Spring June jobless rate scales 7.5 percent

Job seekers far outnumbered the number of job openings in June, pushing the Howard County unemployment rate up nearly 2 points to 7.5 percent, the local Texas Employment Commission office reported today.

The unemployment rate increased because of the surge in job hunters, even though total employment increased in the county.

It's been more than a year since the local unemployment rate was higher than the national rate, according to office manager Joe Wallis.

Wallis attributed the rise in the jobless rate to layoffs from the closing of Montgomery Ward department store and to summer job seekers.

Hiring for Seawings restaurant, a Wendy's hamburgers and the Western Sizzlin' steakhouse among other new businesses - will not be reflected until July and August.

The June unemployment rate for the county compares to 7.2 percent in the state and 7.3 percent nationally, the TEC reported.

The June rate is up considerably from the 5.7 percent recorded in May and the 5.2 percent recorded in Labor force in Howard County is 16,944 for June. There are 15,666 employed and 1,278 unemployed, Wallis said. In May, the labor force had 16,355 persons, 15,417 of them employed and 938 unemployed.

Wallis said the increased work force was due to the end of the school year and the number of students added to the figures

"I don't think it's a trend," Wallis said of the high unemployment rate. "When you've got that large of an increase of unemployed and that small of an increase on the labor force, it will throw your figures

Furr's has had clean-up and construction crews preparing the large building on Scurry Street between 23rd and 24th streets for an opening which should come within two to three months, Hurmence said.

Senate budget plan includes tax increase

gress' deficit-reduction efforts were on hold today as legislators waited for President Reagan or House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to blink first on a $338 billion Senate package that would raise taxes and delay Social Security benefit increases.

Senate budget negotiators, trying to break the congressional budget impasse, have ignored

WASHINGTON (AP) - Con- previous objections from the two leaders in proposing the new plan. So far, though, neither the president nor the speaker shows any sign of yielding and the deadlock over a fiscal 1986 budget continues. Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., sought to put some heat on O'Neill today, saying the speaker was "waiting for the leaders on the House side to indicate a willingness to negotiate."

As for Reagan, Dole said, "I know whether or not the president haven't noted anybody shooting is going to lead the charge." any shots from the White House. He added that until O'Neill shows a willingness to talk, "I don't see any reason for the president to rush to Domenici told House conferees on Thursday that White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan had authorized him to say the administration is "genuinely interested" and "they are willing, at an early date, to sit down and discuss" the new proposal with

GM eyes Tennessee for new plant

AUSTIN (AP) - "All the signs" indicate Texas will not be home to the new high-tech plant that General Motors will build to produce its new Saturn car, a state official said today.

GM has made no official announcement, but the Detroit Free Press is reporting the company has picked the small town of Spring Hill, Tenn.

David Nesenholtz, director of finance in the Texas governor's economic development office, said the state has not heard from GM. but he added, "All the signs lead to the fact they have picked Spring

GM has said it would wait until a labor contract was approved by United Auto Workers leaders before announcing a site.

The UAW's Executive Board plans to meet today in Chicago to review a tentative pact between GM and the UAW, and UAW President Owen Bieber has said he expects the site decision to be made after that.

A total of 84 Texas communities sought the car plant. The state offered $15 million for worker training and help in puitting together private money, but, in the end, it was the one thing money couldn't change — location — that apparently beat Texas, according to Nesenholtz 'We can't do too much. We did something about everything else," he said. "We built an effective case that Texas is where the future is.' Spring Hill gives GM the "cenlocation it apparently believes is crucial, Nesenholtz

"There were looking for a central geographic location. That's a reasonably small geographic area between Tennesee, Kentucky, southern Illinois, Indiana, southern Michigan and northern Missouri where the lion's share of the automobile industry already is located," he said.

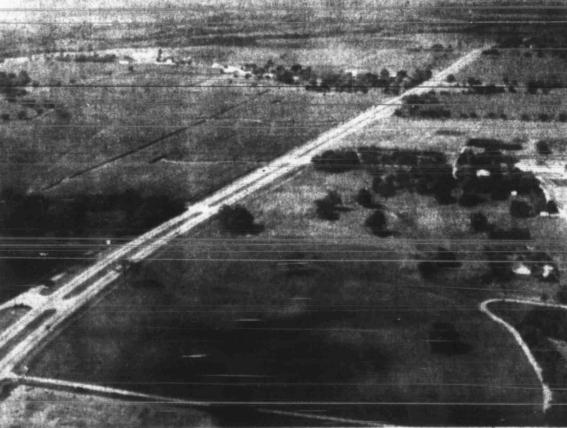

"In recent weeks we had come to think they would go with a more traiditional site. Spring Hill is a very traditional site and it's not surprising to auto insiders," said Nesenholtz.

