Supreme Court: No pass, no play

AUSTIN (AP) - A state rule barring high school students from sports or other extracurricular activities if they are failing any course was upheld today by the Texas Supreme Court.

The unanimous opinion overruled a Houston district judge who had said the no-pass, no-play rule was unconstitutional and could not be enforced.

"The rule provides a strong incentive for students wishing to participate in extracurricular activities to maintain minimum levels of performance in all of their classes," the Supreme Court's opinion said.

Spring Saudi Arabia threatens oil glut

PARIS (AP) - Saudi Arabia has threatened to more than quadruple oil production, a move that would likely trigger a price war that would send oil prices plummeting, unless OPEC colleagues renounce cheating on the group's price and production quotas, a senior Western official says.

The threat, said to be relayed by the Saudi oil minister to several governments after OPEC's inconclusive meeting last weekend, was more severe than an earlier warning from the kingdom last month.

The Western official, who spoke with reporters Tuesday during a meeting of the International Energy Agency, said Saudi Arabia is prepared to increase production from the current 20-year low of about 2 million barrels a day to as much as 9 million barrels a day by year's end unless other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agree to its

The official spoke only on the condition he not be identified and said he had no doubt about the authenticity of the Saudi message.

OPEC oil ministers ended three days of meetings in Vienna, Austria, on Sunday with a pledge to end cheating, but with no specific agreement on how to defend oil prices, which have been slipping because of oversupplies on world markets and widespread discoun-

The organization is to meet again on July 22 in Geneva, Switzerland, and Saudi Arabia, which faces another huge deficit if oil income continues to slide, is seeking guarantees that the 13-nation group will comply with its own price and production quotas.

Oil prices rebounded Tuesday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, but that increase was attributed to buying only to meet short-term needs, with widespread uncertainty over the course of oil prices in the future.

Arabia could send the price of oil plummeting below $20 a barrel

Each $1 drop in the price of a barrel of oil is equivalent to a decline of about 21/2 cents in the retail price of a gallon of gasoline or other refined petroleum product. Saudi Arabia's first warning on stepped up production came during a meeting of nine OPEC ministers in last month. That gathering received a message from King Fahd that warned that his kingdom would no longer sacrifice oil production and revenue in face of other members' increasing discounting of prices.

Ex-hospital superintendent loses $2 million slander case

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

An Abilene federal court jury ruled against a former Big Spring State Hospital superintendent in her $2 million defamation trial.

The eight woman-four man jury deliberated less than two hours Tuesday afternoon before declaring that Dr. Grace Renee Ferguson not be awarded damages in her lawsuit against former county officials William Tune and Harvey Hooser.

Ferguson filed the suit in 1982, claiming Tune and Hooser made derogatory remarks about her during a hearing at the hospital. She said they were responsible for a remark that she was a "dopehead." The remark, she contended, led to her dismissal in 1980 as superintendent of the hospital. Jurors yesterday answered "no" to the charge that Hooser told Tune that Ferguson was using drugs or narcotics. Tune testified on Monday that he could not remember ever using the term "dopehead." During Tuesday's testimony, he said, "it's apparent that I did," when a portion of the transcript of the May 1980 hearing was read to

"I don't remember making the statement, but it's there," Tune said.

Testimony began Monday morning and ended Tuesday morning in the two-day trial. Ferguson had sought $1 million actual damages and $1 million punitive damages. During Monday's testimony, she said she is currently employed as a psychiatrist and earns $91,500 a year. She declined to disclose her current job location.

Ferguson was represented by Dallas attorney Steven B. Thorpe.

Abilene attorney Malcolm Schulz was hired by Howard County commissioners in May. U.S. District Judge William Belew of Fort Worth presided over the case.

Investment ideas benefit under tax plan

EDITOR'S NOTE - President Reagan's proposal to simplify the federal tax system could have a far-reaching impact on the way Americans invest their money. This third story of a five-part series assesses the reaction in the business community.

By CHET CURRIER

AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The investment community looks at every new proposal from Washington with a single question in mind; "Is it good for business?" The verdict on President Reagan's tax overhaul proposal depends on what you sell.

Many investment analysts agree that traditional financial investments like stocks and bonds should benefit from the new setup, assuming that it or something resembling it is passed into law.

What's more, some of their best customers - upper-income individuals ould stand to have more aftertax income

"It is bullish for financial assets," said Jeffrey Applegate, political economist at the brokerage firm of E.F. Hutton & Co.

Reform or revolt?

However, there are large sectors of the financial-services and investment world where specific elements of Reagan's plan are being greeted with negative responses ranging from caution to alarm.

People in the business of selling life insurance and annuities, for example, are up in arms over the president's proposal to tax the annual increase in the cash value of policies sold after new tax rules go into effect. Tax-deferral of this cash buildup is a primary selling point for these products.

There also is much uncertainty about what the plan would mean for real estate. Furthermore, some advisers on matters of personal finance say the prospect of a new overhaul of the system is troubling, coming as it does on the heels of important tax legislation in 1981, 1982 and 1984. "Continuing tax law changes make longterm planning for future education costs, retirement and estate transfers virtually impossible," observes William Brennan, who publishes a newaletter on tax and inment planning. "Let's face it - long-term planning can't extend beyond the present calendar year." By all accounts, stocks get very favorable treatment under the proposal spelled out by the president in May - especially since an earlier version put out by the Treasury Department in November would have treated them more harshly.

At present, the maximum tax rate on profits from stocks held for more than six months is 20 percent, compared to a maximum of 50 percent for ordinary income like wages or interest received.

The original Treasury proposal would have eliminated the special treatment for long-term capital gains like these. But under the president's plan, long-term capital gains would be subject to a top tax rate of 17.5 percent. An existing deduction for the first $100 of dividends an investor receives ($200 for a married couple filing a joint return) would be eliminated. But corporations would be. permitted to take a new writeoff for 10 per-cent of the dividends they pay — a provision that might well encourage some companies to increase their dividends.

Furthermore, many investors would pay lower taxes on the dividends they receive because the maximum personal tax rate would be lowered from 50 percent to 35 percent.

President. Reagan's plan would deny capital gains treatment to assets that can be depreciated, such as developed real estate that is held for investment purposes. Some advocates of investing in tangible assets for example, gold and collectibles - fear that Congress may seek to exclude these from capital-gains treatment as well. Several elements in the Reagan proposal strike hard at high-writeoff limited partnership investments that are commonly called "tax shelters." Some observers say this is just one of many negatives for real estate in

"No one can predict, on a short-term basis, how the market will react to real estate," Brennan says. "Obviously, there are psychological factors besides pure financial considerations. One big unanswered question for all investors is the impact an overhaul of the tax system would have on the economy. NEXT: Real Estate

City's water charge funds placed in escrow account

By LISA MUSSER Staff Writer

COAHOMA - The Coahoma City Council voted Tuesday night to hold in escrow the 20 percent maintenance charge on its citizens' water bills on the advise of Austin attorney Pam Giblin, Mayor Eleanor Garrett said this morning.

The 20 percent charge was added to the bills last April after the Howard County Water Control District had requested it for maintenance, Garrett said.

According to a report from Giblin given in the meeting by councilman Judy Jackson, the city should "withhold the 20 percent maintenance charge because we haven't signed a contract with the water district" regarding the charge.

Jackson said the contract the city made with the water district in 1962, which does not include the maintenance charge, should be binding until 1988.

The council also agreed to the purchase of a $150 lawnmower.

Keenan said the council tabled discussion on insurance for its employees and dependents with Joe Brewer of Brewer and Associates of Midland because more information was needed.

