Historians debate date of signing

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Most historians agree that the Declaration of Independence was signed Aug. 2, 1776, but a law professor says evidence indicates "there is an erasure there" and that the document was really signed on July 4, 1776.

Wilfred J. Ritz of Washington and Lee University said he believes the document's original heading was "The unanimous Declaration of Twelve States of America," because New York withheld its approval of the document until July 9.

It was subsequently changed to read "The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America," Ritz said.

The words "of the thirteen united" were written smaller and without capital letters so they would fit in the space left when "of Twelve" was erased, he theorized.

"It seems to me that there is no satisfactory explanation for the use of small letters other than the fact that there is an erasure there," said Ritz, who worked from copies of the declaration produced by the National Archives and Records Administration.

The original declaration is kept in a hermetically sealed container on display at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. The general public can view the document from 3 feet away, an agency official said.

Ritz said he can't find evidence of anything scraped or rubbed from the original.

"You can't see anything from the distance that I've been able to look at it," he said Thursday. That's

Sgt. Tramel wants you

Recruiter takes post here

By Lisa Musser

A desire for success took him to the armed forces. An interest in youth put him in recruiting. And the U.S. Army brought him to Big Spring.

Staff Sgt. Dale Tramel of Midland is the new Army recruiting officer here, replacing Staff Sgt. Sheila Barton. His office is in Room 208 of the U.S. Federal Building on Main Street.

He started work in Big Spring Tuesday. He is scheduled to work Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Thursdays and Fridays he works in Midland.

But Tramel said he is available to Big Spring people anytime by appointment.

Tramel graduated from a course offered by the Army on recruiting in May. Now, he is ready to put his knowledge and goals together to provide the Army with recruits and help youth at the same time.

"I want to help as many young people as I can find the opportunities for success that lie ahead," he said. "Whether those opportunities be in the Army or not."

"My job is just to show the Army programs," he said.

Tramel said most applicants who talk with him are able to find a field of interest in the Army and want the life that it offers.

"There are a lot of good programs," he said.

Tramel said he wants to get to know people in the Big Spring area, especially at all of the high schools in Borden and Howard counties.

"The only way I can work is to fit into the community," he said.

The most fulfilling part of his job comes in helping a young person headed down the "wrong track," he said.

"Nine times out of 10, if (the Army) can turn an individual around and put them on a high plateau," he said.

Completing an army program, even if it is only training camp, gives a person "a chance to see what it's like to succeed," he said.

Tramel said he chose the Army for his own profession because of the benefits it offers: Not only good pay and insurance, but also a new family.

"The Army in general is like a family," he said.

He once left the Army to try civilian life, but returned because he and his family miss

Flag revival

Old Glory flying over many American homes

By NANCY LAVENDER
Mid-Cities Daily News Staff
HURST (AP) — If you are looking for a sign of a rebirth of patriotism in America, a look over some homes and businesses reveals many more Old Glories snapping in the breeze.

A drive along Airport Freeway to Loop 820 provides a view of red, white and blue billowing over car dealers; banks, fast food restaurants, shopping centers, apartment complexes and a hospital.

Some businesses fly large flags; some fly small ones; many fly more than one.

One man is determined to fly the biggest and best flag available, according to his wife, who is also his business partner. Another claims he was the first to fly both the United States and Texas flags at his location.

Charles and Sherry Lawhon, owners of C & S Trailer World, recently purchased a 40-foot by 80-foot flag that billows on a pole 150 feet over their firm. They also fly a 30-by-60-foot Texas flag.

"We realized in the last few months and years that the flags are becoming more and more popular," Sherry Lawhon said. They started flying a flag about three years ago, she said. The original flag was on a 100-foot pole.

Mrs. Lawhon said her husband did research on flags in the area. Ours has "got to be the biggest," she said.

After they began flying the flag "people thanked us for putting it there," Mrs. Lawhon said. She said neighbors near their 4111 E. Loop 820 location reported sitting on their porches, looking at the flag and feeling proud.

A woman who drives a nursery

The American flag is flying over more homes and businesses in recent months.

school bus passes by twice a day, Mrs. Lawhon said. The woman told her "The flag means so much. It makes us feel so good."

Gene Huggins, of Huggins L. Honda, decided seven or eight years ago he would have a flag waving over his business after seeing one at a dealership in Virginia. When a salesman called, Huggins decided to have two.

"I think I'm the first in the area to have two flags," he said.

"I enjoy watching flags," he said. "It puts a funny feeling in you. A big flag attracts attention.

Anyone who doesn't look at a flag — something is wrong with them."

The ABC Flag Manufacturing Company in Fort Worth is the only manufacturer in the South, according to Betty Hall. Hall's parents started the company 25 years ago.

Since merchants started to fly the flags more and more individuals have been coming in, Ms. Hall said. The company's walk-in trade has increased at least 50 percent recently, she said.

"The Bicentennial started it off," Ms. Hall said, "then they became more and more popular." After each political trauma, such as the bombing in Lebanon, Ms. Hall said, more people come in to buy flags. It brings patriotism to their attention, she said.

Hall said most businesses purchase the 20-by-38-foot or 30-by-60-foot sizes. An individual can buy a flag, pole and bracket for $25 and prices increase to $1,000 with the 40-by-80-foot size costing a hefty $2,000.

As Lynn Cowan of Taco Bueno says, flying a flag is "a nice way to be a citizen."

Early morning clouds Wednesday gave way to partly cloudy skies by evening, a signal of sunny hot weather expected for Independence Day.

State

Scattered showers and heavy thunderstorms, the strongest southeast of Wichita Falls along the Red River, continued to wet parts of Texas Friday.

Storms also stretched from near Abilene southwest through the Edwards Plateau to near Rock Springs, according to the National Weather Service.

The thunderstorm activity stemmed from unstable Gulf air and a slow-moving upper-level trough hanging over the state. Outside the rainy areas, however, skies across Texas were generally fair to partly cloudy.

Temperatures were mainly in the low to mid 70s statewide, except for a few upper 60s across the High Plains, the weather service said.

A weak frontal system over extreme North Texas induced a light north wind over the Texas Panhandle and along the Red River. Meanwhile, south winds at 5 to 10 mph prevailed over the rest of the state.

Forecast

why I think the archives should look at it."

The National Archives makes copies of the declaration by using a steel plate made in 1939, said archivist Dane Hartgrove. The steel plate was made from an earlier stone plate, he said.

Hartgrove said the agency believed Ritz's theory is interesting. But many other scholars would have to concur before the archives would remove the document from its container to have it studied for erasures.

"For one individual, it would be a shame to take this off exhibit," Hartgrove said in a telephone interview. "We just don't want to disappoint anyone who might come to Washington to see it."

Ritz, 70, who retired from teaching this spring, has written a paper on his research and has sent it to the archives and the Library of Congress. He said he plans to try to have it published.

Historians believe the Continental Congress gave the final draft of the declaration on July 4 to a Philadelphia printer, who printed copies that were not signed, Hartgrove said.

The founding fathers also hired a man to transcribe, or engrave, a completed copy of the declaration, he said. Historians believe it was signed Aug. 2 by about 75 percent of the leaders who had approved the final wording July 4. Others signed it later, Hartgrove said.

Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams have referred to a July 4 signing in their writings, but historians believe their memories were poor, Ritz said.

He said he believes the declaration was engraved in the final form and signed on July 4.

Historians base their theory of an Aug. 2 signing on secret journals of the Continental Congress, Ritz said. The journals say the legislators ordered the document engraved on July 19 and that it was signed Aug. 2, he said.

But the official printed journal of the Continental Congress said the declaration was engraved and signed on July 4, he said.

"Historians have chosen to believe the secret journal, in spite of the fact that the printed journal was published by the order of Congress at that time," he said.

Ritz believes his evidence should be enough for the National Archives to order a study of the original Declaration of Independence.

"To me, it's like asking a jury to find a man guilty and then saying they will check the fingerprints," he said. "All I want them to do is see what's there."

Commission judge accuses Bell of padding rate request

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell wants Texas customers to indirectly help finance fast jets and free telephones for company executives, a Public Utility Commission judge was told Wednesday.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle spent much of the second day of the PUC hearing on Bell's $277 million rate increase request in questioning company expenditures on management and employees.

Jim Adams, Bell's Texas president, repeated several times that such expenses were not presented in the rate request as a cost of doing business.

"Whether or not they include these things I have been pointing out in their rate request, it affects the earnings of the company," Boyle told reporters. "When all these are added together they affect the earnings and net income of the company."

"The company, in effect, is seeking additional ratepayer support in their rate increase," Boyle said.

Bell has said its increase would add about $1.50 to monthly bills for basic residential service.

Boyle, the state lawyer who represents ratepayers, has called for a $124.4 million rate cut.

Austin lawyer Don Butler, representing about 200 cities, wants a $314 million decrease.

Adams said in his earlier testimony that current earnings and prices of the company are inadequate to finance future operations.

He admitted to Boyle Wednesday that the company had never had a rate increase that cost more than $1 to residential customers and the 1984 increase was 30 cents per customer.

In answering Boyle's question on cross examination, Adams said the firm has a work force of 34,238 in Texas with about 7,000 of them considered management.

Boyle asked why Bell has not frozen management salaries as AT&T has announced.

Building costs down despite more permits

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

More municipal building permits were issued in June than a year ago, but the amount of fees collected and the estimated construction costs were down significantly this year.

Included among the permits was authority to remodel the building at the site of the old Wayne Henry restaurant for a new Western Sizzlin' restaurant.

That permit was granted to Joe David of Hobbs, N.M. Construction costs were estimated at $75,000.

Included in the remodeling is installation of new floors, replacement of the sheetrock and installation of a new roof.

According to municipal records, the city issued 20 permits in June, compared to 23 in June 1984.

