Emergency landing in Abilene

Precautionary landing is an ordeal for passengers

ABILENE (AP) — Lyn Nelson, 43, of Warren, Ohio, said she was thinking about the Aug. 2 crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 191 when the American Airlines jet she was on made an emergency landing in Abilene.

Sy Becker, an El Paso merchandiser, said the tone of the stewardess' voice giving emergency instructions "terrified" him. And Manuel Mancebo, on his way to Fort Sill, Okla., to be discharged from the Army said he hopes to return to his home in Atwater, Calif., by bus.

The passengers were some of the 177 that made an emergency evacuation from American Airlines Flight 436 after it was forced to land at Dyess Air Force Base near Abilene. The pilot made the landing after a warning light indicated a fire in the engine, but no fire ever occurred, officials said.

Thirty-two people sought medical treatment for cloth burns and sprains they suffered while sliding down the plane's emergency chutes, American spokesman Joe Stroop said. Of the 32, 10 required some kind of medical treatment for minor injuries, he said.

Most of the injuries occurred during the evacuation process while the passengers slid down emergency chutes, said Linda Johnson, a spokeswoman for the airlines.

Passengers aboard the plane said Tuesday's emergency landing was a time of quick prayers, some confusion and instant friendships.

Carol Lambert, of Detroit said she heard a "loud grinding sound" before the flight crew announced the emergency landing. Some children were crying she said, but most passengers were calm and quiet.

The flight was the first venture into the air for Ms. Lambert, but she said Tuesday's emergency would not keep her from flying again.

"I go by faith," she told The Dallas Morning News.

Passengers said they never were told what the emergency was.

Injuries ranged from scraped elbows to possible heart trouble but when a second American DC-10 came to up get the passengers, only two remained in Abilene for treatment.

Passengers of the flight were given a $250 voucher for use on a future American flight, an Airline spokesman said.

The pilot of Flight 436, Capt. J.A. Carlson of Los Angeles was greeted with a standing ovation from the passengers when he arrived at the Dyess officer's club. Laughter broke out in the crowded club when Carlson said, "Thanks and hope to see you again on American."

Although the passengers may have faced confusion, Abilene FAA Air Traffic Controller Charles Gawronski said, "The whole thing was really routine from our end."

"The pilot did the right thing," said Stroop. "He took no chances and landed at the first available airport."

Evacuation evaluation questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steven Vincent and other flight attendants rehearsed for three days for the emergency evacuation they knew would come. When it did, 231 people poured from a Boeing 757 jetliner in 82.9 seconds.

But it was only a test — the kind flight attendants, air safety experts and some members of Congress complain has little resemblance to a real accident. These critics say the tests may give the traveling public a false impression about their chances of escape.

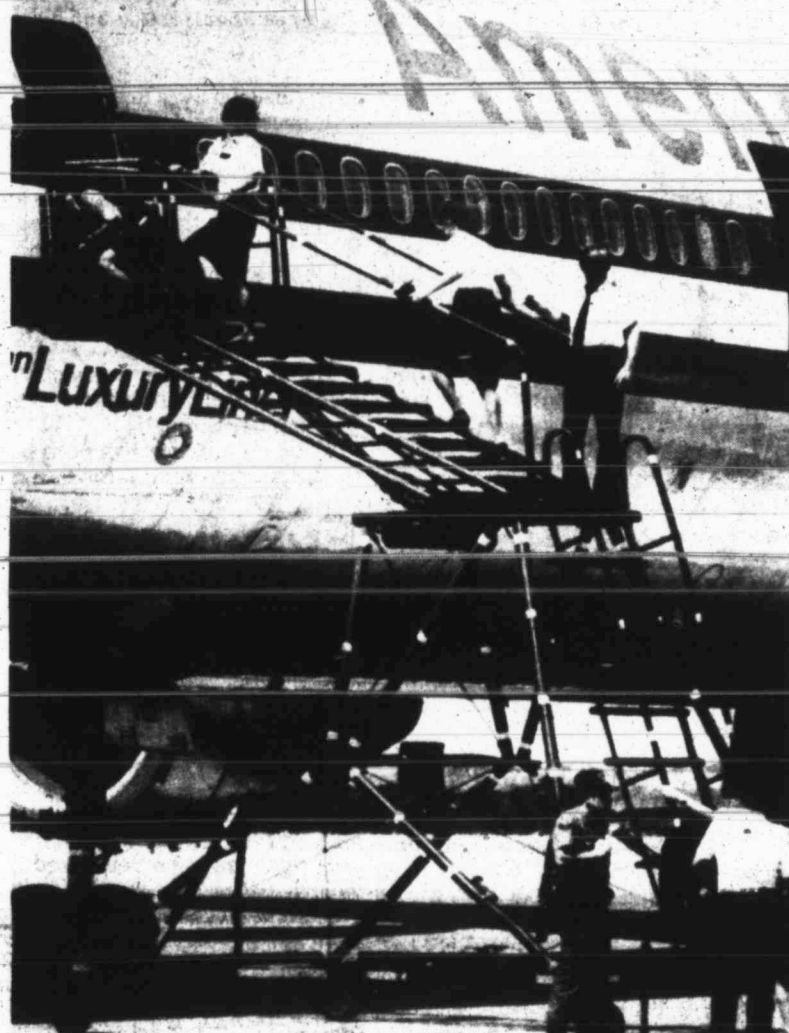

Federal regulations require that all jetliners pass an evacuation test to show that a plane full of passengers can be emptied in 90 seconds. Such tests determine how many seats a plane may have in relation to the number of exits.

But critics question whether such tests resemble a real emergency situation closely enough. In the case of the Boeing 757 test last fall, Vincent says, there was no smoke, no fire, no fear of death. There were no people over 60 years of age nor were there children. Most of the passengers were Boeing employees.

And the flight attendants knew where to expect every bottleneck because of the training of the previous three days.

"It was like training Olympic flight attendants," Vincent recalled in a recent interview.

Abilene wins OK to share Stacy water

AUSTIN — Abilene won permission from the Texas Water Commission on Wednesday to obtain a 16.5 percent share of water from the proposed Stacy Reservoir project near Ballinger.

The commission approved a joint request from two West Texas water districts authorizing an inter-basin transfer of water from the proposed lake in the Colorado River Basin to Abilene in the Brazos River Basin.

Inter-basin transfers are not allowed under state law unless those requesting a regional shift in water supplies can show the water is not needed in the originating river basin for the next half-century.

The Big Spring-based Colorado River Municipal Water District joined with the West Central Texas Municipal Water District in seeking the transfer.

West Central Texas Municipal Water District supplies water to Abilene. The Big Spring district is constructing Stacy Dam.

"The city of Abilene is going to need this water in the near future," said Frank Booth, the Colorado River Municipal Water District's attorney.

Commissioners, in approving the inter-basin transfer, noted that 97 percent of Abilene voters supported involvement in the project in a recent referendum.

"I think that lends a certain amount of credibility to the high appreciation of water in West Texas and to the shortness of such," said Commissioner Ralph Roming, a West Texan from Bovina.

The commission also approved the Colorado River Municipal Water District's method of dedicating water for Abilene. Under the plan, the Big Spring district will redesignate 15,000 acre feet of water — out of an original 25,000 acre feet — designated for industrial use to municipal use.

Fans rev up rally

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Big Spring High School students, parents and alumni turned out in force for the community pep rally Tuesday evening to cheer the Big Spring Steers on to a hoped-for victory against the Snyder Tigers Friday.

The first game of the season will begin at 8 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

The crowd, assembled in the Comanche Trail Amphitheater, roared when the football team strode by and took its place of honor in the stands. The band played the fight song, and cheerleaders urged the crowd to a greater frenzy with rhyming cheers and shouts of "Stomp the Tigers!"

The high school mascot appeared — a rather thin, brown-and-white spotted steer, authentic with horns, except that it walked on two legs instead of four. And the flag and rifle corps performed on stage.

Head football coach Quinn Eudy introduced the team members with what he jokingly called "an enormous cheat sheet" listing their names. He expressed his belief that the team would have a better season than last year, when it won only two of 10 games.

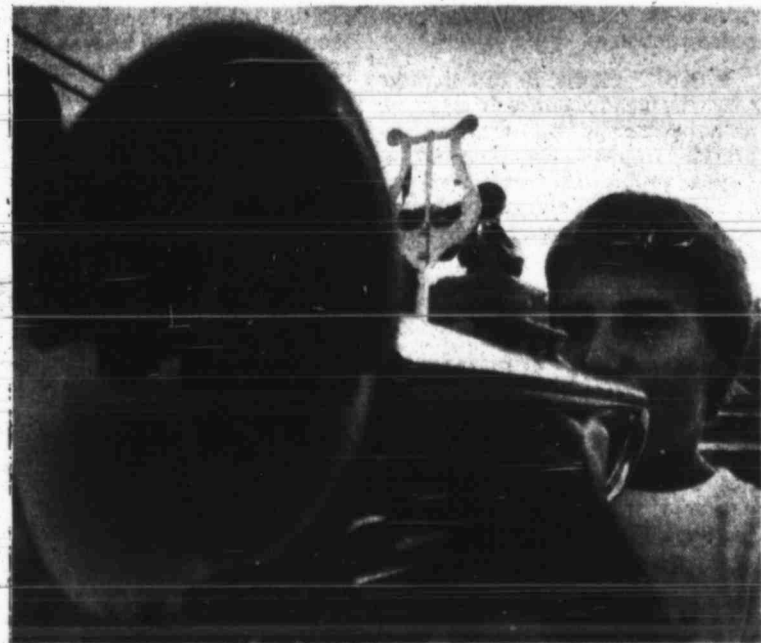

The volleyball team also was honored, but was unable to be present because it had a game.