2 bodies found at site

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. — Investigators redoubled efforts to unearth murder victims in a widened search area after discovering two more decomposing bodies, raising to 11 the number found near the cabin linked to Charles Ng and survivalist Leonard Lake.

Calaveras County district attorneys planned to decide today whether to prosecute Ng on two counts of murder relating to two of the first nine bodies that were found, said sheriff's spokesman Jim Stenquist. The bodies exhumed Tuesday "have nothing to do with Ng," Stenquist said

Authorities have linked at least 22 dead or missing people to the investigation, which was broadened to include a search within five miles of the mountain cabin 130 northeast of San Francisco, where Lake planned to survive a nuclear war.

Three more California counties were declared disaster areas Tuesday as flames forced thousands of people from their homes and authorities coordinating the attack on fires in 14 states considered asking for more military help.

Kay Grenke, whose family lives north of Rome, Ore., said flames drove thousands of grasshoppers onto her house and a shop building on Monday.

"The wind started blowing and brought that black cloud over, and it was just like the end of the world," she said.

Over 1,000 fires burned in the western United States and three Canadian provinces, authorities said. At least 484 burned in Arizona, California, Idaho, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Montana, Oregon, Utah and Washington, according to the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho. Other fires were either contained or controlled in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wyoming.

As many as 4,500 people were evacuated Tuesday in northern California as flames burned tinder-dry brush and trees near 2,000 homes near Los Gatos. That fire added seven homes to the 150 already destroyed in recent firestorms

About 1,400 people were evacuated from Canal Flats in southeastern British Columbia because five fires, which had charred 12,000 acres, circled the town, said Forests Ministry spokesman Ray Wormald.

More than 11,000 U.S. firefighters were stretched across housands of miles of fireline, while in the Canadian provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba, where 380,000 acres have burned, at least 543 fires raged Tuesday, according to the Canadian forest service.

"Normally if Canada asked for help we would help them out. But they haven't asked and we're just about stretched to our limits," said Pauline McGinty, spokeswoman for the Interagency Fire Center, a coordinating agency for the nation's firefighting agencies.

"One option is to ask for military assistance, so we're going to be thinking about that," said spokesman Jim Bishop. "We still have some manpower available, but we're stretched"

but we're stretched."

California National Guard spokesman Phil Jordan said some 360 Guard members were operating 13 Huey helicopters, three C-130 tankers, jeeps, other vehicles and radio-telephone links between camps in California and Montana

More than 1,600 square miles of brush, range and timber land have burned in the western United States and Canada since late June, an area 33 percent larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Bill could outlaw pork

KIBBUTZ MIZRA, Israel — If Orthodox religious leaders get their way, no little piggies will go to market in Israel any more.

Religious Jews, who make up about 25 percent of the nation's 4.2 million population, have sponsored a bill in Parliament that would ban the breeding and marketing of pork, which is prohibited under Jewish dietary laws.

The measure was approved 53-27 in a preliminary vote in the Knesset, or Parliament; it's expected to survive three more such votes to become law soon.

Observant Israelis view the ban on pork as a key element of a tradition that has helped sustain the Jewish people in a centuries-old struggle against assimilation and persecution by anti-Semites from the Roman Empire to Nazi Germany.

Bees raise quite a sting

LONDON — Bees, angered by a late, wet spring, have disrupted English life and provoked the longest-running debate of the year in The Times' revered letters column.

Recently, spectators at a championship cricket match near London saw players suddenly start rolling on the ground, swatting their arms wildly to deal with a nasty swarm.

On the same day, bees occupied the control tower of a Royal Air Force base in Wales for three hours. The air traffic controllers ran for cover, forcing the cancellation of practice bombing runs.

Oxford University entomologist Chris O'Toole told The Associated Press that an unusually late and wet spring this year had made the insects very bad-tempered.

Car-bombers kill 15

TEL AVIV, Israel — Two suicide carbombers who killed themselves and 15 Lebanese in southern Lebanon were trying to penetrate deep into Israel's security zone and head toward the Israeli border, newspapers reported today.

In apparent retaliation for the attacks, which also injured 10 people, including two Israeli soldiers, Israeli jets today fired rockets into the Baddawi Palestinian refugee camp near Tripoli in north Lebanon.

Federal judge should resign

The arrogance of some high-placed public officials can be oppressive. Not only for the public that those officials are elected or appointed to serve, but for the employees those officials hire to help them.

Richard Neely, the chief justice of the West Virginia Supreme Court, fired his 59-year-old secretary for refusing to continue to baby-sit for his 5-year-old son.

The secretary said that the baby-sitting demands had become too much. She had watched the child eight consecutive days in May and "on and off" for three weeks since then. She said she had stayed with the boy either at Neely's home or her home, and that it was beginning to affect her health.

The National Organization for Women is asking for Neely's

Neely says that he asked his secretary to baby-sit only when he was away on business and that his staff serves at his "will

To what extent is an employee expected to go in serving the personal needs of a boss? How does an employee deal with the despotism of a Judge Richard Neely?

Neely abused his public position by even asking the secretary to baby-sit. He should resign, take off his black robe, step down from Olympus and come back to earth.

American ace raises royal flush at court

Charlton Heston told The Daily Mail that he would not sit in the royal box at Wimbledon this year because he is afraid John McEnroe might embarrass him. "I do not want to sit .. and risk embarrassment, as an American, of seeing an American disgrace his country.

I know exactly what Chuck is talking about. I've turned down invitations to sit in the royal box for several years because I was afraid McEnroe might do something to make me terribly ashamed.

It was a great sacrifice for me because that's the only place I enjoy watching the matches on center

I recall the last time I sat there a few years back. I was squeezed between Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Seated in front of me were Lady Di and Prince Charles and Princess Anne. Behind me . were the Duke and Duchess of

We were laughing and joking, as one always does in the royal box, when John McEnroe came on the court. I stiffened measurably as McEnroe gave the drinking fountain a good kick. It was going to be a long afternoon

No sooner had play commenced when John complained that the ball boys were not retrieving his tennis balls fast enough.

The Queen turned to me and said, "A fellow countryman?"

I smiled weakly. "Not really, Your Majesty. He's from Long

She smiled and patted my hand gently. "You can't be responsible for what another American player does. I recall when you played Wimbledon. Your manners were impeccable.

'I was representing my country. In those days we left the line calls to the officials.

We were into the second set when McEnroe approached the umpire's chair and started what could charitably be described at the umpire's call but also the parentage of the gentleman

Lady Di put her hands over her ears as Prince Charles tried to console her. "It's going to be all right, my dear. The man is just trying to psych himself up.

Then Prince Charles turned to me and said apologetically. "I don't know why women insist on coming to Wimbledon when they know tennis, as played by Americans, is a very bloody

It was toward the end of the match that McEnroe, having double-faulted three times in a row, started to deliberately smash balls at our box.

This was too much for me, and as the Royal Family ducked under their seats, I left the box in shame and disgust - never to return

Gary Hart must pay up or say goodbye to '88

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., isn't the first political candidate who has left his creditors high and dry. But the financial fallout from Hart's 1984 presidential bomb is a particularly sharp illustration of this precarious part of politics. Campaign debts are a two-edged sword, cutting both the creditors and the candidates. Those who extended credit to Hart last year for goods and services in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination have lived to regret it. And some small businesses are in bad financial shape as

But there's danger in the situation for Hart, too. If he doesn't repay his 1984 creditors or settle with them, it could hurt his 1986 Senate re-election effort, to say nothing of any run for the White House in 1988. Given a slick enough explanation, the voters might forgive a certified deadbeat; businessmen won't. Hart could find himself forced to pay cash on the barrelhead for everything from bumper stickers to telephones and transportation. That could be a serious drawback in a profession that traditionally operates on the cuff to take advantage of sudden

When Hart's presidential bubble burst last year, he wound up $5.1 million in the red. Of that, $1.4 million was in bank loans. The remaining $3.7 million is owed to businesses.

