How's that?

Water odor

Q. Big Spring water has a pleasant odor now, like water in other cities. What happened?

A. Public works director Tom Decell said the chlorine odor is no longer detectable because of a new disinfectant process that eliminates trihalomethane, a carcinogenic byproduct of chlorine and organic matter. The change is the result of the recent Pure Drinking Water Act.

War of Independence celebrated in festival

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Late during the night of Sept. 15, 1810, a Creole priest named Miguel Hidalgo launched the Mexican War of Independence in a little town called Dolores.

He called together the townsmen and raised what is known in Mexican culture as the "Grito de Dolores," or the "Cry of Dolores."

Hidalgo demanded independence from Spanish rule.

"Lots of people here like to celebrate Diez y Seis because their parents or forefathers have remained on land that once belonged to Mexico. They have continued carrying on the tradition," said Pat DeAnda, president of the Big Spring chapter of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

She said those of Mexican ancestry who have remained in West Texas carry with them the many traditions, cultural aspects and heritage that is celebrated annually during Diez Y Seis festivals.

And the tradition carries on this weekend as Big Springers are invited to participate in Diez y Seis festivities that take place in Comanche Trail Park Saturday and Sunday.

This is Big Spring's fourth year to celebrate Diez y Seis, DeAnda said.

The celebration ignites Saturday with a parade at 10 a.m. starting next to the Giant Discount Food Store at 611 Lamesa Highway. Paraders will march over the Gregg Street Bridge to Second Street and head east to Main Street, then march south on Main to

Farm Aid train plans to stop in Big Spring

Merle Haggard's Farm Aid train will be chuggin' through Big Spring briefly Wednesday afternoon on its way through West Texas.

The stop for his train, "The American," will be one of many on its journey from Bakersfield, Calif., to Chicago, Ill., where the Farm Aid concert will be performed Sept. 23. The concert, scheduled to be a massive affair like the recent Live Aid concerts, will benefit American farmers who are facing bankruptcy.

Slated to join Haggard on the trip are a number of performers, including Willie Nelson, Hank Williams Jr., Johnny Cash, Janie Fricke and Lacy J. Dalton. In addition, most of the Farm Aid concert performers will join the train at Springfield, Ill.

After leaving Odessa at 4:25 p.m., the train will arrive at Big Spring at 5:50 p.m. and leave at 6 p.m. From Big Spring, the train will head to another whistlestop in Sweetwater.

Also on the train will be leaders of America's farm associations and institutions, including the president of the Farm Crisis Committee and Corky Jones, president of the American Agricultural Movement.

Sales tax rebates increase

Big Spring and Midland continue to show healthy increases in retail sales so far this year as compared to Abilene and San Angelo, according to sales tax rebate figures released from the state's comptroller's office.

Big Spring's figures indicate a 9.15 increase, year-to-date from this time in 1984, and Midland tops the area list at 15.08 percent. Abilene's gain from 1984 is less than 0.5 percent, while San Angelo posted a modest 6.41 percent.

The payments cities will receive soon from the state represent taxes collected on sales made in July and the second quarter.

Big Spring will receive a sales tax rebate of $23,039, compared to $83,309 during the same time period of 1984. Last year at this time, Big Spring had received $1,066,392 in tax rebates. So far this year, the city has received $1,164,019.

Coahoma showed a decline of 0.17 percent. The city will receive a check for $2,468.66. So far this year, Coahoma has received $26,654 in sales tax revenue, which is comparable to last year's amount of $26,699.

Howard County has received sales tax revenue in the amount of $1,205,788 so far this year, a 9.56 percent increase from last year's $1,100,596.

This year's increases, however, are not a precise measure of retail sales growth because the 1984

Decision favors 'white oil' drillers

AUSTIN (AP) — State District Judge Harley Clark ruled Friday that the Railroad Commission erred in the way it adopted an order that "white oil" operators in the Panhandle Field feared would shut down their wells.

Clark held the May 13 order null and void "because it did not follow the 'rulemaking' procedures set out in and required by" the Texas administrative procedures act.

Attorney Bill Boyd of McKinney, representing white oil interests, described Clark's ruling as a "significant turn of events in the whole controversy."

"It's the first victory of any sort the independents have had in four years," Boyd said.

General Counsel Susan Cory of the Railroad Commission said, however, the judge's ruling does not stop the commission from checking white oil wells to see if they meet the test of one or more barrels of oil per 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

White oil lawyer Ivan Hafley of Austin responded that even if the oil and gas regulatory agency retests the wells, Clark's ruling prohibits them from shutting down or reclassifying wells on the basis of the tests.

No immediate decision was made on a possible commission appeal of Clark's decision.

At stake in the case is $27 billion in oil and gas reserves in the 1.5 million-acre Panhandle Field in Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth counties.

Since 1978 some independent operators have been using refrigeration, or LTX, units to chill vapors as low as minus-20 degrees to convert the vapors to liquid. The liquid is counted as crude oil to meet the gas-oil ratio required by the commission.

Companies, such as Phillips Petroleum Co., which have gas rights in the field, claim the procedure is an "utter sham" in that white oil operators want their wells classified as oil wells so they can produce gas that belongs to Phillips and others.

Advantages of having a well classified as an oil well include spacing requirements that permit an oil well to be drilled on 10 acres, while a gas well can only be drilled on 640 acres. Also, the commission says, oil wells can produce more gas, which is a byproduct of oil production, than gas wells.

Then, too, if a white oil operator owns only the oil rights, which is the case in most situations, he could not produce from a gas well. LTX units were installed after independents took a 1977 commission staff letter to mean that they could count vapors chilled to a liquid in determining the classification of their wells.

Clark's opinion, which was in letter form, said, "As to the substantive merits of the case, I find no er-

Snake snatchers

Sportsmen rattled over law putting bag on contests

FAIRCHANCE, Pa. (AP) — Environmentalists and sportsmen are entangled in a sharp-toothed debate over the state's ban on timber rattlesnakes in snake sacking contests.

The state Fish Commission, which imposed the ban Jan. 1, says the contests injure the snakes by tearing their muscles, dislocating vertebrae and causing internal bleeding.

"These people are thrill-seekers and exhibitionists. The snakes are mistreated. It's inhumane, just like bull-baiting, cock fights or other things," said C.J. McCoy, a snake expert with the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh.

Sackers, who are getting around the ban by importing diamondback rattlers from Texas or moving across the state line, say the snakes are released unharmed.

"If we're going to get ridiculous, let's ban fish hooks because it hurts the fish's mouth," said James Lovette, executive director of the state House Game and Fisheries Committee. "The Fish Commission has not shown us any evidence that sacking contests are detrimental to snakes."

Even state lawmakers are involved. The House voted 150-51 on May 7 to lift the ban, and the bill is pending in the Senate. Meanwhile, the state Wildlife Conservation Fund is spending $8,000 for a three-year study on the effects of sacking on snakes.

"People say, 'So what? It's just a snake.' But if they were stuffing Bambi in a sack, there would be tremendous public outcry," said Clark Shiffer, coordinator for endangered species for the Fish Commission.

"We have a responsibility to protect a resource whether the people want it or not," said Shiffer.

Experts note that the snakes are beneficial to man by eating rodents.

Joe Youler, center, pinches the neck of a timber rattlesnake as Duane Biller, left, helps put it in a sack held by Bob Morgan in Fairchance, Pa. The trio was demonstrating how poisonous snakes are caught during one of their reptile association snake hunts.

For years, sacking contests and snake hunts have been traditional fund-raising events for rural volunteer fire departments.

Contestants enter a pit and snatch poisonous snakes with their bare hands, stuffing them into a burlap sack held by a partner. The better teams can bag five vipers in less than four seconds. A snake bite means disqualification, not to mention the discomfort.

In the state sacking championships at Cross Fork in June, the Kettle Creek Hose Co. raised $10,600 for fire and ambulance service in Potter County, bagging diamondbacks purchased from Texas.

