New state laws in effect today

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans were being forced to buckle up as they headed to shopping malls for the first legal Sunday shopping in more than 20 years.

The mandatory seat belt law and the repeal of the Sunday-closing Blue Law were among hundreds of new laws that take effect Sept. 1.

The new seat belt law requires anyone in the front seat of a moving automobile or small pickup to wear a lap seat belt. State troopers first will give warnings to those not wearing the belts, but fines of $25 to $50 will be levied after Dec. 1.

Sponsors said the law will save more than 1,500 lives a year.

Although the Blue Law repeal wasn't official until Sept. 1, many retailers began staying open on Sundays right after Gov. Mark White signed the legislation May 21.

Auto dealers are exempt from the Blue Law repeal, but it is now open season for shoppers on virtually every other sort of merchandise.

State officials say the Sunday sales will bring state and local governments between $24 million and $40 million in sales taxes.

The Blue Law, enacted in 1961, prohibited the sale of 42 items on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays, effectively banning Sunday sales of the items.

Perhaps the biggest new law to take effect Sunday was the one with the lowest public profile: the $36.9 billion state budget for 1986-1987.

It includes a 3 percent pay raise for state employees, $35 million to attract high technology to Texas, a $4 monthly increase in welfare payments to needy children, and money to help the state prison system and the state mental health department undertake court-ordered reforms.

Two other new laws will help the state pay its bills the next two years without new taxes.

A state college tuition increase, the first major hike in 38 years, triples resident tuition from $4 per semester hour to $12 the first year, then to $16 in the fall of 1986.

Nonresident tuition goes from $40 per semester hour to $120 for the next two years. Increases are decreed for medical, dental and law students.

The omnibus fee increase affects almost everyone who has business with a state agency or court.

Drivers licenses will go from $10 to $16 for each four-year period; annual auto inspections rise from $5.25 to $7.75, with a two-year $15 levy on new cars.

A combination fishing and hunting license will cost $15 instead of $12. Beginning Jan. 1, salt water anglers will have to pay an additional $5.

Another bill taking effect Sept. 1.

Summer of '85

Some events were sizzling, but others weren't so hot

By ROBERT BAR, Associated Press Writer

What was so hot about the summer of '85? In the season of escapism, there was no avoiding the danger, February side of life.

A streaking in Alabama and two major plane crashes made every trip look risky, and a "10-10-10" on the president's lips deflated the value of a hot date.

The summer's hottest political issue was the ban on assault weapons, which more than 100 people had died in a year of racial protests. The White House, with little to show for "constructive engagement," started counting votes for an expected veto battle over economic sanctions against the apartheid government.

After three dangerous leaks in West Virginia's "chemical valley," Kanawha County Commission chairman Douglas Stump called the incidents acts of God, but added, "certainly God hasn't been too good to this valley lately." In the worst incident, a leak of the pesticide ingredient diazinon on Aug. 11 at the Union Carbide plant at Institute, W.Va., hospitalized 45 people.

Thousands of firefighters battled forest and home fires in the West. Nearly 2.8 million acres have been scorched by 25,000 fires this year, according to the federal Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho, mostly after June 27 in an exceptionally dry summer. In Idaho, some fires were blamed on farmers who were out to roast trashburners before their crops were all charred.

The baseball strike amounted to a 100-day loss of a sport.

On July 15, a section of his large intestine was removed, and tests confirmed that he had cancer. Doctors said they got it all, however, and that he was not threatened.

On Aug. 1, the White House press office confirmed that a patch of skin had been removed from Reagan's nose, but dodged questions about details. Four days later, Reagan commented that doctors removed a growth — "my little friend," he called it — which proved to be basal carcinoma, or skin cancer.

REAGAN: Whether it was a medical failure or a political one, the cancer apparently caused the other three.

A light plane crash on Aug. 25 killed Samantha Smith, the schoolgirl who caught a Soviet leader's attention with her plea for peace.

Still, people flew in record numbers. The odds of crashing, after all, are something like 1 in 100,000-100,000.

At odds of 6:1 million-to-one, New York's went crazy buying $100 million in a $41 million lottery. President Reagan had a rough

"All my life I've lived with a coat of tan," Reagan said, regretting that he now must avoid the sun.

Another disease — acquired immune deficiency syndrome — seemed to spread far faster than anyone's ability to understand it. AIDS had struck about 15,000 Americans since 1979, and more than half of them were dead.

The most prominent victim, actor Rock Hudson, who had been in the White House, died in a hospital in Paris.

Elena stalls off coast

CEDAR KEY, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Elena stalled just off Florida's central Gulf coast Saturday, lashing the state with heavy rain and tornadoes, pushing seawater across coastal lowlands and forcing nearly 1 million people to flee.

The storm toppled a tree and killed a man in Daytona Beach, on the eastern coast, and a swarm of hurricane-spawned tornadoes struck central Florida, destroying dozens of mobile homes and injuring at least seven people.

The storm's 40-mile-wide eye, surrounded by 100 mph wind, stopped at noon 55 miles west-southwest of Cedar Key, and moved little into the evening.

"It has us in a quandary as to whether it's come to a complete stop or whether or not it's going to continue its course toward the shore," said Jim Lynch, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

Gov. Bob Graham late Friday had extended evacuation orders to low-lying and coastal areas from just east of Panama City to Sarasota, a 650-700 mile stretch of coast.

On Saturday, he urged residents of mobile homes in low-lying areas of 15 inland counties to evacuate, and asked citizens to maintain their vigilance.

"It's very important that people don't take this pause in the storm to mean that the danger has passed," said Graham. "The potential for damage and loss of life is still very much there."

Almost 1 million Florida residents had evacuated because of Elena, a 250-mile-wide tempest born last week off the coast of Africa, said Steve Hull, a spokesman for Graham. He said over 218,000 people were staying at shelters throughout the state.

This remote community jutting into the Gulf of Mexico was isolated by wind-whipped waves washing over its lone highway to the mainland. Most of the 750 residents had fled but a few rode out the storm in a schoolhouse, said Mickey Graham, a Levy County sheriff's deputy.

More than 500,000 people in Pinellas County, which includes St. Petersburg, were reported to be without power.

Hurricane warnings were posted from Apalachicola, in the Panhandle, to Fort Myers, in southern Florida. Gales and tornadoes howled over much of the region, and several communities received 4 to nearly 9 inches of rain since Friday morning.

The most severe weather was concentrated about 50 miles in all directions from the storm's center, said forecaster Miles Lawrence at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

"The gale-force winds are already affecting portions of the Florida coast," Lawrence said. "The winds already started and they'll strengthen as the center approaches land."

At 9 p.m. EDT, the storm had not moved for an hour. Its center was

State oil industry, agriculture face major legislative battles

By WILLIAM GARLAND, Harto-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — From oil fields to farms and ranches throughout the state and from the Texas Coast to the Texas border, the return of Congress this week after its month-long August recess could have an unusual impact.

Two staples of the Texas economy — the oil and gas industry and agriculture — face major legislative battles this year, while Congress will also address such major issues as immigration, funding of a Navy battleship for a Texas port and funding of long-overdue water projects.

The House and Senate will be tied up much of the remainder of the year with debate on solving international trade problems and possibly overhauling the nation's complex tax system, as well as considering massive money bills to fund federal agencies.

Both the taxation and trade issues could hit home with the Texas economy.

Tax simplification would affect all taxpayers in Texas and other states, but could affect Texas most broadly in the energy area.

Although President Reagan's tax reform plan would retain several important tax incentives for the oil and gas industry, while almost wiping out the industry's longstanding percentage depletion allowance, Congress probably will juggle Reagan's formula.

Many members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, strongly dominated by congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest, are anxious to take bigger swipes at the industry than those recommended by Reagan.

The Senate Finance Committee — with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and other senators from oil and gas regions — is expected to be more lenient with the industry, meaning that sparks could fly in a conference committee if tax reform is passed by both Houses this year or next year.

Farmers will be looking to Washington over the next few months to find out the results of this year's drawn-out debate on agriculture policy for the next four years.

The farm bill should clear both the House and Senate agriculture committees within a few weeks after Congress returns. Although the committees had almost completed work on the bill, they both will have to perform fiscal surgery to make certain the cost for agriculture programs comes under the budget ceiling set by Congress late this summer.

Administration officials have made clear that President Reagan would very likely veto a budget-busting farm bill, especially since Congress rejected the administration's farm proposal that would have sharply scaled back direct payments to farmers. This year's bill is expected to freeze commodity target price support levels for one year while gradually lowering the farm program loan rate, resulting in lower federal support payments to farmers in Texas and elsewhere, though not as much lower as proposed by Reagan.

The issue of foreign trade also will be important for both the oil and gas and agricultural industries. Congress may still consider an import fee on imported oil

Panhandle rancher

86-year-old is home on her 800-acre range

LOHN (AP) — Octogenarian Allie Nelson, who looks dainty and fragile as Victorian lace, owns and manages an 800-acre ranch at Lohn, north of Brady.

How does an 86-year-old woman round up a herd of 50 lumbering polled Herefords?

"I drive my pickup to the pasture and honk. They come right up. I throw hay out the back of the truck." Mrs. Nelson's voice was soft. She had to catch her breath often; her tiny hands fluttered. Her nails were painted red.

OK, how about corralling the half-ton critters?

"They just follow me into the corral," she said.

How does she load them up for market?

"My goodness, the commercial men do that."

Mrs. Nelson retired from teaching school when she was 68. For Mrs. Nelson, the sunset years signaled a new career. The high school biology teacher had purchased the ranch a year before she retired. She fully expected to make the ranch a paying concern, and she has done so, she said.

"Oh, heck, I'd been too active in my life. I couldn't sit down. I'd go crazy."

Last year a pet goat butted Mrs. Nelson. She fell to the ground and broke her hip. She spent eight weeks recovering in a convalescent home. "I nearly went nuts in the nursing home. I have to be out doing things."

Mrs. Nelson has recovered fully from that accident. She walks carefully, with a lop-sided gait.

Mrs. Nelson's home reflects an inquiring mind. A stone fireplace is filled with rocks she picked up through the Southwest, such as turquoise, quartz and geodes. "My friends brought me rocks, too," she said.

Indian baskets made of yucca woven by the Papago Indians hang on the walls. Mrs. Nelson taught on their reservation near Tucson, Ariz., shortly before she retired.

A collection of silver souvenir spoons are in a case. A small, framed ivory fan, a memento of Mrs. Nelson's childhood, hangs on the wall beside her bed.

ALLIE NELSON, 86, tosses hay to cattle in a pasture on her ranch, located near the West Texas community of Lohn. She bought the ranch just before retiring from teaching at age 68 and now works the ranch full time.

When Mrs. Nelson bought the ranch, she purchased a half-Shetland pony named Bruno to ride to the fields. "I thought I needed a horse to round up cattle. I was wrong. A pickup works better." But Bruno remained on the ranch as an oversized pet. He is at least 20 years old, according to Mrs. Nelson. "I call him and he comes from the field. He's a good old horse."

At 4 p.m. one day not long ago, a little earlier than her usual schedule, Mrs. Nelson decided to feed the cattle. She donned a floppy straw hat and called to her 12-year-old granddaughter, Jennifer Nelson.

Jennifer and her grandmother spend as much time together as possible, strengthening a bond that began between them when Jennifer was only 6 weeks old. Her mother had died, and Mrs. Nelson, then 74, took the baby because she believed her son had his hands full with two teen-agers. She kept Jennifer until she was 3½ years old, when her son remarried and Jennifer went to live with her parents in Burleson. Jennifer drove the pickup to the field, her grandmother on the seat beside her. "Start honking the horn, honey," directed Mrs. Nelson.

Beep, beep, beep. The noise split the quiet summer afternoon. Cattle appeared over the edge of the hill. The animals hurried toward the pickup, which Jennifer had parked near a barn and some pens.

The temperature was in the mid-90s. Mrs. Nelson reached over the gate of the pickup and pitched hay to the cattle. She cut a diminutive figure against the bulk of the brown, skittish animals. Jennifer surveyed the cattle as they shoved their way toward the hay. "Y'all share now," she admonished the animals. When half the herd had followed her into the barn, she turned and ordered, "The rest of you stay." They stayed.

The work never has been too strenuous, Mrs. Nelson said. "I always got someone to help me."

Mrs. Nelson had watched her father raise polled Herefords when she was growing up on a ranch in the Texas Panhandle. "I knew they were a gentle breed of cattle," she said.

When Mrs. Nelson purchased her ranch, it was a wilderness. In fact, unknown counterfeiters had hidden fake silver dollars, half dollars and quarters in a cave on her land. A hired man filled a gallon bucket with the phony money and brought it to Mrs. Nelson. "I took some for souvenirs, he took the rest to the sheriff."

Gradually the land was cleared, and Mrs. Nelson has seeded some fields with grass. Her cattle herd has numbered as high as 100. In November Mrs. Nelson sold her goats because of the drought.

The former school teacher still finds time to go to Abilene to attend operas and plays. She is also a member of the Retired Teachers' Association.

Mrs. Nelson's heart belongs home on the range. One or two pickups pass her home each day. "I would never live in town. Too much hubbub."

A late summer upper-air dome brought clear skies and scorching temperatures across much of the northeastern half of Texas Saturday.

By late afternoon, readings on the first day of the Labor Day weekend were at or above the 100-degree mark from the northern Hill Country into Louisiana and Oklahoma, the National Weather Service said.

Skies were fair from the High Plains across the Red River Valley, and partly cloudy elsewhere. No precipitation was detected anywhere in the state, and a light south wind did little to relieve the intense heat.

