carter White House people. How are our negotiations going with the terrorists in Beirut?"

"The competition is trying to sabotage us. ABC is telling them they can get much better Nielsen if they give them an exclusive interview. CBS is dealing with another faction that claims it controls all TV rights to the hostages, and NBC is refusing to let us use their satellite unless we share our tape with them. Nabal Kamal, the moderate terrorist leader, says when it comes to negotiating exclusives, he will only deal with you."

"Get him on the phone. Nabal, I haven't spoken to you since your people blew up our consulate in Tripoli two years ago. Didn't we treat you right when you hijacked the 747 over the Dead Sea last April? And remember five years ago when you took over the USIA Library and none of the other networks would put you on the air? ... Who let you read your demands on camera? SNC did, that's who. You owe us, Nabal. The other networks are sucking around because you have control of the hostages. But just see if they'll give you the time of day, much less prime time, once the crisis is over ... No, Nabal, we're not interested in a joint press conference. What kind of a news operation do you think we run?"

"You have two hours to think it over. If you don't reply affirmatively we're pulling all our TV cameras and lights out of your headquarters."

The person sitting next to Glitchfield in the situation room said, "That's the way to talk to him. I hope he knows terrorism doesn't pay unless he deals with us."

"You have to talk tough or they'll walk all over you in a crisis situation. By the way, whoever dubbed Kamal a 'moderate'? He's carbombed more than seven buildings in Beirut."

"We had to call him moderate to distinguish him from those who wiped out all the Palestinians in a refugee camp last month. Our new guidelines are if they talk to us, then they're moderate terrorists. If they don't, they're radical killers. If Nabal won't play, do you want us to put on the back-up terrorist leader tonight?"

"Does he have anything to do with the hostage crisis?"

"I doubt it, but nobody's going to know that."

"Put him on standby," Glitchfield said. "Who else have we got?"

"A terrorist expert from Georgetown University, an Oxford professor who wrote a book about hijacking, a former CIA Mideast operator — and Henry Kissinger."

"We had Kissinger last night. It doesn't matter. People like to see Kissinger on TV during a national crisis. Hello? ... Just a minute. It's the White House. They're asking if we have any new information as to what's going on."

"I told them we'd call if there was anything to report. Why do they keep bugging us when they know we have a hostage show to put on?"

Oman ruler is quiet ally

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — The United States has a staunch Middle Eastern friend who is unknown to most Americans.

Sultan Qabus bin Said, the 42-year-old absolute ruler of Oman, the Kansas-sized desert nation at the eastern end of the Arabian peninsula, doesn't proclaim his pro-American sentiments from the palace rooftop in Muscat. But he is on the U.S. side when it counts.

Oman was one of two Arab states that gave public support to the 1979 Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt. And in 1980, the sultan agreed to let the United States stash military equipment at strategically located bases, which can be used for intelligence gathering, communications and as staging areas for U.S. rapid-deployment forces in the event of a Persian Gulf crisis.

The sultan's friendship with America has cost him more than Arab resentment. We have learned that more than a year ago the Saudis, evidently jealous of their perceived status as No. 1 U.S. ally in the Arab world, offered Oman $2 billion if the sultan would put a little distance between his country and the United States. The highly secret bribe offer was rejected.

Qabus is the very model of a modern enlightened Arab leader. Educated at Sandhurst, the British military college, he brought back some Western ideas that were too progressive for his isolationist father, Sultan Taimur bin Said. The old man, a fundamentalist fanatic, kept his son under virtual house arrest for more than a year. Finally, with the help of the British and particularly of an old Sandhurst buddy, Timothy Landon, Qabus overthrew his father and began laboriously bringing his 900,000 countrymen into the 20th century.

When Qabus seized the throne in 1970, Oman had just 5 miles of paved road, three schools and no health facilities worth mentioning. There are now more than 2,000 miles of paved highway, another 8,000 miles of graded roads and more than 460 schools attended by both sexes. The country has six major hospitals and 230 other health centers.

The young sultan also extinguished a guerrilla movement in the southern province of Dhofar that was supported by the Soviets and their satellite, South Yemen. The British played a crucial role in this as well, along with some help from the shah of Iran.

The Saudis were not pleased with Oman's progressive and independent course. They consider themselves a sort of Big Brother to the smaller Persian Gulf states, maintaining their dominance by the judicious expenditure of petrodollars. Oman, whose oil reserves are piddling compared to its more fortunately situated neighbors, seemed a likely prospect for such dollar diplomacy.