"They weren't going to stop us. We didn't break any laws," said Donald Clemmer, 46, fire chief and organizer of the contest.

"You have to take a stand. Once you let the do-gooders stop you from this, what's next? This world would have to stop because some people don't want to allow boxing or motor racing," Clemmer said.

Local residents were irate after Ralph Abele, executive director of the Fish Commission, described the Cross Fork contest as "a typical repulsive scene, with a seemingly endless supply of alcoholic beverages and some evidence of drug use."

"At Cross Forks, there's a couple of people that wouldn't mind bagging Ralph Abele — with the snakes inside," said Lovette.

Three other events were held in addition to Cross Fork this year, down from 14 the year before.

"I feel the contests are on the way out," said Bob Greenleaf of Coatesville, president of the 225-member Keystone Reptile Association and a four-time victim of rattlesnake bites.

"It's sad. I feel bad about it. I don't think it's right." The Keystone club's motto is "Keep 'Em Alive."

Horse show set Sept. 21

The All-Breed Open and Youth Horse Show at the Howard County Fair will be Sept. 21 at the Roden Bowl next to the Howard County Fairgrounds.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. The entry fee for each class is $5.

Classes offered will be open halter classes for stallions, mares and geldings, and youth halter classes for ponies, geldings and mares. Performance classes include showmanship, trail, western pleasure, reining, barrel racing and pole bending. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded in each class and age group.

ror in the decisions and actions of the commission.

"As to the procedure employed by the commission in treating this as a 'contested case', I find that the commission did commit error; it should have been handled as a 'rulemaking case' as required by the administrative procedures act.

Boyd said the significance of that language is that the commission in a rulemaking procedure would have to state what it thought the economic impact of the proposed rule would be for the next five years.

Some Panhandle residents claim shutting down the white oil wells would be devastating to the economy of the region, but the commission took the view that economic hardship had no bearing on the order.

Woman nabbed for robbery

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested a 41-year-old Lubbock woman on a Lubbock County warrant charging her with aggravated robbery.

Mary Lou Boyd, 41, of Lubbock was later released to Lubbock County officers.

Big Spring police transferred Wallace Terry Viasana, 30, of 1509 Main No. 1 to Howard County jail Friday afternoon.

He was arrested by police detective Bill King Wednesday on an emergency warrant for parole violations after his wife reported he had "assaulted her several times," said district parole officer David Harman.

Harman said Viasana waived his right to a parole hearing Friday and would be transferred back to the Texas Department of Corrections.

Viasana was convicted of burglary in 1981 and had served two years in TDC before being released on parole, Harman said.

Ector County sheriff's deputies recovered a 1983 Datsun pickup that was reportedly stolen in Howard County last year.

the State National Bank, DeAnda said.

Festivities will then shift to Comanche Trail Park's Settlers Pavilion for the remainder of the afternoon.

"We really have a variety of food this year besides craft and artifact booths," DeAnda said.

She said one food vendor has prepared more than 200 dozen tamales for the event.

Another event that will be highlighted during afternoon activities is a washer tournament sponsored by ALSA, a local car club, DeAnda said.

This year's festival chairwoman, Linda Arsiaga, traveled to Mexico and made arrangements for a folklore ballet group from Juanacatlan, Jalisco, to perform Saturday and Sunday evenings in the Big Spring Amphitheater. Both shows begin at 7, and admission is $1 per person.

The 18-member dance group performs a variety of folkdances representing the different Indian heritages of Mexico.

They performed Friday afternoon for second-graders at Bauer Elementary School in north Big Spring.

"This is correlated to our essential elements. It's a study in social cultures," DeAnda said.

Sunday's afternoon activities at Comanche Trail Park will begin at 1 p.m. and run until midnight, DeAnda said.

Cattlemen's Roundup seeks donated livestock for show

ABILENE — The Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children is soliciting donated cattle for its show benefiting the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene and San Angelo.

The center provides care in physical, occupational and speech therapy, audiology, orthotics, psychology, education and social services. Patients are not charged except for braces and hearing aids.

Weather

State

By The Associated Press

A high-pressure ridge extending into East Texas brought isolated thunderstorms across the state today and forecasters predicted more scattered precipitation would develop through this weekend.

The rainy weather was sandwiched between the front, which extended from the Great Lakes, and a weak trough of low pressure over the far west.

Rainshowers and isolated thunderstorms were scattered over the south plains, the Big Country near Abilene, along the Coastal Bend and Rio Grande valley near Del Rio. Skies were mostly cloudy statewide, with fair skies in the lower valleys the only exception.

Winds were light and variable across most sections. But a south wind of 10 miles an hour was noted in the northwest.

Low temperatures before sunrise cooled into the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 62 degrees at Marfa to 79 degrees at McAllen. Also, it was 70 at Stephenville and San Angelo; 73 at Austin, San Antonio and Dallas-Fort Worth Airport; 72 at Abilene and Wichita Falls; and 71 at Waco.

Additionally, Amarillo had 66 degrees; Brownsville, 77; Corpus Christi, 76; El Paso, 69; Lubbock, 69; and Midland, 67.

It should be partly to mostly cloudy with scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms through tonight. Lows tonight were expected in the 60s and 70s.

PASADENA, Calif. — The first color photograph of Uranus by the Voyager 2 spacecraft shows the planet with a distinctly bluish tint.

The photograph of the solar system's third largest planet, released Thursday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, was taken July 15 when Voyager 2 was 153 million miles from Uranus.

"The planet looks like a blue marble, just about that size" in the composite photograph, said spokesman Jim Doyle.

Doyle said the bluish color is caused by methane gas in the planet's atmosphere, which absorbs red light from incoming sunlight, leaving blue to reflect back as the dominant visible color.

NASA said the color photo of Uranus "is the first picture with sufficient resolution to improve our knowledge of the positions of the planet and its known moons — information that will become critical for final targeting during the last few hours preceding Voyager's flyby of Uranus."

Crossroads residents peer curiously through a window of the Sacia Clinic in Cape Town, looking into a ward where those wounded by police gunfire were being treated Thursday afternoon. One of the victims is visible on a cot inside the clinic.

Landfill covers films

LOS ANGELES — A film historian wants to recover as many as 300 silent movies buried under 3,000 tons of garbage in a county landfill, but a sanitation official warned today the search will cost at least $2,500 a day.

Paul Caruso of Archival Research Co. said he ended a nine-month search on Monday with the discovery of an old film vault that had been sealed off in a former studio turned office building.

But when he arrived at the corner building in Hollywood, only 21 films were left, including works by Charlie Chaplin and another comic, Charlie Weaver, and some silent films from China and Taiwan before World War II.

The bulk of the films, in 200 to 300 cans, had been tossed in a dump bin and hauled to the Scholl Canyon landfill in suburban Glendale, where they were dumped and covered by other garbage.

Bob Rosen of the American Film Institute said it was unlikely that any works by Chaplin buried under the garbage would be rare, because there are multiple prints of most of the actor-director's works.

Teachers defy order

PAWTUCKET, R.I. — Hundreds of defiant teachers gave their students a lesson in civil disobedience and organized labor Friday, ignoring a judge's order to end their illegal eight-day strike.

Elsewhere, teachers in Indiana reached a settlement less than hour after they set up picket lines, while strikes by 7,600 teachers in Seattle, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and New York meant no class for 106,500 students.

In Pawtucket, about 2,000 of the city's 8,200 students came to school Friday, but were turned away when only 12 of the 600 teachers in Rhode Island's second-largest school system reported to work.

It is the third time in 10 years the city's teachers have defied court orders to end walkouts.

Pass laws

Changes proposed in apartheid rules

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Critics of apartheid today praised the government for proposing changes in its race laws, but asked for more. Three top businessmen met with underground black guerrillas in neighboring Zambia in an attempt to find common ground.