Murray Murphy, new high school principal, said there was nothing he'd rather do than "stomp the Tigers."

"I've not seen any more interest or activity in any high school since I've been principal," he said.

Brad Garrison cheers the Steers with a "smash face" sign at the Big Spring High School community pep rally Tuesday.

Booth's house

Preservation group wants to restore assassin's house

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — A sign on the road leading to a secluded gothic revival cottage points the way to the home of Junius Brutus Booth and his son Edwin, a renowned Shakespearean actor. But tourists are usually more interested in Edwin's infamous brother.

Now a preservation group has drawn up ambitious plans to restore the 163-year-old home of presidential assassin John Wilkes Booth, although some would prefer that his name be forgotten.

The local historical society, which originally put the sign up in 1931, didn't think it proper to call attention to the man who took Abraham Lincoln's life. It wanted to focus on the theatrical achievements of the Booth family. "That's the prejudice that existed then and sometimes exists today," said David Reuwer, executive director of the non-profit Preservation Association for Tudor Hall, during a recent tour of the 8½-acre property in northeast Maryland.

Guests can sleep in John Wilkes Booth's bedroom under a bed-and-breakfast setup run by the preservation group.

Although it's 120 years after the nation's 16th president was shot to death at Ford's Theater in Washington, D.C., talk of making a museum-inn of Tudor Hall still stirs indignation among some Marylanders, Reuwer said.

When the Maryland General Assembly was asked last winter to provide $80,000 for the restoration, one lawmaker said the money would be better spent burning it down and compared the idea to building a museum for Lee Harvey Oswald, who killed John F. Kennedy.

Seeking funds elsewhere, the Howard Fox spruces up the grounds of the 163-year-old home of presidential assassin John Wilkes Booth, who shot Abraham Lincoln in April 1865 at the Ford Theatre. Fox and his wife purchased the house in 1968 and now serve as caretakers and guides.

preservation group has applied to the Maryland Historical Trust for a $161,000 restoration grant and a $100,000 low-interest loan to be used for acquisitions, Reuwer said.

"The potential is incredible and we're going to see it through," said Reuwer, a historic preservation planner for Harford County.

The Tudor Hall association hopes one day to expand to five guest rooms, fill the house with period pieces and open a small Lincoln library.

Caretakers Howard and Dorothy Fox, who bought Tudor Hall in 1968, turned it over to the preservation group last year under a contract giving them lifelong tenancy.

Mrs. Fox said she and her husband didn't know anything about its past when they first looked at the house.

"We were just looking for an old place to restore. We weren't aware of the historical significance at first," she said.

The Foxes say they enjoy playing host to Lincoln and theater buffs who wander through.

While an addition has been built to the kitchen and a modern-day swimming pool sits behind the property, most of the original home is intact, though in disrepair.

There is the original tin roof, stone springhouse and icehouse. There is the tiny upper-level balcony from which the Booths used to sharpen their oratorical skills.

Also preserved are the lead-framed diamond-shaped windows from England. Visitors are told to peer closely at one pane, to spot the scratched-in initials of a young John Wilkes.

State

By The Associated Press

Most of Texas once again had warm, dry weather this morning as the state remained under a high-pressure cell, but some moist and unstable air prompted scattered showers from Southeast Texas to the upper coast.

The strongest thunderstorm activity continued near Port Arthur, where over two inches of rain pelted the Jefferson County airport late Tuesday night, the National Weather Service said.

Elsewhere, a few decaying thunderstorms lingered across parts of West Texas from the Panhandle to eastern New Mexico, with the rest of Texas under fair to partly cloudy skies.

Warm temperatures persisted over most of the state this morning with readings in the middle 70s to lower 80s. Slightly cooler temperatures in the 60s and 70s prevailed across the High Plains and the Trans Pecos.

In the forecast for North Texas, skies should be fair to partly cloudy through tonight with overnight lows in the 70s, the weather service said.

South Texas skies should also be partly cloudy through tonight with widely scattered thunderstorms and lows in the 70s and 80s.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy through Thursday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms late this afternoon west spreading slowly east tonight and Thursday, excluding the Concho Valley. Lows tonight 60s north, mountains and far west to mid 70s south. Highs Thursday 90s except upper 80s mountains and far west and near 102 Big Bend.

Bikes popular with thieves

Police received separate reports Tuesday of three stolen bicycles, including a racing bike valued at $300.

Ruth Smith of 1515 Kentucky Way told police someone stole the chrome racing bike between Sunday morning and 7:45 a.m. Tuesday from outside 1510 Kentucky Way.

Ross Allen of 2512 Gunter told police someone stole his son's blue and silver bicycle, valued at $130, between 10 p.m. Saturday and 6 a.m. Sunday from outside their house.

Rhonda Pearson of 2602 Albrook told police someone stole a 26-inch black boys' bicycle, valued at $130, between 11 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Saturday.

Police Tuesday afternoon arrested Marciano Gracia, 25, of 1305 Kinde in the 400 block of Scurry on a warrant for assault.

Evacuation

"We feel we have complied with the FAA requirements," Boeing spokesman Jack Gamble says. "They are the certifying authority. We comply with their requirements."

The federal regulations have no prohibition as to whether employees of the manufacturer may participate, although no passenger may be rehearsed for the evacuation. The regulations require a certain percentage of elderly and children, but FAA officials said that requirement often is waived because of concerns that older people and children might be injured.

An evacuation, in fact, can be dangerous, even if there is no emergency. Ten passengers aboard an American Airlines DC-10 were hospitalized following an evacuation of 177 passengers and 13 crew members Tuesday in Abilene when a warning light erroneously indicated an engine fire.

Rep. James L. Oberstar, D-Minn., whose House investigations subcommittee oversees FAA activity, argues that changes in the FAA's handling of evacuation requirements are long overdue.

"We've got ... no uniformity, just sort of a haphazard approach to (evacuation) rule making and safety, and lives of people are at stake," Oberstar complained.

In a letter to Oberstar, FAA Administrator Donald Engen promised a "rigorous reassessment" of the evacuation regulations and the FAA's enforcement of them.

Airplane crash reported

A Big Spring man crashed a single-engine Piper Cherokee airplane near Westbrook Tuesday, according to a Department of Public Safety report, but details were extremely sketchy.

According to the report from the DPS regional office in Midland, Wayne Sample of Big Spring was the only occupant of the aircraft which was on a flight plan from McKinney to Big Spring. However, the DPS office had no other details of the crash or whether Sample was injured.

A DPS spokesman said no wreckage has been found and Sample has not been located. In fact, the spokesman said he was unsure how DPS received the report.

Sample had called in the wreck to the Big Spring Police Department from a pumping station 15 miles northeast of Big Spring in Mitchell County at about 2 a.m. Wednesday morning, according to the DPS report.

The Howard County sheriff's department received a call at 10:12 p.m. Tuesday from Major Earl Freeman of the Civil Air Patrol in McKinney, who requested that the department conduct a missing persons check for Sample. Freeman gave the sheriff's department a 1405 Princeton address in Big Spring for Sample.

The Big Spring phone book, however, does not list a Wayne Sample.

Officials did not know whether Sample was injured. Mitchell County Sheriff's Department and Texas Department of Public Safety offices reported they had no information about the crash.

Vealmoor man hospitalized with burns from truck fire

A Vealmoor man remains in the hospital today after he was burned Tuesday evening in a truck fire 2½ miles north of Big Spring on Highway 87.

Jimmy Anderson of Vealmoor remains in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital, where he is being treated for burns on his hands, face and upper torso, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The spokeswoman said she did not know what degree burns Anderson suffered, but said he "was not charred."

Anderson was burned when a 1982 Chevrolet pickup truck and a 1,000-gallon butane tank, located on opposite sides of a storage building, caught on fire, according to fire department reports.

Cause of the fire is under investigation. Damage to the truck and the tank, owned by James Massingill of Sterling City Route, is estimated at $8,000 by firemen.

Firemen were called to the scene at 6:50 p.m. to douse a pickup truck fire. After they began to fight that blaze, one of the firemen discovered that a butane tank on the other side of the storage building also was in flames, the report stated.

The firefighters got the truck fire under control and began battling the tank blaze. After dousing that fire and cooling off the tank, they then cooled down the pickup truck, the report stated.

Four Big Spring firefighters used 250 gallons to douse the blazes. The Jonesboro Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the fire.

An attic fire caused $600 damage Tuesday morning to a one-story brick-veneer house at 3125 Langley, according to fire department reports.

The house is owned by Steven Jarvis of Torrance, Calif., and occupied by Cheyenne Harrison of 705 N.W. Fifth.