The amount of fees collected in June 1984, $2,369.40, was three times higher than the $752 collected last month.

Estimated construction costs also were down from a year ago. Buildings issued permits in June had estimated costs of $263,315, more than $2 million less than the $2.346 million estimated costs for June 1984.

Figures for the year-to-date also dipped considerably from the 1984 levels. In 1985 so far, the city has issued 147 building permits, collected $5,206 in fees for structures with an estimated construction cost of $2.133 million.

In 1984, 242 permits were issued, and $15,439.15 in fees collected for buildings with estimated construction costs of $9.590 million.

Of the 30 permits issued, two were for new structures and mercantile buildings, with an estimated construction cost of $89,000. They include construction of the Cousins Convenience store at 400 Gregg and concrete storage units at 505 N. Benton, $9,000 estimated cost. The permit for the storage units was issued to Clyde McMahon.

A permit for a storage addition was issued to Orlando Tercero of 1100 E. 16th. Estimated cost is $300.

Three were for structures other than buildings, satellite dishes and signs, with an estimated cost of $25,050. They include a permit for a satellite dish to Jay Freeze of 2721 Cindy, estimated cost of $2,015; two signs for Kopper Kettle and Helen's at 405 FM 700, $4,800 cost; and a sign for the Wendy's Hamburgers franchise at 208 Gregg, $10,000 estimated cost.

Fifteen permits were issued for additions and alterations to existing buildings. Of those, four would increase the number of housing units, with an estimated construction cost of $15,800, and four would cause no change in the number of housing units, at a cost of $12,100.

Residential building alterations or addition permits were issued to:

Pauline Hamlin of 1208 Pennsylvania, for a bathroom addition, estimated cost $10,000; Pat Rodriguez of 301 N.E. 11th, for repairs, $300 cost; Jose Hilario of 511 N.W. Seventh, for extra bedrooms and porch, $1,000 estimated cost; Richard Light, an addition to his house, $1,000 cost; and Robert Flores of 203 Presidio, to enlarge a bathroom, $900 cost.

Others issued permits for alterations or additions to their residences include: Willie Foreman of 4106 Muir, alterations, $200; Ken Froman of 2312 W. highway 90 for a den and dining room, $10,000; C.O. Coats of 4213 Muir, roof repairs, $2,000; and Matais Perez of 201 N.E. Sixth, for a den and kitchen addition, $4,000; Melvin Attwell of 2524 Langley, a screened porch, $100.

Also included in that 15 are five residential garages or carports, total estimated cost, $9,200.

Permits for garages or carports were issued to Jim Butler of 1305 E. 19th, $1,500; Joy Minchew of 405 Edwards, $300; J.M. Hamilton of 607 Circle, $400; Arthur Yanez of 502 State, $800; Victoriano Hilario Jr. of 4051 Vicky, $2,500; W.B. Hardy of 800 Baylor, $4,500.

Other permits issued for remodeling include the Western Sizzlin' and the Immaculate Heart of Mary school building at 1009 Hearn, which will have interior walls relocated. Estimated cost is $8,000.

Permits also were given to A.J. Pirkle of 626 Tulane, for a swimming pool, $12,950 estimated cost; J.C. Dunlop of 3704 Connally for a 150-foot chain-link fence, $350 cost; Daniel Cowan of 2402 Allendale, for a cedar fence; Johnny Rutherford of 3010 Rutgers, for a fence, $500; and to Norman Wright of 10 Highland Heather for a swimming pool, $12,000.

One demolition permit was issued to Dolly Geiger of the rear apartment at 1301 Lindbergh for a "rotted-out" house. Estimated cost of the demolition is $200.

Pace at 'recess' is grueling one

It's not much of a break. The pace set by Congressman Charles Stenholm as the holiday recess began is a dizzying one. His schedule serves to remind that life in Washington, D.C., isn't just glamour and prestige — and it certainly isn't very romantic.

As the workload increased toward the approaching holiday, so did the length of the workday. Stenholm was busy in long sessions lasting late into the night.

Come the break and Stenholm took his holiday recess. It is hardly a vacation. Consider his Tuesday schedule: Stenholm left his hometown of Stamford in time to arrive in Big Spring for breakfast. He was a featured guest at the Salvation Army's Victory Breakfast to celebrate a successful fund-raising effort.

From there he went out to the Federal Prison Camp for its Community Appreciation Day where he was a speaker, and he took time following his talk to field questions from the press.

He left about noon for Colorado City where he had a speaking engagement with a civic club.

Then it was back west to Coahoma for a meeting with townspeople.

From Coahoma, Stenholm went over to Stanton, again just to meet and mingle with constituents.

The day wasn't over yet. After he finished in Stanton, the conservative Democrat who has risen to impressive stature in important areas of Congress traveled back to Stamford in time for the annual art show and cowboy reunion.

'Defense Demos' key to comeback

WASHINGTON — Pentagon procurement scandals mean that an hour has come round for the defense Democrats. They cannot only play a vital role in determining national security priorities.

They are also in position to change the character of their own party. They can move it away from the eddies of minority infighting and back to the mainstream of presidential politics.

Two reasons explain the use of the term "defense Democrat" in preference to the better-known phrase "Jackson Democrat." First, the name of the late senator from Washington, Henry Jackson, has been hoisted as a banner by Democrats deserting to the Republican Party. It also has been waved as a kind of bloody flag against arms control. But the defense Democrats figure to stay in their party as Sen. Jackson did. Unlike him, they aim to ease tension with Russia, and they consider arms control a positive element of national security.

The clout of the defense Democrats on substantive issues is certain. Pentagon procurement scandals have stripped influence from Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and his entourage. Even within the Republican Party, the Defense Department is losing budget battles almost every day. When it comes to procurement policy, many Republicans in the Congress sound as though they are trying to cover up the scandals. So Democratic support is necessary to hold the line on crucial projects.

On the Senate side, Sam Nunn of Georgia — the ranking minority member of the Armed Services Committee and the true heir to Sen. Jackson as a defense expert — virtually dictated the terms of the 1986 defense budget. On the House side, Chairman Les Aspin and some fellow members of the Armed Services Committee have been holding the fort against the liberals dominating the Democratic majority.

Ten days ago they supplied the formula whereby the Congress backed limited American aid to the "contras" fighting the Sandinista regimem in Nicaragua. Last week in full House debate on the Senate budget, they passed a brace of different measures.

First they kept alive limited funding for the MX missile as a bargaining chip in arms control negotiations. They also raised, by $150 million, funding for another missile — the Midgetman — designed to stabilize nuclear weapons in this country and the Soviet Union. They sustained a program for manufacture of chemical weapons by safe modern methods (binary production) instead of relying on dangerous and leaky stocks.

And they finally approved funding for the Strategic Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars," that gives ample money to research projects, but denies it to anything, notably testing, that might undermine the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty of 1972.

This coming week will be given over to derense procurement. Aspin sees a danger in quick fixes. He notes that much of what went wrong in the past resulted from inefficient remedies indiscriminately applied by the Congress. He cites three celebrated cases — the $400 hammer sold to the Navy for the F-18 fighter; the $600 pair of pliers sold to the Air Force for the B-52; and the $1,000 cover for a three-legged stool sold to the Air Force for the AWACS radar defense plane. All were spare parts.

After Congress mandated competitive bidding on basic systems, those costs came down, but prices for spare parts soared. To demand competitive bidding for spare parts would make a new problem in getting warrants from the original suppliers, who would not undertake to fix the equipment of their competitors.

To be sure, the defense Democrats are wary of being co-opted for what could turn into a whitewash of existing policies. Thus Aspin refused membership on the blue-ribbon commission established last week by President Reagan under former Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard. Aspin also entertains doubts about the circus of a prosecutorial approach like that of the committee on defense production headed by Harry Truman during World War II. "We can do a lot of harm if we get it wrong," Aspin says as he leans toward a more cautious investigation.

Joseph Kraft's reports on Washington, national affairs and trends are distributed nationally by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Rule on carports confuses resident

To the editor: I have lived in Big Spring for 23 years. This has always been a nice place to live, but lately I have become very confused about some of the ordinances we have.

We recently built a carport in the front of our house over one half of our driveway. This carport does not obstruct the view of our neighbors and is 26 feet from the sidewalk.

We did not obtain a permit which violates Section 106.1 of the City Building Code and subjects us to prosecution in Corporation Court. However, we were told if we had applied for a permit, one would not have been granted.

The zoning ordinance requires that a 25-foot front yard be maintained, which we complied with. In our case, however, there is a special front regulation that if all the houses are set back at a distance greater than the 25-foot minimum, all new buildings must observe the established building line.

The ordinance states that you must maintain this front yard. Apparently it doesn't matter if the house is falling down around you, weeds grown as high as the roof, or three or four wrecked cars in front. As long as you don't build a carport that will make all of these houses look out of line.

We could build one in the back off the alley with no problem as far as a permit (is concerned). All we have to worry about is how to get a car in or out of the alley when it rains or snows.

There are houses in our neighborhood that have been in the same condition for at least twelve years. If we can live with this, why do the city officials care if our houses are all in a straight line or not? It seems to me that ordinances made in 1961 could be changed to the living standards of 1985.

Everyday carnival is little girl's idea

To the editor: I'm just a girl age 9 and I seem to love things like circuses, carnivals and zoos. (I love animals.) But to get to them I usually have to go out of town. I would like if we (the city of Big Spring) could manage to build an everyday carnival of something like that.

Me and my grandmother were going to go to the carnival Sunday but it was already gone. If we build one maybe it should be called The City of Big Spring's Everyday Carnival.

I'm sure little and big kids would love it.

Israelis decided to ice hunt for Mengele 20 years ago

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — The most puzzling aspect of the Josef Mengele story was the strange reluctance of Israel to track down the death-camp doctor and bring him to justice.

