How's that?

Hummingbirds

Q. When should I take in my hummingbird feeder?

A. Take it in Oct. 1 or at the first cold spell. Watch for when the trumpet vines stop blooming. When the birds can't get nectar from the flower, they will fly south for the winter, according to Big Spring ornithologist Bebe McCasland.

Calendar

Play day

TODAY

• All area riders are invited to a closed play day sponsored by the Howard County Youth Horsemen Association at 7 p.m. in their arena on the Garden City Highway. The concession stand will be open.

• All elementary students in grades 1-5 who are planning to attend Big Spring schools need to register at the school of assignment. Any kindergarten students who did not register last spring also need to register.

• Gospel singing will be at 7 p.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center. Public invited.

THURSDAY

• All returning students and new students in the Coahoma school district should register from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. if they will be in kindergarten through the 8th grade. High school registration is as follows: 9th grade — 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.; 10th grade — 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.; 11th grade — 12 p.m. to 1 p.m.; and 12th grade — 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. All previously enrolled students will pick up their class schedules at the above listed times for their grade level. High school students also will have their pictures made and 1985 annuals may be picked up at this time.

• Seventh and eighth grade students in the Grady Independent School District will register from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the principal's office.

• State Rep. Larry Don Shaw will address the Association of Texas Professional Educators at 4 p.m. in the Big Spring High School library.

County workers to get raise

Commissioners approve 4 percent salary hike for 1985-86

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners approved a 4 percent pay raise for county employees and allocated $60,000 over the next three years to the Chamber of Commerce downtown steering committee during their meeting Monday afternoon.

County Judge Milton Kirby cast a tie-breaking vote in favor of the salary increase, which will be effective in the 1985-86 fiscal year.

Commissioners William Crocker and O.L. Brown voted in favor of Brown's motion to approve a salary increase. He initially motioned for a 5 percent increase but withdrew the request and remodified his motion.

Commissioners David Barr and

Paul Allen opposed the motion.

Barr argued in favor of allocating a $45-a-month raise hike for each county employee. He said an across-the-board raise would benefit lower-salaried employees who need the money for necessities.

Others at the meeting, including county clerk Margaret Ray and county engineer William Mims, said salary increases based on percentages were justified because they benefit seniority level employees whose jobs incorporate more responsibility.

County employee raises will not affect the current tax rate, which is projected to remain at 22 cents per $100 property valuation.

County Auditor Jackie Olson told commissioners that enough money is available in the general and road and bridge funds to cover the salary increases. A scheduled transfer of monies from those funds to the equipment operating fund would establish a surplus, she said.

She asked the court's permission to allow monies to remain in their original funds.

TEC closes day workers program

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Few problems occurred Monday when the local Texas Employment Commission's day workers program shut down, said office manager Joe Wallis.

The program, which finds temporary jobs for day-to-day workers, had to be terminated because it took up too large a portion of the TEC staff's time, Wallis said. Out-of-town workers' job applications constantly had to be updated, which took "all morning," decreasing the TEC's efficiency, he said.

Wallis estimated 20 to 30 percent of TEC's placements are for less than three days.

The manager said he doesn't anticipate a reduction in job placements.

"We'll probably lose some short-term placements, but we'll have more long-term (positions filled)," he said.

The office still will make day-to-day placements, but the placements will be made by phone, Wallis said. "The workers won't be allowed to stay in our office. It will greatly improve our service because we won't have to spend time with these guys; we can contact the employers."

The Howard County office of the Texas Employment Commission discontinued its day-worker program because it took too much time, officials said.

The changes occurred because of a reduction in staff and funds as of July 1. Eventually the changes will be statewide, Wallis said.

Employers will have to notify the TEC about positions open at least a day in advance for the new system to work. The commission will need more time to locate job applicants because they tend to move a lot, Wallis said.

"It will be some problem until people get used to it," Wallis said. "Hopefully we can maintain enough contact with local day workers to (fill the positions smoothly.)"

Ruby Taroni, owner of the Big Spring Employment agency, said the TEC's changes won't adversely affect her business because all the jobs she deals with are full time. In fact, she anticipates an increase in the number of workers looking for full-time positions because of increased difficulty in finding temporary jobs, she said.

Consumers paying piper for state's nuclear plants

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texas utility customers are being saddled with the financial fallout of four outmoded, inefficient and obsolete nuclear power plants that will haunt the state's economy for decades, consumer groups said Monday.

Both the utilities and their customers should share the cost of abandoning the plants to save money in the long run, the groups said.

Another recent report on the cost of nuclear power by the staff of the Public Utility Commission (PUC) also concludes that electric utility customers in Texas are headed for "rate shock" that could result in 16 percent to 41 percent hikes in electric bills.

Affected would be customers served by the South Texas Nuclear Project (STNP) near Bay City, Comanche Peak nuclear plant near Glen Rose, River Bend nuclear facility in Louisiana and Palo Verde nuclear plant near Phoenix, Ariz.

During a Capitol news conference, the coalition of nuclear power plant critics spoke in support of a report titled "Risky Business: The Impact of Nuclear Power on Economic Growth in Texas."

According to the report, Texans will find themselves spending $31 billion extra for electricity over the 30-year life of the nuclear power plants. As a result, that money won't be available for the kinds of purchases that could do more to help the Texas economy grow and increase the number of jobs in the state.

As many as 1.25 million new jobs may never materialize, the report noted, as a result of the high cost of building, maintaining and, finally, shutting down the four plants after their useful lives end.

That report, issued during the coalition's news conference, was written by Jim Schermebeck of Ralph Nader's Public Citizen research group. Also represented were the Citizens Concerned About Nuclear Power, Texas Coalition for Responsible Investments and the South Texas Cancellation Campaign.

Councilmen deny retaliation

By KEELY COGHAN
Staff Writer

City councilmen Monday afternoon denied they were motivated by retaliation when they adopted a budget proposal that would result in demotions and reduction of manpower in the fire department.

The five council members present — Mayor Clyde Angel, Russ McEwen, Johnny Rutherford, Gary Don Carey and Henry Sanchez — also said they were unaware of any retaliation on the part of staff in making the proposals.

Councilmen, who were in a work session Monday afternoon, were reacting to statements by the Big Spring Professional Fire Fighters Association Local 2923 that the proposals were motivated by retaliation because firemen had received civil service.

Instead of being proposed by staff, Rutherford said the proposal to cut fire department staff came from him and Mayor Pro Tem Harold Hall.

Fire Chief Carl Dorton had proposed closing the Central Fire Station as a cost-cutting measure, councilmen said.

Under the proposal, two lieutenants will be demoted to drivers, two drivers will be demoted to hosemen and two hosemen's positions will be lost through attrition. One fireman recently left the force, meaning only one position is left to be cut.

"I regret very much anyone feeling this is directed at them personally," Rutherford said. "I didn't consider any specific people for the reductions and demotions."

Dorton said union members had come to him and asked him to avoid the demotions by having two floating lieutenants, allowing the men to keep their seniority. They would become regular lieutenants through attrition on the force in that proposal.

"They (firemen) put me on the spot to tell them I'd change it," Dorton said. According to the press statement by the union, Dorton told a group of firefighters Wednesday that the council had decided on the demotions and reductions as retaliation for state civil service.

The release went on to say that most firefighters did not think the council was acting in retaliation but believed some staff members had acted in retaliation. They also claimed city administrators had cursed and intimidated them at work, but would not identify the specific administrators.

McEwen, who opposed civil service during the special election, said he was not against the firemen. "If, in fact, a city administrator has retaliated or been vindictive toward firefighters, then we want to know about it," McEwen said, adding that the council would take action if anyone was retaliating against firemen.

"I haven't felt the need to retaliate," McEwen said. "We have a fine group of professional firefighters."

In 1983, poverty had edged up 0.2 percentage points to the 15.2 rate, a disappointment to administration officials who had hoped for a decline.

While critics denounced the fact that poverty went up in 1983 — contending it was a result of cuts in social programs — White House officials considered the small increase a somewhat positive step.

In the 1980-82 period, poverty levels increased 1 percent or more annually.

The poverty rate last declined between 1977 and 1978, when it edged down from 11.6 percent to 11.4 percent.

A decline in poverty rates this year sounds promising, Greenstein said, but, he cautioned, the drop is largely a function of the economy, with the poverty rate declining as unemployment dropped in the last year.

Now, he warned, the economy has stalled, so this drop may be a one-step event, followed by a plateau without improvement in coming years.