According to the report, the fire was touched off by Waymon Myles of 705 N.W. Fifth, who was using gasoline and a torch to kill wasps on the roof.

When firemen arrived at the house at 11:57 a.m., they found smoke coming out of the attic.

Firemen Tuesday afternoon also extinguished a fire in a 1978 Ford F150 pickup truck at 1404 Princeton.

The truck, owned by Gilbert Martinez of Route 1, suffered an estimated $1,500 in damages. Cause of the fire is undetermined, according to the department reports.

The fire was located in the engine area and under the dash, the report stated. Firemen arrived at 2:42 p.m. and returned to the station at 2:55 p.m.

Firemen early today also cleaned up two chemical spills on Highway 350 that were accidentally dropped from a Hughes Drilling Fluid truck that was on its way to Snyder Tuesday evening.

A spokeswoman from the Snyder Police Department said a Snyder wrecking service cab was hauling the 18-wheeler. The driver notified the police department of the spills when he arrived in Snyder last night at approximately 8:40 p.m.

According to fire department reports, three bags of caustic soda fell off at Highway 350, two at the intersection of Highway 350 and FM 700 and one at the intersection of Interstate 20 and 350.

Seven firefighters were called in to clean up the spills at 12:40 a.m. They first put bicarbonate soda on the spill and then washed it down, the report stated.

Arson Investigator Burr Lea Setles said the spill posed no further hazard.

Curfews in effect

GULFPORT, Miss. — Emergency officials sought shelter for people left homeless by Hurricane Elena, and dusk-to-dawn curfews remained in effect today along the stricken Gulf Coast as lantern fuel, gasoline and ice were in demand in areas still without power.

At least 17,300 dwellings in Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Florida were damaged during the storm, according to estimates by the American Red Cross and other officials.

Mississippi Gov. Bill Allain, who declared the state's coast a disaster area Monday, is waiting to learn whether federal disaster assistance will be available to help residents rebuild their homes and businesses.

State officials agreed Tuesday to ask the 1986 legislature for as much as $12.5 million to help communities along the coast match the federal aid.

Crucial House session

WASHINGTON — Will Congress act as tough in September as it talked in July about punishing foreign countries who refuse to open their markets to U.S. trade?

The answer should be clear soon after the House convenes today, following an August in which members heard voters complain bitterly about a $150 billion annual trade deficit that is forcing factories to close in their districts.

Other issues such as the federal debt ceiling, sanctions against South Africa and farm programs also await action as the fall congressional session begins. The Senate took a longer summer vacation, and returns next Monday.

Congress adjourned August 1 with senators and representatives vowing to curb foreign imports of autos, textiles, shoes and other consumer goods if South Korea, Brazil and especially Japan didn't either lower their trade barriers to U.S. goods or reduce the volume they ship to this country.

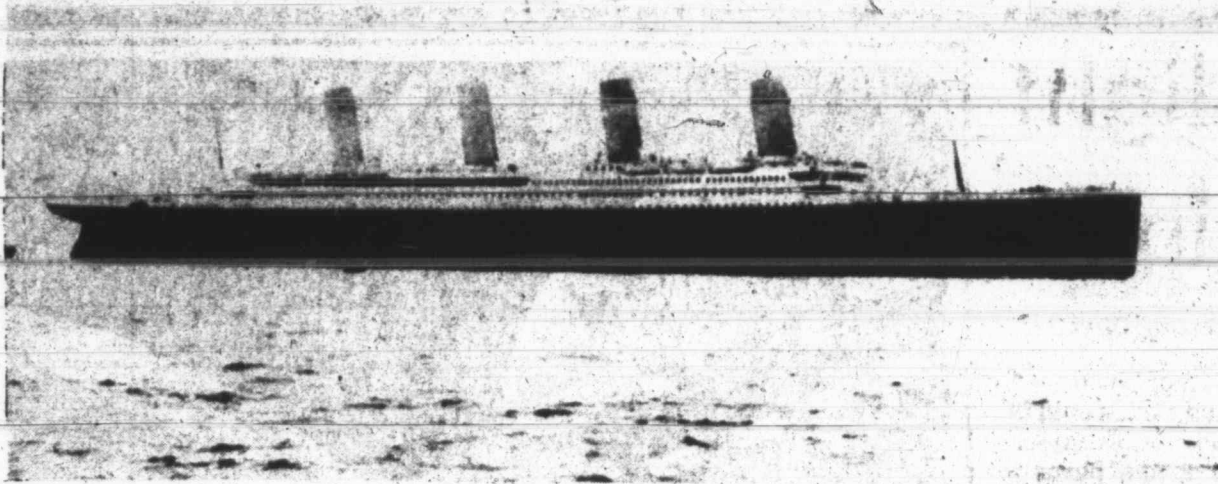

Teachers' strikes

More than 525,000 students in four states were closed out of classes today by teachers' strikes, including 430,000 in Chicago, where union leaders and officials of the nation's third-largest district continued bargaining today.

Meanwhile, teachers' strikes that loomed today in two Rhode Island districts would put more than 12,000 additional students on the streets.

Gov. James R. Thompson intervened in Chicago's negotiations Tuesday, offering what he said was "a reasonable proposal" for a two-year contract. He did not elaborate.

"We are continuing to work toward a settlement," Chicago Teachers Union spokesman Chuck Burdette said today. "The process continues, and when we're ready to make an announcement, there'll be a joint news conference."

Scientists who discovered the Titanic in its final resting place on the Atlantic bottom 560 miles from Newfoundland say talk about salvaging the liner, which is 13,120 feet down, is ridiculous.

Legendary Titanic

Salvors achieve 'mission impossible'

NEW YORK (AP) — There are richer ones, older ones and deeper ones, but of all the thousands of shipwrecks in all the earth's oceans, seas and lakes, R.M.S. Titanic was the one every treasure hunter dreamed of finding.

"Everyone's heard of the Titanic," said Dr. Harold "Doc" Edgerton, a pioneer in the use of underwater detection equipment. "They've written plays, books and songs about it."

"It's the most difficult wreck that's ever been found," Robert Marx, a leading treasure salvor, said Tuesday. "You're talking about mission impossible. Nobody has ever found anything that deep."

A French-American team of scientists claims to have found and videotaped the luxury liner, which struck an iceberg and sank on its maiden voyage 73 years ago, in 13,120 feet of water about 560 miles off Newfoundland.

"These are legitimate people. They're not wild ... treasure hunters," said Marx, who found the Spanish galleon Maravillas in 1972 in the Bahamas.

There have been decades of speculation about the ship's location and condition, and especially about the value of its contents.

"The Titanic was the biggest and most luxurious liner of its time, and its more than 1,500 victims included American financier John Jacob Astor, industrialist Benjamin Guggenheim and Isidor Straus of Macy's."

A fortune in jewels and other valuables is rumored to have gone down with them. But Clive Cussler, author of the novel "Raise the Titanic!" said he believes there is no fortune, mostly because first-class passengers had the time to collect their valuables and the lifeboats to escape.

Marx said that may miss the point. "Each tea cup is going to be worth a fortune," he said. "What he was asking, repeat sailors, who now get $1,000 for a German U-boat periscope lens, ask for a life preserver from the Titanic?"

"Whatever the market will bear," he said. "The Titanic itself will never be raised, Cussler and Marx agreed. "It's just so bloody big," Marx said. Cussler, whose fiction told of the raising of the ship, estimated the cost of actually doing it at $3 billion to $4 billion.

Marx said pieces and contents of the ship could be recovered "with robots using tools or explosives."

Scientist Robert Ballard, a member of the search team, told his office any attempt at salvage would be "ridiculous." The French-U.S. team proposed making a marine memorial site of the Titanic.

In a radio conversation with Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, where he works, Ballard said the Titanic's hull was in such good condition it appeared to be a "museum piece." He designed the remotely controlled craft that carried a TV camera to the wreck.

It is unclear who owns the Titanic. Under admiralty law, a ship's owner retains right to its wreck unless it abandons it, or unless an extraordinarily long period of time has passed since the sinking.

Normally, courts allow salvors some share of their findings — an issue which may be irrelevant if the French-U.S. team elects not to work the wreck.

Texas oil millionaire Jack Grimm, who led three expeditions in search of the Titanic, said he considered the U.S.-French find a "confirmation of our discovery. ... We have all the rights to it."

There was some question as to what he discovered. In 1981, his expedition returned with a photo of what Grimm said appeared to show a ship's propeller. Critics said it looked like a rock.

In 1983, Grimm abandoned his last attempt, saying, "The ocean was heaving, the ship was heaving and all hands were heaving ..."

But he said sonar had indicated a shape "similar to a ship's bow and sides" at the bottom of an undersea canyon.

"We gave them the benefit of all our information about where it was on the ocean," he said this week. "They have no claim to it. ... In 1981, when we found the propeller, we staked our claim to the wreck."

Kiwanis challenged

NEWARK, N.J. — A woman whose membership in a Kiwanis Club chapter prompted a lawsuit by the international organization alleging violations of its men-only policies says she just wants "to be accepted as a person."

Kiwanis International filed suit Tuesday in U.S. District Court, contending that the Ridgewood chapter violated its bylaws by inviting Julie Fletcher, 45, to become a member. The lawsuit asks a judge to bar the chapter from using the association's name and trademark.

