Wreck highway Bus crash kills 7

CHICAGO (AP) - A city bus crushed a car that swerved in front of it at a busy lakefront intersection Friday, killing seven people in the automobile who were heading for a Bruce Springsteen concert, authorities said.

Sixty bus passengers were injured, authorities said.

Those killed had been "thrilled to get the tickets" for the concert at Soldier Field, about a mile away from the site of the wreck, said Sue the bus, said she thought the car, a green Cadillac, was trying to move into the left lane in front of the bus when the bus rode up over the car.

"The car cut in front of the bus," said Michael Kegle, a passenger on the bus. "It was trying to get off at an exit and it cut the bus off." He said the bus wound up on top of the car and crushed it.

A crane was used to remove the bus from the auto, said Jim Mor-Trizna, a sister of Bette Cipolle, 21, rison, a Fire Department of Joliet, one of those killed. Wreck page 2-A Rescuers work to remove the bodies of seven people in a car pinned underneath a Chicago Transit Authority bus after the two vehicles collided on an expressway near downtown Chicago. The people in the car were headed to a Bruce Springsteen concert.

A few good weed-eaters needed

Weeds choke a vacant lot on one of the city's main streets.

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer Weedy lots literally have come under attack.

City inspectors have been. cracking down on owners of weedy lots, junk cars and abandoned structures during the summer months, issuing citations and public notices to owners to clean their property.

Fire Marshal Jim Ryals, who is in charge of the weedy lot inspection program, said he "has been going at it hot and heavy."

About 10 public notices for bids on cleaning up weedy lots were published in today's Big Spring Herald. If owners don't respond to a certified letter from the city requesting them to clean their lots or the city is unable to locate the owners of the property, Ryals then seeks bids on eliminating the

If the city contracts with someone to clean the property, a lien is placed against the title to the land, Ryals said.

"Big Spring has been getting the reputation of being a weedy town," Ryals said. "We want to make the town look better.'

The overgrown weeds harbor snakes, rodents, and other vermin and also present fire and health hazards, he said.

"If they'd just clean them up once or twice during the summer, it wouldn't be so bad. But some of them have been let go for three or four years. Some are so bad that nobody wants to bid on (cleaning) them.

A 101-page brief submitted to State District Judge Harley Clark this week spelled out the operators' complaints about the May 13 commission order that requires white oil wells to be retested.

The brief was prepared by Austin lawyers Ivan Hafley and Lloyd Broussard. The deadline for the commission to respond is Aug. 19. The white oil trial is set for Sept. 6.

White oil is a water-white liquid that is produced by chilling vapor through the use of mechanical "LTX" units. LTX is an acronym for "low temperature extraction."

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawyers for million-acre Panhandle Field count the liquid as crude oil to meet the test ratio for an oil well - one barrel to less than 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

Phillips Petroleum Co. challenged this procedure before the commission in September 1981 but it was not until May that the regulatory agency issued its order. "Oil wells" that fail to meet the oilgas ratio would be sealed.

Phillips and "their allies" own gas rights in the field, the brief said, but the oil rights are primarily owned by families and individuals.

Phillips alleges that white operators are draining gas that belongs to them since an "oil well," under commission rules, also can produce up to 500,000 cubic feet of gas a day. Also, an oil well can be drilled on 10 acres, a gas well on no

Sarah McClendon still slings hardballs at the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) - At 75, after four decades of badgering presidents and bureaucrats, congressmen and Cabinet secretaries, Sarah McClendon still operates with the raw zeal of a cub reporter.

She is up at dawn and often on the phone past midnight, scribbling tips from whistle-blowers or outraged citizens. Then there's her active social life, which she says includes seven boyfriends.

Perhaps to the dismay of those stung by Ms. McClendon's biting questions and commentary, the feisty newswoman shows no signs of slowing down.