Israel, after all, is the principal refuge of Holocaust survivors, including that pitifully small number who encountered the Auschwitz "Angel of Death" and lived to tell about it.

Likewise, the West German government did not exactly cover itself with glory in the 40-year search for Mengele. The Germans undoubtedly would be delighted to have the case officially closed.

Our associate Lucette Lagnado has interviewed officials of Mossad, Israel's respected intelligence service, who made clear that for two decades the search for the war criminal had a low priority.

Even after Mengele became the world's most wanted fugitive, with a price of $3.5 million on his head, the Israeli manhunt rested on the shoulders of a lone investigator. His name is Menachem Russek, and he works out of a tiny office in the Tel Aviv police headquarters.

For various reasons, the Israeli government made a conscious decision to leave Mengele in peace more than 20 years ago. Here are the curious details of the lukewarm Israeli search for the man who was held responsible for the deaths of 400,000 Jews.

• In the early 1960s, Israeli agents in Argentina were ready to grab Mengele after capturing Adolf Eichmann. The agents had Mengele's address in Buenos Aires and had studied his daily routine. But the successful kidnapping of Eichmann alarmed Mengele, and he skipped across the border into the Paraguayan jungles.

• In 1962-63, teams of Mossad agents scoured Europe and South America for clues to Mengele's hiding place. They located him in Paraguay. But Mengele's hideout was too remote and too heavily guarded.

• After 1963, with the resignation of Mossad chief Issar Harel, the Mengele search was all but called off, as the secret service concentrated on the growing threat of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

• In 1977, with the no-nonsense Menachem Begin as prime minister, Mossad was asked once again to find Mengele. But the doctor's trail had grown cold.

Israel concluded, meanwhile, that it needed all the friends it could get in the United Nations, even if this meant courting Latin American governments that might have harbored Mengele or known his whereabouts. The Israelis also were reluctant to pursue Mengele so aggressively that the Jewish communities in countries like Paraguay would be hurt by an anti-Israel backlash.

All these factors combined to bring the Israeli effort where it is today: in the hands of Russek, an aging and determined Tel Aviv cop and Auschwitz survivor. Most Israeli officials would be happy to have the Mengele case closed for good — the embarrassment of their efforts through the years buried along with the Nazi arch-criminal.

The West Germans obviously have even less reason to want Mengele alive, captured and brought to trial. Perhaps that's why West German prosecutor Hans Eberhard Klein was so eager to proclaim his belief that the skeleton exhumed in Brazil was probably Mengele. Throughout Bonn's halfhearted effort to bring Mengele to justice, Klein has taken refuge in the West German law that forbids him to search outside the country's borders.

The story of our own 25-year search for Mengele appeared in Parade magazine on Sunday, June 30.

FUDDLE FACTORY: You may have heard the adage that if you build a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to your door. The federal bureaucrats, accordingly, tried to build a better mousetrap. They called it a "rodent elimination device." They wrote specifications that went on and on for 102,000 words.

Media control: Hostages vs. the lawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, which complained bitterly about Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri's skillful use of the media to exploit the American hostages, demonstrated its own extraordinary ability to manipulate the news as the hostages flew to freedom.

But the television networks, which are at the center of the controversy over who used whom, showed they can muster some muscle of their own — even enough to tell the White House when it can water the lawn.

As the 39 Americans rode out of Lebanon in a Red Cross convoy, White House officials prepared to swamp reporters with their version of events.

A "senior administration official" was made available to reporters for the New York Times, Washington Post and Baltimore Sun with the understanding a transcript of the session would be distributed to other members of the White House press corps on condition that the official not be identified by name.

And because there already had been one hitch that delayed the hostages' release, the White House added one more condition: If for some reason the Americans were not freed, the reporters were never to reveal the interview had taken place.

The same official and others also gave "background" interviews to Time and Newsweek, which held their weekly editions open well past normal deadlines to include the hostages' release.

After the 39 Americans were safely aboard a U.S. Air Force jet out of the Middle East, President Reagan addressed the nation live from the Oval Office to celebrate their release. He answered no questions, but the president's brief remarks were followed almost immediately by a short news conference by Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

When Shultz finished, the White House released the transcript of the interview with the "senior administration official." Also released was a seven-page chronology of the hijacking and subsequent events highlighting Reagan's role in directing U.S. diplomatic efforts to secure the hostages' freedom.

But even the White House can't control everything. ... It took only about 20 minutes for the lawn-watering order to be reversed.

As the White House knows, the television networks aren't satisfied with "background" information because they get no pictures to go with it. They much prefer — and are more likely to use — information provided in an on-camera interview, particularly if it is conducted by one of their own correspondents or anchor people. And that is just what each one got.

Shultz's news conference was followed by a series of 10-minute, back-to-back interviews granted by national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane to each of the major television networks.

McFarlane's comments were similar in almost every respect to those of the "senior administration official," except he suggested to Independent Network News the United States would strike at "the root sources of terrorism where people are trained, where they are housed, fed, sustained over time, and there are two or three strategic locations in the Middle East, in particular, where that is the case."

The senior official had said the terrorists responsible for the hijacking "are not very vulnerable, and they know darn well they are not vulnerable to reprisals."

"It is manifestly infensible ... to conduct violent raids against them," the unidentified official said.

Despite that seeming contradiction, the result of the White House barrage was that the administration's account of how it freed the hostages dominated practically all news of the event during the first 12 hours when most impressions of what happened were formed.

But even the White House can't control everything.

On June 26, assistant press secretary Mark Weinberg announced that the North Lawn, where the network cameras are set up for correspondents to do their "standups" with the White House behind them, would be watered between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m. the following day and all equipment would have to be removed before that time.

ABC News bureau chief George Watson said he considered the matter in the category of "an act of God," like a natural rainstorm, and was inclined to comply. But his fellow bureau chiefs wouldn't stand for it.

They had no intention of giving up their most important backdrop during a time of crisis, when their White House correspondents were doing regular "live" spots for the highly competitive morning shows. To go inside would mean setting for a backdrop in the White House press briefing room, where deputy press secretary Larry Speakes has hung a blue-tinted plaster plaque of the executive mansion that looks suspiciously like a castoff from one of Washington's least fashionable souvenir parlors.

It took only about 20 minutes for the lawn-watering order to be reversed. Here is the text of a written "Notice to the Press" issued the following day: "The North Lawn of the White House will be watered tomorrow morning, June 28th. All equipment should be removed by 9:45 a.m."

There were no complaints when the sprinklers went on because that was the day the president traveled to Chicago Heights, Ill., and the press corps went with him. Weinberg refused to discuss the matter.

Software is rated before it is put to use

"Spelling Sorcery" is a computer program meant to help third graders spell. Instead, it left Gloria Catanzaro, very much an adult, muttering at her computer terminal.

"Sure doesn't come with much documentation," she said. "It's not telling me what to do. I'm not learning anything. I'm going to hit the 'escape' button because I don't know what I'm doing."

"This," added Ms. Catanzaro, who evaluates educational software for New York City schools, "is why we have reviews."

Five years into the classroom computer revolution, the market is crowded with some 7,000 educational software programs, the computerized lessons that pop up on terminal screens. The nation's schools spent an estimated $160 million on software in 1984.

Some of that software is good, much of it is wretched.

With such wide variation in software quality, teachers welcome software reviews and advice on whether a program is entertaining, easy to use, appropriate for a particular grade level, and free of racial or ethnic stereotypes and of factual or grammatical errors.

Educational researchers say school software is slowly improving, thanks partly to the proliferation of reviews.

Unfortunately, say some critics, the reviews — like the software they evaluate — are not all they could be.

Among the problems cited: unfavorable reviews rarely get printed; published reviews too often fail to compare similar programs; at least two software evaluators — the New York City Board of Education and the National Education Association — charge publishers fees to review their programs, and few reviewers consistently field-test programs in classroom settings.

Among the sources teachers can now tap for software reviews are such magazines as Family Computing, Electronic Learning and Classroom Computer Learning; state and local school boards, including those of Minnesota, California, North Carolina, Florida, New York City, Baltimore County, and Iowa City, Iowa; the National Education Association, and the EPIE Institute, a nonprofit group affiliated with Consumers Union.

Not all reviewers have all the problems cited. EPIE, for instance, publishes unfavorable reviews, and the NEA, New York City and Minnesota field-test at least some software in classroom settings.

But in general, said Roy Pea, an educational computer specialist at the Bank Street College of Education in New York. "Reviewers don't involve kids very much at all."

Gloria Catanzaro works at a computer terminal at the New York City Board of Education offices in Brooklyn, N.Y., last week. Catanzaro evaluates computer programs.

"Unfortunately, that's not a predominant feature of our review process," said Vergie Cox, director of media evaluations of the North Carolina department of education.

Ms. Cox explained that field-testing took more time than many teacher-reviewers had and that some software publishers had expressed concern that such testing increased the potential for copyright violation.

While acknowledging that poor software is still common, reviewers are reluctant to pan bad programs, preferring instead to boost the good.

"Newsroom," a program published by Springboard Software Inc., retailing for about $50, has gotten raves from Ms. Catanzaro and other reviewers. It teaches youngsters of nearly all ages to put together a newsletter, complete with lively graphics.

Another well-received program, "Number Garden" by Software Guild, teaches arithmetic to student with learning problems. Give a right answer and a flower appears in a garden on the screen with a musical jingle. Answer incorrectly and the garden sprouts a weed.

"Spelling Sorcery," selling for about $20, is a loser as far as Ms. Catanzaro is concerned. The instructions were so confusing that it took her 13 tries to successfully complete the first lesson: spelling the word "am."

