Reagan reveals Medicare cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, tightening the vise on health care costs, announced more than $225 million in additional cuts in Medicare spending Friday, to be achieved through new limits on payments for medical education and home health care.

In regulations published in the Federal Register, the Department of Health and Human Services imposed a freeze on payments under Medicare for subsidizing the education of interns and residents at teaching hospitals. The change will save $125 million next year, HHS said.

The department also established new rate structures for home health specialists in fields such as physical therapy and speech pathology, saving at least $100 million over the next three years. HHS said about 70 percent of such specialists will be affected, either by being pressured to lower their rates or by being refused full reimbursement.

The second change brought a sharp response from the chairman of the House Aging Committee, Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., who said it will "translate into millions of denied home health visits to elderly Americans."

Roybal said the changes were particularly critical because other Medicare cost-saving measures are forcing patients out of hospitals sooner, making them more dependent on home health care.

Both regulations were listed last winter as part of President Reagan's 1986 budget plan to trim the growth in Medicare spending by $3.9 billion, holding the health insurance program for the nation's elderly and disabled to a total of $77.2 billion.

The largest proposal, freezing Medicare payments to hospitals at their 1985 levels, was formally offered as a regulation last month and carried an estimated saving of $1.8 billion.

The home health regulation affects payments to specialists in six fields — skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services and home health aides.

"I want to emphasize that these rules do not impose any new costs for beneficiaries, nor do they affect the number of visits an agency may furnish to Medicare patients," HHS Secretary Margaret M. Heckler said in a statement on the regulations. "But they will indeed apply needed pressure on the higher-cost home health agencies to bring their costs into line."

However, the department noted that, if present billing practices continue unchanged, about 70 percent of the 5,640 home health care agencies participating in Medicare would violate the new cap and would be denied full reimbursement.

HHS said it expects most of those specialists to trim back their rates to match the new caps. Roybal said most instead will pull out of the program, leaving Medicare patients without care.

"The administration is only kidding itself if they think the 70 percent of all providers affected... can and will simply pull in their belts to absorb more budget cuts," Roybal said. "Many of these will be forced to pull out of Medicare. In the end, the squeeze on providers is squeezing out people from the care they need."

Savings from the home health care changes are uncertain. Mrs. Heckler's statement pegged the saving at $102 million over three years, the low estimate. Tables in the regulation itself offered a high estimate of $443 million over five years.

The medical education freeze will affect primarily the nation's 1,300 teaching hospitals, where medical school graduates provide Medicare page 2-A

Oil ministers fail to agree on price plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC oil ministers failed to agree Friday on strategy to halt a decline in oil prices, the president of the 13-nation group said after a full day of inconclusive meetings.

"We haven't come to any conclusions," Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto told reporters after a two-hour afternoon session. The ministers also met for nearly three hours in the morning and planned to resume their talks on Saturday, Subroto said.

Subroto said the group was considering two basic strategies: Stick to current policies, or try a new treatment altogether.

Pressed to explain what new approaches had been suggested, Subroto said only: "Something different than we have done so far. What it is, we haven't arrived at a precise consensus yet."

The OPEC ministers met at a downtown hotel ringed by federal anti-terrorist troops armed with submachine guns. Police said security was the strictest ever for an OPEC ministerial meeting.

Some analysts have said the session is the most critical test in the 25-year history of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Mana Saeed Oteiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, confirmed that the ministers had failed to reach a consensus on what type of action should be taken.

"We haven't yet entered serious discussions. We're still exploring various areas and different choices," he said.

Oteiba said the one thing that could be agreed on was the need to defend OPEC's basic price of $29 a barrel for Arabian Light oil.

"We came here to defend the price," he said.

In the spot, or non-contract, market Friday, Arabian Light oil for July delivery was quoted at $27.10 a barrel, or 90 cents below the official price, according to Telerate Energy Service, a private market-information firm. Arabian Heavy was quoted at $25 a barrel, against an official price of $26.50.

Several of the other ministers refused to comment as they left the meeting.

In a sign of how deeply they were divided, several officials said the ministers delayed the start of their first plenary session in order to consult in their hotel rooms without aides, who usually participate in the meetings from the outset. Some of the ministers also were seen meeting informally outside the hotel during an early afternoon break in the conference.

OPEC's immediate fear was that Saudi Arabia, its largest producer, would carry through on a threat to boost production unless the others stopped cheating on OPEC rules. Higher Saudi output would be certain to push oil prices even lower, industry analysts said.

Each $1 drop in the price of a barrel of oil, if adopted by all producers and entirely passed on to consumers, is the equivalent of a reduction of about 2 1/2 cents in the

Assistant DA wants to combat child abuse

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Robert S. Morris wants to break a vicious circle.

Morris, 33, the newly appointed 118th Assistant District Attorney, views child abuse cases as something that is passed on from generation to generation.

"A big cause of it (child abuse) frequently is a child who is abused grows up to be an abusive parent. That's what they think is normal. It's important to break-in and break that cycle," Morris said.

A large portion of Morris' duties here will be to prosecute child abuse offenders reported by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

"When a child gets beaten black and blue by his parents, it's hard to see something else as normal," Morris, a Stanton resident, said.

The Bethesda, Md. native said he will involve himself in child abuse cases both in civil and criminal courts.

"Sometimes Human Resources steps in to protect a child. I represent that party in a civil suit," Morris said.

In suits of this kind, Morris said Human Resources tries to obtain orders to remove a child from a dangerous home setting and either relocate the child to another relative's home or to a foster home.

Morris said he will also prosecute child abuse offenders in criminal court.

"Child abuse can constitute a crime. It needs to be prosecuted and punished," he said.

Morris was named assistant district attorney on June 14. He formerly was Martin County's county attorney for 3 1/2 years. Previous to that, he conducted a private practice in Austin where he graduated from the University of Texas Law School in 1977.

His initial prosecuting experience was gained while serving as Martin County's attorney.

"For me, it was an opportunity to find out about prosecution and I found out that's what I wanted to do. It was an opportunity to meet other prosecutors and get involved with programs," Morris said.

One of those programs he got involved with was The District County Attorney Association of the West Texas Region.

"It's a private statewide organization of prosecuting attorneys. You're exposed to other prosecutors and you find out how to handle problems through generalized and specialized training courses," Morris said.

He said he was elected to the association in 1983 and became a member of the region's board of

Price of asylum

U.S. running out of room to detain aliens

PORT ISABEL (AP) — The country is running out of room to detain aliens seeking U.S. asylum, officials say.

"The system is at its max," U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Duke Austin said. "We don't have a lot of available detention space. It's a tremendous problem."

Port Isabel is home to one of the INS' "processing centers" for illegal aliens, the largest of 12 in the nation and one of five in Texas. With surveillance cameras, barbed-wire fences and electronically controlled doors, the compound looks more like a prison.

Here, as many as 582 men and 100 women apprehended while trying to enter the United States illegally await deportation hearings after refusing to return voluntarily to their native countries.

Because of a steady rise in the number of aliens seeking asylum since a new refugee law passed in 1980, immigration courts are now overcrowded, and detention centers across the nation are forced to keep 2,000 aliens for an average of three to four weeks — and in some cases, six months to a year.

Even with the opening of four new facilities in the past two years, the INS can't keep up with the flow of illegal aliens into the country and must house another 1,000 of them in the nation's city and county jails.

And as the number of aliens being held grows, so have complaints about conditions inside the centers. The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday.

Immigration attorneys say some centers are overcrowded, medical care is inadequate, aliens are coerced into signing voluntary deportation forms and access to attorneys is limited.

