A tale of two budgets

City officials eye tax hike

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

City property taxes and water rates are headed up this year, city officials said at a public budget hearing Tuesday night.

City Finance Director Tom Ferguson said he was unsure how much property taxes would increase, because he had not received the official tax roll yet. The budget has not been completed either, he said.

The announcement that taxes would be raised came at the first of three planned public budget hearings. Hearings are scheduled for 7 p.m. today at the 11th and Birdwell fire station and 7 p.m. Thursday at the Wasson Road station.

City Manager Don Davis said the budget for the next fiscal year will fund current programs at about the same level. The city expects no changes in personnel, but has not calculated what, if any, pay raises employees will receive.

Property taxes probably will increase, said Davis, because of increased overtime costs under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act and a normal 3 to 4 percent inflationary increase in operating costs.

He said the firemen's civil service, approved in April, "may impact us some." However, firefighters who worked for the program say any increase in costs to the city should be negligible — about $30,000.

In addition, if the city receives a state grant to improve water and sewer lines and streets in the Banks Addition, then the city must match the grant with half a million dollars of its own, Davis said.

Water rates will increase because of debt retirement for the city's capital improvements program for the water system and because of increased costs for the city's raw water it receives from the Colorado River Municipal Water District, he said.

No increases are planned for the city's sewer or sanitation rates, he said.

Northside and westside residents who came to the meeting told the four council members and city staff they wanted to see more work on street, water and sewer lines, and parks improvement.

Dock Voorhies, the president of the local NAACP chapter, called the proposed street, sewer and water line work on three north side additions "a baby step in the right direction."

"Driving on the streets in the south side when compared to the north side is a gross difference. I don't think that's matched by the geographical terrain," Voorhies said.

"One set of streets is maintained at an acceptable level, and the other set is almost impassable at times," he said.

Residents on unpaved streets can petition to the city to pave the street through its voluntary paving program, Davis said, but

School faces spending cuts

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

A shortage of more than $500,000 in state funding for the 1985-86 school year will force reductions in spending by the Big Spring Independent School District and may result in a 2-cent tax increase for the district.

The reductions and tax increase were proposed by school administrators and trustees during six hours of budget workshops last week.

The budget and tax increase proposal will be presented for formal board approval during a public hearing Aug. 15 at 5:15 p.m. in the high school board room.

The budget tentatively was set at $14,260,487, a $149,568 increase over last year, said Don Crockett, assistant superintendent for business.

However, that figure may change before the August meeting, Crockett said, because exact savings from personnel and spending cuts have not been calculated.

The cuts and increased tax revenue should offset the deficit in state funding, he said.

Lynn Hise, superintendent of schools, said the need for more state funds came with the requirements of House Bill 72, which included teacher salary raises.

In addition, the school district's share of the state foundation costs of the education program will increase 3 1/3 percent, said

Crockett, and Big Spring will receive $35-$40 less per student this year in state funding.

Reductions recommended in last week's workshops included a net cut of 19 employees and a cut in roof maintenance projects scheduled for the year, said Hise.

The personnel cuts have been made by attrition and "pretty well touched all areas" of the district, including teaching, maintenance and office areas, said Crockett.

Reductions were made despite the hiring of six new teachers to meet the 1 to 22 teacher-student ratio in kindergarten through second grade required by H.B. 72, he said.

The district's roofing project for the high school will be 85 percent complete when it is discontinued, Crockett said. Work on the elementary school will not be started.

Savings on the project, initially funded at $300,000, will be approximately $150,000, Crockett said.

Hise said the district also will receive a small increase in local revenue because the homestead tax exemption dropped 10 percent.

The proposed tax rate of 88.2 cents and the homestead tax exemption reduction should yield a $356,623 increase in tax revenue, Crockett said. The tax proposal represents a 2.32 percent increase over last year, he said.

Kool-Aid Kompetition

The blisteringly hot days of July — temperatures climbed into the 100-degree Fahrenheit mark — brought an end to the idle days of summer.

The heat lured young entrepreneurs away from M-TV and video games in air-conditioned houses and lured them into the budding business of street vending.

To make money and beat the seasonal doldrums, the youths turned to the traditional summer enterprise — kool-aid stands in their front yards. Some even sent out relatives and friends to stand on corners with signs to increase their sales volume.

After all, how many glasses of kool-aid can your kid sister pay for?

Disgruntled Democrats delay defense dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rank-and-file House Democrats, unhappy with a compromise Pentagon budget approved by their leaders and the Senate, have forced a delay in voting on the proposal until Congress returns from its summer recess after Labor Day.

The Senate on Tuesday voted 94-5 approval of the bill, which authorizes the Pentagon to spend $302.5 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

That came five hours after House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., canceled a vote scheduled later this week because "there were a lot of feathers ruffled" among Democrats, who control the House.

The delay will not have any major impact on Pentagon spending because Congress long ago gave its approval for current defense expenditures.

The chief complaint among many House Democrats is that the pricetag is $10 billion above the Pentagon spending bill passed by the House last month.

The compromise had been worked out earlier this month by a 39-member House-Senate conference committee which reconciled 1,300 differences between the versions passed separately by the two chambers.

House negotiators on the conference committee agreed to accept the Senate's defense budget figure of $302.5 billion, which permits Pentagon spending to rise at next year's expected inflation rate. The House voted for $292 billion, which would have frozen Pentagon spending at current levels.

O'Neill's cancellation of the vote came after a two-hour closed door meeting of House Democrats.

"There's a lot of unhappiness that the conference is $10 billion too high," said Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., as he emerged from the session.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the Armed Services Committee and leader of the House negotiators, told a news conference he had agreed to the higher total to break a logjam.

Aspin said Democrats concerned about keeping down defense spending could vote later for smaller amounts during consideration of separate bills to actually appropriate the money permitted by the authorization bills.

The snarled budget process "is getting to be an awful mess," he said.

Some House Democrats were also unhappy that a crucial House restriction on renewed production of U.S. chemical weapons was dropped by the conferees.

That provision would have banned production unless U.S. allies in NATO asked for the weapons and

Name-that-baby contest

Town helps select name for newborn-6 months later

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — Rambo would be topical, said one. Rupert, said another. Ziggy was a third suggestion in a name-the-baby contest that kept this seaside town's residents busy for six months while a smiling, blond infant grew anonymously older.

"It sort of got to be a town joke," the boy's father, Kim Rilleau, said Tuesday. "But you would be surprised how many people put energy into this. A day wouldn't go by when people wouldn't give us ideas."

When the Rilleaus finally decided on a name last week, they hired a plane to skywrite the news over Provincetown as residents cheered.

The baby's first name is Guy ("pronounced Guy as in geese. It's French," said Rilleau.)

For a middle name the couple chose Tryon, Rilleau's mother's maiden name.

"I think the name fits his vibrations," said Rilleau. "He's small, compact and muscular, but he also has a certain williness about him."

The name 'Guy' was suggested by tourists who Rilleau, a part-time waiter, met at a waterfront restaurant. He also runs a leather shop in the town of 2,900 people.

When Guy was born in January, Rilleau and his wife, Lynne, were in no rush to name him. They had waited six weeks to name their 2-year-old daughter, Elena, and Rilleau's parents had waited seven weeks to name him.

"I guess it's sort of typical of my family — anti-establishment," he said. "I think it's real important to give a kid a name that fits his personality. Although I guess part of it was procrastination."

Guy Tryon Rilleau, 6½ months, balances on his father Kim's hand at their home in Provincetown, Mass. Guy was a nameless baby until he was six months old.

After five months of indecision, the Rilleaus turned to the local weekly newspaper, The Advocate, for help and agreed to take part in a "name this baby contest."

Dozens of suggestions poured in for three weeks: Besides Rambo, Rupert and Ziggy, there were Jericho, Gore, Brillo, Lynke....

"I would like to give my name to the baby because I don't want it anymore. It is a good name," wrote

Tori Rowe. "It's easy to spell and write. People remember it. It's also easy to pronounce."

Tourists who learned about the contest while in Provincetown called with suggestions from as far away as Australia.

The Rilleaus were appreciative but not satisfied, and halfway through the contest, they decided to give the boy one of their own choices — Remy.

"It looked like it was going to stick for a little while there," said Rilleau "then, ugh, we decided we didn't like the alliteration."

The Rilleaus set a deadline of July 18 — the baby would be six months old by then — but couldn't meet it. Two days later, a group of tourists recognized Rilleau from the newspaper and promised him a name by the end of the night.

"A couple of hours later they said, 'We have it — the name for your son — it's Guy,'" recalled Rilleau. "I was so used to saying, 'Thank you, we'll consider it,' that's just what I said."

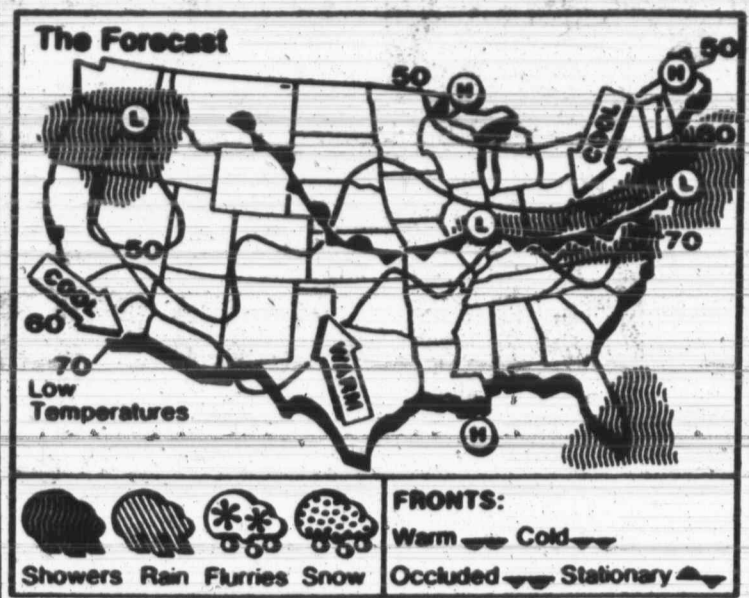

"But the next day I mentioned it to Lynne, and we decided that was it."

Guy seemed oblivious to the breakthrough.

"Before he had a name, we got away calling him 'he' a lot of the time," said Rilleau. "Or all sorts of names — Champ, Buster, Buddy, Hercules, Baby. My sister really wanted us to name him Sam, so she called him Sam. We tried out names on different days. Charlie. Max. Whatever."

The Rilleaus said they had hoped Guy's crankiness would disappear when he got a name, but he seemed unchanged. "I thought maybe his stubbornness was his way of telling us he wanted a handle — but, no."

Trustees OK track repairs

By LISA MUSSER Staff Writer
The track at Blankenship Field will get a new face after the Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees Tuesday night accepted a bid for repairs.

The trustees conducted a special meeting to look at bids in the high school board room.

Texas Courts & Windscreens of Abilene will repair the track after submitting the lowest bid, $16,600. The bid includes patching, sealing and repainting the track.

The district received bids from four companies, but none bid as specified, Don Crockett, assistant superintendent said.

Texas Courts and Windscreens was one of two companies that bid closest to specifications. The only difference was the brand of product that will be used in the repairs, Crockett said.

The repairs, to be finished by Sept. 1, will be guaranteed for one year and should remain in good condition for five years, he said.

The board also deeded a 10-foot strip of land to Parks Fuel Corp. for a token fee of $1 at the request of vice president Bob Parks, who wanted the property lines clarified.

The 10-foot by 150-foot strip of land is located on the north and east of block 22, lots 7, 8 and 9 as listed in records of the original town of Big Spring.

Parks told the board the district had bought the land in the 1920s and sold it in the 1930s. Because of an error on the original deed, the 10-foot strip had not been included in the original sale, he said.

In other business, the board also renewed its depository with the First National Bank of Big Spring. The board received three bids, but First National offered the highest rate of interest to hold the district's deposits, Crockett said.

The contract is for a two-year period beginning Sept. 1.

Also, the trustees appropriated $450 for the purchase of a video cassette recorder at the written request of Civic Club Classic Chairman Larry Flutch. The VCR will be given away at the first home football game Sept. 6 to boost attendance.

The civic clubs will raise money through ticket sales to offset the money, said Steve Frasier, who presented the project to the board for Flutch.

Furr's Inc. acquires Gibson Distributing

Furr's Inc., which has acquired the Big Spring Gibson's store closed two years ago, also has bought Gibson Distributing Co. in Odessa, according to a newspaper report.

The sale will be effective Sunday, according to the Tuesday edition of the Odessa American.

The Big Spring building will be reopened as a discount food store within two to three months, Bob Hurnence, vice president of personnel, said Friday.