In addition, Greenstein said, even a sizable reduction in poverty could be considered disappointing in relation to the unemployment rate.

Unemployment was estimated at 7.5 percent for the first half of 1985, he pointed out, and the last time the rate was that low the poverty rate was just over 11.5 percent.

Club photo protests go nowhere

Pool and dance hall employees' protests this weekend against a city ordinance apparently have gone for naught.

A group of 13 pool and dance hall employees and owners, protesting an ordinance requiring them to submit to being photographed by police, went to the police station to be photographed at 3 p.m. Saturday. The group, however, was sent home angry because police I.D. personnel were not on duty.

The group said it was trying to comply with a city ordinance requiring them to be photographed by police. The pictures are to be posted in their businesses. Members of the group notified news media that they would be coming to the station.

Despite the protests and the media coverage — a television station from Midland sent a crew to cover the protest — the council is not considering changing the ordinance, City Manager Don Davis said today.

"As far as I know, there is no effort at this point to amend the ordinance," Davis said.

He pointed out that the ordinance had been recently amended to drop a requirement that the employees be fingerprinted as well.

Police Capt. Lonnie Smith had told the group Saturday that the ordinance might be rescinded.

E.L. Terry, owner of Players dance hall on Interstate 20, said when he went to apply for his dance hall license he was given a memo that stated his employees' photographs had to be made at the police station and posted in his place of business by Aug. 31.

E.L. TERRY, owner of Players private club, talks with other club representatives and the media at the Big Spring Police Department.

But Smith told the group that his department didn't know anything about the photographs being taken at the police station by that date and that no one was available to take the photos.

Smith said he had talked Friday to Davis and was told the ordinance might be rescinded. Davis was unable to be reached by phone Saturday.

Davis said today Smith had asked whether the employees still needed to be fingerprinted and he told Smith no. Smith also had asked him when the ordinance went into effect, and Davis said he was uncertain because he did not know the day the ordinance was printed in the paper.

City Councilman Johnny Rutherford, who had voted against the ordinance, said Saturday that as far as he knew the law still was in effect. He had not been given any information regarding a possible review of the ordinance.

Smith said enforcement of the ordinance will depend "on what the city council and city attorney tells us."

Pool hall and dance hall businesses represented at the police station Saturday were Players, Poor Boy's Pizza on Gregg Street (which serves no alcohol but has a pool table) and The Pump Club on Interstate 20 and Highway 87.

Sheriff's Log

Two arrested on charges

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested two men Monday afternoon on revocation of probation charges.

Herman Orosco II, 20, of 1011 N. Bell is currently in county jail in lieu of posting bond. He had been placed on probation for burglary of a building.

Esequiel Paradez Flores, 30, of 1110 N. Gregg was denied bond and had been placed on probation for unlawful delivery of marijuana.

Deputies released Elijia Acuna Wilson, 47, of Lubbock from jail after she served time for a theft over $20 and under $200 judgment.

Ramada Inn pays settlement in fire

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — In an out-of-court settlement, a 62-year-old veterinarian has been awarded $425,000 for emotional injuries he suffered in the June 14, 1983, fire that killed five people and injured 34 at the Ramada Inn Central here.

Charles Price of Blanco, Texas, was a guest of the hotel and leaped out of his first-floor window when the fire broke out in the middle of the night.

Salaries

She said commissioners will formally approve the request when a final draft of the budget is presented to the court in September.

The court unanimously approved a motion by Commissioner William Crocker to provide the downtown steering committee with $2,000 per year over the next three years to help rehabilitate the downtown area.

Commissioner O.L. Brown asked committee chairman Troy Fraser before votes were cast how Precinct 1 would benefit from the renovation project.

"It's hard for me to spend my people's tax money on this while they are battling weeds and snakes on their property lots, which are in shambles," Brown said.

City administrative assistant Pay Hardy who is currently working on a city application for the Texas Main Street Project said "areas surrounding downtown would feel the impact" of the proposed rehabilitation project. He also said that San Antonio

Developer Gil Cuadra, who has been purchasing properties in downtown Big Spring, expressed concern about the current condition of Highway 87 between Interstate 20 and downtown.

"That area on Gregg Street is a critical area. Highway 87 would be one of the first things developed," Hardy said.

In other action, commissioners: Approved a request from computer programmer Wade Bristow for a new NCR computer to replace the current county computer. Bristow told commissioners replacing instead of maintaining the current computer would save the county $55,000 over the next four years.

Approved a contract between Attorney Malcolm Schulz of Abilene and Howard County for defense representation in a pending civil suit filed by the mother of a San Angelo boy who was shot and killed by a sheriff's deputy last November.

Approved additional salary increases for District Attorney Investigator Buster McCartney and Chief Sheriff's Deputy William Shankles.

Nuclear

Scherbeck said the two nuclear power plants in Texas should be abandoned and the utilities involved in out-of-state nuclear plants should find a way to pull out and minimize their losses.

Conventional plants and conservation could take up any slack, he said. He also called all four "the electric Edsels of our time," in reference to the unsuccessful automobile that embarrassed Ford Motor Co. in the late 1950s.

In addition, he said, the financial burden "is being forced on the ratepayers by holding our electricity hostage."

Scherbeck noted that if the utilities' stockholders were saddled with the burden rather than the customers, the nuclear projects would have been cancelled years ago.

According to the PUC staff report on the cost of nuclear power, most hard hit by the switch from conventional energy sources would be customers of Central Power & Light Co. (CPL) of Corpus Christi.

CPL customers in South Texas would experience a 41.39 percent hike in residential rates, the report notes, assuming that Units 1 and 2 of the South Texas Nuclear Project become operational at the same time in the late 1980s and that the PUC does nothing to cushion the rate shock.

Small commercial and industrial consumers would see a 39.44 percent increase and large industrial users a 30.27 percent hike, the report predicts.

That residential figure would drop to 24.84 percent if Unit 1 goes into operation alone, according to the report.

Rep. Shaw to address teachers

State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Knott, will be in town Thursday to speak at a teachers' association meeting, his office aide said.

Shaw will address the Association of Texas Professional Educators at 4 p.m. at the Big Spring High School library on 11th Street, said Sandy Burroughs. Shaw also will be present at Howard College at noon Thursday for its dinner, a prelude to its 40th anniversary celebration.

He also will attend a Kiwanis meeting and will meet individually with people by appointment, Burroughs said.

CRIMESTOPPERS

Crimestoppers will offer a reward for information leading to the arrest of someone who stole a four-wheeler trailer with a 500-gallon plastic tank full of water on Aug. 20.

The theft occurred 10 miles east on Highway 350 near a feedlot. R.E. Haney told Howard County sheriff's deputies that the trailer, designed to haul the yellow plastic tank, was made of angle iron and pipe that was rusted.

The item was valued at $750.

Persons who provide information will remain anonymous. Crimestoppers number is 263-1151.

No mail monopoly

WASHINGTON — James C. Miller III, President Reagan's nominee to succeed David Stockman as U.S. budget director, says the Postal Service's monopoly on first-class mail should be abolished and private enterprise allowed to deliver letters "just as it did in the Old West."

"Few seem willing to consider the one action likely to have a real effect on the efficiency of the U.S. postal system: let others compete in the delivery of first-class mail," Miller wrote in an article in the current issue of the Cato Journal.

The Journal is published by the Cato Institute, a Washington-based research organization that describes itself as libertarian, or "free market-oriented."

Reagan feels 'fine'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan, saying he feels "just fine" as he nears the end of his recuperation from cancer surgery, will kick off a busy post-vacation schedule with a Labor Day speech celebrating the pioneer spirit the president has so often invoked.

The White House announced Monday that on his return trip to Washington from his ranch near here, Reagan will speak at the 13th annual Santa-Cali-Gon Day celebration in Independence, Mo.

The event is named for the Santa Fe, California and Oregon trails, the three principal routes west for 19th century pioneers.

Firm wins contract

WASHINGTON — Eight months after it won a bidding war, a Washington state firm has finally received an Air Force contract because of a decision by Pentagon leaders to defy a House committee.

The decision to award an initial $3.8 million contract for a new bomb-loading forklift to Pacific Car and Foundry Inc. was finalized last week. The Air Force acted at the direction of Deputy Defense Secretary William H. Taft IV by using other funds within its budget, effectively bypassing a "hold" placed on the transfer of funds from another account imposed by the House Armed Services Committee.

