Construction tops July '84 mark

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

The city of Big Spring collected almost twice as much in building permit fees in July than a year ago, according to municipal records. Permits granted include two for grocery stores and two for apartments. It issued 37 permits and collected $1,120.50 in fees in July, compared to 23 permits and collections of $650 in July 1984. Estimated construction costs for those buildings — $414,753 — also is almost double that in July 1984, when costs were estimated at $189,280.

Figures show the city lagging, however, in all three categories to date this year compared to totals at the end of July 1984.

Through July, the city issued 184 permits and collected $6,327 in fees for construction estimated at $2.548 million. Through the same period in 1984, the city had issued 265 permits and collected $16,060 in fees for $9.780 million in construction costs.

Included were two permits for grocery stores. Furr's Inc. of Lubbock was granted a permit to renovate the old Gibson's building at 2301 Scurry into a discount grocery store. Renovation costs are estimated at $65,000.

In addition, Country Produce Inc. was issued a permit for a wholesale produce store at 1208 W. Third. The pre-engineered building, to be constructed by Chaparral Contractors, will cost about $81,000. The city also granted two permits for apartment buildings with an estimated construction cost of $80,000 to Roy Hester and D.D. Johnston. They will build four two-bedroom apartments at 1502, 1504, 1506 and 1508 Goliad.

The city issued two mobile home permits to Dick Lauderdale of 1313 Mobile and to Manuel Saenz of 1307 Mobile.

Eight permits were granted for additions and alterations that would not change the number of housing units for total construction costs of $40,000.

They include permits granted to Loy Loudamy of 1302 Baylor for a laundry room addition, estimated at $12,000; Craig Olson of 1307 Stanford for interior repairs and alterations; Mr. and Mrs. Will Mendoza of 406 N.W. 11th for a dining room addition, $3,000; and Louise Smith of 623 Caylor for a bathroom addition, $4,000.

Also granted permits were Jesus DeLeon of 307 N.W. 11th for bedrooms and a den, $10,000.

Demo sweeps election

DALLAS (AP) — Democrat Jim Chapman won a narrow victory Saturday in a special runoff election in the 1st Congressional District, thwarting GOP newcomer Edd Hargett's bid to become the district's first Republican congressman in 114 years.

Chapman received 52,670 votes, or 50.9 percent, to Hargett's 50,737 votes, or 49.1 percent, according to final results from the district's 20 counties as compiled by the Secretary of State's office.

The Northeast Texas district historically has been "yellow dog Democrat" territory, and Republican leaders viewed the race as a test to determine true GOP strength in rural Texas.

"The Republican Party fired its best volley, a $1.5 million volley, and they came up short. This wasn't just the Republican Party of Texas, it was Ronald Reagan, George Bush, all of them," a jubilant Chapman said.

State officials said they hoped a legal squabble over the election date would not discourage voters from casting their ballots.

GOP trio scrambles for $ supporters

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Republican candidates for governor — six months from the filing deadline and nine months from the GOP primary — are telephoning around Texas in a scramble for supporters.

But don't sit around waiting for the phone to jingle. The phone calls are going to millionaires.

The calls are being placed by former Gov. Bill Clements of Dallas, U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt and former U.S. Rep. Kent

“Sure, there's loyalty. My loyalty in this situation is to do what is best for the state.”

Tom Loeffler, Representative

Hance of Lubbock. All are trying to gain an organizational advantage over the other. Addition of even one name to the list can have important financial implications. The new supporter not only has money, but, presumably, has lots of friends with money.

And, not coincidentally, the supporter is likely to be warm to the idea of putting Democratic Gov. Mark White out to the political pasture.

Campaign aides to Hance and Loeffler — whose official campaign declarations are just around the corner — have been on the phone for weeks.

Clements, who announced his political comeback less than 10 days ago, is busily contacting former supporters to see if they are still with him.

Loeffler, in a phone interview, quickly ticks off the names of other prominent Texans. "I expect every one on my team are former Clements supporters," he observes.

"Sure, there's loyalty," says the prominent South Texas rancher whose wife, Anne, is a former ambassador to Great Britain. "My loyalty in this situation is to do what is best for the state."

Relatives identify victims' remains

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Relatives carrying dental charts, photographs and other precious clues to the identities of loved ones arrived Saturday to help officials sorting the remains of 131 people killed in the fiery crash of a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet that plunged to the ground in a storm.

Twenty-eight passengers and three flight attendants, among 162 people aboard Flight 191, survived, some with just scratches and bruises. Most survivors had been seated in the back of the wide-bodied Lockheed L-1011 TriStar when it nose-dived to earth near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, officials said.

said Dr. James Atkins, an emergency room physician at Parkland Memorial Hospital and among the first doctors on the scene. A boy about a year old was taken to a hospital but died later.

Officials said 121 bodies and other human remains, covered with heavy black plastic, were taken in refrigerator trucks Saturday to the forensic lab in downtown Dallas, officials said. Only 16 had been identified by Saturday night. One was identified through a bracelet, and five through driver's license photographs, said Dr. Charles Petty, Dallas County

"I'm amazed anyone survived."

Budget booster

President Reagan credits Congress on deficit-reduction plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan credited Congress on Saturday for making a good-faith effort to trim the deficit in its 1986 budget plan, but said advocates of new taxes to reduce federal red ink are "flat out wrong."

Congress left town after approving a $967.6 billion spending blueprint for fiscal 1986 that will hardly put a dent in the deficit, expected to reach $171.9 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

"The budget resolution finally agreed to by the Congress this week represents a good-faith beginning to tackle the deficit the right way — by reducing what government can spend rather than simply taking more of what you earn so government can keep spending levels high," Reagan said in his weekly five-minute radio address.

"We still face a great challenge in reducing the deficit, but those who insist that spending cannot be cut any further, and that we must increase your taxes to reduce the deficit, are flat out wrong," the president said.

Reagan said he intends to keep a close watch on Congress as it passes appropriation measures this fall to make sure lawmakers avoid "excessive spending levels." And he repeated his warning that spending cuts are the solution to the deficit, not tax increases.

"Let's all recognize that spending has not been cut to the bone, and that a tax increase would only reduce our incentives to work, save and invest, and ultimately weaken our economy and make deficits worse," Reagan said.

"Sometimes it's difficult to remember, you didn't send us to Washington to feed the alligators, you sent us to drain the swamp. We didn't come to raise your taxes, but to lower them," the president said.

After weeks of wrangling, and despite Reagan's refusal to accept Senate Republican plans for key deficit-cutting measures, Congress passed a compromise 1986 budget plan

Approved Compromised $967.6 Billion 1986 Budget

A $55 billion deficit reduction package, leaving a $172 billion deficit in 1986

The plan's $276.5 billion deficit reduction over three years will leave a deficit of more than $112 billion in 1988

Major items of the House-Senate approved Budget:

-  Shuns any tax increase
-  Safeguards the cost-of-living increases in Social Security
-  Enables Pentagon budget growth with inflation
-  Freeze on Medicare payments to hospitals and doctors
-  A 15% cut for Amtrak and Mass Transit programs last week that claims deficit reductions around $55 billion next year and nearly $280 billion over three years.

While the Senate says the spending plan contains a $55.5 billion deficit-reduction package for next year, the House put savings at $57.4 billion. Three-year savings are $276.2 billion by the Senate's reckoning and $279.6 according to House figures.

Even so, key lawmakers on both sides of Capitol Hill have expressed skepticism that such savings will be achieved. Many have said that if deficits are to be cut significantly in the future, tax increases and cuts in benefit programs like Social Security are likely.

The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office estimated savings for next year at just $39 billion.

Chances for larger reductions were lost when the president rejected tax increases offered by members of his own party in the Senate, and when both House Democrats and Republicans refused to make any changes in cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients.

In the Democrats' response to Reagan's radio address, Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., criticized the president for cutting back on programs to help the elderly.

Wyden noted that when Reagan, 74, left Bethesda Naval Hospital July 21 after undergoing cancer surgery, he wisely advised people to see their doctors early if they suspected trouble.

"You said, 'Just tell them Dr. Reagan sent you,'" Wyden said, adding: "Well, Dr. Reagan, millions of seniors cannot afford a preventive checkup and Medicare will not pay for one."

Addressing Reagan, he said: "More than 10 million Americans your age or older are trying to get by on $10,000 a year or less. They cannot afford your prescription."

Forecast

Heavy rains deluged parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Iowa on Saturday and overnight downpours washed out railroad tracks and blew over small airplanes in Montana.

The torrential rains fell across portions of central and eastern Montana, dumping 5.18 inches of rain on Hinsdale in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. EDT, 3.59 inches near Lewistown and 2.95 inches at Glasgow, the National Weather Service said.

Two 50-foot sections of Burlington Northern railroad tracks were washed out just west of Hinsdale, and officials hoped that repairs could be completed by Saturday night, Valley County Sheriff Daniel Taylor said. Trains were backed up at Glasgow and Havre, he said.

Three small airplanes were blown upside down and destroyed at Glasgow International Airport, and a hangar and three other planes inside also were damaged, he added.

The storms caused an estimated $1 million in damages, but no injuries were reported, Taylor said.

In the Missouri Valley, thunderstorms dumped 3.1 inches of rain in just two hours at Dubois, Neb. Topeka, Kan., received 1.44 inches in one hour and Sioux City, Iowa, 0.56 inch.

A flood warning was in effect for the Little Blue River in south central Nebraska, where small-stream flooding was reported Saturday morning. The floods prompted evacuations of residents of low-lying areas in Deshler, Neb., about five miles south of the Little Blue.

"The north part of town is completely isolated from the south part of town," Deshler Mayor Harold Stuve said. "If there was a fire in the south part of town, there would be no way to get to it."

In the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. EDT, 6.8 inches of rain was recorded near Pauline, Neb., 6.1 inches at Lawrence, Neb., 3.8 inches at Deshler, about 3.5 inches at Cuba, Kan., and Thompson, Neb.

Up to a foot of standing water was reported on some roads in northeast Florida, where rainfall measured 6.64 inches at Fruit Cove, 4.93 inches at Mandarin, and 3.9 at Jacksonville Beach.

Meanwhile, record lows for the date were set in five cities: Charlotte, N.C., 60 degrees; 3 degrees colder than the mark set 65 years ago; Greensboro, N.C., 55, breaking the 1965 mark of 59; Raleigh-Durham, N.C., 58 degrees, (62 in 1976); Columbia, S.C., 64 degrees (65, 1922), and Miami, 69 (71, 1945).

The 85 degrees at Moffett Naval Air Station, Calif., and 78 in San Francisco broke record highs for the date of 83 set in 1969 and 73 in 1938, respectively.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 56 degrees at Arcata, Calif., to 102 degrees at Medicine Lodge, Kan., and Wichita Falls, Texas.

The morning low for the nation was 33 degrees at Truckee, Calif. The forecast for Sunday called for showers and thunderstorms over the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and scattered over Florida, the Gulf coast, the east-central and southern Plains, the northern and western Great Lakes and the southern Rockies. Rain was expected for portions of the northern Plains and the northern Pacific coast.

Most of the nation should have highs in the 70s and 80s. Readings in the 90s were forecast from the lower Mississippi Valley across the southern Plains, parts of the central and southern Rockies to interior sections of California. Afternoon temperatures were expected to climb above 100 degrees over the desert Southwest and portions of Texas.

medical examiner, who said at 8 p.m. that the work had ended for the night.

"We may get to the point where there will be some bodies that will never be identified," Petty said. In one case, he said, his office had been given a description of a wedding ring and had found it on a hand that was severed.

At the crash site, on the prairie land between Dallas and Fort Worth, workers wearing rubber gloves sifted debris as they searched for human remains thought to be buried in the mud. Other workers used a large crane to lift pieces of the jet.

More than 160 family members arrived at the airport Saturday from Los Angeles, Atlanta and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where the flight to Los Angeles originated. They were ushered into a private room, said Delta spokesman Matt Guilfoyle.