According to a top secret CIA report, the Saudis kept promising Oman development funds, but tied their largess to the removal of Iranian troops from Dhofar province. The shah's closeness to the Americans had always worried the Saudis, and they apparently didn't want their little Omani neighbor following the shah into the CIA's pocket.

Qabus was eager for the Saudi development money, and the deal was "all but signed," the CIA noted, but the Saudis were "playing a game with Qabus — withholding assistance until the Omani sultan (saw) the light and (sent) the Iranian troops" home.

The arrangement fell through, leaving the sultan professing "to be mystified by Riyadh's handling of the matter."

Our sources say it was Landon, the sultan's Sandhurst pal, who was largely responsible for the 1980 agreement that allows the U.S. bases in Oman. He also pressed for further cooperation on a visit to Washington in the first weeks of the Reagan administration.

But we have learned that Landon has been relinquishing his role as Omani-U.S. mediator recently. Sources say he had nothing to do with behind-the-scenes shenanigans to give a British firm the lucrative caretaking contract to operate three U.S.-financed bases in Oman.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?: Since 1959, Regain H. Meredith has compiled a 500 win-loss record in 10 political campaigns for various offices in New Jersey. Things looked a little grim this year, however, when she failed to get the Republican organization endorsement for Mercer County representative on the state GOP committee, yet she beat her opponent by a 3-to-1 margin. Meredith attributed her triumph to being better known, and to the coin toss that put her name higher on the ballot. Others point out that for the first time Meredith included on the ballot her maiden name: Haig — as in Alexander Haig Jr., her kid brother.

Sarcasm angers wife

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband is always very kind and considerate — except when we are around other people. Then he is always cutting me down and being sarcastic and trying to act like he needs to give the orders. I am very hurt by this although I try not to show it, but I don't know what to do about it. — Mrs. P.L.

DEAR MRS. P.L.: Communication is important in a successful marriage — and this is a good illustration of why that is true. Your husband may be totally unaware that he is hurting your feelings; he may even taken your silence as a sign you enjoy being in the limelight or you think his actions are funny. I may be wrong in suggesting this, of course — but you will never now until you sit down and talk about it.

Therefore, let your husband know how you feel about his actions. Don't get angry at him or accuse him of deliberately trying to hurt you and don't do it in front of other people. But calmly, clearly help him see what his words are doing to you. The Bible tells us that when there is tension between us and another person, we should "first go and be reconciled to your brother" (Matthew 5:24).

I also hope your husband will reflect on why he feels the need to do this. Perhaps he grew up thinking it is important for a male to throw his weight around, or perhaps he is trying to impress other people with his wit or his domination. But he should not feel this way.

That leads me to urge both you and your husband to examine your relationship with Christ. Have you committed your lives to Christ, and are you seeking to follow Him? If not, make that commitment now and learn the joy of having Christ at the center of your marriage. And if you do know Christ, pray that God will help you live for Him in every area of your lives. "Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her" (Ephesians 5:25).

ASCOT HAT FASHION — An unusual hat fashion was worn by an observer at the Royal Ascot horse race meeting in June.

Dear Abby

Language abuse brings defenders to the fore

DEAR ABBY: A million thanks for pointing out the irritating speech habit that so many of our young people exhibit today. I refer to the use of "you know" three and four times in one sentence.

It is simply maddening to hear "you know, you know, you know" from so many of our celebrities (especially athletes) while they're being interviewed on television and radio.

I started to fall into that habit when I was in college. One of my professors helped me overcome it when every time I said "you know," he interrupted me with, "No, I don't know until you tell me."

Please print this, Abby. If everyone who is guilty of the "you know" habit would ask a friend to interrupt him with, "No, I don't know," what a blessing it would be.

NO MORE YOU KNOWS
DEAR NO MORE: I could fill a column with responses to the column on sloppy speech habits. And I think I will:

DEAR ABBY: Thank "Gail of Shorewood, Wis.," who is tired of hearing the word "basically" used and overused incorrectly. My family and I have made a game of counting the times a person uses "basically" in one speech or commentary. I have counted as many as eight "basicallys." It means "as a basis for" or "fundamentally," but it's now used as a filler and means nothing.

My prize story concerns a prominent athlete who was asked in a television interview where he was born. He replied, "Well, I was basically born in New York." Need I say more?

Another pet peeve of mine is the incorrect use of the pronoun "myself." There are several rules that apply, but the simple one is, never use "myself" when the pronouns "I" or "me" can be used instead.