The small creditors - those least able to swallow the bad debts - seem to have gotten the short end of the stick when Hart made his repayment decisions. Custom Print of Washington, D.C., which provided material for direct-mail fund solicitations, is one that got shorted.

"Hart owes my client a principal amount of $38,000, and we were given an assurance in writing that we would be repaid in full," Custom Print's attorney, Howard Ross, told our reporter Mark Woolley. "They never had enough money to cover their finances, and when they failed to repay, we filed suit."

Custom Print finally agreed to take $4,000 plus 12 to 13 cents on the dollar for the remaining $34,000 owed. Bad as that was, it's better than the 5 cents on the dollar Bob Salta of Direct Mail Management, also of Washington, says he's been told he'll get on the $22,000 Hart owes him.

In addition to the $600,000 or more that Hart owes to direct-mail firms, he owes his political consultant, Teresa Sullivan Associates, $90,000. Everybody is going to get their money back in due time," said Bill Dixon, Hart's new Senate staff director. "We only owe $3.7 million, and we're taking steps to clear that debt."

DES Daytona Beach Morning Journal
Description Corner News Service

The main step taken was to launch a series of 90-second fund-raising appeals. The messages,

HOW TO COMBAT TERRORISM

"I've wired it to blow if anyone puts something in..."

which were temporarily suspended because of the TWA hostage crisis, are a direct plea from Hart for contributions to reduce his 1984 campaign debt. Hart plans to complement the TV appeals with personal fund-raising appearances in eight states. "Our creditors won't be barking at our heels much longer, because we plan to pay them off next year,' Dixon said confidently.

Will Hart succeed in mollifying his 1984 creditors' If he doesn't, grumbled one bitter businessman, 'Hart won't be able to buy an envelope in 1988."

Meanwhile, the Committee to Re-Elect Hart is running full steam ahead in Colorado. Though Hart has not formally announced his intention to run for re-election next year, he has filed a "statement of candidacy" with the Federal Elections Commission, which permits him to raise money. The fund-raising is going well, a committee spokesman said.

If Hart decides not to run for the Senate again, he can use the war chest he is raising for anything he likes - including another run at the presidency.

HALL OF SHAME: A jocular invitation sent by Treasury workers to 600 colleagues advised that "loin cloths and spears" would be optional at a party honoring a fellow employee's transfer to Swaziland The thoughtless racial slur drew immediate fire from several workers in the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, where it was distributed. Emory W. Rushton, director of Multinational and Regional Bank Supervision, issued an apology on behalf of the subordinates who prepared the invitation. A cartoon on the invitation, showing a man in top hat and tails exchanging champagne toasts with a bikini-clad hippo, apparently drew no objections.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Department of Health and Human Services has asked the FBI to run background checks on thousands of workers who handle payrolls and benefit payments on computers: Investigation of convicted computer crooks showed that almost one-fourth had prior criminal records. Of particular concern is the so-called "Trojan Horse" technique — inserting a program on the computer that destroys all traces of itself after committing a crime. A "Trojan Horse" might issue salary or benefit checks to the computer operator or an accomplice, then self-destruct, leaving no evidence of the transaction. Background checks could spot potential cheaters, HHS officials believe.

MINI-EDITORIAL: There is a subtle menace in too much conformity, in the government's Uncleknows-best attitude. The democratic machinery should never run so smoothly and silently that the rumble of opposition becomes muffled. Let there be a few cogs that grate against the massive wheels of big government.

Trolleys ride on sentiment

By KEELY COGHLAN Progress, according to the Associated Press wire, has come to Pittsburgh.

Gone are the days of the dingy, cumbersome trolleys that crowded the downtown streets. In their place, or rather under their place, brand-new "graffitiresistant" subway cars are rushing under the city and out to the southern suburb.

My dad, who moved to Pitt-sburgh less than a year ago, would say it was about time. He probably can't wait until they tear up the streets to get rid of the trolley

He also lives in a northern suburb that will still be served by buses, another form of transportation he despises

I'm not so sure that the trolleys were that bad, for all that you could hear them coming blocks away. They were interesting, a throwback to the time before classic architecture meant a steel-and-glass canyon built prior to 1965 And as far as graffiti-resistant goes, I'll bet there's a car plastered with paint in the first week. It reminds me of a scene in "Turk 182!" when the "graffiti-proof" subway car is unveiled by a campaigning politician and public of-ficials, only to reveal a car covered in murals. Trolleys have a kind of romance underground, spotless subway doesn't. Imagine San Francisco replacing its cable cars with a sub-way. It seems almost anti-American. To bring the idea closer to home, it would be like replacing the Hotel Settles with a 57-story glass skyscraper. I guess I'm overly sentimental, especially over things I don't have to take to work or battle in traffic every day. But still, I can see the same people who built the subway for $62 million more than budget

- deciding to replace one of the city's big tourist attractions, the cable cars up the side of the mountain called "inclines" with underground tunnels or a road. It takes all the fun out of it.

Temper may mean illness

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband and I have always had a very good relationship throughout almost 50 years of marriage. But recently he has become very shorttempered and hard to deal with. When I try to talk with him about it later he acts as if he doesn't even remember, but I don't see how that can be. How can I help him? -Mrs. T.D.S.

DEAR MRS. T.D.S.: The first thing you need to do is to share your concern with your family doctor and have him give your husband a thorough physical examination. As we grow older, many different things can happen to us physically that can affect our emotions and our behavior. Only your doctor can advise you on this, of course, but don't be afraid to speak with him about it. Many problems that older people tend to have can now be treated medically, and you owe it to your husband (and yourself) to see if there is a physical problem that needs medical attention.

Then seek every day to grow claser to God. Your letter does not indicate if you and your husband have ever given much thought to your relationship with Christ - but if you have never committed your lives to Him, now is the time to turn to Christ and put your lives in His

'I want the man caught," said McNiel. He said he began carrying the gun after Foote escaped July 4. McNiel told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that at least three sheriff's deputies are posted on his ranch

But despite the gun and the guards, he said it's almost business as usual at the McNiel household and at McNiel Enterprises, the company he runs in a red barn about 200 yards from the two-story house.

"He's been crazy enough to do those other things," McNiel said. "If he harbors any hatred against my family ... we just did what he had to do to gain Amy's safe release. But I can't crawl into his head and know what he's thinking.

The FBI, meanwhile, entered the Foote manhunt Tuesday. Bureau officials in Fort Worth said a federal warrant was issued for Foote on a charge of assaulting a federal officer during the gunfight in January in which Miss McNiel was rescued.

Foote scaled a chain-link fence and squeezed through barbed wire atop it while he and other Johnson County prisoners were in the jail exercise yard. He had been in the state prison in Huntsville but was returned to Cleburne for questioning about an Alvarado robbery, authorities said.

'There's been nothing so far," Johnson County Chief Deputy Malcom Southerland said Tuesday. 'Just nothing, no trace. But we have put this on nationwide computer. Technically, all the law enforcement officers in the country are in the search.'

On Monday, one prisoner in the county jail was charged in connection with helping Foote escape and the jailer who was on duty in a jail exercise yard at the time resigned, Southerland said.