Delta is flying and paying expenses for all family members and has rounded up marketing representatives and assigned one to every victim family, said Clint

G. Swazea, a Delta assistant vice president in Atlanta.

Scars, hair, clothes, photographs and other information would be used to help identify bodies. Petty "wants to leave the viewing of remains as the last option," Guilfoyle said.

"The next of kin are going about the grim business of identifying their loved ones," said Gordon Barrington, Delta public affairs manager.

Flight 191 was making its final approach to the airport during a heavy storm Friday when it went down near the airport's northern boundary and exploded shortly after 6 p.m. The plane bounced across the highway and a field, clipped one or two water tanks and skidded across tarmac, witnesses said. A man in a car hit by the plane was decapitated on Texas 114, witnesses said.

The cause of the crash was not known, but the flight and cockpit recorders, which keep information about the flight, were recovered, officials said.

VA Hospital film wins award

A Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center production, "The Patient is Blind," recently won a national award at the United States Film Festival, the world's largest industrial film contest.

The film now in use at 25 Veterans Administration Medical Centers.

Winning over 880 other entries, the 17-minute video tape presentation was given an award for creative excellence in the field of medicine and health.

It was written, staged and filmed at the hospital. Marquez Brothers TV and Arcand Electric assisted in filming the original production.

The final filming was done by Texas Tech Medical School's Medical Media Department.

The film was conceived by John Webb who started work on the production several years ago at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Houston.

Mark Miller wrote the original script, Don Wilson served as director, Dick Fields, KBYG radio station president, was narrator, and Webb was overall coordinator and editor.

Employees at the hospital and several blind patients from the community served as the cast.

Spy trial begins Monday

ORFOLK, Va. — Trial begins Monday for the first of four alleged members of a family-based spy ring accused of selling Navy secrets to the Soviet Union in an espionage case that has been called the Navy's worst ever.

The case has led to orders for tightened security throughout the armed services.

Selection of a jury is to begin Monday morning for the trial on seven espionage counts of Arthur James Walker, 50, of Virginia Beach. Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert J. Seidel said the trial should last about a week.

Walker, a defense contractor engineer, is a retired Navy lieutenant commander and the older brother of the spy ring's alleged mastermind, retired Navy Chief Warrant Officer John A. Walker Jr. of Norfolk.

Farm foreclosure protest

RUTLAND, Mass. (AP) — Hundreds of townsfolk in this community at the center of Massachusetts have signed a petition protesting the proposed sale of one of the state's largest unbroken farm fields to a condominium developer.

To preserve the scene of gently rolling hay fields where deer and Canada geese roam an hour west of Boston, the town of nearly 5,000 residents must decide whether it can match the developer's $1.3 million offer within a month.

"This is the jewel in the center of the state," said Paul C. Lampson, 41, who lives on five acres across from the 130-acre farm owned by brothers Clifford, Richard and Wilbert Watt. A plaque near the site marks it as the state's geographic center.

Folk music festival

NEWPORT, R.I. — Thousands of folk music devotees returned to the days of tie-dyeing and anti-establishment activism Saturday at the opening of the revived Newport Folk Festival.

The lawn of Fort Adams State Park was covered with blankets, beach chairs and enthusiastic fans who came to Newport 16 years after the last fest.

Most were old enough to recall the glory days of folk music and the festival, but the crowd also was sprinkled with young children and representatives of a generation weaned on amplified rock music.

This is the crash site where two Burlington-Northern freight trains collided near Westminster, Colo., Friday night. Five crew members are known dead in the crash.

Head-on collision

Five crewmen killed in freight train wreck

WESTMINSTER, Colo. (AP) — Two Burlington Northern freight trains collided head-on Friday, touching off an explosion and fire that enveloped the area in thick, black smoke. Five crewmen were dead, officials said.

At least a dozen cars derailed in the crash, which occurred about 7:30 p.m. on tracks below the Boulder Turnpike, authorities said. Heat from the flames caused one lane of the overpass to collapse and forced the closing of the four-lane highway, U.S. 36, between Denver and Colorado.

Thick, oily smoke from burning diesel fuel could be seen in Fort Collins, 60 miles away.

The collision was the fourth fatal accident involving Burlington Northern trains in less than 16 months.

"Apparently we have five fatalities," Burlington Northern spokesman Bill Joplin said.

Three men were dead and two others were missing more than three hours after the accident, said West Adams Fire Chief David McCarty.

Three crew members were in the locomotive of the northbound train, and two were in the southbound train, officials said.

No bodies had been removed from the wreckage as of 10:30 p.m. because of the flames and intense heat, authorities said.

Neither train was carrying hazardous materials, according to Colorado State Patrol Capt. John Callahan.

A Burlington Northern conductor, who asked not to be identified, said one train was carrying paper and lumber and the other a load of rocks.

The collision occurred within a few hundred feet of some homes in the sparsely populated area northwest of Denver. Officials had planned to evacuate residents within a half-mile radius but called off the evacuation after firefighters gained control of the blaze.

Several brush fires also were sparked by the blaze. "It looked like napalm going up," said Gary Mortensen, a nearby resident who said he witnessed the crash. "After it happened, I saw a bunch of cars stacked up under the bridge."

"Remarkably there were no accidents on the turnpike," said Westminster police spokesman Steve McDonald. "The viaduct looks like it just melted down. The heat was so intense it basically collapsed."

Investigators from Burlington Northern and the National Transportation Safety Board were at the scene Friday night, but there was no word on what caused the collision.

"All I can say at this point is that both trains were on the same track," Joplin said. "I can't speculate on why that happened. We'll have to do quite a bit of investigation."

Prior to the crash, the most recent fatal collision involving Burlington Northern trains occurred June 14, 1984. Two trains collided head-on near Motley, Minn., killing crewmen and causing an estimated $3.5 million in damage.

On April 22, 1984, a speeding 115-car coal train slammed into the rear of another freight north of Newcastle, Wyo., killing two crew members.

That wreck came only nine days after two Burlington Northern freight trains crashed head-on in Wiggins, Colo. The April 13, 1984, accident killed five Burlington Northern workers.

Cuba hears 'free' speech

HAVANA — Cubans got a rare opportunity this past week to hear viewpoints at odds with President Fidel Castro's as hundreds of Latin Americans — Marxists and non-Marxists — discussed solutions to the region's huge foreign debts.

A range of political opinion was heard at the televised proceedings of the conference that Castro said would be "pluralistic."

But during the debates, no one was heard saying a kind word about the United States or the International Monetary Fund, or an unkind word about Cuba.

Pope blasts A-bomb

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican daily "L'Osservatore Romano" said Saturday that the dropping of an atom bomb on Hiroshima 40 years ago represented a "trauma of conscience, a moral blow."

It said that since the U.S. bombing of the Japanese city on Aug. 6, 1945, "man has been confronted with the possibility of a war capable of threatening all of human existence."

The newspaper quoted a resolution adopted at the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 that said, "Any act of war that aims at the destruction of entire cities ... is a crime against God and against humanity itself."

Hiroshima was the first target of an atomic bomb, which killed up to 140,000 people. Three days later, an atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, killing as many as 70,000 people, and on Aug. 14 Japan surrendered, ending World War II.

Guerrillas offer help

KAMPALA, Uganda — Emboldened by the recent military coup, several guerrilla leaders emerged from the bush Saturday and told about 2,000 people at a rally that they would work with the new government under certain conditions.

Warrent Officer John White Jagwe, accompanied by eight other leaders of the Federal Democratic Movement, said the group had declared a 30-day, unilateral cease-fire to give Uganda's ruling Military Council time to form a broad-based coalition government.

"We are interested in peace, harmony and development in Uganda," Jagwe said. "We are willing to stop fighting as soon as the government meets our demands."

ABC newsman kidnapped

HMEIDAN
A spokeswoman for the U.S. television network said four men with rifles seized the ABC executive, Shakib Hmeidan, 50, a Lebanese, while he was on his way to Beirut airport in a chauffeur-driven car.

She said he was going to catch a flight to the United States for a routine medical check-up.

The men ordered Hmeidan out of the car into their blue Peugeot sedan at gunpoint, took the keys and warned the driver not to follow.

The spokeswoman, who insisted on anonymity, said ABC contacted Moslem militia leaders in west Beirut trying to locate Hmeidan, a network employee for 17 years. Hours later, there was no clue who kidnapped him or why.

Cheaper dollar battles red ink

Our dollar's weakening performance in recent weeks hasn't exactly satisfied hard-to-please economists. After hearing so much about a strong dollar's harmful effects to the economy, particularly in making American goods more expensive overseas, one might think that only American tourists abroad would consider bad news a 14 percent decline since June in the dollar's value against other currencies.

Millions of American tourists are finding their European vacations more expensive than originally planned. But economists, who tend to be more comfortable writing about bad economic news, are also worried and for some good reasons.

This summer's weaker dollar is seen as more a sign of less confidence in the economy and the ability of President Reagan and Congress to enact a credible deficit-reduction spending plan than in an "overvalued" dollar declining to realistic levels.

If dollar values decline too fast, there is a chance of renewed inflation and higher interest rates that can choke off private investment and shut down the housing market. Cheaper dollars also attract less foreign money investment, which has been paying for much of the financing of the country's $200-billion-a-year deficits.

Another reason for skepticism about the declining dollar is that the relationship between currency exchange rates and the price of goods is far from exact, especially with manufactured and luxury items. For example, the price of imported automobiles has not decreased during the last five years of the strong dollar, partly because of voluntary import restraints that created a seller's market. And business also tends to use exchange rates as an excuse to raise rather than lower prices.

Prices to respond better with commodity items, so a steady and continuing dollar depreciation should help American farmers and chemical companies sell more products overseas. The cheaper dollar, if interest rates stay down, also will help Third World countries repay their loans to American banks.

But the bottom line for the dollar is that it will have to stay cheap for some time to have much of a beneficial impact. The budget makers on Capitol Hill are not helping matters with their inability to get rid of red ink.

The dog days of journalism

It is truly amazing how agitated journalists can get about matters of no importance whatsoever. I would wager a week's pay that not one American in a thousand could identify the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, much less muster any interest in whether it was scrupulously observed in all its particulars during President Reagan's surgery. Yet for a good 48 hours after the operation, the nation's airwaves and news columns were afire with the subject.

This confirms my suspicion that God created July and August only to let journalists make fools of themselves. Hardly anything happens during the hottest weeks of the year, but newspapers have to be published and news programs have to be broadcast. So anything that can remotely pass for news gets dragged into service.

Chapman's First Law of Journalism is that the amount of attention devoted to a subject is inversely proportional to its substantive content. Ask a group of journalists to expound on the economic merits of Reagan's proposed changes in the tax treatment of capital depreciation, and you'll get a long, awkward silence. Ask them to comment on how the changes would affect Republican chances of carrying Pennsylvania in 1988, though, and it will be a week before they shut up.

The "transfer of authority" issue is a classic midsummer non-story. It wouldn't have materialized except that the news media needed something to kill time until the biopsy report, the real story, was issued on Monday.

Since he would be incapacitated for a few hours by the operation, Reagan informed Congress by letter that during that time his vice president would assume the powers and responsibilities of the president. This is what the 25th Amendment requires when the president is unable to discharge his duties.

Simple enough. But wait. Reagan's letter, for whatever reason, expressed a passing about that "the drafters of this amendment intended its application to situations such as" this one. Nonetheless, it made absolutely clear — listen up, Gorbachev — that George Bush would be in charge until the president was up to being presidential again.

Pretty thin news material, I would have thought. No constitutional crisis here. Worth a couple of paragraphs on page six, maybe. But I underestimated the resourcefulness of my compatriots.

First, there was the press conference at which presidential spokesman Larry Speakes released the full text of the letter. That was not good enough for Sam Donaldson and the other assembled zealots, who demanded that Speakes perform the ritual of actually reading the letter out loud.

