Speeding ruled out as wreck factor

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Excessive speed has been ruled out as a contributing factor in Saturday's church bus wreck that killed three Big Spring people and a San Angelo woman, a Department of Public Safety trooper said today.

According to Trooper Wayne Whiteaker of Lamesa, the accident appears to have been caused when the bus hit a wet spot on the slick, rain-coated road about one-quarter mile east of Ackerly on Highway 87.

"There's no mechanical failure that I can tell," Whiteaker said.

Although, Whiteaker told the Associated Press Sunday that he listed "running over the speed limit" in his accident report, he said today speed was not a factor. "They left Big Spring at 7:40 p.m. and the accident occurred at 8:15 p.m. That's 35 minutes. It's a 20-minute drive to Ackerly if you're going 60 (miles an hour). They weren't in any big rush."

The Rev. Frank Nelson of Midland, pastor of the Powerhouse Church of God in Christ in Big Spring, was in a car following the bus en route to Lubbock for a Northwest Texas Jurisdictional Conference.

According to Whiteaker, Nelson told him "he saw the back start to slide around — at first, he thought it was going to turn left — it slid out into the median, across the southbound lanes of the highway and into the field."

Killed were: Sheila Albert, 15, of Wreck page 2-A

Church holds prayer service following Saturday tragedy

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

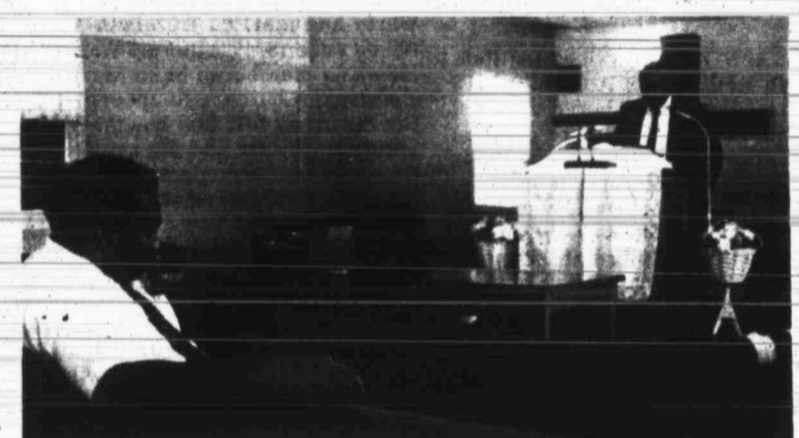

Rev. Frank Nelson of Midland, minister of the Powerhouse Church of God in Christ in Big Spring, told members of the congregation Sunday during a special memorial service that, "we have suffered a great loss, but God still loves us."

Four people, including three from Big Spring, were killed Saturday when a bus owned by the Church of God in Christ overturned near Ackerly, just inside Dawson County.

The Sunday night service was conducted at the church located in north Big Spring at 711 N. Cherry. Eight adults and three children attended to pray for the families and lives of those who died.

Nelson was a passenger in an automobile that was following the bus northbound on Highway 87. "I saw the accident occur," he said before the 7:45 p.m. memorial service. "We were some distance behind the bus. Nevertheless we saw it occur," Nelson said.

According to DPS reports, driver Robert Scott, 48, of Big Spring lost control of the 1964 GMC bus before it skidded off the road, through a ditch and across the southbound lanes of the highway. It rolled at least 2½ times before it came to rest on its roof in a cotton field on the west side of the highway, one-quarter mile east of Ackerly. The accident occurred at 8:15 p.m.

Nelson said as he and other passengers in the car "ran through the mud in the field" to attend to the injured, several women and children who had escaped injuries in the rollover had immediately begun giving aid to the less fortunate. "There was not much screaming and yelling because most of the young persons had been through it before," Nelson said.

He said many of the passengers on the bus also had been passengers aboard a van owned by the same group of churches that crashed in October 1984 in Midland. One person was killed and 19 others were injured in that accident.

Yeats asks counsel be named to defend county

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Legal counsel told Howard County commissioners today they should appoint an attorney to defend a $6 million federal civil rights suit filed by a San Angelo woman whose son was shot and killed by a sheriff's deputy last November.

Howard County Attorney Tim Yeats asked commissioners "to enter an order to appoint counsel for defendants named in the law suit. The risks are tremendous here. I would certainly hire an expert in civil rights cases."

He told commissioners that an answer to the suit must be filed by August 7 and that the county should hire an expert to handle the task. Yeats said he has not practiced in federal courts and that it is harder to make amendments and withdrawals in those courts.

"In my mind, there is conflict between defendants... the sheriff and O.D. Majors need their own attorneys. The county needs its own attorney. I don't think you'll find an attorney who will represent all defendants named in the suit. You must decide to give the judge authority to appoint counsel," Yeats said.

The suit names Howard County, the sheriff's department, Sheriff A.N. Standard and former deputy O.D. Majors as defendants.

Commissioner Bill Crooker asked Yeats if he had any suggestions as to who to hire. The county attorney suggested Malcolm Schulz of Abilene who recently defended former county officials William Tune and Harvey Hooser in a slander suit filed in Abilene Federal Court by a former superintendent of Big Spring State Hospital. A 12-member jury ruled in favor of Tune and Hooser.

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said the court would make some kind of decision on Yeats' request when it reconvened in an emergency session posted for 1:30 p.m. today.

In other court action:
• Commissioners unanimously approved a motion requesting that the Texas Department of Public Safety office be temporarily housed in the Permian Building. Other state offices that will join the DPS in the new location include the parks and wildlife department and the alcoholic beverage commission offices.

The lease says that the county will pay approximately $2,500 per month for about 5,628 square feet for eight offices on the sixth floor.

• Commissioners approved June homestead refunds from the county tax office that amount to $561.77

Rainfall total over norm

Weekend rains brought Big Spring's precipitation for the year to more than 4 inches above normal, with Saturday and Monday morning showers totaling 1.6 inches at the U.S. Field Station gauge.

Rains blessed the Crossroads Country in varying degrees ranging to as little as two-tenths of an inch in Coahoma.

At the field station located north of Interstate 20, the official gauge for Big Spring, six-tenths of an inch was received this morning for a weekend total of 1.6 inches.