"The male fellowship is the key to the whole thing," said David Williams, public relations manager for Kiwanis International, which has 8,200 chapters in the United States and abroad.

Indian official killed

NEW DELHI, India — Three suspected Sikh terrorists attacked a prominent City Council member from Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's governing Congress Party at his office today, killing the official and his bodyguard, police said.

Police also said seven people were wounded in the machine-gun attack on Arjun Dass, 45, a member of the Delhi Metropolitan Council.

A spokesman for the All-India Institute of Medical Sciences said Dass was pronounced dead at the hospital of multiple gunshot wounds, and that his bodyguard, Vijender Singh, also had been slain.

Currency plunges

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The South African currency made a "frightening" plunge of nearly 5 cents against the dollar in the first 20 minutes of trading today, only two days after the government ended a five-day suspension of trading.

Rioting broke out overnight around Johannesburg and Cape Town. Police said a black man was found burned to death near the Eastern Cape center of Grahamstown, and a mixed-race legislator's home was burned.

Meanwhile, a gold mine that dismissed 5,000 black miners who participated in a strike for higher wages said workers were streaming back to their jobs today after a miners' union suspended the crumbling two-day walkout.

4 die in car blast

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A car bomb exploded today in the marketplace of a Christian town in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa valley, and a Christian radio station reported at least four people killed and 40 others wounded.

A police spokesman in the town of Zahle confirmed by telephone that a car bomb had exploded this afternoon, but said he had no casualty count.

AP says adoptive parents story was wrong

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously Aug. 30 that an Illinois couple, who were Illinois' Adoptive Parents of the Year in 1982, acknowledged two of their adopted children were illegal aliens purchased through an alleged smuggling ring operating out of Tijuana, Mexico.

Betty Winks refused to say where or how she and her husband Charles had adopted their children or how many adopted children are in their custody. She also denied that any of their adopted children came from Tijuana.

The couple had turned over birth certificates of two of their adopted children to Immigration and Naturalization officials investigating the alleged ring.

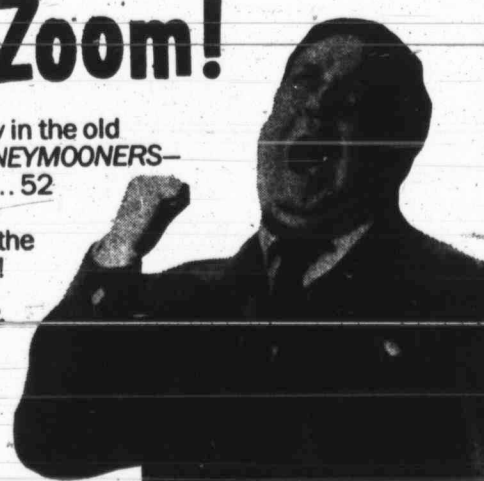

Harold Ezell, western regional commissioner of the INS, said officials believe as many as four children in the Winks' custody may have come through the ring that allegedly sold up to 200 children from a halfway house for unwed mothers in Tijuana in the last two years.

Shine more light on savings time

There's a move afoot to lengthen daylight-saving time from six months to seven.

Instead of its current course — from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October — daylight-saving time would be from the first Sunday in April to the first Sunday in November.

Who is in favor of it? Nearly everybody, except perhaps farmers. Outdoor workers are for it. Shoppers are for it, as well as merchants, and sports enthusiasts who can get in their tennis, jogging and other activities after they get home from the job.

Daylight-saving extension will come up for vote when the House of Representatives returns to work. It is expected to gain quick passage.

Senate approval is more difficult. A number of farm-state Republican senators face re-election next year.

We live in the land of sunshine. Why not make the most of it?

A real-life fall guy

When it seems as though true adventures, like real heroes, have fallen victim to these demystifying modern times, consider a man riding a pickle barrel over Niagara Falls.

Fulfilling a lifelong dream, Steven Trotter floated to the crest of this natural wonder of the world and plunged 176 feet into the maw of a maelstrom. His barrel was a rather crude-looking contraption, a wad of innertubes and canvas across which was stretched a message to Johnny Carson and a large "Support Reagan" sign.

Mr. Trotter survived with only a cut on his arm. "I think they're getting more technical about making barrels and so forth," said an official at a hospital where the fall guy was examined.

Give Mr. Trotter a boatload of credit. He's an inspiration, solid though drenched proof that even if the earth is mapped and space commercialized, there are always new frontiers to conquer — and go over.

Fruits of free trade far exceed its cost

Protectionism is on the march in Washington. The Reagan administration faces pressure to reduce imports of shoes. Limits on foreign textiles are being pondered. Congressional Democrats are pushing for a 25 percent "surcharge" on imports. Free trade's future looks dim indeed.

All the more reason to keep in mind its benefits, which far exceed the transient costs. Trade is a way to allow different nations to exploit different advantages, and a way for all to maximize their material prosperity. The postwar regime of lowering barriers to international commerce has helped to produce the greatest economic advances in history. Reversing it would slow, if not halt, that progress.

But the appeal of protectionism persists. One reason is jingoism. Americans don't like other countries outdoing us at anything. Japan draws special fury because it indulges some protectionism of its own. But Americans are better off with access to Japan's goods even if the Japanese consumers are deprived of ours. The Japanese don't enrich themselves with trade barriers; just the opposite.

Another reason is that trade often means instability. Open markets mean that a job that looks secure today may be gone tomorrow. Voters confronted with the demise of factories often want to revive them, or at least to prevent any others from dying.

The urge is well-intentioned but economically destructive. The only way to guarantee the survival of particular jobs is to halt change, which means outlawing progress. Had stagecoach makers gotten government protection, Henry Ford wouldn't have been able to revolutionize transportation.

The appeal of protectionism lies in its hidden and seemingly trivial costs. Who can get outraged at paying a few dollars more for a pair of shoes if it means the guy next door won't lose his job?

But taking a few dollars each from millions of people adds up to a huge sum of money. Cutting imports of footwear by as little as 18 percent, for instance, would cost consumers $2.3 billion a year in higher prices. That's $68,000 per job saved.

Or consider sugar, which sells for 4 cents a pound on the world market but just under 21 cents in the protected U.S. market. An extra 17 cents for a bag of sugar doesn't sound like a big deal, but it costs the economy $3 billion a year.

Letting in imports avoids these costs, enabling Americans to enjoy a higher living standard. But free trade has a crucial handicap in public debate: Though its broad benefits are certain, its specific impact is not. We can predict that, barring limits on apparel imports, this textile worker will probably lose his job. We can't know what job will replace it.

But jobs do arise to replace those lost to foreign competition. Despite the huge trade deficits stacked up in the last three years, the U.S. economy has added 7.8 million new jobs, and the unemployment rate has fallen dramatically. The 1981-82 recession, incidentally, produced a trade surplus.

That doesn't stop the protection-minded from blaming the trade gap for joblessness. In fact, it is precisely the economy's success in job creation that let go the trade deficit, as Americans enjoying new prosperity have bought more and more goods, many of them from abroad.

The strength of the dollar against other currencies also has contributed to the deficit, by making exports more expensive and imports cheaper. But protectionist measures actually would strengthen it further by reducing the supply of dollars in the world market. Foreigners who want dollars to invest in the U.S. would have to bid the price higher still. Net result: both exports and imports would be more expensive.

Congress and the administration should resist the impulse to punish other countries for their talent in supplying our needs.

Anti-apartheid groups accuse 'death squads'

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — As the death toll in South Africa mounts, disturbing charges have been made by anti-apartheid groups: They claim that many of the killings were not random acts of violence, but the work of "death squads" sanctioned by the white-minority government.

The South African government, through its embassy in Washington, has objected "sternly" to the allegations. "All cases of unnatural death in South Africa are investigated with every resource," the embassy stated.

Here is what our associate Vicki Warren has learned, nevertheless, about the alleged death-squad activities:

• The assassination of Victoria Mxenge, defense lawyer for 16 black activists on trial for treason in Pietermaritzburg, stirred reports of government-encouraged death squads. Ms. Mxenge was gunned down outside her home by four hooded blacks believed to be policemen. The Lawyers Committee on Civil Rights Under Law has written to Secretary of State George Shultz and to Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar, R-Ind., asking for an investigation into Ms. Mxenge's murder.

In addition, Amnesty International has called on the South African government to conduct an independent inquiry into attacks on black opposition leaders.

• The Detainees' Parents Support Committee, originally formed in 1981 to help the families of jailed dissidents, has now begun to keep track of the number of individuals who are rounded up by the police, and the number of those found dead and believed to have been assassinated. One young leader of the Congress of South African Students, Eddie Maluleke, was taken off the train by police on his way home to the black township of Soweto on May 10. He hasn't been seen since.

• The unexplained deaths of Matthew Goniwe and three other members of a black activist group called the United Democratic Front led to demands for an investigation of their killings.

• In neighboring Namibia, occupied by South African troops, the Bar Council of South West Africa two years ago asked for the appointment of a judicial commission "to consider the problem of security legislation and practices; the abuse of power; deaths in detention and other irregularities and malpractices relating to detention without trial; ways and means of protecting citizens against abuse."