Johnson County Sheriff Eddy Boggs, with hat, leads other law enforcement officers in the continuing search for convicted kidnapper James Wesley Foote who escaped July 4th from a 10-foot chain linkedenclosed exercise yard in Cleburne.

Dear Abby

Obituary isn't place for health advice

DEAR ABBY: I have great respect for your reasoning, and I especially admire your long answers, but sometimes your short ones don't measure up.

Specifically, when someone wrote to say that whenever she read in the newspaper that someone had died of lung cancer, she wondered if that person had been a smoker. Then she added, "I think that should be included in the report of death, don't you?"

Your reply: "Yes, I'm sure most people would like to know." Why stop there? I suggest the Died: Timothy Doe, of a drug overdose, a mixture of heroin and Drano. Survivors include his parents, who take too much Valium.

Died: Richard Roe, of injuries sustained in a traffic accident. Mr. Roe had five speeding tickets in the last three years.

I don't think you gave very much thought to your reply, Abby. Clearly, obituaries are not the place to provide health advice.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this fellow for over a year, and we're planning to be married in September. My problem is I'm always getting an ex-lover or girlfriend thrown in my face. He tells me about the affairs he has had, and then wants to introduce us. I keep finding their belongings (intimate apparel) all over his apartment. Yesterday was the last straw when I found some nude pictures of one of his girlfriends taken at his place!

I really love him and keep forgiving him, but I don't know how much more I can take.

Please give me some helpful advice. I have already spent $800 on our wedding, and nothing can be

> HEARTBROKEN, AND CONFUSED

DEAR H. AND C .: Call off the wedding and consider the $800 tuition in the school of experience. Marriage to this man would have cost you much more than $800 in anguish, pain, regret, headaches, sleepless nights and acid indigestion.

Dr. Donohue

Will husband make it to retirement?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: It's hard to speak to others about the one who is most important to you, so I am writing to ask you for your advice. My husband has been a beer drinker for 30 years. In the last 10 years he has added mixed drinks and straight whiskey to his intake - every day, at least 10 or more beers and a pint of liquor.

He makes it to work without fail, but some days his eyes and face are very swollen when he awakes. To make matters worse he smokes three to four packs of cigarettes a day - always. He talks about retiring and the things he wants to do. but I say, forget it, he will never live that long to retire — in five more years. What would you say his chances are? Believe me, I'd try anything to help him to quit and who never relaxes until he gets to bed. As I say, this has been a continuous pattern for years. How can he keep abusing his body? I hope you can answer. I am an avid reader. The letters are always to the point! - Anon.

Of course, I am the one who wor-

Your letter is certainly to the point, and the point is, of course, that your husband is an alcoholic and in need of immediate help, even though his condition has been smoldering for all these years. Consult your family doctor.

Alcholics die at two or three times the rate of non-drinking contemporaries. They have more heart disease, definitely more liver cirrhosis, and more cancer of the stomach and lungs, the latter probably from their excessive smoking. A quarter of all U.S. hospital missions involve alcholism in one way or another. If your husries, who has knots in the stomach band loves you and values his

'Magic formula' makes eating fiber quota easy

Most new medical evidence suggests that dietary fiber helps prevent coronary heart disease by reducing the absorption of cholesterol, according to Family Circle.

Dietary fiber seems to speed up the transit rate of foods going through the digestive tract and thus helps prevent colon cancer one of the most common forms of cancer in the United States

For health reasons alone, it's suggested that a person eat 40 grams of fiber daily as a lifetime habit. To help you get your fair share of fiber easily, mix up a daily batch of this "magic formula:"

Don't take food poisoning on picnic

July begins the peak picnic illness can be avoided, says Mary K. Sweeten, Texas Agricultural Extension Service nutrition specialist. The "poison" actually is produced by a certain bacteria, a type of staphylococcus, which contaminates the food, she said. The poison is eaten with the food and produces symptoms such as nausea and vomiting.

and food poisoning - season. But For most people, food poisoning with a few simple precautions, this is just a miserable experience, but unpleasant and sometimes serious it can be serious for babies, elderly people adn those with other ilinesses, she said.

> The bacteria often reach food from the hands of the person preparing it. But even when you're careful to wash your hands, bacteria from the skin, hair or throat, can be spread to food.

Since these bacteria are especially fond of protein, Sweeten meat, poultry, salads containing egg, custards and some baked

The most likely sources of food oisonings are those dishes that you don't normally heat or reheat before serving on a picnic.

"It's never wise to assume that high-protein foods are safe after being kept at room temperature," she says. "Since refrigeration prevents the bacteria from making their poison, the most effective recommends precautions when way to avoid food poisoning is to taking high protein foods - such as eat them right away or else keep them cold until they are served.

> Refrigeration temperatures should be below 45 degrees Fahrenheit, which may be difficult to maintain in an ice chest or other type of cooler, she said.

"Contrary to myth, mayonnaise isn't commonly the main culprit in food poisoning," she said. So it's important to keep all hot foods hot and cold foods cold to reduce the chances of taking food poisoning along on your picnic

Minerals are needed in the diet

In addition to the multitude of vitamin supplements on the market, health, conscious consumers are also being urged to take minerals. But do we need to be concerned about our intake of minerals?

"Minerals are essential for good health and growth," says Dr. Alice Hunt, nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "It's also important that people get their minerals in just the right amounts."

Some minerals, such as calcium, phosphorus, sodium, chloride, potassium, magnesium and sulfer, are needed in relatively large amounts. In this case, a "large" amount ranges from milligrams to one gram. Other minerals, called "trace minerals" are needed in small amounts, Hunt says. Iron, manganese, copper, iodine, zinc, cobalt, flourine and selenium are included in trace minerals.

Minerals like lead, mercury and cadmium are actually harmful and can cause poisoning, says the nutritionis

Other minerals can cause ill effects if you take as little as twice as much of the amount required for good health. Taking too much of one essential mineral may upset the balance and function of other minerals in the body, she said.

"Excess mineral intake can reduce your ability to perform physical tasks and can contribute to health problems such as anemia, bone demineralization and breakage, neurological disease and fetal abnormalities," Hunt said. The risks are greatest for very young, pregnant or lactating women, the elderly and those with inadequate diet or chronic disease, she said.

Since minerals, like vitamins, are widely distributed in foods, healthy people can get what they need by eating a varied diet that includes foods from all of the basic food groups.

Since minerals can be stored in the body and become toxic if too much accumulates, taking mineral supplements can be risky, she said.

'If you choose to take mineral supplements, take them under the supervision of a physician, and don't use them in amounts in excess of what the body needs," she said.

Time-saving tips make cooking and other work easier

The following time-saving and corner-cutting tips can help in the kitchen. They are from Family Circle magazine

· Shake, shake, shake...Tap, tap, tap...Smack, smack, gush! That's the last straw. Next time you want to coax the catsup out of a new bottle, push a straw all the way into the bottle and stir before you pour. If you don't have time to steam green vegetables at the last minute, try this easy cook-ahead trick. Boil them in large quantities of water for six or seven minutes, or until just crisp-tender. Drain and dunk in ice-cold water. They'll keep their green color. Refrigerate until just before serving, then saute · Store bags of flour and sugar inside plastic bags. There will be less mess in the cabinet.

America keeping fit, recent AP poll shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost six in 10 Americans exercise to keep fit, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll. Most of those who don't run, lift weights, bicycle or otherwise put their bodies in motion blame lack of time or say their strenuous schedules give them enough of a workout.

In a nationwide telephone survey of 1,402 adults, 57 percent said they exercised in addition to their normal daily activities.