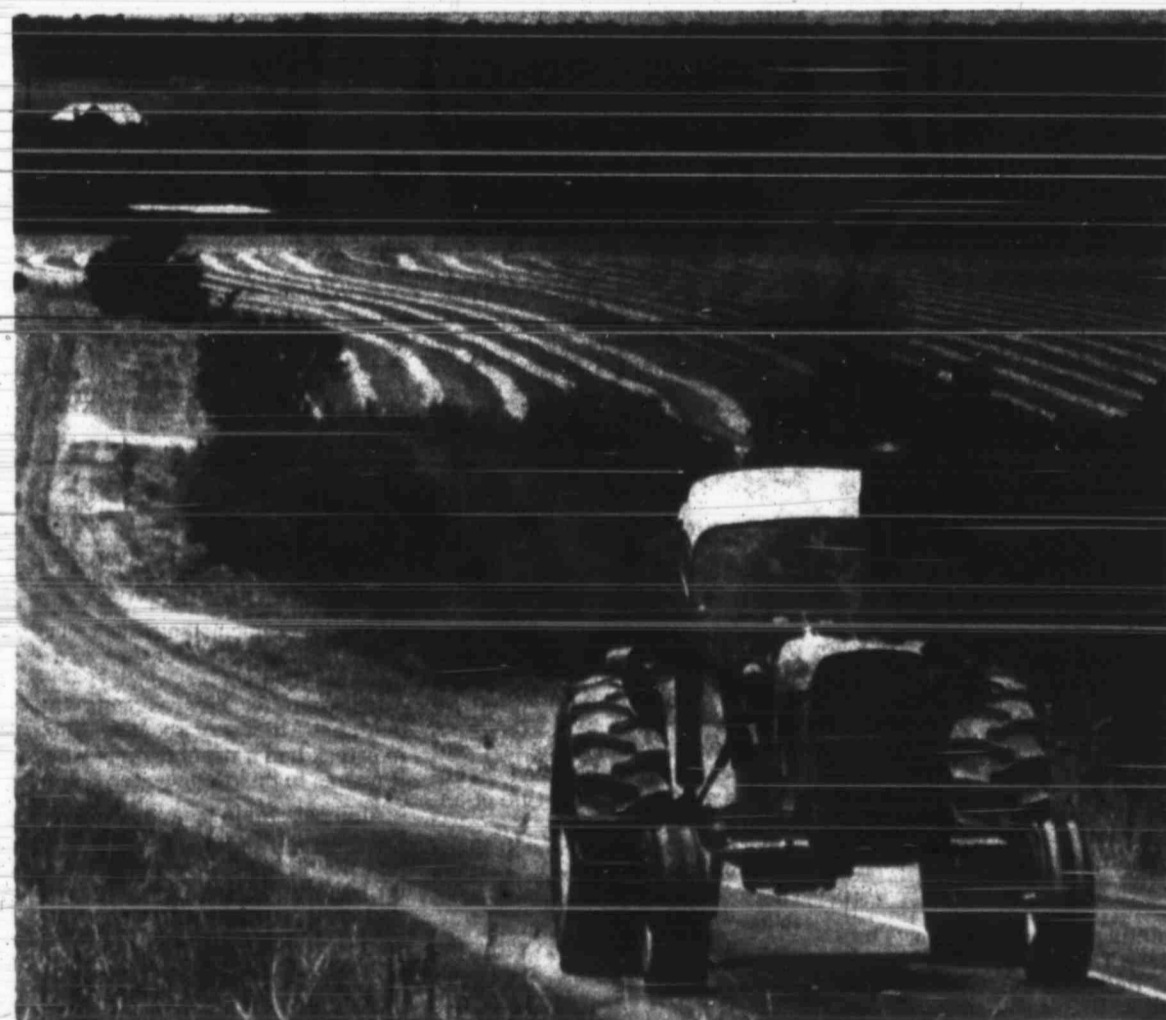

This brings the year-to-date total to 14.36 inches, more than four inches above the normal 10.23 inches, according to a spokesman at the station.

Last year, June and July combined produced only 1.56 inches of rain, according to field station records.

Red Thomas of 107 East 13th reported two-tenths of an inch this morning. He received half of an inch of rain on Sunday.

Rainfall around the area was recorded as follows:

• Boyce Hale of Sterling City said he received .77 of an inch of Rain page 2-A

A tractor makes its way near a field of freshly cut grain near Abilene recently. Even though spring and summer rains have filled many West Texas reservoirs, the area is still thirsty for more.

Land still thirsty for more rain

ABILENE (AP) — Bountiful rains filled many West Texas reservoirs this spring, but a persistent, several-year drought still keeps the area thirsting for more of the precious water.

"I was raised here, but it does get discouraging," said Harold Sloan, a cotton and wheat farmer with about 1,500 acres west of Abilene.

"It just looks like it (rainfall) is going down," said Sloan, 50. "Up until the last couple years you felt you could make up a bad year with a good year. Now in a good year, you can't even make up your costs."

Although farmers, city dwellers and lake officials all say unusually heavy rains this spring have been a blessing for crops, municipal water supplies and lake recreation, a disturbing trend of declining totals for annual rainfall continues.

"In the Bible, it talks about the seven year plague. Sometimes, I wonder," said Ernest Lillard, administrative assistant for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

'Nervous' donors give blood to aid city

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

Bruce Helsley was frightened, but he knew he had something that the community needed — his blood.

Helsley, 29, was a first-time donor at the 6th Annual Big Spring Community Blood Drive held Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Highland Mall.

The drive was sponsored by the Big Spring United Blood Services Board. Janet Reed, donor resources representative for the United Blood Services Center in San Angelo headed the event.

Reed said the goal of the Big Spring drive was to obtain 75 units of blood, which was explained by her mobile specialist as being about 75 pints.

Approximately 300 units a week are needed to meet the needs of the 35 hospitals served by the San Angelo center, including all of the Big Spring hospitals, she said.

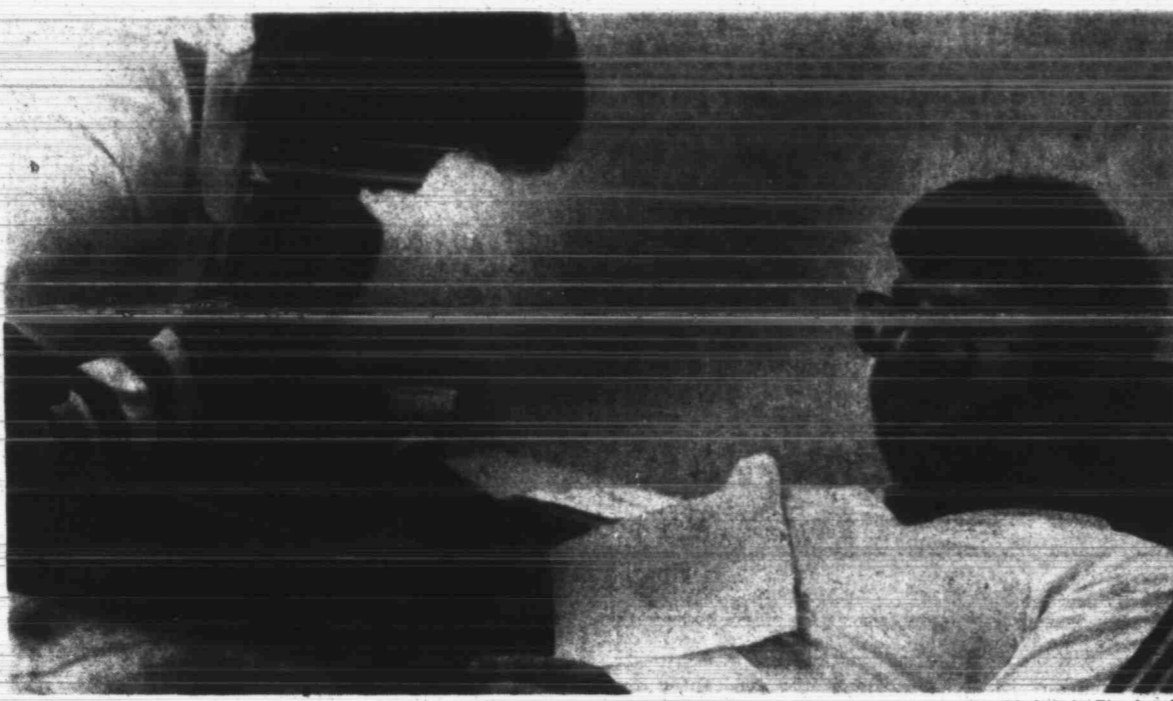

United Blood Services tries to keep 450 units on consignment in San Angelo. The blood is then sent to the hospitals on request.

"Chances are the blood we draw today will be coming right back to Big Spring," Reed said.

Helsley of 2200 Alabama said that he decided to give blood because he heard that there is a constant need for it.

San Angelo United Blood Services representatives assisted by Big Spring board members walked Helsley and other donors through the life-giving donation process.

Helsley decided to forget about being "scared."

"I might be in the shape where I need it someday," he said.

Giving blood was frightening for him because he "hates the sight of needles."

Mobile specialist Robin Schulz said many people are nervous about giving blood, but "most people don't have any (physical) reaction."

Schulz talks to each donor before she takes the pint of blood. She said it is important to explain the steps that she is taking so nothing will surprise the donor.

She told Helsley that some people are afraid to give blood because, "they think they need it all to live."

She explained to the Helsley that for every 25 pounds of body weight, a person has extra blood. The pint taken doesn't affect people who weigh over 110 pounds, as required of a donor by the United Blood Services.

The only pain involved in giving blood is a small sting when the needle is put in the arm, Schulz said.

She not only explains procedures to donors but she tells them precautions to take after the blood is given.

Donors are told to wait an hour before smoking, eat nutritious meals and drink plenty of fluids for the next 24 hours and avoid heavy lifting for the remainder of the day.

"It's not bad at all," Helsley said. "People should know; there's nothing to be afraid of."

"But we still don't have enough to meet the needs of the area," he said.

"1980 was probably the last real good year we had. It's been declining since then," Lillard said of annual rainfall in the area.

Despite the spring rains, Lillard and others say the levels in area lakes continue to recede compared to five years ago.

In Abilene, officials with the West Central Texas Municipal Water District also report that optimism about water supply is premature.