We have finally come to realize we are a good home to the auto industry," according to Nesenholtz,

African killer bees

California state inspectors track down infestations

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -Airplanes and earth-moving equipment were dispatched to hunt for "killer bee" infestations as state inspectors fanned out to examine more than 2,000 commercial hives for African bees that apparently swarmed from a mammoth nest. The search for the bees widened

Thursday after scientists determined that the first known U.S. colony of the bees had been in a Southern California oilfield for at least a year and probably had two queens

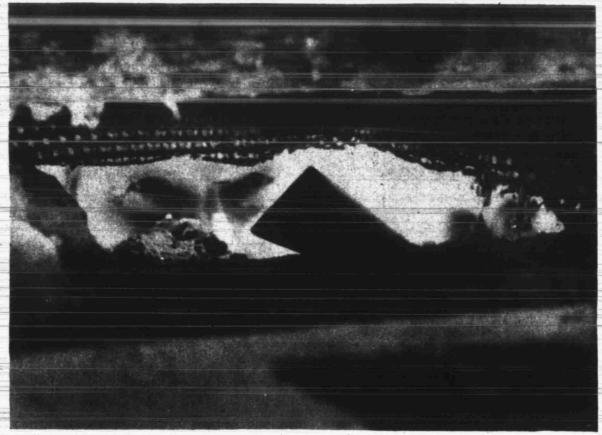

"We'll have to intensify the search and work our way out" from the discovery site at Lost Hills, about 150 miles north of Los Angeles, said state Agriculture Director Clare Berryhill.

The bees, blamed for the deaths of animals and people in other countries, were discovered in June by an oilfield worker who tried to seal the hole with asphalt after the bees swarmed from the ground and attacked a rabbit

Authorities are scouring a 400-square-mile area surrounding the site and have ordered commercial or hobbyist beekeepers not to move any of the more than 2,000 hives in the area. They will take 50 sample bees from each colony to see if any are African.

The African honeybees are popularly called "killer bees" because they are more aggressive and prone to sting than the average cause an entire swarm to chase bee, although they are almost iden- and sting any people or animals tical in appearance. They are within 300 feet. descended from 26 African swarms that escaped in Brazil in the 1950s, and their spread north has inspired several Hollywood horror movies.

County leaders meet; discuss communications

By LISA MUSSER Staff Writer

Representatives from 14 agencies in Howard County discussed Thursday ways to improve communications between agencies and to save tax dollars at a "communications roundtable" held at Howard College

College President Bob Riley, organizer of the community meeting, said it was designed to "create some relationships and dialogue" between agencies in the area

These conversations should prove to be "profitable for Big Spring and Howard County," he said.

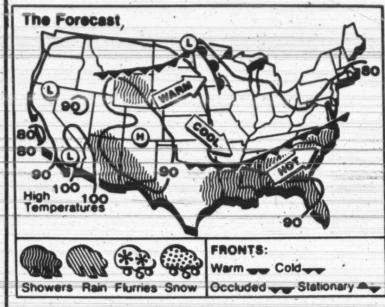

Riley told the group that this type of discussion would eliminate 'duplication of effort and lack of communication.'

The suggestion was made for the group to have quarterly meetings. Riley said the next meeting would possibly be in October.

Some topics discussed Thursday included the combining of the Howard College and Howard County libraries, consolidation of tax collection under the tax appraisal district, the Texas Main Street Project and the Stacy Dam project. , Present at the meeting were representatives from: the Veteran's Administration Medical Center, the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, KIOF-FM and KBYG radio stations, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the Big Spring City Council, the Big Spring Herald, the Forsan Independent School District, the Big Spring Independent School District, the Choate Company, the Big Spring State Hospital, the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the Howard County Junior College District, the Howard County Tax Appraisal District and Avery and Associates.

NAIROBI, Kenya - The U.N. women's conference began its final day today faced with a huge work load, including resolutions on apartheid and the Middle East that threatened to send the delegates home in disharmony.

No time for fears in children's lives

Criticism has been directed at several studies that, in recent years, indicated that fear of nuclear war ranked high among the worries of children. The studies have been used by organizations critical of the U.S. policy of nuclear deterrence. For the sake of the children, we hope the critics are correct when they say the studies have overstated the situation.