Teachers picket schools

Teachers walked picket lines in three school districts in Ohio and Michigan today, idling 36,800 students, as negotiators tried to wrap up contracts in at least six states before classes begin for almost 1 million students.

Also, Linden, Mich., school officials early today settled on a three-year pact with 103 teachers, but the opening of classes for 2,300 students was postponed until Wednesday, Superintendent Robert Burek said.

About 1,600 teachers in Flint, Mich., voted Monday night to strike today, and the scheduled first day of school for 31,000 students was postponed.

Radio reports Nigerian government toppled

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — An army brigadier general announced on Nigeria Radio today that the military government of Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari had been toppled because it abused power and failed to implement needed economic reforms.

The general, who was identified as Joshua Dogonyaro, declared a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Lagos and all state capitals. He said the country's air and sea ports would be closed until further notice.

Nigeria's land borders have been closed since shortly after the Dec. 31, 1983, coup in which Buhari ousted the civilian government of President Shehu Shagari.

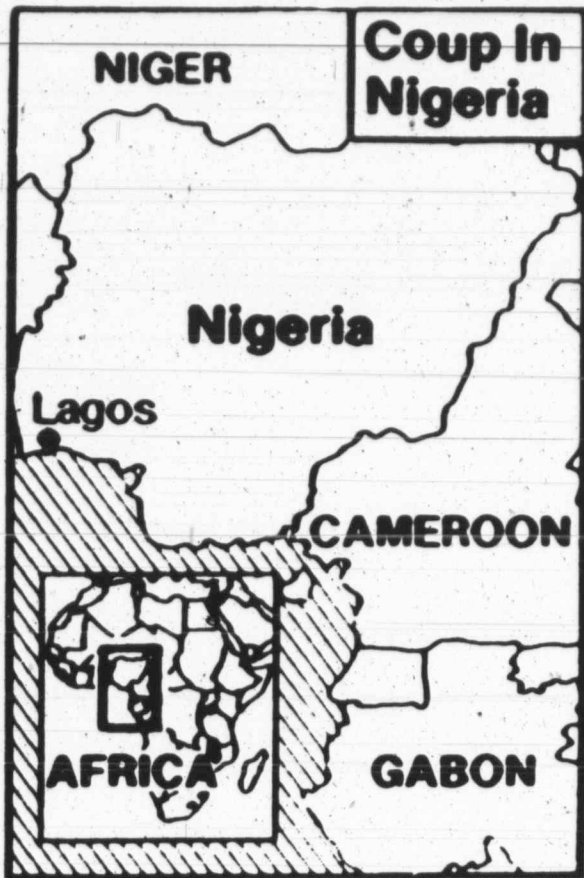

British Telecom in London said all telephone service to Nigeria had been suspended. It was impossible to obtain independent verification of the radio report.

Dogonyaro said in a broadcast monitored in the nearby Ivory Coast that the Supreme Military Council was being replaced because "the wishes and aspirations of the people as expressed in the media have been ignored."

The general, claiming to speak on behalf of the Nigerian military forces, said they had acted to replace the Buhari government because of "the slow pace of reform" in overcoming economic difficulties.

He said Buhari's government could no longer be allowed to blame all of Nigeria's problems on the previous civilian government. The broadcast said the Supreme Military Council, headed by Buhari, had been rendered ineffective because "a select few" were taking all the power.

Spy scandal widens

BONN, West Germany — Chancellor Helmut Kohl opened an emergency Cabinet session today to review West Germany's widening spy scandal, and prosecutors announced that they had begun investigating a sixth person.

Following the Cabinet session, the government was to report to Parliament on the spy affair, which some politicians call the worst espionage case in the history of the federal republic.

Prosecutors announced that an investigation was opened against an employee in the Koblenz-based military procurement office, the sixth case of suspected spying revealed since the beginning of August. They would provide no more information on the investigation.

Apology demanded

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Prime Minister David Lange today denounced as inconsistent and "transparent" a report clearing France of involvement in the bombing of the Greenpeace flagship, and indicated that the French ambassador may be expelled.

Lange told a radio interviewer that New Zealand's "minimal position" is that France owes New Zealand an apology.

"The French have a remarkable flair for getting out of New Zealand in a hurry," he said. "They've demonstrated that recently. Perhaps the same principle could apply to the diplomat."

Church defends values

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland — Roman Catholics will not support the communist government or perform their civic duties unless authorities stop spreading atheism, the leader of the Polish church told an estimated 200,000 believers.

Cardinal Josef Glemp issued one of his strongest defenses of church values in years at an outdoor Mass on Monday honoring the Black Madonna, Poland's most revered icon. It is kept at a 14th-century monastery in Czestochowa, about 120 miles south of Warsaw.

"The believer who is to build the future of the atheistic homeland feels like someone who is cutting the tree he is sitting on out from under him," Glemp said.

Diplomats to visit

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government has made an urgent demand that three Common Market foreign ministers clarify the goals of a visit to South Africa, saying they may not be welcome if they intend to push for an end to apartheid.

The foreign ministers of Italy, the Netherlands and Luxembourg are to arrive Wednesday and report to a Sept. 10 Common Market meeting on possible sanctions against South Africa.

Michael J. Fox is box office draw

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Michael J. Fox, star of television's "Family Ties," was the weekend's top draw on the big screen, appearing as both the teen time traveler in "Back to the Future" and a hairy hotshot in "Teen Wolf."

Universal's "Back to the Future" grossed $6.8 million to retain the No. 1 position at the box office and raise its eight-week total to $119.8 million.

"Teen Wolf," newly released by Atlantic, found its way into second place on a gross of $6.1 million. Fox stars as a high school nerd who discovers he's a werewolf with an unusual talent for basketball.

Rights to voting need protection

Twenty years ago this month, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed into law the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Coming in the middle of a turbulent decade, the legislation removed obstacles that had long faced millions of black Americans seeking to vote and gain public office.

Some of the statistics are impressive. By the end of the year the law went into effect, minority registration had increased by 40 percent in the Southern states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and North Carolina. Today, the South counts 6.5 million registered black voters.

And over those 20 years, the number of black elected officials has soared nationally from 280 in 1964 to more than 6,000 in 1985. The South, with 53 percent of the black population in the United States, has 63 percent of all black officials.

The principal reform of the 1965 law was elimination of literacy tests for voters. It authorized the U.S. Attorney General to send federal officers to jurisdictions that imposed such barriers to register minority voters and oversee elections. The Attorney General also was directed to challenge the use of poll taxes in state elections.

While the original law was designed to enfranchise blacks, it has been extended to Hispanics, Asian-Americans, American Indians and Alaskan natives. And in 1982, the act was extended for 25 more years, including a provision requiring that aggrieved parties need only prove discriminatory results rather than intent on the part of election officials. Intent is more difficult to prove. This fall the U.S. Supreme Court will hear a North Carolina case challenging a decision upholding the "result" test.

While the 1965 law greatly increased blacks' electoral rights, they are still under-represented in U.S. politics. For instance, only two black U.S. representatives serve the South where more than half the nation's blacks live. This problem will gradually fade for blacks, and indeed all minorities, as they make the most of the nation's educational opportunities. Meanwhile, government must continue to guard against imposition of barriers to full participation in the political process by all Americans.

Steve Chapman

Bigotry, wrapped in stars, stripes

The love of one's country is a natural emotion, and not inherently ignoble. It can animate people to give of themselves for worthy ends. Samuel Johnson called it the last refuge of a scoundrel, but he also declared, "That man is little to be envied whose patriotism would not gain force upon the plain of Marathon."

What passes for patriotism, though, frequently amounts to nothing more than bigotry against outsiders. Several American medical groups have fallen into that error. Alarmed at the number of foreigners who come here for organ transplants, they propose to give preference to Americans.

Apparently many Americans don't like to see their discarded organs wasted to save the lives of Canadians or Mexicans or Saudis. One doctor told The New York Times, "Donors are writing that 'I didn't sign my donor card to give to a foreign kid.'" Says another, "There are countless stories of people saying 'count me out, if you count foreigners in.'"

This is a bizarre sentiment in a country made up almost entirely of people whose ancestors came from someplace else. It is stranger still to find such prejudice getting endorsement from respectable medical groups like the American Council of Transplant Physicians and the American Society of Transplant Surgeons, who have urged that foreigners be sent to the end of the line for any available organs.

