Administration issues toughest criticism yet of Pretoria practices

WASHINGTON (AP) — In one of its toughest criticisms ever of the South African government, the Reagan administration has denounced the "odious practices" of the Pretoria regime in its use of repression to cope with growing racial unrest.

The administration was particularly incensed over the government's apparent attempt to silence student opposition by banning the Congress of South African Students on Wednesday. The action means the group cannot legally exist and its members cannot be quoted publicly.

"The South African government's contention that it upholds Western values is belied by such actions, and society can never effectively come to terms with its problems by repressing dissent," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

Meanwhile, South African Bishop Desmond Tutu, winner of the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, denounced what he called "Reagan's horrendous policy of constructive engagement, which I described long ago as a disaster for our people."

In an interview from South Africa broadcast early today on the CBS-TV program, "Nightwatch," Tutu also said he still is anxious for a one-on-one meeting with President P.W. Botha.

The Reagan administration has criticized Tutu for declining to join other clergymen in a meeting with Botha last week. But Tutu said he thinks a one-on-one meeting would be more productive, rather than as part of a group where people "were really talking past each other."

In commenting on the latest strife in South Africa, Redman said, "Banning individuals and organizations from political activity is one of the most odious practices of the South African government."

"It offends the democratic values of free speech and assembly and accentuates the anger and frustration felt by all the opponents of apartheid," he declared.

The administration has criticized the Pretoria government before, but never in quite such stark and comprehensive terms. Only last weekend, President Reagan characterized the Botha government as a "reformist administration" that has dismantled many racial barriers.

It also came against the background of more turmoil in South Africa, where police on Wednesday violently broke up a march to demand the freedom of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela.

Mandela's eldest daughter, meanwhile, predicted in Washington that Pretoria will soon bow to international pressure and release her father unconditionally.

Minority test scores indicate state's failure, say officials

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Poor scores by minorities on entrance exams for college education programs is a sign the state hasn't educated minorities well, state officials conceded Wednesday.

"The lower passing rates among minorities stems from the fact that the state has fallen short in the past in educating these students," Texas Education Commissioner William Kirby said.

That, he said, is a "cycle that must be broken in part by ensuring that future generations are taught by only the most capable teachers."

Kirby's comments came one day after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler — prodded by minorities — issued an order requiring Texas colleges to let students take education courses even if they fail the test.

Justice did not declare the Professional Skills test unconstitutional, however. That question, he indicated, will be answered later.

Plaintiffs in the case, who allege the test is discriminatory, include the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the American GI Forum and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Officials of the minority groups, speaking at a Capitol news conference, hailed the decision and urged college students interested in public teaching careers to sign up for education courses even if they haven't passed the required test.

Education officials, however, warned that students won't be allowed to teach in Texas public schools unless they eventually pass that test or it is ruled unconstitutional.

The test has been administered five times in the past 18 months. The Texas Education Agency estimates that 73 percent of whites who have taken the test have passed it, compared to passing rates of 34 percent for Hispanics and 23 percent for blacks.

"It probably weeds out some who shouldn't be teachers," said MALDEF attorney Albert Kauffman. "But we don't think that the percentages are anywhere near 20 or 30 percent. We specifically reject the notion that 78 percent of blacks and 66 percent of Mexican-American college students don't have basic skills enough to sit in college classrooms and learn. That makes no sense."

Farabee predicts lean budget

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Austerity will be the key word in work on the state's 1988-89 budget, Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said Wednesday.

Farabee was in Austin for a brief meeting of the Legislative Budget Board, which will draft a preliminary spending plan for the 1987 Texas Legislature.

Asked in an interview how writing the budget will compare with that work in 1985, Farabee said, "I think it will be worse than in the past. I think we will look at additional budget cuts."

The state also may be in store for another tax hike, he said, unless the economy turns around.

"We will have to raise taxes to meet our obligations on prisons, highways, public education" and other areas, he said.

An increase in the sales tax is the most likely source of added revenue, he said.

After pondering massive cuts in higher education last spring, lawmakers decided to create a task force to look at efficiency in university spending.

State leaders, Farabee said, probably will make those appointments within a month. He has let Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's office know that he is interested in working on the task force.

"I would like to serve in some capacity, if possible," he said.

Samantha recalled as 'beam of sunshine'

ACTOR ROBERT Wagner, left, escorts Mrs. Jane Smith to St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Augusta, Maine, for a memorial service for Smith's husband, Arthur, and daughter, Samantha. The two were killed in a plane crash Sunday night.

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — More than 1,000 mourners, from classmates to a Soviet diplomat, and actor Robert Wagner, recalled Samantha Smith as a "beam of sunshine" who melted barriers between nations.

Samantha, the 13-year-old schoolgirl who captured the world's attention with her simple plea to the Kremlin against nuclear war, died in a plane crash Sunday along with her father. She was remembered Wednesday in a memorial service in a church decorated with a United Nations flag and a wreath sent by the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Reading a statement by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Vladimir Kulagin, first secretary for cultural affairs at the embassy in Washington, recalled Samantha's two-week tour of the Soviet Union in July 1983, describing her as a "brilliant beam of sunshine."

Kennebec County is one of 10 in the state where Soviet travel is restricted, but State Department officials gave Kulagin quick clearance to travel to the memorial service for Samantha and her father, Arthur.

Kulagin said he hoped Samantha, who took the trip to his country with her parents at the expense of the Soviet government, would prove to be "a symbol of the future in Soviet-American relations."

Samantha was invited on the trip by the late Yuri V. Andropov, then the Soviet leader, to whom she had written about her fears of war.

Kulagin, in an earlier interview outside the church, dismissed past criticism that the Soviets exploited Samantha for political gain.

"My daughter met Samantha," he said. "I met Arthur and Samantha, and if I weren't in a political job I'd like to come here anyway today."

Wagner, who was filming a television series with Samantha, accompanied her mother, Jane, and other relatives to the front pew at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church.

At the altar, a large wreath of red and white carnations adorned with a pair of white doves read, "Embassy of the U.S.S.R. Washington, D.C." Other floral arrangements were sent by Wagner, who was filming the new ABC series "Lime Street" with Samantha, and actress Jill St. John.

Among those also present were 15 students from a Massachusetts school for the severely handicapped and terminally ill. They delivered a light-blue United Nations flag that was draped behind red geraniums at the front of the church.

The 70-minute, ecumenical service also featured prayers, readings, hymns and testimonials from friends and Gov. Joseph E. Brennan.

The governor called Samantha "a very special young girl who provided inspiration and hope, not just for the very young, but indeed for all of us."

"The innocence of her youth, the sincerity of her beliefs and the magic of her smile melted the barriers between nations and warmed the hearts of the coldest diplomats," Brennan said.

Eleven-year-old Dori Desautel delivered a poignant testimony to her lost friend in a clear voice, though she sobbed as she returned to her seat.

"When I realized what she was trying to do for our world, I was very much proud to be her friend," said the girl. "When she became famous, we always stayed in touch."

The Rev. Peter Misner, a Methodist minister and the Smiths' neighbor, officiated at the service, urging the mourners to remember the good Samantha achieved.

"What gathers us did not begin with the terrible plane crash on Sunday," Misner said.

Samantha and her father, who had quit his job teaching English at the University of Maine at Augusta to oversee her budding acting career, were killed with six other people when their Bar Harbor Airlines plane crashed and exploded while trying to land in Auburn. The Smiths' bodies are being cremated.

Weather service warns Elena is no Danny boy

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Elena grew into a hurricane today as it moved toward the Gulf Coast, and forecasters warned drivers in the Florida Keys to stay off the roads.

The National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables upgraded Elena from a tropical storm to a hurricane at 8 a.m. CDT, after winds reached 75 mph. "Conditions remain favorable for further strengthening," the center said.

At 8 a.m., the storm was centered at a latitude of 25.0 north and a longitude of 85.0 west off the southern tip of Florida, or 475 miles southeast of New Orleans.

Air Force reconnaissance flights discovered Elena was moving northwest toward the Gulf Coast at 20 mph, but the Atlantic season's fifth named storm was expected to slow down and turn north over the next 24 hours, the hurricane center said.

The center issued a hurricane warning from Pensacola to Morgan City, La., and said a hurricane watch was still in effect east of Pensacola to Apalachicola.

"The history of it (Elena) and the time of year are two good reasons why this storm does not respect, and a lot more respect than (hurricanes) Bob or Danny," said forecaster Bob Case.

He said the depression that turned into Elena had crossed the Atlantic at high speed and had not dissipated despite passing over land in Puerto Rico and Cuba.

In a mid-morning advisory, forecasters predicted a 32 percent chance that Elena's center would pass within 65 miles of Buras, La., by 8 a.m. Friday, a 24 percent for Gulfport, Miss., and 20 percent for New Orleans. Mobile, Ala., had a 19 percent chance while Pensacola was listed at 18 percent.

HURRICANE FORECASTER Harold Gerrish prepares information for an advisory on Hurricane Elena at Miami's National Hurricane Center. At right is center director Neil Frank.

In South Florida, avid Bruce Springsteen fans camped under umbrellas and raincoats, braving wind and rain to line up a day ahead for this morning's sale of tickets to the New Jersey rocker's Sept. 9 concert in the Orange Bowl.