Childhood should be a peaceful, happy time — not a time for brooding over a catastrophe that may never occur.

One of the critics of the studies is Dr. Robert Coles, a child psychiatrist at Harvard University, who called some of the studies "sentimental balderdash." Dr. Coles said some studies lack perspective.

In addition, some of the studies reflect a class bias, Dr. Coles said, by concentrating on the children of professional people, among whom the anti-nuclear movement is stronger than it is among blue-collar and poor families. Dr. Coles told The New York Times that he found deep-seated concern only where the children's families were professionals, many of them active in anti-nuclear movements.

Dr. Lawrence Steinberg, University of Wisconsin psychologist, said other studies indicated that students worry more about schoolwork, their appearance and the opinions other students have of them.

Young people are entitled, to be sure, to receive as much information as they desire and can handle about international relations and the nuclear threat. Part of the responsibility of parents and teachers is to provide information and

If Dr. Coles and other critics of the studies are correct in saying that children's worry about nuclear war has been overstated, people on either side of the nuclear debate have reason to be glad. The child who lives in fear untemepred by hope loses an important part of childhood.

Stockman's trail bright as comet's

Stockman streaked into prominence as the foremost exponent of economic policy in the Reagan Administration. But within a year he had publicly abjured Reaganomics as heresy

For four years thereafter, in the woodshed and out, he labored to undo the wrongs he had fostered. The budget "compmromise" announced with his resignation last week shows that atonement still has years to run.

From first to last, Stockman was a zealot with numbers. He believed, not necessarily correctly, that budget drove policy. He held policy views with something like religious fervor. To realize them, he juggled forecasts and estimates with an agility his opponents found to border on deceit.

George Shultz, who preceded Stockman as first director of the Office of Management and Budget under Nixon, and Charles Schultze, who held the post under Carter. were not exactly purists. But they never played so fast and loose with numbers bearing the imprimatur of an elite federal agency.

Tax reduction was the first great cause embraced by Stockman at OMB. He supported the massive tax cut of 1981 with a heavy dose of supply-side logic. More enterprise and harder work would stimulate business activity to the point where, given some modest spending cuts, revenues would stay even. The budget could thus be balanced by 1984

As it happened, prosperity flowed only after the Federal Reserve Board eased up on the tight money policy which yielded recession in 1981 and 1982. The revenue base never recovered from the beating it took in 1981. Record budget deficits, approaching $200 billion annually, have followed. The budget imbalance has fostered high interest rates, a huge appreciation of the dollar, record foreign trade deficits and a slow down in the manufacturing sector of the American economy.

To his great credit, Stockman recognized early the adverse consequences of supply-side extremism. He confessed error in the famous inteviews with William Greider, and even admitted tht

WASHINGTON - David "none of us really understands what's going on with all these numbers." Thereafter, he became the chief force inside the Adistration for fiscal balance. He worked tirelessly with Republicans and Democrats and senators and congressmen and numbercrunchers and journalists to redress the balance. Thanks in large part to his efforts, taxes were raised in 1982. He also shaped the "down payment" of 1984 - committing both parties to address the deficit after the election.

> Deft manipulation of forecasts put the deficit front and center at the beginning of this year. Stockman led the way in an assault on defense spending that forced Reagan and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger to accept - instead of the 6 percent real increasethey first sought - zero growth with an allowance for inflation. He worked with Majority Leader Robert Dole to push through the Senate a cut in cost-of-living adjustments on Social Security. Briefly it appeared that Stockman and Dole had cut the White House out of budget policy.

To spur accord between Senate and House conferees, Stockman resorted to a typical maneuver. He floated a set of private forecasts that showed deficits growing unless new revenue sources were found. Republicans and Democrats both responded by asserting the need for a tax rise. Hope focused around an increase in Social connected to Rollins.
Security taxes on high-income Beckel said he sees families

But House Speaker Tip O'Neill has been standing pat behind a Democratic refusal to join the Senate Republicans in curtailing Social Security benefits. He agreed to consider higher Social Security taxes only if President Reagan explicitly led the way. For a White House threatening to veto any tax increase, that was a bit thick. Reagan, reinforced by White House Chief of Staff Don Regan, declined. In those conditions, with his bottomless bag of tricks practically empty, Stockman resigned to accept, as of Aug. 1, a job with the investment banking house of Salomon Bros.

Waste-disposal companies fighting dirty over contract

WASHINGTON - Call it "Shootout at the OK Dump.