His refusal was greeted with furious indignation, as if expecting the reporters to read it themselves were a sinister attempt to deceive the American people. (Given the literacy of some journalists, it may have been.) Bedlam ensued. Before the meeting was over, Speakes was comparing it to the infamous Amal press conference in Beirut, which seemed a little unfair to Amal.

Despite the range of opinion, all agreed that this matter deserved solemn contemplation. If they were like me, a lot of viewers and readers dozed off unconvinced.

A ban on social promotion

Despite the upheaval it has caused, I'm liking House Bill 72 more and more.

House Bill 72 on education reform is grandly titled the Educational Opportunity Act of 1984, and in many respects it's just that. One gem that shines from HB 72 is the ban on social promotions.

No longer will little Johnny get pushed through the grades even though he doesn't pass muster.

It's never been fair to move children — who cannot or will not learn — to higher grades along with kids who can and will apply themselves in the classroom. That kind of approach to education sends a message to the youngster that in the final analysis it really doesn't matter whether you get the right stuff or not. You'll go on to something better regardless.

Typically, the education system promoted the younger failures because there simply was no other way to handle them. The child is too young to work, too young to be expelled and so the system moves him along. The end result is either an eventual dropout or a high school graduate who doesn't possess fundamental skills, one who joins the ranks of the functional illiterates.

That's not the message we want to send school children. If they get the impression that substandard work is acceptable then they'll carry that thought into adult life, into the workforce, family life and social interaction.

Then, the lessons of life will come that much harder.

We are unfair to our children to promote failure. And we are unfair to our teachers to force them to comply with that system.

That's why House Bill 72 is good. It prohibits districts from promoting students who fail to meet academic requirements.

The State Board of Education just settled on a system of alternatives for students who do not meet educational requirements, but who are not eligible for special education.

- Alternatives to social promotion include:
- holding a student in the grade,
 - tutoring,
 - special summer programs,
 - placement at the next grade level with special remedial courses
 - or, intensive individualized progress programs or classes.

Also, districts can establish special remedial programs which will give students the instruction they need to enable them to return to the regular school program. In this program, the student is given a special report card that reflects this below-standard level.

The new system is not without drawbacks. For one thing, it will cost money. For another, it sets apart those children who are not learning enough to pass. But it's a good plan. It puts education back into perspective and reminds us that, after all, achievement matters.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Aug. 4, the 216th day of 1985. There are 149 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Aug. 4, 1944, Nazi police raided the "secret annex" of a house in Amsterdam and arrested eight people — including 14-year-old Anne Frank. A diary kept by Anne while hiding gained international fame years after her death in a concentration camp.

On this date:
In 1790, a U.S. naval task force — known as the Revenue Cutter Service — was formed. It would later become the Coast Guard.
In 1830, plans for the city of Chicago were laid out.

In 1892, Sunday school teacher Lizzie Borden was arrested in Fall River, Mass., and charged with the hatchet murders of her father and stepmother. She was later found innocent.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Germany and the U.S. proclaimed its neutrality during World War I.

Insight

By JIM DAVIS
AUSTIN — It's that time again — once again earlier than ever before — to point out that political campaigns seem to be getting under way earlier than ever before.

The next statewide election in Texas (except for the vote on constitutional amendments in November) won't be held until May 3, 1986. But you wouldn't know that from the political activity.

Campaigns have been developing earlier and earlier every two years, threatening at some future time to merge into one long, dull event.

In past years, it usually has been the Democrats who started the political fights early. And a couple of little-known Democrats already have offered themselves as challengers for their party's top incumbents. But most of the early activity this time is on the Republican side of the political fence.

U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, in effect, began campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor last April, building an organization and collecting a $1 million-plus campaign chest. He will make his candidacy official in late August or early September, but that announcement will be as surprising as a grandmother saying she is not a virgin.

Former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, in effect, has been campaigning since he switched from the Democrats to the Republicans last May. He also has withheld an official announcement, opting instead for a much-repeated "95 percent-certain-that-I'll-run" pitch.

Former Gov. Bill Clements isn't so good at such political dancing. He seemed to sincerely mull over the question of who might beat the man who drove him from office, Gov. Mark White, and decided that the answer was in his bathroom mirror every morning.

Clements already is assured a place in Texas history books as the first GOP governor since Reconstruction, but he decided that isn't enough. He also wants to be logged in as the second one. He says he has the best chance to defeat White, but it wouldn't be surprising if there's a little desire for revenge mixed in his decision.

Clements and his wife, Rita, were shocked by the 1982 loss to White. All their polls indicated that re-election was a cinch.

Mrs. Clements had led a campaign to restore the age-scarred Governor's Mansion, and the couple lived in an apartment during the two-and-a-half-year restoration project — only to see the White family enjoy the results.

Clements, a longtime Republican, also probably suffered some damaged pride from U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's blitz-like capture of the state's party leadership role. Gramm only switched from the Democratic Party in 1983 but quickly captured a U.S. Senate seat and engineered Hance's party switch and gubernatorial campaign.

Loeffler is a longtime Republican but is young and not widely known outside his West Texas congressional district. He also has a name that most political planners consider a handicap. Voters tend to like candidates with names that are easy to pronounce, such as "White."

Billy Graham

Waiting for judgment day

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you really believe there is a day of judgment for each of us when we die? Personally, I think God loves us and will not judge us, although we have all done things that are wrong, I know. — A.Z.

DEAR A.Z.: Yes, there is a day of judgment, and the most dangerous thing we can do is pretend it does not exist or assume somehow we will escape it.

There are at least two reasons why we know there will be a judgment day. First, the Bible clearly teaches it — just as clearly as it teaches God's love. In fact, Jesus spoke repeatedly about it, saying we are accountable to God and some day there will be a final judgment.

"When the Son of Man comes ... he will sit on his throne in heavenly glory. All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate the people one from another ... Then he will say to those on his left, 'Depart from me, you who are cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels'" (Matthew 25:31-32,41).

Second, the justice of God demands it. God is holy and righteous, and He has told us how we should live. But when we turn our backs on Him and choose to go our own way, we have no right to expect Him to set aside His law and act as if it did not matter.

Yes, there is Heaven and there is hell. That is a sobering truth. But the good news is that you do not need to fear God's judgment. Why? Because Jesus Christ took upon Himself the judgment and hell you deserve when He died on the cross. All you need to do is turn to Him and trust Him for your salvation.

Don't delay, but make your commitment to Christ now. "Just as man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment, so Christ was sacrificed once to take away the sins of many people; and he will appear a second time ... to bring salvation to those who are waiting for him" (Hebrews 9:27-28).

Delta Flight 191 The day after

The investigation

Safety experts study voice recorder

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board on Saturday transported the cockpit voice recorder and data recorder from Delta Flight 191 to Washington, D.C., to help determine the cause of the crash.

Investigators also were obtaining recording devices, known as "black boxes," from aircraft that landed immediately prior to and just after the crash of the Delta jumbo jet Friday night to determine if other pilots had warned of severe weather, said Matt Guilfoyle, a Delta spokesman.

An investigative team including 100 people from half a dozen government and private agencies was involved in the painstaking task of trying to determine why Flight 191 crashed and burst into a ball of flames during its approach for landing in a heavy thunderstorm.

Retired Coast Guard Adm. Patrick Bursley, a member of the NTSB team, said a group from the federal agency would tour the crash site today.

Bursley could not confirm if weather conditions caused the tragic crash, but he said bad weather conditions are one of several factors that the team would be considering. Bursley was optimistic that an enormous amount of information could be compiled because of the large number of witnesses who saw the Lockheed L-1011 go down.

In addition to the weather the team would be considering the aircraft's structure, survival factors, Delta operations, electrical and hydraulic systems and power systems, Bursley said.

He said witnesses to the crash and air traffic controllers would be interviewed for accounts of the accident.

Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport is equipped with a low-level wind shear alert system, NTSB officials said. But officials were unsure if the plane was within the range of the recorders that detect the shears when it crashed.

The combined investigative group includes the Federal Aviation Administration, Delta Air Lines, the Air Line Pilots Association, Lockheed, the plane's manufacturer, Rolls Royce, maker of the plane's engine, and the National Weather Service, Bursley said.

The fiery crash

Cause of jumbo jet crash remains unknown

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Relatives carrying dental charts, photographs and other precious clues to the identities of loved ones arrived Saturday to help officials sorting the remains of 129 people killed in the fiery crash of a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet that plunged to the ground in a storm.

Twenty-eight passengers and three flight attendants, among 160 people aboard Flight 191, survived, some with just scratches and bruises. Most survivors had been seated in the back of the wide-bodied Lockheed L-1011 TriStar when it nose-dived to earth near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, officials said.

About 120 bodies, covered with heavy black plastic, were taken in refrigerator trucks Saturday to the forensic lab in downtown Dallas, officials said. Only 12 had been identified by Saturday afternoon. One was identified through a bracelet and five through driver's license, photographs, said Dr. Charles Petty, Dallas County medical examiner.

Flight 191 was making its final approach to the airport during a heavy storm Friday when it went down near the airport's northern boundary and exploded shortly after 6 p.m. The plane bounced across the highway and a field, clipped one or two water tanks and skidded across tarmac, witnesses

The cause of the crash was not known, but the flight and cockpit recorders, which keep information about the flight, were recovered, officials said.

Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta, said it wasn't known whether wind shear — an abrupt change in wind direction and speed — played a role. Some witnesses said lightning hit the jet; others disputed that.

"I saw a ball of flame go into the air just as the explosion hit, and black smoke came out," said Wendell Harrison, who saw the crash through a window at an airport terminal.

Chemical Burns
Eye damage from chemical burns may be extremely serious, as from alkalis or caustic acids; or less severe, as from chemical "irritants."
In all cases of eye contact with chemicals: DO flood the eye with water immediately, continuously and gently, for at least 30 minutes. Hold head under faucet or pour water into the eye using any clean container. Keep eye open as widely as possible during flooding.
DO see a doctor.

Cheyenne's calamity

Flood damage estimated at $28 million

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Damage from a flash flood that struck Cheyenne during a vicious thunderstorm and killed 12 people was estimated at $28 million by one insurance official Saturday as the town worked to clean up and rebuild.

"People kind of sat down and had an initial cry over the thing and then started to help each other," said Sheriff's Lt. Dan Broyles. "People have been just great about helping one another."

Six inches of rain plus 6 inches of hail deluged Cheyenne in less than four hours Thursday night, flooding basements and first floors, shredding shrubs and sweeping cars and trucks down streets. Water ran 6 feet deep in normally trickling Dry Creek and in city streets.

The city normally gets only 12 to 13 inches of precipitation a year.

The mayor's office coordinated requests for help and offers from people with pumps, wet vacuums and time to help bail water and hail out of basements. Some people offered spare rooms to those who needed a place to stay.

The Salvation Army provided emergency shelter, food and clothing, and the Cheyenne Association of Broadcasters put out a call for donations.

A temporary morgue set up to receive bodies of victims was disbanded Saturday, and the Laramie County Sheriff's Department said searches for missing people had ended, unless more reports of missing people were received.

One of the 12 victims died of a heart attack, and one drowned in a flooded basement. The other 10 bodies were found along Dry Creek, which cuts across north Cheyenne.

"All of these victims were not just floating gently down the stream. They were hitting things as they went," said Laramie County Coroner Roger Radomsky.

Federal Emergency Management Agency officials met with state and local disaster officials Saturday and said an initial damage figure might be ready by Sunday.

Shuttle given extension to complete experiments

Challenger mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Shuttle managers decided today to extend Challenger's mission in orbit by a day, until Tuesday, to give the astronauts more time to add to their scientific harvest now that the ship's $60 million telescope pointer and most other instruments are working.