By 4 p.m., Bergstrom Air Force Base near Austin recorded a temperature of 104 degrees, while several North Texas sites had 103-degree temperatures. More tolerable temperatures in the 90s were reported in much of west and south Texas. Galveston enjoyed a mild 89.

Musical chairs contest falls far short of goal

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Jay McKay's musical chairs contest to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy raised $700, but only 12 people participated in the game at Big Spring Airpark Saturday morning.

Julie Everett, daughter of Denny's manager Maureen Everett, won the first prize trip to Las Vegas. The winner said she probably would take the trip on her 21st birthday, in two months.

Director McKay said although he was disappointed at the low turnout, he was not going to give up trying to break the Guinness musical chairs world record.

"I'm thinking seriously about challenging Texas A&M and (the University of Texas) to play each other," he said. That challenge also would be to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy.

McKay expressed disappointment at the low turnout for the game.

"This did not make me happy in the least," he said. "I picked Big Spring because it is centrally located. I really thought they had it in them to get involved."

"We've got over 20,000 people. I haven't the foggiest idea why we couldn't raise at least 1,000."

McKay said most of the local businesses he spoke to helped a great deal to raise money. Many of them paid the $10 fee to sponsor someone to play, he said.

Chamber of Commerce community luncheon to take place Thursday

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce will have its quarterly community luncheon at 11:45 a.m. Thursday in the East Room of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Reservations may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641 before 5 p.m. Tuesday. Prices are $5 with reservation or $7 at the door.

The luncheon will kick off the United Way's annual campaign to raise money for the 10 charities it supports, said LeRoy Tillery, executive vice president of the chamber. Howard County set its goal at $210,000 for the campaign, which ends Nov. 15.

The luncheon also will promote upcoming community events, including the Howard County Fair, the Big Spring symphony, the Chamber of Commerce women's conference and the arts and crafts festival, said Tillery.

Promoting events will be local cable television manager Paul Thoman, Big Spring football coach Quinn Eudy and volleyball coach Susan Sharpe.

The luncheon, hosted by the Kiwanis Club, will serve to recognize new chamber members and participants in the annual leadership program and to introduce new residents.

Also, the second in a series of Big Spring belt buckle designs — this one featuring a locomotive and the sesquicentennial emblem — will be on sale, said Tillery. Proceeds will help finance the Main Street downtown renovation program.

Tillery said he expects about 200 people at the luncheon, which is co-sponsored by Texas Electric Service Co., Southwestern Bell and Energas. Howard College will cater the event.

Committee co-chairmen are Pete Jones and Pat Porter.

Santa's number disconnected?

TORONTO (AP) — Sorry Virginia, Santa Claus no longer has a working number.

Canada Post Corp. has chopped its popular Santa Claus Hotline as an economy measure, though it won't say how much it expects to save.

Last Christmas season, children wanting to talk to Santa made 535,000 calls to a special number in the Toronto and Oshawa areas, the only two centers in the country where it operated, a Canada Post spokesman said.

Pulling Santa's plug is the second recent cost-cutting measure by the postal agency, which expects a $200 million deficit this year. Starting next week, all parcels and letters with insufficient postage will be returned to sender instead of being forwarded.

Crew rescues satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Shuttle Discovery's spacemen "jump-started" a dead satellite Saturday and whooped with joy when the energized Syncom 3 flickered to life and snapped an antenna into place.

"Hot dog, look at that," exclaimed spaceman Bill Fisher as the antennae whipped out from the top of the $85 million satellite.

Syncom 3 came to life after Fisher and fellow spaceman James van Hoften wrestled the fully-fueled 7½-ton craft onto Discovery's robot arm and installed two boxes that replaced failed electronics on the satellite.

Reagan defends policies

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan defended his free-trade policies Saturday as helping the United States gain 7.5 million jobs since 1980 and dismissed protectionism as amounting to "destructionism."

"The balance of trade has become a very emotional issue," Reagan said in his weekly radio address, delivered from his ranch north of here, where he will wind up a three-week vacation on Monday.

"Some claim our trade deficit has cost us millions of jobs. Congress is awash in bills calling for trade sanctions and retaliation," he said, vowing to fight any protectionist legislation.

Officials report rifle deal

WASHINGTON — Nicaraguan resistance forces recently received a shipment of 10,000 Polish-made AK-47 rifles as part of a weapons deal worth an estimated $6 million, U.S. officials say.

According to one official, the shipment was sent from the Bulgarian port of Burgas and reached the resistance forces via a Latin American country hostile to the leftist Sandinista government. The country was not identified.

The official said the transaction was authorized by Polish authorities in a desperate bid to obtain sorely-needed foreign exchange. But other officials expressed skepticism that the Warsaw government would ever consent to such a deal.

As a member of the Warsaw Pact, Poland has given enthusiastic support to the Sandinista government and welcomed Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega as a guest of honor at ceremonies last May commemorating the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Derailed express struck by mail train, 43 killed

ARGENTON-SUR-CREUSE, France (AP) — A speeding overnight express train derailed on a curve Saturday and seconds later a mail train on the opposite track plowed into it, killing 43 passengers and injuring 85, police said.

Rail officials said the express, with about 300 passengers aboard, was traveling three times faster than it should have been going at the time because of trackside construction.

Many of those killed were British and Spanish tourists, the officials said. Ten of the injured were reported in critical condition.

Rescuers said some of the sleeper compartments, meant to accommodate four or six people, were compressed to a width of less than eight inches.

It was France's third major train crash in two months and its worst since 1972, when 108 people were killed near Soissons on a train that entered a tunnel whose roof had collapsed.

Police arrested the locomotive engineer of the express, which was bound from Paris to Port Bou on the Spanish border. They said the engineer, Jean-Yves Brisset, 37, would be formally charged Sunday with manslaughter.

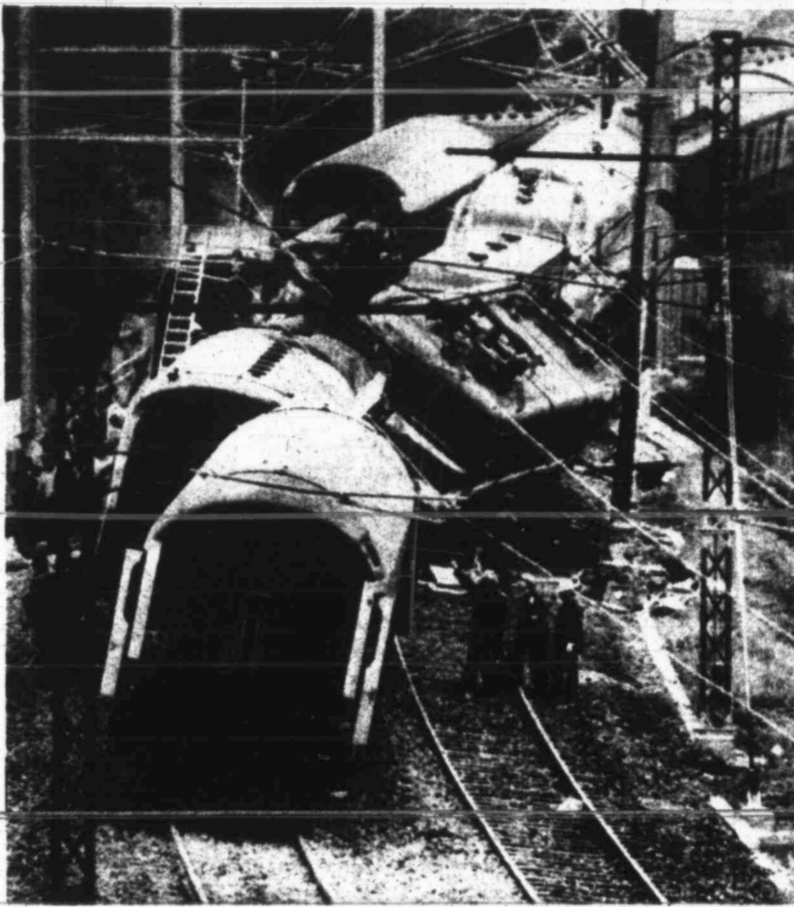

A police spokesman, who demanded anonymity, said Brisset told investigators he neglected a temporary speed limit posted at a trackside construction site.

The express consisted of 14 sleeper cars and a locomotive. It jackknifed upon derailment, and two of the cars, where most of the fatalities occurred, were lying diagonally on the opposite track, directly in the mail train's path. The government ordered an immediate investigation of the entire safety system on the state-owned rail network, which carries nearly 800 million passengers a year.

Transport Minister Paul Quilès expressed his condolences to the victims of what he called "a disaster caused ... by an obvious human error."

"The responsibility seems quite clear," Quilès declared. "One man made a mistake. It is simply a tragedy."

cutting through wreckage to extricate the dead and injured.

More than half the dead remained unidentified in an improvised morgue in Argenton-sur-Creuse, a village of 7,000 inhabitants 188 miles south of Paris.

Henri Guichard, French railways' regional director for central France, told reporters the express was traveling at more than 62 mph where it should have slowed to a maximum 18 mph alongside the construction site of a new signal block.

The scheduled average speed on the train's nightly 650-mile run to the southwestern tip of France is more than 75 mph.

Brisset noticed his error too late,

Guichard said. "He slammed on his brakes and simultaneously switched on a flashing alarm signal in an effort to alert the driver of the oncoming mail train," Guichard said. "Unhappily, by that time it was too late."

The stationmaster at Argenton-sur-Creuse spotted the express going into the curve at three times the permitted speed, but could not contact the other engineer, Guichard said.

"Both trains were precisely on time and crossed exactly at the normal moment," he added.

The 15 railway and postal workers on the mail train were unhurt.

Guerrilla leader slain

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A masked man with a silencer-equipped pistol killed a senior Palestinian guerrilla leader in Sidon, police said Saturday.

In Sidon's Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp, the gunman killed Mustafa Kassem Khalife, 55, at his home Friday night, his family and police said. He was buried Saturday.

Khalife was loyal to Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, police said.

Khalife's death came four days after another Arafat loyalist, Mohammed Shikhani, was killed. Four other Arafat supporters were killed in July.

No one claimed responsibility for Khalife's killing, which was seen as an outgrowth of factional feuding between Arafat's supporters and Syrian-backed PLO dissidents.

Terrorist group arrested

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Federal authorities say their arrest of 13 members of a group allegedly linked to a $7 million robbery and attacks on U.S. military targets sends a warning to all terrorists to give up violence.

However, leaders of the independence movement on this U.S. Caribbean island charged that the arrests and raids Friday were political harassment.

"This indictment is a signal to terrorists and their supporters that our response to their cowardly acts of violence will be decisive," said U.S. Attorney General Edwin M. Meese III in Washington on Friday.

Common Market visitors

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Black Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu and a leading white activist fighting apartheid urged visiting Common Market foreign ministers to advocate imposing economic sanctions against South Africa.

Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, and white activist Rev. Beyers Naude, secretary-general of the South African Council of Churches, said Friday they met with three foreign ministers from the European Economic Community who are on a three-day fact-finding visit to advise the Common Market on whether to vote for sanctions.

Tutu said such sanctions were among the few remaining peaceful ways to fight apartheid from within the country.

The two clergymen spoke to reporters after meeting in Pretoria with Jacques Pooos of Luxembourg, Hans van den Broek of the Netherlands and Giulio Andreotti of Italy.

Final results spell 10-seat loss for Mexico's governing party

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The governing Institutional Revolutionary Party suffered its worst electoral setback in a decade in recent congressional elections, according to results released by the federal Electoral College.

The lower house of Congress opens its 53rd session Sunday with the Institutional Revolutionary Party in possession of 10 fewer seats. The loss was the worst for the party since political reforms were enacted in the 1970s in an attempt to open up the legislature to minority parties and reduce voter apathy. After days of lengthy debate, the Electoral College late Thursday authorized 289 seats for the Institutional Revolutionary Party, known as PRI from its Spanish-language initials, out of the 500 seats awarded by direct election.

It authorized eight seats for the conservative National Action Party, known as PAN, and two for the Authentic Party of the Mexican Revolution.

In the last session, the PRI held 299 seats and PAN one. One seat, representing the northern border state of Chihuahua, remains contested in the 400-seat Chamber of Deputies.

Since 1979 the chamber has had 100 seats divided among minority parties that receive at least 1.5 percent of the national vote.

Out of those seats, PAN holds 32, compared to 51 in the last session. The rest are divided among seven other parties, most of them leftist.

PRI officials claimed 292 seats immediately after the July 7 elections.

Amtrak averts disaster after teens switch tracks

ELWOOD, Ill. (AP) — The engineer of an Amtrak train carrying nearly 300 passengers narrowly averted derailment after three youths broke into a control box and switched tracks for the Chicago-to-St. Louis train, police said.

The engineer slowed down Friday night as he neared Elwood, southwest of Joliet, because control panel lights showed a problem might be coming up, said Police Chief Walter King.

At the reduced speed, the engine and the first car switched onto a siding, and the engineer said that if the train had continued at normal speed there almost certainly would have been a disaster, King said.

King said three boys, two aged 14 and one 15, were arrested and would face charges of criminal trespass and criminal damage to property. They were released to their parents.

Moscow caught with dirty hands

Once again, the paranoid Kremlin has been caught with dirt — or at least dust — on its hands. U.S. officials disclosed recently that the Soviet Union is using chemical "tracking" powder, which may cause genetic mutations and cancer, to monitor the activities of foreigners.