The Hippocratic Oath stresses the obligation to help the sick. It says nothing about limiting that help to patients of a particular nationality. Of course, the oath also forbids abortion, which hasn't stopped some doctors. But the idea that the life of any foreigner is worth less than that of any American represents a new perversion of medical ethics.

Some of the rationalizations for this xenophobia are inspired. As the Times put it, "Supporters said such a policy would save a treasured national resource and compared it to laws adopted by many countries to prevent the export of artistic masterworks and important historical or cultural relics." A federal official says, "We're dealing with extremely valuable resources, resources grown in this country."

The whole issue arises only because of the chronic shortage of usable organs. Most transplants now succeed, thanks to new anti-rejection drugs. Trouble is, the supply of organs hasn't kept pace. Some 7,000 people got kidney transplants last year, but another 8,500 are still waiting. Despite campaigns to get people to designate their organs for donation upon death, there are still far too few to go around.

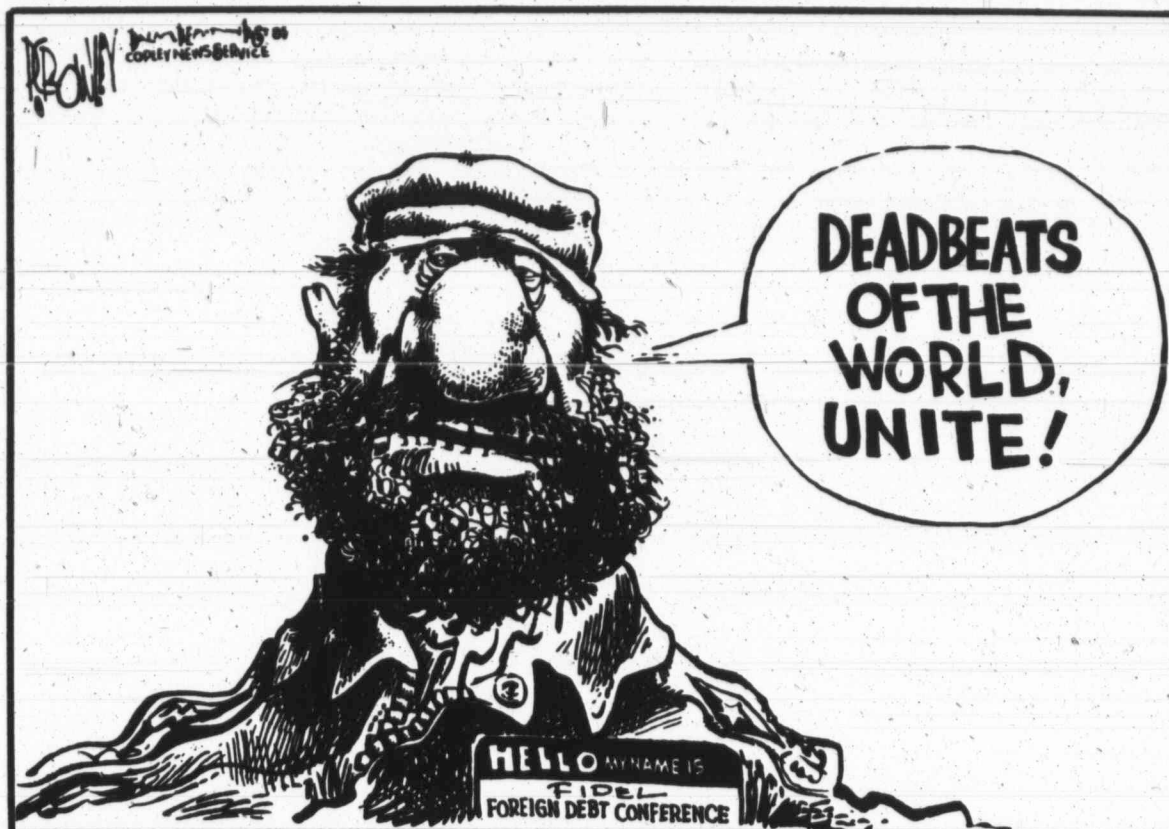

The controversy is largely unnecessary, since there is a simple remedy for the imbalance: Instead of depending entirely on altruism, allow people to sell their organs, with the fee to be paid to their heirs. An organ market would expand the supply dramatically, mitigating the dilemmas created by the shortage.

But groups like the National Kidney Foundation, which supports discrimination by nationality in transplants, piously oppose this idea on "moral and ethical grounds." Introducing the dollar into medical matters is taken to be immoral, but introducing the Stars and Stripes isn't. Thanks to opposition like that, Congress has banned organ sales.

Whatever that achieves, it doesn't close the gap. Faced with a politically induced shortage, the government is now pressured to distribute the limited supply of organs by political criteria.

The operating principle in this case was offered by Henry Adams, who defined politics as "the systematic organization of hatreds." The virulence of anti-foreigner feeling ought to give true patriots cause to wonder what there is to be patriotic about.

Pot raids trample rights

WASHINGTON — Like the American officer in Vietnam who said he had to burn down a village in order to save it, federal law enforcement officials in northern California are apparently tramping all over the Constitution in their efforts to thwart marijuana growers.

We reported last March that U.S. District Judge Robert P. Aguilar had determined that federal agents involved in an annual exercise known as "Campaign Against Marijuana Planting" were buzzing hapless residents with helicopters, intimidating innocent citizens and conducting searches without warrants — all in the name of cracking down on pot growers.

The judge ordered the Drug Enforcement Administration and numerous allied agencies to respect the Fourth Amendment rights of citizens whose only crime is to live in areas where marijuana is being grown. A federal Appeals Court affirmed the order.

Our story drew an angry response from California Attorney General John K. Van de Kamp, who accused us of doing "a great disservice to the state's anti-drug efforts." Not a sentence in Van de Kamp's two-page letter addressed what we believe to be the paramount issue: the sanctity of the Constitution and its proscription of unreasonable search and seizure.

Despite Aguilar's order, the drug-busters are still encroaching on personal rights and private property, according to attorneys representing a number of local residents. The lawyers' allegations are detailed in a recent letter, seen by our associate Donald Goldberg, which was sent to the U.S. attorney's office in San Francisco and provided to the court.

From the letter, here are some examples of the allegations of continuing harassment:

● On July 15, 1985, starting at 8 a.m., helicopters flew back and forth over Colleen Howard's home in Briceland at levels well under the 500-foot minimum ordered by the court. "The flying continued all morning until about noon when a red and white helicopter hovered at not more than 150 feet above Ms. Howard's home. ... The helicopter then proceeded to hover over each and every home of that and the adjoining parcel at heights of less than treetop level and as low as 100 feet."

● On July 25, Tim Fowle, a resident of Mattole Canyon in Humboldt County, "had helicopters fly over his home so low that the windows in his house shook." The following day, law enforcement agents "invaded the area around his house without a warrant and without cause. On that day, helicopters flew low over the house on numerous times shaking windows, often within 100 feet or less of the house."

● On July 15, "Anne Johnston was reading in her home. She heard footsteps outside. She walked outside and looked around the side of the house where she observed (an agent) walking away from the house with a large rifle slung over his shoulder. He had no search warrant or other authority to be there."

● On July 18, Christine Brosz and James Scott were rousted from their camper in Mendocino County by law enforcement officers. They were told to get dressed, "with Ms. Brosz being observed getting dressed by four ... troops," and were held for three-and-a-half hours.

● Bob Dale, a Gopherville resident, "was sitting on his outhouse when (an agent) with a rifle came over to him. His trailer was searched, and he was detained with others."

The attorneys representing the residents asked the U.S. attorney's office to investigate the allegations. "We are concerned the injunction of the court is being disregarded frequently," their letter states.

Similar lawsuits have been filed in other states to bar intrusive tactics by police and other law enforcement officials. In Virginia, a federal judge recently ordered that police helicopters stay at an altitude of at least 500 feet when flying over houses, and that when law enforcement officials descend to search for evidence, they keep detailed logs.

Footnote: John Penrose, the assistant U.S. attorney handling the case, said he believed that Campaign Against Marijuana Planting officials were abiding by Aguilar's injunction, but that the new allegations were being investigated.

