Mattox upholds

cameras are not covered by the Texas Open Meetings Act and can be tossed out of public meetings, according to Attorney General Jim

In a legal opinion made public Tuesday, Mattox upheld the right of Titus County commissioners to bar TV cameras from their meetings. The 1973 Open Meetings Act covers "sonic" recordings, but does not guarantee video cameras access to public meetings, the attorney general said.

The law says: "All or any part of the proceedings in any public meeting of any governmental body may be recorded by any person in attendance by means of a tape recorder or any other means of sonic reproduction." Mattox said this provision of the law does not give members of the public a right to videotape

'In the absence of a specific provision permitting a member of the public to record its meetings by videotape, the commissioners court may prevent the videotaping of its meetings held pursuant to the Open Meetings Act," he said.

The Texas Association of Broadcasters said the Mattox ruling could affect television coverage of public meetings throughout the state. The TAB and the Society of Professional Journalists said the ruling highlights the need for the 1987 Legislature to revise the Open Rumbaugh, 28, had twice tried to rob the executioner of his duties, attempting to take his own life while being held in the Potter County Jail, by cutting his wrist in May 1975 and by taking a drug overdose a month later. Admitting his guilt, Rumbaugh had said he was ready to die. He ordered his attorneys to stop any attempts to block his execution. On two previous occasions, July 23, 1982, and May 2, 1983, Rumbaugh's date with the executioner was

Rumbaugh was sentenced to die by lethal injection for the slaying of Michael Fiorillo, 58, during an April 1975 Amarillo jewelry store robbery. Rumbaugh demanded money, a struggle followed and the jeweler was fatally shot.

"I can still hear him lying there and saying, 'Help me, please help me,' Rumbaugh told The Associated Press during an interview. "I remember saying something like, 'You should have thought of that before you reached for the gun," he said.

At age 6, Rumbaugh and his brother skipped school and broke into a building in San Angelo. When he was 12, he used a tire tool to rob a gas station, and fled the scene on a stolen bicycle.

In 1976, Rumbaugh, taken to the Potter County Jail for formal sentencing in the slaying, threatened to kill the judge, the district attorney, the bailiff and his attorney. Rumbaugh was critically wounded in February 1983 after he lunged at a deputy U.S. marshal with a makeshift weapon and shouted, 'Shoot me.'

Rumbaugh's last day began at 3:20 a.m. Tuesday, when he awoke at the Ellis Unit in northeast Walker County. At 3:21, he ate a breakfast of five pieces of bacon, 14 ounces of cereal, two eggs, three pieces of toast and three ounces of

He awoke again at 7 a.m., packed his belongings and left the Ellis Unit at 8:37 a.m., headed for the Huntsville "Walls" Unit where the death chamber is housed.

County gets moisture

Howard County ground got a refreshing, though small, drink of water Tuesday night. Some areas measured up to .25 of an inch of rain by Wednesday morning

The U.S.-Big Spring Experiment Station, in the northern part of town, reported .01 of an inch. The southeastern areas got heavier rainfall, a spokesman at the station said.

Tuesday's rain puts the area at 13:66 inches for the year, 2.1 inches ahead of the normal rainfall to date. The rainfall also was the highest recorded since July when the field office recorded 3.01 inches. Last month, the field office recorded only .07 of an inch.

Tommy Hart of 1750 Purdue said he measured .28 inch of rainfall.

It wasn't enough to help the crops, Hart said, but area lawns and watering bills will benefit.

Larry Shaw, two miles north of West Knott, said he got only a sprinkle of rain, but West Knott measured .2 of an inch rainfall,

Super' officer arrested

FORT WORTH (AP) - Police say a decorated veteran officer charged with stealing painkillers from a drug store is a suspect in at least 20 other pharmacy burglaries.

Patrol Sgt. Robert L. Daniels, who was twice nominated for officer of the year and who had been dubbed "Super Trooper" by colleagues for his hard work, was placed on unpaid leave following his arrest Tuesday. Daniels, 33, was freed on $12,000 bond after being charged with burglary and drug possesion, authorities said. He is a suspect in burglaries, they said.

He was arrested at 2:30 a.m. as he allegedly walked out of a pharmacy with a bottle containing 500 painkillers stuffed into his shirt, police said.

"Police are human," said Capt. B.L. Dumas. "None of us in today's society are immune to this to this kind of problem or addiction."

Daniels is a 1973 honors graduate police said: of the police academy who has received 22 commendations for his police work in 11 years, said police spokesman Doug Clarke. Police said Daniels, a bespec-

at least 20 other pharmacy tacled father of three with a receding hairline, told them he had been addicted to painkillers for several years. They said his family is making arrangements for him to enter a drug treatment program.