A 1:30 a.m. local advisory warned that high tides and strong winds were pushing water and mounds of seaweeds onto the Atlantic side of roads in the lower and middle Florida Keys, especially in Key West.

"Driving is strongly discouraged," the advisory said.

Key West, the southernmost point in the United States, sits at the tip of a 110-mile string of islands joined only by a series of primarily two-lane bridges that make up the federal Overseas Highway.

Gale warnings were posted over the Keys south of Craig Key to the Dry Tortugas. Other Florida boaters were warned to keep small craft in port south of Tarpon Springs on the Gulf Coast and Jupiter Inlet on the Atlantic.

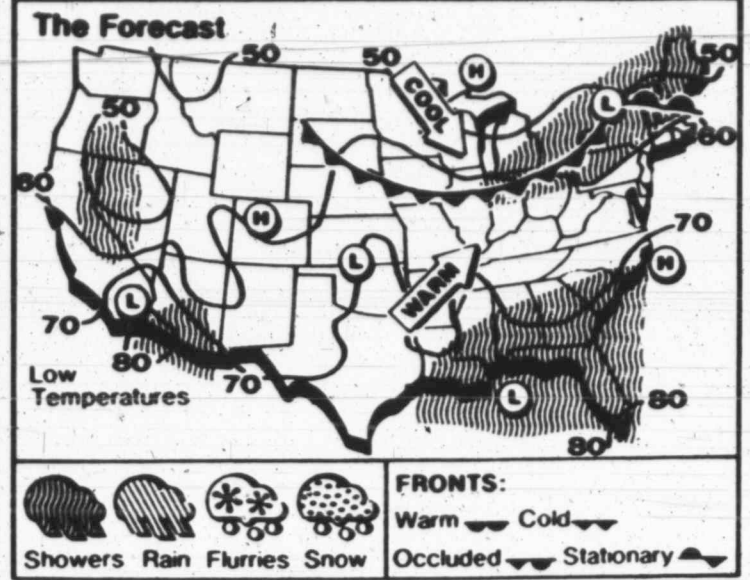

Gov. Bob Graham closed three state parks because of potential gale winds and torrential rains in the Keys: John Pennekamp, Long Key and Bahia Honda.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard delayed evacuation of 111 Haitian refugees stranded by shipwreck on the remote, privately owned Bahamas island of Flamingo Cay. The evacuation would be resumed today once squalls spawned by Elena passed the Bahamas, said Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Bob Baeten.

Four other storms have been named this season. Bob, Claudette and Danny all became hurricanes. Ana, the first, never developed beyond a tropical storm.

Houston is hose happy

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston residents use as much as 70 million gallons a day to water their lawns — enough to meet the daily water needs of most cities, officials say.

"It's a massive quantity," said Dan Jones of the City Public Works Department.

In analyzing the city consumption figures, Jones said, residents use from 50 million to 70 million gallons every day in the summer months to water lawns and plants.

Martin County budget rises slightly; public hearing set

STANTON — Martin County commissioners proposed a slight increase for the county's 1985-86 budget from the current budget in a special session Wednesday night.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Sept. 9. The court will then act by changing or passing the budget, Deavenport said.

The proposed budget is roughly equivalent to the current $2.58 million budget, Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport said.

The increase is caused mainly by a sharp rise in employee medical insurance and workmen's compensation rates. The two items are estimated to cost $18,000, Deavenport said.

Stanton keeps same tax rate

STANTON — The tax rate will remain at $1.05 per $100 of valuation this year, the Stanton City Council decided in a special session Wednesday night.

A public hearing on the budget will be held during the next regular meeting Sept. 9.

In another business new police chief Mike Adams presented his police manual of operations. All concerned were satisfied with his proposed method of operations, Mathis said.

"We came to a good mutual understanding," he said.

Gib Madison withdrew his request to place a mobile home on a lot with another house in a single family zoning district. His plans didn't work out and he didn't need the permission, Mathis said.

Because the county spent a lot on road-building equipment last year, it will not spend as much this year, Deavenport said.

It was unclear from the sheriff's log whether a burglary had occurred. A written report of the incident had not been completed by the sheriff's department Thursday morning.

Big Spring police transferred Michael S. Wilbanks, 17, of Ster-

Engines inspected

WASHINGTON — U.S. airlines are being told to inspect Pratt & Whitney engines on hundreds of aircraft for cracks following last week's disaster in England when an engine on a Boeing 737 exploded during takeoff, causing a fire that claimed 54 lives.

The Federal Aviation Administration ordered the inspections Wednesday night on the model JT8D-15 engines that power many Boeing 727 and 737 aircraft as well as the McDonnell Douglas DC-9 and MD-80 jetliners.

3rd satellite launched

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Discovery's astronauts launched a third communications payload today and sped on to a Saturday rendezvous with a stranded satellite they hope to fix during one or two weekend spacewalks.

"Syncom's away," astronaut James van Hoften reported as the Syncom 4 satellite flipped out of the shuttle's cargo bay.

"You'll get to wrestle with one just like that in a couple days," Mission Control reminded van Hoften.

Syncom 4 is almost identical to Syncom 3, the lifeless satellite which two spacewalkers will try to revive by "hot-wiring" its electrical system, a task which NASA had said might take two days instead of one because Discovery's robot arm has a bad "elbow." Van Hoften will be one of the spacewalkers.

Expense-cutting plan

DANBURY, Conn. — Union Carbide Corp. says its expense-cutting plan, including elimination of 4,000 white-collar jobs, is part of a decade-old restructuring move, but analysts say Carbide is reacting to earlier mistakes and that "the world's gone the wrong way for them."

Union Carbide Chairman Warren M. Anderson said the seven-step plan announced Wednesday would improve the company's financial position and better its safety and environmental measures. He said the steps are designed to save about $300 million and substantially improve Union Carbide's return on equity.

Dream journey

Lengthy wheelchair trek ends at Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — After four months during which he went through 14 pairs of gloves to protect his blistered hands, Michael King ended his cross-continent wheelchair trek by rolling to the U.S. Capitol steps and proclaiming, "You're only as handicapped as you let yourself be."

"This day has been a long time dreamed for, I guess," said the tanned and muscular King, 26, after his road crew and a police escort had accompanied him Wednesday to the final stop of a 5,605-mile journey. He said the trip from Fairbanks, Alaska, helped raise some $30,000 for rehabilitation centers around the nation.

King began on April 29, using up six sets of tires and 14 pairs of gloves before easing his 22-pound wheelchair, which was designed for racing, into the parking lot beneath the Capitol dome.

He was met by about 50 friends and well-wishers, a battery of reporters and photographers, and representatives of the White House, the House of Representatives, and of District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry.

King, of Cochranville, Pa., who lost the use of his legs after a car struck him on his motorcycle seven years ago, said he hoped the trip helped inspire the disabled and others to "reach out for your goals and dreams."

"There still is a challenge that keeps going for me every day, which is to live my life the best that I can, and to reach out to others and to encourage them to do the same thing," he said.

"You can still make something of your life in spite of difficulties and circumstances that come along to each one of us at different times in our lives. Some are worse than others, some take a little more to get through."

King said he is enrolling at the University of Pennsylvania in the fall to pursue a graduate degree in social work.

"I think the strength of any society should be shown in its ability to pick up those less fortunate — not to carry them for the rest of their life, but just to help them back on their feet again to get started," he said.

"You're only as handicapped as you let yourself be," Robert Sweet of the White House staff read King a message from President Reagan that said in part: "You have every right to be proud of the courage and determination it took to attempt a heroic project like this and I am honored to join in well-deserved congratulations that will be coming your way."

"In overcoming your handicap you have given new hope and inspiration to others," Reagan's message

Michael King of Cochranville, Pa., speaks at a welcoming reception at the Capitol Wednesday. King ended a cross-continent wheelchair trek that he began in Fairbanks, Alaska, April 29. The trip raised $30,000 for rehabilitation centers.

Yacht intercepted

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel's navy intercepted a yacht in the Mediterranean and captured Palestinians who planned to join other guerrillas in south Lebanon and infiltrate Israel, the military command announced today.

A Foreign Ministry official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said in Jerusalem that an American and an Australian were in the crew seized when the yacht was stopped five days ago.

He refused to identify the two, but said they were being held separately from the Palestinians. Israeli police were arranging for representatives from the U.S. and Australian embassies in Tel Aviv to visit the prisoners, he said.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman's office said it had no immediate information on any captured American.

Talks may reopen

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Nigeria's new military rulers have promised to reopen stalled talks on rescheduling the foreign debt, announced the appointment of a revamped ruling council, and released jailed journalists.

Nigeria Radio, monitored in Abidjan, reported that editors Bukar Zarma of the New Nigerian and Lawrence Olanipe of the Nigerian Tribune were released Wednesday. It also said the former director of the Nigerian Public Service Commission, Sule Katagum, had been freed.

15 blacks killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police said today that 15 blacks were killed in anti-apartheid violence, 11 of them in battles between police and protestors calling for the release of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela.

A police spokesman said the 11 blacks were "killed by our action" in the black township of Guguletu after thousands of people of all races massed Wednesday to march to the gates of Pollsmoor Prison where Mandela is serving a life term.