EYE ON THE ECONOMY: Government economists privately expect the price of crude oil and natural gas to drop this fall. This would depress inflation and interest rates and help hard-pressed farmers. But lower energy prices could create a rash of bank failures in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, where the average bank has 20 percent of its loans in oil and gas ventures.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: Before Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., thinks about running for president in 1988, he should consider paying a $760 bill left over from his 1980 presidential campaign. Midwest Intercity Ambulance Services — now in Chapter 11 bankruptcy while it works out its financial problems — is still waiting for its $760 for standby ambulance service, despite repeated phone calls to Kennedy's Senate office. The senator's political action committee, Funds for a Democratic Majority, claims the Sioux City, Iowa, company is at fault because "evidently their letter got to the wrong people."

MINI-EDITORIAL: Our hats are off to Maj. Gen. Anthony Spadorcia, commander of the Massachusetts National Guard. Spadorcia scotched the plan of one of his subordinates, Gen. Joseph P. Hagerty, to transport some 8,800 troops to Hagerty's retirement ceremony at Camp Edwards on Cape Cod in early September. The farewell festivities would have cost the taxpayers about $1 million. We believe every old soldier deserves a dignified good-bye, but calling out the guard is a downright extravagance.

Make the connection

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Prayer to me is like talking on a telephone that isn't connected. And yet I have friends who act as if prayer is very meaningful to them. Are they just deluding themselves, or am I missing something? I would really like to know, because I feel my life would be better if I just knew God cared for me and listened to me. — Q.K.

DEAR Q.K.: God wants you to know that He loves you and that you can discover the joy of having a personal relationship with Him. When we have a personal relationship with Christ we can pray with confidence, knowing God loves us and hears us.

In our ordinary way of living, we are separated from God because of our sins — which makes it impossible for us to pray as we should. You have said it is "like talking on a telephone that isn't connected" — that is similar to what the Bible tells us our lives are like when we are apart from Christ.

The Bible says, "But your iniquities have separated you from your God; your sins have hidden his face from you, so that he will not hear" (Isaiah 59:2). But Jesus Christ came to take away our sins through His death on the cross, and when we commit our lives to Him as our Lord and Savior our sins are forgiven and we become members of God's family. When we know Christ, "This is the assurance we have in approaching God: that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us" (1 John 5:14).

The prayer you need to make right now is one of confession and faith in Christ.

AIDS victim Ryan White, 13, and his mother, Jeanne White, make contact with Western Middle School near Kokomo Monday via telephone hookup into a science class. Ryan was barred from school because of AIDS.

AIDS victim barred from class

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — Classes for 13-year-old AIDS victim Ryan White began Monday when his science teacher at Western Middle School dialed a telephone number and Ryan pushed a button.

One by one, the 30 seventh-grade pupils introduced themselves to Ryan — who was sitting in his bedroom, listening on a speaker phone.

Ryan, a hemophiliac who contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome through a blood transfusion, would have preferred beginning his first day of school in the classroom.

But Western School Corp. officials say questions about the communicability of AIDS led to their barring Ryan from school. Ryan has been out of school since December.

Teacher Fran Samspeel began her science lesson by continually reminding students to speak clearly and loudly so that the boy sitting five miles away would feel part of the class.

But Ryan's mother, Jeanne White, said she's skeptical of the telephone system's effectiveness. "It's better than nothing," she said. "But I'm worried about visual aids. Anything they do on the blackboard he'll miss out on."

Teachers said special projects will be videotaped for Ryan to watch at home.

Mrs. White, who has alleged in federal court that the school discriminated against Ryan as a handicapped person, said she was glad her son was not in school Monday.

"It's not that I don't want him there. But not until the parents and teachers accept him." And that, she said, won't happen until more is understood about AIDS.

Parents have signed a petition supporting the school's decision and have threatened to sue if Ryan is allowed into the classroom and another child contracts the disease.

U.S. District Court Judge James E. Noland ruled Aug. 16 that the case must go through school channels before he can consider it. But he retained jurisdiction in the case.

School officials said a hearing officer would be named soon.

Studies have shown AIDS is spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions. There is no evidence, however, that it is spread by casual contact.

High-risk groups for AIDS, which robs the body of its ability to fight infections, include male homosexuals, hemophiliacs and intravenous drug users.

Ryan's physicians and state health officials have said Ryan's condition does not threaten other students and that he should be allowed in the classroom.

"I have no problem being around Ryan," said school Principal Ron Colby. "But I have 380 children between the ages of 11 and 13 that would have to be trained to deal with this (if Ryan attended school). That's my problem."

Colby said "everything possible" was being done to make things easy for Ryan to adapt to his long-distance schooling.

"Ryan White is an average to above-average student," he said. "And any child in a homebound situation can get an adequate education. ... I don't feel that this is something totally devastating."

One of Ryan's former teachers said the problem is not only that of other children possibly contracting the disease, but of Ryan contracting a minor illness from another pupil which could turn out to be fatal.

It seems like every year chicken pox goes through a certain amount of kids at school and how would we protect him (Ryan) from getting chicken pox? I think that ... would be fatal to him," said health teacher Ruth Dougherty.

Kari Wells, 12, said she would just as soon Ryan not be in her classroom. "We're not trying to be mean ... but we have to take into consideration that if he came to school, he could catch something and get sick. But I can't blame him for wanting to come to school."

Dear Abby

Suicide attempts may recur

DEAR ABBY: You frequently deal with many subjects that are socially taboo. May I bring to your attention one that is rarely mentioned: attempted suicide. For every successful suicide there are three to five failed attempts. Studies reveal that a person who makes one attempt is 10 times more likely than the average person to end up as a suicide statistic.

Adolescents and young adults are attempting suicide in alarming numbers. An attempt to destroy oneself is a desperate cry for help, an angry attempt to punish someone, or an effort to deal with feelings of intense pain, hopelessness, frustration and depression.

Some teen-agers who try to kill themselves have fantasies of being "reborn," denying the finality of death. Many expect to be rescued. But tragically, when they are rescued after a long delay, they suffer from oxygen deprivation and/or the toxic effects of an overdose, leaving the would-be suicide with irreversible brain, heart, kidney or liver damage.

Unfortunately, many first attempts are not taken seriously, and the underlying problem surfaces again to end with tragic consequences for victims and survivors alike.

Abby, please print this and sign me...
A CONCERNED PROFESSIONAL

DEAR CONCERNED: If attempted suicide is a part of an ongoing dialogue, then a successful suicide is a final message to which there can be no reply.

Parents, teachers and friends of teen-agers should be alert to the cry for help in any attempt at suicide, and do everything possible to respond to that message.

Trained counselors are as close as your telephone. Ask the operator for the nearest suicide hotline. Somebody will listen because somebody cares.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my husband and I had dinner at a very nice restaurant. When we gave the waitress the order for our appetizers, she said, "You got it, you guys!" After the dinner order was given, she said the same thing. After we ordered coffee, she said again, "You got it, you guys!" This went on through the whole dinner.

We are not oldsters, but we would have appreciated more respect than "you guys."

She was a good waitress. We didn't want to report her to the manager. What would you have done?

CUSTOMERS, NOT "GUYS"
DEAR CUSTOMERS: A friendly, tactful word of caution to the waitress would have been an act of kindness. The next customers she "you guys" may report her to the manager, costing her her job.

I probably wouldn't have tipped her off (pun unintentional) until I read this.

Dr. Donohue

Early treatment best

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please tell me what causes hammer toe? I have one on my left foot. I am 53. Now it looks as though I am getting the same thing on my right foot. My shoes seem wide enough. What can be done for hammer toes? — G.L.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What's the difference between mallet toe and hammer toe? — J.S.

Let's use the finger to describe this. If you bend the last joint of a finger down, the one closest to the tip, that would be the hand's version of the foot's mallet toe. Now if you move up to the next joint and cock the finger up at that point you have the hand-version of the hammer toe.

Either can cause severe deformity and lead to painful callus formation. The secret to treatment is to get at the problem early, when the joints are still supple and flexible. Manipulation on a daily program and stretching the toes helps prevent future problems.

Tight-fitting shoes with a narrow toe box do, as G.L. suggests, lead to both mallet and hammer toe, but such mechanics aren't the only contributing factors. In many cases there is an imbalance in the foot muscles, permitting the deformity to take hold.

G.L., you say your shoes are OK. Why not let an expert make that judgment? Shoes for people like you should be plenty wide. And shoes with crepe soles help. Their flexibility alleviates pressure that hard leather can apply, thus preventing further callus development. A specialist, such as a podiatrist, can tell you if conservative treatment will work or whether your joints are too immobile and fixed in this odd position, requiring surgical intervention.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What are the possible symptoms that occur during a herpes infection outbreak? Could it cause the person to have aching in the legs, abdominal pain, headaches, an overall sluggish feeling? — T.F.A.