Two aliens await processing in an Immigration Service holding area in Port Isabel. As many as 682 people await deportation at the center, after refusing to return voluntarily to their native countries.

Nationwide, lawyers have filed six suits over conditions at some of the INS facilities.

One suit, filed in 1981, charges that aliens being kept at the old Lubbock city jail, now closed, were not given blankets in winter and had to burn trash to stay warm. It also says as many as 16 detainees were kept in cells built for half that many.

In addition, 170 detainees at the INS detention center in El Centro, Calif., — the second-largest in the Florida, New York, Colorado, Massachusetts and Arizona — are more than adequate.

They point out that the detainees often sleep in air-conditioned dorms and have access to television, reading materials, recreation and medical care. They also say that the detainees are not being kept against their will, that they can return to their countries any time they give up their claim for asylum.

"I feel that enough is provided for them," said John Lavender, director of the Port Isabel INS center. "I think they get excellent care. I don't see anything that needs to be changed."

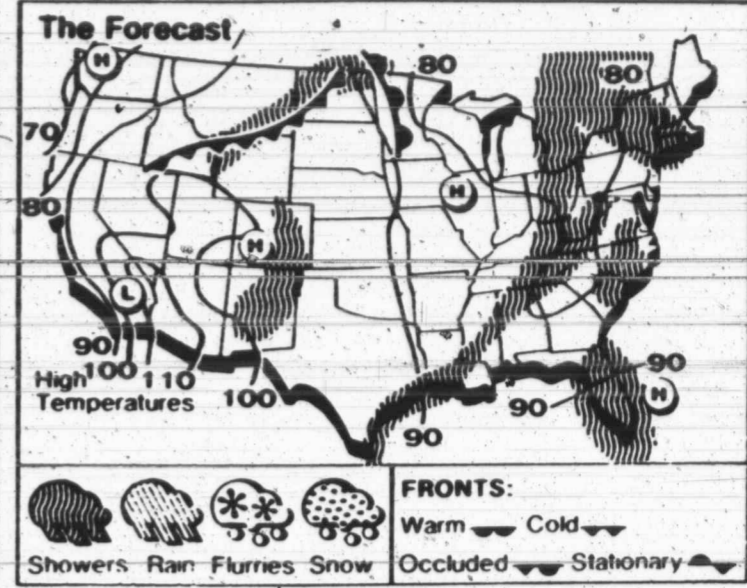

Regardless of the debate over conditions at the centers, immigration lawyers note that many aliens did not know they would be detained when they came to the United States.

"What is said in my village is that people in the United States help refugees from Central America," said a 23-year-old woman from El Salvador, who spent six weeks in an INS detention facility in Laredo. "I had no idea this would be waiting for me. I really don't understand it."

The largest group seeking asylum are Salvadorans, many of whom claim political persecution as a result of the 6-year-old civil war in that country. The Reagan administration contends that most of them are fleeing for economic, not political, reasons.

Last year, 13,548 Salvadorans sought asylum in the United States, but only 503 — or about 3 percent — received it.

Weather

Local

The local forecast calls for highs in the mid 90s and southeasterly winds, 5 to 10 miles per hour. By tonight look for lows in the mid 60s. Sunday's forecast calls for highs in the mid 90s.

State

Scattered thunderstorms erupted over West Texas between Amarillo and Lubbock Friday afternoon, but most of the state enjoyed sunny skies.

A weak front lay along the Red River late Friday afternoon extending west into the southern portions of the Texas Panhandle and the northern High Plains, the National Weather Service said. The front kicked up the scattered rains in West Texas. Some thundershowers were also reported along the coast.

At 4 p.m., temperatures were in the 90s over the northern half of Texas and in the 80s in the southern half. Winds were generally from the north at speeds of 5 to 10 mph.

The forecast for Texas called for sunny and hot with chances of scattered showers through Sunday.

In North Texas, mostly fair skies with some thunderstorms are expected Saturday. Highs will be in the 90s Saturday and Sunday, with lows in the mid- to upper 60s, the weather service said.

South Texas will be sunny and hot through Sunday, with widely scattered showers. Highs will be in the 80s and 90s, with lows in the 60s and 70s.

In West Texas, skies will also be sunny and hot with some isolated thunderstorms in mountainous areas of far West Texas. Highs will be in the 90s to low 100s in Big Bend, with lows in the 60s, the weather service said.

Forecast

West Texas — Partly cloudy with widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Better chances developing for thunderstorms in southwestern Texas by late in the period.

Several transferred to jail

Big Spring Police transferred Mary Ann Sanders (a/k/a Mary Ann Friday), 21, of Abilene to county jail Friday afternoon.

She has been charged with possession of marijuana under two ounces. She is also being held on a Taylor County warrant charging her with revocation of probation and a Midland County warrant charging her with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt set bond at $1,500 for her release on the marijuana possession charge, but denied bond for the out-of-county warrants.

Frankie Eugene Pennington, 18, of Route 2 Box 110A pleaded guilty in county court to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $400, required to pay court costs of $106 and placed on a 90-day jail probated sentence for two years.

Police transferred Richard Dwain Yerber, 23, of 2516 Hunter to county jail after he was charged on Texas Department of Public Safety warrants of speeding and failure to appear. He was released on bonds totalling $400.

Terry Lynn Ramsey, 28, of Coahoma pleaded guilty in county court to a charge of DWI. He was fined $400, required to pay $106 in court costs and placed on a 60-day jail probated sentence for two years.

Police transferred Jay McCurtain, 22, of 2300 Morrison to county jail after he was charged with suspicion of DWI. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Police transferred Valerie L. Jones, 22, of 602 N.W. 7th to county jail after he was arrested on suspicion of DWI and driving while license suspended. He was released on bonds totalling $1,500.

Pipeline leak led to fire

BEAUMONT (AP) — A preliminary investigation shows a pipeline leak led to a fire at the Mobil Oil refinery, a Mobil spokesman said Friday.

Roy Dickerson said a pipeline leak within a platinum reforming unit caused a flash fire that started the blaze at 8:34 p.m. Thursday.

Mobil emergency crews contained the fire to that area, bringing it under control by 10 p.m. and finally tapping it out at about 3 a.m. Friday, he said.

No one was injured in the fire that could be seen for miles, officials said.

The extent of damage was not immediately known and officials were unsure when the reforming unit would be restarted, the Beaumont Enterprise reported.

Abilene to get bomber today

ABILENE (AP) — The B-1B bomber intended to arrive at Abilene amid pomp and ceremony a week ago but grounded due to engine trouble is expected today amid little fanfare.

A Dyess Air Force Base spokesman said the intended bomber would arrive Saturday afternoon or evening from Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb. The surrogate plane, sent from Edwards Air Force Base in California June 29 so the more than 40,000 spectators and dignitaries gathered at Dyess for a day-long celebration, wouldn't be disappointed, will take off for Edwards about 10 a.m.

Dubbed "The Star of Abilene," the intended bomber was to be the first delivered to an Air Force base in the United States. Abilene will be a training center for the bomber's crews, and have about a third of the 100 planes to be produced.

On the long-awaited day, VIPs and visitors nonetheless cheered the arrival of the substitute plane sent after "The Star" broke down in Nebraska.

In 1984, Medicare paid $1.13 billion in direct medical education costs — salaries for interns and residents and classroom costs — to 1,660 hospitals, almost all of them large urban hospitals. The assistance is paid in addition to payments for Medicare patients' bills.

But the cost is going up, even though the nation is facing a surplus of doctors, the department said. HHS said that at present growth rates, the United States will have 35,000 surplus physicians by 1990 and 51,800 surplus physicians by 2000.