Illegal adoption ring cracked following arrest of 2 women

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An illegal adoption ring that may have sold 200 infants to U.S. couples in the last two years at $5,000 a baby was cracked Wednesday with the arrest of a woman and her daughter, federal immigration officials said.

Authorities broke up the ring with the help of a couple who had adopted a baby girl from it and later agreed to help Immigration and Naturalization agents when they were told their infant was an illegal alien.

Juanita Leyva-Vargas, 52, and her 25-year-old daughter, Melinda, were arrested and charged with conspiracy to smuggle illegal aliens after delivering a 5-day-old Mexican girl to a Kalama, Wash., couple at the Lindbergh Field airport in San Diego on Wednesday, said Harold Ezell, an INS commissioner for the western region.

The ring provided babies to an undetermined number of couples, primarily throughout the midwestern and northwestern United States, through an unlicensed halfway house for unwed Mexican mothers in Tijuana, Mexico, operated by Mrs. Leyva-Vargas, Ezell said. At least seven infants were traced to Springfield, Ill., Milwaukee, Seattle, Portland, Ore., and New York state.

Parents were provided with counterfeit birth certificates and adoption papers, Ezell said.

"This is a combination of one of the most barbaric and tragic smuggling operations that I've had the opportunity to witness in the actual purchasing and selling of babies," Ezell said.

The Kalama couple, Philip and Linda Phillips, had adopted their baby through the ring and cooperated with authorities after they were told that their adopted daughter was an illegal alien. The Phillips were allowed to keep the baby.

'X'-ing out rock's forbidden zone

Maybe "girls just want to have fun," but a group of prominent Washington wives thinks teenagers should find a more wholesome way to entertain themselves than by listening to smutty rock 'n' roll songs.

The group — Parents Music Resource Center (PMRC), led by Tipper Gore, the wife of the Tennessee senator — has been pressuring the recording industry to rate its albums the way the movie industry rates films, with an "X" for songs containing sexually explicit lyrics. They also want the companies to put suggestive albums in brown-paper wrappers and print song lyrics on album covers where parents can read them, if they can stand it. And a few days ago, they won a small victory: The Record Industry Association of America announced it would begin putting warning labels on offending albums.

Certainly one can sympathize with PMRC's complaints. Anyone who has ever bothered to listen to the lyrics of a song by Prince, the master of the single entendre, knows that rock stars have traveled the full distance from good taste. Twenty years ago, the Rolling Stones appalled parents by suggesting, "Let's Spend the Night Together." Now some rock singers describe what to do once you get there, in detail worthy of a physiology class and with a sensitivity more appropriate to a storm trooper. Unlike the Beatles, they do not want to hold your hand.

But it is hard to see what effect warning labels will have, other than to send 12-year-olds a screaming signal, "Buy this record." A few teens might find it more difficult to get their ears on a dirty song, but for most the forbidden music will be the most desirable, and given the easy availability of magnetic tape and recorders, it will get around. The existence of a special warning may even embolden more recording groups to make their music explicit, on the mistaken theory that it is out of the reach of the impressionable.

Unless parents are prepared to screen everything that goes on their teens' turntables and Walkmans, the quest to take the raunchy out of rock seems bound to end, as always, in failure. The best parents can hope is that, by good example, youngsters can be weaned from racy rock to something more tasteful and traditional — how about Cole Porter's "Let's Do It" and "The Lady Is a Tramp"?

Steve Chapman System increases radicals' influence

There must be something wrong with any people who elect to parliament Meir Kahane, the racist demagogue who wants all Arabs expelled from Israel. Or maybe there is merely something wrong with their political system. The major parties, Labor and Likud, now allied in a "unity" government, could help themselves and the country by using their combined strength to fix the flaws for good.

Anti-Arab bigotry, granted, is on the rise in Israel. In the 1984 election, Kahane's Kach party got five times the vote it got three years earlier, and polls show its popularity rising fast. A generation of Israelis has grown up regarding the occupied territories as part of Israel. These young people are more inclined than their elders to endorse brutal remedies to the "Arab problem."

But it's easy to exaggerate the importance of a Kahane. Someone like him probably could never win a seat in the U.S. Congress. That isn't necessarily because we have fewer racists. Our electoral system makes it hard for the candidates of small parties to win elections. The Israeli system makes it easy.

Proportional representation is the biggest reason. Kahane didn't defeat an opposing candidate in a one-on-one race. All he did was capture 26,000 votes, or 1.2 percent of the total popular vote, exceeding the required 1 percent minimum. No fewer than 26 parties appeared on the 1984 ballot. No fewer than 18 are represented in this Knesset.

The Labor Alignment, which won a plurality, holds only 44 seats. No party in Israel's 37-year history has ever commanded a majority in parliament. Creating and sustaining a governing majority has always required the help of other parties, usually religious ones representing small, eccentric constituencies. It is as though President Reagan's tenure in office required him to appease the John Birch Society. There are other unusual features in the Israeli system. Voters cannot vote for or against individual candidates. They select only the party, and the party selects the officeholders. Nor do members of the Knesset represent geographical districts. All are chosen in a single nationwide vote. Both of these features frustrate accountability.

These peculiarities afflict the Israeli polity with several debilitating viruses. In the U.S., an extremist like Kahane would be shunned by the major parties, making it practically impossible for him to win a political office of any importance. In Israel, the extremism is an asset, distinguishing Kahane from the multiplicity of other parties.

Instead of fostering consensus, as majority rule does, proportional representation promotes fragmentation and division. The result is a chronic instability which frequently paralyzes the government from taking any action.

The inability of either major party to gain control of the Knesset on its own gives the small parties a power much greater than their popularity warrants. The majority of Israelis may reject a particular policy, but if it is the price Labor or Likud must pay for the support of the religious parties, the majority will not get its way. A ream of religious laws, affecting everything from the sale of pork to observance of the Sabbath, are the result.

Majorities inevitably rest on compromises among their separate factions. But in other democracies, Harvard political scientist Nadav Safran notes, the compromises are made before the election, giving voters the final decision. In Israel, someone voting for either major party can only guess what concessions it will have to make to build a majority.

Jack Anderson Congressional fact-finding, or where to go on recess

WASHINGTON — It's an annual rite in Washington: Every summer, the members of various committees on Capitol Hill play spin-the-globe to determine which of the world's hot spots need their personal attention during the recess.

The locations tend toward the pleasure spots. Indeed, the uninitiated might be amazed to learn how many problems are screaming for solutions in such places as Paris, London and Rome.

Tentative plans are drawn up, and staffers are dispatched to make arrangements. Air transportation has to be requisitioned from the Defense Department. Surface transportation, hotel reservations and luggage carriers have to be lined up by the State Department.

The woebegone diplomats also have to dredge up some officials of the host governments who are willing to give up a few days of their summer vacations to "confer" with the visiting dignitaries. Can't have an "official business" trip without some official business, you see.

We have been following globe-trotting lawmakers for 38 years as they clamor across the ruins of Machupicchu and float down the Nile. We reported the amusing antics of a Louisiana senator trying out his Cajun French on bewildered natives in Timbuktu. We caught a midwestern senator taking elephant rides in Sri Lanka.

Slowing down fireballs in plane crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The explosion and fire that destroyed a British jetliner last week, killing 54 people, focused new attention on the frustrating difficulties and slow progress in finding ways to protect passengers against commercial aircraft fires.

"With this latest disaster, they are going to have to face the facts and decide which is more important — money or lives," says Wayne Williams of the National Transportation Safety Association, a private, Florida-based watchdog group.

Says Daniel T. Smith of Dallas, consumer affairs manager of the International Airline Passengers Association: "Recent efforts by the government are commendable, but as usual it's too little, too late."

For its part, the federal government is concentrating on finding ways to reduce the lethal effects of aircraft fires, notably from smoke and toxic fumes, and prevent leaking fuel from bursting into a catastrophic fireball.

The Federal Aviation Administration was ready late last year, in fact, to order use of a fuel additive designed to prevent the sort of rapidly escalating blaze that engulfed the British Airways twin-jet Boeing 737 on Aug. 22. But the government backed away after the additive failed to perform as expected in a highly publicized test crash in December.

In any event, says FAA spokesman Fred Farrar, "There's not much that can be done to prevent the fires."

The reason is simple. A jetliner carries thousands of gallons of extremely volatile fuel, akin to ordinary household kerosene. In addition, some aircraft cabin materials — plastics, wool, acrylics and the like — release lethal gases such as carbon monoxide and hydrogen cyanide when they burn intensely.

In the case of the British Airways jet, which caught fire as it hurtled down a Manchester, England, runway, press reports said the explosion in the plane's left-hand engine was a "chance-in-a-million" incident caused by failure of the only engine part that could easily rupture a fuel tank and start a fire.

Similarly, investigators speculate that a malfunctioning electrical flush motor in the rear lavatory may have been responsible for a fire that erupted in an Air Canada DC-9 during a flight from Dallas to Toronto in June 1983, forcing the plane to make an emergency landing at Cincinnati. The cause has never been established. Twenty-three people died.

It's a story without an ending. There is no final chapter, only the next one. An estimated 14 congressional delegations, for example, trekked this month to Central America, Europe, Africa and the Far East.