This lawyers' group also disclosed the existence of a death squad called Koevoet, which is Afrikaans for "crowbar." According to judicial proceedings and news reports, Koevoet gunmen tortured and killed presumed opponents and buried the victims in unmarked graves. A leader of the detainees' support group said there is a suspicion that Koevoet was disbanded but that some of its hired guns are now operating in South Africa.

• Acting on reports that victims of official violence were being buried in a cemetery in Zwidde Township, members of the United Democratic Front uncovered a mass grave containing the remains of three adults and 47 children. Authorities said the bodies were those of paupers.

• Members of the black opposition group claim to have obtained a death list drawn up by the South African government. According to a source in the detainees' support group, the list includes Nobel Peace Prize winner Bishop Desmond Tutu, as well as United Democratic Front official Terror Lekoga, now being tried for high treason.

Amnesty International has written: "Events have occurred in the context of many allegations that other recent attacks on known opponents of apartheid have been carried out by, or with the knowledge of, the police, and of reports suggesting the existence of death lists."

WATCH ON WASTE: Using federal subsidies, a group called Deaf Independent Residences is paying top dollar and then some for homes in Wicomico County on Maryland's rural Eastern Shore. The homes will be specifically fitted for deaf occupants. The group contracted to buy a four-bedroom home for $89,900, even though the advertised asking price was $87,500. It also has its eye on two other homes priced at $72,000 each. The average price of a home in the county last year was $47,900. The Housing and Urban Development Department is looking into the situation.

CLEANUP CAMPAIGN: Pinup girls have come a long way, baby, since their World War II heyday. Now they're likely to go over the line from titillation to outright pornography. One defense contractor, Avco Aerostructures, has responded to pinups in the work place by banning their display. "Our employees should not be subject to open viewing of lewd, indecent, obscene or disgusting materials of any type," explained the company bulletin. "It is company policy to provide a work place ... and environment free of pornography materials."

MINI-EDITORIAL: It's two years since the Soviets shot down Korean Air Lines flight 007, killing all 269 persons aboard. The Reagan administration has stoutly maintained that the plane was simply off course, not up to any espionage activity. But two researchers bankrolled by the Fund for Constitutional Government have uncovered disturbing evidence suggesting that the U.S. government has not told everything it knows about the tragedy. We don't know what happened to Flight 007; but we have our suspicions. Isn't it time the whole truth came out? Congress should conduct a full-scale investigation.

Around The Rim

Highlights of the '80s

By KEELY COGHLAN
Nostalgia. Every generation has it.

Every decade has its time, whether for being spoofed or fondly recalled. Right now, the current vogue is oscillating between reliving the 1950s, the 1960s and, for the somewhat younger generation, the 1970s.

In a few years, we'll all be fondly remembering the mid '80s as the time of our lives, and we'll be desperately seeking ideas for those retrospective costume parties.

Now, while you're in the thick of current events soon to be history, is the time to jot down future costume ideas.

• The Yuppie look. Guaranteed to be imitated by at least half the guests at any party, like hippies in another decade. Costume incomplete without a three-piece suit, preppy leisure wear, Rolex watch and chauffeured BMW.

• Almost as popular, the Nicaraguan contra look, uniform complete with U.S. camouflage and weapons. A little different from the pro-U.S. Latin-American dictator look of a few years past — the uniforms no longer have as much braid — but the same faces. An updated student revolutionary look.

• The staggering deficit. More fun than a Laffer curve, this costume entitles you to stagger around the party, with or without lampshade, pockets turned out while crying, "I need more money. I never have enough money."

• David Stockman. Chase the staggering deficit, claim it's the politicians' fault, and spill your guts to Atlantic magazine once every four months.

• The American Express Platinum Card. For Yuppies for whom excess is never too much.

• The AIDS virus. You imagine this one.

• Steven Spielberg, the modern-day Midas. Every movie he's associated with turns to gold.

• E.T., a goopy looking alien that inspired an entire Ma Bell campaign, and Gremlins, which look like evil ETs. Both products of Spielberg (did he have a contract with Mattel?).

• On the rock-and-roll front, there's a grab bag: Bruce Springsteen, the Boss; Prince; Madonna; Cyndi Lauper; and others from Band Aid, Live Aid, etc. Just die your hair and look weird, unless you're going as Springsteen.

• Rambo. The one-man nuclear tank, the modern-day Superman. Only for those who don't mind plasti-firm chests of muscle, or work out 25-hours a day pumping iron.

• Ronald Reagan's hair. 'Nuff said.

• Geraldine Ferraro. Wear a veep ticket and a Pepsi Generation name tag.

• XTC, the now-illegal substance popular in Austin. It's a designer drug, so wear designer clothes.

• Go as David Letterman. Be the last to leave and break a lot of windows when your jokes are off a little.

• If all else fails, go as yourself. In the '80s, that was rare enough.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Plan an easy fiesta for Mexican Independence Day

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Mexican Independence Day, Sept. 16, provides an opportunity for hosting a party with south-of-the-border flair. A national holiday in Mexico, tradition calls for fun and feasting.

Because the holiday falls on a Monday this year, fast-to-fix fiestas will be the order of the day for busy north-of-the border party hosts.

Tex-Mex Toastada Soup boasts serape-bright colors and the temperature, texture and color contrasts that make soup a year-round menu staple in Mexico.

Prepared with ground meat, pinto beans, tomatoes and picante sauce in the cook's choice of mild, medium or hot, the soup is served with an assortment of toppings.

For casual fiesta fun, ladle the soup into bowls at the table and let everyone help themselves to additions of tortilla chips, cheese, shredded lettuce, sour cream and additional picante sauce.

If enchiladas are familiar favorites, go adventurous and serve guests Picadillo Enchiladas. Picadillo (pee-kah-DEE-yo) means "minced meat" or "meat and vegetable hash" in Spanish.

Although popular in Mexico as a filling for tortillas and a topping for rice, picadillo is largely unknown to Mexican food fans north of the Rio Grande.

The spicy ground meat and vegetable mixture is flavored with the sweet, mellow additions of raisins, nuts and a hint of cinnamon, with picante sauce providing the authentic Mexican flavor.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: In my job, I write many letters to people whose gender is unknown. In these cases, the proper form of address always presents a problem. Understandably, "Gentleman" or "Dear Sirs" is an affront to women in positions of authority, yet alternatives seem inadequate. "Ladies and Gentlemen" assumes the presence of both sexes, which very often is not the case. "Greetings" sounds like a summons from the government. "Sirs and/or Madams" has almost a bawdy ring.

Abby, we need a new word. May I suggest "Missirs"? It covers all the bases: Miss, Mrs., Mister and Sirs. Only you, Dear Abby, could introduce such a word to the world and put it into international usage virtually overnight. Secretaries all over the world would thank you. Please get this started in time for Christmas cards.

GAYLE IN SNOHOMISH, WASH.
DEAR GAYLE: Although "Missirs" would indeed cover all the bases, I doubt if it would catch

'Missirs' misses the mark as salutation on. In the first place, it looks like a typo, as though the writer started to write Miss, then changed it to Sirs. Also, "Mis-anything" suggests a mistake, a misunderstanding, a misfired missile, or a miss that's as good as a mile. In any case, nice try, Gayle, but "Missirs" just misses.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "V.H., Santa Fe, N.M.," asking if he should forward the information he had about the German soldier killed in World War II, so his family would know the circumstances of his death, prompts my first letter to you.

You hit the nail on the head when you said, "Their families never forget, and would be grateful for any information."

WAYNE E. SHAFER, SHEPHERDSVILLE, KY. 40165

DEAR WAYNE: If there are any survivors of your brother's ship, I hope they write to me: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Surgery may help pain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm writing you about a thing called "tiddickeroo." Maybe the spelling isn't just right, but it causes a great pain in the jawbone and forehead. I have a friend who suffers so when that pain hits he holds his head and moans. Then it lets up. He's had this for 15 years. He goes and has it numbed, which lasts until cold weather sets it off, or even eating. We would like to get more information. — Mrs. C.F.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you discuss the surgery that I understand is now available to help those who suffer from trigeminal neuralgia? — Mrs. R.P.E.

Mrs. C.F. is close. The illness is tic douloureux (literally painful tic), and it's the very same as Mrs. E's trigeminal neuralgia.

In this ailment there is a disturbance in facial nerves, where even a gentle breeze caressing the cheek may set off a proxym of excruciating pain. It is brief, thank goodness, but there may be multiple recurrences in a short time. Almost as bad as the pain itself is the constant anxiety of not knowing when or where one will experience an attack.

When drugs, like carbamazepine and phenytoin, fail to control the pain, other avenues are explored: One is to numb the nerves by injecting them with drugs. That apparently is what Mrs. F.'s friend is having done. Some doctors use a tiny electrode inserted into the nerve for the same result. It kills the offending nerve fibers.

Mrs. E. asks about surgery. Yes, in recent years a procedure has been developed to try to control tic douloureux. Sometimes the problem stems from an artery encircling the nerve and pressing against it. The surgeon can protect the nerve by placing a tiny sponge between it and the artery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Could you please tell me if there is any treatment for stress erythrocytosis? — L.K.S.