The three Odessa retail outlets will continue to do business under the Gibson's name, Hurnence said.

Hurnence and other executives at the Lubbock-based supermarket chain could not be reached for comment today or Tuesday to confirm the report of the acquisition.

Hurnence said earlier the company would not release any major details regarding the Big Spring store other than to say "it will be a grocery store."

Furr's operates a store called The Box in Hobbs, N.M., Hurnence said. The Big Spring Gibson's store was among six stores closed after the company entered Chapter 11 bankruptcy in August of 1983.

Thomas Prendergast, an El Paso investor, purchased Gibson's for $5.43 million this spring, according to the Odessa American. He said Gibson's carried a $20 million tax loss, which was too large for the Odessa stores to absorb, the paper said.

Administrative functions of the Odessa store will be consolidated with Furr's operations in Lubbock, Hurnence said.

About 40 Gibson administrators will no longer be employed with the company after the audit and phaseout of the operation, Hurnence told the American.

Owner and resident Jim Nidffer was not injured in the fire, which was reported at 10:16 a.m.

When the two firefighters arrived at the fire, they found smoke pouring out of the east window and a neighbor battling the flames with a garden hose, the fire department report said.

Woman injured in 2-car wreck

A 28-year-old Big Spring woman was injured in a two-car accident Tuesday morning at the intersection of Lancaster and West Seventh Street.

Mary Ann Wilson, 28, of 811 W. Third was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

According to police reports, Muzio attempted to turn left into the 300 block of West Seventh when the two cars collided.

Both drivers were cited for failure to maintain liability insurance, the report shows.

agreed to store them in Western Europe. Instead, the conferees voted only to require that the White House tell Congress that U.S. allies had been consulted about possible contingency deployments during a crisis.

Aspin said he would support that language but added that "it's hard to predict" if the proposal would have been approved by the full House.

The Senate voted for unrestricted chemical weapons production while the House attached a number of restrictions before approving last month an end to the 16-year-long U.S. moratorium on building the weapons.

Senate approval of the conference bill came relatively smoothly, although Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said the conferees should have approved stricter penalties in proposed reforms of the way the Pentagon spends money.

Metzenbaum voted against the bill, as did Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.; John Melcher, D-Mont.; William Proxmire, D-Wis.; and William Roth, R-Del. Not voting was Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho.

the cost is $25 a running foot, or about $1,700 for a 50-foot lot. The exact cost varies with the percentage of property owners who participate on the street.

But the program is too costly for many residents of the city's north side and west side, whose residents are traditionally minority or elderly people on fixed incomes, said residents at the meeting.

"Elderly people can't afford to pay it out in five or 20 years," said one resident.

He was concerned about an elderly woman living in a house near the railroad tracks, who was not connected to the sewer system. Councilman Johnny Rutherford suggested that if she could not be connected to the current system, then perhaps community groups could install a septic tank as a work project.

Residents called on the city to search for funding for the work. Davis said the city received $5 million in federal grants in the 1970s and early 1980s for work on the north side, but such grants "were getting fewer and fewer."

Revenue-sharing funds also may be ended this year, depending on what Congress decides in its budget, Ferguson said. A current bill stalled in Congress has included revenue-sharing funds, but at a lower level than before, he said.

Residents also were concerned about water quality — rusty water, low pressure and bad taste. Davis said the city is "working full time" to correct low water pressure problems.

And the city's public works department, through programs such as the Banks grant proposal, are trying to replace old, rusted pipe with plastic pipes to correct the rust and water pressure problems.

Area residents at the meeting also called on the city to see if it was eligible for rental assistance and housing improvement programs.

They asked for a five-year plan for city parks improvements, which the city Parks and Recreation Board has worked on for a year. They also requested increased enforcement and help cleaning up weedy lots.

College student's market

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — The number of job offers for college graduates increased slightly during the past year, compared with 1983-84, and average salaries also increased, according to a survey released Tuesday.

Job offers increased 4.9 percent, while starting pay in nearly all of the 25 fields of study surveyed rose between 3 and 5 percent, according to the College Placement Council. The organization surveyed 187 placement offices at 163 colleges and universities.

There were 44,479 jobs offered between Sept. 1, 1984 and June 7, 1985, compared with 42,393 offers in the same period a year earlier.

Jackson injures hand

CULVER CITY, Calif. — Rock star Michael Jackson suffered a severe sprain to his right hand Tuesday while dancing during filming of a science fiction film for Walt Disney Productions, his doctor said.

Jackson, who wears a trademark sequined glove on his left hand, was pushed against an object during the dance, said Steven M. Hoefflin, a plastic surgeon.

"He's injured the hand a couple of times in the last week," said Hoefflin. "Once in a space ship scene when the space ship shook and he was thrown and all his weight fell on his right hand."

Jackson was treated at Brotman Memorial Hospital, where he was taken after his hair caught fire during the filming of a Pepsi Cola commercial last year.

Shuttle stumped again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Challenger's scientists, using a new computer program, failed again today to restore life to their most important science tool, a $60 million instrument to precisely point four telescopes at the sun.

Earlier, the shuttle's robot arm waved a small satellite above the spaceship, and engineers reported that faulty heat sensors caused Challenger's engine cutoff during launch on Monday.

The telescope pointing device seemed to be working better than on previous tries and briefly locked on the sun, but Karl Henize, an astronomer-astronaut, reported, "We lost the track on the bore-sight and also on the right tracker... Evidently the centering has not succeeded."

United States Secretary of State George Shultz, right, waves before entering with Soviet Union Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze the American Embassy here Wednesday where they will conduct bilateral talks.

Shevardnadzing

Shultz meets with new Soviet foreign minister

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz held his first in-depth meeting with new Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze today, with an agenda including arms control, human rights and the November summit between the superpowers.

The session was expected to last at least three hours. Arms control and other experts from both sides were also expected to take part.

Shevardnadze arrived at the suburban residence of U.S. Ambassador Keith F. Nyborg in a black Zil limousine flying the Soviet flag.

The Soviet minister was greeted outside by Shultz before the two men retired to a room where they were to meet over a green-covered table equipped with two microphones.

Shultz was accompanied at the residence by Max Kampelman, the chief American negotiator at Geneva arms talks; Paul Nitze, Shultz's senior advisor on weapons controls; Rozanne Ridgway, assistant secretary of state for European affairs; Moscow ambassador Arthur A. Hartman and Mark Palmer and Jack Matlock, two U.S. specialists on the Soviet Union.

Among those in Shevardnadze's delegation were Viktor Komplektov, deputy foreign minister; Vladimir Lomeiko, the Soviet Foreign Ministry's press spokesman, and veteran Washington ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Officials accompanying the two men declined to make any substantive comment about the meeting, though some noted that the pair had exchanged greetings Tuesday at the opening of a 35-country meeting here marking the 10th anniversary of the Helsinki Accords.

In speeches to the conference Tuesday, they accused each other of breaking the promises made at Helsinki in 1975.

Shultz, 64, and Shevardnadze, 57, were the most widely watched figures at the three-day Helsinki conference, which ends Thursday.

One of the main topics of their discussions was the November summit meeting in Switzerland between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Shevardnadze is the Soviet Union's first new foreign minister in nearly three decades and was named July 2 as the unexpected successor to foreign affairs veteran Andrei Gromyko after Gromyko became the Soviet president.

Previously the Communist Party leader in the Soviet republic of Georgia, Shevardnadze has little foreign policy experience, and his appointment was widely interpreted as a move by Gorbachev to put his own stamp on Soviet foreign affairs.

The white-haired Soviet official, trimly blue-suited, made his international debut Tuesday at the Helsinki conference, reading steadily through a speech accusing the United States of undoing arms control efforts and meddling in the Soviet Union's internal affairs.

His speech was regarded by veteran Kremlin-watchers as moderate, despite its accusations, and he included in it a call for increased cooperation between East and West.

"If it proves possible by joint effort to dispel thunderclouds here, the sun shines brighter for everyone," he said of efforts to defuse problems in Europe.

Shultz spoke later from the same podium and accused the Soviet Union of wholesale violations of its 1975 Helsinki promises to respect human rights.

"Pious declarations are cheap," Shultz said. "Real progress can only be seen in its effect on human beings."

Shultz accused the Soviet Union of widespread human rights violations, saying "the most important promises of a decade ago have not been kept."

Police arrest dissident

SEOUL, South Korea — Hundreds of policemen surrounded dissident leader Kim Dae-jung's house today, placing him under house arrest on the eve of an opposition party convention and five months after he returned from exile in the United States.

In a telephone interview, Kim Dae-jung told The Associated Press that a police officer ordered him to remain home, in keeping with restrictions on his political activity imposed after his return to South Korea in February.

The police action came on the eve of a national convention of the New Korea Democratic Party, which unified opposition to the government after this spring's parliamentary elections.

Chinese castigate Pope

PEKING — The government rebuffed the latest overture from Pope John Paul II today, accusing the Vatican of interfering in China's domestic affairs by maintaining diplomatic relations with Taiwan.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing told reporters China took note of the pope's statement last Thursday that the church is sympathetic to China's modernization drive.

But Zhaoxing added: "We have also taken note that the Vatican still maintains so-called diplomatic relations with Taiwan and continues to interfere in China's internal affairs."

Communist China claims Taiwan is a breakaway province, and it has said repeatedly that relations with the Vatican cannot improve until the church severs ties with Taiwan.

Dollar dips in trading

LONDON — Heavy selling pushed the dollar lower against all major currencies except the Canadian dollar in early European trading today. Gold prices climbed in reaction to the weaker dollar.

Dealers said the dollar came under pressure from the latest indications Tuesday of a sluggish U.S. economy.

The U.S. Commerce Department reported the second-biggest trade deficit on record in June, $13.42 billion. A 0.1 percent drop in single family home sales in June also ran contrary to market expectations of a small increase.

Gunman kills legislators

NEW DELHI, India — Unidentified gunmen fatally shot a young national legislator of the ruling Congress Party, his politician-wife and another person at the lawmaker's home in the Indian capital today and then escaped, authorities said.

The home affairs minister, Shankarrao B. Chavan, said Lalit Maken, 34, a trade union leader in New Delhi, was shot and killed by two gunmen who fled on a scooter.

Governor takes stand at own hearing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Bill Sheffield told a state Senate committee considering his impeachment that he did not lie to a grand jury and that he does not remember a meeting on a questionable multimillion-dollar state office lease.

"Government is too big ... to involve myself in all the details of minding the business," said Sheffield, who testified Tuesday night after more than a week of hearings on his possible impeachment.

Senate Rules Committee Chairman Tim Kelly said "a considerable portion" of the 20-member Senate was waiting to question the governor today.

The first-term Democrat is accused of steering a $9.1 million state office lease in Fairbanks to a company partly owned by labor leader Lenny Arsenault, who raised $92,000 for Sheffield during his 1982 campaign.

The grand jury returned no indictments, but recommended July 2 that legislators consider removing Sheffield from office and said that his testimony "reflects a lack of candor and a disrespect for the laws of this state."

Sheffield was questioned for two hours Tuesday, first by John Conway, a member of his legal team, and then by Senate chief counsel Sam Dash, who held the same job with the U.S. Senate committee that investigated Watergate in 1973.

The governor's responses were sprinkled liberally with "I just don't recall," and, "No recollection."

Rising power of 'new collars'

Speculation concerning shifting party loyalty and realignment has persisted since last November's GOP landslide. Now, there are stirrings from a potentially powerful voting bloc wedged between the traditional blue-collar voters and the "yuppies." We refer to what has become known as the "new-collar" voters.

Unheralded last year — perhaps because of the abnormal amount of attention focused on yuppies — the new collars are the broad middle of the baby-boom generation. They are Americans under 45 years of age with an annual family income between $20,000 and $40,000. New collars form the backbone of the expanding service economy and are employed in clerking, secretarial work, insurance sales, key punch and similar occupations.

Their political agenda is economically oriented. It includes low interest rates for home mortgages, good schools and day care, increased college aid for their children and a cleaner environment.

Politically independent, the new collars are the swing voters of the 1980s. They supported President Reagan last year but are ideologically capricious, leading all voting blocs in ticket splitting.

New collars make up 15 percent of the electorate. Whereas yuppie influence was exaggerated in the last election because of chic, consumptive visibility, there is electoral punch in the new collars, who outnumber yuppies 16-1.

That's why the major parties have strong interest in their views and trends. Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman calls them the "quiet populists" and believes they could help the GOP acquire a grassroots majority. On the other hand, the Democrats, in the throes of an identity crisis and wracked by defections to the GOP, need the new collars to help forestall a repeat of four out of the last five national elections.