The new landing time was set for 3:47 p.m. EDT Tuesday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The extension was requested by ground scientists, who have expressed delight over data being gathered by their instruments on the sun, stars, galaxies and Earth's atmosphere.

NASA officials made the decision after determining that Challenger had enough fuel for the extra day, plus enough for two contingency days beyond Tuesday. Forecasters said weather also should be good Tuesday at Edwards.

Challenger was slightly low on liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, which are used to generate electricity, but the seven astronauts have been conserving these consumables in case the flight was extended, said Flight Director Al Pennington.

The astronauts spent much of today conducting experiments and their conversation was confined to technical exchanges with scientists on the ground.

They did take a few minutes to transmit to the control center spectacular television views of a cloudless section of Earth over which they passed. Clearly visible were the Sahara desert, the north coast of Africa, the Mediterranean, the boot of Italy, Greece, Turkey, the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea in the southern part of the Soviet Union.

"Absolutely beautiful," said Mission Control.

Mission scientists said they would like the extra day primarily to gather data from three telescopes mounted on a $60 million pointing system that was inoperative until Friday, when the astronauts repaired it with a new computer program worked out on the ground.

During the three days the instrument was unable to point, the astronauts used fine-aiming devices on the individual telescopes. Each maneuver required extensive testing and calibration and cost valuable data-gathering time.

Astronauts Karl Henize, an astronomer, and Loren Acton, a solar physicist, were operating the telescopes when the pointing mechanism was fixed, and they were overjoyed.

"Hey, it was successful," Acton reported.

"Wow!" exclaimed Henize. "I'll offer another hallelujah and hope it keeps on this time."

Peace ribbon marks protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of peace demonstrators from across America prayed Saturday at the National Cathedral in preparation for Sunday's effort to encircle centers of government with a "peace ribbon" bearing symbols of hope for an end to the arms race.

Organizers expected tens of thousands to join in a human chain to display vividly colored, hand-stitched tapestries around the Pentagon, the Lincoln Memorial and the U.S. Capitol at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The demonstration was timed to coincide with the 40th anniversary of the atomic bomb blasts that leveled the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, ending World War II in the Pacific.

Houston bank closes

Depositors say racism was factor

Depositor Josephine Lyles, right, shows anger after reading the notice posted by officials of Houston's Riverside Bank announcing its solvency.

HOUSTON (AP) — Depositors and other supporters of the failed Riverside National Bank charged that federal regulators' closing the bank smacked of racism.

Some 300 Riverside depositors, employees, shareholders and others gathered Friday evening in a southeast Houston church primarily for Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. officials to explain how the bank would be liquidated and to reassure them that all accounts up to $100,000 were completely covered.

Officials said they would give an immediate 50 percent dividend to those with deposits exceeding $100,000, meaning half of those depositors' potential losses already were covered.

Riverside, the only black-owned bank in Houston, was closed Thursday by order of the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency. The FDIC was named receiver and was to find a new owner for the bank and liquidate the assets not transferred to the new owner.

The bank reopened Friday as Peoples National Bank, a subsidiary of Bay Bancshares, a La Porte-based holding company.

Dr. Jesse Gholter, a retired Texas Southern University economics professor and Riverside stockholder, said at the meeting that regulators moved too quickly in shutting and then selling the bank, denying blacks an opportunity to bolster Riverside's capital or buy it out first and maintain black ownership.

He called the regulators' action an "assault on the black community." He and others said Riverside was a symbol of achievement by blacks and a means for their continued development.

Some audience members angrily brought up such issues as International Monetary Fund's economic squeeze on Third World nations and also warned that federal and state officials would be turned out of office by the black vote.

John Vella, closing superintendent of the FDIC, said to his knowledge Riverside is the first black-owned bank to close this year.

Riverside became the 64th bank to close this year in the nation and the sixth in Texas. Last year six Texas banks closed.

Judge upholds busing plan

HOUSTON (AP) — A Baytown citizens group says it will appeal a judge's decision upholding a school busing plan designed to gain racial balance at the city's two high schools.

George M. Kirk Jr., an attorney for the group, said his clients hope to block the busing plan before school starts this fall.

State District Judge Michael O'Brien ruled Thursday that the Goose Creek Independent School District board has the constitutional authority to remedy racial imbalance.

"This court is mindful that the proposed plan in this case will have the effect of displacing some children from the schools of their local neighborhood," the judge's opinion said. "Yet, it's equally clear that the use of rezoning to achieve racial balancing is an appropriate tool to be used by a school board to prevent recurring segregation."

Slain wives received threats by phone

HOUSTON (AP) — The two wives of Houston businessman feared for their lives because of threatening calls they received shortly before being slain in the same house, several friends of both women say.

Elaine Goss, 43, the first wife of Dean Goss, was shot to death March 16, 1982, and the friends said she may have been threatened because she obtained financial records she hoped would prove that her parents had been swindled.

"The woman was scared. She was afraid for her life," one of Elaine Goss' friends, who asked not to be identified, said Friday. "She should have gotten out of that house."

Mrs. Goss' parents said they knew nothing of the financial records theory.

"We don't know nothing about that," said Virginia Richman, the woman's mother.

Threatening calls also reportedly were directed against Paula Brawley Goss, 42, Goss' second wife, who was found slain

Wednesday in the Goss family home in southwest Houston.

"They would say, 'You won't know when and you won't know where, but we're going to get you,'" said Beth Ann Dingle, a close friend of both victims.

"I do know she was scared to death. This is what frightened her: Nobody knew what this was all about," Ms. Dingle told the Houston Post from her New Orleans home.

Investigators refused to comment about the financial records the first Mrs. Goss reportedly had possessed before her death. No arrests have been made in her murder case.

An employee of Goss was found slain in the trunk of his car July 6, 1984. James J. Brown, 49, had been manager of the now-defunct Cattlemen's Cove restaurant, owned by Goss.

Goss met his second wife, Paula, a real estate agent, as he shopped for a house, friends said. They married in April 1984 — 25 months after Elaine Goss was found shot in the back of the head in the upstairs study of their home.

Shortly before midnight Wednesday, Paula Goss was found dead just inside a back entryway of the home by her eldest stepson, Dean Goss Jr., 24.

Police said Mrs. Goss had been shot in the head, stabbed in the back, slashed in the throat and beaten. There was no evidence of struggle, no weapon was found and nothing appeared to have been taken from the house, investigators said.

At the time of the attack, Goss was in the Methodist Hospital recuperating from surgery to remove a benign tumor from below his ear, relatives said.

Mrs. Goss was last known to be alive when she talked to her brother about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Environmentalists, sportsmen announce lawsuit against EPA

AUSTIN (AP) — Two groups who have criticized Texas' water standards as being too lax have said they will sue the Environmental Protection Agency for approving those rules.

The proposed lawsuit was announced Friday by the Sierra Club and the Sportsmen's Clubs of Texas.

"We are trying to put the EPA's feet to the fire," said Ken Kramer, a lobbyist for the Sierra Club. "We don't feel that the standards they approved are in keeping with the requirements of the federal Clean Water Act."

The EPA in Dallas denied it had been lax in protecting waterways in the United States.

Kramer said the proposed suit would ask EPA to rescind its approval of the water quality standards set by the Texas Department of Water Resources last year. He said the legal move is intended to force the federal agency to enforce federal standards, which the environmental groups have said are more strict, or to force Texas officials to upgrade state guidelines.

One issue is water quality standards for effluent-dominated rivers and streams — those that contain mostly discharged wastewater.

The state does not require those to be clean enough for fishing and swimming because of costs that local officials say are excessive.

A second issue is that the state does not have guidelines to establish "mixing zones" — the points where wastewater enters waterways. Mixing zones are exempt from clean water requirements.

Suburb imposes water controls

PFLUGERVILLE (AP) — City officials have imposed tighter controls on outdoor water use in the Austin suburb of Pflugerville, saying limits for the past week failed to conserve water.

The tighter restrictions will be imposed for a month, when a new well and reservoir are expected to be completed, an official said.

"We just can't pump enough and store enough," said Gladys Weiss, who handles water bills for the city.

The water system has been producing slightly more than 1 million gallons a day, a volume near the capacity of the system, she said.

She said lawn watering is being limited to 6 a.m.-noon and 6 p.m.-midnight. Residents can water every fourth day, she said.

EMBEZZLEMENT

"Show me a company with a very busy manager and I'll show you a company that can be ripped off." So goes the song of the embezzler.

The bookkeeper looking for an easy mark likes to work for a manager who says, in words or attitude, "I don't want anything to do with the books; that's your department."

No company is too small to be exempt from embezzlement. In fact, small companies, because of the limited number of employees, have a serious problem. They don't have enough personnel to divide the money-handling functions among different employees. Usually the same employee opens the mail, prepares the checks, payroll reports, deposits, monthly billings, bank reconciliations and perhaps even the financial statements.

If you have employees handling money functions and you are not personally acquainted with the necessary safeguards, you should have a review of internal controls done by your accountant.

Some very simple embezzlement techniques used in even the smallest companies are: 1) overpaying payroll taxes to the government, then applying for a refund and cashing the refund check; 2) establishing a checking account with the company's name which bears signature authority of the bookkeeper (often done in the same bank as the existing company account); 3) making duplicate payments on different dates for the same invoices, sending one to the real vendor and the other to a duplicate account with the same vendor name set up by the embezzler.

Even small companies can benefit from the segregation of duties established in larger companies. This control is accomplished by the owner/manager's being involved in certain paper-handling activities.

Once your internal controls have been established, they should be reviewed annually to see that they are effective and that they are being followed.

A STATEMENT OF FACTS TO THE TAXPAYERS OF HOWARD COUNTY CONCERNING CONSOLIDATION OF YOUR PROPERTY TAX COLLECTIONS

There is a proposal of consolidating your County Tax Office in the Appraisal District. Should this not be the decision of the taxpayers, as to whom collects their taxes, APPOINTED or ELECTED? The county has the only ELECTED Tax Official you can approach concerning your AD VALOREM TAX PROBLEMS.

Since the county has been collecting the majority of all taxes in Howard County, we have the necessary equipment, office space, and trained personnel and a computerized collection system for automatic payment and posting. To transfer County Collections to the appraisal district would mean additional costs to you the taxpayers — more equipment, office space and personnel. Taxpayers already have the above in the county tax office. Do we need this extra expense? With all the programs that have been initiated in your county tax office, we are at a point which should make it very cost effective for all taxing units involved.

Total expense allocated for AD VALOREM TAX COLLECTIONS was $124,826 with $103,904 credited by parcels for collection costs. Miscellaneous fees including tax certificates, beer license and attorney fees of $14,634 also credited toward the budget allocation. In addition to the above fees for collection, motor vehicle fees paid to the county

Cabbie killer gets 99 years

HOUSTON (AP) — A 22-year-old Salvadoran was sentenced to 99 years in prison for robbing and killing a Houston cab driver last Christmas.

Jurors deliberated about 2½ hours Friday before passing the sentence to Jose Arcadio Turcios. Turcios was arrested while changing a tire on the cab four hours after the killing and later was convicted in the slaying of 25-year-old David Lee Engelhardt.

Engelhardt was the fourth Houston cab driver killed in 1984. He was shot behind the ear "execution-style," Harris County Sheriff's Detective A.R. Diaz said. He also was shot in the chest and arm.

Prosecutor Jim Lindeman said Engelhardt was an aspiring pianist who drove a cab to support himself. He said Engelhardt had attended a Christmas Eve church service before he went on his nightly cab rounds.

Turcios apparently forced Engelhardt to drive to a wooded area in north Houston. Witnesses said they saw the two men struggle after getting out of the cab, and then heard shots.

Turcios then drove off in the cab, according to witnesses who found the body.

City writes tickets to...self

AUSTIN (AP) — The city of Austin, which began issuing tickets this week to violators of its mandatory water conservation rules, found itself on the receiving end of two tickets.