Members of the House Armed Services Committee, to name but one, recently returned to the United States after a two-week "fact-finding" trip to several Mediterranean countries. An Air Force C-137 was required to haul the party of 10 lawmakers, five wives, nine aides and bureaucrats, a Navy doctor and three Air Force "escort" officers across the Atlantic. The seven-hour flights to and fro set the taxpayers back $102,000 in fuel and maintenance costs alone.

The congressional party used an Air Force C-9 jet to hop from country to country. The taxpayers' bill for the short-hop flights came to another $88,000.

A State Department official solemnly pronounced the trip "serious." The delegation's chairman, Melvin Price, D-Ill., added with deep gravity: "The delegation's trip underscores the importance of the region to the continued stability of southern NATO, the Middle East and North Africa."

Our reporter Stewart Harris has obtained their itinerary, stamped "confidential," which was prepared by the State Department.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

“There's not much that can be done to prevent the fires.”

FAA spokesman
Fred Farrar

Federal experts say 40 percent of the people who die in plane crashes after surviving the initial impact are killed by fire.

Spurred by the Air Canada fire, the FAA ordered airlines last October to outfit seats and cushions with flame-retardant covers within three years and to install special cabin floor lighting within two years.

The "fire-blocking" seat material is intended to slow the rate of burn in the event of a fire, and to delay by as much as 40 seconds the point at which flammable vapors in the cabin burst into a fireball, which is virtually almost impossible to survive.

The purpose of the floor lighting is to guide passengers to exits in a smoke-filled cabin.

In March, the FAA ordered installation of smoke detectors in aircraft lavatories within 18 months. In addition, the airlines were given two years to install automatic fire extinguishers in lavatory trash receptacles and hand-held extinguishers in other strategic cabin locations.

The agency is close to issuing a final rule requiring more flame-resistant materials for baggage compartment liners, and is seeking to establish new flammability standards for cabin interiors.

The FAA will meet with airline and plane&oturing representatives in Seattle next week to discuss ways to improve emergency evacuations. One of the government's longstanding requirements for certifying a plane as airworthy is the ability to evacuate passengers in 90 seconds in semi-darkness, with half the exits blocked.

The government's difficulties in solving the problem of fire safety were dramatized last December with the embarrassing outcome of the test of a new chemical additive, developed by a British firm, intended to prevent fireball explosions of leaking jet fuel.

Rare white rhinos thrive at Turkey Track Ranch

STINNETT (AP) — While the plains of the Panhandle may still be wild, there have been changes.

If rustlers ever rode into the Turkey Track Ranch north of here, they might be shocked into becoming salesmen.

Over some mounds of loam and sand, across an 8-foot-deep trench, a herd is grazing.

White rhinoceros! Six of them, in fact. They represent the second largest breeding herd of the white rhinos in captivity.

"It's something I always wanted to do," said Jim Whittenburg, owner of the ranch and rhinos.

He said he was concerned about the species because it was facing extinction and wanted an effort to save the white rhinoceros.

The animals are not called by name.

They seem to go without the status of pets. Instead, they are treated delicately and reverently, like any expensive thoroughbred. Whittenburg said the animals were registered with members of other herds to prevent in-breeding and, generally, to genetically insure a better breed.

He said the animals are docile, although no one but their caretaker, Michael Lamkin, is allowed near.

Whittenburg watches Lamkin stand inside the acre-long "pen" while a rhino approaches him and

Whittenburg said he acquired the animals from a dealer in Los Angeles. The rhinos originally were intended for the zoo in Clovis, N.M. The zoo, however, did not have the facilities ready. The rhinos were trucked to the Panhandle earlier this summer.

Whittenburg said the three-day journey in crates was hard on the herd. One bull died of trauma shortly after arriving.

Now, however, the group is thriving, Whittenburg said.

The climate and environment of North Texas is very similar to their native Africa, he said.

They eat the same things most livestock eat. In addition to a bale of alfalfa hay daily, the adult rhinos eat grass and sweet feed.

The herd consists of one bull, three cows and two male calves. The world's largest herd, Whittenburg said, made up of 12 individuals, is located at the San Diego Zoo.

"And we're not even sure they're producing," Lamkin said. "This fellow (the Whittenburg herd bull) is a proven breeder."

UT drops planned performance by controversial Joe Bob Briggs

AUSTIN (AP) — Plans have been dropped for an appearance at the University of Texas by controversial drive-in movie critic Joe Bob Briggs.

The Texas Union Film committee began efforts last spring to bring former Dallas Times-Herald columnist John Bloom, who writes under the Joe Bob pen name, to the university as part of a fall program.

But Stephen Bearden, film program adviser for the Texas Union, said controversy surrounding Bloom and opposition from minority student leaders has caused the program to be shelved.

"It grew into a program a little bit out of hand," he said.

The Joe Bob Briggs column, now distributed by a newspaper syndicate, was canceled by the Times-Herald last spring after Bloom parodied the "We Are The World" song that was being used to raise funds for African famine relief.

The black community in Dallas complained about Bloom's "We Are The World" parody and other negative references to blacks. The paper ran a front-page apology, and Bloom resigned when the Joe Bob column was dropped.

Prior to his resignation, the film committee had proposed that Bloom visit UT this fall and lecture on film criticism, said Richard Heller, associate director of the Texas Union. The program was to include a drive-in film festival.

But the format changed after Bloom's agent offered a new agenda, including the Joe Bob Briggs persona and an act. Heller said.

Heller said a major factor in deciding to drop the plans was that Bloom's presentation could be offensive and there was no guarantee what the show might contain.

Bearden said the Texas Union program staff believed the show would be controversial and cause a lot of negative publicity.

Girls win support for football tryout

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two 16-year-old girls who want to try out for their high school football team have won the support of Knox County's superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Earl Hoffmeister said Wednesday that Lisa Vineyard and Anna Erman can present their case to the school board if they still want to try out for the Doyle High School football squad.

"If it came before the school board, my recommendation would be that they would be allowed to go out (for football)," Hoffmeister said. "But in my opinion, they'll get hurt," he added.

Coach Richard Bridges has refused to let the two try out for the all-male squad.

"It's not sexist," Bridges said. "I just felt I didn't want to be responsible (for their safety.) I worry enough about my boys, and having the girls out there would scare me to death."

The girls decided to try out for the football team after 15-year-old Elizabeth Baisley, a student at North Hunterdon Regional High in Clinton Township, N.J., won a temporary restraining order enabling her to try out for the school's football team.

Erman, a foreign exchange student from Stockholm, said she knows little about football but wants to learn.

"I played soccer in Sweden, but that's not the same," the 5-foot-6, 116-pound junior said. "I want to learn so I can take something with me back to Sweden. It looks very fun."

Vineyard, a 5-6, 145-pound sophomore, said she has wanted to play football for three years and wants to prove her ability in the sport.

"I wasn't really serious about it until this year," Lisa said.

Dr. Donohue

Fetal herpes infection not common

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband and I both have herpes, the genital kind. We want to have a baby, but are concerned about it contracting herpes. I rarely have actual sores. How safe is it to rely on tests on the mother as the due date for delivery arrives? What are the dangers in having a C-section for delivery? — E.R.

The vast majority of pregnant women with herpes deliver normal babies.

The threat lies in exposure of the baby during passage through a birth canal when there is an active herpes infection there. To guard against this eventuality studies begin at week 32 of the pregnancy, with periodic examinations of specimens and sampling of birth canal cells thereafter. The woman's blood is also measured for telltale antibodies that increase during an active infection.

If results of these studies are negative at the actual time of delivery a safe vaginal delivery can be done. If the tests show the presence of the virus, then the C-section is performed. The dangers from a C-section are quite minimal, if that is a concern.

The greatest herpes-associated risk for the baby, though, is when the mother becomes infected for the first time DURING a pregnancy. With this first infection, the virus may get into the blood and be passed to the infant. But that is not a common scenario.

More common is the one you postulate, where the woman has had herpes in the past and is concerned about recurrence near the time of delivery. Those tests I mentioned are pretty reliable, and you can safely deliver naturally if they prove to be negative at the delivery date.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: After reading your article on gastric ulcer, I want an explanation of what a gastroscope is. You didn't elaborate. Please tell me. — D.P.C.

It's a soft rubber tube with a camera lens on the end. It's passed through your mouth and into your stomach, and even beyond that if needed. It gives the doctor a bird's-eye view of structures and things like ulcers. If he wants to he can use the little pair of pliers on the end of the scope to get a snipet. It has permitted many cases of cancer to be discovered and treated.

It is not a terrible procedure, a bit uncomfortable at worst, and you usually get some calming medication beforehand to make it as easy as possible. The booklet you asked for is on the way. Other readers may obtain a copy of ("Peptic Ulcers: The Modern View and Treatment") by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00 for printing and handling.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has a twitch on one of his eyelids. He has had it for a few weeks now. You know, it's the kind where you can't actually see a blink but you can feel it. It has been disturbing him. He has been doing an awful lot of late-night studying for his college examinations, and he stays up real late. Could this be the cause? — M.A.C.

Sure. Fatigue can cause such a twitch. So can alcohol, and caffeine. The latter may be a more appropriate suggestion, since many use coffee or caffeine products to stay alert during cram sessions.

If these are the kind of factors involved here, your husband's twitch should go away on its own as soon as he reverts to more normal lifestyle. Sometimes a gentle massage of the eyelid stops such a twitch. I'm getting sleepy just talking about all this.