JEAN IN MASON CITY, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I was happy to notice in your column that someone mentioned the overuse of the word "basically." Please add my complaint to the overuse of the word "totally."

Whatever happened to the perfectly good adverbs "completely," "entirely" and "wholly"?

TOTALED BY "TOTALLY"

DEAR TOTALED: While we're on the subject of words, their use, abuse and misuse, the one word that I hear more frequently used incorrectly than correctly is "apropos."

Many people say, "It is very apropos," as though apropos meant "appropriate." It doesn't. It means "concerning," "regarding," "pertaining to" or "relevant."

I have heard this error committed by professionals, politicians, educators, clergypersons and literate people who should know better, but don't.

Dr. Donohue

Her problem: thermometeritis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What controls body temperature? Is 98.6 normal for everyone? Are there normal fluctuations that take place? I have a great variance, but I cannot detect a pattern. At times I have a temperature that fluctuates between 99 degrees and 99.8. Then there are times that it falls below normal and will be as low as 97.6. I have no idea what is normal for me anymore. Would you kindly address this problem? — A.G.

I'll tell you a few things about body temperature if you will do me a little favor. Put away your thermometer for awhile. I believe you have developed a fixation. If your doctor finds nothing wrong with you and you feel well, you have no need to take your temperature. And you'll probably never find it smack dab on 98.6.

We have internal sensors, some of which are in the brain, that constantly check our temperature and control it based on how we are burning calories. That's what a calorie is, a measure of heat. And we burn calories even when sleeping. A starving man burns about 1,600 calories just breathing and maintaining blood circulation and heartbeat.

In fact, heat comes from all body functions. At the same time, we are constantly losing heat, as through perspiration, even when you don't see the sweat. All of these heat-making and heat-dissipating processes are going on through the day and night, so that if you take a temperature one hour you will find it higher or lower than the last time. You will find as much as a two-degree variation over any 24-hour period.

And some people do have different "norms" of temperature, some as low as 97 and some as high as 100. Women in the last half of their menstrual cycle have higher body temperatures than at other times.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Did my being overweight make me get asthma? — A.S.

No. Being overweight didn't cause the asthma. That happens because your breathing tubes were extra sensitive to certain stimuli, like pollens. The tubes narrow at times of such exposure, causing breathing difficulty.

It is true, though, that being overweight can place extra pressure on the entire breathing apparatus, so weight-reduction is a good idea in a program to control asthma.

Guidelines aid in hiring contractor

During the next few months homeowners will spend thousands of dollars on home repair and improvement projects. Before any money is spent, however, a bit of caution—and planning—should be exercised.

To save time, money and frustration with the job and to help guarantee your satisfaction with the outcome, the Better Business Bureau suggests the following guidelines for home improvement projects.

Before selecting a contractor, thoughtfully assess your needs and expectations. Take time to learn what is involved in the type of repair or addition you are considering and get several estimates on the project's costs.

Don't hire a contractor before finding out the company's address and checking references. Once a contractor is chosen, it is vital to get all agreements, guarantees and warranties in writing. Details that should be specified in the contract are:

- Work to be completed and materials to be used and installed;

- Total cost, broken down into a subtotal for labor and materials, finance charges, if applicable, fees for permits, if needed, and taxes;

- Beginning and completion dates with penalties for late completion;

- A payment schedule, with final payment due after completion of the job;

- Warranties on workmanship, materials and products to be installed;

- Clean up procedures and arrangements for unused materials to be returned to suppliers and credited to the homeowner. If unused materials are not returnable, they may be kept by the homeowner, sold to the contractor, or disposed of by the contractor, according to the homeowner's specifications;

- Proof that the contractor has adequate insurance covering workmen's compensation, property damage and personal injury. Homeowners should also check their insurance policies to determine if they cover accidents experienced by workers on their property;

- A statement of liability from the contractor for all damage or injury caused by himself, the contractor or any of his agents or employees.

Every homeowner is a target for home repair racketeers. Often home repair con artists will go door-to-door claiming materials were left over from another job and they will give you a special deal. More than likely you will be overcharged for shoddy work or for services they didn't perform at all. When you try to locate them, the telephone number will probably be an answering service that doesn't have a permanent address.

Yul's season over

Bryunner gives up King of Siam crown

NEW YORK (AP) — After lording it over a total of 189 wives, 447 children and 12 Annas in 34 years, Yul Brynner took his final bow as the king of Siam as he closed out his 4,625th — and final — performance of "The King and I."