"I think there's a great deal of work to be done yet," she said at her Washington home, which doubles as the one-woman headquarters of McClendon News Service. "I'm going to write as long as can," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a recent interview

Ms. McClendon, who turned 75 on July 8, was honored by the Texas Breakfast Club with a birthday celebration, where many of the colorful anecdotes that have made her both revered and reviled in the nation's capital were resurrected. Ms. McClendon has firm roots in the Lone Star State, from her East Texas heritage to her professional ties as a correspondent for Texas newspapers

More than any other Washington reporter, Ms. McClendon has carved her reputation primarily by the hardball questions she has thrown at every president since Harry Truman. Her admirers consider her a credit to the profession; detractors call her an eccentric troublemaker.

Ms. McClendon has fielded insults from the highest levels. Nixon aide John Erlichman brushed aside a Ms. McClendon question to retort, "Now, if you've asked me whether you'd been to the beauty parlor, I'd say no." She was once 'disinvited'' from a party by former Sen. John Tower at the insistence of his wife, Lilla, who was furious about a McClendon story.

Those episodes hurt, she says But she finds solace in the accolades, mementos and awards that line the walls of a room she laughingly calls the "Chamber of Horrors." Her proudest honor is an 'excellence in journalism' award from the University of Missouri, her alma mater.

No one questions her commitment to the job. She is out of bed at 6 sharp, then devours four newspapers and starts working the phones before speeding across town to the 9:15 a.m. White House briefing. She also will hit Capitol Hill. Then she return home to write.

This has been a characteristic pace for years, though the scope of her journalistic endeavors has

Ms. McClendon devotes her attention these days to her national newsletter and radio and television appearances.

She also has assumed a growing role as personal advocate for the downtrodden. She recently befriended a beggar outside the White House who, it turned out, was a Vietnam veteran who Ms. McClendon says was shunted aside by the Veterans Administration.

Her constantly ringing phone is like a nationwide hotline, with story after story from someone who claims to be abused by big government. "It just breaks your heart sometimes," she says.

McClendon traces her populist instincts to her upbringing as the daughter of an East Texas Democratic leader. After graduating from the University of Missouri in 1931, she returned to East Texas and a job at the Tyler

She spent nearly 10 years working for Texas newspapers before World War II brought her to Washinton as a WAC, a period she remembers as "extremely lonely." She married a man "on the rebound," who left her alone and pregnant seven months later.

After her discharge from the Army, Ms. McClendon battled to raise her daughter alone and hold down a reporter's job in a maledominated profession. She lost her job in a regional newspaper bureau after male GIs returned to reclaim their jobs. With the help of her former employer, Bascom Timmons, she opened her bureau in

Ms. McClendon's life now evolves around her two loves - her daughter in Canada and her profession. She passed up chances to marry because her daughter didn't like the suitors. Count on her to spend the rest of life doing what she does best, says Ms. McClendon asking the tough questions.

DA probes bombing

PHILADELPHIA - Citing contradictory evidence about the bomb dropped on the fortified home of the radical group MOVE, the district attorney is launching a criminal investigation into the police explosive that started a $10 million fatal fire.

District Attorney Edward Rendell previousy had declined to get involved because he saw 'no evidence which would warrant investigation as to whether any criminal charges should be brought against" any city employee, his office said in a statement late Thursday

But he changed his mind after disclosure Wednesday night that the bomb contained the unauthorized military explosive C-4, which experts claim is used primarily for destruction.

Coca-Cola under fire

RANLO, N.C. (AP) — Coca-Cola promised Friday to try to fulfill the "all-American" promise of ads for clothes that carry its name, after some textile makers learned the garments were mostly stitched abroad and gave Coke machines the boot in retaliation.

'We made a mistake in not being aware of textile manufacturing in the United States." Ira C. Herbert, executive vice president of Coca-Cola in Atlanta, said after meeting with North Carolina textile executives.