Daniels became the target of a top-priority police investigation after he aroused the suspicion of other officers by turning up frequently at pharmacy burglaries,

The two-month investigation involved as many as two dozen officers at its peak, they said. Undercover officers staked a number of pharmacies.

Home school

Dad says he prefers teaching kids at home

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) -Most parents who teach their children at home do so out of religious conviction or dissatisfaction with public schools. For the children of Larry Walker of Pen-sacola, home schooling was a life-and-death necessity.

His 8-year-old twins have an immunological deficiency that prevents them from going to public schools. They are unable to fight off diseases like the common cold or influenza.

Walker and his wife, Gail, both of whom hold doctoral degrees, started their home school because they were forced to, but Walker said he wouldn't have it any other

"If John's and Will's medical problems cleared up right now we would continue to home school," said Walker, who teaches at the University of West Florida.

A newly enacted state law will make life easier for Walker and the estimated 1,300 other home schoolers in Florida. Before the law passed, about a dozen Florida parents were being prosecuted for refusing to obey the state's compulsory attendance law.

Under the law, parents don't have to be certified educators to teach their children at home. They are required to notify local school superintendents of their intentions and keep a portfolio of each child's work. Superintendents can inspect 15 days written notice.

But Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington is unhappy because, he said, "In effect, it makes the compulsory attendance law unenforceable."

The law will expire in two years unless legislators decide to extend

Walker, chairman of the Florida Parent Educators Association, said home school programs seemed to be gaining more acceptance, and not just for religious reasons.

He related the story of a 7-year-old who started second grade last

When the boy's parents asked what he'd learned the first day in public school, he said he colored a picture of an apple and studied the

That same day, Walker said his twins were led through their required four hours of instruction in six subjects, including reading, mathematics, science, spelling, history, religious studies and a half hour of aerobic exercise.

"So much of time in school is taken up with crowd control that home school programs can get through the activities much faster," he said.

The twins do homework while their mother is busy elsewhere and take standard skills tests used by Iowa schools.

'There are some home schoolers . who don't have a religious bone in their bodies," said Walker. "They the materials after giving parents just think home schooling is better

Larry Walker, a teacher at the University of West Florida, gives his twin eight-year-old sons, Will and John, a math lesson in the schoolroom at their Pensacola, Fla. home. The council also approved a 15

Videotape

County Judge Bill Harper, in an effort to give constituents a look at their commissioners in action, had invited the small television station to record the meetings.

"I thought they were doing a service for the community," Harper said Tuesday. "We meet at a time of day when a lot of people cannot be in the courtroom. This was an opportunity to see how the commission functions. I can't see anything wrong with that."

But the commissioners did, and they approved the rule that barred cameras as of April 8.

Commissioner Loyd Clark, who pushed for the ban, did not answer calls to either his office or home Tuesday. Asked about Mattox's opinion, Clark told told the Mt. Pleasant Daily Tribune, "It says the same thing that it said before.'

The commissioners court proceedings were broadcast in their entirety after the local news on the local station.

"When things got sticky or issues got hot it was videotaped. Things were being shown that the commissioners didn't like," said Gale Johnson, FVP's office manager.

The videotaping was done with a single camera, mounted on a tripod near a wall. It was not interfering with the proceedings, she said.
"With video, what you see is what you're doing. We didn't change anything. They got tired of it. They didn't want to be TV stars," she said of the commissioners.

FVP plans to challenge the camera ban in court, she said. "We're very small, but we've got ights," Johnson said.

Texas Association of Broadcasters lawyers have reviewed the law and see no way Mattox's opinion can be challenged, said Bonner McLane, TAB executive vice president.

"He has precedent on his side, unfortunately. Our attorneys said, 'Don't bother,' "McLane said. Under the "sonic reproduction" law, "You can carry a microphone in but you can't carry a camera in," McLane added. "This (controversy) was just a localized situation. How far it will get carried I don't know. If someone else gets mad at the local TV station, they could do the same thing." The Titus County commissioners believed the cameras turned their meetings into a forum for people to complain on the air, according to McLane. The Society of Professional Journalists several times has pushed for revisions in the Open Meetings "This is just another indication that the Open Meetings Act in Texas is full of loopholes," said

John C. Henry of Austin, a society deputy director for freedom of information. "It's a shame this law doesn't reflect the technology and public nformation demand of the 1980s,"

Opponent defeated

DETROIT - Mayor Coleman A. Young, seeking an unprecedented fourth term, crushed his nearest opponent by more than a 2-1 margin Tuesday in Detroit's non-partisan primary election.

"The only issue is, 'How have I performed as mayor for 12 years?' because I intend to campaign on the same type of programs the next four (years)," Young said.