All of those things are possible with the first outbreak of herpes. You can also experience painful urination, loss of appetite, and swollen lymph nodes. They're all signals of a sort that the body is generally fighting off or trying to fight off this viral invader, just as it would with other viruses (flu, etc.).

Fortunately, with subsequent outbreaks these kind of symptoms are not so prominent, or absent altogether. Then the symptoms are more or less confined to the infection site — with the rash and the itch being the calling cards. If you want a better understanding, read the booklet I'm sending along, "Herpes: Don't Panic." Other readers may order by writing, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25 for printing and handling.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've been a tea drinker all my life. I am 68 years old and usually drank four to six cups of tea daily. In an effort to cut down on my caffeine intake, I decided recently to discontinue drinking tea entirely. Instead, I drink hot water with a squeeze of lemon. Is this harmful in any way? Would I be getting too much acid from the lemon? — Mrs. M.J.W.

No, it's not harmful. You are equating citrus acid with the kind that is in your stomach for digestion. That's peptic acid.

Minorities told to shed myths

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Mexican Americans must work to "destroy the myth that Hispanics seek a handout or a subsidy," the newly elected chairman of the Mexican-American Democrats of Texas says.

"We are a growing and viable political constituency within the political framework of Texas society," Corpus Christi attorney Ruben Bonilla said at the group's annual convention in Galveston this weekend.

Bonilla, 39, won a two-year term as MAD's chairman Saturday with an overwhelmingly defeat of Hidalgo County Commissioner Norbert Beto Salinas of McAllen.

Bonilla is former president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, the nation's largest Hispanic organization. He succeeds Juan Maldonado as MAD chairman.

Bonilla spoke Saturday of the need to translate Hispanic voting power into economic gains for South Texas.

"The name of the game is numbers, and the Democratic Party can count very well. The Democrats must rely on 1 million Hispanic voters to whip the Republicans," Bonilla said. "The message is economic development."

He criticized what he called "a general misconception that the Democratic Party is not healthy."

"We would remind everyone that we have Democratic candidates controlling the Legislature, controlling the state Senate and handling the governor's office quite well," Bonilla said.

He said MAD's short-term goal should be maintaining Democratic Party control in Texas, while its long-term goal is to go to the "1988 conventions and recapture the White House and the Democratic Senate majority."

The keynote speaker at the convention California Sen. Art Torres, D-Los Angeles, who urged all Mexican Americans to throw their support to the Democratic Party to build state and national political clout.

"The Republican wolves are laying in wait to take our Mexican Americans and register them," Torres said Saturday. "Because of this situation, it is important that the Democratic Party assemble a new spirit."

Torres said he brought a message to the delegates in Galveston from U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. According to Torres, Kennedy said: "The future of the Democratic Party is improving. It is not in the intensive care unit. It is out of surgery and ready to be recuperated."

Hester & Robertson offers 3 plans for servicing heating, cooling units

Hester and Robertson offers planned service for air conditioning and heating units.

The company has two radio-dispatched service vehicles ready to give fast and efficient service at all times, and all calls are usually worked the same day they are taken. With the hot weather of summer, this becomes more important.

New this year in the Lennox sponsored, planned service contract program are three plans from which to choose. Plan I is for basic services once at the beginning of the heating season and once at the beginning of the cooling season (all parts are billed in addition).

Plan II covers all labor and materials used on both the heating and cooling systems and also guarantees 24 hour per day availability of services. This covers units from one to five years old.

Plan III is the same as Plan II except it is for equipment that is five to 10 years old and covers all labor and parts.

Hester and Robertson invites all customers to compare services and prices. The work is guaranteed to be fast and efficient. Parts are usually on the service vehicle, saving time and money for the customer. Call Hester and Robertson at 263-8342 or stop by North Birdwell Lane.

Eddie countdown

When the Grambling Tigers open their football season September 14 against Alcorn State, one of the games greatest coaches will begin his countdown to become the winningest coach in the sport.

I'm talking about none other than Grambling head coach Eddie Robinson, a long-standing fixture in college football. Robinson, who has 320 career wins, needs only four victories to replace the legendary Bear Bryant as the top winner.

All eyes will be on the Grambling Tigers this season. Robinson has shied away from all the countdown hoopla. "I didn't start this counting bit," he was quoted in an interview earlier this year. "Back in 1941 I was trying to win a football game. I still feel the same way."

He's come a long way in the 44 years when he took the job. The school was then called Louisiana Negro Normal College and the head football coach was paid a whopping $63.75 per month.

Somehow he really doesn't sound like a man that is about to break a coaching milestone. In fact, the 66-year-old Robinson won't even take credit for the mark he's about to break. "I'm paid to coach and that's what I do. I enjoy coaching. My success comes from my players and coaches. They should get all the credit for those wins."

Personally I think he's a little too modest for a man about the make coaching history.

But like all success stories, there will always be critics who question the authenticity of the record. For instance Robinson has a stock response to critics who say Bryant's teams played a major college schedule. Grambling's opponents were mostly small-potato schools. "They all get their water from the same well."

That's Robinson's folksy way of saying that the National Football League is full of players from the Southwestern Athletic Conference. The SWAC has provided such NFL greats as Walter Payton from Jackson State, Harold Carmichael from Southern University and Jimmie Giles from Alcorn State. The Dallas Cowboys have a All-Pro cornerback by the name of Everson Walls, who played for Robinson four years ago.

Since 1947, when Grambling's Paul "Tank" Younger became the first player from a traditional black school to make the NFL draft, the Tigers have been stocking the league with pros every since.

Since '47, Grambling has had an average of five players per year to make it in the NFL.

Unlike Bryant, who retired when he got the all-time record in 38 years of coaching, Robinson plans on hanging around a while longer. "The state of Louisiana says I can coach five more years. If I stay healthy and continue to compete with these young coaches, I'll coach five more seasons."

Since his teams have had only two seasons in which they won less than four games, '41 (3-5) and '51 (3-5-1), it's a good bet Robinson will surpass Bryant's mark. George Halas of the Chicago Bears is the career leader with 326 victories in the NFL. That mark too could belong to Robinson by the end of the season.

It all seems so methodical to me. Sort of like Robinson receiving Coach of the Year Honors, the Grambling Tigers having a winning season, and stocking the pros full of players.

Septien's FG
sinks Bears

IRVING (AP) — When Mike Ditka sends his Chicago Bears against his old boss, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, even a National Football League exhibition game takes on fist-flying intensity.

Non-combatant Rafael Septien got the game-winner with a 24-yard field goal with three seconds to play as the unbeaten Cowboys (3-0) nipped the Bears (0-3) 15-13 in Monday Night at the NFL Fights.

Last week, Septien kicked a 47-yard field goal in overtime to beat San Diego.

The left hooks and right crosses started in the first period.

Dallas defensive tackle Randy White was ejected in the first period after taking unfair advantage.

He yanked off the helmet of offensive tackle Keith Van Horne and used it as a clubbing tool on several Bears.

"That's an automatic ejection when you do that," said Club President Tex Schramm, who is on the NFL Rules Committee.

Sporadic fights broke out in every quarter, with the harried officials declaring each outbreak a draw with offsetting unsportsmanlike conduct penalties.

"It was an interesting night," said Landry. "I've never seen that many fights. It was a tough football game."

The fiery Ditka, who played and coached under Landry, said neither team would back down.

"The fights were kind of silly," said Ditka, making his first return as a coach to Texas Stadium. "We don't teach it. We should be smarter than that, and they should be smarter."

"I guess they have heard the Bears are tough guys. Dallas is tough too. Nobody wanted to back down."

Lost in the flurry of fisticuffs were the returns of holdouts Dallas running back Tony Dorsett and Chicago middle linebacker Mike Singletary.

Dorsett gained 36 yards on nine carries, while Singletary was in on six tackles.

Dallas wide receiver Duriel Harris setup the winning field goal when he took an eight-yard Steve Pelluer pass away from cornerback Ken Taylor at the Chicago 24.

"The defensive back had the ball first, but wasn't able to tuck it in," said Harris. "I just slid my arm in there and pulled it away."

Chicago grabbed a 13-12 lead with 6:29 to play on a 10-yard touchdown pass from rookie Mike Tomczak to rookie James Maness.