Erythrocytosis is an abnormally high number of red cells (erythrocytes) in the blood. The prefix "stress" means that a known condition or situation is causing it. An example would be the low oxygen content of air at high altitudes. The body makes extra red cells in order to capture as many oxygen molecules as possible. Lung disease and smoking are other stress factors causing an increase in the red cells.

Treatment for stress erythrocytosis is to eliminate the cause — get to a lower altitude, treat the lung disease or quit smoking.

Erythrocytosis with no such known stress cause is polycythemia rubra vera. In that, the red cells just begin multiplying. Treatment for this includes phlebotomy — the periodic removal of blood or drugs if needed.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Why do women have special cravings at certain times of the month? I find that I have a mysterious desire for hard candy. Has anyone figured it out? — L.V.

You can almost pick and choose your own individual theory about this one. One I've heard involves low blood sugar. Some women may have a touch of this in the early part of their menstrual cycle. During that period, the theory goes, certain blood cells are extra active in the absorbing insulin. That in turn causes a greater burning of blood sugar, leading to the hypoglycemia and the subsequent craving. I don't know whether to believe this or not.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How long does it take gallstone-dissolving medicine to work, to dissolve the stones? — J.A.

The drug (chenodiol) takes from six months to two years to work. But not all stones can be dissolved, only relatively small ones make up of cholesterol crystals.

Intelligent life on other planets? 47 percent say yes

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — About half of Americans believe the search for intelligent life on other planets is worth the money, and why not? About half believe such life exists, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

Forty-seven percent of the 1,517 respondents in the nationwide telephone poll said they believed in what has long been the staple of science fiction writers — intelligent aliens from distant worlds. Only 36 percent did not believe intelligent life existed elsewhere.

Forty-nine percent of the respondents also said the search for life on other planets, such as the work done with radio telescopes, was a good use of research money. Forty-five percent did not think the money was well spent.

While half the respondents believed in intelligent life and supported research to find it, most weren't eager to send someone to another world. Asked if landing an astronaut on another planet should be a high priority or a low priority of the space program, only 36 percent said it should be a low priority, and 10 percent weren't sure.

Riding on the space shuttle was also a desire of about half the respondents in the Media General-AP poll. Space travel for anyone but scientists or military officers has also been the domain of science fiction writers, until U.S. Sen. Jake Garn of Utah took his flight and New Hampshire school teacher Christa McAuliffe began preparing for hers.

Forty-eight percent of the respondents said they would like to ride in the space shuttle, while 50 teacher in space, women were much less likely than men to want to ride in the shuttle. Two-thirds of the men and one-third of the woman would like a space ride.

Three in 10 Americans said they thought the United States spent too much money on its space program, while about two in 10 believed more money should be spent. Four in 10 said the United States spent the right amount on its space program, and the rest were unsure.

Nearly 60 percent of the black respondents said too much was spent on the space program, compared with only 27 percent of the whites.

Men were more likely than women to support the space program: 37 percent of women said too much was spent, compared with 21 percent of the men.

Fifty-one percent said the space program has directly benefited their daily lives. Half of them said the space program produced technological progress, 15 percent cited biomedical advancements and 14 percent cited improved communications.

On the question of life on other planets, younger and more educated people were more likely to believe in intelligent alien life than older and less educated people. About half of the 18- to 54-year-olds thought intelligent life existed on other planets, compared with 43 percent of the 55- to 64-year-olds and one-quarter of the 65 and older group.

Fifty-two percent of college graduates believed in life on other planets, compared with only 27 percent of the high school dropouts. Forty-five percent of high school graduates said they believed life existed on other planets.

On the question about riding in the shuttle, younger people were more likely to want a ride than older people. Two-thirds of the 18- to 34-year-olds said they wanted to ride in the space shuttle; compared with nearly half the 35- to 54-year-olds, one-third of 55- to 64-year-olds and only 19 percent of those 65 and older.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,517 adults across the country July 5-13. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

Don't bet against the Cowboys

Now is the time for all the fun to begin in the National Football League. The preseason has come to an end and all teams have trimmed their rosters down to 45, awaiting the 1985 season's official start.

But the question on my mind and probably the rest of you die-hards West Texas fans is; how will the Dallas Cowboys do this season?

I'm excited and I'll be the first to tell you that that Coach Tom Landry's Cowboys will have a successful season and reach the playoffs, like they almost always do.

A lot of people probably can't see my reasoning behind this. Predicting that a team with a 9-7 record in '84, and that kept 9 rookies for this year's roster, to make the playoffs. I probably wouldn't have any problems getting bets against my prediction.

Yes, I know there are still traces of the quarterback controversy in the air and I know the Cowboys are in the NFL's toughest division. But Danny White and Gary Hogeboom, as well as their teammates, have put all their problems aside. The Pokes' preseason play proved they are ready for the tough NFC East.

How tough is the NFC East? Well it's so tough that all five teams in the division had winning preseason records. In fact, only three teams in the entire NFL went through the exhibition season undefeated; they all came from the NFC East. The Giants and Redskins joined the Pokes in the undefeated ranks.

Eastern opponents built up a sparkling 18-3 slate. I think it deserves to be called the toughest division in pro football.

As for the Cowboys, the defense looks ready to go with the offense coming around.

The Dallas "D" started off where it left off last season, playing with high intensity. It yielded 50 points in four games, best in the league with the exception of the Los Angeles Rams, who gave up 37 points.

The Dallas defense will be better because their line and linebacker positions are stronger. My hero, Randy White, is still crushing opponents with regularity. The Cowboys are planning to move him around on defense which will wreak havoc on opponent's blocking schemes. Everyone knows it takes two men to handle the "Manster."

Other reliables Ed Jones, John Dutton, Don Smerek and Jim Jeffcoat are consistent performers. First-round draft choice Kevin Brooks is proving that he's a player. I only wish that the Cowboys could have kept rookie free agent Dave Ponder. Size may have been one of the main reasons the 6-2, 248-pounder from Florida State was cut. He impressed me with his aggressive performances in the last two games.

With bright, young players like Jeff Rohrer, Steve DeOssie, Eugene Lockhart and Jesse Penn; the Cowboys linebacker corps will be dynamic.

With the retirement of Bob Breuning and the cut of Anthony Dickerson, the Pokes have one of their youngest linebacking crews ever. Besides 10-year veteran Mike Hegman, the average age of the linebackers is 24 years old.

The Dallas secondary will be one of the best in the league. All except one (Carl Howard) is back from last season. This tells you how strongly Cowboys secondary coach Gene Stallings feels about his boys.

Michael Downs, Everson Walls, Ron Fellows and Dexter Clinkscale all have All-Pro potential. All four starters are under 29-years old.

Offensively the Pokes had a up-and-down preseason. There were times when they moved with ease and times they faltered miserably. That's understandable when the coaches are trying to give everyone a look.

The main concern is keeping the offensive line healthy. Last season was a rough one. At one time, four of the five interior spots were played by guards. It's hard when you've got four 250-pounders going against four 280-pounders and three 240-pound linebackers.

This season the line will be big and young. Center Tom Rafferty and tackle Jim Cooper are the only vets with over six years experience.

Last season the receiving corps were a question mark. This season things look better with the acquisition of rookies Leon "Speedy" Gonzales, a real deep threat; and Karl Powe. They will be good backups for Tony Hill and Mike Renfro.

Personally, I would have kept Duriel Harris instead of Renfro. They are both experienced veterans, but Harris has more speed. But one had to go in the new 45-man cut, so bye-bye Duriel.

I was also disappointed that the Pokes let fullback Ron Spring go. He has performed consistently seven years for them at both tailback and fullback and has been their best receiver out of the backfield. To choose untested USFL refugees Todd Fowler and John Williams over him, just doesn't seem right.

Somehow I think the Cowboys getting rid of him had more to do with personality conflicts than ability.

Tony Dorsett and Timmy Newsome are excellent starters but I'm going to miss number 20 catching that swing pass out of the backfield.

So my overall summary is that Dallas will make the playoffs and have success when they reach them. No I'm not off my rocker and letting my personal feelings get in the way.

This stat is for all you omen seekers out there, the only two times Dallas went through the preseason undefeated, it went the full nine yards. In 1966 they were defeated 34-27 by the Packers in the NFL Championship game. In 1971 they defeated Miami 24-3 in Super Bowl VI.

So the moral of the story is — If you believe in omens, don't bet against the Dallas Cowboys reaching the playoffs this season.

Pecos wallops Lady Steers

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Lady Steers volleyball loss to the Pecos Lady Eagles last night at Steer Gym could mainly be summed up in two words — Anna Ozuna.

No the 5-8 senior Pecos spiker didn't single-handedly win the 15-11, 9-15, 15-6 match on her own. She had plenty of help from her teammates. But she put on a show that had everyone singing her praises, including Lady Steers coach Susan Sharp.

"Anna Ozuna had a great game tonight," echoed Sharp, after the Lady Eagles had given Big Spring its fifth loss in 14 games. "Her coach (Nora Geron) said she was their floor leader and that's just what she is. She's got a lot of ability plus she has insight on the game."

Ozuna was nothing less-than-spectacular, time after time, rallying her teammates, thwarting Big Spring comebacks. Whether spiking, blocking, or digging balls off the floor, Ozuna was there doing her job.