Two giant waste-disposal companies and their hired guns are dueling in the press and in hearing rooms across the country, trying to influence the Environmental Protection Agency. Each side has accused the other of misrepresentation and other dirty tricks - and each insists the other started it.

The unseemly mud-slinging involves a matter of serious public interest - how best to get rid of dangerous industrial wastes. But the tactics used by both sides are attempts to distort the democratic process. Here's the story uncovered by our associate Corky Johnson:

The EPA is considering the disposal of hazardous wastes by burning them at sea in special incinerator ships, instead of burning them on land and other disposal methods. One of the rival firms, Waste Management Inc., has the capability to incinerate at sea. The other doesn't.

Waste Management's rival, Rollins Environmental Services, operates several land-based incinerators. Obviously, if EPA were to decide that ocean incineration is the wave of the future, Rollins would be hurt.

So Rollins hired former Rep. Tom Evans, R-Del., now a Washington lawyer. Evans in turn hired National Strategies Marketing Group, a Washington political consulting firm run by Walter Mondale's former deputy campaign manager, Robert Beckel.

Beckel set up a telephone bank to make calls to residents of Brownsville, one of the ports where EPA is thinking of putting a dock for loading incinerator

According to the phone script we obtained, Beckel's solicitors said, "Hello, this is (name of caller) calling for the Alliance to Save the Ocean." The "Alliance" is a paper organization created by Beckel. The caller would urge residents to help stop EPA's plans to burn "highly toxic PCBs" off the Brownsville coast.

Beckel also sent agents to cities where EPA planned to hold hearings. The Beckel operatives offered their help as consultants to citizens' groups that were opposed to ocean burning.
Sue Ann Fruge of the Gulf Coast Coalition said the Beckel agent did not reveal that he was working on behalf of Rollins. The coalition rejected the outside help anyhow. Fruge said her group had organized a turnout of 6,000 angry residents at an earlier EPA hearing and she resented industry's paid gunslingers butting in.

In San Francisco, Beckel created the Ocean Tourism Council, and hired two consultants to drum up support from the tourism industry. The consultants also testified on behalf of the "Council" at the EPA hearing, without disclosing that they were

Beckel said he sees nothing wrong with his lobbying techniques. Meanwhile, Waste Management was chronicling Beckel's moves in a background paper it distributed to congressional committees

But Waste Management hired its own political consulting firm to promote the ocean incineration view at EPA hearings. Telephone banks were used and operatives were sent to the five EPA hearing cities to In addition, Waste Management paid the travel expenses, including some hotel bills, for about 15 peo-ple who appeared to testify in favor of ocean burning. None of the speakers mentioned that the company was paying their expenses. Companies doing business with Waste Management also gave their support. The president of a Mexico City waste-disposal firm, for example, testified in favor of ocean incineration - without disclosing his company's ties to Waste Management.

In an interview with a Mexican newspaper, two Waste Management employees were described as officials of a trade association. A company official, Bill Brown, said it was a mix-up caused by the language

A Waste Management official estimates that the company spent about $250,000 on the EPA hearings. EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Secret Service has added up the cost of providing protection for the presidential candidates during the long campaign that began Nov. 11, 1983, and ended on Inauguration Day 1985. The service spent about $25 million in primary and election campaign security for the hopefuls: $2 million for the two national conventions and $1 million during the Inaugural events, for a grand total of $28.6 million. The Rev. Jesse Jackson's overseas trips — to Damascus, Syria; Frankfurt, West Germany; Shannon, Ireland; Panama City, Panama; San Salvador, El Salvador; Havana, Cuba; and Managua, Nicaragua — cost the taxpayers $161,000 for Secret

Service bodyguards and other security measures. SCHOOL'S OUT: Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., asked university presidents in his state to estimate the number of students who'd have to drop out if the Reagan administration's proposed cuts in student aid are enacted. The results from 31 Maryland schools indicated that 14,101 out of 163,042, would have to quit. The percentages were highest at the expensive private schools, naturally - 44 percent at Goucher College, for example, would be unable to MINI-EDITORIAL: There is a basic conflict between politician and press that is built into the American system. Consider the experience of Thomas Jefferson, who was savaged by the press, He was the target of scurrilous attacks; he was called a liar, a lecher and a traitor. He responded angrily, saying of one newspaper that only the advertising was worthy of belief. Yet Jefferson put the principles of freedom ahead of his own feelings, declaring that if he had to choose between a government without newspapers and newspapers without a government, he would take his morning paper.