Standard said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper James Lasater and a sheriff's deputy were called to the scene. According to the sheriff's log, two 18-wheelers had jackknifed on the roadway. Standard said the road contained "high water" and was partially blocked as a result of the accident.

Standard said officers working the accident had requested a wrecker but did not request an ambulance.

Trucks jackknife on road

Other accident details were not released this morning.

J.B. Keaton told a sheriff's deputy Friday evening that he discovered two doors had been kicked in at a house he is remodeling on the old Gail Road off Highway 350. Damage was estimated at $75. Deputies continue to investigate.

In Knott, farmer Larry Shaw said he received a weekend total of .35; one-tenth of it fell last night. Shaw said that his fields could use more to ensure a good cotton crop.

and next summer," said Ed Seegmiller, general manager of the district. He and others say the worrisome news is that area rainfall is not replenishing the reservoirs as fast as water users are draining them.

Last summer, city residents who don't have to worry about crops or livestock had a nasty taste of what it means to be low on water.

Abilene's main source of water, Lake Fort Phantom Hill, was 16.4 feet below the spillway in 1984 — far below this year's 6.9 feet under and low enough to spur drastic conservation measures.

Under an ordinance enacted by the City Council, Abilene in September went to Stage Four of five conservation stages — a strict rationing effort just shy of banning several common uses entirely.

Reagan poll

NEW YORK — A majority of Americans polled by a news magazine said they were confident President Reagan could meet the demands of his second term following cancer surgery but believe Vice President Bush could take over for him if necessary.

The poll, released over the weekend and slated to appear in this week's Newsweek, found Reagan's approval rating was 68 percent, up from 65 percent in the last Newsweek poll, taken during the Trans World Airlines hijacking.

Of 753 adults polled by telephone July 17 and 18, 57 percent said they were not too concerned or not at all concerned about Reagan's ability to meet the demands of his second term. Eighteen percent said they were very concerned, and 22 percent said they were fairly concerned.

Sixty-three percent said they had a great deal or a fair amount of confidence in Bush's ability to take over the presidency, while 31 percent had little or no confidence in him.

Storms scatter fires

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA — After three harrowing weeks of blazes that ravaged more than 1 million acres across the West, California firefighters finally got some help from the weather and were getting things back to normal.

The onslaught of fires in Northern California ended Sunday with an unseasonal surge of stormy sub-tropical air from Mexico that brought scattered rain and thunderstorms.

But in Montana, firefighters were still hard at work tackling lightning-sparked fires, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Tina Schwartzman in Missoula.

The Montana crews had no sooner extinguished one fairly large blaze Sunday than another broke out. Ms. Schwartzman said the 420-acre East Ashby Creek fire near Potomac in the Blackfoot River Valley east of Missoula was listed as controlled at 7:20 p.m. Sunday.

But the Fox Peak fire about 10 miles southeast of Hamilton in the Bitterroot National Forest of western Montana expanded by about 200 acres on Sunday, she said.

Surgery scheduled

DENVER — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he'll conduct some official business from his hospital room here while awaiting spinal surgery that he hopes will end the pain that has plagued him since a 1972 assassination attempt.

The shooting attack left him paralyzed from the waist down.

The 65-year-old Wallace appeared pale and weary after he arrived at Denver's Craig Hospital on Sunday with his wife, Lisa.

Asked if he would continue to control the state of Alabama from his hospital room, the governor noted that he had his top advisors with him.

Denmark blast

Bombs destroy airline office in Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Bombs today destroyed the downtown office of a U.S. airline and damaged a synagogue and Jewish home for the elderly, injuring 23 people, at least three seriously.

Three Americans were among those suffering minor injuries, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Later today, the shadowy Islamic Jihad terrorist group called The Associated Press in Beirut, Lebanon, and claimed responsibility for the bombings. An anonymous caller said they were in retaliation for Israeli raids on South Lebanese villages Sunday. The call could not be authenticated.

The bombs at the Northwest Orient Airlines ticket office and the synagogue-nursing home area several blocks away exploded within about four minutes of each other. First reports from police and witnesses had said at least two people were killed, but hospital officials later said there were no fatalities.

The bombings were the most serious acts of terrorism in recent memory in Denmark.

The first bomb ripped open the Northwest Orient office, the only American airline office in the Danish capital.

At least one other device was set off in a passageway, bordering the synagogue and home for the elderly, in a narrow street deeper in the central city. The heavy wooden doors of the synagogue were blown down.

Some passersby told Danish Radio of hearing a second explosion at the synagogue, but there was no immediate confirmation from Copenhagen police or fire officials that a second bomb exploded there.

Eno Jacobsen, a worker at the old-age home, said at least seven of its residents were injured but none were believed seriously hurt.

Copenhagen's chief rabbi, Bent Melchior, called the bombing "a sinful act" but said there were no activities in the synagogue at the time of the blasts. A morning prayer service involving some 20 people had finished two hours earlier.

Ray H. Burson, press officer at the U.S. Embassy, said the three injured Americans had been released after treatment for minor injuries. One had been near the synagogue and the other two at the airline office.

Harald Ruetz, a Northwest Orient Airlines manager, told The Associated Press that the blast appeared to have come from a device outside the ticket office, which was occupied by one employee and two customers.

He said the employee was slightly injured and he did not know the condition of the two customers.

"Everything was black and there were huge tongues of fire" at the instant of the explosion, said Morten Ebbesen, a desk worker at the Hotel Imperial near the airline office.

Ebbesen said the hotel and other buildings near the explosion site were evacuated while police searched for further explosive devices.

Danish Radio reported police at the scene of the airline office said they were searching to be certain there were no further bombs.

Automobiles in a parking garage immediately above the airline office appeared not to have been damaged, but the blast ripped the ceiling from the office and scattered debris around a busy intersection near the Tivoli amusement park.

Hospital officials said most of the injured were suffering from shock and minor injuries.

"It is horrible and completely meaningless that we should now experience terrorist acts in the middle of Copenhagen," Justice Minister Erik Ninn-Hansen said.

The anonymous Islamic Jihad caller in Beirut told The AP, "If certain countries believe they are free from our strikes, let them know that sooner or later we shall reach the heart of the White House, the Kremlin, the Elysee, 10 Downing Street, Jerusalem and the headquarters of all Western and Arab leaders who spin around the imperialist universe."

Oil cut debated

GENEVA, Switzerland — OPEC oil ministers debated what Saudi Arabia called "a must" cut in oil prices today, but Iran and others were advocating further production cuts as a way of shoring up prices.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, said that he would press for an unspecified cut in the price of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' lower-grade crudes. He said a price cut was "a must" for OPEC.

OPEC prices currently range from $28 a barrel to $26.50.

In an opening address to the group's regular summer conference, Indonesian Oil Minister and OPEC President Subroto said the group was facing perhaps the severest test in its 25 years of existence.

"We are all facing a dilemma," Subroto said. "On the one hand, we all appreciate the importance of maintaining solidarity in the face of the current threat to our source of livelihood and even survival. On the other, we cannot view our steeply plunging oil revenues with equanimity."

Death toll is 214

STAVA, Italy — Many of the victims of the Stava dam break are being buried in a mass grave today, officials said, as engineers begin their inspections to determine what caused the collapse. More than 200 people were killed when a wall of water and mud slammed into the village.

Sanitation authorities have ordered local residents to drink only boiled or bottled water because of possible contamination.

Soldiers and volunteers, digging through the mud, had recovered 196 bodies so far, 65 of them still unidentified. With little hope left for finding more survivors, civil defense officials estimated late Sunday that the final death toll would be 214.

Rescue officials said a 130-foot common grave was prepared at the San Leonardo Cemetery in nearby Tesero for many of the villagers. About 70 of the dead in this popular tourist area were local people.

Men sentenced to life

JERUSALEM — Three members of a Jewish terror ring which attacked Palestinians in the occupied West Bank were sentenced to life in prison today after being convicted of murder, ending one of the most divisive trials in Israel's history.

The settlers, who were greeted with loud applause when they arrived at the packed courtroom, were convicted July 10 of killing three Palestinian students during a shooting spree at the Islamic University in Hebron in 1983 which also wounded 33 people.

Twelve other Israelis received lesser prison terms ranging from four months to 10 years for conducting a four-year campaign of terrorism against West Bank Palestinians. They were convicted of conspiring to blow up the Dome of the Rock Moslem shrine.