The part of the feisty king who brings a British governess to his exotic kingdom to educate his children is so absolutely Brynner's that there probably won't be a successor for years. The story is based in reality.

In a final bow Sunday, Brynner bent his knees, then shot upright in the gesture so often photographed: arms shot high and wide, eyes glittering, a big grin on his face. During a five-minute curtain call, the audience stood and the orchestra played "Auld Lang Syne."

Brynner walked slowly to his real-life wife, Kathy Lee Brynner, who played the lead royal dancer, and the two made their measured way to the center of the stage and up the steps of the set, Siam's 1860s palace. At the top, they waved a final, royal farewell, then walked into the wings of the Broadway theater.

Brynner, who will be 68 on July 11, battled lung cancer as he took on the role again in the national tour that began in February 1981. He and his wife intend to retire to their chateau in France.

A recurrent back problem has required daily therapy, and what is announced nightly from the stage as "a serious throat and ear infection" has kept him more often than not from singing the king's only solo, "A Puzzlement."

In the second act, however, he whirled Mary Beth Peil around as they danced from one side of the stage to the other in "Shall We Dance."

Throughout, Brynner projected bursting vitality to the top of the balcony. He exuded the burning "controlled ferocity" that led Rodgers and Hammerstein to hand him the crown when the play opened on Broadway on March 19, 1951, at the St. James Theater, with Gertrude Lawrence as Anna Leonowens.

Actor Sean Penn charged with attacking reporters

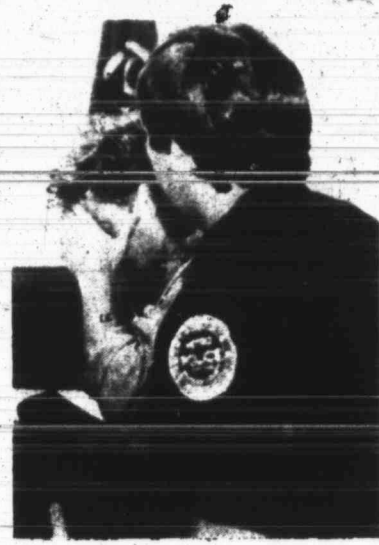

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Sean Penn is free on $1,000 bond after he was charged with assault and battery involving two journalists, who said the star of "The Falcon and the Snowman" attacked them with a rock.

Penn, 24, refused comment on the charges during a late-night bond hearing Sunday. His only comment during the hearing was "Yeah," when asked if he understood the charges against him.

The two British journalists, reporter Ian Markham-Smith, 33, and photographer Laurence Cottrell, 30, both of Los Angeles, said the screen star attacked them outside his hotel when they asked him for an interview and photo.

"To be honest, we really didn't expect the interview," Cottrell said. "But he could have just said 'No.' He didn't have to get mean about it."

Penn, who also starred in "Fast

Texas town debates POW reunion

MEXIA, Texas (AP) — A proposal to coax former German prisoners of war back for a reunion next year at a World War II prison camp has upset some veterans, but others of this city's residents are willing to let bygones be bygones.

Most people don't seem to object to the Germans visiting Mexia, they simply don't think public money should be spent to encourage the reunion, said Commissioner James Sanford.

"Seven or eight of my buddies got killed over there," said Commissioner W.E. "Buster" Chrisner, who served in the National Guard during the war. "It's been 40 years, but you don't forget things like that."

About 7,000 Germans, most of whom served in the Afrika Korps under Gen. Erwin Rommel, spent time in the compound a few miles west of Mexia.

When former Mayor Sidney Johnston recently requested $450 in city funds to throw a reception for the ex-POWs during a reunion in Bamberg, West Germany, the commission was flooded with calls from people opposed to the idea.

Sanford said he voted against the proposal — which failed on a 3-3 vote — because of the adverse reaction.

Many of the callers were veterans and some had spent time in German POW camps during World War II.

"I don't think we should spend tax money to have a beer bust for them to get them to come over here," Chrisner said. "If they want to come, they'll come."

Former Chamber of Commerce president George Tidwell said the opposition had been disturbing but that he felt sure Mexia would extend a welcoming hand.

"I'm a war baby, and all of that is 40 years ago," he said. "It's time to go on. They are friends and allies now."

The camp, built in 1942 as the largest of 12 prison camps in Texas, has been converted into a school for the mentally retarded and houses 1,200 students.