It doesn't add up

By SCOTT FITZGERALD No line of logic can answer the question - why did it happen to

Saturday night's bus accident on Highway 87 involving members from congregations of the Church of God in Christ wasn't a bad dream. It was a nightmare that has turned into a supreme test of faith in a higher order for those involved

The accident resulted in four persons losing their lives. Thirty-three persons were treated for injuries. The bus was enroute to Lubbock for a Northwest Texas Jurisdictional Conference

Another shuddering perception about the accident is that Saturday was choir rehearsal day for many church members. They spent the day singing God's praises.

Church of God in Christ members might recall scripture writings about Moses trying to lead his nomadic tribe to a "promised land." The path was rocky and full of obstacles Last October, a van that belonged to the same group of churches crashed in Midland. One child lost her life. Nineteen others were injured.

Passengers in both the van and bus were mostly children

Nightmares lend their own moods. I recall Saturday's strange weather behavior. Like some kind of ominous forewarning, a freaky northeast rain front blew into the area Friday night. Department of Public Safety report said a light mist was falling at the time of the accident. Earlier rains had drenched the area.

I arrived at a loss of meaning Sunday morning when recounting what I had seen in the Malone-Hogan emergency room the night

Where was the supreme being's glory? What are we doing down here on his good earth? Was this his ultimate plan?

The last time my oversimplified notion of faith was challenged, I read The Consolation of Philosophy, by Boethius - a written landmark of Christian Middle Age thought that celebrates man's ultimate victory of supreme happiness over misfortunes and frustrations.

I remembered a college pro-fessor I had in undergraduate school who made this little book required reading.

It's the heaviest artillery I employ when existential or atheistic notions bang at the door. I reached for it again on my bookshelf, Sunday morning.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

On July 26, 1908, U.S. Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte issued an order creating an investigative agency within the Department of Justice. The agency later became known as the FBI.

On this date: In 1775, Benjamin Franklin became postmaster-general.

In 1788, New York became the 11th state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1856, playwright George Bernard Shaw was born. In 1947, President Harry S

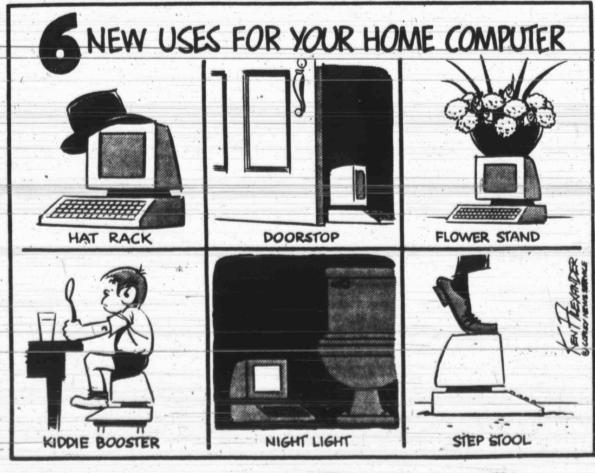

Truman signed the National Security Act, which consolidated the Defense Department and created the National Security Council

In 1952, Argentina's first lady, Eva Peron, died of cancer at age

In 1953, Fidel Castro began his revolution against the Batista regime with an unsuccessful attack on an army barracks in eastern Cuba. Castro succeded in ousting Batista in 1959.

In 1958, Britain's Queen Elizabeth II proclaimed her son, Charles, the Prince of Wales. In 1964, Teamsters President

Jimmy Hoffa and six others were convicted of fraud and conspiracy in the handling of a union pension fund.

Dear Abby

Keepsake questions

Dr. Donohue

Menopause is gradual process

recently passed away. A cousin who was especially close to her since childhood asked if he might have some kind of memento as a keepsake. His request astonished and offended my brother. I said I thought the request was in good. taste and reflected the love and closeness our cousin felt for our mother. Such gifts have been offered to me, in two instances, and I was deeply appreciative of them. My husband's favorite brother died many miles from us, and his widow sent no keepsake to my husband. My husband wouldn't presume to ask for anything, but I know he was both saddened and hurt by the oversight.

What is your opinion about the practice of giving such keepsakes, and of relatives and close friends requesting same?

NEVER WRITTEN BEFORE DEAR NEVER WRITTEN: Grieving people have their minds on other things and should not be faulted should they overlook the giving of keepsakes to close friends and relatives.

Most people would rather do without than ask for one, but I think to make such a request is a compliment to the deceased - unless, of course, one asks to be "remembered" with the loved one's valuable stamp collection or diamond brooch.