Police on Friday said the tickets — for watering on the wrong day and allowing sprinklers to spray water into the street — will be mailed to the Austin Parks and Recreation Department.

On Wednesday, police began issuing tickets to those who violate mandatory water conservation rules. Tickets can bring a fine of up to $200, and police said 27 have been written so far.

Sgt. Gregory Lasley said he was flagged down by a citizen at 11:30 p.m. Thursday and was told that water from sprinklers at a city tennis complex was spraying the street.

City Manager Jorge Carrasco, who imposed the water restrictions, said there is no policy on who is responsible if a city department is fined. When the city was cited last year for violating the water rules, Carrasco paid the fine out of his own pocket.

Police quit using stun gun

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they have abandoned experimental use of electric stun guns after results of a six-month pilot test showed the device lacked the durability and effectiveness required for field use.

Police Chief Billy Prince said Friday the device, manufactured by Nova Technologies of Austin, was judged to be effective in subduing suspects resisting arrest in only 63 percent of the 50 instances in which officers used it.

"Our conclusion is that the Nova 5000 does not have sufficient reliability under field conditions to cause us to be comfortable in adopting its use," said Prince.

Officers used the device 42 times during the first three months of the test but only eight times during the last three months, reflecting a decreasing level of confidence in their effectiveness, police said.

"We're going to have to have 90 percent plus reliability before we would feel confident with it," he said.

Giants nip Oilers 21-20 in NFL exhibition opener

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — New York Giants' Coach Bill Parcells was not at all surprised to learn that reserve quarterback Jeff Rutledge can sometimes play with the best of them.

"He's one of those guys who can get hot real quick," Parcells said Saturday after Rutledge took over for injured starter Phil Simms and fired two touchdown passes in a 21-20 exhibition victory over the Houston Oilers.

Rutledge entered the game after Simms cut his right hand late in the first quarter of the annual AFC-NFC Hall of Fame game, the first exhibition contest of the National Football League preseason.

Rutledge completed his first six passes including touchdowns to Joe Morris and Mark Bavaro. The 18-yarder to Morris capped an 80-yard drive and put the Giants ahead to stay, 7-3.

"I have no doubt that Jeff Rutledge has the ability to play," Parcells said. "He's got great presence and can fire up the team when he comes on the field."

Rutledge finished with six completions in seven attempts for 102 yards.

Parcells was nonetheless pleased to learn that Simms' hand injury would keep him out of action only seven to 10 days.

After connecting with Morris, Rutledge did not play again until midway through the third quarter, when the Giants' George Martin forced a fumble by Oiler quarterback Oliver Luck at Houston's 24-yard line.

After a penalty moved the ball to the 19, Rutledge passed 16 yards to Don Hasselbeck and then connected with Bavaro, a rookie tight end from Notre Dame, on a 3-yard scoring pass for a 21-6 lead.

George Adams, a rookie running back from Kentucky, had scored on a 1-yard run for New York earlier in the period.

The victory gave the NFC an 8-6-1 lead in the annual game. The Giants were 9-7 last year and the Oilers were 3-13.

Simms suffered a cut between the little finger and ring finger of his right hand as he completed an 11-yard pass to Zeke Mowatt late in the first quarter.

Houston's Joe Cooper kicked an 18-yard field goal in the first quarter and Florian Kempf added a 38-yarder one minute before halftime to pull the Oilers within 7-6 at the half.

The Oilers scored again early in the fourth period when Giants' running back Frank Cephus fumbled the ball near his own goal line. It was recovered by Houston safety Jeff Donaldson in the end zone for a touchdown.

Luck hit Steve Bryant with a 21-yard scoring pass with 29 seconds to go in the game to pull the Oilers within 21-20.

A record crowd of 23,940 watched the game at Fawcett Stadium adjacent to the Hall.

Mike Rozier, the Heisman Trophy-winner from Nebraska who spent two years in the United States Football League before joining the Oilers this year, carried the ball for the first time midway through the first quarter and picked up 6 yards to the Giants' 1-yard line.

Rozier was then stopped, however, on a second-and-goal from the 1 before Cooper's field goal.

In the second quarter, New York's defense again mounted a goal-line stand, stopping Houston four times from the 1 to take over on downs. Pro Bowl linebackers Lawrence Taylor and Harry Carson led the defensive charge each time.

Rozier finished with 46 yards rushing on 14 carries, but he also took a short pass from Luck and dashed 25 yards to set up the final touchdown pass to Bryant.

Houston's regular quarterback, Warren Moon, completed 14 of 22 passes for 129 yards. Butch Woolfolk, acquired by the Oilers from the Giants after last season for a 1985 third-round draft pick, picked up 68 yards on 10 carries.

Staubach heads Hall Of Fame inductees

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — When Roger Staubach walked out onto a football field Saturday with four other new inductees into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, he took a football with him.

As he was introduced on the 50-yard line, the former Heisman Trophy winner and Dallas Cowboys quarterback fired a long pass to a ball boy who was running down the sidelines.

Although Staubach was wearing a sports jacket and tie, the ball carried 50 yards in the air and hit the ball boy in stride as he crossed the right side of the goal line. The crowd loved it.

Staubach was part of one of the most illustrious classes in Hall of Fame history. Entering with him on Saturday were former New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath, Buffalo Bills and San Francisco 49ers running back O.J. Simpson, Cleveland Browns and Detroit Lions guard Frank Gatski and current National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

They were introduced during the half of the Hall of Fame game between the Houston Oilers and New York Giants.

Staubach said he realized that although he is the one being inducted, he is representing a lot of other players.

"I sometimes get the feeling if I'd been drafted by someone else, maybe I wouldn't be here. But I always had an intense desire to win, so maybe it was just meant to be," Staubach said.

Asked if induction into the Hall of Fame is his biggest thrill ever, Staubach said, "The Heisman was probably the most prestigious individual award as to how people relate to you. That stays with you — that's how I'm introduced a lot, as a former Heisman Trophy-winner. But in professional football, the triangle gets even smaller at the top."

Staubach downplayed his straight-arrow image, as compared to the playboy image of Namath.

"On the field is where we're judged and there's a lot of similarity there," Staubach said. "Joe was a fierce competitor and I really wasn't too nice on the field. I could handle myself on the field."

An emotional Namath dropped his "Broadway Joe" image for a few moments Saturday and had to fight back tears during his induction. He paused to compose himself as he thanked his college coach, the late Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama.

"Coach Bryant and Mrs. Bryant, wherever you are, we miss you," the former New York Jets' quarterback said with a catch in his voice.

Namath and Simpson had to leave the ceremony quickly to head for the ABC-TV broadcast booth at adjacent Fawcett Stadium, where the New York Giants and Houston Oilers were to play the first exhibition game of the preseason.

Namath, 42, joined the ABC crew this year.

During his 12 seasons with the Jets and one final year with the Los Angeles Rams, Namath passed for 27,663 yards and 173 touchdowns. In 1967, he became the first quarterback to pass for more than 4,000 yards in one season.

Amateur retains lead in Western Open golf

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — It's been 29 years since an amateur won a pro golf tournament, and Scott Verplank is carefully, even aggressively staying away from any predictions that he may break that string.

"I guess we'll find out Sunday afternoon," the 21-year-old Oklahoma State student said Friday after a string of six birdies on his last eight holes had given him a three-shot lead at the halfway point of the Western Open.

"I won't worry about that until, when and if the opportunity arises," said Verplank, the current national amateur champion and winner of four other important amateur titles this summer.

He admitted he was "kind of nervous" when he started second-round play as the tournament leader, and was obviously uncomfortable in a mass interview after his closing burst of birdies had finished off another 68 and put him through 36 holes at 136, eight under par on the Butler National Golf Club course.

A clipped, one-word response, "no," or "no comment," or even a vague shrug served as answers to most of the questions, which largely concerned his chances of becoming the first amateur to win a professional tournament since Doug Sanders won the 1956 Canadian Open.

"I played with him the first two rounds in the U.S. Open. He's a very good player, good driver, good touch with the putter," said Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who got back in contention with a 68 that lifted him to 143.

"Scott is showing a lot of poise. It's no surprise that he's there (in the lead). The kid can play," said Canadian Dave Barr, five strokes off the pace at 141. Barr one-putted nine times on the way to a second round 67.

"Scott is the Nicklaus of the amateur players. He has an incredible record," said Steve Jones, who chipped in for an eagle-3 on the way to a 67 that lifted him into second alone at 139.

Barr and Jim Thorpe, who had a no-bogey 66, were next at three under par.

They were followed by Corey Pavin, Craig Stadler, Scott Simpson and Ernie Gonzalez at 142. Pavin had a 67, Simpson 70, Stadler 71 and Gonzalez 73.

Defending champion Tom Watson had a 72 and was at 146. Nicklaus also matched par 72 and was at 148. Leading money-winner Curtis Strange, however, failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 72-149.

Verplank, who started play from the 10th tee, hit into the water with his second shot on the 14th, made double bogey and finished that side in 37. Turning to the first hole, he promptly made bogey then played "the next eight kind of unconscious," he said.

He put his second shot over the green on the par-5 second and got it up and down for birdie.

Tennis aplenty at Figure Seven

By CHARLIE ALCORN

Where are the finest tennis facilities in the West Texas Crossroads?

Not a bad trivia question, considering that many enthusiasts of the game are not aware that Figure 7 Tennis Center in Big Spring's Comanche Trail Park could easily lay claim as the best spot to swat the little yellow (orange, green, even white) ball.

The Tennis Association and Figure 7 came into existence in the early '70's when Dora Roberts donated the land where the tennis courts now stand. The tennis pro shop was used originally as the Cosden Country Club and was donated when Mrs. Roberts donated the land. The name Figure 7 was the Roberts family brand, hence the unusual name for the facility.

It is no surprise that tennis in Big Spring, which boomed during the 1970's, followed the national decline in popularity during the early years of this decade. People switched their athletic allegiance to the new aerobics craze or simply outgrew their avid love of the game. The Big Spring Tennis Association, which had maintained a strong membership up through 1978, suddenly fell by the wayside. Figure 7 also saw a sharp decline in the use of their facilities.

But a tennis renaissance is at hand in Big Spring, inspired by the newly refurbished Figure 7 pro shop and staff and a local Tennis Association that has blossomed to around 40 members since starting over last year.

At the heart of tennis center's drive to make the folks around Big Spring and neighboring communities aware of the facilities, will be the Tennis Association's first annual BSTA Tournament, August 9, 10, 11 at Figure 7. The tournament is open to boys and girls age 12 and up, plus men's and women's open competition and a 35 and over competition including mixed doubles.

"We're hoping that this tournament will make people more aware of the facility out at Figure 7," the pro shop and new concession stand opened and the Association has been a big part of it. The citizens of Big Spring have a truly unique opportunity to play at a first class facility without having to pay the exorbitant dues incurred at private clubs." Wrestlers do better in Sports Festival

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Dan Severn wrestled his way into the gold medal round at the National Sports Festival Saturday, then discovered he wouldn't have to exert himself any further to collect the 220-pound crown.

Severn, of Mesa, Ariz., became the second gold medalist in freestyle wrestling here following a 6-1 decision over Phil Lanzatella of Rochester, N.Y. Soon after that victory, he was told that his final-round opponent, James Johnson of Lexington, Ky., had withdrawn with a groin injury.

"I haven't competed in eight weeks and I wrestled hard the past two days," said a tired Severn, who seemed grateful for the gift of gold. "My plans now are to gear up for wrestling the Soviet Union's wrestler later this year."

Wrestling winners here automatically qualify for the American team in the World Championships.

The other freestyle gold awarded went to Bill Scherr of Bloomington, Ind., on Friday in the 198-pound division, where only two wrestlers showed up.

1984 Olympic gold medalists Mark and Dave Schultz and Bruce Baumgartner advanced to the finals.

The East moved into the gold medal hockey matchup with the North by beating the South 4-3 despite 44 saves by goalie Chris Terreri of Providence College. John Carter's shorthanded goal and Randy Wood's power play score in the first period triggered the East victory.