"We do not print bad reviews," said Lawrence Fedewa, head of the Educational Computer Service of the NEA, the largest U.S. teachers union. "We inform publishers of our findings. If it's something that's reasonably easy to fix, we'll work with them if they want. But it's not our intention to sabotage the industry. We felt it would be more constructive to encourage those who are doing well."

"Almost nobody publishes negative reviews, but I happen to think it would be good to publish reviews that say 'yea' or 'nay.' The bad software would dwindle more quickly," said Walter Koetke, director of technology of Scholastic Inc., which produces educational software.

Critics, including some producers themselves, have said typical reviews suffer because they almost always focus on single programs.

Karen Lansing, a spokeswoman for Springboard Software Inc. of Minneapolis, which produces "Newsroom" and other highly regarded educational software, said comparative reviewing would make evaluations fairer and more meaningful.

For example, it's almost impossible to find a review that compares, say, half a dozen programs aimed at teaching elementary arithmetic.

"I've read glowing reviews of software I think is real garbage. We would welcome reviews that compared our products to others," she said.

Few reviewing practices have drawn more fire than the NEA policy of charging fees ranging from $200 to review a single uncomplicated program to as much as $20,000 for entire product lines.

The Software Publishers Association in Washington, in a recent report to its more than 130 members, argued that hardly anyone charges fees for reviews, and said that the fees were particularly unfair to smaller publishers. It urged its members to "utilize other evaluation services."

Don Ross, who with his wife, Barbara, started the 3-year-old Microcomputer Workshops in Port Chester, N.Y., a small but highly regarded educational software publisher, said he wanted nothing to do with the NEA.

Reports says life spans are longer in richer countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank reported Wednesday that people can expect to live longer in richer countries.

In 1983, it said, the average American earned $14,110 and a baby born that year in the United States could expect to live for 75 years.

Residents of the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait and Switzerland in 1983 had even bigger average incomes, the World Bank said, and children born in those nations during that year also had a long life expectancy.

It said the 1983 average income was $22,070 in the United Arab Emirates, $17,880 in Kuwait, and $16,290 in Switzerland.

The United Arab Emirates and Kuwait are small, oil-rich nations on the Persian Gulf, and the World Bank said, their free health services have helped give their residents a high life expectancy for the area: 71 years. It added people born in Switzerland in 1983 could expect to live for 79 years.

Among other countries with a longer life expectancy than the United States are Sweden, 78; Japan and Norway, both 77; and Italy, the Netherlands, Canada, and Australia, all 76.

'Great Snake Caper' solved by detective

ARLINGTON (AP) — As a burglary detective, Mike Sheehan has crossed paths with an odd assortment of property, but his most exotic find came this week when he recovered two snakes and two rare iguanas stolen from a Kansas zoo.

Sheehan calls the case "the Great Snake Caper," and gives most of the credit for solving it to a handful of Arlington and Fort Worth pet store owners, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Wednesday.

The caper began in late May shortly after five snakes and two iguanas, one of which is a member of an endangered species, were stolen from the zoo in Wichita, Kan.

Shortly after the reptiles were stolen, Stanley Grumbeck, manager of Seahorse Pet Store in Arlington, bought two Sinaloan milk snakes from a man.

But Grumbeck was suspicious about the purchase because the man had sold the snakes for $80 each, about half their value, the Star-Telegram said.

Grumbeck called a friend who is a curator of the Tyler Zoo's reptile house and asked him if he knew of any missing snakes from any zoos.

The employee relayed the information to a Wichita zoo employee at a recent conference.

Sheehan first learned about the case on Monday when a Wichita detective contacted him. And even though some of Sheehan's more bizarre finds have included English racing pigeons and a bilingual parrot, he was reluctant to believe the story.

"When I got the call, I told the detective: 'This has got to be a joke, someone put you up to this,'" Sheehan said.

But once he was assured that the story was for real, Sheehan began making the rounds of Arlington pet stores.

Sheehan discovered one pet store had bought one of the five reptiles — a boa constrictor — that it sold last week.

Grumbeck bought the milk snakes, one of which turned out to be pregnant, at another store.

A pet shop in Fort Worth was offered the two iguanas, but employees there first called a wholesaler who knew more about exotic animals, the detective said.

"The wholesaler knew immediately that the one iguana — a rhinoceros iguana — was rare and snatched it up," Sheehan said.

The rhino iguana is on the federal endangered species list and is valued at $750 to $1,000. The wholesaler knew someone might be looking for the reptile and kept it, Sheehan said.

Everyone who purchased the reptiles has cooperated with police and has agreed to return the purchases without demanding a refund, Sheehan said.

But the boa constrictor's whereabouts is not known, and the pet shop owner has said she will refund the buyer's money to get the snake back.

A 36-inch python and a third milk snake were still missing Thursday. Sheehan said the Wichita deputy asked him to be on the lookout for some more snakes stolen from the Hutecheson, Kan., zoo.

"Chasing snakes — every day is a new day at the Arlington Police Department," Sheehan said.

Blood test can spot vitamin deficiency

BOSTON (AP) — A new, 24-cent blood test can spot an inherited vitamin deficiency in newborns so that the disorder can be treated before it causes mental retardation or death, doctors say.

"We hope there are a lot of kids out there who we will ultimately find," said Dr. Barry Wolf, who headed a team of researchers at the Medical College of Virginia.

The disorder is called biotinase deficiency. Victims lack a crucial enzyme that allows their bodies to recycle the vitamin biotin.

Symptoms can include retardation, seizures, hearing loss, skin rash, baldness and loss of coordination, and it can lead to coma and death. The disorder can be easily treated with vitamin supplements, but since symptoms are often mild, permanent brain damage may occur before the disorder is diagnosed.

The Virginia doctors discovered the underlying cause of the disease and developed a screening test that can reveal the condition in newborn babies.

No one knows how common the disorder is, but the doctors estimate that it occurs in about one of every 40,000 children.

A report on their work was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The doctors used the screening test on 81,243 babies in Virginia last year, and they found the disorder in two of them. Wolf said both had mild symptoms that otherwise would have escaped notice. The two children were given biotin capsules and appear to be developing normally.

The doctors also discovered the disease in a brother and sister of one of the babies. These youngsters, ages 2 and 3, had begun to show learning and speech difficulties.

All states now test newborns for PKU, or phenylketonuria, and many also screen them for hypothyroidism, or cretinism.

Wolf said the new test is performed in laboratories with the same drop of blood on filter paper that is used to check for PKU. PKU occurs in one of every 15,000 or 20,000 children. The PKU tests cost 97 cents apiece, he said, while the new one will cost 24 cents.

Wolf said several states have expressed interest in trying the test, and it also will be used experimentally in Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

The goal is to find the disease soon after birth so it can be treated before irreversible harm occurs. Older children with the disease usually improve if they receive the vitamin, Wolf said, "but it depends on how severe the neurological episodes are, and some of them will have permanent damage and hearing loss."

If the new test is widely adopted, he said, the biggest problem will be convincing parents that their healthy-looking children have a potentially dangerous deficiency that requires daily doses of vitamins.

Counselor of the Year honored at reception

Employees of Big Spring State Hospital's Out Patient Clinic honored Evelyn Alsup at a reception Monday for being named Texas Association of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Counselors' Counselor of the Year.

The Permian Basin Big Spring Chapter of Texas Association of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselors nominated Alsup for the state award. To be eligible, she had to be a certified alcohol and drug abuse counselor and member of TAADAC.

Alsup was named Counselor of the Year at the TAADAC conference in Fort Worth June 21-23. From about 1,300 alcohol and drug abuse counselors in Texas, the Counselor of the Year award is presented to five counselors around the state for distinguished and dedicated service to alcohol and drug addicted people and for furthering the professionalism of TAADAC. Alsup also was awarded a certificate of appreciation by the Association.

Nominees for Counselor of the Year were judged according to their: work history in the field; counseling relationship with clients; awards and/or recognition accorded by civic, fraternal, legal and religious organizations for community service; awards, accomplishments and achievements from other health service professions; involvement in professional associations; and publications of papers, public presentations and/or teaching accomplishments.

About 10 years ago, the association was formed when alcohol and drug abuse counselor was a new profession. Alsup was involved in the beginning with the formation of the Association. Out of its birth, a certification board was formed. Today, a person must have about 200 hours, written and oral tests and be certified by the state to be an alcohol and drug abuse counselor.

Alsup has served her entire tenure at Big Spring State Hospital. She began working there in the alcohol and drug abuse unit of the hospital in 1970 and was made senior counselor in 1974. Soon after her husband, Clyde Alsup, was made administrator of the unit, she was transferred to the Out Patient Clinic as an alcohol and drug abuse counselor.

"I cooperate with the probation department and parole office in Big Spring. I conduct group therapy for probationers and parolees," she said Monday. "I provide education concerning the dynamics of chemical abuse and the related problems. I also do marital and family counseling and individual counseling with families (that have alcohol or drug abuse problems). We try to work with the patient in the community rather than admit them to the hospital."

Alsup screens patients before they are admitted to the hospital. For those that are admitted, she performs follow-up care, after care, and informs them of community resources available to help in making adjustments needed for returning to the community.

Farm Bureau plans queen and Talent Find contests

The Howard County Farm Bureau Queen Contest and Talent Find will be July 16 at 7 p.m. at Howard College's Cactus Room.

Several girls are expected to enter, after which the local winner will compete in the District Contest in Lamesa Aug. 9. The District winner will compete in the State Contest in November.

Entries are being accepted. Contestants must be from 16 to 21 years of age, single and never been married. Either their parents, grandparents, brother or sister must be a Farm Bureau member.

Heddy Wigington honored at shower

The home of Terri Blackshear was the site of a baby shower honoring Heddy Wigington June 4.

Hosting the event were Blackshear, Terri Johansen, Karen Porter, Paula Hull, Wanda Roman and Carla Wigington. They presented the honoree with a "Cuddle Shuttle" infant carrier car seat.