DEAR ABBY: Last Sunday I prepared an especially good company dinner and invited my mother-in-law. After dinner, my husband and three sons helped clear the table, while my motherin-law went right to the living room and sat down. She's a young 60 and could have offered to do something, but she didn't.

I'm the type that doesn't like to put things off, so I just dug right in technique. Go get 'er, Tiger!

DEAR ABBY: My mother and cleaned up the kitchen myself. Three times, I heard my motherin-law say to my husband, "What's taking her so long?" It took me an hour and a half to straighten up, and just as I was finishing, she came in the kitchen to say she was leaving.

I said, "Can't you stay a while so we can visit?'

She said, "No, I'm tired. And by the way, don't you have a dishwasher?" I do, Abby, but the dishes have to be scraped, all the edibles put away, floor mopped, etc.

Anyway, she left and I really was hurt. Was I wrong to clean up my kitchen first? I can't relax knowing I will have to do it later. How would you have handled it, Abby?

DEAR HURT: I would have put away the edibles, joined my guests in the living room and cleaned up my kitchen later.

DEAR ABBY: I suppose my problem is a common one, but it doesn't make me feel any better. You see, I'm a 25-year-old male woman. It's not that I don't like women; it's just that I can't seem to get up the courage to ask one out. I have no trouble talking with the women at work, but asking one of them out is a major problem. Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. DEPRESSED IN ASTORIA DEAR DEPRESSED: There's more than one way to communicate. Why not write one of the women a note inviting her to a movie, concert, dinner, sports event, museum or whatever. Anyone who writes well enough to elicit a published response from Dear Abby should have no trouble getting a date with the same

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Just what dictates how severe a woman's menopause symptoms will be? I am a 53-year-old woman. Fortunately, I hardly knew anything was happening. All of a sudden, one month I just stopped menstruation. Yet, some friends tell me real horror tales about it. - Mrs. J.J.

The rate of decline in ovarian estrogen production is the single most important determining factor. Let me expand on this just a bit, since there is always a certain amount of fuzziness about how it happe

Menopause is the total cessation of menstrual flow But a progression of events leads to the absolute end of menstruation. That has another name — climacteric. This progression may take several years in some women and be quite precipitous in others. Perhaps this, too, needs explanation.

The female at birth has a finite number of follicles. the tiny nests that nurture individual ova (eggs). By the time the woman has ended her reproductive years only a few thousand of the many, many thousands of follicles remain. And those remaining are less sensitive to certain hormones that trigger their estrogen production. And, of course, the eventual monthly shedding of the uterus lining that causes the menstrual flow is dictated by the proper level of estrogen.

When estrogen production wanes, menstruation becomes first scanty, then disappears entirely. That is the menopause, the culmination of the climacteric.

If estrogen production is cut off suddenly, as can and I've never been out with a happen in some women, then the famous symptoms, including the hot flashes, will be correspondingly severe. If there has been an even and gradual decline, there will be a corresponding mildness of symptoms, or perhaps, as in your case, none at all The most dramatic illustration of rapid loss of estrogen production involves, of course, removal of a younger woman's ovaries surgically.

> DEAR DR. DONOMUE: Can you please explain a diagnosis that was written on an insurance form? What does "outlet syndrome in upper extremities and positive Adson's test" mean? - Mrs. B.K.

Outlet syndrome means there's a band of tissue, an extra muscle or an extra rib, at the part of your chest. Apparently it is pressing on blood vessels and nerves there, causing you to have symptoms of pain or tingling in your arm or hand.

And Adson's test is done in the doctor's office to demonstrate the pressure. You sit with your hands on your knees and take a deep breath. Then you tilt your head slightly backward and turn it slightly to the side on which you are having the sensations. The doctors feels your pulse while you are doing all this. If the pulse disappears as you turn your head, that is a positive sign of pressure on the blood vessels in the

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You wrote about estrogen/progesterone replacement therapy after menopause. Did you mean every woman should get

Not at all Quite a few doctors recommend that for women who have some of the danger signs for developing osteoporosis (bone thinning). Some of those indicators are slight build, inadequate calcium intake, lack of exercise, and a family history of

You asked (another part of your letter) about how the hormones are taken, and I think you were referring to the schedule of dosages. Because things like that often lose something in translation, I'd prefer not to list the daily dosage schedules, even though they are pretty universal.

Your doctor will give you your schedule. You can take the hormones on either a calendar schedule or one keyed to your menstrual cycle.