Some observers think new collar voters can influence future elections as did blue-collar voters in the past. In an age of unfocused political loyalty, the new collar is an electoral force to be reckoned with.

Regan a survivor, but may not last

WASHINGTON — As a Marine officer, Donald Regan came under fire in many of the more murderous battles of World War II. He emerged unscathed, and there lies one key to his sudden rise as President Reagan's strong right hand during the period of the operation and convalescence.

The White House chief of staff is a survivor par excellence. When the going gets toughest, Regan keeps moving forward.

He came from the wrong side of Boston, and went through Harvard on scholarship. In the Marines he rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel. He started as a trainee in Merrill Lynch and ended up, 30 years later, as boss of the "thundering herd."

When the Reagan Administration began, Regan, as secretary of the treasury, cut a dim figure against such stars as Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger. He barely knew the President, and even in economic affairs he was eclipsed by Budget Director David Stockman. But now, Regan sets the President's schedule and controls the flow of paper to the Oval Office. During, and immediately after, the operation, he seems to have held more power than any White House official since Sherman Adams, the assistant president under Eisenhower.

A taste for making big decisions without fuss explains much of Regan's success. In readying the 1981 tax cut, Regan did most of the negotiating with Dan Rostenkowski, the Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. The disposition inside the Administration was to compromise on a two-year bill, with provisions for the third year being made contingent on general economic conditions.

But Rostenkowski had poor control over liberals on the committee, who were fretting about giveaways to the rich. He hesitated to accept the Administration compromise.

Regan sensed an opportunity and decided to go for the full package. In the end, the Administration rolled over the House Democrats and achieved a famous victory.

Immense charm, a quick wit and a truly broad frame of reference enhance Regan's appeal. A Wall Street colleague calls him a "terrific salesman." Jokes and quips helped establish a strong personal rapport with President Regan.

A journalist, questioning the secretary of the treasury about the Third World debt problem, once asked him what Toscanini conducted the rescue effort. He replied: "There was no Toscanini. There wasn't a Beethoven. It was more like improvising from Bela Bartok."

Regan likes to say of himself that he is not a politician, and there are many, including such formidable politicians as Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, who agree. I wonder. If knowing where power lies and how to go about accumulating it has anything to do with politics, then Regan has few peers in the business.

But forging alliances in the legislative tradition is something else. Like many tycoons in government, Regan is not short of vanity. His style of leadership is more hierarchical than collegial.

At the Treasury he stepped all over senior associates. At the White House, Regan's relations with the rest of the senior staff have been equally troubled. The two who knew him best left when he came. Friction has been reported between Regan and every other staff member with even a quasi-independent piece of turf. A couple of strong personalities turned down a chance to succeed David Stockman because the once-potent job of budget director now has been made subordinate to Regan.

PAC fails to aid candidates, labels 'Holocaust' lies, myth

WASHINGTON — A California-based group that claims to be the only political-action committee "defending and representing the interests of 52 million Americans of German descent" has raised $55,000 in contributions since 1983 but hasn't donated a penny to candidates for public office.

It appears that the bulk of the money has gone to spread information that its chairman, Hans Schmidt, feels will further the interests of "so many intelligent and good Americans who have the best interests of this nation and of our common Western civilization at heart," as he wrote in one monthly newsletter.

From recent newsletters and other mailings, Schmidt's message is loaded with skepticism about the slaughter of millions of European Jews by the Nazis in World War II. Some examples:

● On April 5, 1983, Schmidt wrote to President Reagan protesting plans for a Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C., and lamenting a poll that showed nearly all American schoolchildren "could parrot the mythical 6 million number of claimed Jewish losses in the 'Holocaust.'"

● The April 1985 newsletter contained a story headlined, "Lies about the 'Holocaust,'" which stated: "The moment we think that now, finally, things will quiet down at last, along comes another media blitz regarding 'Nazis,' Mengele, Dachau, Auschwitz and God knows what. One thing is sure: If we don't fight against these lies and defamation, it will never end."

● When the Institute for Historical Research, in Torrance, Calif., was hit by apparent arson last year, Schmidt wrote to potential contributors praising the institute for having been "in the forefront of the constant battle for historical truth ... especially relating to the so-called 'Holocaust.'"

According to required financial disclosures filed with the Federal Election Commission, the German-American National Political Action Committee made the following expenditures in 1983 and 1984, the first two years of its existence:

● $10,900 to Chairman Schmidt for rental of office space in Santa Monica.

● $2,420 toward payments of Schmidt's credit-card account, including $31.50 in bad check charges.

● $2,391 for premiums on Schmidt's medical and auto insurance.

● $3,293 for gasoline and maintenance of Schmidt's car, including $409 for repairs; $31 in state license fees; and $80 for Schmidt's membership in the Auto Club of Southern California.

Our associate Tony Capaccio wrote to Schmidt, a self-proclaimed former member of the Hitler Youth and Waffen SS who "fought for Germany, not Hitler," asking him to verify the expenditure figures. We also asked him to explain how the expenditures helped to further the stated goal of German-Americans "to solicit contributions to support political candidates of our choice."

Schmidt replied: "The figures you mention look all right to me. No further comment seems necessary or possible. Obviously it takes much more $ to organize a strong and viable political organization."

Schmidt acknowledged that "to this day (his PAC) has been unable to raise 'sufficient' funds to fulfill its (and all other PACs') stated aim, namely to support political candidates of our choice."

He went on to explain that any contribution less than the $5,000 maximum allowed by law "would either be taken as a reflection on the worth of the candidate to the PAC, or prove the inability of the PAC to raise monies."

Federal Election Commission records list at least 30 small PACs that raised less than the German-American group yet managed to contribute anywhere from $3,945 to $31,258 to candidates for office.

AIDS UPDATE: The Centers for Disease Control have been keeping track of the grim toll of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), and the latest figures show 11,505 known cases in the United States, with 5,174 deaths recorded as of two weeks ago.

U.S., Soviets lob propaganda bombs

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Those were propaganda blasts that sped across the Atlantic — in both directions.

The Reagan administration on Monday invited a Soviet team for an on-site inspection of an underground nuclear test in Nevada.

And the Soviet Union declared a five-month unilateral freeze on nuclear testing.

Anything in either proposal to be taken seriously? Not really.

Surprising? No, because the superpowers are in a propaganda battle, each trying to convince the rest of the world, Western Europe in particular, that it is the one making serious proposals to curb the arms race.

The administration's proposal was suspect from the start, since it was clearly designed to take some of the steam out of the moratorium announcement it knew Moscow would be making later in the day.

How did Washington know what the Kremlin was planning? Because Moscow had informed Washington through diplomatic channels on Sunday that it would announce the moratorium on Monday. It's customary for advance notice to be given on such proposals.

The White House denied that it was involved in a propaganda exchange, saying the U.S. proposal had been in the works for some time. But when did it notify Moscow? On Monday, a day after Moscow notified Washington. The White House first announced its invitation to the Soviet Union to witness a nuclear test, and then waited about two hours before revealing Moscow's proposal for a test moratorium.

Nor did it have a specific test in mind. If Moscow accepted, a test would be arranged, said a senior official, who briefed reporters on condition he not be identified.

President Reagan proposed last year that the United States and Soviet Union exchange visits of experts to monitor nuclear tests but Moscow didn't accept.

"I don't think much of the initiative of either side. I don't think the proposals are addressed to the Soviet Union and the United States. I think they are addressed more to world opinion."

Gerard C. Smith, arms control negotiator during the Carter administration and chairman of the Arms Control Association.

As for Moscow's proposal, the Kremlin has been suggesting nuclear moratoriums of one kind or another for years. It declared a unilateral moratorium on the deployment of its new SS-20 missiles in Europe, but continued deploying anyway.

Perhaps if the two sides thought the other would take their proposals seriously, there might be more than propaganda in them. But each surely knew in advance the other would reject it. And that's what happened.

The senior administration official dismissed the Soviet plan as "largely designed ... to divert attention away from the Soviet military buildup and the Soviet failure to negotiate equitable and verifiable agreements providing for reductions in the size of nuclear arsenals."

"I believe that the history of moratoria proposals document that they have been made for propaganda purposes," said the official.

On the other hand, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the U.S. proposal was a "far-reaching offer."

Rejecting suggestions that the U.S. move was a propaganda ploy, Speakes said, "It's not propaganda because it's backed up by facts, that they can come. The invitation is Dedicated to Albert T.

By KEELY COGHLAN
Trivial Pursuit is the number one destroyer of families and deep friendships.

I know of no other activity, pursued simply as an amusement, that places so much pain and strain on a relationship. Nothing else can begin so casually to introduce recurrent and deep-seated strife and anger into the family circle.

The family that plays together won't stay together. That's a guarantee.

Yet, I must admit I find the game fascinating. Like a dark addiction, I was sucked into playing the game again last night.

It started off well enough, but somewhere, jealousy over the number of pies and the number of easy questions invidiously inserted itself into our game.

Symptoms of Alzheimer's disease, severe memory loss and unexplained emotions, were rampant.

There was the frustration of repeatedly landing on the pink pies to be asked questions about musicals, plays and movies that were hot gossip decades before our time. I've never seen those questions on "Entertainment Tonight."

My pleas for delivery were unheeded. Even later pleas, and some not-so-subtle tries at reverse psychology didn't work.

"Oh, please don't give me arts and literature!" I cried. "Don't throw me into the briar patch, Brer Fox."

All for naught. My case that I couldn't answer those questions wasn't too convincing since I kept trying to land on those spaces.

Meanwhile, a friend kept moaning that we were determined not to ever give her a piece of the pie. Another kept saying rude comments about the baseball questions I never got and she did. "What do you mean the score of a forfeited game is 9-0 and not 1-0? That's stupid," she yelled.

She was lucky. The only sports questions the rest of us got were about cricket and soccer, hardly American.

If it weren't for Albert T. we wouldn't have been speaking to each other. Albert, bless him, has the fame of being the funniest named inventor who merited a question in the science section. What was his contribution to the world? The bra. And to find out more about Albert's name, you'll just have to play the game.

Entrepreneur suffers setback in takeover bid

ATLANTA (AP) — Entrepreneur Ted Turner lost a federal court bid Tuesday to block a recapitalization move by CBS Inc. that he claimed was designed to foil his attempt to take over the network.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Robert L. Vining Jr. was the second loss of the day for Turner, chairman of the Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System. In Washington earlier, the Federal Communications Commission rejected a separate attempt by Turner to block the proposed CBS buyback of 21 percent of its own stock.

Turner claimed before the regulatory panel that the recapitalization was an illegal transfer of control of CBS' radio and TV licenses. The FCC said the buyback did not constitute a transfer of control.

Vining rejected Turner's request for a temporary injunction in an order which he dictated for 50 minutes from the bench.

He said Turner failed to prove his claim that the CBS buyback plan contained restrictions designed solely to impede the Turner takeover effort. Turner also failed to prove a claim that CBS directors failed in their duty to stockholders by rejecting the Turner proposal.

Before the ruling, Turner had vowed he would not back down in his attempt to take over the network by acquiring 67 percent of CBS stock.

Turner, the chairman and president of TBS, told the company's shareholders today that he is developing alternative plans if his current attempt is blocked. He said those plans range from a revised proposal offering more cash to CBS shareholders to a proxy fight at the network's next annual meeting.

Turner said he set his sights on CBS because mergers are the wave of the future in broadcasting and CBS was "the company I felt like would be the one most vulnerable to a takeover."

"It was apparent to me we should do everything we could to strengthen ourselves by working out a merger with one of the major companies," said Turner, who owns 81 percent of Turner Broadcasting's stock.

In the court case, CBS Inc. Chairman Thomas Wyman testified Friday that his plan was in the works long before the Atlanta cable entrepreneur's bid to acquire the network was launched and that such a move was inevitable.

Wyman acknowledged that the proposal contains elements that would reduce the number of takeover offers directed at CBS. But he said the main objective of the offer was to "position us in a healthy financial picture to compete in the business we're in."

Harold Brown, former U.S. defense secretary and a CBS director, also testified that the buyback plan was considered in several forms before Turner announced his takeover attempt.

Turner, TBS chairman, is attempting to gain control of the nation's largest television network with a complex proposal involving TBS stock, bonds and notes — but no cash — that he says is worth $5.4 billion.

TBS Vice President William C. Bevins testified Wednesday that the Atlanta-based communications company considered and then rejected a plan to raise $2.6 billion in cash to revise Turner's bid.

Peter H. Chiappetta, an E.F. Hutton financial adviser who assisted TBS in preparing the takeover attempt, testified that CBS recapitalization contained "poison pills" designed to stop Turner.