"Our nation has a growing surplus of physicians in nearly every area of medicine — and the demands on Medicare for medical education support should reflect that reality," Mrs. Heckler said.

Freezing the medical education payments would save about $125 million while still providing some $1.2 billion in support, Mrs. Heckler said.

retail price of a gallon of gasoline or other refined petroleum product.

Tam David-West, the oil minister of cash-starved Nigeria, said all of the ministers agreed they must end their bickering and act together to solve their problems.

"We must save OPEC," David-West told reporters after the morning session. He declined to say specifically what had been discussed in the closed-door meeting.

Conference sources said Iraq was planning to propose that OPEC raise prices and cut back further on production. Agreement to such a plan by the full group seemed highly unlikely, however, since OPEC production already is so low that some members, including Iraq, are in severe financial trouble.

On Thursday, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, indicated in brief remarks to reporters that he opposed any change in OPEC prices but that production limits might be rearranged. The Saudis had said prior to the meeting that they wanted to cut the price of lower-grade heavy crudes in order to boost sales.

That idea apparently was shelved because of opposition from countries such as Nigeria and Algeria that sell mostly top-quality light crudes. If the price of low-grade oils were dropped, the better crudes would become less attractive to buyers.

Ecuador, one of OPEC's smallest exporters and also among its most financially pressed, reportedly suggested that a formula be devised that would allow each member country to meet a national income goal. The Ecuador formula was reported by sources who agreed to discuss the matter only if they were not identified.

The Ecuador proposal, which was not fully explained, was not expected to gain much favor.

At its last meeting in January of this year, a majority of OPEC countries agreed to cut their reference price by $1 to the current $28 a barrel. The only other time OPEC has cut prices was in March 1983 when it dropped the basic price $5, to $29 a barrel.

Traffic death toll climbs

By The Associated Press
At least 25 people have been killed on Texas highways during the long July Fourth holiday weekend, including two 16-year-old boys involved in a three-car collision near Temple, authorities said Friday.

Nationwide, more than 227 people had died by late Friday night, according to an unofficial count that The Associated Press will continue through midnight Sunday.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said Greg Hankins and Andy James Taylor, both 16, of Belton perished in a crash on Farm Road 1741 about 1 1/2 miles south of Temple at 1:57 p.m. Friday.

A third occupant of the car, John Mohr, 16, of Temple underwent surgery at a Temple hospital, where he was reported in serious condition with undisclosed injuries.

Authorities said a southbound car driven by Arthur Willis, 16, of Temple crossed the center stripe, sideswiped a car driven by Doris Larson, 61, of Belton, then collided head-on in the northbound lane with the car containing Hankins, Taylor and Mohr.

Mrs. Larson was reported in good condition with bruises. Willis was reported in fair condition with a broken ankle.

In other fatal Texas accidents: Donald Eugene Taylor, 54, was pronounced dead at 12:30 p.m. Friday after his Jeep overturned near Burnet.

Darin Keith Corden, 16, was killed when his vehicle rolled over near Brackettville late Thursday night.

Turner in a hurry

WASHINGTON — Broadcast entrepreneur Ted Turner asked the government Friday to speed consideration of his plan to bid for control of the CBS Inc.

Turner also urged the Federal Communications Commission in a petition to slow down a stock offer by CBS directors seeking to thwart his takeover effort.

Turner, chairman and president of Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System Inc., asked the FCC to approve by July 15 his request for a license transfer — the remaining, self-imposed step before he launches a drive to acquire CBS stock. He urged the panel to subject the company's offer to the same time-consuming licensing procedure.

Expedited action on his license-transfer application, the petition said, was needed to enable CBS shareholders to consider simultaneously his offer for their shares and that of company directors.

The CBS offer to buy back 21 percent of the company's stock for $40 cash and securities valued at $110 expires July 31.

Under normal circumstances, the FCC would be unlikely to complete review of Turner's April 18 license-transfer request by that time. In fact, the commission staff is still working on details of a one-day informal hearing on the matter expected to be held in early August.

Fog cools fires

The toll of brush and forest fires reached 200,000 acres over nine Western states Friday, but California crews fighting a 78,000-acre blaze that threatened communities benefited from fog, cooler temperatures and less wind.

Firefighters were close to taming the blaze near Ojai, Calif., but other fires continued burning out of control in California, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming. Nearly 5,000 firefighters from across the nation were on fire lines.

California Gov. George Deukmejian on Friday asked President Reagan to declare federal disaster areas in the city of Los Angeles and in San Diego County, where fires have inflicted an estimated $23.6 million damage.

A disaster declaration would allow residents to apply for federal aid.

Deukmejian also offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of those responsible for a blaze in the Baldwin Hills section of Los Angeles, which killed three people Tuesday. Authorities believe the fire set.

Sewer workers die

RADCLIFF, Ky. — Three sewer workers and a policeman died Friday after they were overcome by methane gas in a storm sewer.

Two of the victims were performing a routine check when they were overcome by the gas about 10 a.m., said Radcliff Police Chief John Farrelly.

One of the men climbed out and summoned a supervisor, then climbed back in, said Farrelly. The supervisor and a police officer also climbed in to rescue the two, and died, he said.

Coroner's office employees load the bodies of two victims who died Friday when carbon monoxide seeped from a faulty gas water heater into ground floor rooms at a downtown Las Vegas motel.

Gas fumes kill 2

Carbon monoxide seeps into motel rooms

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Carbon monoxide from a gas water heater seeped into ground floor rooms at a motel Friday, killing two people and injuring 18, authorities said.

Some of the victims were unconscious when pulled from the building by firefighters, said Assistant Las Vegas Fire Chief Richard Gammon. Five of the injured were listed in serious condition at three local hospitals.

"They were anywhere from semi-conscious to unconscious when we found them," said Gammon. "Most all had to be taken out by stretcher."

The bodies were found in adjoining rooms where the highest concentration of carbon monoxide was found, on the bottom floor of the two-story Crest Motel near the malfunctioning heater, Gammon said.

The two dead people were men, but their identities were not immediately released.

A couple staying at the motel said they were moved from room 137, where one of the dead people was found, two days earlier after becoming sick.

Enrique Gonzalez of Hawthorne, Calif., said his wife, who suffers from a heart condition, became nauseous and dizzy early Wednesday after complaining of the smell in the room. He said she was taken to a hospital emergency room and revived with oxygen.

"She couldn't sleep all night long because of the smell, which was real sweet" said Gonzalez. "She finally passed out about seven in the morning."

Gonzalez, a retiree who was on vacation with his wife, said her symptoms went away after they were moved to another building in the 99-unit complex.

Gammon said other residents also complained they suffered headaches and dizziness Thursday night.

"It sounds like this had been building up for three or four days," he said.

Gammon said a vent pipe was apparently knocked off the natural gas heater. Police cordoned off the motel and evacuated its occupants, most of whom sat outside in 110-degree heat and waited for firefighters to finish blowing the fumes away with fans.

Most guests said they were sleeping when firefighters ordered them to leave their rooms quickly about 9:30 a.m.

The downtown motel rents room by both the day and week and houses some downtown hotel workers. Many of those staying at the motel were elderly tourists.

Protesters found guilty after march

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — A district justice on Friday found 69 people who marched in protest on the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant guilty of obstructing a road leading into the facility's main gate.

The demonstration occurred May 29, hours after the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission voted to allow the power plant to reopen one of its nuclear reactors.

Sixty-nine of the 81 people arrested at the protest requested a hearing, which was held Friday in the auditorium of Middletown High School, near the plant.