"It was a wonderful place — no comparison to Russian prisoner-of-war camps," German Col. Werner Richter has said. "We were treated fairly."

Kresge store founder dies

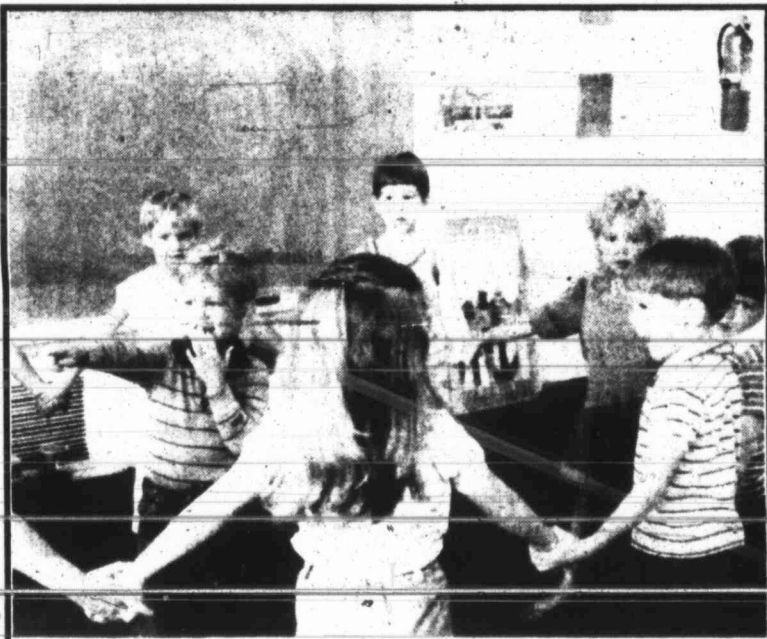

DETROIT (AP) — Stanley S. Kresge, former Kresge Co. chairman and son of the founder of the company that grew to become the nation's No. 2 retail chain, has died at the age of 85.

Kresge, son of Sebastian S. Kresge, died Sunday of a heart attack at Crittendon Hospital in the suburb of Rochester.

Kresge, who lived in the suburban Pontiac area, became a trustee of the Kresge Foundation in 1931 and was its president from 1952 to 1966. He served as chairman of Kresge Co., forerunner of Kmart Corp., from the death of his father in 1966 until 1967.

Kresge is survived by his wife, Dorothy, sons Walter, Stanley S. Jr. and Bruce, 15 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Wednesday at the Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Detroit.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 2, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon brings much activity and the inclination to act in an impulsive and aggravated fashion today, so try to rise above this tendency and be impersonal.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Home ties may pry too much into your business affairs which may require political secrecy, so use tact.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good time during the full moon to study into brochures and periodicals for vital information. Make necessary changes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy with the monetary and practical side of your affairs so that you can become more successful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Although worldly affairs do not satisfy you and kin, you are powerless to change them, so adjust to them.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You feel you cannot go through with something you have promised, but you soon change your mind and follow up.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study those ideas you have more carefully before you make the quick changes that now occur to you. Drive carefully today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You should be more interested in worldly affairs and less on household chores for best results. Avoid overreacting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There can be an exchange of ideas between you and other clever persons now, provided you use tact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you keep your wedded life apart from your business, you will avoid confusing conditions. Try to patch things up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be less difficult with sensitive partners and enjoy a finer relationship. Soothe the wounded feelings of a loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study how to get your work load better organized for the days ahead and it will be easier to handle.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to see as many friends as you can and everything will go more smoothly for all. Use your willpower more.

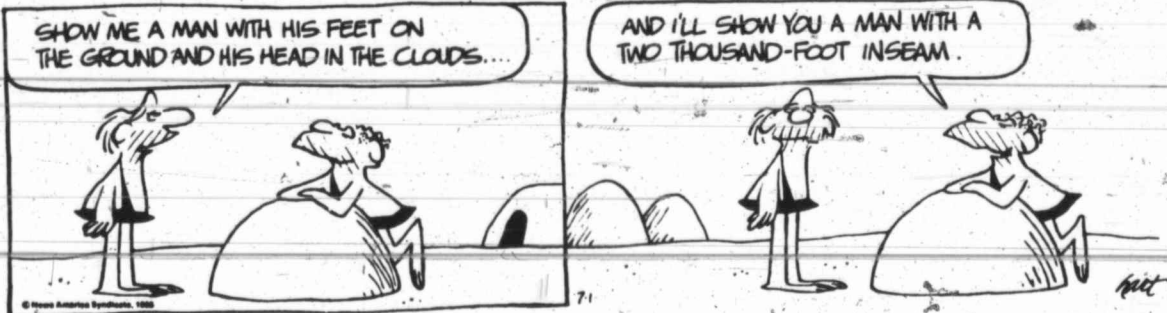

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will think and act fast and will have a very full life, so be sure to early take more interest in psychological and spiritual values. Give as fine an education as you can to help your progeny through a very active life.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