Mainly it was her net play that spelled doom for the Lady Steers. Time and again she burned the defense with her cross-court smashes. She ended the game with 18 kills in 29 attempts, to go along with three blocks.

She and her teammates kept the Lady Steers on the defensive most of the contest. Pecos got 30 more spike attempts than the home team. The Lady Eagles downed 39 of 83 attempts while Big Spring nailed 18 of 53 attempts.

"We experimented with our lineup some tonight. We had our regular setter (Lisa Hale), playing a new position," said Sharp. "We did have some problems passing the ball. When you don't have good passes, you don't have good hits."

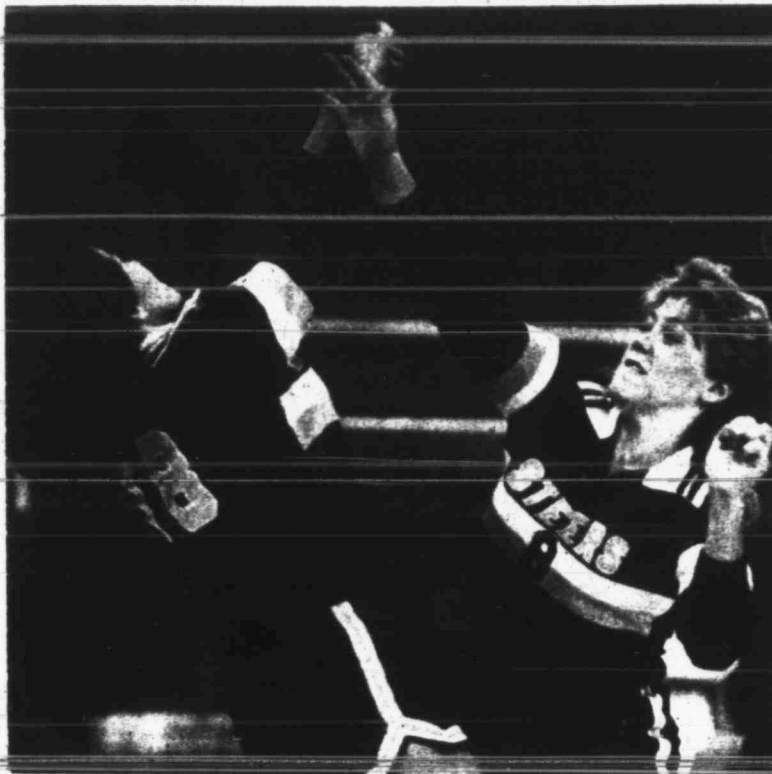

Pecos simply blew past the Lady Steers in the first match, overcoming a 5-2 deficit and turning it into a 8-5 advantage. From then on there was no looking back.

Ozuna, who was expected to enroll at Big Spring this year but moved back to Pecos a short while ago, got hot early. She converted 7 of 8 spike attempts in the win. Senior Monique Jones mustered the only firepower Big Spring had in the first game, converting 3 of 7 kill attempts.

In the second match, the Lady Eagles jumped out to a quick 6-3 lead. Service points by Hale and Sheri Myrick helped lead the Lady Steers to an 10-8 advantage. Pecos would score only one more point after that.

Pecos was red-hot in the "rubber match". They forced five consecutive Big Spring side outs while staking a 5-0 lead. Ozuna, Kim Calhoun and Bliss Standberry stalked the net and the Pecos lead soon grew to 11-2.

But Big Spring gamely fought back behind the backing of a vocal crowd. The Lady Steers cut the lead to 12-6 before Pecos finally put them away. It only seem fitting that Ozuna scored the last point for

Big Spring Lady Steers junior varsity volleyballers SHELIA CUNNINGHAM (8) and KIM PHIPPS (18) give each other a high-five in last night's action versus Pecos.

Pecos. Coach Sharp said her troops were down but not out. "We'll have time to recuperate before we play this weekend. The kids have nothing to be ashamed of. They got down but they didn't quit, which has happened in the past. In fact, this was one of our better games tonight."

PECOS MAKES IT A SWEEP
The Lady Eagles won the freshman contest over the Lady Steers 15-13, 15-0. The Lady Steers JV's saw their record fall to 8-3 for the season.

Untested Sooners remain No. 1

By The Associated Press
Brigham Young is on the move again in the Associated Press college football poll.

The Cougars, who climbed from nowhere to win the national championship with a 13-0 record last year, were ranked No. 10 in the 1985 preseason poll. After a 28-14 thumping of Boston College in the Kickoff Classic, the Cougars moved into eighth this week, vaulting past Ohio State and Nebraska, both idle.

BYU's jump accounted for the only significant change in the Top Ten. The nation's top seven teams, none of which has opened its season, remained unchanged. In the Second Ten, Florida State moved from 19th to 17th after a 38-12 lashing of Tulane. South Carolina, a 56-17 winner over The Citadel, dropped a spot to 18th.

Top-ranked Oklahoma, which doesn't open its season until a Sept. 28 trip to Minnesota, received 27 of 60 first-place votes and 1,049 of a possible 1,100 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Auburn remained second after receiving 10 first-place votes and 948 points, followed by Southern Methodist with two firsts and 834 points.

On Saturday, Auburn hosts Southwestern Louisiana and SMU is at home against Texas-El Paso.

Iowa, idle until a Sept. 14 game against invading Drake, was fourth with five first-place ballots and 810 points while Florida, which visits Miami, Fla., Saturday night, received two firsts and 735 points for fifth.

One first-place vote went to sixth-place Southern California, which received 715 points. The Trojans open at Illinois on Saturday.

Seventh-place Maryland, at home to No. 19 Penn State this weekend, received three first-place ballots and 701 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were BYU, which received three first-place votes and 691 points; Ohio State, with 645 points; and Nebraska, with 640.

BYU entertains No. 20 UCLA and Nebraska entertains Florida State on Saturday in a national television (ABC-TV) game. Ohio State opens at home Sept. 14 against Pittsburgh.

The Second Ten consists of Illinois, Washington, LSU, Notre Dame, Arkansas, Oklahoma State, Florida State, South Carolina, Penn State and UCLA.

Last week, it was Illinois, Washington, LSU, Notre Dame, Arkansas, Oklahoma State, South Carolina, Penn State, Florida State and UCLA.

Jimmy, Chrissy advance in Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd has rarely lost to Hana Mandlikova. Jimmy Connors has never lost to Heinz Gunthardt.

But winning doesn't make it any easier — even in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, where winning may not be everything but it's almost the only thing they've ever done.

"I've played Hana so many times and I respect her. She's beaten me this year. She's got a lot of weapons that can hurt me — if she's on," Lloyd, the No. 1 women's seed, said Tuesday after moving into a semifinal showdown with Mandlikova, the No. 3 seed from Czechoslovakia. Lloyd did it by beating No. 5 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany 6-3, 6-3.

Connors, although he has lost only one set in five matches with Gunthardt, likewise said he wasn't taking the unseeded Swiss lightly. "Obviously, he's playing good tennis to get here. He's beaten some pretty good players," said Connors, the No. 4 men's seed, after beating No. 11 Stefan Edberg of Sweden 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 to advance to the men's quarterfinals.

Today, Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 seed and two-time defending women's singles champion, played No. 6 Zina Garrison, and No. 4 Pam Shriver faced No. 11 Steffi Graf of West Germany in the two remaining women's quarterfinals. In an all-Swedish men's quarter, No. 3 Mats Wilander played No. 6 Anders Jarryd. Tonight, defending men's champion and No. 1 seed John McEnroe faces another Swede, No. 10 Joakim Nystrom.

Also on Tuesday, Yannick Noah, the No. 7 men's seed, defeated amateur Jay Berger 6-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1; Mandlikova swept No. 7 women's seed Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 7-5; and, at night, Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl, the No. 2 seed, defeated 17-year-old Peruvian Jaime Yzaga, the junior champion in the French Open, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Lloyd has beaten Mandlikova in 18 of 21 meetings, and her only loss to the Czech in the past 14 matches was indoors in Oakland, Calif. "I have two days off and I have to play some doubles matches. I won't start thinking about it for a while," Lloyd said.

Yzaga, who was a qualifier and ranked 256th in the world, was seeded No. 1 in the junior boys but was defaulted out of his Tuesday morning match against Arnaud Volkov of the Soviet Union when he failed to appear within the 15-minute limit.

HANA MANDLIKOVA ...Lloyd's next victim?

Soviet breaks world high jump mark

KOBE, Japan (AP) — Long-legged Igor Paklin of the Soviet Union capped the World University Games competition Wednesday by shattering the world record in the men's high jump with a leap of 7 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

In winning his second title at the Games, Paklin surpassed the world mark of 7-11 1/2 set by countryman Rudolf Povrnitsyn at Moscow Aug. 11.

After Paklin cleared the record height on his third attempt, the bar was raised to 7-11 1/2, but he missed three attempts at that height.

The high jump was the final event in the 11-day, 120-event competition. Following Paklin's valiant efforts at 7-11 1/2, the closing ceremonies were held.

Paklin's brilliant performance was one of three victories by the powerful Soviet team Wednesday, and gave the Soviets 14 gold medals in the total of 42 track and field events.