The shower followed the theme of the nursery featuring clowns and balloons on the cake and decorations.

Special guests were Burnell Wigington and Helen Danford, the baby's grandmothers, the honoree's niece Heddy Danford of Littleton, Colo., and the honoree's daughter Heddy Le'Ann Wigington.

Christopher Lyndon Wigington was born later, June 23, at Midland Memorial Hospital in Midland.

The winners of the Queen Contest and the Talent Find will each receive a $550 scholarship to Howard College. Judges for the contests are from out of town.

For information about entering the contests, contact the Howard County Farm Bureau office as soon as possible.

Dear Abby

In-law's material world is alien to woman

DEAR ABBY: My husband is one of four married brothers. All his brothers have beautiful homes, lovely furniture, new automobiles and certificates in the bank. My husband makes $20,000 a year. He could earn more, but he loves his job because it's so rewarding in other ways. He's a fine person and loves to help people. I work part-time as a waitress. We aren't foolish with our money, we pay our bills on time and save little or nothing.

The problem is his family get-togethers. (I have no family. I was raised in a children's home.) His brothers and their wives always discuss what new item they've acquired — their new car, VCR, motorcycle, etc. His parents have started to ask us when we are going to buy a house. (We save all year to buy them nice Christmas gifts.)

His brothers have children. We have none, and it haunts me to think that if we do have children, they will wonder why they can't have all the things their cousins have. I feel out of my league at these reunions with the sisters-in-law with big diamond engagement rings, designer clothes and their talk of what they have and the trips they take. (My husband isn't bothered by this at all.)

We have a warm, loving relationship, and I never feel "poor" — until I'm around his relatives.

Abby, I don't want to attend the August family reunion. I've asked my husband to go without me, but he says if he shows up alone, they might think we're having marital problems.

However, I don't want to subject myself to all the feelings of inferiority that surface. Our financial situation is not apt to change.

What do you think?

POOREST OF ALL
DEAR "POOREST": If you consider yourself "poorest" because you lack the material things your husband's relatives have, that could be your problem.

A warm, loving relationship with one's mate and contentment with your lot are more precious than designer clothes, diamonds and trips.

You could be the "richest" at the reunion, so please don't measure your wealth in dollars and cents. I say, go, hold your head up, and don't be blinded by the diamonds. Reassess what you have and don't sell yourself short.

This may be a tall order. If it's too tall at the moment, it's your privilege to avoid situations that are too painful to handle. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I was having a permanent wave at a first-class beauty parlor. While waiting for the solution to act, I noticed a large coffee urn with cups. Not having been offered a cup of coffee, I asked my beauty operator if I might have a cup. I was astonished when he replied, "No." He then hastily explained that drinking coffee while having a "perm" would affect the perm adversely. Other hairdressers in the shop agreed with him.

Have you ever heard of such a thing, Abby?

M.G.,
MANHATTAN BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR M.B.: No. And I asked my hairdresser, and neither had he. I'd say your hairdresser was rude. But only your hairdresser knows for sure.

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the lady who blows her nose at the dinner table whether she's in a restaurant or in someone's home. I can relate to that.

Whenever I eat something hot, my nose runs. (I have a sinus condition.) I can't just let my nose run, Abby; I have to blow my nose and clear my sinuses.

If you have a better suggestion, let's hear it.

ANOTHER NOSE BLOWER
DEAR BLOWER: Out of respect to your fellow diners, you could leave the table for the big blowout.

Dr. Donohue

Burning tongue causes are plentiful

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a 67-year-old female in good health, but with one gnawing problem — burning tongue. It's been bothering me for about a year now. Can you discuss the cause of this — nutritional, infection, etc.? — Mrs. O.W.

Let me just touch on some of the more common causes of burning tongue and mouth, a subject that occupies much of my mail. If one of them seems to hit close to home for you, your doctor can check it out and begin treatment.

• Dentures — Ill-fitted dentures can irritate mouth linings. They can also harbor infecting organisms, like the yeast, candida, which can produce sore tongue and mouth.

• Allergy — Often a food such as milk, oranges, tomatoes or chocolate is involved, but there's a wide list of others.

• Drugs — Again, the list is long, but you can check out medicines you're using against your doctor's list of known offenders.

• Nutritional deficiencies — Look to B vitamin lacking in the diet, a common finding in older people. Some vitamins are not properly absorbed because of digestive-tract problems.

• Menopause — For unexplained reasons, some women experience such soreness after their menopause.

• Anxiety can trigger such symptoms.

• Smoking and alcohol.

• Lichen planus — A specific problem of unknown cause that often affects mucous membrane areas.

• Thyroid overproduction — This can lead to various skin symptoms, including those of the tongue, as part of the resulting higher metabolism.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I go to bed, whichever side I lay on my ear hurts. It's where my jawbone is. It's like I have a bruise there, although I can't see any. I have been given ear drops by my doctor. I've been using them for two months but have no results. I'm going to have to do something soon, but I don't know what. Any suggestions? — L.F.

Why not pay a visit to your dentist. He can tell you if your temporomandibular joint is out of kilter. That's the jaw's hinge joint; it's right in front of the ears. It's worth a try. You may be barking up the wrong tree with ear drops.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Does the contraceptive pill discourage venereal disease? — J.D.

It may make cervical mucus less hospitable to bacteria and the uterine lining a less attractive place for growth of organisms associated with V.D.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1120, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Awesome Adventure reading program nears end at library

The "Awesome Adventure" summer reading program at the Howard County Library is nearing an end.

Time leaves its 350 participants until July 13 to complete 10 books to get their certificates, according to Donna Jackson, children's librarian.

There will be a closing party on July 18 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. for the reading program's participants. Certificates for those who have read 10 books will be distributed then.

The party will feature a costume contest with prizes awarded for costumes judged the most original, most unusual, most interesting, best looking, funniest and most authentic.

"Awesome Adventure" participants are also eligible for a coloring contest. The coloring sheets are available at the library.

The next Activity Day program will not be until Thursday, July 11 because of the July 4 holiday. The program will feature Alesa Dale and her parrot.

The winners of the coloring contest will be awarded ribbons and ice cream coupons at the Activity Day program. Members who draw a picture of an adventure they have been on or read will earn a ticket to the movie theater.

Swimming pool water disappears

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — As James Page prepared to dive into his swimming pool for a few early morning laps, he found himself confronting the same dilemma faced by thousands of cartoon characters — the water was missing.

There were no cracks in the pool, and the grass and pavement around it were completely dry.

"It was like the Twilight Zone," said Page. "There was nothing there. There was no sign where it all went."

He said thousands of gallons had simply disappeared with no trace.

The mystery ended later Tuesday when a pool repairman dropped by to say he was ready to patch the cracks in the pool, as the homeowner had requested the previous day.

After comparing addresses, the two men discovered the repairman had made a small error.

"The pool man went to the wrong house," said Page. "He drained my pool by mistake."

Family still haunted by memories of fatal tornado

FAIRVIEW, Pa. (AP) — One month after Sandra Stahlsmith's 6-year-old son died in her arms during a tornado, the pregnant woman and her family are starting over with a new home in a new town. But they are still tormented by memories.

"It's hard to have memories that don't torture you. Every day, every night, I can still see those horrible details. All I have to do is think about him, and I fall apart," said Mrs. Stahlsmith, 35.

"The pain goes deeper than anything I could feel. It goes into your heart. People tell me you never, never lose the pain, but it will get less horrible. I don't know if it will ever go away," she said in an interview.

The Stahlsmiths have four surviving children aged 1 to 9 and a baby due in November. On June 21, they closed a deal on a four-bedroom house on two acres in this Erie suburb with the insurance money they got for their battered home in Albion, located about 15 miles away. They plan to move in this week.

"We have to go on," said Mrs. Stahlsmith. "You can either lie down in defeat or rise up stronger than before and grit our teeth against the devil. We're choosing life. Who wants to lie down and grovel?"

The May 31 tornado that clobbered Albion, a blue-collar hamlet in Erie County, was part of a storm system that killed 64 people in Pennsylvania and caused an estimated $226 million in damage. Twenty-four others died that day in tornadoes in Ohio and Ontario, Canada.

Warned by a neighbor, Mrs. Stahlsmith herded her five children into the basement and huddled against the fruit cellar wall. The wall collapsed, pinning Mrs. Stahlsmith and Luke against a table. They were trapped for 30 minutes while the others scrambled to safety.

"I felt my little boy under my arm getting crushed, and he stopped breathing. He took two breaths — two deep gurgles. He died in my arms," said Mrs. Stahlsmith.

"It was breaking my heart because I couldn't do anything. I couldn't move a muscle. It felt like the whole house caved in on me, and I could not budge. This thing just buried me.

"I figured we were all going to die. I said, 'Children, I think we're all going to be with Jesus real soon. Just close your eyes and go to sleep. When of God has really smoothed things out," said Bill Stahlsmith, 38, a construction worker.

The Stahlsmith family of Fairview, Pa., is starting life over in a new house.

"You have dreams for your son. Then all of a sudden, the dreams all stop. There's a blank, an empty space. This was so sudden, so permanent," he said, his voice breaking with emotion.

Since the tornado, the Stahlsmiths have stayed with their pastor at the non-denominational Grace Fellowship Church in Erie. For the past five years, they had tried to sell their Albion house to move closer to the church.

"We wanted to move, but not like this," said Mrs. Stahlsmith. "I don't have feelings for a house. It's just a thing. Things can be replaced, not a life."

Three days after the tragedy, photos of Luke in white cap and gown at his kindergarten graduation arrived in the mail.

His mother remembers his blonde curls and blue eyes, the times he threw paper airplanes made from church bulletins, the wheelies he did on a birthday bicycle last December, the songs he learned from her to play on the piano.