The protesters, charged with the summary offense of obstructing a public passageway, argued that they demonstrated to stop the plant from reopening.

"We're not Shiites, we're not terrorists," said Eric Epstein, who spoke for the defendants. But the obstruction was "necessary to prevent a greater harm" of operating the plant, he said.

District Justice William Heckman said the protesters should have gone to court to fight restart and not broken the law.

"My decision is ... you shouldn't have been there, you should have taken it to federal court," said Heckman. The ruling was greeted with angry yells and several shouts of "We'll be back."

Epstein said he was "kind of shocked and stunned" by the ruling and did not yet know whether he would appeal.

Coup attempt fails

The military government of President Lansana Conte said Friday that it had foiled an attempt by former Prime Minister Diara Traore to seize power in the impoverished West African nation of Guinea.

Guinea's embassies in Paris and London announced the collapse of the coup attempt in the country's capital of Conakry.

Rebels had seized Radio Conakry and declared they had taken over the government. Later broadcasts on Radio Conakry, monitored in France, Senegal and the Ivory Coast, said the plot had failed and an unspecified number of civilians were killed.

They also said troops were conducting a house-to-house search for the 50-year-old Traore, most recently minister of state for education, who helped Conte seize power in April 1984.

Conte, 52, was in Lome, Togo, during the overnight coup attempt for a summit meeting of the 16-member Economic Community of West African States.

His foreign minister, Facine Toure, told reporters in Lome that Conte had no statement to make and was preparing to return home.

Boycott challenged

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The government appealed to European nations on Friday not to join the U.S. campaign to boycott Beirut airport.

President Amin Gemayel met with American Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew, who delivered a letter from President Reagan, Lebanese radio broadcasts reported. The contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Lebanon sent a letter to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in New York protesting the American boycott effort. U.N. spokesman Joe Sills said the letter did not request a Security Council meeting, but Lebanon reserved the right to call for a council action if it was deemed necessary.

At Gemayel's meeting with Bartholomew at the presidential summer palace in Bekfayaon, the president stressed his opposition to terrorism and hijacking, according to informed sources.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Gemayel stressed, however, that Lebanon will "confront the American moves aimed at encouraging more countries to ban Beirut airport and its (Lebanon's) airlines."

Doctors found guilty

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A medical panel ruled Friday that two white doctors were guilty of misconduct in treating black leader Steve Biko, whose death in police custody made him a martyr in the struggle against white rule.

One of the physicians was reprimanded and the other received a suspended penalty.

Violence continued in South Africa's black townships. Witnesses said two people were killed by police gunfire in a township east of Johannesburg during a police roundup of suspected rioters.

Man steals plane, threatens crash

WHEELING, Ill. (AP) — A man stole a small airplane Friday and threatened to crash so his wife could see him die, but then landed and surrendered to police after a three-hour flight, authorities said.

"He wasn't having a very rational day," said spokesman Bob Raynesford of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"They're apparently in the middle of a divorce," said John Ostrowski, director of airport services at Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling, about 20 miles northwest of Chicago.

Ostrowski said the man, who was not identified, told air controllers at Palwaukee that he planned to crash the Cessna 150 at Cumberland and Lawrence (streets in Chicago), so his wife could see him kill himself.

The plane later touched down once on the runway at Palwaukee and took off again.

It later landed for nine minutes, when the pilot spoke with his wife and a police psychologist, and then took off again for his final 34-minute flight.

Raynesford said police made no attempt to approach the plane during its nine-minute stop.

Ostrowski said the plane also circled a corner of Chicago's O'Hare International Airport at one point. "He was in the approach path for two runways briefly, but there were no problems," Raynesford said. "Apparently, he just decided to leave."

The pilot surrendered at about 1:25 p.m. Officials had estimated he had enough fuel to stay in the air until 2 p.m. Ostrowski said it was unclear what charges the pilot might face, but that stealing an airplane was a federal offense.

"He's likely to be in a lot of trouble," Ostrowski said, adding that it was apparent that he had some training as a pilot.

Diet candies have no secret

It sounds so easy and tempting. You pop a piece of candy in your mouth before meals and your appetite mysteriously disappears. It must be a dieter's dream. Actually, there's not much of a secret to the various appetite-control diet candies, lozenges and gums on the market.

They contain corn syrup or sugar and the local anesthetic benzocaine, a common ingredient in first aid creams and sprays. Benzocaine numbs the taste buds and decreases the dieter's pleasure in eating. The corn syrup or sugar causes a sudden increase in blood sugar levels and temporarily reduces hunger symptoms.

You can get the same effect without tumbing your tongue and taste, by eating a caramel (just one), or juices high in carbohydrates, such as grape or prune juice.

These aids may help get you started on a diet, and they are relatively harmless. But they can be expensive and you won't be getting any real value for your money, even if the product has added vitamins and minerals.

Salt Tablets Not Necessary
Joggers, tennis players and other week-end athletes who think they should take salt tablets to replace salt lost through perspiration are doing more harm than good. Salt tablets are absolutely unnecessary and can be dangerous.

The concentration of sodium in your blood actually goes up while you exercise. As you become dehydrated, more water than sodium is lost through perspiration. If you take salt tablets, they only make you more dehydrated, since water is drawn from body tissue to dilute the high sodium concentration from the tablet.

To effectively replace perspiration losses, simply drink water during exercise and eat a well-balanced meal afterwards. Most foods, except fruits and vegetables, contain significant amounts of sodium.

Some people persist in taking salt tablets because they did so years ago as high school athletes or while in the military service. However, much more is now known about how the body conserves salt during exercise, so taking salt tablets is an outdated practice.

Study Supports Aspirin-Reye Link
A study conducted this year by the U.S. Public Health Service has provided more evidence suggesting an association between aspirin and Reye syndrome.

Reye syndrome is an acute condition that may develop in children from infancy to the late teens who are recovering from a viral illness such as flu or chicken pox. It requires immediate diagnosis and hospital care. The condition is rare, but life threatening. There were 190 known cases in the year ending November 1984 and a 26 percent fatality rate.

The study involved 29 children and teenagers who developed Reye syndrome and 143 who did not develop it following the flu or chicken pox. It showed that 96 percent of the children who developed Reye syndrome had recently taken or been given aspirin. Fewer than half of the control group had taken aspirin during their illness.

It's especially significant that older children and teenagers as well as young children developed the condition. Fifty percent of the victims were over ten years old and 15 percent were 15 or over. Parents should be alert to the symptoms of Reye syndrome and consult a physician before giving aspirin or aspirin-containing products to a child or teenager who has flu or chicken pox. Older teenagers, who often give themselves medications, also need to be alerted to this potential danger.

Manufacturers have agreed to add a warning to their labels concerning the possible association between the use of aspirin and Reye syndrome. Also as a result of the study, the Public Health Service has launched a full-scale research project.

Summer pruning sometimes needed

The art of pruning apple trees is well understood by most fruit growers. Pruning the orchard is necessary and has a direct effect on the aims of successful orchard management.

Most pruning should be done during the dormant season and before spring growth. Summer pruning is sometimes needed, especially in young trees. All pruning has a dwarfing effect on the tree, but summer pruning is more dwarfing. Summer-pruned trees, with the resulting reduced leaf area, make less root growth than trees not summer pruned. The net result is the tree as a whole makes less growth than it would have had the pruning been done in the dormant periods. The dwarfing influence of summer pruning is most pronounced in early summer when the tree is completing its branch extension growth. Dwarfing becomes progressively less after this period and may actually be insignificant two to three weeks before leaf fall.