State of emergency goes into effect in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police detained four prominent black clerics and at least nine other activists in the eastern Cape Province today under South Africa's first state of emergency in a quarter century, reporters and monitoring groups said.

On Sunday, when the emergency took effect in 36 cities and towns, police said they detained 113 people.

The powers allow police and soldiers to arrest without warrants, detain and interrogate suspects for up to 14 days, seize control of property, impose curfews and limit or ban press coverage in affected areas.

The measures were imposed to quell nearly a year of rioting against apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation, that has left more than 450 blacks dead in this nation where 5 million whites rule 22 million blacks.

In Kwa-Thema, a riot-torn black township east of Johannesburg, police distributed pamphlets explaining why the emergency was imposed. The pamphlets said: "Thugs are disrupting your life through intimidation, arson and murder. This must be stopped."

Police refused to disclose details on the alleged detentions today. Gen. Johan Coetzee, commissioner of police, scheduled meetings with South African editors and foreign correspondents today to explain new restrictions on reporting from emergency areas.

Coetzee said in an interview on government-run television Sunday night that "dramatized versions, slanted truths and half truths" would not be allowed.

He said he wanted to maintain a free flow of information, but wanted to ensure that "those factors which are negative to getting the situation back to normal are ... avoided."

A spokesman for the Detainees Parents' Support Committee who spoke on condition of anonymity said those detained today in the Port Elizabeth area included the Rev. De Villiers Soga, president of the In-terdenominational African Ministers Association of South Africa. His group has worked to end bloody infighting between rival black anti-government groups.

Two other clerics reportedly held were the Rev. Samson Daba, an Anglican minister and community leader from Uitenhage and Hamilton Dandala, a Methodist minister from Port Elizabeth.

Reporters in Port Elizabeth said at least 10 other activists were rounded up before dawn, including leaders of the black Motor Assembly and Component Workers Union of South Africa.

Nixon considered using atomic bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon said he seriously considered using the atomic bomb four times during his presidency, in Vietnam, the Middle East, China and Pakistan, according to a published report. Time magazine, in its July 21 issue, quoted Nixon as saying he considered and rejected the use of nuclear weapons during the Vietnam War.

Nixon said he also considered using nuclear weapons in China when there were border conflicts with the Soviet Union.

Football salary bubble to burst

The bubble of player salaries in the National Football League may be about to burst. And player agents are trying to keep it expanding. It means big bucks to the 10-percent agents.

Some agents, who met recently in Chicago, are saying they will advise their clients not to sign contract offers that are less than the 1983 and 1982 "prices." Their clients are those untried — but in some cases promising — rookies from the college ranks.

The agents say that the NFL may be engaged in price-fixing because present contract offers are less than the last few years.

But what helped hike salaries for pro football players was competition to the NFL. It was the creation of the United States Football League (USFL) in 1983, and the resulting bidding war for player services.

The average base salary for a first-round NFL draft pick zoomed from $87,980 in 1981 to $154,650 in 1983 — the first year of existence for the USFL. The average bonus to entice the player to sign skyrocketed from $229,940 in 1981 to $516,210 in 1983 — a whopping 125 percent increase. And the average base salary for all players went from $90,100 in 1981 to $129,965 in 1983.

But now the USFL is in trouble. It is losing money, in part because of the high contracts it offered college rookies to lure them from signing with the NFL. Steve Young, a quarterback from Brigham Young University, signed a contract with the about-to-be-defunct Los Angeles Express for an estimated $40 million.

Some USFL franchises folded last year and more are due to fold this season, as crowds dwindle from small to smaller. Speculation is that the USFL may not last another season or two.

The economics have changed. The competition is weakening.

Professional football is a business. Team owners offer salaries to meet the competition. The competition is waning, so owners are offering rookies contracts comparable with the pre-USFL days. What's wrong with that? The free market is working. A person's services are worth what the market will bear.

The trouble with prisons

A prison riot is usually nature's way of letting the authorities know they're doing something wrong. So it was with the recent riots at four state prisons in Tennessee. That state's experience, though hardly unique, dramatizes a national problem.

The spark that set off the riots was the introduction of uniforms for inmates, but both the inmates and the state put the real blame on broader ills. These are the same ones that have become familiar in prisons elsewhere: overcrowding, violence, poor sanitation, insufficient work and educational programs.

The four institutions at which riots occurred were designed to house one inmate per cell, but at three of them, doubling up is the norm. That means locking up two demonstrably anti-social people in a small, uncomfortable space that serves as both bedroom and bathroom for most of every day.

The results are predictable. Last year, eight Tennessee inmates were killed by other inmates. The Turney Center in Only, a peaceful prison until it introduced double-celling, has had three riots in the last two years, including this latest one.

Sanitation is poor. A Minnesota warden who evaluated the Turney Center called it "the filthiest, the worst maintained and most neglected" prison he had ever seen. Inmates at another prison once found maggots in their mashed potatoes.

Compounding these defects is perpetual idleness. The state admits it can't provide work or education for a lot of its prisoners, thus diverting inmate energies into destructive activities.

One reason for the awful conditions of many prisons is that some people think convicts deserve no better. But elementary decency — to say nothing of the constitutional ban on cruel and unusual punishment — demands that deprivation of liberty not become brutalization. Prudence argues likewise. Since most prisoners eventually will rejoin society, it makes sense to give them the chance and incentive to prepare themselves for it.

Palliatives aren't enough. What is needed in Tennessee and other states is a commitment to making penitentiaries more than warehouses.

A crucial change is reducing the size of prisons. The bigger the facility, the harder it is for authorities to control inmates.

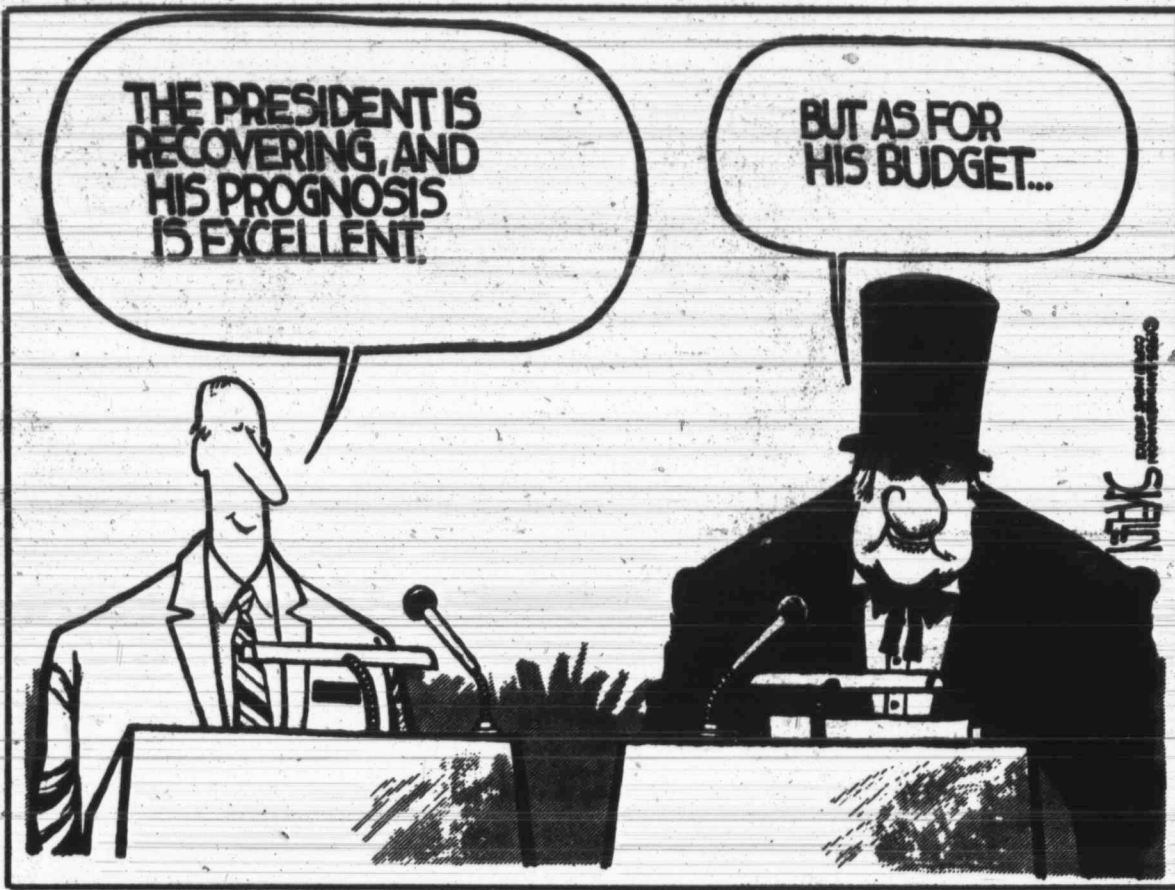

"There are no good 1,000-person prisons," says Morris, who recommends 500 as the maximum population. Each of the Tennessee prisons that suffered riots holds at least 850. But three small prisons cost more than one large one, and taxpayers resist any expenses beyond those absolutely necessary to isolate the criminal.