The chemical, a yellowish powder known as NPPD, leaves a deposit on whatever it touches. If an American diplomat picks the powder up from his typewriter or steering wheel and subsequently makes a covert visit to the home of a Soviet dissident, the KGB can follow his chemical trail.

Soviet agents have used chemical tracking agents to monitor the activities of foreigners for years, but apparently have significantly stepped up their use in recent months.

The Soviets, of course, have denied their use of the chemicals. In typical fashion, the official Soviet news agency Tass said the U.S. charges were part of a "slanderous campaign against the Soviet Union, to poison the atmosphere in relations between our two countries. ..."

Speaking of poisoning, it seems much more likely that the Russians are more vulnerable than the United States to that charge.

NPPD is a substance known to cause genetic change and may cause cancer, although U.S. officials do not immediately see a cause for medical alarm over the minute quantities in which it has been used as a tracking powder. Nonetheless, American scientists will conduct extensive tests to determine its effects.

Spying is one thing, and the world has become accustomed to disclosures about James Bond-type intelligence devices. But possibly jeopardizing the health of innocent people by powdering them with chemicals whose full effects are not known goes beyond acceptable practice.

The Russians should go back to their relatively safe practices such as stuffing microphones into the beaks of wooden American eagles in the U.S. Embassy or digging tunnels under the offices of foreign diplomats.

Steve Chapman Missing sound of silence

There are a lot of strong candidates for the distinction of being the worst feature of modern life: nuclear weapons, terrorism, AIDS, secular humanism, big government, television talk shows, New Coke, Sylvester Stallone. But it would be hard to find one that affects so many people so much as the proliferation of noise.

Today, wherever people are found, there is perpetual noise. In cities, it comes from radios, sirens, auto alarms, bullhorns, snowblowers, jet airliners, subway trains and, most of all, car traffic. Even in the country, the internal combustion engine in all its adaptations — trucks, tractors, lawn mowers, dirt bikes — spews out a continuing stream of auditory pollution.

Mayor Edward Koch of New York has struck a small blow for improvement by establishing "radio-free" zones in some city beaches and parks, where the playing of radios without earphones is banned. But most sources of noise can't be stemmed so simply. To remove just the most obnoxious sounds from the environment of New York City, or any other city, would require razing the whole place and dynamiting the roads — would require, in short, repudiating the 20th Century.

The cacophony inevitably coarsens public intercourse. Like any other kind of pollution, noise provides its benefits to the perpetrator — he gets to hear his favorite music at full blast, or spare himself the expense of a new muffler — while imposing unwanted and largely unavoidable harms on innocent bystanders. As our pollution laws recognize, the only way to discourage it is to put the cost back on the source.

Controlling air emissions is simple compared to the job of forcing people to behave with consideration for those around them. Lacking recourse, the innocent are encouraged to strike back by emulating the guilty. If you don't want to listen to someone else's music played full blast, you can drown it out with your own.

Being considerate gets you nothing but pride in your uncommon decency: Virtue is its own reward. For most people, that isn't enough. They will restrain themselves if others do, but if no one else is acting selflessly, why should they? Like other types of rudeness, noise feeds on itself. It spreads through retaliation.

Nor is unwanted noise the only problem. We have grown so accustomed to the constant din that we are uncomfortable in rare moments of quiet: radios, TVs and stereos have to be turned on to drown it out. Noise has become a sort of drug, a perpetual stimulus to stave off contemplation or introspection.

It has also become a perverse defense against other noise. How many people strolling down the street wearing headphones do so only to shut out the clamor around them? It is as if the only antidote to breathing air polluted by a factory's smoke were to breathe air you have polluted for yourself.

Past generations have had more than their share of war, famine and pestilence, but at least they had the refuge of silence. The worst and loudest noises are products of technology.

Consider the sounds that surrounded medieval Europeans, as recounted by J.H. Huizinga in his book, "The Waning of the Middle Ages": "One sound rose ceaselessly above the noises of busy life and lifted all things unto a sphere of order and serenity: the sound of bells. The bells were in daily life like good spirits, which by their familiar voices, now called upon the citizens to mourn and now to rejoice, now warned them of danger, now exhorted them to piety. ... However continuous the ringing of the bells, people would seem not to have become blunted to the effect of their sound."

We have vanquished most of the routine horrors of the medieval world. But anyone comparing the two ages just by listening would have to conclude that we have not advanced.

Old advice gives insight

This is advice for newspaper editors, culled from the report on a national seminar for news executives:

"Pictures have more pulling power than the best read story; the average banner (lead story on page one) is not the best read story in the paper; panels are better drawing than comic strips; local sports columnist gets higher readership than best read editorial; local, New York and Hollywood columnists most popular; human interest first among both men and women in pictures; weather news is most popular general feature with the men. Women are most interested in deaths, radio programs. Crossword puzzle not as popular as most suspect, but the addicts 'can make more damn noise than any other group when they're left out.'"

There are a couple of clues that help put that advice into a historical perspective. The mention of radio programs, for one. And the reference to "New York and Hollywood columnists" — the gossip columnists of yore who are still around, but not nearly with the audience they had at one time.

The report was a summary of an American Press Institute seminar. But it was attended by a journalist a generation removed from me. It was a seminar held in 1949.

I found it while cleaning out old files at the Herald. It makes for compelling reading, both in what it offers in the way of universal truths, and the glimpse into social change.

Consider that a speaker from the Toledo Blade in Ohio complained about "tags on women's news such as 'For and About Women, Women's Angle and Society.'" Yet as late as the 1960s and early 1970s, sections entitled "Women" or some such were still in use.

"Advice to the lovelorn columns draw most reader interest on women's pages," offered another guest speaker.

On use of the language, one trainer said: "When you use an adjective, use a concrete one. 'Beautiful,' 'ugly,' 'very' mean little; if a girl looks like Lana

Turner that means plenty and there's no reason why you shouldn't say so.

"The best subject, of course, is sex; number two is money. A story about a movie actress, who earns $5,000 for a week spent in a shower bath in front of 40 electricians, combines sex AND money and is sure-fire."

Sure-fire maybe for the times, but the public's enamer of Hollywood has been worn, and there is increasing sophistication among readers on subjects traditionally held as dull: stories about taxation, government (beyond the scandals of graft and corruption), science, business and research.

There are other poignant reminders of an age gone by, of movement and progress in society. One section of the seminar report was entitled "News Involving Race." It read:

"It is becoming evident that southern newspapers are gradually relaxing old race prejudices in the newspaper columns. Practically all the papers, southern papers that is, will now use Negro pictures and will use Negroes in the same pictures with whites.

"Practically all now capitalize the word Negro. Some of the southern papers do not refer to a Negro, or identify him as such, in general stories where race or color has no significance as to the actual story itself.

"It was the opinion of most of the New England and Eastern newspapermen present that they thought southern papers actually are making a strong fight to overcome race prejudices and doing a better job than the newspapermen from other sections."

Of course, still to come in the South were race riots, the rise of Martin Luther King and landmark Supreme Court decisions that helped pave the way for evolution from racial injustices and stereotypes. But the impression left by the 1949 report of newspapermen was that newspapers were taking a lead in that struggle.

Shoe proposal doesn't put foot down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, while rejecting pleas for import protection by the domestic shoe industry, is promising an aggressive fall offensive to open worldwide markets to U.S. products.

However, administration critics, who say they have heard such promises before, hold out little hope much will come from the new effort.

The tough talk came Wednesday from both the president and U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

Reagan, in a statement explaining his shoe decision, said he had directed Yeutter to begin investigations "to root out any unfair trade practices that may be harming U.S. interests."

The president specifically referred to the power granted the administration under Section 301 of the Trade Act to file and investigate its own unfair-trade complaints.

Under this section of the law, the trade representative, who is appointed by the president, conducts the investigation and makes a recommendation on action. The law gives the president broad power to grant relief through imposing duties, quotas or other measures.

Normally, the government only acts when domestic industries petition for relief. By not waiting for such a complaint before beginning an investigation, the administration obviously hopes that it will be perceived as taking an aggressive stance, sending a signal to America's trading partners that they had better buy more American products or face trade reprisals.

The trouble is that Section 301 is designed primarily to aid U.S. exporters who have lost

66 This is like telling someone with a hemorrhage that some time next year we might order a new case of bandages. 99 overseas sales because of foreign trade barriers.

The difficulties facing the shoe industry, and many other American industries, is not a loss of export sales but a loss of domestic sales from a flood of foreign imports. Three out of every four pairs of shoes now sold in America is foreign made.

But the administration still painted its new effort as a bold get-tough initiative. Yeutter, briefing reporters Wednesday, noted that the administration had been criticized in the past for not vigorously pursuing unfair-trade cases.

He said the new program "should send a signal to the rest of the world that those days, if they were ever here before, are now long gone. We will in the future be very aggressive in defending, articulating and pursuing the interest of the United States in the face of unfair trade practices by other nations."

While Yeutter was not specific about the types of trade cases the administration would be initiating, immediate speculation centered around cases against Japan, concerning restrictions on imports of American citrus and aluminum, and South Korea, which reportedly restricts access of U.S. insurance companies to the Korean market.

Yeutter said the president would be providing more details of his plans within the next two weeks. But many in Congress were not waiting to hear details before criticizing the proposal.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., chairman of the Senate trade subcommittee, said Wednesday the administration's initiative was "hardly a major announcement."

"This is what Congress has been telling the administration to do for years," he said. "All the administration will be doing is stating its intention to enforce this law at some unknown time in the future."

Other critics noted that an unfair-trade investigation takes at least a year and often drags on for many years before it is resolved. "This is like telling someone with a hemorrhage that some time next year we might order a new case of bandages," said Bob Tyrer, an aide to Sen. Bill Cohen, R-Maine.

Given the negative reaction, the administration's promised fall trade initiative may do little to blunt growing sentiments in Congress to pass protectionist legislation.

When Congress returns from its August recess, more than 300 protectionist bills restricting imports of everything from textiles to water beds will await action.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said last week the Senate would pass some kind of protectionist bill between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15.

Peers pushed him into drugs

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am writing this from a drug rehabilitation center. I wish you would warn teenagers like me about drugs. The only reason I got involved in them was because I heard my friends talking about them and didn't want to be the only one who didn't try them. But I got hooked, and I wonder if I'll ever really conquer them. — B.D.H.

DEAR B.D.H.: As you have discovered, drugs are devastating — no matter what other people say. I am thankful that you realized this and are seeking help — and I want to assure you God wants to help you kick your drug habit so you can become the person He created you to be.

You have put your finger on the reason most young people get involved with drugs: peer pressure. Certainly when you first became involved with drugs you didn't think they would snare you and nearly destroy you — it seemed like a "cool" thing to do. But we are in danger when we allow ourselves to be led by the pressure of the crowd, because the crowd usually is going the wrong way! The Bible warns, "There is a way that seems right to a man, but in the end it leads to death" (Proverbs 14:12).

City price hikes add leisure time

To the editor: I want to thank the city of Big Spring for my newfound leisure time.

I was buying filters for my water. But now with the new increase for dirty water I find I no longer have to wash dishes thanks to paper plates. And now that the YMCA has a one-half price discount I can shower there.

And I don't have to cut my lawn anymore because with those prices I'm not going to water my lawn.

And I know 11th Place laundry will be happy to see me again. I won't be washing my clothes — costs too much — only hope 11th Place laundry won't raise their prices.

When I came to Big Spring in 1977 I said "nice place to live." But the City Council has changed my mind — so as soon as I can sell my house I'll find me an apartment in El Paso with the same crime rate per capita — and relax.

WATERBEDS on Cedar Key will be a common sight if Hurricane Elena keeps to her course and comes ashore over this North Florida island. The hurricane is expected to hit Florida coast late Saturday or early Sunday. Coastal areas were evacuated Saturday and flooding has begun.

near latitude 28.8 north and longitude 83.8 west, 50 miles west-southwest of Cedar Key. That was within 5 miles of the position the storm held from noon to 7 p.m.

The National Weather Service said the shift did not represent significant movement, and said such "wobbles" are common when a storm is moving slowly.

Earlier, it had moved east-northeast at 10 mph, and its eye had been expected to reach the coast somewhere between Crystal River and Cross City, on either side of Cedar Key, during the afternoon or evening, forecasters said.

Tides as high as 10 feet above normal along with up to 15 inches of rain were expected.

Roads were clogged as residents fled. "It's a madhouse," said a deputy in Pasco County, north of Tampa. Another officer, Sgt. Charles Troy, reported numerous traffic accidents and sporadic power outages.

"The indications are we've had a high evacuation response from different areas. We're getting indications it's as high as 95 percent at the beaches," said Guy Daines, Pinellas County civil defense director. The beaches stretch 30 miles along the county.

Tornadoes were reported in Leesburg in central Florida, where 32 mobile homes were destroyed, more than 22 others damaged and at least seven people injured, police Capt. Chris Giachetti said.

One tornado caused minor damage to two vehicles near the NASA space center's launch pad in Cape Canaveral, where space shuttle Atlantis is being groomed for its maiden flight.

The towns of Yankeetown and Inglis, southeast of Cedar Key, were evacuated. Chiefland High School, 28 miles northeast of Cedar Key, sheltered hundreds of residents. "We're the closest place to the coast that has a shelter," said Principal Terry Andrews.

To the south, along the densely populated Pinellas and Pasco coasts just north of Tampa and Clearwater, thousands fled, many of them elderly retirees spending their final years in the self-proclaimed "Suncoast" region.

The director of 611-bed Tampa General Hospital ordered the facility, 84 percent full, evacuated as the storm approached.