Walking was the most common form of exercise, with one-third of the respondents saying they walked to keep physically fit. Half of the respondents said they got their exercise indoors: jumping rope, lifting weights, dancing and doing calisthenics, aerobics or yoga were among the exercises mentioned.

"I think the American public is more sophisticated about how to exercise for fitness purposes, but I don't think they're as sophisticated as we would want them to be," said Ash Hayes, acting director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

"People today do understand better how to exercise. I'm not sure they understand how much they have to do to get a training benefit," Hayes said. "We say a minimum of 20 minutes, three times a week for heart-lung endurance. They think that if they stroll with the dog, they're getting enough everying."

The Media General-AP poll found that four in 10 people without a regular exercise program said they got enough exercise in their normal daily activities and three in 10 said they didn't have time to exercise. Other reasons for not exercising included not liking exercise, laziness and boredom.

White collar workers were more likely than blue collar workers to exercise in addition to their normal daily activities. Young people were slightly more likely than older people to exercise.

Despite the recent popularity of road races and other recreational competition, racing was not a concern for most of those in the survey. Only 18 percent said they had ever entered a sports competition.

Respondents in the Media General Associated. Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,402 adults across the country May 1-7. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, in the timing of interviews and in the interview methods could also cause variations.

Coke, Pepsi salesmen slug it out

AUSTIN (AP) — A district manager for Pepsi-Cola has signed a misdemeanor assault complaint against a Coca-Cola salesman over a skirmish that broke out concerning prime display space in an ustin grocery.

Steve Choate, the Pepsi-Cola ofcial, said Monday that Skip Jorgan, the Coca-Cola salesman, yelled obscenities at him and shoved him after he found Choate and another Pepsi employee dismantling a Coke display.

Choate filed the complaint Monday in connection with the incident, which he said occurred Thursday.

"It was just a real bad scene, and it was in one of the biggest stores in Austin," Choate told the Austin American-Statesman. "There were ladies there buying chips and soda and charcoal, and people were lining up to take sides. I think he was mad because he was going to-lose the space."

The two bottlers rotate use of a front area in the store. The Coke display was supposed to be down Thursday morning so Pepsi could set up there, Choate said.

"The store manager directed me to move the Coke display, so I did," Choate said. "Then he (Morgan) came in and started shoving me and yelling. I just went to the store manager, and he made him leave."

G.C. Brizendine, Coke home market manager, said he was unaware of the scuffle or criminal charges and could not comment. Morgan was on vacation and could not be reached for comment. "The competition between Coke and Pepsi is fierce. It's known from Wall Street to Austin," Choate said "But if a Pepsi man can't even walk through the store or back rooms without being on edge ... I don't know."

Tree carver out on bond

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 24-year-old carpenter who carved his girlfriends' names on a tree at a federally owned campground has been freed on bond after he was accused of defacing a government tree.

Angel Chagolla, 24, was released on $2,500 personal recognizance bond Monday after he was charged with wanton injury to a tree.

Federal Magistrate Robert O'Connor told Chagolla he faces up to a year in prison and a $100,000 fine if he is convicted.

The government claims Chagolla used an ax to carve the names "Lupe" and "Debra" and his own initials on live oak trees at the federally owned campgrounds at Potter's Creek Park at Canyon Lake north of San Antonio.

Chagolla said he was camping with several male friends when the alleged incident occurred April 4.

Park Ranger Lee Hunt said he ticketed Chagolla after other campers complained he had been using an ax on four trees.

"One of the trees was girdled and will die. The others we don't know about," he said.

Chagolla said, "They say the trees are dying. I don't believe it."

Sands and his partner, Larry G. Vandiver, run Sandiver Investigations. As small town investigators, these men are among a handful of former law officers who have turned to what they say is a lucrative field of private investigation.

"I made more in three days last week on " a case in Oklahoma than I made in a month as a Commerce detective," said Sands.

"It took us five years of hanging-in-there to establish our business, but now we have major clients such as General Motors and the Attorney General of Texas. Now we get $30 to $50 an hour plus expenses. In Dallas, I hear some of the PI's get $1,000 to $1,500 a day," said Sands.

Besides product liability insurance cases for General Motors and other major companies, Sands also worked on a wellpublicized case a few years ago in the Houston area

"In 1972, a young girl died in a private school for troubled children," said Sands. 'The circumstances of how she died were strange, and we were employed by (then) Attorney General Mark White's office to reopen the investigation in 1982 after the state was sued for the closing of the school.

Sands and Vandiver were employed to track down and interview 250 people who had graduated from the school 10 years earlier. He said that he and his partner managed to locate most of them.

'We had a captive audience with some who were now in prison," Sands said.

At the end of the court battle, the state of Texas was not found negligent in the closing of the school, Sands said.

Sands has had more than a decade of experience in law enforcement, working as a patrolman and detective with the Commerce police and as an investigator with the Greenville and Sulphur Springs district attornevs.

He has a degree from East Texas State University in sociology with an emphasis in criminal justice, and he has attended an FBI course on fingerprinting. Since 1980, he has run Sandiver Investigations.

Sands and his partner handle many types of cases, including divorces, child custody, locating witnesses, workmen's compensation and finding lost heirs.

What was Sands' most dangerous case? "In early 1984, I was employed to work on a murder case down in East Texas around Hawkins and Big Sandy," Sands said. "I was working for the attorney of a man being tried for murdering another man. Our client admitted to killing the other man but said it was in self-defense. I was trying to find out information about the character of the man killed to support my client's case.' Sands said he was having a hard time getting anyone to talk to him because of racial barriers and the attitudes of small-town residents when asked questions by

In order to talk to some friends of the murdered man, Sands hired a known, local man who accompanied him to a bar where the friends hung out. Sands said he felt out of place in the surroundings.

"I was nervous, but asked some of the murdered man's friends what kind of guy he was. I did not identify myself as a private investigator. I really got a cold reception at first, but after a few beers, the men really opened up. Later, our client was acquitted of the crime."

Do Sands and crew ever use disguises in their work?

"There are a number of business cards around the office here with different occupations and different names," Sands said. "At times we have been a freelance writer and photographer working for a big Dallas magazine, a real estate agent and a traffic survey team, among other things."

And, the life of a private investigator can also lead to work in interesting places, even if it doesn't always live up to the images seen on television.

spending much of the summer on a case in Colorado

Sands said he and his partner will be John R. Sands, a private investigator, ponders a question during an interview at his Commerce office. Sands was a police officer until he turned in his badge and started his own private detective agency.

Weak peso devaluation continues

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Although devaluation rumors have run rampant lately, the government announced Monday that the peso will continue to slide at the same daily rate of 21 centavos against the dollar for commercial transactions.

The announcement published in the Federal Register referred only to the controlled rate, used for business transactions involving dollars. It is the lowest of three exchange rates.

The controlled rate Monday was 229.59 pesos to the dollar for buying dollars and 229.79 pesos for selling, and the numbers will continue to increase by 21 centavos a day. There are 100 centavos in one peso.

Many exporters have been saying an increase in the devaluation rate is necessary to make their products more competitive. A faster devaluation would yield more pesos per dollar earned abroad, allowing manufacturers to meet rising production costs here without raising prices overseas.

Rumors had been rife that after July 7 elections, the government would speed up the sliding value of the peso currency. Mexicans voted for members of the lower house of Congress, governors in seven of 31 states and a handful of other state and municipal offices Sunday in the first nationwide balloting since President Miguel de la Madrid was elected three years ago.

The Federal Register cited among the reasons for maintaining the sliding controlled rate, the government's policy of avoiding abrupt changes that might harm the economy.