"It seems like everywhere I'd go, all I could see was Luke. We went to the beach one day and I could still see him playing in the sand the way he did the last time we were there," Mrs. Stahlsmith said.

"I feel angry he was cheated out of his life. I can't blame God for that though. It was not in God's plan to squeeze out his little life," she said. "I want joy to return, but joy is going to be a long time coming. Even when it's a beautiful sunny day, there's still that grayness."

we wake up, we'll be with Jesus," Mrs. Stahlsmith said.

"Sometimes I wonder why I couldn't have died with him. But that's selfish. These other kids need me. I prayed I would live so I could take care of the rest of them."

Mrs. Stahlsmith was hospitalized overnight with bruises. She has received 100 letters from around the country and has answered each one. A group of fourth graders in Erie sent $55 they had saved for a summer field trip.

The solace from the letters and their faith has consoled them, the family said.

"This is a real trauma, a real crisis. But the peace

On a recent visit to the new home, Mrs. Stahlsmith stopped to count her children as she shooed them to the family's yellow station wagon parked under a weeping willow.

"I keep looking for Luke," she said. "I keep thinking there's one missing."

July 4th brings grisly reminder of city's fire

BEVERLY, Mass. (AP) — In her dreams lately, Lydia Maciejowski's son asks her why she buried him. Other relatives of the 14 people killed in the worst fire in the city's history have left town, rather than relive their anguish at a memorial service a year after the Fourth of July rooming house blaze.

Eugene Maciejowski, 37, was a patient at Danvers State Hospital before moving to the seedy Elliott Chambers Hotel just three weeks before the blaze.

Investigators are searching for an arsonist, but no suspects have been charged. Tougher fire laws, promised after the tragedy, died in the Legislature.

Many of Beverly's poor, elderly and mentally handicapped people have been forced out of places like the Elliott Chambers because a crackdown to get landlords to meet long-existing fire codes has sent rents up.

"It's not over now, still," said the Rev. Jim Hegley of the nearby First Baptist Church. "There are a lot of people still suffering."

The pre-dawn fire raced up the stairs of the old three-story rooming house and through the top floor, trapping six people in their beds. Others died while trying to beat down a locked entryway. One man died after jumping from a third-story window.

By Charlie Alcorn

A pair of Howard College baseball standouts recently signed scholarships with the University of Texas Arlington according to the sports information office at UTA.

Mark Howell, a hard hitting outfielder who was chosen by the New York Mets in this year's baseball draft, will likely be used in the designated hitters spot for the Movin' Mavs.

HC pitcher Doug Myres, who won 14 games while pitching two seasons for the Hawks, should move into the starting rotation for the Mavs early next season.

Congratulations to both these fine players.

CHARLIE KUYKENDALL of Big Spring holds the 8 and half pound black bass he caught at Moss Creek Lake on July 1. Local fishermen have been taking advantage of the recent grasshopper inundation, using the insects as bait. Several record breaking catches have been made using the jumbo hoppers this summer.

Texan humbles McEnroe

Defending champ ousted

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND (AP) — Defending champion and top-seeded John McEnroe was eliminated from the Wimbledon tennis championships today, beaten 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 in the quarterfinals by Kevin Curren, the No. 8 seed.

With McEnroe's defeat, which followed Monday's elimination of second-seeded Ivan Lendl, No. 3 seed Jimmy Connors emerged as the highest remaining seed in the semifinals after beating Chilean qualifier Ricardo Acuna 6-1, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2.

Connors and Curren will meet in one semifinal while Anders Jarryd of Sweden, the No. 5 seed, will face unseeded 17-year-old Boris Becker of West Germany in the other.

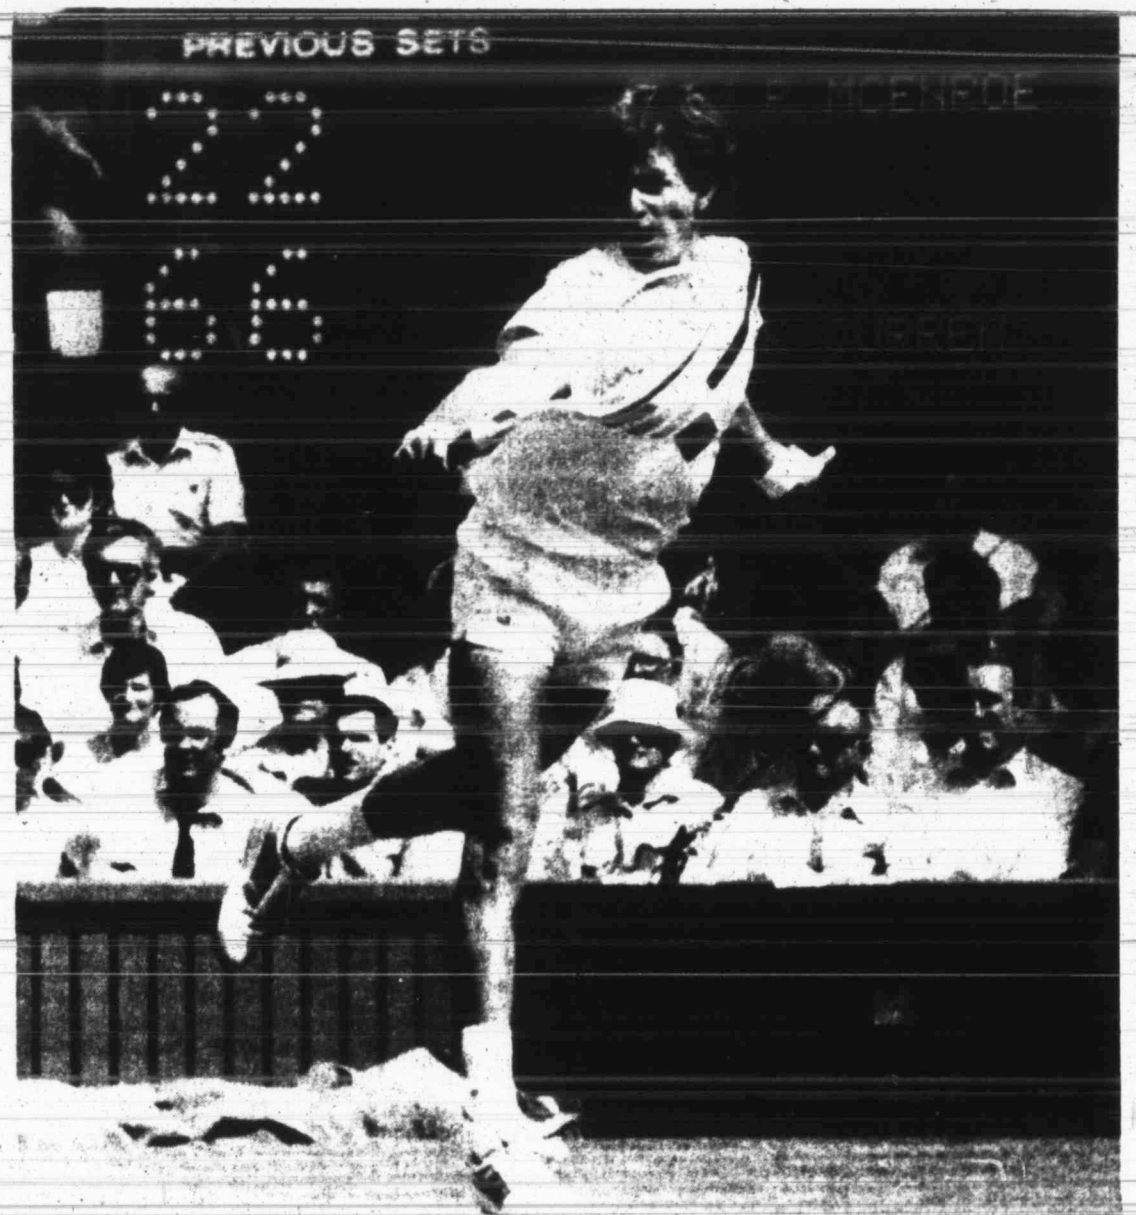

Jarryd beat Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 while Becker, the rising young star of European tennis, continued his relentless charge through the championships, serving 12 aces on the way to 7-6 (9-7), 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Henri Leconte of France.

He is the youngest player ever to reach the semifinals of the men's singles at Wimbledon.

Curren, whose power serve, sharp returns and lightning passing shots contrasted with a strangely listless McEnroe, won in one hour, 49 minutes to reach the semifinals for the second time in his career.

McEnroe, who was aiming to become the first American to win the Wimbledon men's singles crown three straight times, could not handle the pace of Curren's game and appeared mentally and physically slow.

The 26-year-old New Yorker won the title in 1981, 1983, and 1984 and had not lost a singles match here since Jimmy Connors beat him in KEVIN CURREN of Austin, Texas reached the Wimbledon semifinals by defeating defending champion John McEnroe in three straight sets.

Door open for Jimmy

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Title-hungry Jimmy Connors reached his 10th Wimbledon singles' semifinal Wednesday by beating qualifier Ricardo Acuna of Chile in straight sets.

Connors saw the door to a third Wimbledon title open a little wider when top-seeded and defending champion John McEnroe was eliminated as was No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl a day earlier.

But consistent Anders Jarryd of Sweden and 17-year-old West German prodigy Boris Becker loomed in the other half of the draw, and McEnroe's conqueror, Kevin Curren, facing him in the semifinal, the 32-year-old left-hander from Sanibel Harbor, Fla., will not talk about his title chances.

Elliot favored in Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — His nickname is "Awesome Bill from Dawsonville," and he's the favorite in the Pepsi Firecracker 400 Grand National stock car race Thursday.