Summer pruning is ideally adapted to intensive orcharding, but it has only recently gained significant acceptance. This partially is due to a misunderstanding of the nature of summer pruning and how it can be used to control growth and fruiting.

Generally, summer pruning is confined to one-year-old shoots. On shoots headed during the dormant season, two or three vigorous shoots usually develop from the buds immediately below the cut. One or two of these shoots can be removed entirely early in the season to direct growth into a single shoot. This should be done while shoots are only a few inches long so little actual leaf area is removed. If shoots are headed by pinching rather than complete removal, regrowth will take place and pinching will be of little value.

A lack of development of lateral buds on the previous season's shoots, a condition known as blind wood, is a characteristic of some varieties. During the first year or two, delayed heading, which may be considered as a type of summer pruning, will often force shoots from the blind wood area. This should not be carried on beyond the first few years and should only be practiced on the most vigorously growing trees.

Typically, summer pruning is a selective training procedure aimed at weakening vegetative growth while promoting flower initiation. It consists of cutting current season's shoots back to three to five mature leaves after they have grown about a foot, and about the diameter of a pencil, and have started to become woody at the base. Flowering spurs often develop at pruning cut sites as a result of weakening the vegetative growth, but flowering is also increased throughout the tree because of better light penetration.

An alternative procedure, developed in France by L. Lorette about 55 years ago, is to cut the shoot about 1/4 inch to 1/2 inch above its base, leaving a short stub. This ensures regrowth will come from the less well developed buds near the shoot base. Growth from these buds is weaker and more readily transformed into fruiting wood. The Lorette method is preferable to leaving longer stubs, which not only produce more regrowth, but are usually stiffened in an upright position as a result of the pruning.

The best time for pruning current season shoots is at the time of, or just before, terminal bud formation. Summer pruned spur-type trees grow less than standard types. The dwarfing results from summer pruning is proportional to the percentage of the total leaf area removed and should not be carried to extremes. Weak trees do not respond well to summer pruning and are often stunted.

Summer pruning can be used to particularly good advantage in intensive orchards where control of vigorous vegetative growth is difficult. In such cases, dormant pruning tends to aggravate the problem by increasing vigor. In moderately vigorous trees, summer pruning may be desirable to weaken vegetative growth at a specific point in the tree. This would apply to upright vigorous shoots, which originate on the main scaffold limbs of central leader trees, or to vigorous growth in the top of the tree that is gaining dominance over the lower limbs.

Pruning early in the summer (eight weeks after bloom) has caused flower initiation in the same year indicated by an increased bloom the following year. However, it seems, in some cases, summer pruning has a cumulative and delayed effect on flowering with a lag of almost two years between summer pruning and its tangible effect on flowering. Experience in other apple areas of the country shows summer pruning can be conducted as a once-over operation each year anytime from eight weeks after bloom until mid-August, although the short term response is influenced to some extent by timing. The continuation of a summer pruning program on a yearly basis is more important than the exact timing.

In summmary, summer pruning can accomplish the following:
(A) Reduce the vigor of the tree or dwarf it.
(B) Promote development of side shoots.
(C) Favor flower bud development.
(D) Direct growth into selected shoots.

Restoration continues

OLD TOWN BIG SPRING...how does that sound for a catchy title to designate the heart of the city and turn it into a major tourist attraction for the 8 million cars full of people who travel through Big Spring each year on Highway 87 and Interstate 20?

That's just part of the overall grand design that is being discussed now by several groups working hard for this community: developers, financiers, downtown merchants, Heart-of-the-City organization, City and County Chamber officials. Something concrete should emerge around July 15 to enable the whole community to catch the vision and get excited.

Meanwhile, work on the Settles is moving right along. Even though it is difficult to see a lot of progress at this stage, the outside will at least begin to look much better over the next few weeks. Already the electrical work is in progress with all new wiring being required throughout the entire structure. New plumbing is also necessary.

The first obvious sign of change will be the lighting this week of the old Settles sign atop the building. The electricians hoped to be able to turn on the lights on July 4 even though the sign, which is being completely renovated, is not yet finished.

The windows should also be completed this week. The developers found that the windows were in surprisingly good shape. With the lights and windows in place, the appearance of the building will be less ghostly.

Gil Quadra's plans show that the inside, being demolished now, will begin to take shape in August by which time retail space on the first floor and the lobby will be complete. Lobby shops will include an ice cream shop, jewelry store, a steak restaurant, a candy palace, and other small specialty shops.

The second floor area will be convention, meeting room space and the ballroom. From the 3rd to 14th floors will be a 75-room hotel; the top floor will be a club and pavilion. The projected date to complete all this is in stages with the final stage completed one year from now.

In the meantime, the Strategic Planning Group is still forging ahead on several fronts. The economic task force of this group is working on a target date of Sept. 1 for the establishment of a state-of-the-art machine shop. Conservative estimates of between $3 and $12 million is projected in business per year for that facility.

The second area being studied by that task force is the level II prison (the present facility is level I). The Federal Government has budgeted funds to build two new level II prisons in the United States but the priority areas to build them are the east and west coasts. Therefore, Big Spring's chances of landing it here are not good. The citizens will be kept informed as the studying committee gets all its facts and information together and is ready to make recommendations for formal requests to the Government.

While Congressman Charles Stenholm was here Tuesday, he squeezed in a quick tour of Fiberflex — and he was impressed!

The legislation on immigration reform now being considered in Washington will have impact on West Texans and should be watched closely. Congressman Stenholm and Sens. Gramm and Bentsen want our input.

Sen. Simpson introduced a new bill on May 23 which retains sanctions for employers of four or more workers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. The measure would delay granting legal status to illegal aliens already in the United States until the proposed system of sanctions has made a proven impact on the present flow of illegal aliens. One important change from previous proposals: employers would NOT be required to keep records verifying that they have checked specific documents to determine that an employee is eligible to work. Hearings and final action should be taken before the end of the summer.

On May 24, President Reagan signed into law legislation to repeal contemporaneous record keeping for vehicles used for mixed business and private use. Under the new law, taxpayers must substantiate business use for deduction and credit purposes with adequate records or sufficient evidence supporting their own statements. Specific questions to determine deductibility of auto and other business property are expected to be a part of the 1986 tax forms.

Comics create new career, business

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

Most children look to the future or to adults for career ideas, but Monte Hamilton, owner of Comics and Beyond, did just the opposite.

Reading and collecting comic books resulted into a new career for the 26-year-old man and a new business for Big Spring.

Hamilton has been an avid comic book reader since he was six. Now he hopes to make money with his pastime that expanded into a full-time profession. In fulfilling this goal, he and his wife Kristi opened Comics and Beyond at 624 Ridgeroad Drive.

The new shop carries comic books released by Diamond Comics Distributors and some books from Hamilton's personal collection. Any comic that a customer wants him to carry, he will try to get. He also plans to carry posters and will airbrush characters and scenes on t-shirts.

Hamilton decided to open his shop here because he and other residents had been driving hundreds of miles to purchase their favorite comics.

"Big Spring is kind of behind the times in terms of comic books," he said.

Today's comic books are not just for children. The comic industry is "getting bigger," he said, as "people are taking comics more seriously."

Texas comic book collectors estimate that between 50 percent and 60 percent of all comic books are purchased by people aged 15 to 25, with the majority of those readers being men.

Hamilton said that comic books have become attractive to adults because the entertainment form is a ticket to adventure as well as an investment.