The government also sets a socalled free rate for noncommercial transactions. It too slides at 21 centavos a day and is 17 to 18 pesos above the controlled rate.

Ten days ago, the government announced that the nation's banks could open up their own exchange houses and buy and sell dollars at a 'super-free" rate to compete with private exchange houses.

Speculation had driven up the "grey market" rate in private houses to over 300 pesos to the dollar, causing government concern that the currency exchange was getting out of control.

The business newspaper El Financiero, meanwhile, reported that speculation still was so widespread that many exchange houses ran out of dollars over the weekend.

And the newspaper Excelsion quoted Roberto Davila Gomez Palacio, president of the National Association of Economists, as saying that the government should guarantee a stable price for foreign exchange. He said the action of the nationalized banks in stepping into the "super-free" market was intended to reduce speculation and the pressures on the peso.

Fossil discovery made at Lake Proctor

STEPHENVILLE (AP) Scientists say fossils of a previously unknown creature buried on an ancient flood plain near here could fill in a major gap in dinosaur history

The thing that is important about this discovery is that these fossils are from dinosaurs and other critters of an age that we know little about." said Dr. Philip Murry of the Tarleton State University Physical Sciences Department.

The remains of a type of planteating, dinosaur-like creatures that lived 100 million years ago were found in June by TSU sophomore Rusty Branch during an excavation project in June.

So far, the team has uncovered six dinosaur skeletons on the western part of Lake Proctor in Comanche County, about 75 miles southwest of Fort Worth and they suspect the site holds even more fossils.

Murry and Dr. Louis Jacobs of the Shuler Museum of Paleontology at Southern Methodist University headed the excavation.

Jacobs describes the project as monumental because of its contributions toward creating a more complete view of how the earth and animals have changed.

"This finding fills in a major gap in the record and gives us a more complete picture of the workings of these animals in their environment," Jacobs

The site is unique in the quantity of fossils uncovered and the quality of the findings, several of which have been reclaimed intact, Murry said.

Calling the findings "new dinosaurs" because they are unlike any other creatures previously described by science, Jacobs and Murry said the skeletons display characteristics of a couple of known specimens.

"There are a couple of components that lead us to believe that they were some new type of herbivorous dinosaurs," Murry

The skeletons recovered thus far are of a small ornithischian, or bird-hipped species.

At least one probably represents a previously unknown type related to the camptosaurs, a group of planteating dinosaurs that usually walked on their hind legs, Murry said.

Paleontologists Louis Jacobs, left, and Will Downs of Southern Methodist University prepare to remove a plaster-encased dinosaur skeleton, more than 100 million years old, from an excava tion site near Lake Proctor in Comanche County

Her reign was a Cinderella year says former Miss Texas winner

FORT WORTH (AP) - Gloria Gilbert Barron says her reign as Miss Texas in 1982 was a Cinderella

"All your dreams come true = there's the ball, the special treatment given by the people." With the crown came opportunities for "fun and excitement" and a chance to better her education, she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. During her reign, Barron appeared in parades, spoke at conventions and helped in other pageants. The best time she had as Miss Texas, she said, was on a program in Austin with Willie Nelson for the Special Olympics. Barron performed a ventriloquism act. "The kids may not have understood all my jokes, but they just appreciated my being there,"

District attorney

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican Ed Walsh, who as Williamson County district attorney sent confessed mass killer Henry Lee Lucas to death row, today declared himself a candidate for attorney general.

Walsh said he wants to be the state's top law enforcement officer to help Texas get tough on crime.

"I know what it takes to convict criminals and keep them off the streets so that our homes and families will be safer. I understand the importance of having a prosecutor who works with law enforcement officials and victims to make criminals pay for their crimes," he told a Capitol news

Walsh, 38, of Round Rock, switched from the Democratic Party to the GOP in March. Before declaring his candidacy today, he resigned the Williamson County post. He said the conviction of Lucas for the slaying of an unidentified woman hitchhiker whose body was discovered along a roadside near Georgetown is one confirmation of his success as a prosecutor.

Walsh said he believes the primary race will cost about $1.5 million. He said he has raised about $20,000 of that so far in Williamson County, with pledges for about that much more.

Walsh becomes the first Republican to announce against incumbent Democrat Jim Mattox.

State Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson, has issued statements saying he will declare his candidacy for attorney general on July

In announcing, Walsh criticized Mattox for complaining about legislative cuts in his office's

Gregg St. to lose 4 traffic lights Repairs

City Council approves measure to place stop signs on side streets

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

Fewer red lights will block Gregg Street traffic, city councilmen decided Tuesday

Councilmen decided after a lengthy discussion to follow recommendations by the city's traffic commission in all but one case and remove five traffic lights.

The lights, which include four signals on Gregg Street and one on W. Highway 80, will be switched to flashing lights temporarily and finally will be replaced with stop signs on the side streets.

Signals that will be removed, as the result of a state Highway Department traffic study, are at the intersections of Gregg and Edwards Boulevard; Gregg and W. Fifth Street; Gregg and W. Second Street; N. Gregg and and N.W. Third; and W. Highway 80 and Airbase Road.

Stop signs would be placed on Edwards, W. Fifth, W. Second, N.W. Third and Airbase and Willa streets The council, however, agreed to keep a signal in place and upgrade it with better equipment at the intersection of N. Gregg and N.W. Fourth.

The signals are unwarranted, according to a state traffic study in 1979, because of a decrease in traffic. Under state law, a city cannot erect or maintain a signal that is not warranted, according to City Manager Don

According to City Traffic Coordinator and Planner Sherrill Farmer, the state also conducted a more recent study of the intersections. The traffic count was found high enough

Most councilmen expressed concern about cross traffic and accidents at several of the intersections, including Gary Don Carey. Carey at first said he worried about the W. Highway 80 intersection.

"It's a straight shot ... and I love to speed -"It's a straight shot all the way downtown," Carey said. He said he was worried speeding would increase on the road, causing more

"I see you haven't gotten your lecture yet from city staff that traffic signals are not to be used to curtail speed," Councilman Russ McEwen said and laughed.

Talking about the highway department's traffic counts, Councilman Larry Miller said, "They don't have to live here and have to get across Gregg Street.

Council members, however, said they were most concerned about the N.W. Fourth Street intersection signal, which was originally installed after several fatal motor vehicle accidents there Without the signal, drivers at the four-street intersection have no indication where to turn, said Councilman Johnny Rutherford. N.W. Fourth and N.W. Fifth also intersect there.

Councilman Henry Sanchez, in whose single-member district the intersection falls, called the signal there "very necessary." "I've seen some bad accidents there. I've seen some bad accidents at N.W. Third but it's not as bad as at (N.W.) Fourth," Sanchez said. According to Farmer, fatal accidents can warrant a traffic signal at an intersection but that will not be enough reason to keep a signal said Russ McEwen,

In other action, the council agreed to:

 Approve a change order to add a 12-inch water line from the intersection of 16th and Airbase streets north to Maple Street, over the railroad tracts at the northern boundary of the Industrial Park and traveling west. One reason why nobody bid on the project is the height at which the contractors will have to work on the clay, Reeves said he was told. The Odessa contractor who bid the first time, quoting a price more than twice the cost estimated by Reeves and Clayton, did not submit another bid.