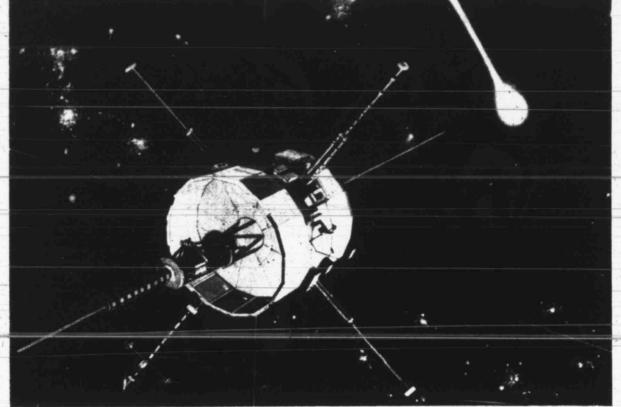

Young, 67, will face his nearest challenger, Thomas Barrow, a 36-year-old accountant, in the Nov. 5 general election.

Satellite pierces comet, sends new data

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) - An American satellite, sending a constant stream of valuable data, sliced through the tail of a comet today, the first encounter of a man-made object with the most mysterious body in the solar system. The satellite emerged intact.

"We have successfully gone through the tail of a comet for the first time in history," said Jim Elliott of the Goddard Space Flight Center in this Washington suburb.

"Everything is looking good," he said of the encounter 44 million miles from Earth.

Scientists were surprised at indications that the satellite spent about 15 minutes crossing the tail of the comet Giacobini-Zinner. The trip was expected to take only about 5 minutes. Indications from the satellite were that the tail was 9,000 or 10,000 miles wide, instead of the 3,000 scientists had calculated 'The plasma tail may be five to six times larger than expected," said Mal Niedner, a comet scientist. Plasma is composed of electrically charged particles of gas forming one of two tails that trail the coment's head when it is near the sun

The other tail is composed of dust. Scientists had worried that the satellite's solar power cells might become clouded, reducing the electrical output needed to send data back to earth.

But James Begg, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said after the encounter that the "the spacecraft appears to be just as healthy as when it went into the tail," a development he called "a bit of a surprise." "I think I overestimated the hazard a little bit," said flight director Robert Farquhar. "We haven't seen any dust at all.

I'm very surprised."

The scientific return of data from the satellite still awaited analysis but the early reports were that much new information was gained about magnetic fields around the comet that were said to be "clearly much smaller than the magnetic field of the earth.

"We are getting signficiant scientific data that has never been found before," Elliott said.

The satellite had traveled seven years and more than a billion miles toward its encounter. It crossed the comet's tail an estimated 4,900 miles behind it's icy Nearly 12 hours before the encounter, beginning about 9:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday, scientists believed they saw indications from the spacecraft that it was noticing the comet's presence. At 4:31 a.m. EDT, instruments showed that the spacecraft had encountered the comet's bow shock, with ICE still 117,000 miles from the comet and closing in fast. Bow shock was described by scientists as being much like the waves made by a boat plunging through water.

"The recipe for a comet has been known for over 30 years," said John C. Brandt, chief of the astronomy and solar physics laboratory at Goddard. "It is to get some water, snows and ices and to roll them up into a ball that is a mile or so across, add some dust, a few rocks, pack it lightly, and you have yourself a comet."

The comet, named Giacobini-Zinner after two scientists who spotted it 13 years apart, is a precursor to the more famous Halley's, which is due to make its oncein-76-years appearance next March. Giacobini-Zinner orbits the sun every 6.5 years.

Daughter kidnapped

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - President Jose Napoleon Duarte's eldest daughter was kidnapped Tuesday by gunmen who killed one of her bodyguards and wounded another in a shootout, the presidential palace announced.

It said Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, was seized during the gunfight by "a heavily armed group" of a half dozen men as she arrived for afternoon classes at the New San Salvador University.

A palace statement said President Duarte, who has been ill and was working at home, was "very shaken but very firm" and was refusing to speculate on any negotiations that might take place.

Arson continues

BIRMINGHAM, England - Sporadic looting and arson were reported early today in a riot-torn immigrant district of Birmingham, and police in London and Liverpool reported scattered violence.

Police flooded into the streets of Birmingham's Handsworth district, where two people were killed in rioting Monday night, and had arrested 92 people by dawn today for burglary, theft, carrying offensive weapons and stealing vehicles. A total of 128 people have been arrested so far.

The rioting began Monday night when hundreds of youths attacked fire fighters attempting to put out a blaze at an abandoned building in largely black and Asian neighborhood, police said.

Clean water goal has had success

Despite the bad news about chemical spills, acid rain, dirty air and noise and vision pollution, there is at least one major area in which the nation's environment has improved.

Much of America's water is cleaner than it was 20 years ago. Rivers, lakes, bays and harbors, once used as waste dumps, have been cleaned up and are supporting aquatic life and sports activities.