Bill Elliott from Dawsonville, Ga., who will be aiming for his eighth super-speedway victory in his last 10 starts on tracks one mile or more in length, won the pole position for the July 4 event with a lap of 201.523 mph.

It will not be surprising if he duplicates his victory in the Daytona 500 here in February, when he ran away from the field.

The other teams are hoping that NASCAR's new rule requiring carburetor restrictor plates might slow the sleek Ford Thunderbirds run by Elliott and a few others. But, despite slower overall speeds in the searing heat of July in Florida, Elliott remained the fastest, and the Fords of Cale Yarborough and Ricky Rudd were not far behind.

"I think the three will go off and then you're going to see another race" among the rest, said Geoff Bodine, whose Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS will start from the fifth position.

The 400-mile race on Daytona's high-banked 2.5-mile tri-oval will start at 10 a.m. EDT, an attempt to beat the midday heat.

Still, temperatures during the race are expected to reach the mid-90s, with the Florida humidity adding to the discomfort of the drivers.

"It's another race," said Elliott. "You get used to the heat. There's really nothing you can do about it anyway, except live with it."

It seems that's the only thing that most of the other drivers can do about Elliott's winning ways this year — live with it.

Waltrip won 12 races in both 1981 and 1982, when he won his championships. But, for the most part, he was not winning as easily as Elliott has done in several races.

BILL ELLIOT, who is sitting on the pole for the Firecracker 400 Grand National stock car race, is looking to win his ninth race in 11 starts this year on the Pro Stock circuit.

Flyweights head for disputed rematch

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World Boxing Council President Jose Sulaiman said Tuesday he will request a rematch between Mexico's Gabriel Bernal and Sot Chitalada of Thailand after their controversial WBC flyweight championship bout.

Sot, the defending champion, fought a draw on June 22 in Bangkok, Thailand, and therefore kept the title.

At a news conference, Sulaiman said he will recommend that the council's executive committee, based in Mexico City, study the videotape of the fight and approve a "direct rematch."

He said the final decision on a rematch would be made within 15 days and would depend on a two-thirds majority of the committee's 21 votes.

The Thai fighter and Bernal fought 12 rounds last month, with judges Malcolm Bulner of Australia and Angelo Poletti of Italy calling the outcome a draw. Martin Denkin of the United States awarded the decision to Sot. Sulaiman said the outcome "is not unfair, but it is extremely controversial."

During the fight, Bernal attacked Sot methodically, knocking him down twice. He also opened up a cut on the Thai fighter's left eyebrow.

Sot, who is known for his speed, eluded many of Bernal's punches and managed to prevent being cornered.

Red hot Miller ready to swing in Houston Mazda Classic golf

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — At the start of the 1983 Ladies Professional Golf Association season, Alice Miller was looking for a tournament victory — any tournament victory.

But Thursday, with newly defined goals, she'll start as a favorite in the $300,000 Mazda Hall of Fame Classic seeking an honor, any honor.

"I'm after any of the top honors," Miller said. "I'd love to get the Vare Trophy, the Mazda Series, Player of the Year, anything, I'll take it."

Miller's perspective has changed since she blossomed into the hottest golfer on the women's tour this year. She has won four tournaments and a record $318,250.

Other top contenders for the $45,000 first prize include Nancy Lopez, Pat Bradley and Amy Alcott, second, third and fifth, respectively, on the money winning list.

Eight of the top 10 money winners are entered in the tournament, being played at the LPGA's home course at Sweetwater Country Club.

Miller, who already has broken the single-season earnings record with six months left on the schedule, says she's keeping her winning spree in the back of her mind.

"I'm trying to put that off until the off-season because I've got 10 or 12 tournaments more to play and I want to continue to play well," she said.

"I've had trouble burning out in the summer before and I'm going to schedule myself to avoid that and see if I can avoid the emotional letdown of 'Oh, wow, look what I've done.' I want to postpone that."

Miller has taken her meteoric rise in stride, similar to the way she attacks a golf course.

"I'm pretty laid-back and easy going, and that may be deceiving to some people," she said. "Some people say once you get the desire, you'll be tough to beat. But when the heat is on and it comes down to being in contention, I want to win just as much as the next person."

"I'm trying to beat the golf course and not the golfer. I'm out there trying to squeeze the lowest score on that given day. I'm not fired up to beat Nancy Lopez or Patty Sheehan. It's more that I want to beat that course."

Miller says her attitude has helped keep her calm despite the added media attention.

"There are a lot of girls out here with a lot more talent than me, but they don't scratch the surface and I think attitude has a lot to do with that," Miller said.

"I'm not the type of player that goes out and makes seven birdies in a row. I'm methodical and boring actually."

Miller can't attribute her success to anything but hard work.

"My swing's gotten to the point that it holds up well under pressure. I think of myself as a very good putter. I think of myself as a pretty good pressure player," she said.

Juli Inkster, winner of last week's Lady Keystone Open, also is in the 144-player field for the 72-hole event over the par-72, 6,472-yard Sweetwater course.

LPGA dedicates Hall of Fame

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — Patty Berg and other members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Hall of Fame remember some of the more austere moments of the early women's pro golf tour.

"It's taken us a long time to find a home," Berg said Tuesday as she witnessed the opening of the LPGA's Hall of Fame at the Sweetwater Country Club. "I remember when we played five tournaments a year with five players for $500. Now it's the greatest organization in the world."

Sandra Haynie, another inductee, marveled at the progress in prize money that modern-day pros will shoot for beginning Thursday in the $300,000 Mazda Hall of Fame Championships.

"We used to play an entire year for $200,000," Haynie said.

Facilities also have changed, said JoAnne Carner, the most recent inductee, who was elected in 1982.

"I don't very often take an elevator to the locker room," she said, complimenting the accommodations at Sweetwater.

The veteran women pros reminisced about the early days of the women's tour and visited the new facility at Sweetwater, the home base for the LPGA.

"I think we've come a long way," said Berg, pointing out her first pro victory netted her a $100 war bond in 1941.

The winner of the 72-hole event beginning Thursday will earn $45,000.

Other Hall of Famers attending the dedication were Betty Jameson and Louise Suggs, 1951; Betsy Rawls, 1960; Kathy Whitworth, 1975; Carol Mann, 1977; and Carner.

Mickey Wright, a 1984 inductee, did not attend. The only other member of the Hall is the late Babe Didrikson Zaharias, admitted in 1951.

Acceptance into the Hall of Fame is one of the most difficult in sport. A player must be a member of the tour a minimum of 10 consecutive years and win 30 regular tour events, including two major tournaments, or obtain 35 victories and one major, or 40 tour victories.

The hall originally was housed in Augusta, Ga., and moved to Pinehurst, N.C., in 1977.

"The superstars of today's game don't have to look very far to find their roots," LPGA Commissioner John Laupheimer said. "Our heritage is a living heritage."

Wimbledon

reached the semifinals. Garrison, the No. 8 seed, rallied to beat qualifier Molly Van Nostrand 2-6, 6-3, 6-0, while Rinaldi scored a 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 victory over Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia.

Curren, a native South African who received American citizenship in March, blasted McEnroe off the court with his power hitting.

"I'm a much more mature player, these days," said Curren, who is 27 and has been on the pro tour for six years.

"For the first two sets, I played very good grass court tennis. I knew if I could get some returns in, I'd have a chance."

After the first four games had gone with serve, Curren ripped off five in a row to take the opening set and gain a quick break in the second.

The match burst into controversy midway through the second set when McEnroe, already a break down, questioned a Curren service.

As umpire David Howe declined to overrule his service judge and asked McEnroe to play on, a fan in the crowd shouted, "Don't worry, John."

That, in turn, upset Curren, and the confusion continued when McEnroe was given a warning for unsportsmanlike conduct for pursuing the original line-call argument and muttering sarcastically.

At that point, McEnroe called for tournament referee Alan Mills and Grand Prix supervisor Ken Farrar, and after more heated debate, the match continued with Curren holding serve for a 3-1 lead.

Three stunning service returns gave Curren, the world's ninth-ranked player, another break for a 5-2 lead, and he went on to win the set.

McEnroe improved slightly in the third set, but still played with little imagination or intensity.

From 3-3, Curren won eight consecutive points for a 5-3 lead before McEnroe, his title slipping away, narrowed the gap by holding serve.

But in the next game, Curren won the match on his second match point when McEnroe fired a forehand far over the baseline.

Jarryd, the No. 5 seed, never had gotten past the first round at Wimbledon in four previous appearances.

But his speed was too much for Gunthardt, who was playing in the quarterfinals of a Grand Slam tournament for the first time.

Gunthardt, who had served 74 aces in his first four matches, was not nearly as devastating against Jarryd.

Only once did Gunthardt look like he could win when, at 4-4 in the opening set, had four break points.

But Jarryd saved them all and moved confidently through the rest of the match and into the semifinals.