JIMMY CONNORS ...hinting retirement

Wants one last Wimbledon crown

Connors nearing end of the line

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors admits he is a step slower and may be playing his last Wimbledon tournament as he seeks his third title here at the All England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club.

Now 32, the left-hander who now makes his home in Sanibel Harbor, Fla., hopes the advantage of having two days off will bring back the skills that carried him to victory here in 1974 and 1982.

Sunday was Wimbledon's traditional rest day, a respite from the showers that continually plagued the first week of play. Because of the delays, Connors, seeded third, won't play his fourth-round match until at least Tuesday.

On Monday, two of the three No. 1 seeds — Wimbledon officials made Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd the co-top seeds in the women's ranks — were to play their third-round matches.

John McEnroe faced Christo Steyn of South Africa and Lloyd took on Jenny Byrne of Australia.

Navratilova already has reached the fourth round in singles and played doubles on Monday.

Although he has reached the fourth round, it has been a struggle for Connors, whose forte has always been his determination, hustle and a bulldog-like tenacity that has always thrilled tennis fans.

Against India's Ramesh Krishnan in a third-round battle Saturday, Connors' age showed in a 7-5, 5-7, 7-5, 6-2 victory.

"I was always fighting an uphill battle. I have played better."

If Connors is to capture another Grand Slam title, Wimbledon would appear to be the perfect place for him to do it.

"Playing two matches in a row is not that much of a bother and I have (Sunday) off to recuperate."

"The points go a lot quicker on grass and there is not as much tennis involved as on clay or hardcourt. I would not want to play more than two in a row."

Questions continue about Connors' future. He hasn't won a championship since last year and has lost to a horde of young, promising players.

"As far as retirement goes, just let me worry about it," he said.

Sports Briefs

Rockin Robin falls

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jimmy Paul not only wanted to beat "Rockin" Robin Blake in his first title defense, but wanted to do it so convincingly he would stand out among the lightweight division's three champions.

Paul accomplished both goals Sunday with a masterful combination of defensive skills and punching power, knocking the challenger down in the ninth round before stopping him at 2:14 of the 14th to retain his International Boxing Federation crown.

Paul, who won the title April 6 with a 15-round decision over Harry Arroyo, recorded his 19th knockout in running his record to 23-1.

A left hook late in the ninth round wobbled Blake and the combination that followed put the challenger down for the first time in his pro career. Blake managed to finish the final 20 seconds of the round but from then Paul hit Blake almost at will.

Howe on restricted list

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers' patience with Steve Howe, who was suspended for the 1984 season because of cocaine abuse, seems to be wearing thin after the relief pitcher failed to show up for their game against the Atlanta Braves.

Not even Howe's wife, Cyndy, nor his attorney, Jim Hawkins, knew the relief pitcher's whereabouts Sunday, according to Dodger officials. Howe definitely was not, however, at Dodger Stadium for Los Angeles' 4-3 victory over the Braves.

"I'm very disappointed the guy did not let us know where he is," said Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda. "He let his team down by not being here."

McEnroe rolls at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — John McEnroe, the No. 1 men's seed, and Chris Evert Lloyd, co-seeded No. 1 among the women, breezed to straight-set victories today in the Wimbledon tennis championships, while two women's seeds were upset.

Australia's Elizabeth Smylie shocked third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia and Pascale Paradis of France upset No. 14 Wendy Turnbull of Australia to advance into the fourth round. Smylie, constantly keeping the pressure on Mandlikova, beat the unpredictable Czech 6-1, 7-6, while Paradis topped the veteran Turnbull 2-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Field goal sinks Tampa Bay

OAKLAND, CALIF. — Novo Bojovic kicked a 23-yard field goal on the last play to give the Oakland Invaders a 23-20 win over the Tampa Bay Bandits in the first round of the United States Football League playoffs.

Bojovic also atoned for a 31-yard field goal attempt he missed with a 14-yard field goal on the final play of the game.

But this time, Bojovic came through, setting up a game next weekend at Memphis against the Showboats, who on Sunday battered the Denver Gold 48-7.