The East won the men's field hockey gold medal in a second strokeoff, which is similar to a shootout in soccer, when goalie Steve Wagner blocked Tim Jacobs' shot for a 3-2 victory over the South.

U.S. netters fare well in Davis Cup action

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Robert Seguso and Ken Flach kept the United States alive in the Davis Cup tennis quarterfinals Saturday, outdueling the West German doubles team of Wimbledon champion Boris Becker and Andreas Maurer 6-2, 6-8, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

The Germans still led the best-of-five series 2-1 after sweeping the Americans in singles on Friday. Left for Sunday are the reverse singles, in which Becker takes on Aaron Krickstein and Hansjoerg Schwaier faces Eliot Teltscher.

The United States would have been eliminated if Seguso and Flach, teammates at Southern Illinois, had lost the rain-plagued match.

"We believe in ourselves. We have a shot at winning this thing!" Flach said jubilantly.

The winning squad advances to the semifinal in October against Czechoslovakia, which took an unbeatable 3-0 advantage over Ecuador Saturday in Guayaquil as Ivan Lendl and Tomas Smid beat Ricardo Ycaza and Martin Aguirre 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Lendl, ranked No. 2 in the world, and his partner breezed by the Ecuadorians in an hour and 20 minutes.

Americans John McEnroe, ranked No. 1, and Jimmy Connors, No. 4, decided to skip the Davis Cup this year after refusing to sign a good behavior pledge required by the United States Tennis Association.

Defending Davis Cup champion Sweden, meanwhile, clinched victory over India Saturday in their quarterfinal as Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg downed the Amritraj brothers in a four-hour marathon that featured a 40-game first set. The final score was 21-19, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The Swedes will face Paraguay or Australia in October.

Paraguay led Australia 2-1 Saturday after Victor Pecci and Francisco Gonzalez emerged with a 6-3, 8-10, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3 triumph over Paul McNamee and Mark Edmondson in their doubles.

At the Rothenbaum Tennis Club in Hamburg, many of the 11,000 cheering, whistling fans assumed the Germans would win when they took a 4-3 lead in the fifth set. But the tough, aggressive play of Seguso and Flach stunned the crowd, and the collegians prevailed 7-5 by breaking Maurer's serve.

"I thought we could win, but we lost," said Becker, who last month became the youngest Wimbledon champion ever at age 17. He was calm and insisted that he never got nervous during the tight match.

The start of the match was delayed by rain, and Seguso and Flach, ranked No. 4 and No. 5 in the world, respectively, in doubles, led the third set 1-0 when another downpour forced a delay of an hour and 20 minutes.

"It wasn't good for us that we had this interruption," Maurer said.

The Americans came back to take four straight points and sweep the set. But the West Germans broke Seguso in the third game of the fourth set and held on to take it 6-4, setting up the dramatic and decisive fifth.

"We were having trouble volleying. They stayed back and kept us volleying," Seguso said.

In Bangalore, India, Jarryd and Edberg prevailed over veterans Vijay and Anand Amritraj in a grass-court match dominated by Edberg. The Swede had eight aces, no double faults and few unforced errors.

The first set took two hours and 20 minutes, and the grueling match had the Amritraj brothers talking about retirement from Davis Cup competition.

"It's not good for a man of my age to play continuously for three or four days," said Vijay, 31.

"It is time somebody replaced us," Anand added. "We have played for India for more than 15 years. This is my 18th Davis Cup appearance and Vijay's 16th."

In Sydney, Australia, Paraguay needed to win only one of Sunday's reverse singles matches after Pecci and Gonzalez bested McNamee and Edmondson.

Around Europe on Saturday, several countries contested the early rounds of the 1986 Davis Cup tournament.

Romania clinched a victory in its European Group A semifinal when Florin Segarceanu and Andrew Dirzu downed Tarek Al Sakka and Ahmed El Mehelmy 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in doubles. The victory gave the Romanians a spot in the group finals Oct. 4-6 at Bucharest.

At Eastbourne, England, the home team clinched a spot in the European Zone 'B' semifinals when John Lloyd and Colin Dowdeswell defeated Heinz Guenthardt and Jacob Hlasek for a 3-0 advantage.

The British doubles triumph, by a score of 7-5, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, came after Jeremy Bates surprised Wimbledon quarterfinalist Heinz Guenthardt 6-0, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 Saturday.

But he is best remembered for his one championship performance, when he fulfilled his prediction that the American Football League Jets would beat the NFL Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III. The Jets won 16-7.

"This year, the timing was right to return (to football)," said Namath, who has been an actor since leaving the game in 1977. "My wife, Debra, said, 'You get so exciting (watching football), why don't you get back into it?'"

Rozelle, 59, was the 33-year-old general manager of the Los Angeles Rams when he was chosen commissioner of the league in 1960. During his 25 years in office, the league has grown from 12 to 28 teams and become a fixture on weekend television.

"The last 10 years, the game's problems have been so litigious, it's not as much fun as it used to be, watching the game and recommending improvements," Rozelle said before the inductions. "But there are still a lot of peaks with the valleys."

Rozelle admitted making some mistakes, saying the biggest was probably allowing football to be played shortly after President Kennedy's assassination.

Simpson, 38, rushed for 11,236 yards; second only to Jim Brown when Simpson retired in 1979. His 2,003 yards rushing for the Bills in 1973 stood as an NFL record for more than 10 years.

He and Staubach are the first Heisman Trophy-winners to enter the Hall.

"I was the last of the so-called 'Heisman jinx,'" Simpson said. "I was aware there wasn't a Heisman winner in the Hall of Fame, but that's only because of the difficulties (former Green Bay Packer) Paul Hornung had with gambling in his career."

Simpson, who had tears in his eyes as he thanked his mother, Eunice, for her support, said he considered quitting after he failed to live up to his potential during his first three years in the NFL.

Staubach, 43, played from 1969-79 for the Dallas Cowboys, entering the NFL as a 27-year-old rookie after spending four years in the Navy.

He led the Cowboys to two Super Bowl titles while passing for 22,700 yards and 153 touchdowns.

commodity. "I think most people just don't know that we're out here. It's inexpensive to play ($1 an hour for adults, .75 for children) and we have plenty of courts. It's just a matter making anyone interested in playing tennis aware of the opportunity."

Tournaments such as the BSTA's and the Crossroads Stampede tournament the weekend of August 16-19 will likely increase community awareness of Figure 7 and the Tennis Association.

"This year we were just getting things here in the Crossroads, but things started again, so we didn't no one could ever deny Figure 7 get to schedule as many activities Tennis Center being a truly royal facility.

as usual," commented BSTA tournament director Kathy Terrazas. "Next year we are hoping to join the USTA and compete in the Highway 80 summer tournament schedule and host our own sanctioned tournament."

"A lot of people have the notion that tennis is a rich man's game, but that is not the case, especially in Big Spring," says Sparling.

Ninth inning rally lifts Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Mark Bailey's two-run single capped a three-run Houston rally with no outs in the ninth inning that gave the Astros a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday night.

With San Diego leading 3-1, Jose Cruz and Jerry Humphrey started the ninth with singles off Padres starter Eric Show and he was relieved by Craig Lefferts, 6-5. A double by Glenn Davis made it 3-2, and an intentional walk to Kevin Bass preceded Bailey's game-winning hit into the gap in right-center field.

The rally made a winner of Charlie Kerfeld, 1-1, who picked up his first major-league triumph by pitching the top of the ninth. Astros starter Nolan Ryan, who has lost six straight decisions, went seven innings and allowed eight hits and three runs.

Each team scored a run in the first inning, with the Padres scoring on consecutive singles by Tim Flannery and Tony Gwynn and a sacrifice fly by Steve Garvey, who had two hits and two RBIs.

Singles by Craig Reynolds and Denny Walling and an RBI single by Cruz tied the score in Houston's half of the inning.

The Padres made it 3-1 in the second when Kevin McReynolds led off with a walk, moved to second on Show's sacrifice and scored on Flannery's single to center. After a single by Gwynn, Garvey singled to drive in Flannery from third.

NL Roundup

Expos 6, Pirates 5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Hobie Brooks and Mike Fitzgerald each drove in two runs as the Montreal Expos held on for a 6-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night.

Brooks hit his eighth homer of the season and drove in a first-inning run with an infield grounder as the Pirates lost for the 10th time in 11 games.

The Expos led 5-1 after three innings against starter Larry McWilliams, 5-8. After Brooks' RBI in the first, Fitzgerald singled home one run and Bryn Smith scored another on an infield out in the second.

Brooks homered in the third and Tim Wallach and Jim Wohlford chased McWilliams with consecutive doubles.

Bill Madlock singled home the first Pittsburgh run and the Pirates made it 5-2 in the third when pitcher Jim Winn doubled for his first major-league hit and scored on two groundouts.

Dodgers 2, Reds 0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bob Welch pitched a two-hitter to outduel Mario Soto, and Mike Scioscia and Pedro Guerrero hit solo homers as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds 2-0 Saturday night.

Welch, 7-1, surrendered a single to Dave Concepcion in the fifth inning, a double by Eddie Milner in the sixth and three walks to notch his sixth consecutive victory, matching his career high in a season shortened by injury.

Soto, 10-12, allowed only four hits in defeat — the homers by Scioscia and Guerrero, a double by Mike Marshall and a single to Steve Sax. Soto struck out seven and walked one.

Scioscia lined a fast ball into the right field seats to lead off the third inning. It was his fifth homer of the season, matching his career high, reached in both the 1982 and 1984 seasons.

Guerrero's two-out homer in the ninth was his 26th of the season and extended his consecutive-game hitting streak to 13.

Giants 7, Braves 5

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie Chris Brown hit a grand slam homer in the third inning and the San Francisco Giants went on to post a 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

The game was tied 1-1 going into the third, when two walks sandwiched around a single by Manny Trillo loaded the bases. Jeff Leonard's grounder made it 2-1, and a walk to Dan Driessen reloaded the bases for Brown, who hit his 11th homer for a 6-1 lead off Rick Mahler, 15-9.

Mike Krukow, 7-8, picked up the victory, allowing eight hits in five innings. Scott Garrelts picked up his ninth save by pitching the last two innings.

Leonard had put the Giants ahead in the first inning with a two-out single that scored Trillo, who had walked and stole second.

The Braves tied the score when Claudell Washington led off the bottom of the first with his 11th homer.

The Giants made it 7-1 in the fourth when Krukow helped his own cause with a double, went to third on a Jose Uribe single and scored when catcher Bruce Benedict dropped Dale Murphy's throw on Trillo's fly to center.

Rangers go down to Blue Jays, 4-1

TORONTO (AP) — Gary Allenson's two-run, two-out double highlighted a three-run sixth inning that carried Toronto Blue Jays to a record tenth straight home victory Saturday, 4-1 over the Texas Rangers.

With the Blue Jays, winners of 13 of their last 14 games, clinging to a 1-0 lead in the sixth, Cecil Fielder reached on a fielder's choice and Garth Iorg followed with a single off loser Chris Welsh, 2-3.

Allenson then drilled the club's fourth double of the game to and he scored on Tony Fernandez's double to left-center field to give the Jays a 4-0 lead.

Left-hander Jimmy Key started for the Blue Jays in quest of his 10th win of the season, left after 2 1-3 innings because of a blister on the index finger of his pitching hand. He allowed four hits, walked none and struck out none.

Dennis Lamp, 7-0, was the winner, giving up three hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Jim Acker started the seventh for Toronto but loaded the bases on walks to George Wright and Curt Wilkerson and a single by pinch-hitter Duane Walker. Gary Lavelle struck out Oddibe McDowell before Wright scored when Toby Harrah grounded into a fielder's choice. Lavelle then struck out Pete O'Brien to end the inning.