"Most comic books kept in good condition will increase in value. The first issue of "Superman" which came out in 1932 is valued at $17,000 now. As for more recent issues, "The X-Men" comics which came out about a month ago at 75 cents now are valued at $1.65," Hamilton said.

When Comics and Beyond opened, it was stocked with 1,000 plastic covers made to preserve comic books. Those all sold quickly and forced Hamilton to order more.

That was proof that there are serious comic book collectors in Big Spring, he said.

Mrs. Hamilton said, besides being an investment, "comics catch the people who don't like to read and let them read."

She said she thinks men are more interested in comic books, because there have not been characters with which women can identify.

Comics seem to be "catching on with women," she said, as more females like "Red Sonja" a new woman "super-character" are being developed.

New comic books range in price from 65 cents for the traditional book format to $5.95 for graphic novels, larger books with more vivid pictures, Hamilton said.

Hamilton said that as comics continue to become more diversified and numerous, he hopes the variety and numbers of his customers will do the same.

Comics and Beyond is open from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

Setting achievable goals keeps businesses afloat

Put a 5-foot-10-inch person into 6 feet of water, and odds are he'll learn to swim. He may sputter and spit a bit, but he can always hop up off the bottom and get air. Put that same person in 7-feet-4-inches of water, and you've got a serious problem!

In any managerial forum, the topic turns at some point to the mundane — but nevertheless vital — task of goal-setting. Most American managers seem all too ready to toss their charges blithely into the 7-foot-4-inch deep tank. This is what I hear: "You've got to push our people. Shoot for the moon. That's what motivates 'em."

The rationale for this attitude: The necessity for "stretch targets." "I have come to hate the term, as it is commonly used. Yet I do believe in "stretch." But I believe in the 6-foot variety for the 5-foot-10-inch participant. There is one ingredient that stands above all others in creating a highly charged environment — teaching people that they are winners and that they can succeed. Thus, the prime objective of goal-setting should be to turn 90 percent of your people into winners.

That does leave room for "stretch" — it's a must. Without it, there is no sense of accomplishment. The real art form for the manager lies in creating achievable targets. That may mean, for example, creating a 2-inch hurdle to "teach" a previously demoralized player (or team) that he or she is a winner.

This is not just speculation. I am an inveterate reader of biographies. (They're a far better way to learn about leadership than reading management texts.) Recently, I've read biographies of Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery and Gen. George Patton. Both men have something surprising in common. In North Africa, both (at different times) launched their careers into the limelight after inheriting winless and dispirited armies. And both rapidly reversed these armies' fortunes.

Both battlefield generals used exactly the same technique to begin the turnaround. Both began the march to success by focusing on the instantly "do-able" — by pushing their men to achieve something, making them believe they weren't inevitable losers. Appearance and fitness were the chosen vehicles in both cases. A first "stretch target" (of the 2-inch variety) was to demand spottless uniforms and to launch an intensive physical fitness program.

A recent study, "Excellence in the Surface Navy," describes a similar early turnaround tactic by a successful ship captain: "He began by planning victories for the ship." By this he meant that he was constantly on guard, looking for competition that the ship could enter into reasonably sure that it would emerge victorious. This could be something as trivial as challenging other ships in the task group to a sailing competition, knowing full well that their ship was the only one that had any sailboats, to seeking recognition as the top ship to complete refresher training in a given year. In either case, the crew's image of itself was enhanced by such actions."

Winn-Dixie breaks stock exchange record

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—The Board of Directors of Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., says additional dividends are available to its Big Spring employees who are shareholders, as the company broke a New York Stock Exchange record this month. The company did this by increasing its cash dividend for the 42nd consecutive year. The Board declared a regular monthly dividend of more than 14 cents per share on the common stock of the company payable on July 31, Aug. 30 and Sept. 30 to shareholders on record at the close of business July 15, Aug. 15 and Sept. 16.

The new dividend rate, $1.74 per year, is a 3.6 percent increase over the previous rate of $1.68 annually.

Radio Shack, publisher make agreement

Radio Shack, a division of Tandy Corp., has entered into a general cooperative working agreement with John Wiley & Sons, Inc., publisher of educational and professional books, periodicals, software and databases.

Under terms of the agreement, Radio Shack will provide technical assistance in the development of instructional software for the Tandy line of microcomputers, according to Jimmie Thompson, manager of publisher relations for Radio Shack's Education division.

Jack Watson and Yvette DeLeon available at American Home Video. The new store is owned by Larry Marquez.

Marquez opens video shop

An interest in all forms of video products and successful business experience with them are the reasons Larry Marquez opened American Home Video in Big Spring.

Because he opened the new store, "customers won't have to drive 50 or 60 miles to get something" to fill their video needs, he said.

The store, located at 1003 Gregg Street is managed by Jack Watson. He is assisted in operating the store by Yvette DeLeon.

The items offered by American Home Video are satellite receivers, televisions, video cameras, video cassette recorders and movies, in both VHS and Beta formats, Watson said.

As manager, his early goal is to let people in the area know what is available at his store. Once he has done this he feels the store's customers will help him achieve the other goals he has set for himself and DeLeon, which are to "stay busy and sell a lot."

Marquez also owns American Home Video in San Angelo. He said wanted to see if the store could be successful there before he brought it back to his "hometown of Big Spring."

Hundreds of movies are already available at the store and Marquez and Watson said that customers can look for additional films to arrive daily.

The movies may be bought or rented from the business. If renting, customers can also get a VCR to play them, Watson said.

"Business has been real good," Watson said of the specialty store's early progress. He says he expects to increase business daily as he gets his stock to full operating capacity.

Watson says he has experience in selling video appliances and feels progress has made the video entertainment field an exciting ever-changing profession.

The video products available today are so diversified he said in topics and equipment that his customers at American Home Video are not limited to one particular age group.

The store is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Business highlights

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS Inc. is trying to thwart broadcaster Ted Turner's bid to acquire the network by offering to buy 21 percent of its own stock from shareholders for $954.8 million.

Analysts said certain restrictions tied to the CBS proposal would make a Turner acquisition extremely difficult, and they suggested he would be forced to alter his bid in order to continue pursuing CBS.

CBS's offer "stops Turner cold in his tracks," said Edward J. Atorino of the investment firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co.

But in Atlanta, Turner Broadcasting System Inc. said that while it was still reviewing details of the CBS plan announced Wednesday, "we intend to pursue our offer vigorously."

Turner has valued his CBS bid at $175 a share.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Bankers Trust of South Carolina and NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C., said they plan to merge, creating an $18.2 billion institution.

The proposal Wednesday was the first interstate merger announced by any bank in South Carolina, where a state law allowing regional interstate mergers becomes effective Jan. 1.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY OF BIG SPRING
PUBLIC WORKS DIVISION
PUBLIC NOTICE
IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE MAXIMUM CONTAMINANT LEVELS FOR TRIHALOMETHANES
The City of Big Spring is required under the Safe Drinking Water Act to reduce the maximum contaminant levels for trihalomethanes below the 100 micrograms per liter limit. In order to comply with this public law the City of Big Spring will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant in the treatment processes and to maintain a residual throughout the distribution system. The combination of chlorine with ammonia does not allow the chlorine to alternately combine with the naturally occurring organic acids to form trihalomethanes. Thus, the system will be able to be in compliance with the maximum contaminant levels for trihalomethanes.
The change from the previous routine of water treatment to the use of Chloramines at the treatment plant can cause serious problems to persons dependent on dialysis machines then Carbon Filters are not employed to prepare for the dialysis. A condition known as Hemolytic anemia can occur. Therefore, the general public is hereby placed on notice that on July 15, 1985, the water treatment with process within the City of Big Spring water system will convert to the use of Chloramines as a disinfectant. Dialysis patients may be affected by this change, therefore, it is imperative that the pre-treatment scheme used for dialysis units provides some means such as, charcoal filters for the removal of the chlorinating (disinfecting) agent. In addition, the use of Chloramines for disinfecting the potable water system will require different pre-treatment prior to being utilized in aquaria and other uses where the disinfectant agent would prove a hazard to the proposed use. Anyone having any questions with respect to this process, are urged to contact the Director of Public Works or the Big Spring Health Department.