The other Soviet winners were Margarita Valyukevich in the women's long jump at 23 feet, 1 1/4 inches, and the women's 1,600-meter relay team in 3:25.96.

Cuba also won three golds Wednesday, including both men's relays.

The Cubans' 400-meter relay, with 100-meter champion Leandro Penalver running a strong second leg, won in 38.76 seconds.

The Cubans' 400-meter relay team, with Penalver again running the second leg, won in 3:02.20. Luis Delis produced Cuba's other victory, repeating as men's discus champion with a toss of 219 feet, 3 inches.

In Wednesday's other finals, the United States team of Kathrine Wallace, Michele Finn, Brenda Cliette and Gwen Torrence won the women's 400-meter relay in 43.28; Poland's Ryszard Ostrowski repeated as men's 800-meter champion in 1:44.38; and Stefano Mei of Italy took the men's 5,000 meters in 13:56.48.

Cuba's three golds placed the Cubans second in track and field gold medals with eight, two ahead of the third-place Americans.

The tremendous high jump by Paklin easily bettered the Games' record of 7-7 that he set in winning at Edmonton, Alberta, two years ago.

Juan Centelles of Cuba finished second at 7-7, and 1979 champion Gerd Nagel of West Germany was third at 7-5.

In the women's long jump, Valyukevich nearly broke the Games' record, missing by only three-quarters of an inch.

The Soviet women's team of Margarita Novitskaya, Nadezhda Zvyagintseva, Elena Korban and Tatiana Alekseeva made a shambles of the 1,600-meter relay, winning by more than three seconds over runner-up Canada.

The Canadians also finished second in the men's 400-meter relay, behind the Cubans, with the U.S. team of Lee McNeill, Thomas Jefferson, Keith Talley and Michael Morris third in 39.15.

In the men's 1,600-meter relay, the Soviets followed the Cubans in 3:02.66, and the American quartet of Clarence Daniel, Leroy Dixon, Dale Laverty and Cedric Vaughans was third in 3:02.68.

Tigers pound Angels, 14-8

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Tigers got their bats going and bombed Angels rookie Kirk McCaskill as the Tigers drummed California 14-8.

Kirk Gibson hit two homers and two doubles in four at-bats and drove in five runs, and Chet Lemon added a three-run homer during a 13-hit attack. Reggie Jackson homered twice for the Angels.

The loss tripped California's lead in the American League West to 1 1/2 games over Kansas City, which beat Chicago 3-2.

In other AL games, New York downed Seattle 6-3, Oakland nipped Baltimore 3-2, Boston bopped Texas 6-4, and Minnesota beat Milwaukee 4-3. Toronto, which leads the AL East, and Cleveland were idle.

AL Roundup

Royals 3, White Sox 2

In a matchup of the young and old, 21-year-old Bret Saberhagen outdueled 40-year-old Tom Seaver to give Kansas City its victory over visiting Chicago.

Saberhagen, 17-5, tied New York's Ron Guidry for the league lead in victories. The right-hander gave up seven hits, including a solo home run by Harold Baines in the ninth inning.

Seaver, 12-10, gave up six hits, including a two-run homer in the first inning to Hal McRae. Seaver has not won since capturing his 300th victory on Aug. 4.

Yankees 6, Mariners 3
Phil Niekro won his 296th career game and helped New York pull within 3 1/2 games of AL East-leading Toronto.

Niekro, 14-9, pitched seven shutout innings and ran his scoreless-inning streak to 17 before issuing bases-loaded walks to Dave Henderson and Danny Tartabull with two outs in the eighth.

Mike Pagliarulo singled home two runs in the first inning and added an RBI double in the sixth.

Red Sox 6, Rangers 4
Jim Rice led off the second inning with his 24th home run, delivered an RBI single in the third and had another run-scoring single in the fifth. In all, Rice went 4-for-5 as Boston defeated host Texas.

Bruce Hurst, 10-10, pitched 7 1-3 innings for the victory. Bruce Kison got the final two outs for his first save. Charlie Hough, 14-13, took the loss.

Oddibe McDowell, Texas' fine rookie, hit his 16th home run.

Twins 4, Brewers 3
Steve Howe held Milwaukee to one hit over the final 3 2-3 innings, while Kirby Puckett hit a sacrifice fly and pinch-hitter Dave Engle had an RBI single as Minnesota rallied for two runs in the seventh inning.

The Twins' pinned the loss on Danny Darwin, 7-16, who has dropped 11 of his last 12 decisions.

Howe, 2-3, the fourth Minnesota pitcher, got the victory.

Earnest Riles and Cecil Cooper connected for consecutive home runs in the Brewers' third. Roy Smalley homered for the host Twins.

A's 3, Orioles 2
Pinch-hitter Steve Henderson's run-scoring single broke an eighth-inning tie that lifted Oakland over Baltimore.

The A's got their go-ahead run when Dave Kingman walked, pinch-runner Rob Piccolo stole second, took third on a groundout and scored on Henderson's single.

Jose Rijo, 3-1, held the Orioles hitless for five innings. John Shelby broke the string by leading off the sixth with a home run.

Rijo gave up three hits in seven innings; Steve Ontiveros pitched a hitless eighth and Jay Howell worked a hitless ninth for his 24th save.

Mike Boddicker, 12-14, took the loss. He ran his scoreless-inning streak to 19 before visiting Oakland scored twice in the fifth.

Carter hammers Padres

By The Associated Press
As far as personal accomplishments are concerned, Gary Carter was more intent on helping Rick Aguilera than Gary Carter.

Carter clubbed three home runs — for the second time in his career — and drove in six runs, but his primary concern Tuesday night was helping Aguilera earn an 8-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The victory kept the Mets within one game of the St. Louis Cardinals in the hot National League East title chase. The Cards beat Cincinnati 6-4.

"I was trying to concentrate on getting Aggie through the game," Carter said of the young Met right-hander, who was touched for two San Diego homers. "It was a big win for him and we really need him in the stretch run."

In other NL action, West Division leader Los Angeles shut out Montreal 4-0, Houston edged Chicago 8-7, Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 4-3 in 13 innings, and Atlanta blanked Pittsburgh 2-0.

Carter hit homers in his first three times at bat — two against starter Dave Dravecky, 11-9, the other off reliever Luis DeLeon — then missed a chance to become only the 11th player in major-league history to hit four in one game when he grounded into a double play in the seventh inning.

NL Roundup

Cardinals 6, Reds 4

Pinch-hitter Brian Harper slapped a two-run, two-out double off Cincinnati relief ace John Franco to snap a seventh-inning tie and lead St. Louis past the Reds.

Dave Parker drove in three of the Reds' runs to take over the league lead with 93 RBIs. Andy Van Slyke had three hits, including his 12th homer, and two RBIs for St. Louis.

Dodgers 4, Expos 0
Orel Hershiser tossed a three-hitter for his fifth shutout of the season and Pedro Guerrero had three hits, including his 32nd homer, as Los Angeles defeated Montreal.

By beating the Expos for the second night in a row, the Dodgers moved 7 1/2 games ahead of second-place Cincinnati in the NL West.

In games at Dodger Stadium this season, the 26-year old Hershiser, 14-3, has yielded just 12 earned runs in 107 1-3 innings for an earned-run average of 1.01. It was the Dodgers' 20th shutout of the season, tops in the NL.

Astros 8, Cubs 7
Pinch-batter Bill Doran's suicide-squeeze bunt in the 10th inning scored Denny Walling from third base to propel Houston over Chicago.

Mark Bailey opened the 10th with a single off George Frazier, 7-6, but was forced at second by Walling. Burt Pena singled to left to send Walling to third. Reliever Dave Smith, 8-5, was the winner.

Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who had four hits, had tied the game 7-7 when he led off the ninth with his 21st home run of the season.

Kevin Bass also rapped four hits and Phil Garner hit two triples and drove in three runs for Houston. Gary Matthews also homered for the Cubs.

Phillies 4, Giants 3
Ozzie Virgil opened the 13th inning with his 18th home run of the season to lift surging Philadelphia to its sixth straight victory.

Virgil's game-winning blast, on a 2-1 pitch from Greg Minton, 3-4, bounced high off the foul screen in left.

Rookie Dave Shipanoff, 1-0, posted his first major-league victory by pitching one inning and Fred Toliver worked the 13th for his first save.

Garry Maddox and Mike Schmidt slugged first-inning homers off San Francisco starter Atlee Hammaker. Maddox hit the first pitch for his third homer of the year and Schmidt added an opposite-field shot to right, his 24th.

Ron Roenicke drove in two of the Giants' runs with a single in the eighth.

Braves 2, Pirates 0
Rookie Joe Johnson combined with relievers Zane Smith and Bruce Sutter on a five-hitter for Atlanta as Pittsburgh was shut out for the 18th time this season.

"This is quite unbelievable," Johnson said. "I spent three years in Double A ball and now I've been able to come to the big leagues and pitch like this. My game is coming together."

Atlanta scratched out two runs in the seventh against Jose DeLeon, 2-16, on a passed ball and Rafael Ramirez's sacrifice fly.

DeLeon pitched a complete game, allowing six hits and striking out 10. The game drew 3,019 fans, the smallest crowd at Three Rivers Stadium this season.