Indians 10, Orioles 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Julio Franco drove in five runs to highlight a 16-hit Cleveland attack and newly acquired Curt Wardle picked up a victory in his first major-league start as the Indians routed the Baltimore Orioles 10-4 Saturday night.

Brett Butler went 4-for-4 while Franco and Otis Nixon each had three hits to back Wardle, 2-3, who made his first appearance since the Indians obtained him on Thursday as part of a package from the Minnesota Twins for pitcher Bert Blyleven.

Wardle's start came after two relief appearances in 1984 and 35 this season with the Twins. The left-hander allowed two runs on four hits, struck out five and walked five in seven innings before Tom Waddell finished. Wardle did not allow a hit after Floyd Rayford's two-run homer with one out in the fourth inning. Mike Young hit a two-run homer, his 13th, off Waddell in the eighth.

Cleveland scored in the bottom of the first when Nixon led off with a single, stole second, took third on Butler's bunt single and scored when Franco grounded into a forceout.

Tony Bernazard started a four-run second inning with a single, followed by Mike Hargrove's single. With two out, Butler and Franco hit run-scoring singles and Andre Thornton lined a two-run double, chasing Mike Boddicker, 10-12, who has dropped 11 of his last 15 decisions.

Red Sox 5, Royals 4
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Roger Clemens and Steve Crawford pitched a combined five-hitter Saturday night and Bill Buckner, following a double error on a double play grounder, hit a three-run home run to propel the Boston Red Sox to a 5-4 victory over Kansas City.

Clemens carried a no-hitter into the fifth inning, mowing down the Royals in the same fashion that Bruce Hurst showed the night before while pitching 5 2-3 innings of no-hit ball.

Clemens pitched six innings, gave up three hits, five walks and struck out three. Crawford got his fourth save, allowing three runs on two hits.

For the second night in a row, it was Onix Concepcion who broke up the bid. Concepcion singled leading off the fifth and scored to make it 3-1 when Willie Wilson hit his league-leading 15th triple. Against Hurst the night before, Concepcion tripled for the first hit and scored on Wilson's single to make it 3-1.

Life in the oilfield

Cycles of a boom and bust industry can be rough for families

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Oilfield work. It's a boom and bust industry. And the up for awhile, down for awhile cycle can have a great effect on the families of men and women who make a career in the oil patch.

While some are fortunate to have a regular schedule, others never know what time they will get off work. It could be 5:30 p.m. or 10:30 p.m., depending on when the company man wants to shut down.

Danny Morales, who has been employed by Pool Well Service for 4½ years, works Monday through Saturday and sometimes on Sunday.

A derrick man, he never knows when he will be home in the evening or when he will be called in to work. He worked seven days a week for three months last year.

Morales and wife Frances have two kids, Danika, 11, and Randy, 10. They have been married 12 years.

Dennis Churchwell is a roustabout for Amoco Production in Coahoma. He also relief pumps when the pumper is sick or goes on vacation.

He works regular hours, Monday through Friday, from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is paid by the hour.

Churchwell and wife Debbie have been married 3½ years. They have a daughter Chelsea, 20 months, and a son Derek, 16 months.

Churchwell, 29, works overtime very seldom. "When he does work overtime, we really don't see it too much," because he gets time off in the next week, said Mrs. Churchwell.

Morales, however, may work 80 hours in a single week, depending on the workload.

"A lot of times the kids have activities in school and I don't get to go see them," said Morales. "It just can't be helped, I guess."

Mrs. Morales is used to her husband being gone a lot. "He's been in that kind of business a long time. He's always worked a lot of hours," she said. "It gets lonesome but you just have to get used to it."

It was hard on Mrs. Morales having her husband gone while her children were little. "Whenever he came home, they didn't know who he was," she said.

"Being regular hours, I can spend a lot of time with my family," Churchwell said.

Churchwell, however, is no stranger to shiftwork. Before going to work in the oilfield, he was employed by Missouri-Pacific Railroad for five years.

When he worked on the railroad, the family "didn't know when he was gonna be home or when he would be called out," Mrs. Churchwell said. "I don't miss that," said Churchwell.

"It's not easy working shiftwork," said Churchwell. "It puts a lot of pressure on a family. That's the main reason I got out" of it, he said.

When he found out his wife was expecting their first child, Churchwell began to seriously look for a job in the oilfield. One month later, he was laid off at the railroad.

Churchwell interviewed at several large companies for two years before getting laid off, but because he had no experience, he kept getting turned down. His persistence at Amoco finally got him a job.

"I prefer just what I'm doing right now because of the hours," said Churchwell. "It's a good career for a family if you're a roustabout for a big company."

Because he has worked in the oilfield for 10 years, Morales has seen both good times and bad times in the industry.

Churchwell was hired in February 1983, and "that's when the oil slowed down," he said. Therefore, he hasn't worked in an oilfield boom.

"For a while there the oil was really going good," said Churchwell. But when the boom ended and oil busted, the companies didn't need as many men and quit hiring.

No one has been hired at Amoco since Churchwell, making him bottom man on the totem pole.

"He wants to move up but it's a slow process," said Mrs. Churchwell. "Because he has the least seniority, he's kind of at a standstill." His next position would be to become a pumper.

Lay offs are a threat to both Churchwell and Morales when the oil business drops off. But both men think the experience they have gained in the oil patch will help them get other jobs.

Churchwell also could be transferred to another town at any time, he said. "You move or you don't have a job," Mrs. Churchwell

Chelsea Churchwell delivers the newspaper to her dad and carries in his lunchbox when he gets home from work.

Dennis Churchwell enjoys spending time with his family when he gets home from work. Reading books is one of daughter Chelsea's favorite pastimes. Also pictured is his wife Debbie and son Derrick.

Frances Morales (left) has had to adjust to her husband Danny's (right) irregular work schedule. They have two children, Danika and Randy.

Rape Crisis Services celebrates first anniversary

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Rape Crisis Services of Big Spring will celebrate its first anniversary Saturday with an appreciation banquet, according to Cecelia McKenzie, executive director.

Rape Crisis Services grew out of the question, "Why don't we do something?" about violent crime in this area, McKenzie said.

A year later, the organization continues expanding support services to victims of sexual assault and their families.

"Since our inception, we've handled 41 (sexual assault) cases," McKenzie said. "Abilene handled five cases in its first nine months."

The concept of sexual assault in the United States has changed over recent years and victims of the crime have received more support through organizations such as Rape Crisis Services. Volunteers and employees hope that victims will not be afraid to seek help and speak out when they are victims of assault.

Locally, Rape Crisis Services has come a long way in a short period of time, McKenzie said. She said Mary Kenney, original executive director of the service, and other volunteers decided to begin a service in Big Spring. "Little knowing how much work was involved in getting a center together."

McKenzie got involved when asked to help prepare a grant request. She then began working as director of counseling services and when Kenney moved from this area took over as executive director.

"We held our first training session last August,"

McKenzie said. "That is considered the start of our services."

Judy Edwards of the Abilene Rape Crisis Center came to Big Spring to train 15 directors and volunteers. The center acquired pagers in September and started a 24-hour on-call service on Sept. 15.

The center received its first call concerning a rape in November. Directors were also kept busy with referrals about child and wife abuse.

According to figures released from the F.B.I., "only 10 percent of sexual assault cases are reported," McKenzie said. She feels that services such as Rape Crisis Services are making the public aware that help is available and that victims need not suffer alone.

"The time has come for an agency such as ours," she said.

In its first year of service, Rape Crisis Services has aided a sexual abuse victim as young as preschool age and a victim in her mid-90s. All calls are confidential. Even the names of volunteers are not publicized, McKenzie said.

McKenzie answers calls in the Rape Crisis Services office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The phone number there is 263-3312. After office hours, volunteers can be reached on their pagers. The Big Spring Police and employees of Malone-Hogan Hospital can reach a volunteer when a rape is reported.

"Our response time has been from five to 30 minutes," McKenzie said. "We are supposed to be called whether or not a victim wants us" with them, McKenzie explained. The purpose behind this reasoning is that a victim "may change her mind and decide that she needs support."

Because the police and medical personnel are busy with their professional duties of the situation, they cannot offer the support a victim may need, McKenzie said. Volunteers step in with that support.

"We tell the victim that we are there to offer our services... We allow them to realize (the assault) is a crisis in their life and let them know a friend is there for them."

Volunteers will stay with a victim through the medical exam, statements to the police, trial and recovery period.

"We want to get them back to the point in time before the rape happened," McKenzie said.

Not all victims need the support of volunteers, McKenzie said. Some "have a good support system at home."

Other families require counseling to help everyone come to terms with what has happened. Most cases require 40 to 50 hours of supportive services following an assault.

To critics who say Rape Crisis Services are not needed in Big Spring, McKenzie answers: "If this were an idyllic community with no crime" that would be true. "But we've found by looking at statistics that we have as many if not more sexual assaults" in this community as in larger communities.

McKenzie said she believes incidences of sexual assault may be higher here because of the economy. When people become frustrated, crime statistics often climb.

Rape Crisis Services is funded from city and county funds, from donations and from available grants. At present, the center is operating with the aid of a grant from the Texas Department of Health.

Directors include Sam Hill, president; Victor Sedinger, vice president; Shirley Shroyer, treasurer; and Diane Linhart, secretary. Fund raisers are Lea Whitehead and Esther Lopez. Gail Earls is on-call director.

The center has male as well as female counselors and volunteers are available to speak to clubs and civic groups. McKenzie also conducts workshops, such as a recent workshop at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Case workers work with the Department of Human Resources on child sexual assaults.

In the future, McKenzie hopes to "implement in-school educational programs with students, parents and teachers, so everyone will know what we're doing."

The center also is hoping to expand on counseling services. Programs for surrounding counties are also in the planning stages.

McKenzie would also like to do more research on the reasons behind violent crime and help prepare some "effective, preventive measures. No one really knows which measures work and which do not."

"We've got a long way to go, but there is hope for the future and for victims."

McKenzie said victims must know that "there is someone here for them. We will not stand by and let violence continue. There is life after rape."

Acids are ruining books, say experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the nation's libraries "deacidify" their collections, 90 percent of their holdings won't survive the turn of the century.

Deacidification is a process where an acid-neutralizing agent — liquid or gas — is passed through paper by vacuum to remove acids that promote paper deterioration.

One such process has been developed by scientists at the Library of Congress, where an estimated 6 million volumes out of 17 million already are brittle from acid activity. A deacidification facility funded by Congress will process the books.

Oil field

There are dangers for both men out in the patch. "There's quite a few people hurt," said Morales. "It just happens."

"When the wind starts blowing or the lightning starts striking, that's when you start thinking about it," said Morales, who's up in the towering derricks.

"I've been lucky. The only problem is that I strained my back once," he said, knocking on the wood coffee table.

The main hazard of Churchwell's job is being exposed to hydrogen sulfide gas, a sour gas from oil that paralyzes the respiratory system.

Although there is a possibility that Churchwell could be hurt. "I just try not to think about it," his wife said. Mrs. Morales gets worried when the winds start gusting or tornadoes are reported in the area.

With the company Churchwell works for, there are good benefits, he said, and security for a family.

The reason Morales stays with oilfield work is for the money. "Overtime is when you really rake it up," he said. "It's hard work, but it pays off."

"You've got to know how to save your money with those big checks to make those smaller checks balance out," Morales said.

"You get used to these big checks and then it goes down and all your budgets go haywire," Mrs. Morales said.

Churchwell is attending Howard College to get an associate degree in petroleum technology. "It'll help me learn a little more about what's going on" in the oil business, Churchwell said.

"If I could find (a job) that paid as much, I would change quick," said Morales.

"I've always worked outside," said Churchwell, but working inside, in an airconditioned office is something he would like to try at least once, he said.

Cousins often married in mid-1700s

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Kinship played an important part in nuptials in the mid-1700s and "kissin' cousins" often became marriage partners in colonial New England, says a professor of history at the University of Rochester.