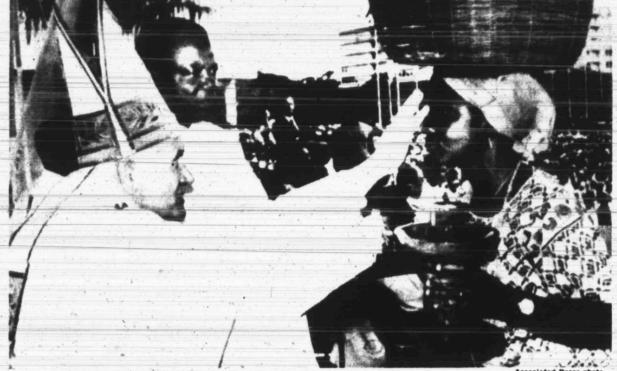

"We obviously were ignorant, but we are learning fast," he said. "We intend to do all we can to move Coke clothes into U.S. production, all of them.

Herbert met with about 50 textile executives for an hour and 45 minutes at the Yarn Spinners Association office here. Thousands of textile workers have been laid off because of slow sales caused by competition from lowerpriced imported textiles and garments.

2nd body found in crash

OKLAHOMA CITY - Firefighters found a second body Friday in the smoldering rubble of a house shattered by a jet fighter whose pilot had tried to steer it away from homes before he bailed out.

John Clabes, a spokesman at Tinker Air Force Base, said Friday that it could be weeks before Air Force officials know what caused the plane to crash. Authorities had said Thursday that the jet developed engine problems that forced the pilot to head for a secluded stretch of land and bail out as his jet glided to

Pope meets Togolese animists, sorcerers

TOGOVILLE, Togo (AP) - Pope John Paul II urged Togolese Christians on Friday to live in harmony with their countrymen who follow animist religions. He ordained 11 new priests and exhorted them to seek friendship among the nation's 40 tribes.

The pope then set out to meet the country's high priests and sorcerers Isaater in the day

The state-run television said the small West African nation's 2 million animists - who believe inanimate objects are imbued with spirits - awaited with 'intense interest" the encounter between their religious leaders and the head of the Roman Catholic Church About 70 percent of Togo's people follow tribal religions. Christian missionaries a century ago first set up their posts in Togoville, on a bluff overlooking the country's largest lake, so they could be close to the hub of the tribal religions. Vatican officials said a few moments of solitary prayer at Togoville's Virgin Mary shrine, erected by Roman Catholic missionaries, was a key reason the pope made the strenuous six-hour journey to Togoville, 280 miles north of Lome, the capital.

But the pope's meeting with the animist religious leaders, who live in a forest on the opposite side of Togoville's lake, was expected to overshadow his visit to the shrine. The high priests and sorcerers seldom emerge from the forest, which is considered sacred, and their appointment with the pope was interpreted as a special sign of respect for him.

The pope met with President Gnassingbe Eyadema in Togoville earlier in the day, his second of a 12-day, seven-nation tour of Africa.

Shielded from the tropical sun by a multicolored beach umbrella, John Paul spoke to hundreds of people from the balcony of the president's three-story villa, set on a rolling hill.

He urged Togo's Christian minority to live in peace and harmony with the animist majority.

By preaching harmony, the pope said, the Catholic church "helps to weave ever closer links of solidarity and mutual respect between the social and ethnic groups, between different cultures and religions and among the nations of the entire world.

At his private meeting with Eyadema, the pope seemed eager to bury memories of a bitter dispute between church and state a decade ago, when the president embarked on a campaign of "authenticity," changing his own Christian name, Etienne, to an African one and ordering his citizens to do likewise.

Hostages' stories differ

SAN CARLOS, Nicaragua — The 29 American peace activists who said they were held captive by rebels for a day arrived in this town on Lake Nicaragua on Friday, their spokesmen said. Fourteen journalists with the group arrived first, and new holes began to appear in the activists' story.
Steven Hall-Williams, the Washington spokesman for the Witness for Peace organization, said the group arrived by boat late in the afternoon.

The organization had repeatedly said there were 18 journalists with the group when - it claimed - anti-Sandinista rebels fired automatic weapons over the boat Wednesday on the San Juan River and forced the group to disembark on the Costa Rican side. The river is the boundary between the two Central American nations.

Kidnappers release 2

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Kidnappers in Lebanon have released two abducted foreigners, but there was no sign Friday that any of the other Western hostages would be released soon.