According to the federal Environmental Protection Agency report, there has been significant improvement in water quality as a result of programs instituted 13 years ago under the Clean Water Act. Now only 6 percent of the nation's rivers, 5 percent of its lakes (excluding the Great Lakes) and 4 percent of its coastal and estuarine waters do not support fishing, swimming and other sports.

The EPA now is moving ahead to a new generation of water pollution problems — chiefly the protection of ground water, the reduction of toxic substances found in fish and the reduction of pesticide runoff from agriculture areas.

Ground-water pollution will require increasing diligence. The government reports there are 10 million underground tanks used to store fuel and hazardous chemicals, and leakage is a potential danger. EPA has established a new office to cope with underground storage tanks.

The cleanup job is never over. It will require even greater effort. The easier problems are solved first, and what remains is pollution that becomes more and more difficult to eradicate.

Slow demise of a grand old game

Whilst Art Buchwald is on vacation, we reprint some columns from the past.)

Because of high taxation and the struggle to keep up some of the larger estates, the grand old sport of bat hunting in England is slowly dying out. There was a time when the lords and ladies of the great manors did nothing but hunt forbats. But now the trend is toward gassing them or using poison. You have to go pretty far to find people who still enjoy killing bats by hand.

It was my good fortune to meet in Sussex one of the great bat hunters of all time. His name is Lieutenant Colonel Ian Anderson, formerly a battalion commander of the Home Guard, and a retired stockbroker, who lives in a magnificent home Coutside of East Grinsted called Old Surrey Hall. Old Surrey Hall was built in 1430, has a ceiling 40 feet high and is considered one of the Great Halls of England. Because of its age and its height, Old Surrey Hall also has a great number of bats, which hang from the ceiling during the daytime and fly through the rooms at night. Mr. Anderson is cup every night bat hunting from -midnight until three in the morning, and in less than a year he has killed six bats, two in the last week Calone.

Since I expressed an interest in bat hunting, Mr. Anderson and his wife invited me to attend a bat hunt one evening at Old Surrey Hall.

I was at a loss as to what to wear for a bat hunt, but didn't want to show my ignorance by asking, so I showed up in a checkered peak cap, a raincoat and rubber boots. I couldn't have been more wrong.

The only correct outfit to wear for bat hunting is a hair net, a bathrobe and sneakers. When I arrived a few minutes before midnight it was raining and thundering outside and the wind was whistling around the building. Mr. Anderson told me it was Sperfect bat-hunting weather. He handed me a tennis racquet, which had been warped in more or less of a curve.

"This is your bat," he said. "You can put on this hair net and bathrobe and these sneakers in the other room."

several other people in the drawing room, including Sir Robert Haddow, the former British Consul General in Los Angeles and San Francisco; Dr. Robin Beare, a great plastic surgeon; and Felix Kelly, an English artist. The Andersons poured out whiskey for everybody, which is the traditional drink before going into a great hall to swing at bats. (Or, for that matter, anything.) Each person had his own warped tennis racquet.

Once inside the great hall Mr. Anderson gave out positions. I was assigned the left wing of the balcony overlooking the great hall. Mrs. Anderson was in the center, and Dr. Beare was right wing. Down below Sir Robert was standing on the couch and Mr. Kelly was hiding under a curtain. Mr. Anderson was by the open door which led into the corridor

When everyone was in position Mr. Anderson turned on the light over his wife's grandfather's portrait. It was the only light allowed on in the room.

Suddenly the bats started flying out of the ceiling. They whooshed down into the great hall at tremendous speed. At the same time we all started swinging. The object, of course, was to put a spin on the bat (that's why the racquet has to be warped).

Mrs, Anderson, who was after one particular bat (unlike the rest us, who swung at anything), almost batted me on the head. "Watch it, Mona," her husband cautioned. "You're putting too much speed on your back-spin service.

Dr. Beare, who is a stag-beetle champion in Sussex, was using an unorthodox chop drive which the other people admired but couldn't

Sir Robert had a forehand defense swing, and Mr. Kelly was a counter-hitter. During the first chukker we noticed Mr. Anderson wasn't swinging at all. That confused us. In about 20 minutes the bats became fatigued and retired to the

We all went back into the library for the second traditional drink of whiskey.

The second and third chukkers went the same as the first, with no one making a kill. But on the fourth chukker I understood why Mr. Anderson played by the open door. Mrs. Anderson almost hit a bat which, in its effort to escape, flew out of the door of the great hall into

News team in Nicaragua has Washington worried

Mike Wallace and George Crile, the stars of the William Westmoreland libel suit, are together again. And just the thought of what CBS's dynamic duo may be up to has reduced certain people in the State Department to nail-biting.

Wallace and Crile are preparing a "60 Minutes" segment on the Sandinista government of Nicaragua, which the Reagan administration has been battling with words and weapons for four years.