I hope I've interpreted your note correctly. If the entire lid is involved in a twitch, not just an individual eye muscle fiber or two, then you have to start thinking of things like illnesses of the nervous system. But from what you tell me, this is merely a fatigue-triggered twitch.

FOR S.S. — Yes, tetracycline is most effective on an empty stomach and when taken with water only.

Herpes may be killing the sexual revolution, but having it doesn't mean the end of your life. Or the end of your sex life. In his new booklet, Dr. Paul Donohue separates the truth from the fiction about this controversial health problem. For your copy of "Herpes: Don't Panic," send $1.25 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Don't call shuffleboard an old man's game

LAKESIDE, Ohio (AP) — There are two main rules in shuffleboard: don't call the disk a puck and don't call the sport an old man's game.

The finer rules and regulations are spelled out in print, but those are the two that count among 200-plus shufflers who congregated here recently for the National Shuffleboard Association championships. Their main aim, some said, was to keep their 6-inch disks out of the kitchen, the soup, the jail and the clink — all shufflers' talk for a court's minus-10 penalty area.

"I wish we didn't have that schtick tied to it that it's an old person's game. It's not," said Art Davis, 73, who came in for the Ohio championship tournament. Davis leads some 60,000 members claimed by the national association. "The younger people love the game but it's time consuming. It keeps them off a bit."

The shufflers point out that a teen-ager once won the national championship. They are peeved by the question of age.

But the national championship is a land of bifocals and Bermuda shorts, graying hair and jokes pegged to the realities of age.

"You have to know how to be a gentleman," one silver-haired club leader said of organizing tournaments. "You have to know when to turn the hearing aid up and when to turn it down."

"Don't rule out the young people — they are the shufflers of tomorrow," said Howard Rayle, 64, of Findlay, president of the Ohio Shuffleboard Association.

Novice shufflers, whatever their age, need about five years of devoted practice to reach pro-level ability, Davis said. As in most sports, amateurs play for trophies, professionals for money.

The biggest honor is a place in state or national halls of fame, for if the glory is grand, the money is not.

Top money in the last Ohio state championship was a $60 first prize in a total purse of $300; the national championship this year paid the winner no more than $350, said Davis.

"But to compare it to golf, the entry fee for the whole season here at Lakeside is $2, so it's very cheap for retired people," said Rayle.

Davis, of Newcastle, Ind., has been shuffling 37 years and with his wife, Mildred, say they share the distinction of being the only two living people with places in three shuffleboard halls of fame — Florida, Indiana and the national hall in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Telling friend from foe

One man's honesty may be another man's hostility, and differentiating friend from foe can be a tricky business.

Many men hide hostility under the guise of offering a helping hand, according to an article in a recent issue of Cosmopolitan, burying the anger they are unable to confront and covering up a bid for power with a veneer of truthfulness.

Society accepts the behavior of these "good guys" whose cutting criticisms are always "for your own good," because it puts a high premium on openness and blurs the lines between candor and cruelty.

The experts can offer some help in knowing what to look — and listen — for in spotting the hostile honest.

There are buzzwords to watch out for, such as "for your own good," and qualifiers that turn every compliment into a complaint.

"For the most part, these men are highly intelligent and highly verbal," said New York psychologist Arlene Kramer Richards.

They also are "men whose sexual identity depends on subjugating women, if not physically, then with words," according to authors Julius and Barbara Fast in their book, "Talking Between the Lines."

Such men may indulge in the perfectionist ploy, giving a woman a backhanded compliment by telling her with a little more work she could really do something right. A woman, eager to foster a democratic relationship, may deny her own wish to be treated in a caring way and become easy prey for a controlling man.

Felecia Ford to emcee Miss T.E.E.N. pageant in Dallas

Felecia Ford will perform and emcee the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant this weekend at Loew's Anatole Hotel in Dallas.

All past Texas Miss T.E.E.N. winners will perform during the competition. Ford won the title in 1981. Included among past winners is Miss Texas, Tamara Hext.

Ford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.P. Dunbar.

Ford is also awaiting word from the "Star Search" producers on whether she will be able to appear on the nationally syndicated show. She entered a talent competition at the Permian Basin Fair and Exhibition in Odessa last year and won the grand prize.

She then was sent to New York in October to make a videotape of her performance at Top Cat Studios. From 16,000 participants, only 1,100 were selected to be on the producer's tape in California. The tape will be reviewed in the selection of performers for "Star Search."

Ford is attending Texas Tech University this fall. She has participated in a number of pageants around the state, including the Miss Texas pageant in 1983. She represented San Angelo that year. She was second runner-up in the 1984 Miss Lubbock pageant and first runner-up and talent winner in the 1985 Miss Lubbock pageant.

Ford is studying voice and acting. She has performed in the Lubbock Summer Rep productions of "Gypsy" and "The Mikado."

In a recent interview in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, Ford said, "I enjoy performing on-stage and musicals are what I enjoy the most. I've thought about Broadway but I'm not going to push myself or go against my morals for something and I've heard a lot about that type of thing in show business."

Children's eating habits worry parents

COLLEGE STATION — A child's eating habits can be a source of constant worry for parents.

If you think your child overeats, undereats, is overweight or too thin, it's a good idea to check with your family doctor. A physician can use growth charts and medical tests to determine your child's growth rate. If the child is found to be growing well with no weight problems, you can stop worrying.

Dr. Dymple Cooksey, nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says children often go on eating jags, eating mostly one or a few foods for several days.

"Eating jags are usually temporary," Cooksey says, "so continue offering good nutritious food in a pleasing way."

When a child doesn't eat much, this may be a normal "slowdown" stage of growth. Eating will increase as nutrient needs increase, she said.

If obesity is a problem, check to see whether your child is eating too many high fat or sweet foods, or just too much food. Are snacks nutritious or do they contribute excess calories?

Dear Abby

Girlfriend objects to family plan

DEAR ABBY: For five years my husband and I tried to have a baby, but I couldn't get pregnant, so we went to a fertility specialist. He tested both of us and said the problem was my husband's low sperm count. He suggested that my husband's brother (I'll call him Bob) come in and have his sperm tested, and if it was normal he could donate some sperm to be mixed with my husband's and I could be artificially inseminated with the combination.

Bob agreed to the plan, and he had his sperm tested. It was normal, and we were in seventh heaven. Well, the day before I was to be inseminated, Bob backed out. It seems he told his live-in girlfriend, and she didn't want him to father his brother's child! Abby, this has me so upset I can hardly see straight. We tried to explain that Bob wouldn't necessarily be "fathering" my baby — the one tiny little sperm that would fertilize my egg could be my husband's. The girlfriend wouldn't change her mind, and Bob refused to do it without her blessing.

Now I don't want to have anything to do with Bob or his live-in, but my husband says he can see their point and we should not hold a grudge. Does Bob's girlfriend have a right to tell him what to do with his sperm? And what do you think I should do?

SIGN ME UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Bob's girlfriend doesn't have the right to make decisions for Bob, but she appears to be doing it with his approval. There's no future in holding a grudge, so let bygones be bygones.

You can still be artificially inseminated with the sperm of an anonymous donor, which could be better in the long run.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is going to be married for the second time. We paid for her first wedding. Her husband died five years ago. Who pays for her second wedding?

MOM AND POP
DEAR MOM AND POP: Your daughter and her fiance. Parents are not expected to pay for a second wedding. Some don't even pay for the first.

DEAR ABBY: The pun is a low form of humor. Though it gives satisfaction to you.

I'm with Tom who has written from Cambridge, Latest score: 10 million to 2.

DON

DEAR DON: The Dexters wrote in, and sided with Tom.

Who said that my puns were a bore.

So since you agree with the three of them,

The score is 10 million to 4.

P.S. Before we close the books on this punny controversy, let's hear it from Golden, Colo.:

DEAR ABBY: Please do not ex-pun'ge.

JOHN C. FOSTER, JR.

DEAR JOHN: Thanks, pal. I needed that.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 44 years has Alzheimer's disease, and I have finally placed her in a nursing home where I know she is getting better care than I can give her now.

My problem is loneliness. I have many friends who say, "Come over — anytime; you're always welcome." Then they tell me how much they admire me for caring for my wife the way I did these last few years.

I don't need admiration — I need companionship. Why can't people be more specific, and say, "Come over next Sunday" or Wednesday or whatever?

Maybe it would help if you put in a plug for those who are widowed, or in a situation like mine. After all, some of your readers may find themselves alone someday. Sign me...

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Friends who say "Come anytime" usually mean it, but if you're lonely, don't wait for friends to call you — call and invite them for a pot-luck supper, an evening of cards, coffee and dessert. (It's easy to entertain at home with so many carry-out establishments.)

I'm not talking about casual acquaintances; I mean good friends.

Study suggests casual dieting may cause psychological harm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Slender women trying to lose a few pounds might end up hating their bodies in a complex mental process that can lead to self-induced vomiting and other "violent dieting" methods, a study suggests.

If further study proves that casual dieting can trigger severe eating disorders, "it may be appropriate to give (slim women) the warning: caution, dieting may be hazardous to your health," psychologist Susan Wooley said Tuesday at the American Psychological Association's annual meeting. Wooley's study sought to "deal with the mystery of why some women who have the most socially acceptable bodies end up with a negative body image."