"TRADE-IN? We're not gonna get rid of our good OLD car, are we?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 5, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is neither the day nor the evening to force any issues and acting in an unpredictable or difficult manner can throw others off the support and backing you might need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't try to force dynamic friends to go along with your ideas at this time, otherwise you can lose them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care you do not go against the wishes of higher-ups or you can really get in Dutch. Follow every rule and regulation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are anxious to get into new interests, but this is not a propitious time for that. Gain further information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Your intuition is not working as well as usual, so rely on your mature judgment only. Avoid arguments.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A partner could try to coerce you into going along with radical ideas you do not like, so desist. Avoid making permanent decisions today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Schedule your work wisely in the morning and then carry through despite any annoyances that may arise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You had better postpone that costly pleasure you have in mind until you can afford it better. Show affection for your loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are not thoughtful and kind at home, there could be bedlam there today. Show that you are sensible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Much care must be exercised in motion of all kind, especially in driving today and tonight. Avoid being sarcastic today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure you act in a practical way where your finances and property is concerned or you could suffer a big loss.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't let that quirk of humor you possess go too far today otherwise you could get into trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You had better handle that responsibility if you want to get rid of the blues. Add to present assets.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a born trouble-shooter and should have the education slanted along such lines for best results throughout the lifetime. Early teach to be more objective and use energy wisely and help others with their troubles.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

PUBLIC NOTICE
 CITY OF BIG SPRING PUBLIC WORKS DIVISION
 PUBLIC NOTICE
 IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE MAXIMUM CONTAMINATE LEVELS FOR TRIHALOMETHANES
 The City of Big Spring is required under the Safe Drinking Water Act to reduce the maximum contaminate levels for Trihalomethanes below the 100 micrograms per liter limit. In order to comply with this public law the City of Big Spring will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant in the treatment process and to maintain a residual throughout the distribution system. The combination of chlorine with ammonia does not allow the chlorine to alternately combine with the naturally occurring organic acids to form Trihalomethanes. Thus, the system will be able to be in compliance with the maximum contaminate levels for Trihalomethanes.
 The change from the previous routine of water treatment to the use of Chloramines at the treatment plant can cause serious problems to persons dependent on dialysis machines then Carbon Filters are not employed to prepare for the dialysate. A condition known as Hemolytic anemia can occur. Therefore, the general public is hereby placed on notice that on July 15, 1985, the water treatment with process within the City of Big Spring water system will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant. Dialysis patients may be affected by this change, therefore, it is imperative that the pre-treatment scheme used for dialysis units provides some means such as, charcoal filters for the removal of the chlorinating (disinfecting) agent. In addition, the use of Chloramines for disinfecting the potable water system will require different pre-treatment prior to being utilized in aquariums and other uses where the disinfectant agent would prove a hazard to the proposed use. Anyone having any questions with respect to this process, are urged to contact the Director of Public Works or the Big Spring Health Department.

Mariners downs Chisox, 5-1; Mets club Pirates, 6-2

CHICAGO (AP) — Al Cowens broke a 1-1 tie with a two-out, two-run double in a four-run eighth inning to lead the Seattle Mariners to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Wednesday night.

With the score tied 1-1 in the eighth, Alvin Davis reached on a fielder's choice, Gorman Thomas walked and Domingo Ramos was inserted as a pinch-runner for Davis. A wild pitch moved Ramos to third and Thomas to second, setting the stage for Cowens' double down the third base line and just out of the reach of White Sox third baseman Tim Lincecum.

Dave Henderson followed with a double, scoring Cowens and chasing reliever Dan Spillner, 2-2. Jim Presley walked and Bob Kearney then singled to score Henderson with the fourth run of the inning.

Seattle starter Bill Swift, 3-1, the first of three Mariner pitchers, was the winner.

Seattle jumped on top 1-0 in the third inning off starter Gene Nelson when Jack Perconte tripled and scored on Alvin Davis' double.

Chicago came back to tie the game 1-1 in the fifth when Ozzie Guillen doubled, went to third on a flyout and scored on Oscar Gamble's infield single.

The White Sox had leadoff doubles in the second, fifth and sixth innings but failed to produce a run each time.

Blue Jays 3, Yankees 2

TORONTO (AP) — Lloyd Moseby scored on New York's third baseman Mike Pagliarulo's throwing error and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Yankees 3-2 in 10 innings Wednesday.

Moseby started the 10th with a broken-bat single to right and promptly stole his 23rd base of the season. After Willie Upshaw walked, George Bell stroked a hard grounder to Pagliarulo, who, according to umpire Dan Morrison, missed tagging Moseby going to third. Pagliarulo then threw wildly to first, and Moseby raced home with the winning run.

Rich Bordi, 1-2, the third Yankee hurler, took the loss, while Jim Acker improved his record to 5-2 as the Blue Jays salvaged one game of the three-game series.

Toronto right-hander Dave Stieb went nine innings, allowed two runs on seven hits, struck out six and walked two. Stieb's league-leading earned run average rose to 1.94. Stieb has allowed two runs or less in his last nine games.

The Yankees, after leaving runners stranded in the first, third and fourth innings, finally got some clutch hitting in the fifth to tie the game 2-2.

Bobby Meacham and Omar Moreno stroked successive singles to center to start the inning, and Meacham came home on Willie Randolph's sacrifice fly to center. One out later, Moreno moved to second on Don Mattingly's single and scored on Dave Winfield's single.

The Blue Jays had nicked Niekro for a pair of runs in the first inning. Leadoff hitter Damaso Garcia reached first when struck by a knuckleball on the left elbow, then raced to third on Rance Mulliniks's single.

Moseby then hit into a fielder's choice, forcing Mulliniks at second, and stole his 22nd base of the season before Willie Upshaw drove Garcia home on a grounder. Bell then collected his club-leading 47th run batted in of the season with a single to center.

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foster hit a three-run homer, capping a four-run first inning, and Ed Lynch scattered nine hits Wednesday night to lead the New York Mets to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Foster's 12th home run came against Jose DeLeon, 2-11, the losing pitcher in the major leagues. The Pirates have now scored only 36 runs in 17 starts by DeLeon, who pitched seven innings and allowed just five hits, only two after the first inning.

Len Dykstra drew a leadoff walk from DeLeon in the first and took second on a single by Wally Backman. Dykstra then stole second and scored on a single by Keith Hernandez, who now has 10 game-winning RBI this season, tops in the major leagues.

Two outs later, Foster homered to left center-field, giving him 11 runs batted in during his last 11 games.

Lynch, 5-5, allowed Tony Pena's sixth home run in the fourth inning and another run in the ninth. Lynch struck out two and walked none in his fourth complete game.

The Mets added a run in the fourth when Darryl Strawberry lofted a flyball that right fielder George Hendrick lost in the lights for a ground-rule double. Strawberry took third on a grounder and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ray Knight.

New York's final run scored in the eighth on an RBI single by Gary Carter. Pittsburgh scored its second run in the ninth on Hendrick's run-scoring single.

A sellout crowd of 46,220 watched the game that was followed by a fireworks show.

Cubs 4, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ryne Sandberg, who extended his hitting streak to 15 games earlier, ripped a two-run double in the ninth inning to rally the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night before 56,092 fans, the largest crowd in the National League this season.

The crowd, which also saw a postgame fireworks show, saw the Phillies snap a 2-2 tie in the eighth on a bases-loaded single by Ozzie Virgil.

But ace reliever Kent Tekulve could not hold the lead and his record fell to 4-3.

With one out, pinch-hitter Thad Bosley and Billy Hatcher singled before Sandberg doubled to center. Reliever Lee Smith, who pitched two innings, gained his fourth victory against two defeats.

With the score tied 2-2, Von Hayes opened the Philadelphia eighth with a walk against reliever Warren Brusstar.

Smith relieved Brusstar and got one out, but Glenn Wilson reached first on a strike-out wild pitch, with Hayes advancing to third. Smith then intentionally walked Tim Corcoran, leading the bases and setting up Virgil's tiebreaking single. The Cubs had tied the score 2-2 in the top of the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Keith Moreland.

The Cubs led 1-0 in the fourth when Hayes started the inning with a home run over the right field fence, his seventh of the season. The Phillies scored another run later in the inning on Derrel Thomas' RBI single.

Cubs starter Dennis Eckersley worked five innings and gave up two runs, one earned, before leaving with stiffness in his pitching shoulder.

Charles Hudson pitched seven innings, allowing one run on eight hits before being relieved by Tekulve.

The only run Hudson allowed came in the third on singles by Chris Speier, Billy Hatcher and Sandberg.

Tigers 4, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Bergman hit the first pitch from reliever Sammy Stewart in the 10th inning for a home run, giving the Detroit Tigers a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night.

Stewart, 3-3, took over to start the ninth and was the fourth Baltimore pitcher.

The winner was Dan Petry, 10-6, who allowed a game-tying homer to Eddie Murray in the eighth inning but survived to record his seventh straight victory over the Orioles.

Murray's one-out shot over the right field fence came on a 3-1 pitch from Petry, who allowed eight hits and struck out six in 10 innings.

In the top of the inning, Lou Whitaker gave Detroit a brief lead with a two-out, two-run homer. It was the Tiger second baseman's 13th home run of the season.

Baltimore rookie Ken Dixon allowed three hits over the first seven innings and left the game with a 2-1 lead when Nate Snell took over to start the eighth. Dave Bergman led off the Tiger eighth with a single and was forced at second on a one-out grounder by pinch-hitter Barbaro Garbey. Bergman's hard slide into second prevented the Orioles from turning the double play.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver replaced the right-handed Snell with Martinez prior to Whitaker's at-bat.

Streking Cal Ripken Jr. and slump-ridden Jim Dwyer rapped run-scoring singles in the first two innings of Petry, and Dixon made the early lead stand up until Snell came on in the eighth.

Dixon, in his first start since June 15 after a stretch in the bullpen, pitched hitless ball until Darrell Evans singled to open the fifth and scored on a run-and-hit double by John Grubb.

The run was the first scored by Detroit in 26 innings for Petry.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO IMPLEMENT RATES
 General Telephone Company of the Southwest in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas gives notice of its intent to implement new exchange access rates for the provision of shared tenant and tenant resale services.

These proposed rates are applicable to customers of General Telephone Company of the Southwest, excluding hotel/motel customers, who provide local exchange telephone service of General Telephone Company of the Southwest to their tenants or patrons on a resale or shared use basis. These proposed rates are designed to recover costs on a usage basis for local exchange telephone service access and are identical to General Telephone's "Optional Measured Service" rates. The monthly access rate will be $28.95 per trunk line and the usage rates are as follows:

Over	Up To and Including	Band	Set Up	Full Rate Period	Each Minute
0	7 miles	A	$ 025		$ 015