Kidnappers in southern Lebanon released a Canadian missionary after holding him for 12 hours Thursday, and the manager of ABC's Beirut office was freed in the capital after being held for five days.

Diplomats and intelligence sources in Beirut and Damascus said they had no expectation that seven Americans and four Frenchmen would be free soon. There had been a flurry of speculation following a Kuwaiti newspaper's report that they would be released Wednesday.

Walesa's priest warned

WARSAW, Poland — A priest who is a close adviser to Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said a state prosecutor warned him Friday that he risks arrest if he continues alleged "anti-state activities.

The Rev. Henryk Jankowski, the provost of St. Brygida's Church in the Baltic port city of Gdansk, said he was questioned for 40 minutes at the prosecutor's office. Jankowski, contacted by telephone at his rectory, said the prosecutor accused him of delivering "inciting sermons which could cause social disturbances."

Promoters sponsor the Sew-It-With Cotton Contest in conjunction with the Howard County Fair. The purpose of the contest is to create a public awareness of the importance of the cotton industry to Howard County, the surrounding counties, and our economy; to show the uses of cotton from eating it to wearing it.

The Sew-It-With-Cotton Contest is open to any resident of Howard County or area counties. Entries must be made of at least 60 percent cotton and can be from an original design or a commercial pattern.

Entry forms are due by Sept. 11 and are available at local fabric stores or the County Extension Office. Contest judging will be at 12:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 14 at the Big Spring Mall. Awards will be presented following the fashion show at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17 at the Howard County Fair. For more information contact contest chairman, Beverly Jeffcoat at 263-4134

Characteristics of Cotton. Cotton can be styled into an array of fabrics, from cool lightweight knits to warm corduroys and velveteens. By changing fabric weights, finishes and garment styles, cotton or cotton-blend ensembles are suitable for many occasions and

Whatever the temperature outside, cotton and cotton-blend fabrics that contain at least 50 percent cotton are comfortable to wear. A natural fiber, cotton absorbs moisture from the skin, then allows it to evaporate. Cotton keeps the body comfortable through a range of temperatures.

Cotton is static-free, can be soft or crisp to the touch and sheds balls or pills on the fabric's surface. Cotton fabric can be dyed in a wide range of colors and is available in many colorfast prints and

Flame-resistant cottons are used in uniforms for fire fighters, in non-

Each year the Dryland Cotton pressurized space suits for astronauts and uniforms for other workers with specialized needs. Sleepwear, particularly for children, is available in flame-resistant cottons. Cotton is blended with other fibers to combine the best qualities of each fiber. Cotton can be blended with other natural fibers such as linen, wool and silk or with fibers such as polyester and rayon. Fabric blends containing at least 50 percent cotton perform more like all-cotton fabrics.

Care of Cotton. Today's cottons are easy to care for. Read labels for specific performance features. Because of recent permanent press advances, cotton fabric can shed wrinkles and does not require ironing. Shrinkage has also been controlled. To maintain these qualities, carefully follow care instructions on laundry products and on clothing or household items. Permanent press washer and dryer cycles relax wrinkles. Do not overload the washer or the dryer. Remove clothes promptly from the washer to prevent dye transfer to other items. Also remove items from the dryer so they do not form wrinkles. A brief tumbling in a warm dryer may remove or reduce wrinkles.

Cotton fibers are durable and strong and can be washed at high water temperatures, chlorine bleached and dryed at high temperatures is safe for the fabric and garment style, dyes and other finishes

Bleach removes certain stains and whitens whites. High water temperatures can be used for washing heavily soiled items or pesticide removal. High dryer temperatures may be needed for thick or bulky items.

Clean all clothing or household items before storing them because insects are attracted to soiled clothes and will particularly attack food stains, leaving holes. Cottons will mildew if stored damp.