Researchers previously found that hatred of one's own body, known as poor body image, can prompt obese women to engage in self-induced vomiting, starvation or other crash diets and abuse of diet pills and laxatives.

In its most extreme form, food binging followed by self-induced vomiting is called bulimia. Extreme self-starvation is known as anorexia. Experts say up to 5 percent of Americans, mainly young women, suffer bulimia or anorexia, both of which can be fatal.

Wooley and her husband, Orland, co-directors of the Eating Disorders Clinic at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, based their findings on an analysis of the responses from 5,000 of the 33,000 women who answered a survey conducted by Glamour magazine in 1983.

Fraternity pays for shooting pig

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A Texas A&M University fraternity paid $50 to a Brazos County farmer whose pig wandered onto their land and was shot and butchered.

"We thought we could get away with it," David Saxon, a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity said Tuesday. "We figured he wouldn't miss one."

Albert Warren, 79, found the animal, one of more than two dozen pigs on his farm, hanging from a tree Sunday near the fraternity house.

Saxon said fraternity members did not shoot the pig to be mean. Some of the meat was cooked and eaten, he said.

A sheriff's deputy summoned to the scene suggested Warren be reimbursed for his loss.

Cotton marketing association to raise per bale assessment

Cotton Inc. is raising the per bale assessment for its cotton research and promotion program, effective with the 1985-86 cotton crop.

The per-bale assessment will be $1 plus 6 percent of the value of each bale, according to the cotton marketing association.

The fund is important because of increasing competition from foreign-produced cotton and synthetic fibers, according to the association.

Synthetic fiber companies have cooperatively launched a $1 million campaign to develop cotton, silk and wool "look-a-likes," the company said.

The money in the fund will be used for Cotton Inc. advertising and for expansion of U.S. Upland cotton overseas with technical assistance through the Raleigh Research Center and through development of new products and services at all levels.

The assessment will help offset inflation, a company spokesman said. The budget has remained constant, but the buying power in real terms has declined. For example, $1 spent on television advertising in 1978 is worth 41 cents in 1985.

The 1985 budget is estimated at $18 million for the third consecutive year, below the 1982 level of $22.5 million. Without the assessment, Cotton Inc.'s budget would be reduced to about $15 million, causing cutbacks in program funding, the company said.

Even with the increase, the average producer will spend less than 1 percent of its cash costs per acre on Cotton Inc., a company spokesman said.

Marketing will be aimed at increasing recognition of its "seal of cotton" with consumers and to expand its market penetration in military and safety apparel.

Tourism booming in Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Tourism is booming in Gibraltar six months after Spain opened the border separating the rock from Europe, the Ministry of Tourism reported Tuesday. It had been closed for 16 years.

The ministry reported that more than 280,000 tourists converged on the 2.2-square-mile British colony so far this month, up from 250,000 in July.

The late Gen. Francisco Franco closed the border between Spain and Gibraltar in 1969 in an attempt to pressure the British, who have held the colony by treaty since 1713, to enter negotiations over its sovereignty.

The move effectively cut Gibraltar and its 25,000 inhabitants off from land access to Europe.

College football starts tonight

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Coach LaVell Edwards insists Brigham Young has nothing left to prove following last year's national championship.

The Cougars, however, still have a chance to make their critics eat their words this fall, beginning Thursday night when they meet Boston College, last year's fifth-ranked team, in the third annual Kickoff Classic.

The rap on BYU last year was that the Cougars, playing in the Western Athletic Conference, didn't play any decent teams and the criticism continued during the winter.

Six months before the 1985 opener, the griping already had started about BYU's schedule. But if the Cougars win their first three games from B.C., UCLA and Washington, they should quiet at least some of the doubters.

"No matter what you do, there will be people who'll say, 'I told you so; they're not worthy,'" says Edwards, whose team has a 24-game winning streak, longest in the nation. "I can't worry about that. I'm sort of like the guy who says, 'I don't care what you say about me, just spell my name right.'

Edwards says the Cougars "have a chance to be a good football team this fall," even though they lost four of five interior linemen on offense and all three on defense.

BYU starts out with a high-octane 1-2 punch in quarterback Robbie Bosco and wide receiver Glen Kozlowski. The top two players return at halfback and fullback, along with six of the eight linebackers on defense.

Channel 2
7 p.m.

Bosco, the latest in BYU's long line of outstanding passers, threw for 3,875 yards and 33 touchdowns last year and led the nation in total offense with 3,932 yards. Kozlowski was his favorite receiver with 55 catches for 89 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Brigham Young capped its perfect 1984 season by defeating

Michigan 24-17 in the Holiday Bowl. The WAC champion will not receive an automatic bid this year and BYU could wind up in a New Year's Day game.

If the nation's football fans are waiting to see what BYU can do for an encore, they also must wonder how Boston College will do without quarterback Doug Flutie, major college football's career passing king.

"Everybody doubted Doug for four years, and he won the Heisman Trophy. That's what we have to do, we have to prove people wrong," says Shawn Halloran, the 6-foot-4½ senior who was Flutie's understudy the past two seasons. Halloran is 8 inches taller than Flutie and is a more traditional dropback passer.

"Quarterback is not our main concern," says Coach Jack Bicknell. "Offensively, our concern right off the bat is right tackle. Our offensive line should be a strong point. If we can solve right tackle, we should be in good shape."

Tailback Troy Stradford and tight end Scott Gieselman, both seniors, and junior wide receiver Kelvin Martin are other key offensive performers.

Because both coaches are known for their passing attacks, the defenses have been somewhat overlooked. But in 249-pound nose guard Mike Ruth, B.C. has one of the strongest (he has bench-pressed 580 pounds) and one of the best linemen in the country.

"It's probably the best defense they've had here in years and years and years," says Ruth.

Like BYU, the Eagles have a series of tough opening games — BYU, Temple, Maryland, Pitt and Miami.

"With the schedule we have, it's possible to go .500 and everybody will say it's because you don't have Flutie," Bicknell says. "With Flutie, we could be .500 with this schedule."

"A lot of people really don't believe we're for real nationally. Because Flutie got so much publicity, they said it's because of him. But that's not the case. I don't think we have anything to prove."

Favorites roll in U.S. Open tennis

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-age sensation Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina and Wimbledon finalist Kevin Curren were upset Wednesday, but former champions Chris Evert Lloyd, Martina Navratilova and Jimmy Connors won first-round matches in the U.S. Tennis Championships.

The 10th-seeded Sabatini, who as a 14-year-old reached the third round here at the National Tennis Center last year, fell to Barbara Potter 6-4, 6-2. Guy Forget of France ousted the fifth-seeded Curren 7-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Two other seeds lost on this, Day 2 of America's premier tennis event. Czechoslovakia's Andrea Holikova eliminated No. 9 Kathy Rinaldi 7-6, 7-6, and Argentina's Martin Jaite downed No. 14 Henrik Sundstrom of Sweden 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Lloyd, top-seeded in the women's singles, crushed Australia's Janine Thompson 6-1, 6-3; defending champion Navratilova rolled over Pascale Paradis of France 6-2, 6-1, and Connors battled his way past South Africa's Gary Muller 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Other seeds advancing to the second round were No. 2 Ivan Lendl and No. 9 Miloslav Mecir, both from Czechoslovakia; No. 7 Yannick Noah of France, No. 11 Stefan Edberg of Sweden and No. 15 Scott Davis in the men's singles. Winners among the women included No. 4 Pam Shriver, No. 6 Zina Garrison, No. 11 Steffi Graf of West Germany and No. 13 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

Potter, who won a Virginia Slims tournament in Monticello, N.Y., on Monday — her first title since 1982, had her serve-and-volley game working well against Sabatini, winning 21 points on her 37 trips to the net. By contrast, Sabatini went to the net only twice, failing to win the point either time. The left-hander from Woodbury, Conn., served eight aces as her power game was too much for her young opponent to handle.

"I served up a storm tonight," Potter said.

Although Potter made more unforced errors than the Argentine right-hander, she kept forcing the play, and it proved to be the right tactic. She never lost her serve and broke Sabatini three times.

"The more matches you lose, the more you learn. Sometimes it's a little more expensive lesson than the regular lessons," said Patricio Apey, Sabatini's coach and interpreter.

A native of South Africa who became an American citizen earlier this year, Curren said he doesn't like the U.S. Open.

"It's almost tempting to pass this (the U.S. Open) up as I do the French Open," Curren said. "I come into this tournament with a very negative attitude."

"I hate coming to New York. I hate the city, I hate the environment and I hate Flushing Meadows."

"The USTA (U.S. Tennis Association) should be shot for the setup they have here. Today I complained to the umpire. . . . People were constantly moving back and forth. Articles and paper were dropping from above and the noise is ridiculous."

"Coming out here in the morning takes an hour and a half due to the traffic. This is from Kevin Curren, but I guess it is the same for a lot of other players."

"Some guys can deal with it, but unfortunately I never look forward to it."

Connors loves it, and the love is returned. Winner of America's premier tennis event five times, Connors nullified the blistering serves of Muller, a qualifier who pounded 18 aces on the stadium court. But Connors dominated in every other aspect.

And the left-hander delighted the fans with his animated behavior, especially when he covered his head with his hands after missing an easy overhead.

It was classic Connors, who last won this tournament in 1983.