At Oakland, Tampa Bay quarterback John Reaves passed for three touchdowns and ran for another. His 15-yard TD pass to Willie Gillespie with 9:41 left in the game tied it at 27, but kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn missed on a 35-yard extra-point attempt after penalties nullified two earlier successful conversions.

Then Oakland marched to the winning field goal, waiting until only two seconds were left on the clock to call a time out.

Memphis routs Denver

MEMPHIS, TENN. — At Memphis, the Showboats used a pair of long-range runs and two short plunges to rout Denver. Derrick Crawford broke loose for a 63-yard punt return and running back Leonard Williams scored on a 35-yard run. Ricky Porter collected a pair of TDs on 1-yard plunges.

The Memphis defense sacked Denver quarterback Vince Evans five times and recovered three Denver fumbles.

Defensive back Mossy Cade set the pace for Memphis with an interception shortly after the opening kickoff. He later recovered a Denver fumble.

Blue lifts Giants out of the blues

Astros 6 4
Giants 2 7

A's 7
Rangers 4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Just when the San Francisco Giants needed a strong performance from a starting pitcher, left-hander Vida Blue came to the rescue.

The Giants had lost the first game of a doubleheader with the Houston Astros, 6-2, Sunday for their 10th straight loss, a San Francisco record. Behind Blue's pitching, they came back in the nightcap and won 7-4.

"That was a gutsy performance," manager Jim Davenport said of Blue, 4-2. "I can't let Vida sit around. I'll make a decision this week on whether he'll be in the rotation. He adds a lot to this club with his enthusiasm."

Blue feels good about the possibility of starting regularly. Now that 2,000 strikeouts have been reached, he will go after his next goal of 200 victories. The most recent triumph was his 195th.

Blue, who was lifted in the 8th inning, was supported by nine hits, three of them by reserve first baseman Scot Thompson. Rookie Chris Brown scored three runs and Brad Wellman created a 7-1 lead in the 5th with a two-run double off loser Dave LaPoint, 3-7.

ARLINGTON (AP) — It isn't every night that Donnie Hill drives in the winning run for the Oakland A's.

In fact, until Oakland's 7-4 victory Sunday over the Texas Rangers, he had not driven in any.