Across the bay in Pinellas County, a dozen nursing homes and two hospitals moved patients to inland nursing homes and other hospitals, said Daines, the civil defense director. A prison also was evacuated.

An estimated 200,000 people were in nearly 100 shelters in Tampa, St. Petersburg and Clearwater, the Red Cross said. That didn't include many others who moved in with friends and relatives.

Jennifer DeHahn, 20, within weeks of having a baby, huddled in a pink blanket on the floor of a school cafeteria in St. Petersburg. "I don't want to have it here," she said. "And if it's a girl, I'm not naming it Elena."

MacDill Air Force Base, which juts into Tampa Bay, sent 68 expensive F-16 fighter planes south to Homestead Air Force Base near Miami. Twenty-two others were secured in hangars.

The base was closed except for security and command post personnel. Its 6,500 residents were ordered out, said Airman Mark Cook.

and gas and petroleum refined products, as well as action that would reduce the growing trade deficit. The trade deficit and the strength of the dollar are considered sources of weak agricultural markets and prices, as well as problems for the lumber and steel industries.

Other major issues for Texas will include:

● Immigration: Senate action on an immigration reform bill, passed in late July by the Senate Judiciary Committee, is expected during September. The Senate bill, and a House version, which has not yet cleared the House Judiciary Committee, differ in several respects, but both provide for eventual legalization of illegal aliens and penalties for employers who hire aliens.

● Battleship funding: The Senate has given final passage to the military authorization bill that includes $476 million in funding for renovation of the Battleship USS Wisconsin, due to be berthed at the new Navy homeport in Corpus Christi later this decade. The House is expected to pass the authorization bill in September. Navy officials have said they would not ask for construction funds for the port until the fiscal 1988 budget.

● Water projects: House and Senate Committees gave initial approval to the $14 billion omnibus water projects authorization bill this summer, including $19.1 million in authorization for Holiday Creek flood control in Wichita Falls. The bill also would include authorization for using water from Lake Texoma, near Denison, for agricultural and industrial uses.

New laws

will at least double the fine for driving while intoxicated if an open container of an alcoholic beverage is in the vehicle.

State licensing and regulation of abortion clinics, birth control centers and outpatient surgical centers by the Texas Department of Health also begins Sept. 1.

The new regulations say that only a licensed physician may perform an abortion. Each clinic must also comply with health and sanitary standards and report each abortion, but without the patient's or doctor's name.

During the regular legislative session that ended May 27, the Senate and House passed a total of 1,024 bills. Some took effect immediately, and others became effective 90 days after the session ended.

But most become law on Sept. 1, the beginning of the state's new two-year business period.

Some of the other new laws effective Sept. 1 include:

- Making it a crime to intercept TV signals from a cable system.
- State licensing and regulation of health spas and another bill to regulate massage parlors.
- Automatic withholding of pay for court-ordered child support.
- Allowing suspension of driver's licenses for minors caught drinking or taking drugs, when they cannot be prosecuted as adults.

● Making it a new criminal offense to steal or alter information from computer systems, punishable by fines up to $2,000 or a year in jail.

● Expanding the "right to die" bill. It allows two physicians to say a patient is terminally ill, then lets the patient, orally or in writing, give two other people the authority to "pull the plug" on life-support equipment if the patient is unable to make the final decision.

● Making it a death penalty offense for anyone to kill more than one person — either mass murderers who kill several people at once, or serial killers who slay their victims one at a time.

● Continuing the wiretap law for eight more years. The measure, aimed primarily at big-time drug dealers, would have died Sept. 1 without the extension.

● Allowing auto racers to advertise alcoholic beverages.

● Providing that money received for re-enactment of a crime should go to the victims, not the criminal.

● Creating a new offense of abandonment of a child.

● Allowing hearsay statements in child abuse cases, where the child tells a relative or friend of the offense.

● Allowing youths to be kept at Texas Youth Commission facilities until 21 years of age, instead of the current cutoff of 18 years.

● Allowing counties or precincts to take credit cards for fees, fines and court charges.

● Allowing teachers a half-hour duty free lunch.

● Creating a Texas Music Commission.

● Creating the Texas Commission on Economy and Efficiency to look for ways to end waste and cut costs in state government.

● Dissolving the Texas Department of Water Resources and dividing its duties between the Texas Water Development Board and the Texas Water Commission.

● Continuing the triplicate prescription law, also designed to fight drug crimes by seeing that law enforcement officers get a copy of all dangerous prescriptions.

● Increasing filing fees for political campaigns, designed to raise $1.7 million more to help the state pay for conducting elections. The filing fee for a U.S. Senate race will increase from $2,000 to $4,000 and for governor from $1,500 to $3,000. Local increases would include $600 to $1,000 to run for district attorney and $400 to $600 for county commissioner.

talk about fans staying home in disgust evaporated as soon as the stadiums reopened.

On July 13, Philadelphia's JFK Stadium and London's Wembley stadium overflowed with rockers at the Live Aid concert, a global television extravaganza which raised millions of dollars for African hunger relief.

Bob Geldof, the British musician who earlier organized the all-star "Band Aid" recording project, said it shouldn't be so hard to get people to help.

"It's pathetic that the price of a life is a plastic record," he said. "But if that's the way it has to be, you have to use glamour."

Glamour, this year, was a pouty little package in tacky underwear who sang not quite like a virgin. Madonna got attention without even trying.

Madonna nude! Madonna nixed by co-op! Madonna's man punches photog! Madonna married!

No Madonna story today? Killer bees!

Four colonies of the Africanized bees were found in California, and beekeepers sacrificed dozens of hives inside a quarantine zone.

No issue, however, seemed to engage America so deeply as the cola wars, especially Coca-Cola's tactical retreat in bringing back old Coke along with the new.

"Some cynics say we planned the whole thing," Coke President Donald Keough said amid an explosion of publicity. "The truth is we're not that dumb, and we're not that smart."

Police arrest suspect in 'Night Stalker' slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man identified as the prime suspect in the 16 "Night Stalker" slayings was arrested Saturday after a mob chased and beat him when he pulled a woman from her car and tried to steal the vehicle, police and witnesses said.

"It's me! It's me! It's me! I'm lucky the cops caught me," the man, Richard Ramirez, shouted in Spanish as he was arrested, according to witnesses who talked to television station KNBC.

Police Friday had identified Ramirez, 25, as the prime suspect in the slayings and in 21 other night-time attacks since February that had spread fear throughout Southern California.

A mob gathered around Ramirez after he tried to steal a car from a woman who was waiting outside a market as her husband bought tortillas, police said. Witnesses said Ramirez tried to pull the woman from her car and then hit her in the stomach.

"The suspect told her to get out of the car," said a police officer who declined to be identified. "She said 'no way,' and (then) her husband came out."

The woman's husband attacked the man with a fence post, then "a crowd gathered and began beating him rather severely," said KNBC news director Tom Capra, adding that his news crews arrived shortly after the incident began.

The man ran, but the crowd caught up with him.

Richard Ramirez — prime suspect in California murders

"We ran after him halfway down the street. We cornered him," said a man who joined the mob five miles east of downtown Los Angeles. "We just all gang tackled him... and we just held him down."

Sheriff's deputies took Ramirez for questioning to the Hollenbeck Station, where a crowd of about 300 gathered outside. Many spoke of the fear they have lived under during the past months.

"He had all of us scared, with the doors and windows closed in such heat," said Efrain Mendoza, 44, one of the spectators gathered at the station.

The killer entered homes through unlocked doors and windows at night, bludgeoning, knifing, raping and shooting victims ranging in age from 16 to 83.

Most of the killer's attacks have been in Los Angeles County, but other victims lived as far away as San Francisco, about 400 miles north, and Orange County, 55 miles south.

Four kidnappings and molestations, involving children as young as 6, may also be linked to the killer, police said.

Ramirez suffered injuries on his head and one hand, said police Lt. Dan Cooke, but he declined to specify their extent.

Los Angeles County Fire Department Capt. Tom Robertson, who treated Ramirez for head injuries at the scene, said Ramirez vomited a few times, but his vital signs were stable and he was coherent.

An all-points-bulletin had been issued late Friday for Ramirez, who police said lived in Los Angeles in recent years and frequented San Francisco.

Ramirez was believed to have come to California from El Paso, police said in news conferences in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The officers said Ramirez was considered armed and dangerous.

"We developed leads with information from Los Angeles and everything came together," San Francisco homicide Inspector Frank Falzon said Friday. "You bet we broke this thing."

Los Angeles County Sheriff Sherman Block said Friday he wanted Ramirez to know every police officer in the state was looking for him and "every citizen will now know exactly what this individual looks like."

Nixon gives Reagan advice about summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon says "potential flash points" between the United States and the Soviet Union in Central America and the Middle East — not arms control — should top the November summit's agenda.

In an article in Foreign Affairs magazine, Nixon urged President Reagan to focus on "military adventurism" by the Soviets. Nixon urged Reagan to inform General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev when they meet in Geneva that expansion of the Brezhnev Doctrine will destroy the chances for a better relationship between the two superpowers and Senate approval of any arms control agreement.

The Soviets unveiled the Brezhnev Doctrine in the 1960s to justify using any means, including force, to ensure the countries of Eastern Europe remained communist and pro-Moscow. Nixon said the Soviets had since expanded it to support wars of liberation in the non-communist world.

Nixon, who held three summit meetings with the late Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, said efforts to reduce nuclear weapons cannot be separated from Soviet efforts in Latin America, Africa, the Persian Gulf and the Mideast against allies and friends of the United States.

Writing in the magazine's current issue, the former president said Reagan should tell Gorbachev it would be "irrational and immoral" for the West to accept such Soviet behavior without insisting on "our right to defend our allies and friends under assault and to support true liberation movements against pro-Soviet regimes in the Third World."

Nixon called the Soviet policy in the Third World the most difficult and potentially dangerous issue that brings Moscow and Washington into confrontation.

"We cannot expect the Soviets to cease being communists dedicated to expanding communist influence and domination in the world," Nixon said. "But we must make it clear to the Soviets that military adventurism will destroy the chances for better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union."

At the same time, Nixon said the two countries should work together to combat international terrorism and to reduce arms sales in the Third World.

"For the Soviet Union to arm India, while the United States arms Pakistan, can only end in tragedy for the people of both countries," Nixon said.

Nixon also suggested the United States ask the Soviets to join in a declaration condemning aid to terrorists as an international crime.

Earthquake damages buildings in Greece

PREVEZA, Greece (AP) — An earthquake rocked western Greece Saturday, damaging houses, churches and a ceramics factory in this port city, officials said.

District Prefect Costas Stratinakis reported "dozens of very minor injuries," but said no Preveza resident was hospitalized as a result of the quake that authorities said measured 5.4 on the Richter scale.

Stratinakis said eight houses collapsed and 32 others were damaged. He said tents were being sent from Athens.

A landslide disrupted traffic on the highway connecting Preveza with northwestern Greece, authorities said. Cracks appeared in the wharf at Preveza harbor, but ferry service across the Ambracian Gulf was not affected.

A spokesman for Athens Seismological Institute said the quake occurred at 9:04 a.m. with its epicenter in the Ionian seabed off Preveza, 175 miles west of Athens.

A quake measuring 5.4 on the Richter scale can do considerable damage. The scale measures ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

Sakharov's stepson continues hunger strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing the Soviet Union may be concealing the death of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov, his stepson today entered the second day of a hunger strike to pressure Moscow to allow him to see his parents.

"I am just desperate about the situation of my parents," Alexey Semyonov, the son of Sakharov's second wife, Yelena Bonner, said Friday. "My demand is to be able to see them."

Semyonov, 29, clad in tennis shorts and a Voice of America T-shirt, set up a folding chair at a corner located a block and a half from the Soviet Embassy in Washington. He returned to his vigil this morning after spending the night with friends, and said he had taken no nourishment and was drinking only mineral water.

Semyonov said he would remain on hunger strike "as long as it is useful." He displayed a sign stating: "I am on hunger strike. Soviets, let me see my parents. Free Sakharovs."

Because he and his sister, Tatiana Yankelevich, have not received word from their mother in nearly two months, he said it appears "the Soviets have made a definite decision not to allow any communication with my parents, which is to say: 'We will do whatever we want with them at any moment we want,'" Semyonov said.

Semyonov fears the Soviets might be trying to conceal the death of Sakharov, and possibly his mother, as well, so as not to cast a cloud over the November summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Semyonov, a computer programmer from Newton, Mass., said he received two postcards from his mother in early July. They made no mention of Sakharov's condition, giving rise to fears he may be dead.

Since then, the Soviets released videotapes purporting to show Sakharov in a hospital in Gorky, where the dissident couple were exiled in 1980. The films show Sakharov being shaved and eating a meal.

During the films, a doctor discusses a series of illnesses Sakharov supposedly suffered. Semyonov contended the illnesses were publicized by the Soviets to make it appear that "if something happened, it's not their fault."

Semyonov said he is concerned about Sakharov's health. A letter written by his wife last year said Sakharov had suffered a stroke during a hunger strike he staged last year.

The hunger strike was an unsuccessful attempt to force the Soviets to allow Mrs. Bonner to seek medical treatment in the West for eye and heart problems.

Sakharov, a physicist who helped the Soviets develop nuclear weapons, won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his work on behalf of human rights. Mrs. Bonner, also a dissident, was convicted a year ago of spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

The couple are confined to Gorky and are forbidden to telephone their children in the United States.