Chiappetta said if CBS shareholders were allowed to consider the TBS offer, he believed it would gain approval. He added that if Vining allowed the CBS offer to stand, "it would definitely kill the TBS offer."

Turner, who announced the takeover bid in April, also owns Cable News Network, baseball's Atlanta Braves and basketball's Atlanta Hawks.

General Motors Corp. verifies Saturn car site

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gov. Lamar Alexander knew the eight-month, 36-state scramble for industrial America's top prize — the General Motors Corp. Saturn car complex — was over when he got a call from GM Chairman Roger Smith.

Smith called the statehouse Monday and said, "Congratulations." "The largest company in the world, after the biggest and most extensive search that anybody can remember, is putting in Tennessee the largest one-time investment in American history," Alexander said, beaming.

The official announcement, printed on General Motors stationery and given to reporters at a meeting room near the statehouse, was anticlimactic. The U.S. senators from Tennessee, both Democrats, announced last week that Spring Hill, 30 miles south of here, was the choice for the $3.5 billion plant.

The jubilant Republican governor joined other state officials at a news conference, where they were photographed in front of a blue banner that read, "Tennessee Welcomes Saturn."

The show was Tennessee's alone. GM officials, who called the selection of Spring Hill tentative, didn't take part, saying they would meet with reporters here today.

At today's press conference, Saturn Corp. President William Hoglund said, "The fact that we're here in Tennessee delights the devil out of us. We recognize even more that there is a responsibility ... to restore the country's industrial strength. We need it. You need it. Tennessee needs it. And America needs it."

"We in America have been losing our industrial base at a very, very fast rate," added UAW Vice President Donald F. Ephlin. "We recognize that we have to change the way we do business... And if we're going to compete, we've got to be good."

"I think Saturn is a model for many others in America to follow," he said.

Alexander said even he wasn't sure what drew GM to Spring Hill, population 1,100. He said GM hadn't called the decision final because no negotiations had been held with state, local and utility officials on a long list of items.

Hoglund, in a statement Monday, identified those items as roads, sewers, education and training for employees, environmental matters and the cost of taxes, water, electricity and natural gas.

"They'll tell us their needs," Alexander said. "We'll try to meet them. We have no doubt that we can."

Talks with officials of Saturn Corp. begin on Wednesday, he said.

Experts urging all colonies of killer bees be destroyed

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A panel of experts urged Tuesday that all colonies of wild bees be destroyed in a nearly 8,000-square-mile area to ensure that no African "killer bees" survive from their first appearance in this country.

George Loughner, executive secretary of the state Agriculture Department, announced the proposals after a 45-minute meeting of the five-member panel in Bakersfield, about 60 miles southeast of the tiny community of Lost Hills, where an underground nest of the aggressive African bees was found last month.

The panel called for the destruction of all feral, or wild, bee colonies within a 50-mile radius around Lost Hills, about 7,850 square miles. The experts also urged sample testing of all commercial, domestic hives within a 400-square-mile quarantine zone prior to lifting restrictions, to ensure they aren't harboring any killer bees.

The group's proposals are advisory only, and must be approved by state Agriculture Director Clare Berryhill, who also attended the meeting.

Berryhill has said there is "a remote possibility" that a 400-square-mile quarantine zone around Los Hills would be sprayed with pesticides from aircraft. But aerial spraying "doesn't seem to be a very good option, because the bees live underground anyway. I don't know how effective it would be, if at all," he said.

Loughner said it was "highly improbable there will be any long-term effect" of the killer bees upon the area because of "genetic dilution" when the fierce African strain bees mate with more docile domestic honeybees.

Loughner said lab tests showed that a suspicious nest, discovered Monday when a swarm of angry bees chased a scientist for 200 yards, contained domestic bees, not Africans.

Computer sales at schools soar

NEW YORK (AP) — Schools are still buying computers at a frantic pace, and children in rich public and private schools are gaining an ever-wider advantage over poorer youngsters, according to a private marketing survey.

America's public, private and Catholic schools owned 630,000 microcomputers in 1984-85, up 75 percent over the 1983-84 school year, according to the 50-state telephone survey, "Microcomputers in Schools 1984-85, A Comprehensive Survey and Analysis." It was conducted by Market Data Retrieval, a private research firm at Westport, Conn.

Schools will likely have more than a million microcomputers this coming school year, said Sharon Sanford, the company's vice president in charge of collecting the telephone survey data.

When the classroom computer revolution was in its infancy in the fall of 1981, only 18 percent of the nation's public schools had microcomputers. By last school year, more than 85 percent were using them, the survey found.

The number of private non-Catholic schools using microcomputers more than doubled last year and the number of Catholic schools with them nearly tripled, but both still lagged far behind public schools. About 46 percent of non-Catholic private schools used microcomputers in 1984-85, while 63.4 percent of Catholic schools had them.

But private, non-Catholic schools that had computers tended to have plenty of them. Such schools average one computer for every 40.5 students, while public schools average one for every 63.5

students, and Catholic schools average one per 73.5 pupils.

John F. Hood, principal author of the survey, said Catholic schools were surveyed separately from other private schools because they are less affluent as a group and tend to have different buying patterns for all kinds of education materials.

The report will likely heighten the worry expressed by many educators that poor youngsters haven't shared equally in the computer revolution.

According to the report, schools in the wealthiest school districts had an average of 10.6 microcomputers in 1984-85, while schools in the poorest districts had only 6.8. The number of computers at rich schools increased by over 47 percent last year, but only 36 percent at impoverished schools.

Gov. White portrays himself in popular CBS network series

PLANO (AP) — Gov. Mark White went before the cameras to play his favorite character for an upcoming episode of the television series, "Dallas."

"I'm happy to be here with you all today," White said, playing himself and waving to a pretend rodeo audience as the cameras rolled.

But the governor said Monday after filming his one-liner that he's not ready to relinquish the keys to the statehouse for a job in Hollywood.

Asked what he would do just in case he's not re-elected next year, White said, "I don't think I have to worry about that part. I don't think that's going to be a problem we'll have to deal with."

White donned khaki pants, a blue western shirt and a straw hat to play the role of a special guest of Miss Ellie, actress Barbara Bel Geddes, at her benefit rodeo.

After completing his one-liner in just one take, the governor strolled through the movie lot talking to actors Linda Gray (Sue Ellen Ewint), Steve Kanaly (Ray Krebbs), and Jared Martin (Dusty Farlow), and others who star on the weekly nighttime soap.

White's appearance will be aired Nov. 15 marking the 200th episode of the show.

"Governor, just wave as if you're waving to a standing ovation. You should be used to that," said director Corey Allen.

Hot weather forced White to change shirts during the filming, but the show's executive director Philip Capice said filming White took only one take.

After the performance, White presented a proclamation to Capice saying the series has been of "global importance" and has brought $25 million to the state since its beginning in 1978.

Uncle Sam wants you, you and you

ARANSAS PASS (AP) — When it comes to filling out their Air Force "dream sheets," the Stoops brothers won't have any problem doing them in triplicate.

Wearing the same shirts, pants, shoes and wristwatches, triplets Larry, Barry and Gary Stoops solemnly filed into an Air Force recruiting station recently to be sworn into the Uncle Sam's service.

"We wanted to enter the Air Force together," said Larry, who is the eldest of 18-year-old brothers Barry and Gary by 54 and 55 minutes, respectively. "We wanted to stay together. We took the same jobs and the same places in the Air Force together."

The recruiters, at first, were too stunned to say much of anything when the three first came into their office, Larry recalled.

"They looked at us real hard. They had a real shocked look on their faces," Larry said. "My dad had talked to them earlier, but they still looked kind of shocked."

Larry said he and his brothers chose the Air Force in part because recruiters assured them they could probably keep together even when basic and advanced training ends.

"Their chances of staying together are very good," said Master Sgt. Felipe Tamez. "The boys are going to fill out a dream sheet," an Air Force form where they list their personal preferences for assignment.

"We're pulling for them to stick together," Tamez said.

Born June 26, 1967 in the St. Louis-area town of Washington, Mo., the Stoops brothers later moved to Bridge City, Texas, a small town about 20 miles southeast of Beaumont. They graduated from Aransas Pass High School last May.

Austin golfers leery of fairway robbery

AUSTIN (AP) — A weekend armed robbery of four golfers at Morris Williams Golf Course has caused police to urge that golfers be cautious of strangers in isolated areas on the course near Robert Mueller Municipal Airport.

Four robbers — one with a sawed-off shotgun — held up four golfers from the Austin area about 9 a.m. Sunday, police said. Officers said the robbers forced the four to lie face-down on the course, and took their money and jewelry.

Police Lt. John Stewart said the robbers were described as 18 to 24 years old. The one who appeared oldest carried a sawed-off, pump shotgun.

"We were forced to lie down on the ground execution-style," said Ted Allen Williams, one of the victims. "We really thought we were going to die. It was very traumatic. Somebody should let the public know that's a dangerous golf course."

After the robbery, the golfers were told to run into the woods surrounding the course, and not to look back.

Police identified the robbery victims as Richard M. Spears, 28; Samuel Arnold Spears, 32; Jerry W. Brokins, 48, and Williams, 33.

Stewart said Monday that golfers at Morris Williams should play in groups, and be cautious of strangers who enter the course and do not appear to be playing golf. "The main thing is to pay attention to what and who is around you," said Stewart.

The robbery Sunday took place at the 13th hole, an area ringed with trees, and isolated from the rest of the course.

Jin-Keun Kim, 38, died in November after he was hit on the head by a robber wielding a tree limb at the course. Two young robbers approached Kim, a student at the University of Texas, and his partner at the 14th hole.

One of the youths has been sentenced to prison, and the other is in the custody of juvenile authorities.

Much of Morris Williams is bordered by a chain link fence. The portion of the course where the Sunday robbery and the murder took place is separated from Manor Road and adjacent houses by a narrow, heavily wooded area without a fence.

Officials break up theft ring

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — An automobile theft ring so sophisticated that it published a manual outlining procedures for stealing and selling a car is being broken up by officials in Iowa and seven other Midwestern states.

The ring allegedly operates in Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Texas, Iowa Department of Transportation officials told the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

By stealing cars in one state and transferring the title to one or more other states, the ring is able to sell the stolen cars at auctions, to dealers and even to private individuals.

Two men have been arrested in Sedalia, Mo., where the ring had set up a shop that could duplicate everything necessary to turn a stolen car into what appears to be a legitimate car. Confiscated were machines that could duplicate license plates, stickers and all vehicle identification numbers tags. About 3,000 Oklahoma forms for titling cars were found.

"It's so sophisticated that one of the members of the ring has written a manual to tell how to steal a vehicle for profit," said John Kelly, assistant director of enforcement for the Iowa DOT.

"It's the most sophisticated thing I've ever seen. I've been in (enforcement) for 14 years and I've never seen anything like it."

Iowa became involved in the investigation last November when a clerk at a county treasurer's office realized that the address used on a title transfer did not exist.

DA subpoenas WFAA films

DALLAS (AP) — The district attorney's office has subpoenaed a Dallas television reporter's taped interview with the man accused of killing another motorist on North Central Expressway.

But his station, WFAA-TV, said it will fight attempts to force the release of reporter John Criswell's tape.

Prosecutors said Monday they need the tape and "any type of video film, as well as notes, summaries, memorandum, reports or files" from Criswell before they begin trying Deno Victor Loredo this week.

A hearing was scheduled today to determine whether State District Judge Gerry Meier will order Criswell and the station to turn over the tapes. Ms. Meier could have Criswell jailed if he refuses to comply with her order.

Loredo, 27, is charged with the February shooting death of Jack Vaughn, 38, who was killed when a bullet fired from another car struck him as he and his stepson drove on the highway.

Members of Congress attend a Capitol Hill news conference Tuesday arranged by families of American hostages in Lebanon to discuss current situation of the hostages.

Families of hostages urge action from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an emotional plea for release of their loved ones, the families of Americans still held hostage in Lebanon today urged the administration to take immediate action.

"We're tired of waiting, and we know our men are tired," said Peggy Say, sister of Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. Anderson was kidnapped in West Beirut last March and is one of seven Americans still being held hostage in Lebanon.

Speaking at a news conference, Ms. Say said the group plans to hold discussions with lawmakers, and that there is a strong possibility it will meet with Vice President George Bush on Thursday.

"We're hoping that by meeting with our congressmen and our senators that the administration will give this issue the top priority that it deserves," she said. "We're asking the administration to stop being spectators on this issue and become participants."