Educational programs also require money, besides creating the popular impression that convicts are being coddled. Efforts to put inmates to useful work, which can defuse violence as well as acquaint inmates with the demands of the real world, often run into opposition from businesses and labor unions. There is no costless way to improve prisons.

But ignoring their problems isn't free, either. Periodic riots are one price. High rates of recidivism are another. The persistent inability of the jailers to exercise the most basic forms of control over the jailed is yet another.

Inhumane prisons might be tolerable if they were effective in protecting society from its enemies. But they have failed utterly at that objective. It's worth finding out if changes that serve humane impulses can also serve our self-interest.

Good Samaritan gets fired for this trouble

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR WASHINGTON — At 5 feet and 110 pounds, Larry Smith is a compact profile in courage. He saved a bedridden hospital patient from fiery death and deserved a medal. What he got instead was the boot — with "Catch-22" stamped across the heel.

Smith's bureaucratic horror story was dug out of government files by our associate Indy Badhwar. Here's what happened:

In January 1981, Smith was at work as a supply technician on the second floor of the Veterans Administration hospital in Washington, D.C. A co-worker ran up and told him that a bed on the fourth floor had caught fire.

Smith raced to the scene and saw a patient, unable to move, lying on a bed that was enveloped in smoke and flames. Without hesitation, Smith seized the patient, who outweighed him by 60 pounds, lifted him off the burning bed and carried him to safety.

Smith remembered feeling a sharp stab of pain in the right side of his back during the rescue. He went to the emergency room, and was later admitted to Washington Adventist Hospital, where his condition was diagnosed as "low back strain." For several months he underwent physical therapy and took strong painkillers that made him drowsy but didn't help his back condition.

A year later, a VA doctor determined that Smith had suffered permanent damage, specifically an unnatural straightening of the normal spinal curve. The VA doctors decided that Smith was no longer fit to do the heavy lifting required of medical supply technicians. One doctor recommended him for disability retirement.

But Smith, wishing to earn his pay, applied for a job at the VA hospital that would not require lifting or handling more than 25 pounds. The hospital authorities told him there were no such jobs available.

With no alternative, Smith applied for disability retirement. The Office of Personnel Management rejected his claim.

The OPM decision acknowledged that "medical evidence submitted diagnosed a chronic, mid-back muscle strain," but said the "clinical reports (showed) little (to) warrant a finding of total disability."

Three months later, Smith got a letter from the Veterans Administration, informing him that he was being fired "on the basis of medical disability," because he could "no longer perform the full duties of his position as a medical supply technician efficiently and safely because of medical reasons."

Neither the VA nor the OPM, apparently, took into account the unusual on-the-job situation — and Smith's heroic response to it — which had caused his medical problem in the first place. Good Samaritans apparently have no official standing with the federal bureaucracy.

Smith has now hired a lawyer to appeal the OPM decision that found him not qualified for disability benefits.

The lawyer, John Karr, summarized his clients predicament this way: "Smith finds himself in the paradoxical position of having been fired because the VA found him unable to perform the duties of his position, while exactly the same set of facts and circumstances led OPM to conclude that Smith was nevertheless not entitled to disability retirement." Yossarian would have understood completely.

JUSTICE DELAYED: To the surprise of the local police, a district attorney in Georgia let his prime suspect in a murder case be taken to North Carolina for trial on bad check charges. The DA, Spencer Laughton of Chatham County, has yet to present the murder case to a grand jury, four months after the bullet-riddled body of Julian Singman, of Washington, D.C., was found in a county creek.

Laughton told our reporter Stewart Harris that he hasn't sought an indictment because county police are still investigating. But Police Chief Al St. Lawrence said: "We've gone to trial with a helluva lot less evidence than this and got a conviction. I don't know what the holdup is."

The evidence includes the victim's watch, money clip and credit cards found in the possession of the suspect, Furman Clark Jr. In addition, police say, the .38-caliber murder weapon and bloodstains identified as Singman's were found in Clark's pickup truck.

The police chief said investigators have not yet accounted for several days between the time Singman disappeared and the discovery of his body March 4. But he said the investigation is complete "as far as we're concerned."

Meanwhile, Clark is in North Carolina on the bad check charge, which will cause still further delay in the Georgia murder case.

WATCH ON WASTE: One of the biggest ripoffs in the defense contracting scam is the "cost per standard hour of work." This is defined as the price for an hour's work by a trained employee with proper tools and supervision. Small businesses charge $25 and $35 an hour for high-quality machine-shop jobs. But the big defense contractors have been charging anywhere from $300 to $3,300 an hour (that's no misprint: $3,300) for similar work. And the Pentagon has been paying without a quibble.

Billy Graham Faith can help self-discipline

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can I get some self-discipline? I eat too much, for example, especially when I get depressed. I know it hurts me, but I just can't seem to do anything about it. — E.T.

DEAR E.T.: It will always be hard to conquer problems like this unless we have two things. First, there must be a reason to change our behavior. If we have no strong reason to change, then we will continue to act the way we always have. Second, we need to have a method — a practical way to deal with our temptations and lack of discipline.

There are many reasons I could give you, but the greatest reason for changing is that God wants you to do so. God loves you, and He wants what is best for you. But when you live without discipline, you are a slave to your habits and cannot serve God as you should. You are also a slave to your emotions, letting them control the way you act.

This is why the most important step you can take is to commit your life to Jesus Christ: "Put your life into His hands. Then you will be a child of God — and when you discover you are a child of God, you will have a new desire to take care of yourself."

Giving your life to Christ also will help you with your depression. Learn to live above your circumstances by putting your attention on Christ. He can help you conquer your depression and your boredom.

Then think of a method — specific ways you can discipline your life better, particularly with the problems you mentioned. Enlist the help of others in your family. Make a list each day of the things you need to do. Don't have junk food in the house that you know you will be tempted to eat. Plan your meals in advance and stick to your menu. These are just examples — the main thing is to be creative and ask God to help you gain self-discipline for His glory.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today

By the Associated Press Today is Monday, July 22, the 203rd day of 1985. There are 162 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 22, 1934, bank robber John Dillinger was shot to death by federal agents outside Chicago's Biograph Theater, where he had just seen the movie "Manhattan Melodrama," starring Clark Gable. Dillinger's death ended a 14-month crime spree that had captured the imaginations of many during the Great Depression.

On this date: In 1587, a second English colony, also fated to vanish under mysterious circumstances, was established on Roanoke Island off North Carolina.

In 1796, Cleveland, Ohio, was founded by Gen. Moses Cleaveland.

In 1812, English troops under the Duke of Wellington defeated the French at the Battle of Salamanca in Spain.

In 1916, a bomb went off during a Preparedness Day parade in San Francisco, killing 10 people.

In 1933, U.S. aviator Wiley Post completed the first solo flight around the world in seven days, 18 hours and 45 minutes.

In 1937, the U.S. Senate rejected President Franklin D. Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1942, gasoline rationing began in the U.S. during World War II.

In 1943, Allied forces captured Palermo, Sicily.

Ten years ago: The U.S. House of Representatives joined the Senate in voting to restore the American citizenship of Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee, more than a century after his death.

Five years ago: An outspoken critic of the Ayatollah Khomeini, Ali Akbar Tabatabai, was shot and killed at his home in Bethesda, Md. Tabatabai had once served as a press attaché at the Iranian Embassy in Washington.

Thought for today: "Justice is what we get when the decision is in our favor." — John W. Raper, newspaper columnist (1870-1950).