The st time Wallace and Crile did a piece on American foreign policy, it was "The Uncounted Enemy," an hour-long CBS report that accused Gen. William Westmoreland, among others, of lying about the strength of communist forces in Vietnam. The general, egged on by conservative ideologues, sued CBS, Wallace and Crile, then dropped the case after damaging court testimony supported the CBS program's charges

State Department officials began fretting as soon as they heard that Wallace, Crile and a camera crew had flown to sunny Managua. On Aug. 6, a cable signed by Secretary of State George Shultz was sent to Ambassador Harry Bergold in Managua.

"Department understands a CBS Sixty Minutes team led by Mike Wallace is currently in Nicaragua filming a segment on some aspect of the Sandinista military, and that they have received generous logistical support from GON (government of Nicaragua)," the cable began.

The department was "most concerned about both subject matter and potential slant of 'Sixty Minutes' the cable, seen Lucette Lagnado. The people in Washington were keen to know about "support provided by the Sandinistas and the Nicaraguan government generally," as well as by the U.S. Embassy.

The cable wanted the ambassador to worm out of the CBS team "any particular thesis producer (Crile) might have." And it ended with a request for the embassy's views "on the type of segment to be Bergold, a career diplomat, evidently didn't respond fast enough. So a State Department official from Washington attended an embassy staff meeting, and learned that the ambassador had met twice with Wallace.

The visiting official was also treated to the sight of a Nicaraguan military helicopter circling the embassy - with what turned out to be a CBS camera sticking out, filming away.

On Aug. 16, the ambassador cabled the results of his investigation to Washington. The CBS team, he said, was there to "film a 17-23 minute piece for the beginning of the ... season," adding: "Theme of the piece will be 'Sandinista defense capabilities' both in terms of the (regular army) and the militia on the one hand and the mass organizations on the other."

Bergold doubtless added fuel to the fires by continuing: "The (army) has been very cooperative with the 'Sixty Minutes' group, transporting it to various military sites (with) army Chief of Staff Cuadra acting as escort much of the time. The group filmed many Sandinista weapons systems, including coverage from a MI-25 helicopter."

While State Department officials are sweating anxiously, Wallace is taking the furor calmly. When told about the department's fears and complaints, the veteran newsman said, "I'm hearing this for the

He was especially puzzled by officials' complaints that he had bypassed the Managua embassy, pointing out that he had met with the ambassador for "a couple of hours," and Crile had met with Bergold too. Wallace brushed off officials' suspicions about Crile, calling him "a first-class reporter."

EXECUTIVE MEMO: For Immigration and Naturalization Service agents, trying to stop the mustoppable flow of illegal aliens across our borders must be a frustrating experience. And INS brass are going to do something about it. They've initiated a study intended to find ways to "eliminate or lessen the degree or nature of stress affecting law enforcement executives and managers assigned to various field offices." So the poor agents patrolling the border will now at least have the comfort of knowing that Washington is concerned about their deskbound

UNDER THE DOME: To brighten the dull days of August, a congressional staffer concocted a satirical memo listing purported job openings for Democrats on Capitol Hill: "Asterisk (next to job opening) indicates opening for which you have next to no chance of receiving a phone call, interview or written response. All other openings will be filled by family members or acquaintances of citizens providing substantial campaign contributions." One job that supposedly was available was as staff assistant to a New Jersey Democrat to handle toxic materials. It required "ability to operate fork-lift (and) carry 55-gallon drums up the Rayburn Building staircase.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Congress is considering laws that would at least show the "revolving door" between Pentagon employees and cushy jobs with defense contractors, and we're all for it. But while they're at it, why not extend the coverage to retirees from the State Department and other agencies? Several former diplomats have joined Kissinger Associates to offer their expertise to the international business community. Fair enough. But it seems obvious that a potential conflict of interest could beset a diplomat passing judgment on a foreign company he may consider hitting up for a mistake of going to bed with a man on our first date. We dated for a year and a half, but he never really respected me because I was so "easy" (his words). The fact that I had a master's degree, was attractive and made good money made no difference whatsoever - he treated me like trash.

Fortunately, he wasn't the kind of person I would have wanted a permanent relationship with anyway, so I wrote it off as a good learning experience.

Bacteria the culprit in urinary infections

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My subject is urinary infections. How serious are they? Is urinary tract infection more common in females than in males? If there is a blockage in the urinary tract is surgery the only answer? - A.R.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Urinary tract infections aren't new to me. I have had several over the years. I am a 47-year-old woman. My doctor has never expressed great concern, but just treated them as they came along. My recent infection, however, seemed different. He said he was concerned that it might be in the upper tract. Can you commeat? - Mrs. J.V.