Semyonov, who has lived in the United States since 1978, accused the Reagan administration of paying only "lip service" to human rights in the Soviet Union.

"Except for some pronouncements by administration officials, I don't see any actions or any willingness to act by the administration," he said.

"It will be a great embarrassment for Reagan if he goes to a very friendly meeting with Gorbachev and ... it's (later) known that Andrei Sakharov had died two months before the meeting and the Soviets had kept it a secret."

Fearing the Soviet Union may be concealing the death of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov, his stepson Alexey Semyonov entered the second day of a hunger strike Saturday.

Howard County to get funding for farm roads

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — State highway officials are doing out $44.6 million to improve Texas' farm-to-market road network during the next two years.

Of that, $1.25 million will go to the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation's district office in Abilene. The money was appropriated by the commission this week for use on farm-to-market roads in the 13 counties in that district, including Howard County.

Highway department spokesman Hilton Hagen said district engineers will work with county officials to determine what projects will receive funding.

Proposed projects can include new construction, reconstruction and major rehabilitation of existing roads. However, segments proposed for additions to the farm-to-market system must be an extension of a previously designated route or one which will eliminate a gap in the existing system.

Also, in the case of additions, priority is given to those having higher traffic counts.

The funds were awarded by means of a formula that considered rural populations within the districts, farm-to-market mileage and vehicle traffic.

Counties in the Abilene district are Taylor, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Borden, Scurry, Fisher, Jones, Shackelford, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan and Callahan.

Governor urges school children to save Goddess

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White designated Sept. 9 as "Bring a Quarter for the Goddess Day" in Texas and praised the Texas PTA for sponsoring a statewide fundraising drive to restore the state Capitol.

The restoration effort is being done in conjunction with the state's 150th birthday anniversary, which is in 1986.

White urged Texans to "share a responsibility" in restoring the state Capitol. Every Texas student who wants to can contribute 25 cents toward the restoration efforts. "Just as the nation's children came to the rescue of the Statue of Liberty, so will Texas schoolchildren participate ... in restoring our own Goddess."

White said a major face-lift is necessary because of the many patchwork renovations done in the past. The governor cited the Capitol fire that destroyed the upper east wing and the creation of more offices and meeting rooms as some of the patchwork renovations undertaken through the years.

But the 97-year-old Goddess of Liberty, which stands atop the Capitol dome, is in a more urgent need of restoration because of its rapid deterioration. White said: "A 20-inch crack is visible ... and unless the Goddess undergoes extensive repairs, Texans could see the gradual erosion of this irreplaceable piece of architectural history."

White said the Capitol has been a popular tourist attraction and should be preserved.

He vowed to play an active role in raising funds for the restoration. As a symbol of his commitment, White emptied into a "Save-the-Goddess" canister all his quarters and the $5 bill given to him by the Houston Post as a contribution to the renovation of the Capitol wing destroyed by fire in 1983.

The sesquicentennial year offers Texas a unique opportunity to showcase the state as "the exciting place to be in the 1980s," White said, adding that nearly 1,200 communities are planning events to capture the spirit of Texas.

Farm relief volunteers have tough row to hoe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Merle Haggard, Willie Nelson and others who want to raise money for farm relief will have their work cut out for them, considering the number of producers who are deeply in debt and the awesome size of that debt.

Haggard recently announced plans for a coast-to-coast campaign by train this month to raise money for farmers. Nelson has scheduled a farm-aid benefit in Champaign, Ill., on Sept. 22.

The country music stars are following in the wake of the Live Aid concert put on in July for African hunger relief, when performers in London and Philadelphia raised $55 million.

If the new venture is as successful, it will require tactful and wise management to select the relief projects to help the most farmers. There is no way that enough money will be raised to wipe out all farm debt in the United States.

Of course, that is not the intention of Haggard and Nelson. Money might help prevent the loss of some farms in imminent danger, they say, but mostly the effort this month will be to call attention to the plight and importance of American agriculture.

It also comes as Congress returns to work and tries to put together a new farm bill, including price support programs that will have much to do with the financial shape of farmers over the next few years.

The Live Aid benefit in July for African relief resulted in something highly visible, money to buy food shipments. It was easy to understand from pictures of starving children in Ethiopia and Sudan how even a few dollars worth of wheat would help.

But no farm family in the United States has undergone the horror of mass hunger that pervades much of the African continent. The predicament of American farmers is much more subtle and expensive.

For example, according to Agriculture Department statisticians, total farm debt was about $212 billion as of Jan. 1. This year, farmers are expected to pay about $21 billion in interest on that debt, an average of about $58 million a day, including weekends and holidays.

In other words, a successful concert might raise enough money to pay one day's interest on the money that farmers owe

That may be startling to non-farmers, but it's a familiar reality in today's world of commercial agriculture. It takes big bucks to crank out the grain, oilseeds, cotton, rice, milk, beef, pork and poultry needed by American consumers and foreign buyers.

Consider a recent report by USDA's Economic Research on expenditures by farmers in 1984, when they spent $128.3 billion. Services, including rent, custom hire, insurance and marketing expenses, accounted for $23.6 billion of that tab. Feed for livestock was another $18.3 billion.

Net farm income in 1984 was estimated at $34.6 billion, up sharply from $16.1 billion in 1983. The jump was due largely to USDA bookkeeping procedures which allowed for rebuilding of farm inventories, depleted in 1983 by drought and government acreage cutbacks. This year farm income is forecast at $22 billion to $26 billion.

But the big numbers can mask the hardships of thousands of individual farmers who have seen land values and total assets erode in recent years. When that happens, they have less collateral and find it harder or impossible to borrow more money to pay bills.

In a report released earlier this summer, the Economic Research Service pointed more specifically to the ailments of agriculture.

According to the agency's study of 1.7 million farms, just over 12 percent or 214,000 were so deeply in debt that they couldn't make payments. And the stress was most severe among so-called commercial size farms, those selling at least $40,000 worth of products annually.

Some 38,000 farms, or 2 percent of the total surveyed, were technically insolvent, with debts greater than the value of their assets.

If Merle Haggard and Willie Nelson need even further signposts on where to direct farm aid, they might choose to look at some of the cases handled by the Farmers Home Administration. This is the agency often called the government's lender of last resort, because it makes loans to people that banks and others turn away.

Overall, as of June 30, the FmHA in the first nine months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1 had 271,943 farm borrowers. Of those, 32 percent were behind in repayments, about the same delinquency rate of recent years.

LULAC president discusses quotas, dropout programs

DENVER (AP) — The League of United Latin American Citizens will lobby against the Reagan administration's draft of an executive order outlawing all affirmative action for government contractors, LULAC president Oscar Moran said Friday.

"This cannot be done," Moran said. "We are very determined and very aggressive. We will not take a compromise on this order."

At his Denver news conference, Moran also announced a national program to help curb the Hispanic high school dropout rate. The program would give up to $3,000 to students who graduate from high school and go on to college. The Hispanic dropout rate stands at 18.7 percent in the United States and 11.8 percent in Colorado.

"What we're talking about here is a real time bomb," he said. "Fifteen years from now we're going to have a very angry generation out there."

Besides discussing hiring quotas and the dropout program, Moran also spoke of a possible trade agreement with the Adolph Coors Co. LULAC, founded in 1929, is the largest national volunteer organization of Hispanics with 110,000 members in 46 states.

The dropout program outlined by Moran would be financed by LULAC, 7-Eleven, General Motors and Coca-Cola.

Students who are eligible are those who have been identified as gifted, but show signs of dropping out of school because of economic difficulties.

The program may begin as early as October, Moran said. About $100,000 has been set aside so far. Targeted areas include Denver, Los Angeles, Mexican border regions, the Midwest and New York.

Moran said stipends for students who need financial help to get through high school also may be provided, even if they do not go on to college.

He also said LULAC officials are meeting with Coors representatives to discuss the possibility of a national trade agreement regarding Hispanic franchisees and subcontracting.

"While there are still several unresolved issues, we feel very positive about a possible agreement with Coors," he said.

More details on the Coors agreement and the program for dropouts will be announced in October in Washington, D.C., he said.

Freeze on Medicare hospital rates will save $1.8 billion, Heckler says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler says the freeze on Medicare hospital reimbursement rates for 1986 will save more than $1.8 billion without reducing the quality of care for the nation's elderly.

Mrs. Heckler promulgated the final rules Friday that will make that freeze official. The Reagan administration proposed the rules in June, and first signaled that it wanted to hold the line on Medicare rates last February in its proposed budget for fiscal 1986.

The rules also move Medicare a step closer toward completing the three-year phase-in of its so-called prospective payment system, under which hospitals are paid fees set in advance for various ailments, regardless of how long the patient actually stays in the hospital.

There have been complaints that hospitals have been discharging Medicare patients prematurely to save money. But Mrs. Heckler said, "The prospective payment system is a bright feather in the president's cap. It maintains quality care while helping to reduce the massive federal deficit even as it ensures the solvency of the Medicare trust fund." There will be no "adverse impact on beneficiary quality of care," she said.

Under the new rules, Medicare will pay the hospitals in fiscal 1986 — starting Oct. 1 — at rates based 75 percent on federal payment levels and 25 percent based on each hospital's historic costs.

Under the first year of prospective payment, hospitals were reimbursed 25 percent on the federal payment rates and 75 percent on their own traditional costs. In the past year, the rates were determined on a 50-50 mix.

Starting in fiscal 1987, "hospital reimbursement will be based solely on federal payment rates without regard for specific hospital historic costs," the department said.

In her statement, Mrs. Heckler said the department has "a two-year track record of success behind us. We have brought Medicare hospital expenditures under control while ensuring that Medicare beneficiaries receive the highest quality medical care for their needs."

The final rules putting the freeze into effect will appear in the Federal Register on Tuesday.

The government, in first proposing the freeze, said that because of past overpayments, a 2.85 percent cut in the payment rates for 1986 could be justified. But it finally ruled that out, saying a cut would have adverse effects both on hospitals and on "the development and acceptance of the prospective payment system."

Mrs. Heckler said the 1986 reimbursement rates for individual hospitals may increase or decrease depending on the hospital's historic costs, the index of hospital wages and the case mix of Medicare patients.

Prospective payment now covers 5,405, or 81 percent, of the hospitals certified to provide care under Medicare. Some states with their own cost-control programs were allowed to continue to follow their own reimbursement methods.

The new rules also:

- Provide no increase in the target limitations on reimbursement for rehabilitation, psychiatric and other hospitals excluded from the prospective payment system.

- Modifies certain "disagnosis-related groups" — the 470 different diseases around which Medicare bases its payments.

Can a kitchen be too big? It may be surprising to those imprisoned in a tiny kitchen, but bigger is not always better. This is especially true when that large dream kitchen has not been carefully planned. Without a properly designed floor plan, a 15 by 25 foot kitchen can actually create more work. It forces long marches from one place to another. On solution to this design problem is the introduction of a center island. An island, when equipped with a cooktop and ventilating hood, can pare down the size of the kitchen work triangle. Any additional space in the island can be used to house cabinets for storage. The island also serves to direct the traffic flow around the busy work triangle, increasing kitchen efficiency.

For the prettiest, most efficient kitchen in town, call on BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK. We can design, build, and install your new kitchen, from floor tile to custom cabinets. We also do all types of home renovations. Our 8000 sq. ft. workshop and skilled craftsmen can handle any job. Come to Bldg. 613 in the Industrial Park, or phone 267-5811. # State park fees to increase AUSTIN (AP) — Increased fees for use of state parks have been approved by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission as a means of breaking even on operation of the park system.

The new fees, previously approved by the Legislature, are effective Sunday.

At its monthly meeting on Friday, the commission also set migratory game bird regulations for 1985-86 that call for a shorter duck hunting season because of fewer birds.

The commission unanimously approved an operating budget of $7.8 million for 1986, which was 7.7 percent more than 1985.

Executive Director Charles Travis of the Parks and Wildlife Department, said the department would end up with a revenue shortage of $897,000 in 1986 for operation of state parks without the fee increases. He said the shortage in 1987 would grow to $2.1 million.

However, Travis said, with increased fees for usage of parks, the department would have a balance of $2 million in 1986 and about $1 million in 1987.

The new schedule approved by the commissioners, effective Sept. 1, would not change the daily $2 per car entrance fee at state parks.

However, the annual entrance fee, good throughout the year, would increase from $15 to $25.

Rent of a "primitive" camping site, with only water available, would increase from $4 to $6 a night. Sites with electricity and sewer connections would increase more. Rent of cabins would go from $18 to $25 a night.

The commission approved a shorter duck hunting season after Bill Brownlee, migratory bird program director, said the number of birds had decreased as a result of nesting habitat loss and dry weather conditions.

10,000-year-old bison skull piece unearthed in downtown Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — With the help of a screwdriver, paint brush and toilet paper, part of the skull of a 10,000-year-old bison was unearthed Saturday in downtown Austin.

However, paleontologist Ernest Lundelius was disappointed.

"Looks like there is only part of the skull there," the University of Texas professor said after digging for about an hour. "There's part of the brain case and a part of the horn core."

He said they would continue investigating the area.

Earlier this year, Lundelius and other experts had dug up bones, teeth and tusks from a mastodon in the excavation for a 22-story office building just a few blocks from Saturday's dig. Scientists said it was probably the second-largest discovery of mastodon bones in North America.

The piece of bison skull was discovered Tuesday by a workman with a shovel in the 23-foot deep excavation for a hotel-retail development by Southland Investment Properties.

"One of my laborers hit it and showed it to me and asked me what it was," said Tony Obera, a labor foreman at the site. "I told him: 'Hell, that's a bone.'"