Nationals hold off Coahoma

Midland Eastern turns back Lamesa

Staff Writer Both teams had their big inning

But it was the Big Spring National League All-Stars whose inning was the biggest, as they held on for a 14-12 win over the Coahoma All-Stars last night at Pittman Field, home of the Big Spring National

The first night of competition for both teams in the District Little League playoffs was wild and woolly. The Nationals built a commanding 13-2 lead after two innings of play. But they had to scrap to hold on for the win. Coahoma had a man on second when National pitcher Joe Conway got Rexie Denton to ground out to third for the final out. Conway was the third hurler for the Nationals. He pitched the last one-and-one third innings. Starter Shane Myrick started and got the win for the Nationals, going the first two-and-two-thirds innings. He was relieved by T.J. Lane who also pitched two-and-two-thirds innings

Coahoma pitcher Dutch Barr overcame a horrible start and settled down to pitch near-flawless ball the final four innings.

The Nationals big inning occured in the first as they sent 14 batters to the plate while scoring nine runs. Three errors, two walks and a couple of bad fielding decisions hurt and Neal Mayfield singled in the inning. Second baseman Michael Gonzales added a double. Twice National league runners scored when Coahoma infielders tried to get the runner at home instead of getting the sure out at first.

In the top of the second the Nationals added four more runs thanks to three walks, one error and a single by Conway.

After the first two innings, Coahoma's Barr settled down and kept the Nationals in check, allowing two hits the remainder of the game. He finished the game allowing eight hits, walking seven and fanning seven.

Mayfield and Hillaro were the main weapons in the Nationals attack. Mayfield drove in five runs while getting a single and double in three trips to the plate. Hilaro got two singles in two trips to the plate, driving in two runs and scoring two

With Barr doing his job on the mound, Coahoma slowly edged its way back into the contest. They scored two in the second when Myrick walked in two runs. They added three more in the third thanks to some shabby National fielding and a single by shortstop Mark Arguello, which scored two runs, chasing Myrick from the top hitters for Goahoma. Arguello collected two singles, scored a run and drove in four. Walker added an RBI on two

After the Nationals added a run, in the top of the fourth, Coahoma came back with their own big inning in the bottom of the fifth.

Sending 10 batters to the plate, Coahoma rallied for six runs on three hits off Lane, chasing him from the game. Three walks and two errors didn't help matters for the Nationals. Conway came in to get the final out but the Nationals lead had been cut to 14-11.

In the bottom of the sixth Conway got the first two batters out. Adam Johnke, who had two RBI's for the game, singled keeping Coahoma's hopes alive. After Michael Hernandez walked, Walker singled; scoring Johnke and pulling Coahoma to two runs 14-12

But their hopes ended when Conway got Denton for the final out.

The wins propells the Nationals into the winners bracket where they will meet the perenially tough Big Spring Texas League Thursday at 8 p.m. at the National League Park. Coahoma will play the Big Spring Americans Saturday at 8 p.m. at the National League Park.

Springs worries head coach

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys running back Ron Springs said h "was kind of shocked" by concern that Coach Tom Landry expressed about Springs' upcoming trial in connection with a nightclub altercation last January. Landry was quoted by The Dallas Morning News Tuesday as saying he is unsure whether he can count on Springs in light of his unresolved legal problems.

On Sept. 9, the day the Cowboys open the regular season at Texas Stadium against the Washington Redskins, Springs is scheduled to appear in court to face a felony charge of assaulting a female police officer. Police were called to the club after Springs allegedly harrassed a topless dancer.

"How can you count on somebody when they may be in court?" Landry told the News. "I'ts a concern.

Springs' trial was pushed back from June 24 and was postponed two other times.

Springs said Monday he is confident he will be proven innocent and said he is not concerned about the delay. But Landry said Springs' potential uanavailability coud be a factor in roster decisions.

"It has to have an effect," Landry said. "It has to be a deterrent. He's kind of in limbo. If he's in court the day we have to play Washington, that's not very good."

Springs' attorney, Richard Corbett, said he expects Springs' trial will take "the good por-

Lockhart wants more money

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys linebacker Eugene Lockhart wants a higher salary and has threatened not to report to training camp if something doesn't happen soon.

The middle linebacker has been negotiating with Cowboys' vice president Gil Brandt to increase his $79,000 a year salary. But he said Monday he plans to end negotiations with Brandt and take his complaints to coach Tom Landry

"Gil Brandt has stonewalled me and right now I have no reason to talk to him any more,' Lockhart said. "Every time I try to talk to him he tries to stonewall me. I guess there's nothing else to do or say. This is getting pretty depressing.'

Brandt offered Lockhart a three-year contract with stepladder salaries of $110,000, $130,000 and $150,000, the Dallas Times Herald reported. Lockhart wants about $40,000 more a year.

Without the increase Lockhart would make considerably less than other starting linebackers for the Cowboys - Anthony Dickerson ($185,000) and Mike Hegman

Generally, contracts for the team's secondyear players are renegotiated after an outstanding season. Lockhart started eight games last season after Bob Breunig was injured. 'We are giving Eugene what we consider to be a pretty good raise," Brandt said.

Lockhart could be fined up to $500 a day if he doesn't show up on the July 25 reporting date. Lockhart is a second year man from the University of Houston where he was an All-Conference performer. Last season he stepped in at the middle linebacker spot for injured Bob Breuing as did an admirable job.

He ended up as the Cowboys second leading tackler and had one interception. he was also named to the All-Rookie Defensive team.

Lockhart is only the fourth middle linebacker in the Cowboys history, succeding Jerry Tubbs, Lee Roy Jordan and Breuing.

Broadway Joe will be new face on Monday Night Football crew

By The Associated Press

Joe Willie Namath, resplendent in his snazzy, royal blue ABC blazer, smiled at the recollection, sort of like an old quarterback recalling a touchdown pass.

Twenty years ago, Namath came out of the University of Alabama as college football's hottest property, signed by the New York Jets with the mission of saving a football league. Showman Sonny Werblin had lured him with a stunning threeyear, $425,000 deal, revolutionary numbers for that simpler time "I was all fired up, excited about playing pro football, coming to New York, all that," Namath said. "Then I got the first paycheck. The salary figure was correct, but the name was not. "It was made out to Joseph W. Nathan,' Namath said. "Can you imagine that? They didn't even have my name right? I got it cashed though. I had friends in Birmingham.

He also had a score to settle. Some time later, Namath and Werblin found themselves on a golf course together and engaged in what the quarterback described as a small, friendly wager. The owner won the bet. "I paid him, too," Namath said. "Made the check out to David

Now, Namath is embarking on another rescue mission. Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, has reached into the bullpen for a relief quarterback, hiring Joe Willie to replace Don Meredith on Monday Night Football. The series' ratings sagged last season, bent by the glut of televised football. Arledge thinks there were logical explanations for the six-point dip including one-sided games and bad matchups. He prefers that explanation to the more ominous one, that the public has tired of prime-time football. Maybe what they were tired of was hearing "Turn out the lights, the party's over." So the network imported Namath "I am not inherently worried that the Monday night package needed drastic fixing,' Arledge said.

A little adjusting, perhaps. For his part, Namath was rather charmed by the idea. He's been out of football since retiring in 1977 and yearned for a chance to get back to it. He has been working as an actor since leaving the game and has no broadcast experience. So what can he contribute to the telecasts?

"First," Namath said, "I bring Joe Namath, the way I feel, my personality, my good humor, my good looks. He smiled again, that engaging, almost shy smile that was the essence of Broadway Joe. "That's the kind of guy I am."