Bacteria are the usual cause of urinary tract infection (UTI) and the infections are separated into those of the upper (kidney involvement) and lower tracts (bladder involvement). Upper-tract infections are more serious because they may alter the kidney's vital bloodcleansing function, which can lead to all sorts of new problems.

Urinary tract infections are more common in females because their bladder outlets are much shorter than in men. Bacteria have an easier route of access to vital structures.

If urinary tract blockage results from some correctible structural kink, then surgery is the answer. If the blockage is temporary, as from infection, then non-surgical tment suffices.

EAR DR. DONOHUE: Recenthad an executive medical prodone at a local center. The docsaid everything was normal exfor an elevated phosphorous el. He suggested a repeat test alcium and phosphorous to see ey are really high. Everything else, from what I could tell, was e; It was noted, though, that the resence of the high phosphorous me at a "risk" for having a leart attack. I am 62, weigh 130 and am 5 feet, 3 inches. Would you please comment? — Mrs. L.H. A slightly high phosphorous level alone usually is not a cause of conpern. But a recheck would be worriewed in conjunction with most of bone. When one is out of line, the other usually is, too. Phosphorous is high during deney disease and when uncorathyroid glands are not workwell. Parathyroids regulate phosphorous. A slightly high phosphorous level is not something to lose sleep over.

There are other signs of kidney and parathyroid gland dysfunction. I am at a loss to explain the reference to your being at risk of heart attack because of the phosphorous reading. Are you sure the doctor wasn't speaking of other test, like the one for cholesterol levels?

Hit were me, I would get a copy of all the results and take them to my own doctor and let him examate them in light of what he knows of my health.

Supermarkets join American Heart's Food Festival

By KIM KIRKHAM Lifestyle Writer

Several local grocery stores will join with more than 6,000 supermarkets throughout the United States in celebration of the American Heart Association's first annual national community nutrition event — American Heart's Food Festival.

The festival began Sunday and will continue until Saturday. It is designed to bring to the attention of the American public an awareness of the AHA's lifesaving messages about nutrition and health.

"The grocery store is an excellent place for us to reach people, since it's obviously a primary place where the public makes decisions on food selection," said Shirleen Brown, spokesperson for the local AHA.

The following recipes were selected from the Revised 4th Edition of the American Heart Association Cookbook. They were chosen for their nutritional value, ease of preparation, availablity and cost of ingredients.

Fad diets give nutrition a bad name

AUSTIN — Millions of people across the country are looking for a fast and easy way to lose excess weight. And many will turn to the latest fad diet for help.

The American Heart Association urges dieters to adopt healthful eating habits on a permanent basis, instead of impatiently pursuing crash diets in hopes of shedding unwanted pounds in a few days.

Fad diets usually overemphasize one particular food or type of food, according to Williams L. Winters Jr., M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

"Fad diets violate the first principle of good nutrition, which is to eat a balanced diet that includes a variety of foods," Winters said. "Those who are able to stick with a fad diet for more than a few weeks may develop nutritional deficiencies, because no one type of food contains all the nutrients needed

After a day or two of eating only whatever the particular fad diet prescribes, most dieters feel sorry for themselves and begin to cheat, returning to their old eating pattern, said Winters.

the emphasis should be on eating moderate amounts from all five food groups, not on consuming large amounts of a few special foods, he said.

The food groups that should be included daily are: vegetables and fruits; bread and cereals; skimmed milk dairy products; lean meat, poultry, fish, dried beans and peas, nuts and eggs (no more than two egg yolks per week); and minimal amounts of fats and oils.

Fad diets also violate a second important principle of good nutrition — eating should be enjoyable.

and boring that it's almost impossible to stay on them for long periods," Winters said. "That's why they are fads. But as soon as an old fad diet becomes unpopular, a new one takes its place.

Unlike a fad diet, a good diet can be eaten for years and helps to maintain desirable body weight as well as good health. Fad diets fail to provide ways to keep excess weight off, said Winters.

"Because fad diets/ require drastic changes in eating patterns, dieters cannot stay on them for long," he said. "Fad dieters are not learning anything about permanently changing their eating patterns. Of course, many dieters do not really want to make longterm changes, so it's not always the diet that fails — often it is the

Lady Steers believe

No matter what the sport, before any team can be successful it has to believe in itself. As is the case with the Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team.

This is my second year covering coach Susan Sharp's spikers and I can see the difference in the team's morale. Last season the Lady Steers had a good team and they knew it, but they didn't have the self-confidence to go ahead and grab the brass ring. That prize being a trip to the state playoffs. So they were good but not good enough, they finish ed third in the district race.

This season there's a new aura about the Lady Steers. No longer do they have self-doubts about that brass ring. They intend on grabbing that ring and making the 5A playoffs. No

The reason is simple; they believe in themselves. And this past weekend at the Seminole Tournament, they just might have put it all together.