Deaths attributed to cocaine

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans are finding "more intensive and destructive" ways to take cocaine, which claimed more than three times as many lives in 1984 as it did in 1980, says an official with the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

"There has been a striking increase in medical emergencies and deaths associated with the use of cocaine," wrote Dr. William Pollin in an editorial in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The editorial accompanied a report saying laboratory animals given free access to cocaine died at almost triple the rate of those given access to heroin. Such a result has "obvious implications for human drug abuse," the study's authors said.

Pollin, who recently stepped down as institute director, said in a telephone interview Thursday that deaths associated with cocaine numbered 169 in 1980, but the toll was 598 last year.

No firm numbers exist on whether numbers of users have increased, but "more intensive and destructive patterns of use" are clearly occurring, he wrote. Such patterns include preparing the drug with a technique called freebasing to allow it to be smoked, injecting the drug into the bloodstream and using cocaine in combination with other drugs, Pollin wrote.

"While many drug users recognize the inherent danger of opiate (including heroin) addiction, they fail to recognize the potential danger of long-term cocaine use," said Michael A. Bozarth and Roy A. Wise of Concordia University in Montreal, who conducted the study.

They implanted tubes in the necks of 23 rats so that each animal could press a lever in its cage to self-administer a set dose of drug into its bloodstream. The rats were divided into two groups, one for each drug.

After 30 days, 11 of the 12 cocaine-using rats were dead, a mortality rate of more than 90 percent, compared with only four of the 11 heroin-using rats, a mortality rate of 36 percent, the researchers reported.

Cocaine-using rats lost more weight and suffered a more marked decline in health than the heroin-using rats, said the researchers.

"Cocaine produces a more tenacious dependency," said Dr. Ronald K. Siegel, a pharmacologist at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine. "With unlimited access, you will reach toxic levels faster."

Government estimates put the number of U.S. cocaine users at 5 million to 8 million, Siegel said in a telephone interview Wednesday, but he said his studies indicate 24 million would be a "conservative" estimate. At the end of 1984, 400,000 users were believed to need clinical help, he said.

The researchers said the rats using cocaine exhibited different dosage patterns than the heroin-ingesting rats. Those getting heroin increased dosage gradually during the first two weeks, while rats receiving cocaine were erratic, sometimes dosing themselves excessively and sometimes sparingly.

Rats receiving heroin maintained their grooming behavior and stayed at normal body weight and normal level of health, researchers said. But rats receiving cocaine lost up to 47 percent of their body weight, tended to stop grooming, deteriorated in health and had seizures, they said.

"Cocaine use ... is considered by many to be a relatively safe habit," the researchers said. Deaths blamed directly on it are relatively few because availability of the drug is limited and its purity tends to be low, they said.

In another journal article, Dr. Russell E. Howard and colleagues at Northwestern University Medical School described the case of a previously healthy 28-year-old woman who had never had heart problems but who suffered a heart attack after using cocaine on and off over several years.

Curren delivers another stunner

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Giant-killer Kevin Curren, again prospering on the grass courts of the All England Club, charged into the men's final of the Wimbledon tennis championships Friday, destroying two-time champion Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Two days earlier, the eighth-seeded Curren wiped out defending champion John McEnroe with the same kind of devastating, straight-set efficiency, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

The twin triumphs gave Curren two of the most startling consecutive upsets in recent Wimbledon history. He is hardly considered in the McEnroe-Connors class, a situation he does not mind.

"I prefer to play as an underdog," he said. "When a lot is written about you, like McEnroe, it's tough to play as a champion. It's better to play a low-key, low-profile role."

Connors bowed in 1 hour, 32 minutes - 17 minutes less than it took Curren to dispatch McEnroe - as the 27-year-old totally dominated his more highly regarded opponents.

"A bad day at the office," Connors said. "He played well. I've played better."

"On grass I've proven I can play with anybody," said Curren, who was born in South Africa but is a naturalized U.S. citizen and now lives in Austin, Texas.

"I'd love to be (among the world's top five ranked players) in a second," he said. "But I've got to deal with it realistically. I don't think I'm that gifted on all surfaces. I'm too tall, too slim. But on grass..."

On grass, Curren's booming serve has served him well. Connors simply could not handle it. Curren had 17 aces against one of tennis' best returners of serve.

"He throws it up, boom, boom, boom all the time," Connors said. "When he's hot, he's hot. When he's holding the balls, he controls the tempo. It's tough to counteract."

Two years ago, in this same grass courts tournament, Curren had eliminated Connors, then the defending champion, in Wimbledon's fourth round, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6 with 33 aces.

"He was 16 short today," Connors said dryly.

Connors had won their last two matches - neither of them on grass - and held a 4-2 overall edge before Friday's wipeout. But this one went all Curren's way.

Before they could start their match, Curren and Connors waited through a 90-minute rain delay as a violent thunderstorm drenched Wimbledon.

Officials had been warned of the weather and had the famed Centre Court covered when it hit. So although water had cascaded down in sheets on the stands, the grass courts were bone dry for the match.

"I knew the air would be very heavy and it would be very humid because of the rain," Curren said. "I couldn't let him in. It helped me on my serve, gave me time to play it."

Curren took charge immediately, breaking Connors in the second game and again in the sixth game of the opening set, which he captured in just 32 minutes.

The second game of the second set went 8 1/2 minutes as Connors avoided another service break. It was just a temporary respite, though, as Curren broke in the fourth and sixth games to take the set 6-2.

In the third set, Connors dropped five straight games before finally hanging on to his serve in the sixth game. Then Curren finished him

KEVIN CURREN stretches for a ball Friday as he plays JIMMY CONNORS during their rain delayed men's singles semifinal match.

CURREN defeated CONNORS in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, for his second consecutive upset of a former Wimbledon singles champion.

off and became the lowest seed to reach Wimbledon's finals since No. 9 Ken Rosewall of Australia did it in 1974.

Curren's victory ensured a new name on the men's trophy this year. Neither Jarryd, the No. 5 seed, nor Becker, the unseeded 17-year-old, have reached the final.

Becker, the youngest ever semifinalist who has charged through the tournament on the back of power serving and supreme confidence, looked to have met his match in the opening set against the dangerous Jarryd.

Showing lightning reflexes, the 23-year-old Swede unsettled his opponent with his court speed and return of serve and took the set in 34 minutes after two breaks.

Becker improved in the second set as he anticipated Jarryd's passing shots, cutting off several of them with crisp volleys.

Playing positively and aggressively, the West German teenager broke Jarryd in the fifth game and then staved off two break points on his own serve to carve out a 4-2 lead.

In the next game, Becker saved a set point with an unimpaired cross-court volley and finished off the game with an ace. He did it again two games later to level at 6-6 and send the set into a tiebreaker. An early break gave Jarryd a 3-1 lead in the tiebreaker but the German stormed back to take the next six points and square the match.

Each player held serve at the start of the third set and the match was delicately poised when the rain, which had plagued the first week of the tournament, lashed down again.