Through an analysis of demographic information gleaned from property ownership records of East Guilford, Conn., John J. Waters found that in one out of four families, at least one child married a cousin.

Brothers and sisters from one family often chose mates from the siblings of another family. About 12 percent of the families Waters studied engaged in this marital exchange of siblings. Thus almost 40 percent of the families were related.

Sodium in water adds to hypertension

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sodium in the community drinking water supply may make a small but significant contribution to elevations in blood pressure, according to research reported in Internal Medicine News.

In a survey conducted by Tulane University School of Medicine and state public officials, levels of sodium in the drinking water supply were measured in 40 parishes distributed throughout the state of Louisiana.

The prevalence of hypertension, or high blood pressure, ranged from 23.6 percent in parishes with the lowest sodium content to 38.4 percent in those with the highest.

The association of drinking water levels with hypertension persisted among individuals with or without a family history of hypertension, cardiovascular disease, or stroke, and in smokers and non-smokers.

'Health Night Out' to kick off Monday

Diseases of the eye will be the first topic covered during a series of Health Night Out seminars beginning Monday at Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to Emily Ward, public relations director for the hospital.

Monday's meeting begins at 7 p.m. at the hospital. Dr. Harvey DuBiner, ophthalmologist at Malone and Hogan Clinic, will teach the seminar which is offered free of cost. The seminar is titled "You and Your Eyes" and will include a slide presentation on general information about the eye and a question and answer session following a lecture.

Ward said participants should contact the hospital so an idea of how many will attend can be tabulated.

Brochures on learning disabilities such as dyslexia, reading and perceptual problems; eye injuries; prevention and first aid; macular degeneration; amblyopia — how it might affect your child's sight; diabetic retinopathy; glaucoma; and cataracts will be available through the American Academy of Ophthalmology.

Ward said Malone-Hogan's announcement of the quarterly seminars drew requests from local health organizations for co-sponsorship. Administrator Wayne Brannon said he welcomes group sponsorship.

"He feels that we should be supporting the general public's need for credible information about health problems and disease," said Ward. "People are interested in taking control of their health problems. They're doing it in record numbers. They want reassurance that what they read or what they're taught in non-medical settings is medically correct. Physicians and local health resources can provide this."

Dr. Donald Crockett, a surgeon at Malone and Hogan Clinic, said the co-sponsorship by local health groups will allow a sharing of materials. Groups such as the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society and the Diabetes Foundation will be providing materials for future seminars. Ward said, "By creating Health Night Out, we have the potential to meet a lot of needs of the community for support in health diseases and the problems that surround them."

Ward said the hospital has no fear of running out of topics for the Health Night Out series. Proposed topics include depression, hypertension, women's health, nutrition and emergency care in heart attacks.

"As the public interests change, so will the need for seminar topics," Ward said.

Local groups are asked to contact her for a list of topics planned for Health Night Out. The hospital will work with each group to showcase their program and provide ways to get their resources into the community. The hospital's phone number is 915-263-1211.

Members of Garden Club Council discuss projects for coming year

Projects for the coming year were recently discussed by members of the Garden Club Council in Big Spring.

Officers for the group include Mrs. Clyde Angel, president; Mrs. F.C. Tubbs, vice president; Mrs. O.S. Womack, secretary-reporter; Mrs. Paul Guy, treasurer; and Mrs. C.Y. Clinkscales, projects chairwoman.

The annual council luncheon will be held Oct. 12 and will feature a book review by Angel and a style show.

Tickets will be sold by all council members. Money raised will be used for three scholarships for horticulture-related majors at Howard College.

Three $500 scholarships will be given to students majoring in any horticulture-related major such as landscape design, floral design, parks, forestry, agronomy, agriculture, botany and conservation. The scholarships are from the Johnny Johansen Scholarship Fund.

The council adopted a new project that calls for planting bluebonnet seeds at all elementary school grounds with the help of third graders. Garden club members will supervise the planting.

Naomi Hunt, county extension agent, requested that the council consider this project and asked the council to furnish 38 pounds of bluebonnet seeds and supervise the planting. The project is being held in conjunction with the state's Sesquicentennial.

Another Sesquicentennial project discussed was a decision for all garden clubs to plant as many as 16 pecan trees in each zone of Texas. Big Spring is located in the Southern Zone. Each local garden club will consider this project.

Angel suggested that the council consider planting as many pecan trees and other types of trees at the fair grounds and other public places.

The Chamber of Commerce board asked council members to serve on litter campaigns in the city. The main project will be to serve as members of the committee to list eyesores around the city and to give locations, owners' names and recommendations.

The annual Horticultural Flower Show will be held at the fair barns Sept. 16-21. The show will be open to the public at 3 p.m. Sept. 16. The theme will be "Sesquicentennial Spirit Grows in Big Spring and Howard County." Mrs. C.Y. Clinkscales is general chairman.

Angel reported on the 1985 CLEAN campaigns from April to June. She said the project covered seven areas and 3,965 pounds of trash was picked up and hauled away.

Dating service started for rural singles in Minnesota

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Dean Budde believes people in rural America have enough problems dealing with farm financial shortfalls that they shouldn't have to cope with another kind of shortage: a lack of love.

"Back in my days, in the '50s, we had a lot of dances where you could meet people," said the 52-year-old farmer and entrepreneur who lives just west of Mankato. But lately, Budde said, a farmer seeking companionship can find it tougher than getting more credit from the bank.

So in December, Budde — who has been single for the past six years — began Rural Singles of America. For $20 a person gets two editions of listings of other rural singles in Minnesota and around the country. Subscribers can also run an ad describing themselves and what type of person they're looking for. The ads include addresses and phone numbers.

"5'9," 149 pounds, 29 years old, pretty, non-smoking Protestant, employed," says one ad. "Likes the arts, enjoys old movies." "Howard, 62 years old, likes farming, church, home life," says another. "Does not like always on the go, eating out a lot and smoking."

Or "Sylvia, an attractive 53-year-old widow (overweight but losing), non-smoker, social drinker ... can operate most farm equipment ... willing to share lots of TLC."

Budde's second volume of Rural Singles contains 150 listings of single people, three times more than the initial issue.

It has subscribers from Canada to Texas and Colorado to the eastern borders of the farm belt. Budde said his is the only service he knows of devoted to rural singles.

"I had a call the other day from a lady in Louisiana who said this service was the best thing she ever heard of. Rural people really need a place to meet others," Budde said.

He said he heard that the Twin Cities area has almost a two-to-one ratio of women over men and many urban areas have an even higher ratio of women to men.

Q.: I've a rather unusual problem. Although we are ready to sell our home (its too large for the two of us) I'm afraid the sentimental attachment may influence us in negotiations. Any advice?

A.: This is frequently a problem occurring with the "family home". However, keep in mind, the most important thing in the sale of your house is the price. Through the years of making payments on the house you have created a valuable asset. And, this house has turned into a salable item, and as such, you should be concerned about getting the best return possible on that investment. Perhaps the first thing you and your wife should do is begin referring to it as a "house" instead of a "home". Then, let your real estate agent handle the showing of the house and the negotiations.

Ag-related courses attracting women

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Not only are many non-farm youths majoring in agriculture at Pennsylvania State University, but women are increasingly preparing for a wide variety of agricultural occupations.

Today's enrollments are a far cry from 1859, when 69 young men studied science and practical agriculture, says Gene Love, associate dean for resident education in the College of Agriculture. Now, 40 percent of all agriculture majors at Penn State are women, studying everything from agronomy to wildlife science. And 80 percent of all the agriculture undergraduates are coming from suburban and urban areas.

Women are more prone to iron deficiencies

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Should a woman long-distance runner take iron supplements? Is it true that women are more prone to becoming iron-deficient than men athletes? — O.H.

Women are more susceptible to the problem of iron deficiency. In a group of middle- and long-distance runners studied, more than 80 percent of the women were iron-deficient compared with about 30 percent of the males. However, the woman should not take an iron supplement unless she finds, through a blood count, that she is deficient.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a retired 72-year-old male in good condition. At a fitness center I spend about 25 minutes in gym exercise six days a week, always followed by five minutes in a whirlpool, then 20 minutes swimming. Before breakfast I walk fast for 30 minutes. My question: Doesn't all this sweating get rid of sodium? — H.G.D.

Sweat is around 99 percent water. It contains only very small amounts of sodium and equally small amounts of potassium, chloride, sugar and lactic acid. Generally speaking, an athlete doesn't have to be concerned about sweating and chemical imbalance. As you get used to sweating you lose less and less sodium. So even though you do lose some, it really isn't enough to change the body sodium balance very much. A quart of sweat has between five and 50 mEq of sodium (mEq is milliequivalent). The lower number represents the sodium concentration in sweat once you've become used to the climate, etc.

There's an exception. Early in a rigorous training program, such as those grueling summer football camps, there might be a bit too much sodium lost. Such losses can be corrected by an extra shake or two of the salt shaker at the dinner table. And that should be necessary only for the first few days of the training, until the body adjusts.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You speak of cold first, then heat for a joint injury. I understand the cold part, but how does one know just when to start the heat? — P.G.

That's a good question and one that always comes up. If the initial cold application is getting rid of swelling, then you can continue with it for several applications a day for a day or two longer. That gives the area time to heal and it limits the area of inflammation. After that you can start the heat. It relaxes muscles, eases any residual pain and, most importantly, encourages full blood circulation to the damaged area.

If the cold application doesn't reduce a swelling, then it's time to have the joint X-rayed. If joint pain continues when you apply heat, then that, too, is an indication you need a closer look at what's going on in the joint.

FOR MRS. H.D. — Advise your athlete son not to get anabolic steroid injections. They can be dangerous. And his sharing of a needle with teammates can add to the dangers — disease transmission being but one example.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to: Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 77920. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS

Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom, or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS

If a wedding writup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS

Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Storkclub information.

Information needed for Storkclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.

Disabilities need not take fun out of summer

ATLANTA (AP) — You may be wondering about taking a vacation if you have disabilities caused by a condition such as arthritis. But arthritis doesn't have to take the fun out of summer, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

It says the key to traveling successfully if you have disabilities is advance planning. Consult a travel agent for advice on hotels that are modified for people with physical handicaps. An agent that specializes in planning trips for people with disabilities can be particularly helpful.

Dear Abby

Sharing space with roommate is becoming a burden

DEAR ABBY: My problem is sharing space with my roommate, who insists on having her boyfriend over up to five nights a week. He often stays overnight. I've come home from work to find them eating — just enough for themselves, nothing for me!

Sometimes I'd like to just rest and watch TV, but I can't because her boyfriend is doing his homework. (He's 35.)

I have guests, too, but never this often. Occasionally I go to their place. My roommate says she doesn't like her boyfriend's place, so he comes here. I said this is unfair to me. My roommate insists it's her right to have guests whenever she pleases.

Recently I was informed that her mother is coming for a month's stay. This I can tolerate because there's definitely a beginning and an end; with the boyfriend, there's no end.

She may want to live with him, but I don't. I've tried to communicate with her, but get no response. What should I do?

NEEDING SPACE IN SYRACUSE

DEAR NEEDING: If you haven't heard of "assertiveness training," find a therapist who teaches it to people who (a) make a habit of letting other people push them around, (b) are too passive for their own good, (c) are tired of being abused, but write to Dear Abby asking how to put a stop to it.

DEAR ABBY: I am due to have a baby very soon and am confused about one thing: The baby's father is the third to have the same name in his family. His grandfather, who is still living, is "Senior," his father is "Junior" and my boyfriend is "the Third."

Since we are not married, can I name my baby "the Fourth"? Or can I name him after his grandfather with no numerals after it?

MOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR MOTHER-TO-BE: To be absolutely certain that you would be acting within your legal rights, consult a lawyer. And regardless of the legal decision, I think you should discuss this with your boyfriend.