Another crowd favorite, Lloyd, also continued her love affair with the New York fans. Her patient baseline game worked to perfection as her young opponent, obviously nervous, hit only 38 per cent of her first serves.

Lendl rushed through Jay Lapidus 6-2, 6-1, 6-3; Noah ousted Jeremy Bates of Britain 6-3, 7-6, 6-3; and Mecir battled back from near-elimination to stop Andy Kohlberg 5-7, 4-6, 7-6 (7-4), 6-3, 6-1.

Houston Open losing money

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Open golf tournament earlier this year lost more than $100,000, forcing operators of the PGA tour stop to dip into reserve money in order to meet charity commitments, the Houston Golf Association said.

"The losses were a little greater than we expected but, considering the losses, I think our board showed optimism," Duke Butler, executive director of the Houston Golf Association, said Wednesday.

The financial loss was the first for the tourney since 1966-67, when it was rained out and had to be rescheduled.

Tournament officials had to scramble in their fund-raising efforts when Coca-Cola withdrew its sponsorship, worth $500,000. The break-even point for the tournament was about $1.5 million.

The tournament also incurred extra expenses because it moved to a new course at The Woodlands, Butler said.

The four-day event in April, won by Raymond Floyd, drew a record 137,500 spectators.

Williams gets charges dropped

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Prosecutors put words in the mouth of one of their key witnesses, then tried to cover up the fact to win a conviction against John "Hot Rod" Williams, said the judge who dismissed sports bribery charges against the former Tulane star.

When that tactic didn't work, prosecutors deliberately forced a mistrial, hoping to get off to a better start with a new jury, the judge said.

State District Judge Alvin Oser dismissed conspiracy and bribery charges Wednesday that could have sent Williams to jail for 17 years and cost him $35,000 in fines, as well as a chance at a career in the National Basketball Association.

Williams' lawyer, Michael Green of Chicago, said Wednesday's ruling apparently leaves Williams free to sign with the NBA's Cleveland Cavaliers. "My opinion is that when one is presumed innocent, no one can take their livelihood away from them," Green said.

However, prosecutors said they would appeal Oser's ruling, and U.S. Attorney John Volz said he would investigate whether he needs to bring federal charges.

In addition, NBA lawyer Gary Bettman said in New York that Williams' status will need further study. Every signing is subject to the approval of Commissioner David Stern, he said, "and certain cases may require further inquiries."

Williams said he is ready to start trying to win a job with the Cavaliers.

Oser gave two reasons for his dismissal order — the state deliberately concealed evidence that might have helped Williams' defense, he said, and prosecutors concealed the evidence to provoke a mistrial.

Former Tulane forward Jon Johnson was one of three basketball players testifying against Williams, the star of the team. Johnson and Clyde Eads testified under grants of immunity, and little-used point guard Bobby Thompson made a plea-bargain with prosecutors.

Oser said that Johnson, of Columbus, Ga., was so terrified over the prospect of going to jail that he would have testified to almost anything.

Testimony in the Williams trial ended Aug. 13, when Johnson disclosed the existence of a taped statement he made in April before assistant district attorney Eric Dubelier in April. Two days later, Green said the prosecution had forced him to ask for a mistrial, even though he didn't want one.

The prosecution case, based on the testimony of co-conspirators, was going badly, Oser said.

The state intentionally concealed Johnson's tape recording, plus pictures of star witness Gary Kranz with a mound of cocaine, because the evidence might have discredited their testimony, Oser said.

Johnson's statement recorded on the night of his arrest differs from what he told the grand jury that indicted Williams and what he told the trial jury, Oser said.

He said Dubelier coached Johnson through the interrogation, supplying Johnson with names, places and dates when he wanted them.

The inconsistencies in Johnson's three accounts of the point-shaving conspiracy take on a more sinister meaning when viewed in the light of his willingness to cooperate to avoid prosecution, Oser wrote.

No sentencing date has been set for Thompson and the three non-athletes who testified for the prosecution under plea-bargains — David Rothenberg, Gary Kranz and Mark Olsensky.

No trial date has been set for former Tulane point guard David Dominique, the only other player accused in the case.

Cruz just misses breaking world mark in 800 meters

KOBLENZ, West Germany (AP) — Olympic champion Joaquim Cruz of Brazil missed the world record but ran the fastest 800 meters in the world this year during a Koblenz track and field meet that also featured two American records.

Cruz had a winning time of 1 minute, 42.50 seconds on Wednesday to clip .05 seconds off the world best time he established three days ago at Cologne, West Germany. As he did at Cologne, Cruz slowed in the home straight Wednesday and missed Briton Sebastian Coe's 1981 world record of 1:41.73. Coe, beaten by Cruz in Cologne, did not compete here.

Although he finished second to Cruz, Johnny Gray lowered his American 800-meter record to 1:42.60, .36 faster than his 1984 standard. Another American, David Mack, was third with a personal best of 1:43.35.

Meanwhile, veteran Henry Marsh clocked a world's best in the 3,000-meter steeplechase while bettering his own two-year-old American mark with a time of 8:09.17. The previous standard of 8:12.34 had stood since 1983.

The long-striding Cruz was paced by "hare" Wolfgang Busshoff of West Germany, who ran the first lap in 49.42 before dropping out.

Cruz took over from there only to have Gray challenge in the last 100 meters.

Marsh profited from a tight, fast race, taking over the lead on the bell lap maintaining a blistering pace until the end.

Steve Overt of Britain, the 1980 Olympic 800-meter champion, had his comeback after illness spoiled by an injury just into the last lap of the 1,500-meter race.

Overt was breathing down the neck of leader Jose Abascal of Spain when he pulled up with what was described as a slight muscle tear in his right leg.

With Overt out of the race, Abascal cruised home in 3:32.17.

Valerie Brisco-Hooks, the triple Olympic champion, suffered one of her rare defeats this season when she finished fourth behind three other Americans in the 100-meter dash. Alice Brown won in 11.02 seconds, Jeanette Bolden was second in 11.17, Florence Griffith was third in 11.18 and Brisco-Hooks fourth in 11.22.

Americans duplicated that sweep in the men's 100 meters, won in 10.30 seconds by Kirk Baptiste. World record-holder Calvin Smith was second in 10.32, Harvey Glance third in 10.43 and Darwin Cook fourth in 10.46.

Miscues plague Rangers in 5-1 loss to White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Bryan Little has been working on his batting stroke, but after slugging a three-run homer Wednesday night, even he was wondering if it was something he ate.

The fifth-inning shot by the Chicago second baseman powered the White Sox to a 5-1 victory over Texas.

Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine, on the other hand, was lamenting a miscue by losing pitcher Dave Stewart, 0-5, that allowed Rudy Law to score the go-ahead run in the third.

Stewart covered first on a double play and, thinking three were out, he tossed the ball back to the mound, allowing Law to race home to make the score 2-1.

"It's an inexcusable play," said Valentine. "We think baseball. We talk baseball. That play's not part of baseball."

Royals 8, Brewers 2

The other Kansas City homers came from Darryl Motley and Frank White. White's homer, a career-high 18th, was disputed.

AL Roundup

With two out in the fifth inning, White hit a line drive to right that the Brewers right-fielder Carlos Ponce said actually hit the top of the fence.

Royals right-hander Mark Gubicza, 10-7, allowed six hits while walking one and striking out three in eight innings, getting one inning of relief help from Dan Quisenberry.

White, who had 17 homers last year, said the club seemed to hit for more power on the road. "Ours is a bigger park, and these parks are more conducive to power hitting," White said.

Astros, Ryan blank Cubs, 3-0

HOUSTON (AP) — In what appears to be one of his most visible seasons, Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan continues to amaze opposing managers as well as pitchers even though he just won his first game since June 17.

"He's just one of the freaks," said Chicago Manager Jim Frey. "No one has thrown harder for a longer period of time. I remember seeing him play in the rookie league, and here it is 20 years later and he is still throwing as hard."

Ryan, 9-11, struck out eight in 6 2/3 innings and Jeff Heathcock earned his first save as the two right-handers gathered a 3-0 victory over the Cubs Wednesday.

The victory snapped an uncharacteristic eight-game losing streak for Ryan who left the game with a strained right shoulder in the seventh inning.

"I don't think it's anything major," said Ryan. "When I threw the next to last pitch, I felt a knot in my right shoulder. It's kind of like what I get in spring training. I figured there was no reason to take any chances."

The Cubs' only threat came in the fifth when Ron Cey led off with a single and went to third on Jody Davis' double off the glove of left-fielder Jose Cruz. But Leon Durham, Shawon Dunston and losing pitcher Jay Baller, 0-2, became strikeout victims to end the inning and help Ryan gain his first victory since June 17.

Ryan's slump, equaling that of 1975 while a member of the California Angels, covered his last 13 starts that included five no-decision games which the Astros eventually won.

"Not winning any games was real frustrating on a personal basis," Ryan said. "But any time you go through a rough period, like our ballclub has, it's frustrating." Houston took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a lead off double by Bill Doran and a run-scoring single by Denny Walling.

Glenn Davis accounted for the Astros' final run when he greeted reliever Lee Smith with a two-run double scoring Cruz and Jerry Mumphrey.

Heathcock pitched the final 2 1/3 innings to preserve the victory with no hits and striking out three.