Arledge said Namath and collegues Frank Gifford and O.J. Simpson would be encouraged to be critical. "We want them to be candid, to say what they think," he said. "We want the broadcasts to go beyond X's and O's. I think sometimes explayers have a tendency to be overly forgiving and non-candid. Namath says that won't be a problem for him. He was critical in huddles. He will be critical on the air. 'You don't have to rip a guy's character," he said. "If as guy makes a mistake when you're playing, the quarterback points it out, explains what went wrong and says, 'Don't do it again. Some people won't like what I have to say, but you can't please everybody The new team makes its debut on the network's coverage of the Aug. 3 Hall of Fame game between the Houston Oilers and New York Giants from Canton, Ohio. That same day, Namath and Simpson will be inducted, joining Gifford in the shrine. Namath's contract is for five vears and Arledge was not revealing terms except to say they were "very good. 'Sonny Werblin spoiled him early on," he said.

Now, if they just remember to spell his name right on the checks, Joe Willie will be happy.

Summer camps heat up in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Coaches once were the summer students of such teaching legends as Knute Rockne in football and Adolph Rupp in baskethall.

But in increasing numbers, athletes and would-be athletes are absorbing the summer teaching of such college coaches as Eddie Sut-ton and Dean Smith in basketball, Barry Switzer in football and Cliff Gustafson in baseball.

in other parts of the nation, summer camps have been prominent for two decades or more, providing five-figure annual incomes to North Carolina's Smith and to Sutton, who recently moved from Arkansas to Kentucky.

Summer camps are not big business in Texas - yet.

High school football, basketball and volleyball players for two decades were banned from camp attendance; a rule change last year allowed non-varsity athletes to sign up. And not until the late 1970s did most Texas colleges allow coaches to conduct such schools on campus.

But University Interscholastic League rules are changing, and colleges are jumping into the market that's opening up.

Since the University of Texas changed its policy on facilities and coaches' work schedules in 1979; the school and its men's and women's coaching staffs have developed camps in basketball, women's volleyball, swimming, track and field, tennis, baseball

Doug Messer, UT's assistant athletic director for financial affairs, says the camps are set up partly to complement coaches' salaries. But Messer emphasizes the community service concept, "to allow boys and girls of every age to have, an educational and athletic experience."

Camp directors at UT receive rent-free use of such facilities as Memorial Stadium, Gregory Gymnasium and Disch-Falk Field to house their operations - all of them, that is, except for swimming Coach Eddie Reese, who pays the Texas Swimming Center about $5,000 for use of the pool for six

All the camps, Messer said, have such expense items as room and board for resident campers, advertising and awards and T-shirts for campers who enroll.

"Women's athletic department policy is that the camps cannot lose money, because there is no money in the budget to cover deficits, said sports information director Chris Plonsky. "But the ones that Jody Conradt (basketball), Mick Haley (volleyball) and Eddie Reese (swimming) have are all moneymakers."

Instructors' salaries are included in the expenses; Messer said some coaches are paid a flat fee, while others receive a percentage of the profits

While camp income induced Sutton and Smith to settle in at their schools, Messer does not see such revenue as critical to retaining UT's men's coaches. But women's swim coach Richard Quick came to UT three years ago partly because of the income potential from Reese's summer camp.

Messer, who has been in athletic administration at Mississippi State, Florida State and Kansas, says UT's approach to camps is, contrasted to those schools, conservative.

"At all three of those schools the biggest camp is the football camp. Some people may visualize a football camp as pushing a blocking sled around in the July heat, but they're fun camps. Kids learn fundamentals, but there are other activities."

Race car driver pleads guilty

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) -Race car driver John Paul Jr. has agreed to plead guilty to a federal racketeering charge in exchange for the government dropping four other drug-related counts, the prosecutor said today.

Paul, appearing with his at-torney John Nuckolls, signed the plea agreement at a pre-trial conference before U.S. District Judge Susan Black, who scheduled an Aug. 5 hearing for Paul actually to enter the plea.

Under the agreement, Paul will face up to five years in prison on the racketeering count. He also agreed to plead guilty to a charge filed in Alabama of possession of a false passport. The agreement calls for Paul to receive probation for that plea.

In exchange, the government will drop three other drug-related charges filed in Florida and a marijuana possession charge filed against Paul Jr. in Louisiana federal court.

Paul faced a maximum sentence of 50 years in prison and $80,000 in fines if he had been convicted of all

Paul, his father, John Paul Sr., and six other people were charged in a federal indictment with conspiracy to import marijuana into the United States. An estimated 200,000 pounds of marijuana was smuggled into this country from Colombia, according to the indictment.

Paul Sr., also a well-known race car driver, was charged in the same indictment as his son, but he was accused of being one of the leaders of the marijuana smuggling ring, along with David J. Cassorla.

The elder Paul was arrested in Switzerland on Jan. 11, but Morris said it could be several months before the extradition process can be completed.

The indictment charges Paul Sr. and Cassorla, who is still a federal history of the Camel GT.

Indians' pitcher Bert Blyleven thinks his outstanding record will mean more to him after he retires.

That's when the 34-year-old Blyleven says he'll be able to "look back and thank the good Lord that he gave me the good fortune to pitch for a long time.'

Blyleven, 8-8, struck out five Texas Rangers Tuesday to pass the 100th strikeout mark for the 15th time in his career. Blyleven tossed a four-hitter and another veteran star, Andre Thornton, knocked in four runs with a home run, two singles and a bases-loaded walk to beat the Rangers, 7-2.

"He stabilizes the whole middle of the lineup," Blyleven said of Thornton. "When Andy hits like he has been the last week, guys like Pat Tabler and Brook Jacoby get better pitches to hit. His attitude during his slump was outstanding. Andy's a hard worker and a dedicated man.'

Thornton has been dealing with the lingering effects of knee surgery and a batting slump this season. But he has driven in 13 runs in the last seven games.

"You can't get behind (Thornton) and you have to make good pitches on him," said Burt Hooton, 4-3, the Rangers' starting pitcher. 'Andy's a good hitter and you can't make a mistake on him.

Cleveland took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Julio Franco singled and scored on Tony Bernazard's double. Thornton then singled home Bernazard.

The Rangers tied the game in the third on Pete O'Brien's two-run double before the Indians regained the lead 3-2 in the bottom of the inning. Brett Butler grounded into a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on Franco's single to put Eleveland ahead to stay Cleveland padded its lead to 5-2 in the fifth. Jerry Willard doubled and Franco reached first with two outs on shortstop Curtis Wilkerson's error. Bernazard walked to load the bases and Thornton walked to force in a run. Dave Rozema relieved Hooton and allowed another run by walking Jacoby.

Cleveland closed the scoring in the seventh when Bernazard doubled and Thornton followed with his fifth home run.

Rangers' Ward gets All-Star game nod

FORT WORTH (AP) - Detroit Tigers manager Sparky Anderson has decided on outfielder Gary Ward as the lone representative of the Texas Rangers to play in the 1985 All-Star Game, next Tuesday at Minnesota's Metrodome, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The newspaper quoted unnamed sources close to the Detroit manager

Ward has played in one previous All-Star Game. He was 0-for-1 while representing Minnesota in the 1983 classic.

"He deserves it," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said before Monday night's game with Cleveland. "He's been my All-Star. Toby (Harrah) has played well, too, but Gary's gone out there every day and done it."

After going one for three Monday night, Ward is hitting .286 with five home runs and 38 runs batted in. He has hit .344 over his last 40 games to raise his average from .225. He already has matched his career high with 13 stolen bases. "I'm very happy if that's true," peared all but certain he would be an American League All-Star. "That's just letting me know that I've accomplished something.

"I wanted to come out and have a super first half because I had such a bad one last season," Ward said. "I'm a little slow in homers right now, but I think those will come.