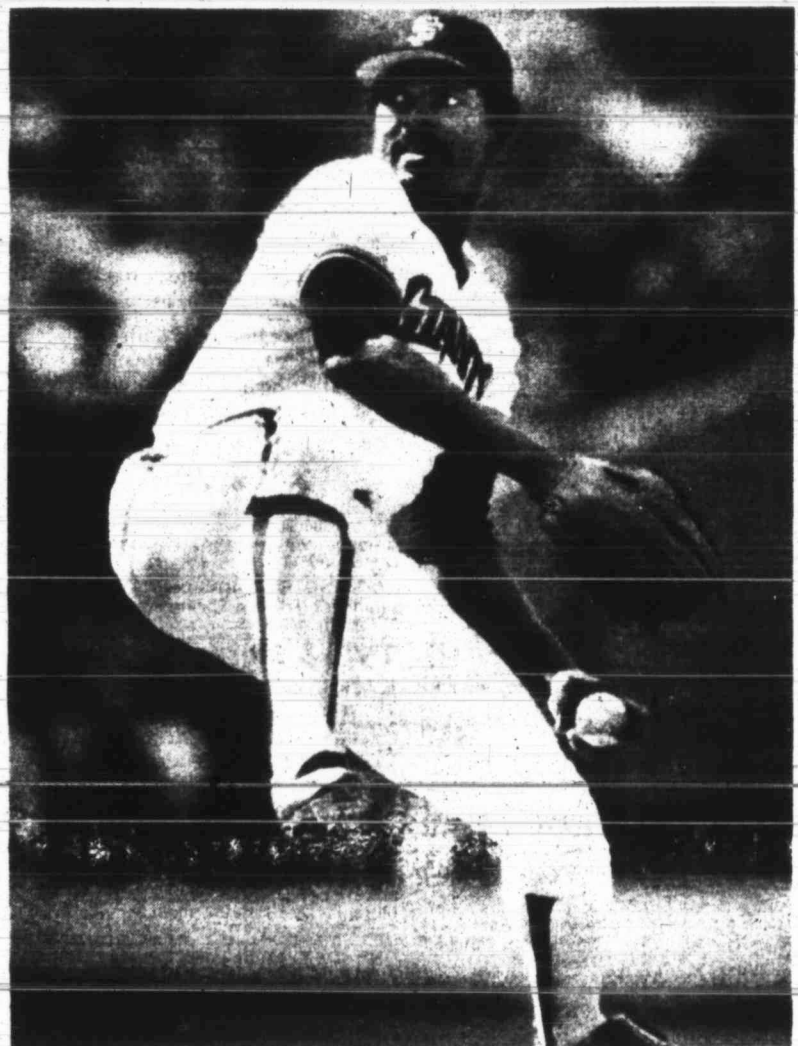

Dave Kingman hit his American League-leading 19th home run and Howell gained a tie for the league lead for his 16th save before a season-high crowd of 38,577 at Arlington Stadium.

Dwayne Murphy added a two-run homer to help Steve McCatty claim his fourth victory against three losses.

The Rangers took an early 1-0 lead on Gary Ward's bases-loaded single in the first inning. But McCatty, who gave up three hits in the inning, held on until Don Slaught's run-scoring double chased him with one out in the seventh.

Oakland took a 3-1 lead in the second. With one out, Mike Davis and Murphy singled and Heath walked. Davis and Murphy scored on Donnie Hill's single and Heath scored when Alfredo Griffin bunted into a fielder's choice.

The A's added three runs in the sixth.

San Francisco Giants pitcher VIDA BLUE reached his 2,000th career strikeout during the first inning of the Giants double-header with the Houston Astros Sunday. Blue is 37th all-time and the eighth active pitcher to reach the mark.

Sutton wins sudden-death Memphis Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Hal Sutton figured it was about time he won a golf tournament.

His position didn't appear promising on Sunday's first playoff hole of the $500,000 St. Jude Memphis Classic, when his third shot on the par-4 hole stuck on the fringe of the green. But he sank an improbable 90-foot putt to defeat David Ogrin for the $90,000 winner's check.

Sutton, tied for the lead with Bill

Sander after shooting a 65 on Thursday, sagged completely off the leader board with a 76 on Friday and a 73 Saturday.

Ogrin, who shot a final 71 over the 7,992-yard Colonial Country Club course, drove into the middle of the fairway on the playoff hole, and put his second shot in safe ground about 60 yards from the green. He looked about ready to win the tournament when his approach shot landed eight feet from the cup, while Sutton's landed in the fringe.

But after Sutton sank his putt, Ogrin's birdie putt slid by the hole. Still, the $54,000 paycheck was the biggest ever for Ogrin, whose best previous finish in a tournament had been a tie for 13th.

Sutton, who was six strokes off the pace when play began, had a round featuring eight birdies, a bogey and nine pars. He missed a six-foot birdie putt on 18 that would have given him the title outright.

Meanwhile, Ogrin could no better than a 71, although he also had a chance to win the tournament on the 18th. But his birdie putt from eight feet slid by.

George Burns, the leader by two strokes after 54 holes, suffered a rash of birdies during a round of 76 and finish at 282, three strokes back.

Unserers make U.S. Grand Prix a family-affair

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Al Unser Jr. says he couldn't have won the second annual U.S. Grand Prix at the Meadowlands without the help of Mario Andretti and Danny Sullivan.

The 23-year-old Unser scored his first victory of the season and the second Indy-car triumph of his career Sunday, driving hard and avoiding the mistakes that sidelined pre-race favorites Andretti and Sullivan and leading contender

Bobby Rahal. Unser finished more than 36 seconds ahead of runner-up Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, with third place going to Al Unser Sr., a three-time Indy 500 champion and father of the winner.

It was the best combined finish in a race for the Unserers of Albuquerque, N.M., but one that wouldn't have been possible without the bad racing luck that hit Andretti, Sullivan and Rahal.

"I don't think if Mario or Danny had finished the race I could have run with them as fast as they were running at the beginning," said Unser. "They just disappeared."

Andretti and Sullivan, racing from the front row, ran away from the rest of the 28-car field at the start of the 168-mile race through the parking lots and access roads of the northern New Jersey sports complex.

Andretti, the defending champion here and the overall leader in the current CART-PPG point standings, led the first 10 laps. Sullivan, the Indy 500 champion, held the lead for the next 15 before pitting.

Then racing luck began to take over.

Sullivan spun on lap 30 and never challenged again, finally exiting on lap 80 with a blown turbocharger.

On lap 34, Rahal ran into the back of Andretti's car. Andretti retired at that point and Rahal called it quits two laps later.