The discovery area was roped off and Lundelius called.

Lundelius and John Buckley, paleontologist at Austin Community College, began the excavation by picking away rocks and sand with their fingers, a screwdriver and trowel.

They carefully worked around the exposed bit of bone and behind it. Then they dusted off the exposed fragment with brushes and moistened it with toilet paper to keep it from getting brittle.

TV camera crews and reporters leaned over their shoulders. A number of school-age boys and girls appeared, along with a number of other spectators.

In the background, bulldozers and dump trucks continued to roar in and out of the immense hole in the earth.

Lundelius said the bison was a contemporary of the mastodons, whose remains were found earlier nearby.

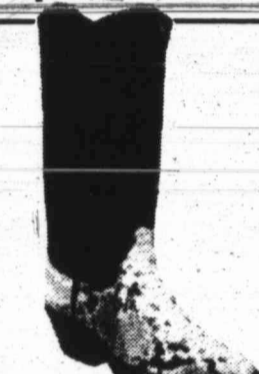

Lundelius said the skull fragment probably is from a prehistoric animal known as bison antiquus and may be more than 10,000 years old.

Satellite to ease teacher shortage

AUSTIN (AP) — A private satellite television network is starting two-way operations this fall in about 100 school districts in Texas and California, one way officials say may help ease teacher shortages.

Classes in computer science, advanced mathematics and foreign languages are among those being offered over the hookup to school districts and educational agencies. Advanced courses for teacher training also are available.

"The network is a way to help alleviate the teacher shortage and help students, particularly in small towns and cities where they can't find teachers to provide the courses needed to enter college these days," said Pat Tinsley of the TI-IN Network.

Ms. Tinsley said TI-IN, based at Webster, near Houston, began operations Aug. 5, offering service training for teachers.

The network is a big change from traditional, one-way, pre-recorded television classes, she said.

The network broadcasts programming that uses live teachers in the studio and an "interactive" connection that allows students in different classrooms to use cordless telephone sets to question teachers directly or engage in discussions with students in other cities.

"They're called on by name when they want to ask questions. Or the teacher can call on another student in another city and ask them what they think about the answer," Ms. Tinsley said.

Tests can be given via the satellite link, and all a school district needs to monitor the classroom is an adult volunteer, she said.

The satellite link also has been providing advanced instruction for teachers, something last year's school reform legislation required for Texas teachers who want to move up the career ladder to higher pay scales.

"If they want to move up the career ladder they have to take approved courses. But many teachers don't live in towns with colleges where they can take them," Ms. Tinsley said.

The instructional satellite system is a cooperative venture between TI-IN Network and the Texas Education Agency, which will monitor and evaluate the programming and provide studio facilities at its Region 20 Educational Service Center in San Antonio.

"It is the first system like this in the nation that's been specifically developed for public education," said TEA spokeswoman Terri Anderson.

The program is costing the state nothing, Ms. Anderson added. "We are letting them use our facilities at the Educational Service Center in San Antonio to have their studios where all the instructors will be located," she said.

The individual school districts pay for the programming and equipment at a rate determined by daily attendance. The average first-year cost, which includes the satellite reception equipment, TV monitors and recorders, is about $15,000 per district, Ms. Tinsley said.

William Kirby, state education commissioner, said a system such as the TI-IN Network is a definite trend in education.

"This cooperative venture represents a move toward high-technology instructional delivery that is crucial to the future of public education," Kirby said.

"Through such 'distance learning' programs, educational opportunities can be equalized across the state by allowing school districts of all sizes to take advantage of high-quality instructors and programs," he said.

Community pep rally set

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a community pep rally at Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater Tuesday at 8 p.m. to support the Big Spring High School Steers in their first football game of the season.

The game against the Snyder Tigers will begin Friday at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Featured speaker at the pep rally will be Murray Murphy, new high school principal, said varsity cheerleader Suzanne Bowers.

Also at the rally, the Big Spring High School band will play, cheerleaders will perform, and the football team will be introduced. The high school volleyball team also will be honored, but will not attend because it has a game that night, said Bowers.

The Steers will play seven home games and three out-of-town games this year.

Tax & financial planning

IS ESTATE PLANNING FOR YOU?

There's a common misconception that estate planning is just for wealthy people and that its engaged in solely to cut taxes. The truth of the matter is that if you own any possessions you have an "estate" and it's up to you to plan what to do with it upon your death. If you are responsible for the welfare of others, some planning is appropriate to provide for their needs in case something happens to you.

No professional can decide what you want to do; they can only discuss options with you and do the necessary paperwork once you have made your decisions. The professionals who can assist you include —

- Your accountant — to serve as coordinator of your estate planning team. Your accountant sees you more frequently than others on the estate planning team (at least once a year for income tax filing) and is more familiar with your assets, liabilities, income, dependents, investments and other factors affecting your financial situation. He or she knows income estate and gift tax laws, both federal and state, and can help you to accomplish your objectives at the least tax cost.

- Your attorney — to review your decisions for compliance with applicable law, to draw up the necessary documents, and to serve at the time of estate probate.

- Your insurance agent — to inform you of available insurance products which can provide your family with income upon your death or meet other cash needs of your estate.

- A trust officer — to act as custodian and manager of the trust assets if you choose to set up any trusts.

A good estate plan should be a good "living plan" that allows you to enjoy your assets, and upon your death, have whatever is left pass according to your wishes.

Tale of the Polls

By Charlie Alcorn

Well it's football time again (imagine that). And having perused what the hallowed prognosticators have said about the college football powers to be, I figure that my predictions are as valid as any.

Ten years ago, anybody with a working knowledge of the sports page could have picked the eventual National Champion of college football from a handful of perennial powerhouses, i.e. Texas, Alabama, Notre Dame, Michigan, USC, Oklahoma or Penn State. Now days, rampant parity has made the fine art of handicapping so much child's play. And a child is liable to do as well picking the week's winners as some expert named The Professor or Mr. Money.

With each team now reduced to giving 90 scholarships a year, recruiting has become even more crucial than ever in determining the success of a college program. Since the rule was implemented in 1977, stories of overzealous recruiting have abounded. Some schools seem to get caught more than others (SMU, Florida) but you can bet any school that has made the Top 20 in this decade is guilty of a few questionable loans.

Actually, I like parity what has done for college football. It has made an already superior product even more entertaining. Although, I miss Texas dominating the Southwest Conference like it used to, it's great that relative unknowns like Clemson ('81), Miami ('83) and Brigham Young ('84) can claim a National Championship. If the NCAA could just come up with a reasonable playoff format, college football would be just about perfect.

To give you some idea what all this equity has done to the preseason polls, take a look at the top five in these respected polls.

As you can see, predicting has become no more than an educated crapsheet. Which lends a smattering of credibility to Alcorn's Top 20.

No doubt your guess is as good as mine, (or the other 4 billion sports writers) about who is going to end up on top of the polls. Only difference is we get paid to make you think we know what we're talking about. Which is fine as long as you don't have the second mortgage on your house riding on the 1986 National Champion.

McEnroe, Becker tough in Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon champion Boris Becker and top-seeded John McEnroe continued on their collision course Saturday, capturing their third-round matches at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The top two seeds in the women's field, No. 1 Chris Evert Lloyd, and defending champion Martina Navratilova, both posted easy victories on a chilly, windy day under a dark, brooding sky on the hardcourts of the National Tennis Center.

Becker, the 17-year-old West German "wunderkind," overcame a stubborn Kelly Evernden of New Zealand 7-6, 6-3, 7-6, while McEnroe, seeking his second straight crown and his fifth U.S. Open title, raced through Bud Schultz 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Their victories moved them into the fourth round — one match away from their eagerly anticipated collision.

Lloyd crushed Grace Kim 6-0, 6-3 in a third-round match, and Navratilova stomped Lisa Bender 6-1, 6-1 to advance to the third round.

The men's No. 2 seed, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, completed his rain-delayed 6-2, 6-0, 6-3 blitz of Bill Scanlon.

One seed fell Saturday. Robin White came from behind to oust No. 14 Bonnie Gadusek 1-6, 6-1, 6-2.

But No. 16 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia advanced with a 4-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 7-6 marathon victory over Jimmy Arias and next meets McEnroe.

Besides Lendl, No. 7 Yannick Noah of France also moved into the third round, downing Jim Grabb 7-6, 6-3, 6-2; No. 6.

Other seeds advancing into the men's fourth round were No. 3 Mats Wilander of Sweden, a 6-3, 6-7, 7-6, 6-1 winner over Paul Anacone, and No. 13 Tim Mayotte, who stopped Nigeria's Nduka Odizor 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

Joining White and Lloyd in the fourth round of the women's singles were No. 5 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 15 Carling Bassett of Canada and Kathy Jordan.

Ranked 144th in the world, Evernden gave Becker all he could handle for six minutes short of three hours. And it was almost more than he could handle.

Cowboys roll Oilers, 20-10

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys had a perfect National Football League preseason thanks to a 20-10 victory over the Houston Oilers Saturday night but Coach Tom Landry still isn't sure about them.

"You never know how good you are until you tee it up against the best and we'll do that against Washington in the opener," said Landry. "Then we'll know where we are for sure."

Landry said Dallas' 4-0 record surprised him.

"I thought we might be 2-2 but that's the way it went and we'll see what it means," he said.

Landry wasn't overly pleased with Dallas' effort in the victory.

"It wasn't one of our best efforts," said Landry. "We were sluggish at the start."

"It was a good tough game but not one of our best."

Dallas quarterback Gary Hogeboom rifled a pair of 24-yard touchdown passes as the Cowboys finished the NFL preseason unbeaten for the first time since 1971.

The game-winner came on a 24-yard scoring shot to rookie wide receiver Leon (Speedy) Gonzalez with 4:44 left in the third period. Gonzalez is a seventh round pick from Bethune Cookman.

Dallas' perfect preseason was 4-0 while the Oilers were 1-4. Only the Cowboys, the New York Giants and Washington Redskins compiled unblemished exhibition slates.

The Cowboys fell behind 10-0 in a first quarter in which they didn't produce a first down.

Tony Zendejas' 49-yard field goal and Warren Moon's 51-yard scoring pass to rookie Mike Akiu, a seventh round draft pick from Hawaii, put the underdog Oilers ahead. Moon later suffered a ripped nail on his right thumb and sat out the second half.

Dallas came back on a 34-yard field goal by Rafael Septien and a 24-yard Hogeboom to Tony Dorsett's touchdown pass to tie the game 10-10 at halftime.

Rookie linebacker Jesse Penn intercepted an Oliver Luck pass late in the fourth period to setup a 29-yard field goal by Septien.

Danny White, the Cowboys' starting quarterback, didn't suit out as a precautionary measure because of a rib injury.

Houston Oiler's running back BUTCH WOOLFOLK makes a cut as Dallas Cowboy's defensive tackle ED JONES comes in from the rear during the first quarter of the Governors Cup exhibition game in Irving.

Lady Steers dropped in tourney

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Lady Steers ran into a brick wall Saturday in the final rounds of the San Angelo ISD Invitational volleyball tournament Saturday. The Lady Steers were defeated by Snyder in the semifinals and lost to San Angelo Central in the third place game.

In the semifinal match, Snyder downed the Lady Steers 15-12, 6-15, 15-8 in a close match.

In the first game Sheri Myrick had four point while teammate Katrina Thompson had three points from the line. Michelle Husted accounted for the other point in the game.

In the second game, Big Spring came back with some strong service and excellent defense to put the match into the deciding game. Myrick had five points in the game to lead all scorers.

In the final game, Myrick again tallied five points but it was not enough to stymie the tough Snyder squad who went on to play Pecos in the finals.

In the third place game, Big Spring was swept by San Angelo Central 15-6, 15-4.

Head coach Susan Sharpe said the team suffered from a lack of concentration in the second match. "The girls really didn't have their heads in the game during the second match. You can't afford to less than your best against Central."

Sharpe cited Sheri Myrick for outstanding defensive play in the two matches in the two matches. She also had praise for Kerri Myrick's back court play during the day.

Soccer booming in Big Spring

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

When people in West Texas talk about football, there is never a doubt as to which game they are referring to. But those days may be numbered with the spectacular rise of another brand of football in Big Spring.

Soccer, or football (as it is known in every other country) is rapidly becoming the fall sport of choice for youngsters and parents who are none to eager to swath their tykes in the gridiron armor of America's traditional football game.

Even in football mad Big Spring, the YMCA's Youth Soccer Association has nearly quadrupled in size since starting five years ago. And this is no passing fad. It seems that the foreign brand of football is here to stay.

Rob McKenzie, who serves as president of the YMCA Youth Soccer Association in Big Spring, has long been an advocate of soccer here in the Crossroads. "We have league's for kids from age 4 through 19 and in the age groups under 10 boys and girls compete on the same teams," explained McKenzie. "Soccer has become a very popular alternative to football because it's a great deal less expensive equipment wise than football and is a lot less physically punishing."

Last year the Youth League had 320 players participating. This year McKenzie expects up to 460 to be playing, including 9 or 10 teams from the new league in Coahoma who will join the Big Spring round robin competition.

The league plays its games on three fields in Big Spring Air Park. Games will begin this year on Saturday, September 21 and will run through Thanksgiving with games being contested every weekend. There are no league playoffs in the 4-5, 6-7, 8-9, 10-11 year-old age groups.

"We try to put the emphasis on teaching the skills of the game and sportsmanship rather than competition with the younger kids," explains McKenzie. "The win or lose aspect of the game isn't stressed at this level. We just want the kids to make friends and have a good time."