A government panel on Thursday proposed repeal of the "pass laws" that keep blacks out of white areas. A day earlier, the government announced it was willing to grant South African citizenship to some blacks.

"This is the beginning of the end of apartheid," said Sheena Duncan, the white president of the Black Sash women's movement, which opposes the nation's system of racial segregation. "I really do think it means something. They are not playing around with words this time."

Helen Suzman, a white member of Parliament and veteran anti-apartheid campaigner, called proposed changes in the pass laws "probably the most important step forward in 30 years."

However, the United Democratic Front, the main multiracial organization opposed to white-minority rule, said white leaders still believed "everything has to be done in such a way as not to affect white-minority power and privilege."

Opposition newspapers today welcomed the news of the proposed reforms, but urged further steps be taken. "Don't stop now," urged the business newspaper, Business Day.

The Afrikaans-language newspaper Beeld, which often reflects the thinking of President P.W. Botha's National Party, said the pass laws had never worked and should be scrapped.

The delegation of white businessmen met for six hours Friday with leaders of the exiled African National Congress, the main guerrilla group fighting to overthrow white rule.

The meeting was held in a private lodge of Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda in eastern Zambia's Luangwa Game Park.

Gavin Relly, chairman of South Africa's giant mining conglomerate, Anglo American Corp., said the talks gave him "a good sense that more talks might lead to some fruitful conclusion."

Business sources identified the other businessmen taking part as Zac de Beer, an Anglo American director, and Tony Bloom, head of Premier Group, a food and retailing group.

All three have been critical of what they say is the white-minority government's refusal to consider an end to discriminatory race laws.

More than 700 people, mostly blacks, have died in a year of protests against white-minority rule, and the violence has eroded the confidence of the international business community in South Africa's stability.

Outlawed in South Africa, the ANC was headed by Nelson Mandela, now jailed for life on a conviction of plotting sabotage.

A white deacon in the Dutch Reformed Church died today of head wounds received when he was hit by rock Thursday in Guguletu, a black township near Cape Town, police said.

Residents reported more trouble in Soweto, the black township outside Johannesburg, on Thursday. They said police rounded up as many as 600 students near a high school and held them in Diepkloof Prison under the state-of-emergency regulations that forbid gatherings outside school buildings.

Police said they opened fire with shotguns on "unruly" students, wounding a 50-year-old white teacher and 10 black students. The school where they gathered, Hlengiwe High, has been a center for students advocating school boycotts.

Witnesses said police did not hold students under age 12. The White City Jabavu neighborhood, where the arrests took place, has been the hardest hit in Soweto during the 13 months of unrest that has resulted in more than 700 deaths nationwide.

Rioting swept the Cape Town area Thursday, and police reported they shot and killed three black men.

The pass laws, instituted 40 years ago, require South Africa's 24 million blacks to carry special passes to reside near white areas or work in them. The President's Council Committee suggested the system gradually be abolished.

The changes, expected to be passed by Parliament next year, would make possible the reunion of families in tribal homelands with male kin working in the cities.

From 200,000 to 300,000 blacks a year are arrested for violating the pass laws and sent back to the homelands, usually for working illegally in the cities.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the Reagan administration hopes "that freedom of movement could become a feature in South African society ... We find it encouraging that the South African government is apparently reviewing its policies in this area."

Britain set to retaliate

LONDON — Britain is prepared to eject more Soviet officials if the Soviet Union orders even one Briton to leave Moscow following the defection of a major KGB figure and expulsion of 25 Soviet spies, British officials warned on Friday.

One official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said defector Oleg A. Gordievski was "one of the largest catches" for Western intelligence since World War II.

Gordievski headed the KGB secret police operation in Britain, the Foreign Office said Thursday when it announced his defection. It ordered 25 Soviet diplomats and other personnel to leave Britain by Oct. 3, saying Gordievski had identified them as spies.

So far, Moscow has not reacted to the expulsions. But the British officials said they believed retaliatory Soviet expulsions were likely.

Nuke tests challenged

RAROTONGA, Cook Islands — Protesters seeking an end to French nuclear tests in the South Pacific have challenged French President Francois Mitterrand to swim in the lagoon where the bombs are detonated to prove his government's claims they are harmless.

Mitterrand arrived today at Mururoa Atoll, 750 miles southeast of Tahiti, where France has conducted nuclear tests for a decade.

He is scheduled to preside over a meeting of the recently formed Coordinating Committee for the South Pacific, composed of top French military officials in the Pacific and French ambassadors from the region and from the United States and Japan.

The Alliance, a ship crewed by New Zealand peace activists, was in Rarotonga today preparing to sail to Mururoa in French Polynesia to protest the nuclear testing.

Its crew challenged Mitterrand to eat fish from Mururoa's waters and swim in its lagoon to prove French claims the tests have not damaged the environment.

Station master blamed

LISBON, Portugal — Government officials on Friday blamed a station master for the head-on collision of two speeding passenger trains in central Portugal. At least 49 people were killed.

The regional rescue center estimated as many as 64 people were missing, citing reports from families, friends and embassies of passengers not accounted for.

Firemen combed through the burned and twisted wreckage in the mountainous Serra de Estrela region two days after the accident, looking for remains of more victims. A Paris-bound express train full of migrant workers slammed into a local train Wednesday evening. Both trains were said to be moving about 60 mph.

"It has been established that the blame lies with a station master who allowed the trains to move on in opposite direction on the single track," Carlos Melancia, minister of public works and transportation, told The Associated Press.

The Order planned to kill Kissinger, member testifies

SEATTLE (AP) — Members of The Order were assigned to assassinate Henry Kissinger, David Rockefeller and other prominent people as part of their oath to rid America of Jewish influence, a former member of the white supremacist group testified Friday.

The members went as far as to plan a suicide bombing at the Olympic Hotel in Seattle in November 1983, when a member of France's wealthy Rothschild family supposedly was to visit.

The testimony came from Denver Daw Parmenter II, one of 23 people indicted for racketeering in what the government says was a crime wave by the group that included murder, armored-car robberies and counterfeiting.

Parmenter, 33, pleaded guilty in January to racketeering in exchange for a 20-year term in a medium-security prison. Ten other indictees pleaded guilty earlier, and one defendant pleaded guilty Friday.

Thomas Bentley, one of 11 defendants on trial, changed his plea after the trial adjourned for the day. Bentley, 57, of Hayden Lake, Idaho, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to racketeer. Sentencing was set for Jan. 24 and details of the plea agreement were sealed at the government's request.

Ten defendants remain on trial.

In a 21-count federal indictment, Bentley was accused of helping kill Walter West, an Order member said to have been slain by his fellow members.

Parmenter was the second government witness in the case before U.S. District Judge Walter McGovern.

Members of a federal jury in Seattle listen to opening statements in a racketeering case against 11 members of the right-wing group The Order.

Dying child's charity spent money on officers

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A charity for dying children used most of its proceeds to pay fat salaries and provide loans and luxuries for its officers, says Connecticut's attorney general, who is trying to close it down.

"The reality is, the dream has become a nightmare," Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman said Thursday of the Genie Project, which purports to make dreams come true by granting dying children their last wish.

In a lawsuit aimed at closing down the charity, Lieberman said the operators raised $237,000 last year and spent only $10,000 on children. Most of the money — $155,000 — went to a professional fund-raiser.

The rest, he said, was used to pay the operators' salaries, buy jewelry, and rent a car, a videotape recorder and an X-rated movie entitled "Sex Games."

"In the three years I have been attorney general, I have not seen a case that has made me angrier," Lieberman said.

Francis M. Donnarumma, an attorney for charity operators Michael and Suzanne Bates, said there had been no intent to defraud the public.

"The Genie Project has been run in a very public way," Donnarumma said. "There should be no suggestion it was some sham or device created to divert funds. To the extent there is a problem, I think it's going to be something — and I'm not even conceding this."