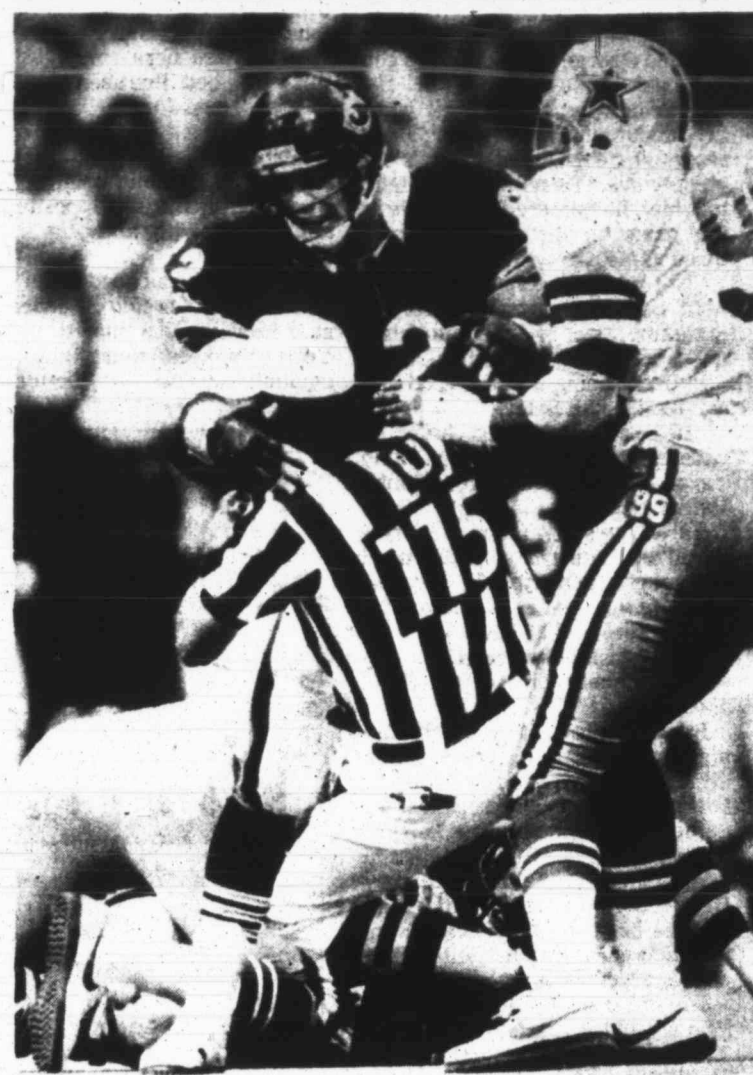

Tomczak of Ohio State completed his first NFL touchdown pass. Maness of Texas Christian, who had been held out with a hamstring injury, made his first NFL catch with 6:29 to play.

Dallas quarterback Gary Hogeboom, playing three quarters because of a rib injury to Danny White, hit 17 of 37 passes for 182 yards.

He fashioned a 98-yard second quarter drive in which he hit seven of eight passes for 81 yards including a six-yard scoring strike to Tony Hill in the second period.

Chicago starter Jim McMahon connected on eight of 15 passes for 76 yards.

Landry said the 1985 edition of the Cowboys is a tough one. "It's a little tougher than it's been in the past," Landry said.

White agreed.

"I wasn't around, but it looked like our defense was playing an aggressive game all the way through," White said.

White said he was ejected because the official said he clubbed somebody with a helmet.

"I don't know why I had the helmet in my hand, but I'm going to hear about it tomorrow from Coach Landry," White said.

Rose closing in on Cobb's mark

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose took an offhanded swing last winter at predicting his record-setting hit. He missed by a dozen.

The Cincinnati Reds player-manager was pressed last February to predict the day he'd top Ty Cobb's all-time hit mark of 4,191. Hesitantly, he picked Monday, Aug. 26 as the probable day.

The prediction came during an appearance on behalf of Mizuno, the sporting goods line he endorses. A Mizuno official surprised Rose with a blown-up calendar of September, handed Rose a marker and had him to circle the day he thought he'd break Cobb's record.

Rose scratched out September and penned in "Aug." then circled the 26th. He pointed out this weekend that although he's missed the mark, it was never a scientific guess.

"There was no way for me to judge, no way for me to know," Rose said. "I didn't look. I just hit the 26th."

There's no sense of urgency in reaching Cobb's mark. In fact, Rose is thinking not just of hit 4,192, but also of 4,193, 4,194 and beyond.

"I'm going to keep getting hits," he said. "That's my job. I won't stop after 12. I wouldn't be surprised if I get four the next day."

Rose didn't play Sunday in a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs, keeping him 12 hits shy of the mark going into Monday night's game with St. Louis.

Rose, 44, has been content to chip away at Cobb, playing himself against right-handed pitchers and using hot-hitting Tony Perez, 43, at first base against lefties. Perez had two hits Sunday, raising his average to .338.

Rose is sticking with the platoon system at first base even though it could cost him a shot at the record during the current homestand, which lasts through next Sunday. The Reds then leave for six games before returning home.

The matter of where he'll get the hit has been a little sticky. Reds owner Marge Schott would like Rose to get it at Riverfront Stadium, where large crowds are expected this week and during the next homestand.

"Obviously, I'd like to do it here," Rose said this weekend. "But it's not a do-or-die thing with me. It might be with Marge. She told me the other night, 'Boy, I want you to get that hit at home.' I want to get off the phone when she starts talking like that."

The city is ready to celebrate its biggest baseball moment since the days of the "Big Red Machine." A sign above a downtown office tower has counted down Rose's hits from Opening Day. Rose-Cobb shirts are selling briskly, and more than 106,000 people turned out for a three-game weekend series with the Cubs to watch him approach the mark.

The Reds already have surpassed last year's attendance by drawing 1.299 million this season.

There are Pete Rose billboards — some announcing future Reds games, others hawking

"Wheaties" cereal. And Rose's office is usually filled with a stream of reporters and cameras detailing his days as he gets close to Cobb.

"I've gotten three calls from fans saying they've got a song they'd like to play for Pete," said Jon Braude, Reds assistant publicist. "There are people with ideas of what he should be given by the ballclub — by the world — when he gets the hit."

"At least three-fourths of the calls I've gotten the last few weeks were for credential requests and people asking information about Pete. We're pretty well prepared for it."

As for Rose, he's taking the attention in good humor. One reporter asked him about the carnival atmosphere and whether he'll be glad when it's over.

"It's always a carnival atmosphere. You guys are all clowns," Rose joked, drawing a room full of laughs. "How am I going to get rid of the carnival?"

New Orleans wants baseball team

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards and New Orleans Mayor Ernest Morial announced they're courting potential buyers for a major-league baseball franchise in New Orleans.

Edwards said he will set up a statewide committee to search out people who have the money to own a team, which would probably play in the Louisiana Superdome.

Franco Player of Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher John Franco of the Cincinnati Reds was named the National League's Player of the Week during Aug. 19-25. In three games, Franco saved two games and won one in 8 1-3 innings of shutout relief.

In the American League, first baseman Pete O'Brien of the Texas Rangers was named the Player of the Week.

O'Brien batted .500 (15-for-30) with five doubles, two triples, seven RBIs and an .800 slugging percentage.

Carr call it quits

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — M.L. Carr, a valuable sixth man and bench-riding cheerleader with the Boston Celtics, announced his retirement as a player.

Carr, 34, who played six seasons with Boston, will stay on with the club as a scout.

Manning retires from football

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Archie Manning, whose 14-year National Football League career was mostly spent as a scrambling New Orleans Saints quarterback, announced his retirement from professional football.

Manning, 36, who spent the last two years as a Minnesota Vikings backup quarterback, cited problems with his right elbow as the reason for his decision to leave the NFL and return to his home in New Orleans to pursue other interests.

Spikers take on Lake View

The Big Spring Lady Steers varsity and junior varsity teams will be in action tonight in San Angelo as they take on the Lake View Maidens at Lake View Gym.

Junior varsity starts at 6 p.m. and varsity action follows at 7.

'85 will be challenge for Longhorns

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas fans, who haven't witnessed a Longhorn losing season in football since 1956, may be staring at one this year.

Texas doesn't appear to be as strong as last season when it compiled a 7-4-1 record, the second worst in Fred Akers' eight years as head coach, and the 1985 schedule is murder.

It includes Missouri, Stanford and Oklahoma as well as Southwest Conference road games against what Akers considers top 20 teams in Arkansas, Southern Methodist, Houston and Texas A&M.