Kimble doesn't play his own game

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Vance Kimble runs a one man show at the Star Lite Acres, a miniature golf course and driving range on the San Angelo Highway.

Kimble, 58, started in the miniature golf business in 1955 to give the people in Big Spring something to do. Now, 22 years later, it is still a popular form of entertainment for people of all ages.

In 1955, Kimble built a course called Park Lane on Wasson Road. He closed the park in 1964, one year after building Star Lite Acres on the San Angelo Highway.

"When I built Park Lane, there wasn't anything in town" to do, he said. Having no experience at the business, "I just took a chance." And after looking at a couple of miniature golf courses, "I just drew up the plans and did it," he said.

He built Star Lite Acres, an 18-hole course, because "I wanted a driving range and a miniature golf course combined," said Kimble. "It's a good combination."

Vance Kimble owns and operates Star Lite Acres, a miniature golf course located on the San Angelo Highway. He started in the business in 1955.

Park Lane also was kind of small, he said. The course covers three acres, and the driving range is on 10 acres.

Miniature golf "covers everybody just about in a family."

Wheelchair-bound persons have played on the course, he said.

The adolescent ward at the Big Spring State Hospital comes to the park once a week and plays free of charge. "They've been doing that as long as I've had this golf course out here," said Kimble.

The park is open from April to September. "It's just strictly summertime," he said. Hours during the week are 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., and 2 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Cost is $2.25 per person. When opening in 1963, cost was 50 cents, but Kimble explains that prices must go up with the cost of living.

Kimble does all the work himself. "I ain't got nothing else to do so I might as well do it," he said. He enjoys "just being outside, in the outdoors working."

Kimble knows many people in the Big Spring area, not only through the park, but because he worked in the radio business until retiring in 1980. "I worked at all of the (local) stations through the years," he said.

Although Kimble spends much time at the park and lives next door, he has only played on the course one time. He's been around it with the "blower, mower and trimmer, but not to play," he said. "I don't play golf."

Milliner Phillip Somerville appears to have been inspired by Punk hairstyles in designing this spotted item, shown in London recently, as part of his collection for autumn and winter. The hat will sell for around 138 pounds or $200 in the United States.

Dear Abby

Graduation invitations
mostly bids for gifts

DEAR ABBY: Will you please, please discourage high school and college graduates from sending graduation invitations to every distant relative they and their parents ever heard of? We all know that sending "invitations" to people we hardly know is a flagrant, shameless bid for a gift. And if, in a moment of weakness, one does send a gift, a barrage of birth announcements and invitations to weddings, showers and more graduations is sure to follow.

I am a 75-year-old widow, living on Social Security and very little else. I just received a high school graduation invitation from the granddaughter of a third cousin whom I have not seen in so long I wouldn't even recognize her. (I have never even met her granddaughter.)

I have many relatives in this town, but I never hear from them unless they are celebrating something that requires a gift. I have no car, yet they "invite" me to every imaginable event, knowing full well I can't possibly attend. This is just shameless begging.

I am not cheap. I just sent a generous graduation gift to a neighbor girl who used to stop by every day to bring in my mail and newspaper, and ask if I needed any errands run.

Don't suggest that I send "a nice card" to the relatives who send me invitations to events they know I can't attend. We both know a card is not what these spongers want.

SICK OF THEM
IN IOWA CITY

DEAR SICK: Judging from my June mail, you speak for many. Don't blame the graduates. In most cases, their parents send those "invitations."

DEAR ABBY: My aunt is coming to visit my parents for a week. Seven years ago, my husband and I visited this aunt for two days, and while we were there she provided us with lovely home-cooked meals. After we got home, we sent her a nice gift and wrote to thank her for her hospitality.

This aunt will stay with my parents, but we want to entertain her. My husband and I both work, and there would be a lot of pressure on me if I had to get the house all fixed up and prepare a company dinner for her (I'm not the greatest cook), so we thought we'd take her sightseeing one afternoon and then to a good restaurant for dinner.

My mother is totally disapproving of this. She says I have to entertain in my home with a home-cooked meal.

Do I have to?
TIT FOR TAT(?)
DEAR T. FOR T.: No. Carry out your plan. You do not need your mother's approval to entertain the way you find more comfortable.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were fishing from a boat with some friends. My husband can't swim, but refused to wear a life jacket. You guessed it. He was clowning around, the boat tipped over, and he went under.

I was able to get to him and pull him into the boat, or he would have drowned for sure.

Luckily all he lost were his glasses, a wallet with $400 and a few fishing rods. You had better believe he will never get into a boat without a life jacket again.

I hope to see this in print. It may save a life.

LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Let's hope so. Thanks for a timely warning.

Dr. Donohue

Paget's disease a common bone problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there a way to treat Paget's disease? I have been experiencing tenderness at the back of my skull. In a recent examination I was told the blood test indicated the beginning of Paget's disease. I am told I need X-rays, but I don't want them if nothing can be done. — J.P.

Most people who show signs of Paget's disease of the bone don't need treatment. It is a very common finding. About 3 percent of the population have it, and that goes up to 10 percent of those past 70.

I assume the test to which you refer was for alkaline phosphatase levels. That is an enzyme found in bone. In Paget's disease the blood level of the enzyme is elevated. As you know, in Paget's the ongoing process of bone-building gets slightly out of whack in local areas. First there is loss of bone, then some disorganized bone growth. Usually, there are few if any symptoms from this.

The real point here is that you need more than the alkaline phosphatase reading to diagnose Paget's, for the enzyme level can be elevated in other ailments. So you should have the X-rays. They will show the changes of Paget's. It will tell if you really have that problem and whether you need treatment. If you do, there are medicines to treat it — calcitonin, diphosphonates and mithramycin.

In rare cases, there may be nerve compression from bone growth in certain areas; if so, that can be handled surgically.

I don't know what to suggest about the skull tenderness you mention, except that it should be reported. The Paget's process can occur in skull substance as well as other bone areas.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. ### Self-awareness safest gauge for heart rate

For safety's sake when you are doing aerobic exercises, don't only use a target pulse rate to pace yourself. Many doctors now believe this rate, a number toward which you should push yourself during aerobics, is not the best gauge, says Family Circle.

Self-awareness is the best — and safest — guide, according to Dr. Henry A. Solomon in his book, The Exercise Myth. For instance, if you are short of breath, trying to work up to a pulse rate that is beyond your capacity is harmful. He suggests using the target pulse rate only as an indicator to see how much exertion might be possible.

To determine your target pulse rate — between 60 percent to 75 percent of your pulse's maximum capacity — use this formula: Subtract your age from the number 220 and calculate both 60 percent and 75 percent of that number. For instance, if you are 34, your figures will be as follows: 220-34=186. Sixty percent of 186 is 111; 75 percent of 186 is 140. Your target pulse range is between 111 and 140 heart beats per minute.

To take your pulse, place the first two fingers on your carotid artery — about 2 inches left (or right) of your Adam's apple. Count pulse beats for 10 seconds. Multiply this number by 6 to get your heart rate for 1 minute. Never place your hands on both carotid arteries at once — this could cause you to faint.

The Champions

Britain's SANDY LYLE is all smiles after winning the 114th British Open Golf Championship Sunday.

JUDY CLARK of Jupiter, Florida holds up her winner's trophy after her victory at the LPGA Boston Five Classic.

Countryman wins 114th British Open

SANWICH, England (AP) — The 114th British Open golf championship proved to be a double delight for the hometown fans who not only witnessed a thrilling finish but also an emotional victory by home-country favorite Sandy Lyle.

Lyle, English-born of Scottish parents, had trouble describing what it meant to be the first British winner of the tournament since Tony Jacklin in 1969.

"I have often been a bridesmaid and this is the best way to be the bride," the 27-year-old Briton said of his first major triumph, which he said was "very emotional."

He almost was in tears, he said, when he sank a 45-foot putt four holes from the end and realized the title was almost within his grasp.

Payne Stewart, whose 68 was the best score of the day, claimed second place — and $62,350 — with a 72-hole score of 283.

Joining Langer and Graham at 284 were first-round leader Christy O'Connor and American Mark O'Meara.

Another American, Tom Kite, briefly held the lead Sunday, but a double-bogey on the 10th ended his chances and he finished at 285 after a 72.