And for Mrs. W.D.D., let me explain that the two hormones are in separate bills. Estrogen alone is taken for a good part of the dosage period and the progesterone pill added to that for the several days at the end of the schedule.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

The city will conduct three neighborhood public hearings on its annual budget next week

The additional public hearings, scheduled much earlier in the budget process than usual, are an effort to get citizens more involved, city Administrative Assistant Pat Hardy said.

Nazi camp POWs reunite at meeting

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Leonard over beer and potato chips. 'Wally' Wallenmeyer and Bill Caton met in Stalag 3B, a Nazi prisoner-of-war camp. They parted in February 1945, when Caton jumped the wall of a German prison form.

They met face-to-face for the first time in 40 years Wednesday when Wallenmeyer spotted Caton at the 38th national convention of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, an organization of 25,800 former POWs. The group is holding its four-day meeting here through "The first thing I saw was a man walking away from me with 'San Antonio Chapter' on his jacket. I rushed around to the front of him and knew it was Bill," Wallenmeyer said.

"He knew there's nobody that tall or that ugly," said Caton, a dark-haired, lanky Texan with a pencil-thin mustache.

Wallenmeyer, 68, of Russellville, Mo., and Caton, 67, of Wetmore, Texas, were among 1,200 former prisoners and their wives gathered at a hotel ballroom.

"Every man here has something in common," Caton said. "Every man here lost everything he had and came back and he knows how many people didn't make it."

Wallenmeyer, a Tech 5 with a medical unit, was captured on Feb. 14, 1943 when a tank company of Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps overran his unit in Tunisia. He was held about a month near Tunis and two months in Sicily before being transported to Stalag 3B in Furstenberg-am-Oder, in what is now East Germany.

Until they got to Germany and received packages from the American Red Cross, the prisoners ate once-a-week issues of meat and cheese and mostly "boiling water with grass in it," recalled Wallenmeyer, whose weight drop ped from 156 pounds to 97 pounds Caton, a sergeant with an armored unit, was captured three days after Wallenmeyer. Hate kept him going through three escape attempts and three months in solitary confinement, he said.

Big Country got two runs in the first when a outfielder dropped a fly ball. The second inning was even worse as four runs crossed the plate behind three Big Spring errors.

Big Spring fought back with four runs in the bottom of the second. Eric Torres walked and Danny Whitaker and David Lee singled, loading the bases for Lance Newell. Newell singled scoring Torres and Whitaker.

Oilers notes

On July 19, he reported to the Oiler training camp on the Angelo State campus where he was greeted by nose guard Mike Stensrud wielding a pair of barber's shears.

As a visible sign of solidarity to help stabilize the Oilers' sinking ship, Stensrud, linebackers Gregg Bingham and Brian Sochia, and offensive linemen Bruce Matthews and Mike Munchak shaved their heads prior to the start of training

They thought it only fitting that selected incoming rookies should show the same attitude by enlisting in the burr-head brigade

Byrd was the first recruit of the brigade, whose motto became You can run, but you can't hide."

"I guess it was voluntary," Byrd grinned. "There were about 10 guys around me, so I volunteered." It's all been a whirlwind experience for Byrd, who at 6-3, 255, is projected as a starter at nose guard this season.

"It's kind of like starting over for me," Byrd said. "In college, I was a little stronger than most people I played against. Now, the guys are stronger than I am and just as quick. Learning proper technique is going to be very important for Byrd will be trying to break into one of the weakest areas on the team, the defensive line, but he doesn't see it as an easy transition.

"The defensive line was underrated last year," he said. "Their record was misleading. They just had some bad breaks

Byrd will have a chance to step into a position manned last season by Stensrud and Sochia.

If he's able to step in as a starter. Byrd says he'll have to give part of the credit to working against Houston's offense line.

"They're the biggest and best I've ever played against," he said. "It's going to be a great challenge to try to play up to their level."

The Oilers, 3-13 last season, rank ed 27th among the 28 NFL teams in total defense and they were last against the rush.

Veteran holdout Jesse Baker, unsigned No. 1 draft choice Ray Childress and Byrd are expected to help stiffen the defensive front.

In other Oilers news, it was an nounced late Thursday night that an agreement had been reached with third-round draft pick Ike Kelley, a center offensive guard from Notre Dame.

Kelley had been one of three unsigned draft picks, and his agreement leaves only first rounders Ray Childress of Texas A&M and Richard Johnson from Wisconsin without agreements, said Oilers spokesman Bob Hyde.