Jeremy Levin, a correspondent for Cable News Network who escaped his captors after being held in Lebanon for nearly a year, said the kidnapers are demanding the release of 17 Arabs being held in Kuwait for the 1984 bombings of the American and French embassies. He accused the administration of failing to share that information with the public.

The administration has said it won't negotiate with the kidnapers and is opposed to the release of the 17 Arabs.

"Lacking a clear idea of what the seven had been held for, the public has not been energized as it was in the hijacking crisis to communicate to the administration its desire that the government do everything necessary to resolve the crisis as quickly as possible for the reciprocal release of American hostages for Arab prisoners," Levin said.

New housing sales decline during June

By The Associated Press
Sales of new homes edged down 0.1 percent and nationwide construction contracts overall were down 12 percent in June. Even so, the total of second-quarter contracts for new construction set a record nationwide, according to government and private surveys.

The departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development said in a report Tuesday that new single-family homes were sold at an annual rate of 669,000 units last month following a revised 5.7 percent May increase.

The decline still left sales 5.2 percent above a year ago, but economists were surprised that sales did not advance in June, given interest rate declines that have left mortgage rates — about 12 percent last month — at their lowest levels in five years.

Meanwhile, in New York, the F.W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co. said that second-quarter contracts for new construction set a seasonally adjusted record at $218.1 billion, despite a 12 percent decline to $199.8 billion in June.

"After a surge of record contracting in response to falling interest rates, the building market now seems to be reacting to some of the negative economic developments of 1985," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F.W. Dodge.

In Bethlehem, Pa. the College Placement Council reported that job offers to college graduates were slightly more plentiful in the past 12 months than in 1983-84, and pay edged upward.

The number of job offers increased 4.9 percent while average starting salaries for nearly all of the 25 fields of study surveyed rose between 3 percent and 5 percent, according to the council's survey of 187 placement offices at 163 colleges and universities.

Petroleum engineering graduates received the highest starting salary average, $30,996, an increase of 4.8 percent from the previous survey.

Social science graduates recorded an above-average pay increase of 6.4 percent, to an annual salary of $18,540.

Also in Washington, the government announced that the United States suffered a $13.4 billion trade deficit last month, the second highest ever. Adding to the deficit was a big jump in demand for new cars and foreign oil.

The Commerce Department said the merchandise trade deficit climbed 5.6 percent in June from the May level of $12.7 billion. The red ink included a record $4.57 billion monthly deficit with Japan.

For the first six months of the year, the U.S. trade deficit — the difference between what America imports and what it sells abroad — totaled $70.7 billion as the country seemed assured of surpassing last year's record deficit of $123.3 billion.

In addition to Japan, big deficits were incurred with Western Europe, $2.6 billion; Canada, $1.7 billion; and Taiwan, $1 billion.

Cuban President Fidel Castro gestures during his speech to the opening session of a conference arranged by him for more than 500 delegates from Latin American and Caribbean countries in Havana, Tuesday. Castro called for the nations to ignore payments on their overall $360 billion foreign debt.

Castro issues debtor's policy

Latin Americans close ranks on call to ignore foreign debt

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Latin American radicals, speaking at a conference convened by President Fidel Castro, are closing ranks behind his call for their nations to ignore payments on their aggregate $360 billion foreign debt.

At Tuesday night's opening session of the five-day conference, several speakers said Latin American nations face economic disaster unless they unite in a debtors' rebellion against Western creditor countries and institutions.

Castro opened the gathering, telling more than 500 delegates from Latin American and Caribbean countries that the gathering was "the widest and most pluralistic meeting that has ever been held in this hemisphere."

Castro, who has argued that payments on the debt would require a degree of austerity that few Latin American governments are strong enough to survive politically, was expected to outline his position later in the conference.

He has said the portion of the debt owed to U.S. banks should be absorbed by the U.S. government and financed by defense spending cuts.

The conference, which represents Castro's most ambitious effort yet to win acceptance into the Latin American family of nations, has attracted political leaders, academicians, economists, union chiefs and church leaders.

But most governments indicated they are wary about allowing Castro to assume a role as arbiter of the debt issue, and few sent official emissaries.

The highest ranking foreign delegate at the meeting is Nicaragua's vice president, Sergio Ramirez. Also present was Hortensia Bussi de Allende, widow of the late Chilean President Salvador Allende, who received enthusiastic applause.

All of the Tuesday speakers expressed support for Castro's view on the debt. Several coupled their comments on the debt issue with denunciations of American policy toward Nicaragua and El Salvador.

Bolivia's planning minister, Freddy Justiciano, said the foreign debts amounted to "economic strangulation."

Attempts to pay off creditor nations, he said, would be "taking bread away from the mouths of those who did not contract the debt."

Castro named Justiciano's Bolivian colleague, former President Walter Guevara Arce, president of the conference, which ends

Saturday.

Peruvian Labor leader Rolando Victor Cuadros said the foreign debt represents a "crushing weight" on the people of the region.

Luis Corvalan, exiled secretary-general of Chile's outlawed Communist Party, called the debt "a knot that is strangling us." Asserting that the debts are compromising future generations, he said the people of the region confront debt repayments from "cradle to grave."

A Mexican economist, Alonso Aguilar, said he agreed with Castro's view that the United States should assume the debt repayment.

Cuban officials have said that leaders of virtually all leftist parties in the hemisphere are attending, as well as two former presidents — Wolfgang Larrazabal of Venezuela and Bolivia's Guevara Arce.

A number of former presidents turned down invitations, including Carlos Andres Perez and Rafael Caldera, both of Venezuela, and Luis Echeverria of Mexico.

Castro has accused the Reagan administration of enlisting the support of U.S. commercial airlines in efforts to prevent delegates from traveling to the meeting.

Suicide bomber kills soldiers, 5 Lebanese

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A suicide bomber detonated his explosive-laden car near an Israeli patrol in the southern Lebanese town of Arnoun today, and a witness said three soldiers and five Lebanese were killed.

However, an Israeli army statement said two soldiers were slightly wounded in the attack and taken to a hospital. It said they were part of a patrol to prevent terrorist activities in the security zone north of the Israeli border.

Israeli military sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity said preliminary reports indicated that the driver and one other Lebanese were killed in the explosion.

There was no way immediately to reconcile the conflicting casualty reports, and no claim of responsibility for the blast.

A U.N. official said peacekeeping soldiers heard an explosion in the area of Arnoun followed by heavy machine gun fire.

Chocolate lover writes book about her favorite food

NEW YORK (AP) — For as long as Lora Brody can remember, chocolate has been a way of life. When other kids were eating pizza, she was feasting on fudge brownies. When other adults were mastering the art of cooking main courses, she was perfecting chocolate-laced desserts. Now, at the suggestion of a fellow chocoholic, she has concocted a book about her favorite subject. Just as she whips chocolate into tortes, ice cream, pies, fondues and coverings for bananas, she whipped autobiographical sketches and recipes into the book, "Growing Up on the Chocolate Diet," which she hopes will help put one of her three sons through college.

"I hooked up the food processor to the word processor," Mrs. Brody, 39, explained in an interview. The food of the gods — which is what the word chocolate means — has been her "main ingredient, passion, love" all her life, she says. "Maybe to you the word diet means cottage cheese and Melba toast," she writes. "To me it means chocolate layer cake, fudge brownies and egg creams. While other kids were growing up on pizza and Coke, chili dogs and cheeseburgers, I was eating chocolate." Eating chocolate was easy, but learning to cook and bake — not just with chocolate — was more difficult. Her husband, David, agrees that as a bride his wife took no prizes as a chef, but time, effort, determination and imagination turned Lora Brody into a woman who made her first money selling cookies to Bloomingdale's. Moving from cookies and cakes to catering, she helped found the Women's Culinary Guild. Part of the thanks for her success goes to her husband and friends, who serve as her "research and development" department, she says. "My friends are honest, although they do like to eat," says Mrs. Brody, a Hartford, Conn., native who now lives in a Boston suburb. She also has taught baking classes, lambasting the "thin ladies" who are interested in learning, but not eating, for fear that they will gain an ounce. Mrs.

Brody herself has never been fat; in fact, she was always thin. "I'm real compulsive about my weight," admits the woman who works only with high-calorie ingredients. "But I work all the time. I run around being a mother. I do watch what I eat. And then, for one week a year, I get away from food." She retreats to an old house in upstate New York, a health resort, where all she does is "drink water, rest, walk in the country. It's like someone took a big toothbrush and scrubbed you out. It's invigorating." She concedes that many of the recipes in her book are time-consuming and complex for the average baker, but she insists they can be done. "You can do it if you really want to," she says.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Roman, Longshore Road.

Computer chip helping ID abducted kids

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A microscopic computer chip that can be bonded to a tooth is helping police identify abducted children and providing doctors with emergency medical information. The micro-information disk — thinner than a cigarette package cellophane wrapper and about as big as the capital "O" on a typewriter — is bonded to the child's first upper permanent molar with a liquid resin that encases it. The information includes the child's name, birthdate, address, telephone, medical alert information and whom to notify in case of emergency. The disk originally was developed by Micro I-D of Peoria to more easily identify missing, comatose or deceased children, then evolved into a means of providing medical information, according to a medical journal.

Death rates continue downward trend

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — With few exceptions, death rates are continuing their general downward trend and Americans are living longer, says Family Practice News. Reporting on statistics for 1982, the latest government figures available on mortality, the publication notes that the 1982 death rate of 852 deaths per 1,000 population is down from the rate of 862.4 for the previous year. This sets a record low, dropping under the previous record low death rate of 852.2 deaths per 1,000 recorded in 1979. Death rates declined for every age group in 1982 with the smallest decline noted for those aged 65-74 (1 percent) and the largest decline for those aged 15-24 and 35-44 (6 percent each). The decline of death rates for almost all age groups of both sexes between 1981 and 1982 represents a continuation of a general downward trend since 1950. The average life expectancy of Americans rose to a record high of 74.6 years in 1982, up from 74.2 years in 1981. Statistically, women outlive men by 7.3 years.

Kids must be wary of strangers at all times

DEAR ABBY: As a door-to-door solicitor for a non-profit charity, I knock on about 1,500 doors a week. Frequently — all too frequently — when I ring the doorbell, it is opened by a 3- or 4-year-old child — and there is no adult present.

It would be so easy for someone to grab the child and run — or simply to walk right into the house! This is extremely dangerous, with the possibility of robbery, kidnapping or child molesting.

Each time this happens (four times yesterday), I caution the parents who eventually come to the door, but I believe a nationwide warning should be given. I hope you see the value of printing this.

JOHN G. WORD,
SANTA ANA, CALIF.

DEAR MR. WORD: I do. And along the same line:

DEAR ABBY: I am employed by a company that takes telephone surveys, and very often a child answers the telephone. (This is anywhere from noon until 9 p.m.) When I hear a child's voice, I ask, "Is your mother or father at home, please?" And, Abby, more often than not I am told, "No, I'm home alone." When I ask when their mother will be home, I am told, "She didn't say" or "Not until later."

Please tell your readers to instruct their children that if they are alone at home, they should never give that information to a stranger. It's better to say, "My mother can't come to the phone right now."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old married man who has just had a vasectomy. As part of the surgery, the doctor used two small metal staples, which he said will remain permanently where he placed them.

I need to know if these staples will trip the alarm when I go through security at the airport.

Please don't tell me to ask my doctor. I'm afraid he might laugh at me for asking such a dumb question, so I'm asking you.

J.B. IN NYC

DEAR J.B.: The answer is no. And by the way, there are no "dumb questions" — only foolish people who don't ask questions because they're afraid of appearing dumb.

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbor leaves for work at 6 o'clock every morning, and when he is picked up by a coworker, there is a lot of horn beeping, yelling and door slamming.

Their driveway is right next to our bedroom. My alarm is set for 7, but with all this commotion going on every morning, my husband and I are awakened at 6. We have two small children and the last hour of sleep is very important before I start my busy day.

My husband says I shouldn't say anything to them as it might cause hard feelings, and that's the last thing we want. We like our neighbors, but I am disturbed by their lack of consideration for others at that hour.

Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR DESPERATE: Unless your neighbors are made aware that the horn beeping, yelling and door slamming is disturbing you, nothing will change. I suggest that you tell them in a friendly way what you have told me. It should make for friendlier neighbors — not hard feelings.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Singles' group to form in city

WANTED: Single men and women interested in forming a support group in Big Spring. A get-acquainted picnic supper will be held Saturday at the pavilion in the northeast corner of Comanche Trail Park. The public is invited. Participants need to bring their own food, beverage and utensils.

The group will attend the Starlight Specials at the Amphitheatre following the picnic.