"What kind of charity would take advantage of dying children for personal profit?" Lieberman asked at a news conference.

Survey participation

Recently, all Howard County Agricultural Producers received a letter from our department requesting information in survey form to obtain information regarding the feasibility of a local Farmer's Market.

There is currently interest in such a market in counties in our area. This survey form will provide information about the possibilities of a successful operation of such a market in Howard County. Farmer's markets have provided unique opportunities for additional ag-income to producers through direct-to-consumer sales.

In this week's column, I am including information sought on this survey for those of you that might not have received this in your mail. Regardless, if you are only a small producer or one venturing into a large-scale operation, your opinion is important. Please feel free to comment about this type of project on the survey form.

Additional surveys are available in the Extension office.

You may return the information by mail. Please send it to Dr. Austin Stockton, Extension Horticulturist, Texas A&M Extension Service, P.O. Box 1298, Fort Stockton, Texas, 79735. If it is more convenient, drop the information by the Howard County Extension Office and we will forward it.

The survey asks for:

Producer's name, address, and farm location. Next, list how many acres of the following you had in 1985: Tomatoes, beans, sweetcorn, blackeyed peas, cantaloupes, cucumbers, honeydews, watermelons, squash, pumpkins, okra or other. Next, answer which of these vegetables you grew under contract.

How many fruit trees did you have in production in 1985? List them from the following: Pears, peaches, plums, pecans, apples, apricots, grapes or other. How do you normally market your vegetables? Are you satisfied with the way you now market your vegetables? Why or why not?

How do you normally market your fruit? Are you satisfied with the way you now market your fruit? Why?

Would you market your fruit and vegetables through a local farmers marketing outlet if one was available? What crop would you grow? Do you grow fall or winter vegetables? If so, name the vegetables produced and the number of acres.

Focus on the family

Balancing family, career

Most working mothers agree that finding enough time for work, family, themselves and their spouses is a difficult task. When there isn't enough time, work sometimes spills over into family life and vice-versa, making the working mother's task even harder.

That's why it's important to compartmentalize — concentrate on work when at work, the family while at home, and also reserve some time for yourself and your spouse.

Start by developing strategies to keep from taking work home with you. Occasionally needing to catch up on some work at home is normal. But if you frequently need family time to get your work done, important relationships are probably being neglected.

Think about why you're bringing work home. Are you using your time well? Are you lacking in some skills or knowledge that would make you more efficient? Or is work providing an escape from family problems that need to be faced?

Once you have realistically examined the reasons for bringing work home, plan for more on-the-job. You might want to read material on time management, ask for retraining or a re-organization of work responsibilities, or see a counselor to begin confront the family problems you're trying to escape.

Next, develop ways of "making space" for your children, your spouse and yourself. Here are some possibilities:

Get up an hour earlier to have personal, private time to exercise, read, meditate, or think through the activities of the day.

Plan a regular family night, afternoon or weekend. Keep this space free from chores and use it for family communication and recreation.

Have a standing weekly "date" with your spouse to go out or just spend time together without family members or friends.

For wholesome family entertainment, come to the 13th Annual Howard County Fair September 16-21. A wide variety of events are scheduled throughout the week.

Wendy's out to break Texas sales record

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Spring's newest fast food restaurant, Wendy's, is having its grand opening Tuesday at 7 a.m.

Manager Joe Creel said he expects to break the Texas record for amount of money taken in the first week. Wendy's Restaurants in Texas currently holds the record. Manager John Creel, Joe Creel's brother, said he's already had 100 to 150 people come in asking about the store's opening.

"We anticipate being very busy," he said.

The Creels attribute Wendy's success to "good quality, good people (employees) and fast service."

"We make the customer happy," Joe Creel said. "Customer satisfaction comes first. If you do that they'll be back."

Joe Creel said public officials, including the police and fire departments, will receive a 50 percent discount off their orders.

The menu will feature chicken fried steak and biscuits with gravy, two new items not yet available at all Wendy's. The Big Spring location is a test market for new foods, said area supervisor Bennie Hancock. Future menu additions may include a hotter chili and a different kind of apple danish, he said.

About half Wendy's lunch sales are usually from the salad bar, John Creel said. The salad bar is popular because it features a line of low-calorie dressings as well as a line of regular dressings and seasonal fresh fruit, he said.

The new Wendy's employs 100 people, half during the day and half at night. They spent last week in training and preparing for the grand opening.

The building, at W. Third and Gregg, features a soon-to-be plant-filled solarium. The plants don't present a health hazard because they are away from the food preparation area and because their pots are filled with pebbles instead of dirt, John Creel said.

The solarium is costly to heat, cool and keep clean, he said, but shades, ceiling fans and a separate compressor help, and he employs a window cleaner once a week.

"Heating and cooling the solarium wasn't a problem in Abilene," he said.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Fortune 500 now stagnant

By TOM PETERS

The greatest accomplishment of the American economy during the past century has been the creation of monster producers. Monolithic steel, automobile, tire and chemical companies, for instance, were the result of our mastering the art of mass production. The culmination of this effort was readily observable in the Herculean mobilization that took place during World War II.

These giant companies, with their intricate, multi-layered structures, mastered the disciplines of volume and scale economies, control and coordination. Moreover, these skills led to unprecedented profits in the post-World War II period, when pent-up domestic demand exploded and foreign competition was at a minimum.

Now, however, developing and newly industrialized nations like Taiwan and Korea are becoming the new home of efficient mass production. And the Fortune 500 companies are struggling.

Why? Because many of these bellwethers have remained focused on mass production rather than on innovation, and have not been adaptive enough to deal with radically changed technological and competitive circumstances.

The comparative advantage of manufacturing companies in mature industrialized nations like the United States is their ability to produce more specialized, higher value-added products — specialty steel, chemicals and textiles as well as computers and telecommunications. Yet, unlike some of their foreign counterparts (most notably the Japanese), American companies are not, by and large, vigorously injecting new technology into either their manufacturing or product development. Quite simply, they are not demonstrating substantial innovative skill.

Nor are large American companies focusing sufficiently on structural reconfiguration as a means of meeting the challenge of today's "second industrial revolution." Rather than attempting to gain legislative protection from the new reality, they must concentrate on meeting new challenges requiring new watchwords: flexibility, adaptability and responsiveness.

To restructure an economy requires, in part, a dependence on entrepreneurs. And these businesspersons, in unprecedented numbers, have indeed created extraordinarily successful new ventures, many of which have become household words — Wang Labs, Digital Equipment, Apple, Tandem, MCI, Intel and National Semiconductor, to name a few. But substantial reliance on entrepreneurs to revitalize the economy effectively writes off much of the Fortune 500 — and millions of currently employed people.

To be sure, some Fortune 500 companies are meeting the challenge. They are joining perennial big business entrepreneurial successes like 3M and Johnson & Johnson. For example, IBM's 15 or so new Independent Business Units have spawned such multi-billion-dollar stars as the PC division. Campbell Soup, using entrepreneurial restructuring, has upped its new product introduction rate from a trickle to 335 in the past five years.

Genuine oldies also are showing signs of life. Milliken & Co., in the beleaguered textile industry, has launched literally thousands of CATs (Customer Action Teams) which have captured market niches and cut product introduction time by 60 to 90 percent. Arvin Industries (originally a car radiator manufacturer and now a three-quarter-billion-dollar diversified industrial products firm) has adopted what its chief executive officer calls the "sprout theory of management" — allowing many niche-exploiting entrepreneurial enterprises to bloom.

At the core of all the recent Fortune 500 success stories is a common development: smaller, more entrepreneurial sub-units that are closer to the customer and that listen better to the customer. Changes in corporate structure, however, are only a first step in focusing on entrepreneurship. Changes in attitude are even more critical. Our large companies must learn to tolerate failure and disregard their own bureaucratic rules — not merely passively, but actively.