Tomato problems abundant in county

Howard County Extension Agent

Tomatoes have been beseiged by research shows that calcium apa number of problems in recent weeks and this week we are going to discuss some of those in our col

CURLY TOP VIRUS. This disease is a common problem in tomatoes and many other vegetables. The virus is spread by the sugarbeet leafhopper. Leafhoppers build up in high numbers on tumbleweeds and other summer annual plants. They survive the winter on winter annual plants such as mustards. The disease can become severe when heavier than normal rains occur during the fall and winter which support the growth of winter annual plants. The most striking symptom of the disease is plant stunting. Early in the season, diseased plants growing next to healthy ones appear healthy except for being much smaller, and they may be quite stiff and erect. Spring transplanted ones from direct seeding. As the disease progresses, leaves curl upward and twist so as to expose the undersides. They gradually become leathery and stiff, turn a dull yellow, and are warm to the touch. The veins may turn purplish. The roots die gradually. Diseased plants produce little or no fruit. Early infected plants die early in the season.

plants are more often affected than

BLOSSOM-END ROT. As the name implies, injury starts at the blossom end of the fruit. The first noticeable symptom is the appearance of a watersoaked spot that enlarges and becomes brown and leathery. One half or more of the fruit may become affected.

Root pruning, fluctuations in water supply, salinity, heavy applications of nitrogen fertilizers. and lack of calcium are associated with blossom-end rot.

Control this disorder by providing a uniform supply of water. Soil mulches may help. Some plications can reduce the occurrence of blossom-end rot.

NON-INFECTIOUS LEAF ROLL. This sometimes occurs during hot weather and when soils are too wet or dry, or when there is a nutrient imbalance. It sometimes occurs after close cultivation and extremely close pruning, and it is worse on staked tomatoes. On some varieties, leaf roll may be quite pronounced. Leaves start rolling from the bottom of the plant and proceed until nearly all leaves are affected. Ordinarily, plants produce an almost normal crop.

Leaf roll can be reduced by planting tomatoes in a well-drained soil and by watering and fertilizing

CATFACE. Catface is a condition in which fruits become malformed and scarred; fruits are puckered and may have cavities extending deep into the flesh. Extreme heat, drought, low temperatures, insects, and herbicide sprays can contribute to this problem. Some varieties are especially subject to catface injury. No adequate controls are available for catface. Most modern commercial varieties are not susceptible to the condition. When practical, remove malformed fruit as early as possible.

SUNSCALD. A light spot on the side of the fruit facing the sun is the first symptom of sunscald. Later, there is blistering. Finally, a large, flattened, grayish-white spot with a dry paperlike surface forms. These spots are often invaded by decaycausing organisms.

Sunscald may be quite pronounced on plants that have suddenly lost leaves because of verticillium wilt or early blight. Control by preventing diseases that cause leaves to shed. Home gardeners may avoid losses by covering exposed fruit with straw or other suitable

Ambulance service means business

In the urgency of situations requiring ambulance service, people realize the necessity of the operation, but they seldom think of it as a business.

Charles Ginn, owner of the only ambulance service in Big Spring, believes it is important that the public comes to this realization.

Ginn began operating Lee Ambulence Service in May after purchasing Shaffer Ambulance Service from John Korrell and changing the business name.

The name changed, but the personnel and location did not. The service still operates five ambulances out of 1406 Main. Korrell is still with the service as a paramedic.

Ginn said he bought the business to try to get "an established on-going service in Big Spring." Ginn has added new equipment to the ambulances, and six members on the staff are now licensed as paramedics.

He said he changed the name in order to give his service an entire new face to add to the new equipment and training. It is named for his wife, Lee

The main goal of Lee Ambulance is to provide the equipment and staff required to save lives. The service then must meet a second objective: to remain financially stable. This is a must in fulfilling the first goal, Ginn said.

One of the largest problems is collecting money for emergency runs. People people don't realize "it takes pretty close to $20,000 a month just to pay the bare necessities of keeping the thing (ambulance service) Ginn said.

The basic rate for the run is $80; the price will vary, though, depending on the needs of the patient, he said.