"I really wanted to save it for him (Ryan.) I just went out there hoping to make them hit my pitch and not get behind in the count."

NL Roundup

Reds 7, Cards 6

With Joaquin Andujar working on a shutout and six runs on the board, the St. Louis Cardinals couldn't have been faulted for thinking they were about to increase their lead in the National League East to 3 1/2 games over the idle New York Mets.

But the Cincinnati Reds, led by Pete Vuckovich, 6-10, worked five innings for Milwaukee, allowing seven hits.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 5
Brunansky's single over the head of second baseman Manny Lee scored Kent Hrbek with the winning run. The RBI was Brunansky's first since Aug. 16 and the hit was only his second in 19 at-bats.

The Twins had loaded the bases against Tom Henke on singles by Hrbek and Randy Bush and a walk to Mark Salas.

"I was throwing the ball good," Henke said, adding ruefully that the pitch to Brunansky might have been "too good — a fastball right down the middle."

Toronto led 5-2 after seven innings, but Minnesota tied the score with three runs in the eighth. Roy Smalley led off with a single that chased Dave Stieb, and Hrbek then bunted for a hit. Toronto third baseman Rance Mulliniks made an error on the play that allowed Smalley to go to third, and Dave Engle hit a sacrifice fly. Salas followed with a home run, his fifth.

"The other day he threw me one in pretty much the same spot and I popped it up," said Salas, who helped make a winner out of Pete Filson, 4-5. "I was thinking that I should just make contact. He was supplying the heat."

Ernie Whitte broke out of a 5-for-31 slump with two hits and three RBIs for Toronto.

Indians 7, Red Sox 4
Julio Franco hit a grand-slam home run off Boston reliever Mark Clear, who hadn't yielded a homer this season, as the Indians won for the seventh time in eight games.

Left-hander Jamie Easterly, 3-0, worked 6 2-3 innings in his first start after 41 straight relief appearances for the Indians. Apparently, now that he's established himself as a successful starter, it's time for a change.

the seemingly ageless Pete Rose, simply wouldn't roll over and die. They reached Andujar for six runs in the sixth inning Wednesday night, held the Cardinals in check the rest of the way and won a 12-inning thriller when their 44-year-old player-manager drew a bases-loaded walk to come away with a 7-6 victory.

"I was in the driver's seat when I went 3-1," said Rose, who drew his walk from Ricky Horton after two hits earlier in the game left him nine short of breaking Ty Cobb's all-time record of 4,191.

"I wasn't going to go for anything bad. He knew that," Rose added. "He didn't give in. He tried to throw it down."

Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said he could foresee no lingering impact from the loss on his team, which finished a road trip with a 7-2 record.

Andujar, trying to become the first 21-game winner in the major leagues, fell apart after the Cardinals had scored six runs in the third inning to force Mario Soto to his earliest departure of the season.

Willie McGee and Terry Pendleton drilled two-run singles in the third and Ozzie Smith had two hits and an RBI in the inning.

Andujar blanked the Reds on three hits over the first five innings, but Bo Diaz and Ron Oester hit consecutive run-scoring singles to highlight the sixth. Eddie Milner and Max Venable also had RBI hits and Rose an RBI grounder.

Braves 6, Pirates 1
Len Barker's arm tightened up in the fifth inning, but he was delighted because muscle ailments in his neck and right elbow this season were not a factor.

"I was real gratified," Barker said after recording his first victory since May 13. "It's been a long time since I pitched like that."

Barker threw 95 pitches in the five innings, allowing three hits, three walks — one intentional — and fanning five.

Bob Horner hit his 22nd homer and Bruce Benedict had a two-run double in a four-run fourth inning. The victory was the third in a row for the Braves since Bobby Wine replaced the fired Eddie Haas as manager on Monday.

Craig McMurtry, normally a starter, allowed one hit and an unearned run in four innings to claim the first save of his career.

The loss gave the Pirates a dubious distinction — they became the first major-league team to lose 17 straight road games since the 1970 Milwaukee Brewers. The last NL team to accomplish the feat was the 1963 New York Mets, who dropped 22 in a row. Pittsburgh beat the Dodgers in Los Angeles 6-3 on July 22 for its last road conquest.

"I'd just as soon go back to the bullpen," he said.

Pat Tabler also homered for the Indians, while Tony Armas and Dwight Evans hit home runs for Boston, which has lost five in a row and 11 of its last 12.

The Indians led 3-2 when Franco hit his grand slam in the seventh inning.

Players for both teams were bothered by a swarm of insects that hovered inside Cleveland Stadium during the game. Most of the Red Sox players left the field to escape the bugs temporarily while Clear warmed up with two outs in the sixth.

"That was brutal. I've never played in anything like that before," said Boston second baseman Marty Barrett. "They were getting in my mouth and in my eyes. I put on my long sleeves because of them."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 30, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon brings the need and the opportunity for you to get into the specifics of any course of action that is important to your advancement and quick results should follow.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy at duties of a personal or business nature and get much done today. Then carry through with promises you have made.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You had better make a note of what you want your friends to do for you so that you will not forget them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have fine ideas for the days ahead, but have to get right down to specifics if you are to put them in operation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Good day to handle credit and civic affairs. Plan that trip you have in mind and count the cost as well.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you take your mate for granted today, you will have to pay for the privilege later on. Be more attentive than ever.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listening to ideas of outside associates will help you to understand the overall picture very well now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are addicted to neatness and punctuality and can apply such to whatever your interests are at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to be encouraging with co-workers and come to a better understanding with them to gain cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can add a touch of genius to whatever work you are doing today and gain greater benefits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss some new angle with associates that you think would be very beneficial in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study how to make your assets grow, but do not take any foolish risks. Take care of repairs on the homefront.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have discussions with outside allies and come to a fine meeting of minds. Greater progress is possible in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should be taught early in life the importance of spiritual, moral and ethical verities and then the life will have a real purpose and your progeny will not be confused. One who will do well in business or the fine arts that require theoretical training plus attention to details.

GEECH

HAVE YOU GOT MR. NEAL'S CAR FIXED YET?
NO, I CAN'T FIGURE OUT WHERE TO KICK IT.
KICK IT? YOU'RE A PROFESSIONAL MECHANIC, YOU DON'T FIX A CAR BY KICKING IT!
OH...
HIT IT WITH THE HAMMER.

B.C.

HOW'S IT FEEL BEING THE FRONT-RUNNER AFTER THE FIRST ROUND?
IT'S LIKE HAVING A 3-MARTINI LUNCH!
WHAT A LOVELY METAPHOR, FOLKS...
THEN HAVING TO GO BACK TO WORK.

ANDY CAPP

OH, NO! I'VE COME OUT WITHOUT ANY MONEY.
YOU GO ON — I'LL TIEP BACK FOR YOU.
THANKS, CHALKIE, BUT YOU GO ON — I'LL CATCH YOU UP.
HE'S REASONABLY HONEST, BUT I DON'T BELIEVE IN PUTTING TEMPTATION IN PEOPLE'S WAY.

HI & LOIS

I FINALLY FIGURED OUT WHAT TO GIVE MY MOM FOR HER BIRTHDAY.
LET ME GUESS... FLOWERS? PERFUME?
NOPE! A COUPLE OF BOXES OF DOUBLE-RICH CHOCOLATE-BROWNIE MIX.
YOU'RE ALL STOMACH, JERRY.

BUZ SAWYER

AS ROSCOE CLOSES IN...
MOVE AWAY FAST!!!
BUT I CAN'T SWIM!! A-A-RGH!
...FLYING FIGURES BLINDLY DESPERATELY INTO SPACE...

SNUFFY SMITH

FLAP-JACKS!!

WIZARD OF ID

HALT! WHO GOES THERE?
A FRIEND OF THE KING.
SOUND THE ALARM... SOUND THE ALARM!
...MAKE THAT... 'ACQUAINTANCE' OF THE KING.

GASOLINE ALLEY

So Boog came to pick up Hoogy, Clovia?
He and his "lovely new bride!"
That's nice! What Hoogy needs is a mother!
The woman is a base, baneful, beastly old... witch!
She's bad, too!

BEEBLE BAILEY

SOMEONE LEFT HIS PADDLE ON THE FLOOR.
THAT COULD LOSE US THE INSPECTION.
I WONDER WHOSE IT IS?
I THINK IT'S BEEBLE'S.

PEANUTS

I'VE BEEN THINKING ABOUT THIS SCHOOL BUS THING...
I HOPE THAT RIDING ON A BUS WITH A LOT OF SCREAMING KIDS WON'T UPSET YOU...
NOT A BIT...
I'LL BE SCREAMING THE LOUDEST!

DICK TRACY

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO PLAY POLICE WOMAN, WENDY — KEEP HER COVERED...
I'LL SEE HOW TRAILER'S SEARCH FOR THE BOMB IS COMING...
ANYTHING DOWN HERE?
YOU'RE NOT GOING TO BELIEVE THIS, TRACY...

BLONDIE

THAT'S UNCLE HORATIO BUMSTEAD... HE RAN A GARBAGE SCOW.
HE ONCE WON THE GARBAGE SCOW REGATTA.
AND THIS IS HIS VICTORY PICTURE.
WHY IS IT SO SMALL?
THE PHOTOGRAPHER WOULDN'T GET ANY CLOSER.