Lyle recalled that, as a youngster, he watched Jacklin's march to victory in the 1969 Open at Royal Lytham St. Anne's on England's northwest coast.

Lyle's victory, which was worth $94,250, helped overcome some of the lost luster of this tournament. Only nine of the top 20 American money-winners bothered to make the trip.

Among the missing were Curtis Strange, the money leader on the American tour, and U.S. Open champion Andy North.

Wayne Levi, another of the absentees, said he had seen previous British Opens on television and did not relish the idea of standing around in the cold waiting for the rain to stop.

Levi had little reason to change his mind this year. If he was watching on TV, he saw the first two rounds plagued by rain, and Saturday's third round interrupted by a thunderstorm and threats of a hurricane.

There were also criticisms of the par-70, 6,857-yard Royal St. George's course. Defending champion Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, who wound up 12 over par, complained that the bunkers had too much sand, a view echoed by Lee Trevino.

Clark ends 8-year drought in Boston

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Judy Clark knew she was a very good golfer, but it didn't mean a whole lot to her without a victory.

"When you think you're good enough to win and you don't, you search your soul, wondering why," she said. "You have all these rationales, like I'm still a great human being. But wherever you go, people ask you 'what have you won?'"

Now, she has an answer. She's won the Boston Five Classic.

Clark, who hadn't won in 199 tournaments and more than seven years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, held up under a strong assault by Donna Caponi in Sunday's final round to score a three-stroke victory in the $225,000 tournament.

She locked up the victory with a birdie on the 321-yard 17th hole that gave her the final margin of victory. Her score of 280 was eight under par for the par-72, 6,008-yard Tara Ferncroft course.

Clark, who began the day with a four-stroke lead over Jane Geddes and Rosie Jones and a five-stroke advantage over Caponi, shot a 71 Sunday. Caponi, who hasn't won since gaining her 24th career victory at the 1981 Boston Five, had a 69 to finish at 283.

Geddes overcame two double bogeys on the first 11 holes and made birdies at the 15th and 18th holes to climb into a tie for second. A 68 pushed Muffin Spencer-Devlin into fourth place at 284. Beth Daniel, who shot 70, was another stroke back.

After the first round, however, it looked as if Clark's non-winning streak would reach 200 tournaments. She shot a 75 Thursday and was tied for 61st, eight strokes behind leader Laura Baugh. But she jumped into a fifth-place tie with a 66 on Friday, then bolted to the top with a 68 Saturday.

Clark, one of only two players to shoot two sub-70 rounds, became the fourth first-time winner in the six-year history of the Boston Five.

"I was a little anxious after bogeying 16," and seeing her lead dwindle to two strokes, Clark said.

Clark, whose place on the annual earnings list improved in each of her first seven years on the tour, earned $33,750 for her victory and jumped from ninth to sixth place with a career-high $143,756 for the year.

Frenchman, Argentine reach D.C. tennis finals

WASHINGTON (AP) — France's Yannick Noah and Argentine Martin Jaite, strangers on the court, will meet in the finals of the $200,000 D.C. National Bank Tennis Classic because one beat an old nemesis and the other beat an old friend.

Noah, the tournament's No. 3 seed, beat Jimmy Connors for the first time in his career Sunday night, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, to move into the finals here tonight.

Jaite, No. 11, who lost in the finals of the U.S. Pro Championships in Brookline, Mass. a week ago, made it to the finals here with a 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 victory Sunday afternoon over countryman Marcelo Ingaramo.

"I feel very good about my chances in the finals although I have never played him," said Noah, the world's 10th-ranked player. "The past few years, if I play as well as I can, I have felt I can beat anybody."

Noah, who served up 11 aces, played just about as well as he could Sunday against Connors, who is still looking for his first tournament victory in 1985.

"I served very well. I knew I could count on one or two aces with every game. I was very confident," Noah said. "I tried to keep him away from the net, hit high, and change the pace."

Connors, meanwhile, spent as much time arguing with chair umpire Leon Lipp as he did chasing down Noah's serves and was cited later in the match for shouting obscenities at Lipp.

"I've won and lost before," Connors said. "Losing doesn't leave a bad taste in my mouth, but I have a bad taste in my mouth for him (Lipp)."

Despite winning a record 105 singles titles in the last 14 years, 1985 is looming as one giant disaster for Connors, who has now advanced as far as the semifinals eight times without drinking from the champion's cup.

The meeting between the 11th-seeded Jaite and Ingaramo was the first ever between the longtime friends. Jaite used a steady forehand and backhand passing shots to defeat Ingaramo, who was attempting to reach a tournament final for the first time in his three years as a professional.

In the deciding set, Jaite broke a tiring Ingaramo in the fifth and seventh games to take a commanding 5-2 lead.

Ingaramo, who beat his idol Argentine Guillermo Vilas in a two-hour match Saturday night, admitted the match had taken much out of him.

"I didn't have enough time to rest and I was quite tired in the third set today," he said.

Ingaramo and Jaite, roommates on the tour, spent much of Saturday night talking about their upcoming match.

"It was very exciting, first beating Vilas and then having to play Martin," Ingaramo said. "I couldn't sleep much, and we stayed up until 3 o'clock playing cards."

Before they went to bed, Ingaramo said each wished the other good luck and vowed to remain good friends no matter who should win.

CHRIS EVERT-LOYD of the United States is shown here defeating Eva Pfaff of West Germany in the semi-final round of the Virginia Slims tournament. Evert-Lloyd went on to defeat Pam Shriver in the finals.

Mets outscore Braves in 15-10 hitters' duel

By The Associated Press

With a homer and five RBIs from George Foster, the Mets defeated Atlanta 15-10 Sunday to keep pace with division-leading St. Louis in the National League East. The Cardinals got a pinch-hit homer from Steve Braun to pull out a 4-2, 10-inning victory at Los Angeles to hold onto a half-game lead over the Mets.

Their victory Sunday gave the Mets 31 runs in two days. New York beat the Braves 16-4 Saturday and took the season series with Atlanta 10-2.

"We're just glad to get out of here," said Atlanta's Dale Murphy.

ninth inning off John Candelaria.

Tunnell worked the first six innings, holding San Diego scoreless on five hits to win his first game since June 2, 1984. He had lost 11 in the interim.

Astros 5, Expos 4

The Astros ended a six-game losing streak by beating Montreal, aided by Glenn Davis' homer and RBI single. Houston had scored only one run in 43 innings entering the game.

Mike Scott held the Expos to three hits and two runs through five innings. Mitch Webster homered in the Montreal ninth.

Reds 7, Phillies 6

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to erase a 6-5 Philadelphia lead. Parker's winning homer, No. 17 on the season, came after player-manager Pete Rose singled with two out. Parker already has one more homer than he had all of last season.

The home run also boosted Parker's game-winning RBI total for the season to 11 — two behind the Mets' Hernandez, the major-league leader.

Giants 2, Cubs 1

Bill Laskey and Greg Minton combined to stop the Cubs on nine hits; and Jeff Leonard hit a solo homer to pace San Francisco.

Laskey took a six-hit shutout into the eighth when he allowed singles to Thad Bosley and Bob Dernier with none out. Minton then came in, giving up an RBI single to pinch-hitter Richie Hebner but then getting out of the inning on a fly ball and double-play grounder.

NL Roundup

Cardinals 4, Dodgers 2

Braun's homer, a two-run shot, broke a 2-2 tie in the top of the 10th. The Cardinals had lost the first three games of the series to the Dodgers.

Twice, in the bottom of the ninth and 10th innings, the Dodgers had the bases loaded but failed to score. In the ninth, they filled the bases with just one out, but Pedro Guerrero struck out and Enos Cabell grounded into a forceout. They also had the bases full with two out in the 10th.

Pirates 5, Padres 2

Lee Tunnell won his first game in more than a year, and Pittsburgh broke a five-game losing streak by beating San Diego, which had won three in a row. The Padres did not score until Carmelo Martinez hit a two-run homer, his 13th, in the

Veteran Cowboys head to camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The opposing sides in "The Great Dallas Cowboys Quarterback Controversy II" have made their opening statements and began training camp workouts today to back up their talk with action.

Danny White and Gary Hogeboom reported to training camp Sunday for a six-week duel that is supposed to decide the starter for the Cowboys' Sept. 9 National Football League opener against the Washington Redskins.