"If you like challenges, you ought to love it, and I do," Akers insists.

Akers was criticized last season for allowing Texas to play in the Freedom Bowl at Anaheim, Calif., where it was ripped by Iowa 55-17, but when he was asked if he regretted going to the bowl, he said:

"Absolutely not. A good portion of those players had never been to a bowl game — it was their freshman year. They worked just as hard as those seniors did."

The Longhorns had 20 key players who missed at least one game with injuries in 1984, and Akers said those injuries drained Texas' intensity as it lost four of its last five games.

"Injuries probably were one of the biggest reasons for all the turnovers," Akers said in an interview. "We set records with turnovers (51) that put pressure on our defense, and late in the season we finally had someone attack our weakness, which was our pass defense."

This season, even with two-time All-American safety Jerry Gray graduated to the pros, Akers says, "We expect our secondary to be better this year. ... We've got more experience coming back."

Ends James McKinney, Blake Brawner, Thomas Aldridge and Kip Cooper "will be the strength of our defensive front," said Akers.

The talent is so thin at defensive tackle, however, that when Akers was asked who would start, he replied, "I couldn't tell you."

Texas Longhorns coach FRED AKERS doesn't believe his 1985 Longhorns will be as bad as some predict, but concedes his team will need extra effort to survive.

"This is the first time in maybe 20 years that we haven't had at least one dominating, experienced defensive tackle," he said.

The linebackers, except for senior Ty Allert — "truly a top one," says Akers — will be new.

Senior Todd Dodge is projected as the starter at quarterback even though he threw a school-record 19 interceptions last season. "That's a statistic that doesn't tell you the whole picture," said Akers.

Dodge also completed 100 passes for 1,599 yards, both of which were school records.

Texas experimented in spring training with an offense of four wide receivers and only one running back, and Akers said, "Our quarter backs have been geared to throw on the run and we will."

William Harris, labeled a "great tight end" by Akers, returns to an offensive line that also has potential all-stars in 295-pound Gene Chilton and John Stuart, 280.

Freshman redshirt Charles Hunter, 6-foot-2 and 201, finished the spring as the No. 1 tailback, and Akers said, "I truly believe a tailback is going to emerge, and I truly believe a couple of defensive tackles are going to emerge, and linebackers are going to grow up quick — I do."

Texas' worst season under Akers was 7-5 in 1980, but the Longhorns rebounded to 10-1-1 in 1981, and Akers was asked if his 1985 team could duplicate that turn-around.

"Well, I always think we're going to win," he said. "Even with all the obstacles and challenges that we had last year, I thought we were going to win. And I think we'll win this year, I always do."

Texas is rated no better than fourth or fifth in its own conference, but Akers said, "If I thought that we were limited by preseason forecasts, I'd be a shell. I never have. Every football team is different from year to year, and I like the look in the eye of these guys. We had a heck of a spring — just the effort and intensity."

"It looked like we were getting ready to play every other day. All spring. That tells me they're ready to play, maybe better than they can."

Kansas City blasts Rangers, 9-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Baseball is a game of fundamentals and George Brett says he's getting back to the basics.

"I've always said I'll hit when my fundamentals are good," Brett said following Kansas City's 9-2 victory over Texas Monday night, in which he homered and drove in four runs for the second time in three games.

"Not many people hit opposite-field home runs here (in Royals Stadium), so my fundamentals must be good," he said. "Lately, I've been seeing the ball good and driving it to all fields."

"If he's not the best hitter in baseball, I don't know who is," said Texas Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine.

Valentine's opinion of Brett might be influenced by the third baseman's performance against his team this year — 16-for-34, with 7 home runs and 21 RBIs.

But Valentine swears it's the other numbers that he's talking about.

Brett has hit safely in his last nine games, including home runs in his last four. He has compiled a .407 batting average over his last 64 games with 13 homers and 48 RBIs while battling Boston's Wade Boggs and New York's Rickey Henderson for the American League batting title. Brett enters tonight's game against Milwaukee with a .358 batting average.

The four runs driven in by Brett Monday night marked the eighth time this year he has knocked in four or more runs in a contest.

"I've been here since 1981 and this is the best I've seen him swing the bat," said Howser.

"He's doing the whole ball of wax — driving in runs, hitting to all fields. You know he is hitting best when he is hitting opposite-field home runs with authority," said Howser.

"I know he was good in '80, but I was on the other side of the fence," said Howser, who piloted the New York Yankees that year. "He couldn't have been any better than this."

Brett's three-run homer over the left field wall in the sixth inning was his 21st this season and put the finishing touch on the Royals' nine-run outburst, making a winner of Charlie Leibrandt, 13-6.

It was the seventh win in the last eight decisions for the Kansas City left-hander, who blanked the Rangers on three hits over seven innings after allowing two unearned runs on four singles in the first inning. Dan Quisenberry pitched the ninth for Kansas City.

Jeff Russell, 1-4, was the loser. The Rangers jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first. Gary Ward and George Wright each singled home runs after a two-out error by short-stop Onix Concepcion.

Brett had an RBI ground out in the bottom of the first, and the Royals then added three runs in the third. Dave Leeper, recalled from the minors Sunday, singled home two runs and Frank White added a sacrifice fly that gave the Royals a 4-2 lead.

McRae's two-out, two-run single in the fourth made it 6-2.

Willie Wilson added three singles, scored three runs and swiped three bases, giving him 39 on the year.

Horford confounds prospective schools

HOUSTON (AP) — Last Friday, 7-1 schoolboy basketball star Tito Horford inquired about when he could move into a University of Houston dormitory to begin his collegiate career.

Sunday night, he told his legal advisers that he would be home in one hour.

Monday he showed up on the Louisiana State University campus at Baton Rouge and told the NCAA in a telephone call from Athletic Director Bob Brodhead's office that he wanted to attend the Southeastern Conference school.

LSU officials called a news conference to announce Horford was LSU-bound, but canceled it after checking with the NCAA.

"In our opinion, Tito's interest in attending LSU was not a signing of a letter of intent, but upon our contact with the NCAA office, they said an announcement in news-conference format was not permissible and would not be so until Tito was in fact enrolled in school," Brodhead said.

It was the latest chapter in the bizarre series of loose ends surrounding the future of the Dominican Republic native.

Horford, forecast as the center the Cougars needed to replace Akeem Olatunji, signed an early letter of intent with the Cougars last November but rumors surfaced almost immediately that he would not attend Houston.

Last week, he was rumored headed by the University of Kentucky.

Then came Monday's bombshell to Houston Athletic Director Tom Ford from Tom Yeager of the NCAA.

"He (Horford) indicated to Mr.

Yeager that he wished to attend Louisiana State University," Ford said. "We as of this time have not heard from Tito. He has not indicated to us his plans, and we are waiting to hear from here to determine just what our next steps will be."

Houston officials had expected to hear from the NCAA about their appeal to have Horford's eligibility restored at Houston.

The NCAA ruled Aug. 12 that Horford was ineligible to compete for the Cougars because assistant coach Donnie Schverak violated a recruiting rule.

Ford got his call from the NCAA, but it wasn't what he anticipated.

"It's perplexing," Ford said. "The young man's been under a tremendous amount of pressure from a lot of different avenues. I'll be anxious to talk to him to see what's motivated this change."

Bob Gallagher, Horford's high school coach at Houston Marion, and attorney Pat Ellis were surprised that Horford went to Baton Rouge, Ford said.

"Pat Ellis and Bob Gallagher both talked to Tito last night (Sunday) at about 10:30," Ford said. "At that time, Tito indicated he was with friends and that he was going to return home within the next hour."

"Somewhere between 10:30 last night and this morning, Tito disappeared. We learned of it when he missed a scheduled 9 o'clock meeting this morning."

Ford said that Horford, who already has enrolled at Houston, still was bound to the Cougars by his letter of intent.

"It's our understanding from the commissioner's office that the letter of intent is binding until all of the appeal processes have been exhausted, and we have postponed that hearing," Ford said.

Classes started Monday at Houston.

The NCAA said Schverak made an illegal contact with Horford in the Dominican Republic by renting a car and driving Horford to his mother's home.

NCAA rules prohibit face-to-face contact with prospects between July 1 and Aug. 1.

Houston conducted its own internal investigation into Horford's recruitment and announced sanctions against itself that included prohibiting Schverak from any off-campus recruiting for one year and the denial of one scholarship to the basketball program for each of the next two years.