A prime example: Hewlett-Packard's senior management awarded Chuck House, a model internal entrepreneur, a "Medal of Defiance." It read in part, "Awarded in recognition of extraordinary contempt and defiance of adverse market studies."

Gifford Pinchot, in his widely acclaimed "Intrapreneuring," lionizes a new class of champion-heroes inside the corporation, such as House, and so do I. George Gilder, in his book "The Spirit of Enterprise," praises traditional entrepreneurs, and so do I. John Naisbitt's new book, "Reinventing the Corporation," describes a new, vital, innovative corporation as the model for a rosy future.

Sad to say, I don't believe that Naisbitt's vision is being realized fast enough (or at all) in 75 percent of the Fortune 500. The pace of revitalization is little more than glacial. Maybe that is why the recent protectionist movement is such an attractive idea to the labor and management leaders of many large, older enterprises.

A strong program of quotas and other protective measures may allow us to hide our number one problem — non-innovative big companies — under the rug for another 10 years. But by then it will surely be too late to save many of the current supplicants.

Hotel Settles restorations underway

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY
An urban master planning architect, Joel Mills, from San Antonio is working on the master plan for Big Spring's downtown area. He was in town Friday to meet with the Downtown Steering Committee headed by Troy Fraser. This committee is an off-shoot of the Economic Development Council, chaired by Chris Christopher.
Earlier Friday, representatives of the Santa Fe Designers, headed by J.C. Chancellor of Midland/Odessa and Dallas, were here to meet with Gil Cuadra about possible reproductions of hotel furnishings where the originals can't be found.
In the meantime, Polly Mays and a committee of Historical Commission members are working up a list of names and histories of 55 families for which Settles Hotel suites will be named. Each suite will feature a family that was important to early history and an influential leader. If you have names to suggest, call Polly Mays.

All artists and craftspeople are being sought for special jobs: the owner of the Settles is looking for an artist to commission to paint a watercolor or oil portrait of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Settles. The 5x8-foot painting will hang at the head of the Grand Stairway going from the lobby to the mezzanine and ballroom. Master craftspeople are needed to repair and restore the ornate trim and plaster in the lobby.

The education reforms passed by the Texas Legislature led many to believe that dental appointments were not excused absences. Working through Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise's office, the local dental association received a letter from the Texas Education Agency stating that the policy was not changed by the reforms. Dental and medical appointments are still excused absences."

Grand opening set for brake, muffler shop

Grand opening for Big Spring Brake and Muffler, at E. Fourth and Benton, will be 10:30 a.m. Monday.

Owner Walter McCall said the store has been open for three months, but he just hasn't had time for a grand opening.

"It was a little hectic" at first, he said.

The shop does exhaust work, brakes and shocks. McCall said he can handle any kind of light vehicle, including older and foreign cars.

"I can get original equipment parts for foreign cars," he said. "I don't always have them in stock, but I can get them. Older cars are no problem."
At least 90 percent of McCall's work has been custom exhaust and custom bending of exhaust pipes, he said. McCall's stock and turbo mufflers are guaranteed for as long as the customer owns his car, the owner said.

McCall also is part owner of Midland Muffler in Midland. When he decided to expand, he picked Big Spring as the new location because "I like the town," he said.

A Halliburton affiliate will participate with China in cementing an 18,000-foot exploratory well in China's Western Sichuan province later this year. This will be the first time a non-Chinese field service organization will perform a cementing job on the Chinese mainland.

Ken LeSuer, Halliburton's vice president for international operations, said the convincing factor for the Chinese ministry of geology was that Halliburton cemented the Anakardo basin, which is similar to the one in Sichuan.

"This project will be a very challenging one for our field personnel, since we will interface our mixing equipment with their pumping equipment," LeSuer said. "Another challenge will be the cement. The Chinese will supply our Singapore Division chemists with a sample of it, and they will formulate a slurry compatible to the Sichuan basin's geology."

Speedy Matadors slay Steers, 41-12

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

Big Spring knew the key to stopping the Lubbock Estacado Matadors would be to keep the speedy team away from the big play. The 4-5A Steers didn't, and they lost 41-12 Friday night to the Class AAAA school.

The Matadors came away with gainers throughout the night as their powerful rushing attack amassed almost 500 yards total offense. They used an arsenal of running backs for 440 yards of that total.

On numerous occasions the Matadors got caught in third-and-long situations, only to get out of the jam with long runs.

Estacado's main man was starting tailback Edward Walker who gained 216 yards in 14 carries, including scoring runs of 54 and 51 yards.

Walker had plenty of help from his fellow running backs. No less than 10 Matadors carried the ball during the game. Tailback Jimmy Doss totaled 75 yards in 12 carries and three TDs. Fullback Tyrone Moore added 50 more yards in five carries against a tired Steers defense that spent three-fourths of the game on the field.

The Steers offense was null and void in first half action against a feisty Estacado defense. So dominant were the visitors that Big Spring ran only 14 offensive plays, didn't gain a single first down and earned only 28 yards total offense during the first 24 minutes of play.

In fact, Big Spring's best first half offense came from punter Brian Mayfield. The barefooted sophomore boomed out punts of 50, 52, 46 and 37 yards.

"Our defense definitely played too much," said Steers coach Quinn Eudy. "They played fairly well considering that they were on the field so long."

While the Steer offense sputtered, the explosive Estacado offense rolled up three TD's and 261 yards in the first half.

Big Spring's old nemesis, the fumble, led to the first Estacado score. On a blocked 22-yard field goal attempt that rolled to the goal line, a Steer player tried to advance the ball and was tackled on the Big Spring 3.

Big Spring fullback Colin Carroll fumbled on the second play and the Matadors recovered on the Steers 3. It took three plays for Jimmy Doss to score from the 3. The extra point was good by Todd Doss, giving the visitors a 7-0 lead with 6:46 left in the opening quarter.

Estacado started to roll again on the last play of the first quarter. Moore dashed 43 yards down to the Steers 35 before he was bumped out of bounds by cornerback Sean Jackson. From there it took the Mats seven plays to score, with Jimmy Doss taking it in from the two. Todd Doss booted the extra point. The third Estacado scoring drive was full of big plays. The Mats started from their own 44 and marched 56 yards in six plays. The big gainers were a 21-yard run by Jimmy Doss and a 13-yard gain by Walker. The clincher was a 21-yard scoring pass from O.T. Thomas to speedy split end Richard Ross.

The PAT failed but Estacado took a 20-0 lead into the dressing room.

The Steers offense moved the ball better in the second half as they mounted two fourth quarter scoring drives. It was a mixture of the Steers second team offense that generated some offense, but by that time the game was out of reach.

Big Spring started out on the wrong foot in the start of the third period. A high snap landed in the end zone where punter Mayfield had to down the ball for a safety.

Forsan smothers Klondike, 62-0

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Forsan Buffalo halfback Bruce Strickland eludes the grasp of Klondike Cougar guard Jason Suttan.

FORSAN — Forsan is a team to watch in Class A football. Just ask the Klondike Cougars.

The Buffaloes awesome offensive machine rolled over the Cougars, 62-0, in a Friday night mismatch that put the visitors on the ropes from the opening kickoff. Forsan fullback/linebacker Bruce Strickland put to rest pregame speculation about his playing status as he touched the ball. The 205-pound senior carried for 25 yards, and silenced any doubters. The Buffaloes never looked back.

Strickland capped a first possession drive with an 8-yard touchdown run. Strickland's PAT was true, putting the Buffs up 7-0.

The first quarter scoring continued when Forsan quarterback Brant Nichols connected with split end Brandy Bryan on a nine yard touchdown pass with 3:55 left in the period. Strickland provided another big play on a 24-yard run during the five-play, 47-yard drive. Lee Morris was next up on the Buffalo scoring parade. He took a Klondike punt on his own 33-yard line and returned it for a touchdown to put Forsan up 20-0 with 2:08 still remaining in the first quarter.