A singles organization is in the planning stage. "The main idea is to meet people and to develop a comfortable atmosphere," said Judith Gray, an organizer of the group.

A singles group met for a year from 1983 to 1984 but ended due to a tapering off of interest, said Gray. Single men or women wanting more information or wanting to have their name placed on a mailing list for invitations to events can call Judith Gray at the Howard County Library, 267-5295. Volunteers for the organization also are needed.

Mother, daughter feted with baby shower

Mrs. Randy Pierce and her daughter Ashley Nicole were honored with a baby shower Saturday in the fellowship hall of the East Fourth Street Baptist Church. Ashley Nicole was born July 11.

Special guests were Mrs. Meadean Krause, the baby's grandmother, Mrs. Mamie Kinman, her great-grandmother, Kathryn Kraus and Kit Kraus, her aunt and uncle, and Terri Nichols, her mother's cousin.

Hostesses were: Dania West, Dianne Oliphant, Latrice Davis, Dorothy Shanks, Leslie Newton, Leta Kirby, Sandy Shanks, Bettye Griffith, Debbie Davidson, Muriel Denton, Mary Cain and Nettie Kennedy. Their gift was a stroller.

A corsage made of pink baby socks, white lace, net and ribbon was presented to the new mother.

The guest register table and refreshment table were covered with pink cloths and edged in white lace. The register book was made by Kirby, using a terry cloth bib for the front cover.

The refreshment table was centered with a ceramic baby holding a teddy bear and flanked by pink and blue flowers in crystal vases.

Other decorations included a large rainbow candle surrounded by pink flowers on the bar between the kitchen and fellowship hall, with miniature baby furniture and dolls on each side, and pink and blue flowers and candles on the piano.

Music, literature help youngsters learn to read

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Learning is music to the ears for youngsters in many parts of the country when five young women visit their elementary school classrooms.

The group, four members of the Encore String Quartet, and a narrator, try to encourage reading among young children by combining music and literature. Their national tour is sponsored by Waldenbooks as part of its program to get children to learn to love to read. The program offers 30 minutes of classical and popular music chosen to illustrate various children's books.

The string ensemble was organized by violinist Susan Smith in 1975. Other musicians are violinist Claire Woody, violist Dorothy Williams and cellist Jamie Guy. Phyllis Greenberg, an actress and teacher, narrates stories with the aid of paper cutouts she

Well-timed snacks key to weight gain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've written before. Although my problem may not seem of major concern to you, it is very important to me. I am 14, a female, I weigh 84 pounds and am 5 feet, 2 1/2 inches, I would like to gain 20 pounds. Yet when I do gain it get it in my stomach. What foods should I eat to gain weight? I need some specific help. Please answer. — S.B.

If you could put on 14 pounds you would be at a good weight for your height. To do that you have to make yourself the object of your own private science project. The subject is calories.

Do this for me: Go to your home economics teacher or to your library and ask for a book that gives the amount of calories in various foods. Then find a notebook you can use as a diary of the foods you eat each day. Keep that for a week. Convert the daily food intake into total calories. That's what is keeping you at your present weight. The record-keeping isn't as hard as it sounds once you get the hang of it.

Now, your goal is to put on about a pound a week. You can do that by taking in an additional 700 calories worth of extra food each day. You will have to take that food as snacks. But the secret is not to let those snacks interfere with your regular meals, and I'm assuming you eat regular meals.

Here's an example of scientific snacking for weight gain: One cup of mixed, dried fruit and one and a half cups of a malted milk will give you 660 calories. Multiply that by your seven days and you have your pound. You can vary the kind of snack food, but you cannot vary the timing, which is keyed to not blunting your regular appetite.

If you do this and are successful, write me again and I'll let our readers know all about it, OK? Oh yes, about those sit-ups. You should do them with your knees bent. The other way only worsens the abdomen problem you mention.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Several years ago I had surgery for a rectal fistula. I was too embarrassed to ask my doctor many questions and I have never heard much about these things. What causes this to happen? Will I be prone to this? I am a young woman in my childbearing years and will greatly appreciate enlightenment about this. — M.T.

If the surgery to remove the fistula and its cause was successful and if you have been free of symptoms I don't think you need to be concerned. If I were you I would file the incident away and mention it if you are ever going in for an obstetrical examination.

A fistula is any unnatural tunnel connecting an inner body structure to another structure or any inner organ to the skin surface.

It might help to understand how a rectal fistula comes into being. It usually begins with an abscess in the lining of the lower part of the digestive tract. That abscess can burrow its way outward toward the surface. That tunnel is a rectal fistula.

How did the abscess form? A good question. The protective lining of the lower digestive tract may have been damaged by chronic constipation. Once the protective surface was lost, normal germs in the food residue invaded the broken surface and began multiplying. That was the abscess.

Experts say packing takes lots of planning

NEW YORK (AP) — Creating a maximum number of outfits with a minimum amount of clothing is possible if you pack with forethought and savvy, say travel experts.

A vacationer can pack only what is needed and carry it comfortably by careful planning, first answering these questions:

Where am I going? Why am I going? How will I get there? When will I get there? Who will I see? What will I do?

The answers to these questions will help to decide what clothing is appropriate. Some suggestions for selecting clothing include:

- Don't get carried away with going away. Resist the temptation to take clothes that aren't really you.
- Stick to separates in one or two colors. Mix and match these items to create different outfits.
- Make the most of clothes. If one favorite T-shirt can be a nightgown and a beach cover-up, why pack three items?
- Be weather-wise. Climate is fickle, so pack a warm sweater even for the beach and a cool blouse even for the mountains.
- Accessorize everything. Diversify outfits by packing a selection of scarfs, ties and jewelry.

For women, what shoes to pack is a big decision. For a two-week trip, three pairs, of the following types, should do:

- All-around athletic shoes. Ideal for walking, they're lightweight and comfortable.
- Low wedge "comfort" shoes or leather-strap sandals. Their contour bottoms and padded soles will cushion long walks.
- A low-heeled basic pump, a classic style that rounds out dress wear.

When packing, stuff toes of shoes with scarves, pantyhose or tissue paper to maintain shape, and wrap loosely in plastic bags.

"Keep in mind how new shoes are packed in boxes," says Rich Learn, a women's shoe buyer. "They're stuffed with tissue paper and dowel sticks, packed heel to toe and then wrapped with more tissue paper."

He stresses that packing shoes properly is especially important with today's popular soft-sided luggage; these pieces are very light but offer little protection for a shoe's shape.

Shoes should be packed in the middle of the bag. If they are placed at the bottom of the case, Learn points out, the bag is bottom-heavy and more difficult to carry. And if they are packed on top they will crush the clothing underneath.

For packing, follow these guidelines:

- Lay all clothing and other items on a bed.
- Interfold all heavier items such as slacks, jackets and skirts with another article of clothing or with dry cleaner plastic bags to prevent wrinkles.
- Place heavy items such as blow dryers and toiletries in the middle of the suitcase to prevent clothes from sliding and wrinkling.
- Pack an extra foldable bag. It's perfect for carrying souvenirs and new clothes collected along the way.
- Pack only sample sizes of soap, deodorant and personal items.
- Don't be afraid to unpack. It's the best way to combat creases.

Successful job interview important for right offer

By CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine

A lot of recent college graduates are looking for jobs this summer after having completed their college careers. Other people are looking for a change in careers or location. For both types, a job interview is the stumbling stone to be conquered before getting the job desired.

A successful job interview is one that gets you a job offer. Your goal is to convince the interviewer you are intelligent, honest, competent and likeable. Here's how to be a winner:

Your first impression will probably be made via the job application letter. Take pains in constructing your letter, with careful attention to its tone, style, content and appearance. Be sure to cover:

- Why you are writing. Say you are looking for a job and think this company has one for you. Avoid stilted phrases about wanting to inquire about the potential for your career at this firm.

- Why you are looking for a job. If you are a student, tell when you will graduate and can begin work.

- What you will bring to the company as an employee. Emphasize particular aspects of your background and experience that are most relevant to this company's business and jobs, and what attracts you to this company.

- The response you expect. You want to get an invitation to a job interview, so ask for one.

Enclose a resume. It should go without saying that well-done letters and resumes — those logically constructed, free of grammatical errors and neatly typed or printed — stand out and usually get favorable attention.

Once the company has extended the invitation, prepare for the interview. Interviewers are turned off by candidates who obviously don't know the most elementary facts about the company operations — their products, how they operate, the kinds of jobs they have and what they want in their new employees.

"If they haven't prepared any better for the interview, it raises serious questions about how they would perform on the job," one interviewer told Changing Times magazine.

Next, practice interviewing. Many young applicants "cannot successfully communicate," says Janet Lind, employment manager for General Binding Corp., Northbrook, Ill. "Their eye contact is poor. Their sentence structure and word usage are adolescent, and most lack assertiveness. One coaching session and practice interview would help them get past the personnel department."

Be prepared for a variety of questions and interview techniques. There are interviewers who will purposely create stressful situations to see how you react. If an interviewer's methods are intolerably obnoxious, you wouldn't want to work for the company. Tell the interviewer so and leave.

Following are questions interviewers typically throw at job candidates. Practice answering them until you can handle them easily:

- How would you describe yourself?
- What is your greatest weakness? Your greatest strength?
- Which is more important to you: the money or the type of job?
- What are your career goals?
- How do you define success?
- What have you done that shows initiative?
- Would you rather do a job, design it, evaluate it or manage others who are doing it?
- What do you know about our company, and what can you do for us?
- What makes you think you are qualified to work for this company?

Hay fever problems studied

There is good news for the nation's 20 million hay fever sufferers — scientists are gaining new insights into the chemistry of allergic responses and testing promising alternatives to allergy shots and tests.

Americans will spend more than $663 million on doctors' fees, allergy shots and prescription medicine to relieve hay fever this year, according to an article in the August issue of Science Digest, and that doesn't include money spent on over-the-counter drugs.

Hay fever, or allergic rhinitis, is an inflammation of the respiratory passages and eyes caused chiefly by ragweed pollen, but also by tree and grass pollen, cat dander, fungi and house dust.

In an allergic response, the body releases chemicals such as histamines that cause symptoms. Conventional hay fever medicines block the action of histamines, but other chemical groups also provoke allergic reactions. They include leukotrienes, 100 times more potent than histamines in constricting air passages of asthmatics.

Several pharmaceutical companies now are developing drugs that act on allergy chemicals other than histamines, according to the National Institute of Allergies and Infectious Diseases.

One new hay fever therapy now undergoing clinical trials is a nasal spray that works in the same way as allergy shots to desensitize the immune system.

The spray uses the same pollen extract given in allergy shots, but it acts locally.

"The advantages are that you don't get systemic reactions, people can administer the (medication) themselves, and they're economical," said allergist Robert Reisman of the State University of New York, Buffalo, who developed the spray and reported his findings at this year's meeting of the American Academy of Allergy and Immunology.

Over the past few years, Reisman has conducted double-blind tests, administering the spray in increasing doses every other day for two months before the start of the allergy season. At first there were problems.

"We got the best results with high doses," Reisman said. "Also, the water-based pollen extract made people sneeze."

Reisman was helped by incorporating the procedure by Dr. Patterson's research at Northwestern University Medical Center in Chicago into new pollen pollen extract that are absorbed more slowly than conventional extracts. They allowed Reisman to administer larger doses with fewer side effects.

A new allergy test, more convenient and less painful for the patient than the conventional skin test, has been developed by NMS Pharmaceuticals of San Diego, Calif. It is now undergoing clinical trials.

The simple blood test has proved "as sensitive as the skin test," said clinical pathologist Irene Haydik.

"It appears to be more accurate as well," she said. "In two years of trials, we've had only one false positive."

Haydik announced her findings earlier this year to the American College of Allergists.

The test involves mixing blood in a test tube with allergens, antihistamine antibodies and histamines labeled with radioactive hydrogen. A radioimmunoassay reveals if the subject is allergic.

This test also can determine the severity of an allergy, Susan Gilbert and Joseph Wallace reported in Science Digest, and how much pollen extract the allergy victim could tolerate in treatment before suffering adverse side effects.

Police recover 2 bodies

LAREDO (AP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of two men have been discovered in this South Texas city in what police believe could have resulted from a drug deal that soured.

Police said a 28-year-old man was arrested late Tuesday and held in Webb County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond in connection with at least one of the slayings. The victims, aged 38 and 37, were pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Danny Valdez.

"Someone had it in for them. It looked like they were each shot seven or eight times, but it was hard to tell which were the entering wounds and which were the exiting wounds," police officer Irma Sanchez told the Laredo News.

The victims' bodies were discovered near the Chacon-Creek bridge in South Laredo, Valdez said.