The under-14- and under-19 leagues compete in the West Texas

The action is hot in heavy in shot taken from one of last year's YMCA Youth Soccer League games. The League is gearing up for its fifth season starting September 21. Sign ups continue through September 9 at the YMCA for boys and girls ages 4 through 19.

United Soccer League against teams from San Angelo, Midland and Abilene in a round-robin format with playoffs at the end of the season.

The most popular age groups are the 8-9 and the 10-11 year old leagues. "We don't get near as many kids in the older leagues because the boys start getting interested in football or other sports and the girls don't compete with the boys beyond the 10-11 age league," commented McKenzie. "But there are more and more kids who continue to play all the way through the 19 year-old league."

Teams are picked at the beginning of each season through a random draft system. "We don't have any city boundaries like the Little League draft. Each coach picks one player at a time until the roster is exhausted. We try to put an even number of girls on each team and keep the teams as balanced as possible," explained McKenzie. "Actually the girls do quite well in the younger age groups because they are usually bigger and more coordinated than the boys. We have never had any problems with any of our co-ed teams."

League sign-up will continue through September 9, at the Big Spring YMCA. Registration fee is $15 for non-members and $12.50 for members. There is a discount for multiple player registrations.

"We're very excited about the popularity of the sport in Big Spring. And I think it will continue to grow," gushed McKenzie.

A new generation of football player is up and coming in Big Spring. One as adept at passing a ball with his head and feet as his dad was as throwing it for touchdowns. Who would have ever thought it?

Marino ends holdout with no contract

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino ended his 38-day holdout Saturday, saying he wanted to return to the team before the start of the regular season "to be fair to myself and to a lot of other people."

The holdout had been acrimonious, with team owner Joe Robbie and Marino agent Marvin Demoff bickering through the press.

"I am returning to the team as of today," Marino told a news conference. "I can no longer let these circumstances with Mr. Robbie affect my personal life. I want to return because I feel a strong obligation to my teammates, my family and the fans of the Miami Dolphins," Marino said at a news conference.

Marino walked out of camp July 24 to protest lack of progress in the renegotiation of his current contract, which has two years left. He returns to the Dolphins without a renegotiated contract.

"I want to help my teammates work to have another great season. At this time I'm not being forced to return," Marino said. "This is totally my own decision. I expect a new offer from Mr. Robbie shortly, now that I have returned to the team."

Coach Don Shula said he was glad to have Marino back in camp, especially after Joe Pisarcik, the only backup quarterback on the team at the time, suffered a sprained shoulder during Friday night's 19-17 loss to the Atlanta Falcons.

"I'm obviously happy," Shula said. "It's too bad that it's gone on for so long. He looks in excellent shape and now we're just going to work him over time to get him caught up with all the things he's missed."

Marino, in the third year of a $2 million contract, said he didn't want the renegotiations to carry over into the regular season, which begins next Sunday against the Houston Oilers.

Shula said he wouldn't make a decision on whether to start Marino or Don Strock in the opener until later this week.

Marino said if he doesn't have a deal worked out this week he may play this year under his current contract.

"I love playing the game and I look forward to working toward a championship season," Marino said, adding that he does not regret walking out, even though he didn't accomplish his goal.

"It's something that I felt was right at the time and I still feel was right," the star quarterback said. He said his action helped him "find out where a lot of people stand."

Marino, 23, set the National Football League record for touchdown passes last year with 48 while leading the Dolphins to the AFC title.

He said he believes he could play in the season opener, but "that's not my decision."

Marino said he expects some negative reaction and he understands how the fans will treat him.

Air Force rocks Texas-El Paso, 48-6

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Bart Weiss ran for a first-quarter touchdown and passed 60 yards to halfback Kelly Pittman for another as Air Force crushed turnover- and penalty-plagued Texas-El Paso 48-6 Saturday in the college football opener for both teams.

Weiss' scoring run and his long pass to Pittman put the Falcons ahead 14-0 less than seven minutes into the Western Athletic Conference game. Two subsequent UTEP turnovers set up Air Force field goals, and late in the first half A.J. Scott intercepted a Sammy Garza pass to set up another Falcon score — a 1-yard plunge by Randy Jones — for a 27-0 halftime bulge.

Pittman ran 10 yards for a third-quarter touchdown, and the Air Force second- and third-team offensive units each contributed another score in the second half. UTEP pass-interference, facemask and personal-foul penalties contributed to the final two AFA scores.

Jeff Remo, UTEP's backup quarterback, got the Miners' lone score early in the final period. He ran 10 yards on a keeper with 12:18 left, but was sacked on the two-point conversion attempt.

The Falcons, their wishbone attack apparently in mid-season form, scored on their first three possessions.

Two plays later, Miner running back John Harvey fumbled at the UTEP 26, and Tom Ruby kicked a 31-yard field goal for a 17-0 first-period lead.

A fumble by UTEP's Vic Stagliano at the Miner 32 set the stage for another Ruby field goal of 27 yards in the second quarter.

Scott's interception was followed three plays later by Jones' score for the 27-0 lead at intermission. On the first play of that series, Jones caught a 30-yard pass from Weiss. He fumbled the ball forward 8 yards, where it was recovered by a teammate.

It's never too early to start planning for fair

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Have you ever found yourself wishing you'd entered an item in the Howard County Fair but lamenting the fact that time has run out?

It's never too early to start planning an entry, according to fair organizers.

The 13th annual Howard County Fair will open Sept. 16 and folks who want to enter items should begin preparing their entries soon, according to Zula Rhodes, chairman of the Women's Division.

Entries to the fair will be accepted Monday, Sept. 16, prior to the official opening of the fair. Many items will be judged on Monday, while several special divisions will be judged throughout the week.

The Women's Division encompasses several areas, including hobbies and crafts; over sixty; baked goods; canned goods; clothing; handwork; the flower show and the art show.

Entries are accepted "from anywhere," said Rhodes. "Some counties have closed fairs, but the Howard County Fair is open to people from outside the county."

Items which don't seem to fit in any certain category will also be accepted, said Rhodes. "We'll make a classification to fit."

Many entries fit into no certain classification, Rhodes said. "Someday, I'm going to write a book about miscellaneous." Patsy Fryar and Kathy McCall are co-chairmen of the hobbies and craft division for this year's fair. This division is for "any handcraft," said Fryar. That includes ceramics, leather goods, needlepoint, doll clothing and other miscellaneous items.

The ceramics division this year will have a special judge, Fryar said. A judge is being brought in as a result of past requests for an expert in the field, Fryar said.

Fryar urged entrants to "finish up whatever they are working on and that you are over 60," Rhodes said.

The canned goods division volunteers are Brenda Larson and Caran Highley. Rhodes said this division should bring in a number of entries because "the gardens are good this year. We expect better entries this year."

Divisions include canned fruits; canned vegetables; pickles and relishes; jams, jellies and preserves; dried food products; and miscellaneous.

Regulation jars must be used, and all jars must be sealed with rings left on. No mayonnaise, coffee or old jars will be judged.

Each blue ribbon winner will be eligible to win the Ball Award, offered each year by the Ball Corporation. To be eligible for the Ball Award, entries must be canned in a Ball jar with a Ball lid.

Baked goods division heads are Ireba Griffith and Ellen Miller. A series of special bake days will be featured this year. Baked items must be placed on cardboard squares or circles and must be completely covered with cellophane that is taped on the underside of the container. A copy of the recipe must accompany the entry.

Cakes will be accepted Monday, Sept. 16, from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pies will be accepted Tuesday, Sept. 17, from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Breads will be accepted from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 18. Cookies will be accepted from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 19. Candies will be accepted from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20.

Non-professional decorated cakes will be accepted from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20. Professional entries will be accepted from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21.

Clothing division chairmen are Nell Burgess, Laverne Green and Helen Larson.

Divisions include adult division — Division one, infant wear; division two, children's wear.

Opal Wooten is chairman of the Over 60 category. The category was created so "older folks can compete with their peers," Wooten said. The division "is an option" for entrants.

The only criteria for entering the Over 60 division is "that you want your entry to go (in this division)

Anything they've done with their hands — we'll make a place for it."

Each item "is judged on its own merit" and not against other entries, Fryar said.

Doris Vieregge is chairman of the art show. Paintings must be "framed, matted and wired for hanging" before they are submitted to be judged Sept. 16. Entries must be at the fairgrounds no later than 1 p.m. and judging will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Two entries per person will be accepted in the art show. Divisions include oil painting, acrylic, watercolor, graphics, pastel, mixed media, 3-D (sculpture), and a children's division.

Paintings must not have been previously shown or received an award in a showing at the Howard County Fair.

Several special demonstrations in conjunction with the art show will be held throughout the run of the fair, Vieregge said.

A category within the art show is the photography contest, headed by Randy Rister and Cindy Hopper. Four entries per person will be accepted. Photographers may enter two photos in any one category.

Divisions are professional and non-professional. Classes include scenic landscape, still life, portrait and miscellaneous.

Photos must be between the sizes of 8x10 and 16x20. Entries must be framed or matted and wired for hanging.

Although there is a special category for folks 60 and over, people in this age group may enter any category they wish. They are not confined to this age group, Rhodes said.

Opal Wooten is chairman of the Over 60 category. The category was created so "older folks can compete with their peers," Wooten said. The division "is an option" for entrants.

The only criteria for entering the Over 60 division is "that you want your entry to go (in this division)

Howard County Fair Queen to be crowned opening night

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

A new Howard County Fair Queen will be crowned Sept. 16 and will reign each night at the 13th annual fair.

The pageant will be at 6 p.m. with the winner being crowned at 8 p.m. Donnie Wheeler will emcee the event.

The judges will be from out of town.

A contestant must be attired in an evening dress. An interview is held "just to see if the girl has a pleasing personality," said Ann Weaver, chairwoman of the contest.

Other chairwomen are LaVerne Gaskins, Jewell Tubb and Naomi Hunt.

Contestants may enter up to the day of the pageant, but "we'd like to have them ahead of time," said Weaver.

Entry fee is $25. Contestants may get a sponsor to pay the fee.

Weaver will help any contestant find a sponsor, if needed.

The fee is used to pay for the crown, flowers and banners. Any money not used in the contest goes to the fair's general funds.

Entry forms may be picked up from Baskin Robbins, 2110 Gregg, Cowntown Boot Company Factory Outlet in the Big Spring Mall or the Chamber of Commerce, 215 W. 3rd.

The winner will receive a $300 scholarship to Howard College. The first alternate will receive a $200 scholarship to Howard College, and the second alternate will receive a gift certificate.

The contestants will vote on Miss

Congeniality, who will receive a gift and banner. Each contestant also receives a gift.

Each club, social, fraternity, religious group, business civic organization or school organization in Howard County or adjoining county is allowed one contestant.

A contestant does not have to be a member of her sponsoring organizations but must be a resident of Howard County or adjoining county.

A contestant must be enrolled in an 1983, 1984 or 1985 high school class of Howard County area counties. She also must be single and never married or had children.

Winner of the contest forfeits her right to future entries in the Howard County Fair Association Queen's Contest.

Patsy Fryar and Kathy McCall look over a couple of entries for the hobbies and crafts category of the fair. Fryar urges anyone with a handmade item or craft to enter it in the fair. "We'll make a category for it," she said.

Country Kids contest slated at Big Spring Mall Sept. 14

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

In conjunction with the Howard County Fair, a Country Kids Contest will be at 1 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Big Spring Mall following the Sew-it-with-Cotton Contest.

The kids will be at the fair Sept. 17 with the winners being announced at 7:30 p.m.

Dryland Cotton Promoters is sponsoring the contest for boys and girls ages five years and younger.

Contestants will be judged by out-of-town judges on appearance and personality only.

They must be attired in sportswear of their choice of at least 50 percent cotton. The outfit can be made or bought.

Categories are: 0-6 months, 7-12 months, 13-24 months, 2-year-olds, 3-year-olds, 4-year-olds and 5-year-olds.

A first place winner will be named in each age group with boys and girls competing separately. An overall winner from all categories will be named.

The $10 entry fee will cover the costs of promotion, judges and prizes.

Entry deadline is Sept. 11. Entry forms are available at The Kid's Shop, 201 E. 3rd, or Spoiled Rotten in Highland Mall. They also are available by contacting Janeice Barnes at 353-4434.

Geraldine Posey is fair president

For the first time in its 13-year history, the Howard County Fair will be headed by a woman president.

Geraldine Posey, a longtime volunteer and director for the Fair Association, accepted the president's duties after Floyd (Smitty) Smith stepped down. Smith served as the fair president for two years before resigning.

Posey has "worked for the fair for 13 years and served as a board member for 12 years," she said. She volunteered the first year of the fair and found herself returning each year to help stage the event.

Posey said, "I have a great board" that includes 21 directors. "They do your job. There are so many things going on that not one person could get all of this to come off without" volunteers and directors.

Posey also relies on the advice of Arnold Marshall, chairman of the fair board.

"He's worked with the fair since the beginning," Posey said. Marshall offers advice "so we won't make the same mistakes twice."

Posey said the fair directors and board are gearing up for a lot of work during these last hectic weeks before the fair opens.

GERALDINE POSEY
...president

"Everyone is working together well. It's a hectic time. The countdown is starting."

Posey wanted to work for the fair because, "The fair is a holiday; a holiday I remember from childhood. It brings me back to being a kid again."

Posey stressed that the fair is "open to anyone" and includes surrounding counties.