Morris and the Buffalo special teams had an excellent night returning punts. The senior wide receiver/safety returned two punts for touchdowns and had a third called back in the second quarter on a holding penalty.

Forsan opened the second quarter with another touchdown. Fullback Wayne Wright scored the first of his two TDs on a 3-yard run off tackle to put the game out of reach, 27-0 with 11:17 remaining in the half.

Morris got his second punt return for touchdown late in the second quarter on a beautiful 51 yard scamper. A super block by Chris Moore sprung Morris who went in to the end zone untouched. Strickland's PAT ended the first half scoring with the Buffs up 34-0.

While the Buffalo offense was rolling up impressive yardage, the defense was stifling Klondikes running and passing game on every possession. Time and again the Forsan defensive line stuffed Klondike's quick running plays at the line of scrimmage.

Sophomore defensive tackle Stacey Munoz had a particularly good game pressuring Klondike quarterback Bryan Kirkland, while linebackers Wright and Strickland made life miserable for Forsan page 2-A

4-5A Roundup

Wichita Falls 33, Cooper 6

ABILENE — The Abilene Cooper Cougars dropped their second game of the season as they were defeated by the Wichita Falls Coyotes 33-6 last night in Class AAAAA action. The Coyotes scored 21 first half points and cruised in for the win. Cooper's lone score occurred in the final quarter with the game out of reach.

Permian 62, EP Hanks 0

Odessa Permian Mojos continued on their destructive paths as they mowed down El Paso's hapless J.M. Hanks High, 62-0. The 4-5A Mojos completely dominated the 2-5A Knights in Odessa Stadium.

Abilene 18, Sweetwater 0

SWEETWATER — The Abilene High Eagles upped their record 2-0 by taking a 18-0 over the Class AAAA Sweetwater Mustangs. The Mustangs, who are ranked No. 2 in the AP poll, saw their record fall to 1-1. The Eagles led 3-0 at half. They got one TD each in the third and fourth quarter to preserve the victory. Abilene outgained the Mustangs 242-162 in total yards.

Central 14, Killeen 0

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Central Bobcats kept their record unblemished in a tough, 14-0 win over Killeen. Central running back Don Hall opened the scoring in the second quarter, breaking a 66 yard run for the touchdown. Jeff McSpadden kicked the extra point to give the Bobcats a 7-0 lead going into the locker room. Mike Epply scored the other Central touchdown late in the fourth quarter on a four yard pass from quarterback Mario Martinez to nail down the win for the 2-0 Bobcats. Central racked up 223 yards on ground while holding Killeen to 101 yards on the game.

Colbert ahead 2 strokes in Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Even a tour veteran needs to be reminded once in a while that practice makes perfect.

That has become apparent to 44-year-old Jim Colbert, who led the $300,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament by two strokes after Thursday's first round.

"My golf has been lousy. I haven't practiced," said Colbert, who said he has been concentrating instead on his golf course development business.

Colbert said he passed up the Bank of Boston Classic last week to play golf at home in Las Vegas, Nev.

"I even practiced a little," he said. "It's conducive to playing better. I can tell you that."

Colbert, who won this event in 1972 at a different Milwaukee-area course, had a 6-under-par round of 66 that included six birdies and no bogeys over the hilly and wet Tuckaway Country Club course, a par 36-36, 7,010-yard layout.

"It's by far the best round I've played this year. It was really an easy round," said Colbert, who joined the Professional Golfers' Association Tour in 1965 and had his last tour victory at the 1983 Colonial National Invitation.

Colbert joked about playing in Thursday's round with George Archer and J.C. Snead, two other veteran touring pros.

"We've played a lot of rounds together. I'm sure we're comfortable with each other. We know each others first and last names. That's not always the case out here anymore."

A dozen golfers were tied for second, all at 4-under-par 68. The group included Bill Kratzert, who won the 1980 GMO at Tuckaway. He bogeyed No. 18, a tough par-4 of 445 yards, to lose sole possession of second. Others at 68 included two-time 1985 winner Joey Sindelar; Roger Maltbie, also a two-time winner this year; Payne Stewart, and local pro Ed Teraco.

"I would say that's odd to have that many people with the same score," said Maltbie. "Even if someone had a 64, you would still feel you were in it with a 68. I don't know anyone who won a tournament on Thursday."

Five players were tied at 69, including George Burns, winner last week of the Bank of Boston Classic.

Jack Nicklaus, playing in the GMO for the first time as a professional, also had problems on the way to a 2-under 70. He double-bogeyed No. 9, a par-4, when he drove into the rough, squirted a 3-iron into trees to the right of the green, took two shots to reach the green and then two-putted.

Nicklaus recovered to get to 5-under, but finished his round by three-putting from the back fringe for a bogey on No. 18.

"Not a very good finish, was it?" said the 45-year-old Nicklaus, playing his first round of competitive golf since the PGA Championship. "I played pretty well, actually. I putted the ball well. Even the ones I didn't make I hit well."

Nicklaus is joined in this tournament by his 23-year-old son, Jack Nicklaus II, the first time the two have played together in the same pro event. The younger Nicklaus, an amateur, shot an 80 in the first round of this, his third PGA tournament. He played in the Quad Cities Open and at Sutton last weekend but failed both times to make the cut.

Curtis Strange lines up a putt on the 16th green at The Belfry, the first day's play in the Ryder Cup between the United States and Europe.

Coahoma slips by Stanton, 8-7

STANTON — The Coahoma Bulldogs edged by the Stanton Buffaloes, 8-7, Friday night in the second game of the season for both teams.

With three seconds left on the clock, Coahoma tailback Dale Hodnett scored on a 44-yard run in the third quarter. A 15-yard penalty against Stanton aided the drive. The PAT, a run by quarterback Brian Calaway, earned the team an extra two points for that quarter.

Stanton scored in the first quarter when quarterback Kevin Glaspie threw a 10-yard pass to tight end Stan Young. The PAT by Michael Holt was good.

Neither team scored in the second and fourth quarters.

The field in Stanton was a little wet, but not too bad, according to Stanton correspondent Selan Canada.

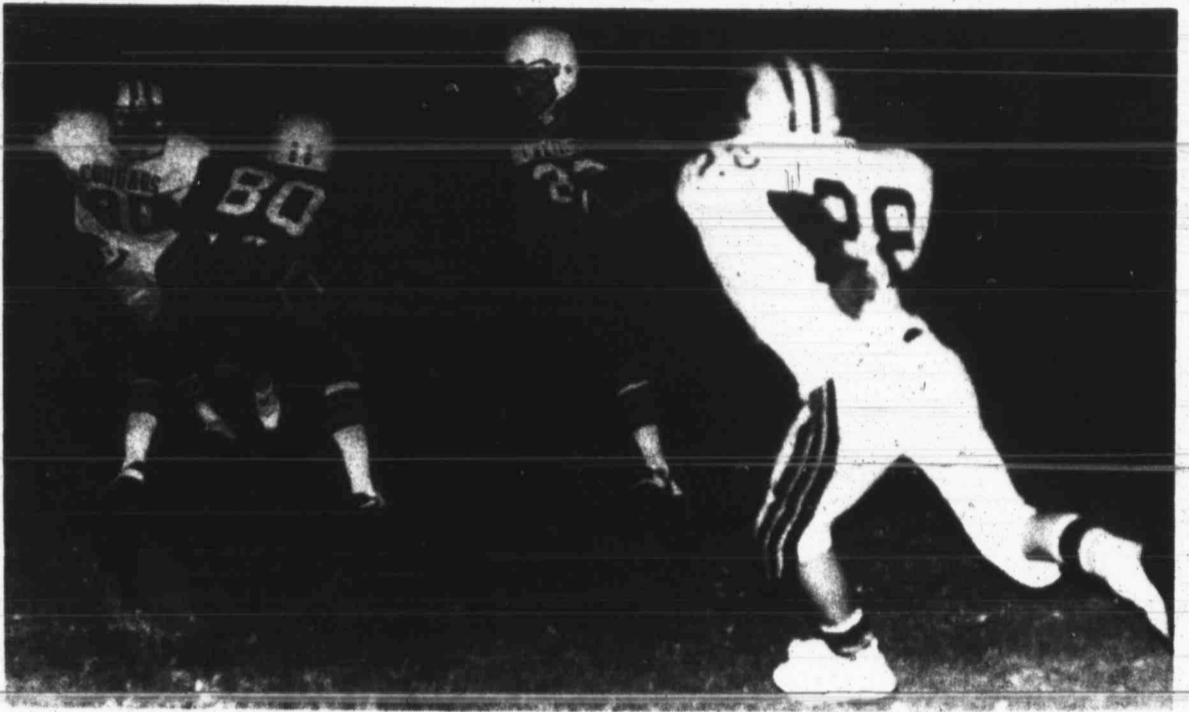

"On our first drive we took the ball from our 20," he said. "It took us 14 plays to score. We made five first downs."