The body of one man, identified as a Mexican citizen, had two bullet holes in the face, one in the chest and another in the head, authorities said.

FCC OKs Midland station

WASHINGTON — Responsive Chord Communications, Ltd., was given permission by the Federal Communications Commission on Tuesday to start building a radio station to operate on FM frequency 106.7 in Midland.

In granting the application, the FCC dismissed applications from Hugh M. McBeath who already owns station KJBC in Midland.

McBeath had argued that to hold that against him would be to punish him for 19 years of service to his listeners, but the administrative law judge in the case said one of the winning applicants promised to sell his interests in KJBC (AM) and KIXS (FM) in Killeen-Temple.

The decision becomes effective in 50 days unless someone challenges it within 30 days.

TDC employees file for OT

AUSTIN — The Texas State Employees Union was scheduled to file a federal lawsuit today seeking to get overtime pay for employees of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Bill Adler, communications coordinator for the union, said the suit would be filed in Houston but details of the case would be revealed at a Capitol news conference.

Generally, Adler said, the suit asks that the agency be forced to comply with the federal Fair Labor Standards Act and to pay for overtime work dating back to Feb. 19 when the U.S. Supreme Court held that the FLSA applies to public employees.

The court ruling was based on a lawsuit involving municipal transit employees in San Antonio.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appeared before a U.S. Senate panel last week urging Congress to enact legislation that would exempt state and local government employees or to give the states more time to comply.

Unless Congress acts the decision is effective Oct. 15.

Father acquitted of assault

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Tarrant County jury has acquitted a man charged with the sexual assault of his 2-year-old daughter.

But Bennie Harold Boyd, 34, still faces a murder charge in the Oct. 31, 1984 beating death of his daughter, Una Yvette Boyd. Her case was considered one of the city's worst instances of child abuse, officials said.

Boyd had earlier confessed to raping and beating his daughter, but he recanted his statement in trial testimony last week.

One of the jurors, Sally Sroczyński, said the defense attorneys presented "just too much evidence" that the little girl's assailant was another man.

Boyd was separated from his wife and was rearing the 2-year-old himself in an apartment he shared with Michael Doyle Gray and Gray's wife.

One of Boyd's lawyers argued that the "bulk of medical testimony" showed the assault of the child occurred when Boyd was at work.

Prosecutors said they had investigated Gray but found no evidence he was responsible for the child's injuries. Gray is currently serving a prison sentence for burglary.

After the jury verdict, Boyd was returned to Tarrant County Jail Tuesday where he is being held in lieu of $150,000 bond.

Defense attorneys portrayed Boyd as a gentle, loving "hippie from the 60s."

When the jury verdict was announced, Boyd's estranged wife, Donna Boyd, who had testified on his behalf, said, "I think my little girl heard my prayers."

Olson gains 5th gold

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — High school swimmer Jeff Olson and speed skater Bonnie Blair have five championships apiece in the sixth National Sports Festival but needed some 11th-hour switches to complete their feats.

Blair even changed teams and moved into men's competition to get her fifth.

As the showcase for developing future Olympians moved into its final six days, Olson and Blair ranked as the individual standouts — and possible names to keep in mind for the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

Replacing a teammate, Olson picked up his fifth win in the 400-meter freestyle relay.

"There was a lot of pressure on me because of the boy that got out," said Olson after he anchored the West 'A' squad to victory Tuesday night. "It hasn't really sunk in yet. I'm just glad it happened."

Olson of Austin, Texas, got a shot at his fifth title when coaches bumped Karl Staggs of San Antonio, Texas, from the relay quartet.

"My teammates are responsible for 80 percent of the win," said Olson. "Our team has grown very close. I wasn't thinking of the medal, just the relay."

Earlier, Olson won the 200-meter butterfly and 200, 400 and 800-meter freestyles. He was awarded four gold medals because the 800 free is not an Olympic event, but his five victories tied the NSF record for men set by gymnast Scott Johnson in 1983.

"We did it. All right," screamed the 18-year-old, who will soon enter his senior year of high school. His total was one short of the six victories by swimmer Sippy Woodhead in 1979 at Colorado Springs, Colo., but the most by a male swimmer.

A 21-year-old junior college student from Champaign, Ill., Blair had an eighth-place Olympic finish in the 500 meters a year ago. She found a creative way to pick up her last gold on Tuesday.

On Monday, she won the women's 500 and 1,500-meter races and added the 1,000 Tuesday before skating a leg on the South's victorious 3,000-meter relay team. Both Tuesday victories came in record times. Then, due to an injury, she took a spot on the men's 5,000-meter relay and helped them set a festival record of 8:10.32.

"I knew I was with three pretty good skaters and we had a really good chance if I just held my own," said Blair of the 5,000-meter relay.

"I never thought I could win five golds," she said after becoming the first speed skater to take home that many. "I thought that the three individual races were within reach, but to win in the relays you're got to get some good breaks."

For Olson and Blair the day was golden, but for the South women's softball team it will be remembered as very, very long — but with a bronze medal to show for their endurance.

After setting an NSF record with a 21-inning 1-0 victory over the West which began Monday night and ended at 2:24 a.m. Tuesday, they went another 21 innings before losing 1-0 to the North — a defeat that denied them a chance at the gold medal.

But in a mere regulation seven-inning game, the South defeated the East 2-0 to grab the bronze.

The three-game marathon of 49 innings — the equivalent of seven regular games — didn't tire the South, said Manager Carol Spinks.

"The girls are enthusiastic, they are having fun and they just like to play," she said.

Ella Vilche, 3-0, hurled the 21-inning North shutout and has not allowed a run in 50 innings. The pitcher from Hayward, Calif., allowed nine hits and struck out 16, giving her an NSF record 50 strikeouts in her three starts and one relief appearance, in which she earned a save.

Also Tuesday: Darrell Pace, the two-time Olympic gold medalist in archery, held off archrival Rick McKinney to capture his third NSF championship in a thrilling battle of long-range accuracy and nerves.

Pace, 29, of Hamilton, Ohio, and the 31-year-old McKinney, of Mesa, Ariz., exchanged the lead throughout the four days of shooting over distances of 30, 50, 70 and 90 meters. Pace finished with 2,592 points, two more than McKinney.

"Once Rick and I are 20 or 25 points ahead of the rest of the competition, it's just him and me," said Pace. "But there is always a threat. It hasn't always been that way and it won't always be that way."

The finish was a repeat of their standings at the 1984 Olympics when McKinney earned a silver medal while Pace was adding the gold to his 1976 Olympic championship.

— Melanie Skillman of Lauderdale, Pa., who won the women's competition with 2,459 points, withstanding a strong charge from Maureen Frank of Arlington Heights, Ill., to finish first by six points.

— Sparked by 16-year-old high school student Hugh Foster, the South edged the West in the men's volleyball final 16-14, 9-15, 15-5, 15-4. The 6-foot-4 Foster had 24 kills, nearly twice as many as any player in the match.

— Third-seeded Tim Donovan of Pittsburgh upset No. 1 Rich Benson of Ogden, Utah, 6-2, 7-6 to win the gold in men's singles. In women's singles, fourth-seeded Nicole Arendt of Princeton, N.J., destroyed third-rated Sharon Fletcher of Spokane, Wash., 6-1, 6-2 for the gold.

"I told myself I had to start off fast and get a big lead," said Arendt, who took second festival medal. "She was a little shaky and I felt I was in control of the whole match."

— The West, 2-1, moved into the baseball finals behind a two-run homer by Daniel Rumsey of San Diego that triggered a six-run eighth inning for a 10-4 victory over the North. The South also is in the finals despite a 10-5 loss Tuesday to the East.

North starting pitcher Jason Kolonski of River Forest, Ill., survived a freak accident in the fourth inning. As he walked up to bat, Kolonski stepped on an aerosol can of pine tar and it sprayed his face. The game was delayed 10 minutes while trainers flushed Kolonski's eyes with water.

He then stepped to the plate and singled on the first pitch to knock in a run.

— Penny Stone of Johnsonville, S.C., scored a game-high seven goals to lead the South to a 21-14 victory over the East.

Holdouts backing down in NFL

By the Associated Press
Three players ended holdouts by signing National Football League contracts on Tuesday while the Indianapolis Colts had one of their players walk out of camp.

Trevor Matich, a first-round draft choice, and placekicker Tony Franklin agreed to terms with the New England Patriots and defensive end George Martin signed with the New York Giants.

Martin accepted a five-year contract 11 days after he was due to report to camp.

"It's a very fair offer in the context of where he was drafted," said Craig Fenech, Matich's agent. The center from Brigham Young was the last player taken in the first round. The contract reportedly is worth between $1.5 million and $1.6 million.

Franklin signed a two-year contract. He became a free agent after the 1984 season, during which he tied for third in scoring in the American Football Conference. He made 22 of 28 field goal attempts and all 42 extra-point kicks last season for 108 points.

The Patriots also cut five rookie free agents to reduce their roster to 103 players.

Martin, a 12-year veteran, ended a two-week holdout by reporting to the Giants training camp. He had remained out of camp in a contract dispute, which a team spokesman said had been settled with a new contract. Details were not disclosed.

Leo Wisniewski, the Colts' starting nose tackle, walked out of camp Tuesday in an apparent contract dispute. The Colts wouldn't discuss the reason for Wisniewski's departure, and Wisniewski was not available for comment. But in a prepared statement, Colts General Manager Jim Irsay said, "Leo Wisniewski has a contractual agreement with the team through the 1986 season and we expect Leo to live up to his contractual agreement."

Irsay said that "appropriate disciplinary action will be taken" against Wisniewski, a 6-foot-1, 257-pound Penn State product in his third year with the Colts.

The Colts also announced the release of rookie free agent linebacker Ed Richardson from Clemons, which reduced the team's roster to 85 players.

In other training camp action: —The Denver Broncos placed free-agent running back Aaron Roberts on the reserve-retired list, a move that trimmed the Broncos' roster to 104 players.

—The Buffalo Bills signed rookie cornerback Ron Pitts of UCLA, a seventh round draft choice and the son of Bills' running back coach Elijah Pitts. He signed a series of one-year contracts. Terms were not disclosed.

—The Miami Dolphins added former United States Football League wide receiver Frank Lockett to their training camp roster and cut wide receiver Roger Dixon, a free agent from Florida, and defensive back Tony Thurmond, a free agent from Boston College.

—The Atlanta Falcons cut defensive tackle Gary Burley, a 10-year veteran of the National Football League, for being overweight and also released rookie running back Cedric Jones of Florida State. The cuts reduced the team's roster to 82 players.

—The San Francisco 49ers cut their roster to 84 players by waiving free agents Brian Moore, Don Morehead and Dalton Reed.

—The Los Angeles Raiders released three players, including ninth-round draft choice Chris Snyder, a defensive back from Penn State. Also cut were free agent safety John Krimm and free agent linebacker Archie Carter.

—The Chicago Bears waived quarterback Rusty Lisch and placed tackle Dan Hampton and wide receiver Dennis McKinnon on a list of those physically unable to perform.

Cooney hangs up his gloves

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerry Cooney, who failed in his only bid for the world heavyweight boxing title and then spent three years trying to get a rematch, has retired from the ring.

Cooney wasn't available for comment Tuesday, but his manager, Dennis Rappaport, said the 28-year-old fighter was frustrated because he couldn't get a rematch with heavyweight champion Larry Holmes.

"Boxing won't be able to survive without him," the unbeaten Holmes said sarcastically in a telephone interview from his office in Easton, Pa. Holmes is still upset by the financial arrangements for the 1982 fight, which he claims favored Cooney, and by what he felt was unfair treatment of him by the news media. Holmes was miffed by the racial overtones surrounding that fight — Cooney emerged as a "great white hope" of almost mythical proportions then.

"He always wanted another shot at Larry, but it has become abundantly clear that Holmes has no intention of giving Gerry a rematch," Rappaport said. "That being the case, Gerry felt he couldn't deceive the public by giving anything less than his best against other opponents."

"Gerry couldn't get up for these other guys," Rappaport said of Cooney, who fought only twice after being stopped by Holmes in the 13th round of their World Boxing Council title fight on June 11, 1982. It was Cooney's only loss as a professional.

Holmes, however, said that if Cooney really wanted a rematch, "he would've come right back to the gym and fought like hell and fought real opponents and I'd have had to fight him again."

As for the 1982 title bout, "I thought it was a pretty good fight," Holmes, now the International Boxing Federation champion, said. "They (his handlers) put him in a position he wasn't quite ready for. It was a money-making situation."