When an emergency situation occurs, "financial statements don't matter"; the most important thing is to see that victims of illness or accident receive the necessary care to sustain life, Ginn said

With added equipment and training to the service, "we can do the same thing on the field in a cardiac patient as they can do in the emergency room," Beverly Winn, daughter of Ginn and manager of the service, said. The specialized training and equipment added to the service has given the staff "the means to stay on the scene and stabilize" victims, she said.

This is a significant improvement in that, as Ginn said, "the emergency room treatment starts when the back doors of the ambulance open. The service works under the "standing protocol" of a licensed physician at all times, Winn

The paramedics also have a monthly training meeting with the doctor in order to find ways to improve the service for patients, she said.

Lee Ambulance is staffed with five full-time employees and three part-time employees. Two are in the office at all times with two other crews on call. After the tragic July bus accident on Highway 87 that killed four people, the service dispatched five crews within 15 minutes, Winn said.

But even with new equipment and additional training, the crews are not always able to prevent death. She said this is "tough" on paramedics, in-cluding herself. "You may want to shake it off (a patient's death), but I don't think you

Restructure revitalizes

From 1980 to 1983, the Livonia, Mich., Cadillac engine plant of the General Motors Corp. was restructured from top to bottom. Since then, productivity has shot up well over 100 percent, controllable costs are down more than 50 percent, machine up-time has risen by more than a third, and absenteeism has plummeted by more than 50 percent. In 1979 the plant employed 400; today the number is 1,400 and

The story of the Livonia revitalization is related in detail in process with him.

The book relates that every step of that process was marked by painstaking efforts to destroy the commonplace "we-they" unionmanagement relationship - efforts that involved no magic formula other than care, listening, openness, trust, conviction, patience and persistence. (Within the union itself, the rank and file was even more skeptical than the leaders.)

After much cajoling of the union leaders and company managers, Strammy convinced them to risk a two-day "retreat." There a cooperative philosophy was ham-mered out: "Don't force the issue." A 15-person planning group now labeled the "Livonia Planning Team" was appointed; it included more than 30 percent union shop floor people and required of each participant 50 percent of his or her time — for a full year!

Visits to observe new worklife experiments at dozens of other GM facilities were part of the revitalization effort, as was noholds barred assessment of why quality and productivity problems existed. (To aid in the assessment, the Planning Team was given complete access to the company's previously most sensitive operating results.)

Eventually, the Planning Team developed the "Livonia Engine Plant Operating Philosophy, which called for restructuring the entire plant into eight- to 15-person work groups. Now called "Business Teams," the work

Furthermore, the Business Teams are "leaderless" by traditional standards: General Foremen, GM's second level of management, have disappeared entirely; foremen, the first level of management, have been placed in fewer numbers by "Team Coordinators.'

While management gave up levels of supervision, the unions largely eliminated specialist job the forthcoming book "Transform- designations. Quality Operator. Moreover, the Quality Operator advances on the job via a new "pay for knowledge" program, wherein he or she learns every job on a minimum of two Business Teams. Finally, job rotation and team-to-team transfer have become commonplace.

Other aspects of the Livonia transformation include the elimination of private parking spots and management dining rooms; the wearing of shirt-sleeves and no ties by the management (rather than white shirts and ties); team and individual suggestion awards; widespread information sharing; weekly team and allhands plant meetings; a weekly plant newspaper; complete employee involvement in plant decorations; appraisal programs focusing upon the individual's support of the Business Team; and development of technical support teams to assist (not dictate to) Business Teams.

The participants in the Livonia turnaround and I wholeheartedly believe that most of the recent, highly touted factory change programs are "Band-Aids" or "PR showpieces." The reduction of lavers and categories at Livonia was a lengthy and methodical process involving all of the interlocking systems that had led to unsatisfactory work practices and conditions, and to lack of mutual respect. Most significant of all, the process did not require government assistance (like tax incentives); it simply involved people groups are highly autonomous by who cared and persevered

Entrepreneur considers country store for Big Spring

By Johnnie Lou Avery

One possibility being considered by an entrepreneur for the Old Towne Big Spring area is a "country store" that would attract tourists but would also serve as the base for a large mail-order operation

More than 90 percent of respondents in a survey of Better Homes and Gardens subscribers have purchased merchandise from mail-order catalogs. And even more said they enjoyed catalogs received in the mail, even if they haven't asked for them. The survey was part of a study to develop information on consumer attitudes and marketing trends. More than 60 percent said they shop by mail for various reasons: convenience, time saved, unique items and price.