Coahoma's first drive started on their seven-yard line after an interception by cornerback Darrell

Aberegg. With 93 yards to go, the Bulldogs scored in six plays.

Stanton had two fumble recoveries, one each by linebacker Timmy Rose and by safety Derek Sorley.

Sands clouds Hornets, 15-0

ROCHELLE — The Sands Mustangs continued their surprising gridiron success with a 15-0 whitewashing of the Rochelle Hornets from District 8A.

In what turned out to be a defensive battle, Sands drew first blood on a safety in the first half to give the Mustangs an early 2-0 lead.

Junior quarterback Jerry Long broke the game open for the Mustangs on a 62-yard scoring run. Sam Rodriguez's point after attempt was no good, leaving the score 8-0.

Sophomore fullback Jay Fryar ended the Mustang scoring with a seven-yard touchdown run that put the game out of reach of the Hornets.

The Mustang defense, which has allowed only one touchdown in their two games, played superbly the entire evening, crushing Rochelle's wide-open offense.

With the victory Sands raised their record to 2-0 on the year. Rochelle dropped to 0-2.

C-City Wolves nip Seminole, 10-6

SEMINOLE — The Colorado City Wolves nipped the Seminole Indians, 10-6, in the second game of the season Friday night.

Colorado City scored with a 14-yard run by running back Sam Rivera with five seconds left in the first half. The PAT by linebacker Willie Daken was good.

Seminole came back in the third quarter on a 19-yard run by quarterback David Quintanilla with 2:07 left on the clock. Colorado

City blocked the PAT, leaving the score 7-6.

Colorado City's linebacker Daken kicked a 38-yard field goal in the fourth quarter with eight minutes left in the game, bringing the Wolves' score up to 10.

Outstanding defensive players for the Wolves were Robert Lemon, Adam Alvarez, Ruben Rivera and Albert Rivera. Lemon recovered two fumbles and made numerous tackles. Alvarez broke up several

Dragons charbroil Grady, 48-32

GRADY — The Grady Wildcats, buried by seven turnovers, fell to the Dawson Dragons, 48-32.

"Seven turnovers — that's what hurt us," said Grady Coach Currie McWilliams.

The 4A six-man Wildcats remain winless this season. Dawson upped their record to 2-0.

Dawson drew first blood with 4:50 remaining in the first quarter when Max Smith scooted 39 yards for the tally. The PAT attempt was no good.

Grady came roaring back with a 56-yard pass play from quarterback Luis Gonzales to Arnold Velasco. Gonzales' kick for the extra two points was good.

Dawson added two scores in the second quarter with a Smith touchdown run of five yards and a 62-yard pass play from Kevin Coor to Raymond Rivas.

Grady stayed even with Dragons due to a 60-yard touchdown run by Michael Mitchell and a 35-yard pass play from Velasco to Mitchell.

Dawson broke the game wide open in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard touchdown pass play from Coor to Rivas and a 5-yard run by Neil Weeks with 5:14 remaining in the contest.

Grady's points in the second half came on a Mitchell 58-yard touchdown run and a 8-yard pass play from Gonzales to Joe Valle.

Next week, Grady travels to Cristoval to battle the troublesome Cougars.

the Cougar running backs. Klondike could manage but 18 yards rushing for the game.

After an interception by Forsan safety Rodney McMillan, one of three in the game, the Buffs wasted no time getting to the end zone. Sophomore wingback Michael Chandler took the ball over the goal line on a four yard run to cap off a short drive that put the score at 41-0 at the 9:40 mark in the third quarter.

Brant Nichols picked off his second Kirkland pass on the first play of Klondike's next possession, setting up Forsan's second touchdown of the quarter with the return to the Klondike 34 yard line.

Wright scored his second touchdown of the evening to push the score to 47-0 on a eight yard run up the middle. Strickland's PAT was wide right.

Brandy Bryan returned another Klondike punt 75 yards for an apparent touchdown, but it was called back on a clipping penalty. Despite the penalty, Forsan still had excellent field position at the Cougar 34.

The Buffs used an 18 yard pass play from quarterback Duaine Box to Bryan on third down to the Klondike 4 yard line to set up their next touchdown. Michael Chandler took a pitchout from Box into the end zone from the four yard line on the next play.

Wayne Wright scored the two point conversion of a pass from Box to make the score 55-0 with 3:31 left in the third quarter.

The Buffaloes ended their third quarter scoring blitz on a two yard option keeper by Box at the 1:19 mark. Forsan began the drive at the Klondike 48 and needed but three plays to find the end zone. Box opened the drive with a 48 yard option run to set up the Buffs final score. Strickland's PAT was true, making the final score 62-0.

For the night, Forsan rolled up 415 yards total offense, while holding Klondike to a paltry 115 yards total offense for the game.

Forsan ran their record to 2-0; Klondike fell to 0-2.

Steers

This gave the visitors a 22-0 bulge with 10:29 left in the quarter.

Following the free kick, Estacado set up shop at its own 46.

On the second play, it again demonstrated its big-play ability. The elusive Walker scooted 51 yards in for the score. Steer noseguard Todd Coker, who played a respectable defensive game, blocked the extra point.

The Estacado lead was 28-0 with 9:41 left in the third quarter.

Following a Big Spring punt, the Matadors launched another impressive big play scoring drive, marching 75 yards in eight plays.

At one point it the Mats drive might end as they faced a fourth-and-20 from the Steers 29. Jimmy Doss got the call on a draw play and he danced his way through a horde of Steers to the end zone.

Todd Doss' PAT was good, leaving the visitors with a commanding 35-0 lead with 4:01 left in the third quarter.

But the Matadors would have the last say. Following a Steers on-side kick attempt, Lubbock set up shop at their own 46.

On the next play the ever-present Walker took a pitch, cut across the grain, and dashed 54 yards to the final score.

Eudy was not happy with his team's offensive performance in the first half. "We didn't move the ball at all," he said. "In fact, most of our second team linemen were in when we scored. I was glad to see that. The kids did make a comeback when they were down and could have folded."

The Steers record drops to 0-2 for the season; the Matadors upped their mark to 2-0.

Yankees, Mets suffer in chase

It was a tough night for the New York Yankees, and only so-so for the New York Mets in their respective pennant battles Friday.

The Toronto Blue Jays cooled off the surging Yankees 3-2 Friday night, not only denying Phil Niekro his 300th victory but expanding their lead over New York to 2½ games in the American League East.

The New York Mets, meanwhile, split a doubleheader with Montreal, losing the first game 5-1 before winning the second 7-2. Coupled with St. Louis' 9-3 win over Chicago earlier in the day, the results trimmed the Mets' lead to just a half-game over the Cardinals in the National League East.

In the National League West, the Los Angeles Dodgers reduced their "magic number" for winning their division to 14 by splitting a doubleheader with Cincinnati. The Dodgers won the first game 8-2 and the Reds the nightcap, 6-5.