Their second place finish was the highest finish Big Spring has had in the last four years. Though they faltered in the finals against Lamesa, they played their best overall tourney of the year, according to coach Sharp.

Included was a convincing 15-6, 15-7 match win over a strong Lubbock Coronado team, a team that sports a 9-2

With District 4-5A competition starting September 17, the Lady Steers confident style of play early on spells bad news for the rest of the district, including San Angelo Central. And the Lady Steers are rolling.

Watching Big Spring play, one gets the feeling that the team is a time bomb ready to explode. They have the potential to be dominating because of players like spiker Monique Jones, who can put fear into the defense's heart with her booming spikes, or blocker Sheri Myrick who can throw the opposition's defense off by roaming the net, blocking shot after shot.

Then there are versatile performers like Tab Green and Tammi Green who can spike, set or play backrow. Coach Sharp can feel confident with these two in the lineup no matter where they line up in any situation.

There's also fiery, youthful competitors like Lisa Hale and Katrina Thompson, who are making the most of their first year playing varsity ball.

But coach Sharp won't let her squad rest easy for too long. "It's too easy to get caught up in thinking about reaching the playoffs, you have to work on getting there," she said. In fact, Sharp is easily the team's toughest critic. "Yes we are making progress, but I really thought we would be better by

"But maybe that's good because we don't want to peak too early, especially before we get into district play," she said of her team that sports a 11-6 record. "It's nice to win tournaments and non-district games, but we know district is the only thing that counts."

Confidence just cozes out of the team members when talk turns to the playoffs. "We expect to be the top team in district," said Jones. "This year we have more ability, confidence and are more consistent than in years past.

"We can be first if we want it, " said Tammi Green. 'Everyone feels this way. We are closer as a team this season and everyone has a better attitude. We want district

Sharp summed it all up by adding, "You'll find teams all over that talk about getting into the playoffs. But a lot of it is just talk and they don't really believe they can do it. These kids (Lady Steers) say they are going to make it and they have the attitudes to prove they mean what they say.'

"That's the difference from this year and last year. There were self-doubts last year. This year the Lady Steers really believe they can do it. When the second week in November rolls around, this team expects to be in the playoffs.

CINCINNATI (AP) - Just because he's got 4,191 hits under his belt doesn't mean Pete Rose can produce one at will.

Not even an uproarious, confettiflinging, flashbulb-popping crowd of 51.045 at Riverfront Stadium could spur the Cincinnati Reds' player-manager into a hit Tuesday night that would make him baseball's most prolific hitter.

Rose came up empty in four heart-stopping at-bats, leaving him to share honors as baseball's hit king with Ty Cobb for at least one more night

Sure, I felt I was going to get a hit," Rose said, after popping out twice and flying out twice in the San Diego Padres' 3-2 victory Tuesday night. "I didn't know what kind it was going to be. My first three times up, there was nobody on base, and maybe I was trying to hit the ball too hard.

"A couple of pitches sailed on me, came up and in on me. Usually I don't swing at bad pitches. I might have been a little over-

With good reason. The capacity crowd had come expecting to see baseball history made with Rose's 4,192nd hit. Some had camped out overnight at the stadium to snap up a limited supply of standing-room

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston lefthander Bob Knepper and the Astros are both peaking in a late-

The 67-69 Astros have won 11 of their last 13 games and Knepp nas contributed with three straight wins and five wins in his last six decisions

Knepper, 13-10, was sharp again Tuesday night in the Astrodome as he pitched a three-hitter against the San Francisco Giants in a 4-1 victory that was his sixth straight win over his former team.

Knepper logged six strikeouts, no walks and allowed only three baserunners as he retired the last 14 Giants

'My last four or five games, I've pitched well," Knepper said. "I've changed my approach to pitching by being more aggressive and throwing more fastballs. I think my improvement is reflected by my lack of walks."

Houston remained in fourth place in the National League West as the Astros have struggled to overcome an 8-18 July

'We collapsed in July but we're playing well now," Knepper said. "We may not win a pennant but it feels good that we finished strong." Knepper knocked in one run and Kevin Bass singled in two more runs in the fourth inning.

"We may be a team that needs a 200-game season," Bass said.

baseman Chris Brown continued a strong offensive showing as his fourth-inning, two-out homer was the only damage against Knepper. "I know we can't win first place, but I'm doing my best," Brown, who is hitting .280.

Brown has 15 home runs and the best average of any National League rookie who has played 100

Loser Mike Krukow, 8-11, left the game after only $25 innings when Knepper's infield single struck him on the right thumb.

San Francisco manager Jim Davenport noted that his 53-83 Giants' batting average of .231 is the lowest in the major leagues.