LEE TREVINO shoots a birdie putt in the hole on the front nine during the second round of the PGA Championship at Cherry Hills Country Club in Denver. TREVINO fired a four under-par 68 to remain in strong contention for his second consecutive PGA title.

Trevino grabs lead

DENVER (AP) - Lee Trevino, intent, grinding and not-so-verymerry, followed his $50 putter to a 3-under-par 68 and a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the PGA national championship.

'The only reason I'm in this position is the putter. I putted the eyes out of it," said Trevino, the defending title-holder in this, the last of the season's Big Four golf events.

And it was for the same reason, the putter, that Jack Nicklaus found himself in a position that has become increasingly and unhappily familiar - buried back in the pack.

"Aggravating, frustrating, disappointing, downright lousy," Nicklaus said after a 75 that sent him from two strokes off the lead to a spot seven shots back at the halfway point of the 67th PGA.

"I don't think I ever missed so many short putts," said Nicklaus, who has won a record 17 major professional titles but nothing at all in more than a year.

While Nicklaus dropped back, Tom Watson hung in there.

Watson, needing this title to become only the fifth man to score a career sweep of the Grand Slam tournaments, fought his way to a one-under-par 70 that put him at the tournament halfway point at 137, five under par and only three

"I'm in good position," Watson said. "I'm playing reasonably well. But Lee is gonna be a hard man to beat. Anytime he gets in front, he's a hard man to beat," Watson said.

Trevino, like Nicklaus a 45-yearold, completed two trips over the Cherry Hills Country Club course in 134, eight shots under par.

But he was strangely subdued and distant - not at all the brash and brassy "Merry Mex" of his younger days. ne
"I don't think I'm hitting the ball 71 all that great. I really don't. I'm not hitting it nearly as good as I did at Shoal Creek (last year in the PGA). Not nearly," Trevino said. "But I've had 55 putts in two rounds and that makes up for a lot of bad hitting," he said, then flashed an infectious grin.

"If I can shoot two more rounds in the 60s, I think I can win. That'd be eight straight rounds in the 60s in the PGA. If I did that, they ought to give me the PGA, let me take Mickey Powell's (PGA president) place.

Then he turned serious again. "I don't care about that. I just want to win again," he said. Fred Couples, an easy-going, long-hitting, low-key man who once won the Tournament Players Championship, became Trevino's closest challenger when he shot a bogey-free round of 65 that lifted him to within a single shot of the lead at 135.

"I made the birdies I had to make to get back in the thick of it," Couples said.

He was followed by former U.S. Open champion Hubert Green and first round leader Doug Tewell at no fun. Now I'm back. And it's fun again," Green said.

Watson and Peter Jacobsen were next at 137. Jacobsen matched par

Nicklaus, now needing two very good rounds if he is to achieve a sixth PGA title, was tied at 141 with Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany at 141. Langer had a 72 that included a double bogey on the 18th hole.

U.S. Open champion Andy North, a former winner at Cherry Hills, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. He had a 76 that put him at Curtis Strange, winner of three titles and $527,581 already this season, also was a casualty at 76-153.

Arnold Palmer, that 55-year-old living legend who won the U.S. Open on this course a quartercentury ago, shot a 72 and was at Trevino, who normally uses an iron off the tee on the second hole, found himself facing a stiff breeze. changed his game plan and went to the driver. And he regretted it. he drove into the woods and made his only bogey of the day.