"I just hope that (Coach) Tom (Landry) will put the best players on the field and let them stay there," said White, who finished last season as the No. 1 quarterback and will open camp in the same spot.

A key player who did not report as scheduled on Sunday was running back Tony Dorsett, and Landry was less than pleased.

"He's got permission not to be here, but he's got to start getting his priorities in order," Landry said late Sunday night.

Technically, Dorsett has until Thursday to report, but Landry had asked all receivers, running backs and quarterbacks to be in camp by Sunday. Landry refused to disclose Dorsett's reason for reporting to camp late.

Hogeboom and White along with running backs and receivers were to work only briefly in shorts today. They played catch briefly Sunday after arriving on the 2½-hour flight from Dallas.

Landry recently said that the team is much more sympathetic toward White than at this time last year when Hogeboom was challenging for the job.

Hogeboom started the season as No. 1 but faltered after a brilliant opening game against the Los Angeles Rams.

"I hope training camp will be the same as last year when I got a shot at the starting job," said Hogeboom. "All I ask is a chance."

White said "Right now all I want to do is get last year out of my mind. I have some things to prove. I hope I never have to go through a period of havoc like that again."

Third-string quarterback Steve Pelluer continued his strong showing Sunday although the Cowboys fell to the Los Angeles Raiders, 12-6, in a rookie scrimmage at Oxnard.

Rookie Gary Wilkins, a free agent from Georgia Tech, scored the Cowboys' only touchdown on a four yard run.

"It was a good scrimmage, and I thought our first team offense looked good," Landry said. "Pelluer is really throwing the ball well. Norm Granger looked good running at halfback. He showed some quick feet."

Landry switched Granger from fullback to halfback for the scrimmage.

The two teams will scrimmage again on Tuesday in Thousand Oaks.

"It helps working against the Raiders," Landry said. "They do things differently, and it helps our team to go against them. The Raiders are also pretty close, so it's not a long drive."

They will also scrimmage the Los Angeles Rams in Fullerton on Thursday.

"We have some tough decisions to make, and we have to do it early because the rosters have been trimmed from 49 to 45," Landry said.

The Cowboys brought 85 free agents to camp besides their draft choices.

By scheduling the scrimmages with the rookies, Cowboys' President Tex Schramm and Raiders' boss Al Davis have apparently buried their feud which started when Davis moved the Raiders out of Oakland.

"We decided it would be beneficial to both teams to work against each other," said Schramm.

The Cowboys kept Pelluer on the team last year after he showed a great talent for moving the ball during camp.

Right now, Pelluer is the Cowboys' insurance should either White or Hogeboom be injured.

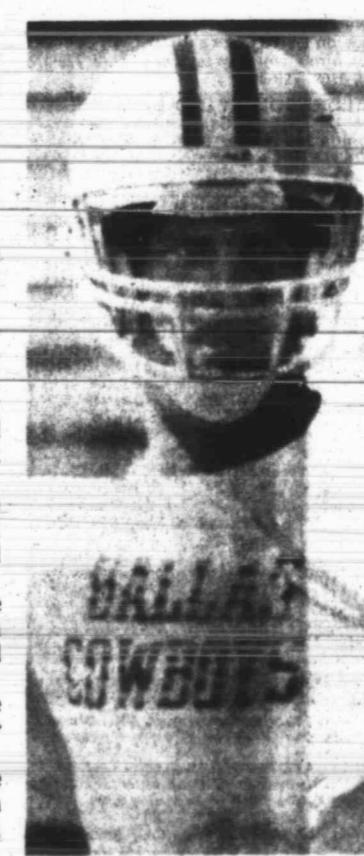

Also, Pelluer would be available should either White or Hogeboom lose out in the battle for the No. 1 job and demand to be traded.

"I feel comfortable with Steve around," said Landry. "He's catching on fast."

Pelluer said he thinks he could handle the No. 1 job.

"I'd be nervous and we would have to simplify the offense but I could handle it," he said.

"He always seems to play better under pressure," said Shofner.

Tolleson's shot sinks Tigers

By The Associated Press
The last time Wayne Tolleson hit a home run was ... uh, well, when was it, anyway?
"I don't even remember my last home run," Tolleson said Sunday after hitting a two-run, upper-deck shot in the ninth inning that helped the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Texas trailed 5-4 going into the top of the ninth, but pinch-hitter Alan Bannister singled off reliever Bill Scherrer and was sacrificed to second. After Toby Harrah's pinch-single against Aurelio Lopez tied the score, Tolleson untied it by hitting his first homer since Aug. 17, 1983.

Tolleson's home run came on a 3-2 pitch and landed in the right-field seats at Tiger Stadium.
Kirk Gibson had given Detroit its 5-4 lead with a three-run homer in the fifth inning. With two outs, Alan Trammell walked, Barbro Garbey singled and Gibson connected for his 19th homer off Glen Cook.

Dave Schmidt, 4-3, the third Texas pitcher, got the victory.
Yankees 5, Twins 2 ...
Phil Niekro scattered seven hits for his 253rd career victory and Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer in the first inning that carried 456 feet to pace the streaking Yankees to their 15th victory in 18 games this month.

New York has chopped five games off the first-place Blue Jays' lead in July and Niekro, for one, said he has never seen such confidence in the Yankee clubhouse.

Winfield tied off at the Metrodome against Frank Viola, 10-8. Rickey Henderson led off the game with the first of his four walks, and errors by first baseman Mike Stenhouse and shortstop Greg Gagne on a grounder by Don Mattingly set up Winfield's 13th homer. Blue Jays 11, A's 4 ...

Jesse Barfield drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and a triple, and Damaso Garcia's two-run single triggered a five-run uprising in the seventh inning as Toronto maintained its 1 1/2-game lead over the Yankees in the AL East.

The Blue Jays, in the midst of a 22-game swing against the West, won for only the eighth time in the last 15 and don't face an East Division rival until they take on the Orioles in Baltimore on July 29.

AL Roundup

Barfield's two-run double helped Toronto take a 4-1 lead in the first inning. After Oakland pulled within 4-3, Garcia's single in the seventh increased the Blue Jays' lead to three.

Garcia, a leadoff hitter who now has a career-high 47 RBIs this season, has driven in 43 of those runs with teammates in scoring position. In 83 at-bats this year with runners at either second or third, Garcia has hit at a .362 clip.
A sacrifice fly by George Bell, an RBI double by Barfield and Willie Upshaw's run-scoring single made it 9-3. Dennis Lamp improved his record to 6-0 with three innings of four-hit relief.

Dave Collins homered for the visiting A's.

Red Sox 8, Angels 4 ...
Rich Gedman and Bill Buckner drove home three runs apiece, Dwight Evans belted his 11th home run and Wade Boggs extended his hitting streak to 24 games — longest in the majors this season — with an RBI double.

Gedman went 4-for-4, including his seventh homer and a triple. Buckner had two doubles, the first one a three-run blow that was the 400th two-base hit of his career.

Reggie Jackson hit his 18th home run of the season and the 519th of his career for California in the eighth. Doug DeCinces added four hits for the visiting Angels, who loaded the bases with two outs in the ninth before reliever Bob Stanley got Brain Downing to ground out.

Orioles 6, Royals 4 ...
Eddie Murray sliced a bases-loaded double into the left-field corner, driving home two runs in the seventh inning to break a 4-4 tie.

Murray's hit came off reliever Mike LaCos and pinned the loss on Bud Black, 6-11, who has dropped eight of his last nine decisions.

George Brett hit a two-run homer, his 14th, for the Royals, while Mike Young hit a three-run shot, his 10th, for host Baltimore.

Indians 4, White Sox 3 ...
Tony Bernazard connected for a two-out home run in the top of the 10th inning as Cleveland broke its 14-game losing streak in Comiskey Park.

The Indians, who had lost five straight games, had not won in Chicago since May 1983. The White Sox had won five straight overall.

Julio Franco drove in two runs for Cleveland off Bill Long, who was making his major-league debut.

Brewers 5, Mariners 4 ...
Robin Yount and Ted Simmons homered while Ray Burris and Bob Gibson combined to hold off Seattle.

Yount, who also had a sacrifice fly, hit a two-run homer in the first inning, and Cecil Cooper followed with a double and scored on a single by Ben Oglivie.

Simmons hit his sixth homer in the third inning to give Milwaukee a 4-2 lead.