Posey is office manager of the Lomax Gin and has worked there since 1960. She grew up in West Texas and attended Stanton and Garden City schools. Her husband, Richard, is a farmer in Lomax. The couple has two children, including Brad of Houston and Gary of Tyler. Posey has two grandchildren.

In addition to Posey, other officers include: George Weeks and Howard Armstrong, vice presidents; LaVerne Gaskins, secretary; Skipper Driver, treasurer; Neil Fryar and Skipper Driver, general superintendents; Louis Mancha Sr., building manager; Floyd (Smitty) Smith, past president; and Arnold Marshall, chairman.

Directors are: Delbert Donelson, Jay Wallace, Repps Guitler, LaVerne Gaskins, Wayne Rock, Ruth Mitchell, Skipper Driver, Janet Lewis, Don Richardson, Jewell Tubbs, Charles Phillips, Zula Rhodes, Jerry Roman, Arnold Marshall, Neil Fryar, George Weeks, Glenn Click, Howard Armstrong and Dave Lammers.

Associate directors are Dennis Poole, Lisa Hoff and Naomi Hunt.

Parks-Anderson

Ronda Parks became Mrs. James Anderson in an evening ceremony Aug. 24 at Faith Baptist Church. Dr. William Berryhill, pastor, officiated at the 7 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parks, Route 2. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Anderson, 3611 Calvin.

The couple exchanged vows before an archway of greenery and peach and white carnations surrounded by two large baskets of flowers and two seven-branch candelabras.

Brenda Bedell, organist, and vocalists Clydel Chapman, Fredia Chapman, Randy Chapman and Jeff Chapman, all of Odessa, provided music for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Chantilly lace gown. The fitted bodice was enhanced with a deep sheer silk English netting yoke with Venise lace collar and beaded cameo. Long slim lace sleeves were highlighted with a deep lace ruffle at the wrist. Silk satin ribbon traced the waistline and featured a bow in front. The softly gathered skirt was asymmetrically ruffled with alternating tiers of lace and chiffon satin-hemmed ruffles which extended the full length of the cathedral train.

She wore a silk Brussels embroidery derby hat enhanced with silk flowers which lifted up each side. A puff which flowed to fingertip-length created her veil of silk French illusion. The entire creation was sprinkled with bridal pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of peach carnations, white roses, baby's breath with peach and brown ribbons.

Veronica Parks served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Laura McCartney and Judy Van Allen of Adilene, cousin of the bride.

Flower girl was Shiloh O'Donnell. Steven Prater was ring bearer.

John Anderson served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Mike Barton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Nick Lowe of San Angelo.

Russell Parks, brother of the bride, and Jeff Chapman of Odessa, cousin of the bride, were ushers. Amie Jones, cousin of the bride, was candlelighter.

A reception followed in the church's fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth. The bridal bouquet was used as a centerpiece. The wedding cake was three-tiered with staircase and a miniature wedding party.

Guests were served at the bride's table by Betty Van Allen, Fredia Chapman and Janie Jones, all aunts of the bride.

The bridegroom's table was

MRS. JAMES ANDERSON
...formerly Ronda Parks

covered with a lace cloth and featured a chocolate cake in the shape of a hexagon with the initial A.

Janet Kirkpatrick served guests at the bridegroom's table.

Guests were registered by Colleen Barton, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride graduated from Big Spring High School.

A graduate of Big Spring High School, the bridegroom is attending Texas Tech University. He is working towards a degree in petroleum engineering.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside in Lubbock.

Thames-Hawley

BROWNFIELD — Kenda Leigh Thames and Michael Don Hawley were married Aug. 3 in the First Christian Church in Brownfield. The Rev. Bill Shockley of Lipan, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Thames of Brownfield. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Thames of 1019 Stadium.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Hawley of Brownfield.

Doug Cabe was organist and Colleen Jordan was pianist. Vocalists were Shanna Blackstone, Mrs. Bill Shockley, and Joe and Susan Sears.

The bride wore a candlelight gown with a high neckline and bodice covered in silk Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The gown featured a natural waistline. The lace leg-o-mutton sleeves featured covered button and loop closures. The silk taffeta skirt fell to floor length and swept to back fullness with beaded Chantilly lace and appliques on the front and back of the skirt. Crystal pleated tiers of ruffles extended the length of the cathedral train.

Michelle Davis of Brownfield was the maid of honor. Best man was Bobby Hawley of Crosbyton.

Ushers were Dr. Terry Thames, brother of the bride, Carrolton; and Darrell Wilson, Todd Chambers and Greg Dobson, all of Brownfield.

A reception honoring the couple was held following the ceremony. Servers included Betty Thames, sister-in-law of the bride; Leslie Cox and Shari Landers; and Kathy Shockley, Billie Jackson and Millcent Christenson, sisters of the bridegroom.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will reside in Alpine. Both attend Sul Ross University.

McCulley-Grant

Denise Ann McCulley and Joey Roberson Grant exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in the home of Joe and Jan Kerby of Sand Springs.

Willie Grant, Coahoma justice of the peace, officiated at the 6 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Rufus and Dee Rowland of Coahoma. The bridegroom is the son of Jimmy and Linda Grant of Coahoma.

The bride was given in marriage by Rowland and her former stepfather, James Gunn.

She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Patricia Holbrook, sister of the bride, was an honor attendant. Richard Seals was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Kerby home. A two-tiered cake with blue and white roses and a bride and bridegroom figurine on top was served.

The bride attends Coahoma High School and works for the Credit Bureau of Greater Big Spring. The bridegroom graduated from Coahoma High School and is employed by L.G. Nix Dirt Co.

Following a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will reside in Sand Springs.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this. The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS
If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

More good ideas

Another good idea has been suggested. Johnny Rutherford thinks it would be appropriate to have a symphony or patriotic musical program just prior to the fireworks display next July 4. The amphitheater seats 7,000 people under the stars. Let's do it!

Bruce Hogenmiller suggested that proceeds from the Crossroads Stampede be earmarked each year to go toward fireworks display and July 4 activities. The Crossroads Stampede has been termed a success even though it didn't make a lot of money this first year.

I find it hard to believe this big event was put together and staged in less than 5 weeks time. Rick Turner and Sherry Bordofsky are to be commended for heading this project.

I met people from all over the Permian Basin who came as a result of the widespread advertising and promotion. One of the exhibitors was from North Dakota.

YOU WORK TOO LONG AND HARD FOR THAT PAYCHECK!...then you shop at a supermarket or variety store. We figure it's because you can afford to give money away! No? We didn't think so. Neither can we. Maybe it's because there was no alternative? Now there is.

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE!

It's time for a store that uses a very simple idea: Sell name brand groceries, fresh food and non-food products at as low as wholesale cost. No gimmicks, no decorations, no frills. Just LOW PRICES. That idea is so simple, we wonder why nobody else thought of it. Profit? There's still enough in it for us to live. We just don't have the high overhead costs. We're a bare box store for your bare necessities, and then some.

That's how we can give you the same kind of quality you'd get at a supermarket or variety store without their high prices.

Dear Abby

Democratic terms

DEAR READERS: It all began when I ran the following:

DEAR ABBY: A friend gave me these definitions of the various forms of government, and I thought you might want to share them with your readers:

COMMUNISM: You have two cows. The government takes both of them and gives you part of the milk.

SOCIALISM: You have two cows. The government takes one and gives it to your neighbor.

FASCISM: You have two cows. The government takes both cows and sells you the milk.

NAZISM: You have two cows. The governments takes both of them and shoots you.

BUREAUCRACY: You have two cows. The government takes both of them, then pours the milk down the drain.

CAPITALISM: You have two cows. You sell one of them and buy a bull.

DEAR MRS. McC.: In a democracy, everyone has two cows, then a vote is taken and whatever the majority decides to do, you do, and that's no bull!

Did I get letters? Read on!

DEAR ABBY: Our founding fathers did not establish a democracy; they established a republic. Let's use the two cows to illustrate the difference:

In a democracy, you have two cows. A vote is taken among all the people, 99 percent of whom never saw a cow; they think milk comes from the supermarket. Whatever the majority decides you should do with your cows, you do — unless the government pays you not to raise cows, shoots one, milks the other one, and pours the milk down the drain.

In a republic, you have two cows. You can sell one and buy a bull, have one or both cut up into steaks, or sell both and move into a condominium because under a republic each person has the inalienable right to do whatever he darn well pleases to do with his property. And that's no bull either. Around here, we call it liberty.

JON A. HOLIDAY, HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I have to contradict your definition of democracy, but everyone in America does not have two cows. A more accurate description of how the system works would be: You have two cows, one neighbor has 10 cows and another neighbor doesn't have any. The government takes one of your cows and uses it as collateral to get a loan. It uses one-third of the money for "defense" — to protect your remaining cow — gives one-third to a foreign government to keep it from going communist, and spends the other third on research to find out why your neighbor's 10 cows aren't worth as much as your two were.

Then the government milks the cows, makes cheese and gives it to the poor people, who would rather have a cow.

BARELY MAKING IT

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, a reader compared communism, socialism, Nazism, fascism and capitalism.

Abby, comparing such terms is like trying to compare pizzas to piccolos. "Capitalism," "socialism" and "communism" are economic systems; they are not forms of government.

The terms "democracy," "monarchy," and "anarchy" refer to forms of government — they have nothing to do with the economic system.

England, for example, has a limited monarchy as a form of government, and socialism as an economic system.

I hope this clears up the confusion.

C.R.M. IN MISSOURI

DEAR C.R.M.: It does. Thanks for the political science lesson. Let's not pursue this 'til the cows come home. I think we've milked them dry.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Statistics say that 4 out of 10 grade school children have vision problems inhibiting school achievements. An observant teacher may be the first to notice these signs. Some specific indications of possible vision problems are when a child:

- loses places while reading — often;
- avoids close work;
- holds reading material closer than normal;
- tends to rub eyes frequently;
- often has headaches;
- seems tense while doing close work or while looking at distant objects;
- turns or tilts head to use only one eye;
- does little or no voluntary reading;
- performs below potential;
- makes reversals when reading or writing;
- uses finger to maintain place while reading; and/or
- omits or confuses small words while reading.

A child with vision problems may not tell you that he or she cannot see clearly. Perhaps the child simply thinks that everyone else sees the way he or she does. I urge you to see that your child has a thorough eye examination before each new school year.

The C.D. Branham

Mr. and Mrs. C.D. "Red" Branham of the Sterling City Route celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently. Thirty-four family members attended a dinner at their home in celebration of the event. The couple's three sons, Bill, Tom and John Branham, all of Big Spring, were in attendance, as were seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Branham met his wife, the former Willow Lorene Sides, in 1934. They were married Aug. 25, 1935, in Ballinger. The couple, now retired, lives on a farm south of Big Spring.

The Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs will present a "mini-standard flower show" during the fair. The theme is, "Spirit of the Sesquicentennial Grows and Shows."

A horticulture display is planned for Sept. 16-18. Divisions are horticulture, including container grown plants, flowering plants, hanging baskets, African violets, cacti and succulent plants; and educational exhibits.

Entries may be made by any mature gardener in the county. Entries will be accepted until 12:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 16.

In years past, the youth division of the fair has been a separate division. This year, however, people between the ages of 5 and 19 may enter items in any division. They will be judged on their youth capabilities, Rhodes said.

Youngster is ready for school

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor
10-year-old BECKY WALKER, daughter of RYAN and PAM WALKER, is looking forward to her first day at school this week. Doctors told Becky earlier this summer that she would need a home tutor and wouldn't be able to attend classes following surgery for curvature of the spine at St. Luke's Methodist Hospital in Houston. Becky, a former poster child for the March of Dimes, underwent three surgeries in late May and early June. In addition to the back surgery, she underwent orthopedic surgery. Doctors doubted that Becky would be able for school this fall, but during the summer, Becky showed everyone that she is a fighter. She has bounced back from the surgery and is "doing great," according to her aunt, CARLA HAR-

ROLD. Becky will attend Coahoma Elementary School. Becky is the granddaughter of MR. AND MRS. RAY WALKER. Malone and Hogan Clinic employees gathered for a summer party hosted by DOYLE and IRENE LAMB last Sunday. More than 100 people attended, including physicians, employees and their families. Lamb is the clinic's new administrator. A special cake was presented to him during the party. A birthday cake was presented to DR. RUDY HADDAD. VELMA ARROYOS planned a full afternoon for all children attending the event. ROBB and CECELIA MCKENZIE took a last minute trip before school started to Water Wonderland in Odessa with their kids, EMILY, IAN and MICHAEL.

Dr. Donohue

Pre-run stretch

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a true believer so far as pre-run stretching is concerned. I wonder what your opinion is of the sitdown stretch. That's the exercise where you sit on one foot and stretch the other out fully in front of you, then bend your body back until you can touch the ground with your head. The reason I ask is that I was doing this before a run recently and an older guy told me it wasn't recommended. I feel I get a great stretch from it, but I must admit I start to feel some pain in the bent-under knee. — R.H.C.
It's my feeling that this is putting too much stress on that knee joint. You can get an adequate and safer stretch in other ways. Try this and see if it doesn't work for you: Stand facing a wall or an available fence. Balance yourself first with one hand against the wall or fence surface. Bend one leg back and up toward the hip. Reach down with the free hand and grab the bent-back leg by the ankle. Slowly bring the bent leg up snug to the thigh, but only to the extent that you don't feel any real discomfort. Reverse legs and hands and repeat a few times. I know that the exercise you have been doing is popular and a time-honored squad routine in pre-game football drills. I think that it should be done carefully, if at all.