In other NL action, it was Philadelphia 6, Pittsburgh 3; San Francisco 9, Atlanta 3, and Houston 3, San Diego 2.

In other AL games, Cleveland beat Minnesota 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Twins won the nightcap 3-1. Baltimore beat Detroit 6-4 and Milwaukee stopped Boston 6-3.

In late AL games on the West Coast, it was Texas at California, Chicago at Seattle and Kansas City at Oakland.

Al Oliver drove in three runs for the Blue Jays, but all the runs against the 46-year-old Niekro were unearned. Niekro, 15-10, who had a five-game winning streak broken, probably will get his next try at becoming baseball's 18th 300-game winner in Detroit Wednesday night.

Oliver, who came into the game with only one RBI in his last 71 at-bats, drove in two runs with a third-inning triple, then singled in a run in the fifth off Niekro.

Right-hander Jim Clancy, making only his second start since coming off the disabled list on Sept. 2, pitched the first 4 1-3 innings for Toronto before needing help in the fifth from left-hander Gary Lavelle, 5-7.

"We're 2 1-2 games out of the race right now," Niekro said. "That's the biggest objective. Everybody put a lot of emphasis on the 300th game, but the most important thing is we're in the biggest pennant race that's been here in a while.

"If I don't get it (the 300th win) this year, I've got 30 or 35 starts next year, and I should get one in there," Niekro added.

Cardinals 9, Cubs 3
 Cesar Cedeno and Vince Coleman each drove in two runs and St. Louis stole eight bases to beat Chicago. Bob Forsch, 7-6, won his first game since Aug. 24, scattering six singles over 6 1-3 innings.

The Cardinals, the major league leaders in steals with 259, equalled their single-game season high in handing the Cubs their 20th loss in 25 games. Cubs pitchers allowed 10 walks and two wild pitches.

Expos 5-2, Mets 1-7
 Tim Wallach belted three hits and drove in a pair of runs to lead Montreal over New York in the first game of a two-night doubleheader. Bryn Smith worked seven innings, giving up three hits to raise his record to 16-5.

Gary Carter homered and knocked in three runs and Larry Bowa had a key double to lead the Mets to their victory in the second game.

Dodgers 8-5, Reds 2-6

Mike Marshall drove in three runs with two homers and Orel Hershiser notched his 15th victory as Los Angeles beat Cincinnati in the first game of a doubleheader.

Eric Davis singled home Eddie Milner from second base with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Reds their second-game win.

Phillies 6, Pirates 3
 Glenn Wilson drove in two runs and Ozzie Virgil singled home the winning run in a seventh-inning rally to lead Philadelphia over Pittsburgh. Pirates starter Bob Walk, 1-3, pitched six no-hit innings and led 2-0 before the Phillies made their comeback.

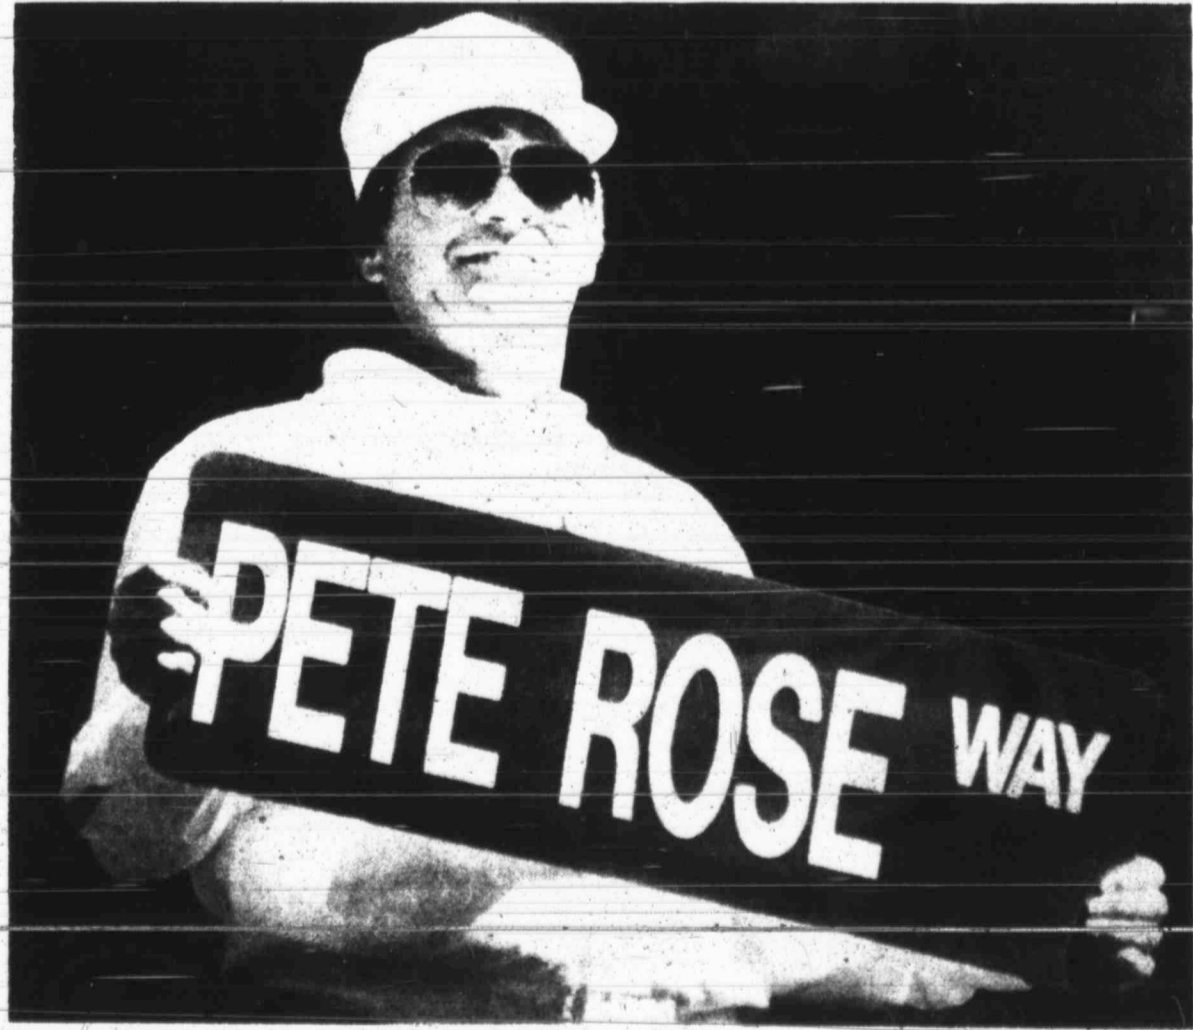

Giants 9, Braves 3
 Ron Roenicke hit a two-run homer and Vida Blue struck out nine in six innings as San Francisco beat Atlanta. Blue, 6-6, allowed only four hits but walked four, hit a batter and balked twice.

Astros 3, Padres 2
 Mike Scott pitched a five-hitter and drove in two runs as Houston beat San Diego. Scott, 17-7, won for the eighth time in his last 10 decisions, striking out six and walking four.

Indians 3-1, Twins 2-3
 Curt Wardle allowed seven hits against his former teammates in 7 1-3 innings and Cleveland scored all its runs in the first inning in beating Minnesota in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

Frank Viola and Ron Davis combined on an eight-hitter and Mark Salas and Gary Gaetti homered as the Twins took the nightcap, 3-1.

Orioles 6, Tigers 4
 Floyd Rayford hit a three-run homer and Eddie Murray hit a solo shot as Baltimore beat Detroit, extending the Tigers' losing streak to eight games.

Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose holds a street sign presented to him during ceremonies honoring him on Fountain Square in Cincinnati Friday. The town renamed Second Street after the new all-time baseball hit leader.