Trevino, using the same putter with which he won his second PGA title last year, dropped birdie putts of 25 and 15 feet on the sixth and eighth holes and one-putted for par two times on the front side

On the back, he holed from 8-10 feet for birdies on the 13th and 17th and then, twirling that putter purchased for $50 in The Netherlands last year, he drilled home a 10-footer to save par on the 18th: 'Not a bad investment for $50,'

Camacho ready for 'Moment of Truth'

Camacho, 23, who pulled out of a scheduled June 6 bout with irez because of an ankle injury suffered in a basketball game, predicted it would be a 'great fight."

Ramirez, 26, will be making the first defense of the title he won Nov. 3 at San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he stopped Edwin Rosario in the fourth round.

The champion has won 90 of 94 professional fights, including two nontitle victories this year. He turned pro when he was 14 and has been fighting for 12

But Camacho has belittled that record and the quality of some of the opponents Ramirez has faced.

"I don't recognize anyone on his record," said Camacho. Ramirez says he will make Camacho recognize him Saturday night. 'He's a big mouth, I'm the quiet one," Ramirez, who speaks no English, said through an interpreter Camacho believes the bout will be "big because of me.

Camacho, born in Puerto Rico but raised in New York, will be seeking his second title in the scheduled 12-round bout. He gave up the WBC super featherweight crown after making only one defense to move up in weight.

"I'm here to win," said Camacho, who proclaimed himself "in the best shape of my life.'

He'll have to be in shape against Ramirez, who has more knockouts (74) than Camacho has pro fights (27). But Camacho hasn't lost and possesses remarkably quick

Lady Steers volleyball ready to start

Late summer in West Texas. The time of year when anybody with a heartbeat turns their attention to football. Time for the boys to strap on the pads and girls to start practicing their cheers. Inside the stifling Steer gym, away from the grunts of gridiron heroes and cheerleader's precise squeals, the thundering sound of spiked leather and tumbling bodies goes unnoticed.

The Lady Steer volleyball season is close at hand, and though you may have lost these girls in the football shuffle, come mid-fall, chances are, you'll know all about

Troubled Tony waits

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer DALLAS (AP) - Life is batter-

Within a year, his father died, his marriage fell apart, and the Internal Revenue Service attached his $21,000 monthly paychecks.

Now, the Cowboys' captain is feuding with the team, saying he's been double-crossed and seeking justice with a Randy White-style, multimillion-dollar contract or a so he "won't be a financial cripple when his playing days are over.' 'It's always a disppointment when a player gets himself in that kind of position," he said.

Dorsett, 31, who hasn't received a paycheck since last October because of the IRS action, owed the agency $414,247.91 in back taxes plus interest because it disallowed some tax shelters he submitted.

A settlement has since been worked out, whereby Dorsett must pay $200,000 now and the rest within a year. Bad investments also ate heavily WACO, Texas (AP) - Dale Stanton hit a three-run homer in the third inning to spark Sagemont-Beverly Hills of Houston to its second state Little League title with a 7-4 win over Baytown West.

Sagemont-Beverly Hills, which took the title Thursday night, also was the state champion in 1983. The three-run homer by Stanton made the score 5-1 and Sagemont-Beverly Hills scored two other runs in the fifth inning with an RBI double by Chris McKinley.

Baytown West scored all its runs with shots over the fence. Scott Marquart and Jacinto Constante hit solos in the second and fourth innings and Alex Alegria hit a two-run homer in the fifth.

In Loving Memory of D.J. Justice August 10, 1957 to January 31, 1984 HOW CAN IT BE

First in my heart, then first to go Deep down inside I want to know How can that be, it seems so wrong, He is there where I belong. Yet I know we have no power

To choose the place, the day, the hour, For if we could I would have gone And left him here to carry on. Not so he'd feel the pain I've felt Or curse the eards that fate has dealt, But, rather so he'd still have life And maybe find a loving wife, Enjoy his children, travel far, Buy for himself that special car. Laugh with his brothers, care for Dad, These are the plans for him I had. And now it seems life's turned about, My world's suddenly inside out How can it be, it seems so wrong He is there where I belong. The echo of his last soft sigh Will haunt me 'til the day I die.

We miss you. Mom, Dad, Joe, Paul, M.B. Courtney & Cameron