"We're just not hitting the ball good now. Noboby," he said. "We haven't hit the ball good here (at the Astrodome) ... but we weren't hitting well before we got here." Naturally, Houston manager Bob Lillis was in a more upbeat mood. 'We've had good starting pitchting, good bullpen help and timely hitting over the last month. Knepper has pitched excellently and we've played about as well as we can," he said

Phillies 5, Expos 2 Mike Schmidt's three-run homer with none out in the bottom of the 11th gave Philadelphia the victory over Montreal.

Juan Samuel led off the inning by getting hit by a pitch from reliever Tim Burke, 8-3. Von Hayes grounded to second baseman Vance Law, who made a difficult stop but threw high to second in attempting a force play. Schmidt then hit his 27th homer of the season, making Don Carman, 8-4, the winning

Blue Jays 2, Tigers 1

In Toronto, Damaso Garcia singled in the seventh inning to snap a 1-1 tie and Doyle Alexander bested Jack Morris as the Blue Jays sent Detroit to its' sixth straight defeat.

The victory kept Toronto 1½ games ahead of New York in the American League East.

Yankees 13, Brewers 10 In Milwaukee, Ron Hassey and Ken Griffey hit three-run homers as New York outlasted Milwaukee for their 11th consecutive victory. The 11 straight wins are the most by a Yankee team since September, 1964.

New York starter Ed Whitson, 10-7, pitched seven innings allowing eight runs on 12 hits. Bob Shirley came on in the eighth to earn his second save.

In Anaheim, Frank White and Lonnie Smith hit two-run homers to back the three-hit pitching of Charlie Leibrandt as Kansas City blanked California to extend their lead over the Angels in the American League West to 11/2

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Jose Guzman, a young right-hander being counted on for big things in the Texas Rangers' pitching future, made a generally good impression in his big league debut.

"He showed me a good arm. I know it was just his first game up here, but he's got a chance to be a good one,'' said Oakland A's Manager Jackie Moore, whose team broke a six-game losing streak by winning 10-3, scoring the first five runs off Guzman.

Big league hitters, especially Bruce Bochte, impressed Guzman, too. Bochte's two-out, two-run homer in the fifth inning snapped a

"I was excited," said the 22-year-old pitcher from Puerto Rico. "I just made two mistakes. Their catcher (Mike Heath) got a single that brought in two runs, and the second mistake was the home run pitch. I tried to get the ball inside and put it right down the middle.

"That's the way you learn." Guzman, 10-5 for the Rangers'

Oklahoma City farm club this year, gave up four hits and just three earned runs in five innings. Two other recent additions to the Texas staff, Matt Williams and Ricky Wright, finished up.

In the A's five-run seventh, Dave Kingman came to the plate with the bases loaded and hit his 19th grand slam homer — tops among active major leaguers - off Williams. Kingman had been in a power slump, with just five homers since the All-Star break.

"He must have come out of it tonight," said Williams, whose fastball on a 3-1 count was pounced on by Kingman, whose 27th homer of the season was a blast to deep left-center.

'Yanks seek pitching help; go after trade for Seaver

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Yankees have climed 300-game winner Tom Seaver of the Chicago White Sox and will try to work out a deal for the 40-yearold veteran today, according to a report in the New York Daily

The News reported in today's editions that sources close to both Seaver and the White Sox said that details of a trade were being negotiated. A 48-hour waiver period will expire today. No other American League club lower in the standings than the Yankees had claimed Seaver. If a deal is not worked out between the two clubs, Chicago will remove Seaver from the waiver list

The Yankees, 13-10 winners in Milwaukee Tuesday night, have won 11 straight and 29 of 34. New York trails the Toronto Blue Jays by 11/2 games in the American League East.

But despite the winning streak, the Yanks have been looking for help in the pitching department. "We're trying, believe me, we're trying," Yankee owner George Steinbrenner said of New York's quest for pitching help. "I've said before that we're not going to mor-tgage our future for the sake of getting a veteran pitcher who might only help us for a couple of weeks.'

But the prospect of the one-time Met in pinstripes has to be an attractive one to Steinbrenner, as well as to Seaver.

"All I can say right now is that the thought of coming back to New York is certainly attractive from a personal standpoint," Seaver told the News. "I haven't been told anything, but I'm not totally surprised by this, simply because our club has to decide which way they want to go next year. At least I have a say in this."

Seaver's approval on an agreement between the Yanks and White Sox would be needed to complete any transactions.

Seaver, who won his 300th game on Aug. 4 at Yankee Stadium, is 13-10 this year with a 3.25 ERA, eighth best in the AL.

The News said a source close to Chicago co-owner Jerry Reinsdorf was looking to trade Seaver and his $1 million annual salary. Chicago is all but out of the pennant race, standing nine games behind firstplace Kansas City in the AL West.