Cooney's career was hampered by injuries and personal problems. Many felt the injuries were merely excuses, and Cooney wound up fighting more with his managers than against foes in the ring.

After losing to Holmes, Cooney was idle for over two years. He returned to action on Sept. 29, 1984, with a fourth-round knockout of Phillip Brown at Anchorage, Alaska. In his final fight, last Dec. 8, he knocked out George Chaplin in the second round at Phoenix, Ariz.

Plans had been underway for him to fight Eddie Gregg sometime in September. "I knew this was coming in my heart," said Victor Valle, Cooney's trainer. "I could tell the way he came to the gym and the way he skipped workouts. But he's better off. I'm glad he's quitting."

GERRY COONEY ... heavyweight retires

Rappaport said Cooney would take a couple of days and spend some time by himself to put some of the pieces together.

Cooney retired with a record of 27-1, including 24 knockouts.

Strange heading for the bank

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Curtis Strange has the opportunity to set an all-time single-season money-winning record this week in the $500,000 Western Open golf tournament.

Strange, the only three-time winner on the PGA Tour this season, leads the money-winning list with $527,581. He needs to finish 30th or better to break Tom Watson's record of $530,808 set in 1980.

"That's something I really want to do," Strange said before a practice round on the 7,097-yard, par-72 Butler National Golf Club course, one of the more difficult courses the touring pros encounter all season.

"I have a chance to set a record. I've put myself in position to do it. Who knows if I'll ever be in this position again? So I want to take advantage of the opportunity while I have it," Strange said.

"To make the most of it, I'm probably going to play a little heavier schedule, a few more tournaments, than I'd originally planned," he said.

He isn't alone in adding tournaments to his schedule.

Tom Kite was a last-minute entry in the 156-man field that will open the chase for a $90,000 first prize on Thursday.

"I need Ryder Cup points," Kite said.

The point list from which the 12-man team will be chosen closes after next week's PGA Championship. Kite is in ninth place, "not a solid position," he said.

And Jack Nicklaus, a distant 22nd, also mentioned the Ryder Cup team in connection with his late decision to play here.

"I just felt like I'd like to play another tournament," he said. "If I win either here or the PGA, or play well in both of them, I'd have a chance to be on the Ryder Cup team," said the former Ryder Cup captain.

Tom Watson, a three-time winner of the Western Open and the defending champion, also needs a couple of good finishes to make the team that will play Europe's best in England this fall. He is 16th with 97,167 points. Mark McCumber, currently holding the 12th and last spot on the team, has 112 points. Points are awarded only for top-10 finishes in Tour events.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Australian Greg Norman, who lost to Watson in a playoff for this title a year ago, also are entered in the Western Open.

Other leading figures include U.S. Open champion Andy North, Mark O'Meara, Craig Stadler, Ben Crenshaw, Larry Nelson, Corey Pavin and Phil Blackmar, who scored his first career victory last week in Hartford.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Pecos eliminates Midland Eastern

PECOS — The Pecos All-Stars got a two-run homer from James Silvas in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat Midland Eastern 3-2.
Pecos' comeback offset a two-run homer by Eastern's J.J. Johnson in the third inning Paul Zarate added a run scoring double. Johnson hit another two-run shot in the fifth inning, but on an appeal play; was called out for not touching first base. James Madrid took the loss for Eastern.
Pecos will now travel to Waco Monday and play a team from the Houston district.

Gooden handcuffs Expos, 2-0

By The Associated Press
"Dwight Gooden is a pitcher who comes along once in a lifetime," Manager Dave Johnson said Tuesday night after Gooden shut out Montreal 2-0 to join Tom Seaver as the only Met pitcher ever to win 10 consecutive games. "He is in total control at all times."

That also was true of Seaver, who goes for No. 300 Sunday when the White Sox play the Yankees in New York. Gooden will be in Chicago pitching against the Cubs in an effort to relegate Seaver to the second line in the Met record book.

Gooden, in hurling a five-hitter for his 10th complete game, struck out 10 batters. It was the seventh time this season and the 22nd time in his two-year career he has reached double figures.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Los Angeles 4, San Francisco 2; St. Louis 11, Chicago 3; Philadelphia 2, Pittsburgh 0; Cincinnati 4, Houston 1; and San Diego 5, Atlanta 4 in 12 innings.

Gooden, 16-3, boosted his major-league-leading strikeout total to 173 and lowered his earned-run average to 1.65, also tops in the majors. And, while his reputation is that of a power pitcher, Gooden proved once again that he can mix it up with the best of them.

NL Roundup

Cardinals 11, Cubs 3
Willie McGee, the league's leading hitter, had five hits, including a homer and a double, to improve his average to .345, but it didn't seem to phase him at all.
Jack Clark hit his 20th homer and drove in four runs to support Kurt Kepshire, 8-6, as St. Louis collected its eighth victory in nine games. Major-league leader Vince Coleman stole his 70th base and McGee his 39th for the Cardinals. Coleman needs just two more steals to tie Juan Samuel's modern-day rookie record, set last year by the Phillies' second baseman.

Dodgers 4, Giants 2
Calling it his "quota for the year," Steve Sax took in stride his first home run of the season, even though it broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the ninth and allowed Los Angeles to win for the 16th time in its last 20 games. The victory reduced the Dodgers' Aug. 6 number to two against San Diego and one against Cincinnati.

The Dodgers got another strong performance from Fernando Valenzuela, who allowed six hits in seven innings. Tom Niedenfuer, 5-3, picked up the win in relief.
Los Angeles tied the game in the seventh on Candy Maldonado's fourth homer.

Padres 5, Braves 4
San Diego's Jerry Royster said his game-winning sacrifice fly against his former teammates was nothing personal, just business — important business. The Padres needed the victory to stay close to the Dodgers.

The victory was just the second for San Diego in its last nine games.

The 12th-inning sacrifice fly by Royster scored Tim Flannery with the winning run. Flannery led off the inning with a single off Rick Camp, 2-5, the fifth Atlanta pitcher. A single by Tony Gwynn sent Flannery to third, and he scored one out later on Royster's fly to left field.

Terry Harper hit his 13th home run for Atlanta.

Reds 4, Astros 1
No one was happier than Cincinnati's Mario Soto when Dave Parker and Dave Concepcion had run-scoring singles in the first inning off Houston's Nolan Ryan.

Soto, 10-11, scattered seven hits to win his second game in addition to two no-decisions after snapping a career-high eight-game losing streak. Soto struck out nine in pitching his seventh complete game.

Ryan, 8-9, and winless since June 17, struck out seven in six innings to raise his all-time leading total to 4,019.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose had one hit and needs 27 more to pass the 4,191 of Ty Cobb.

Phillies 2, Pirates 0
Philadelphia pitcher Kevin Gross, saying he's getting his stroke back, hit a two-run double in the fourth inning and combined with Don Carman and Kent Tekulve on a seven-hit shutout to extend Pittsburgh's losing streak to seven games.

'Tom Terrific' wins number 299 versus Boston

By The Associated Press
Tom Seaver has won 198 of his 299 pitching victories in a New York uniform. He will try to win No. 300 in a New York ballpark.

The 40-year-old Seaver will try to become the 17th pitcher in major-league history to win 300 games on Sunday when he faces the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium, just a few miles from Shea Stadium where he spent 11½ years with the New York Mets.

"People have asked me about No. 300 since I walked into spring training," Seaver said after scattering eight hits in nine innings Tuesday night and notching No. 299 when the Chicago White Sox pushed across three runs in the top of the 10th and downed the Boston Red Sox 7-5. "Now I'm very happy to be here, on the verge of it. I hope it will be Sunday in New York. It took me two games to win 299, so I hope it only takes one to get 300."

In other games, Oakland nipped California 5-4 in 10 innings; the Yankees split a double-header with Cleveland, winning 8-5 and losing 3-2; Minnesota clobbered Seattle 12-4; and Milwaukee trimmed Texas 6-3.

The White Sox staked Seaver to a 4-0 lead on home runs by Luis Salazar and Carlton Fisk — his career-high 27th, tops in the majors. Solo homers by Wade Boggs and Marty Barrett helped Boston rally and the Red Sox made it 4-4 when Jim Rice singled home an unearned run in the seventh.

Tim Hulett started the Chicago 10th with a single off Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd and took second when center fielder Steve Lyons bobbled the ball for an error. Julio Cruz ran for Hulett, took third as Ozzie Guillen beat out a bunt and scored the tie-breaking run on Salazar's single. Bryan Little singled to score Guillen and Greg Walker drove in Salazar with a sacrifice fly.

AL Roundup

Orioles 4, Blue Jays 3
Lee Lacy hit a sacrifice fly off Dennis Lamp on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the 10th inning after the Orioles loaded the bases against Gary Lavelle on a one-out single by Floyd Rayford and walks to Al Pardo and Alan Wiggins, the 10th and 11th walks issued by Toronto pitchers.

Toronto went ahead 3-2 in the top of the ninth on a throwing error by Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken. Baltimore tied it in the bottom of the ninth on Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly after Bill Caudill walked two batters and Jim Acker walked another. Jeff Burroughs homered for Toronto's first two runs.

Tigers 11, Royals 7
Kirk Gibson went 4-for-4 and

TOM SEAVER
...shooting for 300 Sunday

drove in two runs, enabling Detroit to overcome some shaky pitching by Jack Morris and Willie Hernandez.

Morris, 12-6, allowed four runs and nine hits in six innings, including solo homers to Frank White and Steve Balboni. It was the fifth homer in the last six games for Balboni, who extended his hitting streak to 11 games.

A's 5, Angels 4
Mike Davis singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning to hand

California its fifth consecutive setback.

Dave Kingman singled with one out off California relief ace Donnie Moore. Steve Kiefer also singled and Davis hit Moore's 3-2 pitch into the right-field corner. However, the Angels maintained their 2½-game lead over Kansas City in the AL West. Third-place Oakland is four games out.

The A's took a 4-0 lead in the third inning on RBI singles by Dwayne Murphy and Bruce Bochte. Kingman's sacrifice fly and a wild pitch by Mike Witt.

Yankees 8-2, Indians 5-3
Ramon Romero, who had a 6.08 earned run average, held New York to four hits in 7 2-3 innings of the nightcap for his first major-league victory and pinch-hitter Chris Bando, batting .095, hit a two-run single in the seventh inning off Yankee relief ace Dave Righetti.

The Indians trailed 1-0 on the first of Rickey Henderson's two homers before loading the bases with two out in the seventh against starter Bob Shirley on singles by Benny Ayala and Joe Carter and a walk to Andre Thornton. Bando's bloop single drove in the tying and lead runs and Julio Franco followed with an RBI single to make it 3-1.

The Indians led the opener 3-1 entering the seventh. But with two out, Don Mattingly's single chased Neal Heaton and Rich Thompson

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WHAT HAVE THOSE FROGS BEEN EATING TO MAKE SOUNDS LIKE THAT?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 1, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when your mind and reason is apt to conflict with your emotions, bringing a considerable amount of confusion unless you stay poised and in control of situations.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't permit others to influence you where important decisions are concerned. Show that you have good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your ideas may be different from those of a higher-up, but don't jump to any conclusions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you keep any promises you have made and don't chase after new interests now. Evening is fine for cleaning house.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Your intuition may not be working properly today so be sure to use your best judgment.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Some morning agreement reached with an outside partner can later turn into a quarrel unless you use tact.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sep. 22) Labor starts off well early, but later there can be delays, so be patient instead of swiftly losing your temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Count the cost well before you get into amusements that could prove to be beyond your ken. Show that you are thoughtful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The situation at home could get really bothersome if you do not use tact with close ties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There may be pressures all around you, but try to maintain poise and charm others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go over your holdings precisely and know what your true position is and plan the future more intelligently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to make drastic changes because you feel discontented but should maintain the status quo instead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may feel restricted and ready to jump out of your gourd, but it is the time to remain calm, cool and collected.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born trouble shooter, so be sure to slant the education along such lines as government work or police work and much success can be realized. Teach to follow every rule and regulation that applies to him or her, but don't be surprised if your progeny adds a new angle.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Strike will put damper on milestones

By The Associated Press
Don Sutton has played on good teams and bad ones, has opposed batters in the American League and the National League and has steadily marched toward a plateau that only 16 pitchers have ever reached - 300 victories.

season.
'I'd have to re-evaluate the whole thing before I decided whether or not to play next year,' Sutton said. 'It's as simple as that.'

Musial's National League hit mark of 3,630. The next day, the players went on strike, and Rose had to wait until the season resumed on Aug. 10 to break the record.

Chicago White Sox beat Boston 7-5 in 10 innings, while Niekro, of the New York Yankees, has won 294 games.