Three trees were struck by lightning and when the action began, Curren thundered down an ace on only the second point of the first semifinal.

But Curren's opponent in Sunday's final was still to be decided, with West Germany's Boris Becker and Anders Jarryd of Sweden locked at one-set all when a driving rainstorm, the second in a few hours at the All England club, suspended play for the day.

Jarryd had taken the opening set 6-2, Becker the second 7-6 and the score in the third was 1-1 when officials decided to call off the semifinal until Saturday.

The match was set to resume at 6 a.m. EDT, before the final of the women's singles between defending champion Martina Navratilova and her long-time rival, Chris Evert Lloyd.

Norman continues Canadian streak

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) - Greg Norman continued his mastery of the par-5 holes Friday and surged out to a 3-stroke lead after the second round of the Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

Norman, the defending titleholder in this national championship, scored two birdies, an eagle and a par on the long holes on his way to a 4-under-par 68.

Curtis Strange, the season's leading money-winner, and Larry Mize moved into second at 136, six under par. Mize, a frequent challenger, not yet a winner this season, closed up with a no-bogey, 6-under-par 66. Strange, who has won two tournaments and $433,574 already this season, had another 69 in the gusty, swirling winds.

Norman, known as "The Great White Shark," reached the tournament halfway point with a 36-hole total of 135. That's nine under par on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

And, for two days of play, the Australian is nine under par on the par-5 holes. He has played them with two eagles, five birdies and a single par, on the 18th in the second round.

"I feel comfortable with my golf game, confident with my game. I've got the lead and the others have to try to get it away from me," Norman said.

Fuzzy Zoeller, a former U.S.

Open and PGA champion, closed with a string of four consecutive birdies, shot a 66 and was tied at 139 - four off the pace with 36 holes to go - with Skeeter Heath, who had a second round 68.

"Hey, that was fun," said Zoeller. "I don't know if I can catch him. All I can do is go out and give it my best shot."

Greg Twigg, with a 69, was at 140 and was the only other man in the field within six shots of the leader.

Norman, however, insisted that "anyone at par can still win the golf tournament. Look what happened to Nicky Price last year. He led by six after 36 holes. I was at even par, 10 shots back. That just shows you, with two rounds to go, no lead is safe."

Then he smiled.

"But I'm three in front so somebody is going to have to play four better than me to beat me. If I don't make stupid mistakes, throw away shots I don't have to, I should have a profitable weekend," he said.

Norman made his big move away from the field when he chipped in from deep rough, the shot covering about 25 feet, for eagle-3 on the 16th. "A nice way to top off the day," he said.

Some of the game's top attractions had their difficulties, however.

1984 Canadian Open winner GREG NORMAN laughs it up on the 7th green after saving par from the trap during second round play in Oakville. NORMAN continues to lead after two rounds.

PGA champion Lee Trevino, a 3-time Canadian Open winner, had a second consecutive 75 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds. So did Ben Crenshaw, who shot 81-157.

Johnny Miller, one stroke off the lead after the first day's play, fell back with 75 and was at 143. Jack Nicklaus, who has yet to win this title, had the same total after a struggling 73 that included four bogeys. Newly-crowned U.S. Open champ Andy North shot 76 for a 147 total.

And Jim Gallagher, who shared the first round lead with Norman, had a 78 and a 145 total.

Aside from his par-5 heroics, Norman had two birdies and as many bogeys in sometimes-erratic effort in which he one-putted for four times and once dropped a 4-footer for bogey.

On the first par-5, the seventh, he chipped to about 6-8 feet and made the putt for birdie. On the 13th, he got up and down from a greenside bunker, holing about a 12-footer for his birdie. And his chip from deep rough on the 16th caught the slope of the green and trickled into the cup for eagle.

Alcott simmering in Mazda Classic

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) - Amy Alcott, the first-day leader, birdied five of the final six holes for a 4-under-par 68 Friday and extended her lead to four shots after two rounds of the $300,000 LPGA Mazda Hall of Fame Championship.

Alcott shot a 3-under-par 69 in Thursday's rain-plagued first round and had a 36-hole total of 137, 7-under-par and four shots ahead of Nancy Lopez, who birdied the final hole for a 70 and a 141 total.

Hall of Famer JoAnne Carner also had a 2-under-par 70 over the 6,470-yard Sweetwater Country Club course for a 142 total in third place.

"I might win by 10 or 11 shots or I might finish third or 10th," Alcott said. "I'll be out there playing aggressively. I just think that tomorrow I'm equal with the field and we go from there."

Janet Coles shot a second round 69 and tied with Pat Bradley and Kay Kennedy at 143, 1-under-par. Kennedy shot a second round 71 and Bradley had a 72.

Sally Quinlan, with a 73 and Sally Little, with a 69, and Beverley Davis with a 72, tied at even par 144 with Mary Beth Zimmerman, who shot a course record 66.

The field was trimmed to 78 golfers scoring an 8-over-par 152 or better for that final two rounds.

Alcott started a four-hole birdie run on No. 13 with putts of one, 15, 12 and 20 feet, two-putted for par on 17 and ran in another 20-footer on 18.

Alcott's final birdie followed a 175-yard shot over a tree with a 7-wood.

"I had no chance for that shot but when there's not a shot, you make a shot," Alcott said. "I was having fun there. I just stood there and laughed."

Carner had a first round even-par-72 for a 36-hole total of 142, 2 under par despite missing two short putts. Carner was 3-under-par for the tournament until the final hole when she missed a four-foot putt for a bogey.

Mary Beth Zimmerman shot a competitive course record 6-under-par 66 with an eagle and three birdies over the final four holes after an opening round 78 for an even-par-144, 36-hole total.

Zimmerman broke the previous record of 68 by Marci Bozarth in the 1984 LPGA Qualifier.

Zimmerman, who holds the LPGA record of eight consecutive birdies, chipped in a sand wedge from 25 feet for an eagle to start her quick finish. She added birdie putts of 10, 20 and 10 feet and wanted to keep playing.

Giants club Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) - Bob Brenly and Manny Trillo hit two-run singles in a seven-run seventh inning and Chris Brown added a two-run homer in the eighth to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 12-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

Brenly and Brown each had three RBI and Brown had four of the Giants' 17 hits in the game. Trillo's single in the seventh was his second of the inning.

The triumph was the third straight and fourth in five games for the Giants, who enjoyed their biggest inning of the season to the dismay of 38,766, the Cubs' largest home crowd this year.

Vida Blue, 5-2, was the winner though he worked only the first five innings and left with a 3-2 lead. Scott Sanderson, 4-4, took the loss but was not involved in the seventh inning.

Reliever Warren Brusstar failed to retire a batter in the seventh. Joel Youngblood led off with a double and Trillo beat out a bunt.

Chili Davis, who had tripled and scored earlier, doubled, scoring Youngblood. Jeff Leonard was walked to load the bases and Brenly singled for two runs. Brown singled, scoring Leonard. That was all for Brusstar.

Scott Thompson greeted Lary Sorensen with a base-filling single and an out later Greg Minton was safe on shortstop Chris Speier's fielding error. Brenly scored and, after a force play, Trillo singled for the final two runs of the inning.

The Cubs retaliated with four runs in the bottom of the seventh - Dave Lopes' grounder, Keith Moreland's single and Jody Davis' two-run single drove home the runners - but Brown hit his sixth homer in the eighth.

The Cubs scored in the first on a single by Leon Durham. They scored in the second on successive doubles by Ron Cey and Speier.

The Giants scored three runs in the second on a triple by Davis, an error, a sacrifice fly by Brenly and a two-run single by Jose Uribe