Hyde said Kelley will fly to San Angelo on Friday morning from Hartford, Com. He was scheduled to arrive in time to work out with the team in the afternoon

> THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) -Tony Dorsett won't have to report to training camp until Saturday night while the Dallas Cowboys' running back works with the Internal Revenue Service on his tangled finances

A "third party" representing Dorsett called at the deadline Thursday night for Cowboys veterans to report to camp to ask Coach Tom Landry and club president Tex Schramm for a 48-hour extension

Schramm said Dorsett and his advisers hope to work out an agreement with the IRS to repay back taxes the agency says he owes.

'Coach Landry granted the extension. We are disappointed he is not here, but we are more disappointed about the position Tony has arrived at. It's sad that a player of his ability and personaltiy finds himself in this role," Schramm said.

"It's a sad situation. I just wish Tony had come to us earlier with his problems," Schramm added. "However, he is still under contract and needs to abide by terms

"We are looking for a structure where he can play the next three years and have something left. We want him to come out of football in a healthy financial situation. He is a fine young man with a lot of problems. We have a lot of empathy for him."

Cowboys notes

Dorsett at one time had a 15-year deferred contract at $100,000, but decided he wanted the money up front. Investments turned sour. and trouble with the IRS has drained a lot of the money away.

Teammates were generally sympathetic to Dorsett's financial

"All the players want Tony to get something that will make him happy. We hope everything works to s advantage and wish him the best," quarterback Gary Hogeboom said.

Dorsett was divorced in February, and his wife received a $250,000 settlement

However, Dorsett has not received a paycheck since last October, when the IRS began to take his

Drug testing main topic as Sports Festival begins

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Greg Louganis, the world's greatest diver and acknowledged star of the sixth National Sports Festival, flipped and soared from the three-meter springboard to take the gold medal that just about everyone expected him to win.

Louganis, defending festival champion who holds world scoring records in both the 3-meter springboard and platform events, the Olympic platform scoring record, is the only man ever to collect a 10 from judges in both world and national competition. He registered another 10 on Thursday night, getting the perfect score on a simple forward dive. His earlier perfect dive was an inward 11/2 somersault pike from the platform.

Louganis' victory came as participants in diving and 29 other sports complained about loopholes that exempted boxers, basketball players, yachting sailors and track and field competitors from what was conceived as a thorough, foolproof program of random testing for drugs.

Mike Wantuck, 21, a diver from Columbus, Ohio, said he doesn't think it's fair to test participants in some sports and not test others. "I think it's fair to test, but I think everyone should be tested," he said.

Figure skater Bobby Beauchamp of Los Angeles, 23, said the last sport to be exempted should have been track and field.

Sweetwater got a good pitching effort from starter Tessa Hosley along relievers Tecka Dent and Lena Ballinger. The three hurlers combined to strike out 16 Big Spring All-Stars. Dent got the win and was the most effective Sweetwater pitcher. She walked only two and fanned eight.

Meanwhile Big Spring went through three pitchers itself. Kayla Roberts started and was lifted in favor of Tessa Olague after threeand-one-third innings. Olague was replaced by Pam Gill in the fifth.

The Big Spring pitchers and fielders had their problems. Big Spring pitching issued 11 free passes, which walked in four runs. Their defense committed a harrendous 12 errors, accounting for six unearned runs.

With the exception of Dent, Sweetwater pitchers also suffered control problems. The vistors walked 16 Big Spring hitters

With scored tied 1-1 after one inning of play, Sweetwater pushed across four runs in the top of the second. Four walks hampered Big Spring. The big hits were singles by catcher Nikki Heath and left fielder Chrissy Williams, which brought in two runs each.

Big Spring added three runs in the bottom half of the inning. The only hit was a double by Gill which scored Karma Morrow and Jennifer Cranford.

Big Spring took the lead for the first and last time in the next inning. Gill and Morrow had base hits that drove in runs, giving the local team a short-lived 6-5 edge. Sweetwater added four runs in the top of the fourth, thanks to four Big Spring errors. Dent got the only hit for Swetwater in the inning. After Big Spring scored a run in the bottom half of the inning, Sweetwater rallied for three more in the fifth, giving them a 12-7

Patton began ministry as a teen

By KIM KIRKHAM Religion Editor

Billy Patton's interest in ministry began when he was a teen playing "Dear Abby" to his friends.

"I was the guy that everybody came to with their problems," said Patton, new minister at the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.

Because of his talent of listening to and counseling people, Patton has wanted to be a minister "all my life, as long as I could remember." Ministry "was always my life desire and still is," he said

"I've always had a special love of teenagers," said Patton. "I love their vitality and innocence of life and willingness to struggle with life," and ministry "is the most affectable area to help teenagers,"
